14But who am I and who are my people that we can offer up anything to You so willingly?
All our offerings come from You, so we can give You nothing that isn't already Yours.
15For we are strangers before You, sojourners, as all our fathers were.

Our days on the earth are dark and temporary.
16O Eternal One our God, we realize that
all this abundance,
all that will build Your temple for Your holy name,
Is from Your hand already.
Everything is Yours.

17O my God, You test the heart and delight when it is proven faithful,
so I, with an honest heart, have willingly offered all these things.
And now I have joyfully witnessed Your people, who are present here, make their offerings willingly and joyously to You.
18O Eternal One, the God of our fathers
Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, sustain this purpose and thought
In the hearts of Your people forever
and guide their hearts to You.
19*Especially* give to my son Solomon a perfect heart,
one that keeps Your commandments, Your testimonies, and Your laws,
One that will do them all, and one that will build the temple,
for which I have made provisions.

20(to the assembly) Now bless the Eternal One your God.

Right then, the assembly obeyed David,
blessing the Eternal, the God of their fathers, and bowed low in worship before the Eternal One and the king. 21On the next day, they made sacrifices and burnt offerings to Him: 1,000 bulls, 1,000 rams, and 1,000 lambs. They also gave abundant drink offerings and sacrifices for all Israel. 22Then they ate and drank before the Eternal with great gladness, and they coronated Solomon (son of David) a second time, anointing him as ruler and Zadok as priest for the Eternal. 23Then, for the first time, Solomon sat on the throne of the Eternal as king instead of his father David. Solomon prospered, and all Israel recognized him as their king. 24All the officials, the warriors, and the other sons of King David pledged their allegiance to King Solomon. 25The Eternal exalted Solomon as a great ruler before all Israel and gave him royal majesty greater than any king before him in Israel.

26David the son of Jesse was the first king to reign over all Israel. 27His rule over Israel lasted 40 years: 7 years in Hebron and 33 years in Jerusalem. 28Then he died peacefully of old age, after a long life, riches, and honor. And after he joined with his ancestors in death, his son Solomon reigned over Israel in his place.

29The actions of King David, from his birth until his death, are recorded in the chronicles of Samuel the seer, Nathan the prophet, and Gad the visionary. 30*These chronicles include the activities during* his reign, descriptions of his power, and the experiences of him, Israel, and all the kingdoms of the nations.

2 CHRONICLES

A history from Solomon through Cyrus written for the Jews after their exile

By an unknown chronicler, possibly Ezra, the priest who came out of exile

In this second act of Chronicles, which in Hebrew is one unbroken piece of prose with 1 Chronicles, the chronicler continues to emphasize his idea that nothing is more important to the Jews returning to Israel from their sixth century B.C. Babylonian exile than maintaining a right relationship with God. He writes to remind them how blessed they are to be members of God's family, a family that began with Adam and continued through Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. As the Jews rebuild the nation after centuries of disobedience and a miserable exile, they can look to the lives of those men and of the beloved King David for role models. Based on his biography in 1 Chronicles, these rebuilders can emulate the relationship David had with God—a relationship that led David to build a powerful nation recognized by all the surrounding states, to make preparations for God's temple, and to groom the next great king, Solomon, to rule. Just as Solomon made Israel into a great nation with his building projects and diplomacy, now the Jews will rebuild Jerusalem and find their place in a politically tumultuous world.

But David and Solomon were not the only kings whose works should be remembered by the returning Jews. The chronicler includes the examples of Israel's later Judean kings—kings such as Asa, Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, and Josiah—who reformed the political and religious practices of the wayward and returned Judah to proper observation of the law and worship of the Eternal One. David and Solomon may have initiated the Eternal One's religion in the land, but these kings had to stomp out their people's entrenched pagan practices to reinstitute proper worship. As the Jews now begin the arduous work of returning Jerusalem to her glory, they must remember these kings' stories and adopt their zeal for right worship and practice. They, too, will have to stomp out pagan ideas, those the people picked up from their captors in Babylon, as Jerusalem is rebuilt. If these Jews can seek God's will as they rebuild Israel and the temple, then the chronicler tells them God will bring glory to His name through His people and His nation once again.

1 After David had unified the tribes of Israel into one nation, subdued his neighboring enemies, and joined his ancestors in death, David's son Solomon demonstrated his authority as king over Israel. The Eternal God was with Solomon and made him great.

As the new king, Solomon continues building God's temple, utilizing David's preparations, building the structure, and establishing the religion of the Lord.

2 As their new king, Solomon spoke to all Israel (commanders of thousands and hundreds, the judges, and every tribal leader). 3 Then he took the group up to the high place at Gibeon, a place in the mountains known for its connection to the Divine, where God's meeting tent stood. (Moses, the servant of the Eternal, had made this tent and the covenant chest in the wilderness where it traveled with the people, 4 but David prepared a permanent home for the covenant chest of God in Jerusalem where it stayed after he took it from Kiriath-jearim.) At this high place, 5-6 Solomon and the group looked for the bronze altar, which Bezalel (son of Uri, son of Hur) had placed before the Eternal's congregation tent. Solomon offered 1,000 burnt offerings there in the presence of the Eternal.

7 That night, the True God appeared to Solomon.

God *(following the offerings of Solomon): Ask what you want from Me, and I shall give it to you.

Solomon: 8-9 The loyal love You showed my father, David, was immeasurable, and You, O Eternal God, have fulfilled Your promise to my father and made me the king of innumerable people in his place. 10 Now that I am their ruler, give me wisdom and knowledge to lead this great people. Without such wisdom, who can govern such a great people?

God: 11 You did not ask for selfish personal gain: riches, wealth, honor, the deaths of your enemies, or a long life. Instead, you asked for godly wisdom and knowledge to rule My people, over whom I have made you king. 12 Because you thought of the welfare of My people, I have granted you this exceptional wisdom and knowledge. In addition, I will give you riches and wealth and honor greater than any king ever has possessed or ever will possess.

► These gifts are signs that God loves Solomon, and Solomon could use them for his own selfish reasons. But Solomon demonstrates wisdom by using these exceptional gifts to honor God in the construction of His temple.

13 Having sacrificed to God at the meeting tent on the high place of Gibeon and received His gifts, Solomon returned to Jerusalem to govern Israel.

14 There Solomon gathered his wealth. He collected 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen; and then he stationed them in the fortified cities, as well as in Jerusalem, where he remained. 15 He distributed silver and gold until they saturated Jerusalem. He imported cedar trees until they rivaled in number the sycamores of the foothills. 16 He imported horses from Egypt and from Kue, a nation north of Israel—the king's merchants bought the horses from Kue, 17 and they acquired chariots from Egypt for about 15 pounds of silver each and horses for about 4 pounds of silver each. Solomon then traded them to all the Hittite and Aramean kings.

2 Having amassed his wealth, Solomon fulfilled God's prediction that David's son would build His house. Solomon decided to build a house honoring the reputation of the Eternal, a temple, and a house for himself, a palace. 2 First Solomon procured the stone: 80,000 men would quarry it in the mountains, 70,000 men would carry it, and 3,600 men would supervise them. 3 Then Solomon wrote to Huram, king of Tyre, asking for cedar.

Solomon: I come to ask for your fine cedarwood, just as my father David did so he could build his royal palace. Please do the same for me.

4 I am preparing to build a temple honoring the reputation of the Eternal One my God. It will be dedicated to Him and will be the site of our religious practices. There we will perform all the duties He perpetually requires of Israel: burning fragrant incense before Him, preparing the unleavened bread continually, and

This temple on the elevated area overlooking the city of Jerusalem is truly remarkable. Moving from the outer court area, one observes a massive 15 by 30 foot altar to ritually sacrifice clean land animals and a huge "sea" or wash container 7½ by 15 feet to ceremonially wash the priests before they enter the next two areas: the holy place and the most holy place.

Moving into the actual temple structure is similar to being transported into the heavens. One passes between two larger-than-life tree-like columns and then into a brilliant golden room decorated with trees, pomegranates, winged creatures, and jewels. Upon entering the holy place during the eastern sunrise, one would be blinded as though looking into the sun. Then as the worshiper ascends the stairs, the most holy place has two enormous winged creatures flanking the Eternal's temple footstool, the covenant chest. This room images the very heavenly throne room. To visualize and enter Solomon's temple is to visualize and enter the heavens.

giving burnt offerings each morning and evening, on Sabbaths, new moons, and appointed feasts of the Eternal One our God. 5This temple must be great because our True God is more powerful than all the other gods. 6Though no one can build a house for Him because He inhabits the heavens and beyond, I am humbly building a place where we can encounter Him and burn incense before Him.

7*To this end,* send me a man who can work gold, silver, brass, and iron; sew with purple, crimson, and violet fabrics; and engrave. Your servant will aid the skilled men whom David, my father, provided for me in Judah and Jerusalem. 8Send me cedar, cypress, and algum timber from Lebanon, for I know your servants can skillfully cut timber from Lebanon; My servants will work with your servants 9to prepare an abundance of timber for me to use in the temple, which will be great and wonderful. 10I will pay your servants, the carpenters, 125,000 bushels of crushed wheat, 125,000 bushels of barley, 116,000 gallons of wine, and 116,000 gallons of oil.

Huram (in a letter answering Solomon):
11Because the Eternal loves His people, He has made you their king. 12The Eternal One, the God of Israel, creator of heaven and earth, is to be praised for giving King David such a wise son, endowed with discretion and understanding, who will build houses for both the Eternal and for himself.

13-14I am sending Huram-abi, a discerning man skilled in gold, silver, bronze, iron, stone, and wood; in purple, violet, and crimson linen and other fabrics; in engravings; and in executing any design. He is the son of an Israelite woman (from the tribe of Dan) and a Tyrian father, so he will work well with your skilled men and with those of my lord David, your father. 15-16*In addition to sending workers,* we will cut the timber you need from Lebanon and float it down the coast to Joppa, so that you then may transport it up to Jerusalem. When the men and supplies arrive at Joppa, please send your servants, my countrymen, the wheat, barley, oil, and wine you have promised them.

17*In preparation for the building projects,* Solomon ordered a census to count only the foreigners residing in Israel. This census differed from his father's census, which counted everyone in the nation. There were 153,600 foreigners living in Israel: 1880,000 men would quarry stone in the mountains, 70,000 men would carry it, and 3,600* men would supervise their work.

► These foreigners are not paid day laborers; they are slaves forced to build a temple they may never enter. This scenario is similar to the Hebrews' forced labor in Egypt and to the Israelites' eventual forced labor in Babylonia. But one thing makes Solomon's rule over them different: he presumably follows the laws of God regarding slaves (Leviticus 25:39-55). These laws specify that slaves may come from surrounding nations, must be treated fairly, and must be released in the jubilee year (a prescribed time every 50 years when debts are forgiven, seized land returns to its original owners, and slaves are freed).

3 1-2*Having assembled the materials and workers for the temple,* Solomon began to build the Eternal's temple on the second day in the second month of the fourth year of his reign. He built it in Jerusalem on Ornan the Jebusite's threshing floor (which David had purchased and consecrated) on Mount Moriah (where Abraham had been willing to sacrifice Isaac to God generations before).

3When Solomon prepared the plans of the True God's temple, he modeled the design after temples in Syria and Canaan. The length was 90 feet and the width was 30 feet. 4The length of the front porch was as wide as the temple (30 feet), and it was 30 feet* high. The rooms of the temple were highly ornamented. The porch was gilded inside. 5The main room was paneled with gilded cypress wood and engraved with palm trees and ornamental chains. 6The entire temple was decorated with precious stones and gilded with gold from Parvaim. 7-9Even the supports and fasteners were gilded—the beams, the thresholds, the walls, the doors, and the nails (which weighed 20 ounces each). The walls were engraved with winged guardians, and the upper rooms were gilded.

The most holy place, which was located at the rear of the temple, was a 30-foot square room gilded with 23 tons of gold—the same amount that David paid for the temple site. 10Inside the most holy place were two gilded, sculpted winged creatures, 11-12each with a wingspan of 15 feet.

These fantastic creatures with bird wings, human faces, and animals' body parts protect the covenant chest, and together they act as God's footstool in the temple.

Each cherub touched one wing to the wall of the room and the other wing to the other cherub. 13*Together,* their wings spanned across the room guarding the most holy place facing the main room and standing upright on their feet. 14A veil of violet, purple, and crimson fabrics and fine linen, embroidered with winged creatures, covered the entrance to the most holy place.

15-17Before the porch stood two columns, 52 feet high, crowned with 90-inch-high capitals. Solomon made decorative chains in the most holy place, adorned them with 100 pomegranates, and draped them on the tops of the columns. The column on the right was named Jachin, meaning "He establishes," and the column on the left was named Boaz, meaning "He strengthens."

4 The temple altar was bronze and incredibly large—30 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 15 feet high.

2-5*A large basin, called* "the sea," was cast—15 feet in diameter, 90 inches deep, 45 feet in circumference, and 3 inches thick. The brim was shaped like a lily blossom or like the lip of a cup with figures* cast in two rows all around it, 10 figures every 18 inches, and held 18,000 gallons.* The basin was supported by a rectangular stand made of 15-foot-tall statues resembling oxen. The 12 oxen were in two rows, three facing each direction with their hind ends at the center of the stand, all cast in one piece. 6The priests used the sea to cleanse themselves, but offerings were washed in other basins. Ten smaller basins flanked the sea, five on the right and five on the left, and the burnt offerings were cleansed in those before they were sacrificed. 10The sea stood on the right side of the house, facing southeast.*

11Huram, who was sent by the king of Tyre to help Solomon, made the pails, shovels, and bowls. When he finished his duties for the construction of the temple, he had made 12the two columns, their capitals, the globes of the capitals, and the two networks of decorative chains covering the two globes of the capitals. 13On the chains were 400 pomegranates—two rows of pomegranates on each network that covered the globes of the capitals on the pillars. 14-15He had also made the sea with the twelve oxen underneath, the basins, and their stands. 16Huram-abi used polished bronze for the pails, shovels, forks, and all other utensils commissioned by King Solomon and used in the Eternal's house. 17-18Great quantities were cast in the clay molds on the banks of the Jordan River between the cities of Succoth and Zeredah with an immeasurable amount of bronze.

19He made everything inside the house of the True God, including the golden altar; the tables (which displayed the unleavened bread); 20the golden lampstands (which burned in front of the most holy place as required); 21the flowers, the lamps, and the tongs (all of pure gold); 22the snuffers, the bowls, the spoons, and the fire pans (all of solid gold); and the entrance to the house, the inner doors accessing the most holy place, and the doors of the main room (all of gold).

5 When all this work was completed for the Eternal's house, Solomon brought in the silver, gold, and utensils, which his father, David, had dedicated for use in His temple. These things were stored in the True God's temple treasuries, where they would be guarded by the Levites.

2*Just as his father had done when he moved the covenant chest to Jerusalem,* Solomon assembled all of Israel (the generals, the judges, and every tribal leader) to move the covenant chest of the Eternal from the city of David (also called Zion) into the new temple 3in the seventh month. First all the men of Israel celebrated a feast with the king, 4-5and when the elders of Israel arrived, the Levites who were priests carried the covenant chest, the congregation tent, and all the holy utensils in the tent to the temple. 6As King Solomon and the assembly stood before the covenant chest, they sacrificed innumerable sheep and uncountable oxen. 7-8*Following the sacrifices,* the Levitical priests carried the covenant chest of the Eternal to its new home in the most holy place, under the protective wings of the creatures that covered the covenant chest and its carrying poles. 9These poles were so long that their ends could be seen in front of the most holy place (although they were not visible outside), and they are there today. 10Only the two tablets Moses received on Mount Horeb (where the Eternal made a covenant with the Israelites after they left Egypt) were inside the covenant chest.

11When the Levitical priests returned to the crowd from the most holy place (for all the priests who were present had sanctified themselves for this special occasion, regardless of their duties), 12all the Levitical singers (Asaph, Heman, Jeduthun, and their sons and their relatives) were wearing fine linen, standing east of the altar, playing cymbals, harps, and lyres, along with priests blowing 120 trumpets. 13In unison, the musicians and singers with trumpets and cymbals and instruments praised and glorified the Eternal.

Levitical Choir: He is good! His loyal love will continue forever!

At the sound of the music, the Eternal's temple was filled with a cloud, the glory of God, 14which prevented the priests from continuing to minister to the Eternal. The descent of the glory of God filled the house of the God of Israel.

This event signals His acceptance of the temple and is reminiscent of His acceptance of the congregation tent in the desert.

6 Solomon: The Eternal has told us that He resides in a thick cloud. 2Now I have built You a grand house where You can reside forever.

3-4(turning to the standing assembly of Israel and blessing them) Blessed is the Eternal God of Israel, who made these promises to my father, David, with His mouth and fulfilled them with His hands:

> 5Since the day I brought My people from the land of Egypt and traveled in the desert with them, I did not choose one city from among the Israelite tribes in which to build a temple where the people could worship Me, nor did I choose any man to lead My people Israel because I had always been their leader. 6But now I have chosen Jerusalem as the place where My reputation will be honored and David as the leader of My people, Israel.

Verses 14-42 record is a remarkable prayer by Israel's king. Solomon begins by confessing the Lord's attributes and character. Then he speaks of his humility for being given the honor of building this magnificent house, the Jerusalem temple. Solomon's public prayer before all the people brings to mind the conditional nature of this agreement between the Eternal and the people. The only way the temple can remain in operation and the people in the land is if they obey the Eternal's commands.

Solomon realizes that rebellion, pestilence, and foreign invasion will come; but if the people open their eyes and lives to God, then His ears and eyes will be opened to the plight of Israel. The centerpiece of the Eternal's relationship to Israel is the Jerusalem temple, and this is manifest at the moment when Solomon ends his prayer and divine fire comes from the heavens to consume the offerings and sacrifices.

7 Shortly after he became king, my father, our beloved King David, wanted to build a house honoring the reputation of the Eternal God of Israel. 8 But the Eternal did not agree to David's plan. He told my father David, "It is good that you want to build a house honoring My reputation; 9 however, you will not build the house. Your future son will build that house to honor My reputation."
10 Now the Eternal has fulfilled His promise—I have succeeded my father David as king of Israel and have built the temple honoring the reputation of the Eternal God of Israel. 11 In that house
I have placed the chest that holds the covenant between the Eternal One and the Israelites.

12 Solomon stood before the assembly of Israel in front of the altar of the Eternal and spread out his hands. 13 Then he stood on the bronze platform he had built in the center of the court (90 inches long, 90 inches wide, and 54 inches high), knelt down, spread out his hands toward heaven, 14 and prayed.

Solomon: Eternal God of Israel, You are unparalleled among the gods of heaven and earth. You honor Your covenants with Your servants and give limitless
loyal love to those who faithfully follow You. 15 Until now, You have honored
Your covenant with my father David,
Your servant and our beloved king, by doing all that You promised him. 16 Now that David is no longer king and I have replaced him, remember what You promised to my father David, Your servant:
"As long as your descendants follow My laws as you have done, one of them will always be a king of Israel." 17 Eternal God of Israel, honor this promise which You made to Your servant David.
18 How can I think that this temple
I have built will be suitable lodging for You when the heavens You created are not vast enough? Certainly we are not worthy to have You live among us humans. 19 Yet we hope that You will hear and address our prayers and our pleas, Eternal God, and 20 that You will watch this humble temple day and night. This will be the place for us to communicate with You. Here Your reputation will be honored, so You will be able to hear the prayers Your servants offer here.
21 Listen to these prayers when we, Your people Israel, pray, looking toward this temple, Your earthly house; hear these prayers from Your house in heaven, and forgive us.
22 If a man breaks one of Your commandments by sinning against his neighbor, making an oath, and confesses
the oath before Your altar in this earthly house, 23 then hear his oath from Your house in heaven. Judge his actions and act upon Your judgment—either punish the wicked man with the consequences of his actions or forgive the righteous man proportionate to his own righteousness.
24 If Your people Israel break Your commandments, are crushed by an enemy, and return to You, praying for forgiveness in Your earthly house, 25 then hear their prayers from Your house in heaven. Forgive the sins of Your people Israel and return them to the land You have given to their ancestors and their descendants.
26 If Your people Israel break Your commandments, are punished by a devastating drought, and return to You after their punishment by praying for forgiveness in Your earthly house, 27then hear their prayers from Your house in heaven. Forgive the sins of Your servants, Your people Israel, teach them how to follow Your ways, and send rain to Your land that You have given as an inheritance to Your people.

28If disasters, plague, or disease strike Israel—famine, pestilence, blight or mildew, locusts or grasshoppers, or military attacks at their gates—29-30then hear from Your house in heaven the prayers of every man (for his own sins) and the prayers of all Israel (for the sins of the nation) offered up with outstretched hands toward Your earthly house. Forgive or punish each man (whose intentions and heart only You know) proportionate to his behavior, 31so that man will fear and obey You as long as he lives in the land that You have given to his ancestors.

32If a foreigner (who is not one of Your people in Israel) travels to see this Your earthly house and pray toward it because of Your great name and Your mighty hand and Your outstretched arm, 33then hear his prayers from Your house in heaven. Grant the foreigner's request so that all nations may recognize Your name, fear You as we do, and recognize this temple as Your name's dwelling place.

36When Your people sin against You (as everyone does), angering You so that You give them to their enemies and into foreign captivity, 37if they pray to You and repent while in that land, admitting, "We have sinned, we have distorted Your ways, and we have acted wickedly," 38if they genuinely repent while captive in that foreign land and pray facing Israel (that You gave to our ancestors), and the city Jerusalem that You have chosen, and Your earthly house (which I have built to honor Your reputation), 39then hear their prayers and requests from Your house in heaven. Sustain their cause and forgive their sins carried out against You.

40-41Eternal God, may Your eyes witness and Your ears hear my prayer in this temple: Come to Your resting place, both You and the covenant chest of Your power. Let Your priests, O Eternal God, dress themselves in salvation. Let Your godly ones rejoice in goodness. 42Do not turn away from Your newly anointed king; remember the loyal love You promised to Your servant, my father David.

7 As Solomon finished his prayer, fire descended from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and the other sacrifices. At that moment, the glory of the Eternal filled the house.

The presence of God comes down and rests above the seat of mercy on the covenant chest with the winged guardians as His footstool.

2The Eternal's glory filled the temple so overwhelmingly that the priests could not enter. 3When all the Israelites saw the fire and the Eternal's glory, they fell prostrate before the temple, worshiping and praising the Eternal One.

Israelites: He is good! His loyal love lasts forever!

4-5*Having prayed and worshiped God,* the king and all the people made sacrifices to the Eternal and dedicated the temple. King Solomon offered 22,000 oxen and 120,000 sheep.

This is an enormous offering that signifies the importance of the occasion.

6All of Israel stood, and the priests and the Levites played their instruments to the Eternal One while other priests standing across from them played trumpets. (King David had made these instruments and used them to praise the Eternal, whose love endures forever.) 7Solomon consecrated the middle of the court in front of the Eternal's temple by giving burnt offerings and the fat of the peace offerings. The bronze altar was not large enough to hold the burnt offering, the grain offering, and the fat.

8Solomon and all of Israel (from the border with Hamath in Aram to the river of Egypt) feasted for seven days, celebrating the temple dedication and Succoth, the Festival of Booths. 9On the eighth day, after the dedication of the altar and the feasting had concluded, the people held a solemn assembly. 10On the twenty-third day of the seventh month, Solomon sent the people home, rejoicing over the goodness that the Eternal had shown to David, Solomon, and His people Israel.

11In this way Solomon successfully finished the Eternal's house and the house of the king so that everything Solomon had in his heart to do for the divine and royal residences he accomplished. 12The Eternal appeared to Solomon one night.

True God: As promised, I have chosen this temple as the place where My name will dwell and where I will receive sacrifices and prayer. I heard your prayer, and I will honor it.

13If I close up the heavens and their rain and send any of the disasters you described—drought, locusts, pestilence—to ravish the land and people; 14and My people (who are known by My name) humbly pray, follow My commandments, and abandon any actions or thoughts that might lead to further sinning, then I shall hear their prayers from My house in heaven, I shall forgive their sins, and I shall save their land from the disasters. 15Now I will witness with My eyes and hear with My ears the prayers offered in this temple 16because I have chosen and consecrated this temple as the eternal resting place for My reputation, My eyes, and My heart.

17If you follow My ways as your father David did, do all that I ask you to do, and follow My laws and commands, 18then I will establish your royal throne and keep My covenant with your father David: "One of your descendants will always be a king of Israel."

Just as the Eternal makes a covenant with David, so He will not remove David's offspring from the Jerusalem throne, as long as David's sons follow the Lord.

19If you and the Israelites ignore My ways and disregard My laws, if you serve other gods and worship them, 20then I will remove you all from My land, the land I gave to you and your ancestors, and I will destroy this temple, which I have consecrated for My reputation, making it a proverb and a byword among the nations. 21Everyone who passes by this exalted temple will be astonished: "Why has the Eternal destroyed His land and His house?" 22They will conclude, "He has done this because they abandoned the Eternal, the God of their fathers who brought them from the land of Egypt, and they served other gods and worshiped them. He is the One who has brought this evil upon them."

8 After 20 years of constructing the Eternal's house and his own house, 2Solomon built cities in the regions which Huram, king of Tyre, had given to Israel and settled the Israelites in them.

3Then Solomon conquered Hamath-zobah in Aram. 4He built Tadmor in the wilderness and all the storage cities in Hamath. 5He also built upper Beth-horon and lower Beth-horon (fortified cities with walls, gates, and crossbeams in the territory of Ephraim), 6Baalath (in the territory of Dan), all his storage cities, and all the cities for his chariots and his horsemen. Solomon built these in Jerusalem, in the region of Lebanon, and in all the lands he ruled to defend Israel's territory.

7-8All of the non-Israelites who remained in Solomon's kingdom, including descendants of Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, became conscripted laborers to this day. 9But Solomon did not enslave the Israelites for his building projects. The Israelites were warriors, Solomon's leaders and commanders of his chariots and horsemen, 10and 250 of them were his chief officers who ruled over the people.

11Then Solomon moved his wife, Pharaoh's daughter, from the city of David and away from the temple to a separate house which he built for her. Solomon thought, "My foreign wife will not live in the palace of David, king of Israel, because the places are holy where the Eternal's covenant chest has entered."

12*So that it pleased God and followed the provisions of his father,* Solomon gave burnt offerings on the Eternal's altar, which he had built in front of the porch. 13He did this daily (according to the commandment of Moses), weekly (on the Sabbaths), monthly (on the new moons), and at the three annual feasts (the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the Festival of Weeks, and the Festival of Booths). 14Following the plans of his father David, Solomon assigned the temple duties to the priests, the Levites' daily duties of praise and ministering before the priests, and the gatekeepers' gate divisions. These plans had been laid out by David, a man who followed the True God. 15The priests and the Levites followed all the commandments of their king, even those regarding the storehouses. 16Solomon finished all this work, beginning with the groundbreaking of the Eternal's temple and ending with its completion.

17Then Solomon went to Ezion-geber and to Eloth on the coast in Edom. 18Huram sent his seafaring servants in ships to help Solomon's servants sail to Ophir. There the servants took 450 talents of gold and brought them to King Solomon.

9 The queen of Sheba entered Jerusalem with an impressive entourage and camels carrying spices, a large amount of gold, and gems. She had heard about Solomon's famous wisdom, so she came to ask him difficult questions that addressed her personal concerns. 2Solomon answered these questions openly and honestly where nothing about the queen was hidden from Solomon's knowledge. 3-4His wisdom and frankness impressed and astonished the queen, as did the palace, the meal, the servants, the guests and their clothing, the cupbearers and their clothing, and the stairway* that led to the Eternal's temple. After viewing all these things, the queen was mesmerized and breathless.

Queen of Sheba: 5-6Although I did not believe the reports of your greatness—it seemed impossible that anyone could have your wisdom, power, and justice—your reputation as a well-spoken and wise king is justified. I have witnessed only a portion of your wisdom, yet even that portion surpasses the stories that are told about you. 7Those who surround you, your men and your servants, are blessed to be near you and to hear your wise musings daily. 8Blessed be the Eternal One your God, who favored your potential as a great ruler and placed you on His throne. He has demonstrated His love for Israel by ensuring the nation's future with you as their just and righteous king.

9The queen of Sheba gave to Solomon in recognition of his prestige 9,000 pounds of gold, vast quantities of gems, and a large amount of spices previously unknown in Israel. 10When Solomon's and Huram's servants had brought gold from the land of Ophir, they also brought algum wood and costly gems. 11Solomon had used this nonnative algum wood to build the steps to the Eternal's temple and the king's palace and to make lyres and harps for the musicians. These were all unmatched by anything that had existed in the land of Judah.

12Solomon gave the queen of Sheba all that she had traveled to Israel to receive, in addition to gifts equaling those that she brought to him. Contented with her visit, the queen returned home with her servants.

In addition to the gifts of Huram and the queen of Sheba, Solomon collects a substantial treasury from the gifts of other nations.

13Annually Solomon received about 25 tons of gold 14in addition to what the traders and merchants brought. The Arabian kings and the local governors also brought gold and silver to him.

15Solomon used some of this metal to make weapons: 200 large shields (each weighing 7½ pounds of beaten gold) 16and 300 small, rounded shields (each weighing 3¾ pounds of beaten gold). All the shields were stored in the house made of wood imported from Lebanon.

17Solomon then constructed a large ivory throne and gilded it. 18-19At the base of the throne were 6 steps and a golden footstool, and at the sides were armrests. The throne was guarded by 14 lions: one next to each armrest, and one on either side of each step. This throne was unlike any other monarch's throne.

20In King Solomon's house, made of wood from Lebanon, the drinking cups and dishes were of gold (since silver was not recognized as a precious metal in Solomon's days).

* 9:3-4 Difficult text; another possible reading, "roof chamber."

21Both Solomon and Huram owned ships which traded with the coastal city of Tarshish every three years, bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks* into Israel. 22All this made King Solomon richer than all other monarchs, and his wisdom
was equally immeasurable. 23All the kings of the earth wanted an audience with King Solomon, to hear the wisdom which God bestowed upon him, as the queen of Sheba had. 24Each visitor brought gifts to Solomon every year: silver, gold, garments, weapons, spices, horses, and mules.

25Solomon's horses and chariots stayed in 4,000 stalls along with the 12,000
horsemen who resided with him in Jerusalem or in Israel's other fortified cities.

26*During his reign,* Solomon ruled the region between the Euphrates River in the east and to the land of the Philistines all the way to the Mediterranean Sea in the west, and southward to north of the border of Egypt. 27He made Jerusalem so wealthy that silver was as common as stones in the rocky regions and cedars were as plentiful as sycamore trees in the lowland. 28Solomon also imported and was given expensive horses
from Egypt and from other countries.

29The actions of King Solomon, from his birth until his death, are recorded in the chronicles of Nathan the prophet, in the prophecies of Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the visions of Iddo the seer (specifically those concerning Jeroboam, son of Nebat).

30Solomon's rule over all Israel lasted 40 years—during which time he governed from his capital city, Jerusalem. 31And
after he joined with his ancestors in death and was laid with his father, our beloved King David, in Jerusalem, Solomon's son
Rehoboam ruled Israel in his place.

► After the death of King Solomon, nothing is ever the same in Israel. Many of the Israelites rebel against God, no longer follow God's elected Judahite kings, and form the new Northern Kingdom with their own kings and heretical temples.

10 After his father died, King Rehoboam went to Shechem in Northern Israel to be coronated before all the Israelites. 2The news of the impending coronation reached Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, where he was living as an exile in Egypt, so he hastily returned to Israel.

King Solomon tried to kill Jeroboam when the prophet Ahijah predicted that Israel would divide into two countries with Jeroboam leading the Northern Kingdom.

3The Israelites requested that Jeroboam meet them in Shechem at the corona- tion. Together, they made a request of Rehoboam, who would be their new king.

► This next conversation between Rehoboam and the tribes is pivotal for the nation of Israel and the twelve tribes. The prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite in the 1 Kings 11 story foreshadows that God is going to give Judah—and neighboring Benjamin—to Rehoboam, but Jeroboam in the north gets ten tribes. The story is ironic since it appears that the Eternal favors Jeroboam by giving him most of the Israelite tribes and territory, and Rehoboam is portrayed as a despotic fool. In the end, the Davidic offspring, King Rehoboam, has a disastrous reign, and Jeroboam sets up Dan and Bethel as temple sites to worship the Eternal One. It seems that a king, whether in the Northern or Southern Kingdom, is a bad deal for the people.

Israelites *(to Rehoboam): 4Your father made us work very hard for the building of Israel. We built cities and palaces and temples and roads for him. We are tired of this constant work which your father required. If you will reduce the amount of work we are required to perform for the nation, then we will coronate you as king and serve you as your people.

Rehoboam: 5*Let me think about this* for three days. Then I will give you an answer.

As the Israelites left, 6King Rehoboam
asked older men who were his father

* 9:21 Difficult reading; possibly "baboons" or "monkeys."

Solomon's advisors for advice about the situation.

Rehoboam: What do you think I should tell the people?

Solomon's Advisors: 7Listen to their concerns, show them kindness, and please them. Then they will be your subjects and will always respect you.

8But Rehoboam did not listen to the advisors' recommendation. Instead he asked the opinions of his childhood friends who were more likely to give him the advice that he wanted to hear.

Rehoboam: 9How do you think I should answer these people's request that I reduce the amount of work my father required of them?

These younger childhood "counselors" encourage Rehoboam to be a stronger, more dominant ruler instead of a kinder, more respected ruler.

Rehoboam's Friends: 10Tell those who want a reduced workload, "I am stronger and more virile than my father ever was! 11*You will long for my father's leniency.* He made you work hard, but I will make you work even harder. He disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with the sting of scorpions."

12On the third day, Jeroboam and the Israelites returned to Rehoboam as the king had requested. 13-14The king followed the advice of his young friends, answering harshly and ignoring the advice of his father's advisors.

Rehoboam: You will long for my father's leniency. He made you work hard, but I will make you work even harder. He disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with the sting of scorpions.

15By ignoring the Israelites' desires, the king fulfilled the Eternal God's prophecy that was spoken through Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam, son of Nebat. 16*Just as predicted, the Northern tribes formed a nation separate from Judah* because the king did not listen to them.

Israelites *(to Rehoboam): God promised the kingdom of Israel to David and his sons. Why should we follow David's descendants when we do not share in the inheritance of Jesse's son? Let us form our own nation in the North, and so every Israelite should return to his house. In the same way, let the Judahites and the Benjaminites continue by themselves as the house of David in the South.

Most of the Israelites left Shechem to form a new Northern Kingdom, 17but a few Israelites remained in the cities of Judah, the Southern Kingdom, because they recognized that Rehoboam was their rightful king.

18*In a final attempt to reunite his father Solomon's kingdom,* King Rehoboam sent Hadoram, the superintendent of Solomon's forced labor, into Israel to compel the Northern Kingdom to accept Rehoboam as their king. But the Israelites stoned Hadoram to death. Realizing the anger of the Northern Kingdom, King Rehoboam fled in his chariot to Jerusalem. 19Thus the Northern Kingdom of Israel has rebelled against the Southern Kingdom, the Davidic kings in Judah, until today.

11 Having returned to Jerusalem, King Rehoboam assembled 180,000 warriors from the territories of Judah and Benjamin in the South, and he charged them to fight against Israel and to reunite both kingdoms under one king, Rehoboam. 2But the Eternal spoke to Shemaiah, the True God's servant and prophet.

Eternal One: 3Tell Rehoboam, Solomon's son and the new king of Judah, and all the Israelites living in Judah and Benjamin, 4what I am telling you: "I have decided to allow Israel to divide into two kingdoms. You will not fight against your Northern relatives and their king, Jeroboam. Return to your homes."

The Southerners did as they were told, 5and Rehoboam began to fortify Judah from his capital in Jerusalem. 6He built Bethlehem, Etam, Tekoa, 7Beth-zur, Soco, Adullam, 8Gath, Mareshah, Ziph, 9Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, 10Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron, all of which are walled cities in the territories of Judah and Benjamin. 11He reinforced the fortresses, staffed the defenses with leaders, and stocked the storage houses with food, oil, and wine. 12In all the cities, he provided shields and spears for the citizens to protect them in case of attack. With these provisions, Rehoboam protected the Southern Kingdom in the territories of Judah and Benjamin.

13-15Meanwhile, Jeroboam and the ruling family in the Northern Kingdom prohibited the priests and Levites from performing their duties for the Eternal. Jeroboam appointed his own priests to serve the religious centers of the Northern Kingdom, which honored false gods in the forms of goats and calves. So the priests and Levites left their homes among the Northern tribes, moved to the Southern Kingdom and Jerusalem, and supported Rehoboam as their king. 16*Likewise,* those Israelites living in the Northern Kingdom who were dedicated to the Eternal One, the only True God of Israel, also moved to Jerusalem to make sacrifices to the Eternal One, True God of their fathers. 17Those who moved south strengthened the Southern Kingdom with their dedication to the True God and His chosen King Rehoboam (son of Solomon) for three years. These people were faithful to God and followed the example of our beloved kings David and Solomon for three years.

As his nation is growing and strengthening, so is Rehoboam's family.

18His first wife, Mahalath, the daughter of Jerimoth (son of David) and Abihail (daughter of Jesse's son Eliab) 19gave birth to three sons: Jeush, Shemariah, and Zaham. 20Rehoboam's second wife, Maacah (granddaughter of Absalom), had four sons: Abijah, Attai, Ziza, and Shelomith. 21Rehoboam loved his second wife, Maacah, more than all his other 18 wives and 60 concubines, who gave him a total of 28 sons and 60 daughters. 22*Of those children,* Rehoboam appointed Abijah (eldest son of his favorite wife Maacah) as the leader among his brothers and as the crown prince. 23Rehoboam then wisely made some of his other sons governors of the territories and fortified cities in Judah and Benjamin. He ensured their contentment and loyalty, giving them food and selecting their wives.

12 After three years of prosperity and military strength, Rehoboam and all Israel living in the Southern Kingdom rejected the Eternal's laws. 2Their unfaithfulness resulted in Shishak, king of Egypt, attacking Jerusalem during King Rehoboam's fifth year. 3Shishak's army included 1,200 chariots, 60,000 horsemen, and countless mercenaries from Libya, Suk, and Ethiopia.* 4He conquered the fortified cities in Judah, and as he approached Jerusalem 5Shemaiah the prophet brought another message from the True God to Rehoboam and Judah's governors (who had fled to Jerusalem at the threat of Shishak's army).

Eternal One *(through Shemaiah): Because you have abandoned Me to follow your own gods, I have abandoned you and allowed you to be defeated by Shishak.

Rehoboam and the Governors *(humbling themselves): 6The Eternal's punishment of us is just.

Eternal One *(through Shemaiah): 7Because you have humbled yourselves, I will not destroy you. I will save Jerusalem from My wrath, to be administered by Shishak. 8But you will serve him since you no longer serve Me, and you will remember the pain of serving foreign kings and long for the ease of serving Me.

9Then Shishak, king of Egypt, attacked Jerusalem and plundered the Eternal's temple and the palace of the king. He took every treasure, including Solomon's golden shields.

► Shishak, a Libyan general who took over the Egyptian throne, has been interested in Israel's affairs for some time. First, he harbored Jeroboam when he rebelled against Solomon. Now, Pharaoh is conquering the region. Although God does not allow Shishak to destroy Jerusalem, the Israelites lose a precious part of their heritage and a significant amount of wealth when he raids the palace and temple. This incident is enough to remind Rehoboam and the people of their ancestors' servitude in Egypt and of God's love of His people. If they don't want to return to lives of bondage, they must humble themselves and resume proper worship of God.

* 12:3 Hebrew, Cush

10To replace his father's golden shields,
King Rehoboam cast bronze shields and gave them to the commanders who guarded the palace entrance. 11The commanders carried those shields whenever they accompanied the king to the Eternal's temple, then they returned the shields to the guardroom.

12Because Rehoboam had humbled himself, the Eternal subdued His anger and did not destroy him. Things were good in the Southern Kingdom 13when 41-year-old King Rehoboam began his strong 17-year reign in Jerusalem (the city
the Eternal had chosen from all the tribes of Israel to establish His reputation).

Rehoboam's mother was Naamah the Ammonitess. 14*During his reign,* he abandoned the ways of the Eternal and did evil.
15The actions of King Rehoboam, from his birth to his death, are recorded in the chronicles of Shemaiah the prophet and in the visions of Iddo the seer (according to the genealogies).

Rehoboam and Jeroboam were constantly fighting one another. 16After Rehoboam joined his ancestors in death and was laid with his fathers in the city of David, Jerusalem, his son Abijah ruled Israel in his place.

13 1-2Abijah, the son of Rehoboam and Micaiah* (daughter of Uriel of Gibeah), became king over Judah during Jeroboam's 18th year as king of the Northern Kingdom. He ruled for 3 years from Jerusalem and battled against Jeroboam. 3Abijah, who initiated the war, had an army of 400,000 heroic men, but he was drastically outnumbered by Jeroboam's army of 800,000 heroic men. 4Abijah stood on Mount Zemaraim, which is in the hill country of Ephraim, and addressed Jeroboam and all of the soldiers from the Northern Kingdom.

Abijah: Listen to me, Jeroboam and all Israel! 5Do you in the Northern Kingdom
not know that the Eternal One, the True God of Israel, gave the rule over all of Israel, both the Northern and Southern Kingdoms, to David and his descendants
by a covenant of salt?

Salt in the ancient world not only serves as a preservative, but it also hinders the spread of yeast and reminds those eating a treaty meal of a mutual oath.

6Yet Jeroboam, Nebat's son and the servant of David's son Solomon, rebelled against his master.

► Jeroboam and all of the Israelites from the North follow false gods and rebel against God's authority. When they deny David's descendants as the rightful kings, they deny God and His choice.

Abijah: 7*In his rebellion,* Jeroboam surrounded himself with worthless men and scoundrels who took advantage of Solomon's own son, Rehoboam, when he was young and impressionable early in his reign. He had no hope of defending himself and the nation against them.

8Not only have you rebelled against the Eternal's kingdom ruled by the descendants of David, but you have allowed your great numbers to make you arrogant. You have also rebelled against His laws by worshiping and relying on the golden calves which Jeroboam cast as gods for you. 9You even drove the priests of the Eternal (the sons of Aaron and the Levites) from your midst and replaced them with non-Levite priests from foreigners in the land! Anyone who wants to be a priest of your false gods needs only pay for his commission with the sacrifice of a young bull and seven rams.

10The Eternal One is our True God, and we have not rebelled against Him in favor of idols and illegitimate priests. The sons of Aaron continue in their divinely appointed duty of serving the Eternal as priests, and the Levites perform their work as well. 11Every morning and evening they give to the Eternal what He prescribed during the time of Moses:
burnt offerings, fragrant incense, unleavened bread on the clean table, and light from the golden lampstand. Unlike you, who have rebelled against Him, we are vigilant in obeying the Eternal One, our True God.

12Remember, as you prepare to fight against us, that the True God is on our side and is leading us. His priests will blow the signal trumpets to alert Him that you are here to fight us, and He will

* 13:1-2 In 1 Kings 15:2 she is Maacah, daughter of Abishalom.

*rescue us from our enemies as He promised. O Israelites, God's chosen people, do not fight against the Eternal One, the True God of your fathers, because you will not succeed.

13*During Abijah's appeal to the Northern Israelites,* Jeroboam was not paying attention. Instead, he was dividing his forces into two fronts—one to meet Judah in front of them and one to ambush them from the rear.

14-16When Judah realized what the Northern forces had done, the men shouted to the Eternal and the priests blew their signal trumpets just as Abijah promised. God was faithful to His promise; He crushed Jeroboam and his forces. As they fled, the True God gave the victory over Israel to Abijah and Judah. 17Abijah and his army slaughtered 500,000 of the Israelite warriors. 18The Northern Israelites were defeated because the people of Judah trusted in the Eternal One, the True God of their ancestors. 19Abijah pursued the fleeing Jeroboam and captured several Northern cities and their surrounding towns and regions: Bethel (one of the Northern Kingdom's shrine cities), Jeshanah, and Ephron.

20Jeroboam was weakened by his battles with Judah, and he never regained his former strength. The Eternal struck him, and Jeroboam died. 21But Abijah's strength increased, and he married 14 wives and fathered 22 sons and 16 daughters. 22The actions of Abijah, his works and his words, are recorded in the chronicles of Iddo the prophet.

14 After Abijah joined his ancestors in death and was laid with his fathers in the city of David, Jerusalem, his son Asa ruled the Southern Kingdom in his place. During Asa's reign, the country was quiet for 10 years as it had been during Solomon's rule. 2Asa obeyed the Eternal One, his True God, *and led the nation in reformation 3-5by removing remnants of idol worship in Judah: foreign altars and high places, incense altars, sacred pillars, and statues of Asherah. Asa commanded Judah to seek the Eternal One, the True God of their ancestors, and to obey His laws and commandments. The kingdom was peaceful during Asa's reign.

► Asa must have learned from his father Abijah's battle against the Northern Kingdom. Asa knows how important God's support is to the success of the Southern Kingdom, so as king he makes proper worship of God the first priority of his reign. Proper worship of God surely leads to national stability.

6Asa utilized this peaceful time which the Eternal had given to build fortified cities in Judah since he was not preoccupied with wars.

Asa (to Judah): 7Because we have followed the Eternal One, our True God, He has allowed us to keep our land and has given our nation a time of peace. Let's use this time to strengthen what He has so graciously given us. Let's build strong cities, defend them with walls, guard them with towers, secure them with gates, and lock them with cross-bars.

The Judahites agreed, so they built the cities and prospered. 8Asa built an army of heroic men including 300,000 Judahites, who carried large shields and spears, and 280,000 Benjaminites, who carried shields and bows.

9When Zerah from Cush* came to Mareshah in the Judean highlands to attack Judah with an army of one million men and 300 chariots, 10Asa went to meet the challenge. The two armies faced each other in the valley of Zephathah* at Mareshah.

Asa (praying to the Lord): 11Eternal One, only You can help the powerless when they fight the powerful, so help us, Eternal One, our True God, because we trust You and we are facing this innumerable army for the honor of Your reputation. O Eternal One, You are our True God. Do not let mere mortals win in a battle against You.

12*Just as Asa requested,* the Eternal defeated the Cushites on behalf of Judah, and the Cushites fled. 13-14Asa and his men pursued the Cushites as far as Gerar

* 13:12 Numbers 10:9 * 14:2 Deuteronomy 7:5 * 14:9 May refer to Ethiopia in Africa or Cushan (a.k.a. Gerar) in southwest Judah. * 14:10 Greek reads, "north of Mareshah."

in southwestern Judah. So many of the Cushite army died that they could not recover; they were decimated by the Eternal and His army. The Judahite army was able to crush all the cities around Gerar because the people of Gerar feared the Eternal, and the army plundered each city they destroyed. 15*In the villages and pastures,* they crushed the herdsmen and seized large numbers of sheep and camels. Then the Judahite army returned to Jerusalem.

15 The Spirit of the True God gave a prophecy to Azariah, the son of Oded, who relayed it to Asa and his people.

Azariah: 2Asa and all of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, listen to me! God responds to you as you respond to Him: If you are with the Eternal, then He is with you. If you look for Him, then He will let you find Him. But if you abandon Him, then He will abandon you. So learn from the mistakes of your ancestors. 3For a long time, the tribes of Israel were without the True God, His priests, and His laws. 4But when they were distressed by wars and oppression, they returned to the Eternal One, the True God of Israel. They sought Him, and He let them find Him. 5In those times before the monarchy, no one traveling had a peaceful life. Everyone in the lands had numerous difficulties; 6nations and cities fought back and forth, destroying each other again and again. Because of their disobedience, the True God troubled them constantly. 7But you, who are devoted to being with God and searching for God, be strong and do not lose courage because your actions will reap rewards.

16*Asa continued his reforms even after this.* He also removed his own mother, Maacah, from her position as queen mother because she had continued in her idol worship, making a carved image of Asherah. Asa cut down the cultic statue, crushed it, and burned it beside the brook Kidron. 17In spite of his work against idol worship, he did not remove the high places in the Northern Kingdom. Asa followed His ways throughout his reign, 18and he returned the silver, gold, and utensils which he and his father had dedicated to the house of the True God. 19Until the 35th year of his reign, the Southern Kingdom did not fight any wars.

► Even in the wake of military success, during a period when most kings would become conceited, Asa continues to focus on God. Eliminating the remnants of idol worship and practicing the festivals in the Southern Kingdom are not enough for him—he insures that all political leaders are role models of proper worship. Asa punishes his own mother and makes an example of her apostasy by stripping her title and destroying her cultic objects in front of the nation. This sends a strong message to the people

There are two significant reasons why the Eternal is always opposed to the Northern and Southern Kingdoms forging alliances with other nations, even if for self-preservation. First, any political alliance is also a religious alliance. Each king and his group of diplomats bring their national deities to witness and support the treaty. The Eternal never stands for setting up other divine rivals, even to witness military agreements. Often treaty members recognize and worship their respective patron idols to show political and religious friendship between the countries.

Second, a political alliance is also a spiritual alliance. King Asa—and the majority of Israelite and Judean kings—demonstrates a lack of trust in the Eternal's provision and protection when seeking out pragmatics (such as food and land) from the surrounding Gentile nations. It is a constant challenge to seek God for personal and national existence when all the other nations are bigger and stronger. The sad reality is that Judah is often a vassal people to the more wealthy and powerful Israel, and both nations are taken captive and deported by those in whom they will seek refuge: Assyria and Babylonia.

But not even Asa is perfect. He neglects to destroy the high places in the areas he conquers in the Northern Kingdom, so his reign will not be completely peaceful.

16 But in the 36th year of Asa's reign, King Baasha of Israel invaded Judah, conquered Ramah, and fortified it as his outpost in the Southern Kingdom. By controlling Ramah, Baasha controlled access to Jerusalem and to Asa king of Judah.

Asa retaliates by hiring out Aram to fight Baasha.

2 Asa took silver and gold from the treasuries of the Eternal's temple and his own palace, and he sent them to Ben-hadad, king of Aram, who lived in Damascus.

Asa *(in a letter to Ben-hadad): 3 Let's renew the treaty which our fathers shared with each other. Please take this silver and gold which I have sent to you, and use it to attack Baasha, king of Israel. If you will break your treaty with him, then he will withdraw his troops from my country.

4 Ben-hadad accepted King Asa's offer and sent the commanders of his armies to conquer cities in Israel and to add them to the nation of Aram: Ijon (a fortified city in Naphtali), Dan, Abel-maim, and all the store cities in the region of Naphtali. 5 When Baasha heard that Aram was attacking him, he stopped his work of strengthening Ramah and returned to the Northern Kingdom to fight. 6 Then King Asa and his people in Judah pillaged Ramah, removing Baasha's stones and wood and using them to fortify Geba and Mizpah.

These cities are along the Israelite border, so they guard major trade routes between the Northern and Southern Kingdoms.

7 At that time, Hanani the seer shared his vision with Asa, king of Judah, interpreting the king's mistakes and predicting Israel's future.

Hanani: Because you trusted the king of Aram instead of the Eternal One, your True God, you missed your opportunity to conquer the Aramean army! 8 Do you remember that the Cushites* and the Libyans had immense armies with many chariots and horsemen? You could not have conquered them with your own army or your own cunning, but because you trusted the Eternal, He gave them to you so you could crush them. 9 The Eternal watches everything that happens on earth so that He may strongly support those who follow Him. By hiring mercenaries, you have acted foolishly and proven that you are not following Him. From now on, peace will elude you and you will surely fight wars.

* 16:8 May refer to the people of Ethiopia in Africa or Cushan (a.k.a. Gerar) in southwest Judah.

10Asa was enraged by the seer's vision. He imprisoned Hanani and cruelly oppressed some of his people.

11The actions of Asa, from his birth to his death, are recorded in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel. 12In the 39th year of his reign, Asa contracted a severe foot disease. Once again, he had the opportunity to look to the Eternal, but instead he relied on physicians.

13So Asa joined his ancestors in death three years later, in the 41st year of his reign. 14The people buried him in his own tomb, which he had cut out for himself in the city of David, Jerusalem, and filled with spices prepared by a perfumer. Then the people built a large fire honoring him.

17 Jehoshaphat, Asa's son, became king and demonstrated his authority over the Southern Kingdom of Israel by strengthening Judah's defenses. 2He stationed forces in all the fortified cities of Judah and built barracks throughout the territory of Judah and the cities of Ephraim, which his father Asa had conquered. 3The Eternal was with Jehoshaphat because he ruled as David had throughout his reign and as his father Asa had at the beginning of his reign. Jehoshaphat did not seek the lords of foreign religions; 4instead, he looked for the True God of his father as Azariah told Asa to do, followed His commands, and was faithful to God, unlike the Northern Kingdom of Israel. 5Because of his virtues, the Eternal gave control of the kingdom to Jehoshaphat. The people living throughout Judah brought gifts to their new king, Jehoshaphat, and he had abundant riches and honor. 6Jehoshaphat prided himself on supporting the ways of the Eternal by cleansing Judah of foreign cultic symbols: high places and Asherah figures.

7-9In his third year, Jehoshaphat sent his most worthy officials (Ben-hail, Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethanel, and Micaiah), some of the Levites (Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah, Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tobadonijah), and some of the priests (Elishama and Jehoram) to all the people in Judah to teach them from the Eternal's laws.

► Asa began reforms by destroying cults, and Jehoshaphat continues the reforms by building the true religion. His focus is not just on ridding the nation of improper worship; he intends to teach everyone about proper worship. Therefore, Jehoshaphat embarks on a massive project of sending his best officials throughout the nation to teach the people.

10All the kingdoms and lands surrounding Judah feared the Eternal, so they would not attack Jehoshaphat. 11Some of the Philistines even brought gifts and silver as tribute to Jehoshaphat, and Arabians brought him flocks: 7,700 rams and 7,700 male goats.

Jehoshaphat is the first king to command such foreign respect since Solomon, four generations earlier.

12-13Jehoshaphat grew stronger at home and abroad, he built fortresses and store cities with great supplies in Judah, and he stationed his heroic men in Jerusalem 14according to their families: From Judah, the commanders of their divisions were Adnah, the commander of 300,000 heroic men; 15then Johanan, the commander of 280,000; 16then Amasiah (son of Zichri who volunteered to serve the Eternal), and with him 200,000 heroic men. 17From Benjamin, Eliada, a valiant warrior, and with him 200,000 archers and those carrying shields; 18then Jehozabad, and with him 180,000 equipped for war. 19These men served the king in Jerusalem, and others served him in other fortified cities throughout Judah.

18 In spite of his great wealth and honor, Jehoshaphat still wanted an alliance with the Northern Kingdom. So he arranged for his son, Jehoram, to marry Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab, the king of Israel. 2Several years later, Jehoshaphat traveled north to Samaria (Israel's capital city) to visit Ahab, and Ahab prepared a feast. He used this feast of sheep and goats to entice Jehoshaphat and his entourage into attacking Ramoth-gilead.

Ahab *(to Jehoshaphat): 3*I want to recover* Ramoth-gilead from the Arameans and return it to my own country. Will you help me attack it?

Jehoshaphat: You and I and all of our people are brothers, descended from the same ancestor, Jacob. We will certainly help you in the battle. 4But first I want to know if the Eternal agrees with your aggression. Let's consult some of His prophets.

5Then Ahab assembled 400 court prophets, who wanted to appease their king.

Ahab *(to the prophets): Should we fight Ramoth-gilead or not?

Prophets: Go up to Ramoth-Gilead. You will win because the True God will give the city to you.

Jehoshaphat: 6Is there a prophet of the Eternal, not just one of your own court prophets, whom we can ask?

Ahab: 7There is only one prophet of the Eternal here, Micaiah, son of Imla, but I hate him and distrust his prophecies. He always prophesies evil about me and my country, never anything good.

Jehoshaphat: You should not say such a thing about a prophet of the Lord.

Ahab *(to an officer): 8Bring Micaiah, Imla's son, to us quickly.

9*While they waited for Micaiah to arrive,* Ahab and Jehoshaphat each sat on his own throne in his unique robes on the threshing floor inside Samaria's gate. All the prophets were revealing their divine insights to the kings, 10and Zedekiah, son of Chenaanah, cast iron horns to illustrate his prophecy.

Zedekiah *(with the horns): The Eternal says, "With these horns you will stab the Arameans until they are destroyed."

Prophets: 11Go up to Ramoth-gilead. You will win because the Eternal will give the city to the king.

12When the messenger who went to summon Micaiah found him, he told Micaiah of the other prophets' unanimous blessing for the battle. The messenger asked that Micaiah agree with the other prophets and support the battle. 13Micaiah swore by the Eternal that he would only speak what the True God told him. He would not go along with the crowd just to please Ahab.

Ahab: 14Micaiah, should we fight Ramoth-gilead or not?

Micaiah: Go up to Ramoth-gilead. You will win because the city will be given to you.

Ahab: 15How many times must I persuade you to tell me nothing but the truth when you claim to use the authority of the Eternal?

Micaiah: 16I saw all Israel wandering aimlessly on the mountains, like sheep without a shepherd. Then I heard the Eternal say, "These have no master. Let each of them go his own way and return to his own house in peace."

Ahab *(aside to Jehoshaphat): 17Didn't I tell you that he prophesies only evil about me?

The prophets often use the "bad shepherd" metaphor to demonstrate how Israelite and Judean kings do not rule their people well.

Micaiah: 18Hear what the Eternal One says. I saw Him sitting on His throne, with the armies of heaven flanking Him, 19asking, "Who will entice Ahab, king of Israel, to go up to Ramoth-gilead and die there?"

The heavenly soldiers were murmuring to each other 20when a spirit stepped before the Eternal and answered, "I will entice him."

The Eternal One questioned, "How?"

21"I will mislead all of his prophets so that he will go to his death willingly and unaware."

Then He said, "You will indeed entice him. Go, and do as you have said."
22In this way, the Eternal has deceived your prophets and proclaimed your death.

23Then Zedekiah, son of Chenaanah, slapped Micaiah.

Zedekiah: Which way did that enticing spirit from the Eternal pass when he left me and entered you, prompting your ridiculous oracle?

Micaiah: 24*Seer,* you won't see anything until the day when you enter an inner room to hide yourself.

Ahab: 25Take Micaiah to Amon (the governor of the city) and to my son Joash. 26Tell them I said to imprison this man and feed him only a little bread and water until I return from this battle safely.

Micaiah: 27If you do return safely, then the Eternal has not spoken through me. Everyone, listen to me and remember my words.

28So Ahab, king of the Northern Kingdom, and Jehoshaphat, king of the Southern Kingdom, attacked Ramoth-gilead together.

Ahab (to Jehoshaphat): 29I will wear a disguise when we go into battle, but you should wear your royal robes.

Both men did as Ahab suggested, Jehoshaphat in his robes and Ahab in his disguise, and they attacked Ramoth-gilead.
30Meanwhile, the Aramean king (who occupied Ramoth-gilead) had commanded the captains of his chariots to target only Ahab. 31When they saw Jehoshaphat in the royal robes, they assumed that he was the king of Israel, not knowing that Judah had joined Ahab in the battle. The Aramean chariots pursued Jehoshaphat, but he called out to the Eternal for help. The True God diverted them. 32When the captains of the chariots realized he was not Ahab, they retreated.
33Meanwhile, an archer randomly shot an arrow that landed in a joint of Ahab's armor.

Since Ahab has not worn his royal robes on the battlefield, the archer never knows whom he has hit.

Ahab (to his chariot driver): Turn around, and take me away from the battlefield. I am severely injured.

34The battle continued all day, but Ahab could only prop himself up in his chariot. So he watched from his chariot in front of the Arameans. At sunset, he died.

19 Then Jehoshaphat returned safely to his house in Jerusalem. 2*When he arrived,* Jehu (the son of Hanani the seer whom Asa imprisoned for predicting wars against Judah) greeted the king.

Jehu: Should you aid the wicked and align yourself with those who hate the Eternal? If you do, you will bring the wrath of the Eternal upon yourself. 3*In spite of helping God's enemies,* there is still some good in you—you did remove the Asherah idols from Judah and seek the True God.

4*Unlike his father Asa, Jehoshaphat did not punish the seer for his message.* Instead, the king dedicated himself to drawing his nation closer to the Eternal One, the True God of their ancestors. He lived in Jerusalem, but he traveled among his people from Beersheba in the South to the hill country of Ephraim in the North.
5Jehoshaphat, whose name means "the Lord judges," appointed judges throughout the land—in the fortified cities of Judah, one at a time.

Jehoshaphat (to the judges): 6When you are rendering your judgments, consider them carefully. When you judge, you are representing the Eternal, who is with you when you render a verdict, not man or any institution. 7Be guided by your fear of Him. Act carefully because the Eternal One, our True God, is never associated with unrighteousness, partiality, or bribery.

8In Jerusalem, Jehoshaphat appointed judges from three specific groups: the Levites, the priests, and the tribal leaders of Israel. They enacted the Eternal's judgments and presided over the daily disputes among the citizens of Jerusalem.

Jehoshaphat (commissioning his judges):
9You will faithfully and wholeheartedly perform these duties in the fear of the Eternal: 10instruct your brothers about the various laws (so they and you will be innocent before the Eternal and all of you will avoid His anger) whenever any city dweller brings you subjective cases where the right decisions are not apparent, cases where you must choose who is justified in bloodshed or how to interpret the laws and commandments. 11Amariah, the chief priest, will be in charge of all that pertains to the Eternal; Zebadiah, the son of Ishmael and leader of the Judahites, will be in charge of all that pertains to governance; and the Levites will be your officers. If you act decisively, then the Eternal is a part of your good actions.

20 After Jehoshaphat had solidified his throne by fortifying the nation and appointing regional judges, the Moabites, Ammonites, and some Meunites* decided to attack him. 2Jehoshaphat heard about their plans.

Messengers: A huge army is quickly approaching Jerusalem. They are coming from Edom* beyond the Dead Sea, but they have already reached Hazazon-tamar (that is Engedi on the shore of the Dead Sea, about two days southwest of Jerusalem).

3Jehoshaphat was afraid, so he sought the Eternal and required all Judah's citizens to fast. 4-5Everyone gathered together in Jerusalem from cities all over Judah to seek help from the Eternal. Jehoshaphat joined the assembly in the newly restored court at the Eternal's house and 6prayed before the people.

Jehoshaphat: O Eternal One, the True God of our ancestors, You are the True God in the heavens and the ruler over all the kingdoms and nations! You are so strong that none can survive when they oppose You. 7O our True God, You demonstrated that power when You exiled inhabitants of this land for Your people, Israel, and gave it to Your friend Abraham's children forever. Please demonstrate it again, now, as we are attacked. 8We have lived here and built a sacred house honoring Your reputation. Now we will remind You of Solomon's words: 9"If we encounter disaster or disease from wars, judgment, pestilence, or famine, then we will come to this house where You are and where your reputation is honored and beg for Your help. You will hear our cries and rescue us."

10Now is the time to ask for Your help. Men from Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir (the region in Edom which You stopped Israel from destroying when they left Egypt) 11are rewarding our ancestors' mercy by coming to steal our inheritance, which is Your land and which You gave to us. 12Our True God, won't You judge them? We can do nothing to stop this huge army from attacking us; we don't know what to do, so we are asking for Your help.

13All Judah (men and women, children, and infants) were waiting in front of the Eternal's temple when Jehoshaphat asked this. 14There, the Spirit of the Eternal descended on a Levitical singer, Jahaziel (son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite son of Asaph).

Jahaziel: 15Listen to me, all Judah, citizens of Jerusalem, and King Jehoshaphat. The Eternal has responded to your pleading: "Do not fear or worry about this army. The battle is not yours to fight; it is the True God's. 16Tomorrow, they will travel through the ascent of Ziz. Meet them at the end of valley before the wilderness of Jeruel. There, I will be watching. 17Stand and watch, but do not fight the battle. There, you will watch the Eternal save you, Judah and Jerusalem."

Do not fear or worry. Tomorrow, face the army and trust that the Eternal is with you.

18Jehoshaphat bowed his head low, and all the assembly fell prostrate before the Eternal and worshiped Him with reverence. They trusted the Lord completely. 19Meanwhile, the Levite families of the Kohathites and Korahites stood up to praise the Eternal One, True God of Israel, with very loud voices.

20Early the next morning they went out to the wilderness of Tekoa. There Jehoshaphat's message to Judah was not about courage in battle.

Jehoshaphat: Listen to me, Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem. Trust in the Eternal One, your True God, not in your own abilities, and you will be supported.

* 20:1 The Hebrew text reads, "some of the Ammonites." The Greek reads, "some of the Meunites." * 20:2 Hebrew reads, "from Aram," which is north of Jerusalem.

Put your trust in His words that you heard through the prophets, and we will succeed.

21Having addressed his people, Jehoshaphat asked those who sang to the Eternal to lead the army and praise His magnificence and holiness.

Chorus (singing): Give thanks to the Eternal because His loyal love is forever!

22As they sang and praised, the Eternal was ready to cause great confusion in battle for the men from Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir (in Edom) who had come to attack Judah. They were utterly defeated, turning on one another. 23The Ammonites and Moabites attacked the men from Mount Seir, destroying them completely. Then, the Ammonites and Moabites turned on each other. 24When all was quiet, Judah looked out of the watchtower in the wilderness and saw a great army of corpses fallen on the battlefield. No one had escaped. 25Then Jehoshaphat and his people took various goods, clothing, and valuables off the dead bodies and seized the abundant livestock. There was so much that it took three days to recover it all. 26On the fourth day, they assembled in the valley of Beracah, where they had blessed the Eternal and where He had blessed them with a victory, and named the place, "The Valley of Beracah," as it is still known today.

27Every man of Judah and citizen of Jerusalem followed Jehoshaphat back to Jerusalem, joyous because the Eternal defeated their enemies. 28They paraded into Jerusalem with harps, lyres, and trumpets and up to the Eternal's house.

29-30For the rest of his reign, Jehoshaphat's kingdom was peaceful because the Eternal had fought the Southern Kingdom's enemies, making all the surrounding kingdoms fear the True God.

► Although Jehoshaphat is fully committed to God, his reign is not without trials. He fights many battles against his neighbors and is successful because of his reliance on God. God uses these battles to give him greater power and more territory in the region.

35But Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, acted wickedly, making a trade alliance with Ahaziah, king of Israel. 36They decided to build ships to go to Tarshish, constructing them in Ezion-geber. 37Eliezer (son of Dodavahu of Mareshah) interpreted Jehoshaphat's actions and predicted the future.

Eliezer: Because you made an alliance with Ahaziah, the Eternal will destroy your works.

Jehoshaphat found that the ships were broken and could not go to Tarshish *as they had intended.

31*This is an account of* Jehoshaphat's reign over Judah. He was 35 years old when he became king, and he ruled in Jerusalem 25 years. His mother was Azubah (daughter of Shilhi). 32Jehoshaphat did as his father Asa had done, obeying the Eternal. 33In spite of his intentions, the high places remained and the people had not yet looked to the True God of their ancestors. 34The other actions of Jehoshaphat, from his birth to his death, are recorded in the annals of Jehu (son of Hanani) in the book of the kings of Israel.

5Jehoram was 32 years old when he ascended to the throne, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. 6*But he was not a righteous king as his father was before him.* He married Ahab's daughter and was tempted to worship her pagan gods as the kings of the Northern Kingdom did. He did evil instead of following the Eternal; 7now despite this the Eternal upheld His promise to David. In His covenant with David, He

* 20:37 Verses 35-37 have been placed before verse 31 to retain sequence. * 21:2 Greek, Syriac, and Vulgate read, "king of Judah"

This is a particularly bloody time for Israel in the north and Judah in the south. Each king—or queen in the case of Athaliah in Judah—has to watch his or her back constantly for international threats from Aram north of Israel, Egypt south of Judah, or Ammon, Moab, and Edom on the other side of the Jordan River and Dead Sea. As well, there is political and familial intrigue and deception in the palace households of some of these kings. Being a monarch is a very dangerous position, and some do not fare well.

In just a few years, King Jehu from Israel carries out a bloody campaign against anyone associated with the House of Ahab in order to eradicate idolatry and rebellion from the land. But this move by Jehu only buys Israel another century before the Neo-Assyrians move in and exile the people.

promised David's family would guide Israel forever, so He would not destroy Jehoram or his government. But God punished him with revolts by Edom and Libnah.

12*Having heard about Jehoram's actions,* Elijah the prophet sent a letter to the king.

Elijah's Letter: I received this message from the Eternal One, True God of your ancestor David: "You have not followed Me as Jehoshaphat, your father, and as Asa, your grandfather, did during their reigns 13but have instead followed the gods of the kings of Israel. You have caused the people of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem to prostitute themselves spiritually as Ahab and his family did. You have murdered your brothers, your own family, who were better men than you. 14Because of your evil actions, the Eternal will severely punish your people, your children, your wives, and all your possessions. 15And you will suffer with an intestinal disease until your bowels come out, ending your life."

16*Fulfilling His promise,* the Eternal incited the Philistines and the Arabs who bordered the Cushites to attack Jehoram 17and Judah. They invaded the nation and plundered the palace, taking all the possessions including the king's children and wives. When they had finished, all that remained was Jehoahaz,* Jehoram's youngest son. 18Then the Eternal infected the king with a terminal intestinal illness. 19He died painfully two years later with the prolapse of his intestines. After he died, the people did not honor his memory by lighting a fire for him as they had done for his ancestors. 20He was 32 years old when he became king, and he ruled in Jerusalem for eight years. No one was sorry when he died. They buried him in the city of David, Jerusalem, but not in the tombs with the other kings and his ancestors.

22 Since the Philistines and Arabs had killed all of Jehoram's older sons when they plundered the palace, the citizens of Jerusalem made Ahaziah, his youngest son, king. 2Ahaziah was 22 years old* when he became king, and he ruled for only one year in Jerusalem.

Ahaziah was the son of Athaliah, the granddaughter of Omri and daughter of Ahab. 3-4Since his mother and her relatives were his counselors during his reign, Ahaziah followed the gods worshiped by the Northern Kingdom, and performed evil deeds before the Eternal as the house of Ahab did. By following this bad advice, Ahaziah ensured his destruction. 5-6He repeated the mistake of Jehoshaphat and followed Jehoram, the son of Ahab king of the Northern Kingdom, to fight Hazael, king of Aram, at Ramoth-gilead. When the Arameans wounded Joram, he returned to Jezreel to heal his wounds and Ahaziah went to visit him there.

7Ahaziah's destruction by the True God was decided when he visited Joram because his visit coincided with the attack Jehu, the son of Nimshi, executed on Jezreel. (The Eternal had incited Jehu to destroy the house of Ahab.) 8During his assault, Jehu found Ahaziah's sons and nephews who served him and killed them. 9Then Jehu looked for Ahaziah and found him cowering in Samaria. Jehu's forces brought Ahaziah to Jehu, killed him, and buried him.* He was given a burial only because of his descent from Jehoshaphat, who looked for the Eternal and followed His commands. Because of Jehu's slaughter, no one from Ahaziah's immediate family lived to inherit the kingdom.

10When Athaliah realized that her son Ahaziah had died along with all of the royal line, she decided to kill her opponents—the remaining royal offspring of the Southern Kingdom.

She decides to fill the power vacuum herself and become queen as her husband, Jehoram, did years before.

23 During the seventh year of Athaliah's reign, Jehoiada the priest prepared to revolt and conferred with the commanders over divisions of warriors: Azariah (son of Jeroham), Ishmael (son of Johanan), Azariah (son of Obed), Maaseiah (son of Adaiah), and Elishaphat (son of Zichri). These men made an agreement with Jehoiada, promising to fight against Athaliah's illegitimate government. 2They traveled through Judah telling the people about the coming revolt. Then all the Levites and all the Israelite tribal leaders came to Jerusalem 3to make another contract with the rightful king, Joash, in the house of God.

Jehoiada: Remember when the Eternal promised David that his sons would be king? Athaliah's reign has disrupted that promise. Look now on the son of the king! 4This is what you will do: One-third of you priests and Levites who work on the Sabbath will guard the gates to the temple, 5-7one-third will guard Joash's house, and one-third will guard the gate of the foundation. Those posted at the king's house will surround him with drawn weapons. If anyone enters Joash's house, kill him. If Joash leaves his house, kill anyone who approaches him.

All the people will wait in the courts of the Eternal's house and guard His temple. Kill anyone who comes into the Eternal's house (except, of course, for the priests and ministering Levites who are consecrated).

8The Levites and the people did as they were told by Jehoiada the priest. Everyone worked that day, even those who were typically off duty on Sabbath, because Jehoiada reenlisted them all in the rebellion. 9He armed the divisions under the commanders of hundreds with King David's spears and large and small shields which were offerings to the house of the True God, 10and he stationed all the people, who were armed with their own weapons, to surround both the temple and Joash. 11*Once everyone was in place,* they publicly made Joash king: the people crowned him and gave him a copy of the covenant laws; Jehoiada and his sons anointed him and said, "Long live the king!"

12Hearing the commotion of her people running and praising a different monarch, Athaliah entered the Eternal's house where all the people were stationed. 13There she saw King Joash standing by his pillar at the entrance, flanked by the commanders and the trumpeters. All the people of the land rejoiced and blew trumpets as the singers led the people in songs of praise with their musical instruments.

Athaliah *(tearing her clothes in sorrow): Treason! Treason!

* 22:9 A different place of death and burial for Ahaziah is given in 2 Kings 9:27-28.

Jehoiada *(to the commanders of divisions in response to Athaliah and her violation of the temple): 14Take her and her followers out between the ranks, and kill them with the sword. Do not kill her in the Eternal's house.

15So they took her to the entrance of the Horse Gate at the palace and executed her.

16Then Jehoiada made a covenant between himself, all the people, and the king, promising to follow the Eternal. 17*Because of this covenant,* all the people demolished Baal's temple, destroyed the altars and icons there, and killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, in front of the altars. 18Then Jehoiada restored the organization of the temple as David had intended: He appointed the Levitical priests* to the offices of the Eternal's temple, where they gave the burnt offerings to the Eternal (as Moses' law required) with rejoicing and singing. 19He preserved the sanctity of the Eternal's temple by stationing gatekeepers there so ritually unclean people could not enter.

Having restored the temple, Jehoiada properly restores the Davidic monarchy.

20He and the commanders of the divisions, the nobles, the rulers of the people, and all the people of the land took the king from the Eternal's temple through the upper gate to the palace. There, they put Joash on his royal throne. 21Since their rightful king was restored and Athaliah had been killed, all the people of the land rejoiced and were at peace.

► It is significant that the chronicler does not end Athaliah's story with a summary of her reign or the location of her burial as all other kings' stories end. She is a usurper who is not destined to rule Israel because she is not part of the Davidic line. But her reign does not nullify God's promise to David. In spite of her actions, one of David's descendants survives her slaughter of the royal house to ascend to the throne. This story is one of hope for the Jews during the Babylonian exile, reminding them that God's promises always supersede humans' actions, good or evil.

24 Joash, whose mother Zibiah was from Beersheba, was only seven years old when he became king. He reigned 40 years in Jerusalem 2and followed the ways of the Eternal only as long as Jehoiada the priest was alive. 3Jehoiada was like a father to Joash, finding two wives for the king, who would father sons and daughters and reconstitute the Davidic line.

4After he had established his family, Joash decided to restore the Eternal's temple 7because the wicked Athaliah's subjects had broken into the True God's temple and used its dedicated contents to worship the Baals.*

Joash *(to the priests and Levites): 5Collect money from all the Israelites living in the cities of Judah so you can repair your True God's temple each year. Begin this work quickly.

The Levites did not act quickly as their king had demanded, 6so Joash rebuked Jehoiada the chief priest for not properly leading them.

Joash *(to Jehoiada): Why have you not obeyed my request and required the Levites to collect money from Judah and Jerusalem? Moses, the Eternal's servant, decided that all Israel should pay this money each year to provide for the tent of the covenant law.

Since the priests and Levites do not collect the money as Joash commands them, he finds another way to collect the money.

8He had a chest placed outside the Eternal's temple near the gate 9and told everyone in Judah and Jerusalem to bring the money that Moses, the servant of the True God, commanded Israel to bring to the Eternal while they were in the desert. 10All the officers and all the people were excited to help restore the temple, as they had been when it was initially constructed, so they all put their money in the chest until it was full. 11*Each day* the Levites returned the chest to the king's officer, where the king's scribe and the chief priest's officer would empty the chest and return it to the temple gate. They emptied the chest every day because the people gave so much money.

12-13Joash and Jehoiada gave the money to the Eternal's temple servants, who contracted masons, carpenters, and iron and bronze workers. These workers worked to repair, restore, and strengthen the True God's temple to King David's original specifications. 14*So much money had been collected that* the workers were able to return the extra to Joash and Jehoiada and make gold and silver vessels and utensils for services and burnt offerings in the Eternal's temple. Having completed the renovations, everyone was faithful to God and gave burnt offerings in the Eternal's temple for the rest of Jehoiada's life.

15Jehoiada was rewarded for his faithfulness to God with a long life. He was 130 years old when he died, 16and the people buried him in the city of David, Jerusalem, among the kings, recognizing how he had helped Israel, his own extended family, and the True God.

► Jehoiada not only helps to overturn the usurping Athaliah and restore the Davidic monarchy, but he also ensures that Joash and Israel follow God. The people recognize how Jehoiada has helped their nation, so they honor him in his burial by placing him among the dead kings. Traditionally, corpses were placed among their own ancestors, with whom they would spend eternity. By burying Jehoiada with the kings, the people indicate that he deserves to be remembered among the greatest of all men.

17-18Then the officials of Judah (who had abandoned the house of the Eternal One, the True God of their ancestors, to follow Asherim and other idols) came and bowed down to the king, convincing him to listen to their advice. Joash, in the absence of Jehoiada, then led the nation to abandon God. God was infuriated with Judah and Jerusalem. 19In spite of His anger, the Eternal sent prophets to tell the people how they had sinned and that they should repent. But they did not listen.

20Then the Spirit of the True God possessed Zechariah, Jehoiada the priest's son, giving him a message for the people.

Zechariah *(standing above the people): The True God has a message for you: "Why do you disobey the Eternal's commands? You will not have prosperous lives as long as you continue this. Since you have abandoned Him, He has abandoned you."

21The new advisors were so infuriated by his message that they conspired against him. Joash then commanded that they stone Zechariah inside the Eternal's temple courts. 22By murdering Zechariah, Joash ignored how kind Jehoiada had been to him.

► Joash has been saved by Jehoiada's wife from certain death at the hands of Athaliah. He also has been taught by her to follow God and obey His law. Zechariah's death inside the temple is ironic since Joash's own chief priest and Zechariah's father, Jehoiada, refused to kill Athaliah in the temple because of God's law; and here Joash is violating the law, for stoning should occur outside of town and most certainly outside of the temple. This is also strange in that stoning is an execution method reserved primarily for treason and not for eliminating a priest who speaks out against sin.

Zechariah *(dying): Eternal One, see how Joash has abandoned You and seek judgment on him!

God hears Zechariah's last words and punishes Joash.

23At the end of the year, the Aramean army attacked Judah and Jerusalem. It obliterated each of the officials who had advised Joash badly and sent the spoils to the king of Damascus, the capital city of Aram. 24Although the Aramean army was vastly outnumbered by the Judaean army, the Eternal exercised His judgment on Joash by giving the Arameans an impressive victory over the people who had abandoned the Eternal One, True God of their ancestors.

25-26When the Arameans left Judah, Joash was severely wounded. Now that the king's supporters were dead, his own servants (Zabad, son of Shimeath the Ammonitess, and Jehozabad, son of Shimrith the Moabitess) conspired to kill him. They remembered how he had killed Zechariah, Jehoiada's son. The servants murdered Joash while he rested on his bed and buried him in the city of David, Jerusalem. However, they did not entomb him with the kings, his own ancestors. The good things that he did while Jehoiada advised him were forgotten.

27More about Joash's reign (including the names of his children, the oracles against him, and the details of the temple's restoration) is written in the commentary of the book of the kings.

Amaziah, his son, succeeded Joash as king.

25 Amaziah, son of Joash and Jehoaddan of Jerusalem, was 25 years old when he became king, and he reigned 29 years in Jerusalem.

Like his father Joash, Amaziah's reign begins well but ends in intrigue and assassination.

2He followed the Eternal, but was not completely devoted to Him for his entire life.

3As soon as he took power in the Southern Kingdom, Amaziah solidified his throne by executing his opponents, the servants who had assassinated his father Joash. 4But Amaziah followed Moses' law, which the Eternal had commanded, and had mercy on their children: "Everyone is responsible for his own sins. Therefore, parents will not be killed for their children's actions and children will not be killed for their parents' actions."*

5Then Amaziah prepared for battle by gathering the Judahites and appointing commanders from each family in Judah and Benjamin. He took a census of the men 20 years old and older, and there were 300,000 ready to fight with spears and shields. 6*To enlarge his army,* Amaziah also hired 100,000 heroic men from the Northern Kingdom for 7,500 pounds of silver. 7But Amaziah was warned against hiring mercenaries from the Northern Kingdom by a man who followed after the True God.

Prophet of God: O king, do not let the army of Israel fight with you. The Eternal does not support the Northern Kingdom, these Ephraimites. 8But if you do take the mercenaries with you, prepare yourself well for the battle. The True God will support your enemy rather than supporting you because God has the power to both build you up and tear you down.

Amaziah: 9But I have already paid 7,500 pounds of silver to the Northern Kingdom's troops. What should be done?

Follower of God: Don't worry about the money. It is nothing compared to what the Eternal has to give you.

10So Amaziah dismissed the Northern Kingdom's mercenaries as the man had advised him to do, and they returned home. The mercenaries were furious at Judah because they would lose their portion of the spoils of victory, 13so they raided the cities in Judah (from Samaria in the north to Beth-horon in the south), killing 3,000 and taking spoils.*

11But Amaziah was rewarded for obeying God's message. He strengthened himself and led only Judahite soldiers into battle at the valley of Salt. There they killed 10,000 Edomites from the city of Seir and 12captured 10,000. The Judahites then threw the prisoners from the top of a cliff, crushing them on the rocks below.

14*Unfortunately,* Amaziah did not remain faithful to God and His messages. When he returned from fighting the Edomites, he brought the gods of Seir back to Jerusalem where they worshiped them—bowing down and burning incense—as he had worshiped God.

15Furious with Amaziah, the Eternal sent a message to the king through a prophet.

Prophet: What are you thinking? Why would you choose to follow gods that cannot save their own people from your armies after I gave you victory?

Amaziah (interrupting): 16When did you become my advisor? Stop prophesying, or your life will be taken from you.

* 25:4 Deuteronomy 24:16 * 25:13 Verse 13 has been moved before verse 11 for the continuity of the passage.

Prophet: I may not be one of your court advisors, but you should still listen to my counsel. If you do not, the True God will destroy you because you have worshiped other gods and ignored my warning.

17Then Amaziah, king of Judah, listened to his royal counselors' advice and decided to address the Northern Kingdom's invasion of Judah. He sent a message to Joash (son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu), the king of the Northern Kingdom asking for a face-to-face meeting.

Joash's Response: 18The thornbush in Lebanon sent a message to the cedar in Lebanon: "Give your daughter to my son in marriage." But a wild beast in Lebanon trampled the thornbush.

19You defeated the Edomites, and now you have become haughty. For your own good, stay where you belong. Do not provoke me to destroy both you and your people, Judah.

20But Amaziah would not listen to Joash's warning because the True God had allowed him to become stubborn. God intended to give Joash a victory over the Southern Kingdom because they worshiped the Edomite gods. 21Then Joash, king of the Northern Kingdom, traveled south to the interior of the Southern Kingdom to face Amaziah, king of the Southern Kingdom, at Beth-shemesh. 22*As predicted,* the Northern Kingdom defeated the Southern Kingdom, and the Judahites fled to their homes. 23Joash captured Amaziah, son of Joash who was the son of Jehoahaz, at Beth-shemesh and took him to Jerusalem where the Northern forces tore down 600 feet of the wall of Jerusalem from the gate of Ephraim to the corner gate. 24Joash took all the gold, silver, and utensils from the True God's temple from the service of Obed-edom. He then returned to Samaria with the temple treasures, palace treasures, and hostages.

26 1-3After Amaziah's death, the Judahites chose Uzziah, who was 16 years old, as their next king. During his reign he recaptured the port city of Eloth for Judah, bringing economic growth to the nation. Uzziah, son of Amaziah and Jechiliah of Jerusalem, reigned 52 years in Jerusalem. 4He acted just as his father Amaziah and his grandfather Joash had—following the Eternal initially, then turning away from Him.

5While Zechariah the seer was alive, Uzziah followed the True God, listening to Zechariah's messages from God as Joash had listened to Jehoiada's counsel, and the True God blessed the king in battles, in building, and in wealth as long as he was obedient. 6He attacked the Philistines and tore down the walls of Gath, Jabneh, and Ashdod. To further weaken their nation, Uzziah built cities around Ashdod, the Philistine capital city, and elsewhere among the Philistines. 7Just as the True God helped him against the Philistines, He gave Uzziah victory over the Arabians in Gur-baal and the Meunites. 8Then the Ammonites paid tribute to Uzziah, and his political strength was infamous all the way to Egypt's border.

11Uzziah maintained a standing army ready for battle with numbered divisions and weapon specialties. Jeiel the scribe and Maaseiah the official (supervised by Hananiah, a royal officer) maintained the records of the divisions. 12*Each division was led by* a tribal leader who was also a heroic soldier. The 2,600 heroic soldiers 13controlled a talented army of 307,500 soldiers who helped the king battle his enemies. 14Uzziah provided shields, spears, helmets, body armor, bows, and sling stones to the army. 15In Jerusalem, he positioned catapults to shoot arrows and great stones, a new invention by ingenious men, in the towers and on the corners of the city wall. Because of his impressive army, many of the surrounding nations knew about Uzziah and how God helped him win battles.

16But when Uzziah had built his army and he no longer thought he needed God's help in battles, he became prideful and corrupt. He was unfaithful to the Eternal One, his True God, entering the Eternal's temple to burn incense on the altar.

As the king, not even he has the right to burn incense on the incense altar. Only priests could lawfully do this.

17Azariah the priest and 80 other brave priests of the Eternal followed the king into the temple to stop him.

Priests: 18Uzziah, you cannot burn incense to the Eternal. Only the priests, the sons of Aaron, have been consecrated for that action. Leave the temple now. You have sinned and will no longer be blessed by the Eternal One, the True God.

19Uzziah was furious at the priests for forbidding him, the king, to do something. As he stood next to the incense altar in the Eternal's temple holding the censer, the king's forehead erupted with leprosy, an inflamed skin disease. 20Azariah the chief priest and all the priests saw how the Eternal struck the king with leprosy on his forehead. As Uzziah rushed for the door, the priests hurried him out because the disease made him ritually unclean and unable to approach the temple. 21For the rest of his life, King Uzziah was cursed with leprosy, so he was banned from the Eternal's temple and lived away from society. During his absence, his son Jotham was in charge and judged the Southern Kingdom.

► Uzziah's sin is a desecration of the temple. He is not consecrated, so he cannot burn incense there. By doing so, he makes the temple ritually impure. God responds with an appropriate punishment: Uzziah makes God's house impure, so He makes Uzziah's body impure.

22The prophet Isaiah, son of Amoz, wrote about the rest of Uzziah's actions. 23When Uzziah died, the people with his family buried him near his ancestors in a field that belonged to them. He was not buried in the same tomb as his ancestors because his skin disease made him unclean. Then his son, Jotham, succeeded him as king.

► Joash, Amaziah, and Uzziah's reigns are all similar. Each begins by following God and being rewarded with a powerful reign. Then each sins and is punished with national struggles and an unusual death. None are honored with burials among the former kings. These three men exemplify a common theme in Chronicles: you reap what you sow. When they are faithful to God, He is faithful to them. When they abandon God, He destroys them.

27 Jotham, son of Uzziah and Jerushah (daughter of Zadok), was 25 years old when he became king, and he reigned 16 years in Jerusalem. 2He followed the Eternal as his father had at the beginning of his reign, but he did not enter the Eternal's temple. In spite of his devotion, the people continued in corrupt lifestyles. 3He built the upper gate of the Eternal's temple and the large wall of Ophel (the southern hill on the temple mount). 4He built cities in Judah's hill country and fortresses and towers in the forests. 5Jotham conquered the Ammonite king, and the Ammonites gave him 7,500 pounds of silver, 62,000 bushels of wheat, and 10,000 of barley for 3 years. 6Jotham received all this wealth and power for himself and for the country because he followed the Eternal One, his True God.

7All the events of Jotham's reign, including his battles and other actions, are in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel. 8He was 25 when he became king and ruled for 16 years.* 9Jotham died, and his bones were gathered and buried along with his ancestors in the city of David, Jerusalem. His son, Ahaz, succeeded him as king.

► Jotham is a welcomed relief for Israel. Finally they have a king who is faithful to God and who credits Him with the Southern Kingdom's prosperity. Unfortunately his righteousness does not make an impression on his son. Ahaz will prove to be one of the worst kings in the history of the Southern Kingdom. Not only does he ignore God's laws, but he also engages in so many pagan practices that he is like the kings of the Northern Kingdom whom God has abandoned.

28 Ahaz was 20 years old when he became king, and he reigned 16 years in Jerusalem. But he did not follow the Eternal as his ancestor David had done. [2-4]Instead, he acted like the kings of the Northern Kingdom and worshiped their gods. He polluted all the land with his idolatry, cast idols of the Baals, burned incense in the valley of Ben-hinnom (Jerusalem's refuse pit), and sacrificed his own children. Such evil things had not happened throughout the land, on high places, hills, and under trees, since the Eternal conquered the previous inhabitants and gave the land to the Israelites. [5]The Eternal One, his True God, was furious with Ahaz for his apostasy, so He empowered the king of Aram to defeat the Southern Kingdom and take Judean prisoners of war to Damascus, the capital of Aram. But this wasn't enough to satisfy God's anger. He also empowered the Northern Kingdom to kill many of the Judeans: [6]Pekah (son of Remaliah) in one day killed 120,000 valiant warriors who had abandoned the Eternal One, the True God of their ancestors; [7]and Zichri (a Ephraimite warrior) killed Maaseiah (Ahaz's son), Azrikam (leader of the palace), and Elkanah (vice-regent). [8]Then the Northern soldiers took 200,000 Judean women and children and their possessions to Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom.

[9]As the Northern army approached Samaria, Oded, a prophet of the Eternal ran out to meet them.

Oded: Do not think that you have won this victory yourselves. In fact, the Eternal One, the True God of your ancestors, was furious with Judah and used you to punish them. But now He is furious with you because your rage was excessive and has reached the heavens, [10]and you intend to make your captives from Judah and Jerusalem into your slaves. You are already guilty of sins against the Eternal, your True God, so why do you want to anger Him even more? [11]Instead of enslaving the Southern captives, return them to their nation and stop infuriating the Eternal.

[12]Then some Ephraimite chiefs—Azariah (son of Johanan), Berechiah (son of Meshillemoth), Jehizkiah (son of Shallum), and Amasa (son of Hadlai)—stopped the soldiers.

Ephraimite Chiefs: [13]Stop! Do not bring those prisoners back to our city, for we are all convicted of our guilt. If you do, the Eternal will be more furious with us due to our sins and guilt. There is now a fierce wrath against Israel.

[14]The soldiers obeyed. They left the prisoners and the spoils for the chiefs and the assembly to decide what to do. [15]The chiefs dressed the naked prisoners with clothes and shoes from the spoils, fed them, anointed their heads with oil to refresh them after the journey, and returned them to the southern city of Jericho (the city of palm trees) with an envoy of Northerners and the feeble riding on donkeys. Then the Northerners returned to Samaria.

► Only the tribes of Judah and Benjamin remain faithful in the Southern Kingdom while the other tribes forming the Northern Kingdom largely depart from the Eternal. But this exchange between Oded and the Ephraimites shows another side of the Northerners. Oded's request that they free the Judahites is based on their common heritage. And the chiefs' obedience to his request shows that they still remember God's power. Although the Northern Kingdom has strayed far from the Eternal One, they still remember their ancestral brothers in the South.

16-19The Eternal humbled Judah with continued attacks against them because of Ahaz's wicked rebellion against Him, which had infected the entire nation. The Edomites attacked Judah and took prisoners; the Philistines invaded the lowland and the Negev, capturing and settling in the cities and surrounding villages of Beth-shemesh, Aijalon, Gederoth, Soco, Timnah, and Gimzo.

King Ahaz asked the Assyrians for help, 20but Tilgath-pilneser, king of Assyria, recognized an opportunity to expand his empire and attacked Judah instead of helping Ahaz. 21*To save his kingdom from complete destruction by the Assyrian army,* Ahaz gave a tribute from his own palace and from the Eternal's temple to Tilgath-pilneser. But the tribute did not work.

The Assyrians still attack Judah, and Ahaz's tributes begin generations of Judean subjugation to the Assyrian Empire.

22During these disasters, King Ahaz did not return to the Eternal. Instead he persisted in his unfaithfulness 23by sacrificing to the Aramean gods of Damascus, the gods of the first people who had defeated him.

Ahaz: Obviously the gods of the kings of Aram are more powerful than the Judean God. Since they helped the Aramean army, surely they will help me if I sacrifice to them.

But these gods were the downfall of him and all Israel. 24He destroyed the vessels from the True God's temple and stopped all worship in the Eternal's temple. Then he built his own altars throughout Jerusalem 25and high places throughout Judah to burn incense to false gods. These actions infuriated the Eternal One, the True God of his ancestors.

26Ahaz's remaining actions, from his birth until his death, are contained in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel. 27Ahaz slept with his fathers in Jerusalem, but not in the tombs of the kings of Israel. His son, Hezekiah, succeeded him as king.

29 Hezekiah, son of Abijah (Zechariah's daughter), became king when he was 25 years old and reigned 29 years in Jerusalem. 2He followed the Eternal, just as his ancestor David had.

He "strengthens" the relationship between God and the Southern Kingdom, just as his name implies.

3Hezekiah's first action when he began to reign was reopening and repairing the Eternal's temple. 4He called all the priests and the Levites into the square east of the temple.

Hezekiah *(to the Levites): 5Listen to me. First, you must sanctify yourselves so that you can sanctify the temple of the Eternal One, the True God of your ancestors, and remove the immoral and ungodly items that are there.

6The previous generations forgot the laws of the Eternal One, our True God, and were unfaithful—abandoning the temple, ignoring Him with their backs turned, 7closing the doors of the front of the temple so no one else could worship there, extinguishing the temple lamps, and stopping the incense and burnt offerings to the True God of Israel. 8For these offenses, the Eternal has punished us, Judah and Jerusalem, as you have witnessed, with deaths, disasters, and derision. 9Our fathers were slaughtered in the wars with the Arameans and the Northern Kingdom, and our wives and children are still prisoners of those wars.

10But I want to renew a covenant with the Eternal, God of Israel, and follow His ways again so that he will not continue to be angry with us. 11Now that we have made this commitment, we must not abandon the Eternal, who expects us to be in His presence, serve Him, minister on His behalf to others, and burn incense continually.

12Then seven Levite families sent forward representatives. From the main Levite lines: Mahath (son of Amasai and Joel the son of Azariah) from the Kohathites, Kish (son of Abdi and Azariah the son of Jehallelel) from the sons of Merari, Joah (son of Zimmah and Eden the son of Joah) from the Gershonites, 13and Shimri and Jeiel from the sons of Elizaphan. From the Levitical singers: Zechariah and Mattaniah from the sons of Asaph, 14Jehiel and Shimei from the sons of Heman, and Shemaiah and Uzziel from the sons of Jeduthun.

15The representatives gathered all of their kinsmen, sanctified themselves, then sanctified the Eternal's temple as the king commanded and as the Eternal desired.

16The priests cleansed the most holy place in the Eternal's temple, taking every unclean thing outside into the temple courts, from where the Levites then took them to the Kidron Valley to be discarded.
17This cleansing began on the first day of the first month and ended on the eighth day of the month, when they were finally able to enter the Eternal's temple porch. Then they blessed the Eternal's temple, which took eight more days and ended on the sixteenth day of the first month.
18Then they told King Hezekiah all they had done.

Levites: We have cleansed all of the Eternal's temple: the altar of burnt offering, the table of unleavened bread, and all of the utensils. 19Also we have recovered and sanctified all the utensils which King Ahaz disposed of during his despicable reign. Now they, too, are at the Eternal's altar.

20King Hezekiah woke up early and assembled the city leaders at the Eternal's house.
21The men brought seven bulls, seven rams, seven lambs, and seven male goats as sin offerings representing the atonement of the entire kingdom, the sanctuary, and Judah. Hezekiah then ordered the priests, the sons of Aaron, to sacrifice for the Southern Kingdom's sins on the Eternal's altar, 22-24slaughtering the bulls, rams, and lambs and sprinkling their blood on the altar. Then they sacrificed for the atonement of all of Israel, the North and the South, as Hezekiah requested by offering the male goats. The priests brought the goats before the king and the leaders, laid their hands on the animals, slaughtered them, and covered the altar with their blood.

Having cleansed the nation and the temple, Hezekiah prepares to celebrate.

25-26He assigned the priests to play their trumpets and the Levites to play King David's cymbals, harps, and lyres in the Eternal's temple as the Eternal had commanded them to do through the words of David, Gad (David's seer), and Nathan the prophet. 27Then Hezekiah commanded the burnt offering be offered on the altar. During the offering, the musicians played their trumpets and David's instruments, performing the song to the Eternal. 28The people worshiped, the singers sang, and the trumpets sounded until the burnt offering was consumed. 29Then the king and all the people there bowed down and worshiped.

Hezekiah and the Leaders *(to the Levites): 30Sing the songs of David the king and Asaph the seer, praising the Eternal One with their lyrics.

So the Levites praised Him joyously and bowed before Him in worship.

Hezekiah *(to the people): 31Now that you have cleansed yourselves with the blood offerings, show your gratitude by bringing your sacrifices and thanksgiving and burnt offerings to the Eternal's temple.

The people did as Hezekiah suggested,
32-33offering 600 bulls and 3,000 sheep, and some also brought burnt offerings to the Eternal: 70 bulls, 100 rams, and 200 lambs. 34Because of the large number of offerings, the priests could not prepare all of the burnt offerings and the Levites had to help them skin the animals until all had been sacrificed and the priests had all sanctified themselves (which the Levites had already done since they were more concerned with cleansing than the priests were). 35The quantity of the burnt offerings, the fat of the peace offerings, and the libations for the burnt offerings were enough to restore the Eternal's temple and its practices, 36so Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced over how quickly the True God had changed the hearts of the people and brought them back to following Him.

30 1-5Since the people could not gather in Jerusalem immediately and since not enough priests were sanctified in time to celebrate the Passover holiday during the first month of his reign, Hezekiah, the leaders, and the people of Jerusalem decided to celebrate during the second month.

After restoring the temple, Hezekiah's first opportunity to celebrate Israel's renewed connection with God is Passover.

So he decided to send word to everyone—from Beersheba in the far south to Dan in the far north—to come to the Eternal's temple in Jerusalem and celebrate the Passover honoring the Eternal One, True

God of Israel. Until Hezekiah, Judah had not celebrated as frequently as they should have.

6So messengers carried letters written by the king and his leaders throughout the kingdoms.

Hezekiah's Letter: People of Israel, return to the ways of the Eternal One, True God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, and He will return to those of you who escaped the conquering kings of Assyria to follow Him. 7Don't be like your relatives who ignored the Eternal One, the True God of their fathers; they were destroyed and became a horrific spectacle to other nations. 8Do not be stubborn as they were. Obey Him, come to His sanctuary, and serve the Eternal One, your True God, so that He will not be angry with you. 9If you return to His ways, then your families who were exiled by the Assyrians will receive compassion and will return to their homes because the Eternal One, your True God, is gracious and compassionate and will return to you if you return to Him.

10-12When the messengers took this message throughout the Northern Kingdom, most of the Northerners ridiculed and ignored the message. But some people from the Northern tribes of Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun obeyed Hezekiah and the leaders and humbly traveled to Jerusalem just as all of the Southern Kingdom were given one mind and obeyed under the guidance of the True God via the command of the king and his officials.

13Vast numbers of people responded to the king's message and traveled to Jerusalem to celebrate the Festival of Unleavened Bread in the second month. 14*As part of the festivities,* the people destroyed the Canaanite altars in Jerusalem and threw the incense altars into the Kidron Valley.

Having purged the city and cleansed the temple, the people are ready to celebrate.

15They slaughtered the Passover lambs on the fourteenth of the second month.

The priests and Levites humbled themselves, sanctified themselves, and brought burnt offerings to the Eternal's temple. 16There they attended to their assigned duties, as Moses the follower of the True God had described, sprinkling the blood of the animals which the Levites sacrificed. 17The Levites slaughtered the Passover lambs that were offered by the unclean people in the assembly while those who had sanctified themselves slaughtered their own lambs to the Eternal. 18Many of the people from the tribes of Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves as prescribed, but they were able to eat the Passover feast because Hezekiah prayed on their behalf.

Hezekiah: Eternal One, because You are good, cover their sins for 19everyone here who has neglected to ritually cleanse himself in order to properly enter the temple of the True God, the Eternal God of our ancestors. Everyone here wants to follow You.

20The Eternal One heard Hezekiah's prayer and healed them from the threat of disease for not approaching God as instructed. 21So the Israelites who had traveled to Jerusalem joyously celebrated the Festival of Unleavened Bread for seven days while the Levites and the priests played their instruments praising the Eternal daily. 22Hezekiah commended the Levites who had remained faithful and prudent toward the Eternal, and everyone celebrated for seven days: feasting, sacrificing peace offerings, and offering praise to the Eternal One, True God of their ancestors.

23Everyone decided to celebrate for another seven days, and they celebrated with joy. 24*By the time the festival ended,* Hezekiah, king of the Southern Kingdom, had donated 1,000 bulls and 7,000 sheep, and the leaders had donated 1,000 bulls and 10,000 sheep for the people to sacrifice. Also many priests had sanctified themselves. 25Everyone in Judah rejoiced: priests, Levites, Northerners who had traveled for the festival, and Northerners who had moved to Judah permanently. 26Nothing like this celebration had happened in Jerusalem since the reign of Solomon, son of David, so the people were joyous. 27Finally the Levitical priests concluded the festival by blessing the people. And He heard their prayer from His sacred dwelling in heaven.

► Such a celebration has not happened since Solomon dedicated the temple. This celebration is reminiscent of that time in several ways: all of Israel gathers for the occasion, the king makes lavish donations for the celebration, and the festival lasts an extra week. Like Solomon, Hezekiah focuses on his nation's relationship with God by making the temple and proper worship central to Israelite life.

31 When the Passover was finished, all the Israelites who had attended the festival left Jerusalem for the cities of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh. There they continued Hezekiah's zeal by destroying all cultic statues and carved images of Asherah. Having purged the nation of idolatrous symbols like the high places and altars, the Israelites returned to their own homes.

2 Meanwhile Hezekiah continued structuring the temple activities. He reorganized the divisions of priests and Levites according to their duties, such as making burnt or peace offerings, ministering, worshiping, or praising near the gates to the Eternal's camp.

► This camp is, of course, the temple, but the chronicler refers to the temple here as "the camp" to remind the people of their early connection to the Lord when their ancestors fled Egypt and followed Him in the desert.

3 Just as his ancestors David and Solomon did before him, Hezekiah donated a portion of his animals for the morning, evening, Sabbath, new moon, and other festival burnt offerings as the Eternal's law requires.* 4 He also commanded everyone in Jerusalem to offer a portion of their possessions to the priests and the Levites, so that each person could participate in the Eternal's law by tithing. 5 Once everyone had heard Hezekiah's request, the Israelites in Jerusalem gave more than was required from their best grain, wine, oil, honey, and produce, creating a surplus of offerings. 6 Those Israelites living in neighboring Judahite cities brought tithes and offerings of oxen, sheep, and other sacred gifts, which were cleansed and piled high for use by the Eternal One their God. 7 The offerings continued from the third month until the seventh month when the offerings were so plentiful that they lay in stacks around the temple yard. 8 Seeing the heaps of tithes, Hezekiah and his officers praised the Eternal and blessed the Israelites who had answered their obligations. 9 Hezekiah wondered why all the gifts had not been offered to God, so he asked the priests and Levites what would happen to the offerings. 10 Azariah, the chief priest and a Zadokite, answered.

Azariah: The Eternal One has favored His people, and they have shown their thankfulness with immense generosity. Since the Israelites began bringing their gifts to the Eternal's temple, there has been more than enough to eat and have plenty left over to sacrifice.

11 Having no place to put the abundance, Hezekiah commanded the priests and Levites to prepare storage rooms in the Eternal's temple. Once the rooms were ready, 12 the people continued offering their gifts, which were organized by Conaniah (the Levite) and his brother and assistant, Shimei. 13 They supervised Jehiel, Azaziah, Nahath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, Mahath, and Benaiah, who were all appointed overseers of the tithes by both King Hezekiah and chief priest Azariah.

14 Kore (son of Imnah the Levite and the eastern gatekeeper) distributed the freewill offerings to the True God—both the contributions to the Eternal and the most sacred gifts. 15-16 He supervised Eden, Miniamin, Jeshua, Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah in the cities of the priests, and they fairly distributed the goods to the Levites by their divisions and gave an equal amount to all men 30* years old and older, regardless of the size of their division or their lineage, who entered the Eternal's temple to perform the daily duties. 17 Kore and his men also distributed goods to the priests according to their lineage and to the Levites 20 years old and older according to their duties and divisions. 18 (Included in those genealogical records were the Levites' and priests' wives and children who also cleansed themselves regularly to be holy before Him.)

19 Even the descendants of Aaron who lived outside the cities in the surrounding

* 31:3 Numbers 28:1–29:40 * 31:15-16 Hebrew, "three"

pasturelands were provided for. In each city men were designated to distribute goods to every male priest and every Levite included in a Levitical genealogy.

20Hezekiah organized the religious practices throughout all of Judah, just as the Eternal, his True God, considered right. 21Every idea Hezekiah had concerning the improvement of the True God's temple was begun by his commandments and carried out by his people. And Hezekiah did all out of a dedicated heart and was rewarded for his work.

► Typically, kings' good and faithful works before God are rewarded with peace and prosperity. But not Hezekiah's. His devotion to God is tested with an invasion by the most powerful army in the world—the Assyrian Empire, led by Sennacherib. Sennacherib is not just another bully coming to take the temple treasures; he intends to conquer the world, and Israel is a bump on his road to Egypt. Sennacherib is ample temptation for Hezekiah to abandon God and surrender Jerusalem in return for his own life. But Hezekiah is more faithful than that.

32 After his acts of faithfulness toward God, Hezekiah faced the greatest challenge of his reign. Sennacherib, king of Assyria, invaded Judah and besieged the fortified cities intending to conquer them for himself. 2Realizing that Sennacherib would eventually reach Jerusalem, Hezekiah prepared the city for a long siege. 3-4*First,* the king's officers and warriors with a large number of the people dammed the water sources, both springs and rivers, outside the city so that when the Assyrians came they could not readily use the water sources. 5*Second,* Hezekiah reinforced the city by repairing the existing wall structure which surrounded the city, building towers for offensive position, and erecting another wall far outside the main city wall. Between the two walls, he strengthened the city's millo.

Third he cast new weapons and shields in abundance. 6*Finally* he appointed the military leaders over the people and commissioned them at the city gate.

Hezekiah: 7*We can* be strong and courageous because of the One who fights with us. Don't be discouraged or fearful of the Assyrian king and the multitude of his people, for greatness is with us more than with them. 8Sennacherib will fight with an arm of flesh and bone, but we will fight with the Eternal God's help and His warfare.

The people were strengthened by the words of Hezekiah, king of Judah.

9While Sennacherib, with his forces, was busy besieging Lachish in a bloody battle, the king of Assyria sent messengers to Jerusalem to persuade Hezekiah and all the Judahites to surrender.

Sennacherib's Message: 10Why are you remaining in Jerusalem when you know I am about to come destroy your city? What could you possibly be trusting that could save you from my army? 11Hezekiah must be entertaining you with lies, telling you how the Eternal God will save you from my conquest. If you listen to him, we will certainly conquer you while you die of hunger and thirst inside those walls.

► Sennacherib cleverly poses the question to those inside the walls of Jerusalem: Do you really think your God will defend a king who has made it harder for His people to worship Him?

Sennacherib's Message: 12Hezekiah removed His high places and altars from all over the country, forcing everyone to come to Jerusalem to worship. 13-14Haven't you heard how my empire's army has destroyed peoples and nations for years? We even conquered your own brothers in the Northern Kingdom. Where were their gods when their nations needed defending? Where will your True God be when you are being tortured and murdered? 15Stop listening and being deceived by Hezekiah. He is only giving you false hope. No god has ever rescued his people from me or my royal fathers before me, so what makes you think your God will?

► Of course, Sennacherib completely misunderstands the nature of God and the reforms of Hezekiah. Hezekiah is only ingratiating himself to God when he consolidates the religion in Jerusalem. Sennacherib's taunting of God, saying that He could never save His people, leaves the Assyrian king wide open for a display of God's power.

16Sennacherib's servants continued blaspheming Hezekiah and the Eternal God. 17-19The Assyrian king himself wrote additional letters insulting the Eternal God of Israel, reminding the people that no god had ever saved his people from the Assyrians, and Israel's God couldn't either. Furthermore, Sennacherib wrote that God was a creation of humans, just as all the other pagan gods are. These letters were shouted in the common Judahite language of Hebrew as the people of Jerusalem stood on the city wall listening. The messengers thought their words would terrify and disturb the people into surrendering the city.

20But King Hezekiah and Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz, were not threatened by the Assyrians' words. They relied on their God and called to heaven for help. 21The Eternal responded quickly, sending a heavenly messenger to slaughter every Assyrian soldier, commander, and officer. Having been decidedly defeated by the very God he had taunted, Sennacherib, in shame, journeyed back to Assyria. In the security of his own god's temple, Sennacherib was stabbed to death by his own children. 22In this decisive way, the Eternal saved Hezekiah and Jerusalem from Sennacherib's attempted conquest and any other nation's imperial intentions. So God provided for His people by those around Judah. 23Many people brought gifts to the Eternal and Hezekiah in Jerusalem, so that other nations recognized the king's authority.

24-26Hezekiah became proud and neglected to appreciate the gifts he received. So the Eternal was angry with him and all of Jerusalem and Judah. When Hezekiah became deathly ill, he realized what he had done wrong. He humbled himself and prayed to the Eternal, who answered the prayer and healed him as a sign. The people of Jerusalem and Judah also humbled themselves so that He was no longer angry with His people during Hezekiah's days. 27-29*In fact,* the True God blessed them with great wealth and honor. Hezekiah filled his treasuries with silver, gold, gems, spices, shields, and other valuables. He filled his storehouses with grain, wine, and oil. His stables contained all kinds of cattle and flocks. Then Hezekiah built more cities and acquired more flocks and herds. 30He also dammed the Gihon River and diverted its waters to the west side of Jerusalem. Hezekiah was successful at all his endeavors.

31*Later,* when the rulers of Babylon sent diplomats to learn about the miraculous sign *given at Hezekiah's healing when the sun moved backwards, the True God left Hezekiah and tested the king's heart and devotion to Him.

► Near the end of Hezekiah's reign, Mesopotamia is in turmoil. The Assyrian Empire is weakening due to internal struggles and a string of impotent kings. But the Babylonians are slowly gaining power and testing the strength of their surrounding nations. Soon Babylonian leaders will come to Jerusalem again. But the next time will not be a friendly visit.

32The other actions and devotion of King Hezekiah, from his birth to his death, are recorded in the vision of Isaiah the prophet (son of Amoz) in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah. 33Hezekiah joined his ancestors in death and was laid in an upper tomb, a place of honor,

with the descendants of David. He was mourned by all Judah and all Jerusalem. Hezekiah's son Manasseh reigned in his place.

33 Manasseh was 12 years old when he became king, and he reigned 55 years in Jerusalem, the longest of any king in Israel. 2He behaved wickedly before the Eternal, acting with the same abominations as the previous nations did before the Eternal gave their land to Israel. 3He reversed the good deeds of Hezekiah, rebuilding the high places and altars for the Baals and hoisting carved images of Asherah into the skies. He worshiped all the celestial bodies as false deities. 4-5He even desecrated the Eternal's temple, the place honoring His reputation which was to remain in Jerusalem forever, by building pagan altars in two courts there. 6In the valley of Benhinnom, Manasseh offered his children as burnt offerings to those false gods and used every form of magic: witchcraft, divination, sorcery, and necromancy. Manasseh's evil actions infuriated the Eternal, but the worst of his actions was 7his installation of an image of a statue in the True God's temple. Many years before when His glory entered the temple for the first time, God had spoken.

Eternal One *(to David and his son Solomon): From among all the tribes I have chosen this house and this city, Jerusalem, from all the cities throughout Israel. This place will honor My reputation forever, 8so that I will never allow Israel to leave the land that I gave to your ancestors—as long as you and your descendants follow the laws and requirements I gave to you through Moses.*

9Manasseh corrupted Judah and the people of Jerusalem until they were more evil than the nations whom the Eternal had destroyed before the Israelites. 10*Their minds were so full of sin that* they didn't hear the Eternal asking them to return to His ways. 11So to get their attention, the Eternal used the Assyrian army to express His anger. The commanders captured Manasseh, forced a ring through his nose, bound his limbs with bronze chains, and carried him to Babylon as if he were an animal. 12From this position of complete powerlessness, Manasseh finally humbled himself and begged the forgiveness of the Eternal God of his fathers. 13He heard Manasseh's prayer and found it sincere; He returned Manasseh to the throne in Jerusalem. From that day forward, Manasseh never doubted that the Eternal was the True God.

► Unlike his evil predecessor Ahaz, Manasseh sees the error of his ways and returns to God. He even reinstates his father's reforms, further demonstrating his devotion to God. Manasseh's change of heart is rewarded with the longest reign of any Israelite king.

14Having returned to proper faith, Manasseh continued his father's work. He finished building the outer city wall from the west side of the Gihon River through the valley to the fish gate. Then he built high walls around the hill of Ophel* and stationed commanders at each fortified city in Judah. 15*Then Manasseh began to purge the nation of the sin he had brought there.* He tore out the idols from inside the Eternal's temple and the foreign altars from the temple mount and in Jerusalem, disposing of them outside the city. 16He then restored the Eternal's altar and gave grateful offerings of peace and praise there. Even though Manasseh ordered the Judahites to serve only the Eternal God of Israel in the way that He commanded, 17they continued to sacrifice to the Eternal God at other high places instead of only in Jerusalem.

20But when Manasseh joined his ancestors in death, the people buried him in his house, not in the tombs with his

* 33:7-8 2 Samuel 7:10 * 33:14 Possibly the temple mount * 33:19 Greek, "seers"

ancestors. His son Amon reigned in his place.

21Amon was 22 years old when he began his short two-year reign in Jerusalem. 22Like his father, Manasseh, Amon committed evil acts before the Eternal by serving and sacrificing to Manasseh's carved cultic images. 23But unlike his father, Amon did not recognize his sins and humble himself. In fact, his guilt was so prolific 24that his own servants murdered him in the palace.

Regardless of his popularity, ethics, or effectiveness, Amon is the king, and kings cannot be killed by commoners.

25So the people killed the conspirators for their betrayal of King Amon and anointed Amon's son Josiah as king instead.

► Amon's horrible reign makes his burial unimportant. No one knows if his bones are with his ancestors in the kings' tomb or outside the city walls with his father's discarded altars and icons. With a reign as destructive as his, it is appropriate that, like his bones, Amon is forgotten.

34 Josiah was 8 years old when he became king, and he reigned 31 years in Jerusalem. 2He was one of the few great kings of Israel, who determinedly obeyed the Eternal and followed the example of his ancestor David. 3-4His zeal for the True God of David began in the 8th year of his reign while he was still a child of 16, but he did not begin his reforms of Judah and Jerusalem until he was 20 years old. Then he removed the high places, chopped down the sacrificial altars and incense altars of the Baals, and smashed the carved and molten images of Asherah and other gods. He then took the broken pieces of the icons, crushed them into powder, and sprinkled that powder on the graves of the people who had worshiped them. 5He even burned the bones of the priests who had served those gods on the cultic altars to completely purge Judah and Jerusalem. 6He then continued his reforms throughout the region, including Manasseh, Ephraim, Simeon, and Naphtali and their surrounding villages, 7where he personally smashed the carved images of Asherah and other gods into powder and chopped down the incense altars. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

8By the 18th year of his reign, Josiah had cleansed the nation and the temple. Now it was time to repair them both by rebuilding the temple. He sent Shaphan (son of Azaliah), Maaseiah (a city official), and Joah (son of Joahaz the recorder) to the temple of the True God, the Eternal, in order to organize repairs there. 9*First,* they took the money from the temple coffers and gave it to Hilkiah, the high priest, so he could oversee the funds for the temple repairs. The money had been collected at the temple by the Levite doorkeepers from those remaining in the Northern Kingdom, including Manasseh and Ephraim, and from all those in the Southern Kingdom, including Judah, Benjamin, and the city of Jerusalem. 10The money went to the Eternal's temple construction supervisors who then subcontracted the work to tradesmen and craftsmen. 11Those subcontractors purchased cut stone, timber, and couplings to rebuild the portions of the temple that had become ruined because of the neglect by the kings of Judah. 12The subcontractors were dependable workers, following the guidance of their supervisors: Jahath and Obadiah (Levites from the clan of Merari), Zechariah and Meshullam (Levites from the clan of Kohath), and the Levite musicians. 13These supervisors guided everyone on the job, from the subcontractors and foremen to the unskilled laborers, while performing their regular duties of record keepers, officials, and gatekeepers.

14As Josiah's three servants were bringing out the money from the Eternal's treasury, Hilkiah the priest made an unexpected discovery. Deep inside the temple storerooms, long forgotten, was the Eternal's law book, rules He had given to the Israelites through Moses.

Hilkiah (to Shaphan the scribe): 15Look at what I have found. This is the Eternal's law book, which was buried inside the temple.

Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, 16who took it to the king and affirmed that they were proceeding with the temple repairs.

Shaphan (to Josiah): All the repairs you planned for the temple are going well.

17Your three servants have taken the money from the Eternal's temple treasury and allocated it to the supervisors and subcontractors. In the midst of temple restoration works, 18Hilkiah the priest made a discovery. He found this book.

Shaphan then read these laws in the presence of the king.

This is the first time God's law has been in the palace in generations.

19When the king heard those words, he realized how far his nation had drifted from God's path, and he tore his clothes in mourning. 20He then summoned five of his high-ranking officials: Hilkiah, Ahikam (son of Shaphan), Abdon (son of Micah), Shaphan the scribe, and Asaiah the king's servant.

Josiah: 21You must intercede for me and for all those who remain in Israel and Judah. Ask the Lord about these laws which we have just found. The Eternal must be furious with us because our ancestors disobeyed His laws in this book. Soon He will unleash that anger and punish us all.

22The four men including Hilkiah went straight to Huldah the prophetess in Jerusalem's Second Quarter because they knew He would speak through her. Huldah was the wife of Shallum (son of Tokhath, son of Hasrah, the keeper of the wardrobe).

Huldah: 23-24These are the words of the Eternal God of Israel: "Tell Josiah, king of Judah, that I will indeed curse this nation and these people, just as the book says I will, 25because they have disobeyed Me and made sacrifices to other gods intending to infuriate Me by their actions. The pain and suffering you are about to experience will be unbearable and unending.

26"But to the king of Judah who sent you to Me, I, the Eternal God of Israel, have noticed your reforms. 27Because you recognized the True God's laws, which convicted your nation of their sins, and you humbled yourself and mourned your nation's actions by tearing your clothing, I have heard you and will have mercy on you. 28You will die and lie with your ancestors in peace before I unleash My anger on this nation, so your eyes will not witness the great disaster that I am about to bring forth on this place and those dwelling here."

The four servants gave the king this message, 29and he immediately summoned all the elders in Judah and Jerusalem. 30The entire nation (great and small, priest and layman, man and woman) went up to the Eternal's temple where Josiah read to them the laws from the book of the covenant that was found in the Eternal's temple. 31-32There, the king and the entire assembly in Jerusalem, people from Benjamin and Judah, stood and renewed Israel's covenant with the Eternal, promising to follow His ways, obey His laws with all diligence, and perform the duties of the covenant described in the book. Then all the people in Jerusalem respected their covenant with the True God, the God of their ancestors, 33and Josiah purged all the lands of Israel of false worship, making certain everyone in Israel served the Eternal God. The people remained faithful to the Eternal God of their ancestors throughout Josiah's reign.

► Passover is Josiah's first opportunity to demonstrate his renewed devotion to God. Therefore, each detail perfectly follows His mandates for the event, from the day the offerings are slaughtered to the Levites' specific duties. Although there is devotion in the land, apostasy will return once Josiah dies. The punishment of Israel is not averted, just delayed.

35 On the 14th day of the first month after Josiah had rededicated the nation to God, the king instituted the Eternal's Passover feast in Jerusalem by slaughtering the Passover animals. 2Josiah appointed the priests and encouraged them in performing their duties for the Eternal's temple. 3Then he commissioned the Levites, Israel's teachers and the Eternal's most holy servants, in their various duties for the feast.

Josiah: You no longer need to carry the holy covenant chest on your shoulders. Bring it to the temple which Solomon, son of King David, built and leave it there. From now on, your primary responsibility is serving the Eternal God and His people, Israel. 4Cleanse yourselves, as King David and his son Solomon described for you in writing, according to your lineage and duties. 5Then stand with your kinsmen inside the temple, dividing yourselves by the tribes and your fathers' households under whom you serve. 6*Once you are organized,* slaughter the Passover animals, cleanse yourselves, and prepare your people to participate in the ceremonies as the Eternal's law by Moses describes.

16On that day, all the Eternal's servants completed preparations for the Passover, giving burnt offerings on the Eternal's altar as Josiah commanded, 17and all the Israelites who were present in Jerusalem celebrated the Passover, the Feast of Unleavened Bread, for a full week. 18This was the first Passover feast since Samuel was judging Israel. No other king's festival was ever as precise or as well-attended by the priests, Levites, and all the Israelites. 19It took place during Josiah's 18th year as king.

Neco's Message: Why are you getting involved in this dispute, king of Judah? I am simply passing through your region on my way to attack another nation, as God has asked me to do. I am not attacking you. Stop your forces from interfering with my army, or God who is with me will destroy you.

► Josiah may assume that Neco is referring to his pagan gods, but what he misunderstands is that Neco is being sent into battle by the same God whom Josiah served. There aren't Egyptian gods behind this encounter. The Lord is about to use Neco to judge Josiah.

22But Josiah ignored Neco's message and his warning that were from the mouth of God. Josiah disguised himself and attacked Neco's army on Megiddo Plain. 23Neco's archers quickly wounded King Josiah.

Josiah *(to his servants): Get me off of this battlefield. I am badly injured.

24His servants took him out of his battle chariot and carried him to another chariot that they could drive to Jerusalem. There Josiah died and was laid to rest with his fathers. All of Judah and Jerusalem mourned his death. 25*The prophet* Jeremiah even composed a lament for Josiah, which all singers remember when they sing their lamentations today, during our exile from Israel. This lament became a state anthem and is recorded in the book of Laments.

[26-27]The other actions of Josiah and his loyal deeds, from his birth to his death, are recorded in the Eternal's law and the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

► The grand tradition of Israel has such a disappointing ending. Certainly God reveals to Josiah that exile is inevitable, but no one can predict the barrage of incompetent kings who usher in that foreign exile.

36 The Israelites chose Josiah's son Joahaz, *also named Jehoahaz, as his father's successor in Jerusalem. [2]He was 23 years old when he ascended to the throne, but his reign in Jerusalem only lasted 3 months. [3-5]Neco conquered Israel, deposed Joahaz as the king, exiled him to Egypt, and made Israel a vassal state required to pay 3,750 pounds of silver and 75 pounds of gold annually to Egypt.

The Egyptian king appointed 25-year-old Eliakim, Joahaz's brother, as acting king of Judah and Jerusalem, changing his name to Jehoiakim. He reigned 11 years in Jerusalem, and he was evil before the Eternal God. [6]Then Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, attacked Israel, carried Jehoiakim bound in bronze chains into exile in Babylon, [7]plundered the Eternal's temple, and put the temple possessions in his own Babylonian temple. [8-9]The rest of Jehoiakim's rebellions are recorded in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

Jehoiachin was only 8 years old when he succeeded his father as king in Jerusalem. He, too, did what the Eternal considered as evil and reigned only 3 months and 10 days. [10]Just after the new year, King Nebuchadnezzar had Jehoiachin exiled to Babylon as well. He also took more valuables from the Eternal's temple.

Nebuchadnezzar then appointed Zedekiah the Babylonian as acting king of Judah and Jerusalem [11]when he was only 21 years old. He reigned 11 years from Jerusalem [12]and he also did what the Eternal One saw as evil. He refused to listen to the guidance of Jeremiah, who advised the king to humble himself before the Eternal. [13]Furthermore, he rebelled against King Nebuchadnezzar, to whom he had sworn allegiance in the name of God, [14]then led the rest of the nation to abandon the Eternal One, God of Israel. All the leaders and priests mimicked the other nations, following pagan gods and desecrating the Eternal's house, which He had sanctified in Jerusalem. [15]Again and again, the Eternal God of their ancestors, because of His compassion for His people and His temple, sent messengers to His people, convicting them of the wrong doings and telling them to return to His ways, [16]but the people mocked the True God's messengers, hated His messages, and laughed at His prophets. Their actions further infuriated the Eternal, until there was no way to contain His anger.

[17]The Eternal empowered the king of the Chaldeans (who were part of the Babylonian Empire) to attack Israel. This army was merciless, sacrificing Israel's children in their temples and slaughtering everyone else without regard to gender, age, or health. [18-19]They plundered every treasure in the Eternal God's temple and burned God's temple to the ground. They stole the king's and the officers' possessions, tore down the wall of Jerusalem, burned the fortified buildings, and destroyed anything of value in Jerusalem. [20]Anyone who managed to survive the invasion was exiled to Babylon, where they remained servants of the Babylonian court until it was conquered by the Persian Empire. [21]This exile fulfilled the Eternal's message through Jeremiah that Israel would lie quietly at rest and be desolate for 70 years to make up for the generations where they did not observe Sabbath.

► In spite of the generations of sin and hatred, God does not exile His people permanently. He leaves them with the hope of return to their homeland when He gives Jeremiah that prophecy. And their return is not too far away. In less than two generations, the Jews (as the Israelites become known during the exile) return to the land and rebuild His temple.

* 36:1 2 Kings 23:31

the Eternal fulfilled His own words (which were relayed by Jeremiah) by compelling Cyrus to send a written proclamation throughout his empire.

Cyrus' Proclamation: [23]The Eternal, the God of heaven, has decided to give me all the kingdoms of the world to rule as my own. In return for this, He has told me to build Him a new house in Jerusalem of Judah. Any of His people living in my empire may return to Jerusalem of Judah with the help of the Eternal One and True God.

The Jews return to the land of promise

By Ezra, the priest

01 02 03 04 05 06

The Book of Ezra picks up where 2 Chronicles leaves off and continues the dramatic story of God's dealings with His displaced people. In the Hebrew Bible, Ezra and Nehemiah are one book entitled Ezra-Nehemiah; but the Christian canon separates them into two different books located together toward the end of the historical books and before the great books of wisdom and poetry. According to tradition, Ezra is the author of this book as it stands, and there are parts of it (7:28–9:15) that appear to be his memoirs. However, the book is anonymous; and as with most things ancient, it is difficult to say for certain who is responsible for its final form.

The story behind Ezra and Nehemiah involves a gracious God who is ready to give His people another opportunity to follow Him. He hears their cries from foreign soils and answers them by making a way for the exiles to rebuild their nation, their lives, and their connection with Him. As the true force behind history, the one true God inspires a series of Persian kings not only to allow the exiles safe passage home but to support them financially. To assist them further, God raises up a number of great leaders—such as Zerubbabel, Jeshua the high priest, Nehemiah, and Ezra—from their own community to direct the Jews once they are back in their homeland. Now, if His people will only commit themselves to following Him, God is ready to bless their efforts and raise His nation from its ruined foundations.

One of the first tasks the former exiles attempt is to rebuild the temple, a project completed—despite a great many setbacks and much opposition—in 515 B.C. under the leadership of Zerubbabel and Jeshua. Ezra, a priest and scribe with impressive credentials, returns to his ancestral lands in 458 B.C. to find a nation in peril because the people have forgotten God's instructions contained in Scripture. So Ezra guides the nation to rediscover who they are and to return to Scripture, particularly the five books of Moses called the Torah. Like many of the prophets and priests of his day, Ezra is concerned that his people follow God's covenantal obligations so that they will not face another national disaster.

The exile experience has changed God's people in profound ways; they even answer to a new name. Prior to the exile, they are known as "the nation of Judah" or "Judahites." But after the Babylonian conquest and their long season of exile, the world now knows them as "Jews."

1 During the first year of King Cyrus of Persia's reign in 539 B.C., the Eternal One influenced the spirit of the Persian king to send a proclamation and written letter throughout his empire, fulfilling the Eternal's earlier message through the prophet Jeremiah.*

King Cyrus actually rules the Persian Empire from 559-530 B.C., but it is in 539 B.C. when Persia finishes its conquest of Babylonian territory and Cyrus sends a decree that the Jews might return to Judah.

Cyrus' Proclamation: 2The Eternal One, the God of heaven, has decided to give me all the kingdoms of the world to rule as my own. In return for this, He has told me to build Him a new house in Jerusalem of Judah. 3Any of His people living in my empire may return to Jerusalem of Judah with the help of the Eternal God. There you may rebuild the temple of the Eternal, Israel's God, with my resources and blessing, because He is the God who lives in Jerusalem. 4Every Jew who lives here or in any other part of my empire and wishes to return to Jerusalem should be supported by his neighbors. They should give him silver, gold, goods, and cattle for his journey and should send a freewill offering to the True God's temple in Jerusalem.

5The tribal leaders of Judah and Benjamin, the priests and Levites, and everyone motivated in his or her spirit by the True God prepared to return to Jerusalem and rebuild the Eternal's temple. 6All their neighbors gave them silver, gold, goods, cattle, and valuable things for the journey, just as Cyrus had requested, and sent freewill offerings. 7-8Even King Cyrus commanded his treasurer, Mithredath, to return the vessels from the Eternal's temple (which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from Jerusalem and stored in his gods' temple) to Sheshbazzar, the prince of Judah. 9The vessels included 30 gold basins, 1,000 silver basins, 29 extra dishes, 10 30 gold bowls, 410 silver bowls of a different pattern, and 1,000 other articles. 11Sheshbazzar and the exiles carried a total of 5,400 gold and silver vessels from Babylon to Jerusalem.

► When Nebuchadnezzar conquered any nation, he plundered the temples of the local gods and took their treasures as trophies. Judah was no exception. He plundered the Lord's temple and put the treasures in the Babylonian gods' temple along with the treasures of the conquered pagan gods. By returning the temple treasures to Jerusalem, Cyrus recognizes and supports the development of the Jews' renewed government while maintaining governmental control over the nation.

2 1-2These leaders of Israel followed Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum, and Baanah back to the province of Judah, to their ancestral cities or the city of Jerusalem, from their Babylonian exile at the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon: 3The descendants of Parosh (2,172), 4Shephatiah (372), 5Arah (775), 6Pahath-moab of the families of Jeshua and Joab (2,812), 7Elam (1,254), 8Zattu (945), 9Zaccai (760), 10Bani (642), 11Bebai (623), 12Azgad (1,222), 13Adonikam (666), 14Bigvai (2,056), 15Adin (454), 16Ater of Hezekiah (98), 17Bezai (323), 18Jorah (112), 19Hashum (223), and 20Gibbar (95); 21the citizens of Bethlehem (123), 22Netophah (56), and 23Anathoth (128); 24the descendants of Azmaveth (42); 25Kiriath-arim, Chephirah, and Beeroth (743); and 26Ramah and Geba (621); 27the citizens of Michmas (122) and 28Bethel and Ai (223); 29the descendants of Nebo (52), 30Magbish (156), 31the other Elam (1,254), 32Harim (320), and 33Lod, Hadid, and Ono (725); 34the citizens of Jericho (345); 35The descendants of Senaah (3,630).

36These priests returned to Jerusalem: the descendants of Jedaiah the Jeshuite (973), 37Immer (1,052), 38Pashhur (1,247), 39and Harim (1,017).

40These Levites returned to Jerusalem: the descendants of Jeshua and Kadmiel the Hodaviahites (74).

41These singers returned to Jerusalem: the descendants of Asaph (128).

42These sons of the gatekeepers: the descendants Shallum, Ater, Talmon, Akkub, Hatita, and Shobai (139).

43These temple servants returned to Jerusalem: the descendants of Ziha,

* 1:1 2 Chronicles 36:22-23; Jeremiah 25:11-12; 29:10

Hasupha, Tabbaoth, [44]Keros, Siaha, Padon, [45]Lebanah, Hagabah, Akkub, [46]Hagab, Shalmai, Hanan, [47]Giddel, Gahar, Reaiah, [48]Rezin, Nekoda, Gazzam, [49]Uzza, Paseah, Besai, [50]Asnah, Meunim, Nephisim, [51]Bakbuk, Hakupha, Harhur, [52]Bazluth, Mehida, Harsha, [53]Barkos, Sisera, Temah, [54]Neziah, and Hatipha.

[55]These descendants of Solomon's servants returned to Jerusalem: the descendants of Sotai, Hassophereth, Peruda, [56]Jaalah, Darkon, Giddel, [57]Shephatiah, Hattil, Pochereth-hazzebaim, and Ami. [58]All the temple servants and the descendants of Solomon's servants totaled 392.

[59-60]But not everyone was readily accepted into Jerusalem. These people returned to Jerusalem from the Babylonian provinces of Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addan, and Immer: the descendants of Delaiah, Tobiah, and Nekoda (652). These people could not produce genealogies to prove their identities as Israelites.

[61]Three priestly lines—the descendants of Habaiah, Hakkoz, and Barzillai (so called because he married a daughter of Barzillai the Gileadite)—[62]could not be located in their genealogies. Therefore they were considered ritually impure and excluded from the priesthood in case they should taint the Lord's new temple. [63]The governor decided they should abstain from eating the most holy things until the high priest could divine answers using the Urim and Thummim. [64]This decision affected 42,360 people, [65]in addition to 7,337 male and female servants, 200 male and female singers, [66]736 horses, 245 mules, [67]435 camels, and 6,720 donkeys.

[68]When some of the tribal leaders arrived at the Eternal's temple in Jerusalem, they gave their offerings willingly, hoping to rebuild the True God's house on the same site Solomon had used. [69]Their gifts, which the treasury used to finance the construction of the new temple, amounted to about 1,000 pounds* of gold, 3 tons* of silver, and 100 priestly garments.

► When the Jews return to Jerusalem, they are ready to reconstitute the nation and reclaim God's promise to Abraham and their ancestors. All families are asked to prove their lineage before they return to their ancestors' cities, and all priests are asked to do the same before they begin service at the temple. The Jewish leaders are careful that the right people return to the right places so that the new nation resembles the nation under the great kings David, Solomon, Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, and Josiah.

Just as the Southern Kingdom's kings made the restoration of proper worship the priority of their reforms during the monarchy, the reconstruction of the altar is the first order of business when the Jews return to Jerusalem. But they cannot be overzealous in their rebuilding. The few Israelites who have remained in the land while most of the population was exiled revere the site of the destroyed temple as holy. To immediately build the temple on the old foundations could be considered apostasy, so the Jews proceed in their reforms with caution. They don't want to incur the wrath of God or of their new neighbors.

3 In the seventh month, the month of Tishri, when the Israelites had settled into their towns and when all of the returning Jews had gathered together in Jerusalem in preparation for the festivals, [2]Jeshua (son of Jozadak) and his fellow priests, and Zerubbabel (son of Shealtiel) and others of those returning home built a new altar of uncut stone for burnt offerings to the True God of Israel following the law of Moses, the man of the True God. [3]The men built the altar on the ruined foundation of Solomon's altar because they feared those who were left behind in the land during the exile. Jeshua and the priests burned offerings to the Eternal each morning and evening [4]and celebrated the Feast of Booths just as Moses had prescribed, offering the required number of burnt offerings each day. [5-6]The daily burnt offerings to the Eternal began on the first day of the seventh month, and when the Feast of Booths ended, our continual offerings did not. They gave burnt sacrifices for the new moons and all of the Eternal's prescribed festivals, and everyone's freewill offerings were given to Him.

* 2:69 61,000 drachmas * 2:69 5,000 minas

But the foundation of His temple had not been laid. 7Jeshua, Zerubbabel, and their fellow returning expatriates exercised King Cyrus of Persia's permission to pay masons and carpenters and send food, drinks, and oil to the Sidonians and Tyrians in exchange for a shipment of Lebanese cedar by sea to Joppa.

8In the second month of the second year after they had begun preparations for the True God's temple in Jerusalem, Zerubbabel (son of Shealtiel), Jeshua (son of Jozadak), and the priests and Levites and all who had been exiled, began construction of the Eternal's temple. The Levites 20 years old and older oversaw the construction, 9and Jeshua and his relatives, Kadmiel and his sons, the descendants of Judah, oversaw the True God's temple laborers, the descendants of Henadad and their brothers the Levites.

10After the laborers had laid the Eternal's temple foundation, the priests and Levites praised the Eternal as their beloved King David of Israel had prescribed. The priests dressed in their vestments and played trumpets, the Levite descendants of Asaph played their cymbals, 11and together they sang praises and gave thanks to the Eternal.

Priests and Levites: We praise him because He is good and because of His continual and loyal love for Israel.

All the people joined in, shouting praises to the Eternal because the foundation of His temple was complete. 12But in the midst of those praises, the priests, Levites, and tribal leaders who remembered the first temple wept loudly when they saw it because they knew this temple could never be as grand as Solomon's. 13There were shouts of joy intermingled with cries of sorrow, and the entire ensemble grew so loud it could be heard a great distance away.

4 When the residents of the former Northern Kingdom, who were enemies of the Southern Kingdom tribes of Judah and Benjamin, heard that the exiled Jews had returned to build the Eternal God of Israel's temple, 2they asked Zerubbabel and the tribal leaders if they could help.

Northern Enemies: Let us help you build this temple to the True God, whom we both follow. You see, our families began sacrificing to Him when King Esarhaddon of Assyria sent us to colonize the Northern Kingdom after he conquered it.

Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the Tribal Leaders: 3You have nothing in common with us! You are not heirs to the Lord's promise to Abraham. King Cyrus of Persia has commanded us to build the Eternal God of Israel's temple, so we will do it by ourselves.

4To intimidate the returning Jews from building, the people of the land made the returning exiles afraid to build 5and bribed counselors to hinder the Jews' efforts throughout the reigns of Cyrus and Darius, the kings of Persia.

► The elders recognize that the Assyrian colonists have impure motives. They don't want to help the Jews; they want to inhibit the reconstruction of the nation. But foreigners aren't the only ones interested in hindering the progress. Those people who remained in the Southern Kingdom while the Jews were exiled try many times to disrupt Israel's tender alliance with the Persian emperors. The Jews have to fight to rebuild the temple during the reigns of Cyrus and Darius, and decades later they will fight to rebuild Jerusalem.

6When Ahasuerus (also known as Xerxes I) ascended to the Persian throne in 485 B.C., they wrote a letter to him accusing the Jews in Judah and Jerusalem of crimes. 7*They did it again* during Artaxerxes' reign; Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeel, and their coconspirators wrote a letter to the Persian king in Aramaic, which was later translated into Hebrew. 8-10*A third time, they wrote a letter* to the Persians. This time, Rehum the commander, Shimshai his scribe, and their associates (the judges, the lieutenant governors, the officials, the secretaries, the Babylonians, the Elamites of Susa, the residents of Erech, and the other colonists who were relocated by the great Assyrian King Osnappar in Samaria and beyond the Euphrates) drafted a letter to King Artaxerxes I slandering Jerusalem.

Northern Enemies' Letter:

11 King Artaxerxes,
We, your servants who live beyond the Euphrates River, are compelled to report to you the treasonous actions of the Jews.
12 The Jews whom your predecessors sent to Jerusalem are busy rebuilding the city, its fortifications, and its foundations with the intention of rebelling against you. 13 If they succeed, dear king, they will stop paying your required tribute, customs, and tolls, and your revenue will suffer.
14 Since we are your servants and the government's representatives to these foreigners, we are offended by any actions taken against you and are informing you of these actions. 15 We suggest that if you read your predecessors' court documents and learn about the history of the Jews of Jerusalem, you will find that they are notoriously rebellious, harming kings and provinces and instigating revolts. Their actions caused your ancestors to destroy Jerusalem and exile its inhabitants.
16 We recommend that you, our king, act quickly. If those fortifications are completed, then you will lose your provinces west of the Euphrates to a Jerusalem-led rebellion.

Artaxerxes' Reply (to Rehum the commander, Shimshai the scribe, and the associates):

17 Loyal ones in Samaria,
Greetings. 18 Your letter was carefully read and translated in my court, and I have addressed your concerns.
19 I issued a decree that my servants investigate the history of Jerusalem. They discovered that your fears are not unfounded. In the past Jerusalem has indeed rebelled and revolted against kings—20 mighty kings who ruled Jerusalem, governed provinces west of the Euphrates, and required tributes, customs, and tolls from their subjects.
21 Now you must issue a decree of your own. Order the Jews to stop building in Jerusalem until I tell them otherwise. 22 Do not be indifferent in your handling of this matter. This threat cannot be allowed to harm the empire.

23 As soon as they heard King Artaxerxes' letter, Rehum, Shimshai the scribe, and their associates rushed to Jerusalem and stopped the Jews' work with the threat of violence.
24 The continual efforts of our neighbors to thwart the temple building were rewarded. The Jerusalem temple site lay deserted and unfinished until the second year of King Darius of Persia's reign.

► The Jews cannot imagine that such opposition to their rebuilding exists within the very government sanctioning and financing their work. The support of a pagan government is not enough to enable and maintain the building of the Lord's temple. While Darius struggles with political unrest throughout his empire, God incites the prophets Haggai and Zechariah to motivate the Jews to resume work on the building.

5 1-2 The prophets Haggai and Zechariah (descendant of Iddo) spoke to the Jews in Judah and Jerusalem with the words of the True God of Israel encouraging Zerubbabel (son of Shealtiel) and Jeshua (son of Jozadak) to resume the reconstruction of the True God's temple in Jerusalem, and the prophets of God gave them assistance. 3 Questioning the sudden commencement of the work, Tattenai (governor of the Persian province west of the Euphrates), Shethar-bozenai, and their associates approached the working Jews.

Persian Officials: Who told you to rebuild the temple?

4 We gave them the names of the people who were doing the work, fearing they might end our construction. 5 But the True God protected the Jewish elders. The Persians did not intend to stop the laborers until Darius received a letter concerning the situation and sent his written reply. 6Tattenai (governor of the Persian province west of the Euphrates), Shethar-bozenai, and their fellow officials drafted that letter.

Officials' Letter:

7To our King Darius, we wish you peace.

8It should be known that we have visited the great God's temple in the province of Judah. The Jews are busy carefully laying huge stones and hoisting beams into the walls, and the work is progressing well. 9*When we saw their progress,* we asked the elders who told them to resume the construction: 10what were the names of the laborers and the superintendents. 11They responded by telling us about Cyrus' decree:

We are the servants of the True God of heaven and earth; we are rebuilding His house—a house that was originally crafted by one of the greatest kings of Israel early in our nation's history. 12Our ancestors disobeyed the True God of heaven and provoked His anger. He empowered Nebuchadnezzar, the Chaldean king of Babylon, to capture our rebellious ancestors, deport them to Babylon, and destroy His temple.

13*We languished in captivity for more than a generation,* until King Cyrus, in his first year as king over Persia and Babylon, allowed us to rebuild the True God's temple. 14Cyrus returned the gold and silver vessels, which Nebuchadnezzar had plundered from the True God's temple in Jerusalem and displayed in the Babylonian temple, to Sheshbazzar, a recently appointed governor. 15Cyrus told him to put the vessels back into the temple in Jerusalem and rebuild the True God's temple on the foundations of the first temple. 16So Sheshbazzar traveled to Jerusalem and laid the foundations of the True God's temple. We have been working on the building, either gathering supplies or building the structure, ever since, but it is far from finished.

17We suggest that you command a thorough search of the archives in your treasure house in Babylon, if that please you. If you find that the Jews' story is correct and that King Cyrus' original decree commissioned the rebuilding of the True God's temple in Jerusalem, then send us your decision as to whether or not the Jews should continue their work.

6 King Darius did just as his officials recommended. He commanded that his archives and the treasure houses in Babylon be searched to determine the validity of the Jews' story. 2A scroll was found of a decree by King Cyrus in the fortress at Ecbatana, the summer residence of the Babylonian and Persian kings, in the province of Media.

3In his first year as king, King Cyrus issued this decree:

The temple of the True God at Jerusalem, where sacrifices are offered, is to be rebuilt on its original foundations. It shall be 90 feet tall and 90 feet wide 4with walls made from three layers of large stones and one layer of timbers. The royal treasury will finance this project, 5and the gold and silver vessels, which Nebuchadnezzar had plundered from the True God's temple in Jerusalem and displayed in Babylon, will be returned to their rightful places in the Jerusalem temple. You will place them in the True God's temple.

The Decree by King Darius to those in Jerusalem:

6-7Now, Tattenai, governor of the province west of the Euphrates, Shethar-bozenai, and their fellow officials in the province west of the Euphrates should not interfere with the Jews' work on the True God's temple. Let the Jews' governor and elders rebuild His temple on the site of the first temple. 8Furthermore, the Persian royal treasury will immediately finance the rebuilding of the True God's temple with the taxes from all the provinces west of the Euphrates. You will see that all the Judahite elders' 9needs for daily sacrifices are met: give them young bulls, rams, and lambs for the burnt offerings to the True God of heaven; give them wheat, salt, wine, and anointing oil for the Jerusalem priests to use without fail. 10With these provisions, they will be able to offer proper sacrifices to the True God of heaven and pray for the well-being of the empire: the king and his children.

11If anyone violates any part of my command, then you will remove a beam from that person's house and impale him on it. The house will become a pile of rubble. 12If anyone attempts to change my command or destroy the True God's temple in Jerusalem, may the God whose reputation lives there destroy that king or nation.

I, Darius, command this. May it be done with diligence.

13Tattenai, governor of the province west of the Euphrates, Shethar-bozenai, and their fellow officials followed King Darius' command diligently. 14-15The Jewish elders successfully finished the temple as the True God of Israel had commanded through the prophets Haggai and Zechariah (son of Iddo) and with the decree of the Persian kings Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes on the third day of the month of Adar in the sixth year of King Darius' reign, 515 B.C. 16All the returning Jews—the priests, the Levites, and the laypeople—joyously celebrated the dedication of the True God's temple 17with dedication offerings of 100 bulls, 200 rams, and 400 lambs, and sin offerings of 12 male goats (one for each of the tribes of Israel so that all Israel, exiled and in Jerusalem, would be forgiven). 18*Having dedicated the temple itself,* the Israelites followed the book of Moses and organized the priests and Levites according to their duties so the True God in Jerusalem could be served.

► Israel's troubles started back in the eighth century when the Assyrians conquered the Northern Kingdom. God was furious with His people because of their sins, so He used that empire to punish them. Over the next two centuries, the Babylonians conquered the Assyrians and the Persians conquered the Babylonians. Which foreign nation led the empire was of no consequence to Him; He could use their power whenever and however He liked. But God uses kings Cyrus and Darius in a different way—He uses them to restore the Jews. They have much to celebrate!

7 More than 50 years had passed since the temple was completed by the first group of exiles, and Artaxerxes I was ruling Persia. Ezra (son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah, 2son of Shallum, son of Zadok, son of Ahitub, 3son of Amariah, son of Azariah, son of Meraioth, 4son of Zerahiah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki, 5son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the chief priest)—6this Ezra traveled from Babylon to make a request of the king. Ezra was a scribe, a scholar of the law of Moses that the Eternal God of Israel had given, who had the support of the Eternal God; so the king granted all his requests 7that more Jews (including laypeople, priests, Levites, singers, gatekeepers, and temple servants) be allowed to return to Jerusalem in the seventh year of King Artaxerxes' reign.

► From the beginning, Ezra has influence. As a descendant of Aaron, he is of the highest and most respected priestly class in the Jewish community, so his own people will follow him. Even in the Persian Empire, his status as a priest makes him a valued political figure. These qualifications make him the perfect person to revitalize the waning religious reforms started by the first Jewish exiles who have returned to Jerusalem.

8-9On the first day of the first month of Artaxerxes' seventh year as king, Ezra traveled from Babylon and arrived in Jerusalem on the first of the fifth month. Ezra's exodus from this foreign empire was successful because he was supported by his True God. [10]He was a second Moses, and tenaciously studied, practiced, and taught the Eternal's law to Israel.

[11]King Artaxerxes gave this copy of the letter to Ezra, the priest, teacher, and scholar of the Eternal's laws to Israel.

Artaxerxes' Letter:

[12]To Ezra, the priest and teacher of the law of the True God of heaven:

May you have perfect peace. I, Artaxerxes, the ruler of all kings, [13]have decreed that any of the Jewish exiles, priests, and Levites residing in my empire may go with you to Jerusalem if they want to. [14]I, the king, and my seven cabinet members are sending you to investigate how Judah and Jerusalem are following your True God's laws, the laws which you study and teach. [15]You will take the silver and gold—which we are freely offering to the True God of Israel who lives in Jerusalem—[16]all the silver and gold in the province of Babylon, and the freewill offerings of all the people and priests for their True God's temple in Jerusalem. [17]Use the money to buy bulls, rams, and lambs for burnt offerings and sin offerings, and offer the grain and drink offerings on the altar of your True God's temple in Jerusalem. [18]Use any leftover money as your True God intends for you and your fellow returning exiles to use it. [19]Deliver all the new vessels, which I have given you to use in the services of your True God's temple, to the True God in Jerusalem. [20]Whatever the True God's temple requires, the Persian royal treasury will pay for it.

[21]To the treasurers in the provinces west of the Euphrates: I, King Artaxerxes, command you to obey Ezra, the priest and teacher of the law of the True God of heaven, and give whatever he needs to support the temple sacrifices for 2 years—[22]up to 7,500 pounds of silver, 600 bushels of wheat, 600 gallons of wine, 600 gallons of oil, and salt. [23]Whatever the True God of heaven commands, do it eagerly for the True God of heaven's temple so that He will not be angry with my empire. [24]Also do not charge taxes, tributes, or tolls to any priests, Levites, singers, gatekeepers, priests' and Levites' servants, or temple servants.

[25]Ezra, appoint officials and judges over everyone in the province west of the Euphrates, including the Jews who follow your True God's laws, as the wisdom of your True God motivates you, and teach those who do not know His laws. [26]Anyone who does not follow your True God's law and my law will be judged harshly and punished by death, exile, foreclosure, or prison.

Ezra: [27]Eternal God of our ancestors, may You be blessed by the praises of Your people for motivating the king to fill and beautify the Eternal's temple in Jerusalem. [28]You have blessed me with Your loyal love and strengthened me with Your motivation as I stood before the king and his cabinet and his princes. Because of You I was able to convince the elders of Israel to accompany me back to Jerusalem.

8 These are the tribal leaders and the genealogies of those who traveled with me from Babylon to Jerusalem in the reign of King Artaxerxes:

[2]From the priestly families: Gershom of the Phinehas family and Daniel of the Ithamar family. From the royal family: Hattush of the David family [3]from the line of Shecaniah. From the lay families: Zechariah of the Parosh family and 150 men from that line, [4]Eliehoenai (son of Zerahiah) of the Pahath-moab family and 200 men, [5]Shecaniah (son of Jahaziel) of the Zattu family and 300 men, [6]Ebed (son of Jonathan) of the Adin family and 50 men, [7]Jeshaiah (son of Athaliah) of the Elam family and 70 men, [8]Zebadiah (son of Michael) of the Shephatiah family and 80 men, [9]Obadiah (son of Jehiel) of the Joab family and 218 men, [10]Shelomith (son of Josiphiah) of the Bani family and 160 men, [11]Zechariah (son of Bebai) of the Bebai family and 28 men, [12]Johanan (son of Hakkatan) of the Azgad family and 110 men, [13]Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah of the Adonikam family and 60 men, [14]Uthai and Zabbud of the Bigvai family and 70 men.

[15]I gathered everyone together on the banks of the river to Ahava, and we camped there for 3 days. As I reviewed the people and the priests, I noticed that no Levites had joined our group. [16]I sent 9 tribal leaders (Eliezer, Ariel, Shemaiah, Elnathan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam) and 2 teachers (Joiarib and Elnathan) [17]to Iddo, the tribal leader in Casiphia, with instructions for Iddo, his coworkers, and the temple servants in Casiphia to bring ministers to join our caravan and work in the True God's temple. [18]Just as the True God intended, they brought Sherebiah and 17 of his sons and brothers, all of whom were descendants of Mahli (son of Levi, son of Israel); [19]Hashabiah and Jeshaiah and 18 of their sons and brothers, all of whom were descendants of Merari; [20]and 220 temple servants, a position David and the princes had created to serve the Levites, who are listed.

[21]I declared that the whole caravan should fast by the river of Ahava, humbling ourselves before our True God and asking for a safe journey for ourselves, our children, and our possessions. [22]We needed His protection more than ever since I had been ashamed to ask the king for a military escort of soldiers and horses on our journey after telling him, "Our True God takes care of anyone who follows Him, but He uses His power and anger against anyone who abandons Him." [23]We knew fasting and following our True God would ensure that He helped us travel safely to Jerusalem—and He did.

[24]I designated 12 priests and Levites, including Sherebiah and Hashabiah, to care for the freewill offerings during our trip. [25]I measured the silver and gold and counted the vessels, which King Artaxerxes, his cabinet, his princes, and the Jews in Babylon had sent to offer at our True God's house, so no one could be accused of stealing the riches. We carried a tremendous offering back to Jerusalem: [26]25 tons of silver coins; 7,500 pounds of silver vessels; 7,500 pounds of gold coins; [27]20 gold bowls weighing 19 pounds;* and 2 shiny copper vessels (as valuable as gold).

Ezra (commissioning the priests and Levites): [28]Everything dedicated to Him is holy to the Eternal: you, the vessels for the temple, and the silver and gold for the freewill offering to the Eternal God of our ancestors. [29]Guard these things until you reach the rooms of the Eternal's temple. There, the head priests, the Levites, and the tribal leaders already living in Jerusalem will weigh them and make sure the same amount reached the temple as left Babylon.

[30]The priests and Levites accepted their commission and carried the carefully measured goods to our True God's temple in Jerusalem. [31]We left the banks of the Ahava River on the 12th day of the 1st month. On our 4-month journey to Jerusalem, the True God did indeed protect us—He saved us from any enemies or skirmishes along our journey.

[32]Once we reached Jerusalem, we rested 3 days. [33]On the 4th day, we took the measured silver, gold, and vessels to our True God's house. There, Meremoth (son of Uriah the priest), Eleazer (son of Phineas the priest), and the Levites Jozabad (son of Jeshua) and Noadiah (son of Binnui) [34]counted, weighed, and inventoried everything. [35]Then the exiles who had joined our caravan and left their captivity gave these burnt offerings to the Eternal God of Israel: 12 bulls (1 for each tribe of Israel), 96 rams, 77 lambs, and 12 male goats (as a sin offering for each tribe of Israel).

[36]Meanwhile, they delivered the king's command that the leaders of the provinces west of the Euphrates should fully support the Jews and the True God's temple. Those governors obeyed the command.

► If Ezra expects to retain the support of the Persian king, he has to obey Artaxerxes' four commands. Within five months, Ezra completes the first two demands—he leads the Jews to Jerusalem, and he delivers all the offerings to the temple. His obedience to Artaxerxes is matched by the governors' obedience: they agree to support financially the Jews' efforts at reestablishing their nation.

Now that Ezra has addressed the religious situation in Jerusalem, he can tend to the legal situation as Artaxerxes requested. Ezra still needs to investigate how the Jews are practicing the law and appoint judges and teachers for the nation.

9 [1-2]After we had returned to Jerusalem, made our offerings to Him, and begun to settle, the leaders notified me of a legal problem.

* 8:27 1,000 darics

Jewish Leaders: The Israelites, priests, Levites, and even our chiefs have intermarried with the daughters of non-Jews and adopted the cultures of the Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, and Amorites. By mixing our families with theirs through marriage, our lineage is no longer pure, and the officials and rulers have been the worst offenders.

► The law does not forbid foreign marriages to keep bloodlines pure; it forbids them for religious reasons. David's own ancestor, Ruth, was a Moabite. This marriage was blessed because Ruth converted to the religion of Israel and was no longer considered an outsider by God. In spite of this success, Israel's history is a strong precedent against foreign marriages because more often than not, foreign marriages end badly. The great King Solomon was influenced by his Egyptian bride; Ahab (of the Northern Kingdom) completely dissociated himself from God in favor of his wife, Jezebel, and her gods. Such marriages tend to lead God's followers away from His path—and that is the real tragedy.

3When I heard their story, I mourned for the Jews as if the nation were dead: I ripped my clothes, I ripped hair from my head and chin, and I sat in stunned silence 4until the evening offering. All those who obeyed the True God of Israel's words and recognized the unfaithfulness of their neighbors joined me.

5At the evening offering, I stopped mourning with the people and turned my attention to God. In my torn garments, I knelt before Him and stretched out my hands to the Eternal God.

Ezra's Prayer: 6O my True God, witness my shame and embarrassment as I appeal to You. My True God, our sins are so great that they have flooded over us, and they have reached to the heavens. 7Our people are chronic sinners, our sin is greater than we could have imagined, and You have tried to correct our behavior by subjecting our kings and our priests to death, captivity, theft, and shame by foreign rulers. Those pagans continue to rule us today. 8Even though You, our Eternal God, have shown Your grace by preserving a remnant and by giving us a secure hold in Your holy place, may You, our God, brighten our eyes and grant us assurance even in our bondage to the Persian rulers. 9We are still their slaves. In this bondage, You, our True God, have not forgotten us; Your loyal love inspired the kings of Persia to allow us to rebuild Your house and the walls to provide protection in Judah and Jerusalem.

10But in spite of Your love, we have abandoned Your commands, and we have no excuse. 11You warned us through Your servants, the prophets, that the land of Canaan was polluted with pagans, that their evil actions had removed anything pure or good there, even filling up the land from end to end with horrible practices. 12*You warned us* not to marry our children to theirs, to seek treaties with them, or to covet their prosperity so that we would remain strong as a nation and as individuals, eating good foods from the earth and leaving that earth to Your children always.

13In spite of Your mercy toward us—You, our True God, did not punish us as much as our obvious guilt and our evil actions required and have freed these exiles—14once again we have ignored Your commands. We married pagans and have taken on their horrible practices, knowing that Your anger would motivate You to destroy every last Jew without leaving any remnant people.

15Eternal God of Israel, You are righteous and justified in everything You do. Today we are nothing but the preserved remnant who escaped Your wrath, and today we confess our guilt. None of us should be able to stand and be acquitted before You.

10 As Ezra was praying his confession and weeping and bowing on the steps of the True God's temple, a huge group of Israelite men, women, and children joined him in weeping. 2Shecaniah (son of Jehiel the Elamite) then spoke up.

Shecaniah and his family had returned to Jerusalem at the first opportunity 60 years earlier.

Shecaniah: You are right. We have forgotten our True God and have married foreign women from pagan nations. But there is hope for Israel yet. 3We shall make a new covenant with our True God, promising to banish our foreign wives and their children. You and the others who follow the laws of our True God must guide us in this, so that we obey the law. 4So stand up! Helping us follow the law is now your responsibility. Do not be afraid; we will support your actions.

7Those who had sworn the oath sent letters declaring it throughout Judah and Jerusalem telling all the returned exiles to assemble in Jerusalem 8within three days. The counsel of chiefs and elders agreed that anyone who was not here would forfeit all his possessions and his status within the assembly. 9*Not surprisingly,* all the men from Judah and Benjamin gathered in Jerusalem within three days, in spite of the winter rains. On the twentieth day of the ninth month, everyone sat in the courtyard in front of the True God's temple—shivering under the weighty matter and the heavy rain.

Ezra: 10*There is no doubt that* you have abandoned His ways and have married foreign women, adding to the list of Israel's sins. 11Now you must confess these sins to the Eternal God of your ancestors and do as He pleases: break away from the pagan nations and your foreign wives.

Assembly (loudly): 12You are right. We must do what you've told us to do. 13*But look around.* There are too many people here to house in this city, and the rains will not allow us to stay outside for very long. Also our sins are too horrible to be adequately dealt with in a day or two. 14Allow our chiefs to represent everyone in this assembly right now. Then each person in every city who has married a foreign woman can come back with his civic leaders at a scheduled time. We can then continue the inquiries until our True God withdraws His wrath from us about these sins.

► Ezra is able to fulfill all of Artaxerxes' requirements and ensure his support. He leads the inquiry into the Jews' practice of God's laws, and he selects tribal leaders as judges over their people. This story of the legal system may seem unimportant when compared to the sweeping cultic reforms of Josiah and Hezekiah, but it is a microcosm of Ezra's work throughout Jerusalem and Judah. Throughout his reforms, Ezra focuses on God and takes deliberate steps to improve the nation's relationship with Him.

15-16With the exception of four men, Jonathan (son of Asahel), Jahzeiah (son of Tikvah), Meshullam, and Shabbethai (the Levite), everyone supported this plan. Ezra selected one leader from each tribe to represent his people and recorded their names. These tribal leaders then gathered on the first day of the tenth month to begin the inquiries. 17By the first day of the first month, the investigations of all men who had married foreign women was finished, and the offenders were recorded.

18These priests, from the family of the high priest, married foreign women: the descendants of Jeshua (son of Jozadak) and his brothers Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah. 19They were found guilty, promised to expel their wives, and offered a ram of the flock as penance.

20*From the other priestly families:* Hanani and Zebadiah (descendants of Immer); 21Maaseiah, Elijah, Shemaiah, Jehiel, and Uzziah (descendants of Harim); 22Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethanel, Jozabad, and Elasah (descendants of Pashhur).

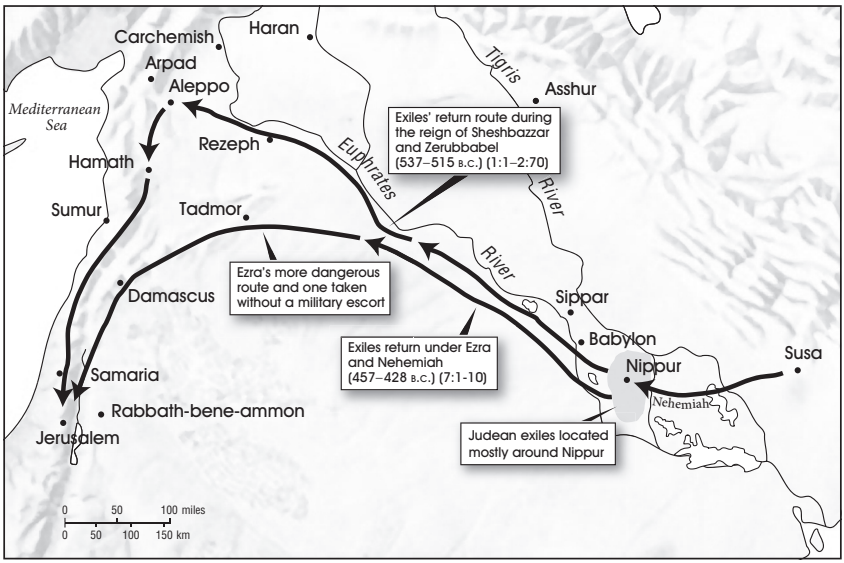
24From the singers: Eliashib.



From the gatekeepers: Shallum, Telem, and Uri.

25From the laymen of Israel: Ramiah, Izziah, Malchijah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Hashabiah,* and Benaiah (descendants of Parosh); 26Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jehiel, Abdi, Jeremoth, and Elijah (descendants of Elam); 27Elioenai, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Jeremoth, Zabad, and Aziza (descendants of Zattu); 28Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Athlai (descendants of Bebai); 29Meshullam, Malluch and Adaiah, Jashub, Sheal, and Jeremoth (descendants of Bani); 30Adna, Chelal, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezalel, Binnui, and Manasseh (descendants of Pahath-moab); 31-32Eliezer, Isshijah, Malchijah, Shemaiah, Shimeon, Benjamin, Malluch, and Shemariah (descendants of Harim); 33Mattenai, Mattattah, Zabad, Eliphelet, Jeremai, Manasseh, and Shimei (descendants of Hashum); 34-42Maadai, Amram, Uel, Benaiah, Bedeiah, Cheluhi, Vaniah, Meremoth, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Mattenai, Jaasu (descendents of Bani); Shimei, Shelemiah, Nathan, Adaiah, Machnadebai, Shashai, Sharai, Azarel, Shelemiah, Shemariah, Shallum, Amariah, and Joseph (descendants of Binnui); 43Jeiel, Mattithiah, Zabad, Zebina, Jaddai, Joel, and Benaiah (descendants of Nebo).

44All these men had married foreign women, and some had fathered children by them.

* 10:25 Hebrew text reads, "Malchijah."

Exiles Return from Babylon to Jerusalem

NEHEMIAH

A personal memoir of rebuilding Jerusalem's walls

By Nehemiah, a leader with great vision

In the fifth century B.C., the Jews are continuing to emerge from their exile in the Persian Empire. Invaded in 605 B.C. and 597 B.C., and then conquered in 586 B.C. when the Babylonians destroyed Jerusalem, the people of God are scattered throughout the Babylonian Empire and eventually witness the Babylonians' own fall to Persia. Now that they are living under a new regime that is accepting of God's people and willing to let them return home to rebuild their nation, God raises up a series of leaders to take charge of that home going. Two of these are Ezra the priest and Nehemiah the governor of Judah.

The story of these two dynamic leaders and the rebuilding in Jerusalem stretches across two books in the Christian Bible, but the books of Ezra and Nehemiah are originally one volume. It is not advisable to read one without the other because together they provide a full account of God's restoration of Jerusalem. After the temple is rebuilt and dedicated in 515 B.C., Ezra returns to Jerusalem in 458 B.C. and restores God's law as the foundation to the new Jewish community. Nehemiah comes along a few years later and is responsible for fortifying the holy city, managing foreign affairs, and rebuilding the population. Together they build a new society that grows and changes into the precursor to the modern Jewish faith.

At the heart of the Book of Nehemiah is a memoir, written by Nehemiah himself and preserved and edited by later Jewish scribes. His story picks up in 445 B.C., when he is a trusted advisor to Artaxerxes I. When he learns that his countrymen are in trouble and that Jerusalem's walls and gates are still in ruins, Nehemiah gains permission to return to Jerusalem and fortify it. In only 12 years, he completes most of his work revitalizing Jerusalem (with the repair work on the Jerusalem walls taking only 52 days), giving as much of his own time and more of his own resources than he requires from anyone else. With the holy city secure, the people come together to celebrate and renew their commitment to God and His call on their lives. Nehemiah's story proves that energy, intelligence, unselfishness, and above all, trust are essential to living faithfully in covenant with God.

1 I, Nehemiah, am the son of Hacaliah. These are my words. They tell my story. During the winter month of Chislev in the 20th year of Artaxerxes I's reign, I was in the fortress of Susa [2]when one of my brothers, Hanani, came from Judah along with some other men. I asked them about those Jews who had escaped—who had survived the exile—and about our city, Jerusalem.

Hanani and the Judean Men (to Nehemiah): [3]It's a disaster. The survivors of the exile who are in the Persian province of Jerusalem have been wronged and are hated. The wall of Jerusalem has been reduced to piles of rock, and its gates consumed by flame.

[4]Hearing this, I was overwhelmed with grief and could only sit and weep. For days I mourned this news and sought the audience of the True God of heaven, praying and fasting before Him.

Nehemiah: [5]Notice me—Eternal One, God of heaven, great and awesome God. You are the keeper of the covenant and loyally love those who love You and follow Your commands. [6]Now, pay attention with open ears and eyes to me and see how I, Your servant, plead day and night for Your consideration. I confess our wickedness, not just for Your servants the children of Israel, but for my family and the household of my father, Hacaliah. [7]We have acted extremely wickedly toward You. We have rejected Your commands, disregarding the regulations and judgments You gave to Your servant Moses to show us how to live. [8]I ask that You remember Your words to Your servant Moses, even when we did not. You told him, "If you are unfaithful to Me and choose another, then I will send you away and you will live separate from Me—you will live as aliens in strange lands; [9]but if you have a change of heart and return to Me and walk according to My commands, then no matter how far you have gone, even to the places beyond the horizon, I will gather you and bring you to the place of My choosing, where My very name dwells." [10]They are Yours, God—they are Your servants; they are Your people whom You liberated from the exile by Your initiative and power. [11]O Lord, hear Your servant praying to You and pay attention, and not just to my prayers but also to the prayers of these very Jews whose greatest joy is to live in fear and awe of You.

I am asking for success today, God; please make sure this man is compassionate to me, Your servant.

In that day, I was cupbearer to the king.

► Nehemiah's job is to taste the king's wine and food, checking for poison. Because of these duties, Nehemiah is constantly needed, so he must seek God's favor so that Artaxerxes I will allow him to travel to Jerusalem.

2 Four months later, in the spring month of Nisan at the start of our New Year, Artaxerxes had been king 20 years. At a feast, wine was brought to him, and when it had passed my examinations, I gave it to him. Now, you must understand that in the presence of the king it is not my custom to openly express emotion, especially sadness.

Artaxerxes (to Nehemiah): [2]You look disturbed. I know you are not ill. The sadness I see in you is the sadness of the heart. What is wrong?

As I stood there before the king I was very afraid.

Nehemiah: [3]May your life and reign extend forever, King!

Why should my face look anything but sad? My homeland is destroyed; my city is a heap of rubble; its once-mighty gates are nothing more than charred tinder. This is the place where my ancestors are supposed to be at rest, but the very ground where they lie is ruined!

Artaxerxes: [4]What is it you want?

All at once, I prayed to the God of heaven [5]and made my request to the king.

Nehemiah (to God and Artaxerxes): If I have won your favor, my king, and if it is your pleasure, send me to the city where my ancestors are buried. Let me rebuild the city in Judah.

Artaxerxes: How long will your journey take, and when may I look for your return?

Then I knew: I had received his blessing. He was sending me. In response to his question, I set a time.

Nehemiah (to the king): 7If it continues to please you, send me with letters bearing your name. Send me to those men you have appointed to govern the lands beyond the Euphrates River. Then I can be assured I will be safe, escorted to the borders of Judah by your armies. 8And may I also ask you for a letter to the warden of your forests, Asaph; he will supply timber to me so that I can build gates into the fortress around the temple mount, gates and watchtowers in the walls around the city, and a house for myself.

My True God had heard my prayers and rested His hand of favor and love upon me. The king gave me everything I asked for!

9And so I left, journeying to see the governors of the lands beyond the Euphrates River. I gave them the letters the king sent with me. Moreover, I traveled in the company of the king's army, surrounded by the officers and cavalry. 10In fact, when Sanballat (the Horonite who governed Samaria) and Tobiah (the Ammonite official under him there) heard about what was happening, they were unnerved, distressed that someone was seeking the good of the Israelites left in the land.

► When the Assyrians conquered Israel's Northern Kingdom in 722 B.C., the Samaritans were exiled to other Assyrian provinces, and other Assyrian prisoners were settled in Samaria. Based on the etymology of their names, Sanballat's family is probably one of those relocated families who adopted the worship of the Eternal once they moved to Samaria.

Now, almost 300 years later, Sanballat is the first of his family appointed governor of Samaria under the Persians. Following 15 years of political unrest, he has managed to form a loose federation of Persian provinces in the area that includes Jerusalem. Tobiah is a Persian official who has taken care of Jerusalem until a new governor arrived. Now that Nehemiah has arrived, Sanballat's power over Jerusalem is uncertain. Nehemiah has not agreed to be part of his federation, so Jerusalem could become a threat to it.

11Nevertheless, my journey continued until I reached Jerusalem. After three days in the city, 12under the cover of darkness, I was accompanied by a small group of men. The True God had placed a secret plan on my heart, and there I had left it hidden until the time was right. No one knew what it was I imagined for Jerusalem. With my men walking beside me, I mounted and rode around the city. 13At night I went out of Jerusalem through the valley gate, heading toward the dragon well and down to the potsherd gate where the city dumps its trash. As we went, we examined the walls of Jerusalem: they were as bad as we had heard. No stones remained standing, and fire had consumed the gates. 14We continued on toward the fountain gate and the pool of the king, but amid the rubble I was unable to continue riding—there was simply no room—15and so I dismounted and followed along the valley, still under the cover of night, examining the wall as I went. Finally I had seen enough and turned back toward the valley gate, reentering the city the way I had left. 16Those who were in charge of Jerusalem did not know where I had gone, much less what I was up to. I had said nothing to anyone—even those who would shortly be doing the work of rebuilding. Everyone was in the dark: common Jews, priests, nobles, and leaders alike.

Nehemiah (to all the Jews): 17Our trouble is obvious: The wall of Jerusalem has been reduced to piles of rock, and its gates consumed by flame. Let us begin by rebuilding the wall of Jerusalem, and in doing so, we will demolish our disgrace because of defeat and exile.

18I told them how my True God had used His power to favor me, evidenced by what the king had said to me.

Jews: Get up now! It is time to rebuild.

And so they began the good work. 19*Our adversaries lost no time, either.* Joining Samaritan Governor Sanballat (the Horonite) and Official Tobiah (the Ammonite) was an Arab named Geshem. When they heard of our plans, they mocked and ridiculed us.

Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem: What do you think you are doing? Are you not rebelling against the king again?

Nehemiah: 20The True God of heaven will give us success. We are His people, servants who will begin the work of rebuilding our city and this wall. But you have no share in this work because Jerusalem is not yours—civically, legally, or religiously.

3 The sheep gate was first. Led by their brother, the high priest Eliashib, the priests began the work of rebuilding. They framed it,* then they set its doors in place. They proceeded to the tower of the hundred, and after dedicating it they made it as far as the tower of Hananel. 2The men of Jericho partnered with Eliashib, as did Zacur (Imri's son).

3Hassenaah's sons rebuilt the fish gate. They framed it, set its doors in place, then secured it with bolts and bars. 4Meremoth (Hakkoz's grandson and Uriah's son) partnered with Hassenaah's sons in repairing the wall, as did Meshullam (Berechiah's son and Meshezabel's grandson) and Zadok (Baana's son). 5Even the men from Tekoa partnered in the repairs; however, Jerusalem's long-standing noblemen didn't support the new leadership's plans.

13Working with the residents of Zanoah, Hanun rebuilt the valley gate. In the same way, they framed it, set its doors in place, and secured it with bolts and bars. They were able to build the wall as far as the potsherd gate—a full 500 yards past where they started.

14The ruler of the district of Beth-haccherem rebuilt the potsherd gate. In the same way, he framed it, set its doors in place, then secured it with bolts and bars.

15Mizpah's ruler, Shallum (Col-hozeh's son) repaired the fountain gate, adding a roof while framing it, setting its doors in place, and securing it with bolts and bars. It fell to him to repair the wall of the pool of Shelah—of the king's garden—to the steps leading down and away from the city of David.

► Instead of repairing the old, these people build entirely new sections of wall inside the former wall's perimeter, because reterracing the steep incline and clearing the rubble would be far too time consuming.

16Nehemiah (Azbuk's son), who was ruler of the half-district of Beth-zur, built until he was directly across from David's tombs, which is also where the artificial pool is and the house of the heroes.

17Down the wall, the Levites worked: Rehum (Bani's son), then Hashabiah, the half-district ruler of Keilah who worked on behalf of his own people. 18Then came their brothers: Bavvai (Henadad's son), the other half-district ruler of Keilah. 19Ezer (Jeshua's son), who ruled in Mizpah, partnered with Bavvai on the section of the wall that faced the road leading up to the armory—as far as the point where the wall angles away.* 20Then came Baruch (Zabbai's son), who worked fervently on the section between the angle of the wall and the entrance to High Priest Eliashib's house. 21From that entrance all the way to the end of Eliashib's house, Meremoth (Uriah's son and Hakkoz's grandson) worked, in addition to the work he had completed next to the fish gate. 22Priests from the surrounding region repaired the next portion of the wall. 23Benjamin and Hasshub worked on sections directly in front of their homes, then Azariah (Maaseiah's son and Ananiah's grandson) worked on a section beside his home. 24From Azariah's home to the angle and the corner, Binnui (Henadad's son) completed a second section. 25Palal (Uzai's son) worked on the wall section at a point across from both the angle and the place where the upper tower comes out of the palace near the guards' court. Then came Pedaiah (Parosh's son) 26and servants from the temple living on the Ophel's hill making repairs as far as the point directly across from the water gate to the east and the upper palace tower. 27The men of Tekoa, who worked without the support of their nobles, worked from that same tower as far as Ophel's wall.

4 When word of our progress in rebuilding the wall reached Sanballat, he became enraged. His anger spilled over into mockery of the Jews, 2and before his companions and the Samaritan army, he unleashed a torrent of ridicule and abuse.

► It is hard to imagine the intense pressures and various points of opposition that Nehemiah has to deal with. First, he has an internal struggle with those Judeans who have married foreign wives—Babylonian, Edomite, Ammonite, Moabite, Samaritan—and have adopted their religious and cultural behaviors that are quite distinct from what is laid forth for Israel in the law of Moses. Further, Nehemiah has an external struggle with individuals like Sanballat the Moabite, Tobiah the Ammonite, and Geshem the Arab who are violently opposed to the restoration of Jerusalem and her people. These are ancient political, social, and religious enemies to the Jews, and they will stop at nothing to halt Nehemiah's rebuilding efforts.

Sanballat: What are these pathetic Jews up to? Will they appoint themselves to put the wall back together? Would offering sacrifices help them? Will this occur in a day's time? Do they mean to resurrect this charred rubble as a wall?

3Right beside him, Tobiah the Ammonite joined in the scorn.

Tobiah: What is it these Jews are building? Surely not a wall—a fox climbing upon it could get through their stone work.

Nehemiah: 4Do You hear this? Are You paying attention, our True God? We are worse than nothing to these men. Turn their curses back on them. Plunder them. Pillage them until they are captives in a foreign land. 5Do not cover over their wickedness or erase the reality of their sin before you—they have mocked You right in front of the men rebuilding the city for You.

6We returned to building, focused and determined to work as one people. We stacked rock upon rock until one end of the wall met the other and it grew to half of its original height.

7When the news that the few remaining gaps in the wall were rapidly closing and our city was beginning to heal reached all the lands surrounding Jerusalem, Sanballat, Tobiah, some Arabs, the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites all became furious. 8*In fact, they were so upset* they devised a plot to attack Jerusalem and create confusion. 9*Our response to this threat was twofold:* we prayed to our True God, and we set up a watch—day and night—to look out for them. 10Even so, everyone was afraid of another attack.

Judeans: Our builders have grown too weary to continue.
Look at all this waste and rubble strewn about the ground.
We are not able to rebuild the wall on this foundation.

11And our enemies spread the word.

Enemies: We will sneak in among them. Before they know what is happening, they will be dead. The work will end for sure.

12Next we were confronted by the Jews who lived near our enemies. Over and over again* they warned us.

Jews Outside Jerusalem: You must turn back to us.*

13*So I strengthened our defenses.* I placed men armed with anything they had on hand—the swords, spears, and bows they used to hunt—at the vulnerable low sections along the wall that were exposed. I organized them by families. 14I stood up and addressed those gathered: nobles, officials, anyone who was close at hand.

Nehemiah: Do not be afraid of these people! Instead, remember the Eternal, our great and awesome Lord. Fight for your people: your sisters and your brothers, your sons and your daughters, your wives and your homes.

15Our enemies had intended to defeat us through surprise, but they learned we were aware of their plan and ready for their attack. The True God had frustrated them, and so we went back to work on the wall at our assigned places. 16From that day on, I divided my people into two groups. One group worked on the wall while the other stood guard fully prepared for battle in armor, shields, spears, and bows. Officers were close at hand, posted right behind the Judean builders. 17-18The builders did their work—now with swords strapped to their sides. Even common laborers carrying building materials did so while carrying a weapon. I kept the man whose responsibility it was to warn everyone of attack by sounding the trumpet with me at all times. 19Once again I addressed the nobles, the officials, and the gathered people.

Nehemiah: The massive scope of our important work here has caused us to be spread out across the wall. As a result, we are separated and vulnerable. 20Therefore if you hear the sound of the trumpet, drop what you are doing and join us where the alarm sounds. Be assured our True God will fight for us.

21From the time the sun broke over the horizon until it set again and stars filled the sky, we kept working—half of them holding spears.

Nehemiah: 22At night, every laborer and his helper must come inside Jerusalem. Work by day; guard by night.

23We all slept in our clothes—my kinsmen, my servants, and the guards I commanded. And we never set our weapons down, even when we went to get water.

5 As time went on a different kind of conflict arose—common men and their wives cried out against some of their fellow Jews.

Jews Without Land: 2Our families are large, and we need food so that along with our children, we will not starve. Let us have grain!

Jewish Landowners: 3As a result of the famine, we are pledging livelihood, even our fields, our vineyards, and our homes as a mortgage.

Other Jewish Landowners: 4We are borrowing money so that we can pay King Artaxerxes' tax on our fields and vineyards because of the famine.

All the Jews: 5Even though we debtors are of the same people as our creditors—the same flesh, the same blood—and even though our children are the same as their children, we are raising this money for taxes by selling our children into slavery. In fact, some of our daughters are slaves already. We are helpless to do anything about it. Why? Because our fields and our vineyards now belong to our creditors!

* 4:12 Literally, "ten times" * 4:12 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

Nehemiah is the picture of a benevolent ruler. As a Persian-appointed official, he has the right to exact a sizable tax on the people of Jerusalem. Previous governors have had special jars made for collecting grain and oil and fruit from the people. This food went to support the governor and all of his formal dinners. But Nehemiah does not exact this special tax because he realizes his people are already burdened by the Persians' heavy taxes.

As Artaxerxes' cupbearer, certainly Nehemiah is a wealthy man; therefore he has no need for additional resources from Jerusalem's people. On his own, Nehemiah is able to regularly host all 150 of Jerusalem's officials and frequent diplomats from other provinces, and the abundant meat and wine served at those functions proves that Nehemiah spares no personal expense. He manages to fulfill every duty assigned to him—those required of a Persian governor, and those required of a man of God.

6When I heard this outcry, these charges filled me with anger. 7After reflecting over what to do, I determined to confront those responsible directly: the Jewish nobles and the officials who represented Araxerxes' interests in Jerusalem.

Nehemiah: You are exploiting your own people by charging them interest!

And a great many people assembled to witness my sentencing of the leaders.

Nehemiah: 8At great expense we have been laboring to buy back our brothers and sisters, fellow Jews who have been enslaved to pagan nations. Now we discover that you are the ones selling them away in the first place—we are buying them from you!

There was nothing they could say; their silence confirmed their guilt.

Nehemiah: 9This thing you are doing is not good. Is it not good to walk and live our lives in fear of the awesomeness of our True God? Your actions cause our enemies, those pagan nations, to mock us. 10It is true that my brothers and I—even my followers—are lending money and grain to our poor brothers and sisters so that they can feed themselves and their families. But from this point forward we must stop charging interest. 11*In fact,* we must immediately return their collateral—fields, vineyards, olive groves, and houses—and any interest of money, grain, new wine, and olive oil.

Jewish Nobles and Officials: 12We will give everything back. And in the future, nothing more will be demanded from them. We will do everything you have said.

I called the priests to join us and had these men make oaths before the gathering so that they would be held accountable to do what they promised. 13I shook out my robe.

Nehemiah: May the True God likewise shake out from his house and his property anyone who fails to keep his word. May he then be shaken out also, until he, too, is emptied.

Everyone who had gathered in our assembly to witness this praised the Eternal and gave their benediction saying, "So may it be."

All the people did as they promised. 14As long as I had been appointed governor in Judah—for the 12 years from the 20th to the 32nd year of King Artaxerxes' reign over the Persian Empire—no one in my family took a salary from the food tax the empire levied. 15Every governor who had come before me had exploited his authority and levied a stiff tax—a pound of silver a day—and taken food and wine to supply his own table, often using unmerciful servants to extract this payment. But my fear of the True God kept me from ever acting in the same way. 16(All my attention and resources were devoted to rebuilding the wall. Land acquisition was not the goal of my followers or me.) 17*I went beyond that, however.* I also supplied food for 150 Jews and officials—in addition to diplomats from the surrounding pagan nations. 18*All were fed at my table at my expense:* each day an ox, 6 of my best sheep, and some birds were prepared and served alongside a variety of wines that were resupplied every 10 days.

Even with all of this expense and effort, I never demanded the food tax which would have been mine to claim as governor because I could see how hard life was for the people and what these demands would cost them.

Nehemiah: 19Remember me for the good I have done, my True God, for how I have served Your people.

6 Once again, we found that our progress had been reported to our enemies. Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem the Arab (as well as the rest of our adversaries) heard that under my leadership the wall had been rebuilt. Not one gap remained (though the doors still had to be hung on the gates). 2Sanballat and Geshem sent messengers to me.

Sanballat and Geshem's Message: Come and meet with us in the plain of Ono, at the border village of Cheriphim.

They were planning to hurt me. 3So instead of going, I sent messengers back to them.

Nehemiah's Message: I am in the middle of a great work and cannot be interrupted. I am not coming down to meet with you. What is so important that I should suspend this great work we are doing to travel to see you?

4This same exchange played out four different times: they asked for a meeting; I refused.

5The fifth time I was approached by a servant of Sanballat. He came with the same message, but this time he also carried an unsealed letter in his hand.

Sanballat's Letter: 6A report has gone out to the surrounding nations that you are rebuilding the wall because you and your fellow Jews are planning to revolt against Persia. Geshem* confirms this report and suggests you are looking to be crowned as king. Rumor has it 7that you have even appointed prophets to announce in Jerusalem, "Judah has a king!" referencing you. Be assured, this very report will make it back to King Artaxerxes. Meet with us at once.

8My message back to him was simple.

Nehemiah's Message: There is nothing to what you are saying. You are making it all up.

9*We knew* our enemies' intent was to intimidate us into stopping our work. They reasoned, "These Jews will stop rebuilding out of fear and discouragement. Progress will grind to a halt." Instead I renewed my dedication, strengthened my hands.

10A little later, I went to see Shemaiah (Delaiah's son and Mehetabel's grandson) who was shut up inside his house.

Shemaiah: It is not safe here. Let us leave and go into God's house inside the temple and shut the doors. People are coming to kill you. They will come at night.

Nehemiah: 11Why would a man in my position run for his life? Why would a person like me use the temple to save his life when such contact with God would surely kill me? I refuse to go into the temple under such circumstances.

12-13While I was speaking these words, I realized God had not sent him to me. God would never tell me to break His laws. Shemaiah's prophecy was "inspired" by the money of Tobiah and Sanballat. After hearing his message, they thought I would be scared and thus vulnerable to sin. They hoped to use such a lapse in behavior to discredit me.

Nehemiah: 14O my God, remember these two: Tobiah and Sanballat. Remember what they have done. And do not forget their accomplices—the prophetess Noadiah and her prophetic associates—who have been trying to intimidate me.

15*Even with all that interference,* the wall was soon finished. It was the 25th day of Elul. The work had been accomplished in 52 days. 16When our enemies heard the work was complete and the surrounding nations saw our wall, their confidence crumbled. Only one possible conclusion could be drawn: it was not just our efforts that had done this thing. God had been working alongside us. 17These developments caused a flurry of correspondence between the nobles of Judah and Tobiah. 18Many of these nobles in Judah were tied to Tobiah by a marriage oath.

* 6:6 Hebrew, Gashmu this one occurrence

Tobiah has married into Jewish families while living in Jerusalem as interim governor, although he serves Sanballat in Samaria.

He was the son-in-law of Shecaniah (Arah's son), and his son Jehohanan was married to the daughter of Meshullam (Berechiah's son). 19These men constantly praised Tobiah in my presence, describing his good deeds to me. They also reported to Tobiah what I said. And still he sent me his letters; his attempts to intimidate me were ceaseless.

7 Later, when the wall was completed and the doors had finally been set in their places, the temple gatekeepers were appointed to protect the city, with the help of the singers and the Levites.
2I placed Hanani, my brother, in charge of Jerusalem, along with Hananiah, the captain of the fortress. Hanani was honest and faithful, and in the fear of God he surpassed most men. 3I commissioned these two men.

Nehemiah: Do not open the gates of Jerusalem while the sun is fully risen; make sure you close and secure the gates, and the gatekeepers will still watch over them. As for the guards, get men who live within Jerusalem. Have some stand watch at the regular stations and have those whose houses abut the city wall stand guard in front of their homes.

4While Jerusalem was large and open, its population was still very small. In fact, no homes had yet been rebuilt, and without people it seemed empty.

5It was at that time that God inspired me to gather those people who were in the city. I called the nobles, the officials of the city, and the common folk. I had found the genealogical record of those who had been the first to return to Jerusalem; this is what the record showed:

6A list of the Jews exiled under Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, living in the province of Jerusalem who returned from captivity in Babylon. They came back to Jerusalem and other towns around Judah, each returning to his home. 7*They were the first to journey back,* following the leadership of Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum, and Baanah.

Much like the Urim and Thummim, the exact identity of this book of the law (8:3) cannot be positively known. Most assume this law is some form of the Pentateuch, the first 5 books of the Old Testament. Those books are the foundational principles for the Jews' proper worship of God, containing some 613 specific laws, so it is likely the text (or at the very least the knowledge) of the Pentateuch would have survived the exile because of its importance. Priests would have cared for it and not let the laws be completely forgotten among their people.

Because of their separation from Jerusalem and the destruction of the temple, proper worship of God has been impossible during the exile. After 100 years in foreign lands, the layperson may have remembered to observe the major laws such as "Do not murder," but the details of festivals and Sabbath observance are surely forgotten. So, many years later, it only takes half a day of reading to remind the Jews of their covenant with God and reinvigorate them to serve Him.

into Jerusalem. Their names, however, could not be found in the official record, and they had no records of their own to prove they had descended from the families of Israel. This group included [62]the descendants of Delaiah, Tobiah, and Nekoda and totaled 642 people. [63]Three families claiming to come from priestly families also returned: Hobaiah's, Hakkoz's, and Barzillai's descendants. (Barzillai had married a woman descended from Barzillai of Gilead—he took her name as his own). [64]After searching the genealogical records they, too, were unable to find their names, and so they were considered impure and disqualified from serving in the priesthood. [65]As the governor *appointed by Persia, I ordered them not to eat any of the sacred food set apart for priests until a priest could be found to consult God on this matter with the sacred stones, Urim and Thummim.

► Not much is known about these ancient divination devices called Urim and Thummim. They are first mentioned in Exodus 28:30 when God is giving Moses instructions on the clothing for the high priest. These tools were to be carried in the breast piece of judgment, and presumably were only used by the high priest. Suggestions as to their form and function come from the discovery of similar devices in other cultures of the ancient Near East. They may have been flat stones painted different colors, metal objects engraved with symbols, large dice, small sticks, or anything else imaginable. However they may have relayed God's will, they were clearly effective tools used to discover God's will in political situations.

[66]When our census was complete, we numbered 42,360, [67]as well as the 7,337 male and female servants, 245 male and female singers, [68]and many animals: 736 horses, 245 mules, [69]435 camels, and 6,720 donkeys.

[70]Some of the heads of families made contributions so that the work we had begun could continue. As the governor, I contributed 1,000 gold coins, 50 gold bowls, 30 priests' robes, and 630 pounds of silver.* [71]Then other family leaders began to give too: 20,000 gold coins and roughly 2,750 pounds of silver. [72]Together the rest of the community added 20,000 gold coins, 2,500 pounds of silver, and 67 priestly robes. [73]Then the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, the temple servants, many common folk, and the rest of Israel returned to live in their towns. This was finished by the beginning of the seventh month.

8 When everyone had settled, they regathered in Jerusalem. Everyone met in the square that is in front of the water gate. They asked Ezra the scribe to bring out the book of the law, the word the Eternal sent through Moses to Israel. [2]Ezra the priest did as they asked, bringing God's law to Israel. The community included both men and women—anyone who was able to understand was welcomed. This gathering took place on the first day of the seventh month. 3Facing the people in the square, next to the water gate, he began to read excerpts. The document was massive, and just reading parts took him six or seven hours, from daybreak until noon. Everyone who was there heard him: men, women—anyone with the ability to understand. As he read, they were focused and listened carefully to the book of the law.

4*And as he read,* Ezra the scribe stood on a wooden platform made for this very occasion. To his right were Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Uriah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah. To his left were Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchijah, Hashum, Hashbaddanah, Zechariah, and Meshullam. 5Standing above the people so they could see and hear him, Ezra opened the book of the law. As he opened the book, everyone stood. 6Then Ezra called out and blessed the Eternal, worshiping God's greatness. With their hands raised to the heavens, the people called out loudly in response, crying, "Amen! So may it be!" Then they fell to their knees and bowed. With their faces to the ground, they worshiped the Eternal. 7-8Ezra read the law, the people listened, and the Levites explained it to them. Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, and Pelaiah—these are the Levites* who interpreted what Ezra read for the people.

9Now, as God's law was read, the people began to weep. But Nehemiah (the Persians' appointed governor),* Ezra the priest and scribe, and all the ministering Levites said to the people, Leaders: This day is sacred to the Eternal One, your God. It is not a day for mourning and weeping.

Ezra: 10Go back to your homes, and prepare a feast. Bring out the best food and drink you have, and welcome all to your table, especially those who have nothing. This day is special. It is sacred to our Lord. Do not grieve over your past mistakes. Let the Eternal's own joy be your protection!

Levites: 11Be still. This is sacred time and space. Do not mourn.

13The next day, the heads of every family, along with the priests and the Levites, regathered around Ezra the scribe to further study God's law. 14As they studied the law, they discovered that through Moses, the Eternal had commanded Israel to live in temporary shelters during the Feast of Booths of the seventh month. 15So they issued a proclamation, and it went out to everyone in Jerusalem and in every town that people should go into the hills to gather branches from olive trees, wild olive trees, myrtle trees, palm trees—any kind of leafy tree they could find. With these branches they were told to build temporary shelters to house them during the festival, as God's law declared. 16So the people went out and gathered branches. They built temporary shelters anywhere they could—on the roofs of their houses, in their courtyards, in the temple courts, in the squares by the water gate and the gate of Ephraim. 17Everyone who had returned from exile—all 42,360 people—made the temporary shelters and lived in them. From the time of Joshua (Nun's son) until that very day, no one in Israel had observed the festival in this way, remembering those from the Egyptian exile too. So they celebrated, and their joy was great. 18Throughout everything, Ezra continued to read from the book of God's law, day by day. The celebration of the feast continued for seven days. On the eighth day, in keeping with the directions given, Israel gathered for a solemn assembly.

9 Later, on the 24th day of that same month, the Israelites came back together. Everyone fasted and wore sackcloth to show their repentance. They covered their heads with dust to show their mourning. 2They also separated themselves from the foreigners who were living among them. Then the Israelites stood up and confessed their sins and the sins of their dead ancestors. 3For three hours* they stood in their designated places and read from the book of the Eternal's law. Following that they confessed and worshiped the Eternal One, their True God, for another three hours. 4On the stairs above them stood the Levites: Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani. With loud cries they called out to the Eternal, their True God.

5The same Levites (Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah) instructed the people.

Levites: Stand up! Worship the Eternal who is your God who exists from everlasting to everlasting.

May Your glorious name be praised—even lifted up beyond all blessing and praise.
6You are the Eternal, the only One.
The skies are Your work alone—
You made the heavens above those skies
and the stars that fill them.
You made the earth and everything upon it,
the seas and all that lives within their depths.
Your creation lives and is sustained by You,
and those who dwell in the heavens
Fall down before You and worship.
7You are the Eternal God.
You chose Abram and drew him out from Ur of the Chaldees.
You changed his name to Abraham.
8In him You found a true heart,
a heart devoted to You.
With him You made a covenant that the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites,
The Perizzites, the Jebusites, and the Girgashites would belong to him and to his descendants.
And what You have promised, You have done
because You are righteous.

9When our ancestors suffered in Egypt,
You saw their misery.
When they were trapped at the edge of the Red Sea,
You heard their cries for help.
10-11Pharaoh and all who served him
and all his subjects were completely overwhelmed
by the signs and wonders You performed.
In their arrogance, they opposed Your people, our ancestors.
So You opened the sea, and Your people walked through the water on dry ground, and no one has forgotten the name of the One who did it to this day.
But the Egyptians pursued our ancestors into the sea,
You threw those running after our ancestors into the depths of the sea,
like a heavy rock hurled into water.
12During the day, You led them by a cloud shaped like a pillar.
During the night, a pillar of fire lit the way, showing them where to go.
13*You led them* to Mount Sinai;
and when they arrived, You came down from heaven and spoke to them.
You gave them right decrees and good laws,
beneficial statutes and commands revealing Your will for them.
14You revealed to Your people Your sacred Sabbath and how to keep it holy.
Through Your servant Moses You taught them how to live, giving commands and decrees.
15When Your people were hungry,
You gave them food from heaven.
When they were thirsty, You made water flow out of a rock.
You told them to enter the land You promised them.
You told them to enter and take possession of it.
16-17But our ancestors resisted following You.
They were arrogant. They were proud.
They refused to obey Your commands, plugging their ears.
Knowing what You had done for them in the past,
They willfully forgot it in the present.
Stubborn. Rebellious.
Instead of following You,
They appointed their own leader to take them back to the land of their oppression—to Egypt!
But You are not like us, God.
You are filled with love, compassion, and forgiveness.
You endure much with your anger and display Your loyal love;
You did not abandon them,
18Even when they molded a cow out of gold for themselves, saying,
"This is the god who rescued us from Egypt."
They committed horrible atrocities.

19 In Your incomprehensible compassion,
You did not abandon them in the wilderness.
The pillar of cloud didn't evaporate;
day by day it guided them.
The pillar of fire was not extinguished;
night by night it led them along the right paths.
20 In Your generosity, You gave them Your good Spirit to teach them.
Not once did You hold back manna for their mouths or drink for their thirst.
21 In 40 years of living in the wilderness,
You provided for every need they had:
Their clothing did not wear out,
nor did their feet swell from endless walking.
22 You gave them kingdoms and peoples that they could divide up to the corners of their territory:
The country of Sihon (king of Hesbon)
and the territory of Og (king of Bashan).
23 The children of Israel multiplied
and rivaled the stars in the sky.
You brought them to the very land
You promised Abraham's
His descendants would come into and possess.
24 Into the land they went, and it became theirs.
For our forefathers You made sure
even the Canaanites there were powerless.
You subdued everything and everyone to their power—
land, kings, and people—to do with as they pleased.
25 They overwhelmed strong and secure cities.
They overtook fertile, productive land.
They claimed well-furnished houses, wells that were already dug,
vineyards, olive groves, and orchards filled with fruit.
They ate their fill. They grew fat.
They basked in Your generosity and goodness.
26 Even so, again they chose to defy You.
They rebelled.
They abandoned Your law.
They killed the prophets who spoke Your word,
who pleaded with them to return to You, God.
And again, atrocities multiplied on top of atrocities.
27 So You surrendered them to their enemies,
and Your people suffered at their hands.
And in pain, they cried out to You.
From heaven You listened,
And in keeping with Your changeless and compassionate character,
You sent them liberators,
Saviors who rescued them from their cruel adversaries.
28 As soon as they were at peace, they began to wander and abandoned You and did evil things, so You abandoned them to their enemies.
Thus, once more, You allowed them to be conquered.
Somehow Your mercy is inexhaustible.
Once more You listened to them when they cried to You in heaven for help.
Over and over and over You intervened and saved Your people.
29 You also warned them to return to Your ways
and follow the laws You have given.
They arrogantly violated the very commands,
Which if they would obey them then they would live by them.
Stubborn, they turned away from You,
tensed their necks, and stopped listening.
30 Year after year, Your patience endured.
Your Spirit animated prophets, and they spoke many warnings to them.
In not listening and turning away from the prophets,
they turned directly into their advancing enemies.
31 It was because of Your great mercy
that they were not completely annihilated or forsaken.
You are a grace-filled and mercy-laden God;
32 Our True God—You who are great, majestic, and awesome,
You who always keep Your covenant of loyal love—
do not overlook the trouble we are facing here today.
This trouble confronts us all:
our kings and our princes,

our priests and our prophets,
our ancestors and all of Your people—
From the time of the Assyrian kings until today.
33You are righteous in all that You have done to us.
You have faithfully upheld Your part of the covenant,
but we have acted with evil.
34None of our kings, princes, priests, or ancestors followed Your law.
They actively rejected Your commands and ignored the many warnings You sent.
35*Even when they had everything*—
when they ruled in their own land without worry according to Your great generosity,
When they relaxed into the spacious and fertile land
You set before them—
Even then they refused to serve You or turn away from their wicked ways.
36And we are once again slaves in the bountiful land
You gave to our ancestors for our pleasure and enjoyment—
we are slaves in our own land!
37We have sown sin, and the labor we provide on this land feeds the kings You have placed over us.
Our bodies and our beasts do not belong to us,
But to them, and they do with us what they want.
Our distress is great.
38In light of it, we are writing a covenantal agreement.
It is sealed with the names of our leaders, our Levites, and our priests.

► So moved by the instructions Ezra reads in the book of the law, the Jews cannot help but respond to them. After honoring God with a lavish feast—the Festival of Booths—acknowledging His role in liberating the Hebrews from Egypt and the Jews from Persia, everyone confesses God's greatness and their own people's shortcomings. Ezra has reminded them that God is fair; He gives them the law to warn them of and protect them from His judgments. And even when they break that law, He is unendingly merciful and faithful. God always remembers His people, rescues them, and begins fresh relationships with them. It is no wonder that everyone is so eager and joyous to sign a renewed covenant with Him.

10 The covenant was signed and sealed with the following names: Nehemiah (the governor and son of Hacaliah), Zedekiah, 2Seraiah, Azariah, Jeremiah, 3Pashhur, Amariah, Malchijah, 4Hattush, Shebaniah, Malluch, 5Harim, Meremoth, Obadiah, 6Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch, 7Meshullam, Abijah, Mijamin, 8Maaziah, Bilgai, and Shemaiah. These were the priests. 9The Levites listed were Jeshua (Azaniah's son), Binnui (one of Henadad's sons), Kadmiel; 10also their brothers: Shebaniah, Hodiah, Kelita, Pelaiah, Hanan, 11Mica, Rehob, Hashabiah, 12Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah, 13Hodiah, Bani, and Beninu. 14The leaders of the people listed were Parosh, Pahath-moab, Elam, Zattu, Bani, 15Bunni, Azgad, Bebai, 16Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin, 17Ater, Hezekiah, Azzur, 18Hodiah, Hashum, Bezai, 19Hariph, Anathoth, Nebai, 20Magpiash, Meshullam, Hezir, 21Meshezabel, Zadok, Jaddua, 22Pelatiah, Hanan, Anaiah, 23Hoshea, Hananiah, Hasshub, 24Hallohesh, Pilha, Shobek, 25Rehum, Hashabnah, Maaseiah, 26Ahiah, Hanan, Anan, 27Malluch, Harim, and Baanah.

28Everyone else—the priests, Levites, gatekeepers, singers, temple servants, and all those who separated themselves from their foreign neighbors in order to obey God's law, along with all their wives and sons and daughters who are old enough to understand—29everyone joins with their leaders and relatives and binds himself with an oath and a curse to carefully observe and obey the way God has placed before us through His servant Moses—with all its commands, rules, and decrees. These are the Eternal Lord's laws and judgments:

30Our daughters will not be married to the sons of any of our foreign neighbors. We will not allow our sons to marry their daughters.

31If any of our foreign neighbors come to sell their goods, their grain, or their produce on the Sabbath, we will not buy from them then or on any holy day.

Every seven years, every Jew everywhere will allow the land to rest for one year. We will not work on it; we will not make it work. We will also cancel all outstanding debts, freeing any Israelite who has become enslaved to a creditor.

32We are committing to tax ourselves as well. Every year each man will pay eight ounces of silver to care for God's temple. 33*This tax will pay* for bread for the table; for the daily grain and burnt offerings; for offerings made on Sabbaths, new moon festivals, and all other yearly feasts; it will pay for the holy offerings and for the sin offerings to cover Israel's sins. We are obligating ourselves to provide for everything that is necessary for the working of the temple of our God.

34The priests, the Levites, and the people have drawn lots to decide which ancestral family will be responsible for bringing the wood that burns on the Eternal's altar in God's temple. Each family will be appointed times of the year, in every year, to fill this need as the law says it should be done.*

35It is also our responsibility to support the temple workers through our offerings. We will bring to the temple the first part of every crop, grain from the earth and fruit from the tree alike, every year. 36We will also bring all of our firstborns and give them to the priests working at the temple—our firstborn sons and cattle, our firstborn from our flocks and our herds—as the law of God says.* 37-38We will bring to the priests the best of our coarse meal* (which is a sacred contribution), the fruit of our trees, and our new wine and oil—to be placed in the storerooms of our God's temple instead of used in the sanctuary. One-tenth of our crops will go for the Levites. When the Levites come to our towns to collect our offerings, we will make sure there is also a priest from Aaron's house with them who will bring the tithes to the house of the Eternal and its storehouse. 39The Levites and the Israelites must bring the offerings of grain, new wine, and olive oil to the storerooms of the temple where the sacred containers are kept, where the working priests, the gatekeepers, and the singers gather.

We all agree—we will not neglect the temple of our God.

11 The leaders of the people lived in the holy city of Jerusalem. The rest of the population drew lots, and one out of every ten of them came to live in Jerusalem also. The other nine-tenths stayed in their towns.

Living in Jerusalem at this time is not ideal for raising a family. Jerusalem in every way is the target of opposition, both from foreign nations and domestic enemies.

2So when others decided, on their own, to settle in Jerusalem willingly, the people were grateful, blessing and thanking them.

3These are the leaders of the provinces who came to live in Jerusalem. (Most of the people of Israel—common folk, priests, Levites, servants in the temple, and those who were descendants of Solomon's servants—continued to live in their own homes in towns around Judah, 4though some of the people from Judah and Benjamin decided to settle in Jerusalem.)

From Judah's tribe: Athaiah, Uzziah's son—who is the son of Zechariah, the son of Amariah, the son of Shephatiah, the son of Mahalalel—the family line of Perez; 5Maaseiah, Baruch's son—who is the son of Col-hozeh, the son of Hazaiah, the son of Adaiah, the son of Joiarib, the son of Zechariah, the son of a Shilonite. 6There were 468 descendants of Perez who lived in Jerusalem, all of them courageous soldiers.

7From Benjamin's tribe: Sallu, Meshullam's son—who is the son of Joed, the son of Pedaiah, the son of Kolaiah, the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ithiel, the son of Jeshaiah; 8Gabbai and Sallai followed him. There were 928 men from the tribe of Benjamin. 9They were led by Joel, Zichri's son. Judah, Hassenuah's son, was second in command over the city.

10From the priests: Jedaiah, Joiarib's son; Jachin; 11Seraiah, Hilkiah's son—the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub (who was supervisor of God's temple). 12There were 822 of their relatives who ran the temple. Also Adaiah, Jeroham's son—the son of Pelaliah, the son of Amzi, the son of Zechariah, the son of Pashhur, the son of Malchijah, 13and his relatives who were also the heads of families. They numbered 242 men. Amashsai, Azarel's son—the son of Ahzai, the son of Meshillemoth, the son of Immer, 14and their relatives. There were 128 courageous warriors, led by Zabdiel, Haggedolim's son.

* 10:34 Leviticus 6:12-13 * 10:36 Numbers 18:15-18 * 10:37-38 Literally, "dough"

15From the Levites: Shemaiah, Hasshub's son—the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Bunni; 16Shabbethai and Jozabad, the Levite leaders who were responsible for the work being done on the outside of God's temple; 17Mattaniah, Mica's son—the son of Zabdi, the son of Asaph. Mattaniah was the worship leader who would lead us in thanksgiving prayers. His assistant was Bakbukiah; also Abda, Shammua's son—the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun. 18There were 284 Levites in the holy city of Jerusalem.

19From the gatekeepers: Akkub, Talmon, and the rest of their relatives who watched over the gates were 172 men. 20All of the rest of the Israelites, priests, and Levites lived on their family's land in Judah. 21The temple servants lived on the hill of Ophel. Ziha and Gishpa were their leaders.

25*The returning Israelites lived in Jerusalem's* surrounding cities, near their farms. Some of the descendants of Judah lived in Kiriath-arba and its villages, Dibon and its villages, Jekabzeel and its villages. 26They also lived in Jeshua, Moladah, Bethpelet, 27Hazar-shual, Beersheba and its villages, 28Ziklag, Meconah and its villages, 29En-rimmon, Zorah, Jarmuth, 30Zanoah, Adullam and its towns, Lachish and its farms, Azekah and its villages. Their settlement stretched from Beersheba all the way to the valley of Hinnom, covering the area God had given to Judah and his descendants.

31The Benjaminites lived in Geba, Michmash, Aija, Bethel and its villages, 32Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah, 33Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim, 34Hadid, Zeboim, Neballat, 35Lod, Ono, and in the valley of the craftsmen. 36Some of the Levites from Judah were sent to live in Benjamin's settlements.

12 These are the priests and the Levites who returned with Zerubbabel (Shealtiel's son) and Jeshua the high priest. The priests were Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra, 2Amariah, Malluch, Hattush, 3Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth, 4Iddo, Ginnethoi, Abijah, 5Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah, 6Shemaiah, Joiarib, Jedaiah, 7Sallu, Amok, Hilkiah, and Jedaiah. These were the leaders of the priests and their relatives during the time of Jeshua. 8In addition the Levites who returned were Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, and Judah; Mattaniah and his brothers were in charge of the songs of thanksgiving. 9Their brothers Bakbukiah and Unni stood across from them in worship and led half of the responsive singing. 10Jeshua was the father of Joiakim, Joiakim was the father of Eliashib, Eliashib was the father of Joiada, 11Joiada was the father of Jonathan, and Jonathan was the father of Jaddua.

22During the time of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua, the Levites were listed by the heads of their families when Darius of Persia reigned; the practice was the same for the priests. 23-24In the book of the chronicles, the Levites who were listed as the heads of families, until the time of Johanan (Eliashib's son), were Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua (Kadmiel's son). Their brothers stood across from them in worship and led the other half of the responsive singing following the instructions of David, the man of God. 25The gatekeepers who guarded the storerooms inside the gate were Mattaniah, Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub. 26These men fulfilled their responsibilities during the time of Joiakim (Jeshua's son and Jozadak's grandson), and

Two very important characteristics of Jewish belief and behavior that set them apart from other peoples are endogamy and Sabbath: The Jewish people can only marry within and among their various tribes. After the exile the choices are limited to the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, but there is still opportunity for marriage and family. However, the Jews are forbidden to practice exogamy, which is marriage outside their ethnic group. The Eternal does not want the ideas and activities of other nations to influence His special people. Second, as with many of God's instructions to Israel, the Sabbath observance reflects God's activities in "creation week" in Genesis 1–2. The Sabbath or seventh-day rest is unique in the ancient world; and it signifies that Israel's Eternal One is over all aspects of creation, work, play, and rest. Nehemiah understands this, and he is direct in his instructions to this new Judean community.

27Finally, the time came to dedicate the wall of Jerusalem. Levites were tracked down from all over to perform the dedication ceremonies in Jerusalem. They celebrated joyously and led the people in songs of thanksgiving, worshiping with abandon. They played cymbals and harps and other stringed instruments they could carry. 28Singers from all around Jerusalem also came—from the villages of the Netophathites, 29from Beth-gilgal and the farms at Geba and Azmaveth. The singers had built themselves villages all around Jerusalem where they lived. 30The priests and the Levites ended the ceremonies by purifying themselves and then the people, the wall, and the gates.

44That same day, we appointed men to be in charge of the storerooms that held everyone's offerings—all their contributions, best offerings, and monetary tithes. These administrators were in charge of collecting from all of the villages the offerings set aside by the law for the priests and the Levites. Everyone was grateful to the priests and the Levites and were happy to contribute for all that they did. 45Just as David and his son Solomon instructed them to do, they served God and purified the people with the help of the singers and gatekeepers. 46It was during the united monarchy long ago, in the days of David and Asaph, that it became customary to have choir directors lead the singers in songs of worship and thanksgiving to God. 47In these times of Zerubbabel and Nehemiah, the people of Israel also contributed a daily supply of food so that the singers and the gatekeepers had enough to eat. They also designated consecrated portions for the Levites' share, who set aside food for the priests—who are Aaron's descendants.

13 Later that day, when the book of Moses was being read to the people, we discovered a passage that said no Ammonite or Moabite should be allowed to enter the sacred gatherings of God's *people.

2This prohibition went back to the time when our ancestors wandered in the desert—when the Ammonites and the Moabites refused to welcome the Israelites with food and drink. In fact, they hired Balaam to curse them. But it didn't work. God turned the curse into a blessing. 3As soon as people heard what God's law said, they excluded anyone with any non-Israelite descent from Israel.

4-5Before that happened, the priest named Eliashib took a large storeroom in the temple of God and gave it to Tobiah the Ammonite for his use. Eliashib was in charge of the storerooms, and Tobiah was a relative of his. Before he gave it to Tobiah, it had been used to store many different things for use in the temple: the grain offerings, the incense, the vessels, and the tithes of grain, new wine, and olive oil for the Levites, the singers, and the gatekeepers—also the offerings for the priests. 6I was not in Jerusalem when Eliashib did this. It was the 32nd year of the reign of Artaxerxes, king of Persia,* and I had returned to make a report to him. Later on I asked his permission to return 7to Jerusalem. When I arrived, I learned about the evil thing Eliashib had done by giving Tobiah a room in the courts of the temple of the True God, a place he wasn't even allowed to enter because of his heritage. 8I was livid. In my anger, I threw all of Tobiah's property out of the room. 9Then I had them purify the rooms and restore what was supposed to be there—the sacred vessels, the grain offerings, and the incense.

10I also learned that the portion of the offering that belonged to the Levites had not been given to them. As a result, the Levites and singers who were responsible for leading God's people in worship returned to work on their farms instead. 11I went straight to the leaders responsible for this and confronted them, asking, "Why are you neglecting God's temple?" I reassembled the leaders who had returned home and placed them back at their posts. 12*This allowed* the people of Judah to bring their tithes of grain, wine, and olive oil into the storehouses again. 13I placed trustworthy men in charge of the storerooms: Shelemiah the priest, Zadok the scribe, and a Levite named Pedaiah. I brought Hanan (Zaccur's son and Mattaniah's grandson) on as their assistant. It was their responsibility to make sure the daily rations were distributed to their relatives.

Nehemiah: 14O God—my God—remember this good thing I have done. Do not forget the way I have served Your temple and its servants.

15At that same time, I looked around Judah and saw men working the winepresses on the Sabbath. Others I found bringing large loads of grain to be loaded on donkeys. Wine, grapes, figs—they brought every kind of load into Jerusalem on the Sabbath no matter the season. I warned them about selling food on the Sabbath, just as they were doing it. 16There were men from Tyre living in Jerusalem. They also brought fish and all kinds of merchandise into Jerusalem and sold it to the people of Judah on the Sabbath, even in Jerusalem. 17I confronted the leaders of Judah, whom I held responsible for the public's actions.

Nehemiah: Why are you doing what you know is wicked? You are desecrating the Sabbath! 18Tell me how this is different from what we just confessed about our ancestors and their sin. This is the thing that provoked God's judgment and the destruction of this very city. You are fueling the fire of judgment for Israel by desecrating the Sabbath!

19*As the sun was setting* before the Sabbath and darkness fell over Jerusalem's gates, I ordered the doors to be closed. I required them to remain closed until the Sabbath ended. I placed some of my own guards by the gates to ensure no load of merchandise could be brought into the city during the Sabbath, but Jerusalem's citizens could still come and go. 20On a couple of different occasions, some traders and merchants of a great variety of goods slept by the gates outside the wall. 21They also received a warning from me.

Nehemiah: What are you up to, sleeping here outside the wall? If I find you here again, you will be removed by force!

They never came back on the Sabbath again. 22I ordered the Levites to go through the purifying rituals and then to come back and guard the gates so that the Sabbath would be kept holy.

Nehemiah: O God—my God—remember my actions. Because of Your great love, show me mercy.

23During that same time, I witnessed men from Judah marrying women from Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab. 24Half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod, and could not speak the language of Judah or understand our laws but only the languages of their peoples. 25I rebuked and cursed them. Some of them I beat, and I tore out their hair. I made them take an oath in the name of God.

Nehemiah: You will not let your daughters marry their sons, nor will you accept their daughters as wives for yourselves or your sons! 26This is the very thing that caused King Solomon's downfall. In all the world, there was no king like him. God loved him dearly and made him king over all Israel. Yet these foreign wives led Solomon into sin. 27Now we discover that you have embraced the same wicked ways, betraying our God by marrying these foreign women.

28Even the family of High Priest Eliashib was guilty. One of his grandsons, a son of Joiada, married one of the daughters of Sanballat the Horonite. I drove him away from me.

Nehemiah: 29O God—my God—remember how these men polluted the priesthood and the sacred vows of the priests and Levites.

30Once more we went through the rituals of purification, removing every foreign object. I reassigned the priests and the Levites to their tasks; everyone had a specific job to do. 31I made sure the altar was supplied with the offering of wood and the offerings of firstfruits, too—each at the right time.

Nehemiah: O God—my God—remember me with favor.

ESTHER

The Jews are rescued from certain annihilation by a brave young queen

By an unknown Jew living in Persia

Pretty Hadassah, evil Haman, and wise Mordecai meet and match wits in a royal drama amid feasting in the winter palace of the Persian king Ahasuerus (Xerxes I) in Susa. (Persia occupied the region of modern Iran.)

Haman, likely descended from the Jews' early enemies the Amalekites, becomes obsessed with ridding the Persian Empire of Jews, especially his rival Mordecai, Hadassah's older cousin and guardian. When Queen Vashti is deposed, Hadassah becomes Queen Esther after an empire-wide search. Meanwhile, Mordecai overhears an assassination plot, thus saving the king's life. Following a series of plot reversals, Esther and Mordecai succeed in gaining the Persian king's favor, and the king himself vanquishes their enemy Haman.

The Jews, ever the outsiders as they seek to establish and maintain a permanent earthly home, provide a study of contrasts with the antagonists. They counter the often-drunken feasting with fasts before they take action. Against abusive power, they show courage and apply cleverness. The Persian men fear the independence of women and thus depose Vashti, but it is the boldness of her successor, Esther, that changes the course of history.

Esther's story evokes the recurring biblical theme of a promised remnant. Earlier, Joseph's service to the Egyptian pharaoh allowed him to secure his family's well-being and lineage during a deadly famine. He told his brothers how God had put him in his position to preserve their family (Genesis 45:7). In a similar reversal, the Jews in Persia are able to defeat their tormentors because Esther also attains a high position in a foreign palace. Although a remnant of Jews has already returned to Jerusalem, the remnant in Persia is still struggling to preserve their heritage.

This event is the origin of the Feast of Purim (named after the pur, which is a "lot" or object used to make decisions). Jews still observe Purim annually to remember God's deliverance on the day decided by lot to be their day of destruction. During Purim, children especially enjoy wearing masks and costumes to enact an important aspect of Esther's story: because the Jews were highly assimilated into Persian society, mistaken identity played a role in their survival.

God is not explicitly mentioned in the Book of Esther, but it is His work through Esther and Mordecai that saves the Jews. The reader senses the hand of God, as evil is thwarted, goodness is rewarded, and the Jews are once again saved from their enemies. The human role in the salvation drama is highlighted in Mordecai's famous challenge to Esther to risk her life for her people: "And who knows? Perhaps you have been made queen for such a time as this" (4:14).

1 The following events occurred in Persia during the reign of King Ahasuerus, the same man who ruled 127 provinces stretching from India to Ethiopia. 2In those days King Ahasuerus' throne was in the citadel of Susa. 3During the 3rd year of his reign, Ahasuerus gathered together all of Persia's ruling authorities—nobles and officials, leaders of Persia and Media, and nobles of his provinces*—for a grand, state banquet. 4For 180 days, King Ahasuerus continuously paraded his glorious kingdom's riches and the splendor of his own notoriety in front of his nobles. Day after day the party continued with Persia's grandeur on display.

5After these days of feasting were over, the king held another banquet for all who lived in the citadel of Susa. For seven days, wealthy and poor men alike danced, drank, and made merry together in the lush enclosed gardens of King Ahasuerus' palace. 6His gardens were lavishly dressed with white and blue linen draperies, which hung from large marble pillars and were tied to silver rings with cord made out of fine purple linen. Gold and silver couches were arranged on a grand patio—a mosaic beautifully crafted of crystalline burgundy porphyry, marble, mother-of-pearl stone, and other beautiful* stones. 7King Ahasuerus generously served his guests wine from the royal cellar in goblets made out of gold, each uniquely designed. 8But no one was required to drink. The king merely ordered his servants to let his guests do as they wished. 9Meanwhile, as the men enjoyed the goodwill of King Ahasuerus, Queen Vashti gathered all of the women together for a celebration in one of the banquet halls of the royal palace.

10On the seventh and last day of the celebration, when the king was in a very good mood from the wine, he gave special orders to his eunuchs, who served as his personal assistants. (These seven men were Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagtha, Zethar, and Carkas.)

King Ahasuerus: 11Bring Queen Vashti to my party! Tell her to put on her royal crown and to wear her finest clothes. I want to show off her beauty in front of my distinguished guests.

He did this because Queen Vashti was very beautiful. 12But when she heard the king's order from his eunuchs, she refused to join him and his guests. King Ahasuerus was infuriated when he heard the news from his assistants. In fact, the more he thought of it, the more King Ahasuerus burned with anger.

13*Immediately,* King Ahasuerus called a meeting with his wise counsel, men who understood the laws and customs that had made the Persian Empire great. 14These seven nobles—the king's most elite confidants—came from Persia and Media and were named Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, and Memucan.

King Ahasuerus: 15Queen Vashti has blatantly defied me and refused the order I gave her through my assistants! Tell me, good men, what do the laws of this land suggest should be done to a queen who has disobeyed her king?

Memucan (before the king and nobles):
16Your queen has wronged you, my king. She has also offended every noble of the land and all the people who reside in your provinces. Something must be done! 17*If we don't act quickly,* every woman in this kingdom will hear about Queen Vashti's disrespect for you and they will follow her example in dishonoring their husbands. I can hear the women now, talking among each other: "Why should we listen to our husbands when Queen Vashti doesn't come when King Ahasuerus calls for her?" 18This day the noble women of Persia and Media who hear what the queen has done will respond in kind to your nobles, and there will be chaos all across the land.

19But my king, don't worry; I have an idea! With your permission, of course, I recommend that a decree be issued among the Persians and the Medes, a law which cannot be repealed, that forbids Vashti from ever being allowed in your presence again. In fact, I would further suggest that you give her position to another woman, someone who is more honorable than she is. 20As your subjects hear about your decree in the far reaches of your kingdom, all the women will stop and give their husbands the honor they deserve, those of royal blood as well as the commoners. Oh, this is a great idea!

21Memucan's advice was well received by the king and his advisors.

King Ahasuerus: That is a brilliant idea! I say we make Memucan's counsel into law!

22The king drafted letters and sent them to all of his provinces. His emissaries spread the news quickly at the king's directive that each province receive the decree in their own script and language: "In Persia every man will be master of his own home and speak in the language of his own people—regardless of the language his wife speaks."

2 A little while later, when King Ahasuerus was no longer angry, he began thinking about Vashti, her actions that night at the party, and his decision to dismiss her from his presence. 2*Seeing the king's mood,* his servants had a suggestion.

Servants: King Ahasuerus, someone should find beautiful young women who are old enough to be married for you. 3We suggest you appoint officers in every province of Persia to round up every eligible woman and add her to your harem in the citadel of Susa. Hegai, the king's eunuch who is in charge of the harem, will see to it that all of the women are properly prepared and receive all the needed cosmetics. 4Then whichever young woman delights you the most will reign as queen in Vashti's place.

King Ahasuerus liked the advice of his servants and gave them permission to execute the plan.

5Meanwhile in the citadel of Susa, there was a Jewish man from the tribe of Benjamin named Mordecai. He was the son of Jair who was a descendent of Shimei and Kish. 6It was at the hand of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon that Jeconiah (king of Judah) and Mordecai's ancestors had been forced out of the city of Jerusalem to live as exiles in Babylon. 7Mordecai had a cousin who was a young and beautiful girl named Hadassah, and she was also called Esther. After her mother and father died, Mordecai adopted her into his family as his daughter.

8As the result of the king's decree, Esther, along with many other young women, was brought to the royal palace in the citadel of Susa, and she was put in the care of Hegai (who was in charge of the harem). 9Esther soon impressed Hegai and was favored. He arranged that she be given the most lustrous beauty treatments and fed the finest fruits and vegetables from the king's garden. He assigned to her seven servants and moved her and her servants to the harem's finest rooms. 10Mordecai had instructed Esther to keep her Jewish heritage a secret, and so she told no one. Still her cousin worried about her. 11Every day Mordecai paced back and forth near the courtyard of the harem to see if he could find out some news, any news, about Esther.

12Before going in to the king, each young woman went through 12 months of beauty treatments, as the harem's rules prescribed. For the first 6 months the women were treated with the palace's finest myrrh oil, and that was followed by 6 months in perfume and other women's cosmetics. 13This is how a young woman would go in to the king: each woman was allowed to take whatever she wanted or needed from the harem into the king's rooms. 14In the evening the woman would go in to King Ahasuerus' chambers and then, the next morning, she would return to the harem again, but now she would be watched over by Shaashgaz, the king's eunuch in charge of his concubines. No woman returned to the king's rooms unless he was pleased by her and called for her by name.

15Esther was the daughter of Abihail who in turn was the uncle of Mordecai. When it was time for Esther, whom Mordecai had adopted, to go in to the king, she didn't ask for anything special. She took only what Hegai suggested. Since he was the king's eunuch in charge of the women, he would know what was best. Now Esther had some special qualities, and all who met her favored her. 16In the 10th month (the month of Tebeth) during the 7th year of his reign, four years after King Ahasuerus dethroned Queen Vashti, Esther was taken to King Ahasuerus in the king's rooms. 17The king found her to be more desirable than all of the other women. Unlike the other young women brought before him, she alone won his heart and his favor. So he made her his queen instead of Vashti and placed the royal crown on her head. 18King Ahasuerus invited all of the nobles and officials to a state banquet in honor of Esther, his new queen. He declared that day as a holiday throughout his entire kingdom and distributed extravagant gifts.

19When the young women were gathered together for a second time, Mordecai was sitting at the palace gate where the men gathered for business and legal decisions. 20Since Mordecai had required Esther to keep her Jewish heritage a secret, she had told no one. She continued to obey him as she did when he took care of her. 21One day while Mordecai was at the gate, Bigthan and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs who guarded the door, were plotting to kill King Ahasuerus. They were angry over some matter. 22But Mordecai learned of their plan and reported it to Queen Esther who told the king about the plot, giving credit to her cousin. 23After a thorough investigation, the report was proven true. So the two officers were killed and displayed on a pole. All of this information was chronicled in the presence of the king, in the public record.

3 A little while later, according to King Ahasuerus' wishes, Haman (son of Hammedatha, an Agagite) was promoted to a rank above all his fellow nobles in the kingdom. 2The officials at the king's gate all bowed down before Haman and paid him homage because the king commanded this. But Mordecai, the Jew, refused to kneel and refused to honor him.

► The bad blood between the families of Benjamin and Agag goes back a long way to the time when Saul, a Benjaminite, destroyed the Amalekites and took their king, Agag, as his captive (1 Samuel 15:7-9). Now the tables are turned, and Agag's descendant exercises nearly supreme power over Mordecai and the other subjects of Persian power. But, true to his Jewish teaching, Mordecai bows to no man nor pays him homage. That honor is reserved for God and Him alone.

3Mordecai's actions came to the attention of the king's officials standing at the gate.

Officials (looking at Mordecai): Why are you disobeying the king's command?

4The officers questioned him daily about his disobedience to the king, but Mordecai refused to listen and bow down. The officers reported this to Haman to learn whether or not Mordecai's excuse would be tolerated, for Mordecai had told them he was a Jew. 5Haman was furious when he saw that Mordecai refused to bow and pay him the respect he was due. 6But Haman wasn't to be satisfied with killing only Mordecai, so he began to think of ways to destroy all of Mordecai's people, the Jews, throughout the kingdom of Ahasuerus.

7During the 1st month (the month of Nisan) of Ahasuerus' 12th year as king, they cast lots (also known as "purim") in the presence of Haman in order to select a day and month. [The lot fell on the 13th day of]* the 12th month (the month of Adar), a day nearly one year in the future.

Haman (to the king): 8All the provinces in your kingdom are overrun with one insignificant group of foreigners, people who haven't adopted our customs. Their laws differ from all other peoples', and they do not keep your laws. Therefore it's not a good idea for you to tolerate them or their actions any longer. 9If it is your wish, sign an order that these people be destroyed, and I will bear all the costs. I'll pay 375 tons of silver directly to those who carry out the king's business in order to relieve the royal treasury of the expense.

10*Not knowing which group of foreigners was being targeted,* the king took his signet

* 3:7 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

ring, the symbol of his power and authority, from his finger and passed it to Haman (son of Hammedatha, the Agagite), who hated the Jews.

King Ahasuerus (to Haman): [11]The money is yours and the people are yours also to do with as you wish.

[12]On the 13th day of the 1st month, the royal secretaries were summoned. The king's order was written down exactly the way Haman dictated it to all of the king's rulers of the regions, governors of the provinces, and nobles of the ethnic groups. The orders were written in every script and every language spoken in the provinces in the name of the king, and they were sealed into law with his ring. [13]Messengers were sent out to all the royal provinces with the official law giving the order to destroy, kill, and annihilate all of the Jews. They were to kill everyone, including women and children, young and old, on the 13th day of the 12th month (the month of Adar), and they were free to take everything the Jews owned. [14]An official copy of the king's order was to be issued to every province and read publicly, so that the people could get ready for that day. [15]The messengers were quickly dispatched by order of the king. Then the decree was publicly proclaimed in the citadel of Susa. As the king and Haman relaxed and drank wine, the city of Susa was thrown into chaos.

4 Mordecai mourned when he found out what had happened. He ripped his clothes, put on sackcloth, and wiped ash onto his body. Then he went through the city, weeping loudly in anguish. [2]When he came to the king's gate, not far from the palace, he stopped since those wearing sackcloth were not permitted to enter it and disrupt the mood of the court.

[3]In the meantime, as word of the king's decree began to spread throughout all of the provinces, terrible distress grew among the Jews. They fasted, wept, and screamed out in misery. Like Mordecai, many put on sackcloth and ashes.

[4]Back in Susa, Esther's maids and eunuchs witnessed Mordecai mourning outside of the king's gate. They went and reported to the queen all that they saw.

Esther: What is wrong? Why is he doing this? It breaks my heart to think of him like this. Take these clothes to Mordecai so he can put them on instead of wearing sackcloth.

But when the servants arrived, Mordecai refused to wear the clothes Queen Esther had sent. [5]So Esther sent for Hathach, who was one of the king's eunuchs assigned to serve her.

Esther: Hathach, go to Mordecai at once. Find out why he is mourning, and report back to me all that he says.

[6]Hathach went to Mordecai in the open square of the city in front of the king's gate. [7]Mordecai told the queen's servant everything that had happened and how much money Haman had pledged to place into the royal treasury in exchange for the destruction of the Jews. [8]Then he gave Hathach a copy of the order for mass murder of the Jews, the same order issued in the city of Susa.

Mordecai: Show it to Esther. Tell her everything I have told you. Convince her to go before her king and plead for his favor, not only for her life, but also for the lives of her people.

[9]Hathach returned to Esther and told her everything Mordecai had said. [10]Esther ordered Hathach to return to the city gate and reply to Mordecai.

Esther: [11]How am I supposed to see the king? It's known throughout the land, from the greatest of the king's officials to the common folk who live in the provinces, that any person who approaches the king in the inner chamber without being invited is sentenced to death. That's the law! There's only one exception, and that's if the king were to hold out the gold scepter to that person and spare his or her life. It's been 30 days since the king last summoned me!

Mordecai: [13]Tell Esther, "Don't be fooled. Just because you are living inside the king's palace doesn't mean that you out of all of the Jews will escape the carnage. You must go before your king. [14]If you stay silent during this time, deliverance for the Jews will come from somewhere, but you, my child, and all of your father's family will die. And who knows? Perhaps you have been made queen for such a time as this."

► Of all the books in the Bible, Esther is unique because God is never once mentioned explicitly. Still, for those who know God and who know history, God is in the story, behind it, above it, beneath it. He is the main actor in history, even if He is not acknowledged. Here, Mordecai shows great wisdom. The Jews, God's chosen people, will be delivered whether Esther involves herself or not. Divine Providence has ways and means that go beyond human understanding. Still Providence has made Esther queen for a purpose, a purpose she cannot easily escape.

15 Once again, Hathach returned to Queen Esther with Mordecai's message. In turn she sent a reply back to Mordecai.

Esther: Tell Mordecai, 16 "In preparation for my audience with the king, do this: gather together all the Jews in Susa, and fast and pray for me. Intercede for me. For three days and nights, abstain from all food and drink. My maids and I will join you in this time. And after the three days, I will go in to the king and plead my people's case, even though it means breaking the law. And if I die, then I die!"

17 Mordecai left the king's gate and put all of Esther's instructions into action.

5 When the third day arrived, Esther put on her royal robes and stood in the inner court of the palace across from the king's rooms. The king was sitting on his throne facing the palace entrance. 2 He was pleased when he noticed Queen Esther waiting in the court. He extended his gold scepter with his hand, inviting her in. Esther walked toward him, and when she was close enough, she reached out and touched the king's scepter.

King Ahasuerus: 3 What is it, Queen Esther? What is your request? I'll give you anything—even half of my kingdom—all you need to do is ask.

Queen Esther: 4 If it would please you, my king, I'd like for you and Haman to come today to a banquet I have made in your honor.

King Ahasuerus (looking at his servants): 5 Go and find Haman this instant, so we can do as Esther desires.

So the king and Haman came to Esther's banquet. 6 As Haman, the king, and Esther were enjoying the wine at the end of her banquet, the king pressed the question.

King Ahasuerus: Now, my queen, what is your request? I promise that half of my kingdom is not too much to ask! Don't be afraid to ask for whatever you want.

Queen Esther: 7 I do want something. My request is: 8 If I have found favor before you, and if you truly desire to grant my request, would you and Haman join me again tomorrow for another banquet I will prepare? Then I will answer your question.

9 Haman left dinner in high spirits, almost gleeful, but his joy was short lived. As he walked through the king's gate, he passed by Mordecai. It angered Haman to see the Jew unwilling to stand and, worse still, seemingly unafraid. 10 But he resisted showing his anger right then and there. Instead, he went home and spent time with friends and Zeresh, his wife. 11 Haman spent the evening bragging to them about being rich and having lots of sons in his family. He even boasted about his relationship with the king, talking to his guests about his promotion above all of his fellow nobles and the officials of the king.

Haman: 12 And that's not all! Queen Esther invited me today to dine with her and the king. Just the three of us! And guess what? She's invited me again tomorrow. What do you think about that? 13 But I must be honest; seeing that Jew, Mordecai, as I pass through the gate makes it difficult to celebrate any of my good fortune.

14 Then his wife Zeresh and all of his friends came up with an idea.

Zeresh and His Friends: You should make a wood pole 75 feet high! Tomorrow morning, have the king sentence Mordecai to be executed on it. Then you'll be able to have a good time at the banquet with the king.

Haman thought the idea was brilliant. So he had the pole made.

► The Persians have a particularly grisly way of humiliating and killing those they hate. A tree is cut down and sharpened to a point at one end. In some cases, the condemned are killed, and their lifeless bodies are impaled on it. Others are hung on the pole as a mode of torture and execution. It is erected in some public place as an example for others, and the 75-foot pole described here is high enough to be seen over most buildings and small trees. Soon birds and insects begin eating away at the dead or dying. Political enemies, criminals, and dissidents often end their lives this way. The threat of public death and humiliation has kept many from disobeying the law, but not Mordecai.

6 That same night the king was unable to sleep, so he ordered the official records of his reign to be brought and read before him. 2As the record was read, the king was reminded of the time when Mordecai saved his life. Mordecai had been the one who reported that Bigthana and Teresh, two of the royal eunuchs who guarded the doors, were plotting to assassinate the king.*

King Ahasuerus *(to his servants): 3Did Mordecai receive any recognition for this action? Was he honored in any way?

Servants: He received no recognition for this.

King Ahasuerus: 4Is anyone out in the court now?

Haman had just arrived at the outer court of King Ahasuerus' palace. He hoped to speak with the king about executing Mordecai and hanging him on the pole he had prepared.

Servants: 5Haman is here waiting in the court to see you.

King Ahasuerus: Allow him to come in.

6So Haman entered the king's chambers. He waited for the king to speak first.

King Ahasuerus: Haman, I want to ask you something. What do you believe is the proper manner in which to honor a man who has pleased me?

Then Haman thought to himself, "There is no one the king wishes to honor more than me."

Haman: 7If you desire to honor a man, I believe you should do this: 8*First,* have your servants bring one of the robes you have worn and one of the horses you have ridden that has worn the royal crown on its head. 9Then, you should give the robe and horse to one of your most noble officials. Have him robe the man whom you want to honor and then lead the man on horseback throughout the center of the city. It should be announced that this is what happens for the man whom the king wants to honor.

King Ahasuerus: 10*Your idea is perfect,* Haman. I want you to go and do this immediately. Take one of my robes and one of my horses and do exactly what you have suggested to Mordecai, the Jewish man who sits at my gate. Do everything you have said, and don't leave out one single detail. Not one!

The situation is now reversed, and Haman is forced to honor the man he has sought to kill.

11Haman was mortified. He took the robe and horse; he dressed Mordecai in the king's robe and led him throughout the square of the city.

Haman *(shouting): This is what happens for the man whom the king desires to honor!

12When it was done, Mordecai returned to the king's gate. But Haman fled to his home, mourning and covering his head in humiliation. 13He told his wife, Zeresh, and all his friends everything that had happened to him. They offered him a bit of wise advice.

Zeresh and His Friends: You must be very careful with how you handle Mordecai! If he really is a Jew, a descendant of the nation that defeated your ancestors, then you won't be able to succeed. In fact, you will most certainly be destroyed! Look, you've already begun to bow to him.

14 In the middle of their conversation, the king's eunuchs arrived at Haman's house and rushed him off to have dinner with Esther and the king.

7 King Ahasuerus and Haman came to dine with Queen Esther; 2 and while they were drinking wine, the king posed his question once again.

King Ahasuerus: What is your request, Queen Esther? I'm willing to give you anything you want. Just make your request. Even if it's half the kingdom you desire, I will make it happen!

Queen Esther: 3 If you favor me, my king, and if it pleases you, spare my life. That's all I'm asking for—that my people and I be spared. That is my wish. 4 There are some, my king, who wish to rid your kingdom of us. For my people and I have been sold, marked for destruction and massacre. Now if the plan were simply to sell our men and women into slavery, I would have kept my mouth closed because that would not have been important enough to disturb you, my king.

Esther's plea to Ahasuerus echoes the words of Moses to Pharaoh: "Let my people go."

King Ahasuerus: 5 Who has targeted your people? Where is this man who dares to do this?

Queen Esther *(pointing to Haman): 6 The man responsible for these actions is wicked Haman. He is vile, and an enemy to my people.

In that moment, Haman's joy turned to terror before the king and queen. 7 Angered, the king shoved away from the table, left his wine, and walked into the palace garden. But Haman, aware that King Ahasuerus had already sealed his fate, didn't follow behind. Instead, he pleaded with Queen Esther to spare his life. 8 In desperation, he threw himself onto the couch where Queen Esther was sitting, just as King Ahasuerus walked back from the garden to the place where the wine and the banquet had been set.

King Ahasuerus: Haman, will you even violate my queen right here in the palace, where I can see you?

As soon as the king gave the order, the royal eunuchs covered Haman's face. His fate had been sealed. 9 One of those eunuchs was Harbonah.

Harbonah: Look! Haman has prepared a 75-foot pole for execution in his own courtyard. He was hoping to use it to hang Mordecai, the man who spoke up and saved the king.

King Ahasuerus: Well, hang him on it!

10 So they took Haman and killed him and displayed him on the pole he had made ready for Mordecai. And King Ahasuerus' anger subsided.

8 On the same day, King Ahasuerus gave Queen Esther all the household of Haman, the enemy of the Jews. Then Mordecai was brought before King Ahasuerus, for Queen Esther had told the king how they were related. 2 The king took off his signet ring (the one he had taken back from Haman) and gave it to Mordecai. Then Esther put Mordecai in charge of all of Haman's household.

3 Esther came before the king once more. This time she fell at his feet, wept, and begged the king to do something to stop the evil plan that Haman (the Agagite) had brought upon the Jews. 4 The king, as before, extended his golden scepter to Queen Esther; and she stood to her feet before him.

Queen Esther: 5 If it pleases the king, and if I am in his favor, and if the king believes it is the right and just thing to do, let there be an official decree written that will cancel out the order that Haman (son of Hammedatha, the Agagite) had written to rid all the king's provinces of the Jews. 6 For I can't bear to see this catastrophe brought against my people; how can I live another day if I witness the destruction of my kindred?

King Ahasuerus *(to Queen Esther and Mordecai the Jew): 7Look, I have given you, Queen Esther, Haman's household because of his vengeful actions against your people. That is also why he hangs on the pole he had made for Mordecai. I have done all I can do; the rest is your responsibility 8because no order that has been written in the name of the king and sealed with the king's signet ring can be overturned. So you must write a new order to the Jews to remedy the situation; it, too, must be written in the king's name and sealed with the king's signet ring.

► Although Haman is dead, the order to kill all the Jews in the Persian Empire is very much alive. Once the king has signed an order, it cannot be reversed. Such kings never reverse themselves; it is too risky. So a new order must be written and sent to the far reaches of the empire; and Mordecai, the Jew, is just the person to do it. Now that he has been elevated to the supreme position where he has use of the king's signet ring, he can exercise royal power.

9So the royal secretaries were summoned together on the 23rd day of the 3rd month (the month of Sivan). The king's new orders were written down exactly the way Mordecai dictated them, and they were written to the Jews, the rulers, the governors, and the nobles of the 127 provinces stretching from India to Ethiopia. The orders were written down in every script and every language spoken in the provinces, including the Jewish script and the Jewish language. 10Mordecai wrote in the name of King Ahasuerus and sealed it with his signet ring. Then, these orders were dispatched to the provinces by couriers who rode on the finely bred horses sired by the royal stud. 11The king's new orders gave the Jews in every city the right to gather together, to protect themselves, and to kill or destroy any army of any nation or province (including their women and children) who might attack them. The orders also gave the Jews the right to take over the assets of their enemies. 12*These new orders were set to go into effect* on the 13th day of the 12th month (the month of Adar). This was the same day Haman had determined by casting lots to kill the Jews. 13An official copy of the king's order was to be issued to every province and read publicly to all nationalities, so that the Jews would be ready to protect themselves against their enemies. 14The couriers were quickly dispatched by order of the king, and they left the capital riding on royal steeds. Then the decree was publicly proclaimed in the citadel of Susa.

9 The new law and orders of King Ahasuerus took effect on the 13th day of the 12th month (the month of Adar). It was on this day that those who were enemies of the Jews had planned to overtake them, but that was not the way it happened. Instead, the Jews got the upper hand over those who conspired against them. 2*On that day,* the Jews gathered together in their respective cities in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus to fight those who sought their destruction. No army or nation could stand against them, because they were all frightened of the Jews. 3The nobles and governors of the provinces and also the king's officials did what they could to help the Jews, but that was because they feared what Mordecai might do to them. 4In King Ahasuerus' palace, Mordecai grew more powerful. Word spread quickly throughout the provinces about Mordecai's authority and influence. 5The Jews took this opportunity to attack their enemies with swords, killing them. And then they did whatever they deemed reasonable with those who despised them. 6Just in the city of Susa, the capital of the empire, the Jews killed 500 men. 7-10That didn't include the 10 sons of Haman (son of Hammedatha, enemy of the Jews):

Parshandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai, and Vaizatha. They were also put to death. All of them were considered enemies of the Jews. But they did not touch the assets of their victims. 11When the day was over, the number of those killed in his capital, Susa, was reported to King Ahasuerus. 12Then the king spoke to Queen Esther.

King Ahasuerus: The Jews have killed 500 men in the capital of Susa alone, and also the 10 sons of Haman. How many must they have killed in the other provinces? Now, do you want anything more? Whatever you ask will be given to you. So, tell me; what further do you need? I will grant whatever that is.

Queen Esther: 13If it pleases the king, allow the Jews in Susa one more day to exact justice on their enemies according to your decree. And let Haman's 10 sons be displayed on the pole.

14The king honored Queen Esther's wishes. An order was issued in the city of Susa, and the dead bodies of the 10 sons of Haman were displayed. 15So on the 14th day of the month of Adar, the Jews killed 300 men in Susa. But they didn't touch any of their assets.

► According to custom and Persian law, the Jews have every right to seize the assets of those they kill in this battle. But it is important to note that they do not. The reason for this odd behavior may well lie in history: Hundreds of years earlier, Saul and the Israelites defeated King Agag (the ancestor of Haman) and helped themselves to the plunder, violating God's clear directive. That violation brought them irreparable harm. So now, when they have the opportunity, the Jews leave the Agagites' assets alone. Obedience deferred is still obedience.

18Since the Jews in Susa had gathered together to defend themselves on the 13th and 14th days of the month of Adar, they rested on the 15th and celebrated with food and drink. 19(This explains why the Jews who live in rural areas and villages continue to celebrate on the 14th day of Adar with food and drinks and send gifts to one another.)

20Mordecai kept a detailed journal of all these events, and he corresponded often with all of the Jews from every corner of King Ahasuerus' kingdom, regardless of its distance from Susa. 21He reminded them to remember and celebrate the 14th and 15th days of Adar every year (based on the day of each group) 22*and to celebrate as faithfully* as they did on the days in which the Jews were granted relief from their enemies. He wanted them to savor the month of Adar as a time when their sadness turned into gladness and their mourning into celebration. He encouraged them to celebrate with food and drink, to send gifts, and to offer help to the poor. 23The Jews in every part of the kingdom took Mordecai's advice and celebrated on the 14th and 15th days of the month of Adar, making it an annual custom.

24*In short,* Haman (son of Hammedatha, the Agagite), the enemy of all Jews everywhere, had schemed against the Jews to destroy them. He did so by casting the lot (also known as the "pur").* That was the beginning of the plan to annihilate them and bring about their ruin. 25But King Ahasuerus learned about his evil plot and wrote an order that Haman should receive the very punishment that he himself wanted the Jewish people to suffer. So the king directed that Haman and all ten of his sons be killed and displayed on the pole. 26So this is why they call these days of feasting "Purim," from the word "pur," which means "lot." It is also because Mordecai's correspondence had instructed Jews across the empire to remember what they had seen and what had happened to them. 27So, the Jews made it their custom that every family, and every descendant, and every future convert would observe these two days each year in the way that Mordecai asked. 28(This explains why these days were remembered and celebrated by all Jews in all places, and at all times; the days of Purim would never be forgotten and their celebration would never stop.)

29Queen Esther (daughter of Abihail) utilized her full authority as queen to affirm a second letter by Mordecai the Jew regarding Purim. 30So Mordecai sent letters to all the Jews in the 127 provinces of King Ahasuerus' kingdom. His letter included encouraging words of peace and truth; 31*and it was his hope* to establish these days of Purim permanently on the calendar as days of mourning and fasting for future generations as it was for themselves. 32Esther's authority affirmed the tradition of Purim and it was written down in the official records.

► In all of Jewish history, Esther's story is unique. Her meteoric rise from common Jewish girl to queen of the vast Persian Empire is evidence that God can use some unlikely characters. In this case, He uses Esther to halt a terrible injustice and to settle an ancient score. To be used by God in any capacity, however, requires courage; it requires taking a risk. In Esther's case, she risks her own life in order to save her people, and in a greater sense to ensure that the story of redemption continues.

The world has always endured times of great injustice, times of great need. Yet God is at work, transforming sorrow to joy, shame to honor, and injustice to justice. Each person is called to impact the age in which he or she lives.

10 Across his empire, on the land and along the coasts, King Ahasuerus imposed taxation upon the people. 2All of King Ahasuerus' accomplishments, as well as the great work of Mordecai, whom the king promoted, are written down in the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia. 3For Mordecai the Jew became second-in-command to King Ahasuerus, and he was highly revered among the Jews because he worked for the prosperity of his people and was an advocate for their well-being.

JOB

Job's devotion to God is tested

By an unknown author

The Book of Job is considered one of the greatest literary works in history. It reflects a familiar theme in ancient literature, namely, the problem of suffering, particularly unjust suffering. If obedience to God leads to prosperity and if disobedience leads to adversity—the message of books such as Deuteronomy, Joshua, and Judges—then why does Job suffer? After all, Job is considered one of the best and most righteous people of his day. Shouldn't Job enjoy a blessed life? As a result of such profound questions, the Book of Job is categorized as a book of wisdom. Based on the language and understanding of retribution in Job, many date the book in its current form to the sixth century B.C.

In spite of its placement in the Bible at the end of the historical books, the story of Job is set much earlier, perhaps as early as the Patriarchal period. Set in the land of Uz, the book describes Job as a man whose righteousness and good deeds appear perfect yet who is tormented by God's messenger, known as the Adversary (or "the Satan"). This angelic accuser questions God before His celestial throne in an attempt to find the reason behind humanity's devotion to God. Unaware of the heavenly debate behind his suffering, Job and his friends heatedly discuss the reasons for Job's pain. Even after many appeals to ideas of divine retribution and the advice of the pious man Elihu, Job's friends do not have a satisfactory answer to the troubling questions Job is persistently asking. Finally God Himself addresses Job, but only after Job challenges Him to step forward and account for Himself.

But God's answer is not unambiguous. Some reckon that God is chiding Job for questioning Him in the first place. Others figure that God's response has more to do with the limits of human understanding. In the end, God's speech to Job appears to provide not so much an answer to the question of evil and suffering, but perhaps a context for reflection. This, too, is the way of wisdom; for it results in a deeper understanding of God, the individual, and the world. The lesson learned from this book is that God's people must have unwavering faith in Him and never stray from respecting and honoring Him. In the epilogue (Job 42:7-17), God rebukes Job's friends for their unwise counsel and restores Job's fortunes.

1 Once there was a man from Uz by the name of Job. He was a very good man—his character spotless, his integrity unquestioned. In fact, he so believed in God that he sought to honor Him in all things. He deliberately avoided evil in all of his affairs. 2He had 7 sons and 3 daughters; 3he owned 7,000 sheep, 3,000 camels, 500 teams of oxen, 500 female donkeys, and a large number of servants. Among Easterners, he was the most powerful and influential man. 4His sons, who were all wealthy landowners, too, all used to gather together on each others' birthdays and special occasions. The brothers would take turns hosting the others in their homes, and they would invite their three sisters to eat and drink with them. 5When these days of feasting were through, Job would call all of his family to his own house and purify them, rising up early in the morning to offer burnt sacrifices for each one.

Job: God, forgive my children for any secret sins or grudges they have against You deep in their hearts.

No worshiper of God could ever curse Him, so the Hebrew says "bless God" when the reality is, as Job says, they have "grudges . . . deep in their hearts."

Job did this again and again.

6Now one day, it came time for the sons of God, God's heavenly messengers, to present themselves to the Eternal One to give reports and receive instructions. The Accuser* was with them there.

► The dialogue between the Accuser and God is similar to what might be heard during a court case. Job is a person of the utmost integrity; he is someone God highly respects as His servant. Attacked by the Accuser in God's heavenly court, Job's actions are both supported and evaluated by God, who fills the roles of both Job's Advocate and the Promoter of Justice.

Eternal One *(to the Accuser): 7Where have you been?

The Accuser: Oh, roaming here and there, running about the earth and observing its inhabitants.

Eternal One: 8Well, have you looked into the man, Job, My servant? He is unlike any other person on the whole earth—a very good man—his character spotless, his integrity unquestioned. In fact, he so believes in Me that he seeks, in all things, to honor Me and deliberately avoids evil in all of his affairs.

The Accuser: 9*I won't argue with You that he is pious,* but is all of this believing in You and honoring You for no reason? 10Haven't You encircled him with Your very own protection, and not only him but his entire household and all that he has? Not only this, but Your blessing accompanies whatever his hand touches, and see how his possessions have grown. It is easy to be so pious in the face of such prosperity. 11So now extend Your hand! Destroy all of these possessions of his, and he will certainly curse You, right to Your face.

Eternal One: 12*I delegate this task to you.* His possessions are now in your hand. One thing, though: you are not to lay a finger on the man himself. Job must not be touched.

With that, the Accuser left the court and the Eternal's presence.

13Now one day, all of Job's children were gathered together under the roof of Job's firstborn for their usual celebration—feasting and drinking wine—14when a messenger came to Job.

Messenger: We were in the field. The oxen were plowing, the donkeys were grazing nearby, 15and out of nowhere, the Sabeans attacked. They stole your animals, all 1,000 oxen and donkeys, and as for your servants, they put their swords to us, and everyone is dead—every last one, except me. I am the only one who got away from the fields to tell you.

16And while the words were still leaving the messenger's mouth, another messenger arrived.

Second Messenger: Lightning has struck! The fire of God fell from the sky and

* 1:6 Literally, the Satan

burned the 7,000 sheep alive . . . alive! Shepherds, too—all of them burned; everyone is dead—every last one, except me. I am the only one who got away from the pastures to tell you.

17And while the words were still leaving that messenger's mouth, a third messenger arrived.

Third Messenger: Chaldeans! Three groups of them attacked us. They converged on the camels and stole your 3,000 animals, and as for your servants, they put their swords to us, and everyone is dead—every last one, except me. I am the only one who got away to tell you.

18And while the words were still leaving that messenger's mouth, yet a fourth messenger arrived.

Fourth Messenger: All of your children were gathered together today under the roof of your firstborn to celebrate—eating a feast and drinking wine—19and then a powerful wind rose up from the other side of the desert, and it struck all four corners of the house. It collapsed! Everyone is dead—all of those young people—every last one, except me. I am the only one who got away from your son's house to tell you.

20Then Job stood up, tore his robe, shaved his head, and fell to the ground. Face down, Job sprawled in the dirt to worship.

Job: 21I was naked, with nothing, when I came from my mother's womb;
and naked, with nothing, I will return to the earth.
The Eternal has given, and He has taken away.
May the name of the Eternal One be blessed.

22In all of this Job neither sinned nor did he make foolish charges against God.

2 Now one day, it was time for the sons of God, God's heavenly messengers, to present themselves to the Eternal One to give reports and receive instructions. The Accuser* was with them there again, also ready to present himself to Him.

Eternal One (to the Accuser): 2Where have you been?

The Accuser: Oh, roaming here and there, running about the earth and observing its inhabitants.

Eternal One: 3Well, have you looked into the man, Job, My servant? He is unlike any other person on the whole earth—a very good man—his character spotless, his integrity unquestioned. In fact, he so believes in Me that he seeks, in all things, to honor Me and deliberately avoids evil in all of his affairs. And I have found him to be unswervingly committed, despite the fact that you provoked Me to wreck him for no particular reason, to take away My protection and his prosperity.

The Accuser: 4*Well, as they say,* "Skin for skin!" It is easy to be so pious in the face of such health. Surely a man will give what he has for the sake of his own life, 5so now extend Your hand! Afflict him, both bone and body, and he will curse You, right to Your face.

Eternal One: 6*Well then, this is how it will be:* he is now in your hand. One thing, though: you will not take his life. Job must not be killed.

7With that, the Accuser left the court and the Eternal's presence, and he infected Job with a painful skin disease. From the soles of his feet to the crown of his head, his body was covered with boils. 8Job took a broken piece of pottery to scrape his wounds, and while he sat in the ashes just outside of town, 9his wife found him.

Job's Wife: Will you still not swerve in your commitments? Curse God and die!

Job: 10You're speaking nonsense like some depraved woman. Are we to accept the good that comes from God, but not accept the bad?

Throughout all of this, Job did not sin with his mouth; he would not curse God as the Accuser predicted.

11Now Job had three friends: Eliphaz from Teman, Bildad from Shuah, and Zophar from Naamath. When these three received word of the horror that had befallen Job, they left their homes, and agreed to meet together to mourn with and comfort their friend.

These friends are from different regions: Eliphaz comes from Edomite lands to the southeast, while Bildad and Zophar come from more eastern lands.

12 They approached the town ash-heap, but they were still far off when they caught sight of Job. His sores were so severe and his appearance so changed by his condition that they almost didn't recognize him. Upon seeing him and apprehending the extent of his suffering, they cried out, burst into tears, tore their robes, reached down into the dust and ashes at their feet, and threw ash into the air and onto their heads. 13 Then, they sat with him on the ground and stayed there with him for seven days and seven nights, mourning as if he were already dead. All the while no one spoke a single word because they saw his profound agony and grief.

3 1-2 After all of this, Job opened his mouth and broke the silence. He spoke a curse, not upon God but upon his day of birth.

Job: 3 May the day die on which I was born, along with the night that spoke the words, "a boy is conceived."
4 May that day of birth become darkness,
and when it has disappeared,
may God above neither seek it out nor light find a way to shine on it.
5 Rather, let darkness and the shadow of death claim the day and its life-giving light.
Let storm clouds roll over it and threatening blackness terrorize it.
6 As to that night of my conception—
may it be snatched by the thick darkness of death's realm, Never to be released again for any year or any month—
so my conception and life could never have happened.
7 May that night prove infertile,
and may no moan of pleasure be heard there.
8 Bring out the enchanters, the diviners who cast their spells on the day—
who can awaken that beast, Leviathan—
9 And may the early-morning stars be extinguished.
Let the day wait for a light that won't ever come,
And may it never see the eyelids of dawn crack open.
10 Because it neither closed the door of my mother's womb
nor covered my eyes to these sorrows.

► Reflecting on his conception, Job wishes darkness and death could have prevailed over light and life on that day. The one place that represents such darkness and death is called sheol. Job and his contemporaries believe all people go to sheol when they die. The Bible describes it as the very opposite of the heavens, a land of no return that is dark, dusty, and silent. Certainly this is not the heaven or hell of the New Testament; it is neither a place of communion with God nor a place of torment. One's comfort after death is not determined by where he goes, but by whom he is with. The people of the Old Testament hope to "leave this world to sleep with their ancestors." Such a fate is the reward of following God's path in life.

Job: 11 Why did I not die at my birth, simply pass from the womb into death?
12 Why did my mother's lap welcome me,
and why did her breasts nourish me?
13 If I had died, then I would now be reposed in quiet;
I would be sleeping in peace,
14 Resting with kings and their earthly ministers who rebuilt ruined cities to glorify themselves, 15 With princes who possessed gold,
whose houses swelled with silver.
16 Why was I not buried in secret as a baby born still,
as a newborn who never saw light?
17 In the sleep of death, the wicked can do no more damage;
the weary ones at last find rest.

18 In death the captives are freed, together at ease,
and the shouts of their oppressors die along with them.
19 In the grave, together are the small and great,
and slaves from masters are emancipated.

20 Why is light awarded to those distressed,
and life given to embittered souls 21 Who long for a death that can't be found,
though they mine the earth to find it
More than hidden veins of riches—
22 Who would be overjoyed and glad when they find the grave?
23 Why is light wasted on the earthbound,
who cannot find their way and whom God has surrounded?
24 For I groan before every meal;
my moaning flows like water.
25 What I feared most descends on me;
my nightmare—now reality.
26 I have no peace; I have no quiet;
my resting, gone, has turned to riot.

4 Standing with Job and his other two friends in the trash heap, Eliphaz the Temanite tried to convince Job his suffering was temporary.

Eliphaz: 2 Could you bear it if someone were to speak?
Ah, but who can hold his tongue in such a situation?
3 Look back, and think on the many you have taught;
you have strengthened the weak hands of the suffering.
4 Your words propped up the tottering;
you have strengthened mourners' wobbly knees.
5 May my words help you in that way, now that trouble arrives and you despair.
It extends its hand, crushes you, and you are overwhelmed.
6 Isn't your fear of God true confidence and your unswerving commitment genuine hope?

7 Take pause; scan your memory:
Who ever died among the innocent?
And when have the righteous ever met with destruction?
8 The way I see it, those who pull the pernicious plow,
Who sow sorrow's seeds, reap the same at harvest.
9 By God's breath, they meet destruction;
when His anger explodes, they meet their end.
10 O the bluster of humanity!
The lion roars! The king of beasts thunders!
Still the young lions' teeth are shattered.
11 The old lion dies for lack of prey,
and the whole pride is scattered.

12 Now, listen: a secret word was delivered to me;
my ears caught hold of a whisper.
13 In the anxiety of a nightmare—
while deep sleep falls on humans—14 Fear took me by my right arm, terror by my left,
and they shook me, they did!—
made my bones rattle.
15 Then a wind blew through, a divine breath skimming my face.
Every hair on my body stood on end.
16 It came to a stop, but I couldn't make it out—
some form there before me, then a hushed voice breaking the silence:
17 "Can a mortal stand innocent before God?
Can a man or even a hero be pure before his Creator?"
18 If God is unsure of His own servants,
and in His holy attendants He finds fault, 19 How much more those whose bodies come from clay,
whose skeletons are dust, are crushed like a moth.
20 From morning to evening, their bodies are broken to pieces, ground back into dirt, unseen, gone forever.
21 When the cords of their tents are pulled up,
don't they die, none the wiser?

5 Eliphaz: As for you, Job, feel free to call, but will anyone reply?
Among His holy attendants, to whom will you turn?
2 Remember, anger kills off the foolish, and jealous indignation closes in on the simple for the kill.

3I have seen a fool putting down roots, apparently succeeding,
and immediately I cursed his house, knowing this brings
destruction.
4His children are far from safe,
crushed in full view of the city's gate
with no defender nearby.
5Hungry raiders consume his crops,
harvesting even where the thorns stand guard*
while drifters and con-men target
his wealth.
6You see, sorrow is not a natural product of the soil,
nor is trouble known to sprout up from the earth itself.
7Still humankind is born into trouble,
just as embers break loose and fly
from the fire.

8This is why, if I were you, I would appeal to God;
I would lay my cause at the feet of
the Lord.
9He does wonderful things that confound,
infinite numbers of miracles.
10He gives rain to the earth,
sends down water to the fields;
11He lifts up the downtrodden, bolsters
the bereaved,
raising them to safety.
12He thwarts the plots of the devious
and ties their hands to failure.
13He catches the clever in their deceitful plotting*
so the plans of the crafty are swept
away.
14Their day turns to darkness;
they grope at noon as they do in blackest night.
15He saves the needy from the cutting
sword,
and from the perilous grip of the powerful.
16So there is still hope for the helpless;
and the mouth of injustice is muzzled.

17Remember, a happy man accepts God's
correction,
so don't despise the discipline of the Highest God.*
18For the Lord may cut, but He stitches up;
He may wound, but His hands also
heal.
19In six different perils, He will rescue
you;
even in seven, evil will not touch
you;
20In famine, He will save you from starvation;
and in war, you won't be run
through with the sword;
21In slanderous situations, you will go unharmed;
in the face of chaotic destruction,
you won't tremble;
22In violence and famine, you will laugh;
in the presence of wild animals, you won't quiver.
23The stones of the field will sign a treaty
with you,
and you'll enjoy a truce with the ravenous beasts.
24You can rest knowing your tent is invincible;
for when you visit your pastures,
nothing will be missing.
25Your children and their children will be abundant,
as the blades of grass in the fields.
26You will arrive hearty and undiminished
at the grave after a long life, like a pile of grain harvested at its peak ripeness.
27We've all thought this through. It's true,
and you should hear it.
So hear it well, and know it completely.

► The first of Job's three wise friends, Eliphaz, is a man guided by strong convictions and a belief in the accumulated knowledge of his ancestors. Because he thinks Job is suffering due to his own unintended sins, Eliphaz dwells on God's responses to the wicked and the righteous, believing he will encourage Job to accept God's correction of his sins. Although his intentions are good, Eliphaz does not realize that Job will have a different perspective on his words. Eliphaz's intended encouragement instead upsets Job more. These powerful convictions are expressed in the wrong place and time.

* 5:5 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 5:13 1 Corinthians 3:19 * 5:17 Hebrew, Shaddai

6 Job answered Eliphaz.

Job: [2]Would that my anguish were weighed,
laid on a scale together with the disaster I've suffered!
[3]For there is not enough sand in the seas to outweigh it!
It's no wonder my untamed words
are but incoherent stammering.
[4]The arrows of the Highest One* have sunk deeply into me;
my spirit drinks their poison.
The terrors of God assemble like soldiers marching against me.
[5]Does a wild donkey bray in hunger in a field of fresh grass?
Does an ox low with pangs over plenty of feed?
[6]If I were served a tasteless mush, how could I eat it without at least
adding salt?
Or is there even any sense of taste in the slime of a plant?*
[7]I refuse to eat, and I gag at the thought of it.
This vile food sickens me.

[8]If only my one request were answered,
if only God would grant me the fulfillment of my only hope:
[9]That God would be willing to crush
me, to kill me,
that God would release His hand
and cut me off.
[10]At least then I would have a crumb of consolation,
one source of joy in the midst of this relentless agony:
I never denied the words of the Holy
One in my pain.

► It is possible to imagine God's creation as fabric on a loom and God as a weaver. The threads of the world are stretched out vertically on a large loom, creating the warp of the fabric; and God weaves the threads of our lives horizontally, pushing them back and forth quickly around the vertical threads with His shuttle, creating the weft of the fabric. Job pictures his life ending when the thread runs out (7:6), but here he asks God to release His guidance on Job's life and cut him away from this world prematurely. To do so, God would cut across the warp, thus affecting all of creation and not just Job himself. Even though God does not grant Job's wish, Job has no thought of suicide; he knows only God has the right to begin and end life.

Job: [11]What strength do I have, that I should persist in this life?
And what is my life's end, that I should forestall it?
[12]Is my strength like that of stones?
Is my flesh like bronze?
[13]Can I even hope to help myself, or has any chance of help been driven away?

[14]A despondent person deserves
kindness from his friend,
even though he strays from the fear of the Highest One.
[15]But you, my brothers, are unpredictable
like an unexpected flood of the wadi that quickly rises and then
falls, [16]That contain dark, muddy swirls of thawing ice
that swell in the melting snow, [17]But whose flow is stopped in the summer heat
and that vanish in their gullies
under the heat of the sun.
[18]The path of their course winds along,
goes out into the desert and disappears.
[19]You travelers have heard how the experienced caravans from Tema searched for water,
how the travelers of Sheba expected
to find it;
[20]But their confidence turned to frustration and shame;
for when they arrived, they found
no water, only disappointment.
[21]Now you, too, have come to nothing.
You see my terror and are afraid for yourselves.
[22]Have I ever asked you to give me
anything,
or from your means to offer a bribe
on my behalf?
[23]Have I ever asked you to rescue me
from my enemies' hands,
or to deliver me from the clutches
of powerful adversaries?

* 6:4 Hebrew, Shaddai * 6:6 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

24 In all seriousness, teach me, and I will be silent.
Where I have erred? Help me understand.
25 True, honest words are painful,
but what does your chiding confirm?
26 Was it your intent to correct me?
Did you imagine that, desperate as I was, my words were nothing but wind?
27 Yes, it seems you'd have no qualms about sending an orphan into slavery
or selling out a friend.
28 Now do me the favor of looking at me;
look me in my face; I will not lie to
your face.
29 Turn back; don't let any more harm be
done.
Turn back to me now; my *reputation
and* integrity are at stake.
30 Is there any wickedness, any poisonous word on my tongue?
Don't you think I can tell when I've tasted a ruinous lie?

7 Job: Don't we humans struggle long and hard in our time on earth?
Don't we live our lives as common laborers?
2 As slaves longing for shade,
as workers pining for wages,
3 So I am destined to receive only months
of meaninglessness,
and nights of nothing but misery.
4 When I lie down at the end of day, I wonder,
"How soon till morning so I can arise?"
But the night stretches on,
and I toss and turn until sunrise.
5 My putrid skin is covered with maggots
and a dirty crust.
It hardens and cracks and oozes
again.
6 My days whisk by swifter than the shuttle in a weaver's loom—back and forth, and back and forth—
and then they come to their hopeless end.
7 My life, remember, is just a breath;
in death no more good will reach
my eye.
8 Whoever sees me now, will not for long;
you'll look for me, but I'll be gone.
9 As clouds thin and finally vanish,
so it is when people enter the land of the dead.
Never will they come back up.
10 Never will they return to their homes or will the place they lived recognize them anymore.

11 Like Eliphaz, I will not keep silent.
In the agony of my spirit, I will speak;
In the bitterness of my soul, I will complain.
12 Am I the raging sea, or the monster of
the deep,
so threatening you must appoint a guard over me?
13 When I think my couch will comfort me
or my bed will soften my complaint, 14 You, Lord, intimidate me with dreams
and terrorize me with visions.
15 I'd rather be suffocated, even dead, than live in these aching bones of mine.

► Job compares his treatment to God's defeat of two mythic enemies of creation: Yam and Tannin. Ancient Near Eastern legends say that before God created the world, the "formless void" that existed was called "the deep." When God separated the heavens from the earth, He divided the formless void with the horizon, leaving the waters of the earth below (the oceans) and the waters of the heavens above (the blue skies and clouds). Yam the sea god and Tannin the sea monster tried to interfere in this separation. God of course defeated them, imprisoning them in the sea with sandbars. Job's reference to this myth shows he believes God is treating him unfairly, punishing him as brutally as He did these subhuman, rebellious creatures. Job, on the other hand, has not been rebellious to God.

Job: 16 I hate my life. I have no desire to keep on living.
Leave me alone, God, for I have only a short time left.
17 What are these human beings, that You make so much of them—that You shower them with attention?

18You examine them morning by
morning;
You test them moment by moment.
19How long will You stare at me?
I can't even clear my throat of spit without an audience.
20I have sinned. What have I done to You,
You who watch after humanity?
Why have You targeted me, a man whose life is just a breath?
Am I really such a heavy load for
You?
21*So I've sinned inadvertently: can't You* pardon me?
Are my crimes such You can't forgive my sins?
After all, I will lie in the dust, and it won't be long until You will look for me, but I'll be gone.

8 Then the second of Job's three friends, Bildad the Shuhite, addressed Job.

Bildad: 2How long will you say these things,
your words whipping through air
like a powerful wind?
3Does God corrupt justice,
or does the Highest One* corrupt
the good?
4If your children sinned against Him,
He merely administered the punishment due them for those sins.
5But if you search for God
and make your appeal to the Highest One,
6If you are pure and righteous,
I have no doubt He will arise for you and restore you to your righteous place.
7From your modest beginnings,
the future will be bright before you.

8Ask those who have come and gone!
Explore what their fathers learned and taught them.
9For we are not of ages past, nor even of years gone by.
We are ignorant creatures of yesterday,
and our time on earth is only a shadow.
10*But the ancients are not similarly bound,*
are they?
Won't they speak to and instruct
you?
Won't they draw up words from deep within?

11Can papyrus grow tall without a marsh?
Can reeds flourish without water?
12Even if they are hardy and unbroken,
without water they will dry up before any other plant.
13So it goes with any who forget God.
The hope of the godless soon
withers and dies.
14His confidence breaks,
for he trusts in the tenuous threads
of a spider's web.*
15When he leans into his house of silken
threads for support,
it won't hold;
Though his arms grab to steady him,
it will break—he will fall and never get back up.
16*Still* the godless appears to be a hardy
plant,
thriving in full sun, sending his shoots across the garden.
17The roots twine and grip the stone heap
and search for a home among the rocks.
18If he is pulled up, the place will disown
him saying,
"I have never seen you." 19See, his sole joy consists of this:*
knowing that others will spring
from the earth to take his place.
20Do you see it? God will not reject the
innocent;
He will not reject you or support
agents of evil.
21He will fill your mouth with laughter;
your lips will spill over into cries of delight.
22Those who hate you will don the garment of shame,
and the home of the wicked will disappear.

► Much like Eliphaz, Bildad believes people suffer as a result of their own sins. But his justification of that suffering is different. Bildad reasons that God is just; as God, He is justice personified. Because He is so perfectly just, God will not punish someone who is also just. Bildad's logical but flawed

* 8:3 Hebrew, Shaddai * 8:14 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 8:19 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

conclusion is that Job must have sinned to deserve his current pain. Surprisingly, he manages to be even less effective than Eliphaz had been, alienating Job by reasoning that Job's children must have sinned to deserve their deaths and implying that Job's regular sacrifices on their behalf were not enough to save them.

9 Then Job spoke to them.

Job: 2Sure, I know all of this is correct,
but tell me this: how can a person set things straight with God?
3If one wanted to argue with Him,
even in a thousand questions he would not be able to answer Him once.
4His wise heart is vast; His strength immeasurable.
Who has ever challenged Him and remained safe and at peace?
5He uproots mountains,
and they are unaware when He overturns them in His rage.
6He shakes the earth out of its place
so that its foundation pillars shudder.
7He commands the sun to go down and not rise,
and He sequesters the stars so they do not shine.
8He single-handedly stretched out the heavens overhead
and walks on the back of the raging sea.
9He fashioned the stars into constellations we know by name—
Bear, Orion, the Pleiades—
and the lights of the southern sky.
10He does wonderful things, even confounding things,
and performs an infinite number of miracles.
11*Still,* if He passes right by me, I don't see Him;
if He brushes past, I don't notice Him.
12*Ah,* but if He were to steal like a thief in the market,
who could stop Him? No one has authority over Him.
Who could dare say to Him, "What are You doing?"
13God does not restrain Himself in His anger.
Even the minions of Rahab—that monster of the sea and purveyor of chaos—
cower at His feet in subservience.
14So then how do I argue with Him?
How can I find the right words to state my case to Him?
15*After all,* I am the innocent one here,
and I still can't find an answer.
So I must continually appeal to the mercy of my judge.
16*But even* if I were to call Him and He were to answer,
I still could not believe that He would listen to my complaint.
17For He flattens me with a tornado
and multiplies my wounds for no reason.
18He won't even give me time to catch my breath;
instead He force-feeds me more bitterness.
19If it is an issue of power, there is no question
He is the mighty one;
and if it is an issue of justice, who would ever appoint me?
20Even though I am right in all of this, my own mouth sentences me.
Though I am blameless, my own lips cheat me.
21I am blameless, but I don't know myself.
I hate my life.
22Well, then this is what I say: it's all the same.
In the end, He kills off both the innocent and the depraved.
23If a flood of disaster rushes in and kills,
He ridicules the anguish of its innocent victims.
24The earth has been given over and is under the dominion of some wicked hand.
God conceals these things from its judges, covering their faces, blinding their eyes.
If not He, then who is it?

25*As for me,* my days are sprinting by like a runner.
Seeing nothing good, they seek escape.
26They glide past in swift silence like reed boats on the river.
Now a blur, they dive like an eagle toward its prey.

27 If I tell myself, "I will forget all about my grievance against God,
I will simply abandon my long face
and cheer up,"
28 Then I fear the suffering to come because I know there's no chance that You, Lord, will find me
innocent.
29 So if the verdict is already in, if I have already been found guilty,
why should I bother to clear my
name?
Why struggle in vain?
30 Though I wash my body in the pure melted snow
and scrub my hands thoroughly
with the strongest soap, 31 You would toss me into a putrid pit,
and when I emerged, even my own clothes would hate me.
32 The Lord . . . He is no man, like me,
whom I could answer,
no human being whom I could face
in court.
33 There is no judge to stand between us who can lay his hands on us both, 34 Who can remove God's rod from my back
and stave off the terror of Him that haunts me.
35 I long to speak and defend myself
without fear of Him and His reprisals;
but as things stand now and as I am within myself, that's not possible.

10 Job: I hate my life, so I will unload the full weight of my grievance against God.
Let me speak and reveal the bitterness I am harboring.
2 I will say to God: Don't find me guilty;
just explain the charges You have
against me.
3 Does it please You to oppress, and is this why You spurn me, the work of Your hands,
and yet Your smile shines down
upon the plots of the wicked?
4 Do You have human eyes so that Your outlook is short?
Do You see as through human frailties?
5 Are Your days like mortals' limited
days?
Are Your years like mortals' limited
years?
6 Is this why You seek out my faults
or You go in search of all my error?
7 You know well that I am not guilty, yet nothing can free me from Your overwhelming power.

8 Your hands formed and made me
whole,
yet now You turn to crush.
9 Recall how You molded me like clay.
Will You now render me back to dust?
10 Didn't You pour me out like milk and curdle me like cheese?
11 Didn't You clothe me in skin and flesh, weave my bone and sinew
together?
12 Your care has saved my spirit,
and You have given me life and loyalty;
13 Yet I know what is in You,
what Your heart has always hidden.
14 If I sin, You see it, watching ever so closely,
and You do not acquit me of my
guilt.
15 If I am wicked, woe is me;
even if I am innocent, I cannot take a chance and lift my head
Because I'm gorged with disgrace.
Gaze on my misery!
16 If I do raise my head,
then like a lion, You hunt me;
Like a night sky turned threatening,
You unfold Your power against me
so that others marvel;
17 Like a prosecutor, You drag in witnesses
against me;
You escalate Your fury against me, coming in waves to pound
on me.

18 So then, why did You bother to drag me out of the womb at all?
I should have just died before any eye could see me.
19 It should have been as though I had never been:
plucked from the womb, carried to the tomb.
20 Aren't my days almost finished
anyway?
Stand back, leave me alone, and let me have a scrap of comfort 21 Before I go to the place from which I won't return,
to the land of utter darkness and
still shadows,
22 The land of deep, unending night,
of blackness and shadowy chaos
where the only illumination is more
darkness.

11 Finally, Job's third friend, Zophar the Naamathite, spoke to Job.

Zophar: [2]Shall such a great volume of words remain unanswered
and a long-winded man be so easily acquitted?
[3]Shall your empty prattle silence people,
and when you mock, shall no one
shame you?
[4]You've told us, "I have a clear understanding of things,
and I am innocent in Your eyes,
O Lord."
[5]Ah, but I wish God would speak,
that He would address you openly,
so I will argue for Him.
[6]I wish He would show you the secrets of great wisdom—
for the two sides of sound wisdom are both found in His mercy and
justice.
Know this: God forgets some of your
guilt.

[7]Can you see to the unseen side of God,
or explore the limits of the Highest One's* knowledge?
[8]Higher than the heavens—what can you do to reach it?
Deeper than the realm of the dead—what can you know of it?
[9]Its farthest reaches exceed the ends of
the earth;
its breadth spans far beyond the
sea.
[10]If He passes by, as is His routine, and throws you into prison,
and calls you to testify about what you've done, who can challenge
Him?
[11]He recognizes worthless people
without integrity,
so do you really think when He sees wrongdoing He doesn't examine it?
[12]As they say, "The empty-headed will become clever
in the day the colt of a wild donkey is born human!"

[13]If you will focus your intentions in His direction
and open your hands and reach for
Him,
[14]Where you have guilt on your hands,
if you will send it far away and not tolerate sin in your tents, [15]Then you will lift up a face clean of all stains;
you will hold your head high, secure,
and free of fear.
[16]You will forget all of these troubles of yours;
they will pass beneath your memory like a drop of water that has just flowed away.
[17]Life will become brighter than high noon;
darkness will give way to morning.
[18]Once again, you'll trust in the presence of hope;
you'll scan the horizon and sleep safely.
[19]You will lie down, and no one will terrorize you,
and many will long to be in your good graces.
[20]But the eyes of the wicked will grow
dark as they lose hope;
they'll find no escape, and in despair,
they'll long only to breathe their last dying breath.

* 11:7 Hebrew, Shaddai

► Throughout the book, Job has very little to cling to besides a hope for the end of his current suffering. Each of his three friends expounds on hope, drawing three similar but increasingly brutal conclusions. Eliphaz realizes Job is basically a righteous man, so he encourages Job to take hope in the person he already is; somehow his own righteousness will manage to save him. Bildad adds to Eliphaz's conclusion, claiming that wicked men cannot hope; they are left with only despair. Zophar, the most unabashedly honest of the three men, believes hope exists only for the righteous; and since Job is obviously a sinful man, he is hopeless until he changes. Fortunately, all three "wise" men are ultimately wrong. Hope is a product of trusting God and is not based on anyone's actions, wicked or otherwise.

12 In responding to his friends' collective accusation of his guilt, Job finally spoke.

Job (sarcastically to his friends): 2Surely, surely, my discerning friends, you are the ones!
And when you pass away, the sum total of all wisdom will perish
from the earth.

3I have a mind as good as yours.
Don't think I am so far beneath you!
After all, who doesn't know all about these things?
Who isn't acquainted with the pedestrian platitudes you've trotted out?
4*As for me*—the one who called upon God and whom God answered—now, I am pitiful, laughable, a just and upright joke.
5Those who have it easy may easily
scorn the unfortunate;
they have their contempt already prepared for those whose feet slip.
6*Ironically,* there is peace inside the tents of the raiders,
and those who upset God seem to live safe and secure;
They carry their gods around in their hands.

7However, call on the animals to teach
you;
the birds that sail through the air
are not afraid to tell you the
truth.
8Engage the earth in conversation; it's happy to share what it knows.
Even the fish of the sea are wise
enough to explain it to you.
9In fact, which part of creation isn't aware,
which doesn't know the Eternal's hand has done this?
10His hand cradles the life of every creature on the face of the earth;
His breath fills the nostrils of humans everywhere.

11*Listen!* Aren't we made to be discriminating:
our ears testing wisdom, our mouths tasting food?

Shouldn't wisdom come with old age? Not necessarily. Only God has wisdom; we merely fool ourselves into thinking we are wise.

12*But you tell me,* "With age comes
wisdom,
and a long life grants understanding." 13With God is the sum total of all wisdom
and of all power;
His is the greatest of plans and the deepest of comprehensions.
14*So, then,* what God tears down cannot be built back up;
the man He shuts up cannot be released.
15If God withholds the rains and stops the streams from flowing, the earth
suffers drought;
if He unleashes too much, the lands
are ravaged by flood.
16He is strong, and sound wisdom belongs to Him:
whether one deceives or is deceived, he is under God's control.
17He leads the counselors off as captives,
barefoot and stripped;
He makes a mockery of judges.
18He strips off the royal sashes of
kings
and ties them at the waist, making them slaves as well.
19He leads the priests away barefoot and defeats the long-incumbent men of power.
20He robs trusted advisors of speech;
He steals discretion from elders.
21He heaps contempt on rulers,
and loosens the bind of alliances
among world powers.
22Aspects of His deep wisdom that were hidden away,
He shows in plain sight;
darkness is brought into the light.
23He builds the strength of nations, only to crush them—
increases their population across the earth, only to scatter them
again.
24He divests each nation's leaders of
understanding,
and causes them to wander aimlessly with nowhere
to go,
25*Until finally* they grope in the dark, the light having departed,
and He lets them stumble and stagger like drunks.

13 Job: Look. I've seen it all with my eyes,
heard and understood it
with my ears.
2What you know, I know, too;
don't think I am so far beneath
you!

3*Let our differences be clear;* I am ready to speak to the Highest One,*
eagerly wanting to argue my case
with God.
4But you! You smear me with lies as if
to help,
but as healers you are worthless.
5Would that you were totally silent.
At least that would make you seem
wise.
6Please, just listen while I reason this out;
lean in to hear how my lips will
plead.
7Will you try to defend God's cause by telling lies?
Be deceitful on His behalf?
8Will you show partiality for Him?
Argue on His behalf?
9How would you fare
if He searched your soul?
Do you think you might deceive Him
as you would any other person?
10*No.* He would bring charges against you even if you secretly show partiality.
11Aren't you horrified at the weight of His majesty?
Isn't the dread of Him enough to drop you where you stand?
12All your quoted proverbs turn to ash;
your clever comebacks crumble like
brittle towers of clay.

Job will take his chances before God. He still trusts Him, even if God chooses to take his life.

13So keep your mouths shut around me,
and let me speak to God.
And whatever may come, let it
come.
14Why should I lay my body at the mercy of the words of my own mouth or risk my life with only my own hands to defend me?
15Look, He may well kill me,
but I will hope in Him.
Still I will be ready to argue my case
before His very face.
16In fact, this will become my salvation,
for the godless wouldn't even dare
to approach Him.
17So then here is my account. Listen carefully!
Give me a chance to share my side
of the story with you.
18My case is prepared, and I am confident
I will be found righteous.
19*And yet* who will meet me in court to argue the other side?
If I am out-argued, then I will stay mute until I die.

20*Lord,* I ask only two concessions in this case;
if You grant them, I will not hide
from Your face.
21*First,* remove Your damaging hand
from me;
second don't intimidate me anymore with your terrifying
presence.
22Then send me Your summons, and I will reply,
or better yet, I will speak first and then You answer me.
23How many counts do You have against me?
How many sins must I account for?
Spell out the nature of Your indictment against my rebellious
ways.
24Why do You hide Your face from me;
why is my name now "nemesis"*
to You?
25Would You waste Your energy to terrify
a windblown leaf,
or chase down the dry chaff as it
tumbles in the breeze?
26For I see bitter accusations against me
written in Your own hand;
You call me to account for the guilt
of my youth.
27You fasten shackles at my ankles but still keep close watch on where I walk,
marking the places where my feet
may plant themselves.
28This is how a person wastes away to
nothing,
like something rotten, like moth-eaten clothing.

14 Job: Humankind, born of woman,
has a few brief years with much suffering.
2Like a short-lived bloom,
he springs up only to wither;
like the brief shade gained by a fast-
moving cloud,
he passes swiftly.
3*Lord,* is this why You turn Your gaze on such a creature:
to bring me,* a mere human being,
alongside You for judgment?

* 13:3 Hebrew, Shaddai * 13:24 A wordplay in Hebrew between "Job" and "enemy," so "name" and "nemesis" in English.
* 14:3 Other manuscripts read, "him."

4Who can take what is impure and defiled
to fashion something pure and pristine?
No one! We are, after all, so different in nature.
5Since a person's life is fixed,
and You are the One who determines the number of his months,
And You set a limit on the length of her life,
and since they are incapable of exceeding Your decree, 6*The least You can do is* turn Your gaze away from him until they pass,
so that he can enjoy his day like a hired worker.

7*You know,* at least there is a kind of hope for a tree:
if it gets cut down, it may yet sprout again out of the roots.
And very likely then, its tender shoots will not die.
8Its roots may age deep under the ground,
and the stump appear dead in the dry earth, 9But even then it needs only the merest whiff of water to bud again and put forth shoots like a newly planted sapling.
10But not so with humankind.
The noblest of human beings dies and lies flat.
Humans die, and where do they go?
11Just as water evaporates from the sea,
And riverbeds go parched and dry,
12so humankind lies down and does not rise again.
Until the day when the skies are done away with,
humankind will neither awaken nor rouse from slumber.

13O that You would merely hide me in the land of the dead and keep me in secret till Your wrath is gone,
until a time You decide when You might think upon me.
14If one dies, can he live again?
Through these days of toil and struggle,
I will patiently wait until my situation changes.
15You will call out, and I will answer You then;
and You will long for me,
the work of Your hands, again.
16For then You would still count each of my steps
but not focus on my faults.
17My sins would be sealed up as in a bag,
and my crimes You would carefully cover up.

18And yet while every crack in me is closely watched,
the mountain will slide and erode as the avalanche steals its cliffs away.
19The water grinds at the surface of stones,
and the floodwater* steals the soil away.
This is how You wreck the hope of humankind.
20You continually overwhelm him, and he dies;
You alter his appearance and send him away.
21If his children rise to honor, he does not know of it;
if they sink to humiliation, he is unaware of it.
22He knows only this:
His body feels agony and his soul grieves.

15 Eliphaz reiterated his points.

Eliphaz: 2Does a wise man reply with windy knowledge and fill up his belly with the hot east wind?
3Does a wise man reason with impotent chatter,
with bankrupt words of no account?
4Indeed, Job, you have ignored your responsibility to revere God
and depreciated your own thoughts toward God; 5For your faults inform your speech,
and your language is tricky.
6Your own mouth condemns you, not I;
your own lips volunteer as witnesses against you.

7Were you the firstborn among men?
Were you introduced to the earth before the hills were conceived?
8Were you allowed to listen in on the deliberations in God's assembly?

* 14:19 Hebrew manuscripts read, "her aftergrowth."

Do you imagine all knowledge to be confined to you and you only?
9What do you know that we don't know?
Do you have an understanding that has somehow eluded us?
10We have gray hairs and elders among us weighed down with years, heavier than your father.
11Do you find God's many comforts too meager
and His gentle speech to you too mild?
12What has stripped you of your reason, carried away your heart?
Why do your eyes flash with anger—
13*So much so* that you unleash your spirit and spray out such speeches against God?

14What is humankind, that people would be considered pure?
And among those born of women, who could possibly be innocent?
15Look, if God refuses to trust even His holy attendants,
if even the heavens above are impure in His eyes, 16Then how much less regard must He show for humankind, who is base and corrupt, or for Adam's children who drink sin like water.

► Genesis 6:1-4 tells the strange story of God's own heavenly messengers procreating with beautiful human women. Such a union was obviously forbidden, possibly because it endowed the children with eternal life, based on God's response to the situation—limiting the lifespan of humans to 120 years. As Job has revealed, these heavenly messengers are with God all the time. They do His bidding. No one could possibly know His rules better than they do or have more motivation to follow them, yet they still chose to disobey God. Eliphaz's point is clear: no human could possibly claim to be above the temptation to sin when God's heavenly envoys are not.

Eliphaz: 17I will tell it like it is, so listen.
I'll recount what I have seen:
18The very things that knowledgeable men have declared and which they do not hide that they heard from their fathers 19To whom the land was granted long ago when no foreigners were among them.
20The wicked man endures misery his whole life long;
and many years of sorrow are stored up for the ruthless.
21His ears are assailed by the sounds of terror;
but when he is finally at peace, the destroyer seizes him.
22Unsure that he will ever escape darkness,
he lives ever-conscious of the sword.
23He wanders aimlessly in search of food.
"Where is it?" he asks.*
He knows all the while that the great day of darkness is imminent.
24He is addled by strain and anxiety, terrified;
he will be overwhelmed as if by a king about to descend upon his enemy in war.
25For he raises his fist to God and acts arrogantly like a hero against the Highest One.*
26He runs at Him, headlong, headstrong, and leads his charge behind the thick protection of a massive shield.
27*Strong and healthy, he has nourished himself well and prospered* until his face and his thighs are pleasantly fat.
28He lodges in evacuated towns in empty houses unfit for habitation,
in buildings condemned to rubble and ruin.
29He will never be rich; his wealth will not last,
nor will he have possessions enough for any to put down roots.
30He will not manage to escape from darkness,
as it scorches like tender branches that wilt in the flame;

* 15:23 Greek manuscripts read, "He is thrown out like food for vultures." * 15:25 Hebrew, Shaddai

He will blow away like the breath of his mouth.
31 Don't let him fool himself;
if he trusts in the emptiness of his vanity,
emptiness will be his reward.
32 Before his time is up, it will all be finished and the branches of his trees will never leaf out.
33 He will be like the vine that drops its immature grapes,
the olive tree that sheds its own blossoms.
34 O the gathering of the godless is unfruitful, and fire consumes the tents of those who pervert justice by giving bribes.
35 Their intercourse yields only the conception of misconduct,
the birth of sinfulness,
and their wombs carry only lies to term.

16 Then Job reiterated his innocence.

Job: 2 All the things from you sound the same.
You are all terrible as comforters!
3 Have we reached the end of your windy words, or are you sick with something that compels you to argue with me?
4 If we were to trade places,
I could rattle on as you do.
I could compose eloquent speeches as you do
and shake my head smugly at you and your problems.
5 But I believe I would use my words to encourage you;
my lips would move only to offer you relief.

6 And yet, I am not you, you are not me, and my words are of no real use:
When I speak, my pain is not relieved;
if I remain silent, it does not go away.
7 God has drained me utterly;
He has made those near to me desolate—killed my family and my servants.
8 You have shriveled me up;
my withered form stands as a witness against me;
my body, haggard and thin, testifies to my face.
9 In anger He hunts me down and tears at me;
in rancor His teeth grind on my flesh;
His eyes are locked on me as a foe,
eager to destroy still more of me.
10 My foes taunt me, their mouths gape in derision,
they slap my cheek in disgust, and they conspire against me.
11 God has forsaken me to young thugs and flung me into the hands of evildoers who lie in wait for me.
12 I was living a good life—a quiet, peaceful life—
when He began to beat on me;
He throttled my neck, tore me apart,
and then propped me up at the far end of the field, making me a target.
13 His archers have now gathered around me.
In cold blood He splits my belly open and spills my bile on the earth.
14 He charged like a soldier storming a stronghold
until my walls were breached, broken down, one after another.

► Job in his despair and frustration responds as he and his friends have been taught by previous generations to display grief: by donning sackcloth and covering the head with dust to show devastation, as if everything has been lost even to the point of death.

Job: 15 Well, I have sewed the sackcloth to my very skin and buried my mighty forehead in the dirt.
16 My face, red and hot, boils over in tears;
the shadow of darkness lies heavy on my eyelids, 17 No matter that my hands are free of violence,
and my prayer is pure.

18 O earth, do not conceal my blood!
And when they seek to silence my cry, refuse a place for its burial.
19 Look! Even at this very moment, my witness is there, in heaven;
my advocate is seated on high.

20My only friends scoff at me; they persist
in mocking me;
even now my eyes well up in tears
to God, 21Appealing to God as a mere man,
as a human being might for the sake of his friend.
22Only a few years left now,
and I will go down the path from which I cannot return.

17 Job: My spirit has collapsed;
my days have been blotted
out;
the grave is prepared for me.
2There are mockers all around me;
my eyes are fixed on their unwarranted opposition of me.
3Show me a sign! Vouch for me, God!
Who is there to give me his hand,
guaranteeing his pledge?
4*I think no one is there because* You have closed up their minds,
made them unable to see or
understand;
so You will honor none of them.
5*You have heard,* "Whoever denounces his friends for land
will watch his children go blind."

6But God has turned me into a swear
word for everyone;
*I have become a symbol of human
darkness;*
I am the face on whom one spits.
7*All* my afflictions cloud my vision;
the members of my body are wasting away;
I am a mere shadow of what it once was.
8Those of moral fiber are appalled at this;
innocent men grow indignant at
the wicked.
9Even still, the righteous embrace their way of life;
those with clean hands go from strong to stronger.
10*By contrast, I look to you, my friends,
and I say,*
"Come ahead, all of you; try your words once more."
I still won't expect to find a wise man
among you.
11*Even now* my days have passed me by;
My plans lie broken at my feet;
the secret wishes of my heart grow cold.
12*And yet* my friends say, this loss of hope is for good,
turning my dark night into what appears to them as day.
In the pitch darkness, *these broken
plans and secret wishes speak
to me.*
They say, "There is light nearby."
13If I hope only to live in the land of the dead,
if I prepare for myself a bed in the
darkness,
14If I speak to my burial pit, calling it
"Father,"
and to the worms in the earth,
calling them "Mother" and "Sister,"
15Then where will I find my hope?
And who will see it?
16Will hope go with me to the place of
death?
Will hope accompany me into the ground?

18 Bildad the Shuhite encouraged Job to righteousness.

Bildad: 2How long will you keep up the hunt for words?
Show some sense, and then we can actually converse.
3Why is it we are like cattle to you,
dumb animals in your eyes?
4*You speak of how God "tears at you,"* you!
You tear at yourself in your rage.
Oh, how self-centered you are!
Ought the earth be emptied of its inhabitants for your sake?
Ought the rocks roll away for your convenience?

5*Remember,* the flame of the wicked is extinguished.
His fire no longer lends light *to
anything.*
6His tent-lamp goes dark;
his bedside lamp flickers and dies.
7His long strides falter, as his own plans
take him down.
8His then-weakened feet lead him
to a net,
And wander into its waiting mesh.
9A snare clamps around his heel;
he feels it dig into him.
10*This trap was set for him beforehand:*
a snare is hidden on the ground;
a net is overhead along the path.
11Terrors press in on every side
and badger his every step.
12His deepest fears stalk him as he staggers, craving him,
and awaiting his imminent collapse.

13 Bit by bit, disease eats at his skin;
bit by bit, the firstborn of death
gnashes at his limbs.
14 He is torn violently from the safety of his tent
and forced to march before the king of terrors.

► Bildad sees the realm of death not just as a place of rest and waiting, but as a growing society ruled by a king. Sheol always has room for more citizens and always wants more. Like an infant, this place—this firstborn of death—has a voracious appetite for the wicked. And the infant's father, the king of terrors, has many ways to provide for his child. His terrors are not nightmares or phobias or any other psychological device. Instead, he rules over disaster, disease, and famine—anything that brings death. Through his vibrant imagery, Bildad explains that death is the ultimate fate of the wicked; he implies that Job cannot be evil because the terrors he has faced have not yet killed him.

Bildad: 15 Nothing of his remains in his tent, and burning sulfur has been scattered on it so no one will dwell there again.
16 Death comes from both directions:
from below, his roots dry out;
from above, his branches wither.
17 On the earth, he disappears from memory;
on the outside, no one recalls his name.
18 He is pushed out of the light into darkness
and chased from the inhabited world altogether.
19 He has no children, no descendants among his people;
no one survives him or escapes from his homeland.
20 His fate is unanimously viewed:
with dismay in the West,
with horror in the East.
21 Surely this is the way it goes with all evil people;
surely this is the lot in life for those who do not know God.

19

Job answered his friends in frustration.

Job: 2 O how long! How long will you torture me and pound me with your chatter?
3 What is it now? Eight times? Nine times?
No, surely it's ten times you have insulted me.
Ten times you've shamelessly acted to harm me.
4 Even if I have erred, my faults lie with me alone.
5 However, if you must exalt yourselves at my expense,
if you must proffer my own disgrace as evidence against me,
6 Then you ought at least to know that I have been wronged by God.
Yes, His net is closed about me.

7 Look! I cry out, "Violence!" but no response comes.
I shout for help, but justice eludes me.
8 He is a roadblock. He will not let me pass;
He has covered my roads in darkness.
9 He has stripped me of my honor, torn the crown off my head.
10 He comes at me from all sides, but I attempt to leave;
He rips out my hope as if it were a tree in dry ground.
11 His anger burns white-hot against me,
and He considers me His enemy.
12 His militia arrives to raise a siege ramp against me
and to surround my dwelling.

13 He has driven my relatives far from me;
I am cut off from my friends.
14 My entire family has failed me;
my best friends have forgotten me.
15 Everyone in my house, including my maidservants,
treats me like an outsider;
I am a stranger to them now.
16 When I send for my servant, he does not come.
I even plead with him with my own voice.
17 My breath is strange; even my wife avoids me;
I'm loathsome to my relatives; they can't stand to be around me.
18 Even young children taunt me,
and when I seek to rise, they mock me.

19My closest friends can no longer bear me,
and anyone I have ever loved has turned against me.
20I am reduced to skin and bones;
I have barely escaped by the skin of my teeth.
21Show me your pity, my friends, show
me your pity!
For truly, I have been struck by the hand of God.
22Why do you pursue me as God has
done?
Is my emaciated body not satisfying enough for you?

23What I would give to have my words
taken down,
to have them inscribed for posterity
on a scroll.
24*No! More than that!*
To have them chiseled with iron filled with lead—
carved in stone for all eternity.
25Besides, I know my Redeemer lives,
and in the end He will rise and take
His stand on the earth.
26And though my skin has been stripped off,
still, in my flesh, I will see God.
27I, myself, will see Him:
not some stranger, but actually me,
with these eyes.
Toward this end, my deepest longings pine away within my chest.

► Literally, a redeemer "buys back" something that was taken away. In the Old Testament, kinsmen-redeemers are men who buy their relatives out of slavery, buy family property back from creditors, or marry their brothers' widows to save the women from destitution. What is it that Job needs returned to him? Acknowledgment of his innocence and a renewed life. Because all of his family and friends have abandoned him, Job is trusting in his plea to God. As he did in chapter 16, Job is personifying his words and hoping in the redemptive power of his own argument.

Many millennia later, Christians do not have to trust in their own actions or persuasive reasoning to save their lives. Jesus redeemed all when He died on the cross—trading Himself to buy back our lives. He is the ultimate Redeemer.

Job: 28If you ask, "How will we pursue him since the root cause of his suffering lies in him?"
29You ought to fear the sword yourselves;
for the sword bears fury's
punishment
in order that you might realize
there is, in fact, a judgment.

20 Zophar the Naamathite reiterated his concern for Job.

Zophar: 2My anguished thoughts force me to respond
because I feel an urgency within myself.
3I caught wind of your words that dishonor me,
but I am prompted to answer based on my own spirit and
understanding.
4Don't you know how it has always been?
Since humankind was first put here
on the earth,
5The celebrations of the wicked have been brief,
and the joy of the profane lasts only
a moment.
6Even if he were tall enough to reach into the heavens
and his head were to reach to the clouds,
7He would still perish forever, like his own excrement;
those who once looked upon him
would wonder,
"Where has he gone?"
8Like a dream, he flies off where no one can find him;
he is chased away *only to vanish
into the air* like a vision of the night.
9The eyes that saw him before see him
no more;
his home doesn't ever welcome him
again.
10His children beg at the door of the poor;
his hands render his wealth back
to them.
11The vigor of youth had a home, a residence in his bones,
but it lies down in the dust with him.

12Though his wrongdoing is sweet in his mouth,
though he hides it under his tongue, 13Though he holds it close and will not let it go
(but must keep it in his mouth), 14His food will be transformed within
him
into the bitter venom of the asp.
15The wealth he has swallowed will be poison.
He will vomit it up—God will cast
it out.
16*It is as they say,* "He sucks the venom
of asps
and is slain by the tongue of the viper."
17Never again will he gaze at the brook's edge
or see streams that flow with milk
and honey—18*The food* for which he worked he vomits up or cannot swallow,
and the gains of his trading, he can never enjoy.
19After all, he's an oppressor;
he's crushed and forsaken the poor;
he made his home in a house he stole from another,
a house he did not build himself.

20Because he's never known inner peace,
he has seized everything he's ever craved.
21Because he consumed all he could see,
nothing is left;
his prosperity cannot last.
22When he is fat with satisfaction,
the belt of distress will tighten around him
and the hands of the downtrodden
will rise up against him.
23When he has filled up his belly,
God will visit him with His ferocious anger;
it will rain down on him while he is eating.
24Let him attempt to escape the iron weapon.
Instead, a bow of bronze will send
death to tear into him.
25When the arrow is drawn it comes out of his back,
and the shining arrowhead comes out of his organ,
bringing terror upon him.
26A great darkness waits for and stalks
everything he values.
A mysterious fire—unstoked yet
burning hot—will consume him and devour everything and everyone
left behind in his tent.
27The skies will tell on him, exposing his wrongdoing;
the earth will rebel against him.
28All that he labored to build will be carried off,
washed away in the day of God's furious anger.
29This is how it will be for the wicked of humanity before God;
this is the inheritance God
bequeaths them.

21 Then Job answered Zophar.

Job: 2Listen carefully to what I'm about to say,
and let your listening be the consolation you give me.
3Suffer me to speak to you,
and after I've said what I need to
say,
you may commence mocking.
4Is my complaint addressed to humanity, or has it ever been?
Why shouldn't I, by this point, be impatient with all of this?
5Stay with me, and be stunned at what has happened to such a righteous
person;
cover your gaping mouth with your
hand.
6When I think back upon everything that has gone before, I'm terrified;
my body is overtaken with trembling.
7Why do the wicked live
on an ever-upward path to long life
and riches?
8Their children become well-established
in front of them;
their offspring are guaranteed to grow up before their very eyes.
9Their houses are immune to approaching terrors;
the rod of God is not on their backs
punishing them.
10Their bulls are consistent breeders;
their cows deliver healthy calves
without miscarrying.
11They produce flocks of children and send them all out into the
world;
their young ones dance around free
of care.
12They still participate in celebration,
raising their voices to the song of the tambourine and the harp;
delighting in the sound of the flute.

Throughout the Bible, God is called by many names. One of the most frequent in the Old Testament, Shaddai, was a favorite name of God for patriarchs such as Abraham and Moses. Based on the etymology of the name, many suggest Abraham brought that epithet with him from Mesopotamia, so it is logical that Job (another patriarch from outside of Israel) could often refer to Him the same way.

El Shaddai, which translates to "God of my mountain" or possibly "God of might," aptly describes many characteristics of God. He is strong and high above everything, just like the heights of a mountain. He is a protector, just like the rocky crags in the side of a cliff. And certainly God associates Himself with mountain ranges—having Abraham bind Isaac on Mount Moriah, giving the Israelites the law from Mount Sinai, and placing His sacred temple on Mount Zion. Whether speaking to humanity from the top of a mountain or the heights of heaven, the Lord is certainly the Highest One; no one is above Him.

13 They pass their time in the lap of
abundance,
and they are even permitted to pass
quickly to the land of the dead, instead of lingering with chronic
pain.
14 They tell God, "Leave us be.
We have no interest in You or Your
ways.
15 Who is the Highest One* anyway,
and why should we serve Him?
What can we possibly gain by asking favors of Him?
Isn't He generous enough already?"
16 Look, don't you see?
The wicked do not control their own wealth, God does;
I am a long way from understanding the plan for the wicked.

17 Bildad claims the flame of the wicked is blown out.
But how often is their lamp
extinguished?
How often does disaster strike them or does God give them pain because of His anger at what they've
done?
18 How often are they as straw in the wind
or the chaff separated from the grain by fierce winds?
19 It is said, "God stores away a man's misdeeds
and delivers them to his children."*
Let Him repay the man Himself, so the man can know it.
20 Let the wicked see his ruin with his own eyes
as he drinks down the wrath of the Highest One.
21 After all, once he's dead and gone and his time is up,
what will he care for his household
and family?
22 Now who dares impart knowledge to
God
since He stands as judge over the most powerful?
23 One person dies when he is fit and
strong,
completely secure and totally at
peace;
24 His body* is vigorous and well fed;
his bones are strong and moist.
25 Another person dies with a bitter soul,
having never even tasted
goodness.
26 But they lie down together in the same
dust,
covered by the same blanket of worms.

27 I know how your minds work, my
friends,
and how you plan to wrong me—
your thoughts of retribution.
28 You will counter, "Show me!
Where is the palatial estate?
Where are the vaulted tents of the wicked?"
29 But I say, have you never consulted with those who travel this
world?
They can tell you the complexions of many lands.
But you've never permitted their witness
in your courts of opinion, have you?
30 Well, if you had, you'd have heard that when disaster strikes, the wicked are spared;

* 21:15 Hebrew, Shaddai * 21:19 Exodus 20:5 * 21:24 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

On the day of fury,
they are escorted safely through.
31 Who challenges them openly regarding their actions,
and who repays them on account of all they've done?
32 When death finally comes and they are laid in their graves, guards stand watch over their tombs, fending off grave robbers.
33 Laid to rest beside the stream, clods of earth cover them kindly;
while countless souls have gone before, all of humanity follows after.
34 So, my friends, how can you continue trying to comfort me with these empty consolations?
So far, your answers have been only thinly veiled lies!

22 Eliphaz the Temanite made suggestions to Job.

Eliphaz: 2 Can a strong person be of any use to God?
How about one who is wise? Can he help himself?
3 Is the Highest One* made happy if you are righteous?
Does He profit from your perfect
ways?
4 Do you really think He takes you to task
because you revere Him too
much?
Is this why He brings allegations
against you?
5 Is it not possible that you are, in fact,
great with wickedness
and endless in your wrongdoing?

6 When your relatives came to you
needing money,
for no good reason you took their clothes for collateral
and left them naked.
7 You have never given so much as a cup of water to the thirsty
or a crumb to the hungry.
8 You must think only the powerful and privileged possess the land
and can live in it any way they wish.
9 You have sent away widows who were wanting,
and you have obliterated the only
support of orphans.
10 This is why you are surrounded by snares,
why you are overcome with dreadful fears,
11 Why you're in the dark, without a glimmer to help you see,
sunk beneath the rush of flooding
water.

12 Is not God up there at the crown of the highest arc of heaven?
And the highest stars!
See how lofty they are!
13 But you—you say, "What does God
know?
Can He send His judgments
through such thick darkness?
14 Those clouds are just a veil for Him
so He does not have to look upon us
while He saunters, oblivious,
through the chambers of the sky."
15 Job, are you now guardian of the ancient road
where the wicked have traveled?
16 The wicked, who are captured
and taken off before their time, their foundations washed out by a flooded river,
17 They are the ones who tell God, "Leave us be."
They say, "What can the Highest
One do to us?"
18 How are they repaid for their insolence?
You say, "He stuffs their homes with
goodness,"
Then you shake your head and mutter,
"Far be it from me to understand the thoughts and plans of the
wicked."
19 The righteous would look upon their ruin and laugh for delight;
the innocent would taunt 20 By saying, "Sure enough, our enemies have gone to their annihilation, and what they've left behind feeds a hungry fire."

21 Now be of use to God;
be at peace with Him,
and goodness will return to your
life.
22 Receive instruction directly from His lips,
and make His words a part of you.
23 If you return to the Highest One,
you will be restored;
if you banish the evil from your tents,

* 22:3 Hebrew, Shaddai

24And consider your gold as common as earth's dust and Ophir's refined gold as plentiful as stones in rock-lined streams, 25Then your true treasure will be the Highest One—worth more than gold and silver beyond measure.
26For then, at last, you will find pleasure in the Highest One,
and you will finally be able to show Him your face.
27When you approach Him, He will listen;
you will make good on your promises to Him.
28You will pronounce something to be,
and He will make it so;
light will break out across all of your paths.
29*God* will humble, but you say, "Raise them up."
He will save the downcast.
30He will even consent to deliver those who are not innocent through the purity of your then-washed-clean hands.

23 Job confided to his friends.

Job: 2So once again you are telling me my complaint amounts to rebellion, that the heavy hand I feel upon me is smothering my groans?
3Would that I knew where to find Him.
I would appear before Him.
4I would lay my case out before Him;
I would fill up my mouth with arguments.
5*And then* I would finally learn how He would answer me,
and I would understand what He tells me.
6Would He oppose me merely with His great power? Surely not!
Surely He would show me the respect of listening to my argument.
7There, in that courtroom, a moral man might hope to reason with Him, and I would escape my Judge forever.

8*Alas,* wherever I go, ahead or behind,
He is not there;
I am unable to find Him.
9When He works on either side of me, I still cannot see Him.
I catch no glimpse of Him.
10But He knows the course I have traveled.
And I believe that were He to prove me,
I would come out purer than gold from the fire.
11My foot has been securely set in His tracks;
I have kept to His course of life without swerving;
12I have not departed from the commands of His lips;
I have valued everything He says more than all else.
13He alone is one True God; who can alter Him?
Whatever He desires within Himself, He does.
14For He will carry out exactly what He has planned for me,
and in the future there are more plans to come.
15Therefore, I am deeply troubled before Him;
when I ponder it at any length, I am terrified of Him.
16Yes, God has melted my courage,
and the Highest One has overwhelmed me with His terror.
17*He could have turned me aside when* the darkness came,
but He did not cut me off.
Nor does He hide my face from the gloom that has now overtaken me.

24 Job: Why are there not judgment times for the wicked before the Highest One?*
Why do those who know Him not see His judgment days?
2*After all* it's the wicked who seize land that belongs to others,
capture flocks and let them graze for themselves, 3Drive off orphans' donkeys,
take as collateral widows' oxen, 4Drive the needy off the road,
and force the poor into hiding together.
5*Look at how the poor are forced to live!*
Like wild donkeys in the desert,
They spend all their energy scrounging for food,
hoping the desert provides enough to feed their children!
6They forage for scraps out in the open and glean what they can from the already-harvested vineyards of the wicked.

* 24:1 Hebrew, Shaddai

7 They settle down night after night,
naked since pawning their cloaks,
and have nothing to protect them
from the cold.
8 The hard mountain rains soak them as they press themselves against rocks in the absence of real
shelter;
9 The fatherless child is torn away from the breast;
the suckling babe is seized as collateral from the poor.
10 They force the poor to wander naked,
no clothing to be had,
carrying the very bundles of grain
they long to eat.
11 They are stationed among the terraces*
pressing oil from the olive that calls
to their hunger;
they trample in winepresses,
extracting the juice for which they thirst.
12 At the outskirts of the city, the oppressed
groan,
wounded souls crying for help,
but God fails to charge the guilty who have brought them such
pain.

13 They were among those who rebel against the light.
They don't want to know what makes it shine,
nor do they live their lives in its
paths.
14 It is not the poor and the victim who rebel.
It is the murderer who rises before first light
And kills the poor and the needy.
And in the dark of night, he becomes the thief.
15 And the eye of the adulterer waits for
the onset of dusk;
he thinks, "No one will see me,"
because he disguises his face.
16 And others break into homes in the dark.
However, by day they shut themselves up inside
because they do not know the light.
17 For all of these criminals,
the morning arrives arm in arm
with the threat of being found
out.
It is as the shadow of death to them,
for they are at ease with the terrors
of the night.

* 24:11 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

► This passage is challenging to translate because it appears to have Job arguing against his previous convictions by claiming the wicked do suffer, which fits better with Zophar's philosophy. But that textual difficulty offers two possible explanations of Job's apparent dual arguments. First, it is possible to read these verses as if Job is quoting his friends; he is not adopting this theology, but mocking his friends who do. Second, Job may be cursing the wicked, wishing these evil things would happen to them. The Greek version of the text, called the Septuagint, provides the second translation of this passage. Regardless of who said it and how, this passage describes the possible pitfalls of evil actions.

Job: 18 The wicked may sit lightly on the surface of the waters,
but their bit of land, the parcel on which they live, is accursed;
In fact, they don't even turn down the road to their vineyards
because they don't produce.
19 Just as summer's heat and drought melt
and carry off the winter snow,
the land of the dead digests and
carries away sinners.
20 The very wombs whence they came forget them;
the worms will feast on them until
no one remembers they existed;
the skeletons of wickedness dry up and snap like twigs.

21 They deliberately prey on women with no children to protect them
and don't care to lend a hand to widows!
22 By His power, God drags off the high and mighty with the ropes of a hunter,
and though they may rise to the top, they have no assurance of true life.
23 God may provide for them, and they may feel secure,
but His eyes are always on their
ways.

Thanks to commonly known Greek and Roman mythologies, it is not difficult to imagine what "the land of the dead" or sheol may be. But what is this place of "destruction," known in Hebrew as abaddon? The Hebrew word comes from a verb that means "to become lost," and abaddon is usually mentioned in the Old Testament in conjunction with the land of the dead, the grave, or death itself—places lost to the living world. In the New Testament Book of Revelation, abaddon is personified as the "messenger of the abyss" (9:11) who rules the locusts—horrible creatures that torture any living thing. Based on these clues, abaddon may be thought of as a place for the dead (like here in Job) or as death personified (like in Revelation) that decimates everything around it or commands the destruction of everything it sees, a primitive creature living in its own chaos where no one would ever want to visit and wreaking havoc wherever it goes outside its home.

24 They may make their mark—to be sure—in a brief moment of glory, but then just as quickly the wicked are gone, like the rest of humanity,
like heads of grain cut off and dried up.
25 Now, if this is not the truth, then call me a liar
and count all this talk for nothing.

25 Then Bildad the Shuhite responded.

Bildad: 2 God rules over all things;
dread is His domain,
God—who makes peace and order on His own heights.
3 As for His armies, can they even be counted?
As for His light, is anyone not illuminated?
4 Then tell me how can a person be right with God?
How can someone born of a woman in blood be pure?
5 If even the moon is not bright enough
and the light of the stars is not pure in His estimation, 6 How much less so a human,
who is a mere worm—
The offspring of humanity,
who is a maggot!

26 Job explained.

Job (sarcastically): 2 What a great help you are to the powerless!
How you have held up the arm that is feeble and weak!
3 What sage counsel you have given to me, the unwise!
And what immeasurable insight you have put on display for us!
4 Whom did you say these words to?
Where did you get such profound inspiration?

5 The departed quiver below,
down deep beneath the seas
and all that is within them,
6 The land of the dead is exposed before God,
and the place where destruction lies is uncovered in His presence.
7 He stretches out the northern sky over vast reaches of emptiness;
He hangs the earth itself on nothing.
8 He binds up the waters into His clouds,
but the cloud does not burst from the strain.
9 He conceals the sight of His throne and spreads His clouds over it to hide it from view.
10 He has encircled the waters with a horizon-boundary:
the line between day and night, light and darkness.
11 The very pillars that hold up the sky quake
and are astounded by His reprisals.
12 By His power, He stilled the sea,
quelling the chaos;
by His wisdom, He pierced Rahab,
evil of the sea;
13 By His breath, the heavens are made beautifully clear;
by His hand that ancient serpent—even as it attempted escape—is pierced through.
14 And all of this, all of these are the mere edges of His capabilities.
We are privy to only a whisper of His power.

Who then dares to claim understanding of His thunderous might?

27 Job continued.

Job: [2]By God—who lives and has deprived me of justice,
the Highest One* who has also embittered my soul—
[3]I make this proclamation:
that, while there is life in me,
While the breath of that selfsame God
is in my nostrils,
[4]My lips will not let lies escape them,
and my tongue will not form deceit.
[5]So I will never concede that you three are right.
Until the day I die, I will not abandon my integrity just to appease you.
[6]On the contrary, I'll assert my innocence and never let it go;
my heart will not mock my past or my future.

[7]May my enemy be counted as the
wicked
and my adversary as the unjust.
[8]For what hope does he who is sullied and impure have once God lops him off from life and requires his soul?
[9]Will God listen to his cry
when he is overtaken by distress?
[10]Will he have made the Highest One his pleasure after the fact?
Will he have marked the seasons with his calls to God once it is too late?
[11]Let me show you what I have learned of God's power.
I assure you I will not cover over the true nature of the Highest One's
ways.
[12]Look, you have all seen it—seen the same things I have seen here.
Why then all this vain nonsense?

[13]Indeed, Zophar, listen closely, for what the wicked of humanity will inherit from God.
This is the heritage the Highest One bequeaths to those who oppress:
[14]If the children of the wicked multiply,
they meet their end at the blade of
the sword.
And even if they are fat with surplus,
the descendants of the wicked will be starved for bread.
[15]Those who survive will fall to disease
and be buried;
many of their widows will not mourn their deaths.
[16]Though he pile up money as if it were common dirt
and clothing in heaps like mounds
of clay,
[17]What he may prepare, the righteous
will wear;
the silver he sets aside, the innocent
will divide.
[18]He builds his house doomed to impermanence—
like the moth's cocoon,
like the field watchman's lean-to that is dismantled after the harvest.
[19]He lies down to sleep a wealthy man,
but never again,
For when he opens his eyes to
morning,
all is gone.
[20]Terrors overtake him as if they were floodwaters;
the tempest snatches him away in the dead of night.
[21]Indeed, the sultry east wind lifts him up
and away.
He is gone, swept off the place he knew as his own.
[22]It will have blown against him pitilessly,
and he tries to flee from its fast-
closing hand.
[23]As a final humiliation, it claps its hands against him as a man would—sneering, hissing at him as he leaves.

28 Job: There is a place where silver is mined,
a place where gold is
refined.
[2]There iron is dug from the earth,
and copper is smelted from ore.
[3]Humans put an end to darkness,
and search in every last corner
For the ore that is in gloom and
darkness.
[4]In the earth they cut a shaft
in a place forgotten, far from the beaten path;
They descend on ropes,
swinging dangerously back and forth.

* 27:2 Hebrew, Shaddai

5The ground above yields food;
the earth below is turned as if fire
has destroyed it 6Where earth gives up sapphires from her rocks
and bits of gold from her dirt.
7No bird of prey knows this way, this secret path down below;
no falcon's eye has ever peered into it.
8No proud beast has ever reached this
place;
no lordly lion has marched over it.

9The miner breaks apart flinty stone,
uprooting the ancient mountains.
10He carves tunnels through the rock,
revealing precious treasures.
11He dams up* the underground streams
until they cease seeping,
and he brings out into the light what was hidden there in the darkness.

12But where is wisdom found,
and where does understanding dwell?

► Proverbs 1:20-33 and 8:3-36 give the best articulated picture of wisdom in the Bible. Personified there as Lady Wisdom, this character was created by God long before His creation of the world—which she then aided in. After creation, she wanted nothing more than to be with humanity and help them to have full, truthful lives; but here Job explains that wisdom is now hidden. Certainly God knows where she is, although He isn't telling; but humans have a better chance of finding immeasurable wealth than of attaining wisdom. This is because she is only found on one road, and that's the God-fearing road of piety. In order to find wisdom, one must allow God to direct him there; and ironically, the knowledge that God must direct lives is wisdom itself!

Job: 13No human perceives wisdom's true
value,
nor has she been found in the land
of the living.

14The deep says, "She is not to be seen within me."
"Nor within me," says the voice of the raging sea.
15No gold can be given in trade for
wisdom,
nor a sum of silver weighed out as her price.
16She cannot be bought with all the gold
of Ophir,
neither with onyx nor sapphire.
17The shimmer of gold and brightness of glass cannot compare,
and no refined gold jewelry is worth her in trade.
18Perish the mention of coral and crystal;
even more than pearls is the value
of wisdom.
19Ethiopian topaz—unequal as well;
even gold, unalloyed, is too paltry
indeed.
20Then from where does wisdom come?
Where does understanding dwell?
21She is hidden away from every eye, even from birds looking down from
the sky.
22Destruction and Death have both confessed,
"Rumors are all we know about her."

23God understands wisdom's path and
way;
her place is known to Him alone.
24For He gazes out to the edge of the
earth,
sees all that falls beneath the sky
overhead.
25He lent the wind its weight and force
and measured out the waters' spread.
26When He set a limit on the rain that
falls
and made the thunderbolt a road
to race,
27Then He saw wisdom and made her
known,
He settled her and searched out for her a place.
28And to humankind, He said, "Now, the fear of the Lord is wisdom,
and to depart from evil is
understanding."

The great wisdom of the ages begins with fearing God. It is the evil of the world that clouds our understanding and leads us into foolishness.

* 28:11 Hebrew manuscripts read, "He searches."

29 Job continued.

Job: [2]Ah, that I were as I once was, months ago
during the time when God
oversaw me,
[3]When His lamp shone above my head,
and by His light, I walked through the darkness.
[4]Ah, to be in the ripest time of life once more—
when the intimacies of friendship
with God enfolded my tent,
[5]When the Highest One* was with me and my children encircled me, [6]When my steps were bathed in milk and the rock poured out rivers of olive oil, showering my body,
[7]When I went up to the gate of the city,
when I took my seat in the town
square where the elders meet.
[8]There the young saw me and made room for me, in deference to elders.
The old rose and stood out of respect.
[9]The leaders stopped talking with their hands over their mouths.
[10]The voices of nobles fell to a hush;
their tongues stuck to the roofs of
their mouths.
[11]Every ear that heard me blessed me,
and every eye that saw me testified to my greatness.
[12]After all, I rescued the poor when they cried out for help
and assisted the orphans when they had no one else.

Great virtue has always begun with the treatment of the poor. Can Job be accused of having a hard heart?

[13]The dying spoke their blessings over me,
and the widows sang their joyful
songs honoring what I did.
[14]I adorned myself in righteousness,
and it covered me;
my justice fit me like a cloak and turban—
conveying both my dignity and my authority.
[15]I was the eyes for the blind,
the feet for the lame,
[16]A father for the needy,
and I sought for the cause of whom I did not know.
[17]I broke out the fangs of the wicked
and wrested prey from their jaws.
[18]Then I said, "I will pass from this earth
in the comfort of my nest.
My days will be more numerous than a beach's grains of sand.
[19]My roots will grow deep, spreading out to the water's edge,
and in the night, the dew will *come
to* rest on my branches.
[20]Respect will be accorded me every day,
my skill with the bow always new in
my hand."

[21]People used to listen to me,
the sense of expectation visible on their faces;
they waited in silence for my advice.
[22]And when I finished, they did not hurry to speak again.
They waited while my words
dropped like dew upon them.
[23]Indeed, they waited for me as *one waits
for a good* rain,
and they opened their mouths as if
to catch spring showers on their tongues.
[24]I smiled upon them when their confidence flagged,
and they took comfort in my beaming face.*
[25]I led them in their way.
I sat as their leader.
I lived like a king among his troops.
I was as a happy man spreading comfort among the mourners.

30 Job: But now they mock me, these young men whose fathers I hold in such contempt.
I wouldn't trust them with my herds
as I do my dogs.
[2]What good does their strength do me?
Their potency has wilted.
[3]Gaunt from starvation, haggard from hunger that drives them to gnaw
the ground in the night,
a ground all wasted and hollowed-
out,
[4]They are left with the desperate foods of the famished—
plucking mallow from the bushes
by the salt marshes,
and making the ashy broom tree
root their staple.
[5]The people from the town chase each one out of his neighborhood;
they howl at all of them as if they were common thieves,

* 29:5 Hebrew, Shaddai * 29:24 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

6 And push them out to live in the deep valleys of the wadis—
those desert streams that come and go—So these outcasts seek shelter in the overhangs and crumbling caves
that line the banks of no-man's-land.
7 Braying like donkeys from the bushes, huddled together in the prickly undergrowth are 8 Fools and sons of no-names,
driven by lashes out from the bosom of the land.

Even the fools and outcasts use Job's name as an insult. His character has been brought low by those who should be beneath him.

9 And now they sing of me in taunt and parody,
and make my name a byword
among them.
10 They abhor me, keep their distance,
and feel free to spit in my face.
11 Because God has unstrung His bowstring and stricken me with suffering,
they are no longer restrained
toward me.
12 To my right, the horde* arises.
They seek to knock me off my feet,
piling their disastrous ways
against me.
13 They lay waste to my path
and benefit from my destruction,
and no one is there to stop them.
14 As through a wall breached, they advance easily.
Their thunderstorm of wheels rolled across my ruins.
15 Alas! A storm of terrors has turned toward me and is upon me;
my dignity is blown away as by the
wind;
my prosperity vanishes like a wispy
cloud.

16 And now my own soul is drawn out,
poured over me.
The days of misery have taken hold
of me;
I am firmly in their grasp.
17 By night, my pain is at work, boring
holes in my bones;
it gnaws at me and never lies down
to rest.
18 With great force, God wraps around me like my clothing.
He binds tightly about my neck as if He were the collar of my tunic.*
19 He has pushed me off into the mud,
and I am reduced from man to dust
and ashes.
20 I call out to You, God, but You refuse to answer me.
When I arise, You merely examine me.
21 You have changed.
Now You are cruel to me;
You employ Your strength to attack me.
22 You pull me up into the wind and make me ride upon it until I am fractured and dissipated
in the storm.
23 I know where this ends.
You will send me off to death and usher me to that meetinghouse
where all the living one day go.

24 And yet does not a person trapped in ruins stretch out his hand,
and in this disaster does he not cry
out for help?*
25 Did I not grieve for the hard days of another
or weep for the pains of the poor?
26 And yet when I longed for the good,
evil came;
when I awaited the light, thick
darkness arrived instead.
27 I am boiling on the inside,
and it will not quit;
yet the days of misery still come
for me.
28 I drift in darkness, the sun absent;
I arise in the assembly
and call out for help.
29 But who will come now that I am roaming the wilderness?
I am a brother to jackals, a friend of ostriches.
30 Despite my earnest cries, my skin burns
until it is black and flakes off,
and my bones burn with fever.
31 And so my harp is tuned to the key of
mourning,
and my flute is pitched to the sound
of weeping.

31 Job: I have made a sacred pledge with my eyes.
How then could I stare at a young woman with desire?

* 30:12 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 30:18 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 30:24 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

2And what share has God set aside for us from above?
What is the heritage we can expect from the lofty God, the Highest
One?*
3*Has it not been made clear these many
years?*
Is there not supposed to be punishment poured out on the
wicked
and disaster on those wrongdoers?
4Does God not see the paths of my choosing;
does He not count every single step
I take?

► In this speech, Job is actually recording his deposition; he is calling God to come answer the charges he is laying out. Using a rigid format, Job explains away eight areas of potential sin in his life. So certain is Job that he is innocent of wickedness, he actually pronounces curses upon himself if the all-knowing God finds him guilty of any of the sins. This ethereal courtroom procedure would be like any human going to a court to explain how he did not violate the law of the land and prefacing his testimony with a proposed sentence of the death penalty if the judgment goes against him. Job will soon learn that it is never appropriate to assume he knows more about justice than God, the very author of justice.

Job: 5If I have walked alongside lies or if my feet have rushed toward deception,
6Then let God weigh me on a truly balanced set of scales.
He will know and see my integrity.
7If my steps have veered off God's prescribed path
or if my heart has followed any of the evil my eyes have seen or if my hands are soiled, 8Then let me sow, but then let another one eat the produce!
Let my sprouts be pulled up by their roots!

9If my heart has been seduced by another woman
or if I have waited by a friend's door
for a liaison with his wife, 10Then let my wife be taken by another,
to grind his grain or do whatever he pleases,
And let other men kneel down over her 11because adultery is such a lewd, scandalous act,
an offense punishable by the court, 12For it is a fire that burns until the destruction is complete.
Had I done it, it would have undone
all that I had gained.

13If I have refused justice to my servants—either male or female—
when they have had cause for
dispute with me,
14Then what ought I do when God
stands to judge me?
How will I answer when He calls
me to account for my actions?
15Did not God, who made me in my mother's womb, make my servants as well?
Is He not the same One who made us each in our own mother's womb?

16If I have stood between the poor and the object of their desire,
if I have caused a widow to lose her love of life,
17If I have eaten my food alone and not shared it with the hungry
orphan
18(Indeed, from as far back as I can remember, I have cared for them all—
from my youth, been a father to the
orphan;
from my own birth, cared for the widow), 19If I have idly watched anyone die from exposure simply due to a lack of clothing
or seen the poor without any kind of covering,
20If ever people in such conditions did not physically bless and thank me for warming them up with the fleeces of my own sheep, 21If I ever used my civic strength to condemn the fatherless

* 31:2 Hebrew, Shaddai

simply because I knew I had allies
in the courts;
22Then let my arm be pulled from its socket!
Let my forearm be snapped off at the elbow for raising it against the orphan!
23See, I have always dreaded the kind of disaster wrought by God;
I was never able to withstand His
majesty.

24If I have put my confidence in my stash
of gold,
if I have trusted in a metal so well-
refined,
25If I have exulted in my immense wealth
(for I had accumulated so much),
26If I saw the sun in its radiant glory or the moon sliding across the sky in its splendor, 27If such sights secretly seduced my heart
and made my hand throw kisses
to the false gods of sun and moon, 28Then these things, too, would have been punishable offenses
because they would have shown me untrue to the God above.

29Have I gloated at my enemy's downfall or been excited when he encountered evil?
30No. I have not permitted my mouth to sin
by uttering a curse against his very
life.
31Have my guests ever left my dwelling
saying,
"Anyone still hungry? Who didn't get enough to eat?"
32Have I ever left the foreigner to sleep
outside?
No. My door was always open to the traveler.
33If I have covered my sin as people do or attempted to hide my wrongdoing in the recesses of my heart 34(Because of my fear of the opinions of the crowd
or my fright at the disdain of my family)
And kept silent hiding indoors away
from all possible discovery of flaws;
35(if only someone were listening!)
Now, here to these oaths, these curses,
I make my signature!
Let the Highest One answer me!
Let my adversary put his case in writing!
36If He does, I would place it on my shoulder for all to see;
I would put it on my head and wear
it like a crown.
37I would offer Him an account of the steps I've taken along my life's
path
and approach Him directly like a prince.

38If my land cries out against me,
if my furrows gather together to weep over my mistreatment of
them, 39If I have eaten the fruit of the land without payment to those who tend it
or exasperated the lives of its tenants, the farmers, in pursuit of greater harvest, or in poor
management of them;
40Then let thistles grow instead of wheat
and stinkweed instead of barley.

This concludes the words of Job.

32 At that point, Job's three friends stopped responding to him because Job was quite certain of his own righteousness. 2But someone else was there. His name was Elihu (Barachel's son from Buz, of the family of Ram), and he was burning with anger toward Job because Job defended his righteousness rather than God's. 3And Elihu was also angry with Job's three friends because they found no decent rebuttal to Job yet condemned him nonetheless. 4Elihu had withheld his words from Job because he was younger than all four of them and knew it was improper to speak until each of them was heard, 5-6but when Elihu (Barachel's son from Buz) realized the three men's words were spent, his anger inflamed him.

Elihu: I am a young man,
and you are my wise elders,
So I have been here shyly creeping
about in the background,
timid about sharing my opinion
with you.
7I thought to myself, "Age should speak
first;
those advanced in years will teach
wisdom."
8But alas, it turns out it is the spirit in a man, not age,

Due to the abundance of grapes and the absence of refrigeration, wine was a staple drink in the ancient Near East. The process of making wine was basically the same one used today, although the equipment was different. Grapes were grown, gathered, pressed, fermented, and stored. For the fermentation process, wineskins (usually made of goat hide) were used instead of today's barrels. Wineskins were the perfect choice because they could expand as the grape juice released its gases during the fermentation process, much as the human stomach expands as it digests food, as Elihu points out. It was imperative that new wineskins were used for each batch of wine because each skin could only expand so far; a second round of fermentation in an old skin would rupture the skin and spill the wine—a truth Jesus makes famous in Luke 5:37. After fermentation, the wine was stored in amphora jars with vented tops, so any gases could be released and the wine still be contained or even transported.

and the breath of the Highest One* within him that lends
understanding.
9*In fact,* sometimes it is neither the great who are wise
nor the elderly who have an understanding of justice.
10And so I say, "Listen to me, Job,
and I, even I, will explain what I
know."

(turning to the three friends) 11After all, I waited while each of you three spoke;
I lent my ear to your insights
while you searched for what to say,
looking for the right words.
12I paid you my utmost attention, but hear this!
Not one of you countered Job with a decent argument;
not one rebutted his statements of the case.
13And don't you dare fall back on the easy
reply:
"We have found wisdom;
let God rebuke him, not just any old human!"
14*I will answer him differently,*
for he has not assembled his words
against me.
I will not answer him with your overly personalized and insufficient arguments.

15They are all undone, unhinged,
embarrassed!
They have no response!
Their faculty of speech has apparently failed them!
16Should I wait a bit longer to make sure they are all done speaking, for when they stand silent and appear to have nothing to say?
17*So now* it is my turn.
I will tell you what I think.
I will impart what I know.
18After all, I am filled to the brim with words,
and my gut reaction is to speak.
19My insides are like fresh wine sealed up and needing to breathe.
Like a new wineskin, I am on the brink of bursting from the pressure.
20Let me speak. Then I will find relief.
Yes, I will open my mouth and
answer.
21*You will have to pardon me*
if I do not impede my words with deference to any of you
or flatter you with honorable titles.
22After all, I am not very skilled with flattery anyway;
I have reason to believe that, if I were to engage in such senseless rhetoric,
My Maker would whisk me away from here
because this matter is so serious.

33 Elihu: So now, Job, listen closely to my words;
lend an ear to my speeches.
2*Wait for it!* I am about ready to part my lips;
even now, my tongue begins to stir
within my mouth.
3My words emerge from a heart of
integrity;
my lips express their knowledge
with sincerity.

* 32:8 Hebrew, Shaddai

4 God's Spirit has fashioned me and the breath of the Highest One* imparts life to me.
5 So refute me if you can;
go ahead and make your preparations and assume your position.
6 But remember I am just like you; we are both God's vessels,
both pinched from the clay and formed by Him.
7 Look, there is no reason for you to be afraid of me;
my hand will not feel all that heavy on you.

8 Job, now you have said—and I heard it—
I heard the words sounded out:
9 "I am pure, without sin;
innocent indeed, and there is no wrongdoing within me!
10 But oh! God has come up with reasons to accuse me;
now He considers me His enemy.
11 He locks my feet in the shackles;
He watches all my paths, dogs my every step."
12 But listen! You are wrong in all this because God is greater than a mere man.

13 Why do you argue with Him, complaining that He refuses to account for all of His actions?
14 For God does speak in one way and even another way—
yet no one may be able to perceive what He says.
15 One kind of answer God gives comes in the form of a dream—in a night-vision—
When deep slumber comes to people who have lain down to sleep in their beds.
16 Yes, this is often when He opens the ears of humanity, and seals their life-corrections in the terrors of the night
17 So that He can turn one away from his evil deeds and put down the arrogance of the proud.
18 He does all of this so that He might hold back one soul from the pit and protect one life from passing over to the land of death.*

19 Or another kind of answer God gives comes thus:
one may be corrected through a bed of pain;
his bones may hold him in an unceasing trial, 20 In which his food becomes repulsive,
and he doesn't hunger for even his favorite meals.
21 His body wastes away almost to nothing,
and bones, once hidden, stick out gruesomely.
22 Thus he is sobered as his soul approaches the rim of the pit, as his life hears the whispers of the coming messengers of death.

23 If there is a heavenly messenger at one's side, a mediator, even just one out of the thousand in his regime of God's messengers,
to proclaim what is right for that person according to God, 24 And to be gracious to him and to say,
"Spare this one from descending into the pit;
I have found a ransom that will save his life!
25 Then his skin will be renewed, as smooth and fresh as a child's,
and he will be restored to the vim and vigor of his youth."
26 He will make his appeal to God, and God will grant acceptance;
he will see God's face and shout with joy,
knowing God has restored his right standing.
27 Then he comes to his fellow humans and sings out,
"I sinned and perverted what I knew to be right,
but God has not repaid me what I deserved.
28 He has instead paid that ransom and spared me from descending into the pit and my life now sees the light."

29 Look! God does all of these things two, even three times with a person, 30 In order to guide his soul back from the rim of the pit
so the light of life might shine on him.
31 Lend your ear, Job, and listen well to me;
remain silent, and I will do the talking.

* 33:4 Hebrew, Shaddai * 33:18 Hebrew manuscripts read, "from passing over the canal."

32 If you have anything to say to me, say it.
Make your answer to me;
go ahead and speak, because I do desire to see you justified to
God.
33 But if not, then listen well to me;
stay quiet, and I will teach you
wisdom.

34 Job remained silent, so Elihu continued.

Elihu: 2 Hear my words, you men of
wisdom;
listen to me, learned ones:
3 Our ears are capable of testing wisdom of words
the way the roofs of our mouths are capable of tasting food.*
4 Let us form a council here then, and decide among us what is right;
let us come together to know what is good in all of this.
5 After all, Job has told us, "I am
innocent,
but God has denied my right to a fair hearing.
6 Though I am right, should I lie and claim to be wrong? No.
Let me put it to you simply:
I am gravely wounded as by an arrow,
but I am innocent."
7 What other man is comparable to Job?
He drinks disdain like water.
8 He is not like the one who runs with the workers of wickedness and associates himself with evil
people.
9 In fact he even suggests, "A person receives no benefit from pleasing God."

► In his first speech to Job, Elihu has been a cowboy, brazenly calling Job out for his blasphemous words about God. He has not exactly condemned Job as a wicked man; he has condemned Job for his reaction to his suffering and to God. This is unprecedented behavior, since a younger man would never contradict an elder, especially in the presence of other elders. Possibly realizing how disrespectfully he has been acting, and certainly noticing that Job isn't responding well to his arguments, Elihu begins this second speech with a new approach. He tries to gain the support of Eliphaz, Bildad, and Zophar. Maybe if other elders are on his side, Elihu can make Job understand that it is wrong to question God, the very Creator of justice.

Elihu: 10 So, you men whose hearts have embraced wisdom, listen
to me:
far be it from God to commit evil
acts;
and from the Highest One* to engage in wrongdoing!
11 For He is like an employer
who pays workers according to what they have done;
He makes sure the rewards they receive match their conduct.
12 Oh, unimaginable thought—that God would cause evil!
The Highest One does not pervert
justice!
13 Who designated Him as earth's overseer?
Who placed Him in charge of the entire world?
14 If He made it His aim to do so,
if He recalled to Himself His spirit
and His breath, 15 All living creatures would expire as
one
and humankind would return to the dust from which He formed
them.

16 If you are one of understanding, hear
this!
Listen to what I am saying!
17 Can one who despises justice also govern?
And are you willing to render condemnation on the Righteous and Mighty One?
18 Is He not the One who says to the king,
"You are worthless,"
and to the exalted nobility, "You are depraved."
19 Is He not the One who refuses favoritism to royalty
and who will not put rich above
poor?
After all, they are all the creations
of His very own hands.

* 34:3 Job 12:11 * 34:10 Hebrew, Shaddai

20All of a sudden, in the middle of the night, people perish;
they are shaken, and then they pass away;
the strong and mighty, apart from any human hand, are taken.

21For God's eyes are on the paths people choose;
He surveys each of their steps.
22There is no darkness, no gloomy shadow
in which wrongdoers may hide themselves from Him.
23God does not need to scrutinize people further or bring them before Him for judgment.
24Without need of a lengthy investigation,
He breaks even the mighty into pieces,
and installs others to replace them.
25And this is because He is already acquainted with their actions.
When the seemingly sudden midnight hour rolls over, they are crushed beneath it.
26He strikes down people as if they were wicked—front and center—a display for all to see 27Simply because they turned from following Him, because they no longer considered His ways.
28As a result of their injustice,
the poor cried out to Him
And as you ought to know well,
He always hears the cries of the needy, of the oppressed peoples.
29If God remains silent, who is fit to raise his voice against Him?
If He chooses to hide His face, who is able to see Him?
This goes for a nation or an individual; all are the same.
30A person estranged from God must be prevented from ruling over any nation and from laying snares for the downfall of a people.

31Has anyone then said to God,
"I have carried punishment,
but I will not offend again.
32Teach me and fill in my blind spots,
and if I have done wrong, I will stop and do what is right." 33Is God obliged to reward you on your terms
for your personal revolt against Him?
You must decide that, not I.
Tell me, if you know what you believe,
34People who comprehend such things,
wise folk who hear me say, 35"Job speaks without knowledge;
his harangues are devoid of insight."
36May God try Job to the bitter end,
for he responds as the wicked do 37And he keeps adding to his sins;
he claps his hands in rebellion in our very midst,
and he multiplies his offensive words against God.

35

Elihu continued advising.

Elihu: 2*Job,* is this your idea of justice,
that you would say, "My righteousness exceeds God's"?
3For you say something like, "What good does it do You if I do right?
What is in it for me if I don't sin?"
4I will return your words with my own,
and I will answer your friends with you.
5Look at the skies above and take notice.
See how high the clouds are—they are so far above you!
6*Surely, if the clouds maintain such a distance,*
one must wonder: how high up and far away is God?
If you sin, how much have you really accomplished against Him?
If you pile up your sins, if you stack them high, what does it do to Him?
7*Likewise,* if you are righteous, what does that confer to Him, or what gift does He receive from your outstretched hand of righteous generosity?
8*Listen!* Your wickedness affects your own kind,
and your righteousness only helps other human beings.

9People call out to God when they feel the crush of oppression.
They implore Him for deliverance from the strong hand of tyranny.
10But none of them pleads in this way:
"Where is God, my Creator,
who gives songs of comfort in the silence and suffering of night,

11 Who enlightens us more than the animals of the field, who instructs us in wisdom more than the birds of the air?"
12 And so, in the absence of such prayers,
God does not answer the cries of the people
because they cry with the arrogance of the wicked.
13 Indeed, God does not hear the vain and empty cry,
nor does the Highest One* pay it any mind.
14 How much less must He hear you—
you who say you cannot see Him,*
You who say you have already pled your case before Him
but that you are still waiting for Him.
15 And now, here we are.
Because God has not been swift to punish in His anger,
because He does not concern Himself with great arrogance,*
16 Job opens his mouth and out comes empty talk.
Yes, he heaps up words with ignorance.

36 Elihu continued.

Elihu: 2 Wait for me to finish, and I will explain.
There is still more to be said on God's behalf.
3 I will acquire my knowledge from ancient, far away sources
and illustrate the righteous ways of my Maker.
4 Truly, there is no untruth hidden in my words;
in fact, perfect knowledge has graced your presence.
5 Look! God has great strength, but He does not detest human beings;
He is mighty indeed, and His heart swells with understanding.
6 He does not preserve the life of the wicked,
but He grants justice to those who are weak and humble.
7 He does not divert His gaze from the righteous;
He enthrones them with monarchs,
lifts them up to positions of power forever.
8 And if the people are restrained in chains,
caught in the cords of their misery,
9 Then He explains to them their exploits,
their errors, and how they have lived in arrogance.
10 He uncovers their ears so as to hear His teaching and commands them to abandon their sinful path.
11 If they hear and choose to serve Him,
then they end their days in prosperity and their years in felicity.
12 But if they refuse to listen,
then they will pass over to the land of death by the sword and will arrive, lacking any wisdom, at their death.
13 The sullied and impure stash away their anger.
Even when He puts them in chains for their own good,
they refuse to cry for His help.
14 They die young,
debased among the male prostitutes of the shrines.
15 As for the righteous—when they are afflicted—
God delivers them through the affliction itself,
and uses the trial to open their ears to His voice.
16 Job, even now, God is enticing you away from the jaws of distress;
He is luring you to a wide, wonderful place free of boundaries where your table will be covered in the finest foods.

17 You are weighed down, instead, with judgment usually reserved for the wicked.
And yet, ironically, as you seek to lay hold of justice and judgment, justice and judgment have laid hold of you.
18 Beware that your anger at how you are being judged does not seduce you into scorning.
Do not let the high ransom you are paying through your suffering steer you off God's path.
19 Will your cry for help lessen your misery?
How about your strength and forcefulness?

* 35:13 Hebrew, Shaddai * 35:14 Job 9:11; 23:8-9 * 35:15 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

For the patriarchs, there is really no greater mystery in the natural world than the weather. What keeps the rain up in the sky, or what makes it fall to the earth? Why does water sometimes freeze and sometimes dry up? What is lightning and thunder? Weather impacts every part of their lives, determining whether or not they can farm and pasture animals, where they can live, and if they can live. Since none of these questions can be answered with scientific explanations yet, societies invent gods whom they think control it all. Ancient people hope that by doing or saying the right thing, they can convince the god to send rain when it is needed or stop the damaging hail before their roofs cave in. These pagan worshipers aren't too far off in their thinking; they just have the wrong god.

The Lord's followers have the answer right in believing He controls it all. When they look at the weather, they see God's power. As God will expound upon Himself shortly, the One who controls the weather is the One who created it. He put order in the cosmos, although humans may not always understand its order, just as He organized everything else. God, who has perfect understanding and unimaginable power, cannot be comprehended with the human mind and should not be questioned by the likes of Job.

Are they yielding you any better result?
20 Do not pine, Job, for the night
when people pass from their earthly homes *into oblivion.
21 In short, be careful! Do not turn your life toward evil ways—which you have preferred to hearing God's correcting voice in the midst of your suffering.
22 See, God is supreme in His power.
Is there any teacher like Him?
23 Is anyone capable of overseeing His path?
Who has ever said to Him, "You have done wrong"?

24 Remember to praise His works,
which generations have celebrated in song.
25 All of humankind has seen them
and has gazed upon them from far away.
26 Look, God is exalted, beyond all knowing.
The number of His years is vast, beyond all discovery.
27 For He draws up drops of water,
distills the rain from the mist
28 Which pours down from the clouds, dripping a sky full of water over the whole of humanity.
29 It is beyond comprehension: the fanning out of the clouds,
the crashing thunder from His cloudy pavilion.
30 Ah, and then He extends His lightning over the earth,
striking even the sea to illumine its depths.
31 For with these, He judges the peoples—lightning punishing His enemies and rain blessing His people—but now with those same waters, He gives them food in abundance.
32 In the palms of His hands He holds lightning and issues orders for it to strike its target.
33 Thunder announces His presence;
His jealous anger* is against what is coming.

► The discussion has included many references to nature and weather. Maybe it has been spoken in the midst of a storm and as a clap of thunder sounds overhead, startling all five of the men. Elihu picks up the conversation again with renewed vigor, possibly gesturing toward the sky as he speaks about the storm of life in which Job is caught.

37 Elihu: At this, my heart quivers,
and it nearly leaps out of my chest.
2 Listen! Listen to the raging anger in His voice,
the rumbling that's coming from His mouth!

* 36:18-20 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 36:33 Hebrew manuscripts read, "cattle."

3He sets the roar loose across the whole length of the sky, and His lightning flashes to the ends of the earth.
4After the flash comes the deafening roar of His voice,
the voice that thunders His majesty—
The voice that resounds with no evidence of restraint, 5the voice of God that is thundering wondrously.
He does magnificent things, beyond our comprehension.
6To the snow, He issues the order: "Go! Fall on the earth!"
And to the rain shower, He says, "Show your power; beat down heavy on the earth!"
7*Then, as the weather drives laborers indoors,*
He closes in around every human hand,
sealing them off from their labors,
and in forced rest, all are drawn to see the ongoing work of God.
8The beast of the field scampers for cover, hiding in its cave for the duration.
9*Meanwhile,* the whirlwind comes forth from its southern chamber, and the arctic winds bring the cold.
10From the breath of God ice forms, and the wide waters of the rivers and seas expand in the freeze.
11He weighs down the thick clouds with moisture,
and they scatter His clusters of light.
12The storm changes course under His guidance;
it moves as He directs over the contours of the entire earth.
13*And what is His aim?* Whether for the discipline of His people or for the sake of the earth itself,
Or as an expression of His deep, loyal love,
He causes all of this to happen.

14Hear this, Job.
Pause where you are, and ponder the wonders of God.
15Do you know how God orchestrates these marvels?
How He makes the clouds flash with lightning?
16Do you know how those same clouds are hung up in the sky or how they move?
Do you know the wonders of God, who is perfect in His knowledge of such things?
17You, who feel the wind of His voice even now,
are the same one whose clothes are hot to the touch
when God makes the land go still beneath the south wind.
18Can you assist God in hammering out the silver sky
until it appears as hard as cast metal mirror?*
19*Job,* tell us what to say to Him.
We cannot draw up our argument before such impenetrable darkness.
20Shall He be told that I wish to speak to Him directly?
Will it help if I admit I would be consumed if I did?

21But now no one can see the brightness of the light through the thick clouds;
as the wind changes and blows through the sky, it clears the air.
22From the north, the weather changes;
golden skies encircle God, now clothed in awesome majesty.
23We cannot find the Highest One:*
He is exalted in power,
Great in righteousness,
and does not depreciate humanity.
24This is why mortals fear Him;
He doesn't see the wise of heart.*

38 Out of the raging storm, the Eternal One answered Job.

Eternal One: 2Who is this that darkens counsel, who covers over sound instruction with empty words void of knowledge?
3Now, prepare yourself and gather your courage like a warrior.
Prepare yourself for the task at hand.
I'll be asking the questions, now—
you will supply the answers.
4Where were you when I dug and laid the foundation of the earth?
Explain it to me, if you are acquainted with understanding.
5Who decided on the measurements?
Surely you know that!
Who stretched out a line to measure the dimensions?

* 37:18 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 37:23 Hebrew, Shaddai * 37:24 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

6 Upon what base was the foundation set?
Or who laid the cornerstone 7 On the day when the stars of the morning broke out in song and God's heavenly throng, elated, shouted along?

8 Who held back the sea behind doors and brought the earth bursting forth from the womb of the deep,
9 When for clothes I gave it a cloud and for swaddling I wrapped it in
darkness,
10 When I placed shores around its limits
and put up the doors and the bars; 11 And I said to the sea, "Here you may come, but no farther.
And here is the shore where your grand waves will crash."

12 In your short run of days, have you ever commanded the morning to begin
or taught the sun to rise in its
place?
13 Under your watch has the early light ever taken hold of the earth by the edges
and shaken the wicked loose?
14 Under dawn's early light the earth takes shape
as does clay when a seal is firmly pressed in it;
Its colors and features stand out as a well-made garment does from the body.
15 Yet the light is withheld from the
wicked,
and the arm is snapped off of the oppressors.

16 Have you entered into the sea's tidewaters
or trod the bottom of the ocean
looking for the deepest cavern?
17 Have you found it, only for death's infamous gates to be unveiled
to you,
or did you catch a glimpse of the gates of the deep darkness
beneath the waters?
18 Have you roamed the earth in her entirety, comprehended her vast regions?
If you know all of this, declare it!
Make your statement!

19 Tell me, which way is it to where the light resides?
And darkness? Where does the darkness live?
20 When you escort it through its regions
every day,
will you know the way to its home?
21 Ah, but of course you know!
After all, you were born way back
then when all this was created,
and your days have been many
indeed.

22 Have you visited the vast, cold treasury
where the snow is stored, or have you gazed on the shimmering, frozen armories
where the hail is held, 23 The hail which I keep on reserve for the time of great trouble,
for the day of battle, the day of
war?
24 Where is the way to the realm where light is scattered across creation, and where is the field where the east wind is divided up and sent across the face of the
earth?

25 Who cut the channel for the flooding rivers
or paved a path for the thunderbolt 26 So that rain might fall on an uninhabited land,
even on a wilderness where no
human sets foot
27 So that the desolate desert and the withering wasteland are satisfied,
so that the grass is made to sprout
in that seemingly forsaken place?
28 And does the rain have a father?
Who sires the drops of dew?
29 From whose womb comes the ice?
And who gives birth to the sky's
pale, thick frost?
30 When water seems to turn to stone,
the face of the deep freezes to imprison its inhabitants.

31 Can you bind together a cluster of twinkling stars—
the seven sisters of Pleiades who keep
company in the night sky?
Can you loosen the cords of Orion's
bow?
32 Can you lead the stars* of the Zodiac
out in their proper seasons
and guide the Bear with her cubs?

* 38:32 Hebrew, Mazzaroth

33 Do you know the rules of the heavens, or apportion their influence on the seasons of the earth?

34 Can you bellow out orders at the clouds
and pull down a flood of rain
around you?
35 Can you dispatch bolts of lightning on their way,
who instantly obey and say to you,
"Here we are"?
36 Who put wisdom within the center of the created or granted understanding to the mind?*
37 Who has the wisdom to count the clouds *and send them on their
way*
or tip over the water skins of heaven to refresh the ground below
38 When the dry dust is as hard as metal and clods of clay clump together?

39 Can you hunt prey for the lioness or sate the appetites of her cubs 40 While they crouch in their dens
and wait in the brush?
41 Who nourishes the hungry raven when its young chirp to God and wander for want of food?

39 Eternal One: Do you know the time when the mountain
goats give birth?
Do you attend at the doe's delivery?
2 Can you keep track of the months until each carries to term?
Do you even know their calving
season?
3 They drop to their knees to birth their young,
and their labor pains cease to grip.
4 Their offspring grow to their full strength in the open field;
then they leave and do not return.

5 Who set the wild donkey free?
Who cut it loose from its bonds?
6 I gave it the wastelands for a home
and the salt flats for a dwelling.
7 It avoids the commotion of the city;
it is far from the shouts of the mule
driver and never has to obey
one.
8 Instead, it trundles through hills in search of pasture,
its eyes ever watchful for a patch
of green.
9 Is the wild ox willing to serve you?
Will it be content to stay the night
beside your feeding trough?
10 Can you confine the wild ox with a rope to plow a straight furrow?
Will it cultivate the valleys as you pull him along?
11 Can you trust it simply because of its enormous strength?
Can you really leave your work to it without guiding it?
12 Can you depend on it to return the remaining seed to you,
to carry the grain to your threshing
floor?

God now speaks to Job of the ostrich. Is Job as foolish as this stupid bird who leaves her eggs on the ground?

13 The ostrich flaps her wings,
and the ringing joy is heard.
But her wings and pinions are not like a stork's. She cannot fly.
14 She is different from other birds,
for she lays her eggs straight on the
ground,
and she incubates them in the bare
dust.
15 She forgets that a foot might crush
them
or a wild animal trample them.
16 She is harsh to her young, as if they were not even hers.
She is unconcerned at the futility of her labor,
17 For God denied her a share of wisdom,
and in doling out understanding,
He passed her by.
18 Oh and yet, look at her when the time comes to run—
she spreads her strange wings and laughs at the horse who must be guided by his rider
although she is an absurd bird who can't even fly.

19 And oh, of course—now let us speak of the horse!
Do you give that creature its power?
Do you adorn its neck with that flowing mane?
20 Do you make it leap like a locust and terrify the enemy with its dreadful snorting?

* 38:36 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

21It paws and stamps the valley ground,
prancing and gloating at its strength;
and it greets the battle with a charge.
22It laughs at fear, is a stranger to panic,
and will not turn away from any oncoming blade.
23*Though* the quiver's arrows rattle at its side,
though the spear and lance flash in its eyes, 24It is a storm and a fury devouring the ground ahead,
set off by the blast of the trumpet, unable to stand still.
25Stirred by the trumpet sound to charge,
the horse responds with its own blast
and smells the blood of battle from a distance,
amid commands barked by officers and shouts of alarm.

26Does the hawk take flight by your wisdom,
stretching its wings toward the south?
27Does the eagle take flight at your command,
or build its nest in the towering heights?
28On jutting cliffs it lives and keeps the night;
on rocky crags it builds its mountain stronghold.
29From there it spies its prey;
its keen eyes discover its victim still far off.
30Its young ones feast on blood,
and wherever the slain lie, there it is.

40 The Eternal continued speaking to Job.

Eternal One: 2*Have you heard enough?*
Will the one who finds fault with the Highest One* now make his case?
Let God's accuser answer Him!

3Job answered the Eternal.

Job: 4Oh, I am so small. How can I reply to You?
I'll cover my mouth with my hand,
for I've already said too much.
5One time I have spoken, and I have no answer to give—
two times, and I have nothing more to add.

6The Eternal spoke to Job from the raging storm.

Eternal One: 7Now, prepare yourself and gather your courage like a warrior.
Prepare yourself for the task at hand.
I'll be asking the questions, now—
you will supply the answers.
8*Let Me ask you a new question:*
Would you go so far as to call into question My judgment?
Would you imagine Me guilty merely in order to justify yourself?
9Do you have an arm just as powerful as God's and does your voice thunder as His does?

10Then dress yourself up in majesty and dignity.
Deck yourself out in honor and splendor
11*And indulge your anger*.
Unleash your wrath!
Look down on each and every proud soul, and cut him low.
12Look down on all who are proud, and humiliate them.
Raise your mighty foot, and stomp the wicked where they stand.
13Bury them all together in the dirt, and shroud their frozen faces in the secret recesses of the grave.
14*If you can execute all this,*
then I—yes, even I—will praise you,
for your great and mighty right hand earned you the victory!

15*But before you undertake My challenge,*
turn your attention to Behemoth,
The beast which I fashioned along with you.

► Behemoth isn't just any beast. Because of the Hebrew grammatical construction, it is apparent that Behemoth is the largest, strongest beast the Lord ever created. With the exception

* 40:2 Hebrew, Shaddai

In modern times, a leviathan is understood as something large and formidable. It may apply to an abstract entity, such as a totalitarian state, or to an actual monster, such as Captain Nemo's giant squid. That modern idea is based on an ancient creation myth. Psalm 74 alludes to God's conquest of Leviathan, a seven-headed monster that breathed fire, before His creation of the world. Leviathan was the master of chaos, living somewhere in the deep along with Rahab, another sea monster. The story goes that God chopped off six of Leviathan's heads and imprisoned it in the deepest parts of the ocean, where it remains today. Leviathan creeps up occasionally in the Bible as a terrifying adversary, most notably in Revelation where it is described as a dragon or beast that comes up out of the sea and is specifically identified as Satan (Revelation 12:9; 13:1-3). So Leviathan will get another chance to fight God, but once again it will fall to the One who brought divine order to chaos.

of his dreadful size and strength, Behemoth's description seems to be one of a peaceful animal—hanging out by the river and chewing its cud. Ancient Jewish myth describes him otherwise: the primal land monster will one day fight against the primal sea monster, Leviathan, bringing chaos; their deaths will end the world. This legend may be the backdrop of Behemoth's description here, and some see it obliquely referenced in the New Testament. In Revelation the beast who is the antichrist is accompanied by the false prophet; but Leviathan isn't the one who kills Behemoth, or the false prophet as some see him. God throws the false prophet and the antichrist into the "lake of fire that burns with sulfur" (Revelation 19:20; 20:10).

Eternal One: It eats grass like an ox.
16 Look carefully: it has a sturdy, muscular base and draws its power from its brawny core.
17 Its bends like a cedar,
the sinews of its powerful thighs are woven tightly.
18 Its bones, unbreakable, are like tubes of bronze;
its whole skeletal structure is like a framework of iron.
19 It is one of My most marvelous creations;
only I, its Maker, can threaten its existence.
20 The hillsides offer it food as it grazes near where the wild animals bustle and play.
21 It lies beside the river under the shade of the lotus,
hidden by the reeds of the marsh;
22 The lotus trees cover it with their shadows;
the willows of the stream surround it.
23 It is not alarmed when the river rises and rages;
it stands confident, firmly fixed,
Even when the Jordan swells and rushes against it.
24 Can anyone capture this beast while it is watching or trap it and pierce its nose to haul it off?

41 Eternal One: Now let us not stop here.
What of Leviathan?
Can you haul it in on the end of a hook
or strap down its tongue with your line?
2 Will you subdue it with a fragile reed through its nose or pierce its jaw with a hook?
3 Do you imagine it will beg you endlessly for mercy or lower its voice to a whisper when speaking to you?
4 Will it strike a deal with you and enter into your service as a lifelong slave?
5 Will you play with it as you would a pet bird or put it on a leash for your girls?
6 Will traders haggle over its price
and others seek to divide it up among the merchants?
7 Can you fill its hide with harpoons
or its head with fishing spears?

8 If you are able to lay a hand on it,
You will remember the struggle all of your days,
and you will never do it again.
9 Now look, any expectation you could subdue it will be shattered.
Just the sight of it is enough to overpower you.
10 No one is fierce enough to dare disturb it.
So is there anyone in all the earth who dares to stand up to Me?
11 Who could ever confront Me and force Me to repay him?
Everything and everyone under heaven is Mine!*

12 I will not be silent regarding Leviathan's powerful limbs,
its enormous strength, or its beautiful form.
13 Who can reveal what is under its outer armor covering or penetrate down through its double coat of mail?
14 Who can pry open its enormous jaws?
Remember: its teeth are a terror from every angle.
15 Its back is covered with rows of shields that overlap and shut with a tight seal—
16 One against another,
so close that no wind passes between them.
17 They are joined to one another, inseparably locked.
18 When it sneezes, light flashes from its nostrils;
its eyes are like the rays of the morning sun.
19 Fire streams from its mouth
as fiery sparks fly outward.
20 Smoke pours from its nostrils
as from a boiling pot or a brush fire.
21 Its searing breath sets coals ablaze;
its flaming tongue darts from its mouth.
22 Leviathan's neck bristles with raw power;
terror dances before him.
23 The creases in its flesh fuse together:
firm, fixed, immovable.
24 Its heart is rock hard,
as hard as a lower millstone, impervious to grinding.
25 When the beast rises up and moves near,
the mighty ones shudder in fear;
when it crashes down, they retreat.
26 The sword that reaches it may strike but to no effect,
so, too, the spear, the dart, and the lance.
27 For it treats iron as straw and bronze as rotten wood.
28 The arrow cannot force its retreat,
and the stone from the sling shatters on impact.
29 A club is no more dangerous to it than a piece of straw;
it taunts and laughs at the rattling lance.
30 Its underbelly is as sharp as broken pottery shards;
it easily dredges a channel in the mud behind it.
31 It brings the deep to a rolling boil like a pot over a hot fire;
in its course it stirs the sea like a pot of ointment.
32 Behind it, the wake is bright and shining,
as if the sea has long white hair.
33 Nothing on earth is its equal,
this creature fashioned without fear.
34 It looks upon all the high and mighty—
this king over the children of pride.

42 Job answered the Eternal One.

Job: 2 I know You can do everything;
nothing You do can be foiled or frustrated.
3 You asked,
"Who is this that conceals counsel with empty words void of knowledge?"*
And now I see that I spoke of—but did not comprehend—great wonders that are beyond me. I didn't know.
4 You said, "Hear Me now, and I will speak.
I'll be asking the questions, and you will supply the answers."*
5 Before I knew only what I had heard of You,
but now I have seen You.
6 Therefore I realize the truth:
I disavow and mourn all I have said and repent in dust and ash.

7 After the Eternal had spoken these words to Job, He turned and spoke to Eliphaz from Teman.

* 41:11 Romans 11:35 * 42:3 Job 38:2 * 42:4 Job 38:3; 40:7

Eternal One: My anger is burning against you and your two friends because you have not spoken rightly of Me, as My servant Job has. [8]So now, gather your friends and bring seven bulls and seven rams. Then go to My servant Job, make a burnt offering for yourselves, and he will pray for you. I will accept his prayer. Despite the fact that you have not spoken rightly of Me, as My servant Job did, I will not deal with you according to your foolish ways.

[9]So Eliphaz from Teman, Bildad from Shuhah, and Zophar from Naamath went and did as the Eternal commanded, and He accepted Job's prayer for them.

[10]The Eternal restored the fortunes of Job after he prayed for his friends; He even doubled the wealth he had before. [11]All of his brothers and sisters, along with those he had known earlier, came and shared meals with him at his house. They sympathized with him and consoled him regarding the great distress the Eternal had brought on him. Each guest gave him a sum of money and each, a golden ring. [12]The Eternal One blessed the last part of Job's life even more than the first part. He went on to possess 14,000 sheep, 6,000 camels, 1,000 teams of oxen, and 1,000 female donkeys. [13]He also fathered 7 more sons and 3 more daughters. [14]He named his first daughter Jemimah, his second Keziah, and his third Keren-happuch. [15]Nowhere in all the land could one find women as captivatingly beautiful as Job's daughters, or as independently wealthy: their father gave them each a share of the family inheritance along with their brothers. [16]After all this, Job lived 140 years. He lived to see his children and their children and so on, to the fourth generation. [17]Then Job died, old, and satisfied with his days.

PSALMS

The collected psalms to be sung or read in worship

By David and other gifted musicians

01 02 03 04 05 06

Psalms is an anthology of hymns, laments, and songs composed of Hebrew poetry and collected over five centuries. It functioned as a kind of hymnbook for Israel, expressing the love and devotion of God's people. The Greek word psalmos refers to plucking a string or playing an instrument. So these "psalms" contain the words chanted and sung by priests, Levites, and perhaps other worshipers to musical accompaniment. It is likely that many were sung along with sacrifices, offerings, and general prayers to God offered in the Jerusalem temple.

Tradition associates Psalms with King David, a celebrated musician and poet in his own right (1 Samuel 16:16-23; 2 Samuel 1:17-27), who not only composed psalms but inspired them as well. As later generations of priests collected individual psalms, they added superscriptions to many that attribute authorship, provide musical direction, and offer a historical context for the psalms. The association with David is so thorough that many psalms are said to offer insight into the mind of David during some of his most difficult days.

The Book of Psalms is comprised of many different kinds of songs. The most common are hymns of praise or thanksgiving that celebrate God's love and goodness to His people. Another large group of psalms are laments that complain to God about some threat (individual or national) and plead for His assistance. Then there are royal psalms that celebrate the reign of God's anointed king. Psalms 120–134 form a collection of psalms that were sung, apparently, on the journey to the Jerusalem temple. Then there are wisdom psalms that teach and encourage the faithful to pursue life according to God's teachings. These categories are not exhaustive but do represent the rich prayers and expressions of praise in Israel's response to God and His covenant.

In its current form, the Book of Psalms is divided unevenly into five books, a clear association with the Torah (the first five books of the Scriptures). Psalms offers a different kind of vehicle to teach about God's past, present, and future engagement with His people providing comfort as well as instruction. Jesus and His disciples read some of the psalms prophetically and saw parts of their own story written within their lines. Today many people read the psalms devotionally, discovering in these ancient verses a way of expressing their cares, concerns, and love for the one True God.

Book One (Psalms 1–41) is attributed almost entirely to David; all but four of the psalms (1–2; 10; 33) are ascribed to him. In Hebrew Psalm 10 is a continuation of Psalm 9 because it was composed as an acrostic poem. Likewise, many Hebrew manuscripts combine Psalm 33 with 32. Only later are these divided into separate psalms. Psalm 1 sets the stage for the entire collection by explaining that the study of the Word of God is the foundation of a meaningful, prosperous life.

BOOK ONE

Psalm 1

[1]God's blessings follow you and await you at every turn:
when you don't follow the advice of those who delight in wicked schemes,
When you avoid sin's highway,
when judgment and sarcasm beckon you, but you refuse.
[2]For you, the Eternal's Word is your happiness.
It is your focus—from dusk to dawn.
[3]You are like a tree, planted by flowing, cool streams of water that never run dry.
Your fruit ripens in its time;
your leaves never fade or curl in the summer sun.
No matter what you do, you prosper.

[4]For those who focus on sin, the story is different.
They are like the fallen husk of wheat, tossed by an open wind, left deserted and alone.
[5]In the end, the wicked will fall in judgment;
the guilty will be separated from the innocent.
[6]Their road suddenly will end in death,
yet the journey of the righteous has been charted by the Eternal.

Psalm 2

[1]You are wondering: What has provoked the nations to embrace anger and chaos?*
Why are the people making plans to pursue their own vacant and empty greatness?
[2]Leaders of nations stand united;
rulers put their heads together, plotting against the Eternal One and His Anointed King, trying to figure out [3]How they can throw off the gentle reign of God's love, step out from under the restrictions of His claims to advance their own schemes.

[4]At first, the Power of heaven laughs at their silliness.
The Eternal mocks their ignorant selfishness.
[5]But His laughter turns to rage, and He rebukes them.
As God displays His righteous anger, they begin to know the meaning of fear. He says, [6]"I am the One who appointed My king who reigns from Zion, My mount of holiness.
He is the one in charge."

[7]I am telling all of you the truth. I have heard the Eternal's decree.
He said clearly to me, "You are My son.
Today I have become your Father.
[8]The nations shall be yours for the asking,
and the entire earth will belong to you.
[9]They are yours to crush with an iron scepter,
yours to shatter like fragile, clay pots."

[10]So leaders, kings, and judges,
be wise, and be warned.
[11]There is only one God, the Eternal;
worship Him with respect and awe;
take delight in Him and tremble.
[12]Bow down before God's son.
If you don't, you will face His anger and retribution,
And you won't stand a chance.
For it doesn't take long to kindle royal wrath,

But blessings await all who trust in Him.
They will find God a gentle refuge.

* 2:1 Greek manuscripts read, "rage."

Psalm 3

A song of David composed while fleeing from his son Absalom.

This Davidic psalm recalls the time when David fled from Jerusalem after Absalom, his son, rebelled and claimed the throne (2 Samuel 15–17).

1 Eternal One, my adversaries are many,
too many to count.
Now they have taken a stand
against me!
2 Right to my face they say,
"God will not save you!"

[pause]*

3 But You, Eternal One, wrap around me like an impenetrable shield.
You give me glory and lift my eyes
up to the heavens.
4 I lift my voice to You, Eternal One,
and You answer me from Your sacred heights.

[pause]

5 I lie down at night and fall asleep.
I awake in the morning—healthy, strong, vibrant—because the Eternal supports me.
6 No longer will I fear my tens of thousands of enemies
who have surrounded me!

7 Rise up, O Eternal One!
Rescue me, O God!
For You have dealt my enemies a strong blow to the jaw!
You have shattered their teeth! Do so again.

8 Liberation truly comes from the Eternal.
Let Your blessings shower down upon Your people.

[pause]

Psalm 4

For the worship leader. A song of David accompanied by strings.

1 Answer my prayers, O True God, the righteous, who makes me right.
I was hopelessly surrounded, and
You rescued me.
Once again hear me; hide me in Your
favor;
bring victory in defeat and hope in hopelessness.

2 How long will you sons of Adam *steal
my dignity,* reduce my glory to shame?
Why pine for the fruitless and dream a delusion?

[pause]*

3 Understand this: The Eternal One treats as special those like Him.
The Eternal will answer my prayers and save me.

4 Think long; think hard. When you are angry, don't let it carry you into sin.
When night comes, in calm be silent.

[pause]

5 From this day forward, offer to God the right sacrifice from a heart made right by God.
Entrust yourself to the Eternal.

6 Crowds of disheartened people ask, "Who can show us what is good?"
Let Your brilliant face shine upon us, O Eternal One, that we may know the undeniable answer.
7 You have filled me with joy, and happiness has risen in my heart,
great delight and unrivaled joy,
even more than when bread
abounds and wine flows freely.
8 Tonight I will sleep securely on a bed of peace
because I trust You, You alone,
O Eternal One, will keep me safe.

Psalm 5

For the worship leader. A song of David accompanied by flutes.*

► The various psalms reflect nearly every human emotion: unbridled joy, deep-seated jealousy, seething anger,

* 3:2 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 4:2 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 5:title Hebrew, nehiloth, meaning is uncertain. Only use of this word in the Old Testament.

hope, and depression. These are only a few of the emotions behind the poetry we hear expressed in individual psalms. Feelings and emotions are central to what it means to be human. We cannot escape them nor should we. Psalms invites us to take the emotions we feel and bring them before God. This book models how to come before God in times of sadness, brokenness, and joy. Psalm 5 is a cry for help and a plea for guidance by a person who suffered at the hands of an enemy. It talks about the morning as the time to pray and listen for God to answer. Like many laments, it begins with a cry but ends in confidence.

[1]Bend Your ear to me and listen to my words, O Eternal One;
hear the deep cry of my heart.
[2]Listen to my call for help,
my King, my True God;
to You alone I pray.
[3]In the morning, O Eternal One, listen
for my voice;
in the day's first light, I will offer
my prayer to You and watch expectantly for Your answer.

[4]You're not a God who smiles at sin;
You cannot abide with evil.
[5]The proud wither in Your presence;
You hate all who pervert and destroy what is good.
[6]You destroy those with lying lips;
the Eternal detests those who murder and deceive.

[7]Yet I, by Your loving grace,
am welcomed into Your house;
I will turn my face toward Your holy
place
and fall on my knees in reverence
before You.
[8]O Eternal One, lead me in the path of Your righteousness
amidst those who wish me harm;
make Your way clear to me.

[9]Their words cannot be trusted;
they are destructive to their cores.
What comes out of their mouths is as foul as a rotting corpse;
their words stink of flattery.

[10]Find them guilty, O True God; let their own devices bring them
ruin.
Throw them out, and let them drown in
the deluge of their sin,
for in revolt they brazenly spit in
Your face.

[11]But let those who run to You for safety
be glad they did;
let them break out in joyful song.
May You keep them safe—their love for You resounding in their hearts.
[12]You, O Eternal, are the One who lays all good things in the laps of the right-hearted.
Your blessings surround them like a shield.

Psalm 6

For the worship leader. A song of David accompanied by the lyre.*

[1]O Eternal One, don't punish me in Your anger
or harshly correct me.
[2]Show me grace, Eternal God. I am completely undone.
Bring me back together, Eternal
One. Mend my shattered bones.
[3]My soul is drowning in darkness.
How long can You, the Eternal, let things go on like this?

[4]Come back, Eternal One, and lead me
to Your saving light.
Rescue me because I know You are truly compassionate.
[5]I'm alive for a reason—I can't worship
You if I'm dead.
If I'm six feet under, how can
I thank You?

[6]I'm exhausted. I cannot even speak, my voice fading as sighs.
Every day ends in the same place—
lying in bed, covered in tears,
my pillow wet with sorrow.
[7]My eyes burn, devoured with grief;
they grow weak as I constantly watch for my enemies.

[8]All who are evil, stay away from me because the Eternal hears my voice, listens as I cry.
[9]The Eternal God hears my simple prayers;
He receives my request.

* 6:title Hebrew, sheminith, perhaps an eight-stringed instrument from a root meaning "eight"

10All who seek to destroy me will be humiliated;
they will turn away and suddenly crumble in shame.

Psalm 7

A song* of David to the Eternal regarding Cush, the Benjaminite.

1O Eternal my God, in You I seek refuge.
Save me from those who are chasing me. Rescue me, 2Or else they will tear me to pieces as a lion devours his prey;
they will carry me off with no one to snatch me from their jaws.

3O Eternal my God, if I have done anything wrong to deserve this,
if there is blood on my hands,
4If I have mistreated a friend, or if I have stolen from an adversary
without just cause, 5Then let my enemy come after me and catch me,
stomping me into the ground,
ending my life,
and grinding my honor into the dirt.

[pause]*

6Arise, O Eternal One, inflamed by Your
anger.
Come and counter the rage of my adversaries;
open Your eyes, my God; hear my plea for justice once and for all.

7Let the people gather around You.
Return to Your rightful place above
them in the high court.
8The Eternal will judge the nations.
Judge me now, Eternal One,
according to my virtue and
integrity.

9Please, bring the evil actions of these wicked, wicked people to an end!
But secure the righteous,
For You, righteous God,
examine our hearts and minds.
10God is my defender;
He rescues those who have a pure
heart.
11God is a just judge;
He passes judgment daily against the person who does evil.
12If the wicked do not turn from their evil deeds, God will sharpen His
sword;
He will bend His bow, stringing it in readiness.
13*Yes,* He has prepared His deadly weapons
with His arrows flaming hot.
14See, my enemies are fertile with evil.
They conceive trouble
and give birth to deception.
15They prepare a trap, digging a deep pit, and fall into the snare they have made.
16The trouble they plan will return to punish them,
and their violent acts will come back to haunt them.

17*As a result,* I will thank the Eternal for His justice
and sing praises in honor of the Eternal, Most High.

Psalm 8

For the worship leader. A song of David accompanied by the harp.*

This Davidic psalm based on Genesis 1 celebrates not only God's majesty as Creator but also the unique place of human beings in His creation.

1O Eternal, our Lord,
Your majestic name is heard
throughout the earth;
Your magnificent glory shines far above
the skies.
2From the mouths and souls of infants and toddlers, the most innocent,
You have decreed power to stop
Your adversaries
and quash those who seek revenge.

3When I gaze to the skies and meditate on Your creation—
on the moon, stars, and all You have made,
4I can't help but wonder why You care about mortals—
sons and daughters of men—specks of dust floating about the cosmos.

5But You placed the son of man just beneath God

* 7:title Hebrew, shiggaion, meaning is uncertain. * 7:5 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 8:title Hebrew, gittith, a winepress or a musical instrument from Gath

and honored him like royalty,
crowning him with glory and honor.
6You ordained him to govern the works of Your hands,
to nurture the offspring of Your divine imagination;
You placed everything on earth beneath his feet:
7All kinds of domesticated animals,
even the wild animals in the fields and forests, 8The birds of the sky and the fish of the sea,
all the multitudes of living things that travel the currents of the oceans.

9O Eternal, our Lord,
Your majestic name is heard throughout the earth.

Psalm 9*

For the worship leader. A song of David to the tune "Death of a Son."*

► In the Hebrew manuscripts, Psalms 9 and 10 work as a unit because together they form an acrostic poem, meaning each stanza begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. This literary device has several functions. First, it provides a mnemonic device for easier memorization. Second, it is inherently beautiful; the rigid structure is a showcase for the author's literary talents. Finally, it conveys the idea of completion by describing the reasons God is to be praised "from A to Z." Psalm 9 offers David's thanks and praise to God for defeating his enemies. Psalm 10, on the other hand, is a lament complaining that God is far off while the poor and helpless suffer.

1All my heart will give thanks to You, Eternal One.
I will tell others about Your amazing works.
2I will be glad and celebrate You!
I will praise You, O Most High!

3When my adversaries turned and fled,
they fell and died right in front of You, 4For You supported my just cause.
From Your throne, You have judged wisely.

5You confronted the nations; You have destroyed the wicked.
You have erased their names from history.
6The enemy is finished, their time is up;
their cities will lie in ruin forever;
all memory of them is gone.

7Still the Eternal remains and will reign forever;
He has taken His place on His throne for judgment.
8So He will judge the world rightly.
He shall execute that judgment equally on all people.

9For the Eternal will be a shelter for those who know misery,
a refuge during troubling times.
10Those who know Your name will rely on You, for You, O Eternal One, have not abandoned those who search for You.

11Praise Him who lives on Zion's holy hill.
Tell the story of His great acts among the people!
12For He remembers the victims of violence and avenges their blood;
He does not turn a deaf ear to the cry of the needy.

13Be gracious to me, O Eternal One.
Notice the harm I have suffered because of my enemies,
You who carry me safely away from death's door, 14So that I may rehearse Your deeds, declare Your praise, and rejoice in Your rescue
when I take my stand in the gates of Zion.

15The nations have fallen into the pit they dug for others,
their own feet caught, snared by the net they hid.
16The Eternal is well known, for He has taken action and secured justice;

* Psalm 9 Psalms 9–10 were originally a single acrostic poem.
* 9:title Hebrew, muth-labben, perhaps the melody to which the song is sung

He has trapped the wicked through the work of their own hands.

[pause with music]*

17The wicked are headed for death and
the grave;
all the nations who forget the True
God will share a similar fate.

18For those in need shall not always be forgotten,
and the hope of the poor will never die.

19Eternal One, arise! Do not allow mere mortals to win the day.
Judge the nations Yourself.
20Put the fear of God in them, Eternal One!
Remind the nations they are mere men, not gods.

[pause]*

Psalm 10*

1Why, O Eternal One, are You so far
away?
Why can't You be found during troubling times?
2Mean and haughty people hunt down
the poor.
May they get caught up in their own wicked schemes.

3For the wicked celebrates the evil cravings of his heart
as the greedy curses and rejects the
Eternal.
4The arrogance of the wicked one keeps him from seeking the True God.
He truly thinks, "There is no God."

5His ways seem always to be successful;
Your judgments, too, seem far beyond him, out of his reach.
He looks down on all his enemies.
6In his heart he has decided, "Nothing will faze me.
From generation to generation
I will not face trouble."

7His mouth is full of curses, lies, and oppression.*
Beneath his tongue lie trouble and
wickedness.
8He hides in the shadows of the villages, waiting to ambush and kill the innocent in dark corners.
He eyes the weak and the poor.
9*Ominously,* like a lion in its lair,
he lurks in secret to waylay those who are downtrodden.
When he catches them, he draws them in
and drags them off with his net.

10Quietly crouching, lying low, ready to overwhelm the next by his
strength,
11The wicked thinks in his heart, "God has forgotten us!
He has covered His face and will never notice!"

12Arise, O Eternal, my True God. Lift up
Your hand.
Do not forget the downtrodden.
13Why does the wicked revile the True
God?
He has decided, "He will not hold me responsible."

14But wait! You have seen,
and You will consider the trouble and grief he caused.
You will impose consequences for his actions.
The helpless, the orphans, commit themselves to You,
and You have been their Helper.

15Break the arm of the one guilty of doing
evil;
investigate all his wicked acts;
hold him responsible for every last one of them.
16The Eternal will reign as King forever.
The other nations will be swept off
His land.

17O Eternal One, You have heard the longings of the poor and lowly.
You will strengthen them; You who are of heaven will hear them, 18Vindicating the orphan and the oppressed
so that men who are of the earth
will terrify them no more.

Psalm 11

For the worship leader. A song of David.

► Psalm 11 is a Davidic psalm expressing trust in the Eternal as a refuge and fortress for those who do what is right. David spent many years

* 9:16 Hebrew, higgaion selah, meaning is uncertain, possibly a musical direction * 9:20 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * Psalm 10 Psalms 9–10 were originally a single acrostic poem. * 10:7 Romans 3:14

struggling first with Saul, then with the neighboring nations, and finally against the rebellion led by his son Absalom.

[1]I am already in the soft embrace of the Eternal,
so why do you beckon me to leave, saying,
"Fly like a bird to the mountains.
[2]Look! The wicked approach with bows bent, sneaking around in the shadows,
setting their arrows against their bowstrings to pierce everyone whose heart is pure.
[3]If the foundations are crumbling,
is there hope for the righteous?"

[4]But the Eternal has not moved; He remains in His holy temple.
He sits squarely on His heavenly throne.
He observes the sons of Adam and daughters of Eve, examining us within and without,
exploring every fiber of our beings.
[5]The Eternal searches the hearts of those who are good,
but He despises all those who can't get enough of perversion and violence.
[6]If you are evil, He will rain hot lava over your head, will fill your cup with burning wind and liquid fire to scorch your insides.

[7]The Eternal is right in all His ways;
He cherishes all that is upright.
Those who do what is right in His eyes will see His face.

Psalm 12

For the worship leader. A song of David accompanied by the lyre.*

[1]Help me, O Eternal One, for I can't find anyone who follows You.
The faithful have fallen out of sight.
[2]Everyone tells lies through sweet-talking lips
and speaks from a hollow and deceptive heart.

[3]May the Eternal silence all sweet-talking lips,
stop all boasting tongues,
[4]Of those who say, "With our words we will win;
our lips are our own. Who is the master of our souls?"

[5]"I will rise up," says the Eternal,
"because the poor are being trampled, and the needy groan for My saving help.
I will lift them up to the safety they long for."
[6]The promises of the Eternal, they are true, they are pure—like silver refined in a furnace,
purified seven times, they will be without impurity.

[7]You, O Eternal, will be their protector.
You will keep them safe from those around them forever.
[8]All around, those who are wicked parade—proud and arrogant— and people applaud their emptiness.

Psalm 13

For the worship leader. A song of David.

[1]How long, O Eternal One? How long will You forget me? Forever?
How long will You look the other way?

[2]How long must I agonize,
grieving Your absence in my heart every day?
How long will You let my enemies win?

[3]Turn back; respond to me, O Eternal, my True God!
Put the spark of life in my eyes, or I'm dead.
[4]My enemies will boast they have beaten me;
my foes will celebrate that I have stumbled.

[5]But I trust in Your faithful love;
my heart leaps at the thought of imminent deliverance by You.
[6]I will sing to the Eternal,
for He is always generous with me.

Psalm 14

For the worship leader. A song of David.

► This is a wisdom psalm that grieves over the pervasiveness of sin and its

* 12:title Hebrew, sheminith, perhaps an eight-stringed instrument from a root meaning "eight"

sad effects. It is repeated with minor changes in Psalm 53. Paul refers to this Davidic psalm to explain how all of humanity is tainted by sin (Romans 3:1-12).

[1]A wicked and foolish man truly believes there is no God.
They are vile, their sinfulness
nauseating to their Creator;
their actions are soiled and
repulsive; every deed is depraved;
not one of them does good.

[2]The Eternal leans over from heaven to survey the sons of Adam.
No one is missed, and no one can hide.
He searches to see who understands true wisdom,
who desires to know the True God.

[3]They all turn their backs, walking their own roads;
they are rancid, leaving a trail of rotten footsteps behind them;
not one of them does good,
not even one.

[4]Do the wicked have no clue about what really matters?
They devour my brothers and sisters the way a man eats his dinner.
They ignore the Eternal and don't call on Him, rejecting His reality
and truth.

[5]They shall secretly tremble behind closed doors, hearts beating hard within their chests,
knowing that God always avenges
the upright.
[6]You laugh at the counsel of the poor,
the needy, the troubled who put their trust in God.
You try to take away their only hope,
but the Eternal is a strong shelter in the heaviest storm.
[7]May a new day, a day of deliverance come for Israel, starting with Zion.
When the Eternal breaks the chains
of His oppressed people,
the family of Jacob will rejoice, and Israel will be delighted.

* 16:title Hebrew, miktam, meaning is uncertain.

Psalm 15

A song of David.

► A recurring theme in the psalms is the dwelling place of God and its importance in worship. This Davidic psalm considers the moral qualities of the person who wishes to approach God.

[1]Eternal One, who is invited to stay in Your dwelling?
Who is granted passage to Your holy mountain?

[2]Here is the answer: The one who lives with integrity, does what is
right,
and speaks honestly with truth from
the heart.
[3]The one who doesn't speak evil against others
or wrong his neighbor,
or slander his friends.
[4]The one who loathes the loathsome, honors those who fear the
Eternal,
And keeps all promises no matter the cost.
[5]The one who does not lend money
with gain in mind
and cannot be bought to harm an innocent name.

If you live this way, you will not be shaken and will live together with the Lord.

Psalm 16

A prayer* of David.

[1]Protect me, God, for the only safety
I know is found in the moments
I seek You.
[2]I told You, Eternal One, "You are my Lord,
for the only good I know in this world is found in You alone."

[3]The beauty of faith-filled people encompasses me.
They are true, and my heart is thrilled beyond measure.

4*All the while* the despair of many,
who abandoned Your goodness for the empty promises of false gods, increases day by day.
I refuse to pour out blood offerings,
to utter their names from my lips.

5You, Eternal One, are my sustenance and my life-giving cup.
In that cup, You hold my future and my eternal riches.
6My home is surrounded in beauty;
You have gifted me with *abundance
and* a rich legacy.

7I will bless the Eternal, whose wise teaching orchestrates my days
and centers my mind at night.
8He is ever present with me;
at all times He goes before me.
I will not live in fear or abandon my calling
because He stands at my right
hand.

9*This is a good life*—my heart is glad, my soul is full of joy,
and my body is at rest.
Who could want for more?
10You will not abandon me to experience death and the grave
or leave me to rot alone.

11*Instead,* You direct me on the path that leads to a beautiful life.
As I walk with You, the pleasures are never-ending,
and I know true joy and contentment.

Psalm 17

A prayer of David.

1Listen, O Eternal One, to my cry for
justice.
These words of mine are true—turn
Your ear toward me.
2Announce that I am free of all the charges against me—only You can see into my heart to know that to be true.
Treat me with fairness; look at me
with justice.
3You have searched me—my heart and soul—awakened me from dreaming and tested me.
You've found nothing against me.
I have resolved not to sin in what
I say.

4The path violent men have followed,
I will not travel. Violence is not my
way.
Your ways and Your voice now guide
my journey.
5*I will press on*—moving steadfastly forward along Your path.
I will not look back. I will not stumble.

6I am crying aloud to You, O True God,
for I long to know Your answer.
Hear me, O God. Hear my plea. *Hear
my prayer for help.*
7Put Your marvelous love on display for all to see.
Liberator of those who long for shelter beside You,
set them safely away from their enemies, ever welcomed by grace.

8Keep close watch over me as the apple
of Your eye;
shelter me in the shadow of Your wings.
9*Protect me* from the wicked who are poised to attack,
from the enemies swarming around me and closing in quickly.
10*Like clay baking in the sun,* their hearts
have hardened;
arrogance spills from their mouths.
11They've tracked me down like quarry.
They're surrounding me
and are poised to throw me down into the dirt.
12Like a lion—crouching in the brush—
they are ready to tear me apart.
Like young lions in their hiding places, they are poised to strike.

13Rise up and confront them, O Eternal
One! Make them pay.
By Your sword, set me free from my wicked enemies!
14*May Your rescue find me here.*
By Your hand, save me from my enemies, Eternal One.
Save me from men whose hopes are rooted in this world.
But as for those You cherish,
may they feast on all You have set aside for them;
may their children never be in need;
may they have enough so their children will inherit their wealth.

15But as for me, my hope is to see Your face.

When I am vindicated, I will look upon the holy face of God, and when I awake, the longing of my soul will be satisfied in the glow of Your presence.

Psalm 18

For the worship leader. A song of David, the Eternal One's servant, who addressed these words to the Eternal after He had rescued him from Saul and his other enemies.

This Davidic psalm is also found in 2 Samuel 22. It expresses gratitude to God for saving him.

1 I love You, Eternal One, source of my power.
2 The Eternal is my rock, my fortress,
and my salvation;
He is my True God, the stronghold
in which I hide,
my strong shield, the horn that calls forth help, and my tall-walled tower.
3 I call out to the Eternal, who is worthy to be praised—that's how I will be rescued from
my enemies.

4 The bonds of death encircled me;
the currents of destruction tugged
at me;
5 The sorrows of the grave wrap
around me;
the traps of death lay in wait
for me.

6 In my time of need, I called to the
Eternal;
I begged my True God for help.
He heard my voice echo up to His
temple,
and my cry came to His ears.

7 Because of His great anger, the earth
shook and staggered;
the roots of the mountains shifted.
8 Smoke poured out from His nose, and devouring fire burst from His mouth.
Coals glowed from Him.
9 He bent the heavens and descended;
inky darkness was beneath His feet.
10 He rode upon a heavenly creature,*
flying;
He was carried quickly on the wings
of the wind.
11 He took darkness as His hiding place—both the dark waters of the seas and the dark clouds of the sky.
12 Out from His brilliance hailstones and burning coals broke through the clouds.
13 The Eternal thundered in the heavens;
the Highest spoke; His voice rumbled [in the midst of hail and lightning].*
14 He shot forth His arrows and scattered
the wicked;
He flung forth His lightning and struck them.
15 Then the deepest channels of the seas
were visible,
and the very foundations of the world were uncovered
At Your rebuke, O Eternal One,
at the blast of wind from Your nostrils.

16 He reached down His hand from above
me; He held me.
He lifted me from the raging waters.
17 He rescued me from my strongest enemy,
from all those who sought my
death,
for they were too strong.
18 They came for me in the day of my
destruction,
but the Eternal was the support of
my life.
19 He set me down in a safe place;
He saved me to His delight; He took joy in me.

20 The Eternal One responded to me
according to my goodness;
I kept my hands clean, and He blessed me.
21 I kept the ways of the Eternal and have not walked away from my True God in wickedness.
22 All His laws were there before me,
and I did not push His statutes
away.
23 I was blameless before Him;
I kept myself from guilt and shame.
24 That's why the Eternal has rewarded
me for my right living;
He's rewarded me because He saw
my hands were clean.

25 You are loyal to those who are loyal;
with the innocent, You prove to be
innocent;

* 18:10 Hebrew, cherub * 18:13 Greek manuscripts and some Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

26With the clean, You prove to be clean;
and with the twisted, You make Yourself contrary.
27For You rescue humble people, but You bring the proud back in line.
28You are the lamp who lights my way;
the Eternal, my God, lights up my
darkness.
29With Your help, I can conquer an army;
I can leap over walls with a helping hand from You.
30Everything God does is perfect;
the promise of the Eternal rings
true;
He stands as a shield for all who hide in Him.

31Who is the True God except the
Eternal?
Who stands like a rock except our
God?
32The True God who encircled me with
strength
and made my pathway straight.
33He made me sure-footed as a deer and placed me high up where I am safe.
34He teaches me to fight
so that my arms can bend a bronze
bow.
35You have shielded me with Your
salvation,
supporting me with Your strong
right hand,
and it makes me strong.
36You taught me how to walk with care
so my feet will not slip.
37I chased my enemies and caught them and did not stop until they were destroyed.
38I broke them and threw them down
beneath my feet,
and they could not rise up again.
39For You equipped me for battle,
and You made my enemies fall
beneath me.
40You made my enemies turn tail and run,
and all who wanted my destruction,
I destroyed.
41They looked everywhere, but no one came to rescue them;
they asked the Eternal, but He did not answer them.
42I beat them to sand, to dust that blows
in the wind;
I flung them away like trash in the gutters.
43You rescued me from conflict with the peoples;
You raised me up to rule over
nations.
People who did not know me have come to serve me.
44Strangers come to me, afraid.
As soon as they hear about me,
they serve me;
45Strangers who have lost heart
come fearfully to me from behind their high walls.

46The Eternal is alive! My Rock is blessed, and exalted is the True God of my deliverance—
47The God who avenged me
and placed the peoples under me, 48Who rescued me from all my foes.
Truly, You raised me up above my enemies
and saved me from the violent
ones.

49For this I will praise You among the nations, O Eternal,
and sing praises to Your name.
50He is a tower of salvation for His king and shows His enduring love to His anointed,
to David and his descendants
forever.

Psalm 19

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1The celestial realms announce God's
glory;
the skies testify of His hands' great
work.
2Each day pours out more of their sayings;
each night, more to hear and more
to learn.
3Inaudible words are their manner of speech,
and silence, their means to convey.
4Yet from here to the ends of the earth,
their voices* have gone out;
the whole world can hear what they say.*

God stretched out in these heavens a tent for the sun, 5And the sun is like a groom who, after leaving his room, arrives
at the wedding in splendor;
He is the strong runner

* 19:4 Hebrew manuscripts read, "line." * 19:4 Romans 10:18

who, favored to win in his race, is eager to face his challenge.
6He rises at one end of the skies
and runs in an arc overhead;
nothing can hide from his heat,
from the swelter of his daily tread.

7The Eternal's law is perfect,
turning lives around.
His words are reliable and true,
instilling wisdom to open minds.
8The Eternal's directions are correct,
giving satisfaction to the heart.
God's commandments are clear,
lending clarity to the eyes.
9The awe of the Eternal is clean,
sustaining for all of eternity.
The Eternal's decisions are sound;
they are right through and through.
10They are worth more than gold—
even more than abundant, pure
gold.
They are sweeter to the tongue than honey
or the drippings of the honeycomb.

11In addition to all that has been said,
Your servant will find, hidden in Your commandments, both a strong warning
and a great reward for keeping
them.
12Who could possibly know all that he has done wrong?
Forgive my hidden and unknown
faults.
13As I am Your servant, protect me from my bent toward pride,
and keep sin from ruling my life.
If You do this, I will be without blame,
innocent of the great breach.

14May the words that come out of my mouth and the musings of my
heart
meet with Your gracious approval,
O Eternal, my Rock,
O Eternal, my Redeemer.

Psalm 20

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1May the Eternal's answer find you,
come to rescue you,
when you desperately cling to the end of your rope.
May the name of the True God of Jacob be your shelter.
2May He extend hope and help to you from His holy sanctuary and support you from His sacred city of Zion.
3May He remember all that you have offered Him;
may your burnt sacrifices serve as a prelude to His mercy.

[pause]*

4May He grant the dreams of your heart and see your plans through to the end.
5When you win, we will not be silent! We will shout
and raise high our banners in the great name of our God!
May the Eternal say yes to all your requests.

6*I don't fear;* I'm confident that help will come to the one anointed by the Eternal:
heaven will respond to his plea;
His mighty right hand will win the battle.
7Many put their hope in chariots, others
in horses,
but we place our trust in the name of the Eternal One, our True
God.
8Soon our enemies will collapse and fall,
never to return home;
all the while, we will rise and stand firm.

9Eternal One, grant victory to our king!
Answer our plea for help.

Psalm 21

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1The king is glad because You,
O Eternal, are strong.
In light of Your salvation, he is singing Your name.
2You have given him all he could wish
for.
After hearing his prayer, You withheld nothing.

[pause]*

3True blessings You lavished upon the king;
a crown of precious gold You placed upon his head.

* 20:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 21:2 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

4His prayer was to live fully. You responded with even more—
a never-ending life to enjoy.
5With Your help, his fame and glory
have grown;
You raise him high and cover him
in majesty.
6You shower him with blessings that last
forever;
he finds joy in knowing Your presence and loving You.
7For the king puts his trust in the Eternal,
so he will not be shaken
because of the persistent love of the Most High God.

8*King,* your hand will reach for all your
enemies;
your right hand will seize all who hate you.
9When you arrive at the battle's edge,
you will seem to them a furnace.
For the fire of the Eternal's anger, the heat of His wrath
will burn and consume them.
10You will cut off their children,
*lop off the branches of their family
tree.*
The earth will never know them,
nor will they ever be numbered among Adam's kin.
11When they scheme against you,
when they conspire their mischief,
such efforts will be in vain.
12At the sight of you, they will sound the retreat;
your bows, drawn back, will aim directly at their faces.

13Put Your strength, Eternal One, on display for all to see;
we will sing and make music of
Your mighty power.

Psalm 22

For the worship leader. A song of David to the tune "Deer of the Dawn."*

Jesus prayed this individual lament from the cross (Matthew 27:46; Mark 15:34). Though it begins with a sense of abandonment, it ends on a triumphant note.

1My God, my God, why have You turned Your back on me?
Your ears are deaf to my groans.
2O my God, I cry all day and You are silent;
my tears in the night bring no relief.

3Still, You are holy;
You make Your home on the praises
of Israel.
4Our mothers and fathers trusted in You;
they trusted, and You rescued
them.
5They cried out to You for help and were spared;
they trusted in You and were vindicated.

6But I am a worm and not a human being,
a disgrace and an object of scorn.
7Everyone who sees me laughs at me;
they whisper to one another I'm a loser; they sneer and mock me,
saying,
8"He relies on the Eternal; let the Eternal rescue him
and keep him safe because He is happy with him."

9But You are the One who granted me
life;
You endowed me with trust as
I nursed at my mother's breast.
10I was dedicated to You at birth; You've been my God from my mother's womb.
11Stay close to me—
trouble is at my door;
no one else can help me.

12I'm surrounded by many tormenters;
like strong bulls of Bashan,* they circle around me with their taunts.
13They open their mouths wide at me
like ravenous, roaring lions.

14My life is poured out like water,
and all my bones have slipped out
of joint.
My heart melts like wax inside me.
15My strength is gone, dried up like shards of pottery;
my dry tongue sticks to the roof of
my mouth;
You lay me in the dust of death.

16A throng of evil ones has surrounded me
like a pack of wild dogs;

* 22:title Hebrew, ayyeleth ha-shachar, perhaps the melody to which the song is sung * 22:12 A region east of the Sea of Galilee

Psalm 23 is the best known and most beloved psalm in the collection. Surprisingly, it casts humanity as sheep—stupid, helpless sheep. But the long-lasting appeal of Psalm 23 is a direct result of that casting because the imagery is both soothing and accessible.

When he was a boy, King David was a shepherd watching his father's flocks in the hills around Bethlehem. In those days, too, it was common to refer to kings in the Near East as shepherds; but not all shepherd-kings cared for their sheep. Though David tried to shepherd his people well, he knew the truth: the Eternal is the true Shepherd.

In John 10:11 Jesus makes a bold claim. He declares that He is the good shepherd. Immediately His disciples detected the resonance of Psalm 23 in His words. Those of us who follow Jesus today come to know Him as that gentle but strong shepherd who guides us through life if we will follow Him.

They* pierced my hands and ripped a hole in my feet.
17I count all my bones;
people gawk and stare at me.
18They make a game out of dividing my clothes among themselves;
they cast lots for the clothes on my back.

19But You, O Eternal, stay close;
O You, my help, hurry to my side.
20Save my life from violence,
my sweet life from the teeth of the wild dog.
21Rescue me from the mouth of the lion.
From the horns of the wild oxen, You responded to my plea.

22I will speak Your Name to my brothers and sisters
when I praise You in the midst of the community.
23You who revere the Eternal, praise Him—descendants of Jacob, worship Him;
be struck with wonder before Him, all you children of Israel.
24He's not put off
by the suffering of the suffering one;
He doesn't pretend He hasn't seen him;
when he pleaded for help, He listened.

25You stir my praise in the great assembly;
I will fulfill my vows before those who humble their hearts before Him.
26Those who are suffering will eat and be nourished;
those who seek Him will praise the Eternal.
May your hearts beat strong forever!
27Those from the farthest reaches of the earth will remember and turn back to look for the Eternal;
All the families of the nations will worship You.
28The Eternal owns the world;
He exercises His gentle rule over all the nations.

29All the wealthy of the world will eat and worship;
all those who fall in the dust will bow before Him,
even the life that is headed to the grave.
30Our children will serve Him;
future generations will hear the story of how the Lord rescued us.
31They will tell the generations to come
of the righteousness of the Lord,
of what He has done.

* 22:16 Most Hebrew manuscripts read, "like the lion."

Psalm 23

A song of David.

1The Eternal is my shepherd, He cares for me always.
2He provides me rest in rich, green fields
beside streams of refreshing water.
He soothes my fears;
3He makes me whole again,
steering me off worn, hard paths
to roads where truth and righteousness echo His name.

4Even in the unending shadows of death's darkness,
I am not overcome by fear.

Because You are with me in those dark moments,
near with Your protection and guidance,
I am comforted.

5You spread out a table before me,
provisions in the midst of attack from my enemies;
You care for all my needs, anointing my head with soothing, fragrant oil, filling my cup again and again with Your grace.
6Certainly Your faithful protection and loving provision will pursue me where I go, always, everywhere.
I will always be with the Eternal,
in Your house forever.

Psalm 24

A song of David.

1The earth and all that's upon it belong to the Eternal.
The world is His, with every living creature on it.
2With seas as foundations and rivers as boundaries,
He shaped the continents, fashioned the earth.

3Who can possibly ascend the mountain of the Eternal?
Who can stand before Him in sacred spaces?
4Only those whose hands have been washed and hearts made pure,
men and women who are not given to lies or deception.
5The Eternal will stand close to them with blessing and mercy at hand, and the God who redeems will right what has been wrong.
6These are the people who chase after Him;
[like Jacob, they look for the face of God].*

[pause]*

7City gates—open wide!
Ancient doors—stand back!
For the glorious King shall soon pass your way.
8Who is the glorious King?
The Eternal who is powerful and mightily equipped for battle.
9City gates—open wide!
Ancient doors—stand back!
For the glorious King shall soon pass your way.
10Who is the glorious King?
The Eternal, Commander of heaven's army,
He is the glorious King.

[pause]

Psalm 25

A song of David.

1*ALWAYS* I will lift up my soul to You, Eternal One,
2*BECAUSE You are* my God and I put my trust in You.
Do not let me be humiliated.
Do not let my enemies celebrate at my expense.
3CERTAINLY none of the people who rely on You will be shamed,
but those who are unfaithful, who intentionally deceive,
they are the ones who will be disgraced.

4DEMONSTRATE Your ways, O Eternal One.
Teach me to understand so I can follow.
5EASE me down the path of Your truth.
FEED me Your word
because You are the True God who has saved me.
I wait all day long, hoping, trusting in You.

6GRACIOUS Eternal One, remember Your compassion; rekindle Your concern and love, which have always been part of Your actions toward those who are Yours.
7Do not HOLD against me the sins I committed when I was young;
instead, deal with me according to Your mercy and love.
Then Your goodness may be demonstrated in all the world, Eternal One.

8*IMMENSELY* good and honorable is the Eternal;
that's why He teaches sinners the way.

* 24:6 Most Hebrew manuscripts read, "they look for your face, Jacob." * 24:6 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

9With JUSTICE, He directs the humble
in all that is right,
and He shows them His way.
10KIND and true are all the ways of the Eternal to the people who keep His covenant and His words.

11O LORD, the Eternal, bring glory to Your name,
and forgive my sins because they are beyond number.
12MAY anyone who fears the Eternal be shown the path he should choose.

13His soul will NOT only live in goodness, but his children will inherit the land.
14ONLY those who stand in awe of the Eternal will have intimacy with Him, and He will reveal His covenant to them.
15PERPETUALLY my focus takes me to the Eternal because He will set me free from the traps laid for me.

16*QUIETLY* turn Your eyes to me and be compassionate toward me because I am lonely and persecuted.
17*RAPIDLY* my heart beats as troubles build on the horizon.
Come relieve me from these threats.
18SEE my troubles and my misery,
and forgive all my sins.
19TAKE notice of my enemies.
See how there are so many of them who hate me and would seek my violent destruction.
20Watch over my soul,
and let me face shame and defeat UNASHAMED because You are my refuge.
21May honor and strong character keep me safe.
VIGILANTLY I wait for You, hoping, trusting.

22Save Israel from all its troubles,
O True God.

Psalm 26

A song of David.

1Declare my innocence, O Eternal One!
I have walked blamelessly down this path.
I placed my trust in the Eternal and have yet to stumble.

2Put me on trial and examine me, O Eternal One!
Search me through and through—from my deepest longings to every thought that crosses my mind.
3Your unfailing love is always before me;
I have journeyed down Your path of truth.

► A great theme throughout the psalms is the experience of coming before God. This Davidic psalm affirms the integrity of the worshiper before the Lord even while pleading for God's mercy.

4My life is not wasted among liars;
my days are not spent among cheaters.
5I despise every crowd intent on evil;
I do not commune with the wicked.

6I wash my hands in the fountain of innocence
so that I might join the gathering that surrounds Your altar, O Eternal One.
7*From my soul,* I will join the songs of thanksgiving;
I will sing and proclaim Your wonder and mystery.

8Your house, home to Your glory, O Eternal One, radiates its light.
I am fixed on this place and long to be nowhere else.
9When Your wrath pursues those who oppose You,
those swift to sin and thirsty for blood,
spare my soul and grant me life.
10These men hold deceit in their left hands,
and in their right hands, bribery and lies.

11But God, I have walked blamelessly down this path,
and this is my plea for redemption.
This is my cry for Your mercy.
12Here I stand secure and confident before all the people; I will praise the Eternal.

Psalm 27

A song of David.

[1]The Eternal is my light amidst my darkness
and my rescue in times of trouble.
So whom shall I fear?
He surrounds me with a fortress of protection.
So nothing should cause me alarm.

► The psalms provide us with a way to think about and pray through the various threats we face. Our enemies today may not be the same as in biblical times, but they are no less real. Consider the threats on the horizon. Some may be national. Others may be more personal. Still they come to surround us and destroy us if they could only get the chance. The reality is there are times when our enemies appear to have the upper hand and our cause is lost. But wait and listen to the psalm! All is not lost because, ultimately, God is our light and salvation. The darkness will lift, and our Savior will come. He will settle all scores, and we will live in the beauty of His presence.

[2]When my enemies advanced to devour me alive,
They tripped and fell flat on their faces into the soil.

[3]When the armies of the enemy surround me,
I will not be afraid.
When death calls for me in the midst of war,
my soul is confident and unmoved.

[4]I am pleading with the Eternal for this one thing,
my soul's desire:
To live with Him all of my days—
in the shadow of His temple,
To behold His beauty and ponder His ways
in the company of His people.

[5]His house is my shelter and secret retreat.
It is there I find peace in the midst of storm and turmoil.
Safety sits with me in the hiding place of God.
He will set me on a rock, high above the fray.

[6]God lifts me high above those with thoughts of death and deceit that call for my life.
I will enter His presence, offering sacrifices and praise.
In His house, I am overcome with joy
As I sing, yes, and play music for the Eternal alone.
[7]I cannot shout any louder. Eternal One—hear my cry
and respond with Your grace.
[8]The prodding of my heart leads me to chase after You.
I am seeking You, Eternal One—
don't retreat from me.
[9]You have always answered my call.
Don't hide from me now.

Don't give up on me in anger at Your servant.
You have always been there for me.
Don't throw me to the side and forget me,
my God and only salvation.
[10]My father and mother have deserted me,
yet the Eternal will take me in.

[11]O Eternal, show me Your way, shine Your light brightly on this path,
and make it level for me,
for my enemies are lurking in the recesses and ravines along the way.
[12]They are watching—hoping to seize me.
Do not release me to their desires or surrender me to their will!
Liars are standing against me,
breathing out cruel lies hoping that I will die.

[13]I will move past my enemies with this one, sure hope:
that with my own eyes, I will see the goodness of the Eternal in the land of the living.

[14]Please answer me: Don't give up.
Wait for the Eternal in expectation, and be strong.
Again, wait for the Eternal.

Psalm 28

A song of David.

[1]Eternal One, I am calling out to You;
You are the foundation of my life.
Please, don't turn Your ear
from me.
If You respond to my pleas with silence,
I will lose all hope like those silenced by death's grave.
[2]Listen to my voice.
You will hear me begging for Your help
With my hands lifted up in prayer,
my body turned toward Your holy
home.

► This Davidic psalm pleads with God to spare him and repay his enemies. It would be difficult to locate this psalm in any one event. During his life David faced many threats from different enemies; not only were these threats from outside his realm, but some of his most difficult challenges came from inside his own family.

[3]I beg You; don't punish me with the most heinous men.
They spend their days doing evil.
Even when they engage their neighbors
in pleasantness,
they are scheming against them.
[4]Pay them back for their deeds;
hold them accountable for their malice.
Give them what they deserve.
[5]Because these are people who have no respect for You, O Eternal, they ignore everything You have
done.
So He will tear them down with His powerful hands;
never will they be built again.

[6]The Eternal should be honored and revered;
He has heard my cries for help.
[7]The Eternal is the source of my strength and the shield that guards me.
When I learn to rest and truly trust
Him,
He sends His help. This is why my heart is singing!
I open my mouth to praise Him,
and thankfulness rises as song.

[8]The Eternal gives life and power to all His chosen ones;
to His anointed He is a sturdy
fortress.
[9]Rescue Your people, and bring prosperity to Your legacy;
may they know You as a shepherd,
carrying them at all times.

Psalm 29

A song of David.

[1]Give all credit to the Eternal,
O heavenly creatures;
give praise to Him for His glory and
power.
[2]Give to the Eternal the glory due His
name;
worship Him with lavish displays of sacred splendor.

[3]The voice of the Eternal echoes over the great waters;
God's magnificence roars like thunder.
The Eternal's presence hovers over all the waters.
[4]His voice explodes in great power *over
the earth.*
His voice is both regal and grand.

[5]The Eternal's voice shatters the
cedars;
His power splinters the great cedars
of Lebanon.
[6]He speaks, and Lebanon leaps like a young calf;
Sirion jumps like a wild,
youthful ox.

[7]The voice of the Eternal cuts through with flames of fire.
[8]The voice of the Eternal rumbles
through the wilderness
with great quakes;
He causes Kadesh to tremble.

[9]The Eternal's voice brings life from the doe's womb;
His voice strips the forest bare,
and all the people in the temple declare, "Glory!"

[10]The Eternal is enthroned over the great flood;
His reign is unending.

11We ask You, Eternal One, to give strength to Your people;
Eternal One, bless them with the gift of peace.

Psalm 30

A song of David. For the dedication of the temple.

1I praise You, Eternal One. You lifted me out of that deep, dark pit
and denied my opponents the pleasure of rubbing in their success.
2Eternal One, my True God, I cried out to You for help;
You mended the shattered pieces of my life.
3You lifted me from the grave with a mighty hand,
gave me another chance,
and saved me from joining those in that dreadful pit.

4Sing, all you who remain faithful!
Pour out your hearts to the Eternal with praise and melodies;
let grateful music fill the air and bless His name.
5His wrath, you see, is fleeting,
but His grace lasts a lifetime.
The deepest pains may linger through the night,
but joy greets the soul with the smile of morning.

6When things were quiet and life was easy, I said in arrogance,
"Nothing can shake me."
7By Your grace, Eternal,
I thought I was as strong as a mountain;
But when You left my side and hid away,
I crumbled in fear.

8O Eternal One, I called out to You;
I pleaded for Your compassion and forgiveness:
9"I'm no good to You dead! What benefits come from my rotting corpse?
My body in the grave will not praise You.
No songs will rise up from the dust of my bones.
From dust comes no proclamation of Your faithfulness.
10Hear me, Eternal Lord—please help me,
Eternal One—be merciful!"
11*You did it:* You turned my deepest pains into joyful dancing;
You stripped off my dark clothing and covered me with joyful light.
12*You have restored my honor.* My heart is ready to explode, erupt in new songs!
It's impossible to keep quiet!
Eternal One, my God, my Life-Giver,
I will thank You forever.

Psalm 31

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1You are my shelter, O Eternal One—
my soul's sanctuary!
Shield me from shame;
rescue me by Your righteousness.
2*Hear me, Lord!* Turn Your ear in my direction.
Come quick! Save me!
Be my rock, my shelter,
my fortress of salvation!

3You are my rock and my fortress—
my soul's sanctuary!
Therefore, for the sake of Your reputation, be my leader,
my guide, my navigator, my commander.
4Save me from the snare that has been secretly set out for me,
for You are my protection.
5I entrust my spirit into Your hands.*
You have redeemed me, O Eternal,
God of faithfulness and truth.

6I despise the people who pay respect to breathless idols,
and I trust only in You, Eternal One.
7I will gladly rejoice because of Your gracious love
because You recognized the sadness of my affliction.
You felt deep compassion when You saw the pains of my soul.
8You did not hand me over to the enemy,
but instead, You liberated me
and made me secure in a good and spacious land.

9Show me Your grace, Eternal One, for I am in a tight spot.
My eyes are aching with grief;
my body and soul are withering with miseries.
10My life is devoured by sorrow,
and my years are haunted with mourning.

* 31:5 Luke 23:46

My sin has sapped me of all my
strength;
my body withers under the weight of this suffering.

11To all my enemies I am an object of
scorn.
My neighbors especially are ashamed of me.
My friends are afraid to be seen
with me.
When I walk down the street,
people go out of their way to avoid me.
12I am as good as dead to them.
Forgotten!
Like a shattered clay pot, I am easily discarded and gladly replaced.
13For I hear their whispered plans;
terror is everywhere!
They conspire together,
planning, plotting, scheming to take
my life.

14But I pour my trust into You, Eternal
One.
I'm glad to say, "You are my God!"
15I give the moments of my life over to You, Eternal One.
Rescue me from those who hate me
and who hound me with their threats.
16*Look toward me, and* let Your face shine
down upon Your servant.
Because of Your gracious love,
save me!
17Spare me shame, O Eternal One,
for I turn and call to You.
Instead, let those who hate me be shamed;
let death's silence claim them.
18Seal their lying lips forever,
for with pride and contempt *boiling
in their hearts,*
they speak boldly against the righteous and persecute those who poured their trust into You.

19Your overflowing goodness
You have kept for those who live in awe of You,
And You share Your goodness with those who make You their sanctuary.
20You hide them, You shelter them in Your presence,
safe from the conspiracies of sinful
men.
You keep them in Your tent,
safe from the slander of accusing
tongues.

21Bless the Eternal!
For He has revealed His gracious
love to me
when I was trapped like a city
under siege.
22I began to panic so I yelled out,
"I'm cut off. You no longer see me!"
But You heard my cry for help that day
when I called out to You.

23Love the Eternal, all of you, His faithful
people!
He protects those who are true to
Him,
but He pays back the proud in kind.
24Be strong, and live courageously,
all of you who set your hope in the Eternal!

Psalm 32

A contemplative song* of David.

► The psalms celebrate God's forgiveness that comes through confession and repentance. Some interpreters link this psalm to David's sin with Bathsheba after Nathan had exposed his transgression, but the king certainly had other failings. Even if we do not associate this psalm with any personal transgression by David, it serves well as a model confession for those who are painfully aware of their sin.

1How happy is the one whose wrongs
are forgiven,
whose sin is hidden from sight.
2How happy is the person whose sin
the Eternal will not take into account.*
How happy are those who no longer lie, to themselves or others.

3When I refused to admit my wrongs,
I was miserable,
moaning and complaining all day
long
so that even my bones felt brittle.
4Day and night, Your hand kept pressing
on me.

* 32:title Hebrew, maskil * 32:1-2 Romans 4:7-8

My strength dried up like water in the summer heat;
You wore me down.

[pause]*

5*When I finally saw my own lies,*
I owned up to my sins before You,
and I did not try to hide my evil deeds from You.
I said to myself, "I'll admit all my sins to the Eternal,"
and You lifted and carried away the guilt of my sin.

[pause]

6So let all who are devoted to You speak honestly to You now, while You are still listening.
For then when the floods come, surely the rushing water will not even reach them.
7You are my hiding place.
You will keep me out of trouble and envelop me with songs that remind me I am free.

[pause]

8I will teach you and tell you the way to go and how to get there;
I will give you good counsel, and I will watch over you.
9But don't be stubborn and stupid like horses and mules who, if not reined by leather and metal,
will run wild, ignoring their masters.

10Tormented and empty are wicked and destructive people, but the one who trusts in the Eternal is wrapped tightly in His gracious love.
11Express your joy; be happy in Him, you who are good and true.
Go ahead, shout and rejoice aloud, you whose hearts are honest and straightforward.

Psalm 33

1Release your heart's joy in sweet music to the Eternal.
When the upright passionately sing glory-filled songs to Him, everything is in its right place.
2Worship the Eternal with your instruments, strings offering their praise;
write awe-filled songs to Him on the 10-stringed harp.
3Sing to Him a new song;
play each the best way you can,
and don't be afraid to be bold with your joyful feelings.

4For the word of the Eternal is perfect and true;
His actions are always faithful and right.
5He loves virtue and equity;
the Eternal's love fills the whole earth.

6The unfathomable cosmos came into being at the word of the Eternal's imagination, a solitary voice in endless darkness.
The breath of His mouth whispered the sea of stars into existence.
7He gathers every drop of every ocean as in a jar,
securing the ocean depths as His watery treasure.

8Let all people stand in awe of the Eternal;
let every man, woman, and child live in wonder of Him.
9For He spoke, and all things came into being.
A single command from His lips, and all creation obeyed and stood its ground.

10The Eternal cripples the schemes of the other nations;
He impedes the plans of rival peoples.
11The Eternal's purposes will last to the end of time;
the thoughts of His heart will awaken and stir all generations.
12The nation whose True God is the Eternal is truly blessed;
fortunate are all whom He chooses to inherit His legacy.

13The Eternal peers down from heaven and watches all of humanity;
14He observes every soul from His divine residence.
15He has formed every human heart, breathing life into every human spirit;

* 32:4 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

He knows the deeds of each person,
inside and out.
16A king is not delivered by the might of his army.
Even the strongest warrior is not saved by his own strength.
17A horse is not the way to victory;
its great strength cannot rescue.

18Listen, the eye of the Eternal is upon those who live in awe of Him,
those who hope in His steadfast
love, 19That He may save them from the darkness of the grave
and be kept alive during the lean seasons.

20*We live with hope in* the Eternal. We wait for Him,
for He is our Divine Help and Impenetrable Shield.
21Our hearts erupt with joy in Him
because we trust His holy name.
22O Eternal, drench us with Your endless
love,
even now as we wait for You.

Psalm 34

A song of David as he pretended to be insane to escape from Abimelech.

► While there is nothing specific to tie this Davidic psalm to the events in 1 Samuel 21:10-15, the superscription recalls a time when David pretended to be insane to protect himself from the Philistines.

1I will praise the Eternal in every moment through every situation.
Whenever I speak, my words will always praise Him.
2Everything within me wants to pay tribute to Him.
Whenever the poor and humble hear of His greatness, they will celebrate too!
3*Come and* lift up the Eternal with me;
let's praise His name together!

4*When I needed the Lord,* I looked for
Him;
I called out to Him, and He *heard me
and* responded.
He came and rescued me from everything that made me so afraid.
5Look to Him and shine,
so shame will never contort your faces.
6This poor soul cried, and the Eternal heard me.
He rescued me from my troubles.
7The messenger of the Eternal God surrounds
everyone who walks with Him and is always there to protect and rescue us.
8Taste of His goodness; see how wonderful the Eternal truly is.
Anyone who puts trust in Him will be blessed and comforted.
9Revere the Eternal, you His saints, for those who worship Him will possess everything important
in life.
10Young lions may grow tired and hungry,
but those intent on knowing the Eternal God will have everything they need.

11Gather around, children, listen to what I'm saying;
I will teach you how to revere the
Eternal.
12If you love life
and want to live a good, long time, 13Take care with the things you say.
Don't lie or spread gossip or talk about improper things.
14Walk away from the evil *things of the
world,*
and always seek peace and pursue it.

15For the Eternal watches over the righteous,
and His ears are attuned to their prayers. He is always listening.
16But He will punish evildoers, and nothing they do will last. They will soon be forgotten.
17When the upright need help and cry to the Eternal, He hears their cries and rescues them from all of their troubles.
18When someone is hurting or brokenhearted, the Eternal moves in close
and revives him in his pain.

19Hard times may well be the plight of the righteous—
they may often seem overwhelmed—

but the Eternal rescues the righteous
from what oppresses them.
20He will protect all of their bones;
not even one bone will be broken.
21Evil moves in and ultimately murders
the wicked;
the enemies of the righteous will be condemned.
22The Eternal will liberate His servants;
those who seek refuge in Him will never be condemned.

Psalm 35

A song of David.

1Make a case against those who struggle with me, Eternal One.
Battle against those who battle
against me.
2Be my shield and protection;
stand with me and rescue me!
3Draw the spear and javelin
to meet my pursuers.
Reassure my soul and say,
"I will deliver you."

4Shame and dishonor those ruthless
enemies
who wish to end my life.
Turn back those who conspire
against me,
defeated and humiliated!
5Let them be separated from the righteous as chaff is separated from the grain,
blown by the wind,
driven far, far away by the Eternal's
messenger.
6Make their way unsure and dangerously
dark,
a gauntlet of gloom
chased through the darkness by the Eternal's messenger.

7For no reason at all, they set a trap for me—a net, a snare—
then, without cause, they disguised
a pit to capture my soul—
another cowardly snare.
8May they be surprised by their own
destruction.
May they become tangled in their own
net
and fall into the pit which they, themselves, dug.

9*When that day comes,* my soul will celebrate the Eternal and be glad in His salvation.
10Every fiber of my being* will shout,
"Eternal One, there is none like
You!
You save the poor
from those who try to overpower
them
and rescue the weak and the needy from those who steal from
them."

11False witnesses step forward;
they ask me strange questions for which I have no answers.
12When I do good to them, they do evil
to me,
bringing misery to my soul.
13When they were sick,
I mourned for them and wore
sackcloth;
I chose to humble myself by fasting.
But my prayers came back unanswered.
14So I mourned more deeply as if I grieved
for my brother or friend;
I went around bowed down by sorrow, dressed in black,
as if I were weeping for my mother.
15But when I stumbled, they gathered
together
and celebrated my fall with joy;
People attacked me when I wasn't expecting it;
they slandered me with no end.
16Like godless mockers at a festival,*
their words tore at me.

17Lord, how long will You do nothing but watch?
Save me from their evil assaults,
plots, and plunder;
rescue my life from these *hungry
beasts, these ruthless* lions!
18Then I will praise You and thank You at the great gathering,
in the company of the entire congregation.

19Do not allow my enemies to boast at my expense,
for they despise me without any cause—*
yet they wink at me—malicious,
taunting winks.
20Their words have no ring of peace.
They plan evil rumors and incriminations
against those who live peacefully in
the land.

* 35:10 Literally, all my bones * 35:16 Greek manuscripts read, "Like the godless they cruelly mocked." * 35:19 John 15:25

21They speak lying accusations
against me;
they say, "Aha! Aha! We know what you've been up to.
We've seen it with our own eyes!"

22You have seen what's happening,
Eternal One; don't remain silent!
Lord, do not stay far away from me!
23Wake up; come to my defense!
Fight for me, my Lord and my God!
24Pass Your judgment, Eternal One, my True God;
do it by the standards of Your righteousness.
Do not allow my enemies to boast over me.
25Do not allow them to gloat over me,
"Aha, we have won! We got what we wanted!"
Do not allow them to brag,
"We chewed him up and spit him out."

26Shame and confuse those who celebrate my suffering;
may those who exalt themselves above me be covered with shame—wrapped in a cloak of dishonor!

27As for those who desire my vindication,
may they be joyful and glad.
May they forever say,
"The Eternal is indeed great!
He takes pleasure when good things happen to His servant!"
28*That's why* I will speak of Your righteousness and sing praises to You all day long.

Psalm 36

For the worship leader. A song of David, the Eternal's servant.

1Sin speaks in the depths of the soul of those who oppose God; they listen closely to its urgings.
You'll never see the fear of God in their eyes, 2For they flatter themselves—
convinced their sin will remain secret, undiscovered, and so unhated.
3They speak words of evil and deceit.
Wisdom and goodness, they deserted long ago.
4Even as they sleep, they are plotting mischief.
They journey along a path far from anything good,
gravitating to trouble, welcoming evil.

5Your love, O Eternal One, towers high into the heavens.
Even the skies are lower than Your faithfulness.
6Your justice is like the majestic mountains.
Your judgments are as deep as the oceans, and yet in Your greatness,
You, O Eternal, offer life for every person and animal.

7Your strong love, O True God, is precious.
All people run for shelter under the shadow of Your wings.
8In Your house, they eat and are full at Your table.
They drink from the river of Your overflowing kindness.
9You have the fountain of life that quenches our thirst.
Your light has opened our eyes and awakened our souls.

10May Your love continue to grow deeply in the lives of all who know You.
May Your salvation reach every heart committed to do right.
11Give me shelter from prideful feet that hunt me down and wicked hands that push me from Your path.
12It is there, far away from You, that the wicked will be forced down, face to the earth, never again returning to their feet.

Psalm 37*

A song of David.

1Don't be worried with evil workers or envy the gains of people with all-wrong-upside-down ways.
2Soon enough they will wither like grass,
like green herbs fading in summer's heat.

3Believe in the Eternal, and do what is good—
live in the land He provides; roam,
and rest in God's faithfulness.
4Take great joy in the Eternal!
His gifts are coming, and they are all your heart desires!

* Psalm 37 A Hebrew acrostic poem

5Commit your path to the Eternal; let Him direct you.
Put your confidence in Him, and He will follow through with you.
6He will spread out righteousness for you as a sunrise spreads radiance over
the land;
He will deliver justice for you into the light of the high sun.

7Be still. Be patient. Expect the Eternal to arrive and set things right.
Don't get upset when you see the worldly ones rising up the ladder.
Don't be bothered by those who are anchored in wicked ways.

8So turn from anger. Don't rage, and don't worry—these ways frame
the doorway to evil.
9Besides, those who act from evil motives will be cut off from the land;
but those who wait, hoping in the Eternal, will enjoy its riches.

10You'll see . . . the wicked won't know
what hit them;
you'll blink, and they'll be gone;
you'll go out looking for them, but
you won't find them.
11But the humble-hearted will inherit the
land;
they will take pleasure in its peace
and enjoy its abundance.

12How that wicked man devises evil
against God's righteous ones!
He grits his teeth, consumed by hate
for the upright.
13But oh, how the Lord laughs at him!
He knows the wicked man will get his; the day is coming.

14The wicked unsheathe their swords,
pull taut their bows;
the poor and needy are their victims,
and evil is on the prowl to kill those with integrity, God's beloved.
15But their swords will bend back to pierce their own hearts—
yes, their bows will snap in two.

16The righteous are better off with the little God blessed them with than living under the curse of the wealth of the wicked.
17*Their time is short,* their arms will be broken,
but the Eternal will hold His righteous children high.

18All their days are measured and known by the Eternal;
their inheritance is kept safe forever.
19When calamity comes, they will escape
with their dignity.
When famine invades the nations,
they will be fed to their fill.

20But immoral ones will find their lives
cut short;
they'll vanish as quickly as wildflowers in the fields.
Yes, enemies of the Eternal will vanish
like smoke into the cool night air.

21Evil people borrow and never repay
their debts,
while the good give generously from
their hearts.
22For God's blessed children will inherit
the land,
but those cursed by Him stand to gain nothing.

23*If you are right with God,* He strengthens you for the journey;
the Eternal will be pleased with your life.
24And even though you trip up, you will not fall on your face
because He holds you by the hand.

25Through my whole life (young and old),
I have never witnessed God
forsaking those who do right, nor have I seen their children
begging for crumbs, 26Because they are always giving and sharing;
truly, their children are a joyful
blessing.

27Walk away from evil. Do good so you, too, will enjoy never-ending
life
28Because the Eternal cherishes justice and will not abandon those loyal
to Him.

He will guard and care for them
forever,
but any child born of evil will be rooted out, cut down, and
destroyed.
29Those leading God-pleasing lives will inherit His land
and settle there forever.

30Wisdom fills the mouth of the right-
living;

justice and truth roll from their tongues.
31The True God's law is imprinted upon their hearts,
and they do not stumble.

32The wicked stalk God's good ones, looking to kill them, 33But the Eternal will never leave them to the dogs of evil,
nor will they be found guilty when the verdict is read.

34Wait for the Eternal. Keep to His path. Mind His will.
He will come for you, exalt you; you will inherit the land.
Before your very eyes you will see the end of the wicked.

35*I passed by* a wicked man with a cold-blooded nature;
I looked, and he seemed as large as a cedar of Lebanon.
36But then again, I passed that same way and there was nothing left of him.
I went out looking for him, but he was nowhere to be found.

37Keep your eye on the innocent. Model your life after the blameless.
Everyone who loves peace has a future.
38But sinners will be doomed.
The forecast for the wicked: utter destruction.
There will be none left, not one child of darkness.

39The Eternal saves His faithful;
He lends His strength in hard times;
40The Eternal comes and frees them—
frees them from evildoers and saves them for eternity—
simply because they seek shelter in Him.

Psalm 38

A song of David for remembering.

► This is one of a group of psalms known in later tradition as the penitential psalms, namely, psalms that confess sins and express confidence in God's mercy. In this psalm a serious illness threatens the life of the worshiper.

1O Eternal One, please do not scold me in Your anger;
though Your wrath is just, do not correct me in Your fury.
2The arrows from Your bow have penetrated my flesh;
Your hand has come down hard on me.

3Because Your anger has infected the depths of my being and stolen my health,
my flesh is ill.
My bones are no longer sound because of all the sins I have committed.
4My guilt has covered me; it's more than I can handle;
this burden is too heavy for me to carry.

5Now sores cover me—infected and putrid sores,
because of all the foolish things I have done.
6I am bent down, cowering in fear, prostrate on the ground;
I spend the day in mourning, guilty tears stinging and burning my eyes.
7My back aches. I'm full of fever;
my body is no longer whole, no longer well.
8I am completely numb, totally spent, hopelessly crushed.
The agitation of my heart makes me groan.

9O Lord, You know all my desires;
nothing escapes You; You hear my every moan.
10My heart pounds against my chest; my vigor is completely drained;
my eyes were once bright, but now the brightness is all gone.
11Even my friends and loved ones turn away when they see this marked man;
those closest to me are no longer close at all.

12Those who want me dead lay traps upon my path;
those who desire my downfall threaten—my end is near—
they spend their days plotting against me.

13Like one who is deaf, my ears do not hear.
Like one who is mute, my tongue
cannot speak.
14The truth is this: I am like one who cannot hear;
I cannot even protest against them.

15Still I wait expectantly for You,
O Eternal One—
knowing You will answer me in some way, O Lord, my True
God.
16I only asked, "When I stumble on the narrow path,
don't let them boast or celebrate my failure."

17I am prepared for what may come; my time must be short;
my pain and suffering a constant companion.
18I confess, "I have sinned," and I regret the wrong I have
done.
19My enemies are alive and well,
they are powerful and on the increase,
and for no reason, they hate me.
20When I do good, my opponents reward
me with evil;
though I pursue what is right, they stand against me.

21Eternal One, do not leave me to their mercy;
my True God, don't be far from me
when they are near.
22I need Your help now—not later.
O Lord, be my Rescuer.

Psalm 39

For the worship leader, Jeduthun.*
A song of David.

As an individual lament, Psalm 39 grieves over the brevity of life. The superscription recalls David's appointment of Jeduthun as one of the tabernacle's leading musicians (1 Chronicles 16:41-42).

1I promised, "I'll be careful on life's journey
not to sin with my words;
I'll seal my lips
when wicked people are around."
2I kept my mouth shut;
I had nothing to say—not even anything good—
which came to grieve me more and
more.
3*I felt* my heart become hot inside me as I thought on these things; a fire ignited and burned.
Then I said,

4"Eternal One, let me understand my end
and how brief my earthly existence is;
help me realize my life is fleeting.
5You have determined the length of my
days,
and my life is nothing compared to
You.
Even the longest life is only a breath."

[pause]*

6In truth, each of us journeys through life like a shadow.
We busy ourselves accomplishing nothing, piling up assets we can never keep;
We can't even know who will end up with those things.

7In light of all this, Lord, what am
I really waiting for?
You are my hope.
8Keep me from all the wrong I would do;
don't let the foolish laugh at me.
9I am quiet; I keep my mouth closed
because this has come from You.
10Take Your curse from me;
I can't endure Your punishment.

11You discipline us for our sins.
Like a moth, You consume
everything we treasure;
it's evident we are merely a breath.

[pause]

12Hear me, O Eternal One;
listen to my pleading,
and don't ignore my tears
Because I am estranged from You—
a wanderer like my fathers
before me.
13Look away from me so I might have a chance to recover my joy and smile again
before I lay this life down and am
no more.

* 39:title 1 Chronicles 9:16 * 39:5 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

Psalm 40

For the worship leader. A song of David.

[1]I waited a long time for the Eternal;
He finally knelt down to hear me.
He listened to my weak and whispered cry.
[2]He reached down and drew me from the deep, dark hole where
I was stranded, mired in the muck and clay.
With a gentle hand, He pulled me out
To set me down safely on a warm rock;
He held me until I was steady enough to continue the journey again.
[3]As if that were not enough,
because of Him my mind is clearing up.
Now I have a new song to sing—
a song of praise to the One who saved me.
Because of what He's done, many people will see and come to trust in the Eternal.

[4]Surely those who trust the Eternal—who don't trust in proud, powerful people
Or in people who care little for reality, chasing false gods—surely they are happy, as I have become.
[5]You have done so many wonderful things,
had so many tender thoughts toward us, Eternal my God,
that go on and on, ever increasing.
Who can compare with You?

[6]Sacrifices and offerings are not what You want,
but You've opened my ears,* and now I understand.
Burnt offerings and sin offerings are not what please You.
[7]So I said, "See, I have come to do Your will,
as it is inscribed of me in the scroll.
[8]I am pleased to live how You want, my God.
Your law is etched into my heart and my soul."

[9]I have encouraged Your people with the message of righteousness, in Your great assembly (look and see),
I haven't kept quiet about these things;
You know this, Eternal One.
[10]I have not kept Your righteousness to myself, sealed up in the secret places of my heart;
instead, I boldly tell others how You save and how loyal You are.
I haven't been shy to talk about Your love, nor have I been afraid to tell Your truth
before the great assembly of Your people.

[11]Please, Eternal One, don't hold back Your kind ways from me.
I need Your strong love and truth to stand watch over me and keep me from harm.
[12]Right now I can't see because I am surrounded by troubles;
my sins and shortcomings have caught up to me,
so I am swimming in darkness.
Like the hairs on my head, there are too many to count,
so my heart deserts me.

[13]O Eternal One, please rescue me.
O Eternal One, hurry; I need Your help.
[14]May those who are trying to destroy me
be humiliated and ashamed instead;
May those who want to ruin my reputation
be cut off and embarrassed.
[15]May those who try to catch me off guard,
those who look at me and say, "Aha, we've trapped you,"
be caught in their own shame instead.

[16]But may all who look for You discover true joy and happiness in You;
May those who cherish how You save them always say, "O Eternal One, You are great and are first in our hearts." [17]Meanwhile, I am empty and need so much,
but I know the Lord is thinking of me.
You are my help; only You can save me, my True God.
Please hurry.

* 40:6 Greek manuscripts read, "but You have prepared a body for me."

Psalm 41

For the worship leader. A song of David.

► The first four books of Psalms end with a variation of the doxology found in verse 13: "Blessed is the Eternal, the True God of Israel. Always and Eternal. Amen and Amen." This declaration not only provides a natural break—a seam—between the five books, but it also summarizes an essential theme of the psalms. You see, the Book of Psalms is primarily a book of praise to God for His creation, mercy, and salvation. Even when life is hard, our enemies strong, and our health poor, God can be praised for life itself and the ultimate victory to come for those who trust Him.

1 Blessed are those who consider the helpless.
The Eternal will stay near them,
leading them to safety in times of bitter struggle.
2 The Eternal defends them and preserves them,
and His blessing will find them in the land He gave them.
He moves ahead to frustrate their enemies' plans.
3 When sickness comes, the Eternal is beside them—
to comfort them on their sickbeds
and restore them to health.

4 And me? I cry out to Him,
"Heal my soul, O Eternal One, and show mercy
because I have sinned against You!"
5 My enemies are talking about me even now:
"When will death come for him and his name be forgotten?"
6 As they sit with me under my roof, their well wishes are empty lies.
They listen to my story
and then turn it around to tell their own version on the street.
7 Across the city, crowds whisper lies
about me.
Their hate is strong, and they search for ways to harm me.

8 Some are saying: "Some vile disease has gotten hold of him.
The bed he lies in will be his deathbed."
9 Even my best friend, my confidant who has eaten my bread will stab me in the back.*
10 But You, Eternal One, show mercy
to me.
Extend Your gracious hand, and help
me up.
I need to pay them back for what they've done to me.

11 I realize now that Your favor has come
to me,
for my enemies have yet to declare victory over me.
12 You know and uphold me—a man of honor.
You grant me strength and life
forever in Your presence.

13 Blessed is the Eternal, the True God of Israel.
Always and Eternal. Amen and
Amen.

BOOK TWO

Psalm 42*

For the worship leader. A contemplative song* of the sons of Korah.

1 My soul is dry and thirsts for You, True
God,
as a deer thirsts for water.
2 I long for the True God who lives.
When can I stand before Him and feel His comfort?
3 Right now I'm overwhelmed by my sorrow and pain;
I can't stop feasting on my tears.
People crowd around me and say,
"Where is your True God whom you claim will save?"

4 With a broken heart,
I remember times before
When I was with Your people. Those were better days.
I used to lead them happily into the True God's house,
Singing with joy, shouting thanksgivings with abandon,
joining the congregation in the celebration.
5 Why am I so overwrought?
Why am I so disturbed?

* 41:9 John 13:18 * Psalm 42 Psalms 42–43 are a single poem in many Hebrew manuscripts. * 42:title Hebrew, maskil

This second book of psalms (Psalms 42–72) has a few unique features. First, it is the only book of the five that contains psalms ascribed to the sons of Korah, a group of Levite temple singers. Second, it uses two rather obscure Hebrew terms in the superscriptions of almost half of these psalms. Maskil, which may be related to contemplation, is translated "contemplative poem" or "song" (42; 44–45; 52–55) and miktam, whose meaning is unclear, is translated "a prayer" (56–60). Third, in referring to God this second book shows a preference for the word "God" over the name "the Eternal One" that appears as "YHWH" in the Hebrew Scriptures.

Throughout the Bible, the creator and covenant God is referred to in many ways. Generally speaking, the names and titles used indicate something of His character and nature. The title "God" implies His unique majesty and power; no one is like Him. The name, translated "The Eternal One" and also "The Eternal," is God's covenant name revealed uniquely to Israel. As the translation suggests, the divine name implies that the one True God transcends time and yet He is "with" His people.

Why can't I just hope in God?
Despite all my emotions, I will
believe and praise the One
who saves me and is my life.
[6]My God, my soul is so traumatized;
the only help is remembering You wherever I may be;
From the land of the Jordan to Hermon's high place
to Mount Mizar.
[7]In the roar of Your waterfalls, ancient depths surge, calling out to
the deep.
All Your waves break over me;
am I drowning?
[8]Yet in the light of day, the Eternal shows me His love.
When night settles in and all is dark, He keeps me company—
His soothing song, a prayerful melody to the True God of my
life.

[9]Even still, I will say to the True God, my rock and strength:
"Why have You forgotten me?
Why must I live my life so depressed,
crying endlessly
while my enemies have the upper
hand?"
[10]My enemies taunt me.
They shatter my soul the way a sword shatters a man's bones.
They keep taunting all the day long,
"Where is He, your True God?"

[11]Why am I so overwrought,
Why am I so disturbed?
Why can't I just hope in God?
Despite all my emotions, I will
believe and praise the One who saves me, my God.

Psalm 43*

[1]Plead for me; clear my name, O God.
Prove me innocent
before immoral people;
Save me from their lies,
their unjust thoughts and deeds.
[2]You are the True God—my shelter, my protector, the one whom I lean on.
Why have You turned away from me? Rejected me?
Why must I go around, overwrought,
mourning,
suffering under the weight of my
enemies?

[3]O my God, shine Your light and truth
to help me see clearly,
To lead me to Your holy mountain,
to Your home.
[4]Then I will go to God's altar with nothing to hide.
I will go to God, my rapture;
I will sing praises to You and play my strings,
unloading my cares, unleashing my joys, to You, God, my God.

[5]O my soul, why are you so overwrought?
Why are you so disturbed?
Why can't I just hope in God? Despite all my emotions, I will hope in God again.
I will believe and praise the One
who saves me and is my life,
My Savior and my God.

Psalm 44

For the worship leader. A contemplative song* of the sons of Korah.

1 With our own ears, O God, we have heard the stories our ancestors recited of Your deeds in their days, days long past—
how You saved the day.
2 With a powerful hand, You drove the nations from this land,
but then You planted our parents here.
You fought for us against people of this land;
You set our parents free to enjoy its goodness.
3 They did not win the land with their swords.
It wasn't their strength that won them victory.
It was Your strength—Your right hand, Your arm,
and the light of Your presence that gave them success,
for You loved them.

4 You are my King, my God!
You ordained victories for Jacob and his people!
5 You are our victory, pushing back the enemy;
at the sound of Your name, we crush the opposition.
6 I don't trust in my weapons
or in my strength to win me victory.
7 But You rescue us from our foes;
You shame our enemies.
8 We shout Your name all day long;
we will praise Your name forever!

[pause]*

9 But wait, God, where have You gone?
Why have You shamed us?
Why do our armies stand alone?
10 Without Your help we must retreat from our enemy,
and the very ones who despise us pillage us.
11 You have offered us up to our enemies,
like sheep to the slaughter, meat for their feast,
and You have dispersed us among the nations.
12 You sold Your people for mere pennies,
and You gained nothing from the deal.
13 You have made us a joke to our friends and neighbors,
mocked and ridiculed by all those around us.
14 You have brought us infamy among the nations and made us an object of scorn and laughter to our neighbors.
15 Disgrace follows me everywhere I go;
I am constantly embarrassed.
Shame is written across my face
16 Because of the taunting and berating of those who are against me, because the enemy seeks revenge against me.

17 All this has happened to us,
yet we have never forgotten You;
we have not broken Your covenant with us.
18 Our hearts stayed true to You;
we have never left Your path;
we follow on.
19 Yet You have tested us, left us defeated in a land of jackals,
and shrouded us with the veil of death.

20 Even if we had forgotten the name of our God or offered praise to another god, 21 Would not the True God have known it?
For He can see the hidden places of our hearts.
22 On Your behalf, our lives are endangered constantly;
we are like sheep awaiting slaughter.*

23 Wake up, Lord! Why do You slumber?
Get up! Do not reject us any longer!
24 Why are You still hiding from us?
Why are You still ignoring our suffering and trouble?
25 Look and You will see our souls now dwell in the dust;
our bodies hug the earth.
26 Rise up and help us;
restore us for the sake of Your boundless love.

Psalm 45

For the worship leader. A contemplative song* of the sons of Korah to the tune "The Lilies."* A love song.

1 My heart is bursting with a new song;
lyrics to my king erupt like a spring for my king, to my king;
my tongue is the pen of a poet, ready and willing.

* 44:title Hebrew, maskil * 44:8 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"
* 44:22 Romans 8:36 * 45:title Hebrew, maskil * 45:title Hebrew, shoshannim, white lily-like flowers, perhaps the melody to which the song is sung

Psalm 45 describes the beauty, power, and influence of God's anointed king and may have been composed in honor of a royal wedding.

Whether we realize it or not, the overall well-being of a nation is tied directly to its leaders. When the leaders are just and make good decisions, then the welfare of a nation is secure. But when leaders are unjust and make poor decisions, and they pursue personal agendas rather than the public good, then nations suffer. This is why Scripture instructs those of faith to pray for all people everywhere, especially that those in authority would lead the world to dignity and peace (1 Timothy 2:1-3).

Psalm 45 celebrates that rare breed, a godly king who pursues truth and justice. It anticipates a joyful union and future children who will one day follow in the steps of their father. May the world witness a new breed of leader, fashioned in the image of this psalm.

2 Better by far are you than all others,
my king;
gracious words flow from your lips;
indeed, God has blessed you forever.
3 With your sword at your side,
you are glorious, majestic,
a mighty warrior.

4 Ride on in splendor; ride into battle victorious,
for the sake of truth, humility, and justice.
Perform awesome acts, trained by your powerful right hand.
5 Razor-sharp arrows leap from your bow
to pierce the heart of the king's foes;
they lie, defeated, before you.

6 O God, Your throne is eternal;
You will rule your kingdom with a scepter of justice.
7 You have loved what is right and hated what is evil.

That is why God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness and lifted you above your companions.*
8 All of your clothing is drenched in the rich scent of myrrh, aloes, and cassia;
In palaces decked out with ivory, beautiful stringed instruments play for your pleasure.
9 At a royal wedding with the daughters of kings among the guests of honor, your bride-queen stands at your right, adorned in gold from Ophir.

10 Hear this, daughter; pay close attention to what I am about to say:
you must forget your people and even your father's house.
11 Because the king yearns for your beauty,
humble yourself before him, for he is now your lord.
12 The daughter of Tyre arrives with a gift;
the wealthy will bow and plead for your favor.
13 A stunning bride, the king's daughter waits within;
her clothing is skillfully woven with gold.
14 She, in her richly embroidered gown, is carried to the king,
her virgin companions following close behind.

15 They walk in a spirit of celebration and gratefulness.
In delight, they enter the palace of the king.

16 O king, in this place where your ancestors reigned, you will have sons;
you will make them princes throughout all the land.
17 I will make sure your name is remembered by all future generations so that the people will offer you thanks and praise now and forever.

Psalm 46

For the worship leader. A song of the sons of Korah, a song for sopranos.*

► This song is attributed to the sons of Korah. It praises God for His strength and protection and for Jerusalem and its temple where God uniquely dwells. It invites the world to witness a future when wars and striving will cease and all the nations know and worship the one True God.

* 45:6-7 Hebrews 1:8-9 * 46:title Hebrew, alamoth, meaning is uncertain, perhaps "young women."

1 God is our shelter and our strength.
When troubles seem near, God is nearer, and He's ready to help.
So why run and hide?
2 No fear, no pacing, no biting fingernails.
When the earth spins out of control, we are sure and fearless.
When mountains crumble and the waters run wild, we are sure and fearless.
3 Even in heavy winds and huge waves,
or as mountains shake, we are sure and fearless.

[pause]*

4 A pure stream flows—never to be cut off—
bringing joy to the city where God makes His home,
the sacred site where the Most High chooses to live.
5 The True God never sleeps and always resides in the city of joy;
He makes it unstoppable, unshakable.
When it awakes at dawn, the True God has already been at work.
6 Trouble is on the horizon for the outside nations, not long until kingdoms will fall;
God's voice thunders and the earth shakes.
7 You know the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies, surrounds us and protects us;
the True God of Jacob is our shelter, close to His heart.

[pause]

8 Come, gaze, fix your eyes on what the Eternal can do.
Amazing, He has worked desolation here on this battlefield, earth.
9 God can stop wars anywhere in the world.
He can make scrap of all weapons: snap bows, shatter spears, and burn shields.
10 "Be still, be calm, see, and understand
I am the True God.
I am honored among all the nations.
I am honored over all the earth."
11 You know the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies, surrounds us and protects us;
the True God of Jacob is our shelter, close to His heart.

Psalm 47

For the worship leader. A song of the sons of Korah.

1 Clap your hands, all of you;
raise your voices joyfully and loudly.
Give honor for the True God of the universe;
2 Here's why: The Eternal, the Most High, is awesome and deserves our great respect.
He is the great King over everything in this world.
3 He's helped us win wars, suppressed our enemies,
and made nations bow at our feet.
4 He decides the extent of our inheritance and selects the land where we and our children will live,
for we are the pride of Jacob, the ones He loves.

[pause]*

5 The True God ascends the throne acclaimed by shouts of the people.
The Eternal is announced by the blast of a trumpet.
6 Sing! Shout! Play instruments!
Praise our God and King; sing praises to Him who is worthy.
7 For He is the King of all the earth. Sing praise, all who can.
Put words to music, and then sing praises
8 At the feet of the God who sits on His holy throne, ruling over all the nations.
9 All those with influence in this world—princes, kings, and satraps— gather with those who follow Abraham's God.
For these defenders belong to God who reigns over the nations!

Psalm 48

A song of the sons of Korah.

1The Eternal is great and mighty, worthy of great praise
in the city of our True God, upon His holy mountain.
2Situated high above, Mount Zion is beautiful to see,
the pleasure of the entire earth.
Mount Zion, in the north,*
is the city of the great King.
3In her palaces, the True God has revealed Himself as a mighty
fortress.

4*Not long ago, enemy* kings gathered
together
and moved forward as one *to attack
the city*.
5When they saw Mount Zion, they were amazed;
amazement became fear, *then
panic.* They fled for their lives.
6They were overtaken by terror, trembling in anguish
like a woman in childbirth.
7*God,* You shattered the ships of Tarshish
with the mighty east wind.
8As we have heard stories of Your greatness,
now we have also seen it *with our
own eyes*
right here, in the city of the Eternal,
the Commander of heavenly
armies.
Right here, in our God's city,
the True God will preserve her
forever.

[pause]*

9We have meditated upon Your loyal love, O God,
within Your holy temple.
10Just as Your name reaches to the ends of the earth, O God,
so Your praise flows there too;
Your right hand holds justice.
11So because of Your judgments,
may Mount Zion be delighted!
May the villages of Judah celebrate!

12Explore Zion; make an accounting,
note all her towers;
13Reflect upon her defenses;
stroll through her palaces
So that you can tell the coming generation all about her.
14For so is God,
our True God, forever and ever;
He will be our guide till the end.

Psalm 49

For the worship leader. A song of the sons of Korah.

► Some songs are described as "wisdom psalms." Similar in theme to the short sayings of Proverbs or the reflective essays of Ecclesiastes, these songs offer practical advice to the worshiper of the one True God. In Psalm 49 we find a meditation on wealth and wisdom, but others describe daily activities (127–128; 133), encouragement when evil succeeds (37; 73), and the results of following God or wickedness (112). The purpose of these songs is to edify those who sing and those who hear, reminding them, and us, how to live life as God intends.

1Listen up, everyone!
All you who reside in this world,
give an ear!
2*Everyone*—rich and poor,
young and old, wise and foolish,
humble and mighty—3My mouth will overflow with wisdom;
the reflections of my heart will guide you to understand the nature of life.
4I will tune my ear to the words of a proverb;
to the sounds of a harp, I will reveal
my riddle.

5Why should I be afraid when dark evils
swirl about me,
when I am walking among the sin
of evildoers—
6Those who depend on their own fortunes,
who boast about their earthly riches?
7One person can't grant salvation to
another
or make a payment to the True God
for another.

* 48:2 Hebrew, zaphon * 48:8 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

8Redeeming a life is costly;
no premium is enough, ever enough, 9That one's body might live on forever
and never fear the grave's decay.

10Everyone knows that even the wisest ones die,
perishing together with the foolish and the stupid.
For all die—beggars and kings, fools and wise men.
Their wealth remains behind for others.
11*Although they wish to dwell in fine houses* forever,
their graves are their real resting places.
Their homes are for all future generations,
yet for a while they have named lands after themselves.
12[No one, regardless of how rich or important, can live forever;
he is]* just like the animals that perish and decay.

13This is the destiny of those foolish souls who have faith only in themselves;
this will be the end of those happy to follow in their ways.

[pause]*

14The fate of fools is the grave, and just like sheep,
death will feast on them.
The righteous will rule over them at dawn,
their bodies, their outward forms, rotting in the grave
far away from their great mansions.
15But God will reach into the grave and save my life from its power.
He will fetch me and take me into His eternal house.

[pause]

16Do not be afraid of the rich and powerful
as their prestige and honor grow, 17For they cannot take anything with them when they die.
Their fame and glory will not follow them into the grave.
18During their lives, they seek every blessing and advantage
because others praise you when you've done well.
19But they will soon join their ancestors, for all of time, among the tombs of the faithless—
a place of no light.
20Anyone who is rich or important without understanding is just like the animals that perish and decay.

Psalm 50

A song of Asaph.

1The Mighty God, the Eternal—God of past, present, and future—
has spoken over the world,
calling together all things from sunrise to sunset.
2From Zion, that perfectly beautiful holy place,
shines the radiance of God.

3Our God will come, and He will not enter on a whisper.
A fire will devour the earth before Him;
the wind will storm wildly about Him.
4He calls heaven above and earth below
to assist in bringing judgment on His people.
5"Gather up those who are aligned with Me; bring them to Me;
bring everyone who belongs to Me who have made covenant sacrifice."
6And the heavens shout of His justice,
for He is the True God, an honest judge.

[pause]*

7"Listen, My people, I have something to say:
O Israel, My testimony comes against you;
I am God, your God.
8I am not going to scold you because of your sacrifices;
your burnt offerings are always before Me.
9I will not accept the best bull from your fields
or goats from your meadow, 10For they are already Mine, just as the forest beast
and the cattle grazing over a thousand hills are Mine.

* 49:12 Greek manuscripts read, "Anyone who is rich without understanding." * 49:13 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 50:6 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

One of the most difficult episodes in King David's life was his affair with Bathsheba and all that resulted from it. Psalm 51 reflects the emotions he felt after Nathan confronted him with stealing Bathsheba and murdering her husband, Uriah (2 Samuel 11–12).

At one time or another, all people experience the painful consequences of sin. Psalm 51 has been a comfort and a help to millions who have prayed these words as their own. It invites all who are broken to come before God and lean upon His compassion. It teaches that we need not only to be forgiven for the wrong we have done, but we also need to be cleansed of its effects on us. Ultimately, it helps us recognize that if we are to be healed, it is the work of God to create in us a heart that is clean and a spirit that is strong.

11 Every bird flying over the mountains
I know;
every animal roaming over the fields belongs to Me.

12 I would not come to you if I were hungry, for the world and all it contains are
Mine.
13 Do you really think I eat bull meat?
Or drink goat's blood?
14 Set out a sacrifice I can accept: your
thankfulness.
Be true to your word to the Most High.
15 When you are in trouble, call for Me.
I will come and rescue you,
and you will honor Me."

16 But to those acting against Him, God says,
"Who do you think you are?
Listing off My laws,
acting as if your life is in alignment with My ways?
17 For it's clear that you despise My guidance;
you throw My wise words over your shoulder.
18 You play with thieves,
spend your time with adulterers.

19 Evil runs out of your mouth;
your tongue is wrapped in deceit.
20 You sit back and gossip about your brother;
you slander your mother's son.
21 While you did these things, I kept silent;
somehow you got the idea that I was like you.
But now My silence ends, and I am going to indict you.
I'll state the charge against you clearly, face-to-face.

22 All you who have forgotten Me, your God, should think about what I have said,
or I will tear you apart and leave no
one to save you.
23 Set out a sacrifice I can accept: your
thankfulness.
Do this, and you will honor Me.
Those who straighten up their lives
will know the saving grace of God."

Psalm 51

For the worship leader. A song of David after Nathan the prophet accused him of infidelity with Bathsheba.

1 Look on me with a heart of mercy,
O God,
according to Your generous love.
According to Your great compassion, wipe out every consequence of my shameful crimes.
2 Thoroughly wash me, inside and out, of all my crooked deeds.
Cleanse me from my sins.

3 For I am fully aware of all I have done
wrong,
and my guilt is there, staring me in the face.
4 It was against You, only You, that I sinned,
for I have done what You say is wrong, right before Your eyes.
So when You speak, You are in the
right.
When You judge, Your judgments are pure and true.*
5 For I was guilty from the day I was
born,
a sinner from the time my mother became pregnant with me.

* 51:4 Romans 3:4

6But still, You long to enthrone truth
throughout my being;
in unseen places deep within me,
You show me wisdom.
7Cleanse me of my wickedness with hyssop, and I will be clean.
If You wash me, I will be whiter than snow.
8Help me hear joy and happiness as my accompaniment,
so my bones, which You have broken, will dance in delight instead.
9Cover Your face so You will not see my
sins,
and erase my guilt from the record.

10Create in me a clean heart, O God;
restore within me a sense of being brand new.
11Do not throw me far away from Your
presence,
and do not remove Your Holy Spirit
from me.
12Give back to me the deep delight of being saved by You;
let Your willing Spirit sustain me.

13If You do, I promise to teach rebels
Your ways
and help sinners find their way back to You.
14Free me from the guilt of murder, of shedding a man's blood,
O God who saves me.
Now my tongue, which was used to destroy, will be used to sing with deep delight of how right and just You are.

15O Lord, pry open my lips that this mouth will sing joyfully of Your greatness.
16I would surrender my dearest possessions or destroy all that I prize to prove my regret,
but You don't take pleasure in sacrifices or burnt offerings.
17What sacrifice I can offer You is my broken spirit
because a broken spirit, O God,
a heart that honestly regrets the past,
You won't detest.

18Be good to Zion; grant her Your favor.
Make Jerusalem's walls steady and
strong.
19Then there will be sacrifices made,
burnt offerings and whole burnt offerings,
With right motives that will delight
You.
And costly young bulls will be offered
up to Your altar, only the best.

Psalm 52

For the worship leader. A contemplative song* of David when the Edomite Doeg told Saul that David had received help from Ahimelech.

► Psalm 52 recalls the callous way Doeg and Saul put to death the 85 priests of Nob (1 Samuel 22:6-19). The psalm ends with a memorable image: the one who keeps faith with God is like a lush olive tree cared for in His garden. While those who do not trust in Him are snatched up and torn away, those who do right will flourish under His care.

1Why do you boast of all the trouble you stir up, O mighty one,
when the constant, unfailing love of God is what truly lasts?
2*Have you listened to yourself?*
Your tongue is like a sharp razor,
full of lies that slash and tear right to the soul.
3You've fallen in love with evil and have no interest in what He calls
good.
You prefer your own lies to speaking what is true.

[pause]*

4You love words that destroy people,
don't you,
lying tongue?

5*You won't be smiling*
when the True God brings His justice and destroys you forever.
He will come into your home,
snatch you away,
and pull you from the land of the living.

[pause]

* 52:title Hebrew, maskil * 52:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

6Those who are just will see what happens to you and be afraid.
And some of them will laugh and say, 7"Hey, look! Over there is the one who didn't take shelter in the True God;
Instead, he trusted in his great wealth
and got what he wanted by destroying others!"

8But my life is abundant—like a lush olive tree cared for at the house of the one True God.
I put my trust in His kind love
forever and ever; it will never fail.
9Because of all You have done,
I will humble myself and thank You forever.
With Your faithful people at my side,
I will put my hope in Your good reputation.

Psalm 53

For the worship leader. A contemplative song* of David. A song for the dance.*

1The foolish are convinced deep down that there is no God.
Their souls are polluted, and they commit gross injustice.
Not one of them does good.

2From heaven the one True God examines the earth
to see if any understand the big picture,
if any seek to know the True God.

3All have turned back to their wicked ways;
they've become totally perverse.
Not one of them does good,
not even one.

4Do the wicked relish their ignorance,
the wicked ones who consume My people as if they were bread and fail to call upon the True God?

5They trembled with great fear,
though they'd never been afraid before,
Because the True God ravaged the bones of those who rose against you.
You humiliated them because the True God spat them out.

6Oh, that the liberation of Israel would come out of Zion!
When the True God reclaims His people,
let Jacob celebrate; let Israel rejoice.

Psalm 54

For the worship leader. A contemplative song* of David when his friends, the Ziphites, betrayed him to Saul. Accompanied by strings.

► This is a lament reflecting the time when David was betrayed to Saul (1 Samuel 23:6-29). It expresses hope that God will save by His name. The name refers to the covenant name given to Moses at Mount Sinai (Exodus 3). We have translated it "the Eternal One." For the ancients the name of God has power precisely because it embodies the presence of God. To call upon the name was to call upon God to remember His covenant promises and be present in power in order to rescue His people.

1Liberate me, O God, by the authority of Your name.
Vindicate me through Your legendary power.
2Hear my prayer, O God;
let the words of my mouth reach Your sympathetic ear.

3*The truth is, these* strangers are rallying against me;
cold-blooded men seek to slay me;
they have no respect for You.

[pause]*

4But see now! God comes to rescue me;
the Lord is my valiant supporter.
5He will repay my enemies for the harm they have done; they are doomed!
According to Your faithful promises, silence them.

6I will sacrifice to You willingly;
I will lift Your name by shouts of thanksgiving, O Eternal One, for Your name is good.

* 53:title Hebrew, maskil * 53:title Hebrew, mahalath, meaning is uncertain. * 54:title Hebrew, maskil * 54:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

7God has pulled me out from every one of the troubles that encompass me,
and I have seen what it means to stand over my enemies in triumph.

Psalm 55

For the worship leader. A contemplative song* of David accompanied by strings.

1*Hear me,* O God.
Tune Your ear to my plea,
and do not turn Your face from my prayer.
2Give me Your attention.
Answer these sighs of sorrow;
my troubles have made me
restless—I groan from anxiety 3All because of my enemy! Because his voice speaks against me,
his wickedness torments me!
He casts down misfortune upon me;
his anger flares; his grudges grow
against me.

4My heart seizes within my chest; I am
in anguish!
I am terrified my life could end on any breath.
5I shiver and shudder in fear;
I can't stop because this horror is just too much.
6I said, "If only my arms were wings like the dove's!
I would fly away from here and find
rest—7Yes, I would venture far and weave a nest in the wilderness.

[pause]*

8"I would rush to take refuge away from the violent storm and pounding winds."

9Throw them off, O Lord. Confuse their speech, and frustrate their plans, for violence and contention are building within the city.
I can see it with my own eyes.
10They plot day and night, scurrying the city walls like rats,
trouble and evil lurking everywhere.
11In the heart of the city, destruction awaits.
Oppression and lies swarm the
streets,
and they will not take leave; no, they will not go.
12If it were just an enemy sneering at me,
I could take it.
If it were just someone who has always hated me, treating me like dirt,
I'd simply hide away.
13But it is you! A man like me,
my old friend, my companion.
14We enjoyed sweet conversation,
walking together in the house of God among the pressing crowds.
15Let death sneak up on them, swallow them alive into the pit of
death.
Why? Because evil stirs in their homes; evil is all around them.
16But I, I shall call upon God, and by His word, the Eternal shall
save me.
17Evening, morning, and noon I will
plead;
I will grumble and moan before Him
until He hears my voice.
18And He will rescue my soul, untouched,
plucked safely from the battle,
despite the many who are warring
against me.
19God, enthroned from ancient times
through eternity,
will hear my prayers and strike
them down.

[pause]

For they have refused change;
they supply their every need and have no fear of God.

20My friend has become a foe, breaking
faith, tearing down peace.
He's betrayed our covenant.
21Oh, how his pleasant voice is smoother
than butter,
while his heart is enchanted by war.
Oh, how his words are smoother than oil,
and yet each is a sword drawn in his hand.

22Cast your troubles upon the Eternal;
His care is unceasing!
He will not allow
His righteous to be shaken.

23But You, O God, You will drive them into the lowest* pit—Violent, lying people won't live beyond their middle
years.
But I place my trust in You.

* 55:title Hebrew, maskil * 55:7 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 55:23 Greek manuscripts read, "pit of destruction." The idea is the grave or place of death.

Psalm 56

For the worship leader. A prayer* of David to the tune "Silent Dove in the Distance,"* when the Philistine oppressors seized him in Gath.

► Psalm 56 brings to mind the time when David fled from Saul and sought help from the Philistines, his former enemies (1 Samuel 21:10-15). In his time of panic and fear, David found courage in trusting God to do what could not be done by human power and ingenuity alone.

[1]Show mercy to me, O God, because people are crushing me—grinding me down like dirt underfoot—all day long.
No matter what I do, I can't get myself out from under them.
[2]My enemies are crushing me, yes all day long, O Highest of High,
for many come proud and raise their hands against me.
[3]When struck by fear,
I let go, depending securely upon
You alone.
[4]In God—whose word I praise—
in God I place my trust. I shall not let fear come in,
for what can measly men do to me?
[5]All day long they warp my words;
all their thoughts against me are mangled by evil.
[6]They conspire, then lurk about.
They eye my every move,
Waiting to steal my very life.
[7]Because they are wicked through and through, drag them out.
In Your just anger, O God, cast them
down!

[8]You have taken note of my journey
through life,
caught each of my tears in Your bottle.
But God, are they not also blots on Your book?
[9]Then my enemies shall turn back and scatter
on the day I call out to You.
This I know for certain: God is on my side.
[10]In God whose word I praise
and in the Eternal whose word
I praise—[11]In God I have placed my trust. I shall not let fear come in,
for what can measly men do to me?

[12]I am bound by Your promise, O God.
My life is my offering of thanksgiving to You, [13]For You have saved my soul from the darkness of death,
steadied my feet from stumbling
So I might continue to walk before God, embraced in the light of the living.

Psalm 57

For the worship leader. A prayer* of David to the tune "Do Not Destroy,"* when he hid from Saul in a cave.

► This individual lament refers back to those perilous times when David fled from Saul and hid in caves (1 Samuel 22; 24). David found real security not in the hidden recesses of the caves but in the shadow of God's wings.

[1]Mercy. May Your mercy come to me,
O God,
for my soul is safe within You, the guardian of my life.
I will seek protection in the shade of Your wings
until the destruction has passed.
[2]I cry out to God, the Most High,
to God who always does what is good for me.
[3]Out of heaven my rescue comes.
He dispatches His mercy and truth
And goes after whoever tries to run over me.

[pause]*

[4]I am surrounded by lions;
I lie in a den of ravenous beasts.
Those around me have spears and arrows for teeth,
a sharpened blade for a tongue.

[5]O God, be lifted up above the heavens;
may Your glory cover the earth.

6Yet my foes cast a net to catch my feet
and bring me to my knees.
I am weary from all of this.
They dug a pit to snare me
but fell into their own trap.

[pause]

7My heart is ready, O God;
my heart is ready,
And I will sing!
Yes, I will sing praise!
8Wake up, my glory!
Wake up, harp and lyre;
I will stir the sleepy dawn with praise!
9I will offer You my thanks, O Lord,
before the nations of the world;
I will sing of Your greatness no matter where I am.
10For Your amazing mercy ascends far into the heavens;
Your truth rises above the clouds.
11O God, be lifted up above the heavens;
may Your glory cover the earth.

Psalm 58

For the worship leader. A prayer* of David to the tune "Do Not Destroy."*

1Can you, panel of judges, get anything right?
When you judge people, do you tell the truth and pursue justice?
2No, your real selves have been revealed.
You have wickedness in your heart,
and many people have suffered by your hands.

3Evildoers are naturally offensive,
wayward at birth!
They were born telling lies and willfully wandering from the truth.
4*Their bite is painful;* their venom is like the deadly poison of a snake;
they are like a cobra that closes up its ears 5To escape the voice of the charmers, no matter how enchanting the spells may be.

6O God, shatter their teeth in their mouths!
Render the young lions harmless;
break out their fangs, O Eternal One.
7Let them run off like the waters of a flood,
and though they aim their arrows,
let them fly without their heads.
8Let them melt like a snail that oozes along;
may they be like a stillborn that never catches its first breath,
never sees the sun.
9Before your cook pots know the furious flame of a fire of thorns—
whether green or burning—He will blow the wicked away.

10Cheers will rise as the right-living watch Him settle the score, their feet washed in the blood after the onslaught of the wicked.
11And it will be heard, "Those who seek justice will be rewarded.
Indeed, there is a God who brings justice to the earth!"

Psalm 59

For the worship leader. A prayer* of David to the tune "Do Not Destroy,"* when Saul sent assassins to David's house.

► Psalm 59 was inspired by the time there was a plan to kill David that was thwarted by David's wife, Michal, who was Saul's own daughter. She warned her husband, lowered him out of a window, and then deceived her father's officers into believing David was bedridden with illness (1 Samuel 19:11-17).

1Rescue me! Save me, O my God, from my enemies;
set me in a safe place, far above any who come to attack me.
2Rescue me from those malicious people,
and save me from blood-thirsty murderers.

3They have staked out my life; they are going to ambush me!
Those brutes are aligned, ready to attack me
For no good cause, my Eternal One.
I have not crossed them.

* 58:title Hebrew, miktam, meaning is uncertain. * 58:title Hebrew, al-tashheth, meaning is uncertain. * 59:title Hebrew, miktam, meaning is uncertain. * 59:title Hebrew, al-tashheth, meaning is uncertain.

4I've done nothing wrong, yet they rush ahead to start the assault.
I beg You to help me; come and see for Yourself!
5*I plead with* You, Eternal One,
Commander of heavenly armies,
True God of Israel,
to get up and punish these people;
do not let any betrayer off the hook;
show no mercy to malicious
evildoers!

[pause]*

6Treacherous souls return to the city in
the evening;
they prowl about,
howling like dogs.
7Watch them! Snarling, dribbling their malicious insults.
Their words cut loose from their lips
like swords,
and in their backstabbing they say,
"Who's listening anyway?"

8But You, O Eternal One, laugh at them;
You make fun of all the nations.
9I will watch for You, for You keep me
strong.
God, You are my security!
10My God is one step ahead of me with His mercy;
He will show me the victory I desire
over my enemies.
11Don't wipe them out, or my people may
one day forget.
Instead, use Your power to scatter
and bring them to ruin.
O Lord, You are our protection.
12Sin pours from their mouths, cruel
words from their lips.
May they be caught in their pride.
For their foul curses and lies,
13devour them with Your wrath,
eat them up, leave no one alive.
Then people will surely know that the one True God rules over Jacob,
even to the far ends of the earth.

[pause]

14Treacherous souls return to the city in
the evening;
they prowl about,
howling like dogs.
15They search through the city,
scavenging for meat
as they growl and grumble in dissatisfaction.

16But me? I will sing of Your strength.
I will awake with the sun to sing of Your loving mercy
Because in my most troubled hour,
You defended me. You were my shelter.
17I will lift my voice to sing Your praise,
O my Strength—
for You came to my defense.
O God, You have shown me Your loving mercy.

Psalm 60

For the worship leader. A prayer* of David after his victory over the Arameans, Joab's return, and the striking down of 12,000 Edomites in the valley of Salt. A song for instruction to the tune "A Lily Reminds Us."*

This is a communal lament recalling David's battles with Zobah and Naharaim from Aram (Syria) and Joab's victory over the Edomites (2 Samuel 8).

1God, You have turned away from us;
You have shattered us into a million
tiny pieces;
You have boiled with anger.
Now put us back together, and refresh us with Your mercy.
2You have made the earth shake; You have cracked it open effortlessly.
Heal the fissures in the earth, for it is unsteady.
3You have caused Your people to suffer;
You have provided us with wine
that makes us stagger.

4You have unfurled a banner for those who revere You,
a signal to gather in safety out of the enemy's reach.

[pause]*

5So that Your treasured ones may be saved,
rescue us with Your right hand, and answer our pleas!

6God's voice has been heard in His holy
sanctuary:
"I will celebrate; I will allocate Shechem
and the Succoth Valley to My
people.

* 59:5 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 60:title Hebrew, miktam, meaning is uncertain. * 60:title Hebrew, shushan eduth, meaning is uncertain. * 60:4 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

7Gilead belongs to Me, and so does
Manasseh;
Ephraim is the helmet that protects
My head;
Judah is the scepter through which
I rule;
8Moab is the washpot in which I rinse
My feet.
I will throw My shoe over Edom *in
conquest;*
prepare for My victory, Philistia. Cry out because of Me!"

9But who will take me into the fortified
city?
Who will lead me into Edom?
10Have You not turned Your back on us,
O God?
Will You stay away and not accompany our armies, O God?
11Help us against our enemy; *we need
Your help!*
It's useless to trust in the hand of
man for liberation.
12*Only* through God can we be successful.
It is God alone who will defeat our enemies and bring us victory!

Psalm 61

For the worship leader. A song of David accompanied by strings.

1Hear me, O God, when I cry;
listen to my prayer.
2You are the One I will call when pushed to the edge,
when my heart is faint.
Shoulder me to the rock above me.
3For You are my protection,
an impenetrable fortress from my
enemies.

4Let me live in Your sanctuary forever;
let me find safety in the shadow of
Your wings.

[pause]*

5You have heard the promises I made,
O God.
You have laid upon me the legacy
due to those who fear Your name.

6Extend the king's life, day after day;
increase his years for many generations.
7May he be ever present before God, attended and guarded by Your loyal love and truth.

8So I will never stop singing Your
praise;
as long as I live, I will fulfill my promise.

Psalm 62

For the worship leader, Jeduthun. A song of David.

1My soul quietly waits for the True God
alone;
my salvation comes from Him.
2He alone is my rock and my
deliverance,
my citadel high on the hill; I will not be shaken.

3How long will you attack a man?
How long will all of you strive to crush your prey
when he's like a leaning fence or a wall on the verge of collapse?
4Their only purpose in life is to knock him down from his prominent position;
they love deceit.
When others are around, they speak a blessing on someone,
but inwardly they are mumbling a curse.

[pause]

5My soul quietly waits for the True God
alone
because I hope only in Him.
6He alone is my rock and deliverance,
my citadel high on a hill;
I will not be shaken.
7My salvation and my significance depend ultimately on God;
the core of my strength, my shelter,
is in the True God.

8Have faith in Him in all circumstances,
dear people.
Open up your heart to Him;
the True God shelters us in His arms.

[pause]

9Human beings disappear like a breath;
even people of rank live artificial
lives.
Their weight is that of a breath in a balance—nothing.
Added together, they're still lighter
than air.

* 61:4 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

10 Do not resort to oppression;
resist the temptation of ill-gotten gain.
If you achieve wealth, don't let your heart get attached.

11 The True God spoke this once,
and twice I've heard:
That You, the True God, hold all power;
12 Your love never fails, O Lord,
for You pay every person back according to his deeds.

Psalm 63

A song of David while in the wilderness of Judah.

1 O True God, You are my God, the One whom I trust.
I seek You with every fiber of my being.
In this dry and weary land with no water in sight,
my soul is dry and longs for You.
My body aches for You, for Your presence.
2 I have seen You in Your sanctuary
and have been awed by Your power and glory.
3 Your steadfast love is better than life itself,
so my lips will give You all my praise.
4 I will bless You with every breath of my life;
I will lift up my hands in praise to Your name.

5 My soul overflows with satisfaction,
as when I feast on foods rich in marrow and fat;
with excitement in my heart and joy on my lips, I offer You praise.
6 Often at night I lie in bed and remember You, meditating on Your greatness till morning smiles through my window.
7 You have been my constant helper;
therefore, I sing for joy under the protection of Your wings.
8 My soul clings to You;
Your right hand reaches down and holds me up.

9 But as for those who try to destroy my life,
they will descend into eternal shadows, deep beneath the earth.
10 They will fall by the sword,
and wild dogs will feast on their corpses.
11 But the king will find his joy in the True God;
all who make pledges and invoke His name will celebrate,
while the mindless prattle of cheaters and deceivers will be silenced.

Psalm 64

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1 O True God, hear my voice! Listen to my complaint!
Guard my life; keep me safe from my enemy's threats.
2 Hide me from the sinful circle that conspires against me,
from the band of rebels out to make trouble,
3 Who sharpen their tongues into swords,
who take aim with poisonous words like arrows.
4 They hide in the shadows and shoot at the innocent;
they shoot at them without warning and without any fear.
5 They persist in their evil purpose and plan in secret to lay their traps.
And they say, "Who will see them?"
6 They plot their offense with precision and say,
"Now we have the perfect crime."
The human heart and mind are deep and complex.

7 But without hesitation the True God will shoot at them;
His arrow will surely wound them.
8 He will use their very own words to bring them to destruction;
all who see will be appalled at what happens to them.
9 Then everyone will fear the True God;
they will proclaim His deeds
and will reflect upon all He has done.

10 The righteous will delight in the Eternal and will take shelter in Him.
All those with an honest heart will glorify Him!

Psalm 65

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1 All will stand in awe to praise You.
Praise will sweep through Zion, the Sacred City, O God.
Solemn vows uttered to You will now be performed.
2 You hear us pray in words and silence;
all humanity comes into Your presence.
3 Injustice overwhelms me!
But You forgive our sins, restoring as only You can.
4 You invite us near, drawing us into Your courts—what an honor and a privilege!
We feast until we're full on the goodness of Your house,
Your sacred temple made manifest.

5 You leave us breathless when Your awesome works answer us by putting everything right.
God of our liberation—
You are the hope of all creation, from the far corners of the earth to distant life-giving oceans.
6 With immense power, You erected mountains.
Wrapped in strength, You compelled 7 Choppy seas,
crashing waves,
and crowds of people
To sit in astonished silence.
8 Those who inhabit the boundaries of the earth are awed by Your signs, strong and subtle hints of Your indelible presence.
Even the dawn and dusk respond to You with joy.

9 You spend time on the good earth,
watering and nourishing the networks of the living.
God's river is full of water!
By preparing the land,
You have provided us grain for nourishment.
10 You are the gentle equalizer: soaking the furrows,
smoothing soil's ridges,
Softening sun-baked earth with generous showers,
blessing the fruit of the ground.
11 You crown the year with a fruitful harvest;
the paths are worn down by carts overflowing with unstoppable growth.
12 Barren desert pastures yield fruit;
craggy hills are now dressed for celebration.
13 Meadows are clothed with frolicking flocks of lambs;
valleys are covered with a carpet of autumn-harvest grain;
the land shouts and sings in joyous celebration.

Psalm 66

For the worship leader. A song.

1 Shout out to God, all the earth.
Erupt with joy to the one True God!
2 Sing of the glory due His name!
Offer Him the most magnificent praises!
3 Say to God, "All You have done is wondrous and causes fear!
Your power is mighty, and Your enemies pretend to submit to You.
4 The entire earth will bow down to worship You and will sing glory-songs to You;
they will sing praises to Your name!

[pause]*

5 Come and witness the True God's endless works.
His miraculous deeds done on behalf of humanity inspire fear.
6 He transformed the sea into dry land;
our people passed through the river on foot!
Rejoice in Him; celebrate what He did there!
7 By His great might, He rules forever;
His eyes watch over all the nations,
so no one should go up against Him.

[pause]

8 Everyone, bless our True God!
Let praise-filled voices be heard near and far—at home and on foreign soil!
9 Praise the One who gives us life and keeps us safe,
who does not allow us to stumble in the darkness.
10 For You have put us to the test, O God;
You have refined us as silver is refined.

* 66:4 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

11You trapped us with a snare;
You have laid upon our backs a heavy burden.
12You allowed us to be conquered and let our enemies run over us.
We journeyed through dangers, through fire and flood,
But You led us finally to a safe place, a land rich and abundant.

13I will come into Your temple with burnt offerings;
I will fulfill my promises to You—14The oaths that parted my lips and were promises my mouth freely made when I was suffering and in anguish.
15I will bring You my sacrifices—plump beasts
and the sweet smoke of consecrated rams—
I will also offer You bulls and goats.

[pause]

16Come and listen, everyone who reveres the True God, and I will tell you what He has done for me.
17I cried out to Him with my mouth,
and I praised Him with my tongue.
18If I entertain evil in my heart,
the Lord will not hear me.
19But surely God has heard me;
He has paid attention to the urgency of my request.

20May the True God be blessed,
for He did not turn away from my prayer
nor did He hold back His loyal love from me.

Psalm 67

For the worship leader. A song accompanied by strings.

Psalm 67 echoes the priestly blessing (Numbers 6:24-26) and invites all nations to join in praise to the one True God.

1May God pour His grace and blessings into us and turn His face to shine His light on us.

[pause]*

2So all those on earth will learn to follow Your way and see Your saving power come to redeem all nations.
3May all people live to praise You, Our True God;
may all come to praise You.

4May all nations celebrate together, singing joy-filled songs of praise to You because You judge the people fairly and give guidance to all the nations of the earth.

[pause]

5May the people praise You with their whole hearts, O God;
may every man, woman, and child on the earth praise You.

6The land has supplied a bountiful harvest, and the True God, our God, has poured out His blessings to us all.
7God is the source of our blessings;
may every corner of the earth respect and revere Him.

Psalm 68

For the worship leader. A song of David.

Psalm 68 is a hymn describing God as a Divine Warrior, marching from Sinai through the wilderness to make His home in Jerusalem.

1May the True God rise up and show Himself;
may those who are united against Him be dispersed,
while the people who hate Him run away at the sight of Him.
2As smoke disappears when it is blown by the wind,
may You blow away Your enemies forever.
As wax melts in the presence of fire,
may the wicked heart melt away in God's presence.
3But may those who are righteous rejoice
in the presence of the True God—so may they be glad and rejoice.
Yes, let them celebrate with joy!

* 67:1 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

4Sing songs of praise to the name that belongs to the True God!
Let your voices ring out in songs of praise to Him, the One who rides
through the deserted places.
His name is the Eternal;
celebrate in His glorious presence.

5The True God who inhabits sacred space is a father to the fatherless, a defender of widows.
6He makes a home for those who are
alone.
He frees the prisoners and leads
them to prosper.
Yet those who rebel against Him live in the barren land without His blessings and prosperity.

7O True God, when You led Your enslaved people from Egypt,
when You journeyed with us
through the wilderness,

[pause]*

8The whole world trembled! The sky poured down rain
at the power of Your presence; even Mount Sinai trembled in Your
presence,
the presence of the True God, the God of Israel.
9You sent a heavy downpour to soak the ground, O True God.
You refreshed the land—the land
Your people would inherit—
when it was parched and dry.
10Your covenant people made their homes in the land,
and because You are so good, You provided for those crushed by poverty, O True God.

11The Lord gives the word;
there are very many women ready
to tell the good news:
12"Kings who lead the armies are on the run!
They are on the run!
And the woman who stays at home is ready, too,
ready to enjoy the treasures that they've left behind!"
13When they lay down among the campfires and open the saddlebags, imagine what they'll find—
a beautiful dove, its wings covered with silver,
its feathers a shimmering gold.

14When the Almighty scattered the kings
from that place,
it was snowing in Zalmon.

15O Mount Bashan, you mighty mountain of the True God;
mountain of many peaks, O Mount Bashan.
16Why are you so jealous, O mountain of many peaks,
when you look at the mountain
the True God has chosen as His dwelling place?
The Eternal will surely abide on Mount Zion forever.

17The chariots of God are innumerable;
there are thousands upon
thousands of them.
The Lord is in their midst, just as He was at Mount Sinai.
He has come into the holy place.
18When You ascended the sacred
mountain,
with Your prisoners in tow, Your captives in chains,
You sat in triumph receiving gifts
from men,
Even from those who rebel against You,
so that You, the Eternal God,
might take up residence there.
19Blessed be the Lord who carries our heavy loads every
day,
the True God who is our salvation.

[pause]

20*We know* our God is the God who delivers us,
and the Eternal, the Lord, is the One who saves us from the grip
of death.

21The True God will certainly shatter the skulls of those who oppose Him; He'll smash the hairy head of the man who continues on his sinful
ways.
22The Lord said,
"I will bring the enemy back from Bashan.
I will bring them back from the deepest
parts of the sea,

* 68:7 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

23So that you may plant your feet in their blood and your dogs may lick up their portion of the foe." 24The solemn march in Your honor, O True God, has come into view;
the march that celebrates my God, my King, has come into the sanctuary.
25The singers went first, and the musicians came last between rows of girls who played tambourines.
26Come, let us gather to bless the True God and to praise the Eternal, He who is the fountain of Israel, the source of our life!
27Look! There are the rulers of Benjamin, the youngest in the lead.
A great crowd follows
The princes of Judah,
the princes of Zebulun, the princes of Naphtali.

28[Your God is the One who has given you strength];*
show Your power, O True God, as You have done for us.
29Because of Your magnificent temple in Jerusalem,
many kings will line up to bring You gifts.
30Reprimand the beasts in the tall grass,
the herds of bulls that are with the people's calves,
Trampling over the pieces of silver.
He has driven out the people who love to be at war.
31Ambassadors will come from Egypt;
the people of Ethiopia* will reach out their hands to the one True God.

32Let all the kingdoms of the earth sing to the True God.
Sing songs of praise to the Lord.

[pause]

33To Him who rides high up beyond the heavens, which have been since ancient times, watch and listen. His voice speaks, and it is powerful and strong.
34Attribute power to the one True God;
His royal splendor is evident over Israel,
and His power courses through the clouds.
35O True God, You are awesome from the holy place where You dwell.
The True God of Israel Himself grants strength and power to His people.

Blessed be our God!

Psalm 69

For the worship leader. A song of David to the tune "Lilies."*

► This Davidic lament complains to God of enemies, false witnesses, insults, abandonment by friends and family, and even poisoning. Early Christians interpreted this psalm prophetically in order to understand Jesus' experience in His suffering and death on the cross.

1*Reach down for me,* True God;
deliver me.
The waters have risen to my neck;
I am going down!
2My feet are swallowed in this murky bog;
I am sinking—there is no sturdy ground.
I am in the deep;
the floods are crashing in!
3I am weary of howling;
my throat is scratched dry.
I still look for my God
even though my eyes fail.

4My enemies despise me without any cause;
they outnumber the hairs on my head.
They torment me with their power;
they have absolutely no reason to hate me.
Now I am set to pay for crimes
I have never committed!
5O True God, my foolish ways are plain before You;
my mistakes—no, nothing can be hidden from You.

* 68:28 Other manuscripts read, "Call on Your strength, O God." * 68:31 Literally, Cush * 69:title Hebrew, shoshannim, white lily-like flowers, perhaps the melody to which the song is sung

6Don't let Your hopeful followers face disgrace because of me,
O Lord, Eternal One, Commander of heaven's armies;
Don't let Your seekers be shamed on account of me,
O True God of Israel.
7I have been mocked when I stood up for You;
I cower, shamefaced.
8*You know* my brothers and sisters?
They now reject me—they act as if I never existed.
I'm like a stranger to my own family.

9And here's why: I am consumed with You, completely devoted to protecting Your house;
when they insult You, they insult me.
10When I mourn and discipline my soul
by fasting,
they deride me.
11And when I put on sackcloth,
they mock me.
12Those who sit at the gate gossip
about me;
I am shamed by the slurred songs of drunkards.

13But, Eternal One, I just pray the time
is right
that You would hear me. And, True
God,
because You are enduring love, that
You would answer.
In Your faithfulness, please, save me.
14Pluck me from this murky bog;
don't let it pull me down!
Pull me from this rising water;
take me away from my enemies to dry land.
15Don't let the flood take me under or let me, Your servant, be swallowed into the deep or let the yawning pit seal me in!

16O Eternal One, hear me. Answer me.
For Your enduring love is good comfort;
in Your great mercy, turn
toward me.
17Yes, shine Your face upon me, Your servant;
put an end to my anguish—don't wait another minute.
18Come near; rescue me!
Set me free from my enemies.

19You know all my opponents;
You see them, see the way they treat me—
humiliating me with insults, trying to disgrace me.
20All this ridicule has broken my heart,
killed my spirit.
I searched for sympathy, and I came up
empty.
I looked for supporters, but there was no one.
21*Even more,* they gave me poison for my food
and offered me only sour vinegar to drink.

22Let them be ambushed at the dinner
table,
caught in a trap when they least expect it.
23Cloud their vision so they cannot see;
make their bodies shake, *their knees
knock in terror.*
24Pour out Your fiery wrath upon them!
Make a clean sweep; engulf them with Your flaming fury.
25May their camps be bleak
with not one left in any tent.
26Because they have persecuted the one
You have struck,
add insult to those whom You have wounded.
27Compound their sins; *don't let them off
the hook!*
Keep them from entering into Your
mercy.
28Blot out their names from Your book
of life
so they will not be recorded alongside those who are upright before You.
29I am living in pain; I'm suffering,
so save me, True God, and keep me safe in troubled times!

30The name of the True God will be my song,
an uplifting tune of praise and
thanksgiving!
31My praise will please the Eternal more than if I were to sacrifice an ox or the finest bull. (Horns, hooves, and all!)
32Those who humbly serve will see and rejoice!
All you seekers-after-God will revive your souls!
33The Eternal listens to the prayers of the
poor
and has regard for His people held in bondage.

34 All God's creation: join together in His praise! All heaven, all earth, all seas, all creatures of the ocean
deep!
35 The True God will save Zion
and rebuild the cities of Judah
So that His servants may own it and live there once again.
36 Their children and children's children shall have it as their inheritance, and those who love His name will live in it.

Psalm 70

For the worship leader. A song of David
for remembering.

1 O God, hurry to save me;
Eternal One, hurry to my side.
2 For those who seek to kill me, God, may they burn in disgrace and humiliation!
Repulse the attacks; ridicule the efforts
of those taking pleasure in my pain.
3 I hear their taunts: "Nah, nah, nah . . . ."
Let those hecklers fall back upon their brays—ashamed and confused—

4 But let those who pursue You celebrate and have joy because of
You.
And let the song of those who love
Your saving grace
never cease: "God is great!"
5 But I am poor and in serious need,
so hurry to my side, God, Because You are my helper, my liberator.
Eternal One, please don't wait.

Psalm 71

1 I have found shelter in You, Eternal
One;
I count on You to shield me always
from humiliation and disgrace.
2 Rescue and save me in Your justice.
Turn Your ear to me, and hurry to deliver me from my enemies.
3 Be my rock of refuge where I can always hide.
You have given the order to keep me safe;
You are my solid ground—my rock
and my fortress.

4 Save me from the power of sinful people, O my God,
from the grip of unjust and cruel
men.

5 For You are my hope, Eternal One;
You, Lord, have been the source of my confidence since I was young.
6 I have leaned upon You since I came into this world;
I have relied on You since You took me safely from my mother's body,
So I will ever praise You.

7 Many find me a mystery,
but You are my rock and my shelter—my soul's asylum.
8 My mouth overflows with praise to You and proclaims Your magnificence
all day long.
9 Do not set me aside when I am old;
do not abandon me when I am worn out.
10 For my enemies often voice evil
against me;
those who desire to kill me plot
together in secret.
11 They say, "God has abandoned him;
let's go after him right now and seize him.
There's no one around to rescue
him."

12 God, stay close by me.
Come quick, O my God, and help me!
13 May my enemies be covered in shame
and then die;
may those who seek to harm me
be overwhelmed with contempt and disgrace.
14 But I will keep hope alive,
and my praise to You will grow
exponentially.
15 I will bear witness to Your merciful
acts;
throughout the day I will speak of all the ways You deliver,
although, I admit, I do not know the entirety of either.
16 I will come with stories of Your great acts, my Lord, the Eternal.
I will remind them of Your justice,
only Yours.

17 You have taught me since I was young,
O God,
and I still proclaim the wonderful things You have done.
18 Now as I grow old and my hair turns gray,
I ask that You not abandon me,
O God.

Allow me to share with the generation to come
about Your power;
Let me speak about Your strength and
wonders
to all those yet to be born.
19God, Your justice stretches to the
heavens,
You who have done mighty things!
Who is like You, O God?

20You have made me see hard times: I've experienced many miserable
days,
but You will restore me again.
You will raise me up
from the deep pit.
21You will greatly increase my status
and be my comfort once again.

22I will praise You with music played on a harp
because You have been faithful,
O my God.
I will sing praises to You with the lyre,
O Holy One of Israel.
23I will shout for joy
as I sing Your praises;
my soul will celebrate because You have rescued me.
24All day long I will declare how Your justice saved me,
for those who have plotted to bring me harm
are now ashamed and humiliated.

Psalm 72

A song of Solomon.

1True God, bestow Your honest
judgments upon the king and anoint the king's son with Your righteousness.
2May he be honest and fair in his judgments over Your people and offer justice to the burdened and suffering.
3*Under his reign,* may this land of mountains and hills know peace and experience justice for all the
people.
4May the king offer justice to the burdened and suffering,
rescue the poor and needy,
and demolish the oppressor!

5[May the people fear You]* for as long as the sun shines,
as long as the moon rises in the night
sky, throughout the generations.
6May the king be like the refreshing rains, which fall upon fields of freshly mown grass—
like showers that cool and nourish
the earth.
7May good and honest people flourish
for as long as he reigns,
and may peace fill the land until
the moon no longer rises.

8May the king rule from one sea to the next,
and may his rule extend from the Euphrates River to the far reaches of the earth.
9Let the desert wanderers bow down
before him
and his enemies lay prostrate and taste the dirt.
10Let the kings of Tarshish and the island
kings
shower him with gifts
And the kings of Sheba and Seba bring him presents as well.
11Let every king on earth bow down
before him
and every nation be in his service.
12For he will rescue the needy when they ask for help!
He will save the burdened and come to the aid of those who have no other help.
13He offers compassion to the weak and
the poor;
he will help and protect the lives of the needy!
14He will liberate them from the fierce sting of persecution and violence;
in his eyes, their blood is precious.

15May he live a long, long time and the gold of Sheba be given to
him.
May the people constantly lift up prayers for him,
and may they call upon God to bless him always.
16Let grain grow plentifully in this land of
promise,
let it sway in the breeze on the hilltops,
let it grow strong as do the cedars of Lebanon,
And may those who live in the city
bloom and flourish

* 72:5 Greek manuscripts read, "He will endure."

Woven throughout the psalms are songs describing and praising those anointed as kings over God's people. Psalm 2, one of the introductory psalms, describes the king as the son of God, the ruler of nations, and the anointed one. During the monarchical period in Israel, psalms like these were tied to the kings themselves, idealizing them as perfectly just and righteous and victorious. But during the exile, God's exiled people longed for freedom and the implications of these songs began to change. Many Jews began to interpret these psalms as referring to a coming ruler, a Davidic king who would usher in an eternal kingdom and perfect peace. This hope was realized in Jesus. So this is why the earliest followers of Jesus went back to the psalms again and again. They found within many of the psalms, the story of Jesus anticipated and celebrated.

17 May his name live on forever
and his reputation grow for as long as the sun gives light.
May people from all nations find in him a blessing;
may all peoples declare him blessed.

18 May the Eternal God, the God of Israel, be blessed,
for He alone works miracles and wonders!
19 May His glorious name be blessed forever
and the whole earth be filled with His eternal glory!
Amen. Amen.

20 The prayers of King David, Jesse's son, are ended.

BOOK THREE

Psalm 73

A song of Asaph.

1 Truly God is good to His people, Israel,
to those with pure hearts.
2 Though I know this is true, I almost lost my footing;
yes, my steps were on slippery ground.
3 You see, there was a time when I envied arrogant men and thought, "The wicked look pretty happy to me."

4 For they seem to live carefree lives, free of suffering;
their bodies are strong and healthy.
5 They don't know trouble as we do;
they are not plagued with problems as the rest of us are.
6 They've got pearls of pride strung around their necks;
they clothe their bodies with violence.
7 They have so much more than enough.
Their eyes bulge because they are so fat with possessions.
They have more than their hearts could have ever imagined.
8 There is nothing sacred, and no one is safe.
Vicious sarcasm drips from their lips;
they bully and threaten to crush their enemies.
9 They even mock God as if He were not above;
their arrogant tongues boast throughout the earth; they feel invincible.

10 Even God's people turn and are carried away by them;
they watch and listen, yet find no fault in them.
11 You will hear them say, "How can the True God possibly know anyway? He's not even here.
So how can the Most High have any knowledge of what happens here?"
12 Let me tell you what I know about the wicked:
they are comfortably at rest while their wealth is growing and growing.
13 Oh, let this not be me! It seems I have scrubbed my heart to keep it clean and washed my hands in innocence.
And for what? Nothing.
14 For all day long, I am being punished,
each day awakening to stern chastisement.

Many of the psalms in Book Three (Psalms 73–89) are attributed to Asaph. He was a Levite musician appointed by David to lead the worship that surrounded the covenant chest in the congregation tent (1 Chronicles 16:4-6). Asaph and his descendants continued this work through much of Israel's history, specifically when Solomon dedicated the temple (2 Chronicles 5:12), when Josiah revived the worship of the Eternal One in Jerusalem (2 Chronicles 35:15), and when Ezra and Nehemiah dedicated the wall around Jerusalem (Nehemiah 12:35).

The psalms attributed to Asaph were liturgical, that is, they were chanted or sung as a part of the regular worship of God in the temple by the priests, Levites, and perhaps other worshipers too. Whether songs of lament, requests for guidance, or pleas for mercy, these psalms were sung in the one place God would hear them best—at His temple—the nexus between heaven and earth.

15If I had said to others these kinds of things about the plight of God's
good people,
then I know I would have betrayed
the next generation.
16Trying to solve this mystery on my own exhausted me;
I couldn't bear to look at it any further.
17So I took my questions to the True God,
and in His sanctuary I realized something so chilling and final:
their lives have a deadly end.
18*Because* You have certainly set the wicked upon a slippery slope, You've set them up to slide to their
destruction.
19*And they won't see it coming.* It will happen so fast:
first, a flash of terror, and then
desolation.
20It is like a dream from which someone awakes.
You will wake up, Lord, and loathe
what has become of them.
21*You see,* my heart overflowed with bitterness and cynicism;
I felt as if someone stabbed me in the back.
22But I didn't know the truth;
I have been acting like a stupid
animal toward You.
23But look at this: You are still holding my
right hand;
You have been all along.
24*Even though I was angry and hard-* hearted, You gave me good advice;
when it's all over, You will receive
me into Your glory.
25*For all my wanting,* I don't have anyone but You in heaven.
There is nothing on earth that
I desire other than You.
26*I admit how* broken I am in body and spirit,
but God is my strength, and He will be mine forever.

27It will happen: whoever shuns You will be silenced forever;
You will bring an end to all who refuse to be true to You.
28But the closer I am to You, my God,
the better because life with You is good.
O Lord, the Eternal, You keep me
safe—
I will tell everyone what You have done.

Psalm 74

A contemplative song* of Asaph.

► This lament was written shortly after the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem and the temple in 586 B.C. Now in exile and separated from God, His city, and His land, the people of God experience pain that is palpable.

1O True God, why have You turned Your back on us and abandoned us
forever?
Why is Your anger seething and Your wrath smoldering against the sheep of Your pasture?
2Remember the congregation of people
You acquired long ago,
the tribe which You redeemed to be Your very own.
Remember Mount Zion, where You have chosen to live!

* 74:title Hebrew, maskil

3*Come,* direct Your attention to Your
sanctuary;
our enemy has demolished
everything and left it in complete ruin.

4Your enemies roared like lions in Your sacred chamber;
they have claimed it with their own standards as signs.
5They acted like lumberjacks swinging their axes
to cut down a stand of trees.
6They hacked up all the beautifully carved items,
smashed them to splinters with their axes and hammers.
7They have burned Your sanctuary to
the ground;
they have desecrated the place where Your holy name lived in
honor;
8They have plotted in their hearts, "We will crush them and bring them to their knees!"
Then they scorched all of the places in the land where the True God met His people.

9We no longer receive signs,
there are no more prophets who remain,
and not one of us knows how long
this situation will last.
10O True God, how much longer will the enemy mock us?
Will this insult continue against
You forever?
11Why do You stand by and do nothing?
Unleash Your power and finish them off!

12Even so, the True God is my King from
long ago,
bringing salvation to His people
throughout the land.
13You have divided the sea with Your
power;
You shattered the skulls of the creatures of the sea;
14You smashed the heads of Leviathan and fed his remains to the people of the desert.
15You broke open the earth and springs burst forth and streams filled
the crevices;
You dried up the great rivers.
16The day and the night are both Yours—
You fashioned the sun, moon, and all the lights that pierce the
darkness.
17You have arranged the earth, set all its boundaries;
You are the Architect of the seasons:
summer and winter.

18Eternal One, do not forget that the enemy has taunted You and a company of fools has rejected
Your name.
19We are Your precious turtledoves;
don't surrender our souls to the wild beasts.
Do not forget the lives of Your poor, afflicted, and brokenhearted ones
forever.

20Be mindful of Your covenant with us,
for the dark corners of the land are filled with pockets of violence.
21Do not allow the persecuted to return without honor;
may the poor, wounded, and needy
sing praises to You;
may they bring glory to Your name!
22O True God, rise up and defend Your
cause;
remember how the foolish man insults You every hour of the day.
23Do not forget the voices of Your
enemies,
the commotion and chaos of Your foes, which continually grow.

Psalm 75

For the worship leader. A song of Asaph to the tune "Do Not Destroy."*

1We thank You, O True God.
Our souls are overflowing with thanks! Your name is near;
Your people remember and tell of Your marvelous works and wonders.

2*You say,* "At the time that I choose,
I will judge and do so fairly.
3When the earth and everyone living
upon it spin into chaos,
I am the One who stabilizes and supports it."*

[pause]*

4"I discipline the arrogant by telling them, 'No more bragging.'

* 75:title Hebrew, al-tashheth, meaning is uncertain. * 75:3 Literally, "steady its pillars" * 75:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

I discipline the wicked by saying,
'Do not raise your horn to demonstrate your power.*
5Do not thrust your horn into the air,
issuing a challenge,
and never speak with insolence
when you address Me.'"

6There is no one on earth who can raise up another to grant honor,
not from the east or the west, not from the desert.
There is no one. God is the only One.
7God is the only Judge.
He is the only One who can ruin or redeem a man.
8For the Eternal holds a full cup of wine in His hand—
a chalice well stirred and foaming full of wrath.
He pours the cup out,
and all wicked people of the earth drink it up—every drop of it!
9But I will tell of His great deeds forever.
I will sing praises to Jacob's True God.

10I will cut off the horns of strength raised by the wicked,
but I will lift up the horns of strength of the righteous.

Psalm 76

For the worship leader. A song of Asaph accompanied by strings.

This song of Asaph praises Jerusalem as God's earthly home and celebrates His victory there over enemies, where in the end "He squashes the arrogant spirit of the rulers."

1The One known in Judah is the True God;
in Israel, His name is great.
2He has made Salem* His home;
indeed, He rests in Zion.
3There He destroyed the instruments of war:
flaming arrows, shields, and swords.

[pause]*

4You rise and shine like the dawn.
You are more majestic than the mountains where game runs wild.
5The strong-hearted enemies were plundered;
they were buried in slumber.
Even the noble warriors
could not raise a hand to stop You.
6O True God of Jacob, with just Your rebuke both horse and rider fell into a deep sleep.

7You are feared; yes, You.
And who can stand before You when Your anger flares?
8You decreed judgment from the heavens.
The earth heard it and was petrified with fear, completely still,
9When the True God arose for judgment to deliver all the meek of the earth.

[pause]

10For the wrath of man will end in praise of You, and whatever wrath is left You will wrap around Yourself like a belt.
11Make vows to the Eternal your God, and do all you promised;
Let all the nations around you bring gifts
to the God who arouses fear and awe.
12He squashes the arrogant spirit of the rulers and inspires fear in the hearts of the kings of the earth.

Psalm 77

For the worship leader, Jeduthun. A song of Asaph.

1I cry up to heaven,
"My God, True God," and He hears.
2In my darkest days, I seek the Lord.
Through the night, my hands are raised up, stretched out, waiting;
And though they do not grow tired, my soul is uneasy.
3I remember the True God and become distraught.
I think about Him, and my spirit becomes weak.

[pause]*

4You hold my eyes wide open.
I am troubled beyond words.

* 75:4 The horn was a symbol of power, and a raised horn indicated a challenge. * 76:2 Jerusalem * 76:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 77:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

5My mind drifts to thoughts of yesterdays
and yesteryears.
6I call to mind my music; it keeps me
company at night.
Together with my heart
I contemplate;
my spirit searches, wondering,
questioning:
7"What will the Lord do? Reject us for
good?
Will He never show us His favor
again?
8Has His loyal love finally worn down?
Have His promises reached an end?
9Has the True God forgotten how to be gracious?
In His anger, has He withdrawn His compassion?"

[pause]

10"I can't help but be distraught," I said,
"for the power of the Most High that was once for us is now
against us."

11I will remember the actions the Eternal has taken,
reminisce on Your ancient wonders.
12I will reflect on all of Your work;
indeed, I will study all You have performed.
13O God, Your way is so different, so distinct, so divine.
No other god compares with our
God.
14You, God, and Your works evoke wonder.
You have proved Your strength to
the nations.
15You used Your great power to release
Your people:
with a strong arm, You freed Jacob's
children, and Joseph's.

[pause]

16The waters saw You, O True God.
The seas saw You and swelled in sorrow.
Even the deep trembled.
17Water poured from the clouds,
and the sky boomed out in response
as Your arrows of lightning flashed this way and that.
18The sound of Your thunder whirled within the wind
as Your lightning lit up the world.
Yes, the whole earth trembled and shook.
19Your way ran through the sea,
Your path cut through great waters,
and still no one can spot Your footprints.
20You led Your people as a flock tended by the hands of Moses and Aaron.

Psalm 78

A contemplative song* of Asaph.

1O my people, listen to me!
Hear my instruction; soak up every word of what I am about to tell
you.
2I will open my mouth in parables;
I will speak of ancient mysteries—3Things that we have heard about,
things that we have known,
things which our ancestors
declared to us again and again.
4We will not keep these things secret
from their children;
rather, we will tell the coming generation
All about the praise that is due to the Eternal One.
We will tell them all about His strength, power, and wonders.

5He gave His holy law to Jacob,
His teaching to the people of Israel,
Which He instructed our fathers to pass down to their children 6So that the coming generation would know them by heart,
even the children who are not yet
born,
So that they might one day stand up
and teach them to their children, 7*tell them* to put their confidence
and hope in God,
And never forget the wondrous things
He has done.
They should obey His commandments always 8And avoid following in the footsteps of their parents,
a hard-headed and rebellious
generation—
A generation of uncultivated hearts, whose spirits were unfaithful to
God.

9The sons of Ephraim were master
archers, armed with all the necessary equipment,
yet when the battle hour arrived,
they ran away.

* 78:title Hebrew, maskil

10 They were not loyal to their covenant with God;
they turned away and refused to walk in it;
11 They did not remember all the wondrous things He had done, even the great miracles He had revealed to them.
12 He did miraculous things in the presence of their ancestors
as they made their way out of Egypt, through the fields of Zoan.
13 He split the sea and made them pass through it;
He made the waters to rise, forming a wall of water.
14 Every day He led them with a cloud;
every night, with a fiery light.
15 He cracked open rocks in the wilderness and provided them with all the water they needed, as plentiful as the depths of the ocean.
16 He caused streams to burst forth from the rock, waters to rush in like a river.

17 Even after witnessing all of these miracles, they still chose to sin against God, to act against the will of the Most High in the desert!
18 They tested God in their stubborn hearts
by demanding whatever food they happened to be craving.
19 Then they challenged God:
"Can God fill a table with food in the middle of the desert?
20 He split open the rock, and water gushed out;
streams and rivers were overflowing!
But can He also provide us with bread?
Can He supply meat to His sons and daughters?"

21 When the Eternal heard these words, He was furious;
His fiery anger erupted against Jacob;
His wrath grew against Israel.
22 This all happened because they did not trust God;
they did not have faith in His power to save them.
23 Nevertheless, He gave instructions to the clouds in the sky and swung open heaven's doors;
24 He showered them with manna to soothe their hungry bellies and provided them with the bread of heaven.
25 (In that day mortals ate the bread of heavenly messengers.)
God provided them with plenty of food.
26 He stirred up the east wind and blew it through the sky.
With His might, He whipped the south wind into a storm;
27 Like dust from the sky, He caused meat to fall on them.
Birds, like sand on the seashore, fell to the earth.
28 They landed all about the camp, all around their tents.
29 God's people feasted on the food-blessings, and their stomachs were filled;
He gave them exactly what they desired.
30 But before their bellies were soothed, while their mouths were still full of food, 31 God's wrath came at them like a tidal wave
and swallowed some of the bravest, strongest among them and quieted the youth of Israel.

32 Even after all this, they continued to sin and still did not trust in Him or in the incredible things He did.
33 So He abruptly ended their time; they vanished like a breath;
He ended their years suddenly, with terror.
34 After He took some of their lives,
those left turned back and sought God wholeheartedly.
35 After all they had endured, they remembered that God, the Most High,
was their Rock, their Redeemer, 36 But even then they tried to deceive Him with their words and fool Him with a web of lies.
37 They were not consistently faithful to Him,
and they were untrue to their covenant with Him.
38 Yet by His great compassion,
He forgave them
and decided not to put an end to them.
Most of the time, He held back His anger and did not unleash His wrath against them.

39He was mindful that they were human,
frail and fleeting,
like a wind that touches one's skin
for a moment, then vanishes.
40Oh, how often they disobeyed Him in the wilderness
and frustrated Him during their time in the desert!
41Over and over again, they tested God's patience
and caused great pain for Israel's Holy One.
42They failed to be mindful of His great
strength.
They forgot all about the day He saved them from the enemy, 43When He displayed all sorts of signs and wonders in Egypt,
and all the amazing things He did in the region of Zoan* 44When He transformed their rivers into blood
so that they could not drink from their streams.
45He sent armies of flies to bite and torment them
and hordes of frogs to ruin and devastate them;
46He handed over all of their crops to grasshoppers
and the fruit of all their labor to locusts;
47He sent violent hailstorms, which smashed all their vines,
and ruined their sycamore-fig trees
with biting frost.
48He handed over all of their cattle to the hailstorms as well
and struck all their herds with lightning.
49He poured His burning wrath upon
them—
anger, resentment, and trouble—sending a company of heavenly warriors to destroy them.
50He carved out a road for His wrath;
He did not spare any from the sting
of death
but handed them over to the fangs
of the plague.
51He killed all the firstborn of Egypt,
the first products of their manhood
in the tents of Ham, the Egyptians' ancestor.
52But then He guided His people like sheep to safety
and led them like a flock into the desert to freedom;
53He took them on a safe route so that they would not be afraid,
and He allowed the hungry sea to swallow all of their enemies.
54He led them to His sacred land—
to this holy hill, which He had won by the power of His right hand.
55He forced out the other nations which were living there before them, and He redistributed the lands as an inheritance to His people;
He settled the tribes and families of Israel peaceably in their tents.

56Even after all this, they disobeyed the Most High God
and tested His patience
and did not live by His commands.
57Rather, they regressed to their fathers'
ways and lived faithlessly—
disloyal traitors!
They were as undependable and untrustworthy as a defective
bow,
58For they triggered His wrath by setting up high places,
altars to strange gods in His land;
they aroused His jealousy by bowing down to idols in the shadow of His presence.
59God boiled with wrath when He witnessed what they were doing;
He totally rejected Israel.
60He deserted His own sanctuary at Shiloh,
the tent where He had lived in the midst of His people.
61He handed His strength over to
captivity;
He put His splendor under the enemy's control.
62He handed His people over to the
sword,
and He was filled with anger toward His chosen ones;
He was burning with wrath!
63*A great* fire consumed all the young
men,
and the virgin girls were without
the joy of their wedding songs.
64Priests met their doom by the blade of
a sword,
and widows had no tears to cry;
they could not weep.
65Then the Lord awoke like a man who has been asleep,
like a warrior who has been overcome with wine.

* 78:43 Hebrew, Avaris

66He forced all His enemies back;
He defeated them, weighing them down with everlasting disgrace.

67He even rejected the tent of Joseph as His home
and showed no favor toward the tribe of Ephraim.
68Instead, He favored the tribe of Judah—
Mount Zion, the place He adored.
69He built His sanctuary like the mountain heights;
like the earth, He created it to last
forever.
70He chose His servant David,
and called Him out of the sheep
pastures.
71From caring for the ewes, who gently
nurse their young,
He called him to shepherd His people Jacob
and to look after Israel, His inheritance.
72David shepherded them with the honor
and integrity of his heart;
he led them in wisdom with strong and skillful hands.

Psalm 79

A song of Asaph.

1O God, the nations around us have raided the land that belongs to
You;
they have defiled Your holy house
and crushed Jerusalem to a heap of ruins.
2Your servants are dead;
birds of the air swoop down to pick
at their remains.
Scavengers of the earth eat what is left of Your saints.
3The enemy poured out their blood;
it flowed like water
all over Jerusalem,
and there is no one left, no one to bury what remains of them.
4The surrounding peoples taunt us.
We are nothing but a joke to them,
people to be ridiculed.

► The Book of Psalms records both the highs and lows in the lives of God's covenant people. Psalm 79 is an example of a communal lament after the destruction of Jerusalem and the loss of God's temple. Songs like these address God with a complaint resulting from some sort of national tragedy.

Communal laments share a common structure. First, the singers address God and tell Him of their problems. Second, they beg Him for help and express trust that He will answer them, often remembering how He has saved Israel in the past. Finally, the singers promise to praise God once He has resolved their problem. The specifics of the situation determine the thrust of the song. Communal laments are often the people's poetic and practical response to their perception of God's inaction in their affairs.

5How long can this go on, O Eternal
One?
Will You stay angry at us forever?
Your jealousy burning like wildfire?
6Flood these outsiders with Your wrath—
they have no knowledge of You!
Drown the kingdoms of this world
that call on false gods and not on
Your name.
7For these nations devoured Jacob,
consumed him,
and turned his home into a
wasteland.

8Do not hold the sins of our ancestors
against us,
but send Your compassion to meet us quickly, God.
We are in deep despair.
9Help us, O God who saves us, to the honor and glory of Your
name.
Pull us up, deliver us, and forgive our
sins,
for Your name's sake.
10Don't give these people any reason to ask,
"Where is their God?" Avenge the blood spilled by Your
servants.
Put it on display among the nations
before our very eyes.

11May the deep groans and wistful sighs
of the prisoners reach You,
and by Your great power, save those condemned to die.

12Pay back each of our invaders
personally, seven times
for the shame they heaped on You,
O Lord!
13Then we, Your people, the sheep of Your pasture,
will pause and give You thanks
forever;
Your praise will be told by our generation to the next.

Psalm 80

For the worship leader. A song of Asaph to the tune "The Lilies."*

Psalm 80 is a communal lament composed in Judah (the Southern Kingdom) after the fall of Israel (the Northern Kingdom) in 722 B.C.

1Turn Your ear toward us, Shepherd of
Israel,
You who lead the children of Joseph
like a flock.
You who sit enthroned above heaven's winged creatures,*
radiate Your light!
2In the presence of Ephraim, Benjamin,
and Manasseh,
arouse Your strength and power,
and save us!

3Bring us back to You, God.
Turn the light of Your face upon us
so that we will be rescued from
this sea of darkness.

4O Eternal God, Commander of heaven's
armies,
how long will You remain angry
at the prayers of Your sons and daughters?
5You have given them tears for food;
You have given them an abundance of tears to drink.
6You have made us a source of trouble
for our neighbors—
our enemies laugh to each other behind our backs.
7O God, Commander of heaven's armies,
bring us back to You.
Turn the light of Your face upon us
so that we will be rescued from
this sea of darkness.

8You took us like a grapevine dug from the soil of Egypt;
You forced out the nations and transplanted it in Your land.
9You groomed the ground around it, planted it so it would root deep into the earth, and it covered all the
land.
10*As it grew,* the mountains were blanketed by its shadow;
the mighty cedars were covered by its branches.
11The plant extended its branches to the Mediterranean Sea,
and spread its shoots all the way to the Euphrates River.
12*God,* why have You pulled down the wall that protected it so that everyone who wanders by can pick its sweet grapes?
13The wild boar of the forest eats it all,
and the creatures of the field feast
upon it.

14O God, Commander of heaven's armies,
come back to us.
Gaze down from heaven and see what has happened.
Keep watch over this vine, and nourish it.
15Look after the saplings which You planted with Your own right
hand,
the child whom You have raised
and nurtured for Yourself.
16Your enemies have chopped it down
and burned it with fire;
may they be destroyed by the sight of Your rebuke.
17Let Your protective hand rest on the one who is at Your right hand,
the child of man whom You have raised and nurtured for Yourself.
18Then we will not turn away from You.
Bring us back to life! And we will call out for You!

19O Eternal God, Commander of heaven's armies, bring us back to You.
Turn the light of Your face upon us
so that we will be rescued from
this sea of darkness.

Psalm 81

For the worship leader. A song of Asaph
accompanied by the harp.*

► God's covenant people celebrated many festivals honoring God and His provisions. Poets composed songs specifically for use on feast days.

* 80:title Hebrew, shoshannim, white lily-like flowers, perhaps the melody to which the song is sung * 80:1 Literally, cherubim * 81:title Hebrew, gittith, a winepress or a musical instrument from Gath

Psalm 81 is one of those. It was written to celebrate the Festival of Booths. God commanded His people to celebrate this festival every year so they would remember how God provided for them as they moved toward the promised land (Deuteronomy 16:13-15). A portion of this psalm (verses 5b-16) would have been sung by the lead musician as if he were speaking for God.

In the annual rhythm of festivals and praise, God is reminding the people of all He has done for them and of their past disobedience in spite of His love. He is also calling His people to renew their commitment to Him, a reasonable request on a holiday honoring Him.

[1]Sing with joy to God, our strength, our fortress.
Raise your voices to the True God of Jacob.
[2]Sing and strike up a melody;
sound the tambourine,
strum the sweet lyre and the harp.
[3]Blow the trumpet to announce the new moon,
the full moon, the day of our feast.*
[4]For this is prescribed for Israel,
a rule ordained by the True God of Jacob.
[5]A precept established by God in Joseph during His journey in Egypt.

I hear it said in a language foreign to me:
[6]"I removed the burden from your shoulders;
I removed heavy baskets from your hands.
[7]You cried out to Me, I heard your distress, and I delivered you;
I answered you from the secret place, where clouds of thunder roll.
I tested you at the waters of Meribah.

[pause]*

[8]"O My people, hear Me; I will rebuke you.
Israel, Israel! If you would only listen to Me.
[9]Do not surround yourselves with other gods
or bow down to strange gods.
[10]I am the Eternal, your True God.
I liberated you from slavery, led you out from the land of Egypt.
If you open your mouth wide, I will fill it.

[11]"But My own people did not hear My voice!
Israel refused to obey Me.
[12]So I freed them to follow their hard hearts,
to do what they thought was best.
[13]If only My people would hear My voice and Israel would follow My direction!
[14]Then I would not hesitate to humble their enemies and defeat their opposition Myself.
[15]Those who hate the Eternal will cower in His presence, pretending to submit;
they secretly loathe Him, yet their doom is forever.
[16]But you—I will feed you the best wheat and satisfy you with honey out of the rock."

Psalm 82

A song of Asaph.

Psalm 82 provides an image of a heavenly scene in which God accuses His heavenly messengers of not caring for the poor and pursuing justice.

[1]The True God stands to preside over the heavenly council.
He pronounces judgment on the so-called gods.
[2]He asks: "How long will you judge dishonestly and be partial to the wicked?"

[pause]*

[3]"Stand up for the poor and the orphan;
advocate for the rights of the afflicted and those in need.
[4]Deliver the poor and the needy;
rescue them from their evil oppressors."

[5]These bullies are ignorant; they have no understanding of My ways.

* 81:3 Deuteronomy 16:13-15 * 81:7 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"
* 82:2 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

So as they walk in darkness,
the foundations of the earth tremble.

6I said, "Though you are gods*
and children of the Most High, 7You will die no differently than any mortal;
you will fall like one of the princes."

8Rise up, O True God; judge the rulers of the earth,
for all the nations are Yours.

Psalm 83

A song of Asaph.

1O True God, do not be quiet any longer.
Do not stay silent or be still, O God.
2Look now, Your enemies are causing a commotion;
those who hate You are rising up!
3They are conniving against Your people,
conspiring against those You cherish.
4They say, "Join us. Let's wipe the entire nation off the face of the earth so no one will remember Israel's name." 5They are all in it together, thinking as one,
and making a pact against You:
6The people of Edom and Ishmael;
the Moabites and the Hagrites;
7Gebal, Ammon, and Amalek;
Philistia with the residents of Tyre.
8And the powerful Assyrians have joined the alliance to add their strength and support the descendants of Lot: Moab and Ammon.

[pause]*

9Do to these nations what You did to Midian, to Sisera and Jabin at the raging waters of Kishon.
10They were destroyed at En-dor;
they became like dung, fertilizer for the ground.
11Make their rulers like Oreb and Zeeb,
all their princes like Zebah and Zalmunna, 12Who schemed, "We should own the meadows of the True God, let's take them!"
13O my God, blow them away like a tumbleweed, scatter them like dust in a whirlwind.
14As a wildfire charges through the forest
or a flame sprints up the mountainside, 15Send Your raging winds to chase them,
hunt them down,
and terrify them with Your storm.
16Redden their faces in shame
so that they will turn and seek Your holy name, Eternal One.
17May they face disappointment and anxiety forever;
may they be ashamed and die.
18May they know that You and You alone,
whose name is the Eternal,
are the Most High, the Supreme Ruler over all the earth.

Psalm 84

For the worship leader. A song of the sons of Korah accompanied by the harp.*

1How lovely is Your temple, Your dwelling place on earth,
O Eternal One, Commander of heaven's armies.
2How I long to be there—my soul is spent,
wanting, waiting to walk in the courts of the Eternal.
My whole being sings joyfully
to the living God.
3Just as the sparrow seeks her home,
and the swallow finds in her own nest
a place to lay her young,
I, too, seek Your altars, my King and my God,
Commander of heaven's armies.
4How blessed are those who make Your house their home,
who live with You;
they are constantly praising You.

[pause]*

5Blessed are those who make You their strength, for they treasure every step of the journey [to Zion].*
6On their way through the valley of Baca,
they stop and dig wells to collect the refreshing spring water,
and the early rains fill the pools.

* 82:6 John 10:34 * 83:8 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 84:title Hebrew, gittith, a winepress or a musical instrument from Gath * 84:4 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 84:5 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

7They journey from place to place,
gaining strength along the way;
until they meet God in Zion.

8O Eternal God, Commander of heaven's
armies, listen to my prayer.
O please listen, God of Jacob.

[pause]

9O True God, look at our shield, our protector,
see the face of Your anointed king,
and defend our defender.

10Just one day in the courts of Your temple is greater than a thousand anywhere else.
I would rather serve as a porter at my God's doorstep
than live in luxury in the house of
the wicked.
11For the Eternal God is a sun and a shield.
The Eternal grants favor and glory;
He doesn't deny any good thing
to those who live with integrity.
12O Eternal One, Commander of heaven's
armies,
how fortunate are those who trust
You.

Psalm 85

For the worship leader. A song of the sons of Korah.

1O Eternal One, there was a time when You were gracious to Your land;
You returned Jacob's descendants
from their captivity.
2You forgave the iniquity of Your people,
covered all of their sins.

[pause]*

3*There was a time when* You restrained
all of Your fierce wrath,
when You cooled Your hot anger.

4O God of our salvation, bring us back again—as You did before—
and put away Your anger toward us.
5Will You be mad at us forever?
Will You continue to be angry with our children and theirs?
6Will You not bring us back to life once
more
so that we, Your people, will find joy
and pleasure in You?
7O Eternal One, show us Your unfailing
love;
give us what we truly need: Your
salvation.

8I will hear what the True God—the Eternal—will say,
for He will speak peace over His
people,
peace over those who faithfully
follow Him, [but do not let them abuse His gift and return to foolish ways].*
9Without a doubt, His salvation is near for those who revere Him so that He will be with us again and all His glory will fill this land.

10Unfailing love and truth have met on
their way;
righteousness and peace have kissed one another.
11Truth will spring from the earth like a plant,
and justice will look down from
the sky.
12Yes, the Eternal will plant goodness in
the earth,
and our land will yield great
abundance.
13Justice will come before Him, marking out a path, setting a way
for His feet.

Psalm 86

A prayer of David.

1O Eternal One, lend an ear to my prayer
and answer me,
for I am weak and wanting.
2Safeguard my soul, for I remain loyal
to You.
Save me, Your servant, who trusts
in You, my God.
3O Lord, please be merciful to me,
as all day long I cry out to You.
4Bring joy into the life of Your servant,
for it's only to You, O Lord, that I offer my soul.
5O Lord, You are good and ready to forgive;
Your loyal love flows generously
over all who cry out to You.
6O Eternal One, lend an ear and hear my prayer;
listen to my pleading voice.
7When times of trouble come, I will call
to You
because I know You will respond
to me.

* 85:2 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 85:8 Greek manuscripts read, "to those who turn to Him in their hearts."

8O Lord, You stand alone among the other gods;
nothing they have done compares to Your wonderful works.
9O Lord, all the peoples of earth—every nation You established—will come to You, bowing low to worship,
and rightly honor Your great name.
10For You are great, and Your works are wondrous;
You are the one True God.
11O Eternal One, guide me along Your path so that I will live in Your truth.
Unite my divided heart so that I will fear Your great name.
12O Lord, my God! I praise You with all that I am.
I will rightly honor Your great name forever.
13For Your loyal love for me is so great it is beyond comparison.
You have rescued my soul from the depths of the grave.

14O True God, arrogant people are after me.
A violent gang wants to kill me;
they have no interest in You or Your ways.
15But Lord, You are a God full of compassion, generous in grace,
slow to anger, and boundless in loyal love and truth.
16Look at me, and grant me Your favor.
Invest Your strength in me, Your servant,
and rescue me, Your handmaiden's child.
17Give me a sign so I may know Your goodness rests on me and so those who hate me will be red with shame at the sight of it.
For You, O Eternal One, have come to my aid and offered me relief.

Psalm 87

A song of the sons of Korah.

1He laid His foundation on the sacred mountains.
2The Eternal loves Zion's gates;
He prefers it over any other place where Jacob's descendants make their homes.
3Spectacular things are said about you,
O Jerusalem, city of the True God.
[pause]*

4*God says,* "I tell of some who know Me in Egypt* and Babylon;
behold, My people are in Philistia, Tyre, and Ethiopia* too:
'This person was born there.'"

5It is said of Zion,
"This person and that person were born in her."
The Most High God has established that city and makes her strong.
6When keeping track of His people, the Eternal surely notices,
"This one was born in Zion."

[pause]

7Those who sing and those who dance will say together,
"All my fountains of joy are in You."

Psalm 88

For the worship leader. A song of the sons of Korah accompanied by dance.* A contemplative song* of Heman the Ezrahite.

This individual lament was composed by someone afflicted with a grave illness, feeling lonely and abandoned by God. This song is reminiscent of Job's sufferings.

1O Eternal One! O True God my Savior!
I cry out to You all the time, under the sun and the moon.
2Let my voice reach You!
Please listen to my prayers!

3My soul is deeply troubled,
and my heart can't bear the weight of this sorrow. I feel so close to death.
4I'm like the poor and helpless who die alone,
left for dead, as good as the unknowable sea of souls lying under our feet, 5-6Forsaken by Him and cut off from His hand,
abandoned among the dead who rest in their graves.
And You have sent me to be forgotten with them,
in the lowest pits of the earth,
in the darkest canyons of the ocean.

* 87:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 87:4 Hebrew, Rahab, a poetic reference to Egypt * 87:4 Hebrew, Cush * 88:title Hebrew, mahalath leanoth, meaning is uncertain. Only use of this phrase in the Old Testament. * 88:title Hebrew, maskil

7You crush me with Your anger.
You crash against me like the relentless, angry sea.

[pause]*

8Those whom I have known, who have been with me,
You have gathered like sheaves and cast to the four winds.
*They can't bear to look me in the eye,
and* they are horrified when they think of me.
I am in a trap and cannot be free.
9My eyes grow dim, weakened by this sickness;
it is taking my strength from me.
Like a worn cloth, my hands are unfolded before You daily,
O Eternal One.
10Are You the miracle-worker for the
dead?
Will they rise from the dark shadows
to worship You again?

[pause]

11Will Your great love be proclaimed in
the grave
or Your faithfulness be remembered in whispers like mists throughout the place of ruin?*
12Are Your wonders known in the dominion of darkness,
or is Your righteousness recognized
in a land where all is forgotten?

13But I am calling out to You, Eternal
One.
My prayers rise before You with every new sun!
14Why do You turn Your head and brush me aside, O Eternal One?
Why are You avoiding me?
15Since the days of my youth, I have been sick and close to death.
My helpless soul has suffered Your silent horrors;
now I am desperate.
16Your rage spills over me like rivers of fire;
Your assaults have all but destroyed me.
17They surround me like a flood, rising
throughout the day,
closing in from every direction.
18You have taken from me the one I love
and my friend;
even the light of my acquaintances
are darkness.

Psalm 89

A contemplative song* of Ethan the Ezrahite.

► Psalm 89 begins on a note of praise and ends with a lament. The heart of this psalm recalls God's choice of David as king and God's covenant with him to establish an eternal dynasty (2 Samuel 7).

1I will sing of Your unfailing love, Eternal
One, forever.
I will speak of Your faithfulness to all generations.
2I will tell how Your unfailing love will always stand strong;
and how Your faithfulness is established in the heavens
above.
3*You said,* "I have made a covenant with My chosen one.
I made My servant, David, this
promise:
4'I will establish your dynasty
so that you and your descendants will always be secure.
Your rule will continue for generations to come.'"

[pause]*

5Let the heavens join in praising the wonderful works of the Eternal.
The holy ones have gathered,
singing of Your faithfulness.
6For there is no one above who compares to the Eternal,
not one of heaven's creatures is like Him in the least.
7In the council of holy ones, God is lifted high and feared;
His presence overwhelms all who are near Him.
8O Eternal God, Commander of heaven's
armies,
who is mighty like You?
You are completely faithful; that's why we trust You.
9The ocean waters are at Your command.

* 88:7 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up" * 88:11 Hebrew, Abaddon * 89:title Hebrew, maskil * 89:4 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

When violent waves rise up, You still them.
10You defeated Rahab, that ancient monster of chaos,
and left it lifeless.
You routed Your enemies and scattered them by Your great arm of power.
11Everything in the sky above and the earth below are Yours.
The world and all it contains are Yours, for You created them all.
12Everything was created by You—the north, the south—
the mountains of Tabor and Hermon echo joyously the song of Your name.
13Your arm is strong.
Your grip is powerful.
Your right hand is raised up high.
14Your rule is rooted deeply in justice and righteousness—
unfailing love and truth lead from the way ahead of You.
15How happy are those who have learned how to praise You;
those who journey through life by the light of Your face.
16Every hour of the day, they rejoice at the sound of Your name.
They are lifted up and encouraged by Your righteousness.
17For You are the beauty of their strength.
On account of Your favor, our strength, our horn, is increased.
18For our shield of protection comes from the Eternal,
and the Holy One of Israel has given us our king.

19Long ago You spoke through a vision to Your faithful followers, saying,
"I have given help to a warrior;
I have chosen a hero from among My people.
20I have found David, My servant.
With My holy oil, I have anointed him king.
21My strong hand will stay with him and sustain him, regardless of trial or foe.
My mighty arm will be his strength and shield.
22The deceit of his enemies will not outwit him.
The wicked will not defeat him.
23I will pound his enemies right in front of him.
I will strike down all those who hate him.
24My faithfulness and unfailing love will never leave him;
through My name, strength and power will be his.
25I will extend his rule over the oceans,
his right hand will control the rivers.
26He will cry out to Me, 'You are my Father,
my God, and the Rock of my salvation!'
27I will make him My firstborn;
no earthly king shall be greater.
28My unfailing love will always be with him, protecting him;
My covenant with him will never be broken.
29I will ensure his family's future forever;
his dynasty will last as long as the heavens.
30If his children turn away from Me and forsake My law,
if they refuse to walk according to My judgments,
31If they disobey My instructions and ignore My commandments, 32Then I will use the rod to punish their sins
and stripes to deal with their iniquity.
33And yet My unfailing love of him will remain steadfast and strong.
I will not be unfaithful to My promise.
34I will not violate My covenant,
nor will I alter even one word of what My lips have spoken.
35*These words* I have pledged in My holiness once and for all,
and I will not lie to David.
36*As long* as the sun lights the day before Me, his descendants will continue to rule.
His kingdom will last forever.
37His dynasty will stand firm for all time like the moon,
the faithful witness that stands watch in the night sky."

[pause]

38But what now? You have turned Your back and walked away!
Your full fury burns against Your anointed king.
39You made a covenant with Your servant, then renounced it, casting his sacred crown into the dust.

There are endless reasons to praise God, and many of them are included in the Book of Psalms. Book Four (Psalms 90–106) is made up of songs that praise and celebrate God for His creation, strength, work in history, and kingship. Although these songs are written to honor God, many require something from us. Throughout these psalms is the Hebrew word hallelujah, translated "Praise the Eternal!" That's not just a passive verb, as in, "Praise be to the Eternal"; it's an active imperative! We are commanded to praise Him. We are commanded to join angels above, people below, and all creatures in praising Him!

40You have broken down the walls that protected Your servant;
his defenses are reduced to a pile of rubble.
41Strangers now plunder all that he has left;
he has become a laughingstock
among his neighbors.
42You have made his adversaries strong.
His enemies celebrate their victory.
43You have dulled the blade of his sword,
and You have not helped him stand strong in the battle.
44You have brought his days of splendor
to an abrupt end;
You have toppled his throne;
it sits in the dust.
45You have cut short the days of his youth and have covered him with shame and despair.

[pause]

46How long must we endure, O Eternal
One?
Will You hide Yourself forever?
How long will Your wrath burn like
fire?
47Remember my days are numbered.
Have You created the children of Adam to live futile lives?
48Death waits at the gate; who can escape
and live?
Does the grave hold exceptions for any of us?
Who can deliver us from the power of the grave?

[pause]

49O Lord, where is the unfailing love You showed in times past?
And where is the proof of Your faithfulness to David?
50Remember how Your servants are ridiculed, O Lord;
how I carry within me the insults of so many peoples.
51Your enemies are mocking me,
O Eternal One,
mocking every step Your anointed
one made.

52Praise the Eternal always. Amen.
Amen.

BOOK FOUR

Psalm 90

A prayer of Moses, a man of God.

1Lord, You have always been our refuge.
Our ancestors made You their home long ago.
2Before mountains were born,
before You fashioned the earth and filled it with life,
from ages past to distant futures,
You are truly God.

3You turn people back to dust,
saying, "Go back to the dust,
children of Adam."
4For You a thousand years is like a day
when it is over,
a watch during the night;
there is no difference to You.

5-6You release the waters of death to sweep mankind away in his slumber.
In the morning, we are blades of grass,
Growing rapidly under the sun but withering quickly;
yet in the evening, we fade and die,
soon to be cut down.

7For Your anger has consumed us.
Your wrath has shaken us to the core and left us deeply troubled.
8You have written our offenses before
You—
the light of Your presence shines brightly on our secret sins,
and we can't run or hide.

9For all our days are spent beneath Your wrath;
our youth gives way to old age, and then one day our years come to an end with a sigh.
10We may journey through life for 70 years;
some may live and breathe 80 years—if we are strong.
Yet our time here is only toil and trouble;
soon our days are gone, and we fly away.
11Who can truly comprehend the power unleashed by Your anger?
Your wrath matches the fear that is due to You.
12Teach us to number our days
so that we may truly live and achieve wisdom.

13How long will we wait here alone?
Return, O Eternal One, with mercy.
Rescue Your servants with compassion.
14With every sun's rising, surprise us with Your love, satisfy us with Your kindness.
Then we will sing with joy and celebrate every day we are alive.
15You have spent many days afflicting us with pain and sorrow;
now match those with years of unspent joy.
16Let Your work of love be on display for all Your servants;
let Your children see Your majesty.
17And then let the beauty and grace of the Lord—our God—rest upon us and bring success to all we do;
yes, bring success to all we do!

Psalm 91

1He who takes refuge in the shelter of the Most High will be safe in the shadow of the Almighty.
2He will say to the Eternal, "My shelter, my mighty fortress,
my God, I place all my trust in You." 3For He will rescue you from the snares set by your enemies who entrap you and from deadly plagues.
4*Like a bird protecting its young,* God will cover you with His feathers, will protect you under His great wings;
His faithfulness will form a shield around you, a rock-solid wall to protect you.

► Psalm 91 is a beautiful psalm of trust in God. But how does God take care of all His people, all at the same time? Well, keep reading because Psalm 91 is one of just a few places in Scripture that describe what we might call "guardian angels" (Exodus 23:20; Psalm 43:3). Though rare, these passages teach that God is not alone in maintaining and protecting His creation and His people. He has made a host of heavenly messengers ready to do His bidding, and His bidding is often to guard His people throughout their lives and protect them—sometimes from dangers they are not even aware of.

5You will not dread the terrors that haunt the night or enemy arrows that fly in the day 6Or the plagues that lurk in darkness
or the disasters that wreak havoc at noon.

7A thousand may fall on your left,
ten thousand may die on your right,
but these horrors won't come near you.
8Only your eyes will witness the punishment that awaits the evil,
but you will not suffer because of it.

9For you made the Eternal [your]* refuge,
the Most High your only home.
10No evil will come to you;
plagues will be turned away at your door.

11He will command His heavenly messengers to guard you,
to keep you safe in every way.
12They will hold you up in their hands
so that you will not crash, or fall, or even graze your foot on a stone.*

* 91:9 Hebrew manuscripts read, "who is my." * 91:11-12 Matthew 4:6; Luke 4:10-11

13You will walk on the lion and the cobra;
you will trample the lion and the serpent underfoot.

14"Because he clings to Me in love,
I will rescue him from harm;
I will set him above danger.
Because he has known Me by name,
15He will call on Me, and I will answer.
I'll be with him through hard times;
I'll rescue him and grant him honor.
16I'll reward him with many good years
on this earth
and let him witness My salvation."

Psalm 92

A song for the Sabbath Day.

Psalm 92 gives thanks to God for His salvation. The superscription provides the only reference to the Sabbath in the Book of Psalms.

1How good it is to give thanks to the
Eternal
and to praise Your name with song,
O Most High;
2To speak of Your unfailing love in the morning
and rehearse Your faithfulness as night begins to fall.
3*How good it is to praise* to the sound of strings—lute and harp—
the stirring melodies of the lyre.
4Because You, O Eternal One, thrill me with the things You have done,
I will sing with joy in light of Your deeds.

5Your works are marvelous, O Eternal
One!
Your thoughts are unfathomable.
6But a weak-minded man can't understand this;
foolish people are unable to see 7That evil men sprout like grass
and wicked men flourish,
only so that they will be doomed
forever.
8But You, O Eternal One, are above all,
forever.
9As for Your enemies, O Eternal One,
their fate is obvious:
those who hate You will not survive;
those who practice evil will be broken in pieces.

10But You have made me strong as a wild ox,
anointed me with the refreshing oil
of Your blessing.
11And I have seen with my own eyes my enemies defeated;
I have heard with my own ears my attackers cut down.

12Those who are devoted to God will flourish like budding date-palm trees;
they will grow strong and tall like cedars in Lebanon.
13Those planted in the house of the Eternal
will thrive in the courts of our God.
14They will bear fruit into old age;
even in winter, they will be green and full of sap
15To display that the Eternal is righteous.
He is my rock, and there is no
shadow of evil in Him.

Psalm 93

1The Eternal reigns, clothed in majesty;
He is dressed in power;
He has surrounded Himself with
strength.
He has established the world, and it will never be toppled.
2Your throne was established from the beginning of the world, O God,
and You are everlasting.

3The waters have risen, O Eternal One;
the sound of pounding waves is deafening.
The waters have roared with power.
4More powerful than the thunder of mighty rivers,
more powerful than the mighty waves in the ocean
is the Eternal on high!

5*Your teachings are true;*
Your decrees sure.
Sacredness adorns Your house,
O Eternal One, forevermore.

Psalm 94

1O Eternal God of vengeance,
O God who sets things right, shine
upon us.
2Rise, O Judge who presides over the earth, and pronounce Your sentence upon
the proud.
Give them what they deserve!
3How long, O Eternal One, how long will the guilty revel in their prosperity?

4Arrogance pours from their mouths;
all these troublemakers brag of their exploits.
5They have broken Your people to pieces, O Eternal One,
and brought ruin to Your future generations.
6They slay a widow, kill a newcomer, and murder an orphan.
7Then they say, "The Eternal can't see what we're up to;
the God of Jacob's people pays no attention to us."

8Think, brainless people;
stupid people, when will you get it?
9Does the God who set the ear in its place not hear?
Does the God who made the eye not see?
10Does the God who teaches the nations and guides humanity to knowledge, not exercise just correction?
11The Eternal knows the highest thoughts of the wise,
and they are worthless.*

12How fortunate are those You discipline, O Eternal One,
those You train by Your divine law;
13You relieve them in times of distress, until a grave is dug for evildoers.
14The Eternal will not abandon His people;
He will not turn away from those He redeemed
15Because justice is coming for those who do what is right and all the good-hearted will pursue it.

16Who will back me up when evildoers come against me?
Who is willing to take my side against the wicked?
17If the Eternal had not come to my rescue,
my soul would have descended to the land where death silences every voice.
18When I said, "My foot is slipping!"
Your unfailing love, O Eternal One, held me up.
19When anxiety overtakes me and worries are many,
Your comfort lightens my soul.
20Can wicked tyrants be Your allies?
Will You align with rulers who create havoc with unjust decrees?
21They have joined forces against the life of the just-living, the right-seeking,
and have sentenced the innocent to death.
22But the Eternal has been my citadel;
my God, a sure safe haven.
23He will fold their wickedness back upon them,
and because they are malicious, He will silence them.
The Eternal, our True God, will scatter them.

* 94:11 1 Corinthians 3:20

Psalm 95

1Come, let us worship in song, a joyful offering to the Eternal.
Shout! Shout with joy to the rock of our liberation.
2Come face-to-face with God, and give thanks;
with loud and joyful voices, praise Him in songs.
3For the Eternal is a great God,
and a great King, supreme over all gods.
4Within His control are the very depths of the earth;
the mountaintops too—they all belong to Him.
5The sea belongs to Him, for He created it—scooped and filled it—with His hands He made the dry land—every valley and mountain.

6Come, let us worship Him. Everyone bow down;
kneel before the Eternal who made us.
7For He is our God
and we are His people, the flock of His pasture,
His sheep protected and nurtured by His hand.

Today, if He speaks, hear His voice.
8"Don't harden your hearts the way they did in the bitter uprising at Meribah or like that day they complained in the wilderness of Massah.
9Your ancestors tested Me,
wanted Me to prove Myself though they had seen that nothing was too great for Me.
10For 40 years I despised that grumbling generation and said, 'Their hearts are unfaithful;

they no longer walk in My ways;
though I call, they do not listen to My voice.'
11That is why in My anger I swore,
'They will never enter into My rest.'"

Psalm 96

1Sing a new song to the Eternal;
sing in one voice to the Eternal, all the earth.
2Sing to the Eternal of all the good things He's done.
Bless His name;
broadcast the good news of His salvation each and every day.
3Enlighten the nations to His splendor;
describe His wondrous acts to all people.
4For the Eternal is great indeed and praiseworthy;
feared and reverenced above all gods, the True God shall be.
5For all human-made, lifeless gods are worthless idols,
but the Eternal plotted the vast heavens, shaped every last detail.
6Honor and majesty precede Him;
strength and beauty infuse His holy sanctuary.

► One of the great themes of Scripture and Psalms is the kingship of God. While lesser kings come and go, God is the One who ultimately rules and reigns over His people, and by extension over the rest of creation. Psalm 96 and others in the collection are often referred to as "enthronement" psalms because they declare boldly and unequivocally that the Eternal is King. There is evidence to suggest that an annual festival at the beginning of the year provided an opportunity to reaffirm the people's loyalty to the one True God. Psalm 96 calls for new songs to be composed and sung to God and about God as a witness. The enthronement psalms call the world and all its inhabitants to come and recognize His beauty and majesty.

7Give all credit to the Eternal, families of the world!
Credit Him with glory, honor, and strength!
8Credit Him with the glory worthy of His magnificent name;
gather your sacrifice, and present it at His temple.
9Bow down to the Eternal, adorned in holiness;
lay awestruck before Him,
trembling, all people of the earth.

10Shout out to the nations, "The Eternal reigns!
Yes, indeed, the world is anchored and will not shake loose.
He governs all people with a fair hand."
11And so, let the heavens resound in gladness!
Let joy be the earth's rhythm as the sea and all its creatures roar.
12Let the fields grow in triumph, a grand jubilee for all that live there.
Let all the trees of the forest dig in and reach high with songs of joy before the Eternal, 13For the Eternal is on His way:
yes, He is coming to judge the earth.
He will set the world right by His standards,
and by His faithfulness, He will examine the people.

Psalm 97

1The Eternal reigns powerful over all;
let the earth sing with joy;
let the distant islands celebrate.
2Clouds and deep darkness encircle Him;
righteousness and justice are the bedrock of His rule.
3Fire precedes Him;
it burns away His opponents on all sides.
4With His lightning flashing about, He illuminates the world;
the earth watches and trembles.
5Like wax before the flame, mountains melt when the Eternal appears,
the Master of the whole earth.

6The heavens display His order and perfect justice;
all peoples witness His magnificence.
7Those who worship idols,
who boast in the impotent creations of human hands, will be shamed.
Worship Him, all you gods.

8Zion heard and was glad,
and the daughters of Judah celebrated because they saw Your justice, O Eternal One.
9For You are the Eternal, the Most High, over the entire world;
You far exceed all gods.

10Hate evil, you lovers of the Eternal.
He protects the souls of those who follow Him;
He rescues them from the devices of the wicked.
11Light is sown in the just;
as it grows, it brings joy to the pure of heart.
12Celebrate the Eternal God, all you who are faithful;
offer thanks to His holy name.

Psalm 98

A song.

1*Compose* a new song, and sing it to the Eternal because of the unbelievable things He has done;
He has won the victory
with the skill of His right hand and strength of His holy arm.
2The Eternal has made it clear that He saves,
and He has shown the nations that He does what is right.
3He has been true to His promises;
fresh in His mind is His unfailing love
for all of Israel.
Even the ends of the earth have witnessed how our God saves.

This hymn invites all the people on earth and creation itself to join in singing a new song of "beautiful noise" celebrating God's justice and victories.

4Raise your voices; make a beautiful noise to the Eternal, all the earth.
Let your joy explode into song and praise;
5Make music to the Eternal with the harp;
sing a beautiful melody with the harp and chorus.
6With trumpets and horns,
fill the air with joyful sounds to the King, the Eternal.

7Let the sea rumble and roar, and all the creatures it holds shout praise;
let the whole world and all those who live in it join the celebration.
8Let the rivers applaud
and the mountains join in joyful song 9In the presence of the Eternal because He is coming to judge the earth.
He is coming,
and His judgment will be what is right for the world
and just to all people.

Psalm 99

1The Eternal is the king ruling over all;
let all people shake in fear.
He sits on His throne, settled between winged guardians;*
let the planet tremble.
2The Eternal is great in the hearts of His people;
He has made Zion His sacred mountain,
and He reigns majestic over all people.
3Let them express praise and gratitude to Your amazing and awesome name—because He is holy, perfect and exalted in His power.
4The King who rules with strength also treasures justice.
You created order and established what is right.
You have carried out justice
and done what is right to the people of Jacob.
5Lift up the Eternal our God in your heart;
bow down to the earth where He rests His feet.
He is holy, perfect and exalted in His power.

6Moses and Aaron were two of His priests;
Samuel was among those who called out to Him.
They asked the Eternal for help, and He answered them.
7He answered them from a column of cloud;

* 99:1 Literally, cherubim

Psalm 100 is one of the best known and most loved psalms. This hymn of thanksgiving invites the whole world to come to God's temple in Jerusalem and enter its sacred spaces with unbridled joy and hearts filled with gratitude. And why should we? The psalm provides the answer. Not only has God created us—a gracious act of love in and of itself—but He has made us His own people. He has chosen us and loved us. As with Psalm 23, God's people are cast in the role as sheep living well in His pasture.

The psalm ends on a high note of confidence and hope. At all times—but perhaps more in times of difficulty—we need to be reminded of what is true. Regardless of what seems to be happening around us, the Eternal is good; His love and faithfulness will endure forever.

they heeded His testimonies and lived by the laws He gave them.

8You answered them, Eternal our God;
You were, to them, a God who forgives,
yet You did not ignore what they did wrong
and punished them fairly as well.
9Lift up the Eternal our God in your hearts,
and celebrate His goodness at His holy mountain,
for the Eternal our God is holy,
perfect and exalted in His power.

Psalm 100

A song of thanks.

1Raise your voices;
make a beautiful noise to the Eternal, all the earth.
2Serve the Eternal gladly;
enter into His presence singing songs of joy!

3Know this: the Eternal One Himself is the True God.
He is the One who made us;
we have not made ourselves;
we are His people, like sheep grazing in His fields.

4Go through His gates, giving thanks;
walk through His courts, giving praise.
Offer Him your gratitude and praise His holy name.

5Because the Eternal is good,
His loyal love and mercy will never end,
and His truth will last throughout all generations.

Psalm 101

A song of David.

1I will sing of God's unsparing love and justice;
to You, O Eternal One, I will sing praises.
2I will seek to live a life of integrity;
when will You come to me?

I will walk in my house
with an honest and true heart.
3I will refuse to look
on any sordid thing;

I detest the worthless deeds of those who stray;
evil will not get a hold on me.
4I will rid my heart of all perversion;
I will not flirt with any evil.

5Whoever secretly slanders his neighbor,
I will silence;
I will not tolerate
a condescending smirk, an arrogant heart.
6I will look for those who are loyal in the land
so that they may live with me and know my pleasure.
Whoever walks with integrity
will enter my service.

7The one who makes a habit of deceit
will not be welcome in my house;
The one who lies
will not remain in my presence for long.

8Every morning I will purge
all the wicked from the land
So as to rid the city of the Eternal of those who practice evil.

Psalm 102

A prayer of the weak and oppressed, when he turns his complaints to the Eternal.

1 Hear me, O Eternal One, hear my prayer!
Hear my lonely desperate cry for help.
2 Do not hide from me
when my days are filled with anguish;
Lend Your ear to my wailing,
and answer me quickly when I call.

3 For my days come and go, vanishing like smoke,
and my bones are charred like bricks of a hearth.
4 My heart is beaten down like grass withered and scorched in the summer heat;
I can't even remember to eat.
5 My body is shaken by my groans;
my bones cling to my skin, holding on for dear life.
6 I am like a solitary owl in the wilderness;
I am a lost and lonely screech owl at home in the rubble.
7 I stare at the ceiling, awake in my bed;
I am alone, a defenseless sparrow perched on a roof.
8 All day long my enemies chide me;
those who mock me spit out my name as a curse.
9 For ashes have become my bread;
my tears fall into my drink
10 Because of the depth of Your wrath.
You have brought me up
and then hurled me aside.
11 My days go by like a long shadow—stretched thin and disappearing—
I shrivel up like grass baked in the hot sun.

12 But You, O Eternal One, remain forever,
and Your name endures to all generations.
13 You will rise up once again and remember Your love for Zion;
it is time to have mercy on Your city;
yes, it is the divinely appointed time.
14 Your faithful servants take pleasure in her every stone;
they even delight in the dust of her streets.
15 Days are coming when nations will tremble at the name of the Eternal;
all the rulers of the earth will bow down to Your glory.
16 For He will return to rebuild His city, Zion;
He will be seen in His splendor.
17 He will listen to the prayer of the impoverished and welcome their prayers.

18 Let this record be kept for posterity
so that people not yet born may praise the Eternal.
19 Tell them that He looked down from holy heights, His heavenly sanctuary;
the Eternal looked down from heaven and closely watched the earth, 20 Hearing the prisoners' groans—releasing those awaiting execution—
21 That the name of the Eternal would resound in Zion, and His praise would be proclaimed in Jerusalem 22 When the peoples gather and the nations' leaders assemble to worship the Eternal.

23 Along my way He has sapped my strength;
He has shortened my days here on earth.
24 I said, "O my True God, don't take me away
in the middle of my life;
Unlike me, Your years continually unfold
throughout all generations."

25 In the beginning, You laid the foundation of the earth and set the skies above us with Your own hands.
26 But while they will someday pass away,
You remain forever;
when they wear out like old clothes,
You will roll them up and change them into something new, and they will pass away.
27 But You are the same, You will never change;
Your years will never come to an end.*
28 The children of those who serve You will enjoy a good, long life;
their offspring will stand strong before You.

* 102:25-27 Hebrews 1:10-12

Psalm 103

A song of David.

1 O my soul, come, praise the Eternal
with all that is in me—body, emotions, mind, and will—every part of who I am—
praise His holy name.
2 O my soul, come, praise the Eternal;
sing a song from a grateful heart;
sing and never forget all the good
He has done.
3 Despite all your many offenses, He forgives and releases you.
More than any doctor, He heals your diseases.
4 He reaches deep into the pit to deliver
you from death.
He crowns you with unfailing love
and compassion like a king.
5 When your soul is famished and withering,
He fills you with good and beautiful things, satisfying you as long as you live.
He makes you strong like an eagle,
restoring your youth.

6 When people are crushed, wronged,
enslaved, raped, murdered,
the Eternal is just;
He makes the wrongs right.
7 He showed Moses His ways;
He allowed His people Israel to see
His wonders and acts of power.
8 The Eternal is compassionate and merciful.
When we cross all the lines, He is patient with us.
When we struggle against Him, He lovingly stays with us—changing,
convicting, prodding;
9 He will not constantly criticize,
nor will He hold a grudge forever.
10 Thankfully, God does not punish us for our sins and depravity as we deserve.
In His mercy, He tempers justice with
peace.
11 Measure how high heaven is above the
earth;
God's wide, loving, kind heart is greater for those who revere
Him.
12 You see, God takes all our crimes—our seemingly inexhaustible sins—
and removes them.
As far as east is from the west, He removes them from us.
13 An earthly father expresses love for his children;
it is no different with our heavenly Father;
The Eternal shows His love for those who revere Him.
14 For He knows what we are made of;
He knows our frame is frail, and He remembers we came from dust.

15 The children of Adam are like grass;
their days are few;
they flourish for a time like flowers
in a meadow.
16 As the wind blows over the field and the bloom is gone,
it doesn't take much to blow us out of the memory of that place.
17 But the unfailing love of the Eternal is always and eternal for those who reverently run after
Him.
He extends His justice on and on to future generations,
18 To those who will keep His bond of love and remember to walk in the guidance of His commands.

19 The Eternal has established His throne up in the heavens.
He rules over every seen and
unseen realm and creature.
20 Adore Him! Give Him praise, you heavenly messengers,
you powerful creatures who listen to
and act on His every word.
21 Give praise to the Eternal, all armies of heaven—
you servants who stand ready to do His will.
22 Give praise to the Eternal, all that He has made
in all corners of His creation.
O my soul, come, praise the Eternal!

Psalm 104

1 Call Him good, my soul, and praise the Eternal.
I am here to declare my affection for
You, Eternal One, my God.
You are indeed great—
You who are wrapped in glory and dressed in greatness.
2 For covering, You choose light—Your clothes, sunset and moonrise.
For a tent, You stretch out the heavens; for Your roof, You pitch
the sky.
3 Your upper chamber is built on beams
that lie in the waters overhead,
and the clouds, Your chariot;
You are held aloft by the wind.

4You make Your messengers like the winds;
the breeze whispers Your words,
Your servants are like the fire and flame.

5You made the earth,
and You made its frame stable forever.
Never will it be shaken.
6You wrapped it in a gown of waters—
ancient mountains under layers of sky.
7But when You reprimanded those waters, they fled;
the thunder of Your voice sent them running away.
8-9They hammered out new depths, heaved up new heights,
and swallowed up whatever You commanded.
At first, they covered the earth,
but now You have bound them,
and they know their appointed place.

10You send fresh streams that spring up in the valleys,
in the cracks between hills.
11Every animal of the open field makes its journey there for drink:
wild donkeys lap at the brooks' edges.
12Birds build their nests by the streams,
singing among the branches.
13*And the clouds, too, drink up their share,*
raining it back down on the mountains from the upper reaches of Your home, Sustaining the whole earth with what comes from You.
And the earth is satisfied.

14-15Thus You grow grain for bread, grapes for wine, grass for cattle—
all of this for us.
And so we have bread to make our bodies strong,
wine to make our hearts happy,
oil to make our faces shine.
Every good thing we need, Your earth provides;
our faces grow flush with Your life in them.
16The forests are Yours, Eternal One—stout hardwoods watered deeply, swollen with sap—
like the great cedars of Lebanon You planted, 17Where many birds nest.
There are fir trees for storks,

18High hills for wild goats,
stony cliffs for rock badgers.
For each place, a resident,
and for each resident, a home.
19The moon strides through her phases,
marking seasons as she goes.
The sun hides at his appointed time,
20And with the darkness You bring, so comes night—
when the prowling animals of the forest move about.
21*It is then that* lions seek the food You, the True God, give them, roaring after their prey.
22At sunrise, they disappear
and sleep away the day in their dens.
23*Meanwhile,* the people take to the fields and to the shops and to the roads,
to all the places that people work, until evening when they rest.

24There is so much here, O Eternal One, so much You have made.
By the wise way in which You create, riches and creatures fill the earth.
25*Of course,* the sea is vast and stretches like the heavens beyond view,
and numberless creatures inhabit her.
From the tiny to the great, they swarm beneath her waves.
26Our ships skim her surface
while the monsters of the sea play beneath.

27And all of these look to You to give them food when the time is right.
28When You feed, they gather what You supply.
When You open Your hand, they are filled with good food.
29When You withdraw Your presence, they are dismayed.
When You revoke their breath, the life goes out of them,
and they become, again, the dust of the earth from which You formed them at the start.
30When You send out Your breath, life is created, and the face of the earth is made beautiful and is renewed.

31May the glorious presence of the Eternal linger among us forever.
And may He rejoice in the greatness of His own works—

The last phrase of Psalm 104, "Praise the Eternal," gives us a clear picture of the use of these songs in Israel. This phrase, which not only ends Psalm 104 but often opens and closes other psalms (for example, Psalms 146–150), is not part of the song itself. It is a direction for worship.

The Bible indicates that praise is the natural response to God's gifts to His people. When David brought the covenant chest to Jerusalem, he appointed Asaph and his relatives to lead in praise. After the Levites chanted a marvelous psalm, the people responded in praise to the Eternal (1 Chronicles 16:36). In John's vision of the final destruction of Babylon—a symbol for God's enemies throughout all the ages—a vast number of creatures in heaven, the 24 elders and the 4 living creatures offer praise and adoration to the Lord (Revelation 18 and 19). Praise is simply the inevitable response of God's people to all He is and all He has done.

32He, who rattles the earth with a glance;
He, who sets mountains to smoking with a touch.
33I will sing to the Eternal all of my life;
I will call my God good as long as I live.
34May the thoughts of my mind be pleasing to Him,
for the Eternal has become my happiness.
35But may those who hate Him, who act against Him,
disappear from the face of this beautiful planet.
As for the Eternal, call Him good, my soul.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 105

1*Come,* offer thanks to the Eternal;
invoke His holy name.
Tell other people about the things He has done.
2Sing songs of praise to Him;
tell stories of all His miracles.
3Revel in His holy name.
May the hearts of the people who seek the Eternal celebrate and experience great joy.
4Seek the Eternal and His power;
look to His face constantly.
5Remember the wonderful things He has done,
His miracles and the wise decisions He has made,
6O children of Abraham, His servant;
O children of Jacob, His chosen people!

7He is the Eternal, our True God;
His justice extends to every corner of the earth.
8He keeps His covenant promises forever and remembers the word He spoke to a thousand generations—9The covenant He made with Abraham and His sworn oath to Isaac, his son.
10Then God confirmed it to Jacob—decreed it so—
to Israel He promised a never-ending covenant, 11Saying, "I will give you the land of Canaan
as your part; it will be your inheritance."

12When God's people were only a few in number—indeed, very few—they were strangers in a foreign land.
13They roamed from place to place,
from one kingdom to another.
14God didn't allow anyone to tyrannize them;
He rebuked kings in order to protect His people:
15"Do not lay a hand on My anointed people;
do not do any harm to My prophets."

16He ordered famine to grip the land and cut them off from their supply of bread.
17*But long before,* He had sent a man ahead of them:
Joseph, who had been sold into slavery.*
18*At first,* his masters shackled his feet with chains,
placed his neck into a collar of iron.
19That was until the Eternal's promises came to pass;
His word tested Joseph and proved him worthy.

* 105:17 Genesis 37; 39-50

20The king sent out the order to release
him from prison;
the ruler of Egypt liberated him
from the chains.
21Then he put Joseph in charge of the royal household,
made him ruler of all the royal possessions,
22*Allowed him* to imprison the royal officials whenever he saw fit and impart wisdom to the elders *in
the land*.

23Then, when the time was right, Israel
also went to Egypt;
Jacob resided as an alien in the land
of Ham.
24And while they were there, the Eternal
made His people prosperous;
He made them stronger than their
enemies.
25He turned the Egyptians' hearts against His people*
to cheat and scheme against His
servants.

26Then, He sent His servant Moses and Aaron, the men He had chosen.
27They did all the signs He planned for them to do among the Egyptians,
and they performed miracles in the land of Ham.
28He sent darkness to cover the land;
they did not stray from His word.
29At His command, their waters turned to blood;
their fish began to die.
30Throngs of frogs covered the land, invading even in the chambers of their kings.
31At His command, a swarm of flies
arrived,
and gnats came over all their land.
32He caused hail to fall instead of rain;
lightning flashed over all their land.
33He struck their vines and their fig trees;
He destroyed the trees over all their
land.
34At His command, locusts came;
young locusts marched beyond
number,
35And they ate up all the plants that grew
and all the fruits over their land.
36He also brought death to the firstborn
in all their land,
the first offspring of each man.

37Then He brought His people out of slavery, weighed down with silver
and gold;
and of all His tribes,
not one of them stumbled, *not one
was left behind*.
38Egypt was glad to see them go,
for Pharaoh's people had been overcome with fear of them.
39He spread out a cloud to cover *His
people*
and sent a fire to light their way at
night.
40They asked, and He sent them coveys of quail,
satisfying their hunger with the food
of heaven.
41He split the rock and water poured out;
it flowed like a river through the desert.
42For He remembered His holy covenant with Abraham, His servant.

43That's why He rescued His people joyously
and why His chosen ones celebrated with shouts and singing.
44*When the time was right,* He gave them land from other nations
so that they might possess the works of their hands, 45So that they would be able to keep His commands
and obey His laws.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 106

1Praise the Eternal!
Thank Him because He is good
and His loyal love will never end.
2Who could find words to tell of the Eternal's mighty deeds or give Him all the praise He deserves?
3Blessed are those who work for justice, who always do what they know to be right!

4Remember me, O Eternal One, when You show kindness to Your people;
don't forget me when You are saving them.
5That way I can know how good it is to be Your chosen people;
that way I can celebrate the joy of Your nation;
that way I can join those who belong to You in unending praise.

* 105:25 Exodus 1–15

► Psalm 106 was composed during the exile offering a historical review of the ways God's people rebelled against Him. It is a fitting closure to Book Four of Psalms. After this liturgy of failure on the part of the people, the psalmist cries out in thanksgiving for God's faithfulness and in the final verse proclaims praise "from everlasting to everlasting."

6 Like our ancestors, we have sinned;
we have done wicked things.
7 When our ancestors were leaving Egypt,
they did not consider Your marvelous acts.
They forgot Your overwhelming kindness to them and instead rebelled at the Red Sea.*
8 Nevertheless, God saved them for the honor of His name
so He could show His power to the world.
9 He gave the order, and the waters of the Red Sea dried up, and He led the people across the sea floor as though it were the wilderness.
10 That's how He liberated them from their enemies and rescued them from the hand of their oppressors.
11 After that the sea surged and covered their foes,
and every one of them drowned in its waters.
12 When God's people saw what He did, they believed what He said and they sang praises to Him.

13 But it didn't take long for them to forget what He had done.
They moved on without waiting for His instructions, 14 So our ancestors became very hungry in the wilderness and the rabble grumbled and complained, testing God's patience in the desert.
15 Although He granted their request,
He also sent a disease that caused them to waste away.
16 While they were camped in the desert, some began to be jealous of Moses and Aaron, the holy priest of the Eternal.
17 The earth opened up, and a deep fissure swallowed Dathan and buried Abiram's group.
18 A blaze ignited where they were gathered;
the fire consumed the wicked mob.

19 The people made a golden calf in Horeb
and bowed to worship an image they had made.
20 They traded the glory of God
for the likeness of an ox that eats grass.
21 They forgot about God, their True Savior,
who had done great things for them in Egypt—
22 Miracles in the land of Ham and amazing deeds at the Red Sea.
23 Therefore, He declared in His anger that He would wipe them away.
If Moses, His chosen one,
Had not pleaded for the people,
His anger would have destroyed them.

24 At the edge of the beautiful land God had promised them,
they didn't trust His words, so they refused to enter.
25 They complained when they were gathered in their tents;
they ignored the voice of the Eternal.
26 Because of their attitude, He swore,
"I'll leave you where you fall in the desert.
27 I'll scatter your children—whoever is left— throughout the nations all over the earth."

28 Then they aligned themselves with the god of Peor, and they ate sacrifices that had been made to lifeless gods.
29 Through their actions, they stirred up His anger,
and a plague broke out in their midst.
30 Then Phinehas took a stand and intervened,
so the plague was stopped.
31 And God saw what he did and considered him righteous,
a man to be honored by all generations forever.

* 106:7 Literally, Sea of Reeds

Book Five (Psalms 107–150) succinctly presents many of the major themes of the previous psalms. It tracks along Israel's history as God's nation, from the united monarchy, through the exile, to the restoration. Psalm 107 is a song of thanksgiving composed by those who survived exile and made their way home. As in Isaiah, the return from exile is described as a new exodus. Three Davidic psalms toward the beginning of Book Five represent the monarchy and recall Israel's golden age. The Songs for the Journey to Worship (Psalm 120–134) are composed for use by God's people as they traveled from their homes up to Zion to worship God at the temple. Representing their time in exile are songs of lament, heartbreaking testimonies to individuals' pain when they are crushed by their enemies and separated from God's blessings. Finally, Book Five concludes the collection by offering praise and thanks to God, for the story of Israel does not end with its exile and separation; rather, it ends in restoration and hope. Those who edited and compiled the Book of Psalms were relieved to be back in the land of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—rebuilding their temple and reestablishing their connection with God.

32Again they stirred up His anger at the waters of Meribah,
and serious trouble came to Moses
because of them;
33Because they stood against the Spirit,
Moses spoke rashly with them.

34*Later, after they entered the promised land,* they did not eradicate the
peoples,
as the Eternal had ordered them
to do,
35But they mixed and married with the outsider nations,
adopted their practices, 36And worshiped their idols,
which entrapped them.
37They even offered their sons and daughters as sacrifices to the demons.
38The promised land was corrupted by the innocent blood
they offered to the idols of Canaan,
The blood of their very own sons and
daughters.
39They became impure because of their unfaithful works;
by their actions, they prostituted
themselves to other gods.

40Therefore the Eternal's anger was ignited against His people;
He came to despise the people of
His inheritance.
41So He handed them over to the control
of foreign nations,
to be ruled by people who hated
them.
42Their enemies exploited them,
victimized them,
and restrained them by abusive
power.
43He delivered them over and over again;
however, they were slow to learn and deliberately rebelled.
Their sins humbled them and nearly destroyed them.
44Nevertheless, He saw their great struggle, took pity on them,
and heard their prayers;
45He did not forget His covenant promises to them
but reversed their fortune and released them from their punishment
because of His loyal love.
46He changed the hearts of all who held them captive
so that they would show compassion on them.

47Save us, O Eternal One our God, and gather us who are scattered
among all the nations,
That we may give thanks to Your holy name
and celebrate Your amazing
greatness with praise.

48Blessed be the Eternal, the God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting.
And let everyone say, "Amen!"
Praise the Eternal!

BOOK FIVE

Psalm 107

1Erupt with thanks to the Eternal, for He is good and His loyal love lasts forever.

2Let all those redeemed by the Eternal—those rescued from times of deep trouble—join in giving thanks.
3He has gathered them across the earth,
from east and west,
from [north and south].*

4Some drifted around in the desert and found no place where they could live.
5Their bellies growled with hunger; their mouths were dry with thirst;
their souls grew weak and weary.
6In their distress, they called out to the Eternal,
and He saved them from their
misery.
7*He showed them the best path; then* He led them down the right road until they arrived at an inhabited town.
8May they erupt with praise and give thanks to the Eternal
in honor of His loyal love
And all the wonders He has performed
for humankind!
9He has quenched their thirst,
and He has satisfied their hunger
with what is good.

10Some people were locked up in dark prisons, confined in gloom as bleak as death.
They were captives bound by iron
chains and misery, 11All because they had rebelled against the directives of the True God and had rejected the wisdom of the Most High.
12So they suffered the heaviness of slave
labor;
when they stumbled and fell, there was no one to help them up.
13In their distress, they called out to the
Eternal;
He saved them from their misery.
14He rescued them from the darkness, delivered them from the deepest gloom of death;
He shattered their iron chains.
15May they erupt with praise and give
thanks to the Eternal
in honor of His loyal love
And all the wonders He has performed
for humankind!
16He has broken down the bronze gates and severed the iron bars that imprisoned them.
17Some people became fools infected by their rebellious ways,
and sickness followed because of
their sins.
18*Afflicted and weak,* they refused any sort of food
as they approached the gates of
death.
19In their distress, they called out to the Eternal,
and He saved them from their
misery.
20He gave the order and healed them and rescued them from certain
death.
21May they erupt with praise and give thanks to the Eternal
in honor of His loyal love
And all the wonders He has performed
for humankind!
22Let them present to Him thanksgiving
sacrifices
and tell stories of His great deeds
through songs of joy.

23Some set out to sea in ships, traveling across mighty seas in order to trade in foreign lands.
24They witnessed the powerful acts of the Eternal,
marveled at the great wonders He revealed over the deep waters.
25For He spoke and summoned a violent
wind
that whipped up the waves of the
sea.
26*Relentless* waves lifted the ships high in the sky, then drove them down to the depths;
the sailors' courage dissolved into
misery.
27They staggered and stumbled around like drunkards,
and they had no idea what to do.
28In their distress, they called out to the
Eternal,
and He saved them from their
misery.
29He commanded the storm to calm down, and it became still.
A hush came over the waves of the
sea, 30The sailors were delighted at the quiet,
and He guided them to their port.
31May they erupt with praise and give
thanks to the Eternal
in honor of His loyal love

* 107:3 Hebrew manuscripts read, "and the sea."

And all the wonders He has performed
for humankind!
32Let them glorify Him in the assembly of His people
and worship Him in the presence of the elders.

33God transforms wild, flowing rivers into dry, lonely deserts,
lively springs of water into thirsty
ground.
34He turns lush gardens into lifeless
wastelands,
all because of the wickedness of those who reside there.
35Yet He transforms a dry, lonely desert
into pools of living water,
parched ground into lively springs.
36And He allows those who are hungry to live there
so that they might build a livable
city.
37There they sow fields and plant
vineyards
and gather up an abundant harvest.
38*He anoints them* with His blessings, and they greatly increase in number.
He does not allow their herds to dwindle.

39When His people lessen in number and are humbled
through persecution, suffering, and brokenheartedness, 40He pours out contempt on those responsible leaders and then makes them drift around in an uncharted wasteland.
41But He raises the poor away from their suffering
and multiplies their families like a flock.
42The righteous see God's actions, and they take delight in what He does,
but the unrighteous don't dare to
speak.
43*Is there anyone wise? If so,* may the wise take notice of these things and reflect upon the loyal love of the Eternal.

Psalm 108

A song of David.

1My heart is committed, O God:
I will sing;
I will sing praises with great affection
and pledge my whole soul to the singing.
2Wake up the harp and lyre, *and strum
the strings;*
I will stir the sleepy dawn *from
slumber*!
3I will stand and offer You my thanks, Eternal One, in the presence of
others;
I will sing of Your greatness among the nations no matter where I am.
4For Your amazing love soars overhead
far into the heavens;
Your truth rises up to the clouds
where passing light bends.

5O God, that You would be lifted up above the heavens in the hearts of Your people
until the whole earth knows Your
glory.
6*Reach down and* rescue those whom
You love;
pull us to safety by Your mighty
right hand, and answer me.
7God's voice has been heard in His holy
sanctuary:
"I will celebrate.
I will allocate Shechem and the Succoth Valley to My people.
8Gilead belongs to Me, and so does
Manasseh;
Ephraim is the helmet that protects
My head;
Judah is the scepter through which
I rule;
9Moab is the washpot in which I clean
Myself;
I will throw My shoe over Edom *in
conquest*;
Philistia will soon hear My victory
shout."

10But who will take me into the fortified
city?
Who will lead me into Edom?
11Have You not turned Your back on us,
O God?
Will You stay away and not accompany our armies,
O God?
12Help us against our enemy; *we need
Your help!*
It's useless to trust in the hand of
man for liberation.
13Only through God can we be successful.
It is God alone who will defeat
our enemies and bring us victory!

Psalm 109

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1 O True God of my every praise, do not keep silent!
2 My enemies have opened their wicked, deceit-filled mouths and blown their foul breath on me.
They have slandered me with their twisted tongues
3 And unleashed loathsome words that swirl around me.
Though I have done nothing, they
attack me.
4 Though I offer them love and keep them
in my prayers, they accuse me;
5 Though I treat them well, they answer
me with evil;
though I give them love, they reply
with a gesture of hatred.

6 Here's what they say: Find some evil
scoundrel to go after him.
Let's get some accuser *to level
charges* against him.
7 At his trial, let's make sure he is found guilty
so that even his prayers become evidence that convicts him.
8 Let his days be few, his life cut short;
let another take over his position.
9 Lay waste to his family—
let his children become orphans
and his wife a widow.
10 Let his children wander the streets—his legacy, homeless beggars
scavenging for food, [driven out of]* the rubble and slums where they live.
11 Let the bankers take what is his;
strangers help themselves to what little is left of all he's earned.
12 Let there be no one around to offer him
compassion,
nor anyone to give his fatherless
children warmth or kindness.
13 Let his family line come to an end—
no future generations to carry on his name!
14 Let the sins of his fathers be remembered before the Eternal,
and the sins of his mother never be erased.
15 Let their offenses always be before the Eternal
so that the memory of this family is long forgotten by all the people of the earth,
16 Because it never occurred to him to show compassion;
instead, he oppressed the poor,
afflicted,
and brokenhearted and sent them
to their death.
17 He loved to invoke a curse—so let his curses come back to him.
He preferred not to speak a blessing—so let all blessings be far from him.
18 He wrapped himself with cursing,
draped around him like a cape;
may it flood his body like water
and seep into his bones like oil.
19 Let those curses wrap around him like a cloak on a cold night,
like a belt tightly knotted around him every day.
20 Let the Eternal so reward my accusers,
all those who speak and plot evil
against me.
21 But You, my Master, the Eternal, treat me with kindness for the sake of Your name, the good of Your reputation;
because Your unfailing love is so good, O deliver me!
22 You see, I am poor and needy,
and my heart is broken inside me.
23 My life is fading away like a shadow
that vanishes in the evening;
I am like a locust easily brushed off
the shoulder.
24 I can barely stand; my knees are weak
from not eating;
I am haggard and drawn, just skin
and bones.
25 I have become a person of contempt to my accusers;
whenever they see me, they *taunt
me,* shaking their heads in disapproval.

26 Help me, Eternal One my God; come to my rescue!
Save me through Your unfailing
love.
27 Let everyone know that You are the source of my salvation
that You, Eternal One, have done
this mighty work.
28 Let them utter a curse, if they will, but
You will speak a blessing;
[when they come to attack,]* let them know utter shame.
Then Your servant will celebrate and praise You!

Psalm 110 may have been written to celebrate the coronation of one of David's sons as king. The Eternal invites the royal son of David to take his rightful place at His right hand, the place of power and authority—not just over Jerusalem but over his enemies as well. But the royal son is to be more than a king, he is to be a priest according the order of that mysterious and enigmatic figure, Melchizedek (Genesis 14:17-24). God promises to give this royal priest-king victory over his enemies as he marches out to war.

This psalm is the psalm most quoted by early Christian writers in the New Testament. As they considered the significance of Jesus, they found that this psalm, more than any, expressed their conviction that the risen Jesus now occupies a unique place at God's right hand and will be victorious over His enemies.

29 Let my enemies be clothed with disgrace and humiliation;
let them be dressed in a robe of their own shame.
30 I will continually give thanks to the Eternal
with the praises of my mouth;
I will praise Him in the company
of many.
31 For He always stands in support of the afflicted and needy
to rescue their souls from those who judge and condemn them.

Psalm 110

A song of David.

1 The Eternal said to my lord,
"Sit here at My right hand,
in the place of honor and power,
And I will gather your enemies
together,
lead them in on hands and knees;
you will rest your feet on their backs."

2 The Eternal will extend your reach as you rule
from your throne on Zion.
You will be out in enemy lands,
ruling.
3 Your people will come as volunteers that day; they will be a sight to see:
on that day, you will lead your army,
noble in their holiness.
As the new day dawns and dew settles
on the grass,
your young volunteers will make their way to you.
4 The Eternal has sworn an oath
and cannot change His mind:
"You are a priest forever—
in the honored order of Melchizedek."

5 The lord is at Your right hand;
on the day that his fury comes to its peak, he will crush kings.
6 You will see the dead in heaps at the roadside,
corpses spread far and wide in valleys and on hillsides.
Rulers and military leaders will lie
among them without distinction.
This will be his judgment on the
nations.
7 There is a brook along the way.
He will stop there and drink;
And when he is finished,
he will raise his head.

Psalm 111*

1 Praise the Eternal.
I will thank Him with all my heart
in the presence of the right-standing and with the assembly.
2 The works of the Eternal are many and wondrous!
They are examined by all who delight in them.
3 His work is marked with beauty and
majesty;
His justice has no end.
4 His wonders are reminders that the Eternal is gracious and compassionate to all.
5 He provides food to those who revere
Him.
He will always remember His
covenant.
6 He has shown the mighty strength of His works to His people
by giving the land of foreign nations
to them.
7 All His accomplishments are truth and
justice;
all His instructions are certain.

* Psalm 111 A Hebrew acrostic poem

8His precepts will continue year in and year out,
performed by His people with honesty and truth.
9He has redeemed His people,
guaranteeing His covenant forever.
His name is holy and awe-inspiring.
10Reverence for the Eternal is the first step toward wisdom.
All those who worship Him have a good understanding.
His praise will echo through eternity!

Psalm 112*

1Praise the Eternal!
How blessed are those who revere
the Eternal,
who turn from evil and take great pleasure in His commandments.
2Their children will be a powerful force
upon the earth;
this generation that does what is right in God's eyes will be blessed.
3His house will be stocked with wealth
and riches,
and His love for justice will endure
for all time.
4When life is dark, a light will shine for those who live rightly—
those who are merciful, compassionate, and strive for
justice.
5Good comes to all who are gracious
and share freely;
they conduct their affairs with sound judgment.
6Nothing will ever rattle them;
the just will always be remembered.
7They will not be afraid when the news is bad
because they have resolved to trust in the Eternal.
8Their hearts are confident, and they are fearless,
for they expect to see their enemies
defeated.
9They give freely to the poor;
their righteousness endures for all time;*
their strength and power is established in honor.
10The wicked will be infuriated when they see the good man honored!
They will clench their teeth and dissolve to nothing;
and when they go, their wicked
desires will follow.

* Psalm 112 A Hebrew acrostic poem * 112:9 2 Corinthians 9:9

► Psalms 113–118 comprise an important unit called the Hallel, which in Hebrew means "praise." Composed after the exile, these six psalms are recited together by observant Jews during some of the major holidays on the Jewish calendar. The Gospel writers tell us that Jesus and His disciples sang a song following their last meal together, which was the Passover (Matthew 26:30; Mark 14:26). That may have been the Hallel.

Psalm 113

1Praise the Eternal!
All of you who call yourselves the children of the Eternal, come and praise His name.
Lift Him high to the high place in your hearts.

2At this moment, and for all the moments yet to come,
may the Eternal's name ascend in the hearts of His people.
3*At every time and in every place*— from the moment the sun rises to the moment the sun sets—
may the name of the Eternal be high in the hearts of His people.

4The Eternal is seated high above every nation.
His glory fills the skies.

5To whom should we compare the Eternal, our God?
No one.
From His seat, high above, 6He deigns to observe the earth and her
thin skies,
*stooping even to see her goings on,
far beneath His feet.*
7He gathers up the poor from their dirt
floors,
pulls the needy from the trash heaps,
8And places them among heads of state,
seated next to the rulers of His people
where they cannot be ignored.
9Into the home of the childless bride,
He sends children who are, for her,
a cause of happiness beyond measure.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 114

1When the time came for Israel to leave
Egypt—
for Jacob's family to be free of those who spoke another language—2God chose to make Judah His sacred
place,
and Israel became His realm.

3*And the waters of* the sea witnessed
God's actions and ran away;
the Jordan, too, turned around and ran back to where it came from.
4*All of* the mountains leapt with the strength of mighty rams, and all of the hills danced with the joy of little lambs.

5Why do you retreat, O sea?
Why do you roll back your waters,
O Jordan?
6Why, O mountains, do you leap with the strength of rams?
Why, O hills, do you dance with joy
like little lambs?

7Shudder and quake, O you earth, at the sight of the Lord.
The God of Jacob comes,
8Who turns rock into pools of refreshing
water
and flint into fountains of life-giving streams!

Psalm 115

1Not for us, O Eternal One; this glory is not for us—but for Your name
because of Your loyal love and truth.
2Why should the nations ask,
"Where is their God now?"

3Our God is in heaven
doing whatever He chooses.
4Those nations worship idols of silver
and gold,
crafted by human hands:
5They have given their gods mouths, but they cannot speak;
eyes, but they cannot see.
6They have provided their idols with ears,
but they cannot hear;
noses, but they cannot smell.
7They have fashioned hands, but the idols cannot reach out and touch;
feet, but they cannot walk.
Their idols cannot make a sound in their finely crafted throats.

8The people who make idols will become useless like them,
like all who trust in idols.

9O Israel, put your trust in the Eternal.
He is their helper and defender.
10O family of Aaron, put your trust in the Eternal.
He is their helper and defender.
11All who fear and know the Eternal, put your trust in Him.
He is their helper and defender.

12The Eternal has remembered us, and
He will bless us.
He will bless the people of Israel.
He will bless the priestly family of Aaron.
13The Eternal will bless those who *worship
and* stand in awe of Him,
from the least to the greatest.

14May the Eternal prosper your family, growing both you and your
descendants.
15May the blessings of the Eternal, maker of heaven and earth, be on
you.

16The heavens above belong to the Eternal,
and yet earth in all of its beauty has been given to humanity by Him.
17The dead do not praise the Eternal, nor do any who descend into the silent grave.
18But we will praise and bless You—our Eternal One—
today and forever.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 116

1I love the Eternal; for not only does He
hear
my voice, my pleas for mercy, 2But He leaned down when I was in trouble and brought His ear close
to me.
So as long as I have breath, I will
call on Him.
3*Once* I was wound in the wrappings of
death;
the terror of dying and the grave
had a grip on me;
I could not get away, for I was entombed in distress and sorrow.
4Then I called on the name of the Eternal:
"O Eternal One—I am begging
You—save me!"

5The Eternal is full of grace and naturally just;
our God is compassionate and
merciful.
6And the Eternal watches over the naive.
Whenever I was knocked down, He reached down and saved me.
7O my soul! Return and relax. Come to your true rest,
for the Eternal has showered you
with His favor.

8*God,* You alone rescued my soul from the grips of death,
my eyes from weeping,
and my feet from slipping.
9I will come before the Eternal as long as I journey in the land of the living.
10I believed Your promise; therefore I spoke,
"I am in deep trouble."
11In my confusion I blurted out,
"All people are liars!"

12How will I pay back the Eternal for all His graciousness toward me?
13I will raise the cup of deliverance
and call out the name of the Eternal.
14I will fulfill the promises I made to Him
here as a witness to all His people.

15Precious in the eyes of the Eternal are the deaths of those who follow
after Him.
16O Eternal One, You know I am Your
servant.
I am Your servant, a child of Your maidservant, devoted to You;
You have cut me loose from the chains of death that bind me.
17And I come, eager to offer a sacrifice of gratitude
and call on the name of the Eternal.
18I will fulfill the promises I made to Him
here as a witness to all His people 19In the courts of the Eternal's temple,
among the people of God's city,
O Jerusalem.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 117

1Praise the Eternal, all nations.
Raise your voices, all people.*
2For His unfailing love is great, and it is intended for us,
and His faithfulness to His promises
knows no end.
Praise the Eternal!

* 117:1 Romans 15:11

Psalm 118

1Give thanks to the Eternal because He is always good.
He never ceases to be loving and
kind.

2Let the people of Israel proclaim:
"He never ceases to be loving and
kind."
3Let the priests of Aaron's line proclaim:
"He never ceases to be loving and
kind."
4Let the people who fear the Eternal proclaim:
"He never ceases to be loving and
kind."

5When trouble surrounded me, I cried
out to the Eternal;
He answered me and brought me to a wide, open space.
6The Eternal is with me,
so I will not be afraid of anything.
If God is on my side, how can anyone hurt me?
7The Eternal is on my side, a champion
for my cause;
so when I look at those who hate
me, victory will be in sight.
8It is better to put your faith in the Eternal for your security
than to trust in people.
9It is better to put your faith in Him for your security
than to trust in princes.

10All these nations surround me,
squeezing me from all sides;
with the name of the Eternal, I will
destroy them.
11They rose up against me, squeezed me from all sides, yes, from all sides;
with the name of the Eternal, I will
destroy them.
12They surrounded me like a swarm of bees;
they were destroyed quickly and
thoroughly—
Flaring up like a pile of thorns—
with the name of the Eternal, I will
destroy them.
13I was pushed back, attacked so that I was about to fall,
but the Eternal was there to help me keep my balance.
14He is my strength, and He is the reason
I sing;

Psalm 119 is the longest psalm in the collection. It is a hymn in praise of and appreciation for God's instructions to His people. You see, God not only called Israel to be His people and gave them a wonderful land, but He gave them a blueprint for living. The Hebrew word for that is torah, sometimes translated "law" or "teachings." In torah God tells them how to structure their lives and communities so that they will live long, prosperous lives in the land He has given them. As you read through the psalm, you will notice words like law, teachings, precepts, word, decrees, and commands. Each of these words is a synonym highlighting some attribute of God's instructions to His people.

Another memorable feature of this psalm is its form. The psalmist constructs this hymn as an elaborate acrostic poem that moves artfully through each letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Essentially, all the elements of this psalm combine to emphasize the importance of God's Word to His people, to the praise and glory of the one True God.

He has been there to save me in every situation.

15 In the tents of the righteous soldiers of God,
there are shouts of joy and victory.
They sing:
"The right hand of the Eternal has shown His power.
16 The mighty arm of the Eternal is raised in victory;
the right hand of His has shown His power."
17 I will not die. I will live.
I will live to tell about all the Eternal has done.
18 The Eternal has taught me many lessons;
He has been strict and severe,
but even in His discipline, He has not allowed me to die.

► Early Christians found in the words of this psalm a wonderful way of describing the significance of Jesus. He was the rejected stone whom God made the cornerstone of a brand-new temple (verses 22-24).

19 Open wide to me the gates of justice
so that I may walk through them and offer praise and worship to the Eternal.

20 This is the gate of the Eternal;
the righteous children of God will go through it.

21 I will praise You because You answered me when I was in trouble.
You have become my salvation.
22 The stone that the builders rejected has become the very stone that holds together the entire foundation.
23 This is the work of the Eternal,
and it is marvelous in our eyes.*
24 This is the day the Eternal God has made;
let us celebrate and be happy today.
25 O Eternal One, save us, we beg You.
O Eternal One, we beg You, bring us success!

26 He who comes in the name of the Eternal will be blessed;*
we have blessed You from the house of the Eternal.
27 The Eternal is the True God;
He shines His light on us.
Let the feast begin.
Bring the sacrifice, and tie it to the horns of the altar.
28 You are my God, and I give You thanks;
You are my God, and I praise You.
29 Give thanks to our Eternal Lord; He is always good.
He never ceases to be loving and kind.

3These are people who do nothing
wrong;
they do what it takes to follow His
ways.
4You have given us Your precepts
so we would be careful about keeping them.
5Oh, that every part of my life would remain in line
with what You require!
6Then I would feel no shame
when I fix my eyes upon Your
commands.
7With a pure heart, I will give thanks
to You
when I hear about Your just and fair rulings.
8I will live within Your limits;
do not abandon me completely!

9How can a young person remain pure?
Only by living according to Your
word.
10I have pursued You with my whole
heart;
do not let me stray from Your
commands.
11Deep within me I have hidden Your
word
so that I will never sin against You.
12You are blessed, O Eternal One;
instruct me in what You require.
13My lips have told how
You have delivered all Your wise
rulings.
14I have celebrated Your testimonies as though rejoicing over an immeasurable fortune.
15I will fix my mind on Your instructions

16I will find joy in Your ordinances;
I will remember Your word forever.

17Treat Your servant well, Lord,

19I am a sojourner in the world;
do not keep Your commands
hidden from me.
20My soul aches from craving
Your wise rulings day and night.
21You rebuke those who are proud,
and those who stray from Your commands are cursed.
22Free me from the contempt and disdain of others
because I keep Your decrees.
23Even though powerful princes conspire

they are like the friends I seek for 30I have decided to take the path of faith;

I have focused my eyes on Your regulations.
31I cling to Your decrees; O Eternal One,
do not let me face disgrace!
32I will chase after Your commandments because You will expand my understanding.

33O Eternal One, show me how to live
according to Your statutes,
and I will keep them always.
34Grant me understanding so that I can keep Your law
and keep it wholeheartedly.
35Guide me to walk in the way You commanded
because I take joy in it.
36Turn my head and my heart to Your decrees
and not to sinful gain.
37Keep my eyes from gazing upon worthless things,
and give me true life according to Your plans.
38Verify Your word to Your servant,
which will lead me to worship You.

39Take away the scorn that I dread
because Your actions are just and good.
40Look and see—I long for Your guidance;
restore me in Your righteousness.

41May Your unfailing love find me, O Eternal One.
Keep Your promise, and save me;

43Do not take Your message of truth from my mouth
because I wait and rely on Your just decisions.
44Therefore I will follow Your teachings, forever and ever.
45And I will live a life of freedom
because I pursue Your precepts.
46I will even testify of Your decrees before royalty
and will not be humiliated.
47I will find my joy in Your commands, which I love, 48And I will raise my hands to Your commands, which I love,
and I will fix my mind on what You require.

49Do not forget Your promise to Your servant;
through it You have given me hope.
50This brings me solace in the midst of my troubles:
that Your word has revived me.
51Those who are proud cruelly ridicule me,
but I keep to the steady path of Your teachings.
52I have considered Your ancient rulings, O Eternal One,
and their memory brings me comfort.
53Burning anger rises in me, has me in its grip
because the unrighteous abandon Your teachings.
54As I journey through this life, Your statutes are my song.
55O Eternal One, through the night, I stop to recall Your name.
That's how I live according to Your teachings.
56This has become my practice:
to keep Your ordinances.

Heth

57The Eternal One is mine. He's all I need.
I have promised to keep Your words.
58I sought Your blessing wholeheartedly.
Show grace to me as You promised.
59I carefully charted out my paths
to align my steps with Your decrees.
60I did not procrastinate and hurried to follow Your commands.
61The wicked have entangled me in their nets,
but I have not forgotten Your teaching.
62In the middle of the night, I wake to thank You because Your rulings are just and right.
63I am a friend of anyone who fears You and of those who follow Your precepts.
64The earth is filled with Your unfailing love, O Eternal One;
teach me to observe what You require.

Teth

65You have handled Your servant well, O Eternal One, as You promised.
66Help me to learn good judgment and knowledge
because I believe Your commandments.
67Before I had trouble, I strayed from the true path, the path of righteousness,
but now I live according to Your word.
68You are truly good, and Your acts are too;
teach me what You require.
69The proud smear me with their lies;
I will keep Your instructions wholeheartedly.
70Their hearts are dull and callous;
I am delighted to study Your teaching.
71It is a good thing that I was humbled
because it helped me learn Your limits.
72Your teachings are more valuable to me than a fortune in gold and silver.

Yodh

73Your strong hands formed me and established me;
give me understanding so I can learn Your commands.

74Let those who fear You see me and rejoice
because I hope in Your word.
75I know, O Eternal One, Your rulings are right, and when You humbled me, You did so out of faithfulness.
76Now let Your unfailing love be my comfort,
in keeping with Your promise to Your servant.
77Shower me with Your compassion so that I may live
because I find great joy in Your law.
78Let the proud be humiliated,
for they sabotage me with a lie;
still I will fix my mind on Your directives.
79Let those who fear You and know Your testimonies come back and find me.
80Let my heart be whole, my record according to what You require so that I will not be humiliated.

Kaph

81My soul is exhausted awaiting Your rescue
yet I keep hoping in Your word.
82My eyes are strained as I look for what You promised, saying, "When will You come to comfort me?"
83Even though I have shriveled up like a wineskin left in the smoke,
I still remember what You require.
84How long must Your servant wait?
When will You carry out justice and punish those who persecute me?
85Those proud souls do not live according to Your commands,
and they have dug pits to entrap me.
86*Indeed,* all Your commands are trustworthy,
but my enemies have harassed me with their lies; help me!
87They have nearly ended my life on earth,
but as for me, I never abandoned Your statutes.
88According to Your unfailing love, spare my life
so that I can live according to the decrees of Your mouth.

Lamedh

89Forever, O Eternal One,
Your word stands in heaven, firm and resolute.
90Your faithfulness endures to every generation;
You founded the earth, and it remains.
91Everything remains today in keeping with Your laws,
for all things exist to serve You.
92If I had not found joy in Your guidance,
then I would have died from my misery.
93I will never forget Your precepts,
for through them You have given me life.
94I belong to You, Lord; save me because I have taken care to live by Your principles.
95The wicked lie in wait, anxious to kill me;
I will set my mind on Your statutes.
96I have seen the limit of all perfection,
but Your commands are all-encompassing.

Mem

97Oh, how I love Your law!
I fix my mind on it all day long.
98Your commands make me wiser than my enemies
because they are always with me.
99I have more discernment than all my teachers
because I study and meditate on Your testimonies.
100I comprehend more than those who are my elders
because I have kept Your precepts.
101I have kept my feet from walking the paths of evil
so that I may live according to Your word.
102I have not neglected Your lessons,
for You, God, have been my teacher.
103Your words are sweet to my taste!
Yes, they are sweeter than honey in my mouth!
104I gain understanding from Your instructions;
that's why I hate every deceitful path.

Nun

105Your word is a lamp for my steps;
it lights the path before me.
106I have taken an oath and confirmed it:
I pledge to do what You say is right and just.
107I have suffered terribly, O Eternal One;
give me the life You promised.

108Please accept the words I offer
willingly, O Eternal One,
and instruct me in the ways of Your
justice.
109My soul is continually in danger,
but I do not forget Your teachings.
110The wicked have laid a trap for me,
but I have not drifted away from Your instructions.
111Your decrees are forever mine,
for they bring joy to my life.
112I have committed myself to do what
You require
forever and ever, to the very end.

Samekh

113I despise those who waver back and forth,
but I love Your teachings.
114You are my hiding place and my shield
of protection;
I hope in Your word.
115Away from me, reprobates!
I am committed to observing the commands of my God.
116Support me in keeping with Your promise, O God, so that I may live;
do not let my hope turn into shame.
117Help me so that I will be safe,
and I will respect Your laws continually.
118You have rejected all those who stray from Your commands
because their fraudulent lifestyles
are cunning and empty.
119You have discarded all the wicked from the land, skimmed them off like dross;
that's why I love Your testimonies.
120My body shakes because of my fear of
You,
and I am in awe of Your wise
rulings.

Ayin

121I have lived with fairness and integrity;
do not leave me at the mercy of my tormenters.
122Provide security and protection for Your servant's welfare;
do not let the proud oppress me.
123My eyes are strained as I look for Your salvation
and for Your righteous promise to be fulfilled.
124Treat Your servant in a manner that shows Your unfailing love,
and help me to learn Your decrees.
125I am Your servant; impart to me
understanding
so that I may fully grasp the depths of Your statutes.
126It is time for the Eternal to step in and do something because some have broken Your law.
127Indeed, I love Your commands more than gold, even more than the highest quality gold.
128It's true that I regard all Your guidance
to be correct and good;
I despise every deceptive path.

Pe

129Your decrees inspire wonder;
because of that, my soul desires to keep them.
130When Your words are unveiled, light shines forth;
they bring understanding to the simple.
131My desire for Your commands left me waiting, open-mouthed and panting.
132Acknowledge me and show me Your grace
as is Your habit toward all those who love Your name.
133Guide my steps in the ways of Your
word,
and do not let any sin control me.
134Rescue me from the torment of my human oppressors
so that I may live according Your
decrees.
135Let Your face shine upon Your servant,
and help me to learn what You require.
136My eyes shed rivers of tears
whenever people fail to keep Your teaching.

Tsadhe

137You are good and just, O Eternal One,
and Your rulings are right.
138You have set out Your decrees in
justice,
and they can be trusted.
139I am overwhelmed by my passion because my enemies have forgotten
Your words.
140Your promise is tested and true;
that's why Your servant loves it.
141I may be insignificant to some and hated by others,
but at least I do not forget Your
precepts.

142Your righteousness will last forever,
and Your law is truth.
143Trouble and distress have overtaken me,
but Your commandments bring me
great joy.
144Your decrees are right and true
forever;
grant me understanding so that I may live.

Qoph

145I called to You wholeheartedly: "Answer me, O Eternal One!"
I will respect, I will follow Your statutes.
146I cried out to You: "Rescue me, and I will live according to Your
decrees."
147I wake before the dawn and call for help;
I hope in Your words.
148My eyes do not shut before each watch
of the night
so that I can fix my mind on Your
word.
149Listen to my voice, in keeping with Your unfailing love.
Preserve my life, O Eternal One,
according to Your just rulings.
150Those who wish me harm are moving closer to me;
they are far away from Your
teaching.
151But You are near me, O Eternal One,
and all You have commanded is
true.
152I learned a long time ago that You established Your decrees to last forever.

Resh

153Give attention to my misery and rescue me
because I have not forgotten Your
teaching.
154Fight for me, and set me free;
give me life in keeping with Your
promise.
155Salvation is far from the wicked
because they do not live in pursuit of Your precepts.
156Your mercies are tender and great,
O Eternal One;
grant me life in keeping with Your ordinances.
157I have many oppressors and foes;
still I do not swerve from Your
decrees.
158I observe the faithless and detest them because they turn away from Your
word.
159Reflect, O God, on how I love Your
precepts;
give me life, O Eternal One, in keeping with Your unfailing love.
160The entirety of Your word is truth,
and every one of Your right rulings
will surely last forever.

Shin

161Princes persecute me without reason, but my heart remains true and is awed by Your words.
162I celebrate because of Your promise, like someone who discovers great treasure.
163I despise and abhor lies,
but I love Your law.
164Seven times every day I praise You because of Your right rulings.
165Those who love Your law have an abundance of peace,
and nothing along their paths can
cause them to stumble.
166I wait for Your salvation, O Eternal One,
and I live out Your commands.
167My soul is faithful to Your decrees, and my love for them is extraordinary.
168I live according to Your precepts and decrees
because everything I do is right
before Your eyes.

Tav

169Let my cry come before You, O Eternal
One.
Grant me understanding in keeping with Your word.
170Let my plea come before You;
liberate me in keeping with Your
word.
171Praise will pour from my lips
because You help me learn what
You require.
172My tongue will sing of Your word because every command of Yours
is right.
173Let Your hand be poised to help me because I have chosen to live by Your precepts.
174I long for Your salvation, O Eternal One.
Meanwhile, Your teaching brings me
great joy.
175Let my soul live on so that I may praise
You,
and let Your precepts guide me.

The Songs for the Journey to Worship (Psalms 120–134) celebrate the journey to Jerusalem to worship in God's temple. Centuries before these psalms were composed, the Lord chose to make His earthly home on Mount Zion in Jerusalem and directed David's son to build His house. King Solomon built the first temple and dedicated it to God in an elaborate ceremony that brought Israel together on the holy mountain (1 Kings 8). Now, clearly, the wise king believed that the one True God was present everywhere in the world, but he knew that Jerusalem was a special place, a sacred space picked by God. Solomon understood what we seem to have forgotten: those created in God's image long to encounter God in His holiness. And if we try to make every place holy, then no place is holy because holy means "set apart," "distinct," "special." So we need sacredness in our lives: sacred times, places, and people in our search for wholeness, for shalom. For centuries God's faithful people of the first and second covenants have gone on pilgrimages to the Holy Land and Jerusalem. Often these songs have gone with them, for they desire to draw close to God and to walk in the steps of those who have passed the faith along.

176 I have wandered down the wrong path
like a lost sheep; come find me,
Your servant,
because I do not forget Your
commands.

Psalm 120

A song for those journeying to worship.

1 When I was in deep trouble, I called out to the Eternal,
and He answered my call.
2 I prayed: "Protect me, Eternal, from lips that lie
and tongues poisoned with deceit."

3 Liars, what will be your prize?
And what will come your way,
O you tongues poisoned with deceit?
4 Here's what you can expect: the archers'
arrows honed sharp
as well as the red-hot coals of the broom wood.

5 Sorrow is mine, for I am a foreigner
wandering in Meshech;
I am a stranger drifting among the tents of Kedar!
6 My soul has roamed much too long among people who despise peace.
7 I am for peace; I ask for peace,
but even as I open my mouth,
they are ready to fight.

Psalm 121

A song for those journeying to worship.

1 I look up at the vast size of the mountains—
from where will my help come in times of trouble?
2 The Eternal Creator of heaven and earth and these mountains
will send the help I need.

3 He holds you firmly in place;
He will not let you fall.
He who keeps you will never take
His eyes off you and never drift off to sleep.
4 What a relief! The One who watches over Israel
never leaves for rest or sleep.

5 The Eternal keeps you safe, so close to Him that His shadow is a cooling shade to you.
6 Neither bright light of sun
nor dim light of moon will harm
you.

7 The Eternal will keep you safe
from all of life's evils, 8 From your first breath to the last breath you breathe,
from this day and forever.

Psalm 122

A song [of David]* for those journeying
to worship.

► This is a Davidic psalm celebrating the grandeur and significance of Jerusalem and its temple. It is ironic that Jerusalem means "city of peace" since

* 122:title Some manuscripts omit this portion.

more battles have been fought over it than over any other city.

[1]I was so happy when my fellow pilgrims said,
"Let's go to the house of the Eternal!"
[2]We have made the journey, and now we are standing
within your gates, O Jerusalem.

[3]Jerusalem! What a magnificent city!
Buildings so close together, so compact.
[4]God's people belong here. Every tribe of
the Eternal
makes its way to Jerusalem—
Just as God decreed for Israel to come together and give thanks to
the Eternal.
[5]In Jerusalem, justice is the order of the day because there sit the judges and kings, the descendants of David.

[6]Ask heaven to grant peace to Jerusalem:
"May those who love you prosper.
[7]O Jerusalem, may His peace fill this entire city!
May this citadel be quiet and at ease!"
[8]It's because of people—my family, friends, and acquaintances—
that I say, "May peace permeate
you."
[9]And because the house of Eternal One,
our God, is here, know this:
I will always seek your good!

Psalm 123

A song for those journeying to worship.

[1]I raise my eyes to fix my gaze on You,
for Your throne resides in the heavens.
[2]Just as the eyes of servants closely watch the hand of their masters,
Just as a maid carefully observes
the slightest gesture of her mistress,
In the same way we look to You, Eternal
One,
waiting for our God to pour out His mercy upon us.

[3]O Eternal One, show us Your mercy. We beg You.
We are not strangers to contempt
and pain.
[4]We have suffered more than our share of ridicule and contempt from self-appointed critics who live easy lives
and pompously display their own importance.

Psalm 124

A song of David for those journeying to worship.

[1]If the Eternal had not been with us—
sing, Israel, sing—
[2]If He had not been with us
when the villains came for us, [3]When their anger flamed around us,
they would have swallowed us up alive!
[4]Their hatred was like a flood:
the waters were rising and would have engulfed us;
the streams were rushing past and
would have overcome us.
[5]The furious waters would have broken
over us.
Battered and overwhelmed, we surely would have drowned!

[6]Blessed be the Eternal who did not leave us
to be torn by their fangs!
[7]Our souls cry out: "We escaped with our lives like a bird
from the fowler's snare!
The snare was broken,
and we escaped with our lives!"

[8]Our help has come in the name of the Eternal,
the Maker of heaven and earth!

Psalm 125

A song for those journeying to worship.

[1]All who have faith in the Eternal stand
as Mount Zion:
unmoved, enduring, eternal.
[2]Just as the mountains around Jerusalem embrace her,
the Eternal, too, wraps around those who belong to Him—
for this moment and for every moment to come.
[3]For wickedness will not *get the upper
hand*;
it shall not rule the land where righteous people live Lest good people go bad
and do what is wrong.

4Be good, Eternal One, to those who are good,
to those who are filled with integrity.
5The Eternal will send all the wicked away along with those who pervert what's good and twist it in their own crooked way.
May peace be with Israel.

Psalm 126

A song for those journeying to worship.

1*Remember* when the Eternal brought back the exiles to Zion?
It was as if we were dreaming—2Our mouths were filled with laughter;
our tongues were spilling over into song.
The word went out across the prairies and deserts,
across the hills, over the oceans wide, from nation to nation:
"The Eternal has done remarkable things for them."
3*We shook our heads. All of us were stunned*—the Eternal has done remarkable things for us.
We were beyond happy, beyond joyful.

4And now, Eternal One, some are held captive and poor.
Release them, and restore our fortunes
as the dry riverbeds of the South spring to life when the rains come at last.
5Those who walk the fields to sow, casting their seed in tears, will one day tread those same long rows, amazed by what's appeared.
6Those who weep as they walk and plant with sighs
Will return singing with joy,
when they bring home the harvest.

Psalm 127

A song of Solomon for those journeying to worship.

Psalm 127 is attributed to Solomon, underscoring the futility of human endeavor apart from God. It is similar in tone and theme to other wisdom literature.

1Unless the Eternal builds the house,
those who labor to raise it will have worked for nothing.
Unless the Eternal stands watch over the city,
those who guard it have wasted their time.
2*God provides for His own.*
It is pointless to get up early,
work hard, and go to bed late Anxiously laboring for food to eat;
for God provides for those He loves, even while they are sleeping.

3Know this: children are a gift from the Eternal;
the fruit of the womb is His reward.
4Your sons born in your youth are a protection,
like arrows in the hand of a warrior.
5Happy is the man who has his quiver full, for they will help and protect him when he is old.
He will not be humiliated when he is accused at the gate,
for his sons will stand with him against his enemies.

Psalm 128

A song for those journeying to worship.

1Those who stand in awe of the Eternal—who follow wherever He leads,
committed in their hearts—
experience His blessings!
2*God will use* your hard work to provide you food.
You will prosper in your labor, and it will go well for you.

3Your wife will be like a healthy vine producing plenty of fruit,
a spring of life in your home.
Your children will be like young olive shoots;
you will watch them bud and bloom around your table.
4Such are the blessings the Eternal lavishes
on those who stand in awe of Him!

5May the Eternal continue to pour out His love on you,
showering down blessings from His holy mountain, Zion.
May you see Jerusalem prosper all your days.
6May you have the privilege of seeing your grandchildren as they grow.
May peace flourish in Israel!

Psalm 129

A song for those journeying to worship.

1"This is not the first time my enemies
assaulted me;
they have often attacked me since I was young."
So let Israel now proclaim,
2"This is not the first time my enemies
assaulted me;
they have attacked me since I was
young,
and yet they have not been able to overpower me.
3The plowers plowed over me;
they plowed their furrows deep and long down my back."
4The Eternal is just.
He's severed the bindings of the wicked so they can't hurt me
anymore.
5May all who despise Zion
hang their heads in shame.
May all who despise Zion recoil and run away.
6Let them grow like grass upon rooftops
that withers and dies in the sun long before it has time to grow, 7Unfit to be harvested by the worker,
not worthy of the effort to carry off to the binder.
8*Unwanted, uncared for*—no passersby
to greet them, no one to say,
"May the favor of the Eternal be upon you;
We bless you in His name."

Psalm 130

A song for those journeying to worship.

1From the depths of disaster I appeal to You, O Eternal One:
2Lord, hear my cry!
Attune Your ears to my humble
prayer!

3If You, Eternal One, recorded each
offense,
Lord, who on earth could stand
innocent?
4But with You forgiveness exists;
that's why true respect of You might flow.

5So I wait for the Eternal—my soul awaits rescue—
and I put my hope in His transforming word.

6My soul waits for the Lord to break into the world
more than night watchmen expect
the break of day,
even more than night watchmen
expect the break of day.

7O Israel, ground your hope in the Eternal.
For in the Eternal lives the most
loyal love,
and with Him comes the most abundant redemption.
8He will ransom Israel
from all the sinful acts that stole you
away.

Psalm 131

A song of David for those journeying
to worship.

1O Eternal One, my heart is not occupied with proud thoughts;
my eyes do not look down on others;
I don't even begin to get involved in matters too big, matters of faith,
state, business,
or the many things that defy my ability to understand them.
2*Of one thing I am certain:* my soul has become calm, quiet, and contented in You.
Like a weaned child resting upon his mother, I am quiet.
My soul is like this weaned child.

3O Israel, stake your trust completely in
the Eternal—
from this very moment and into the vast future.

Psalm 132

A song for those journeying to worship.

1Eternal One, don't let the suffering of our father David be forgotten—
for his sake, remember!
2Remember the pledge he made, how he poured out his heart to the
Eternal,
the promise he made to the Mighty
One of Jacob:
3*He said,* "I will not go inside my house
or lie down in my bed;
4I will not even rest my eyes—
I will not take comfort in sleep—
5Until I find a dwelling place for You, the Eternal,
a holy residence dedicated to the Mighty One of Jacob."

6We heard rumors of the holy ark in Ephrathah,*
and later we found it in the field of Jaar.*

7Let us journey to His dwelling place;
let us worship at His footstool.

8Eternal One, arise and go to Your new home—
You and the ark of Your strength.
9Let every priest join the march wearing
righteousness,
and let songs of joy erupt from the hearts and mouths of Your godly
ones.
10For the well-being of Your anointed
servant,
do not turn Your back on David.

11The Eternal made His own promise,
sworn in truth to David,
an oath which He cannot, will not break:
"I will continue your dynasty, David;
one of your descendants will sit on your throne.
12If your children obey My covenant and follow the statutes which I shall teach them,
And if they remain faithful, their children will also sit upon your throne—forever."

13For the Eternal selected Zion;
He desired it as His holy place of residence.
14"This is My sanctuary, My resting place,
forever and ever;
I will remain here, for this is what I have desired.
15I will bless Zion with an endless supply
of all she needs;
I will satisfy the bellies of her hungry
with bread.
16I will clothe her priests with salvation, and songs of joy will erupt from the hearts and mouths of her godly
people.

17"From there I will make the strength of David's kingdom grow and prepare a lamp for My anointed
one.
18I will clothe his enemies with *a
garment of* shame;
but as for David's son, his crown
will shine brightly like the sun."

Psalm 133

A song of David for those journeying
to worship.

1How good and pleasant it is when brothers and sisters live together in peace!
2It is like the finest oils poured on the head,
sweet-smelling oils flowing down to cover the beard,
Flowing down the beard of Aaron,
flowing down the collar of his robe.
3It is like the gentle rain of Mount Hermon
that falls on the hills of Zion.
Yes, from this place, the Eternal spoke
the command,
from there He gave His blessing—life
forever.

Psalm 134

A song for those journeying to worship.

1Praise the Eternal, all you who serve
Him—
who stand ready to serve in the house of the Eternal through the
night.
2Lift up your hands toward His
sanctuary,
and praise the Eternal.

3May the Eternal grant you His blessing
from Zion,
God, the weaver of heaven and
earth.

Psalm 135

1Praise the Eternal!
Praise and glorify the name of the One who always has been and always will be;
praise Him, servants of the Eternal!
2*Join in the chorus,* all you who minister
in the Eternal's temple;
in the courts of our God's temple,
3Glorify the Eternal, for He is good!
Sing praises, and honor His name
for it is delightful.
4For the Eternal made His choice; He selected Jacob as His own;
He claimed Israel as His possession.

5Now I know this: the Eternal is great;
His power is unmatched.
Our Master is above any so-called
god.

* 132:6 Ephrathah is the region where Bethlehem is located, Micah 5:2. * 132:6 Jaar is a shortened form of Kiriath-jearim, 1 Samuel 7:1.

6He does whatever He pleases,
in heaven, on earth,
in the seas, and in all the ocean depths.
7He draws up the clouds that rise over the whole earth,
He causes rain and the lightning to strike,
and He summons the wind from His storehouses.

8He took the lives of Egypt's firstborn,
human and beast alike.
9O Egypt, He worked wonders and signs before your eyes,
signs against Pharaoh and Pharaoh's servants.
10He destroyed nation after nation
and killed mighty kings:
11Sihon, the Amorite king;
Og, the king of Bashan;
and even all the kingdoms of Canaan.
12He conquered their land and gave it as an inheritance—
an inheritance for His people, Israel.

13Eternal One, Your name is everlasting.
Your legacy, Eternal One, will be known through all the ages.
14For the Eternal will judge His people,
He will show compassion to those who serve Him.

15The nations have idols of silver and gold,
crafted by human hands!
16They shaped mouths for them, but they cannot speak;
they carved eyes into them, but they cannot see;
17They placed ears on them, but they cannot hear;
they cannot breathe, not even a puff of air from their mouths!
18The artisans who made them
are just like them,
and so are all who mistakenly trust in them, no exceptions.

19House of Israel, praise the Eternal;
house of Aaron, praise the Eternal; 20House of Levi, praise the Eternal;
all those who revere the Eternal, praise Him!
21Blessed be the Eternal from Zion,
the One who has made Jerusalem His home.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 136

This hymn of praise recounts God's actions in the past: creation, exodus, and the giving of the land to Israel. A repeated refrain indicates this psalm was chanted responsively.

1*Let your heart overflow with* praise to the Eternal, for He is good,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
2Praise the True God who reigns over all other gods,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
3Praise the Lord who reigns over all other lords,
for His faithful love lasts forever.

4To Him who alone does marvelous wonders,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
5Who created the heavens with skill and artistry,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
6Who laid out dry land over the waters,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
7Who made the great heavenly lights,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
8The sun to reign by day,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
9The moon and stars to reign by night,
for His faithful love lasts forever.

10To Him who struck down the firstborn of the Egyptians,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
11Who set Israel free from Egyptian masters,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
12With fierce strength, a mighty hand, and an outstretched arm,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
13To Him who split the Red Sea* in two and made a path between the divided waters,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
14Then allowed Israel to pass safely through on dry ground,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
15*To Him* who crushed Pharaoh and his army in the waters of the Red Sea,*
for His faithful love lasts forever.
16Who guided His people through the desert,
for His faithful love lasts forever.

17Who struck down mighty kings,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
18Who slaughtered famous kings,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
19Sihon, the king of the Amorites,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
20And Og, the king of Bashan,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
21*To Him* who gave the conquered land
as an inheritance,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
22*Who made the land* a heritage to Israel,
His servant,
for His faithful love lasts forever.

23*To Him* who remembered us when we were nearly defeated,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
24Who rescued us from our enemies,
for His faithful love lasts forever.
25Who provides food for every living thing,
for His faithful love lasts forever.

26*Let your heart overflow with* praise to the True God of heaven,
for His faithful love lasts forever.

Psalm 137

Psalm 137 is a lament written either during or shortly after the exile. It provides a vivid image of what life in exile must have been like.

1By the rivers of Babylon,
we sat and wept
when we thought of Zion, *our home,
so far away*.
2On the branches of the willow trees, we hung our harps and hid our hearts from the enemy.
3And the men that surrounded us made demands that we clap our hands and sing—
Songs of joy from days gone by,
songs from Zion, our home.
Such cruel men taunted us—*haunted
our memories.*

4How could we sing a song about the Eternal
in a land so foreign, *while still tormented, brokenhearted,
homesick?*
Please don't make us sing this song.
5-6O Jerusalem, even still, don't escape
my memory.
I treasure you and your songs, even as I hide my harp from the enemy.
And if I can't remember,
may I never sing a song again—
may my hands never play well
again—
For what use would it be if I don't remember Jerusalem
as my source of joy?

7Remember, Eternal One, how the Edomites, our brothers, the descendants of Esau,
stood by and watched as Jerusalem
fell.
Gloating, they said, "Destroy it;
tear it down to the ground," when Jerusalem was being demolished.
8O daughter of Babylon, you are destined for destruction!
Happy are those who pay you back for how you treated us
so you will no longer walk so proud.
9Happy are those who dash your children against the rocks
so you will know how it feels.

Psalm 138

A song of David.

1To You, Lord, I give my whole heart, a heart filled with praise, for I am grateful;
before the gods, my heart sings
praises to You and You alone.
2I bow before You, looking to Your holy
temple,
and praise Your name, for Your unfailing love and Your truth;
for You have placed Your name and Your word over all things and all times.
3On the day I needed You, I called, and You responded
and infused my soul with strength.

4May all the kings of the earth praise
You, O Eternal One,
because they have heard the words
You have spoken.
5*They will marvel* at the Eternal's ways,
and they will sing,
for great is the glory of the Eternal.
6Although He is greatest of all, He is attentive to the needy and keeps His distance from the proud and pompous.

7Whenever I walk into trouble,
You are there to bring me out.
You hold out Your hand
to protect me against the wrath of
my enemies,

and hold me safely in Your right hand.
[8]The Eternal will finish what He started in me.
Your faithful love, O Eternal One, lasts forever;
do not give up on what Your hands have made.

Psalm 139

For the worship leader. A song of David.

[1]O Eternal One, You have explored my heart and know exactly who I am;
[2]You even know the small details like when I take a seat and when I stand up again.
Even when I am far away, You know what I'm thinking.
[3]You observe my wanderings and my sleeping, my waking and my dreaming, and You know everything I do in more detail than even I know.
[4]You know what I'm going to say long before I say it.
It is true, Eternal One, that You know everything and everyone.
[5]You have surrounded me on every side, behind me and before me,
and You have placed Your hand gently on my shoulder.
[6]It is the most amazing feeling to know how deeply You know me, inside and out;
the realization of it is so great that I cannot comprehend it.

[7]Can I go anywhere apart from Your Spirit?
Is there anywhere I can go to escape Your watchful presence?

[8]If I go up into heaven, You are there.
If I make my bed in the realm of the dead, You are there.
[9]If I ride on the wings of morning,
if I make my home in the most isolated part of the ocean,
[10]Even then You will be there to guide me;
Your right hand will embrace me, for You are always there.
[11]Even if I am afraid and think to myself,
"There is no doubt that the darkness will swallow me,
the light around me will soon be turned to night," [12]You can see in the dark, for it is not dark to Your eyes.
For You the night is just as bright as the day.
Darkness and light are the same to Your eyes.

[13]For You shaped me, inside and out.
You knitted me together in my mother's womb long before I took my first breath.
[14]I will offer You my grateful heart, for I am Your unique creation, filled with wonder and awe.
You have approached even the smallest details with excellence;
Your works are wonderful;
I carry this knowledge deep within my soul.
[15]You see all things; nothing about me was hidden from You
As I took shape in secret, carefully crafted in the heart of the earth before I was born from its womb.
[16]You see all things;
You saw me growing, changing in my mother's womb;
Every detail of my life was already written in Your book;
You established the length of my life before I ever tasted the sweetness of it.
[17]Your thoughts and plans are treasures to me, O God! I cherish each and every one of them!
How grand in scope! How many in number!
[18]If I could count each one of them, they would be more than all the grains of sand on earth. Their number is inconceivable!
Even when I wake up, I am still near to You.

[19]I wish You would destroy all the wicked, O God.
So keep away from me, those who are thirsty for blood!
[20]For they say such horrible things about You,
and those who are against You abuse Your good name.
[21]Is it not true that I hate all who hate You, Eternal One?
Is it not true that I despise all who come against You?
[22]Deep hatred boils within me toward them;

I am Your friend, and they are my enemies.
23Explore me, O God, and know the real me. Dig deeply and discover who I am.
Put me to the test and watch how I handle the strain.
24*Examine me to* see if there is an evil bone in me,
and guide me down Your path forever.

Psalm 140

For the worship leader. A song of David.

1Save me, O Eternal One, from the evil men who seek my life.
Shield me from this band of violent men.
2Their hearts devise evil! They conspire against me;
they are constantly causing a storm of war.
3These snakes have sharpened their tongues;
viper venom hides beneath their lips.*

[pause]*

4Keep me from the grip of these cruel men, O Eternal One.
Shield me from this band of violent men whose only intention is to trip me up and undermine all I do.
5Those arrogant people are trying to catch me;
they've laid their trap, hiding a net along my path;
their traps are set, and I am the prey.

[pause]

6"Eternal One," I said, "You are my one and only God.
Hear me, O Eternal, hear my humble cry for rescue.
7O Lord, Eternal One, power of my deliverance,
You are my helmet in the day of battle.
8So do not fulfill the desires of these evildoers, Eternal One;
do not advance their evil schemes, lest they brag about their successes.

[pause]

9"As for the gang leader of those who surround me, let their mischievous words cover them; smother them in trouble.
10Let hot coals fall from heaven upon them
and cast them into the roaring fires.
May they sink into the muddy marsh from which there is no return.
11Let no liar find a home anywhere in the land;
let evil hunt down the violent man and do him in quickly."

12I am certain the Eternal supports the cause of the distressed;
the poor will receive the justice they deserve.
13Indeed, the just-living will glorify Your name,
and honorable people will be at home in Your presence.

Psalm 141

A song of David.

1O Eternal One, I call upon You.
Come quickly!
Listen to my voice as I call upon You!
2Consider my prayer as an offering of incense that rises before You;
when I stand with my hands outstretched pleading toward the heavens,
consider it as an evening offering.

3Guard my mouth, O Eternal One;
control what I say.
Keep a careful watch on every word I speak.
4Don't allow my deepest desires to steer me toward doing what is wrong or associating with wicked people Or joining in their wicked works
or tasting any of their pleasures.

5Let those who do right strike me down in kindness and correct me in love.
Their kind correction washes over my head like pure oil;
do not let me be foolish and refuse such compassion.
Still my prayer is against the deeds of the wicked:

* 140:3 Romans 3:13 * 140:3 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

6Their judges will be thrown from the edges of cliffs and crushed upon
the rocks below,
and the wicked will hear my words and realize that what I said was pleasing.
7Just as when a farmer plows and breaks open the earth, leaving clumps of dirt scattered along the rows,
our bones are scattered at the mouth of the grave.

8My gaze is fixed upon You, Eternal One,
my Lord;
in You I find safety and protection.
Do not abandon me and leave me
defenseless.
9Protect me from the jaws of the trap
my enemies have set for me and from the snares of those who work evil.
10May the wicked be caught in their own nets
while I alone escape unharmed.

Psalm 142

A contemplative prayer* of David while he hid in a cave.

1I call out loudly to the Eternal One;
I lift my voice to the Eternal begging for His favor.
2I let everything that's going wrong spill
out of my mouth;
I spell out all my troubles to Him.
3When my spirit buckled under the burdens I bear,
You knew my way.
They conspired to trip me up and trap me
on the path where I was walking.
4Take a look around and see—to the right, to the left—
no one is there who cares for me.
There's no way out of here;
no one cares about the state of my soul.

5You are the One I called to, O Eternal
One.
I said, "You're the only safe place
I know;
You're all I've got in this world.
6Oh, let me know that You hear my cry because I'm languishing and desperate;
Rescue me from those who torment me because there's no way I can stand up to them;
they are much too strong for me.
7Lift my captive soul from this dark prison
so I may render to You my gratitude;
Then Your righteous people will gather
around me
because You will treat me with astounding goodness."

Psalm 143

A song of David.

1Eternal One, I come to You in prayer.
Hear me out; I plead with You.
Lend an ear to my requests.
In Your faithfulness and justice,
respond to my pleas.
2Be kind and slow to judge Your faithful
servant,
for compared to You, no one is truly
just.

3My adversary has pressed in, drawn closer, threatened my life;
he's crushed me, driven me
underground.
He's forced me to live in the dark;
it's as if I joined those who died a long time ago.
4That's why my spirit is growing faint
inside me; I have nothing left;
my heart is completely empty and desolate.

5*And yet* I can't forget the days of old, the days I've heard so much about;
I fix my mind on all You have done;
I ponder the work of Your hands;
6I reach out my hands to You.
All that I am aches and yearns for You, like a dry land thirsting for rain.

[pause]*

7Hurry and answer me, O Eternal One,
for my spirit is weak, my courage
is gone.
Do not turn away; let me see Your face;
otherwise, I'll die and be like all those who have gone to the grave.
8Make me hear of Your faithful love in
the morning,
for I trust in You.

* 142:title Hebrew, maskil * 143:6 Literally, selah, likely a musical direction from a Hebrew root meaning "to lift up"

Teach me how I should walk,
for I offer my soul up to You.

9Rescue me from my enemies, Eternal One,
for You are my shelter from them.
10Teach me how to do Your will,
for You are my God.
Allow Your good Spirit to guide me
on level ground, to guide me along Your path.

11For the sake of Your name and the good of Your reputation, preserve me, O Eternal One.
In Your righteousness, save my life from burden and misery.
12In Your loyal love, silence my enemies for good;
destroy all those who take pleasure in my suffering,
for I am Your faithful servant!

Psalm 144

A song of David.

1Blessed be the Eternal, my rock.
He trains my hands for war, gives me the skills I need for battle.
2*He is* my unfailing love and my citadel.
He is my tower of strength and my deliverer.
He is my shield of protection and my shelter;
He holds my people in check under me.

3O Eternal One, what is man, that You even care to know him?
or the son of man, that You are mindful of him?
4Humans are like a passing breath;
their time on earth is like a shadow that passes over us during the day and soon is gone.

5Eternal One, stretch out an opening in the heavens, and descend.
Touch the mountains, and make them smoke.
6Send forth bolts of lightning, and scatter my enemies.
Shoot Your fiery arrows, and rout the enemy.
7Reach down from Your high place;
save me out of the great waters;
rescue me from the grasp of these foreigners 8Who speak only lies
and don't have truth in their deeds.

9To You, my God, I will sing a new song;
I will sing Your sweet praises to the sound of a ten-stringed harp, 10For You deliver kings from their enemies
and You rescue Your servant, David, from the sword of evil.
11Rescue me,
and save me from the grasp of these foreigners
Who speak only lies
and don't have truth in their deeds.

12May our sons be like healthy plants as they grow and mature,
And may our daughters be like the corner pillars
that decorate a palace.
13May our storehouses be full
with abundant supplies of every crop,
And may the flocks of our fields
multiply into thousands and tens of thousands!
14May our cattle be strong and productive,
without miscarriage, without loss,
and may there be no riots or protests in our streets!

15Happy are the people for whom all this is true;
happy are the people whose God is the Eternal!

Psalm 145*

A song of praise by David.

1I will lift my praise above everything to You, my God and King!
I will continually bless Your name forever and always.
2*My praise will never cease—*
I will praise You every day;
I will lift up Your name forever.
3The Eternal is great and deserves endless praise;
His greatness knows no limit, recognizes no boundary.
No one can measure or comprehend His magnificence.

4One generation after another will celebrate Your great works;
they will pass on the story of Your powerful acts to their children.

* Psalm 145 A Hebrew acrostic poem

5Your majesty and glorious splendor
have captivated me;
I will meditate on Your wonders,
sing songs of Your worth.
6We confess—there is nothing greater than You, God, nothing mightier than Your awesome works.
I will tell of Your greatness as long as I have breath.
7*The news of* Your rich goodness is no secret—
Your people love to recall it and sing songs of joy to celebrate
Your righteousness.

8The Eternal is gracious.
He shows mercy to His people.
For Him anger does not come easily, but faithful love does—and it is rich and abundant.
9But the Eternal's goodness is not exclusive—it is offered freely
to all.
His mercy extends to all His creation.

10*All creation will stand in awe of You,*
O Eternal One.
Thanks will pour from the mouths
of every one of Your creatures;
Your holy people will bless You.
11*They will not be silent;* they will talk of the grandeur of Your kingdom and celebrate the wonder of Your
power 12Until everyone on earth who has ears
to hear knows Your valiant
acts
and the splendor of Your kingdom.
13Your kingdom will never end;
Your rule will endure forever.

[You are faithful to Your promise, and Your acts are marked with
grace.]*
14The Eternal sustains all who stumble
on their way.
For those who are broken down,
God is near. He raises them up in hope.
15All eyes have turned toward You,
waiting in expectation;
when they are hungry, You feed them right on time.
16The desires of every living thing
are met by Your open hand.
17The Eternal is right in all His ways,
and He is kind in all His acts.
18The Eternal stays close to those who
call on Him,
those who pray sincerely.
19All of you who revere Him—
God will satisfy your desires.
He hears the cries for help, and He brings salvation.
20All of you who love God—
He will watch out for you,
but total destruction is around the corner for all the wicked.

21My lips will sing the praise of the Eternal.
Let every creature join me and praise the holy name of God—forever and always!

* 145:13 Most Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

Psalm 146

1Praise the Eternal!
Praise the Eternal, O my soul;
2I will praise the Eternal for as long as I live.
I will sing praises to my God as long as breath fills my lungs and blood flows through my veins.

3Do not put your trust in the rulers of this world—kings and princes.
Do not expect any rescue from mortal men.
4As soon as their breath leaves them,
they return to the earth;
on that day, all of them perish—
their dreams, their plans, and their memories.

5Blessed are those whose help comes from the God of Jacob,
whose hope is centered in the Eternal their God—6Who created the heavens, the earth,
the seas, and all that lives within
them;
Who stays true and remains faithful
forever;
7Who works justice for those who are pressed down by the world,
providing food for those who are hungry.

The Eternal frees those who are imprisoned;
8He makes the blind see.
He lifts up those whose backs are bent in labor;
He cherishes those who do what
is right.

9The Eternal looks after those who journey in a land not their
own;
He takes care of the orphan and
the widow,
but He frustrates the wicked along
their way.

10The Eternal will reign today, tomorrow,
and forever.
People of Zion, your God will rule
forever over all generations.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 147

1Praise the Eternal!
It is good to sing praises to our God,
for praise is beautiful and pleasant.
2The Eternal, Architect of earth, is building Jerusalem,
finding the lost, gathering Israel's outcasts.
3He binds their wounds,
heals the sorrows of their hearts.
4He counts all the stars within His
hands,
carefully fixing their number
and giving them names.
5Our Lord is great. Nothing is impossible with His
overwhelming power.
He is loving, compassionate, and
wise beyond all measure.
6The Eternal will lift up the lowly but throw down the wicked to the
earth.

► Psalm 147 is a postexilic hymn of praise to God as Creator and Sustainer. It celebrates the rebuilding of the walls and gates that protect Jerusalem. God secures the city, grants peace to the border towns, and controls the elements.

7*Open your mouths* with thanks!
Sing praises to the Eternal!
Strum the harp in unending praise
to our God 8Who blankets the heavens with
clouds,
sends rain to water the thirsty
earth,
and pulls up each blade of grass
upon the mountainside.
9He opens His hands to feed all the animals
and scatters seed to nestlings when they cry.
10He takes no pleasure in the raw
strength of horses;
He finds no joy in the speed of the sprinter.
11But the Eternal does take pleasure in those who worship Him,
those who invest hope in His unfailing love.

12O Jerusalem, praise the Eternal!
O Zion, praise your God!
13For His divine power reinforces your city gates,
blesses your children in the
womb.
14He establishes peace within your borders,
fills your markets with hearty golden wheat.
15His command ripples across the
earth;
His word runs out on swift feet.
16He blankets the earth in wooly snow, scattering frost like ashes over the
land.
17He throws down hail like stones falling
from a mountain.
Can any withstand His wintry
blast?
18But He dispatches His word, and the thaw begins;
at His command, the spring winds blow, gently stirring the waters back to life.
19He brings Jacob in on His plan, declaring His word—
His statutes and His teachings to
Israel.
20He has not treated any other nation in such a way;
they live unaware of His
commands.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 148

1Praise the Eternal!
All you in the heavens, praise the Eternal;
praise Him from the highest places!
2All you, His messengers and His armies
in heaven:
praise Him!

3Sun, moon, and all you brilliant stars
above:
praise Him!
4Highest heavens and all you waters
above the heavens:
praise Him!

5Let all things join together in a concert of praise to the name of the Eternal,
for He gave the command and they were created.
6He put them in their places to stay
forever—
He declared it so, and it is final.

7Everything on earth, join in and praise
the Eternal;
sea monsters and creatures of the
deep, 8Lightning and hail, snow and foggy mists,
violent winds all respond to His command.

9Mountains and hills,
fruit trees and cedar forests, 10All you animals both wild and tame,
reptiles and birds who take flight:
praise the Lord.

11All kings and all nations,
princes and all judges of the earth, 12*All people,* young men and women,
old men and children alike,
praise the Lord.

13Let them all praise the name of the Eternal!
For His name stands alone above
all others.
His glory shines greater than anything above or below.
14He has made His people strong;
He is the praise of all who are godly,
the praise of the children of Israel,
those whom He holds close.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 149

1Praise the Eternal!
Write new songs; sing them to Him with all your might!
Gather with His faithful followers in joyful praise;
2Let all of Israel celebrate their Maker,
their God, their friend;
let the children of Zion find great joy in their true King.

3So let the music begin; praise His name—dance and sing
to the rhythm of the tambourine,
and to the tune of the harp.
4For the Eternal is listening, and nothing pleases Him more than His
people;
He raises up the poor and endows
them with His salvation.
5Let His faithful followers erupt in
praise,
singing triumphantly wherever they are, even as they lie down for sleep in the evening.
6With the name of God and praise in
their mouths,
with a two-edged sword in their
hands,
7Let them take revenge on all nations
who deny God.
Let them punish the peoples.
8Kings and nobles will be locked up,
and their freedom will be bound in iron shackles.
9This judgment against them, decreed by a holy God, will be carried
out.
It's an honor for all His faithful followers to serve Him.
Praise the Eternal!

Psalm 150

► If Psalm 150 is any indication, then the worship of the one True God ought to be full of life and energy. Consider what it must have looked and sounded like in those days: voices lifted, shouting for joy, trumpets blaring, stringed instruments playing, people dancing, pipes humming, tambourines keeping rhythm, cymbals crashing. There are times when worship ought to break out in joy. Is it possible that our worship is too quiet, too reserved, too structured?

1Praise the Eternal!
Praise the True God inside His
temple.
Praise Him beneath massive skies,
under moonlit stars and rising sun.
2Praise Him for His powerful acts, redeeming His people.

Praise Him for His greatness
that surpasses our time and understanding.

3-4Praise Him with the blast of trumpets
high into the heavens,
and praise Him with harps and lyres
and the rhythm of the tambourines skillfully played by those who love and fear the Eternal.
Praise Him with singing and dancing;
praise Him with flutes and strings
of all kinds!
5Praise Him with crashing cymbals,
loud clashing cymbals!
6*No one should be left out;*
Let every man and every beast—
every creature that has the breath of the Lord—praise the Eternal!
Praise the Eternal!

► This doxology not only closes Book Five, but it also closes the entire Book of Psalms. Up until now, the songs in this book have reminded us of all the reasons we should praise God. Some songs have even commanded us to praise Him. But this closing remark takes the command to praise one step further: everything alive—humans, animals, and heaven's creatures—must praise Him. Praise is what God created us to do; it is one of our highest purposes in life. So it is no wonder that the longest book of the Bible is purely devoted to helping us do just that.

Collected practical wisdom for everyday guidance

By Solomon and other gifted sages

01 02 03 04 05 06

Every culture has its wisdom. Ancient Egypt's scribe Amenemope collected and passed on wisdom sayings over a thousand years before the birth of Jesus. The 30 chapters in the Instruction of Amenemope told Egyptians to be humble and contented with few material things instead of seeking gain through aggressive actions. Colonial America had some of its wisdom collected and printed by Benjamin Franklin each year in Poor Richard's Almanack (1732–58). Franklin wrote under the pseudonym "Poor" Richard Saunders and gave us memorable proverbs, such as "A penny saved is a penny earned." Ancient Israel also recorded words of wisdom in the Book of Proverbs, a tradition linked with King Solomon as a composer of some sayings and a compiler of the book itself (1 Kings 4:29-34).

Proverbs is a book of practical wisdom. For the sages of Israel, wisdom is the ability to live life well and make good decisions. This is a gift from God; it is not something you can gain on your own. You cannot earn wisdom in the school of hard knocks or on the streets or by education or age. Wisdom begins with knowing who God is and then responding to Him in worship and adoration (Proverbs 1:7). The Books of Ecclesiastes and Job offer a different kind of wisdom that results from contemplating questions, such as "Why do good people suffer?" and "What is the meaning of life?" Proverbs is less philosophical and more practical; it offers advice for daily living.

The Book of Proverbs expands the theme introduced in the Book of Deuteronomy: obedience to God's instruction brings prosperity; disobedience brings adversity. The sages adopted this idea and expressed it in terms of wisdom and foolishness. Wisdom is following God's instruction and doing what is right. Foolishness is rejecting God's teaching and doing what is wrong. Rather than allowing us to decide for ourselves, God decides what is right and wrong; and out of grace, He has revealed it to His people in Scripture. Certain things are to be avoided—lazy lifestyles, violent men, seductive women, dishonest gain, alcohol abuse—because they lead to trouble. Other things are to be pursued—hard work, good friends, a strong wife, discipline, good conversation—because they lead to life.

One of the most unforgettable aspects of this book is how wisdom is personified. Lady Wisdom, as she is called, exists before creation and works alongside God as He fashions the hills and sets the limits of the sea (Proverbs 8:22-31). Lady Wisdom now stands in the streets, calling to the young and naive and inviting them to take the path that leads to true life. In many ways, Lady Wisdom stands in contrast to the seductive woman who wants nothing less than to entice and destroy young men.

1 I, Solomon, David's son and Israel's king, pass on to you these proverbs—
a treasury of wisdom—

2So that you would recognize wisdom
and value discipline;
that you would understand insightful
teaching 3And receive wise guidance to live a disciplined life;
that you would seek justice and have the ability to choose what is right
and fair.
4*These proverbs* teach the naive how to
become clever;
they instruct the young in how to grow in knowledge and live with discretion.
5The wise will pay attention to these words and will grow in learning,
and the discerning will receive divine
guidance,
6*And they will be able* to interpret the meaning of a proverb and a puzzle,
the twists and turns in the words of the wise and their riddles.

► A strategic translation decision has been made to respect the historical situation of this book. In its original context, Proverbs is practical wisdom passed down from parents (especially fathers, see chapters 1–9) to young men who are preparing to enter a life of adult responsibilities: family, business, community leadership, and so on. Because of this relational aspect, we have retained masculine references when appropriate and have used more inclusive language when that was the intention of the original author. It is our greatest hope that God will use this work to remind fathers of the profound place they have in nurturing, instructing, and guiding the next generation.

7*Let us begin.* The worship of the Eternal
One, the one True God, is the first step toward knowledge.
Fools, however, do not fear God and cannot stand wisdom or guidance.

8So, my son, pay attention to your father's
guidance,
and do not ignore what your mother taught you—9Wear their wisdom as a badge of honor and maturity,
as fine jewelry around your neck.
10My son, should your less honorable peers pressure you *to do what is
wrong,*
you should be strong enough not to go along.
11If they should say,

Evildoers: Come on! Everyone, hide and let's wait to see whom we can beat to a pulp.
We're going to jump some unsuspecting chumps for no reason at all.
12We'll have our way with them, and when we're through, there will be nothing left,
as if their bodies were swallowed whole by the grave's dark pit.
13We'll take whatever we want—all their wealth *and their fancy
clothes—*
and when we're through, we'll have piles of their treasure for our own.
14You have to join us; *forget about God.
We're going to rake in the goods,
and* we'll share all we take!

15My son, do not join them;
keep well away from their *violent,
destructive* paths.
16For they run right away, every time, to do
wrong,
and they are thirsty for blood.
17You see, it makes no sense to bait the net and set the trap
while the bird is watching, 18But these hiding in the shadows and waiting to spill innocent blood
are really just hastening their own
destruction!
By giving in to their sinful desires,
they set themselves up to be ambushed.
19This is what happens to everyone who tries to profit by violence;
violence will eventually rob them of their very lives.

► Each generation faces strong peer pressure to follow the world's ways, especially during adolescence. That pressure can twist an innocent young man inside out until he is nearly unrecognizable to those close to him. Once gang mentality takes over, that young man could easily find himself in unexpected and troublesome situations. Wisdom calls, and her voice is clear: Remember your parents' instruction. Avoid violence and violent people. If you don't, violence will find you.

20 There's another voice in town.
It belongs to Lady Wisdom, who calls out in the street.
She cries out in the town square,
21 At the city gates, in the noisy city streets,
you can hear her speaking over the racket.

Lady Wisdom: 22 You simple, naive people, how long will you love your feeble ways?
You simpletons, how long will you enjoy making fun of what you don't understand?
You fools, how long will you hate learning what truly matters?
23 Turn to me and receive my gentle
correction;
Watch and I will pour out my spirit
on you;
I will share with you my wise words in order to redirect your
lives.
24 You hear, but you have refused to answer my call.
My hands reached out, but no one noticed.
25 All my advice, all my correction, all have been neglected—
you wanted nothing of them.
26 So I will be the laughter you hear when misfortune comes, and it will come.
I will be the mocking sound when panic grips you—27 When panic comes like a stormy
blast,
when misfortune sweeps in like a whirlwind,
when sorrow and anguish weigh
you down.

28 This is when they will call on me, but I will not respond;
they will be frantic to find me, but they won't be able.
29 Because they despised knowledge of my
ways,
and they also refused to respect and
honor the Eternal,
30 Because they rejected my advice
and turned down my correction, 31 They will surely get what's coming to them:
they'll be forced to eat the fruit of their wicked ways;
they'll gorge themselves on the consequences of their choices.
32 You see, it's turning away from me that brings death to the simple,
and it's self-satisfaction that destroys
the fools.
33 But those who listen to me now will live
under divine protection;
they can rest knowing they are out of harm's way.

2 My son, if you accept what I am telling you
and store my counsel and directives deep within you,
2 If you listen for Lady Wisdom, attune
your ears to her,
and engage your mind to understand
what she is telling you,
3 If you cry out to her for insight and beg for understanding,
4 If you sift through the clamor of everything
around you
to seek her like some precious prize,
to search for her like buried treasure;
5 Then you will grasp what it means to truly respect the Eternal,
and you will have discovered the knowledge of the one True God.
6 The Eternal is ready to share His wisdom
with us,
for His words bring true knowledge
and insight;
7 He has stored up the essentials of sound wisdom for those who do right;
He acts as a shield for those who value integrity.
8 God protects the paths of those who pursue justice, watching over the lives of those who keep faith with Him.
9 With this wisdom you will be able to choose the right road,
seek justice, and decide what is good
and fair
10 Because wisdom will penetrate deep within
and knowledge will become a good friend to your soul.
11 Sound judgment will stand guard over
you,

and understanding will watch over
you as the Lord promised.
12Wisdom will keep you from following
the way of evildoers,
of those who twist words to pervert
the truth,
13Of those who reject the right road for a darker, more sinister way of
life, 14Of those who enjoy evil
and pursue perverse pleasures, 15Of those who journey down a crooked
path,
constantly figuring out new ways to trick and deceive others.

16*Wisdom* will pluck you from the trap of a seductive woman,
from the enticing propositions of the adulteress 17Who chose to leave the husband of her youth,
to forget her sacred promises to her
God;
18For her house is on the road that leads to death,
and her path goes down to the shadowy pit.
19Those who go to her will never return;
they will never again find their way back to true life.

20As for you, you should walk like those who are good and keep to the paths of those who love justice, 21For those who live right will remain in
the land
and those with integrity will endure
here.
22But not the wicked; they will be forced out and banned from this promised land,
and those who deal in deceit will be plucked up like weeds.

3 My son, always remember what I have taught you;
keep my instructions dear to
your heart.
2*If you do,* they will be your guide to a long, healthy, prosperous life.

3*Stay focused;* do not lose sight of mercy
and truth;
engrave them on a pendant, and hang
it around your neck;
meditate on them so they are written upon your heart.

4In this way, you will win the favor of God
and others,
and they will think well of you.

5Place your trust in the Eternal; rely on Him completely;
never depend upon your own ideas
and inventions.
6Give Him the credit for everything you accomplish,
and He will smooth out and straighten the road that lies ahead.
7And don't think you can decide on your own what is right and what is
wrong.
Respect the Eternal; turn and run
from evil.
8*If you depend on Him,* your body and mind will be free from the strain of a sinful life,
will experience healing and health,
and will be strengthened at their core.

9Pay tribute to the Eternal in all of your affairs.
Honor Him with the best of what you make.
10That way you will prosper to the fullest and have plenty of food to eat and wine to drink.

11My son, do not ignore the Eternal's
instruction
or lose heart when He steps in to correct you;
12Because the Eternal proves His love by caring enough to discipline you, just as a father does his child, his pride and joy.*

► God knows well what He is doing. He has established rewards for living wisely: A happy, long life. A good reputation. Guidance when you need it most. Health. Success. Even, dare we say, fatherly discipline. These are just a few of the benefits accompanying God's wisdom.

13How fortunate are those who discover
Lady Wisdom
and those who understand her ways!

* 3:11-12 Hebrews 12:5-6

14For her worth is greater than the most expensive prize you could win.
Her profit is greater than the finest thing you could buy.
15No gem is more precious than she is—
your most extravagant desire doesn't
come close to her.
16She holds the secret of a long life in one
hand
and riches and fame in her other
hand.
17Her ways are pleasant;
all of her pathways are peaceful.
18She is like a tree that produces a satisfied life for anyone who can wrap their arms around her;
happiness waits for any who hold her tightly.

19It was by wisdom that the Eternal fashioned the earth and by understanding that He designed the heavens.
20Through His knowledge, the deep was divided into seas and sky,
and the clouds understood when to let down the morning dew.

21My son, never lose sight of God's wisdom
and knowledge:
make decisions out of true wisdom,
guard your good sense, 22And they will be life to your soul
and fine jewelry around your neck.
23Then each one of your steps will land securely on your life's journey,
and you will not trip or fall.
24Your mind will be clear, free from fear;
when you lie down to rest, you will be refreshed by sweet sleep.
25*Stay calm;* there is no need to be afraid of a sudden disaster
or to worry when calamity strikes
the wicked,
26For the Eternal is always there to protect
you.
He will safeguard your each and
every step.

27Do not withhold what is good from those who deserve it;
if it is within your power to give it,
do it.
28Do not send your neighbor away, saying,
"Get back with me tomorrow.
I can give it to you then,"
when what he needs is already in
your hand.

29Make no plans that could result in injury
to your neighbor;
after all, he should be more secure
because he lives near you.
30Avoid fighting with anyone without good reason,
especially when no one has hurt you;
you have nothing to fight about.
31Do not envy someone who profits at the expense of others
or copy any of his tyrannical ways, 32For crooked people are detestable to the Eternal,
but those with integrity receive His counsel.
33His curse lingers over the wicked and their families,
but He forever favors residence of those who do what is right.
34God treats the arrogant as they treat others,
mocking the mockers, scorning the
scornful,
but He pours out His grace on the humble.*
35*In the end,* the wise will receive honor,
but fools will face humiliation.

► It's perfectly natural to envy those who are successful. It's even natural to want to imitate them. But what about those who've gotten ahead by doing the wrong thing? Sometimes it seems crime does pay, the good do die young, and the wicked do have more fun. But it only appears this way; it is not reality. In reality the success of wrongdoers is short-lived. God is against them, and their house is built on the sand. Even if it seems to be a grand house, it will soon come crashing down.

4 Gather, children, to hear your father's instruction.
Pay close attention so you will
understand,
2For I am passing down to you important
precepts.
Do not abandon these valuable life
lessons.
3Back when I was young—the very image
of my father,
and yet from my mother's view, still her only boy—

* 3:34 James 4:6; 1 Peter 5:5

4My father, with his years of experience,
became my teacher.

Father: Son, grab on to every word I say to you—hold them close—stay true to my instructions as you live, and they will serve you well.
5*Whatever it takes to* gain Wisdom,
do it.
To gain understanding, do it! Never forget this!
Never stray from what I am telling
you.
6If you don't forsake Lady Wisdom, she will protect you.
Love her, and she will faithfully
take care of you.
7Gaining sound judgment is key, so first things first: go after Lady
Wisdom!
Now, whatever else you do, follow
through to understanding.
8Cherish her, and she will help you rise above the confusion of life—
your possibilities will open up before
you—
embrace her, and she will raise you
to a place of honor in return.
9She will provide the finishing touch to your character—grace;
she will give you an elegant
confidence.

10Hear my words, my son, and take them in;
let them soak in so that you will live a long, full life.
11I have pointed you in the way of wisdom;
I have steered you down the path to
integrity.
12*So get going.* And as you go, know this:
with integrity you will overcome
all obstacles;
even if you run, you will not stumble.
13Tighten your grip around wise advice;
don't let it slip away.
Protect Wisdom, for without her, life
isn't worth living.
14Do not start down the road of the wicked—
the first step is easy, but it leads to heartache—
do not go along the way of evildoers.
15Stay away from it; don't even go past it—
and if you find yourself anywhere near it,
turn your back and run as far as you can in the opposite direction.
16For evildoers are so twisted they cannot sleep unless they have caused
harm;
they'll lie awake all night until they figure out a way to cause someone to stumble.
17For they feed on evil the way most eat
bread;
they drink violence the way most guzzle wine.
18Yet the way of those who do right is like the early morning sun
that shines brighter and brighter
until noon.
19Evildoers travel a dark road because they love to hide their deeds in
darkness;
they can't see the perils ahead that
cause them to stumble.

► Fathers have a crucial role in instructing their sons. It's easy and natural to teach children about some things: how to take care of a car, how to hit a ball, or how to mow the lawn. But what about deeper things, the kinds of things that make life worth living? These are much harder. They must not be left for someone else to do. Paul wrote, "And, fathers, do not drive your children mad, but nurture them in the discipline and teaching that come from the Lord" (Ephesians 6:4). Instructing children in the ways of God is crucial work.

20My son, pay attention to all the words
I am telling you.
Lean in closer so you may hear all
I say.
21Keep them before you; meditate on them;
set them safely in your heart.
22For those who discover them, they are
life.
They bring wholeness and healing to their bodies.
23*Above all else,* watch over your heart;
diligently guard it because from a sincere and pure heart come the good and noble things of life.
24Do away with any talk that twists and distorts the truth;
have nothing to do with any verbal trickery.
25Keep your head up, your eyes straight
ahead,

and your focus fixed on what is in front of you.
26Take care you don't stray from the straight path, the way of truth,
and you will safely reach the end of your road.
27Do not veer off course to the right or the
left;
step away from evil, *and leave it
behind.*

5 My son, stay focused; listen to the wisdom I have gained;
give attention to what I have learned about life
2So you may be able to make sensible judgments
and speak with knowledge.
3You see, the lips of a seductive woman speak honey-sweet words;
they are smooth like oil and enticing.
4But in the end, she is bitter, turning the stomach and rotting *the
soul;*
she cuts as deep as a double-edged
sword.
5She leads you down a path that can only end in death;
her steps lead eventually to the grave.
6She does not travel the road to life *and
truth.*
She follows a wandering path—
a rocky, pit-filled road that twists and turns—and she doesn't even know it.

7So, my children, listen to me.
Do not stray from my advice.
8Stay away from her, far away from her
path;
don't even go near her door 9Unless you are ready to hand over your reputation to someone else, unless you want to spend the rest of your years at the mercy of some cruel person.
10If you do, strangers will help themselves
to your wealth,
and everything you have worked hard to acquire will end up in someone else's hands.
11Your life will end with groanings of remorse, of opportunities missed,
and your flesh and bones will be eaten up with sorrow, regret for worthless efforts.
12Then you'll say, "Why did I hate being taught?
Why did I turn my back on correction?
13I disregarded all that my teachers said
to me;
I turned my ear away from my instructors!
14Now I am on the edge of complete and utter ruin
in the midst of the community."

► People are easily seduced, especially men. Everyone is vulnerable to sexual sin at some point or another, and history is strewn with the wreckage that results when the path of adultery is followed: bitterness, death, instability, loss, ruin. Time and again, these are the consequences of violating God's instruction.

15*Here's what you should do to be satisfied:*
go home and drink in the pleasures of your own cistern, your wife;
enjoy the sweet, fresh water that has been there all along, flowing from your own well.
16*Take care.* Should your own springs, your body, be freely shared?
Should your streams of water satisfy anyone in the streets? Absolutely not!
17They should be kept pure for you and you
alone,
not for sharing with strangers.
18May your fountain, your sex life, be blessed by God;
may you know true joy with the wife
of your youth.
19*She who is* lovely as a deer and graceful
as a doe—
as you drink in her love,
may her breasts satisfy you at all times.
20My son, why get caught up in some other woman
and embrace the breast of a stranger?

► Wisdom recognizes the beauty of sexual intimacy. After all, God designed us as sexual beings. But for physical intimacy to retain the beauty of its design, it must be shared wisely. It is meant to be shared with someone who is your own. In marriage two become one (Genesis 2:24), so they belong together and belong to each other. In that safe place of belonging, one finds fulfillment. So a husband or a wife must partake only of the partner's body and love. To seek intimacy elsewhere is foolish.

21 You see, the Eternal sees our ways before Him.
He watches every move we make and knows where those paths lead.
22 The wicked will be snared by their own wrongdoing.
Their flaws will tie their own hands, and they will be dragged through life by the cords of their sins.
23 Because they have no discipline, their spirits die and their bodies will soon follow;
because they are immensely foolish, they wander lost and confused.

6 My son, if you will risk your family's future to put up collateral for the debts of an acquaintance,
if you seal a commitment with a handshake to someone without first knowing the value of his word,
2 Then your words may well be the trap that snares you,
and your promise may seal your fate.
You can't be sure to whom you hitched your future.
3 So, my son—save yourself! Here's what you need to do:
go to that person who became your master with a handshake,
humble yourself, and plead your case.
4 Do not sleep;
don't even rest your eyes until you deal with this.
5 Get out as quickly as possible,
as a gazelle runs from the hand of the hunter,
as a bird takes off from the grip of the fowler.

6 Take a lesson from the ant, you who love leisure and ease.
Observe how it works, and dare to be just as wise.
7 It has no boss,
no one laying down the law or telling it what to do,
8 Yet it gathers its food through summer
and takes what it needs from the harvest.
9 How long do you plan to lounge your life away, you lazy fool?
Will you ever get out of bed?
10 You say, "A little sleep, a little rest,
a few more minutes, a nice little nap."
11 But soon poverty will be on top of you like a robber;
need will assault you like a well-armed warrior.

► Laziness is not just a bad habit; it's a threat—a clear and present danger. Since the beginning, God has made us in His image to create and tend His good creation. In other words, God has made us to work. It is in our spiritual DNA. We must do it in order to be who God made us and to fight off the threats of poverty and want. God has also created the Sabbath as a space for us to rest, of course, just as He rested on the seventh day.

12 Someone who struts around taking advantage of unsuspecting souls and deceiving others is to be avoided.
13 With a wink of his eye, a quick shuffle of his feet, and a slight gesture with his hand, he signals his roguish treachery.
14 With a warped mind and twisted heart,
he constantly looks for his own gain at others' expense,
causing friction everywhere he goes.
15 But you watch: his actions will bring sudden disaster!
In an instant, his life will be shattered,
and there will be nothing to save him.

16 Take note, there are six things the Eternal hates;
no, make it seven He abhors:
17 Eyes that look down on others, a tongue that can't be trusted,
hands that shed innocent blood, 18 A heart that conceives evil plans,
feet that sprint toward evil, 19 A false witness who breathes out lies,
and anyone who stirs up trouble among the faithful.

20 So, my son, follow your father's direction,
and don't forget what your mother taught you—

21 Keep their teachings close to your heart;
engrave them on a pendant, and hang
it around your neck.
22 Their instruction will guide you along your journey,
guard you when you sleep,
and address you when you wake *in
the morning*.
23 For their direction is a lamp; their instruction will light your path, and their discipline will correct your missteps,
sending you down the right path of
life.
24 They will keep you far from the corrupted woman,
away from the smooth talk of a
seductive woman.
25 Do not lose yourself in desire for her beauty
or let her win you over with her painted eyes, 26 For you can buy a harlot with a loaf of bread,
but sex with another man's wife will cost you your life.
27 Can you carry fire right next to your body
and keep your clothes from burning?
28 Can you walk over fiery coals
and keep your feet from blistering?
29 Take another man's wife, and you will find out—
whoever touches her will be found guilty.
30 People don't despise a thief
who only steals to fill his hunger;
31 Still if they catch him, he must repay seven times over—
he could end up losing everything
he owns!
32 By contrast only a fool would commit adultery
since by his action he loses not only his possessions but also his own
life.
33 He will suffer injury and be disgraced;
dishonor will leave a permanent mark on his life.
34 For jealousy sparks a husband's rage—
when he gets his revenge, he'll show
no mercy.
35 He will not be paid off or appeased;
no bribe or gift will set things right.

7 My son, live according to what I am
telling you;
guard my instructions as you would a treasure deep within
you.
2 Stay true to my directives, and they will serve you well;
make my teachings the lens through which you see life.
3 Bind cords around your fingers to remind you of them;
meditate on them, and you'll engrave
them upon your heart.
4 Say to Lady Wisdom, "My sister"; recognize that understanding is your best friend,
5 And they will keep you from the arms of
another woman—
protect you from the enchantress
who entices men into her bed.

► People are forgetful, so we must be reminded constantly of Wisdom and her ways. We don't always need to hear something new; often we just need to be reminded of what is true. In these proverbs wisdom is found when one not only knows what is right, but acts on that knowledge. Foolishness, on the other hand, means a lack of understanding and wrongdoing.

6 One day I was at the window of my house,
looking out through my lattice
shutters,
7 And there among the usual crowd of the gullible people
I spotted a naive young man.
8 He was going down the street near the corner where she lived—that mysterious and evil woman— taking the road that led directly to her house.
9 At the end of the day, as night approached
and darkness crept in,

10 I saw her! A woman came out to meet
him.
She was dressed for temptation and devious with her affections.
11 Here's what I know about her: she is loud and obnoxious, a rebel against what is proper and decent.
She's always on the move—anxious to get out of the house and 12 Down the street; at times in the open,
at others lurking around every corner.

13 As I am watching them, she grabs him
and kisses him,
then shamelessly tells him:

The Immoral Woman: 14 It was my turn to offer a peace offering,
and today I paid my vows,
15 So now I come to see you.
I really want to be with you, and what luck! I have found you!
16 You'll be impressed. I have decorated
my couch,
laid colorful Egyptian linens over
where we will be together, 17 And perfumed the bed with *exotic oils
and herbs:*
myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon.
18 Come in, and we will feast on love
until sunrise;
we will delight ourselves in our affections.
19 You don't need to worry; my husband is long gone by now,
away from home on a distant
journey.
20 He took a bag of money with him,
so I don't expect him home until next month.

21 It worked! She enticed him with seductive words,
seduced him with her smooth talk.
22 Right away he followed her home.
He followed her like a bull being led to the slaughter,
Like a fool* caught in a trap 23 (that is, until an arrow punctures his liver),
Like a bird flying straight into a net.
He had no clue his life was at stake;
everything was about to change.

24 This is why it is so important that you listen to me, my sons,
and pay attention to all I am telling
you.
25 Do not let your mind wonder about her
ways;
do not lose yourself and drift down
her path,
26 For she's claimed one life after another,
victim after victim, too many to count.
27 Her house is the gateway to the grave;
every step toward her is a step toward death's dark chamber.

8 Isn't Lady Wisdom calling?
Listen; don't you hear the voice of understanding crying out?
2 She's taken her stand at the highest place in the city,
at the crossroads where everyone can see her.
3 There, and at the gates, at the entrance to the city,
right in front of the city doors she cries out:

Lady Wisdom: 4 O people! I am calling
to you;
I have a message for all
humanity.
5 You gullible people, acquire insight.
You naive ones, cultivate a heart that truly understands.
6 Listen, for I am about to tell you of unparalleled excellence *and
beauty*;
what I am about to say will set
things right.
7 I will only speak the truth;
I despise evil, so it will not pass through my lips.
8 Everything I say promotes justice;
not one word is crooked, and nothing is distorted.
9 Each and every word is straight talk
to perceptive people, upright and honest to knowledge-
seekers.
10 Accept my correction as being more valuable than your prized possession,
authentic knowledge more valuable than pure gold.

11 You see, no gem is more precious than Lady Wisdom—
your most extravagant desire doesn't
come close to her.

Lady Wisdom: 12 I make my home with prudence;
I obtain knowledge and sound
judgment.
13 If you respect the Eternal, you will grow to despise evil.
I despise wretched, vile talk
and ways of pride and arrogance.
14 Good counsel is mine, and also true
wisdom.
I am understanding, and strength
belongs to me.
15 It's because of me that kings wield
power
and authorities decree what is
right.

* 7:22 Some manuscripts read "deer."

16It's because of me that leaders and their agents govern
and all judge according to what
is right.
17I love those who love me;
those who search hard for me will find me.
18Riches and honor are the benefit of
following me;
so are lasting wealth and justice.
19My reward is better than gold, even
the purest gold;
and my profit is greater than the highest quality silver.
20I follow the way of right living.
Follow me along the path to find
justice;
21I'm ready to meet those who love me,
bestow true riches upon them,
and fill up their lives until their treasuries overflow.
22The Eternal created me; it happened
when His work was beginning,
one of His first acts long ago.
23Before time He established me,
before the earth saw its first sunrise.
24I was born before the deep existed,
before any springs poured out
their water, 25Before the mountains were placed on their foundations,
before the hills *rolled across the
land—*
yes, before all this, I was brought
forth.
26When the earth was yet unformed
and the fields were not yet nestled beneath the wind—
even before the first dust of the
earth—
27When He created the heavens, I was
there.
When He drew a circle in the deep, dividing the oceans and the sky, I was there.
28*I was there* when He established the
sky.
I was there when the springs in the deep were fortified;
29I witnessed Him lay down the shore
as a boundary
and put limits on the water And determine the foundations of the
earth.
30*All this time* I was close beside Him, a master craftsman.
Every day I was His delightful
companion,
celebrating every minute in His
presence,
31Elated by the world He was making
and all its fine creatures;
I was especially pleased with humanity.

32So now listen to me, my children:
those who live by my ways will find true happiness.
33Pay attention to my guidance, dare to
be wise,
and don't disregard my teachings.
34The one who listens to me,
who carefully seeks me in everyday things
and delays action until my way is apparent, that one will find true happiness.
35For when he recognizes and follows
me, he finds a peaceful and satisfying life
and receives favor from the
Eternal.
36But heed my warning: the one who goes against me will only hurt
himself,
for all who despise me are playing with fire and courting death.

9 Lady Wisdom has built her house;
she has supported it with seven pillars.
2*She's prepared a feast:*
She's slaughtered her animals,
poured a spiced wine,
and set her table.
3She has sent out her servants with the invitation to come to the party;
she, too, calls out from the highest point of the city:

Lady Wisdom: 4Whoever is young and
gullible, turn in here.
You are welcome in this place!

Then, turning to those who are naive,
she says:

Lady Wisdom: 5*Come in.* Come, eat my bread,
and drink my spiced wine.
6Give up your gullible ways, your naive thoughts, for true life.
Set your course for understanding.

7Whoever tries to discipline a scoffer should expect a hail of insults in return.
Whoever tries to correct an evildoer
is likely to get hurt in the process.

Lady Wisdom has built a house, prepared a feast, and now invites the young, the simple, and the naive to come to her party. She wants her house full of guests and spilling over with life, yet hers is not the only invitation. There is competition in the streets. Another woman vies for the attention of the young and impressionable. She, too, wants her house full, but of deceit and seduction; and when it is, death and misery join the revelry.

Wisdom addresses a broad audience. First, there are the wise who already know and worship the one True God, who do what is right in God's eyes, and who experience the resulting benefits. They need only to be reminded about God's ways. Second, there are the mockers and fools who reject God's teaching and consistently do what is wrong in spite of its consequences. They need to be confronted and called to change their ways. Finally, there are the naive who straddle the fence, one day going this way, another day going that way. Wisdom extends herself to reach them, to point clearly toward the decision they have to make.

8 So do not correct a scoffer unless you are ready to be hated,
but correct the wise and you will be loved.
9 Give instruction to the wise, and they will become wiser.
Teach upstanding people, and they will learn even more.
10 Reverence for the Eternal, the one True
God, is the beginning of wisdom;
true knowledge of the Holy One is the start of understanding.

Lady Wisdom: 11 Through me your days
will be lengthened,
and years will be added to your life.

12 If you are wise, wisdom is its own reward.
If you mock what you don't understand, you alone will suffer
the consequences.

13 Compared to Wisdom, the Lady Folly is rowdy and loud,
naive and ignorant.
14 She sits by the door of her house,
on a bench at the highest place in
the city,
15 Crooning to passersby
who hurry straight on to their destinations:

Lady Folly: 16 Whoever is young and
gullible, turn in here.
You are welcome in this place!

Then, she turns to the naive.

Lady Folly: 17 Stolen water tastes so much sweeter!
Bread secreted away is much more satisfying to eat!

18 But those who pause to listen to Lady Folly
do not know death is the next stop, that her guests are walking cadavers.

The proverbs of Solomon:

A wise son makes his father glad,
but a foolish one fills his mother
with sorrow.

► Solomon's proverbs were originally short, pithy, easily remembered sayings brought together around certain themes. They started as oral traditions and were eventually written in a Hebrew poetic form known as parallelism. Chapters 10–15 are dominated by antithetical parallelism, meaning a statement is made in line 1 and then contrasted in line 2. Chapters 16–22 contain both synonymous and synthetic parallelism. In synonymous parallelism, the ideas in line 1 are repeated in line 2 using different words. In synthetic parallelism, later lines serve to expand, define, and elaborate the first lines.

2 Riches gained through dishonest means will eventually vanish, but doing what is right avoids a deadly consequence.
3 The Eternal does not allow the right-living to go hungry,
but He will frustrate the plans of the
wicked.

4 A slack hand produces nothing but poverty,
but an industrious hand soon takes hold of riches.
5 A wise son stores up for the winter months while it is still summer,
but a shameful son lies around even during the harvest.
6 Blessings come to those who do what is right,
but words spoken by the wicked cover up violent schemes.
7 The memory of one who lived with integrity brings joy,
but the legacy of a wrongdoer will rot away.
8 The wise at heart will gladly obey direction,
but one who fills the air with meaningless talk will fall into ruin.
9 The path of integrity is always safe,
but a person who follows a crooked way will be exposed.
10 Whoever winks his eye signals trouble,
and whoever fills the air with meaningless talk will fall into ruin.
11 The mouth of the righteous is a spring of life,
but words spoken by the wicked cover up violent schemes.
12 Hatred fuels dissension,
but love calms all rebellions.
13 Wisdom lives where insightful words are spoken,
but harsh punishment awaits the senseless.
14 The wise store up knowledge as a safeguard,
but the meaningless chatter of fools means that chaos is near.
15 The wealth of the rich is their powerful fortress;
the poverty of the poor reduces them to rubble.
16 The reward of those who do right is a satisfied life,
but the profits gained by those who do wrong is used to sin.
17 Those who accept instruction are travelers on the road to a meaningful life, but those who refuse correction wander off and pave a path to ruin.
18 Lips that lie cover deep-seated hatred, and whoever spreads a libelous rumor is acting as a fool.
19 The more you talk, the more likely you will cross the line and say the wrong thing;
but if you are wise, you'll speak less and with restraint.
20 The speech of those who do right is of greater value than the finest silver,
but the thoughts of wrongdoers are worthless.
21 The right-living teach many,
but fools die with no clue how to live well.

► Perhaps the ancients knew the power of words better than we do. Words can conceal, reveal, destroy, and encourage. Words are extremely powerful, so Wisdom urges us to use a few carefully chosen words and to pick our conversations equally well.

22 The blessing of the Eternal is what makes someone rich, and He doesn't add pain to it.
23 Mischief is the sport of fools,
but wise actions bring joy to a person with insight.
24 Whatever wrongdoers fear the most will happen to them, but those who do right will receive what they long for.
25 After the storm passes, the wrongdoers are blown away,
but those who do right are safe and sound on their firm foundations forever.
26 As vinegar vexes the teeth, and as smoke irritates the eyes,
so a slacker annoys his boss.
27 Reverence for the Eternal makes for a long and peaceful life,
but a wrongdoer will have years taken away.
28 The hope of those who do right is joy and celebration,
but the only prospect for those who do wrong is futility.
29 The way of the Eternal offers safety to those who love justice,
but it destroys those who perpetrate evil.
30 The right-living will never have their land taken away,
but wrongdoers will be uprooted.
31 Wisdom flows from the mouths of those who do right,
but tongues that twist the truth will be cut out.
32 The lips of the right-living understand what is proper,

but the mouths of wrongdoers twist and pervert the truth.

11 Dishonesty in business disgusts the Eternal,
but fair dealing delights Him.

► Business may well be the most common human activity, so God cares deeply about how we conduct our business. Many proverbs address honesty in all forms of business—buying, selling, negotiating, transacting, and working. All of these depend on trust. Deceit in business causes many people to suffer. In fact, world economies and all our livelihoods depend in large measure on truthfulness, honesty, and fair dealings in the market.

2 When pride comes, shame is not far behind,
but wisdom accompanies those who are humble.
3 The right-living are guided by integrity,
but the crooked ways of the faithless will lead to ruin.
4 Riches won't matter on the day of wrath,
but right living will rescue from death.
5 The good deeds of the blameless pave a peaceful, productive path,
but wrongdoers trip over their own faults.
6 The good deeds of the upright will rescue them,
but the faithless will be conquered by their shallow desires.
7 When wrongdoers die, their hopes die with them.
Their great expectations vanish into nothing more than a dream.
8 Those who do right are pulled from trouble;
it falls on wrongdoers instead who are left to sink in their own problems.
9 The words of the godless ruin those close to them,
but through insight the right-living are spared.
10 When prosperity comes to those who do right, the whole city celebrates;
but when the wicked get their just punishment, there is joyous cheering.
11 A city thrives through the blessing of those living right, but the words of a wrongdoer will bring it to ruin.
12 Whoever puts down another is not wise,
but one who knows better keeps quiet.
13 A gossip can't keep anything confidential,
but a reliable person protects a secret.
14 Without wise guidance, a nation falls;
but victory is certain when there are plenty of wise counselors.
15 Trouble compounds when you guarantee a stranger's debt,
but you'll be safe if you refuse the pledge.
16 A gracious woman acquires honor,
but cruel people are only interested in acquiring money.
17 Kindness is its own reward,
but cruelty is a self-inflicted wound.
18 The wicked earn a living by deception,
but the one who plants righteousness gathers a true harvest.
19 Indeed, those who do what is right will live a good life,
but those who pursue evil will die.
20 The Eternal detests a crooked heart and a warped mind,
but He takes great pleasure in those who follow the right way.
21 Certainly those who do wrong will not escape punishment,
but those who do right will go free.
22 Much like a gold ring in the snout of a pig,
so is a beautiful woman who lacks good judgment.
23 Those who live right crave what is good,
but the prospect of wrongdoers is wrath.
24 One shares liberally and yet gains even more,
while another hoards more than is right and still has need.
25 A giving person will receive much in return,
and someone who gives water will also receive the water he needs.

► Generosity places God's gifts and blessings into circulation. The principle is simply stated: by giving we receive. This may seem counterintuitive, but it is how God's economy works. As Jesus said, "Don't hold back—give freely, and you'll have plenty poured back into your lap—a good measure, pressed down, shaken together, brimming over. You'll receive in the same measure you give" (Luke 6:38).

26 Curses fall upon those who hoard food,
but blessings come to those who sell food.
27 Those who seek good find the goodwill of others,
but those who look for evil are sure to find it.
28 Those who trust in their wealth are headed for great disappointment, but those who do right will sprout like green leaves in the spring.
29 A person who stirs up trouble in his family will inherit stormy winds, and foolish troublers will end up serving the wise.
30 The tree of life grows where the fruit of right-living falls,
and whoever wins souls is wise.
31 If the righteous can expect to be repaid on earth,
how much more can the ungodly and the sinners?

12 Those who love discipline love knowledge,
but fools hate any kind of correction.
2 The Eternal prefers those who do good,
but He condemns those who plot evil.
3 Doing what is wrong keeps everyone off balance and insecure,
but those who do right will never be uprooted.
4 A dignified wife brings honor to her husband,
but a shameful wife is like decay eating away at his bones.
5 The thoughts of the right-living tend toward justice,
but the guidance of the wicked is trickery and treachery.
6 The words of the wicked ambush from the shadows, seeking blood,
but the speech of the honest keeps them free.
7 The wrongdoers are overthrown—no one is left!
But the house of the right-living remains strong.
8 A person is commended for expressing insight,
but a perverted heart is despised.
9 It is better to be overlooked and have a servant
than to be pretentious and have nothing to eat.
10 Those who are righteous treat their animals humanely,
but the compassion of the wicked is really inhumane.

► A person in a positive relationship with God stands in a right relationship with His creation. How we treat animals may mirror our souls—not just the pets in our home, but the pets in our neighborhood and the animals in our food supply. One who is truly right with God considers the needs of His creatures.

11 Whoever works the land will have more than enough food, but whoever follows empty pursuits lacks sense.
12 The wicked envy what the evil plunder,
but the root of the right-living produces fruit for all.
13 A wrongdoer is soon boxed in by his deceitful talk,
but the one who does right escapes from trouble unharmed.
14 Words spoken wisely result in much good,
and working with your hands pays a large reward.
15 Fools follow their own directions and think they are right,
but wise people listen intently to advice.
16 A fool's anger is quickly evident,
but a clever person knows how to hide his flaws.
17 A faithful witness speaks the truth,
but a false witness utters lies.
18 Thoughtless words cut deeply like a thrusting sword,
but the speech of the wise is a healing balm.
19 Truth spoken will stand forever,
but lies survive only briefly.
20 Deceit darkens the hearts of those who plot evil,
but advocates of peace have joy.

21The right-living are not overcome with calamity,
but wrongdoers have their fill of it.
22Lying lips disgust the Eternal,
but those who act faithfully delight Him.
23A clever man is careful in revealing what he knows,
but a fool betrays his incompetence.
24The hand of the hard workers will one day rule,
and slackers will be forced to labor.
25The weight of worry drags us down,
but a good word lightens our day.
26Those who live right are good guides to those who follow,*
but wrongdoers will steer their friends down the wrong path.
27Slackers don't take time to cook their food,*
but hard workers prize everything they have.
28Life springs up along the path of integrity,
and death has no place along its course.

13 A wise child is attentive to his parents' instruction,
but the mocker is deaf to correction.
2A person eats well when he speaks wisely,
but the treacherous crave violence.
3Those who guard their speech insure they will take another breath,
but those who talk without thinking guarantee their demise.
4Slackers crave but have their fill of nothing,
but the hardworking desire and are completely satisfied.
5The right-living will not tolerate any lie,
but wrongdoers come to shame and embarrassment.
6Doing right keeps the innocent on the path of life,
but doing wrong is the downfall of the wicked.
7One pretends he is wealthy but has nothing,
while another seems to be poor but has great wealth.
8The rich are targeted and must ransom their lives,
but no one bothers to threaten the poor.
9The light of the right-living brings joy as it burns brightly;
the lamp of a wrongdoer will be snuffed out.
10Arrogance only produces arguments,
but wisdom accompanies those well advised.
11Money earned hastily is easily lost,
but hard-earned money continues to grow.
12Hope postponed grieves the heart;
but when a dream comes true, life is full and sweet.
13The one who hates good counsel will reap failure and ruin,
but the one who reveres God's instruction will be rewarded.
14Wise instruction is a spring yielding a satisfied life;
those who follow it avoid the traps that lead to death.
15Good sense brings blessing,
but the road of the treacherous is long and rough.
16A clever person acquires knowledge and then acts on it;
but a fool advertises his folly for all to see.
17An untrustworthy messenger stirs up trouble,
but a faithful emissary is curative balm.
18A person who turns from correction faces poverty and shame,
but one who regards constructive criticism is well respected.
19A dream fulfilled is the sweetness of life,
but abandoning evil is repulsive to fools.
20One who walks with the wise becomes wise,
but whoever keeps company with fools only hurts himself.
21Trouble eagerly pursues the sinner,
but success rewards the right-living.
22A good person leaves an inheritance for his grandchildren, but the wealth of the sinner is eventually passed on to the right-living.
23Though the fields of the poor yield a bumper crop in a land without justice, it is stolen out from under them.
24Those who spare the rod of discipline hate their children,
but those who are quick to correct them show true love.
25Those who do right have plenty to eat,
while those who do wrong go hungry.

* 12:26 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 12:27 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

14 A wise woman builds her house, but a foolish one picks it to splinters with her own
hands.
2Whoever travels through life with integrity respects the Eternal,
but whoever turns from it hates Him.
3A fool's words betray his pride and invite
punishment,
but the humble speech of the wise
will spare them.
4*A farm* without oxen has a manger
without grain;
there's a good return in the strength
of an ox.
5An honest witness can always be trusted,
but a false witness breathes out
nothing but lies.
6Wisdom eludes mockers, though they seek it,
but insight comes quickly to those with understanding.
7Walk away from the company of fools,
for you cannot find insight in their
words.
8It takes wisdom for the clever to understand the path they are on,
but the fool is deceived by his own
foolishness.
9Fools make a mockery of guilt and repentance,
but those who do what is right
receive special standing.*
10Only the heart can know its own resentment;
likewise no stranger can experience
its joy.
11The house of the wicked will be
destroyed,
while the tent of the upright will
prosper.
12Before every person lies a road that
seems to be right,
but the end of that road is death and
destruction.
13Laughter can mask heartache,
and joy often gives way to grief.
14A disloyal heart has its fill of disloyal
ways,
but a good person will be satisfied
from above.
15The gullible believe anything they are told,
but clever people know to question
every step.
16The wise are cautious and stay far from
evil,
but fools are hotheaded and careless.
17Quick-tempered people make fools of themselves,
and evil schemers make many
enemies.
18The naive are heirs to foolishness,
but the clever are honored with insight.
19Evil people will be humbled before the
good;
the wicked will stoop at the doorstep
of the righteous.
20The poor are hated even by their own
neighbors,
but the rich are loved by many
friends.
21Those who have contempt for their neighbors are sinners,
but those who are kind to the poor
are happy.
22Don't those who work evil stray from the
truth?
Those who plan goodness experience
unfailing love and faithfulness.
23Prosperity comes from hard work,
but talking too much leads to great scarcity.
24The wise are honored for their wealth;
the reward of fools is more
foolishness.
25A truthful witness protects lives by not allowing evil to triumph,
but a deceitful witness speaks lies
and puts the innocent in jeopardy.
26Reverence for the Eternal brings bold
confidence,
and one's offspring will have hope of
protection.
27Respect and honor for Him is the basis of a satisfied life,
which guards a person from being trapped in the snares of death.
28A king's splendor is in his many people,
but a declining population will lead to his ruin.
29Whoever is patient and slow to anger shows great understanding, but whoever has a quick temper
magnifies his foolishness.
30A serene heart can add years to one's life;
but jealous passion rots the bones.

* 14:9 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

► The wrong kind of passion can be a dangerous thing. Too often people are ruled by strong emotions, thoughts that cannot be checked, and actions that cannot be controlled. If that's the case, then you are putting your life and well-being in jeopardy. Peace of mind, tranquility of soul, and serenity of heart become the recipe for a long, happy life.

31 Whoever oppresses the poor insults his Maker,
but anyone who is gracious to the needy honors Him.
32 The wicked are waylaid by their evil
actions,
but the right-living find hope's
sanctuary even in their death.*
33 Wisdom rests in the heart of one with insight
and can even be experienced by fools.
34 Living according to God's instructions makes a nation great,
but sin colors those who commit it
with disgrace.
35 The king shows kindness to a servant
who acts wisely,
but his anger burns toward one who brings shame.

15 A tender answer turns away
rage,
but a prickly reply spikes
anger.
2 The words of the wise extend
knowledge,
but foolish people utter nonsense.
3 The Eternal can see all things;
His gaze is fixed on both the evil and
the good.
4 A word of encouragement heals the one who receives it,
but a deceitful word breaks the spirit.
5 Fools refuse their parents' guidance, but sensible children accept
correction.
6 Great treasure may be found where the right-living make their home, but trouble awaits the wicked at every turn.
7 When the wise speak, knowledge spreads far and wide,
but fools care nothing about such matters.
8 When the wicked offer sacrifices, they disgust the Eternal,
but the prayers of those who do right
are a pleasure to Him.
9 The lifestyle of the wicked is repulsive
to Him,
while those who do right delight Him.
10 Harsh punishment is waiting for those who reject the path of life,
and those who hate correction will
die.
11 The grave and destruction are fully exposed before the Eternal;
how much more does He know the thoughts of Adam's children!
12 Those who mock others don't like being corrected,
so they keep their distance from the
wise.
13 A warm, smiling face reveals a joy-filled
heart,
but heartache crushes the spirit and darkens the appearance.
14 Those who have understanding hearts hunger after knowledge,
but those with no understanding feast on foolishness.
15 The poor and oppressed suffer hardship
day after day,
but those with kind hearts continually
feast.
16 It is better to live with less and honor the Eternal
than to have riches and carry the burdens that come with them.
17 Better to eat only vegetables served lovingly
than a fattened ox served hatefully.
18 A hot-headed person stirs up trouble,
but one with patience settles a fight.
19 Lazy people walk a path overgrown with thornbushes,
but those with integrity travel a wide,
level road.
20 A wise child makes his father happy,
but a foolish man despises his mother.
21 Foolishness brings sheer joy to those who have no sense,
but people with insight steer a straight course through life.
22 Plans fall apart without proper advice;
but with the right guidance, they come together nicely.
23 There is great joy in having the right
answer,
and how sweet is the right word at the right time!
24 For the wise the road of life climbs up steep grades
in order to avoid the slide down to
the grave.
25 The Eternal splinters the house of the haughty,
but He secures the property of
widows.

* 14:32 Greek manuscripts read "integrity."

► It is ironic that we may have more to fear from the proud and powerful than from the poor and needy. Those who have want more, and so they take it. Oh, maybe they won't pick your pocket or break into your home. Their ways are more subtle and more effective. As James, Jesus' brother, wrote, "Isn't it the rich who step on you while climbing the ladder of success? And isn't it the rich who take advantage of you and drag you into court?" (James 2:6b). James isn't describing all the rich, of course, but many have made their fortunes off the backs of others. God is the One who can protect the poor, the One who can reduce the grand houses of the haughty to splinters.

[26]The thoughts of the wrongdoers repulse the Eternal,
but kind words are pure pleasure for Him.
[27]Those who take illegal gains injure their families,
but those who refuse a bribe will live in peace.
[28]The right-living think before they speak,
but wrongdoers simply spew evil.
[29]The Eternal stays far from the wrongdoers,
but He listens to the prayer of the right-living.
[30]Bright eyes and a cheerful expression bring joy to the heart, and good news revives the spirit and renews health.
[31]Those who learn from the lessons of life will join the others who are wise.
[32]Those who disregard discipline sabotage themselves,
but those who are open to correction gain understanding.
[33]Reverence for the Eternal is the first lesson of wisdom,
and humility always precedes honor.

16 People go about making their plans,
but the Eternal has the final word.
[2]Even when you think you have good intentions,
He knows your real motives.
[3]Whatever you do, do it as service to Him,
and He will guarantee your success.
[4]The Eternal made everything for a reason.
Even wrongdoers fit in His plans;
troubled times await them.
[5]He abhors arrogant people.
Make no mistake about it! They will be punished!
[6]The penalty of sin is removed by love and loyalty;
and by devotion to the Eternal, evil is avoided.
[7]When people make good choices, He is pleased;
He even causes their enemies to live peacefully near them.
[8]Better to have little and stand for what is right
than to become rich by doing what is wrong.
[9]People do their best making plans for their lives,
but the Eternal guides each step.
[10]The king makes a decision under divine inspiration,
but he must never render an unfair judgment.
[11]The Eternal requires that business be conducted honestly;
He wants fairness in all your dealings.
[12]When kings commit evil, it is despicable,
because their thrones should be built on justice.
[13]Kings admire those who tell the truth;
they adore those who set the record straight.
[14]A king's rage signals that people will die,
but whoever is wise will pacify him.
[15]If a king is smiling brightly, life will be granted;
his favor is like a cloud swelled with the first spring rain.
[16]How much better it is to receive wisdom than the riches of gold and to gain understanding over some silver prize!
[17]The highway of the just bypasses evil;
those who watch where they're going protect their lives from sin.
[18]Pride precedes destruction;
an arrogant spirit gives way to a nasty fall.
[19]It is better to be humble and live among the poor,
than to divide up stolen property with the proud.

20 Those devoted to instruction will prosper in goodness;
those who trust in the Eternal will experience His favor.
21 The wise at heart have a reputation for
understanding;
pleasant words make the lips more
persuasive.
22 Understanding for those who have it is a spring of life,
but it is pointless to try and instruct
a fool.
23 From a wise heart flow careful words;
wise words make the lips more
persuasive.
24 Pleasant words are like a honeycomb:
they drip sweet food for life and bring health to the body.
25 Before every person lies a road that
seems to be right,
but at the end of that road death and destruction wait.
26 People work to stay alive,
pressed daily by their need to eat.
27 Good-for-nothings conjure up evil ideas;
their conversations fuel destructive fires.
28 Perverse people stir up contention;
gossip makes best friends into
enemies.
29 Violent people try to recruit their
neighbors,
wanting to lead them down the vile
path of evil they have chosen.
30 Body language can expose a person's intentions:
whoever winks the eye is planning
perversity;
whoever purses his lips is intent on
evil.
31 Gray hair is a crown of honor,
earned by living the right kind of life.
32 It is better to be a patient man than a mighty warrior,
better to be someone who controls
his temper than someone who conquers a city.
33 We may try to control the roll of the dice,
but actually, the Eternal decides what they will determine.

17 Better to gnaw on a bit of dry crust in peace
than to feast in a house full
of stress.
2 A wise servant will be put in charge of a child who behaves badly
and will take a share of the inheritance like one of the family.
3 Silver is purified in the crucible, gold in the furnace,
but motives of the heart are judged by
the Eternal.
4 Wrongdoers perk up when listening to gossip,
and liars lean in close to hear talk of mischief.
5 Anyone who makes fun of the poor
disparages his Maker,
and those who celebrate another's misfortune will not escape certain punishment.
6 Grandchildren are the crowning glory
and ultimate delight of old age, and parents are the pride of their
children.
7 Elegant speech sounds odd when it comes from a fool,
and a lie on the lips of a leader is even more out of place!
8 A bribe is like an enchanting charm to one who counts on it—everywhere he looks he sees the illusion of success.
9 Those who forgive faults foster love,
but those who repeatedly recall them
ruin relationships.
10 A single correction makes a more lasting impression on one who is wise
than a hundred lashes do on a fool.
11 Evil people are determined to rebel,
and so a merciless messenger will chase them down.
12 Better to face a mother bear stripped of her cubs
than to encounter a fool caught up in his foolishness.
13 Those who repay good with evil bring unrelenting trouble upon their families.
14 Picking a fight is like leaking water from a crack in a dam,
so walk away from an argument
before the outburst.
15 Both of these deeply offend the
Eternal:
one who acquits the guilty and one who condemns the innocent.
16 Even if fools had the means to obtain
wisdom,
they would not be able to benefit from it.
17 A true friend loves regardless of the situation,
and a real brother exists to share the tough times.
18 Only a fool shakes hands on a deal and guarantees repayment of someone else's loan.

19 A person who loves sin loves a fight,
and one who builds a grand entrance
dares others to tear it down.
20 Crooked-hearted people never recognize
anything good,
and those who distort the truth
court disaster.
21 Having a fool for a child is misery;
there is no joy in parenting a fool.
22 A joy-filled heart is curative balm,
but a broken spirit hurts all the way to the bone.
23 A wicked person accepts a bribe under the table
to derail the course of justice.
24 Those who understand look to wisdom
for guidance,
but fools fasten their eyes on some distant horizon.
25 Foolish children irritate their fathers and embitter their mothers.
26 Also know this: It is wrong to penalize
those who do what is right
or to lash the noble because of their
integrity.
27 Those with knowledge know when to be quiet,
and those with understanding know
how to remain calm.
28 Even a fool who keeps quiet is considered
wise,
for when he keeps his mouth shut,
he appears clever.

18 Whoever pulls away from others to focus solely on his own desires disregards any sense of sound
judgment.
2 A fool never delights in true knowledge but only wants to express what's on his mind.
3 When wrongdoers arrive, disgrace is right there with them,
for shame is the companion of dishonor.
4 Words bubble up from waters deep within a person;
a stream gushes from the fountain of
wisdom.
5 It is wrong for a judge to show partiality
to the guilty
or to rob the innocent of justice.
6 When a fool's lips move, a fight breaks
out;
it's as if his mouth is begging for a beating.
7 The mouths of fools are their destruction,
and their lips entrap their very souls.
8 Whispered gossip is like a delicious first
course:
it is devoured with pleasure and penetrates deeply.
9 Those who slack off at work
are no different from vandals.
10 The Eternal is known to be like a sturdy watchtower;
those who do right flee to Him for
protection.
11 The rich think their wealth is their sturdy
fortress;
they imagine it to be an invincible
wall of security.
12 A proud heart precedes destruction,
and before honor is humility.
13 To respond to a matter before you hear about it
shows foolishness and brings shame.
14 The human spirit can endure a long illness,
but who can survive a crushed spirit?
15 Clever people go after knowledge to obtain it,
and wise people attune their ears to hear it.
16 The right gift at the right time can open up new opportunities and gains access to influential
people.
17 The first ones to tell their side of a story seem right
until cross-examined by their peers.
18 Casting lots can settle conflicts and decide between powerful opponents.
19 Winning over an offended brother is harder than breaching a strong city's defenses;
such fights are as tough as the iron
gates of a castle.
20 Good words satisfy like a fine meal;
yes, good conversations are sure to satisfy.
21 Words have power in matters of life and
death,
and those who love them will savor
their fruit.
22 The man who finds a wife finds something good,
and the favor of the Eternal is indeed
his.
23 The poor plead for help,
but the rich respond harshly.
24 Someone with many so-called friends
may end up friendless,
but a true friend is closer than a brother.

19 Better to be poor and live with
integrity
than a fool with a foul
mouth.

2 Surely there's no advantage for a person without knowledge,
and whoever moves too quickly
misses the turn.
3 Foolishness diverts the course of life,
yet the heart rebels against the
Eternal.
4 Wealth attracts many friends, but the poor are soon separated from theirs.
5 A false witness will not escape
punishment,
and one who breathes lies will not go free.
6 Many try to win the favor of a generous
person,
and everyone is a friend to someone who gives gifts.
7 If a poor man is hated by his relatives, it is even more likely his friends will avoid him too!
Anyone who is calling after them
[is not to be found].*
8 Whoever gains a wise heart loves his own soul,
and whoever preserves understanding experiences true goodness.
9 A false witness will not escape
punishment,
and whoever breathes lies will not survive.
10 Something is wrong when a fool lives a pampered life,
but it is much worse when a slave
takes charge of princes.
11 A person with discretion is not easily angered;
he gains respect by overlooking an
offense.
12 A king's rage is like the thunderous roar
of a lion,
but his favor is like a cooling mist
upon the grass.
13 Foolish children bring misery to their fathers,
and a wife's bickering is a constant dripping as from a leaky roof.
14 Houses and riches may be inherited from parents,
but a sensible wife is a gift from the
Eternal.
15 Laziness lulls people into a deep sleep;
a slacker will have nothing to eat.
16 Whoever keeps God's commands
lengthens his life,
but a careless lifestyle ends in death.
17 Whoever cares for the poor makes a loan
to the Eternal;
such kindness will be repaid in full
and with interest.
18 Discipline your children while there is still hope of influencing their future,
so as not to play a part in their
destruction.
19 A hot-tempered man will pay a penalty;
if you bail him out, it will not be the last time; the cycle will repeat.
20 Heed counsel, act on instruction,
and you will become wise later in life.
21 The impulses of the human heart may run wild,
but the Eternal's plan will prevail.
22 Loyalty is a trait admired in others,
and being destitute is better than being a liar.
23 Reverence for the Eternal leads to a fulfilled life;
those who have it will sleep well,
for disaster will not touch them.
24 Some people are so lazy—they reach for food on the plate
but lack the will to bring it up to
their mouths.
25 If you beat one who mocks, the naive
will see and learn a lesson;
if you correct someone with understanding, that's all he needs to grow a little wiser.
26 Children who mistreat their father and run down their mother
are a root of shame and disgrace.
27 My child, should you stop listening to
instruction,
you will wander from the voice of
knowledge.
28 A worthless witness ridicules justice,
and the mouth of the wrongdoer
savors every morsel of trouble.
29 Severe penalties are prepared for those who mock,
and fools expect their backs to be flogged.

20 Too much wine begins to mock
you,
too much strong drink leads to noisy fights,
and whoever is misled by either is not wise.
2 A king's wrath strikes fear like a lion's roar;
those who provoke him to anger
sentence themselves to death.
3 Honor is due those who refuse to fight at the drop of a hat,
but every fool jumps at an opportunity to quarrel.

* 19:7 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

4A slacker procrastinates when it is time to plow;
so when it's time for harvest, there are no crops in the field.
5The real motives come from deep within a person—as from deep waters—but a discerning person is able to draw them up and expose them.
6Most people claim to be loyal,
but can anyone find a trustworthy person?
7The right-living act with integrity;
the children who follow their example are happy.
8When a king sits on his throne as judge,
he ferrets out all evil and scatters it with his royal stare.
9Who can say, "I have cleaned my heart"?
or who can proclaim, "I am purified from sin"?
10False weights and differing measures are alike:
both are disgusting to the Eternal.
11Youth reveal their true natures by their actions whether they do what is pure and right or not.
12Ears to listen, eyes to see—
the Eternal designed them both.
13Do not fall in love with sleep, or you will awake a poor person.
Stay awake, get to work, and you will have more than enough food.
14"Bad quality for a bad price," bargains the buyer;
but then he runs off with his prize in tow, bragging, "What a steal!"
15Gold and rubies abound,
but lips that utter knowledge are a rare jewel.
16If someone guarantees a stranger's debt, hold his garment as collateral;
if that stranger is a foreigner, hold the creditor responsible.
17*At first the* bread of lies tastes sweet until guilt reduces it to gravel in the mouth.
18Plans are finalized on the basis of good counsel,
so only go to war when you have wise instructions.
19A gossip will reveal your secrets!
So avoid the company of people who talk openly and foolishly.
20If someone pronounces a curse on his parents,*
the lamp of his life will be snuffed out as complete darkness creeps in.
21An inheritance acquired hastily at first will end up not being blessed after all.
22Do not say, "I will get even for this evil."
Wait for the Eternal; He will defend you.
23He despises dishonesty in business;
false weights and deceptive scales are wrong.
24Every one of our steps is directed by Him;
so how can we attempt to figure out our own way?
25Those who rashly dedicate something to God are trapped;
only afterward do they realize what they've promised.
26A wise king weeds out the wrongdoers,
then drives over them with his threshing wheel of justice.
27The lamp of the Eternal illuminates the human spirit,
searching our most intimate thoughts.
28Loyal love and faithfulness safeguard the king;
his throne is perpetuated through loyal love.
29The best asset of youth is the strength of the body,
but the beauty of age is gray hair.
30Severe punishment scrubs away evil,
and tough blows scour the innermost parts.

21 The king's heart is like a channel of water directed by the Eternal:
He chooses which way He bends it.
2Everyone may think his own way of living is right,
but the Eternal examines our hearts.
3To do what is right and to seek justice—
these please Him more than sacrifice.
4The lamp of the wicked lights his way;
a proud look, an arrogant heart—all sin.
5A well-thought-out plan will work to your advantage,
but hasty actions will cost you dearly.
6The fortune made by a swindler is a fast-burning fog and a recipe for death.
7Wicked people will be swept up in their own violence
because they refuse to seek justice.
8Dishonest people walk along the crooked path they have made,
but the innocent travel the straight course they have laid.

* 20:20 Exodus 21:7; Leviticus 20:9

9It is better to dwell outside on the corner of your roof
than to live inside your house with a badgering wife.
10Wicked people delight in doing bad
things;
their neighbors never see even *a hint
of* compassion.
11A naive person wises up when he sees a mocker punished.
A wise person becomes even wiser
just by being instructed.
12The right-living understands how evildoers operate;
he subverts them and ruins their plans.
13If you ignore the groans of the poor,
one day your own cries for help will go unanswered.
14A gift given in secret soothes anger,
and a present offered privately calms
fierce rage.
15When justice is done, those who are in the right celebrate,
but those who make trouble are terrified.
16People who wander from the way of wise
living
will lie down in the company of corpses.
17Those who live to party, who pursue pleasure, will end up penniless;
those who enjoy lots of wine and rich
food will never have money.
18The wicked become a ransom for those who live right,
and the faithless pay the penalty for their treachery against the upright.
19You would be better off living in the middle of the desert
than with an angry and argumentative wife.
20The wise have a generous supply of fine
food and oil in their homes,
but fools are wasteful, consuming
every last drop.
21Whoever pursues justice and treats others with kindness discovers true life marked by integrity and respect.
22One wise person can rise against a city of mighty men
and cause the citadel they trust to collapse.
23Guard your words, mind what you say,
and you will keep yourself out of trouble.
24The name "mocker" applies to one who is proud and pompous
because he is defiantly arrogant.
25What slackers crave will surely kill them
because they refuse to work.
26All day, every day the greedy want more,
while those who live right give generously.
27The offerings of wrongdoers are despicable to God;
it's even worse when they bring them
with evil motives.
28*The testimony of* a false witness is eventually impeached,
but the person who truly listens will have the last word.
29The wicked wears a defiant face,
but the right-living plans his path.
30No one is wise enough or smart
enough,
and no plan is good enough to stand up to the Eternal.
31No matter how well you arm for battle,
victory is determined by Him.

► We do not like or want to believe it, but there are limits to what humans can accomplish. Whatever wisdom and knowledge we think we possess is nothing compared to God's. Whatever plans we make will come to nothing unless they line up with God's plans and purposes for us.

22 A good reputation is preferable to riches,
and the approval of others
is better than precious
silver or gold.
2Rich and poor have something in common:
both are created by the Eternal.
3Prudent people see trouble coming and
hide,
but the naive walk right into it and take a beating.
4A humble person who fears the Eternal can expect to receive wealth, honor,
and life.
5Thorny branches and traps lie ahead for those who follow perverse paths;
those who want to preserve themselves will steer clear of
them.
6Teach a child how to follow the right
way;
even when he is old, he will stay on
course.

7The rich lord it over the poor,
and the borrower is the slave to the lender.
8Those who sow injustice reap disaster,
and their methods of oppression will fail.
9Generous people are genuinely blessed because they share their food with the poor.
10Expel a mocker, and watch the wrangling go with him;
rivalry and rude remarks will also stop.
11Those who love a pure heart and speak with grace will find that the king is their friend.
12The Eternal keeps a watchful eye on those with knowledge,
but He subverts the words of the faithless.
13A lazy person says, "A lion! Right outside!
I will surely die in the streets!
Yet another good reason to stay in today."
14The alluring words of a seductive woman are a deep hole;
the Eternal is incensed toward those who fall in.
15Foolishness consumes the heart of a child,
but corporal punishment, properly administered, drives it far away.
16If you take advantage of the poor or coddle the rich to get ahead,
you will end up destitute.

The Words of the Wise

17Lend an ear, listen to these words of the wise,
and align your thoughts with my instructions 18Because true pleasure will be yours by learning them, living them, and being ready to repeat them to others.
19In order that you will trust only in the Eternal,
I teach them to you this day—yes, even you!
20*In fact,* didn't I already write down for you
Thirty axioms of good advice and sound knowledge 21To reveal to you what is reliably true
so you can answer those who sent you with these truths you've learned?

22Do not cheat poor people just because they are vulnerable or use shady tactics in court to crush those already suffering; 23For the Eternal is ready to take their case,
and He ruins anyone who is out to ruin them.
24Do not befriend someone given to anger
or hang around with a hothead.
25*Odds are,* you'll learn his ways, become angry as well,
and get caught in a trap.
26Do not be a person to guarantee someone else's loan or put up collateral for the debts of an acquaintance; 27For if you do and you can't repay,
won't you risk having your bed ripped out from under you?
28Do not steal property from your neighbors by moving the boundary markers your ancestors established.
29And as for those who are skilled in their work,
they will be recognized and invited to serve kings
rather than regular folk.

23 When sitting down to eat with a ruler,
take a moment to think about who you are with and what you are doing.
2If you are the type who eats too much too fast,
do whatever is necessary to curb your enthusiasm for food.
3*Also,* do not eye the ruler's delicacies,
for the food may not be what it seems.
4Do not overwork yourself just to become wealthy;
have enough sense to know when to quit.
5As soon as you become fixed on riches, they vanish.
For suddenly they sprout wings
and become like a soaring eagle flying high in the sky.
6Do not sit down and eat the bread of a tight-fisted fellow or desire any of his delicacies, 7For deep down he's keeping track of the cost.
He may say, "Eat up! Drink your fill!"
but he does not mean a word of it.
8You'll be sick and lose what little you did eat,
and you'll waste your breath carrying on a pleasant conversation.
9Do not waste your wisdom on a fool,
for he doesn't care for anything you have to say.

10 Do not shift the property line by moving the boundary markers your ancestors established or try to steal property from orphans
11 Because their Redeemer is strong,
and He will plead their case against
you.
12 Develop a disciplined life.
Be attentive so you can be well informed.
13 Do not withhold discipline from
children,
since corporal punishment will not kill them.
14 In fact, it may be that kind of
punishment
that will save them from an early
grave.
15 My son, if you live wisely,
then my life will be fulfilled.
16 My very soul will jump for joy when you speak what is true and
right.
17 Don't be envious of those wrapped up
in sin,
but always maintain a healthy
respect for the Eternal.
18 Your future with Him will be certain,
and you will not have hoped in vain.
19 Listen, my son, be wise,
and steer your life on the right
course.
20 Do not spend time with heavy wine drinkers
or those who gorge themselves on meat.
21 For both the drunk and the glutton will end up broke,
sleeping life away, and clothed in rags.

22 Pay attention to your father—after all, he gave you life—
and don't ignore your mother in her old age.
23 Invest in truth, sock it away!
Never cash in wisdom, guidance, or
insight.
24 The parents of the right-living will celebrate;
yes, parents of children who make wise choices are happy.
25 So make your parents happy;
delight your mother—after all, she brought you into this world.

26 My son, devote yourself to me fully.
Observe my ways, and follow my
directions:
27 Being drawn to a prostitute is like falling down into a deep well,
and being involved with a wicked woman is like descending into a narrow well.
You may never get out alive.
28 She waits for you, ready to ambush you like a thief
and ready to multiply unfaithfulness
among men.

29 Who is wallowing in anguish? Who is full of sorrow?
Who has conflicts? Who has complaints?
Who has bruises and can't remember where they came from?
Who has bloodshot eyes?
30 You know who: those who stay up late finishing off the wine,
those who can't stop savoring spiced wines.
31 Look away from the enticing beauty of wine, the deep red hue;
ignore how it shimmers in the cup
and glides down your throat.
32 Eventually, when you least expect it, it strikes like a snake;
it stings like viper venom.
33 Your vision will blur, and you'll imagine strange things;
you will say crazy, hurtful things and
regret it later.
34 You will reel and stagger as if caught on a wave of seasickness,
as a sailor who holds on to a mast for
dear life.
35 You will say, "They slapped me, but it didn't hurt.
They beat me, and I didn't feel a thing!
Whenever I wake up from this stupor,
I'll have another drink!"

► The abuse of alcohol is as ancient as the first batch of Egyptian beer or the first sip of Noah's wine (Genesis 9:20-21). Its wide availability today has made for binge drinking on college campuses, underage drinking by young teens, drunk driving on city streets, and alcoholic rants and abuse in the home. The sage offers a tragic description of a young man who goes from drink to drink and cannot get his bearings in life. Too many people lose so much life in an alcoholic stupor.

24 Do not envy evil people or seek their friendship; 2For they are conniving and
violent,
and all they talk about is causing
trouble.

3Wisdom is required to build a house;
understanding is necessary to make it secure.
4Knowledge is needed to furnish all the rooms
and fill them with beautiful treasures.
5A wise man possesses great strength, and an intelligent man knows how to increase it;
6For with wise guidance, you can wage a successful war,
and with a council of many advisors,
you will be victorious!
7Fools can't grab hold of wisdom; it's out of their reach;
they dare not open their mouths
in public for no one would listen
anyway.

8Whoever schemes to carry out evil
will be labeled a troublemaker.
9Such foolish plans are sinful,
and the mocker is deplored by all.

10If you fall apart during a crisis,
then you weren't very strong to begin with.
11Rescue everyone you can of those being taken away and killed,
and hold on to those innocent souls
staggering toward their own
slaughter.
12If you excuse yourself, saying, "Look, we didn't know anything about this," doesn't God, who knows what you are really thinking, understand your motives?
Isn't your Protector aware of why you aren't protecting the innocent?
Will He not repay you in kind?

► Our world is all too familiar with violence and its victims. It's easy to look the other way, pretend we didn't see it, hope it goes away, or live in denial. Perhaps we are numbed to real violence because we are so entertained by the onslaught of it in modern media. But the violence in our homes, across our cities, and throughout the world is very real. Every day someone is beaten, captured, raped, enslaved, shot, robbed, stabbed, or run over. Wisdom calls us to step into those places and help those marching off to their deaths. God knows what we know. He knows what is in our hearts.

13My son, eat honey—it's good for you;
the honey that drips from the comb
is sweet in your mouth.
14Know, too, that wisdom is good for your
soul:
if you find it, your reward will be a bright future
and an enduring hope!

15Do not lurk outside the home of the just like a common criminal;
do not tear up the place where he rests.
16For a good man may fall seven times and get back up again,
but the wicked will stumble around
and fall into misfortune.

17Do not celebrate when your enemies fall,
and do not rejoice when they trip up; 18Or else the Eternal will know and be upset with you,
and He will release them from His
anger.

19Do not worry when evildoers go unpunished
or be jealous when the wicked seem
to prosper.
20Evil people will have no future;
the life of the wicked will be snuffed out like a candle.

21My son, fear both the Eternal and His anointed ruler.
It is not wise to associate with those rebelling against them 22Because disaster can arise from either of them without warning,
and who knows what destruction
comes down from both of them?

23The wise also say,
It is not good for a judge to be partial.
24When a judge says to the guilty, "You are
innocent,"
he will be cursed by all people; he will be hated by nations.

25 But those who reprimand evildoers will be celebrated,
and good fortune will come their way.
26 A straight answer is as precious
as a kiss on the lips.

27 Complete your work outside,
and get your fields ready for next season;
after that's done, build your house.

28 Do not testify against your neighbor
without a reason;
do not give misleading testimony.
29 Do not say, "I'll do to him what he did
to me!
I'll repay him for what he did!"

30 Once I passed by the property of a slacker,
by the vineyard of a foolish man.
31 You should have seen it! The entire field was overgrown with thorns.
Every inch was covered with weeds.
Even the stone wall was crumbling
down.
32 I took a moment to take it all in.
The scene taught me:
33 "A little sleep, a little rest,
a few more minutes, a nice little nap."
34 But soon poverty will be on top of you like a robber,
need will strike you down like a well-armed warrior.

25 These words, too, are proverbs of King Solomon, words which Hezekiah, king of Judah, later told his scribes to record for posterity:

2 God's glory is shown when He conceals
things;
a king's glory is shown in his ability to explore the facts of the matter.
3 As the heights of heaven and the depths of earth are beyond comprehension,
so are the hearts of kings.

4 Take away the impurities from the silver, and a good smith can create something of value;
5 Take away the wicked from among the king's advisors,
and his reign will be established with
integrity.

6 Do not claim to be important in the presence of the king or vie for a position within the company of great men.

7 Truly, it is far sweeter to have someone of influence say to you, "Come up here and join us,"
than to be ordered to some lower rank in front of a noble.
Just because you think you have seen something
8 doesn't mean you should be quick to go to court,
For what will you do when your neighbor disproves the charge and embarrasses you?
9 Instead, discuss the matter directly with your neighbor,
but in doing so, remember never to reveal another person's secrets;
10 For if you do, someone who hears you could disgrace you,
and a bad reputation will cling to you ever afterward.

11 A well-spoken word at just the right moment is like golden apples in settings of silver.

12 To an attentive ear, constructive criticism from a truly wise person is like an earring or jewelry made of fine gold.

13 Like a cooling snow that breaks the heat of a harvest day, so is the messenger who is faithful to those who sent him,
for he refreshes the soul of his masters.

14 Like clouds and wind that bring no rain,
so is one who boasts of gifts promised but never delivered.

15 Patience can soften up a leader,
and a tender tongue can break even bone.

16 When you find honey, remember to eat
only what you need,
because if you eat in excess, you may be sick and lose all of it.
17 Don't visit your neighbor too often,
or he will become tired of you and grow to hate you.

18 Like a maul and a sword and a sharp
arrow all in one,
so is anyone who bears false witness against a neighbor.

19 Like a tooth that is rotten or a foot that
is unsteady,
so is relying on a person who can't be trusted in times of trouble.

20Like a man who undresses in winter
or a woman who pours vinegar on a wound,*
So is anyone who tries to sing happy songs
to a sorrowful heart.

21If your enemy is hungry, give him something to eat;
if he is thirsty, give him something to drink, 22For your kind treatment will be like heaping hot coals on his head,*
it may cause a change in heart,
and the Eternal will repay you.

► Acts of kindness, especially when we know they are undeserved, awaken a slumbering conscience, stimulate sorrow, and perhaps even effect a change. They are the best ways to turn an enemy into a friend.

23*As surely as* a north wind drives the rain before it,
a backbiting tongue brings angry looks.

24It is better to dwell outside on the corner of your roof than to live inside your house with a badgering wife.

25Like cool water to a weary soul,
so is good news from a distant country.

26Like a muddy spring or a polluted fountain,
so is a righteous person who gives in to the wicked.

27Eating too much honey is not good for you,
nor is it good to seek one honor after another.

28Like a conquered city with no walls,
so is a man who has no self-control.

26

Like snow in the summer and rain in the time of harvest,
so honor is never fitting for a fool.

2Like a bird that flits and flutters or a swallow in mid-flight,
so a curse that lacks cause will never come to light.
3A whip is for the horse, a bridle is for the donkey,
and a rod is for the fool's back.

4Never answer a fool on his own foolish terms,
or you will become like him;
5*Rather,* answer a fool on his own foolish terms,
or he will become wise in his own eyes.

6Like someone who cuts off his feet or drinks to his ruin,
so is the one who uses a fool to pass on his message.
7As lame legs are useless, dangling on the crippled,
so is a proverb in the mouth of a fool.
8Like one who ties a stone in his slingshot,
so is one who honors a fool.
9Like a thorn in the hand of a drunkard,
so is a proverb in the mouth of a fool.
10Like an archer who shoots at random and injures everyone, so is a person who hires a fool or someone off the street.*
11Like a dog who goes back to his own vomit,*
so is a fool who always returns to his foolishness.

12Have you seen a person who is wise in his own sight?
Know that there is more hope for a fool than for him.

13A lazy person says, "There's a lion in the road!
A lion in the streets!
Another good reason to stay in today."
14As a door swings on its hinges and goes nowhere,
so a slacker turns over in his bed.
15Some people are so lazy that they reach for food on the plate
but lack the will to bring it up to their mouths.
16The slacker sees himself as wiser by far than seven men who can converse intelligently.

* 25:20 Hebrew text is uncertain, literally "soda"; Greek, "wound." * 25:22 Romans 12:20 * 26:10 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 26:11 2 Peter 2:22

17 Like a man who seizes a wild dog by the ears, so is anyone who walks by and meddles in someone else's argument.
18 Like a madman who hurls flaming spears and shoots deadly arrows,
19 So is anyone who deceives a neighbor and then says, "But I was only joking with you."

20 When there is no wood, the fire goes out;
when there is no one to spread gossip, arguing stops.
21 Like charcoal to smoldering embers and dry wood to a fire,
so a hot-tempered man kindles strife.
22 Whispered gossip is like a delicious first course:
it is devoured with pleasure and then penetrates deep within you.

23 Like a shiny glaze* coating a rough clay pot,
so are burning lips that conceal an evil heart.
24 One who hates may camouflage it beneath pleasant words,
but deep inside him, treachery still rages;
25 Don't believe him when he speaks kindly because his heart is completely ruled by evil.*
26 And though he covers his hatred with cleverness,
his wicked ways will be publicly exposed.

27 The one who digs a trap for another will fall into it, and the one who starts rolling a stone will have it roll back over him.
28 Liars take no pity on those they crush with their lies,
and flattery spoils everyone it touches.

27 Don't brag about what may happen tomorrow
because you have no idea what it will bring.
2 Let someone else praise you;
compliments are always sweeter from a stranger's lips than from your own.

3 Heavy is rock and weighty is sand,
but more burdensome than either is the anger of a fool.

4 Wrath is fierce and anger is a tidal wave of fury,
but who of us can stand up against jealousy?

5 Open rebuke is better than hidden love.
6 Wounds inflicted by the correction of a friend prove he is faithful;
the abundant kisses of an enemy show his lies.

7 The person who is full has no interest in honey;
but to the starving, bitterness itself is sweet.
8 Like a bird that strays far from its nest,
so is a person who forsakes his own home.

9 The heart is delighted by the fragrance of oil and sweet perfumes, and in just the same way, the soul is sweetened by the wise counsel of a friend.
10 Do not neglect your friend or your parent's friend for that matter.
When hard times come, you don't have to travel far to get help from family;
A neighbor who is near is better than a brother who is far away.

11 Study to be wise, my son, and make my heart glad,
for then your life will be my answer to anyone who hurls insults.
12 The astute see evil coming and take shelter,
but the stupid plow right on and then, of course, have to pay the price.
13 If someone guarantees a stranger's debt, hold his garment as collateral;
if that guarantee is for the debt of a foreigner, make sure you get a deposit.
14 Anyone who blesses his neighbor with a loud voice
early in the morning,
will find his blessing regarded as a curse.

15 A constant dripping on a rainy day
and a wife's bickering are very much alike:
16 Anyone who tries to control her might as well try to control the wind or pick up oil in his right hand.

* 26:23 Literally, "silver dross" * 26:25 Literally, "seven detestable evils"

17 In the same way that iron sharpens iron,
a person sharpens the character of his friend.

18 Whoever takes care of a fig tree will eat of its fruit,
and whoever cares for his master will be honored.

19 Just as water reflects a person's true face,
so the human heart reflects a person's true character.
20 Neither the grave nor destruction is ever satisfied;
the desires of people are never totally fulfilled.

21 The crucible is used for refining silver,
the furnace for gold,
but praise is what tests a person's mettle.
22 Though you grind a fool like grain in a mortar with a pestle,
still his foolishness will not be separated from him.

23 Pay careful attention to your flocks,
and see to the welfare of your herds 24 Because riches do not last forever,
nor does one dynasty retain power through all generations.
25 When the hay is harvested and the autumn grasses begin to grow and the herbs of the mountains are gathered, 26 Then the lambs will provide wool for your clothing,
young goats can be sold to buy a new field, 27 And there will be enough milk from your goats
to sustain you, your family, and your serving girls.

28 The wicked run away even when no one is chasing them;
the right-living, however, stand their ground as boldly as lions.
2 Where there is rebellion in a land,
there are many petty and contending rulers;
But where there is a wise and intelligent leader,
peace and order endure.

3 A poor person who oppresses others who are poor is like a driving rain that destroys the crops and leaves no food.

4 Those who turn their backs on God's teaching applaud the wicked, while those who observe His instruction oppose them at every turn.

5 Evil people are not able to understand justice,
but those who pursue the Eternal understand it completely.

6 It is better to be a pauper walking in integrity than a dishonest man, even if he is rich.

7 Whoever follows God's teaching is a wise child,
but the one who spends time with gluttons and drunks disgraces his parents.

8 Anyone who increases his wealth by charging a high rate of interest is only collecting it for another who will deal more liberally with the poor.

9 The one who turns his ear from hearing God's instruction will find that even his prayers are detestable to God.

10 Whoever tries to deceive a good person into taking the path of evil will fall into the pit he himself made,
but the truly honest shall be the heirs of all that is good.

11 A rich man may be wise in his own sight,
but a perceptive pauper will see right through him.

12 There is much glory when just men celebrate;
but when the wicked gain power, people take cover.

13 Whoever tries to hide his sins will not succeed,
but the one who confesses his sins and leaves them behind will find mercy.
14 Happy is the one who always fears the Lord,
but the person who hardens his heart to God falls into misfortune.

15 Like a roaring lion or a charging bear,
so is a wicked man ruling over an impoverished people.

16 A leader who lacks intelligence cruelly
oppresses the people,
but one who hates corruption will prosper and live a long life.

17 A man guilty of murder is a fugitive,
fleeing to the nearest hole in the ground
but not escaping death's cold pit.
Don't do anything to save him.

18 Whoever walks in honesty will be safe, but whoever travels the crooked path
will suddenly fall.
19 Whoever cultivates his land will have plenty of food in the harvest,
but whoever cultivates worthless ventures will have poverty in abundance.

20 A reliable person will not escape blessings,
but one who wants to get rich quick
will not escape trouble.

21 Showing favoritism is not good;
some will desert the truth for a measly crust of bread.

22 A greedy person is in a hurry to get rich, but he is ignorant of the loss that is about to overtake him.

23 A person who offers constructive criticism will, in the end, be appreciated more than a person who engages in empty
flattery.

24 One who robs his father or his mother and says, "There's nothing wrong with that! I had it coming!"
walks in the company of murderers.

25 When the greedy want more, they stir up
trouble;
but when a person trusts in the Eternal, he's sure to prosper.
26 Anyone who puts confidence only in himself is a fool,
but the person who follows wisdom
will be kept safe.

27 Whoever gives to the poor will have
what he needs,
but the one who shuts his eyes to their plight will face curse after curse.

28 When the wicked have the upper hand,
people go into hiding;
but when they perish, the good folk
will begin to increase.

29 The one who remains defiant
after repeated reprimands
will suddenly be shattered, and there will be no
remedy for him.
2 When just leaders are in power, the citizens celebrate;
but when evil people gain control,
their joys become moans.

3 An adult who loves wisdom and follows
its ways gives his parents joy,
but one who hangs out with women
of the street will lose everything.

4 A king brings stability to a land with his
justice,
but one who makes unjust demands
brings it to ruin.
5 The one who flatters his friend is laying a trap that will catch his friend's feet.
6 An evil person is sure to be trapped by
his sin,
but a man who lives right is free to sing and be glad.
7 The just get involved with the poor and know their issues,
but the wicked cannot comprehend
such concerns.
8 Mockers stir up a city and inflame
passions,
but the wise know how to put out the fire and ease tensions.

9 When the wise go to court against a fool,
there will be ranting and raving but no resolution.

10 Bloodthirsty men despise those who are honest,
but the just find a way to help them.

11 A fool does not think before he unleashes
his temper,
but a wise man holds back and
remains quiet.

12 When it is known that a ruler listens to the words of liars,
soon he will have only scoundrels for advisors.
13 A poor man and his oppressor have this
in common:
the Eternal created them and
provides both with light and life.
14 The king who is fair in his treatment of
the poor
will see his dynasty continue forever.

15Corporal punishment and correction produce wisdom,
but a child left to follow his own willful way shames his mother.
16When evil people are free to flourish, sin
is on the rise,
but the just will surely see their
destruction.
17If you discipline your children, they will make your life easier
and refresh your soul.

18Where there is no vision from God, the people run wild,
but those who adhere to God's instruction know genuine happiness.
19Words are not enough to correct a
servant;
even if he understands, he will not respond.
20Have you ever met someone who is overly eager to talk?
There is more hope for a fool than
for him.
21If you indulge your servant from early
in life,
in the end it won't go well *for either
of you.*

22A hot-head provokes quarrels,
and one mastered by anger commits
all kinds of sins.
23A person's pride brings him down,
but one of humble spirit has a firm
hold on honor and respect.
24Anyone who teams up with a thief must despise his own life,
for he is bound by an oath to tell the truth and yet refuses.*
25If you fear other people, you are walking into a dangerous trap;
but if you trust in the Eternal, you will be safe.
26Many people vie for special treatment
from a ruler,
yet genuine justice proceeds from the
Eternal.
27The right-living are disgusted by the actions of the unjust;
likewise, the wicked are disgusted by the ways of the righteous.

30 These are the words of Agur, son of Jakeh. An oracle of wisdom.
He says, "I am weary, God.
I am weary and spent, O God."*
2Certainly I am a stupid man, as dumb
as an ox.
I don't understand the way that most people do.
3I have never learned wisdom,
and I have no knowledge at all of the Holy One.
4Who has ascended into the heavens and then come back down?
Who has collected the winds in the palm of His hand?
Who has wrapped up the vast oceans in His coat?
Who has plotted the ends of the earth and then fashioned them?
What is His name?
What is His son's name?
Do you know? Indeed, you do.

► The answer to all these questions, of course, is "no one but God." Agur, like Job, understands the limits of human strength and knowledge. Unlike many, he freely confesses his need and takes refuge in the one True God.

5Every word of God will be put to the test and proven true;
He is a defense for those who trust
in Him.
6*Take care.* Add nothing to what He has
said;
for if you do, He will correct you and expose you as a liar.

7Two things I ask, O God.
Sometime before I die, grant these humble requests:
8Eliminate any hint of worthless and deceitful words from my lips.
Do not make me poor or rich,
but give me each day what I need;
9For if I have too much, I might forget You are the One who provides,
saying, "Who is the Eternal One?"
Or if I do not have enough, I might become hungry and turn to stealing and thus dishonor the good name of my God.

► Wealth and poverty have something in common. Both situations can lead us to forget God. If we are rich, then

* 29:24 Leviticus 5:1-5 * 30:1 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

it is easy to think it was our skill, our strength, and our hard work that got us there. We forget it was God who gave us the time and talent to succeed. If we are poor, then it is easy to steal and then make excuses for what we did. We forget that God said, "You are not to take what is not yours" (Exodus 20:15). When God's people violate His teaching, God is the one who gets a black eye.

10 Never run down a servant to his master
because the slave might curse you and you would suffer as a result.

11 There is a kind of person who curses his father and pronounces no blessing upon his mother; 12 A kind of person who is without fault in his own estimation
but has not been scrubbed clean of his own sordidness;
13 A kind whose look is too haughty,
whose eyebrows arch as he looks down on others;
14 A kind whose very teeth cut like swords
and whose jaws sever like knives,
All the better to consume the poor of the earth
and the oppressed among men.

15 The leech has twin suckers;
"More blood! More blood," they demand.
Three other things are just as insatiable,
no, make it four that never say, "Enough":
16 The grave, the childless woman who cannot bear,
the parched earth that cries for rain,
and the fire, which never says, "Enough!"

17 One who derides his father and fails to honor his mother in old age
Will die in contempt: his eyes will be pecked out by the ravens of the valley and eaten by the young vultures when his unburied body lies on the trash heap.

18 There are three mysteries I find absolutely amazing,
no, make it four I cannot comprehend:
19 The way an eagle flies through the sky,
the way a snake moves over a rock,
The way a boat glides through the middle of the sea,
and the way a man becomes one with his virgin wife.

20 An adulterous woman is so cavalier by nature.
When she's done, it is as if she washed after eating and then says, "I have done nothing wrong."

21 Three situations disturb the earth,
no, make it four that it cannot endure:
22 When a slave is elevated to king,
when a fool is full of fine food, 23 When a hated woman finally marries,
and when a serving girl takes possession of her mistress's wealth.

24 There are four creatures on earth that are small,
but they are very wise and we can learn from them:
25 While ants are hardly a strong species,
they work constantly to store up food during the summer;
26 While badgers are animals without many defenses,
they are wise enough to make their homes in the rocky cliffs;
27 While locusts live without a ruler,
they all know how to move in formation;
28 While a lizard is easy enough to catch in your hand,
it is shrewd enough to enter the palaces of kings.

29 There are three creatures with majesty in their stride,
no, make it four that move with grace:
30 The lion, which is the strongest of the animals,
does not back down from any other creature;
31 The strutting rooster, the male goat,
and a king as he goes out with his army.*

* 30:31 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

32If you have been foolish enough to insinuate yourself in some high
position
or if you have concocted some sort of evil plan,
clamp your hand tightly over your
mouth;
33For pressing down milk makes butter,
pressing your nose makes it bleed,
and pressing anger makes trouble.

31 These are the words of King Lemuel. An oracle of wisdom handed down to him by his mother:

Mother: 2What shall I say to you,
my son? What wisdom can
I impart, child of my womb?
What insight can I share, son of my vows?
3Do not waste your strength on women
or invest yourself in women who would destroy even kings.
4Take care, my son, O Lemuel.
Kings should not drink too much
wine
or rulers should not crave strong
drink;
5For if they do, they will become drunk and forget the decree they just
made
and alter the course of justice for all the poor and afflicted.
6Rather, give liquor to one who is dying,
and offer wine to those struggling with life's harsh realities.
7Let such a one drink and forget what he is missing;
then perhaps he won't remember
his sorrows anymore.
8Speak out on behalf of those who have no voice,
and defend all those who have been passed over.
9Open your mouth, judge fairly,
and stand up for the rights of the afflicted and the poor.

► King Lemuel's mother warns him of the dangers of women and wine. In different ways, both have brought down great leaders. Both are certainly distractions to a king's true work—defending the poor.

10Who can find a truly excellent woman?
One who is superior in all that she is and all that she does?
Her worth far exceeds that of rubies and expensive jewelry.
11*She inspires trust, and* her husband's heart is safe with her,
and because of her, he has every good thing.
12Every day of her life she does what is best for him,
never anything harmful or hurtful.
13Delight attends her work and guides her fingers
as she selects the finest wool and flax
for spinning.
14She moves through the market like merchant ships
that dock here and there in distant ports,
finally arriving home with food she's carried from afar.
15She rises from bed early, in the still of
night,
carefully preparing food for her family
and providing a portion to her
servants.
16*She has a plan.* She considers some land
and buys it;
then with her earnings, she plants a
vineyard.
17She wraps herself in strength, carries
herself with confidence, and works hard, strengthening her arms for the task at hand.
18She tastes success and knows it is
good,
and under lamplight she works deep
into the night.
19Her hands skillfully place the unspun flax
and wool on the distaff,
and her fingers twist the spindle until thread forms.
20She reaches out to the poor
and extends mercy to those in need.
21She is not worried about the cold or snow for her family,
for she has clothed them all in warm,
crimson coats.
22She makes her own bed linens and clothes herself in purple and fine cloth.
23Everyone recognizes her husband in the public square,
and no one fails to respect him as he takes his place of leadership in the community.
24She makes linen garments and sells
them in the market,

and she supplies belts for tradesmen
to carry across the sea.
25 Clothed in strength and dignity, with nothing to fear,
she smiles when she thinks about the future.
26 She conducts her conversations with
wisdom,
and the teaching of kindness is ever
her concern.
27 She directs the activities of her household,
and never does she indulge in laziness.
28 Her children rise up and bless her.
Her husband, too, joins in the praise,
saying:
29 "There are some—indeed many—women
who do well in every way,
but of all of them only you are truly excellent."
30 Charm can be deceptive and physical beauty will not last,
but a woman who reveres the Eternal should be praised above
all others.
31 Celebrate all she has achieved.
Let all her accomplishments publicly praise her.*

► Marrying the right person is one of the most important decisions most people ever make, so they must choose wisely and carefully. The Book of Proverbs ends with a tribute to a wise choice in a wife. She is strong, independent, capable, and cares for her husband, her family, and the poor. She runs the whole household. In ancient Israel, this would mean a large extended family—including servants with all of their activities—and the family business. Her husband would sing her praises publicly before the community leaders. Those who know her would admire her for her skills, her industry, and her character.

ECCLESIASTES

Wise reflections on life

By the wise teacher of Israel

01 02 03 04 05 06

One of the most enigmatic books of the Old Testament, Ecclesiastes is the teacher's treatise on the pleasures and futility of life. Wisdom literature such as this would have been passed down from one generation to the next, perhaps in an assembly of young men from teacher to student or in a home from father to son. The English title, Ecclesiastes, comes from the Greek translation of its Hebrew name, Qoheleth, meaning "one who gathers." Not much is known about this "gatherer" of students, the teacher. Some identify him with Solomon because of the king's traditional association with wisdom and because of 1:1 and 1:12–2:11, where the teacher claims to be a son of David, king in Jerusalem, and recalls the activities of a king. But the author is anonymous, and the book's context and language imply a much later origin.

It is impossible to determine the exact date when Ecclesiastes was written. Based on the use of Persian loan words and Aramaic phrases within this Hebrew text, it is likely that the writer was living in or around Jerusalem any time from the sixth to fourth centuries B.C.

The teacher provides some meditation on life and on the lives of those who have gone before him. The backdrop to this book is an implied story—the story of empire and what it means to rule and be ruled by powerful kings. This profound consideration of life helps the reader to learn from previous influential figures, from their beneficial and disastrous decisions and pursuits.

One of the most important words used to describe life in Ecclesiastes is hebel. It is used 38 times. While this Hebrew word is notoriously difficult to translate, its general meaning is "breath" or "vapor." In Ecclesiastes, it implies that life is fleeting, like a breath, like a morning mist; it suggests that everything that happens lacks permanence and is ultimately provisional. After carefully examining nearly every aspect of life, the teacher concludes that nothing lasts; nothing and no one can escape death, the great equalizer of all. Nevertheless, human beings are wired differently from other creatures, for God has placed eternity in our minds (3:11). So the best a person can do in this life is to remember the Creator, hold Him in high regard, and keep His commandments.

1 These are the words of the teacher,* the son of David, king in Jerusalem.

Teacher: 2Life is fleeting, like a passing mist.
It is like trying to catch hold of a breath;
All vanishes like a vapor; everything is a great vanity.
3What good does it do anyone to work so hard again and again,
sun up to sundown? All his labor to gain but a little?
4One generation comes, another goes;
but the earth continues to remain.
5The sun rises and the sun sets, laboring to come up quickly to its place again and again.
6The wind in its travels blows toward the south,
then swings back around to the north.
Back and forth,
returning in its circuit again and again.
7All rivers flow to the sea,
but the sea is never full.
To the place where the rivers flow,
there the water returns to flow once again.
8Words, words, words! So many words!
They are wearisome things;
and yet people cannot refrain from speaking.
No eye has ever surveyed the world and said, "I have seen enough";
no ear has ever listened to creation and said, "I have heard enough." 9What has been, that will be;
what has been done, that will be done.
Nothing is new under the sun;
the future only repeats the past.
10One person may say of some idea,
"Pay attention to this; it's original!"
But that same idea has already been expressed;
it's been with us through the ages.
11We do not remember those people and events of long ago,
as future generations will not remember what is yet to come.

12I, the teacher, was king over Israel in Jerusalem. 13I decided to seek out and study the wisdom of the ages, of all that had been done under the heavens. I soon discovered the harsh realities of the work God has given us that keeps us so busy. 14I have witnessed all that is done under the sun, and indeed, all is fleeting, like trying to embrace the wind. 15*There is an old saying:*

Something crooked cannot be made straight,
and something missing cannot be counted.

16I mused over it all and thought to myself, "I have done great things, and I have gained more wisdom than anyone who reigned over Jerusalem before me. I have contemplated great wisdom and knowledge." 17I decided to study wisdom and instead acquainted myself with madness and folly. It, too, seemed like trying to pursue the wind, 18for as my wisdom increased, so did my vexation. As my knowledge grew, so did my pain.

2 Teacher: I said to myself, "Let me dabble and test you in pleasure and see if there is any good in that." But look, that, too, was fleeting. 2Of laughter I said, "Foolishness." Of pleasure, "And in the end what is accomplished?" 3So I thought about drinking wine, for it soothes the flesh. But all the while my mind was filled with thoughts of wisdom—about how to rein in foolishness—until I might understand the best way for us to live out our brief lives and number of days under heaven. 4*Next,* I began some enormous projects, building my own houses and planting my own vineyards. 5I designed impressive gardens and parks and planted them with all kinds of fruit trees. 6I installed pools of water to irrigate the forests of young saplings. 7I acquired male and female servants; I even had servants born into my household. I had herds of cattle, flocks of sheep and goats—more than anyone who had ever lived in Jerusalem before me. 8I amassed a fortune in silver and gold, and I stockpiled the treasures of kings and provinces. I hired men and women to sing and entertain me, and I pampered myself with what every man desires—many women. 9I surrounded myself with all this and became great, far greater than anyone who had ever lived in Jerusalem before me. And still, my wisdom never left my side. 10*Throughout this experiment,* I let myself have anything my eyes desired, and I did not withhold from my mind any pleasure. What was the conclusion? My mind found joy in all the work I did—my work was its own reward! 11As I continued musing over all I had accomplished and the hard work it took, I concluded that all this, too, was fleeting, like trying to embrace the wind. Is there any real gain by all our hard work under the sun?

* 1:1 Hebrew, Qoheleth, one who gathers

12I turned my attention to the ways of wisdom and folly and madness. I asked, "What is left for those who come after the king to do? They can only repeat what he has already done."* 13I realized that wisdom is better than folly, just as light is better than darkness. 14*As the old saying goes:*

The wise have eyes in their heads,
but fools stumble in the darkness.

Yet I knew deep down that the same fate comes to both of them. 15I said to myself, "Why do I try to be wise when my fate is the same as that of the fool? This pursuit is fleeting too." 16Neither the wise nor the fool will be remembered for very long once they are gone. The wise dies, and the fool alike. All are forgotten in the future. 17So I began to hate life itself because all that is done under the sun is so harsh and difficult. Life—everything about it—is fleeting; it's like trying to pursue the wind.

18So I began to hate all the hard work I had done under the sun because I would eventually have to leave it all to the one who comes after me. 19And who knows whether my heir will be wise or foolish? Still he will inherit all the things for which I worked so hard here under the sun, the things for which I became wise. This, too, is fleeting like trying to catch hold of a breath. 20So I turned these thoughts over in my mind and despaired over how hard I worked under the sun. 21Although someone with wisdom, knowledge, and skill works hard, when he departs this life, he will leave all he has accomplished to another who has done nothing to deserve work's reward. This, too, is fleeting, and it causes great misery. 22What exactly do people get out of all their work and all the stresses they put themselves through here under the sun? 23For every day is filled with pain and every job has its own problems, and there are nights when the mind doesn't stop and rest. And once again, this is fleeting. 24There is nothing better than for people to eat and drink and to see the good in their hard work. These beautiful gifts, I realized, too, come from God's hand. 25For who can eat and drink and enjoy the good things if not me? 26To those who seek to please God, He gives wisdom and knowledge and joyfulness; but to those who are wicked, God keeps them busy harvesting and storing up for those in whom He delights. But even this is fleeting; it's like trying to embrace the wind.

3 Teacher: For everything that happens in life—there is a season, a right time for everything under heaven:

2A time to be born, a time to die;
a time to plant, a time to collect the harvest;
3A time to kill, a time to heal;
a time to tear down, a time to build up;
4A time to cry, a time to laugh;
a time to mourn, a time to dance;
5A time to scatter stones, a time to pile them up;
a time for a warm embrace, a time for keeping your distance;
6A time to search, a time to give up as lost;
a time to keep, a time to throw out;
7A time to tear apart, a time to bind together;
a time to be quiet, a time to speak up;
8A time to love, a time to hate;
a time to go to war, a time to make peace.

9What good comes to anyone who works so hard, all to gain a few possessions? 10I have seen the kinds of tasks God has given each of us to do to keep one busy, 11*and I know* God has made everything beautiful for its time. God has also placed in our minds a sense of eternity; we look back on the past and ponder over the future, yet we cannot understand the doings of God. 12I know there is nothing better for us than to be joyful and to do good throughout our lives; 13to eat and drink and see the good in all of our hard work is a gift from God. 14I know everything God does endures

* 2:12 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

The creation story in Genesis 2 recognizes the common origin of humanity and the animals. There God forms the first human from the "dirt out of the ground" and breathes into him the breath of life, and the man known as Adam becomes a living being. But within a few short verses, God declares that it is "not good" for Adam to be alone and seeks a "perfectly suited partner" for the human. So God forms from the "ground" every animal of the field and every bird of the air, and He brings them to Adam to see if any of them are a "right and proper partner." Finally, when no suitable companion has been found, God fashions another creature from Adam's own human flesh. When Adam sees her, he knows he has met a perfect partner. Clearly, both Genesis and Ecclesiastes stress how much humanity shares in common with the animals. While we may be different—as explained in the Genesis story—we are all creatures, made of the same stuff, breathing the same air. And perhaps most to the point, we share a common destiny: death.

for all time. Nothing can be added to it; nothing can be taken away from it. We humans can only stand in awe of all God has done. 15What has been and what is to be—already is. And God holds accountable all the pursuits of humanity.*

► The contrast between God and humanity could not be starker. The teacher drives this point home by reminding his reader that human lives and earthly accomplishments are fleeting. Nothing tangible is permanent. No work lasts. It all slips away and vanishes into thin air. Compare that to God. Everything God does is substantial. Everything God accomplishes lasts forever. Every word God speaks makes a difference. And so, God places within every person a sense of eternity to know yet not understand Him. This world with all its goodness and beauty is not as good as it gets. There is more, so much more, and we are made for that reality too. But not now, not yet.

Teacher: 16Again, I looked at everything that goes on under the sun and realized that in place of justice, wickedness prevails. In place of righteousness, wrongdoing succeeds. 17I said to myself, "God will judge the righteous and the wicked, for there is a right time for every pursuit and for every action."* 18I thought about how people act: "God often puts them to the test to show them how much they are like the animals." 19The fate of humans and the fate of animals is the same. As one dies, so does the other, for we have the same breath within us. In the end, we have no advantage over the animals. For as I have said, it's all fleeting. 20Humans and animals alike go to one place; all are formed from dust, and all return to the dust once more. 21Who really knows whether the spirits of human beings go up and the spirits of animals go down into the earth? 22So I realized there is nothing better for us than to find joy in the work we do, for work is its own reward. For who will bring us back to see what will be after we are gone?

4 Teacher: Then I looked again and saw all the oppression that happens under the sun. I saw the tears of the oppressed, and no one offered to help and comfort them. The oppressors exercise all the power, while the powerless have no one to help and comfort them. 2It struck me that the dead are actually better off than the living who must go on living; 3and, even better, are those who were never born in the first place. At least they have never had to witness all of the injustices that take place under the sun.

► The imbalance of power creates many victims. Worldly power, sourced in corrupt systems "under the sun,"

* 3:15 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 3:17 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

is on the side of the oppressor. Few are in the ditches with the broken and poor.

Teacher: 4Then I saw yet another thing:
envy fuels achievement. All the work and skills people develop come from their desire to be better than their neighbors. Even this is fleeting, like trying to embrace the wind.

5*As the saying goes*:

The fool folds his hands to rest
and lets his flesh waste away.
6And it is better to have one handful of peace than to have two hands full of hard work and a desire to catch the wind.

7Again I observed another example of how fleeting life is under the sun: 8a person who is all alone—with no child, no sibling—yet he works hard his entire life. Still he is never satisfied with the wealth he gains. Does he stop to ask, "Why am I working so hard?" or "Why am I depriving myself of life's simple pleasures?" This, too, is fleeting, like trying to catch hold of a breath; it's a miserable situation.

9Two are better than one because a good return comes when two work together. 10If one of them falls, the other can help him up. But who will help the pitiful person who falls down alone? 11In the same way, if two lie down together, they can keep each other warm. But how will the one who sleeps alone stay warm against the night? 12And if one person is vulnerable to attack, two can drive the attacker away. As the saying goes, "A rope made of three strands is not quickly broken."

13A poor, wise youth is better off than an old, foolish king who no longer accepts advice. 14*For example,* once a young man marched out of prison to become king; it had not mattered how poor he once had been in his kingdom. 15I saw all those who live out their lives under the sun flock to the side of a second youth who took the king's place. 16There seemed to be no limit to all the people who were under his authority. Yet those who will come later will not be happy with him and will refuse to follow him. Even this, you see, is fleeting—power and influence do not last—like trying to pursue the wind.*

► How often people have arisen from relative obscurity to lead great movements in society! The Bible itself is full of such stories: Joseph goes from slave to prisoner to vizier of Egypt; David goes from shepherd to king of Israel; Esther goes from foreign exile to queen of Persia; Peter goes from fisherman to church founder. Their stories inspire others, but later generations remember only anecdotes and forget the passion and character that move leaders from obscurity to leadership in the first place. Life is fleeting. Victories do not last. In this imperfect interim world, greatness is only provisional.

5 Teacher: Watch your step when you enter the house of God. Be ready to listen quietly rather than rushing in to offer up a sacrifice to foolish people, for they have no idea that what they do is evil.

God knows what is on the inside. Words and actions are not always necessary.

2Do not be too hasty to speak your mind before God or too quick to make promises you won't keep, for God is in heaven and you are on earth. Therefore, watch your tongue; let your words be few. 3For just as busyness breeds restless dreams, so wordiness reveals the voice of a fool.

4If you make a promise to God, do not be slow to keep it; for He takes no pleasure in fools. So do what you have promised. 5*In fact,* it would be better not to make a vow in the first place than to make it and not fulfill it. 6Do not let your mouth lead you to sin, and do not claim before the temple messenger that your vow was a mistake. Why should God be angry at the sound of your voice and destroy everything you've worked hard to achieve? 7Daydreaming and excessive talking are pointless and fleeting things to do, like trying to catch hold of a breath. What good comes from them? It is better to quietly reverence God.

8If you see the poor oppressed, justice denied, and righteousness rejected in a particular place, then do not be surprised at this; for those in power are watched over by those higher up, and they in turn by some even higher. 9*Still,* it is better for the land in every way to have a king who cultivates the fields.*

Corruption often starts at the top and works its way down.

10*As the saying goes:*

Those who love money will never be satisfied with money,
and those who love riches will never be happy with what they have.

This, too, is fleeting. 11The more goods there are, the more people there are to consume them. How does any of this really benefit the owners except they can gaze proudly on their possessions? 12Sweet sleep comes to those who work hard, regardless of how much or how little they've eaten. But the abundance of the rich keeps them awake at night.

► There is nothing like the sense of gratification that comes from working hard all day, when bread and cheese taste as good as the finest steak. The ability to work, strength to work, and desire for work are all gifts from God. When we understand that and use those gifts accordingly, simple things like sleep and a good meal are causes for joy and celebration. But those who are rich and idle can't buy a good night's sleep or a stress-free meal or a moment's peace.

Teacher: 13I have witnessed a grave evil pervading our world, one that has been with us since the first sunrise: harm comes to all who hoard their riches. 14Such riches can easily vanish through some misfortune, so that the rich have nothing left to pass along to their children. 15We all came naked from our mother's womb, and we will leave this world as we came, taking nothing of the wealth for which we have toiled. 16Here, too, is another grave evil: all of us, no matter who we are, will depart this world exactly the same way as we came into it. So what good does it do to continue to toil after the wind? 17So all our days we eat in darkness, with mounting frustration, suffering, and anger.

18Then it dawned on me that this is good and proper: to eat and drink and find the good in all the toil that we undertake under the sun during the few days God has given, for this is our lot in life. 19Also, God gives wealth, possessions, and power to enjoy those things, and He allows them to accept their lot in life and to enjoy hard work. This is God's gift. 20For people like this have no time to despair over life because God keeps them so busy with a deep-seated joy.

6 Teacher: I have seen another injustice under the sun, one that is a real burden upon humanity. 2*Sometimes* God gives money, possessions, and even honor, so that we have everything a person might desire; nothing is lacking. But then, for reasons God only knows, God does not allow him to enjoy the good gifts. Rather, a stranger ends up enjoying them. This, too, is fleeting; it's a sickening evil. 3If a person has one hundred children and lives for many years but finds no satisfaction in all of the good things that life brings and in the end doesn't have a proper burial, I say that it would be better if that person had been stillborn 4because the stillborn arrives in a fleeting breath and then goes nameless into the darkness mourned by no one and buried in an unmarked grave. 5Though the child never sees the sun or knows anything, it still had more rest than the person who cannot enjoy what he has. 6Even if a person were to live one thousand years twice over, but could find no satisfaction, don't we all end up going to the same place?

► The words, "it would be better if that person had been stillborn," may shock the modern reader because it is hoped that no child is stillborn; believers

* 5:9 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

pray for a good life for all of God's creatures. But the writer of Ecclesiastes does not dwell on the fate of the stillborn; instead he contrasts the life of the person who finds no good in life with the fate of the child who never drew breath, never saw the sun, and never was given a name. Life is a gift from God, and the teacher admonishes his readers to find the good in that gift. Yes, sometimes life is not fair; yes, sometimes life deals harsh blows; yes, life slips away far too quickly. But as long as someone draws breath, he or she should find the good in that life.

Teacher: 7*As the saying goes,* "All of our toil is food for our mouths." We eat; we drink, and yet deep down we do not feel satisfied. 8What good is it to be wise? Are the wise better off than fools? And what do the poor know that others do not when they conduct themselves before the public?* 9It is better to enjoy what our eyes see than to long for what our roving appetites desire. This, too, is fleeting, like trying to embrace the wind.
10Whatever exists has already been named. Human nature, as it is with its strengths and limitations, is already known. So no one dares to dispute with One so much stronger than he. 11The more a person speaks, the more breath is fleeting; and what advantage do a lot of words bring us? 12For who knows the best way for us to live during the few days of our fleeting lives? After all, we pass through them like shadows. For who can say what will happen under the sun after we are gone?

7 Teacher: A good name is worth more than the finest perfume,
and the day you die is better than the day you were born.
2*In the same way,* it is better to go to a funeral
than a celebration.
Why? because death is the end of life's
journey,
and the living should always take
that to heart.
3Sorrow beats foolish laughter;
embracing sadness somehow
gladdens our hearts.
4A wise heart is well acquainted with grief,
but a foolish heart seeks only pleasure's company.
5It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise
than a song written by fools, 6For the laughter of fools is like the hiss and crackle of burning thorns beneath a pot.
This, too, is fleeting.
7Oppression can turn the wise into fools,
and a bribe can damage the noblest
heart.
8Having the last word is better than having the first,
and patience will benefit you more than pride.
9Do not be quick to anger,
for anger sits comfortably in the lap
of fools.
10Do not ask, "Where have all the good times gone?"
Wisdom knows better than to ask such a thing.
11It is good to have wisdom along with an inheritance;
they give a clear advantage to those who see the sun.
12For together wisdom and money are alike in this:
both offer protection from life's misfortunes,
But the real advantage of knowledge
is this:
wisdom alone preserves the lives of those who have it.
13Think for a moment about the work of
God.
Can anyone make straight what
God has made crooked?

► Often wisdom invites us to ponder great questions. The question, "Can anyone make straight what God has made crooked?" echoes the words of 1:15—"Something crooked cannot be made straight." Only God can determine what is and what is not. God makes our paths crooked or straight. And we often do not understand why one person's way is straight and another's is crooked. The message of the teacher is simple: reverence God regardless of the path you have been given to walk.

* 6:8 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

After each act of creation in Genesis 1, "God saw that His new creation was beautiful and good." When creation is nearly complete, God not only declares it "good" but is described as "savoring its beauty and appreciating its goodness" (Genesis 1:31). In the creation account recorded in Genesis 2, God places the tree of the knowledge of "good and evil" in the garden and commands the first couple not to eat of the tree. But that is precisely what they do; and in the act of eating, they gain knowledge of good and knowledge of what the absence of good brings. Adam and Eve's children live with this dichotomy. For example, when Cain is distressed over God's choice of Abel's offering over his, God says to Cain, "Don't you know that as long as you do what is right, then I accept you? But if you do not do what is right, watch out, because sin is crouching at the door, ready to pounce on you!" (Genesis 4:7). The temptation to scheme—that is, to do the "evil" rather than the "good"—begins with the first human pair; the teacher of Ecclesiastes reminds his readers that the same temptation still exists.

Teacher: 14When times are good,
enjoy them and be happy.
When times are bad,
think about this:
God makes both good and bad times,
so that no one really knows what is coming next.

15In the fleeting time I have lived on this earth, I have seen just about everything: the good dying in their goodness and the wicked living to a ripe old age. 16*So my advice?* Do not act overly righteous, and do not think yourself wiser than others. Why go and ruin yourself? 17But do not be too wicked or foolish either. Why die before it's your time? 18Grasp both sides of things and keep the two in balance; for anyone who fears God won't give in to the extremes.*

19Wisdom is more powerful to a wise person than 10 rulers in a city.
20There is not a righteous person on earth who always does good and never sins.
21Don't take to heart all that people say;
eventually you may hear your servant curse you.
22And face it, your heart has overheard how often you've cursed others.

23I have tested all of these sayings against wisdom. I promised myself, "I will become wise," but wisdom kept its distance. 24*True* wisdom remains elusive; its profound mysteries are remote. Who can discover it?

25So I turned and dedicated my heart to knowing more, to digging deeper, to searching harder for wisdom and the reasons things are as they are. I applied myself to understanding the connection between wickedness and folly, between folly and madness. 26*Along this journey,* I discovered something more bitter than death—a seductive woman. Her heart is a trap and net. Her hands shackle your wrists. Those who seek to please God will escape her clutches, but sinners will be caught in her trap. 27Look at this! After investigating the matter thoroughly to find out why things are as they are, 28I realize that although I kept on searching, I have not found what I am looking for. Only one man in a thousand have I found, but I could not find a single woman among all of these who knows this. 29Here is what I have figured out: God made humanity for good, but we humans go out and scheme our way into trouble.

8 Teacher: How rare to find one who is truly wise,
one who knows how to interpret this or solve that!
Wisdom brightens the countenance of the face,
and softens hard lines etched in the face.

2Here's my advice: keep what comes from the king's mouth; after all, this matter is really an oath from God. 3Don't be in a hurry to leave the king's presence or throw your support behind a bad cause, because the king can do whatever he wishes. 4Since the king has the power to enforce his word, who dares ask him,

* 7:18 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

"What are you doing?" 5Whoever does what the king commands will stay out of trouble, and the wise heart will figure out the proper time and proper way to proceed. 6Yes, there is a time and a way to deal with every situation, even when a person's troubles are on the rise. 7For no one knows what is going to happen, so who can warn him before it does? 8No one can master the wind and contain it—it blows as it will. No one has power over the day of death—it comes as it will. No soldier is discharged in the heat of battle, and certainly wickedness will not release those entangled in it. 9I have witnessed all of this as I have focused my attention on all that is done under the sun: whenever one person oppresses another to lift himself up, it only hurts him in the end.

10I have witnessed the wicked buried with honor because during their lifetimes they would go in and out of the temple, and soon their crimes were forgotten in the very city where they committed them. This, too, is fleeting.* 11When the penalty for a crime is not carried out quickly, then people start scheming to commit their own crimes. 12Although a wicked person commits a hundred sins and still lives a long life, I am confident it will go better for those who worship the one True God and stand in awe before Him, 13and it will not go well for the wicked nor will their days grow long like evening shadows because they do not stand in awe of God.

16When I applied myself to the study of wisdom and reflected on the kinds of tasks that occupy people's attention on earth, I noticed how little sleep they generally get, whether day or night. 17I saw all the works and ways of God, and it became clear to me that no one is able to grasp fully this mystery called life. Try as we might, we cannot discover what has been done under the sun. Even if the wise claim to know, they really haven't discovered it.

9 Teacher: So I set my mind on all of this, examined it thoroughly, and here's what I think: The righteous and the wise and all their deeds are in God's hands. Whether they are destined to be loved or hated, no one but God knows. 2Everyone shares a common destiny—the righteous and the wicked, the good [and the bad],* the clean and the unclean, those who sacrifice and those who neglect the sacrifices. The good and the faithful are treated no differently than the sinner. Those who take an oath are treated no differently than those afraid to commit. Such a great injustice! 3Here is an evil that pervades all that is done under the sun: the same destiny happens to us all. Human hearts are inclined toward evil; madness runs deep throughout our lives. And then what happens? We die. 4So long as we are alive, we have hope; it is better to be a living dog, you see, than a dead lion. 5At least the living know they will die; the dead don't know anything. No future, no reward is awaiting them, and one day they will be completely forgotten. 6All of their love and hate and envy die with them; then it is too late to share in the human struggle under the sun.

► At best, life is unpredictable. No one knows whether a pleasant or harsh future awaits. Perhaps it is better that way. It would be nice if good actions always guaranteed a pleasant future, but they don't. Sometimes, in this fallen world, it is just the opposite. One thing is certain, however: everyone faces death. It is the great equalizer. Yet the teacher is assured of something else: those who are right with God and live wisely are in His hands.

Teacher: 7So here is what you should do: go and enjoy your meals, drink your wine and love every minute of it because God is already pleased with what you do. 8Dress your best, and don't forget a splash of scented fragrance. 9Enjoy life with the woman you love. Cherish every moment of the fleeting life which God has given you under the sun. For this is your lot in life, your great reward for all of your hard work under the sun. 10What-ever you find to do, do it well because where you are going—the grave—there will be no working or thinking or know-ing or wisdom.

* 8:10 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 9:2 Most manuscripts omit this portion.

11I turned and witnessed something else under the sun: the race does not always go to the swift, the battle is not always won by the strong, bread does not always fill the table of the wise, wealth does not always accrue to the skillful, and favor is not always granted to the knowledgeable; but time and mis-fortune happen to them all. 12A person can't possibly know when his time will come. Like fish caught in a cruel net or birds trapped in a snare, without warn-ing the unexpected happens, and people are caught up in an evil time.

When tragedy strikes, neither our wisdom nor our wealth nor our power can spare us from it.

13I have witnessed an example of wisdom under the sun and admit I found it impressive: 14Once there was a small town with only a few people in
it. One day, out of nowhere, a king and his powerful army marched against it, surrounded it, and besieged it. The vil-lagers didn't know how to fend off such a powerful enemy. 15But one man, who was very poor but very wise, rallied the villagers and managed to drive the army away. (The village remains to this day, but no one remembers the name of that one wise man who saved the village.) 16So
I said, "Wisdom is better than strength."
But the wisdom of the poor is despised;
nobody listens to their wise counsel.

17It is better to hear the soft-spoken words of a wise person than the rant of a tyrant in the company of fools.
18Wisdom is better than weapons of war,
yet one wrongdoer can undo much
good.

10 Teacher: Remember the saying.
Dead flies can spoil a good perfume.
In the same way, all the wisdom and honor in the world cannot outweigh a moment's folly.

2Wise people move to the right where they honor the goodness of God's creation,
while fools move to the left and choose to ignore it.

Teacher: 3Fools are easily spotted when they walk down the street:
their lack of sense is obvious to everyone.
4If someone in charge becomes angry at
you, don't leave your post;
a calm reply puts great offenses to
rest.

5I have seen another restless evil in this world, the kind of error that arises from those in power: 6*fools and their* folly are promoted to positions of authority, while the rich and talented are assigned menial tasks. 7I have seen slaves riding on horseback like royalty and princes walking on the ground like slaves.

8If you dig a pit, you may fall into it.
If you tear down an old wall, a snake may come out and bite
you.
9Whoever quarries stones may be crushed by them,
and whoever splits wood may be hurt by flying debris.
10If a tool is dull and no one sharpens its edge, the work will be harder;
the advantage of wisdom is this: it brings success.

11 If a snake bites before it is charmed,
there is no advantage in being a snake charmer.
12 The words of the wise bring them favor,
but those of the foolish endanger
them.
13 The first words out of a fool's mouth
are folly;
the last words he utters are evil
madness.
14 The fool babbles on and on, not knowing when to stop.
Though no one knows what will happen next, he may think he knows.
Who can tell what the future holds?
15 The fools' work wears them out;
they're so weary they can't find their way to the city.
16 Woe to the land whose king is a child and whose princes start their feast
in the morning.
17 Blessed is the land whose king is of noble heritage
and whose princes know when to
feast,
Who discipline themselves with strength
and avoid drunkenness.
18 The roof sags over the head of lazybones;
the house leaks because of idle
hands.
19 Feasts are happy occasions;
wine brings joy to life;
money is the answer for everything.
20 Don't curse the king in your thoughts or demean the rich even in private.
If you do, a little bird or other winged creature overhead might overhear
and wing your words and report
what you said to those in power.

11 Teacher: Don't be afraid to release your bread upon the waters,
for in due time you will find it.
2 Divide your portion—put seven here,
maybe eight there—
for you can never be sure when or where disaster will strike.
3 When the clouds are dark and heavy with rain,
showers will fall upon the earth.
When a tree falls—whether to the south or the north—
it will stay where it lands.
4 Those who watch and wait for favorable winds never plant, and those who watch and fret over
every cloud never harvest.

5 You can no more predict the path of the wind than you can explain how a child's bones are formed in a mother's womb. Even more, you will never understand the workings of the God who made all things.

6 Get up early to sow your seed,
and in the evening find worthwhile
things to do,
For you never know which will profit
you—
maybe this, maybe that, maybe both.

Hard work, not idleness, is at the heart of wisdom. Rewards come when we most need and least expect them.

7 Light is sweet;
one glimpse of the sun delights the eyes.

8 If a person lives many years, then he should learn to enjoy each and every one; but he should not forget the dark days ahead, for there will be plenty of them. All that is to come—whether bright days or dark—is fleeting. 9 Be happy, and celebrate all of the goodness of youth while you are young. Cultivate a cheerful heart every day you have youth. Go where your heart takes you.
Take in the sights. Enjoy, but remember that God will hold us accountable for all that we do. 10 When all is said and done, clear your mind of all its worries. Free your body of all its troubles while you can, for youth and the prime of life will soon vanish.

12 Teacher: And so we come to the end of this musing over life. My advice to you is to remember your Creator, God, while you are young:
before life gets hard and the injustice of old age comes upon you—before the years arrive when pleasure feels far out of reach—2 before the sun and light and the moon and stars fade to darkness and before cloud-covered skies return after the rain. 3 Remember Him before the arms and legs of the keeper of the house begin to tremble—before the strong grow uneasy and bent over with age—before toothless gums aren't able to chew food and eyes grow dim. 4 Remember Him
before the doors are shut in the streets and hearing fails and everyday sounds

fade away—before the slightest sound of a bird's chirp awakens the sleeping but the song itself has fallen silent. 5People will be afraid of falling from heights and terrifying obstacles in the streets. Realize that hair turns white like the blossoms on the almond tree, one becomes slow and large like a gluttonous grasshopper, and even caper berries no longer stimulate desire. In the end, all must go to our eternal home while there are mourners in the streets. 6-7So before the silver cord is snapped and the golden bowl is shattered: before the earthen jar is smashed at the spring and the wheel at the well is broken—before the dust returns to the earth that gave it and the spirit-breath returns to God who breathed it, let us remember our Creator. 8Life is fleeting; it just slips through your fingers. All vanishes like mist.

► The teacher advises the readers to "remember" their Creator. Remembrance is a pervasive theme in Scripture. Throughout the Bible, God remembers His covenant people, and the covenant people are told to remember the promises and actions of God on their behalf. In the Book of Psalms, "remember" occurs 45 times, sometimes written by the suffering faithful who cry out to God to remember (Psalms 25:6-7; 74:2, 18, 22; 89:47), and sometimes by the worshiper who marvels that God has remembered (Psalms 8:4; 78:39; 111:5; 136:23). Thus remembering in the Old Testament is an action of both God and God's people.

Memory was as fundamental to the faith of ancient Israel as it is today. Believers gather together to remember who they are and to whom they belong. This communal memory shapes reality, forms identities, and determines right living.

9Not only did the teacher attain wisdom by careful observation, study, and setting out many proverbs, but he was also generous with his knowledge and eagerly shared it with people. 10The teacher also searched for just the right words to bring hope and encouragement, and he wrote honestly about truth and the realities of life.

11The words of the wise are like goads; the collected sayings of the masters are like the nail-tipped sticks used to drive the sheep, given by one Shepherd.

Wise words ring true in our ears, whether we want to hear them or not. They prod us, convict us, and move us; and heeding them strengthens us.

12So be warned, my child, of anything else that might be said! There is no end to writing books, and excessive study only exhausts the body. 13And, when all is said and done, here is the last word: worship in reverence the one True God, and keep His commands, for this is what God expects of every person. 14For God will judge every action—including everything done in secret—whether it be good or evil.

SONG OF SONGS

A love song about the Shulammite and her lover

For Solomon, king of Israel

Known by various names, the book called “Song of Songs” or “Song of Solomon” belongs to a category of Near Eastern poetry that celebrates the goodness and beauty of human love. According to tradition, King Solomon is the author of this most sublime song of all, because of the editorial superscription “to Solomon” at the very beginning of the book and because his name is mentioned throughout the song. However, the Hebrew doesn’t necessarily mean the song “belongs to” or was written “by” Solomon. The superscription is just as easily translated “about” or “for” Solomon, meaning he is the subject or audience of the book, not necessarily its author. Because the grammar and dialect used in the poetry cannot be positively identified with the 10th century B.C. when Solomon would have been writing, the exact meaning of the superscription is uncertain. The poetry has similarities to grammatical constructions used in other books as early as the Song of Deborah (which many consider the oldest poetry in the Bible, dating to the 12th century B.C.) and Persian loan words which could have crept into the Hebrew vernacular only after the exile as late as the 5th or 4th centuries B.C. Therefore, scholars have suggested dating schemes that range widely, though most situate it after the exile.

This song of love may be read on two levels. Read literally, it describes the natural and satisfying love between a man and woman. The primary characters are an unknown man and a Shulammite woman who move from courtship to consummation through the song; their relationship is witnessed and encouraged by a chorus of young women from Jerusalem. The poetry is sensuous and filled with erotic overtones; it celebrates physical beauty, longing and desire, and the true goodness of sexual union. Some rabbis apparently found a literal reading of this poem a bit disturbing, and so they developed a more symbolic interpretation. Read in this way, the song describes the love expressed between God and Israel. Such an interpretation is warranted since the prophets had already portrayed the relationship between God and Israel in marital terms. While the prophets use the imagery to condemn the people Israel for their adulterous infidelity, the Song’s image assumes that God and Israel share an intimate relationship. Christians, too, read this love poem symbolically, in light of Christ’s love for the church and the mystical longing of the soul for union with God.

Song of Songs, which is a "book" of the Bible, actually has more in common with Handel's Messiah or Puccini's Tosca than any prose work of the Old Testament—it's a libretto, a record of the words sung in a musical or opera. While this song is certainly the longest libretto in the Bible, it is not the only one. The Book of Psalms is replete with them; and they often open with directions for musical instruments such as in Psalm 4, which begins, "For the worship leader. A song of David accompanied by strings." Song of Songs lacks such instrumental direction; but through the poetic phrasing and pronoun usage, three distinct vocal parts are inherently identifiable: the female lover (who would sing soprano), the male lover (who would sing tenor), and the observing young women (who would function as the chorus). Even without the musical score, it is possible to imagine these actors breathing life into the libretto on a great stage.

1 For Solomon. The most sublime song of all.

Her (to him): [2]Kiss me with the sweet kisses of your lips,
for your love delights me more than wine.
[3]The pleasant aroma of your fragrance rises in the air;
your name is like precious perfume poured out:
This is why young women adore you.
[4]Take me away with you;
let's run away together!

(to the young women) The king has brought me into his bedroom.

Young Women of Jerusalem (to him): We will shout for joy and celebrate over you.
We will make it known that your love is better than the finest of wines.

Her (to him): Everyone loves you, and there is no reason why they shouldn't.

[5](to the young women) Look at me, young women of Jerusalem.
I am dark but beautiful.
I am dark like the tents of Kedar;
I am beautiful like the curtains of Solomon's temple.
[6]Don't stare at my dark skin,
for the sun looked down on me.
My brothers' anger scorched me;
they made me work all day long in the vineyards,
So I did not have time to care for my own vineyard,
to cultivate my own body.

[7](to him) Tell me, my dearest love,
where are your sheep grazing today?
Where are you resting with your flock at midday?
I want to come to you.
Why must I go looking for you like the veiled women wandering among the flocks of your friends?

Him (to her): [8]If you do not know where I am,
most beautiful of women,
Follow the tracks of my sheep—
they will lead you to me—
And graze your flocks of young goats beside the shepherds' tents.
[9]You remind me, my dear,
of an honored mare among Pharaoh's stallion-driven chariots;
[10]The strings of jewels against your cheeks frame your elegance, as also the tender curve of your neck with precious gems.

Young Women of Jerusalem (to her): [11]We will make for you golden jewelry to lay against your skin, golden jewelry studded with silver to frame your elegance.

Her: [12]When the king was relaxing at his table,
the seductive fragrance of my perfume filled the air.
[13]My love is close to my heart,
like a sachet of myrrh tucked between my breasts.
[14]My love is like a fragrant bouquet of henna blossoms
from the vineyards of Engedi.

Him: 15How beautiful you are, my dear!
How so very beautiful!
Your eyes are like doves.

Her: 16You, my love, are so handsome! A pleasure to behold!
Our bed is a lush, green field,
17The beams of our house are majestic cedars,
and the rafters are tall pines.

2 Her: I am a rose of Sharon,
a lily found in one of the valleys.

Him: 2Like a lily among thorns, that is what she is;
my dear is a captivating beauty among the young women.

Her: 3My love is like an apple tree in a wooded forest;
he is a ripe tree among a grove of saplings, those young men.
I sat beneath his ample shade, filled with such joy.
I tasted the sweetness of his fruit and longed for more.
4He placed me at his banquet table,
for everyone to see that his banner over me declares his love.

5*(to those around)* Sustain me with sweet raisins.
Refresh my energy with apples
Because I am lovesick for him.
6His left hand cradles my head;
his right embraces me.

7(to the young women) You of Jerusalem heed my warning.
By the gazelles and deer of the field,
I charge you not to excite your love until it is ready.
Don't stir a fire in your heart too soon,
until it is ready to be satisfied.
8I hear his voice! The voice of my love!
Here he comes,
Leaping over the mountains,
bounding among the hills.
9My love is like a gazelle,
sure-footed and swift as a young stag.
Look, there he is! Standing behind my wall, watching through the windows,
peering through the lattice.
10My love responded and said to me,

Him: Arise, my dearest, my beauty,
and come away with me.
11Don't you see? The winter is done.
The rains and clouds have come and gone.
12The flowers are unfolding in the fields;
the birds are warming up their songs,
The cooing of the turtledove
is heard throughout the land.
13The fig trees are bringing forth their first fruit,
and the vines are in blossom, filling the air with their fragrance.
So arise my dearest, my beauty,
and come away with me.
14Now, my dove, don't be shy.
Don't hide from me in the clefts of the rock
or nest like a bird in secret among the cliffs.
Show me your lovely form.
Let me hear your beautiful voice,
For it sounds so sweet,
and your face is so lovely.

Young Women of Jerusalem *(to the couple):
15Catch the foxes for us,
those little foxes that menace the vineyards,
For our vineyards are so vulnerable when they are in full bloom.

Her: 16My love is mine, and I am his.
He grazes among my lilies.
17As the day breathes its morning breeze
and shadows turn and flee,
Turn to me, my love, like a gazelle;
come to me like a young stag on rugged mountains.

3 Her: Restless night after night in my bed,
I longed and looked for my soul's true love;
I searched for him,
but I could not find him.
2I will get up now and search the city,
wander up and down streets and plazas;
I will look for my soul's true love.
I searched for him, but I could not find him.
3The watchmen found me as they kept watch on the silent city.
"Have you seen my soul's true love?"
I asked.
4Not long after I left them,
I found him—I found my soul's true love.

This libretto is full of imagery. Two of the most common images are that of the gazelle and the lotus blossom (translated here as "lily"), both frequently used in many ancient Near Eastern cultures. The gazelle is a species of antelope whose males have long horns. Both males and females move with grace and strength as they cross flat savannahs or climb steep cliffs. It is because of these traits that the gazelle is equated with sexuality, youth, and stamina. The Israelites used it in poetry to represent the youthful joys of love and sexual vigor, while many Near Eastern pagan religions used it in images honoring fertility goddesses. The lotus is a type of lily found in watery regions. Because of its shape, which resembles the womb, and its fragrance, which is alluring, the lotus became the flower of choice for lovers across the Near East. In Israel it was featured in poetry and even dominated the capitals of the columns supporting Solomon's temple; in Egyptian and Phoenician cultures, it represented the gods themselves. With just one word, "gazelle" or "lotus," this poet conveys a bevy of ideas about love, youth, strength, and passion.

I pulled him to me and would not let him go until I brought him to my mother's
house,
to the very room where she conceived me.

5(to the young women of Jerusalem)
Heed my warning:
By the gazelles and deer of the field,
I charge you not to excite your love
until it is ready.
Don't stir a fire in your heart too soon, until it is ready to be satisfied.

Young Women of Jerusalem: 6Who is
this coming up from the desert, with billowing clouds of dust and
smoke,
with a sweet aroma of burning
myrrh and frankincense,
with fragrant spices fresh from the merchant?

The royal litter carries the groom to the wedding, and upon the litter is the king with his crown.

7Look, it is Solomon's litter, surrounded by 60 strong men,
some of the very best soldiers in
Israel,
8All armed swordsmen,
battle-hardened heroes, experts at
war,
Marching with swords at their sides,
ready to guard the king from the terrors of the night.
9King Solomon built his own royal carriage
from the trees of Lebanon.
10He had its posts fashioned from silver,
its back made of gold,
its seat covered with royal purple,
its interior decorated with love by the young women of Jerusalem.
11O go out, young women of Zion,
and see King Solomon Wearing the crown with which his mother has crowned him on his wedding day,
on the day his heart overflows with
joy.

4 Him (to her): You, my love, are beautiful.
So beautiful!

Because stimulating images come forth when the lovers describe in intimate detail each other's bodies, Jewish men were discouraged from reading this greatest of songs until the age of 30.

Your eyes are like doves
nestled behind your veil.
Your hair moves as gracefully as a flock
of goats
leaping down the slopes of Mount Gilead.
2Your teeth are pearl white like a flock of
sheep shorn,
fresh up from a wash.
Each perfect and paired with another;
not one of them is lost.
3Your lips are as red as scarlet threads;
your mouth is beautiful.

Your cheeks rosy and round are
beneath your veil,
like the halves of a pomegranate.
4Your neck is elegant like the tower of David,
perfectly fit stone-by-stone.
There hang a thousand shields,
the shields of mighty men.
5Your breasts are like two fawns,
twin gazelles grazing in a meadow
of lilies.
6As the day breathes its morning breeze
and shadows turn and flee,
I will go up your myrrh mountain and climb your frankincense hill.
7You are so beautiful, my love,
without blemish.
8Come with me from Lebanon, my bride;
come with me from Lebanon.
Journey with me from the crest of Amana,
from the top of Senir even the summit of Hermon,
From the lions' dangerous den,
from the mountain hideouts of leopards.
9My heart is your captive, my sister, my bride;
you have stolen it with one glance,
caught it with a single strand of your necklace.
10How beautiful is your love, my sister,
my bride!
Your love is more pleasing than the finest wine,
and the fragrance of your perfume brings more delight than any spice!
11Your lips taste sweet like honey off the comb, my bride;
milk and honey are beneath your tongue.
The scents of your clothes are like the fresh air of Lebanon.
12You are a locked garden, my sister, my bride, open only to me;
a spring closed up tight, a sealed fountain.
13Your sprouts are an orchard of pomegranates and exotic
fruits—
with henna and nard, 14With nard and saffron,
calamus and cinnamon—
With rows of frankincense trees and myrrh and aloes and all the finest spices.
15*My bride,* you are a fountain in a garden,
a well of life-giving water flowing down from Lebanon.

► What does he mean by "my sister, my bride"? Is this a sudden revelation of an incestuous relationship? No. He is describing how sexual expression can bring two people intimately together, as close as two people can be; the man and woman are now family. This image would have been particularly meaningful in ancient Israelite society, where life was centered on familial relationships and calling someone "brother" or "sister" was a sign of deep intimacy and care. Blood relatives lived together, worked together, traded with each other, and were buried together. By calling the woman "sister," he is declaring they are now blood relatives. In the covenant relationship called marriage, blood is drawn during consummation, bonding the two parties together as man and wife, as brother and sister, forever.

Him *(to the winds): 16Rise, you north wind;
come, you south wind.
Breathe on my garden,
and let the fragrance of its natural spices fill the air.

Her: Let my love come into his garden
and feast from its choice fruits.

5 Him *(to her): I have come into my garden, my sister, my bride;
I have gathered my myrrh with its natural spices.
I have tasted the honeycomb dripping
with my honey
and have drunk my wine and milk
together.

(to his young friends of Jerusalem) Eat,
friends, drink your fill!
Be intoxicated with love.

Her: 2I was sleeping, but my heart was awake
when I heard a sound, the sound of my love pounding at the door.

Him: Open yourself to me, my sister, my dearest,
my sweet dove, my flawless beauty.

My head is drenched with dew;
my hair is soaked with the wetness
of the night.

Her: [3]I have taken off my robe.
How could I ever put it on again?
I have washed my feet.
How could I walk across this dirty
floor?
[4]My love put his hand on the latch;
my insides began to throb for him.
[5]I leaped from my bed to let my love in.
My hands were dripping sweet
myrrh,
My fingers were coated with myrrh
as I reached for the handles of the lock.
[6]I opened for my love, but he had turned away and was gone.
He'd left, and my heart sank.
I looked for him, but I did not see him.
I called out to him, but he did not answer.
[7]The watchmen found me
as they made their rounds in the
city.
They beat me, they left bruises on my skin,
and they took away my veil, those watchmen on the walls.

[8](to the young women of Jerusalem)
Promise me that if you find my love,
you will speak with him, telling him
that I am faint with love.

Young Women of Jerusalem: [9]How is your beloved better than all the other lovers,
most beautiful of women?
How is your beloved worth more than all the rest,
that you would make us promise
this?

Her: [10]Because my love is radiant and ruddy,
he stands out above 10,000 *other
men.*
[11]His head is pure gold;
his hair is thick and wavy and black
as a raven.
[12]His eyes are like doves at the edge of a stream,
mounted like jewels and bathed in pools of milk.
[13]His bearded cheeks are like a spice
garden, with towers of spice:
His lips are lilies dripping and flowing with myrrh, [14]His hands are like strong rods of gold,
each set with jewels.
His body displays his manhood
like an ivory tusk inlaid with sapphires.
[15]His legs are like pillars of white marble,
both set on bases of gold.
He stands tall and strong like the mountains of Lebanon,
with all its majestic cedars.
[16]His mouth tastes sweet, so sweet;
he is altogether desirable.
This is my love. This is my dear one, as I am his,
O young women of Jerusalem.

6 Young Women of Jerusalem (to her):
Where has your love gone,
most beautiful of women?
Do you know which direction he went
so we can help you find him?

They pass through many obstacles as they celebrate their union in different venues. Love is found in a garden or a parental home. Ecstasy comes in a dream or reality.

Her: [2]Women of Jerusalem, I know where my love is.
My love has gone into his garden
Among the beds of aromatic spices, like a gazelle grazing among his gardens
and a gardener gathering the lilies.
[3]I belong to my love, and my love
to me.
He feeds his flock among the lilies.

Him (to her): [4]You are beautiful, my dear, as beautiful as Tirzah,
as lovely as Jerusalem,
as regal as an army beneath their banners.
[5]Turn your eyes from me because they overpower me as always.
Your hair moves as gracefully as a flock
of goats
leaping down the slopes of Mount Gilead.
[6]Your teeth are pearl white like a flock of
sheep shorn,
fresh up from a wash.
Each is perfect and paired with
another;
not one of them is lost.
[7]Your cheeks are rosy and round
beneath your veil,
like the halves of a pomegranate.

[8]There may be 60 queens and 80
concubines—
there may be more virgins than can be counted—
[9]But my dove, my perfect love is the only one for me,
the only daughter of her mother,
the pure and favored child to the one who bore her.
The young women saw her and called her blessed;
the queens and concubines praised
her.

Young Women of Jerusalem: [10]Who is this who looks down like the dawn,
as radiant as the full moon, as bright as sunlight,
as majestic as an army beneath their banners?

Her: [11]I went down to walk among a stand
of walnut trees,
to take in the new growth of the valley,
To see if the vines had budded
or the pomegranates were blooming.
[12]Before I knew it, my passions set me
before some chariots,
those belonging to my noble
people.*

Young Women of Jerusalem: [13]Come back, come back, O Shulammite!
Come back, come back to us, so that we can look upon you.

Him: Why should you look upon the Shulammite,
as you would stare at the dance of joyous victory at Mahanaim?

7 Him: Your feet are so beautiful, perfectly fitted in sandals, noble daughter!*
Your sculpted thighs are like jewels,
the work of a master hand.
[2]Your hidden place is open to me like a goblet, perfect and round,
that never runs dry of blended
wine;
Your waist is a mound of wheat—curved and white and fertile—encircled by lilies.
[3]Your breasts are like two fawns,
twins of a gazelle.
[4]Your neck is as stunning as an ivory
tower;
your eyes shimmer like the pools in Heshbon
by the gate of Bath-rabbim.
Your nose is strong and proud like the tower of Lebanon,
which points toward Damascus.
[5]Your head is as stately as Mount Carmel;
your hair shines like a tapestry of royal purple cloth—
the king is held captive by your locks.
[6]How beautiful you are, my love, and how pleasing
In all your delightful and satisfying
ways.
[7]Your stature is as elegant as a date
palm tree,
and your breasts are sweet,
attractive, and round like clusters of its fruit.
[8]I say, "I will climb the palm tree;
I will take hold of its fruit."
May your breasts be like clusters of
grapes,
the fragrance of your mouth* like
fresh apples,
[9]and may your kisses satisfy like the best wine.

Her: May the wine go down smoothly for
my love,
flowing gently over his lips and teeth.*
[10]I belong to my love,
and he has desire for me.

(to him) [11]Come out into the fields, my
love,
and there spend the night in the villages.
[12]Let's rise with the morning and go to the vineyards
to see if the vines have budded,
If their blossoms have opened,
and if the pomegranates are in bloom.
There I will give you my love.
[13]The mandrakes send out their seductive
fragrance,
and the finest fruits wait at our doors—
New pleasures as well as old—
I have stored them up for you, my lover.

* 6:12 Hebrew, Ammi-nadiv; meaning is uncertain. * 7:1 Hebrew, Bath-nadiv; meaning is uncertain. * 7:8 Literally, nose
* 7:9 Hebrew manuscripts read, "lips of sleepers."

Why would she break the parallel language and say that he "has desire" for her instead of saying he "belongs" to her as she does to him? Certainly he does belong to her, now that they are intimately bound in covenant. Her words may be said in light of Genesis 3:16, the passage where God outlines humanity's punishment for their first sin. There it is narrated that Eve is to have desire for her husband who will rule over her. What the woman has said here is the exact opposite of the post-sin marriage structure: it is the man who desires the woman. Therefore, the depiction of the marriage relationship in Song of Songs gives a glimpse of what marriage might have looked like prior to the first sin in Eden. God designed the relationship between husband and wife to be one of love, passion, and pleasure. This should be the ideal all couples strive for in their marriages as they work together to avoid sin in their lives.

8 Her *(to him): If only you were like my brother, my love, nursed at my mother's breast!
Then we could show our affection in public.
I would kiss you, and no one would think anything of it.
Nobody would look down on me.
2I would take you by the hand and bring you to my mother's house—
she has taught me to be a woman.
I would give you spiced wine to drink,
and you could enjoy the juice of my pomegranates.

3His left hand cradles my head,
and his right hand reaches out to embrace me.

4(to the young women of Jerusalem)
Heed my warning:
I charge you not to excite your love until it is ready.
Don't stir a fire in your heart too soon,
until it is ready to be satisfied.

► Three times in this most beautiful song (2:7; 3:5; 8:4), the female lover encourages her friends not to stoke the fires of passion until the proper time. This is wise instruction because unbridled passion can be very satisfying or quite destructive. The woman is presumably reminding the royal harem of this proverb to hold off on sexual intimacy. The "young women of Jerusalem" is probably a reference to the concubines of the king and how they, like most women, want to experience true and lasting intimacy. The difficulty is that these women may only know one night with the king and have their dreams of deep relationship go unrequited.

Young Women of Jerusalem: 5Who is this woman coming up from the desert, leaning on her love?

Her: Under the apple tree I roused your love for me,
in the place where your mother conceived you,
in the place where she gave birth to you.
6Set me as a seal over your heart;
wear me as an emblem on your arm
For love is as strong as death,
and jealousy is as relentless as the grave.
Love flares up like a blazing fire, a very ardent flame.
7No amount of water can quench love;
a raging flood cannot drown it out.
If a person tried to exchange all of his wealth for love,
then he would be surely rejected.

Young Women of Jerusalem: 8We have a little sister whose breasts have not yet developed.
How shall we protect her until the time when she is spoken for?
9If she is a wall,
we will build silver towers of protection;

If she is a door,
we will barricade the door with the strongest cedar.

Her: [10]I was a wall,
and now my breasts are like towers;
At that time I found completeness and satisfaction in his eyes.

[11]Solomon had a vineyard in Baal-hamon;
he let farmers tend it and charged each a ransom for its produce—1,000 pieces of silver.

[12]My vineyard is my own—mine to lend or mine to lease.
Solomon, you may have your 1,000;
Those who tend the fruit, your 200.

Him: [13]You who dwell in the gardens, whose friends are always attentive
to your voice,
Let me hear it.

Her: [14]Come quickly, my love.
Be like a gazelle or young stag on the mountains of spices.

ISAIAH

Prophecies concerning God's judgment and salvation

The message of Isaiah, a prophet and servant of God

Few biblical books have been more quoted or influential than Isaiah. Its status as one of the Major Prophets is due to its length, scope, and enduring significance. Tradition associates this book with the prophet Isaiah who lived in Jerusalem at the end of the eighth century before Jesus. But the composition of it appears to be more complicated, for the prophecy addresses three distinct communities: those threatened by the Assyrians in the eighth and seventh centuries (chapters 1–39), those deported by the Babylonians in the sixth century (chapters 40–55), and those restored to Jerusalem by the Persians in the fifth century (chapters 56–66). The scope of the prophecies implies that the book was compiled and edited by scribes over the centuries and completed after Isaiah's death. Prophecy was primarily a spoken event, not a written text, so it was left to the prophets' disciples to collect and preserve their teachers' messages.

Isaiah is a master of prophetic word and action. He often dramatizes his messages in ways that are sure to unsettle and be remembered. His brilliant analysis, skillful prose, and creative metaphors demonstrate the artistry necessary to speak effectively to king and commoner alike. For Isaiah, the troubles on the horizon are not the willful actions of tyrants; they are orchestrated by God. These troubles are God's just punishment on His errant children for what they have done. But Isaiah knows that God is not content with merely judging; He is committed to restoring His repentant people. The prophet directs his oracles primarily to Judah, even though he often turns a prophetic eye to the surrounding nations (chapters 13–23). Isaiah looks to Israel's distant past to understand his own troubled day. The exodus, for example, becomes the pattern for a new exodus one day when the exiled faithful—the remnant—will come home. God's covenants with Abraham, Israel, and David form the foundation of Isaiah's future hopes. In particular, one born from David's royal line is destined to rule, establishing peace and justice throughout the world. Prophecies of a new creation (chapters 65–66) reflect the original idyllic scene where God and humanity enjoy pristine and perfect interactions in the garden. In some ways, the new creation will be like the first; but unlike the first, it will usher in an era of peace for a desperately broken world. Some of the most memorable and moving aspects of Isaiah's message are the Servant Poems (42:1-9; 49:1-7; 50:4-9; and 52:13–53:12); these poetic verses portray and pay tribute to the career of God's remarkable Servant, whose faithful obedience makes the world right. Early Christians read these lines in light of Jesus' life as God's Servant.

1 This is the vision that Isaiah (son of Amoz) saw and what he prophesied about Judah and Jerusalem during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah in Judah:

► In the time of Isaiah, prophets are known to be astute observers of their particular times and places. They speak what they understand to be God's words to the people about how their thoughts and actions, especially their actions, relate to God's expectations for them. When the people fall short of such expectations, prophets tell them what God thinks and what the consequences might be.

2 Listen and take note,
from the farthest reaches to the nearest!
Listen up heaven and earth,
for the Eternal One has spoken.
He is not happy with the children He raised.

Eternal One: Despite all I've done,
My children have rebelled against Me.
3 Oxen know their owners;
even donkeys know where their master feeds them,
But Israel is ignorant.
My very own, they ignore Me.

4 Truly this is a wicked nation,
a people fat with wrongdoing,
Like a litter of miscreants,
a pack of wilding adolescents.
They've rejected the Eternal,
despised the Holy One of Israel;
they've turned their backs on Him.

5-6 Why do you insist on taking a beating?
Why do you persist in such reckless rebellion?
Your bodies already suffer head to toe—
your heads ache and hearts flutter;
Your skin is covered with bruises,
swollen with welts, and gaping with wounds,
with no tending, no healing, no soothing.

7 Your country is a waste.
Your cities are dead, sooty rubble.
Your farms and fields are consumed,
everything you worked for destroyed by foreign armies as you look on—helplessly.

8 Zion, our portion of heaven on earth, is no longer protected;
Jerusalem stands like a watchman's shelter in a vineyard,
Like a hut in a melon field,
like a city assaulted and besieged.

9 Except for the fraction of us who hang on by the grace of the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly armies,
We'd be destroyed and deserted
like Sodom and Gomorrah, *utterly done in.

10 Listen to the word of the Eternal One,
you rulers of Sodom!
Attend to God's instructions,
citizens of Gomorrah!

Eternal One: 11 What do I care for all of your slaughter-gifts?
I have had enough of your burnt offerings.
I'm not interested in any more ram meat or fat from your well-fed cattle.
The blood of bulls, lambs, or goats does not please Me.
12 When you come into My presence, who told you to trample down the courtyard of My temple bringing all of this?
13 Just stop giving Me worthless offerings;
your incense reeks and offends Me!
Your feasts and fasts, your new moons and Sabbaths—
I cannot stand any more of your wicked gatherings.
14 Likewise, I deplore your holidays,
those calendar days marked specially for Me;
They weigh Me down.
I am sick and tired of them!
15 When you summon Me with your hands in the air, I will ignore you.
Even when you pray your whole litany, I won't be listening Because your hands are full of blood and violence.

* 1:9 Romans 9:29

16 Wash yourselves, clean up your lives;
remove every speck of evil in what you do before Me.
Put an end to all your evil.
17 Learn to do good;
commit yourselves to seeking
justice.
Make right for the world's most vulnerable—
the oppressed, the orphaned,
the widow.

18 Come on now, let's walk and talk;
let's work this out.
Your wrongdoings are bloodred,
But they can turn as white as snow.
Your sins are red like crimson,
But they can be made clean again
like new wool.
19 If you pay attention now and change your ways,
you can eat good things from a healthy earth.
20 But if you refuse to listen and stubbornly persist,
then, by violence and war, you will be the one devoured.

These things were spoken by the very mouth of the Eternal.

21 O that city, once so loyal, has become a prostitute.
Where there had been perfect justice,
equity and compassion,
Now there are murderers.
22 All that once made your community shine like silver is now tarnished, your best drink watered down like a cheapskate's wine.
23 Your leaders are liars, running around with thieves,
wheedling for bribes—greedy for "contributions."
They don't defend the needy and pay no attention to the weak.

24 Consequently, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, the Mighty
One of Israel,
will not keep quiet.

Eternal One: Oh yes, I will get relief from my enemies
and settle the score with My foes!
25 I will take action against you, My sinful children,
burning off whatever is worthless, purging whatever is impure.
26 I will bring back legislators who have integrity,
people like your founding fathers—principled decision- makers.
Then your city will be called honorable and just,
a model of ethics, trustworthy,
and strong.

27 In that way, this place Zion will pass the test:
the city restored by justice, her citizens delivered by repentance.
28 But those who arrogantly persist in doing wrong will be crushed.
Whoever abandons the Eternal will be done in.
29 You will be ashamed because you found pleasure in idols and oaks;
you will suffer disgrace because you bowed before images in gardens.
30 Like a tree that withers, like a garden
without rain,
you will fall apart, fade, and
dry up.
31 And those who seem strong among you will become dry straw,
their work the spark that sets it all
ablaze,
Burning everything to the ground and there won't be anyone around to stop it.

2 This is what Isaiah (son of Amoz) prophesied about Judah and its capital Jerusalem:

2 There will come a time in the last days when the mountain where the Eternal's house stands
Will become the highest, most magnificent—grander than any of the mountains around it.
And all the nations of the world will run
there,
wanting to see it, feel it, fully experience it.
3 Many people of all languages, colors, and creeds will come.

People: Come! Let's go to the Eternal's
mountain,
to the house of the God of Jacob,
So that we might learn from Him
how best to be,
to go along in life as He would have us go.

After all, the law will pour out from Zion,
the word of the Eternal, from Jerusalem.
4God will decide what's fair among
nations
and settle disputes among all sorts of people.
Meanwhile, they will hammer their swords into sickles,
reshape their spears into pruning hooks.
One nation will not attack another.
They will not practice war anymore.

► Isaiah sees an amazing picture of the future, a future which only God can create. In that vision, Jerusalem and the temple of the only God will sit on the highest mountain at the center of the world. In that day, all the nations of the world will stream to the holy city and seek God's guidance and instruction. God will sit as King and Judge, dispensing real justice—not some man-made counterfeit—not only in international but also local matters. Perhaps, most amazingly for a world weary of war, this will be a time when war is a thing of the past and its lethal instruments are turned into tools for life and peace.

5O house of Jacob—people of the promise—come, come walk
with me
by the light of the Eternal.
6See, You have abandoned Your people,*
the house of Jacob!
For they have taken on attitudes and postures of other cultures,
imitating anyone and anything that crosses their path
Practicing divination like the Philistines, making deals with outsiders.
7Their land is full of silver and gold,
rich with mind-boggling wealth.
Their countryside is full of warhorses;
there are more chariots than you can count.
8Their land is full of worthless idols.
They worship their own creations;
They bow down to what they have made, bought, and sold.
9But now the people will be humbled, reminded of their simplicity and limits—
don't just absolve them!
10Get into the caves, hide in the dust,
in the face of the Eternal's terrifying
Self,
in the face of His dread and
enormous majesty.
11The bubble of human pride will be burst;
the arrogant will be pulled down
from their pedestals.
Then, finally, the Eternal, no one and nothing else,
will be the center of attention, lifted up in high esteem.
12The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has identified a time for assault
against the arrogant and proud, against all who think they're so indomitable.
They will be humbled.
13Against all the high and lofty:
against the cedars of Lebanon
and the oaks of Bashan, 14Against the tallest mountains
and the highest hills, 15Against every watchtower
and every defended border, 16Against all the trading ships of Tarshish,
against all the luxury vessels.
17On that day, humankind's false pride will be shattered and pulled down.*
Then the Eternal, no one and nothing else, will be the center of attention,
Lifted up in high esteem.
18As for all the idols, they will vanish.
19People will hide themselves away in rocky caves and dusty holes in the ground
in the face of the Eternal's terrifying
Self,
In the face of His dread and enormous
majesty,
when He comes forth to overwhelm
the earth.
20When that day arrives, people will leave behind
the idols they made to worship—even those made of silver and gold,
The things they felt were so important—to the moles and the bats.
21They hide themselves away in rocky caves and clefts,
in the face of the Eternal's terrifying
Self,

* 2:6 Greek manuscripts read, "it applies to His people." * 2:17 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

In the face of His dread and enormous
majesty,
when He comes forth to overwhelm
the earth.
22Stop believing in human beings as so amazing, so capable!
We are short-lived, only a breath from death and worth as much.
What makes us think we're so special?

3 See here! The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies,
will take away the supply of bread and water—
the whole supply—from Jerusalem
and Judah.
2*He will take away their* heroes and
warriors,
judges and prophets, fortune-tellers
and elders,
3*He will take away their* military officers
and high-ranking officials, advisers and skilled workers, and experts with charms and amulets.
4*In the chaos of their absence,* I will make mere kids rule.
Even infants will govern them, 5Leaving people to take advantage of each other,
making their lives miserable.
Youngsters will terrorize the elderly,
and the most despicable will bully
the upstanding.
6*Desperate* people will grab anyone who seems the least bit ordinary.

People: You managed to hold on to your coat, so you must be our leader;
this heap of rubble will be under your command!

Chosen Leader: 7I will not play the nurse for your wounds.
Do not elect me to lead the people—I can barely feed and clothe my own.

8O how this precious city, this Jerusalem,
has gone wrong,
and Judah is in shambles.
For all they say and do is an affront to
the Eternal,
resisting His glorious presence.
9The look on their faces tells the true story;
they flaunt their sins like Sodom.
They don't even try to hide them—how terrible it will be for them,
for they will pay for their self-serving carelessness.

10Tell those who have done right in the eyes of God
that all will be well for them,
For they will be rightly rewarded.
11But whoever persists in wrongdoing will rue the day—
everything will go wrong for him—Whatever he's done will come back to
him.
12Oh, how I ache for my people! They are oppressed by children, ruled by women, naïve and
inexperienced.
O my people, your leaders are misleading
you,
guiding you down the path to disaster.

13But now the Eternal is taking the bench;
He's ready to judge;
He rises to lay out the people's case.
14The Eternal will bring charges against those in positions of authority over His people.

Eternal One: You are charged with devouring everything in the
vineyard,
and leaving nothing for the needy.
You've ransacked the poor to fill your houses.
15*How dare you!* How dare you crush
My people,
and grind the faces of the poor
into the ground!

This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies has to say.

Eternal One: 16Because the daughters of Zion are so proud,
so preoccupied with themselves—
strutting and flirting, Skipping and dancing, winking and
giggling for attention—17I will shame them with unsightly
scabs on their heads,
these daughters who should be the pride of Zion, God's precious place.
I will make them feel naked
when I uncover their foreheads and make them bald.

Under God's judgment they will lose all the things they have that make others notice, desire, or envy them.

18-23When the time comes, the Lord will simply take away the jewelry for their ankles, heads, noses, arms, ears, wrists,

and fingers; these chains and gems,
baubles and bangles, sashes and veils,
perfume bottles and lucky charms, festive clothes and undergarments, purses and mirrors—everything that consumed their attention to get attention.

24Then instead of a lovely scent—they'll smell of decay;
instead of leather belts—they'll don
a rope;
Instead of a cut and style—they'll have bald heads;
instead of silky-soft fabric—
they'll put on scratchy burlap
sacks;
Instead of beauty—they'll be branded with shame.
25*Jerusalem,* your fathers and sons will be slaughtered,
your valiant protectors killed in
battle,
26And your gates will cry out in grief.
The city will sit in a heap on the ground, desolate and empty.

4 On that day, seven women will beg
the same man:

Women: Please, take away our shame.
We will support ourselves—eat our own bread, make our own clothes—just let us be called by your name.

► The prophet warns of a time when only a few of God's people will be left. The shredded fabric of families will leave the most vulnerable exposed and desperate. Women, who in this ancient Israelite society depend on relationships to men for social and financial security, will resort to doing whatever they can to survive beyond the deaths of their fathers, brothers, and husbands. Although the framework of their culture will seem to have crumbled, the story will move forward as the God of Israel remembers His own. There will always be a remnant of those who follow the Lord. Utter despair gives way to hope.

2Then, oh then, a tiny shoot cultivated and nurtured by the Eternal will emerge
new and green, promising beauty and glory.
Everything that comes from the earth will offer itself, lovely and magnificent, to those who escaped Israel's demise. 3Those who survived in precious Zion, all who remain in that special city, Jerusalem, will be called holy. They are destined to be alive, these remaining few, in Jerusalem.
4Then the Lord will wash away the filth that clung to the daughters of Zion and clean up the blood that stained Jerusalem's streets with a spirit of justice and the breath of fire. 5And the Eternal will create wonders over the whole of Mount Zion and those who gather there—cloud and smoke to dim the day, bright shining fire to light the night, all billowing over Zion's glory like a satin canopy. 6And it will be a resting place, protected from the heat of the day, a place of shelter and retreat amid storms and rain.

► This prophecy echoes stories of the great exodus, when God led Israel out of slavery in Egypt and guided them safely through the barren, rocky crags of the Sinai Peninsula. God was their comfort and sustainer, an ever-present guide and protection. The ancients spoke of traveling beneath the cool shade of a cloud by day and a pillar of warm, bright fire by night. Now the prophet sees ahead to a day when God will provide His people rest and comfort—a new exodus—in His chosen place, Zion.

5 Let me now sing for my dear friend,
a love song about his vineyard.
My friend, whom I dearly love,
had a vineyard on a fertile hill.
2He labored to prepare the ground, tilling
the soil and digging out rocks, and then he planted it with the best plants he could find.
In its midst, he built a watchtower over it and cut out a winepress in the hill nearby;
Then he waited, hoping it would be bountiful.
But the vineyard produced only wild,
bitter grapes.

Eternal One: 3 That's it. Enough. Now,
you who live in My special city, Jerusalem,
you people of this choice country, Judah,
Who's in the right—Me or My vineyard?
4 What else could I possibly have done to make it flourish?
Why, when I had every reason to expect great beauty and bushels of grapes,
Did it yield only wild, bitter fruit?

5 I'll tell you what I'm going to do,
what I've determined to do to My vineyard:
I'm going to take away its protective fence
and let the deer, raccoons, and rabbits devour it.
I'll break down its wall,
let the vines be eaten and trampled.
6 I will set it up for destruction—
do no pruning, no tilling—
And it will be overrun with nasty briars and thornbushes.
I will even order the clouds not to water it.

7 See here, the vineyard of the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies, is the house of Israel, His special people.
And the shoots and buds He nursed so lovingly along
are the people of this choice country, Judah.
He expected a paragon of justice and righteousness—
but everywhere injustice runs bloodred in the streets, and cries echo in the city!
8 Oh, how bad for those who hoard property and wealth,
buying up houses and fields, right and left,
Until there is no place left for anyone else;
you will find yourselves very alone in the midst of this great land!
9 I was there when the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies, told us what to expect.

Eternal One: Make no mistake about it: many houses will be abandoned.
Grand, beautiful houses with all the luxury will echo empty.

10 Huge investments in 10-acre vineyards will yield tiny dividends, mere gallons of wine.
Prime property planted with plenty of seed
will grow a nearly worthless amount of grain.

11 Oh, I can't help but groan for people who rise and drink without stopping from early morning to late evening
Until their passions and emotions burn within them.
12 They entertain themselves with lyres and harps, tambourines and flutes, and plenty of wine at their feasts.
But they don't think for a minute about all the Eternal has done.
They don't stop to consider the work of His hands.

Eternal One: 13 Make no mistake: My people are headed for exile
because they never took note;
Even the most honorable among them will endure hunger
while the majority will be parched with thirst.

14 Make no mistake: the force of death is insatiable.
The great gaping grave is opened wide
To swallow whole Jerusalem's opulence and pageantry—
her noble citizens and her common folk, all the raucous revelry.
15 Human beings will be cut down to size, one after another.
Those who walk around with their noses in the air will be humiliated.
16 By contrast, the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies, will be high and mighty because He judges fairly.
The holy God will be shown to be so because He does what is right.
17 At that time, Jerusalem will become a pasture where lambs graze, and foreigners will eat in the ruins where the wealthy once dined.

18 O how terrible for those who drag their guilt around,
worthlessness and wrongdoing in tow—

19They sneer, "Well, where is He? Let Him be quick about it!
Let's see this business of the Holy
One of Israel;
Let's see what He has in store so we can know what it is."
20O how terrible for those who confuse
good with evil,
right with wrong, light with dark,
sweet with bitter.
21O how terrible for those who think they're so wise,
who consider themselves so clever.
22O how terrible for those heroes who can outdrink anyone,
those champions who take pride in mixing drinks,
23Those judges who set the guilty free in exchange for "a little something,"
all the while denying the innocent
what they deserve!
24Therefore, as fire eats up the stubble and dry grass is engulfed by flames,
so it will be for everything they count on for the future—
Their roots will rot, their flowers will wither and fly away like dust, for they refused to accept the law of the Eternal, the Commander of
heavenly armies;
They derided and disparaged the word of the Holy One of Israel.

25It's no wonder the Eternal burns with anger at His people.
He has raised His hand against them
and crushed them,
So that the whole earth rang with the blow, and you couldn't move without stumbling over their corpses lying like trash in the street.
Despite all this, He's still very angry;
His hand is still raised; He's not done
yet.
26He will signal to distant nations,
and whistle for their armies: *unleash
the dogs of war*.
At breakneck speed they come,
a war machine like no other— 27Never tired, never weak;
no one needs to rest or sleep.
Not a belt needs tightening,
not a sandal strap needs fixing.
28Their arrows have been sharpened;
their bows have been bent, ready for action.
Their horses' hooves spark like flint;
their chariots' wheels spin like whirlwinds.
29*Their* roaring is deafening, like a lion, like a pack of roaring lions.
When they attack, they growl and
pounce on their prey, Carrying them away; no chance of a rescue.
30On that day, they will roar over this people like a roaring, angry sea,
and the land will go sorrowfully dark,
the light eclipsed by the clouds
of war.

6 In the same year that King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord sitting on a grand throne way up high with a flowing cape that filled the whole temple. 2*Bright* flaming creatures waited on Him. Each had six wings: two covering its face, two covering its feet, and two for flying. 3*Like some fiery choir,* they would call back and forth continually.

Flaming Creatures: Holy, holy, holy is the Eternal, the Commander
of heavenly armies!
The earth is filled with His glorious presence!

4They were so loud that the doorframes shook, and the holy house kept filling with smoke.

Isaiah: 5I am in so much trouble! I'm ruined!
I'm just a human being—*fallible
and stammering.*
My lips are encrusted with filth;
and I live among people just like me.
But here I am, and I've seen with my very own eyes
none other than the King, the Eternal, Commander of
heavenly armies.

6Then one of the flaming creatures flew to me holding a red-hot ember which it had taken from God's table, the temple altar, with a pair of tongs. 7The creature held it to my lips.

Flaming Creature: Look! With the touch of this burning ember
on your lips,
your guilt is turned away;
All your faults and wrongdoings are forgiven.

8Then I heard the Lord's voice.

Eternal One: Whom shall I send? Who will go for Us?

Isaiah: Here I am! Send me.

Eternal One: 9Go to this people and say,
"Keep listening, but do not comprehend;
Keep looking, but do not understand."*

10Make their hearts hard, their ears deaf, and their eyes blind.
Otherwise, they might see with their eyes, hear with their ears,
Understand with their hearts, and then turn and be healed.*

Isaiah: 11How long, Lord?

Eternal One: Until cities are in ruins,
the houses sit empty,
and the land has become a wasteland.

12*You see,* the Eternal has determined to move the people far away;
place after place will be completely abandoned.
13And even if just a tenth survive, it will be burned again;
imagine a terebinth or an oak; once it is cut down, the stump remains.
The holy seed remains in the stump.

The stump remains: a testament to what the people used to be, a promise of what is to come.

7 When Ahaz (Uzziah's grandson, Jotham's son) was king here in the Southern Kingdom of Judah, a coalition of two other kings—Pekah (Remaliah's son) from the Northern Kingdom (also called Israel and Ephraim) and Rezin from Aram (which is Syria)—determined to attack our capital Jerusalem. But they failed to take it. 2*This is what happened:* When our royal house (descended from David) heard that Aram was in league with Ephraim against us, the king was terrified. The news shook the hearts of the people like trees in the wind. 3So the Eternal told Isaiah to get involved.

Eternal One: Catch up with Ahaz at the end of the stream that comes out of the upper pool—you know, the one at the highway where they wash and bleach cloth. And bring your son who's named Shear-jashub (which means "Returning Remnant"). 4-6Tell Ahaz, "Keep your wits about you. Stay calm. Don't panic just because those two angry northerners, Rezin of Aram and Pekah (Remaliah's son), threaten you and say: 'Let's march against Judah, terrorize the people, overthrow it, and set up Tabeel's son as our puppet king.'"

God promised that David's dynasty would continue forever. Since Ahaz is of David's line, he should be confident before the threat. But he needs the support of God's prophet.

7Here is what the Eternal Lord has to say.

Eternal One: It's not going to work;
what they determine is not going to happen.
8-9The head of Aram is Damascus, and its head is King Rezin;
Ephraim's head is Samaria, and its king is Remaliah's son.
Ephraim will fall apart as a nation and as a people within 65 years.
Now then, if you don't hold firm, if you don't believe, you will not remain firm.

10The Eternal One also said this to our king, Ahaz:

Eternal One *(to Ahaz): 11Ask for proof, a sign from the Eternal your God. Go ahead, ask anything, anything at all; it can be high as heaven or as deep as the place of the dead.

Ahaz: 12*No way.* I wouldn't dare to ask, to test the Eternal One.

Isaiah: 13Listen then. You are none other than the house of David, the one who inherited God's promise of permanent kingship for David's descendants. Is it so easy to be a bore to people that you would exhaust God's patience too? 14*Suit yourself.* The Lord will give you a proof-sign anyway: See, a young maiden* will conceive. She will give birth to a son and name Him Immanuel, *that is, "God with us." 15*There will indeed be something*

* 6:9 Luke 8:10 * 6:9-10 Matthew 13:14-15; Mark 4:12; John 12:40; Acts 28:26-27 * 7:14 Greek manuscripts read, "virgin."
* 7:14 Matthew 1:23

Godlike about Him. He'll be eating curds and honey when he knows to choose what is right and good and refuse what is not. 16But before the boy has the wisdom to refuse evil and choose good the territory of the two kings you now dread will be abandoned.

17*But it's not all rosy for you, either.* The Eternal will bring against you, against this population, this blessed kingdom, such trouble as hasn't been seen since the 10 northern tribes, led by Ephraim, seceded from Judah—trouble in the form of the Assyrian king. 18At that time, the Eternal will summon the Egyptian flies and the stinging pests of Assyria, calling them 19to settle into every crack and crevice of the country, every place high and low—mountains, fields, deserts, and cities—every thornbush and watering hole. 20In that day, the Lord will hire the Assyrian king from beyond the Euphrates River to shave every part of you, humbling you like slaves. 21Each person will hang onto only what he or she absolutely needs—a heifer and two sheep—in order to survive. 22*But some will survive* because those who are left will eat curds and honey, for their animals will produce plenty of milk. 23*They will no longer live off the land because* wherever there had been flourishing vineyards with 1,000 vines, worth 1,000 pieces of silver, they will produce nothing but briars and thorns. 24No one will venture into this wasteland of briars and thorns without bow and arrow. 25No one will dare to cultivate the hills that once were tilled for fear of what is out there; only the hardiest animals—cattle and sheep—are released to graze the ragged slopes.

8 The Eternal told me to take a large tablet and write—"Swift the Spoils of War and Speedy Comes the Attacker"—2and to get believable witnesses, both the priest Uriah and Zechariah (Jeberechiah's son), to watch me do it. 3I approached the prophetess—a woman who, like me, speaks for God—and she became pregnant and had a son, whom the Eternal said I should name Maher-shalal-hash-baz (Swift-the-Spoils-of-War-and-Speedy-Comes-the-Attacker); 4because before he is old enough to say "My father" or "My mother" the wealth of Damascus and the spoil of Samaria will be carted off to become the property of their enemy, the king of Assyria.

► Prophets like Isaiah not only speak their messages, but they sometimes act them out. Isaiah is a master of both prophetic speech and prophetic acts. It is common for God to ask prophets to expose important aspects of their families' lives to demonstrate a message He wants to convey. Perhaps it is because the prophet speaks for God and Israel is God's family. In this case, God tells Isaiah to embed His message into the name of his child. And what is that message? "Ahaz, the two countries currently threatening you will soon be conquered by a greater power—Assyria. It will attack quickly, defeat soundly, and carry off the spoils of war from Damascus and Samaria. So there is no need to fear them; instead, trust in your God."

5The Eternal One explained to me,

Eternal One: 6*This disaster will happen*
because this people have rejected the stream of Shiloah
that flows gently to Zion.
Instead they rejoice over Rezin and Remaliah's son.
7Just watch—the Lord will overwhelm them
with great waves of the Euphrates River.
Like a river, Assyrian might and glory will bear down on
them;
it will rise over its banks as unstoppable as a raging flood.
8This Mesopotamian power will pour into Judah, rise and pass through,
wreaking near-fatal havoc.
And its reach will extend over all
your land.

God, be with us.

9*Go ahead,* make your alliances, you peoples, yet you'll be crushed.
Listen closely, even if you're far away:
Get ready for battle—get ready to be battered;
get ready for battle—get ready to be shattered.

No one wants to believe that God would use foreign power to wreak destruction on other lands and peoples. Yet, as God is holy, so God's place must be holy. He simply cannot dwell where holiness is not. He cannot make a larger-than-life Zion out of an earthly Jerusalem, unless that place (and its people, of course) are right. At best, these people seem to think that paying lip service to God is enough; at worst, they don't even care about God. A simple explanation is the people must be clean and holy. And this condition of rightness, holiness, and cleanliness is a product of how they are—in relation not only to God, but also to each other and the very land itself; these things are inseparable. The consequences of their failure to ensure the holiness of this sacred place by being right with God, land, and others are dire indeed. God must cleanse His people and place because He determines to be represented within and by them. So, better days will come again, and His covenant people will be set right and be happy and prosperous again.

10 Go ahead, devise your plans, but they will fail;
your proclamations won't matter
because God is with us.

11 See, this is what the Eternal told me.
God leaned in close—His strong hand on me—to keep me from following these
people.

Eternal One: 12 Don't call for an alliance, like all the rest of this
people do.
Don't fear what they fear, or dread what they dread.
13 After all, only the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly
armies, should terrify you.
Only God is holy. Only God should leave you trembling.
14 Look what I'm going to do in Zion:
The Eternal will be for you a sacred place,
But for both houses of Israel I'll also be a stone that blocks their
way
and a rock that trips them up;
For those who live in Jerusalem, I'll be a trap and a snare.
15 Many will stumble over them. They will trip and be broken;
they'll succumb to capture and be grabbed up.

God who provides a place of safety and security for those who trust in Him is the same God who puts obstacles in the way of those who disregard Him.

16 Now take care to keep this message as it is.
Seal up this teaching
and hand it over to my disciples.

17 As for me, I will wait for the Eternal, even though He feels absent, even though He has hidden His face from the family of Jacob. I will put all hope in Him. 18 You see, I and my children whom the Eternal One gave to me, we personify the promise. We are signs of what God intends and will do in Israel, what amazing things the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies has in mind, the One who is indeed present in Zion, this heaven on earth.

19 People might tell you to ask the fortune-tellers, consult the babbling astrologers, conjure the dead to tell the living what's to come, but shouldn't they ask their God? 20 Go to God's teaching and His testimony to guide your thoughts and behavior! If any response disagrees with the word of God, then it's muddling and wrong and not the least bit illuminating. 21 It leaves the people bedraggled and desperate, drifting here and there. In their hunger, the people are bound to be infuriated and curse their king and God. They'll look up to the heavens 22 and down to the earth, yet see nothing but trouble, gloom, anguish, and darkness. They will be driven out into the darkness.

When God's people haven't seen a hint of light or hope of day, God will do something new.

9 But there will be no more gloom for those who knew such hardship. In times past, God humbled the land of Zebulun and Naphtali; later, He will restore the honor and glory to the way of the sea, the land beyond the Jordan, Galilee, home of the nations.

2The people who had been living in darkness have seen a great light.
The light of life has shined on those who dwelt
in the shadowy darkness of death.
3*And You, God, will make it happen.* You bolstered the nation, making it great again. You have saturated it with joy.
Everyone in it is full of delight in Your presence,
like the joy they experience at the harvest,
like the thrill of dividing up the spoils of war.
4For as You did back in the day when Midian oppressed us,
You will shatter the yoke that burdens them,
You will lift the load that weighs them down,
You will break the rod of their oppressor.
5*It's true.* All the fabric of war will go up in flames:
the troops' heavy boots that stamped us down and their blood-soaked garb
Will all be burned beyond recognition or use.
There will be a new time, a fresh start.
6*Hope of all hopes, dream of our dreams,*
a child is born, sweet-breathed; a son is given to us: a living gift.
And even now, with tiny features and dewy hair, He is great.
The power of leadership, and the weight of authority, will rest on His shoulders.
His name? His name we'll know in many ways—
He will be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God,
Dear Father everlasting, ever-present never-failing,
Master of Wholeness, Prince of Peace.
7His leadership will bring such prosperity as you've never seen before— sustainable peace for all time.
This child: God's promise to David—
a throne forever, among us,
to restore sound leadership that cannot be perverted or shaken.
He will ensure justice without fail and absolute equity. Always.
The intense passion of the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, will carry this to completion.

8The Lord has dispatched a word against Jacob;
it will come down hard on Israel.
9All the people of Ephraim and the citizens of its capital Samaria will know.
In their pride and arrogance they say:
10"Hey! The walls have collapsed, but this gives us a chance to rebuild better than it was before with the best stones instead of brick.
The invaders may have chopped down the sycamores,
but we will plant cedars in their place."
11But the Eternal stirs up Rezin's enemies to move against Israel and arouses all their foes to join them.
12*They come, these enemies, from both sides* (Syrians on the east and Philistines on the west)
and consume Israel, swallowing it whole.
Still, God's anger smolders.
His hand is raised; there's more to come.

13But the people don't return to God after all His punishment.
They don't change their ways and right their paths
To seek the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies.
14Therefore, He will take them to task.
In a single day He'll cut off from Israel the head and the tail;
He'll cut down the noble palm and lowly reed.
15The head are those charged with leadership—political and religious—who used their power in the worst possible ways;
And the tail are the prophets who slur their lies.
16These misguided leaders have misled this people;
and those who follow have become swallowed up in their deceit.
17-18Even now the Lord takes no joy in a single one, not even the young.
Mercy has run out for even those without power—the widows and orphans.
For every single person is at fault and behaves badly.
No one thinks or acts as God would have them do.

Every mouth utters foolishness like a wildfire, out of control;
wickedness rages, leveling and clearing briars and thorns; Forests and thickets burn, leaving the whole a smoking heap.
Still, God's anger smolders. His hand is raised; there's more to come.
19The Eternal, the Commander of heavenly
armies,
sets our world on fire in His fury.
The rotten people become kindling for
the fire,
turning against one another until no
one is spared.
20They slice off what's on the right and are still hungry;
they eat what's on the left and still aren't satisfied.
And in their voracity, they consume their
own.

Ravenous in their greed, no one is spared—not brothers or sisters, not allies or kin.

21Manasseh and Ephraim devour each other
and turn their covetous eye south,
toward Judah.
Still, God's anger smolders. His hand is raised; there's more to come.

► Manasseh and Ephraim are family; they have a common language and common culture, and they come from common stock. In every way that matters they are brothers, but they are at war with each other. And they don't stop there. They turn against Judah, their southern relative. Amazingly, God has chosen them all to be His people, a nation of promise and destiny. How sad that it's come to this! What is God to do with His children? God will not abandon them, yet neither will God put up with their destructive consumption, their greed and injustices. Indeed, their wrongdoing takes its own course of self-destruction, and God will not stop it. Sometimes God's judgment consists of Him stepping back and leaving people to their devices—letting their will be done.

10 1-2How awful it will be for those who mandate
wickedness
and legalize oppression, denying justice to the needy,
Taking away the rights of the poor
among My people.
Such leaders intend to make helpless
widows and orphans their prey.
3How will you opportunists handle the day of reckoning?
What will you do when trouble
comes from far away?
Will you run away from the disaster you
caused?
Who will help you? Where will you leave all your wealth?
4You, too, must cower among the captives
or fall among the dead.
Still, God's anger smolders. His hand is
raised; there's more to come.
5*Hah! God has determined to let loose a* punishing disaster like you've never seen.

Eternal One: How awful it will be for Assyria, the rod of My anger,
as they come crashing in on you;
the club they bear is My fury.
6I am sending Assyria against a nation
that refuses to act rightly, delegating it to humble a people who have frustrated
and infuriated Me by their blithe
dismissal.
Assyria will snatch their wealth,
seize their treasures,
and trample over them like mud
in the streets.

7But they will get cocky. Assyria has its own intentions for destruction,
to move against other people and other places to cut them down.
8-9*The victories make them think they're*
invincible:
The king of Assyria says:
"Aren't all of my princes destined to be kings?
Calno fell just like Carchemish.
I took Hamath as easily as Arpad.
Samaria, too, fell like Damascus.
10My powerful hand has reached out to subdue kingdom after kingdom
whose idols were more famous and respected than those in Jerusalem and Samaria.
11Now I will move in and take over Jerusalem and her idols
as easily as I did in Samaria."

The Assyrians imagine that it is by their initiative and power that they gain control of these great cities and their populations. They are mistaken.

12God will punish Assyria and its king for their blasphemous rants and arrogant self-satisfaction once my Lord has finished using them to accomplish His purposes
here on Zion and in Jerusalem.

Assyrian King: 13I am so smart, so strong, so knowledgeable.
I am clearly superior to everyone else,
Moving easily into other countries and using them to suit my needs,
taking their treasures at will and humbling their citizens.
14I just reach out and take the land and the riches I want—from all over the earth—as easily as one gathers eggs
from a nest.
They don't flap their wings;
they don't make a sound, while
they look on helplessly.

15*But wow, are they ever mistaken! Assyria* seems to think it has used God.
Can an ax take credit instead of the one who swings it?
Is a saw better than the one who uses it?
Only if a club or rod can move on its
own.
16So the Lord, the Eternal, Commander of
heavenly armies,
will afflict Assyria's brawny soldiers
with disease,
And they will waste away to nothing.
God will kindle a roaring fire beneath
Assyria's fleeting glory.
17-18The light of God's people will be like a fire that burns up
the thorns and briars in a single day.
The Holy One will become a flame and make an end of all of Assyria's schemes.
God will consume the grandeur of his forest and fruitful fields;
He will consume both body and soul,
as when the sick grow weak and
waste away.
19So few trees will remain of his glorious forest
that a child could count them.

20Then, the few that remain of Israel, that handful of Jacob's people who escape,
Will finally quit depending on the power
of others (others who abuse and take advantage of them)
And will instead lean on the Eternal
One, the Holy One of Israel.
21This remnant of Jacob's people who endure and escape the great
destruction
will come back to the Mighty One, to the embrace of God.
22*But don't doubt*—though the number of the people of Israel
are like the sand of the sea,
Only a remnant of them will be rescued
and return to survive.
For destruction is sure—the matter settled—God is absolutely right to do so.
23For the Lord, the Eternal, Commander of
heavenly armies,
will carry out His destructive decree
over the whole land.*

24But as for the Holy City, Zion, the Lord,
the Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, has this to say:

Eternal One: Listen, My people living in Zion. Don't be afraid of Assyria even though that great and terrible nation batters and wounds you, presses its weight and might against you as Egypt once did. 25*Don't worry.* It won't be long until My anger against you will be over, and I'll turn it instead in Assyria's direction.

26The Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, will lash Assyria with His whip;
and Assyria will feel the crushing power of God's judgment just as the Midianites did at the rock of Oreb,* just as the Egyptians did when Moses raised his staff and drowned Pharaoh's army in the sea.*
27When that time comes, all the weight of Assyria will be lifted off of your shoulders; its yoke will be removed from your neck, and the burden of their assault and demands will evaporate, and you'll be free.

Isaiah describes the southern march of the Assyrian army. Village after village falls until the enemy is so close the clamor of its forces shakes the streets of Jerusalem.

* 10:22-23 Romans 9:27-28 * 10:26 Judges 7:25 * 10:26 Exodus 14:15-17

28 Oh, sure, first you'll feel that terrible force
coming on you from the north through Aiath and then Migron; at Michmash, they store their gear;
29 They take the mountain pass, and camp
at Geba for the night;
closer they come as Ramah trembles;
Saul's town Gibeah flees before them.
30 Cry out, Gallim! Heed the warning, Laishah!
Poor Anathoth!
31 Madmenah is on the run.
So, too, are the citizens of Gebim.
32 But today, they will stop their march at Nob
and shake their fists at beautiful Mount Zion, the mountain of Jerusalem.
33 But wait, look! The Lord, the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly armies,
will protect you;
He will cut the arrogant and self-
serving down to size.
With terrifying power He will prune Assyria's branches,
hack down the high and mighty,
and humble all those who think they're so great.
34 He will wield the ax and cut down the brushy undergrowth of the forest;
even the cedars of Lebanon fall before the Mighty One's blow.

11 But on this humbled ground, a tiny shoot, hopeful and promising,
will sprout from Jesse's stump;
A branch will emerge from his roots to bear fruit.
2 And on this child from David's line, the Spirit of the Eternal One will alight and rest.
By the Spirit of wisdom and discernment
He will shine like the dew.
By the Spirit of counsel and strength
He will judge fairly and act courageously.
By the Spirit of knowledge and reverence
of the Eternal One,
3 He will take pleasure in honoring
the Eternal.
He will determine fairness and equity;
He will consider more than what
meets the eye,
And weigh in more than what he's told.

4 So that even those who can't afford a good defense
will nevertheless get a fair and equitable judgment.
With just a word, He will end wickedness
and abolish oppression.
With nothing more than the breath
of His mouth, He will destroy evil.
5 He will clothe himself with righteousness
and truth;
the impulse to right wrongs will be in his blood.

With unwavering steps and integrity uncompromised, He will establish peace.

6 A day will come when the wolf will live peacefully beside the wobbly-
kneed lamb,
and the leopard will lie down with the young goat;
The calf and yearling, newborn and slow,
will rest secure with the lion;
and a little child will tend them all.
7 Bears will graze with the cows they used
to attack;
even their young will rest together,
and the lion will eat hay, like gentle oxen.
8-9 Neither will a baby who plays next to a cobra's hole
nor a toddler who sticks his hand
into a nest of vipers suffer harm.
All my holy mountain will be free of anything hurtful or destructive,
for as the waters fill the sea,
The entire earth will be filled with the knowledge of the Eternal.

10 Then on that day, that root from Jesse's line
will stand as a signal for the peoples of the world
Who will come to Him seeking guidance
and direction;
and glory will be restored to the land
where He resides.*

11 At that time, my Lord will reach out and gather in the remnant of His scattered people a second time. God's people, those who had been defeated and exiled, will make their way back from Assyria, Egypt, Pathros, Cush, Elam, Shinar, Hamath, and the islands of the sea.

12 When God raises a signal, the whole world will hear the news
of how He is assembling the people
He had banished,
Gathering those scattered from Judah
from across the whole wide earth.

* 11:10 Romans 15:12

► There are no capricious acts with God. God, and no one else, is the undoing of Israel. He may use Assyria as His agent to chastise the people of Judah for their wrongdoing, but judgment is never God's last move. When God judges—when God punishes—He does so for a reason. His judgment is always measured, finite, and based on His covenant loyalty. God takes no delight in His people's suffering; but sometimes, tragically, it is necessary. Willful ignorance and blatant disregard for God and others cannot be ignored. In the end, God's purpose is to repair a world deeply injured by sin and its consequences. So His next move is to rescue and restore His covenant partners. Reconciliation and grace always follow destruction.

13 At that time Ephraim will no longer envy
Judah,
those who afflict Judah will be brought down,
For those groups who had been at odds with each other—
envy and hostility will end.
14 But they will join forces against those who threaten them,
swooping down on the slopes of Philistia in the west, Plundering and prevailing over the nations in the east who oppressed
them:
Edom, Moab, and Ammon.
15 And the Eternal will make it easy,
so easy for God's people to return from Egypt and Assyria.
He will create a swath of dry land
through the gulf of Egypt's sea;
with a wave of His hand, He will blow a scorching wind
Over the Euphrates—breaking it up into seven streams—
so the people can cross it in their sandals.
16 He will build a highway for the remnant of His people as they leave Assyria behind,
just as He did for the Israelites when they left the land of Egypt.*

12 In the face of such grace that day, you will thank God.

People: Thank you, thank you, thank
you, Eternal One,
God of our people, of our promise

For establishing an end to our
punishment,
for taking me back with kindness, and comforting me.
2 See, God has come to rescue me;
I will trust in Him and not be
afraid,
For the Eternal, indeed, the Eternal is my strength and my song.
My very own God has rescued me.

God has given His people a new surety and confidence, a new sense of purpose, strength, and determination.

3 With joy in each step, you will drink deeply from the springs of
salvation.
4 You'll want to sing out that day,

People: Give thanks to the Eternal; call on His name.
Spread the news throughout the world of what He has done and how great is His name!

5 Sing praises to the Eternal!
Everyone, everywhere should know that God acts in amazing ways.
6 You who live in this God-blessed place,
this Zion, shout out and sing for
joy!
For God is great, and God is here— with us and around us—the Holy
One of Israel.

13 The burden of Babylon (Isaiah, Amoz's son, saw this message):

► Isaiah, like many prophets, bears a burden: speaking as God's mouthpiece in the world. But the burden he bears is nothing compared to the punishing burden Babylon will face for the violence it inflicts on the small nations it is annexing. Isaiah "sees"

* 11:16 Exodus 14:21

this message; no one knows how. Was it a vision? Was it a dream? Was it an insight gleaned from some ordinary moment in his extraordinary life?

Eternal One: 2Raise a signal on a bare mountaintop;
flash the message; broadcast it widely.
Shout out to the nations to assemble an army;
wave them on and welcome them
at the gates of the nobles.
3I have enlisted them to be the ones
to execute My fierce anger.
They are mine—I have commanded and consecrated them—these high and mighty ones.

4Listen! There is restlessness and rumbling on the mountains,
as a powerful company assembles.
Listen! There is an uproar among the
nations
as they gather their might together.
The Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies,
is mustering an army—thousands,
maybe millions—for war.
5They come from lands far away,
beyond distant horizons.
That's where the Eternal calls up His weapons of wrath—
in order to destroy the whole land!

6Cry out in terror!—the time is coming:
the day of the Eternal is nearly here,
Violence and destruction as only God-
All-Powerful can wreak.
7-8This is why all hands will shake and tremble;
every heart will flutter and melt.
People will be paralyzed with fear,
weakened with terror.
Taut and shaking, they'll be overcome like a woman in labor.
They'll look to each other dumbfounded,
their faces flushed with fear.

9See here! The fury of God has been building and is too great to stop;
the day of the Eternal is nearly here.
It will come down in all its cruelty, fury,
and fiery anger,
to make the land a wasteland, to wipe out all who failed God.

So complete, so persistent are the nation's sins that even the lights of heaven go out.

10For the stars that define the constellations in the heavens
will fail to give their light.
The sun will go dark even when it's high in the sky;
the moon will not shine.*

Eternal One: 11I will turn the world's wrongdoings back on itself.
I will punish those who act
wickedly.
I will stop the arrogant musings of
the proud and pompous,
and make them puny and weak.
12People will be a rarity in the land,
like great chunks of gold from Ophir.
13*Like nothing you've ever dreamed,*
the heavens will tremble and the earth itself will rock out of place,
When the fury of the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly
armies, is unleashed and the power of God's anger is loosed.
14Then, in their confusion and distress,
like a hunted gazelle or a neglected stray sheep,
They will turn to their own people and run for whatever seems
safe;
they'll try to escape to their own
land.
15*The terror rages on.* Anyone who's found will be run through with a sword.
Those who are caught will die by its cruel edge.
16Their babies will be dashed to pieces on the rocks as they look on in horror;
their houses will be ransacked,
and their wives will be raped.

17See, I'm rousing up the Medes against them; they are a people who kill indiscriminately and can't be bribed off with silver or gold.

18The young warriors will fall before their arrows;
not even infants or toddlers will receive mercy at their hands.

* 13:10 Matthew 24:29; Mark 13:24-25

19But afterward, the awesome and mighty city Babylon, pride of the Chaldeans,
will be razed to the ground like Sodom and Gomorrah, which God destroyed.
20It'll never be inhabited again, and future generations will never call it
home;
there Arab nomads won't pitch their tents; shepherds won't rest their flocks.
21Only desert animals will occupy the deserted city;
owls will nest in their formerly swept-clean houses.
Mangy jackals and wild goats will roam
among the rubble
and romp among the ruins.
22Hyenas will prowl around and howl
among its towers;
jackals will haunt its formerly palatial
palaces;
Babylon's time of destruction is coming;
her days are numbered.

14 For the Eternal will extend mercy to Jacob, this family of God's people. God will choose Israel all over again, and He will settle them in comfort and rest back on their land. Others who are unrelated will want to join them and stick close to the house of Jacob, God's promise people, 2who will take them in. These others will work for and among Israel. Whoever used to hold Israel captive—controlling the people's every moment and every move—will in turn be controlled by Israel; and whoever used to oppress Israel will instead be subject to Israel.

3*Ah, Israel,* there will be a time when the Eternal will give you rest from the burden of your labor, the pain of your servitude. 4And then you will take up this chant against the fallen king of Babylon:

People: How silent and still the oppressor;
the pressure is gone; the raging
is done!
5The Eternal has broken the hold of
the wicked,
snapped the staff and the scepter of tyrannical rulers.
6They would stop at nothing to beat,
batter, and bruise the nations, constantly raging as they hunted down and tyrannized
the peoples.
7The whole earth, mountains to sea,
breathes a sigh of relief;
the peace and quiet erupts into a lively, joyful song.
8The cypresses and cedars of Lebanon
rejoice at his demise, singing:
"You can't hurt us anymore. Now
that you've been cut down,
No one comes to cut us down!"

9*O Babylon,* the land of the dead is excited to greet you at its door.
Your king will enter the grave with ghastly pomp.
It stirs the shadows and spirits of the dead—all long forgotten
leaders—
it arouses all the dethroned
kings of the nations to welcome your arrival.
10These departed souls will respond to you with rattling voices,

Departed Souls: Even you, who were so powerful and unstoppable in life,
have been weakened just like us!
11All of your pomp and power and the music of your harps join you here
where the dead abide,
Where maggots squirm beneath
you,
where worms cover you like a blanket.

12My, how you've fallen from the heights of heaven!
O morning star, son of the dawn!
What a star you were, as you menaced and weakened the nations,
but now you've been cut down, fallen to earth.
13*Remember how* you said to yourself,
"I will ascend to heaven—reach higher and with more power—
and set my throne high above God's own stars?"
Remember how you thought you could be a god, saying:
"I will sit among them at the mount of assembly in the northern heights.
14I will rise above the highest clouds and make myself like the Most High"?
15*Hah!* Instead, you have sunk like a stone to where the dead abide.
You've hit bottom of the bottommost pit.

16People peer down at you from above,
and their curiosity overflows.

People: Wow, is this the man who once terrorized the world?
Is he the one who rocked the earth's kingdoms and threatened us with disaster?
17Is he the one who turned the bustling cities of the world
into a wasteland,
and never let the prisoners of war go home?

18While all the other world leaders are memorialized with honor,
and each occupies his own elaborate
tomb, 19You will be reviled and disgraced—your tomb desecrated,
your corpse thrown aside like a worthless branch.
Those slain in battle, pierced by swords,
will cover you;
you'll go down to the pit like a corpse
left on the battlefield.
20Because you wrecked your own land and killed your own people,
your corpse will not share in the honor of a proper burial.
May the offspring of such evil never be mentioned again;
don't speak their names or hear their tales.
21Let them be obliterated because of their fathers' wicked deeds
so that they never have a chance to follow in their steps, Terrorizing and possessing the earth,
filling up the world with their cities!
Then people can live in normalcy and
peace.

Eternal One: 22-24I will move against Babylon and put an end to her future generations. I will cut them off—leaving no survivors—so that your oppressors will become nameless and faceless shadows. I'll sweep that city with My broom of destruction and turn its pools into stagnant marshes and leave its ruins to be ruled by wild animals.

God swears that our oppressors will be punished. The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, makes this pledge.

Eternal One: Things will happen as I plan.
Things will be as I determine.
25I will break Assyria's hold on My land;
on mountain after mountain I will trample over them.
Then My people will no longer have to bow beneath the Assyrian yoke
or bear up under its heavy burden.
26Because I, God of earth and heaven,
have devised a plan for the whole earth;
I have reached out and am ready to effect change among the
nations.

27And who can argue with that or stand in God's way?
The Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, has determined
That this is how it should be.
And so it will be.

► While most of Isaiah's messages are directed to the people of Judah, he pronounces other oracles against neighboring nations and empires. This is typical of most prophets. Chapters 13–23 contain a number of oracles (or prophetic messages) addressed to the nations and cities such as Assyria, Philistia, Moab, Damascus, Cush, Egypt, Babylon, and others. Each message is distinct, for the sins of their citizens and the threats they face are unique to them. Still each message contains an overriding, dominant claim: God is sovereign over all the earth; and although He has a special relationship with Israel and Judah, all the nations must ultimately bow before God.

28When our king, Ahaz, died having endured and survived Assyria's attacks against us, the prophet received this message.

29Don't get too excited, Philistia, because your enemy is dead.
The rod that struck you may be
broken,
But from the root of the serpent, a viper
will come out;
the offspring of that viper will be a flying cobra.

30The poor among us will have enough
to eat;
the needy and most vulnerable will sleep in peace.
But I will go after your key people with
famine,
and then wipe out any who remain.
31Look out, Philistia; you will soon vanish!
Let your gates and your city walls
cry out!
It'll be bad for you soon, because an army from the north Is bearing down on you, burning cities in its wake;
and there is not a straggler in its ranks.

32So, how do we answer the ambassadors of the nations?
The Eternal has made Zion what it is—
And His humbled and afflicted people will find shelter there.

15 A message about Moab:
In the cover of night, Moab was attacked and decimated.
Both Ar and Kir were decimated in a single night.
2The whole community traipses up to the temple, to Dibon
to weep and cry out to the gods.
Moab weeps and wails over the dead in Nebo and Medeba,
every head and beard shaved *in
mourning.*
3They wander the streets dressed in
sackcloth;
on roofs and public places people wail,
collapsing in abundance of tears.
4The cries of Heshbon in the north and Elealeh nearby
reach to Jahaz in the east.
Moab is shaken to the core, wracked with terror, sadness, and grief;
even its bravest soldiers cry out.
5It breaks my heart to hear Moab.
Refugees make for Zoar at Edom's border to Eglath-shelishiyah.
They climb, weeping, to the heights of Luhith and along roads to Horonaim.
They go with shattering cries.
The land itself is destroyed, dead.
6Where it had been green and rippling with tall grasses, now it's brown and dusty.
Where sweet water glistened all along
Nimrim, now it's dry and desolate.
7So the people are carting away all their belongings.
Whatever they've gathered, they carry along the brook lined with poplars.
8And Moab cries; the whole country
wails.
From Eglaim to Beer-elim, you can hear the crying.
9The waters of Dimon run red with blood.

Eternal One: I will bring more disaster to Dimon: those fugitives of Moab will fare even worse—I'll send predators upon the remnant of the land to hunt them down.

16 A Refugee *(to the Moabites):
Bring tender lambs to the ruler of the land.
From Sela through the desert
to the beautiful mountain called Zion, maybe they'll let us in.
2And indeed like birds whose homes
were demolished,
like baby birds torn from their nests, Moab's daughters, scattered and fluttering, arrive at the fords, ready to cross the Arnon River.

(to Jerusalem) 3Give us your best advice and do what is right.
When the day is at its fiercest,
hide us in your cool shade.
Shield the trammeled and abused.
Keep your mouth shut when our enemy comes looking,
seeking us out.
4Let these refugees of Moab come in and stay.
Protect these tempest-tossed; be their hiding place,
a shelter safe from the destroyer.

See, when the one who has squeezed and oppressed you is gone and the forces of crushing violence
wane in the land,
5Then God will establish a royal throne, in
loyal love—
the One who rules there will be utterly reliable,
With absolute integrity under the auspices of David.
With a passion for justice, He will be quick to decide and do what
is right.

God's answer to Moab's plea for help is none other than the Messiah. One day David's son will take the throne and rule with absolute justice.

6 Oh yes, we've heard of Moab, how much they think of themselves—
so important, so valuable, so hot-tempered;
But we know it's just idle boasts.
7 Let them bemoan their destruction and fall—every last one of them.
Go ahead, mourn, all you who were struck down;
Cry for the raisin cakes of Kir-hareseth.

8 The productive fields of Heshbon are withering in the heat;
the choice vines of Sibmah are decimated.
The rulers of the nations are wreaking havoc across the land,
crushing its grape clusters and leveling its old stout vines.
Moab's tender shoots spread from Jazer to the desert,
then right down to the sea* and even across it.

9 This is why I cry salty tears over Jazer, over the vines of Sibmah and over the fields of Heshbon.
And God's-Ascent, Elealeh, I weep for you—over your branches,
once so green and strong, now broken and brown with death.
No one rejoices anymore over your fruits and harvest.

10 What joy these fields and orchards brought, what pleasure and delight, with their beauty, with their bounty.
But no more cheerful shouts accompany the harvest of the vineyards.
No one is left to press the grapes into wine.
I have silenced all your joyous shouting.
11 My heart hums like a harp with grief for you, Moab.
I ache with soul-sadness for Kir-hareseth.

12 When the people of Moab present themselves to their gods, when they weary themselves with frequent journeys to their high places, when they enter their sanctuary to pray, then they will find none of their gods are able to help them. 13 This is the message the Eternal gave Isaiah earlier about Moab. 14 But now He has another message.

Eternal One: In just three years—as a hired hand might count them—the power and prestige of Moab will come to an end. Its population will be killed and scattered; only a few, the poor and powerless, will survive the onslaught.

17 A message about Damascus:

► An ethnic group of Arameans control what will one day be the southern region of Syria; it is known as Aram. Damascus is its capital. Out of fear of Assyria and its brutal expansion west, Israel and Aram form an alliance and try to bully Judah and her king, Ahaz, into joining the futile confederation. But the prophet Isaiah holds a different opinion. He boldly instructs the king not to make any alliances or form any confederation as the Assyrian threat grows; instead, the prophet says, trust in God and God will protect you. But Israel and Aram attempt to force Judah into their alliance, unseating her king and replacing him with someone they can control. So Ahaz makes an alliance, not with Israel and Aram, but with their enemy, Assyria. When he asks for the empire's help, they eagerly agree. Although Assyria assists Ahaz in warding off one threat, Assyria itself constitutes an even greater threat as Judah will soon experience.

Eternal One: So much for the "city of Damascus."
It's done for. Soon it will be just a pile of rubble.
2 The towns around it* will empty of people and be turned back to open land.
Imagine—sheep grazing and lying down where people used to live.
There won't be a soul to scare them off.
3 The defenses of the Northern Kingdom, Israel, will fall—
Ephraim's fortress walls will tumble down;
Damascus will no longer rule itself.
Aram—what is left of them—will resemble Israel's fading glory.

* 16:8 The Dead Sea * 17:2 Hebrew manuscripts read, "cities of Aroer."

That's what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, says.

Eternal One: [4]Israel will be humbled
then too;
our cousins, the children of Jacob,
will lose their luster, their wealth and excess.
[5]The land will resemble a field stripped until it is nearly bare,
like when the harvest has come
and gone,
like the meager grain gleaned in the valley of Rephaim.

[6]But some gleanings will remain
like when olive trees are beaten, Where two or three olives remain at the top of a tree
and four or five hold on tight to its fruitful branches.

So says the Eternal One, Israel's God.

[7]Then, in that day, people will turn to the One who shaped them.
They'll look on the Creator, the Holy
One of Israel,
[8]And disregard the things they'd made into gods.
They'll turn away from worthless,
handmade objects, sacred poles,
and incense altars.

[9]And then, in that day, their great cities will be abandoned
like defenseless outposts in a hilly
forest,
Like those deserted when the Israelites took the land;
the scene will be eerily quiet and
empty.

Israel's devotion to things of their own making will come to nothing. If God is not the center of their work and striving, every gain is in fact a loss.

[10]You have proven forgetful of God—how God pulls you clear of danger,
how God stands firm, like a great Rock where you can take shelter.
Because you have forgotten the one True
God,
you planted pleasant gardens and set out tender vines of a strange god.
[11]They sprouted so quickly the day you set
them out;
they budded immediately the morning you planted them;
But you will never gather any sweet
grapes from them.
What you reap will be illness and pain; that day will be filled with sadness.

[12]Listen to the restless roar of the peoples!
They roar like a fitful sea.
Listen to the crashing thunder of the
nations;
they thunder like a powerful surge
of water.
[13]But even if they thunder like a wall of
water,
when God rebukes them, they will run far away;
With a word they'll be driven like chaff in a mountain gust
or dust in a windstorm.
[14]In the evening, look, their enemies
terrorize them;
but by morning, they're gone.
So it will be for those who attack and steal from us;
those who take, take, take will come
to nothing and run away.

18 O land abuzz with the whirring
of wings,
far away past the Ethiopian
rivers,
[2]With papyrus-reed boats shuttling
ambassadors back and forth!
Go quickly, you messengers, to those
impressive people,
Those fearsome and terrifying people so lank and smooth.
Theirs is a powerful nation divided
by rivers.

[3]All citizens of the world, every last inhabitant of the earth, pay
attention!
When you see a signal raised on the mountains, look!
When the trumpets sound the alarm,
listen!
[4]Because the Eternal told me,

Eternal One: I am in control—calm and serene.
I am watching quietly from where I dwell
Just as surely as the heat shimmers
in the blazing sun
and the dewy mists cool the warmth of a harvest day.

5For even before the harvest begins, when the buds blossom
and the flowers make way for the ripening grapes,
God will cut back their shoots with pruning shears,
lop off and clear away the spreading
branches.
6He will leave the trimmings for the birds of prey
and the wild animals on the mountain.
The vultures will feed on their flesh
during the summer,
and the wild animals will be nourished on their bones through the winter.

► At times God watches "behind the scenes" quietly, calmly. But when it is the right time, God knows where and how to act. Throughout history nations rise and fall, but God is as constant as the summer heat and the cool fall breezes. Many nations such as Ethiopia look for diplomatic solutions and alliances in the face of the Assyrian threat. But Isaiah counsels them to stand back and watch, for he knows what God is about to do. Before the harvest, that is, before the armed rebellion against Assyria is set to begin, God moves in, pruning, lopping, clearing, and preparing the world for a better day.

7Then those terrifying peoples—the lank
and smooth from far away,
from the land divided by rivers,
powerful and domineering—
Will honor the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, with gifts.
These proud people will bring them
to Mount Zion,
Where the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has placed His special name.

19 A message about Egypt:
The Eternal One will come winging in to Egypt
On a swiftly moving cloud, making her idols quake.
The Egyptians themselves will lose heart in the face of God.

2, 4The Lord, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, says,

Eternal One: I will subject the Egyptians to oppressive forces
and heartless leadership of a dictator-king.
I will make them turn against each
other,
Egyptian against Egyptian, a civil war,
Right down to the houses within a neighborhood—
city against city, district against district.*
3They'll lose all courage and I'll frustrate their plans.
They'll seek the advice of long dead ancestors and empty
idols,
mediums and fortune-tellers.
But it is I who determine their fate.

5-7Egypt's waterways and everything that lives in them will dry up and
die—
saltwater and fresh, standing pools and running streams will all evaporate.
All the reeds and rushes along the river's edge will wither and die and rot
away.
All the crops sown by the Nile will turn brittle and dry,
to be blown away—completely away—by sultry winds.

The people who depend on these waters for their livelihood will see their lives and future evaporate before them.

8Fishermen who set their lines and cast their nets into the Nile
will languish and mourn.
9Weavers who comb flax into spinning fibers
and produce linen will be deep in despair.
10The solid citizens of Egypt will be crushed,
and all who work hard for a day's wage will be deeply distressed.

11The leaders of Zoan are fools!
And those who count themselves
among the Pharaoh's smartest counselors

* 19:4 Verse 4 has been moved forward to help in the comprehension of the passage.

Base their advice on bizarre flights of fancy.
How can you tell Pharaoh,
"I am among the long line of Egypt's wise
and an heir of ancient kings"?
12I certainly don't see any such sages. If they're here,
they should be able to tell you what the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, has in store for Egypt.
13The elite, the nobles from the northern delta south to bustling Memphis, have been overconfident, deluded
fools.
These cornerstones of society have led Egypt in the wrong direction,
and Egypt pays the price.
14The Eternal has mixed them up and confused them.
God has frustrated Egypt's efforts in everything.
Weaving and sick like an everyday drunk.
15There will be nothing left for Egypt
to do.
Nobody—no head, no tail, no noble palm, no lowly reed—
will be able to help Egypt.

16Then, in that day, when the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, raises His hand and displays His power, the Egyptians will cower like frightened women. 17Egypt will even be terrified of our little Judah. Just the word "Judah" will set everyone trembling and shaking because of what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, plans to do against them.

18In that day, five cities in Egypt, one of which is called the city of destruction,* will adopt the language we speak in Canaan and swear to remain faithful to the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies.

19When that day arrives, there will be an altar for rituals, marking the Eternal's sacred space right there in the middle of Egypt, and a pillar erected to Him at its border. 20These will serve to notify everyone that the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, is present; God can and will be in Egypt. And if things get bad for them, the Eternal will respond to their cries for help by sending someone—a liberator and defender—to deliver them from their oppressors. 21The Eternal will make sure the Egyptians know Him. They will know and worship Him with gifts and praise, solemn promises and offerings. 22After all God's disciplining action, the Eternal will take them back with gentle care. After His punishment, there will be healing; the Egyptians will turn to Him, and He will hear and heal them.

Though Egypt and Assyria are mortal enemies, God is about to do something new for them both. The God of peace always seeks to make peace among the nations.

23When that day arrives, there will be a road connecting Egypt to Assyria and people of both nations will travel it to worship together, side-by-side. 24Our land of Israel, through which that road travels, will then be allied with these other great nations, and Israel will be a whole-earth blessing, the hub of proper worship. 25The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, declares such blessing:

Eternal One: Egypt, too, shall be blessed and called "My people" and Assyria "My doing," because I made it. Israel, of course, is simply Mine—now as before and as ever
will be—"My heritage."

20 In the same year that the Assyrian field marshal sent by Sargon II, who was king in Assyria at that time, attacked and successfully defeated Ashdod, 2Isaiah (Amoz's son) was told by the Eternal to deliver a message by acting it out.

► It is said "a picture is worth a thousand words." Too true: in order to communicate a spiritual message, sometimes God uses a physical action—something everyone can see or hear—much like a picture. In this instance the actions of Isaiah become the picture God wants His people to see. The prophet himself becomes the focus of attention as he demonstrates in shocking ways what God is intending to do to Israel's southern neighbors, Egypt and Ethiopia. God is able to speak with clarity because all attention is focused on this prophetic drama that is being played out before them.

* 19:18 Or "city of the sun," Heliopolis

Isaiah is given a vision of a frightening event. It comes roaring at him like a sandstorm blowing across the Negev. The vision is harsh and violent, but very real. The prophet describes this vision and the others like it as "burdens," for it is hard to bear such bad news. This particular vision is given to the "sea of Wilderness" or Babylon; it is the second prophecy predicting Babylon's punishment (chapters 13–14). He addresses a series of burdensome messages to other cities, nations, and peoples. What is common to all of these prophecies is that God is angry with these nations for the harsh way they treat His covenant people, and He will not just let it go. So God has decided to punish them, and He warns his prophet ahead of time what is about to happen. This message is welcome news to the Judeans who suffered beneath the cruel tyranny of these foreign powers. On the one hand, God used Judah's enemies to accomplish His purpose. On the other, they have overstepped the limit.

Eternal One: Take off all your clothes of mourning, and take off your shoes too.

Of course, Isaiah did that, which left him utterly naked, head to toe.

Eternal One: [3]My servant Isaiah has walked around naked and barefoot for three years as a sign that Egypt and Ethiopia will be stripped of everything. [4]Assyria will take away Egypt's captives and Ethiopia's exiles, young and old alike, naked and barefoot as slaves. The Egyptians' shameful impotence and their bare behinds will be on display for all to see as they are driven away by the Assyrians. [5]They will be mortified and humiliated, for they depended on each other, confident that Egypt and Ethiopia could withstand Assyrian assault. [6]In the face of it, people along the coastland, like Ashdod, will say, "If countries like those that we counted on for support and security are falling to the might of Assyria's king, we don't have a chance!"

21 A message about the Sea of Wilderness (Babylon):

From the desert, from a frightening land
it comes
like a raging tempest, a sandstorm in the Negev.

[2]A vision most harsh came to me:
The deceiver deceives,
and the abuser abuses.
Get up and go, Elam;
and Media, cut off supplies!
All groaning will cease; I've put an end to the sounds of misery.
[3]My stomach sinks. My gut churns with pain.
As a woman in labor wrenches and writhes, I can hardly bear the news.
I cannot hear because I'm bent over with agony.
I cannot see because I'm deep in the fog of depression.
[4]My heart skips a beat; my mind is buzzing, terribly unsettled.
Horror and trembling rattle the serenity of the evening I longed
for.
[5]Meanwhile, the ones who are in charge
are spreading out a feast, eating and drinking just like normal.
I want to say to them:
"Get up, officers.
Oil your shields, and be prepared!"
[6]Because the Eternal has told me,

Eternal One: Get someone to keep an eye on things.
Have him report whatever he sees.
[7]Tell him to watch closely for riders
on teams of horses, donkeys,
and camels.
If he sees them, put him on full alert.

Sentinel: [8]I stand guard at the watchtower, Lord, day after day.
I never leave my post during the
night.

[9]Look! They're coming just as you said: a chariot driver and a team of horses.
The driver tells me "Babylon is fallen!
Our oppressor has fallen and all their idols,
worthless imposters of the one True God, are shattered on
the ground."

10O, my people, who have been threshed and winnowed like wheat,
I am telling you what the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly armies,
Israel's God, said.

11A message about Duma:
Someone is calling me from Seir.

Edomite (to a sentinel): How much remains of this night?
How long until morning?

Sentinel: 12Morning is coming, you can be sure of it.
But night will quickly follow.
If you want to know, then check back later.

13A message about Arabia:

Spend the night in the forests of Arabia,
off the beaten path,
O caravans from Dedan.
14Hey, people of Tema, bring them supplies,
water for the thirsty and food for the refugees.
15They're on the run, refugees tired of war,
trying to escape the edge of the sword, the bent bow,
And the imminent threat of battle.

Eternal One (to Isaiah): 16Within a year—
as a hired hand might count it—Kedar will be finished. All that made it so impressive will crumble. 17As for its archers and mighty warriors, they will all but disappear.

It will happen because the Eternal, the God of Israel, said so.

22 A message about the valley of Vision*:

What in the world is wrong with you?
Why have you climbed on your housetops and started celebrating?
2What noise! The whole city is in an uproar.
Don't you realize that your fallen comrades didn't actually die
fighting,
3That your leaders turned tail together and ran,
only to be captured without a fight,
without even drawing their
weapons?
The rest of you tried to run far away
but were still captured.
4This is why I said, "Just leave me alone;
let me weep bitterly over this travesty.
Don't tell me it's not that bad, or that everything will be all right.
We're talking about the destruction of my cherished people!"
5The Lord, the Eternal, Commander of
heavenly armies,
determined that this would be the time for destruction—
Smashing and crashing, wreaking havoc and chaos in the valley of Vision, battering down walls and crying out to the mountains.
6*You tried,* but how could you hold off
Elam's skilled archers with chariots and horsemen and Kir's soldiers—shields held high.
7*The invader's* chariots overran your pristine valleys,
and their horsemen made their stand
at the city gates.
8But God simply did away with Judah's defenses.
In that day you put your trust in weapons stored in the armory.
9You began to fix the many breaks in the walls of the city of David.
You stocked up on water from the lower pool.
10You took stock of the houses in Jerusalem,
and began to dismantle them stone-
by-stone to shore up the city wall.
11You built a reservoir between two walls
to hold the water of the old pool.
But in all this you neglected the One who could really save you;
You failed to consider the One who actually made this place
and established it so long ago.

12Consequently, the Lord, the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly armies,
determined that day would be a time
of weeping and regret,
A time of shaved heads and donning
sackcloth
and a time for mourning.
13Yet you missed the point and made merry, slaughtering cattle and sheep for a giant celebration,
Eating and drinking your fill of wine!

People (to each other): Eat up, drink up,
for tomorrow we die.*

* 22:1 A reference to Jerusalem * 22:13 1 Corinthians 15:32

This message beginning with verse 15 is laid on the people of God living in and around Jerusalem. The prophet's word is a corrective to those who proudly and confidently presume that they enjoy a privileged status with God by virtue of where they live and who their ancestors are. After all, God has pledged to King David that his dynasty will continue. The Judeans assume this means they will not have to worry about their enemies, regardless of how faithful or faithless they are to God. So when the enemy threat materializes on their border and moves right into bow-shot, they do what most people do: they make reasonable, defensive preparations. But what they forget to do is key: they forget to turn to God. They put their trust in their weapons and their engineering skills. They ignore the One who established the city and made them a nation in the first place. So God tells Isaiah to have a talk with Shebna, the caretaker of the royal palace. God is about to make a change.

Eternal One (to Isaiah): 14This sin will not be forgiven.
It will stay with you until your dying day.

That's what the Lord, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, said.

Eternal One:* 15Come on. Go to Shebna, the caretaker of the
royal household,
and confront him saying, 16"Why are you here, anyway? Do you really belong here?
What right do you have to build yourself an elegant tomb
And stone monument here out of the rock on this hill?
17Look, strong man! The Eternal is about to throw you out, wildly, violently. With a firm grasp 18He will crush you like a ball—hurl
you deep into a land
far, far away where you go to die.
You will be known as the shame of your master's house
and your splendid chariots will lie empty.
19I will see to it that you're driven from your post, toppled from your position,
*with all the disgrace and shame
that you deserve.*
20When that day comes, I will summon My faithful servant;
Eliakim the son of Hilkiah will be called 21To take over and assume your authority and office.
I will clothe him in your royal robes and fasten your sash securely around him.
He will be a father to the people:
He will have authority over Jerusalem and Judah.
22I will grant him the key to David's royal house and no one can shut what he opens;
no one can open what he shuts.
23I will attach him securely like a peg
to that house,
and he will bring honor to his father and his family.
24On him will hang all the riches,
all the honor, of his family's
future.
25On the appointed day, the peg that was attached so securely to that house
will become weak, break off, and fall to the ground.
And everything that had been hung on it will fall down and shatter.

The Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, has declared it to be so.

23

A message about Tyre:

► For a period under David and Solomon, the Israelites live in harmony with their neighbors. But jealousy and envy are frequently under the surface. The people of Israel occupy a key location that becomes a battleground for domination by world powers because of its important trade routes. At some point, every single one of

* 22:15 "The Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies" has been shifted to the end of the discourse (verse 25) to avoid confusing the identity of the speaker.

Israel's neighbors attacks and abuses this little nation. This oracle has to do primarily with the city of Tyre, a port on the Phoenician coast famous for the people's advanced technologies and skills in shipbuilding, sailing, and trading. But those who sail across the Mediterranean so easily are getting ready to face hard times.

Cry out in anguish, you who travel the Mediterranean from east to west!
Cry out, Tarshishian ships, because Tyre is no more.
It is devastated—no houses, no harbor—
nothing is left.
The people from Cyprus have witnessed it.
2Grieve quietly, you people along the coast,
you merchants of Sidon, who cross
the sea.
3You go through great waters in boats
filled with the grain of Shihor;
the harvest of the Nile was Tyre's
revenue;
She was the marketplace of the
nations.
4Shame runs deep for Sidon since the sea
has said,
"I bore and raised no sons or daughters as my own."
5Egypt will be terribly upset, too,
when they learn about Tyre's
destruction.
6So you who live along the coast,
make for Tarshish, and bewail your fate.
7*One wonders:* could this really be the same city?
It was so jubilant, so magnificent, so
commanding for its trade.
Is this the city that's been around longer than memory
and her citizens have traveled to exotic, faraway places?
8Tyre's merchants and traders were princes and nobles,
respected everywhere around the
world.
Who did this to Tyre,
a city that awards honor with crowns?
9The Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, has determined,
Tyre should be destroyed, wrecked,
and disgraced
To spoil the foolish arrogance of all glory
and to show how insignificant earthly honors are.
10People of Tarshish, you should traverse your land as if it were the Nile.
With Tyre out of the way, there's nothing to stop you anymore.
11God's power extends across the sea;
He has terrified the nations,
turning Canaan loose against them
to demolish their fortresses.

Eternal One: 12The celebration is over, downtrodden virgin daughter of Sidon.
There's nothing left of you to take pride in.
Go ahead, pack up and move to Cyprus.
But you still won't find rest.

13Just look at the land of the Chaldeans in southern Mesopotamia. There are no such people anymore. The Assyrians came along, took it over, and left it for the desert animals; they built their siege machines, stripped its palaces, and determined that it should be ruined.

14Cry out in anguish, ships of Tarshish
because your fortress is no more.

15Tyre will be forgotten for 70 years—the lifespan of a king. After that Tyre's fate will be like the song of the prostitute:

16"O forgotten woman, yesterday's
prostitute,
take up a harp, and walk about the
city.
Play it well, and sing your melodies,
so you will be remembered."

17When 70 years have passed, the Eternal will visit Tyre, and she'll return to her wicked ways—selling herself to all the countries of the world. 18But everything Tyre earns—her profit, her goods—won't be stored or saved: all will be devoted to the Eternal; her stocks will supply all the food and fine clothing needed by those who serve in the presence of the Eternal One.

24 See here, the Eternal One will empty the earth.
He will lay it waste, contort
the mountains and plains,
And scatter its inhabitants all over the
place.

2 Things will be topsy-turvy, hierarchies
upended. No one will be safe, not laypeople or priests, not servants
or masters,
not maids or mistresses, not buyers
or sellers,
not lenders or borrowers, not debtors or creditors.
3 The earth will be emptied, all emptied,
despoiled, utterly despoiled.
The Eternal said that it should be so.

4 So the earth mourns, droops wearily
down;
the world languishes and droops;
the high and mighty languish in grief.
5 The earth is polluted by those who live
on it;
they pay no attention to God's
teaching.
They violate His directives and break
the everlasting covenant.
6 Consequently, a nasty curse consumes
the earth,
and those who inhabit it are to blame for it.
They'll be burned up,
leaving very few people to survive.
7 Luscious wine grapes shrivel to nothing.
The vines rot, and everyone who had taken joy from their nectar sighs in deep depression.
8 No more music, no more songs, no more dancing to tambourines, laughing with revelers, or playing the harps.
9 People don't drink wine and sing with pleasure anymore;
the stronger stuff is mostly bitter to those who drink it.
10 The chaotic city is in shambles, and every house is boarded up so no one can go in.
11 People rebel in the streets, demanding
wine.
All joy turns to gloom; happiness has been banished from the land.
12 In the city nothing is left but desolation,
and the gate is battered and ruined.

13 This is how it will be on the earth for the
nations—
only a few survivors will be left—as when an olive tree is shaken and a few olives hold on or when the grape harvest is in and a few grapes remain for gleaning.

14 But people will take joy again.
They will shout out and sing
of the Eternal One's majesty across the ocean.
15 Join in the song and praise the Eternal from the east.
Praise the Eternal, the God of Israel,
all along the coast of the sea.

16 Listen and you can hear the merry voices from the corners of the earth
singing, "Honor to the Righteous
One." But as for me,
I say, "I am wasting away, wasting away.
Woe is me!
I can see treachery, treachery, and it wears me down.
Traitors deal in treachery."

17 Terror, pit, and trap face you,
you people of the earth.
18 And whoever runs from the sound of terror will only fall into a pit;
when he climbs out of the pit, he'll run and be caught in a trap.
The sky above will open up and the ground below will quake—
nothing will be safe.
19 The earth is broken and shattered and splits apart.
It shakes and quakes violently.
20 Like a drunk, the earth staggers and reels;
it shudders and shakes, like a shack
in the wind.
For its rebellion weighs so heavily on it,
that it will fall
and have no chance for repair.

21 On that day, even the heavenly powers and earthly rulers
will feel the Eternal's punishing
wrath.
22 They'll be gathered up like prisoners,
thrown in a dungeon,
and suffer the punishment of God
after many days.
23 A shadow of shame will settle over the full moon and bright sun,
and their brilliance will begin to fade;
for the Eternal, Commander of
heavenly armies,
Will rule from His chosen place on earth—Mount Zion in Jerusalem, and His glory will shine out with brilliance for the elders to see.

25 Eternal One, You are my God.
I will lift You up and praise
Your name.

Because You have made wonders marvelous and beautiful—
the most ancient designs holding strong and sure.
2*Your power is awesome.* You have brought down whole cities,
turned fortresses and strongholds
into piles of sticks and rubble.
A citadel of foreigners is no longer even a city.
Those structures are gone forever.
3This is why nations strong and mighty
will glorify You;
the cities of ruthless people will fear
and respect You.

4Because You stand up for the poor and weak,
You comfort and empower them in their distress,
Giving them safe harbor and cool shade
when it's hot;
You shelter them from their oppressors' blows
As a strong wall holds back the driving
rain.
5*You shelter* from the relentless heat of the desert.
You quiet the clamor of outsiders,
ease them to stillness.
Like a full, dark cloud relieves the heat,
You silence the arrogant song of the violent.

6The Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, is preparing a feast,
a feast for everyone on this mystical
mountain
With aged wine and good food, the finest wine and choicest meat.
7And God will swallow up the oppression that weighs us down.
He will take away the heavy shroud that is draped over all peoples of the
world.
8God will swallow up death forever.
The Lord, the Eternal, will wipe away
the tears from each and every face And deflect the scorn and shame His people endure from the whole
world,
for the Eternal determined that it should be so.
9And in that moment, at that glorious time, people will say,

People: This is our God! We put our hope in him.
We knew that He would save us!
This is our God, the Eternal for whom we waited.
Let us rejoice and celebrate in His liberation.

10For on this mountain, the powerful hand
of the Eternal abides.
He will smash and tread Moab like straw on manure.
11And God will reach out, like a swimmer
pulling water,
and drag down their arrogance and everything that made them proud.
12God will bring down their strongest walls, their impenetrable defenses, and grind them to the ground until they are only dust.

26 When that time arrives, the people of this place called Judah
will sing this song:

People: By the grace of God, our city is
strong;
its structures and defenses He made secure.
2Now open the gates to welcome the
righteous,
so that those who keep faith
may enter in.
3You will keep the peace, a perfect
peace, for all who trust in You,
for those who dedicate their hearts and minds to You.
4So trust in the Eternal One forever,
for He is like a great Rock—strong, stable, trustworthy,
and lasting.
5He humbles the high and mighty.
Even the indomitable city falls before His strength, reducing it to dust.
6The feet of the poor, the weak, the infirm and forgotten will trample the dust of the formerly great.

7The path of those who do right is straight and smooth.
O God, You who are upright, You make the way of the righteous level.
8When we act in justice and righteousness—following Your laws—we wait for You.
We are eager to hear Your holy name
and remember Your ways.
9At night I long for You with all that is in Me.
When morning comes, I seek You
with all my heart.
For when Your justice is done on earth,
then everyone in the world will learn
righteousness.

10If grace is extended to those who do wrong,
the perpetrators never learn what is right.
Even when surrounded by upright people, they gravitate to evil
and never even notice the awesome beauty of the Eternal.
11O Eternal One, even when Your hand is raised against them, they do not see it.
When they finally do see how passionately
You act on the people's behalf, they will be ashamed.
Ah, let the fire that consumes Your enemies consume them.
12Eternal One, You are preparing peace for us;
in fact, everything we have accomplished has come from You.
13Others have tried to rule over us,
but You, Eternal One, are our God.
At the end of the day, when all is done,
we acknowledge only You.
14But now these would-be rulers are dead, never to live again;
these shadowy spirits will never rise.
You have punished and utterly destroyed them—
You erased every memory of them.
15*By contrast* You have made this people great, Eternal One—made this nation vital and strong. To you be all glory!
You have expanded the borders of this land.

16When You corrected their wrongdoing, Eternal One,
they could hardly even whisper a prayer.
Weak with distress, they looked to You for help.
17You witnessed us twist and turn before You, O Eternal,
like a birthing woman in agony of labor.
18We were that woman, laboring to deliver,
but we gave birth only to futility and emptiness.
We couldn't deliver the earth, save it, renew it.
We couldn't make it teem with life.
19But Your dead will live; their lifeless bodies will rise up again!
You who sleep in the dust, get up and shout for joy!
The dew of a new day will wash you glistening fresh,
and the earth will push forth those who had passed before.

20O my people, hide in your rooms for a time. Shut the doors behind you and hide away until God's anger has passed.
21See here, the Eternal One will emerge from His place
to punish the earth's inhabitants for their wrongdoing.
The earth will not hide the blood that has been spilled into her dust;
she will no longer cover those who have been murdered.

27 On that day, the Eternal One will unsheathe His sword—fierce, great, and strong—and punish the monster of chaos and terror, Leviathan the fleeing serpent. He will strike Leviathan, the twisting serpent, and slay the dragon of the sea.
2In that day, O joy, sing out about the vineyard most fruitful.

Eternal One: 3I, the Eternal One, tend and keep this vineyard;
I water and guard it day and night,
Protecting it against any that might wish to harm it.
4I am empty of anger.
If it produces nasty weeds and thorns,
I will simply stomp them down and burn them up.
5But let My vineyard look to Me for protection and nurture;
let it seek My peace;
let it seek My peace.
6In days to come this people, Jacob, will take root;
Israel, My promise people, will burst into bloom
And fill the whole world with fruit to enjoy.

7Has God struck Israel as He struck those who struck her?
Has she been killed as her killers were killed?
8By driving her away, You have dealt with her;
You blew her away with a fierce blast
As when the east wind comes ripping through.
You sent her away to live as strangers in a foreign land.

9In this way, the people descended from
Jacob will have their sins forgiven.
This is how they'll pay in full the penalty for their wrongdoing—
When God crumbles all the stones of their altars into dust like chalk,
and when not one of their sacred poles and incense altars is left standing.

10The city that had been so strong and vibrant is isolated and alone, abandoned,
a deserted wilderness.
Calves munch through it, lounging
around
and eating whatever twigs dare to shoot up.
11When the branches are dead and dried and broken,
women will gather and burn them up.
For these people are foolish and lack
understanding,
so their Creator will not be compassionate toward them.
Though He made them, He will not show them favor.

12On that day, people of Israel—people of promise—the Eternal will thresh the lands from the Euphrates to the Nile, from Mesopotamia to Egypt, and gather you up one by one. 13With a great trumpet blast, everyone who was dying in captivity—in Assyria and Egypt—will come to worship the Eternal on the holy mountain that is Jerusalem.

28 Oh, it will be bad for you drunkards of Ephraim.
That once proud elegance
of yours
Now droops and falls like a fading flower.
You leaders of the fertile valley are now drowning in your own wine.

Samaria overlooks the finest land in Israel. But these are the last days for this fading flower because God has selected Assyria as His agent of judgment.

2Look well—the Eternal has called up one who is fierce and mighty.
Like a powerful hailstorm followed by destructive winds,
Like a storm that spawns devastating floods,
God's agent will drive Ephraim down and smash him to earth.

3Then the tarnished elegance of intoxicated Ephraim will lie trampled in the dirt.
4And the fading flower of its glorious beauty that crowned Ephraim's fertile valley Will be snatched up and consumed as soon as someone sees it,
like the first ripened fig before summer.
5In that day the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, will be a beautiful crown,
a glorious diadem, for His people
who survive.
6*He will be* a spirit of justice to those who sit in judgment
and a source of strength to those who battle at the gate.
7*Ah, what contrast to* the drunken and bumbling priests and prophets who can't even see straight, whose minds are addled,
Whose steps wobble, whose visions
mislead,
whose judgments waver, because of all their drinking.
8There's vomit on all of the tables,
filth all over the place.
9*The priests and prophets mock:*
"Who is left for God to instruct in
knowledge?
Who will listen and understand His message?
Maybe those infants just weaned off of milk,
those innocents just taken from the breast?
10For here is how it goes: Command after command. Command on top of
command.
Rule after rule. Rule on top of rule. A little here, A little there."
11For now that God's people reject His message,
He will speak to them through the stammering lips
And foreign language of an invader.*

Eternal One: 12This is the way: here is rest for the weary.
I am showing you rest.

But they wouldn't listen to Him.*
13And so the word of the Eternal One to them will be just as they said:
"Command after command.
Command on top of command.
Rule after rule. Rule on top of rule. A little here, a little there."

* 28:11 1 Corinthians 14:21 * 28:12 1 Corinthians 14:21

For generation after generation of God's people who have watched their country being attacked repeatedly and humbled by their enemies, Isaiah's words must provide a great deal of comfort. Nothing could be more traumatic than to know that the temple to the one True God is under siege and finally destroyed. When Isaiah's words are heard, many audiences must think of a restored temple in Jerusalem. God Himself is promising to lay the foundation for that restored temple, assuring that those who trust in His work will never have to rush around again to figure out how to save themselves from another invader. God's foundation will hold firm, no matter what, so there is every reason to be confident.

Early Christians see in Isaiah's message a promise of a new temple, a temple not made with hands. Simon, whom Jesus names "Rock" (Peter), refers to this prophecy when he writes of believers coming to Jesus to form a spiritual house (1 Peter 2:6). Jesus' followers confess Him to be the stone that forms the foundation for God's new temple. He is the cornerstone: though rejected by some, He is chosen and precious in God's sight.

But they'll go and fail. They'll fall back, broken and trapped,
and be taken away by another people.
14*Let this be a warning,* the Eternal's word to you sarcastic jokesters,
you leaders in Jerusalem.
15For you have made an audacious claim:

Leaders: We have made a pact with death; we've made a deal with the grave.
When the scourge of disease and doom comes our way, they won't touch us.
Death and the grave will pass us by for our fraud disguises us, and deception is our shield.

16So the Lord, the Eternal, has this to say:

Eternal One: See here, I am laying in Zion a stone, a tested stone—
a cornerstone, chosen and precious—for a firm foundation.
Whoever trusts in it will never be disgraced.*

17Justice will be the line by which I lay out its floor plan,
and righteousness will be My leveling tool.
A hailstorm will pulverize and wash away the fraud and deception
behind which people hide,
and floodwaters will overrun their hiding place.

18Then your pact with death and the grave
will be annulled.
When the scourge that you fear
comes along,
It will find you and pummel you down.
19Whenever it does come your way, it will grab you.
It could be anytime—morning, noon,
or night.
To fathom its message will be sheer terror.
20The bed is too short to stretch out and the blanket is too small for you to hide in or pretend you are not here.

21For the Eternal will stand as He did at Mount Perazim
and shake it all up as He did in Gibeon Valley,
To accomplish whatever it is that God
wills to accomplish—
strange deeds indeed.
22So don't keep laughing it off, or your chains will be made even stronger.
For I heard from the Lord, the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly armies,
that an absolute end has been determined for the whole earth.
23Pay attention! Listen well;
take care to hear my words.
24Does a farmer constantly plow and turn the soil to plant his seed?
No, of course not.
25When he's leveled and tilled the soil, doesn't he plant each seed according to its specifications?
He scatters the dill, sows the cummin,
plants the wheat in rows,
puts barley and spelt where they grow best.

* 28:16 Romans 9:33; 10:11; 1 Peter 2:6

26God instructs and directs the farmer
in how best to manage the land.
27For dill isn't threshed with a sledge,
and you don't roll a cart over the cummin.
Dill is properly beaten free with one kind of stick,
and cummin with another.
28*Similarly,* you have to grind grain to have flour for bread,
but you don't grind it endlessly.
When the wheel on the cart and the horses go over the grain,
you must be careful not to crush it.
29The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies,
is the source of such wisdom.
His advice is wonderful.

29 O Ariel, woe to you Ariel, our Jerusalem,
where David set up his camp to stay.
Go ahead, go on with your fruitless festivals,
your calendar of events, year in and year out.
2*In the meantime,* I will trouble Ariel to the point of mourning and crying.
She will be for me a fiery hearth.
3I will surround you, enclose you, cut you off.
I will isolate you from aid or reprieve;
I will attack the city walls with towers and siege works.
4That will humble you so low, you'll speak from the earth itself.
And when you do, your voice will issue from the very dust where you lie;
Your voice will rise from the ground like the voice of a ghost,
like a soft whisper from the earth.
5But in an instant your ruthless enemies, who seem too many to count,
will become as fluttering dust, as wind-driven chaff.
They will be blown away in the snap of a finger.
6For the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, will visit you with thunder and earthquake and great noise,
With raging wind and tempest and consuming fire.
7And all those armies intent on destroying Ariel,
that great international coalition of Jerusalem's enemies
Battering against the city of God, will disappear.
They'll evaporate like a night's dream in the light of day.
8As when a starving person dreams of eating at a banquet and wakes hungry, or a thirsty person drinking his fill in sleepy night visions Finds himself still parched when the morning comes,
that's how it will be for the horde attacking Mount Zion, His chosen place.
9But it will take some time. Wait and wonder.
In the meantime, make yourselves unable to see or understand.
Make yourselves drunk and unsteady, but not from wine or liquor.
10For the Eternal One has poured you a cup of sleep—
deep, heavy sleep.
O prophets and seers, He has closed your eyes and covered your heads.

11-12Everything God is disclosing to you will be like the words recorded in a book that is sealed. When it is given to one who is literate, he can't read it because it is sealed. When it is given to one who is illiterate, he can't read it because he doesn't know how.

The prophet's message seems inaccessible or unintelligible to many. For some, a few rituals are enough. But a relationship with God demands a complete commitment to something, Someone greater.

Eternal One: 13These people think they can draw near to Me by saying the right things, by honoring Me with their lips, but their hearts are far away from Me.
Their worship of Me consists of man-made traditions learned by rote;
it is a meaningless sham.*
14Therefore, I will do something extraordinary with this people.
I will add wonder to wonders—
Shut down the wisdom of their wise
and hide what the discerning have figured out.

* 29:13 Matthew 15:8-9; Mark 7:6-7

15Oh, it'll be bad for those of you who conceal your thoughts from the Eternal,
who do your deeds in the dark and
say:
"Who sees us? Who knows what we are doing?"

Do they really think that God cannot know what they have hidden, so dark and deep? They are sure to be surprised.

16*My goodness,* how you've turned things
around!
You seem to think that the potter is equal to the clay;
Should the pot say about the potter, "He didn't make me"?
Or does the thing formed say about
the one who formed it,
"He doesn't understand anything"?
17Surely you know that in just a little while the forests that clothe Lebanon will become rich fields
And the fields will be considered as valuable as the forests.
18Then the deaf will hear the words read
from a book,
and darkness and gloom will fall
from the eyes of the blind.
19A renewed sense of joy will come over the humble, thanks to the Eternal;
and joyous celebrations will break out among the poor, because of the Holy One of Israel.
20For cruelty and mean-spiritedness will come to an end,
and those who laugh dismissively
will be silenced.
All those who are determined to do evil
will be cut down.
21Those who level a false charge against an innocent person,
who twist an honest testimony and tell lies
in order to incriminate the innocent,
will be stopped.
22So the Eternal One, who rescued
Abraham, says concerning Jacob:

Eternal One: The people of Jacob's line will no longer be ashamed, nor will they grow pale with embarrassment.
23For when they lay eyes on their children, the work of My
hands,
they will protect My name and keep it holy.
They will recognize that I am sacred,
the Holy One of Jacob,
and stand in awe of Me, the God
of Israel.
24Whoever thought otherwise and wandered off will know the
truth,
and whoever said otherwise and voiced criticism will quietly learn.

30 Eternal One: Oh, it will be so bad for you, My rebellious children, who enact a plan but not as I would have you do,
Who form an alliance contrary to My Spirit,
compounding sin, one bad
choice after another.
2You look to Egypt for security and help without consulting Me.
You seem to think that Pharaoh
is the answer,
That Egypt will protect you from
harm.
3*But because you cling to the earthly power of great nations,*
you will be disappointed and ashamed
In the very thing you grasped—Pharaoh and Egypt.
4For even though Egypt's princes and ambassadors are in the delta region,
in Zoan and Hanes, 5They will be no help to you, no
security or revenue for you.
You'll be embarrassed that you ever thought they would be
And you will be shamed and disgraced *for associating with
them.*

6A message about the beasts of the Negev:
Nevertheless, the Judeans go down
to Egypt, Crossing through a land of trouble and anguish,
tracked by lionesses and lions, in danger of vipers and poisonous
snakes,
All their precious valuables packed on the backs of donkeys and camels.
They look to a people who can offer them nothing.

Eternal One: 7Egypt's help is no help
at all.
Therefore I call Egypt "Rahab"—
a storm that just sits there.

8So, go on—write all this down on a tablet in their presence;
inscribe it on a scroll as a permanent record
So people will know about it forever.
9After all, these people are rebellious and distrustful.
They won't accept, don't even pay attention
To what the Eternal has tried to tell them.
10They say to those gifted with discernment and insight:
"Stop with your visions. We've had enough of them."
They say to the prophets, "Tell us only what we'd like to hear;
save your truth-telling pessimism for someone else.
We want to hear flattery.
11*And for goodness' sake,* stop talking about the Holy One of Israel.
Get out of the gloomy rut you are in—
Your message is a bit stale—take a different path."

12But the Holy One of Israel says,

Eternal One: Because you refused to accept this truth, My word and purpose,
and trusted instead in deceit and manipulation, you will fall.
13Your wrongdoing, your misplaced confidence and web of lies,
will be your undoing.
Like a breach in a wall that bulges out and suddenly gives way,
your façade will come crashing down in an instant.
14Your destruction will be as complete
as when someone savagely smashes a piece of pottery.
There won't be even a single piece big enough to scoop an ember from the fire or skim a sip of water from a cistern.

15*Listen!* The Lord, the Eternal, the Holy One of Israel says,

Eternal One: In returning and rest, you will be saved.
In quietness and trust you will find strength.

God invites His people to lean only on Him. If they will just stop their busyness and self-reliance, God will be able to take care of them.

But you refused. 16*You couldn't sit still;*
instead, you said, "No! We will ride out of here on horseback.
Fast horses will give us an edge in battle."
But those who pursue you will be faster still.
17When one person threatens, a thousand will panic and flee.
When five terrorize you, all will run pell-mell,
Until you are as conspicuous as a single flag standing high on a hill.

18Meanwhile, the Eternal One yearns to give you grace and boundless compassion;
that's why He waits.
For the Eternal is a God of justice.
Those inclined toward Him, waiting for His help, will find happiness.

19Oh, people of Zion, citizens of Jerusalem, you will not cry anymore. God hears the sound of your weeping, and He will answer with grace. 20Even though the Lord has fed you the bitter food of adversity and offered you the water of oppression, your great Teacher will reveal Himself to you; your eyes will see Him. 21Your ears will hear sweet words behind you: "Go this way. There is your path; this is how you should go" whenever you must decide whether to turn to the right or the left. 22Then you'll get rid of all your worthless idols clad in silver and your despicable images plated with gold. You will destroy these idols and discard them as you do filthy rags, saying, "Get out of here."

23And then God will see to it that your efforts are fruitful—He'll give you rain for your seedlings, bread from the earth, grain nourishing and plentiful. On that day your livestock will graze on acre after acre of green pastures. 24Also if the oxen and donkeys that work that ground for you are well fed with good grain that is carefully winnowed with shovel and fork, then they will be content. 25When the day arrives and your enemies are slaughtered and the towers come tumbling down, there will be rushing brooks of clear, sweet water running down every high mountain and steep hill. 26When the time comes and the Eternal One binds up the brokenness of His people and heals what He had bruised, then the light of the moon will shine as brightly as the midday sun, and the sun will shine seven times brighter than normal, as if one day had seven days of sunlight.

27See now, the name of the Eternal is echoing from far away.
God is coming with a fury
inescapable to set things right again.
God is coming like fire and smoke;
His lips, indignation—His tongue, consuming fire.
28God's breath barrels down like hurricane rain,
rising right up to the neck to rattle the nations
And to subdue all peoples as a horse handler bridles a crazy mare for slaughter.
29*In your newfound freedom,* you will sing as if it's a festival night.
With lighthearted joy, you will dance your way toward Jerusalem,
To the Eternal's mountain, the Rock
Israel can trust.
30Then the Eternal One will make unmistakable His absolute authority when all hear His voice, and God's power will be obvious
For all to see—God's anger against the nations—that consuming fire like a cloudburst, thunderstorm,
and hailstorm all at once.
31And Assyria
will cover its ears, terrified at the sound of God's voice
When He comes to strike them
with His punishing rod.
32And every wave of the Eternal's attacks against Assyria
will be accompanied by a song
with tambourines and harps.
In battle after battle, He lifts his arm and fights against them.
33After all, long ago, God prepared the place of vindication,
a funeral pyre for Assyria's king laid deep and high,
A large stack of wood just waiting for God's breath like brimstone to ignite it.

31 O how bad it will be for you who look to the south to Egypt for help and depend on her horses,
Who trust in its many chariots and fix
your hopes on its strong drivers.
Yet you do not look to the Holy One of Israel for relief
or even bother to consult Him.
2God is both wise and willing to wreak
disaster;
He does not second guess Himself or backtrack on what He says.
God will amass all divine power against those who do evil
and against whoever aids and abets
them.
3As for Egypt, why do you rely on them?
They are great, yes,
but merely human, not God—their
steeds just creatures, not spirits.
But when the Eternal reaches out and makes His power felt,
those who lent their help will stumble; those who looked for help will fall.
Together they will be routed and killed.

Eternal One (to Isaiah): 4Just as a lion or a young lion fiercely growls
over his prey,
even while shepherds band
together to fight him off,
A lion won't be scared off by their shouts
or deterred by their noise and threatening gestures.
So, too, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, will descend to defend Mount Zion and its hill without fail.

► In Scripture God is often described as having the strength of a lion. The power and skill of the lion are legendary. Here the picture Isaiah paints is of a hungry lion fixated on his prey, refusing to be distracted by the threats of its victim's would-be protectors. The prophet uses this picture to inspire and encourage the faithful. Zion and the people of His holy mountain are God's great prize; they are His possession, and He is not about to give them up. He will defend His prize and not share it with the predator-nations that surround Judah. Isaiah is clear in declaring that God will use these predators for His purposes, but He will not be frustrated by their schemes.

5As birds hover protectively over their nests
so the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, will guard Jerusalem from all harm.
Not only that, but God will protect and save it, rescue and keep it.

6*So give up,* children of Israel. Return, people of promise, to God against whom you so blatantly rebelled. 7For in that day you'll see the worthlessness of the idols you so wickedly made, and everyone will throw away their gods of silver and gold.

Eternal One: 8And then, the one you fear, Assyria, will fall and be defeated, not by the sword of man but by the sword of God.
It will try to escape the edge of the blade,
but its young men will be captured and put to forced labor.
9The very thing the Assyrians thought was permanent will disappear into thin air, fleeing in fear;
And the discipline of their military will come to nothing.
They'll panic and run.

This is what the Eternal, whose fire burns in Zion, whose furnace blazes in Jerusalem, has said.

32 Look, a good king, right with God,
along with princes, too, will rule with justice.
2*For the people* they'll be like cover from the storm, a wall against the wind.
They'll be like streams of water in a dry place and the cool shade of a giant boulder in the burning sun.
3Then the eyes of those who see will see indeed,
and the ears of those who hear will listen.
4*Careless and* impulsive minds will take time to really understand,
and clear speech will return to the shy stutterer.
5Fools will no longer be called noble-minded,
nor will criminals be respected.
6For fools utter nonsense, and their minds are preoccupied with evil;
they regularly misrepresent the Eternal in what they say and do, Leaving true seekers frustrated and confused,
the hungry with empty stomachs and the thirsty with parched mouths.
7As for the criminals—their schemes are vile and evil;
they are constantly looking for ways to hurt the innocent,
To ruin the poor with their lies, and to twist a justified complaint.
8By contrast, those who are noble have noble intentions,
and they stand confidently by their honorable words and actions.

► Isaiah looks down the corridors of history to see the arrival of a good king who will do what is right, repair what is broken, and restore justice to the oppressed. More than any other prophet, Isaiah speaks of this coming king, God's anointed ruler. When the Messiah comes, He will shelter His people from harm and deal finally, decisively with evil. No longer will wrong be called right, folly be celebrated, evil triumph, and complacency and apathy rule the day. When this good king arrives, the world—with all of its problems—will be set right.

9Get up, you women who lie around in your life of ease;
hear my voice, you careless daughters, and listen to what I have to say.
10*Soon*—in a year and a few days—you will shudder and shake;
your mindless lounging will come to an end, careless daughters.
For the wine you so enjoyed will be gone, with none to replace it.
There will be no fruit, no grapes to mash and juice.

11 Be worried, women of ease;
be bothered and anxious, careless daughters.
Strip off your fine clothes and replace them
with sackcloth; dress for mourning.
12 Beat your breasts over the loss of those lush vineyards,
over the vines, heavy with fruit.
13 Mourn over my people's land, verdant and lush,
now the habitat of thorns and briars—
Yes, for all the happy homes and vibrant cities.
14 Palaces and bustling cities will be abandoned;
hilltop posts and watchtowers will serve as caves for animals;
wild donkeys and flocks will enjoy the wide open spaces.
15 So it will be until God pours out the Spirit from up above, and the land comes alive again—
desert to fertile field, fertile field to forest.
16 Then justice and truth will settle in the desert places,
and righteousness will infuse the fertile land.
17 Then righteousness will yield peace, and the quiet and confidence that attend righteousness will be present forever.
18 My people's homes and hometowns will be filled with peace;
they'll relax, safe and secure.
19 Before such reconciliation, there will be cold, hard hail, raining down when the forests fall and the cities are razed to the ground.
20 And you, you who plant on streams' edges
and let your oxen and donkeys range free,
You will be happy.

33 Oh, how bad it will be for the one who ruins and is not yet ruined, who lies, cheats, and steals without experiencing the same in return.
It will come back to you. When you've exhausted your destroying,
you will find yourself destroyed,
And your treachery will come back to haunt you at the treacherous hands of others.

► If Assyria thinks it has a license to do whatever it wishes, to destroy whatever is in its path, to betray with impunity, then it is sure to be surprised when God shows up to rescue His people.

2 We've been waiting for you, Eternal One, to come and shower us with grace.
In the morning, be our strength;
in times of trouble, be what saves us.
3 People flee when they hear the crashing thunder of Your voice;
nations scatter when You arise.
4 The spoil of the nations is gathered—swiftly and decisively— as a hungry locust gathers, as a swarm of locusts rushes to strip the land.
5 The Eternal One is high above it all; for that is where He lives;
He will fill Zion (that heaven on earth) with justice and all manner of doing right.

6 God will be what holds things together, fast and firm during these times.
He will be boundless salvation,
the roots and fruits of wisdom and knowledge.
Zion's most precious possession
is the people's awe-filled respect of the Eternal.

Reverence for God is crucial to the welfare of God's people, regardless of where they live.

7 Look, their stoutest men run screaming in the streets;
their messengers of peace have broken down in bitter tears.
8 The roads are empty; no one ventures out.
The Assyrians have broken their treaty,
Disavowing the promises they made before witnesses.
They show no respect for anyone.
9 The land itself, like a new widow, grieves and wastes away.
Lush Lebanon decays, once-rose-covered Sharon looks like a desert,
And the tree-topped mountains of Bashan and Carmel are completely denuded.

Eternal One: [10]Now's the time for action. I will arise.
People will esteem Me and recognize My greatness.
[11]For you have produced nothing but chaff and worthless stubble.
Your breath is a fire that will sweep back and consume you.
[12]Your people will be burned to ashes like thornbushes cut down and burned up in the fire.
[13]Listen well, wherever you are; make sure you know that I have accomplished this.
Near and far, you'd better take note of My incomparable strength.

[14]Those who do wrong, the guilty and criminal in Zion, are terrified;
in the presence and power of God, the godless tremble.
They ask themselves,
"Who could possibly survive this all-consuming conflagration?
Who can live through the unrelenting heat, the flames, the smoke?"
[15]I will tell you who: the one who goes through life with integrity and speaks truth with conviction, refusing to take part in fraud and abuse, Whose hands are free of bribes, whose ears are covered to violent schemes,
and whose eyes are shut to the temptations of evil.
[16]That one will survive and prosper on the heights of Zion
and take comfort in the shelter of rock fortresses,
And never be hungry, never thirsty.

[17]Ah, you will see for yourself the beauty of the One who rules over all.
Your eyes will take in a land that stretches far beyond the horizon.
[18]You will think back on the terror you experienced:
"Where is the officer who counted the plunder, weighed out our taxes, and calculated our defenses?"
[19]You will no longer see rude and arrogant people in charge of the city, and you will no longer have to listen to their strange babbling and incomprehensible muttering.
[20]Ah, just look at Zion! The city where we celebrate,
where we make our God-appointed feasts.
You'll see a Jerusalem at peace,
untroubled, undisturbed,
like a permanent tent with stakes driven deep and ropes that never break.
[21]There, the Eternal, so splendid and regal,
will be for us a place of broad rivers and wide canals.
No large boats will pass through them—
no mighty ships will sail their waters.
[22]For the Eternal One is our Judge; He has prescribed our laws;
He rules over us, and He is the One who will save us.
[23]You who try to sail in will be unable,
as if your lines are limp, your mast is wobbly, and your sails are furled.
The spoils in your hold will be divided among the deserving.
Even those who can hardly walk will take what you had taken.
[24]And nobody who lives in God's city will say he doesn't feel well.
For everyone will be washed clean and forgiven for their wrongdoing.

34 Gather around, everyone. All peoples take note!
The earth and everything in it,
The world and all that comes from it should hear this, too,
[2]For the Eternal One is furious with all the nations. He has had it with their armies.
He has marked them for destruction, and has given them over to slaughter.
[3]Their blood will run like rivers down the mountains, their corpses tossed out, heaped up, and randomly piled in a great stinking mound.
[4]All the stars in the once-vibrant heavens will vanish:
and the sky will be rolled up like a scroll.
All the starry hosts will wither and fall,
like grape leaves crisped by fall or fig leaves shriveled *by winter.

Eternal One: [5]For once my sword has had its fill in the heavens;
I'll set it against Edom, those people who despise My own.
I have marked Edom for judgment and destruction.

* 34:4 Matthew 24:29

6The Eternal One indeed has a bloodgulping sword.
It drinks up fat and blood from the innards
And flesh of lambs, goats, and rams—the sacrifice.
And now the Eternal is coming to sacrifice the Edomites—
A great slaughter in their capital Bozrah, 7And great wild cattle will be slaughtered along with them—bulls, oxen, and steers—
Until their land is soggy with blood and oozes with their fat.
8For the Eternal has determined a time
for retaliation,
a time to vindicate Zion, ravaged by Babylon and Edom.

► The Edomites take advantage of Judah during the Babylonian conquest. Like parasites they eat away at the land, the strength, and the resources of Judah. Edom is a place of incorrigible violence, filled with devastating evils. In a word, Edom has become like Sodom and Gomorrah. God cannot let that stand, so He comes to vindicate His covenant people. The image Isaiah paints here of Edom and its grim future is hellish. The great, bustling civilization of Edom is reduced to nothing and eventually annihilated; its land becomes a wasteland, the haunt of fearsome desert creatures.

9Edom's waters will be made thick and black as oily pitch.
Its dust will turn to brimstone, and the land will ignite with burning pitch.
10Edom's fiery judgment will burn day and night for all time;
the smoke from it will ascend forever.
For generations to come it will be a
wasteland,
and no person will make it their home ever again.
11Desert owls and screech owls, great owls and ravens
will take up residence in that bleak
place.
When God measures the land, desolation will be its width and chaos will mark its length.
12*The land will be known as No Kingdom.*
No nobles are there to name a king.
Its line of princes will cease.
13Its great towers will be covered in thorns.
Nasty nettles and thistles will overrun its strong cities.
Wild jackals will slink around the premises,
and ostriches will make themselves
at home.
14Among the howling and hissing wild creatures and demons, Lilith herself, demoness of the night,
will call Edom her haunt,
A place to recoup and rest between her devastating forays.
15Owls of all sorts will take up habitation
there,
nesting and laying their eggs.
They will hatch their young and cover
them beneath their wings.
Vultures and their mates will gather
there.

16You can look for it and read all about it in the book of the Eternal One.
None of these creatures will be missing and none will lack a mate Because His voice has given the order and His Spirit has gathered them in that place.
17He has determined where they should live;
He has handed it over to them and it will be theirs for all time.
They will live there, one generation after the next, forever.

35

Imagine the wilderness
whooping for joy,
the desert's unbridled
happiness with its
spring flowers.
2*It will happen!* The deserts will come alive with new growth budding and
blooming,
singing and celebrating with sheer
delight.
The glory of Lebanon's cedars and the majesty of Carmel and Sharon will spill over to the deserts.
The glory of the Eternal One will be on full display there,
and they will revel in the majestic
splendor of our God.

3So, *with confidence and hope in this
message,*
strengthen those with feeble hands,
shore up the weak-kneed and weary.

4Tell those who worry, the anxious and fearful,
"Take strength; have courage! There's nothing to fear.
Look, here—your God! Right here is your God!
The balance is shifting; God will right all wrongs.
None other than God will give you success.
He is coming to make you safe."

5Then, such healing, such repair: the eyes of the blind will be opened;
the ears of the deaf will be clear.
6-7The lame will leap like deer excited;
they will run and jump tirelessly and gracefully.
The stutterer, the stammerer, and the tongue of the mute
will sing out loud and clear in joyful song.
Waters will pour through the deserts;
streams will flow in godforsaken lands.
Burning sands and hardened wastelands will become pools, shimmering with life;
the thirsty ground will drink deep from refreshing springs.
Abandoned villages where predators once lurked will become grassy playgrounds.
Dry, arid land will turn lush and green.

8And the road to this happy renovation will be clearly signed.
People will declare the way itself to be holy—the route, "sacred."
Only those who are right with God will be able to walk its pleasant path,
And nobody—no visitor, no dimwit—will get lost along it.
9There'll be no lions lying in wait, no predators or dangers in sight.
Only those made right with God will journey there.
10Those whom the Eternal One has recalled from a punishing exile, they will go along so easily. They will walk this path,
Come waltzing to Zion, singing their way to that place of right relation to God.
An aura of joy never-ending will attend them;
they will clasp gladness and joy to their hearts,
While sadness and despair evaporate into thin air.

36 After Hezekiah had been Judah's king for 14 years, King Sennacherib of Assyria launched an attack against Judah's fortified cities and conquered them. 2Sennacherib sent his right-hand man (whom they call the Rabshakeh) to King Hezekiah in Jerusalem along with an army to intimidate him. The Rabshakeh came from Lachish, formerly a great Judean city, and stationed himself along the highway that skirts the field where they launder the cloth, near the aqueduct for the upper pool. 3Three men from Hezekiah's court came down from the palace to meet him there. They were Hilkiah's son Eliakim, the palace administrator; Shebna, the royal secretary; and Asaph's son Joah, the recorder.

4The Rabshakeh told them to relay to Hezekiah these words of Sennacherib, the great king of Assyria.

Rabshakeh: How come you're so sure of yourself? 5Your strategy and strength for war seem to be limited to diplomacy and empty words. Now that you have rebelled against me, who are you really relying on? 6Take a look! Are you really counting on the help of a crushed reed, Egypt, against me? Relying on Egypt is like leaning on a splintering stick that ends up jabbing you through the palm. That's the way Pharaoh, king of Egypt, is to everyone who relies on him. 7Or maybe you'll tell me, "We are putting our trust in the Eternal One our God." Hah! I don't think so. Don't forget that Hezekiah went around destroying all His altars and wrecking His places of worship, insisting that Judah and Jerusalem must worship before the one altar in Jerusalem.

8Come on now. Make a deal with my master, the king of Assyria: I'll give you 2,000 horses if you can do your part and deliver the same number of riders. 9How can you repel even the weakest unit in my master's army when you have to look to Egypt for chariots and drivers? 10And just in case you think that I'm attacking you of my own volition, you should know that I am not. Your God, the Eternal, sent me. Your God said to me, "Rise up against that land (namely you Judeans), and destroy it."

11Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah appealed to the Rabshakeh.

Hezekiah ascends to the throne as Judah's king in 715 B.C. He may have served for a time as co-regent with his father Ahaz, so when the Assyrian army marches against him and issues its demands (apparently in 701 B.C.), Hezekiah has many years of experience. As a king of David's royal line, Hezekiah's reign is anchored to a promise God made to King David hundreds of years earlier. Indeed Judah enjoyed some success, but now all seems uncertain. Not long before Hezekiah takes the throne in Jerusalem, Israel, his northern neighbor, succumbs to invaders from Assyria. Now more than 20 years later, the Assyrians are moving against Jerusalem and her king. With bullying words and intimidating tactics, the Rabshakeh tries to force the Judean king to surrender Jerusalem and its citizens. Ironically—or perhaps providentially—the place where Isaiah met Ahaz, Hezekiah's father, with God's message turns out to be near the place where the Rabshakeh now makes his demands upon Judah.

Hezekiah's Men: Please speak to us, your servants, in a language we understand—Aramaic—not in Judah's common language, so that the people on the wall who are trying to listen in can't understand.

Rabshakeh: 12*My, my, my!* Do you think that my king sent me here to speak only to your king and to you when those people stand just as much to lose as you? Don't you think that these people along the wall should have a chance to hear our negotiations? After all, they'll be reduced with you to eating their own feces and drinking their own urine.

13So the Rabshakeh stood up and spoke even louder in the Judean language so all could hear and understand.

Rabshakeh: Hear the words of Great King Sennacherib, king of Assyria, dominator of the world!

14"Don't listen to Hezekiah's lies. Your king won't be able to save you. 15Don't let him convince you to trust the Eternal by saying, 'The Eternal will surely save us; God will spare Jerusalem from the king of Assyria.' 16Don't believe it for a minute."

My king, Sennacherib, says, "Make your peace with me. Don't fight it, but come on out and join me. Then each of you will be able to enjoy your home and garden, eat your own grapes and figs, and drink the water from your own cistern 17until I come and bring you back to my place. Oh, it's like yours, to be sure. It has grain for bread and vineyards for new wine. 18Be careful or Hezekiah will deceive you with his empty claim: 'The Eternal One will surely save us.' Look around. We've defeated everyone we've fought—every capital of every country. And did their gods save them? No. 19Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad, Sepharvaim, or even your sibling to the north, Samaria? 20All of these are fallen—not a god in sight to save them. Do you really think you're so different? Why should the Eternal save Jerusalem from me?"

21*To their credit,* the people didn't say anything. Hezekiah had commanded them not to answer the Rabshakeh, and indeed they just sat there silently. 22Then the three men who had gone for Hezekiah—Hilkiah's son Eliakim, the palace administrator; Shebna, the royal secretary; and Asaph's son Joah, the recorder—returned to their king. In great distress, they tore their clothes and told him everything the Rabshakeh said.

37 When King Hezekiah heard the report, he, too, was terribly distressed. He tore his clothes, changed into sackcloth, and went to the Eternal's house. 2He sent Eliakim, the palace administrator, along with Shebna, the royal secretary and some senior priests—who were also covered in sackcloth—to fetch Isaiah the prophet (Amoz's son).

Hezekiah's Men (to Isaiah): 3*Hezekiah is terribly upset.* The king said, "This is a calamitous day. It is marked by anguish, chastisement, and disgrace. Things are as desperate for us as for a pregnant woman weakened by labor who cannot deliver the baby because she is physically spent from the birth pangs."

4*Hezekiah implores you, Isaiah,* "Pray for the remnant that is left here in Jerusalem. Maybe the Eternal One your God will notice how blasphemous the Rabshakeh is (on orders from his master the Assyrian king) and punish them because of what the living God heard him say."

5When the men delivered their message as the king requested, Isaiah responded.

Isaiah: 6*Go back to Hezekiah,* your lord and king, and give him these sure words of confidence and hope: The Eternal One says, "Don't let the blasphemous threats delivered by the servants of the Assyrian king make you doubtful or afraid. 7Watch! I am going to trick him, to set a spirit against him. Just when he is ready to attack you, he's going to hear a rumor that there are problems back home in Assyria and he will return there. Not only that, but once he's back, he will die by the sword in his own land."

8Meanwhile, the Rabshakeh learned that Sennacherib had left Lachish and was already engaged in battle against the city of Libnah. 9Now the Assyrian king heard that Tirhakah, the king of Cush, had allied himself with the Judeans and was coming to fight against him. The news prompted him to send messengers to Hezekiah with another message.

Rabshakeh: 10Tell the Judean king, Hezekiah, "Don't listen to your God, whom you're counting on, when He tells you that the king of Assyria won't conquer Jerusalem. 11Look around you, and listen to the reports of what the Assyrian king has already done to the neighboring nations. How can he destroy them and let you get away? 12This line of Assyrian kings has demolished all sorts of nations and peoples. Think of Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the children of Eden in Telassar. None of their gods saved them. 13*While we're at it,* what do you think happened to the kings of Hamath, Arpad, Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivvah? We destroyed them. You'll not get away."

14When Hezekiah got the written message, he read it. Then he took it to the temple, spread it out before the Eternal One, 15and began to pray.

Hezekiah: 16Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, who sits enthroned above the winged guardians—You alone are God. Only You are supreme over all the nations and kingdoms of the earth. And only You have made the heavens above, the earth below, and everything in them. 17Please, please listen, Eternal One. Attend to us here and now; look and listen. Hear all that Sennacherib said, and all that he wrote, to ridicule You, the living God. 18Eternal One, he's right about how the Assyrian kings have destroyed other nations and taken over their lands. 19And sure, they ruined the gods of those nations, smashed and burned them. But those were not real gods, only the product of human hands, shaped of stone and wood. That is why they could be destroyed. 20I implore You, Eternal One our God, help us. Save us from the onslaught of these Assyrians. Make it clear to the whole world that You alone are the Eternal One, that You alone are God.

21-22And Hezekiah got a response. The prophet Isaiah, Amoz's son, relayed this to him:

Isaiah: The Eternal, Israel's God, the God to whom you prayed concerning the Assyrian king, has this to say against Sennacherib:

Eternal One: The virgin daughter of Zion, lovely lady that she is,
despises you, mocks you.
The daughter of Jerusalem tosses her head and rejects you.
23*After all,* who is the one you've taunted and insulted?
Who is the one you've slandered with untruths, ugly and dismissive?
Who is the one you shouted at and looked down upon with your arrogant eyes?
None other than the Holy One of Israel!
24By way of your servants' mouths, you have blasphemed my Lord.
Foolish, foolish Sennacherib. You have boasted,
'My impressive company of chariots has taken me up the highest mountains,
into the far reaches of the Lebanese forests.
I myself felled its greatest cedars, cut down the best of its cypresses.
I have been to its highest peak, and claimed its thickest forest.

25I have dug wells wherever I wished,
and drunk my fill of others' water.
I have dried up Egypt's waterways simply by walking them.'
26*Ah, Sennacherib,* haven't you heard,
don't you know that long before you arrived,
way back in ancient days, I determined all of this?
I charted this course long ago, and now I bring it to pass.
This is the reason why you turn well-fortified cities into heaps of rubble.
27Their hapless citizens look on,
helpless, shocked, and ashamed.
They were temporary and fragile
like grass in the field
or tender new growth, like grass sprouting on rooftops
Blasted by a burning wind before it can grow and become strong.
28I know everything about you: where you sit, when you come, where you go.
And I know your agitation against Me.
29Because of this agitation,
and because your smug sense of security has reached My ears,
I will put My hook in your nose and My bit in your mouth,
and turn you back on the road you came from.

(to Hezekiah) 30Here is a sign for you: you'll know it's true by seeing that in three years, life will be normal again: This year you'll live off of what grows spontaneously. Next year, you'll live off of what grows from that. In the third year, you'll do the planting and harvesting—fields and vineyards—and eat from what grows. 31And those who have survived in this land of Judah—this remnant—will strengthen their roots and become productive again.

32A small group of survivors will emerge from Jerusalem, from Zion, the mountain of God's choosing.

Isaiah: The intensive passion of the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, will drive this to completion.

33Here is what the Eternal says concerning the Assyrian king.

Eternal One: He will not come into this city. He will not shoot an arrow at it or approach it with a shield or build a siege ramp against it to come over its walls. 34*Instead* he will turn around and go back the way he came. He absolutely will not come into this city. 35I will defend Jerusalem. I will save this city for My sake and the sake of David, who reverently served Me.

36Shortly after that, the special messenger of the Eternal One killed 185,000 Assyrian troops. When the morning came, the people could see all the dead bodies strewn around the camp. 37So Sennacherib, king of Assyria, broke camp and went back to live in Nineveh, his capital in Assyria. 38*But one day,* while he was worshiping his god Nisroch in that temple, his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer attacked and killed him. They immediately fled to Ararat, leaving the throne empty. So Esarhaddon, another of Sennacherib's sons, became Assyria's king after him.

38 Meanwhile, back in Judah, Hezekiah became very sick and was about to die. Learning of it, Isaiah, Amoz's son, went to visit him.

► These are sad times for Judah and Isaiah. Although Isaiah has served as a court prophet for several of Judah's kings, he and King Hezekiah have gotten to know one another particularly well over the years. Now the aging king is about to die. On many occasions Hezekiah seeks Isaiah's counsel and takes it seriously. Even if he doesn't always do exactly as he should, it is clear that he is genuinely concerned about the welfare of his subjects. With Isaiah's help and perhaps a bit of his pestering, Hezekiah comes to understand that Judah's national welfare is not separate from his and his people's personal relationships with God.

Isaiah: Here is what the Eternal One has to say:

Eternal One: Get your affairs in order. You are going to die. You are not going to recover from this.

2Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and started praying.

Hezekiah: 3Eternal One, I beg you to remember how I have followed the path You set before me, and how I did so with all my heart. Remember how I have done what You wanted with sincerity of purpose every step of the way.

Then Hezekiah broke down and wept. He wept and wept. 4Then a different word from the Eternal came upon the prophet Isaiah.

Eternal One: 5Go and tell Hezekiah that the Eternal, the God of your ancestor David, says: "I have heard your prayer, and I have seen your tears. I've decided to add another 15 years to your life. 6*Not only that, but* I will also rescue you and this city and not allow you to fall under the control of the Assyrian king. I Myself will protect this city, Jerusalem. 7You'll know that I, the Eternal One, will keep My promise by this sign: 8I will make the sun's shadow—which has climbed these steps of Ahaz's stairway—go backward 10 steps."

And the shadow on the stairway moved backward 10 steps. 9When Hezekiah, king of Judah, recovered from his illness, he composed a poem.

Hezekiah: 10I thought for sure in the prime of my life that I'd been brought to the gates of death,
that I'd miss out on the rest of my years.
11I thought: That's it. I will never again see the Eternal in the land of the living.
I will never again enjoy the company of those alive in this world.
12My time on earth is folded up and packed away like a shepherd's tent.
It's as if a weaver has snipped me off from the loom and rolled me up.
From day to night You bring my life to an end.
13I stay calm until morning arrives,
then like a lion He breaks all my bones.
From day to night You bring my life to an end.
14*Oh, how I argue and mourn for my passing life!*
Like a swallow or a crane I twitter;
like a lonesome dove I moan.
My eyes become bleary from looking up to the heavens for help.
I cry, "O Lord, way up high, I am oppressed; come and help me!"
15But what can I say? God has spoken to me.
Things are as He made them.
So I am determined to go slowly, make the most of my years,
even though I am bitter to the core.
16*But I so wanted to live! So I prayed,*
"Lord, by these things, people live
and my spirit is grounded in the same.
So heal me, let me live!"
17*Paradoxically,* my bitter experience was pushing me toward wholeness.
For You, God, have put behind all my shortcomings and wrongdoings.
You have rescued me from death.
You pulled me from a black hole of nothingness and held me close to You.
18*And so I join the living in giving thanks to You.*
After all, thankful voices never rise from the land of the dead.
After all, the songs of praise never soar from death's dark realm.
Those who go down into the pit—that great black nothingness—
They can't even begin to hope for Your faithfulness.
19But ah, the living! And I am among them today, giving praise and thanks to You for life,
The old telling the young about the loyalty of Your love.
20The Eternal will rescue me,
and we will break out the stringed instruments.
We will sing and make music for the rest of our lives,
right here in the house of the Eternal.

Hezekiah becomes confident that God will restore his health and bring him back from the edge of death. Ironically, many years earlier his father Ahaz refused to ask for a sign even though God insisted that he do so. The son, it seems, has learned a valuable lesson; so he asks for a sign because he wants to know when he will be well enough to return to God's house and offer thanks to Him among the rest of his citizens. Unfortunately, with some people, it is only in the bitterness of disease and in death's dark shadow that a person learns to embrace life and live it to the fullest. Hezekiah's near-death experience embitters his soul, but it also moves him toward wholeness. What Hezekiah does not know is that the Babylonians have their eyes set on dominating the rest of the world. For years, the Assyrians and Babylonians have coexisted, but the Babylonians are not content to remain a regional power. As they build their empire—annexing lands, conquering peoples, gaining strength—they begin to take an interest in little Judah. Hezekiah doesn't account for how his actions might affect his nation. He simply isn't that shrewd.

21 Isaiah instructed the physicians to apply a compress of squashed figs to the boil on Hezekiah's skin to help him recover.

Hezekiah: 22 When will I know that I am well enough to go to the Eternal's house? Is there a sign I should look for?

39 The man who was king of Babylon, Merodach-baladan (Baladan's son), heard about Hezekiah—how he was so very sick and then got better. So he sent envoys to Hezekiah with letters and a gift. 2 Hezekiah was delighted at the kind gesture from so great a king, so he welcomed his guests and showed them the best of Judah's treasures and talents—silver and gold, precious spices, and oils that wafted the smells of paradise. He gave them a tour of his armory and showed them all of Judah's military equipment and everything they'd stashed away for future need. Hezekiah held nothing back from their appreciative eyes. He showed them everything in his house and his kingdom.

3 When Isaiah the prophet heard about Hezekiah's tour, he hurried to the palace and confronted Hezekiah.

Isaiah: What in the world have you done? Where did these people come from? And what did you talk with them about?

Hezekiah (puzzled by Isaiah's obvious distress): They came from a great distance simply to extend kind wishes for my recovery from their king! They came from Babylon.

Isaiah: 4 What did you show them? What have they seen in your palace?

Hezekiah: Well, everything. They have seen all that I own. I put all of my treasures on display. I didn't hold back anything from them.

► During Isaiah's life, the Northern Kingdom (composed of ten Israelite tribes) flourishes and then falls, and the Southern Kingdom of Judah is battered by surrounding nations but persists. Eventually the Southern Kingdom itself falls, not to Assyria but to Babylon. Shockingly, the Babylonians destroy the capital and raze the temple where the Holy One of Israel is uniquely present with the people.

The Lord determines these events because their failings—as Isaiah described in such detail—and their refusal to correct their attitudes and behavior necessitate punishment on the order of national destruction. God's covenant people have broken their part of the agreement and become unfit to live as people of Zion.

Isaiah: 5 Listen well to what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has said: 6 "The time is coming when everything in your palace—everything of value kept, passed down, and stored by your ancestors to this present time—will be taken away to Babylon. Of everything that you showed this Babylonian contingent, nothing will be left. Absolutely nothing will remain

The scene has shifted. The situation has changed. The threat from Assyria now seems a distant memory. A new reality encompasses the people of God: Jerusalem and its glorious temple have been destroyed, and the key citizens of Judah have been carried off into exile by the Babylonians.

While tradition credits the entire book to Isaiah of Jerusalem, many scholars think these next 16 chapters are recorded by another prophet years later in the spirit of that great prophet of Jerusalem who proclaimed much of the previous writings. Whether this was Isaiah speaking in the future prophetically or another person used by the Spirit to continue Isaiah's ministry, the traditions and ideas of Isaiah are so closely followed by the next chapters that they have been collected and included in this large book named after Isaiah. The time and circumstances are different, so the message is a bit different too. It is equally passionate about righteousness, Zion, and the Holy One of Israel. These events occur about two centuries after Isaiah's death in the land of exile—Babylon.

here," says the Eternal One. 7"Even some of your sons yet to be born will be taken to exile. They will be castrated and forced to serve in the Babylonian royal house."

Hezekiah: 8The message you have spoken from the Eternal is good.

"At least," Hezekiah thought to himself, "during my lifetime things will be peaceful and secure."

40 "Comfort, comfort My people," says your God.
2"With gentle words, tender and kind,
Assure Jerusalem, this chosen city from long ago,
that her battles are over.
The terror, the bloodshed, the horror of My punishing work is done.
This place has paid for its guilt; iniquity is pardoned;
its term of incarceration is complete.
It has endured double the punishment it was due."

3A voice is wailing, "In the wilderness, get it ready! Prepare the way;
make it a straight shot. The Eternal would have it so.
Straighten the way in the wandering desert
to make the crooked road wide and straight for our God.*
4Where there are steep valleys, treacherous descents,
raise the highway; lift it up;
bring down the dizzying heights.
Fill in the potholes and gullies, the rough places.
Iron out the shoulders flat and wide.
5*The Lord will be, really be, among us.*
The radiant glory of the Lord will be revealed.
All flesh together will take it in. Believe it. None other than God, the Eternal, has spoken."*

► During the time of Jesus, John the Baptist wanders around Israel in the tradition of the Hebrew prophets warning the people that they need to correct their attitudes and behaviors, to bring them better in line with what God expects and desires. He declares (warns, actually) that God is coming and will set things right. During the circumstances of exile, the people don't fully understand who or what this voice in the wilderness will be; centuries later, as the early Christian community looks back over the life of Jesus and John, they recognize the anonymous voice.

6A voice says, "Declare!"
But what shall I declare?
All life is like the grass.
All of its grace and beauty fades like the wild flowers in a field.

7The grass withers, the flower fades
as the breath of the Eternal One blows away.
People are no different from grass.

* 40:3 Mark 1:3; John 1:23 * 40:3-5 Luke 3:4-5

8The grass withers, the flower fades;
nothing lasts except the word of our God.
It will stand forever.*

► Isaiah's message is not just doom and gloom. God determines that His people may return home to rebuild their lives! God uses the new king, Cyrus of Persia, to accomplish this glorious restoration. God does not allow His punishment to last forever.

Now, in this new time, God smoothes the rocky way between Mesopotamia and all Israel; He makes the deserts between the present place of exile and their home just east of the Mediterranean Sea burst with sweet water and bloom with beauty and good things to eat. Treacherous roads and threatening beasts yield to God's desire that they return safely.

In chapters 40–55, for the most part, the message is one of comfort and encouragement to God's down-trodden and discouraged people. Many centuries later, these words will be understood in light of the Anointed One.

9Ascend a high mountain,
you herald of good tidings, O Zion;
With a clear, strong voice make known to everyone
the joy that belongs to God's chosen place,
O, Jerusalem, You herald of good tidings!
Make the news ring out! Don't be afraid!
Say to these cities, this Judah: "Behold your God!"
10The Lord, the Eternal, comes with power, with unstoppable might;
He will take control without question or delay.
He will see to it that wages are paid,
repairs are made, and all is set right again.
11He will feed His fold like a shepherd;
He will gather together His lambs—
the weak and the wobbly ones—
into His arms.
He will carry them close to His bosom,
and tenderly lead like a shepherd the mother of her lambs.

12Who has taken count and measured out all earth's waters in a single, cupped palm and determined heaven's expanse with an outstretched hand?
Who has counted out exactly how many grains of dirt are here on earth,
and weighed the mountains and hills on scales?

13Who has directed the Spirit of the Eternal One?
Can anyone claim to be His advisor?*
14To whom did God turn for advice or instruction?
Whom did He consult about right and wrong?
Who directed Him down the path of justice or imparted to Him knowledge or taught Him the way of understanding?

15*Face it;* the nations are nothing but a drop in the bucket, only a smidgen on the scales by the reckoning of God.
He can pick up entire islands as if they are grains of dirt.
16Even if we had all the resources of Lebanon—
all of its trees to burn for fuel, all of its animals for burnt offerings—
How could we think that we've got enough to give to God?
17All the countries of the world don't add up to anything. In the eyes of God they are less than nothing;
they are empty wastelands.

18So would you try to find someone to compare to Him?
Can you think of anything that has a likeness to God?
19An idol? Hardly. They are made by human hands.
Even if they are overlaid with gold, decorated with silver,
And shaped by the world's best artisans,
they are subject to tarnish, tearing, and breaking.
20Those who cannot afford such an extravagant offering select a choice hardwood that will not rot,

* 40:6-8 1 Peter 1:24-25 * 40:13 Romans 11:34; 1 Corinthians 2:16

And seek a skilled artisan to fashion an image that will not totter and fall.

21 Don't you know, haven't you heard or even been told from your earliest memories how the earth came to be?
22 Who else could have done it except God, enthroned high above the earth?
From such a vantage people seem like grasshoppers to Him.
Who else but God could stretch out the skies as if they were a curtain, draw them tight, suspend them over our heads like the roof of a tent?
23 God reduces the rulers and judges,
the rich and powerful of the earth, to nothing;

24 They scarcely are planted, take root and start growing,
before God blows a withering breath,
And storm winds carry them away like chaff.

25 The Holy One asks, "Do you really think you can find someone or something to compare to Me? My equal?"
26 Look at the myriad of stars and constellations above you.
Who set them to burning, each in its place?
Who knows those countless lights each by name?
They obediently shine, each in its place,
because God has the great strength and strong power to make it so.

27 Why, then, do you, Jacob, inheritors of God's promise,
you, Israel, chosen of God—
Why do you say, "My troubled path is hidden from the Eternal;
God has lost all interest in My cause"?
28 Don't you know? Haven't you heard?
The Eternal, the Everlasting God,
The Creator of the whole world, never gets tired or weary.
His wisdom is beyond understanding.
29 God strengthens the weary and gives vitality to those worn down by age and care.
30 Young people will get tired;
strapping young men will stumble and fall.
31 But those who trust in the Eternal One will regain their strength.
They will soar on wings as eagles.
They will run—never winded, never weary.
They will walk—never tired, never faint.

41 Eternal One: Keep quiet and listen to Me, lands along the seacoast;
give the people of the nations a chance to regain their strength.
Let them come close, all together, to speak their minds and present their case;
let's consider the facts and make a judgment.
2 Who brought up this eastern hero?
Who called up his justice service?
He lays nations at his feet and makes an end of their kings.
With a thrust of his sword and the bend of his bow, this hero turns kings and their armies into dust.
3 With agility and speed unmatched, he chases them down and is himself unscathed, even though he is passing over unfamiliar land.
4 Who has performed these deeds and accomplished this purpose?
Who calls each generation into being from the first on down?

It is I, the Eternal One your God.
I am the first.
And to the very last, I am the One.

5 The lands along the seacoast have seen and are scared.
The ends of earth take to shaking and yet still they draw near.
6 They try to bolster each other up saying,
"Have courage, brother, have courage!"
7 Recognizing their mutual dependence, the artisan encourages the goldsmith;
the one who hammers the metal emboldens the one who welds, Saying, "Looks good! Fine job!" and fastens the idols together with nails, making it stand firm and stable.

► The nations fashion new idols in the hopes these new gods will be able to protect them during the coming battles against the eastern hero, Cyrus of Persia. If powerful Babylon can fall before him and his mighty army, what chance do other nations have? But Israel has nothing to fear. For God's covenant people, Cyrus' rise to power is good news; his ascension and Babylon's defeat are God's answers to their anxious prayers. Cyrus' campaign to build his empire is not simply the will of man or a coincidence of history; it is the outworking of God's plan to redeem and restore His scattered people. It was God who sent His disobedient covenant partners into exile; it will be God who brings them back home.

Eternal One: 8But you, My servant,
Israel,
Jacob whom I have chosen and descendant of My friend, Abraham,
9I have reached to wherever you are in the farthest corners of
earth,
and the most hidden places
therein.
I have called to you and said, "You are my servant.
I have chosen you, not thrown you away!"
10So don't be afraid. I am here, with
you;
don't be dismayed, for I am your
God.
I will strengthen you, help you.
I am here with My right hand
to make right and to hold you up.
11Look, everyone who hated you and sought to do you wrong
will be embarrassed and
confused.
Whoever challenged you with hot- headed bluster
will become as if they never were, and nevermore will be.
12You may go looking for them, but
you won't find them;
because those who tried to fight with you will become as if they never were.
13After all, it is I, the Eternal One
your God,
who has hold of your right hand,
Who whispers in your ear, "Don't be afraid. I will help you."
14So don't be afraid, Jacob, though you are nothing but a worm.
People of Israel, you little bug, you have nothing to fear.

Eternal One: I will help you. I am One who saves you,
the Holy One of Israel.
15I will turn you into a formidable threshing sledge
with brand new sharp blades
that will mow down entire
mountains
and turn the hills into chaff.
16You will separate value from waste,
and a great wind
and a strong storm will take away what is useless and unimportant.
You will take joy in the Eternal.
You will glow with pride in the Holy One of Israel.
17And when people thirst, when those poor souls with parched tongues
look in vain for something to
drink,
I, the Eternal, the God of Israel, won't leave them to suffer. I will respond 18By making the hard, brown hills sparkle with streams of fresh water
and causing valleys to come alive with springs.
I will see that gentle pools wait on the desert floor for the weary traveler,
and great fountains bubble up
from dry ground;
19In the desert, I will plant cedars,
woody acacias,
myrtles, and olive trees.
I will establish great cypresses to flourish in the desert places,
plant oaks and pine trees side
by side.

20They'll see all this and understand.
They'll ponder together
and come to know that it is the power of the Eternal One that produced this.
They will know that the Holy One of Israel created it.

Eternal One: 21Present your case. Lay out your arguments
and call your witnesses to appear before the King of Jacob.

God and Israel now become judge and jury as the nations bring their idols and make the case that their handmade gods can indeed predict the future.

22-23*Come on* and bring your idols. Now tell us what is to come,
and while you're at it, tell us what happened before.
Can you explain to us so that we, too,
may understand?
Go ahead, tell us what the future holds.
Surely you can, if you are truly gods. Do good, or do bad.
Just do something—anything—to amaze or frighten us.
24Sure enough, you are not gods; you are nothing at all.
You have nothing to show for your work or yourselves.
Fools! Only fools would choose you to be their god. Detestable.

Eternal One: 25*I, the Lord,* I have called up for service
one from the north, and he comes from the rising sun
and he will invoke My name.
He will render rulers like mud
under his shoes,
trampling them down like so much clay.
26Did any of you gods tell us about this long ago, so we would know?
Did any of you indicate to us that we might agree, "He is right"?
No, no one told us. No one made an announcement, and no one hears what you say.
27I was the first to say to Zion, "Look,
here they are!"
I sent a messenger to announce the good news to Jerusalem.
28But I am looking, and there isn't anyone.
I have asked around, and no one knows, no one can tell Me.
29See here, all of these so-called gods
are false;
their works are nothing;
These cast-metal images are like wind, sheer emptiness.

42 Eternal One: Look here, let Me present My servant;
I have taken hold of him.
He is My chosen, and I delight in him.
I have put My Spirit on him; by this
he will bring justice to the
nations.

► This poem is the first of several Servant Songs. God's special Servant is described in various ways. In this song (42:1-9), the Servant is portrayed as one who faithfully establishes justice in the world and serves as a light for the nations. In the second song (49:1-13), the Servant is called from the womb and ordained to restore the nation of Israel and take salvation to the ends of the earth. In the third song (50:4-9), the Servant is portrayed as a teacher, intimately in touch with God, yet brutally beaten and disgraced by his enemies. In the fourth song (52:13–53:12), the suffering and rejection of God's Servant takes priority over his other tasks; yet even in his suffering God is working to repair the world from the harm done by sin and evil.

Eternal One: 2He will not scream or yell, crying out for all to hear.
3What is bruised and bent, he will not break;
he will not blow out a smoldering candle.
Rather, he will faithfully turn his attention to doing justice.
4*And though he faces obstacles, resistance, and great pressure,*
he will not crack; he will not give up until things are set right.
Even the coastlands wait patiently
for his instruction.

5God, the Eternal One, who made the starry skies,
stretched them tight above and around;
Who cast the shimmering globe of earth
and filled it with life;
who gives breath and animates the
people;
Who walks and talks with life-giving
spirit has this to say:

Eternal One: 6I am the Eternal One. By righteousness I have called
you.
I will take you by the hand and keep you safe.

You are given as a covenant between Me and the people:
a light for the nations, a shining beacon to the world.
7You will open blind eyes so they will see again.
You will lead prisoners, blinking, out from caverns of captivity,
from cells pitch black with despair.
8I am the Eternal One.
I Am is My name.
My beauty is unique, a weighty splendor all My own.
And nothing else—no idols could possibly gain My praise.
9Look here, what's done is done and gone.
The now is new, and there's hope in the not-yet.
I will tell you what's to come, even before the events are brand-new.

10*So make up a song like none other.* Sing a new song to the Eternal.
And let His praise echo clear across the earth.
Let those who go to sea set sail with praise in the air.
Let those who live along the waters' edge sing His praise.
11Let desert places, urban and rural, wild and settled, sing!
Let the settlements of Kedar and those in the craggy cliffs of Sela join in the celebration.
The peaks of mountains, too, raise your voices with a great, glad cry.
12Let them all give glory to the Eternal.
Let them praise the One who is, was, and will be heard along the coasts.
13As a hero throws himself into battle, the Eternal will take on His enemies;
with passion, shouting out a deafening roar, He will power over them.

Eternal One: 14As a woman fiercely strains to give birth, I will gasp, pant, and cry out.
I have been quiet for a long time; I have held back in the face of it all.
Well, no more.
15*When My power is loosed,* I will make level the heights and render them bare.
I will dry up the rivers until bare islands appear,
and empty the sweet water from the pools.
16I will escort the blind down roads they do not know,
guide them down paths they've never seen.
I will smooth their passage and light their way.
I will indeed do it—they are abandoned no more.

17*Meanwhile,* those who put their stock in worthless images, who worship things impotent and breakable
And say to idols, "You are our gods,"
will be turned away and mortified.

Eternal One: 18You, deaf to the world, hear!
You, blind in your eyes, look! And you will see.
19My servant is as blind as any.
Who could be more deaf than the one who goes where I direct and tells what I want told?

► The identity of the Servant is much debated. On the one hand, Isaiah often refers to God's people, Israel, as "the servant of the Eternal" (41:8-9; 42:19; 45:4; especially 49:3). Yet at other times the Servant seems to be an individual, distinct from Israel, with a special mission to and for Israel. Early Christians hear these Servant Songs and reflect on Jesus' significance; they better understand His role as the light of the world, teacher, and Suffering Servant of God. They see His life and ministry as the embodiment and representative of true Israel and therefore the fulfillment of these words. They use the prophet's poetry to formulate songs and sermons that express not only Jesus' unique relationship to God but also His unique career as the Light of the world.

Who is as blind as the one committed to do what the Eternal One wills,
the servant of the Eternal?
20The seer-of-much nevertheless doesn't get it;
privy to sound and speech and tone, he still doesn't hear.

21On account of God's goodness, His right
ways and deeds,
the Eternal was pleased to make the instruction grand and glorious.
22But this people is compromised.
They've been plundered and robbed.
*They have lost—things, liberty, place,
and name.*
They are all trapped in holes and tucked away in prisons.
They've been plundered and depleted
with none to the rescue.
They've been stolen away with none to insist, "Give them back."
23*Is there anyone who understands?* Who,
out of all of you, will pay attention,
understand, and take note
concerning what's to come?

God is the one who lies behind these events. He makes it possible for His people to be defeated and taken away.

24Wasn't it the Lord, because we turned our backs,
who gave up Jacob's descendants,
Israel, for robbery and plunder?
We refused to live as God would have us live. We did not heed
the instruction that God gave us
through Moses so long ago.
25That's why God sent all fury against Jacob
in the shape of war, and we were burned.
We experienced all this;
Yet we didn't get it. God's people did not take it to heart.

43 Eternal One: Remember who created you, O Jacob?
Who shaped you, O Israel?
See, you have nothing to fear. I, who made you, will take you back.
I have chosen you, named you
as My own.
2When you face stormy seas I will be there with you with endurance and calm;
you will not be engulfed in raging rivers.
If it seems like you're walking through fire with flames
licking at your limbs,
keep going: you won't be burned.
3Because I, the Eternal One, am your
God.
I am the Holy One of Israel, and
I will save you.
I have traded in *nations to win you
back,*
Egypt, Cush, and Seba, in exchange for your freedom.
4Because you are special to Me and I love you,
I gladly give up other peoples in exchange for you;
They are trivial by comparison to your weighty significance.

5-6So don't be afraid. I am here.
I will reunite you with your
children,
bringing them back from wherever in the world they are—East, West, North, or South.
No place will be able to hold you when I demand your release,
when I order them,
"Bring My children—My sons and daughters—from far away.
7Bring the ones who are called by My name;
the ones I made, shaped, and created for My profound glory."
8*Even though they fail and seem* blind and deaf (and not for lack of eyes or ears),
bring them out.

9All the nations gather together; peoples
from all over the world assemble.
Who among them could have foreseen this?
Let them call their witnesses to make their case, prove they are in the right—
that it is the truth.

Eternal One: 10You are My witnesses;
You are My proof.

You whom I chose for special purpose, My servant,
in order that you would know Me, trust Me, be faithful to Me,
Understand that I alone am God; no god was formed
before Me,
and there will be no god after Me.
11I, I am the Eternal;
there is no Savior except for Me, 12I alone told that this victory would happen. Then I saved you and made it known.
No other god worked among
you—You know the truth.
You can testify that it is so; as I declare, I alone am God.

13 Indeed, from day one, I am He. No one can wrest another from
My hand.
I make things happen; who can turn them around?

14 The Holy One of Israel, the Eternal One who redeemed you, says,

Eternal One: For your good, I will send another against Babylon
and make all of them outcasts
from their own land;
The Chaldeans will set sail and try to escape on their celebrated ships.
15 For I am the Eternal, your Holy
One. I am your King, Creator of Israel, My people.

16 This is what the Eternal One says, the One who does the impossible,
the One who makes a path through the sea, a smooth road through tumultuous waters,
17 The One who drags out chariots and horses,
armies and warriors, *and drowns
them in the sea—*
They will go down, never to rise again;
their lives are snuffed out like a candle wick:

► The prophet appeals to a powerful memory: the exodus. He reminds God's people—all descendants of slaves in Egypt—how God liberated them from oppression, how God devastated the powerful army that pursued them in order to take them back to the whip and lash, back to servitude in Egypt. Stories of the exodus have been told time after time for many generations; they are permanent fixtures in their minds. The prophet evokes these amazing memories to comfort them and assure them that what God is about to do is like what God did do for their ancestors centuries ago.

Eternal One: 18 Don't revel only in the
past,
or spend all your time recounting
the victories of days gone by.

19 Watch closely: I am preparing something new; it's happening now, *even as I
speak,*
and you're about to see it. I am preparing a way through the
desert;
Waters will flow where there had been none.
20 Wild animals in the fields will honor Me;
the wild dogs and surly birds
will join in.
There will be water enough for My chosen people,
trickling springs and clear
streams running through the desert.
21 My people, the ones whom I *chose
and* created for My own,
will sing My praise.

22 In truth, you never really called upon me, did you, Jacob, *My
people?*
So how then could you be tired
of Me, Israel, My own?

23 You didn't present Me with sheep
for burnt offerings
or acknowledge Me in sacrifices.
I didn't tire you by demanding so many gifts of offerings and incense.
24 No sweet cane, no money or glorious excess have you given to Me.
You didn't even try to satisfy Me with the fat of your sacrifices.
Instead, you tired Me with your sins—bloodshed and lies,
crimes and offenses;
you wore Me down with all your belligerence and faults.
25 So let's get this clear: it's for My own sake that I save you.
I am He who wipes the slate clean and erases your
wrongdoing.
I will not call to mind your sins
anymore.
26 Now help Me remember. Let's get this settled.
State your case, and prove to Me
that you are in the right.
27 From the very beginning your founding father sinned, then your leaders defied My laws and instructions.

28So I brought disgrace on the princes of your sanctuary, your priests.
I turned them over to barbarian
assault,
Leaving Jacob to the batterers,
Israel to humiliation.

44 Eternal One: Nevertheless, listen to Me, My people:
Jacob, My servant; Israel,
My chosen.

2The Eternal who made you,
who formed you in the womb and promised to help you, has this
to say:

Eternal One: Don't be afraid, My servant Jacob,
My dear Jeshurun—My chosen.
3*Like a devoted gardener,* I will pour sweet water on parched land,
streams on hard-packed ground;
I will pour My spirit on your children and grandchildren—and let My blessing flow to your
descendants.
4And they will sprout among the grasses, grow vibrant and tall
like the willow trees lining a riverbank.
5One will call out: "I belong to the Eternal." Another will say, "Jacob is my people; Israel my honored
name."
Yet others will write "Property of the Eternal" on their hands.

6The Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies,
King of Israel, who paid their ransom, has this to say:

Eternal One: I am at the beginning and will be at the end.
There is no God except for Me.
7If you know any God like Me, tell it now.
Declare and demonstrate any who can compare to Me.
Or if you know and have announced events before their time,
told what is to come, then speak
so now.
8Don't be afraid. Let your minds be clear of fear.
Haven't I announced events and revealed what is to come?
From the earliest days, I have done
so. You know it—you have seen and know.
So, go ahead, My witnesses: is there a god out there other than Me?

Witnesses: There is no other rock like God. I don't know a single
one.

► All of the nations that Israel encounters are involved in some form of idol worship. They imagine these gods and fashion these images in order to satisfy a desire—a God-given desire—to connect with something, with someone out there. Human beings know at some deep, intuitive level that God exists, life is sacred, and there are mysteries more profound than the daily grind. This is why every human civilization exhibits some form of religious life and devotion. But instead of seeking the God who is, people have a tendency to create the gods they want, gods that give them control over the complexities and problems of life. Israel is elected by God for a number of reasons. Perhaps two of the most significant are to bear witness to the one True God and to warn the nations against idolatry. According to Scripture, idol worship is not some neutral, unfortunate habit people get themselves into; it is more than just a waste of time, hope, and effort. It is a dangerous substitute—a counterfeit experience—that adversely misshapes and disorders their lives. To persist in idolatry is to give way to malevolent evils and to miss out on a relationship with the one True God.

9But whoever does make an idol is not improved or enriched. On the contrary, their passing fancies contribute nothing of value or purpose. Those who look on at such misplaced attention don't understand what they're seeing, and the idol-makers will end up embarrassed at best. 10*It's easy* to say, "What pathetic idiocy! Who would do such a thing—make gods that are by definition worthless?" [11]The people who worship them will be shamed and humiliated. After all, people made those gods. Yet it happens all the time. So, let's put these images, these figurines all together; stand them up—they will tremble with terror and be ashamed.

[12]A metalworker shapes the raw materials into tools and then uses them to make little gods by hammering, bending, heating, and cooling the materials. And in the process, he gets tired and hungry; without water he soon grows faint. [13]Likewise, the woodworker measures and marks the wood, chisels and planes it down, marks it with a compass, and carves it until it looks a bit like a human—lovely, maybe—in order to put it in a house. [14]To take it back a bit further, perhaps he cuts down cedars or he carefully selects the cypress or oak himself, watches it, nurtures it until it is ready for his purpose. Perhaps he plants a pine; with sun and rain, it grows tall. [15]When it's time to harvest, he uses some of the wood for fuel to stay warm, some to heat the oven and bake bread, and some to craft a god. Then the woodworker bows down and worships before the image he just made. [16-17]Do you see the irony? He sits around, warming himself and roasting dinner with wood from the same tree from which he crafted a god to which he bows and worships and prays—one time saying, "I am warmed by the wood fire"; another time saying, "O dear god, save me."

[18-19]So we see again how it is that they're blind—their eyes shut to the truth in front of them, their hearts and minds refusing to think and really understand what's going on. So without stopping to think about it, the fool says, "Gosh, I used half of the wood to build a fire, and baked the bread and roasted the meat over its hot coals. After I eat, I think I'll use the rest of it to make a repulsive god. Maybe I'll bow down to this leftover lumber." [20]A fool like this is feeding on ashes—his addled mind and deceived heart lead him nowhere. He can't figure out how to save himself, much less see the error of his ways and say, "Is this idol in my right hand just a lie?"

Eternal One: Let that be a lesson to you, My people.
[21]Don't forget it, Jacob; O Israel, remember—you are Mine.
I made you; you are My servant;
I will not forget you.

[22]I have swept away your wrongdoing, as wind sweeps
a cloud from the sky:
I have cleared you of your sins,
as the sun clears the morning
mist.
I have rescued you; come back
to Me.

[23]Sing, starry sky and every constellation,
for what the Eternal has done.
Shout for joy, dark soil underfoot and deep caverns below;
Erupt in joyful songs, mountains and forests, and every tree in them!
Sing joyfully, for the Eternal One has rescued Jacob, His people;
The splendor of God will be revealed in Israel.

[24]The Eternal, your rescuing hero who formed you before birth, declares,

Eternal One: I am the Eternal, Creator of all there is and will be.
I alone stretched out the heavens
and spread out the blue earth.
[25]I confound the lying swindlers who claim to tell the future,
and I make the fortune-tellers
look like fools.
I stop the highbrow intellectuals in their tracks,
and I show the fault of their reasoning.
[26]But I stand behind the words of My
servants,
and I accomplish what they predict.
The one who says about Jerusalem,
"This place will be built up
again";
about Judah's cities, "They will be restored":
I confirm their predictions. They will rise from their ruins.
[27]After all, I am the One who needs only to say "Dry up" to great
waters,
and your rivers run dry.
[28]I am the one who says of the Persian victor over Babylon,
"Cyrus is My shepherd. He will accomplish what I determine."
My word goes out concerning
Jerusalem:
"It will stand, a glorious city, again"
and of My house within it,
"Restoration will begin at once."

45

This is what the Eternal One says to His chosen agent, Cyrus the Persian.

► God has a special mission for Cyrus, the Persian emperor: to lead the world and free His exiled people. The Scripture is clear: God, not kings, directs history. Kings—and sometimes their subjects—often need to be reminded of that. The Eternal, the one True God, stands above and behind human history, directing and orchestrating its events.

Eternal One: Not by his hand alone, but with his in Mine,
nations are vanquished, their leaders conquered;
Doors and gates open without a fight
and will not close.

(to Cyrus) 2I will go ahead of you and smooth the way, lower
the heights,
break down bronze doors, and
cut through iron bars.
3I will give you hidden treasures and wealth tucked away in secret places;
I will reveal them to you.
Then you will know that I am the Eternal, the God of Israel, who calls you by name.
4For the sake of My servant Jacob,
My chosen people Israel,
I have called you by name, made
you who you are,
And bestowed an honorable title on you, even though you don't know Me.
5I am the Eternal One; there is no other God but Me,
and even though you don't know Me, I am preparing you for victory.
6*I am doing all this* so that people all around the world
may know that I alone am the Eternal, the only God.
7I form light and create darkness;
I make what is good, happy, and healthy, and I create woe.
I, the Eternal One, make them
one and all.

8Skies above, open up and let the clouds rain down
righteousness!
Let the earth below sprout triumph
and justice.
For I, the Eternal, have created
them.

9How bad it will be for anyone who disputes with the very One who created him!
After all, a human being is nothing more than one clay pot among many.
Imagine the clay saying to the potter,
"What do you think you're doing?"
or "You don't have the hands for this."
10It's as idiotic as asking a mother or father,
"What are you birthing or begetting?" 11So the Eternal One, who is the Holy One and Maker of Israel, says,

Eternal One: Are you really going to question Me about what will happen to My children, or lecture Me about what I should do with the ones I made with My own hands?
12It is I who made the very ground on which you stand,
I who shaped the human beings
who walk around on it.
I pulled the sky and the heavens
taut with My own hands,
and organized the army of stars
that march across the night sky.
13So it was perfectly right for me to raise up Cyrus;
I will make his road ahead
straight and level,
So that he will rebuild My chosen
place, My city Jerusalem,
and set My exiled people free Without exacting a price or seeking a bribe.

So says the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies.

Eternal One: 14I, the Eternal One, say to you things will change; the wealthy and strong
of your world—Egyptians, Cushites, Sabeans—will come under your control.
Their goods and services, their strongest warriors, will be yours, deferring to you, as they follow
in chains, saying,
"God is with you. There is no other God but yours."

Cyrus: 15You have kept yourself hidden from others,
but You are indeed God, who saved Israel in the face of great challenges.
16Those who worshiped others will be
humiliated.
Those who craft idols will be embarrassed by their folly.
17By contrast, Israel can stand tall.
The Eternal has given them
a salvation that will never die, and they will never be embarrassed or ashamed.

18*Indeed,* He who created the universe— heavens and earth—gave it form
and shape.
The Eternal alone set it all in motion;
He didn't make it a disorganized wasteland but made it a beautiful and comfortable home.

Eternal One: I am the Eternal One, and there is no other god who exists.
19I didn't whisper in secret or
mumble in the darkness;
I didn't say to Jacob's children:
"Look around the desert and try to find Me."
No, I am the Eternal One. I will speak clearly what is right
and true.

20Come, come. Gather around, all who survived among the nations.
They have no idea what a real
God is
As they coddle their wooden idols,
and pray to worthless images
that cannot save them.
21Go ahead, talk among yourselves.
Present your case.
Now, who declared what would happen long ago?
Who predicted how these events
would turn out at this time?
Was it not I, the Eternal One?
There is no other God
but Me.
I alone am the righteous God and Savior. There is no other.

22So turn your back on those idols and your face to Me.
I will save you, wherever you are,
to the ends of the earth,
For I am God. There is none other.

23I make this solemn vow; I have spoken a word—
faithful and true—and it will not return; it will be done.
My words have wings; they will be accomplished;
every knee will bow down
to Me.
Every tongue will swear allegiance
*to Me.

24They will say of Me, "Only by the Eternal One shall I see things
through.
Only by God shall I go with integrity and strength
through life."

Those who know that God is the source of life, integrity, and strength live lives marked by confidence and a calm assurance.

Now all those who burned with anger against God
will come to Him and be shamed.
25Through the Eternal, all the descendants
of Israel
will be vindicated and made glorious within the world.

46 Bel and Nebo wobble and duck,
as their images
sway on the backs of oxen and donkeys—such a heavy burden
For the weary animals—as they are carried about.
2These "gods" bow and sink together, unable to escape the coming
invasion;
they march off into captivity.

The gods of the nations must have looked rather odd riding on the backs of animals. Even gods of the once-feared Babylonians, Bel and Nebo, are nothing but dead weight.

Eternal One: 3Listen, you who count yourselves among Jacob's
descendants,
all the remnant of Israel.
It is you, not I, who have been carried from before you were born.
Indeed, when you were still in the womb, I was taking care
of you.

* 45:23 Romans 14:11; Philippians 2:10-11

4And when you are old, I will still be there, carrying you.
When your limbs grow tired,
your eyes are weak,
And your hair a silvery gray, I will carry you as I always have.
I will carry you and save you.

5Does anyone compare to Me? Can you find any likeness?
Who or what might be My equal or even close to Me?
6*What about* those who use precious materials for gods—
hiring artisans to carefully craft
gold, silver, jewels,
And exotic wood into a god—
then they bow down and worship it!
7Their god is a mere object. They have to lug it around on their shoulders
before they can stand it up in its proper place.
It just sits there, unmoving until
they pick it up again.
It never speaks, never answers.
It cannot help them, no matter how desperate they are.
8Remember that—and don't be tempted to conform!
Think about it, you rebels.
9Remember the old days. For I am
God; there is no other.
I am God; there are no other gods like Me.
10From the beginning I declare how things will end;
from times long past, I tell what is yet to be, saying:
"My intentions will come to pass.
I will make things happen as I determine they should."
11I am the one who called Cyrus, the bird of prey from the east;
from a land far away I summoned
him to do what I intend.
My word went out, and I will see it
done.
My plan has been made, and I will see it through.

12Listen closely, you strong-willed
people
who have veered far from the right path.
13It won't be long until I make things
right;
My salvation is getting closer and closer; it won't be delayed.
I am ready to rescue Zion, My chosen place,
and display My beauty and splendor to Israel, My chosen
people.

47 Eternal One: Ah, pretty virgin daughter, Miss Babylon, come down and sit in the
dust.
Sit on the ground where you belong:
your throne is no more,
daughter of the Chaldeans, no longer all dainty, delicate.
2*And with those delicate fingers* grab
the heavy millstones and grind the grain.
Take off your lacy veil, lift your skirt, bare your legs, and Cross the mud and muck of the river
on foot like any other slave.
3Everyone will see you naked; your humiliation will be most public.
I intend to make you pay, and no one will interfere.*

Israel: 4Our Savior, our hero—the Eternal, Commander of
heavenly armies,
by name—is the Holy One of
Israel!
5So you'd best go quietly, Babylon,
daughter of the Chaldeans.
Slink off into the dark. No one will ever again call you Queen of All Lands.

Eternal One: 6*Some time ago,* I got fed up with My people.
I left My heritage to you, let you defeat them and take them
away.
But you showed no mercy, abused
and denigrated them;
you even made the elderly suffer
beneath your heavy burden.
7But You were carried away with your power,
thinking you would always be in charge.
You didn't consider your limits or think about how all this would end.
8You, pursuer of pleasure, resting in the thought,
"No one exists in the world of
any consequence except me.
I'll never feel as a widow or suffer
the loss of my children."

* 47:3 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

9Despite all your magic and charms,
all of a sudden, in a single day,
terror and death to the highest degree.
In the midst of it all, your children and husband, too, will be gone.
10In your wickedness you thought you were immune,
so hidden away that no one could find your faults.
But your version of wisdom and knowledge were your undoing; you thought,
"No one exists *in the world of
any consequence* except me."
11Evil will break upon you full force.
You won't be able to hold it off or charm it away.
Disaster will fall and, even with all your wealth, you won't stand a chance.
There's no way to know what is coming; all of a sudden,
It will ruin all that you have and all that you are.
12But keep trying your spells;
your magic and charms have brought you this far.
Maybe they'll help in some way.
Maybe they'll incite fear.
13All of your scheming has only exhausted you.
Let the astrologers step up and
save you,
After all they chart the heavens,
read the stars,
and predict the future month
after month.
14Look, they're like dry straw that ignites in a flash and is burned away.
They cannot help you—they cannot help themselves
From the power of the flame.
And this is not some warm and cozy fire shared among friends!
15So that's what they're worth to you—absolutely nothing,
even after all these years of working together.
They're gone. No one's left to rescue
you.

48 Listen closely, you descendants of Jacob who are called
Israel!
Hear this, you who trace your ancestors back to Judah,
Who take oaths in the name of the Eternal,
and call on the God of Israel,
but do so dishonestly and inappropriately:
2Your identity is wrapped up in the holy city,
and you claim to rely on the God of
Israel,
The One who is called the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly armies.

Eternal One: 3In times long past, I determined
and announced the things that would come.
Then suddenly I acted, and they indeed happened.
4Long ago, I figured that you'd resist (after all, you are a hard-headed and stubborn lot).
5Way back then, I told you what would happen so that you wouldn't claim
that some other god was responsible—that some figurine you crafted
From wood and molded metal
commanded and
accomplished it.
6You've heard what I foretold;
now you've seen what has happened—
do you agree that I'm God?
Well, from this moment, I am telling you new things, secrets hidden that no one has
known.
7They are created now—brand new,
never before announced,
never before heard.
So you can't claim, "Look, I already knew them."
8There's no way you could have heard or known
because, even from long ago,
you have never listened.
For I've always known that you are a conniving lot;
you've been a troublesome rebel
from birth.

9On account of My reputation, I hold back my anger;
for My own weighty grandeur, I am patient with you,
So that I don't make an absolute break with you.
10I have refined you, but not in the way silver is refined.
Instead, I try you in the furnace of suffering.

For God, suffering is not an end in itself. God uses suffering and hardship to purge the bad and foster the good in His covenant people.

11 But it is all on account of Me, not of you, that I act, that I retain honor, that My glory is Mine alone, and not sullied.

12 Listen to Me, O Jacob, Israel whom I've specially named,
specially chosen, and not without purpose.
I Am the first of all things, and I will be the last.
13 It is by My power, My desire, My doing that the earth was anchored.
My hand flung the skies.
I established them,
And when I call, they pay the strictest attention.

14 Come and listen, all of you! Did any of you tell in advance that the Eternal's beloved would press diligently Against Babylon's might and overcome Chaldea as He desired?

Eternal One: 15 No, only I, I the Eternal One knew this would happen.
I was the one who summoned him, who led him,
Who determined that he would have such victory.
16 Come even closer, and hear: from the beginning I spoke,
not hiding away in hushed secret. I Am and will be;
I was before anything was at all.

The Lord, the Eternal, has sent me and His Spirit.
17 The Eternal One, who rescued you, the Holy One of Israel declares, Eternal One: I am the Eternal One your God. I have given you My instruction for living well and right, leading you in how you should be and do.

18 If only you had listened to My instruction,
then you would have been flooded with peace;
Your righteousness would have risen and crested like waves on the sea.
19 Your people would have multiplied to become like the grains of sand, and your children would be like grains of wheat.
And they would be forever in My mind and My presence.

20 Leave Babylon; run swiftly from Chaldea!
And let it be known
with a joyous shout, to the ends of the earth,
That the Eternal One has rescued Jacob, His servant!
21 And though He guided them through desert places, with no water in sight,
they were never thirsty.
Just as in Moses' time, God made the rocks gush water,
split the rock and made water pour streaming out.

Eternal One: 22 Ah, but the malicious and wicked will never be at peace.

► True peace begins with knowing God. Those who listen and live by His teachings find that wholeness and goodness flood into their lives. The wicked, however, face a different reality; they live with constant danger and problems.

49 Listen to this, everyone—near and far:
The Eternal One singled me out, even before I was born.
He called me and named me when I was still in my mother's belly.
2 Even then, God was preparing my mouth to speak like a sharp sword.
He kept my purpose quiet, kept me safe in the shadow of His hand,
He crafted me into a sharp-tipped arrow and tucked me away in His quiver;
3 God said to me, "You are My servant, Israel.
Through you, I will be glorified."

4I said, "I've worked hard for nothing.
I spent my strength, and what have I accomplished—nothing,
Yet my justice and reward are secure with my God, the Eternal One."
5And now the Eternal who watched, shaped, and made me His own servant
from the womb has determined to restore Jacob's family;
Israel will be made right with the Eternal again.
For God has counted me worthy and He has been my strength right along.

Eternal One: 6As My servant you will do even more than this,
even more than restoring Jacob's family to Me
And making Israel right with Me again.
I will make you a light for the nations,
And You will illumine them until My salvation reaches to the ends of the earth.*

7This is what the Eternal One, the Redeemer and Holy One of Israel, told to the one who is despised and loathed by the nation,
To the servant of national leaders.

Eternal One: At the sight of you, kings will rise and princes will bow down, for I, the Eternal, faithful and true, the Holy One of Israel, have chosen you.

The Eternal has this to say:

Eternal One: 8When the time was right, I answered you;
on the day you were delivered, I was your help.*
I will watch over you, and give you as a promise, a binding covenant to the people.
Through you, My gift to the people, the land of promise will recover.
Ancestral ground, once deserted, will be entrusted to them.
9*Through you, My gift to the people,* I will declare to the prisoners,
"Come out. Now you are free";
To those who are held in darkness,
"Come out into the light."
They will find sustenance wherever they are—
Along the roads or in the open hills—
with peace of mind, in comfort and security.
10*Wherever they are,* they will be fine, never hungry nor thirsty.
They will be protected from oppressive heat and the burning sun
Because the One who loves them—as a mother loves her child—will be their guide.
God will lead them to restful places, rejuvenating springs of water.
11I will make their going easy, level the mountain road
and smooth the path that leads them home.
12Look! Even now, they are coming from lands far away, some from the north, others from the west, these from the land of Sinim.*

13Oh joy! Be glad—sky! Take joy—earth!
Burst into song—mountains!
For the Eternal, moved to compassion, has comforted and consoled His people.

► There are many kinds of love—and not enough words to tell the differences. Hebrew has a word for "love" that is related to its word for a woman's womb. English has no such word. It is too bad, for it is difficult to describe womb-love, the bearing-and-birthing love of a mother, the kind of love that the Lord has for the people of God's promise, Jacob's children. God shaped this people as His own and bound them with no ordinary promise. God loves them in the same way a mother loves the child growing in her womb. It can't be said so neatly and completely with one "love" word, but that is the idea that threads its way through this text.

* 49:6 Acts 13:47 * 49:8 2 Corinthians 6:2 * 49:12 Likely a reference to southern Egypt

Zion: [14]The Eternal One has abandoned me. God has walked out the
door;
my Lord left me alone. He has forgotten all about me.

Eternal One: [15]Is it possible for a mother, however disappointed,
however hurt, to forget her nursing child?
Can she feel nothing for the baby
she carried and birthed?
Even if she could, I, God, will never forget you.
[16]Look here. I have made you a part of Me, written you on the palms
of My hands.
Your city walls are always on My mind, always My concern.
[17]Now sweet Zion your children are running pell-mell back to you Just as fast as those who destroyed
you are leaving.
[18]Raise your head, lift up your eyes,
and watch your heart's desire
come—
All your children, gathered and returning to you. As I live, so I promise.
You will wear them with pride all
like shining ornaments;
you will put them on as a bride
on her wedding day.
[19]Because of all of your destroyed land—the barren fields and abandoned farms—
you are now too small, too
cramped for all your citizens;
And those who tried to swallow you
whole will be far, far away.
[20]The children you mourned, those born in exile, will return and
say,
"It is too cramped and crowded
for us;
We're going to need more room if we are to live here."
[21]You'll say to yourself, "Where in the world did all these people come from?
Could these really be mine?
I thought I'd been desolated, left
empty.
Where have you all been?
Where did you come from?"

[22]This is what the Lord, the Eternal, has
to say:

Eternal One: I will lift My hand and signal every nation that holds
your people
And they will bring your children
back again:
boys bundled in their arms, girls
riding on their shoulders.
[23]Kings will tend the children of Zion,
and their queens will nurse
and nurture them.
These greats will humble themselves before you.
They will bow and lick the dust off
your feet,
and in the course of it all, you will remember that I am the Eternal.
Whoever trusts in Me will never be put to shame.

Jerusalem: [24]Can the spoil of war be taken from the mighty?
Can the captives be freed from the hand of a tyrant?

Eternal One: [25]Hard to believe, but it shall be so.
The captives will be taken from
the hand of the mighty,
And the spoil of war will be rescued
from the tyrant.
I will liberate them from their captors and contend with your enemies.
I will save your children.
[26]I will turn your enemies' violence
back on themselves,
and they will suffer their own
atrocities:
They will feed on their own flesh
and drink their own blood
like wine.
Then every person on earth will know for certain that I, the Eternal, am your Savior.
I am your hero, the strong One of Jacob from whom you come.
I will rescue you, whatever the price.

50 Eternal One: Where is the document of My divorce
from your mother, Israel?
And to whom did I turn you over when I could no longer pay?
No, it was you who amassed debt—a debt of constant
wrongdoing—
And that's why your mother was sent away.

[2]Why is it that when I came to visit,
no one was there to greet Me;
and when I called out for you, no
one answered?
Do you think My reach insufficient,
My power too limited to rescue you?
I need only to speak the words and entire oceans will evaporate;
rivers will become deserts,
leaving fish to stink and die
for lack of water.
[3]I can dress the heavens with blackness
and trade its velvet skies for the scratchy clothes of mourning.

[4]The Lord, the Eternal, equipped me for this job—
with skilled speech, a smooth tongue
for instruction.
I can find the words that comfort and soothe the downtrodden, tired,
and despairing.
And I know when to use them.
Each morning, it is God who wakes me
and tells me what I should do,
what I should say.
[5]The Lord, the Eternal, has helped me to
listen,
and I do as He says. I have not been rebellious or run away *from God's
work*.
[6]But it's been hard. I offered My back to those who whipped me,
my cheeks to those who pulled out
my beard;
I did not turn away from humiliation and spitting.

► The prophet speaks, but his words are those of the Servant of God. The Servant is in tune with God, the Master Teacher. He teaches as he has been taught, and—for the first time it seems—He understands that suffering is an integral part of the work God has for him. The reality for God's Servant and any who follow him is this: to be close with God means to be at odds with people.

[7]Because the Lord, the Eternal, helps me I will not be disgraced;
so, I set my face like a rock, confident that I will not be ashamed.

[8]My hero who sets things right is near.
Who would dare to challenge me?
Let's stand and debate this head-to-head!
Who would dare to accuse me? Let him come near.
[9]See here, the Lord, the Eternal, helps me—who could possibly win
against me?
All my accusers will wear out like a ratty old moth-eaten shirt.

[10]So, you who are listening, do you acknowledge the Eternal One *as
God*?
And do you take seriously what the servant of God has to say?
If you are enveloped in darkness, with no light to see,
take confidence in the name of the Eternal One; rely on your God.
[11]Ah, but if you've tried to go it alone,
the light by which you go is your own consuming fire,
And the torches you light will be your undoing.

Eternal One: By My hand you will go down in torment.

51 Listen closely, you who diligently work for justice and look for the Eternal One,
for what is fair and true.
It would be good for you to look back, look to the place from where you came,
the rock out of which you were shaped and the quarry from where you were mined.
[2]Look to your spiritual ancestors—
Abraham, your father, and Sarah,
who birthed you.
Abraham was only one person when I called him.
But with generous goodness, I made from him a numerous people.

[3]The Eternal One will relieve the troubles and worries of Zion
and bring comfort to the rubble *of its
destruction.*
God will turn deserted places into a flourishing garden like Eden of old;
happy voices will ring out in the Eternal's garden;
Buoyant music and thanksgiving will fill the air.

Eternal One: [4]Listen closely, you who are Mine; lend an ear, My nation;
for My instruction will go straight out into all the world

And My justice will illuminate all people wherever they are.
5My justice is coming closer. My rescue is on the way.
My strong arm will extend justice to the nations.
Distant shores are looking to Me with hope that I will accomplish it.
6*Don't worry*—look up at the sky and down at the earth.
The sky will disappear like smoke; the earth will wear out like a well-used garment;
Every last thing may perish and dissolve, but My salvation is
for all time.
My justice will not end.

7Listen to Me, you who already live out what is true and right, who treasure My instruction
within your hearts:
Don't be afraid of people's scorn.
Don't let their dismissive criticism, bitter anger, or hatred get you down.
8*For they'll come to nothing;* they'll be eaten up as a moth eats
a shirt;
they'll be consumed as a worm
feeds on wool.
But My justice will endure. I will extend My saving action to every generation.

► This sounds too good to be true. God's people fear He is asleep, so they attempt to rouse Him to action. They remind Him—and themselves—of when God rescued His people long ago and defeated Egypt. Rahab, a monster of mythic character, is linked to Egypt, a nation of legendary power and cruelty. The prophet assures his discouraged audience that God will come through again for His people. It will be for them like it was when God rescued the Hebrew slaves. The exiled people of God will be freed from Babylon, and God will smooth out and level off the perilous desert highway that leads from Mesopotamia to the promised land.

9Get up, power of God! Rise up and strengthen Yourself, arm of God.
Get up and do like in the olden days, when You saved Your special
people—
Like when You cut Rahab, that dragon-monster of chaos, in two.
10And remember when You made the sea
dry up
and the waters of the deep retreated
for Moses and company;
Then You laid down a road right through for the people You saved to cross
over?
11*It'll be like that for* those the Eternal One ransomed from captivity
to return to Zion, Jerusalem. And they'll come singing with joy.
Overwhelming, never-ending joy will crown their heads with happiness and delight
while desperation and depression
melt away.

Eternal One: 12I am the One who comforts you and gives you
peace.
So why are you afraid of human beings?
The children of men are only grass;
they'll wither and die.

13Have you forgotten Me, the One who made you and the whole
world,
who stretched out the skies
and made sure the earth's foundations?
Yet you constantly worry about others—how they hate and might harm you.
But their anger counts for
nothing.
14In an instant, those who cower in fear and trepidation will be free to go in confidence;
they won't die in chains or suffer
from hunger.
15Because I, the Eternal, am your God,
I can make the oceans roil with storm and roll with great waves.
They call Me, the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly
armies.
16I have given you My words to speak and protected you with the shadow of My hand.
I am the One who pulled the skies tight and made the earth rock solid.

And I am the same who said to Zion, "You are indeed Mine!"

17 Get up. Get up, and get moving!
Stand up, Jerusalem,
you who have experienced firsthand the punishing anger of God.
You have drunk that terrible cup to the last gritty drop,
and it left you reeling, drunk on
distress.
18 Ah, poor Jerusalem! No one comes to guide her along.
Of all her people, all the ones whom the city nurtured and raised to adulthood,
None take her hand now in her
stupor of pain.
19 Twin disasters have befallen you:
devastation and destruction,
famine and war.
Who can relieve your anguish and
pain?
Who is left to provide comfort?
20 Her people are lying around on every corner,
weary and faint, like an antelope
trapped in a net.
Each is overcome with the Eternal's anger; each suffers His rebuke.

21 But now, listen! Listen, you who are miserable,
you who are intoxicated, but not on
wine.
22 The Lord, your God, the Eternal, who pleads for His people, has this to
say:

Eternal One: Look! I have taken away
the cup that left you reeling—
the cup of My anger—and sobered you up; I will never make you drink it again.
23 And I will give that drink to those who abused and oppressed
you—
who ordered you, "Get down so we can walk all over you."
And your backs became the ground
they walked on, the streets
they passed by.

52 Wake up, fair Zion; dress in your strength.
Put on your most elegant clothes, O Jerusalem,
holy city.
Never again will outsiders—
uncircumcised and the unclean—
who once abused and denigrated you move within your elect borders.
2 So brush off any dust and dirt; rise, take your place of honor, Jerusalem.
Loose the chains from your neck
and raise your head in freedom, captive children of Zion.
3 For the Eternal has this to say:

Eternal One: You were taken for
nothing,
and it's nothing for Me to get you back.

4 For the Lord, the Eternal, has this to say:

Eternal One: My people willingly went to live in Egypt long ago;
but now Assyria has oppressed
My people for no good reason.

5 So what now? Babylon has assumed it can simply take My people
away
with no recompense and no respect.
Their tyrannical rulers jeer and cheer
and continually deride My name.
6 Well, it's not over. My people will know My name.
At the time that I determine,
My people will see again who I am.
I will tell them, "I am here. And I am ready."

7 Ah, how beautiful the feet of those on the mountain
who declare the good news of victory,
of peace and liberation,*
The voice that calls to Zion, that chosen
place for God's promise people, announcing to them "Your God rules!"
8 Listen! The ones who watch and wait are crying out and laughing for joy:
Look now, for everyone will see the Eternal One coming back to Zion.
9 Let the rock and rubble of Jerusalem erupt in joyful song
for the Eternal has brought comfort to His people and redeemed
Jerusalem.
10 The Eternal has flexed His muscles, bared
His holy arm
for the world to see His power;

* 52:7 Romans 10:15

Every nation, every person, every place
on earth
will witness the victory of our God.

The prophet urges God's exiled people to leave Babylon, trusting in God and bringing with them the sacred vessels necessary to restore the priestly service of the temple.

11 Servants of God, turn away from that place;
As for those who carry the vessels for
the Eternal's temple,
go, without touching any of Babylon's impurity, and make yourselves
pure.
12 Go in confidence and grace—no rushing,
no frantic escape.
There's no need to be anxious—the Eternal One goes before and behind you.
The God of Israel paves the way with assurance and strength.
He watches your back.

Eternal One: 13 See here! My servant will succeed.
He will grow in character and reputation, achieving high standing and status.
14 Just as people used to be shocked
by you,
even so his appearance was disfigured;
His form—once glorious—was marred until it hardly seemed human.
15 Now many nations will be astonished at his prominence;
world rulers will be speechless
in his presence,
For they will see what they've never been told;
they will understand what they've never heard.*

53 Indeed, who would ever believe it?
Who would possibly accept
what we've been told?*
Who has witnessed the awesome power and plan of the Eternal in action?*
2 Out of emptiness he came, like a tender shoot from rock-hard ground.
He didn't look like anything or anyone of consequence—
he had no physical beauty to attract
our attention.
3 So he was despised and forsaken by men,
this man of suffering, grief's patient
friend.
As if he was a person to avoid, we looked
the other way;
he was despised, forsaken, and we took no notice of him.
4 Yet it was our suffering he carried,
our pain and distress, our sick-to-the-* soul-ness.
We just figured that God had rejected him,
that God was the reason he hurt so badly.
5 But he was hurt because of us; he suffered so.
Our wrongdoing wounded and
crushed him.
He endured the breaking that made us
whole.
The injuries he suffered became our healing.
6 We all have wandered off, like shepherdless
sheep,
scattered by our aimless striving and
endless pursuits;
The Eternal One laid on him, this silent
sufferer,
the sins of us all.

7 And in the face of such oppression and suffering—silence.
Not a word of protest, not a finger
raised to stop it.
Like a sheep to a shearing, like a lamb to be slaughtered,
he went—oh so quietly, oh so willingly.
8 Oppressed and condemned, he was taken away.
From this generation, who was there to complain?
Who was there to cry "Foul"?
He was, after all, cut off from the land of the living,
Smacked and struck, not on his account,
because of how my people (my people!)
Disregarded the lines between right and
wrong.
*They snuffed out his life.
9 And when he was dead, he was buried with the disgraced
in borrowed space (among the rich),
Even though he did no wrong by word or deed.*

It is hard to understand why God would crush His innocent Servant. But it is in His suffering for sin that God deals decisively with sin and its harmful effects.

* 52:15 Romans 15:21 * 53:1 Romans 10:16 * 53:1 John 12:38 * 53:4 Matthew 8:17 * 53:7-8 Acts 8:33 * 53:9 1 Peter 2:22

10Yet the Eternal One planned to crush him all along,
to bring him to grief, this innocent
servant of God.
When he puts his life in sin's dark place,
in the pit of wrongdoing,
this servant of God will see his children and have his days prolonged.
For in His servant's hand, the Eternal's deepest desire will come to pass and flourish.
11As a result of the trials and troubles that wrack his soul,
God's servant will see light and be content
Because He knows, really understands,
what it's about; as God says,
"My just servant will justify countless others by taking on their punishment and bearing it away.
12Because he exposed his very self—laid bare his soul to the vicious grasping of death—
And was counted among the worst, I will count him among the best.
I will allot this one, My servant, a share in all that is of any value,
Because he took on himself the sin of
many
and acted on behalf of those who broke My law."

54 Eternal One: Sing, childless woman, you who have never given birth.
Raise a joyful shout, you who have never gone through
labor.
You, whose husband is dead, will bring forth much more than the fertile one who has a husband.*
2Enlarge your house. You are going to need a bigger place;
don't underestimate the amount of room that you'll need. So build, build, build.
3You will increase in every direction
to fill the world.
Your offspring will take over the
nations;
Your people will revitalize longabandoned towns.

4Don't be afraid, for there is no one to shame you.
Don't fear humiliation, for there is no
one to disgrace you.
The shame of your younger years and the sorrow of your widowhood are over.
You'll forget those days as if they never happened.
5Because the One who made you will be your husband;
the One called Commander of
heavenly armies
Will set you right again, the Holy One of Israel.
It's not for nothing that He is called
"God of all the earth."

6For the Eternal has called you to come back home,
like a young wife, once deserted and deeply injured.
Now God is pulling you close again. Like
a spouse forgives,
He will take you back and be reconciled.
The Eternal, your Redeemer, says this:

Eternal One: 7*Yes, I was angry* for a moment, and I rejected you,
but My love endures, and I want
you back.
8For that moment, when I was so mad,
I made it impossible for you to see Me, to find Me,
But with great tenderness, I will take you back in love.

9I think this is like the time when Noah lived.
I promised that I would never again destroy the world by a flood.
So now I am promising never again
to be so angry and punishing as I was when I sent you away.
10Even if the mountains heave up
from their anchors,
and the hills quiver and shake, I will not desert you.
You can rely on My enduring love;
My covenant of peace will stand
forever.

So says the Eternal One, whose love won't give up on you.

Eternal One: 11Ah, Jerusalem, so miserable and distressed! I will rebuild you
with floors of shimmering mosaics, set sapphires in your foundations.

* 54:1 Galatians 4:27

This promise stands to God's covenant people: nothing can happen to them unless God wills it and makes it so. Only if they invite it will destruction come. Throughout this time of rebellion and punishment God makes it clear that they hold their fate in their own hands. And if they haven't understood the message, God tells them who will do the nation-building—an unworldly restoration. He says that He provides the raw materials; He creates the tools and provides the skills with which the builders build. He alone is responsible for restoring the nation. And no matter what charges the adversary may concoct, God will not be put off. Even though Israel rebelled and was unfaithful at one time, that is in the past. The future is sure: God's faithfulness to His covenant, His enduring love for His people, will stand for all time. So the challenge goes out from the prophet to God's people—speaking on God's authority—to align themselves with God, accept Him as God, and they will surely win.

12 I will decorate your towers with rubies, and your gates will sparkle with all manner of precious gems.
Costly jewels will adorn the entire wall that circles your precincts.
13 Every one of your children, the people who call you home,
will be students of the Eternal;
oh, they'll be so happy and live in peace!
14 This time, you will be founded and grounded on right thought, speech, and action.
And no one will trouble you, abuse or oppress you;
you will know no fear and have no worries.
15 If a nation marches against you, know that I am not behind it.
Anyone foolish enough to challenge you will fall to you.
16 I have created the blacksmith
who readies the fire and forges weapons for wars;
And I have created the destroyer to ravage and ruin.
17 But no instrument forged against you will be allowed to hurt you,
and no voice raised to condemn you will successfully prosecute you.
It's that simple; this is how it will be for the servants of the Eternal;
I will vindicate them.

55 Eternal One: If you are thirsty, come here;
come, there's water for all.
Whoever is poor and penniless can still come and buy the food I sell.
There's no cost—here, have some food, hearty and delicious,
and beverages, pure and good.
2 I don't understand why you spend your money for things that don't nourish or work so hard for what leaves you empty.
Attend to Me and eat what is good;
enjoy the richest, most delectable of things.
3 Listen closely, and come even closer.
My words will give life,
for I will make a covenant with you that cannot be broken, a promise
Of My enduring presence and support like I gave to David.*
4 See, I made him a witness to the peoples, a leader and commander among the nations.
5 Now you will issue a call to nations from all over the world— people whom you do not know and who do not know you.
They will come running, because of Me, your God
because the Eternal, the Holy One of Israel, has made you beautiful.

6 So turn your attention and seek the Eternal One while it is still possible;
call on Him while He is nearby.
7 Let those who are busy plotting violence and doing wrong stop right now, turn, and do right.

* 55:3 Acts 13:34

Let them turn back to the Eternal so they can experience His compassion.
God will excuse our past wrongs. Our God's forgiveness is inexhaustible.

Eternal One: [8]My intentions are not always yours,
and I do not go about things as you do.
[9]My thoughts and My ways are above and beyond you,
just as heaven is far from your reach here on earth.
[10]For as rain and snow can't go back
once they've fallen,
but soak into the ground
And nourish the plants that grow, providing seed to the farmer
and bread for the hungry, [11]So it is when I declare something.
My word will go out and not return to Me empty,
But it will do what I wanted;
it will accomplish what I
determined.
[12]For you will go out in joy, be led home in peace.
And as you go the land itself will break out in cheers;
The mountains and the hills will erupt in song,
and the trees of the field will clap their hands.
[13]Prickly thorns and nasty briers will give way
to luxurious shade trees, sweet and good.
And they'll remind you of the Eternal One
and how God can be trusted absolutely and forever.

► The triumph of God over Israel's enemies is certain. Filled with joy and expectation, God's covenant people leave behind a strange country and begin the long, dangerous journey back to the promised land. But instead of fear and trepidation at the potential perils ahead, they are overwhelmed with a sense of peace and joy. Instead of holding dangers around every turn, the land and creation itself join in the celebration to welcome the exiles home. There is no need to worry about long, hard climbs or treacherous descents, for the mountains and the hills cheer them on. There's no need to fret about shade from the sun's blazing heat, for majestic trees grow up to cast their long, cooling shadows across the desert's arid land. The prophet's vision of the journey home is nearly complete.

56

Eternal One: Take care that you
do what is right and fair,
because before you know it,
I will come to save you;
Soon you will see how I rescue.
[2]God's favor rests on those who attend to justice,
who devote themselves to doing
what is right,
Who keep the Sabbath and don't disregard or belittle it,
who keep from doing what is wrong: destructive, deceitful, or violent.

[3]No stranger who has put trust in the Eternal should ever say,
"I don't count. I'm not part of Eternal's
chosen people."
And no eunuch should ever say,
"I am all dried up, *worthless and
empty*."
[4]For this is what the Eternal has to say:

Eternal One: The eunuchs who keep My Sabbaths,
make good choices, and follow
the terms of My covenant
will blossom with My blessing.
[5]I will give them, within My house,
an enduring memorial and a name better than if they had sons and daughters—
A name that will never be forgotten and will continue to inspire and encourage forever.
[6]And of those strangers who *are not among the chosen people
Israel*
yet have bound themselves to
the Eternal,
Attend to God, and love all that the Eternal is and does;
if they serve Him, keep the Sabbath, make good choices,
and cling to the terms of the covenant,

7I will bring them into My holy mountain where no foreigner is allowed and give them a joyful welcome
within My house of prayer.
Their burnt offerings and sacrifices will find acceptance on My altar because My house will be called a house of prayer for all nations.*

► These words must have come as a surprise to the Hebrews. They were the called-out ones and had been commanded to keep themselves separate from their pagan neighbors. Now they hear these words of inclusion. They are told it doesn't matter who they are or where they've come from or what "imperfections" they might have. Any who have bound themselves to Israel's God—even if they're not Israel, even if they are not "whole"—belong to Him and will enjoy all the wonders that He has in store for them. One day it will be clear that they are a sign of God's goodness and mercy, that God's justice is on display through their lives. They are to live as the light of God to the neighboring countries.

8And the One who brings all Israel together, the Lord, the Eternal, declares:

Eternal One: I am not done yet. I will still gather more to this community.

9Bring in the ravenous, vicious beasts from forests and fields;
bring them in to pillage Jerusalem to rip and eat!
10Those who should be guarding and directing the people
are blind and ignorant at best.
They are no better than hounds who can't be bothered to bark at trouble;
they lie around, lost in their dreams,
loving their sleep.
11But these dogs sure love to eat.
They can't get enough, greedily devouring Judah.
They are shepherds with no
understanding,
guides with no sense of direction.
So they've all scattered, each out for
himself,
trying to figure out how best to gain advantage.
12"Come on!" they say, "I'll get the wine;
we'll get our fill of booze.
Day after day, it just keeps getting better!"*

57 Eternal One: The person who does what is right dies,
and no one cares.
Good people are carted off, and
no one understands why.
For those who are in the right are
taken away
and spared a face-to-face
encounter with evil.
2*Nevertheless,* those who go through life with integrity and
righteousness
will rest in peace and die in their own beds.

3But you, you two-faced witch's
spawn, come here.
You are adultery's children,
prostitution's offspring.
4Who is it that you mock?
Whom do you tease and taunt
with your vulgar gestures?
You are born of deceit and lies, and nursed on violence and wrong.
5You get all excited by other deities and are stimulated by their rituals, prancing around lush trees and sacrificing innocent children
In valleys and beneath cliffs, dark and sinister.
6You've made your choice.
You've thrown in your lot with idols and smooth stones in dark ravines, Wining and dining strange gods with offerings of drink and grain.
And you expect Me to tolerate
this?

7You've made your bed in the "sacred
places,"
given offerings, and made prayers
on high and lofty mountains.

* 56:7 Matthew 21:13; Mark 11:17; Luke 19:46 * 56:12 Greek manuscripts omit this verse.

8*You declare your obedience to Me,*
but all hidden away—as if I couldn't see;
behind the very door and doorpost, you set up your shrine.
You turned your back on Me and snuck off to be intimate with other deities;
you made promises to them and bound yourself to them all tight and close.
9You offered oils and musky ointments to Molech, your lover-god,
and sent your servants to exotic
places far away,
Sent them down even into the grave
to increase your pleasure with a variety of deities.
10And even when the journey wore you out, your lust drove you on.
You did not give up, thinking it hopeless,
But you found strength and renewed your resolve.
11Who are you afraid of?
I don't know why you lied to Me
about it;
You never seemed to care what I thought.
Maybe I've been patient and quiet too long—
Is that why you've lost all respect
for Me?
12I will tell the story of your righteousness and good
deeds,
but they can't help you now.
13Not even this hodge-podge of idols
you call gods can help you.
They'll not come to your aid if you cry for help.
They're nothing. A gentle breeze
could blow them away;
a breath could topple them,
But whoever stays true to Me,
whoever looks to Me for help and support
will inherit the land and possess
My holy mountain.

14*For those who cling to the true God,* it is
said,
"Clear the way that they travel; widen
the roads and make them smooth!
Take away any difficulty so that they may go easily!"

15For the highest God above, who is and always will be, the only
One who is holy has this to say:

Eternal One: I live in the high and holy
place,
yet I am with the low, the weak,
and the humble.
I renew their vitality and revive
their strength.
16For I will not struggle against them
forever,
and I won't always be angry.
For the human spirit would grow faint—
the breath of life I created would soon grow weak.
17*Yes,* they infuriated Me with how they profited from their greed and violence,
so I struck them down and turned My back on them,
And still they persisted in their
wrongdoing.
18I have seen how they act, but I will still bind them up and make them well again.
I will show them the way,
comfort and console them.
19I will create in them a desire to praise.
"Peace, peace, to those far away.
All will be well, wherever you are."
And I will heal them.
20By contrast, the wicked are all riled up
like a storm-tossed sea that cannot be calmed.
Its crashing waves wash up muck
and dirt on the shore.
21But there will be no peace for the wicked.

So says my God.

58 Eternal One: Tell My people about their wrongdoing;
shout with a voice like a trumpet;
Hold nothing back: say this people of Jacob's line and heritage
have failed to do what is right.

2And yet they look for Me every day.
They pretend to want to learn
what I teach,
As if they are indeed a nation good
and true,
as if they hadn't really turned their backs on My directives.

They even ask Me, as though they care, about what I want them to be and do, as if they really want Me in their lives.

People: [3]Why didn't You notice how diligently we fasted before You?
We humbled ourselves with pious practices and You paid no attention.

Eternal One: I have to tell you, on those fasting days,
all you were really seeking was your own pleasure;
Besides you were busy defrauding people and abusing your workers.
[4]Your kind of fasting is pointless, for it only leads to bitter quarrels, contentious backbiting, and vicious fighting.
You are not fasting today because you want Me to hear your voice.
[5]What kind of a fast do I choose? Is a true fast simply some religious exercise for making a person feel miserable and woeful?
Is it about how you bow your head (like a bent reed), how you dress (in sackcloth), and where you sit (in a bed of ashes)?
Is this what you call a fast, a day the Eternal One finds good and proper?
[6]No, what I want in a fast is this:
to liberate those tied down and held back by injustice,
to lighten the load of those heavily burdened,
to free the oppressed and shatter every type of oppression.
[7]A fast for Me involves sharing your food with people who have none,
giving those who are homeless a space in your home,
Giving clothes to those who need them, and not neglecting your own family.

[8]Then, oh then, your light will break out like the warm, golden rays of a rising sun;
in an instant, you will be healed.
Your rightness will precede and protect you;
the glory of the Eternal will follow and defend you.
[9]Then when you do call out, "My God, Where are You?"
The Eternal One will answer, "I am here, I am here."
If you remove the yoke of oppression from the downtrodden among you, stop accusing others, and do away with mean and inflammatory speech, [10]If you make sure that the hungry and oppressed have all that they need,
then your light will shine in the darkness,
And even your bleakest moments will be bright as a clear day.
[11]The Eternal One will never leave you;
He will lead you in the way that you should go.
When you feel dried up and worthless,
God will nourish you and give you strength.
And you will grow like a garden lovingly tended;
you will be like a spring whose water never runs out.
[12]You will discover there are people among your own who can rebuild this broken-down city out of the ancient ruins;
You will firm up its ancient foundations.
And all around, others will call you "Repairer of Broken Down Walls" and "Rebuilder of Livable Streets."

Eternal One: [13]If because of the Sabbath you set aside your own pursuits and pleasure, and you honor the Sabbath and sanctify that day by leaving it to and for the Eternal—
If you speak of Sabbath-delight but avoid speaking idle words, and refuse to get caught up and busy with your interests and concerns— [14]Then you will discover joy such as only the Eternal can give.
And I will raise you high and make your reach as wide as the earth,
And you will live on all that I promised to Jacob,
your ancestor, the heart of Israel.

The Eternal One said these very things.

59 The Eternal One's reach is not so short that He cannot
save you.
His ear is not so deaf that He cannot hear you.

► Reactions vary to the awful events that sweep over Judah in the wake of the Babylonian invasion. Some people think that the God of Israel is defeated. This is exactly what the Babylonians hope the people will think and say; it makes the job of the tyrants and their deputies that much easier. So when the prophet announces that Israel's God can and will rescue His displaced people, many reason that God may want to rescue them but cannot, for He is no match for the might of Babylon. Others are apparently wondering if God simply couldn't hear their cries for help in the first place. Is Babylon too powerful? Are the exiles too far from home to be heard? The prophet knows the fears that reside in anxious hearts; but more than that, he knows the truth.

2 Your persistent wrongdoing has come between you and your God;
since you constantly reject and push God away,
He had to turn aside and ignore your cries.
3 For your hands are covered with blood;
your fingers are sticky with all manner of crimes;
Your lips drip vicious lies;
your tongue mutters all manner of
wickedness.
4 Everyone misuses the judicial system,
clogging it with *twisted accusations
and* misleading testimony.
With empty charges and baseless lies they conceive trouble and give birth to injustice.
5 They concoct and create the most poisonous things;
it's as if they hatch vipers' eggs or weave spiders' webs.
Eat their eggs and die; crush one and a viper is hatched—
yet more poison, hurt, and distrust.
6 There is nothing of value in their creations—
the webs they weave are not fit to clothe or cover anyone.
The products they make are nothing but
trouble;
violence comes naturally to them.
7 Their feet race to do evil;
they rush to shed innocent blood;
Their thoughts are bent toward injustice;
destruction and trouble line the roads of their lives.
8 They never travel the path of peace;*
no justice is found where they have been.
They set a course down crooked roads;
no one who follows their lead has a chance of knowing peace.

People: 9 That's why we can't make
things right;
good and true can't gain any ground on us.
We look earnestly for a bright spot,
but there isn't
even a glimmer of hope; it's darkness all around.
10 We are left to stumble along, grabbing at whatever seems solid,
like the blind finding their way down a strange and threatening street.
In broad daylight—when we should have sight—we stumble and fall as in the dark.
We are already like the dead among those brimming with health.
11 We growl like bears and moan like doves.
We hope that maybe, just maybe,
it will all turn out right;
But it doesn't. We look for liberation,
but it's too far away.
12 For our wrongdoing runs too deep
before You.
Our sins stack up against us—
sure evidence of our guilt.
For our offenses are always with us;
*they are insidious and lasting,
as You know.*
Our guilt says it all. We know it, too.
13 We took You for nothing, and did just the opposite of Your
commands.
We broke our promises to You,
ignored and rejected You.

* 59:7-8 Romans 3:15-17

We hatched up schemes to oppress others and rebel, to twist the truth for our gain
while presenting it as honest-to-
God fact.
14When justice calls, we turn it away.
Righteousness knows to keep its distance,
For truth stumbles in the public square,
and honesty is not allowed to enter.
15There is no truth-telling anymore,
and anyone who tries to do right
finds he is the next target.

It's true. The Eternal One saw it all
and was understandably perturbed
at the absence of justice.
16God looked long and hard, but there wasn't a single person who tried to put a stop to the injustice and lies.
So God took action. His own strong arm reached out and brought salvation.
His own righteousness—good and pure—sustained Him.
17*But God's equipment was that of no*
ordinary warrior:
He strapped on righteousness as His breastplate,
And put on the helmet of salvation.
Wrapped in vengeance for clothing and passion as a cloak, God
prepared for war.
18*Finally, God determined* they must get what they've earned:
fury to those who oppose Him,
vengeance against those who are against Him.
To the ends of the known world, God
will go to render justice.
19This is how people from east to west will come to respect the name
and honor the glory of the Eternal.
For He will come on like a torrential flood driven by the Eternal's winds.

Eternal One: 20The Redeemer will come to make Zion right again,
to rescue those of Jacob's holy line who turn their backs on wrongdoing.

This is what the Eternal One declares.

Eternal One: 21This is My covenant promise to them:* My Spirit, which rests on and moves in you, and My words, which I have placed within you, will continue to be spoken among you and move you to action. And not only you, but so it will be for your children and their children too. And so on through the generations for all time.

► Once again the scene shifts. The exile is receding in the past and the remnant of Israel—those who survived God's judgment and Babylon's cruelty—are working hard to rebuild their lives and communities. But life back in Jerusalem under Persian rule is not faring as well as they hoped. So once again a prophetic voice breaks the silence to address a discouraged population. Most people are facing terrific difficulties. Despite what their prophets have spoken, Jerusalem is a mere shadow of the great city their parents and grandparents knew. People doubt whether God is really alive, or really all that powerful, or really even cares. But the faithful know that God is powerful and does care; they are determined to convince their countrymen that He has their well-being in mind. He can make this people and this place great again, if they just trust and follow Him. Soon the whole world will be caught up in this brand new thing God is doing.

This section of Isaiah is written to a singular female as if she is the mother of the Jews. But this woman isn't just any woman—she is Jerusalem. Cities are often described as female because they are like mothers supporting a brood of children (the population). This capital city of God's special favor, of God's presence, is filled with His people of the promise and is poised to become something new and glorious.

60 Arise, shine, for your light has broken through!
The Eternal One's brilliance
has dawned upon you.
2*See truly;* look carefully—darkness
blankets the earth;

* 59:20-21 Romans 11:26-27

people all over are cloaked in darkness.
But God will rise and shine on you;
the Eternal's bright glory will shine on you, a light for all to see.
3Nations north and south, peoples east and west, will be drawn to your light, will find purpose and direction by your light.
In the radiance of your rising, you will enlighten the leaders of nations.

4*Don't be shy; don't be doubtful;* lift up your eyes and look around.
They have gathered all around you,
eager to come and be close to you.
And your children will come back to this land:
your sons from the farthest places of wandering,
and your daughters gently carried home.
5And when you see it, your face will glow;
your heart will race and be filled with joy;
For great ships will arrive with gifts from across the sea,
and the wealth of nations will make their way to you.
6Herd after herd of camels will cover the land,
caravans arriving daily from south and southwest: Midian, Ephah, Even Sheba with gifts of gold and frankincense.
They will announce for all the world to hear, "The Eternal be praised!"
7Kedar's flocks will be gathered for you;
Nebaioth's rams will be available for sacrifices.

Eternal One: When they are offered on My altar, I will accept them.
I will make My glorious house even more glorious.

8Who are these sailing to our ports like clouds through the sky,
like doves winging their way home to their window sills?

9*Breezy* coastlands will wait expectantly for Me; the ships of Tarshish arrive first to bring your children back from distant lands Carrying in their holds the silver and gold—
to honor the name of the Eternal your God,
The Holy One of Israel who has made you beautiful.
10People will come from different countries and different cultures to rebuild Jerusalem's walls and make her strong again.
Their kings will help you however you need.

Eternal One: I punished you because I was furious with you, reduced you to little on account of your persistent wrongdoing;
But I will restore you, reclaim you, and rebuild you because I cannot help but love you.

11Now your gates will stay open to a constant stream of gifts;
all day and night they will not be shut
As the wealth of nations is brought to you with their kings leading the processions.
12Any nations that abstain, any peoples who decline from serving you will simply disappear;
they will be destroyed.

Eternal One: 13*Meanwhile,* the most beautiful materials will arrive from Lebanon—cypress, box, and pine—to rebuild and decorate the place where I promised to be,
My house where I will rest in glory among you.

14And all the children of those who had bullied you, attacked and abused you, all those who hated you will come crawling on their knees and bowing at your feet.
And they will address you as "city of God, place of the Eternal,
the Holy One of Israel's Zion, sweet heaven on earth."

Eternal One: 15Although you have suffered abandonment, hatred, and hopeless despair,
and no one dared to pass through,
I will make you a place of lofty beauty for all time,
filled and overflowing with joy from generation to generation.

This Hebrew title "Messiah" is based on a verb rightly translated "to anoint." Kings and priests are "messiah-ed" during this period. But prophets like Isaiah and those who stand in the tradition of the great Hebrew prophets are also anointed. Living and working in Jerusalem in these days is much different than in earlier times. Wracked by the ages and ruined by overt destruction and covert neglect, the citizens of the holy city face disillusionment and disappointment. The people who come back after exile in Babylon do not return to a gloriously restored city and temple, but to a difficult land and contentious neighbors. The prophet is inspired by the spirit of God to restore hope, to help, and to comfort. As a spiritual guide he is compelled to convince people that God remains with them and that He still desires what is good, right, and true for and within them. Centuries later, in a synagogue in Nazareth, Jesus will pick up the scroll of Isaiah and read these inspiring words. He will say in no uncertain terms that the Scriptures are being fulfilled right then and there in their hearing (Luke 4:16-21). The year of jubilee will have arrived.

16 You will be enriched by the world and its kings,
and you will know for certain
that I am the Eternal,
Your Liberator, your Redeemer, the Strong One of Jacob.

17 I will bring you gold instead of bronze, silver instead of iron, bronze instead of wood, iron
instead of stone.
Your government will be founded and grounded;
I will make peace your governor,
and righteousness your ruler.

18 You'll never hear again, "Help! Call the guards!"
Violence, destruction, and ruin will be things of the past in Jerusalem.
You will name the city walls Salvation,
and the city gates Praise.

19 You won't need the sun to brighten the day or the moon and lamps to give you
light.
The Eternal One will be all the light you ever need.
Your God will provide your glory,
brilliance for all time.
20 Your sun will never set;
your moon will never be eclipsed in
shadow,
For you'll bask in the Eternal's light and
silver splendor forever.
Never again will you suffer the dark night of despair and gloom of
mourning.
21 All the people will be right with God,
and they'll stay in the land they possess forever.

Eternal One: I will plant them there like a sturdy sapling with My own
hands.
I will tend them and take pride
in their growing.
22 Just watch, they will develop
robustly;
from so small a beginning, they will multiply and become a mighty nation.
I, the Eternal One, will make it happen soon.

61 The Spirit of the Lord, the Eternal, is on me.
The Lord has appointed me
for a special purpose.
He has anointed me to bring good news
to the poor.
He has sent me to repair broken
hearts,
And to declare to those who are held captive and bound in prison,
"Be free from your imprisonment!"
2 He has sent me to announce the year of jubilee, the season of the Eternal's
favor:
for our enemies it will be a day of God's wrath;
For those who mourn it will be a time of
comfort.*
3 As for those who grieve over Zion, God has sent me to give them a beautiful crown in exchange for
ashes,
To anoint them with gladness instead of
sorrow,
to wrap them in victory, joy, and praise instead of depression and sadness.

* 61:1-2 Luke 4:18-19

People will call them magnificent, like great towering trees standing for what is right.
They stand to the glory of the Eternal who planted them.

4And they will rebuild this place from its ancient ruins;
they will restore the ages-old, once-splendid structures;
They will renew Israel's ruined cities
from the ashes and debris that laid untouched for many generations.
5And people will come from all over to serve you:
Outsiders will tend your flocks, plough your fields, and prune your vines.
6You will be known as the ones specially chosen by the Eternal as priests;
people will speak of you as ministers of our God.
And the wealth of nations will come to you for your delight and enrichment.
7Many called you disgraced and defiled and said that shame should be your share of things.
Yet you suffered doubly and lived in disgrace;
So double will be your share, and with joy everlasting.

Eternal One: 8For I, the Eternal, love justice.
I hate stealing and all manner of wrongdoing.
In faithfulness to those who do justice, I promise they will be rewarded for their work;
and I will establish an everlasting covenant with them.
9Furthermore, I will promise them My support for their children,
so that all nations and everyone around
Will see that they are the children blessed by the Eternal God.

10I am filled with joy and my soul vibrates with exuberant hope,
because of the Eternal my God;
For He has dressed me with the garment of salvation,
wrapped me with the robe of righteousness.
It's as though I'm dressed for my wedding day,*
in the very best: a bridegroom's garland and a bride's jewels.
11The whole earth sprouts newness and life in the springtime,
and green shoots break through the well-seeded garden soil.
That's what it is like with the Eternal's victory—
the Lord will cause justice and praise to sprout up before all the nations, for all peoples to see.

62 I will not keep quiet for Zion's sake;
I will not remain silent
Until Jerusalem's justice shines like the light of a new day and her liberation blazes like a torch in the dead of night.
2*Jerusalem,* the nations of the world will witness your righteousness,
the most powerful world leaders will see your brilliance,
And you will be called something new, something brand new,
a name given by none other than the Eternal One.
3And you will be the crowning glory of the Eternal's power,
a royal crown cradled in His palm and held aloft by your God for all to see.
4People won't talk about you anymore using words like "forsaken" or "empty."
Instead, you will be called "My delight" and the land around you "Married," because the Eternal is pleased with you and has bound Himself to your land.
5As a young man marries the woman he loves,
so your sons will marry you, Jerusalem.
As a groom takes joy in his bride,
so your God will take joy in you.

6I have stationed watchmen on your walls, Jerusalem.
Day and night, they never stop calling out.
You, too, must not rest or grow silent;
keep reminding the Eternal to watch over Jerusalem.
7*Tirelessly pester God*—give Him no rest—until He reestablishes Jerusalem and makes it worthy of praise throughout the whole world.
8The Eternal has promised with all divine power and might:

* 61:10 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

A divine drama is played out with the chorus on one side, the soloist on the other. The "people" ask a question, and God rings out a response. Dramatic, to say the least. What trials and tribulations the Israelites have been through! What highs and lows! It is all God's doing in response to their faithlessness. But this is history, and now they find themselves living and working in a brand new time; a new day is coming—of restoration, peace, and glorious reputation for God's people such as they've never had before. The renewal is international in scope, without peer in the world. And this, too, is God's doing. His capacity for mercy is great. He loves His people beyond comprehension. This is why He should be recognized and appreciated by all as the one True God. He keeps saving and delivering, restoring and supporting the people, just as God has done since that moment of binding promise made so long ago.

Eternal One: I will never again turn over your assets to your enemies,
never feed them from your grain stores
Or give them the wine you have labored to produce.
9Instead, those who harvest the grain will eat its bounty,
and offer praise to the Eternal;
And those who gather the grapes will drink of their richness
in the courtyards outside the temple.

10So ready yourselves to pass through the gates, from old to new.
Clear the way for the people;
Make it clear, easy, and straight.
Unfurl the banners that proclaim
these people are renewed!
11For none other than the Eternal has announced for all to hear—

Eternal One: Say to the daughter of Zion
"See, your salvation is coming;
your liberation is on the way—
God's reward is with Him: His work is by His side."

12And they will be called "The Holy People, Redeemed by the Eternal"; Jerusalem's new name will be "Desirable City, No Longer Forsaken."

63 Who comes with long, strong strides, marching in strength from Edom, from Bozrah?
Who is coming, with such grand clothes, steeped in crimson and awesome to see?

Eternal One: It is I, the Eternal, who in righteousness declares victory.
I am coming with great power and I'm ready to save.

2And why are all your clothes red,
as if you've been stomping on the grapes in the winepress?

Eternal One: 3And so I have. I have pressed by Myself.
No one was with Me. In my anger, I trampled them;
In my fury, I alone squashed them till their blood soaked my clothes and stained everything I wore.
4For it was time for Me to act, time for Me to pay back My enemies in response to their actions—
My time to set things right again.
5But I looked and there was no one to help.
I was amazed, but none was ready to offer support.
So I had to do it alone, and I did;
My own power brought salvation; My own wrath energized Me.
6I stomped and squashed them furiously.
I made them reel and stagger on the wine of My anger,
And I spilled their blood on the ground.

7*So* let me remind you of the Eternal's enduring love, and why we should praise Him.
Let me tell you again how the Eternal gives and gives and gives.

All God's wonders and goodness are done for Israel's benefit according to His great mercy and
compassion.

Eternal One: [8]Surely, these are My people, *and they will be true
to Me*.
My children will not try to deceive Me.

And indeed, God became their Savior.
[9]And when they suffered, God suffered too;
And the messenger of His presence
acted to save them.
Out of enduring love, compassion,
and concern,
God Himself rescued them. Through all those years long ago,
God picked them up and carried them through.
[10]But they rebelled and ran away;
they turned their backs on Him and grieved His Holy Spirit.
And then, God turned against them,
became their enemy,
went after them, and took them on.
[11]Then they remembered Moses and those days long ago:
Where is the One who brought them safely through the perils of the sea
With the shepherd of His flock leading
them?
Where is the One who sent His Holy Spirit among the people?

[12]Where is the God who put His power in Moses' right hand
and divided the waters before the Israelites,
Making an everlasting name for Himself
as the true and living God?
[13]Where is the One who led them through
the sea?
Like a horse in the desert, they never stumbled.
[14]Like cattle that move down to find rest in the valley,
the Spirit of the Eternal led them to
rest.
You did that for Your people and gained a glorious reputation in the world.

People: [15]Look down from heaven—
peer down from that sacred, magnificent place where
You live.
What happened to Your passion,
love, and compassion that sought us out?
Where are Your powerful actions
that used to support us?
[16]Even though Abraham would not know us and Israel would disown us,
You are our Father!
Nevertheless, from way back,
You, the Eternal, are our Father;
we have called You our Redeemer from long ago.
[17]O Eternal One, why do You make us wander off and direct our minds
and harden our hearts, so that we no longer respect You?
Please come back to us, for we are Your servants;
we are the tribes that have been Yours through the generations.
[18]For such a short time Your holy people possessed Your holy place in Jerusalem;
then our enemies invaded and
trampled all over it.
[19]We've become *like strangers to
You,*
like people You never ruled,
Like those never associated with
Your name.

64 If only You would rip open the heavens
and come down to earth—
Its heights and depths would quake the moment You appear,
[2]Like kindling when it just begins to catch fire, or like water that's about to boil.
If only You would come like that so that all who deny or hate You Would know who You are and be terrified of Your grandeur.

► The prophet is convinced that there is no hope apart from God's decisive action. It is not enough to address God's people and the nations and urge them to do better next time. The world cannot be repaired this way; in fact, it can't be repaired from below at all. It must be made new from above. So the prophet turns to God and utters a prayer, "Rip open the heavens. Come down. Strike your enemies with terror. Do for us what You did for Your people in times past." This is what it will take to restore God's people, illumine the nations, and repair a world desperately broken by sin.

3 We remember that long ago You did amazing things for us
that we had never dreamed You'd do.
You came down, and the mountains
shook at Your presence.
4 Nothing like that had ever happened
before—no eye had ever seen,
and no ear had ever heard such
wonders,
But You did them then for the sake of Your people, for those who trusted in You.
5 You meet whoever tries with sincerity of purpose to do what You want— to do justice and follow in Your
ways.
But You became so angry when we rebelled and committed all sorts of wrongs;
we have continued in our sins for a long time. So how can we be saved?
6 We are all messed up like a person compromised with impurity;
even all our right efforts are like soiled rags.
We're drying up like a leaf in autumn and are blown away by wrongdoing.
7 And it's so sad because no one calls out
to You
or even bothers to approach You
anymore.
You've been absent from us too long;
You left us to dissolve away in the acrid power of our sins.
8 Still, Eternal One, You are our Father.
We are just clay, and You are the potter.
We are the product of Your creative action, shaped and formed into something of worth.
9 Don't be so angry anymore, O Eternal;
don't always remember our wrongs.
Please, look around and see that we are all Your people.
10 The places that You sanctified are reduced to nothing.
Zion is a wasteland; Jerusalem sits in eerie desolation.
11 Our holy and glorious temple, where our ancestors worshiped You,
has been burned to the ground;
Everything we loved is ruined *by our
enemies,*
a smoking pile of ash and debris.
12 Now with all this, Eternal, will You just stand by and watch?
will You keep silent and let us
continue to suffer?

65 Eternal One: I was ready and willing to help before anyone even asked.
I was found by people who did not seek Me;
I showed My face and said, "Here I am! I am right here!"
to a nation which did not call
on Me.*
2 I kept extending Myself to a people who don't care a whit.
All day long I opened my hands
to those who constantly work against Me,
Those busy pursuing their own rotten path, inspired by their own rotten schemes.*
3 These people continue to insult Me,
right to My face,
pursuing other gods, sacrificing
in gardens
And offering incense on altars
made of bricks.
4 They sit among the graves and spend their nights in secret rituals;
they eat the flesh of pigs and pollute their pots with unclean meats.
5 They have the gall to say, "Oooh, not so close! I am holier than
you!"
These unholy people are smoke
in My nostrils,
A fire that burns and burns all day.
6 Look and see what stands written
before Me:
"I will not remain silent *and
watch this disgrace;*
But I will pay them back for what
they have done.
I will pour their pay directly into their laps.
7 They will pay for their sins and the sins of their parents too.
For they turned to other gods,
burned incense on the
mountains
And insulted Me on the hillsides.
I will bring everything they deserve back to them, to their very core."

* 65:1 Romans 10:20 * 65:2 Romans 10:21

8This is what the Eternal has to say:

Eternal One: It's like noticing the promise of new wine in a cluster of grapes.
One will say, "Don't destroy them all; some of them are bound to be good."
So for the sake of My servants,
I won't destroy absolutely
everyone.
9But I will bring up children from Jacob's line to inherit this land.
To Jacob's son Judah I will give My mountains.
These, My chosen ones, will inherit it;
these, My servants, will live
there and call it home.
10From the plains of Sharon to the valley of Achor,
My people—who look to Me and
no other—
Will have pasture for their sheep
and safe places for their herds.
11But those of you who ignore Me, the Eternal One—
who turn away from My sanctuaries
And reject My holy mountain to chase Lady Luck and cater to Destiny—12Will find yourselves a bit unlucky and your destiny an early death.
You'll bow down and be killed
like sheep brought to the slaughter
Because when I called you, you did not answer;
when I spoke, you refused to
listen.
Instead you did all the wrong things and made terrible choices—
what I expressly said that I hate.

13So this is what the Lord, the Eternal, has
to say:

Eternal One: My servants will eat and eat well, while you go hungry;
My servants will drink and
be satisfied, while you are parched with thirst;
My servants will celebrate with joy,
while you are put to shame.
14My servants will sing with gladness in their hearts, While you cry out in anguish and despair and bemoan your brokenness.
15And when you are gone, your name will become a curse—
a repugnant byword—to My chosen
people;
The Eternal God will put you to death and call His servants by a new name altogether.
16Whoever speaks a blessing in this special
land
will invoke the God of truth; Whoever takes a vow in the land of
promise
will make his pledge by the God of
truth.
For the bitterness and pain of earlier times
will nevermore come to mind;
they'll be hidden even from My eyes,
God says.

Eternal One: 17Now look here!
I am creating new heavens and a new earth.
The weary and painful past will be as if it never happened.
No one will talk or even think about it anymore.
18So take joy and celebrate with unending gladness
on account of what I am creating.
Look carefully! I am making this place I've chosen, this Jerusalem, a city of joy.
I'm making her citizens, My people, a people of gladness.
19This Jerusalem, My pride and joy, and her people will be a delight to Me.
Though you listen at every corner,
You will never hear crying, never hear despair or grief.

20Never again will a person not live a full life,
for the young will live to be a hundred
And any who die earlier will be considered cursed.

21People will confidently build houses
and make them their homes;
they will plant vineyards and enjoy their fruit for years to
come.
22They won't worry that someone else will come along, drive
them out,
and take it all away.
For My people will live as long as these age-old trees;
My chosen will use up and wear
out whatever they make.

[23]They will not work hard for what others take away;
they will not lose children to sudden terror and death.
For they are the offspring of those blessed by the Eternal;
they and their descendants will enjoy God's blessings.
[24]I'll anticipate their prayers and respond before they know it;
even as they speak, I will hear.
[25]But they'll all eat together like friends—wolf and lamb, lion
and ox,
and the biting snake will feed
on dust.
When that day arrives, there will be no evil, no violence, no hurt or wrong
in all My sacred mountain.

► The creation the prophet sees—the new earth—is radically different from the one everyone knows. At some deep level, everyone recognizes that the everyday world is not the world as God intends it; things are not the way they are supposed to be. But God will make everything new again. In that day, the painful past will recede and vanish. Unbridled joy and celebration will eclipse grief and sorrow. Jerusalem, the holy city, will become the center of the world. Long lives will be the norm. Peace will be secure without exception. God's blessing will settle over all creation. Creation itself, with all its complexities, will be made new. No predator. No prey. Just peace and harmony throughout. This is a world only God can create when He creates it anew.

66 Eternal One: Heaven is My throne, and earth is where I rest My feet.
So what kind of structure would you build Me?
What man-made space could provide Me a resting place?
[2]Everything is the product of My hand—My being and My doing—
that's how all you see came to be; *I made it all.
Nevertheless, I am interested in and concerned about even just one person who is humble and downhearted and trembles
at my word.

► If we could see things as they truly are, we'd see the universe as one giant temple founded and perfected by God's hand. But even the universe with its staggering dimensions—dimensions that stretch the imagination—cannot contain its Maker. God is greater still. So how could some house made for Him on earth ever be grand enough, glorious enough, great enough? It could not; but with all His greatness and power, God still has His eye on us. What does God want from us if not the best building we can build, and also the most and best sacrifices and rituals that we can possibly perform? Simply put, God is looking for people who are humble, broken, and ready to follow what He says.

Eternal One: [3]Whoever slaughters an ox without humility is no better
than one who kills a man; Whoever sacrifices a lamb without brokenness is no different than one who breaks a dog's neck;
Whoever presents a grain offering without fear is no different than one who offers pig's blood; Whoever burns incense without obedience is no better than one who worships an idol.
They've made their own choices and seem happy enough with their detestable practices.
[4]But I have a choice, too, and I choose to punish them;
I will bring on them what they fear most.
For when I called, no one answered;
when I spoke, they refused to
listen.

* 66:1-2 Acts 7:49-50

Instead they did all the wrong things and made terrible choices—
what I expressly said that I hate.

► God desires to bring people like these close and make them safe, but He cannot if they refuse. His loving purpose is for them to live well, to be well, but He cannot make it so if they choose badly and do what He hates.

5So, if you are one who trembles at His
word,
listen closely to what the Eternal
One has to say:

Eternal One: I know that some people,
even your own family,
reject you because you accept Me,
And they're saying, "Let the Eternal receive the honor He deserves,
so that we, too, can know your joy." But they'll only know sorrow and shame.
6*Can you hear it?* There's a commotion in the city,
great rumbling coming from the temple area!
Ah, it is the Eternal thundering in to take on His foes.

7-8Have you ever heard of a woman who gave birth before she went into labor?
Have you ever seen a woman who delivered a son without feeling a thing?
Do you think it's possible for the land to go through labor in an instant,
or to bear a nation, to be new
and strong, in a single day?
Nevertheless, Zion suffered only a moment
before she gave birth to her
children!
9Will I open the womb and not deliver?
I have made this place labor in terrible pain,
But do you think I won't help it give birth?
That is what I, the Eternal One
have to say.

► The prophet reflects on the mystery of birth. Jerusalem, the mother, is about to give birth to a new nation. God, the midwife, is there to make sure the birth goes well. Throughout Isaiah's prophecy it is clear that God has initiated all the things that have happened to Israel and Judah. The destruction of Jerusalem and her glorious temple, the decades of exile in a foreign land, and now the return and restoration of Jerusalem are God's work, pure and simple. Now all of these events and judgments point to a single moment when Jerusalem will resume its place as God's chosen city and will open its gates to believing pilgrims. The prophet asks: will God prevent this new birth from happening? After having brought His people this far, it is unthinkable that God would turn back now.

Eternal One: 10So be happy for
Jerusalem;
give her hearty congratulations,
whoever holds her dear.
Take part in this joyous celebration,
especially if you remember her grief.
11*For you are her children, and* she is giving you the milk of comfort and peace.
Drink at her comforting breasts with satisfaction that all will be well.
12I will rain down prosperity on Jerusalem, peace abundant on Zion,
and flood her with wealth from all over the world.
Like a thundering river, the riches
will come down.
Like a toddler, you'll be held,
carried, nourished, and comforted.
13As a mother soothes her child, so I will comfort you.
And Jerusalem will be so nice,
feel so good and safe to you.

14When you see what I have in store,
it will ease your mind and lift your heart;
you will flourish like the grass!

► Now is the time for Jerusalem to rejoice. Mourning the fate of Israel and Judah has been a Jewish preoccupation for a long time. Ever since Assyria came down and took the northern territory captive, the people have been grief-stricken. But now that God has announced the good news, mourning is no longer appropriate; it indicates a lack of faith in His plans. After enduring so many years of grief and desolation, can God's covenant people now turn and trust Him to deliver this baby overnight? Trust and joy belong together. Zion is like a fertile young woman; she will have all the children that God wills and she desires. Be happy, the prophet says, and let the celebrations begin.

The Eternal's power will be clearly evident to His servants;
but His rage will be unleashed against His enemies.

15Look now, the Eternal is coming with a vengeance
that scorches all His foes with flames of fire;
Whooshing like a whirlwind, His chariots rush with punishing fury.
16*God comes* with fiery anger and flashing sword.
The Eternal One will execute His judgment,
And many people will die on that day.

Eternal One: 17Those who perform sanctifying and purifying rituals to serve false gods in gardens, and then proceed to do whatever they see the leader do—eating impure things such as pigs, snakes, and rats—won't live to do it again. This is My word to you.

18Because I know what and why they do what they do, the time is coming when I will bring people together from all over the world. Everyone will come here and have a chance to see and know who I am, in all My weighty significance and splendor. 19I will put a sign among them and send the survivors of My people to Tarshish, Put, and Lud (where those great archers live), from Tubal east of Lud, and Javan, which is near it. I'll bring them here from places so far away that they've never heard My name, much less had a chance to see My glory. But they'll hear about Me, far and wide among the nations. 20And they will bring the surviving members of your family back as if they are a grain offering from all the nations. They'll come by every conceivable means—on horse, camel, donkey, or mule, in wagons or litters—they'll come to Jerusalem, My holy mountain. They will be delivered just as the Israelites bring their grain offerings to Me in a clean container at the temple. 21And out of those who return, I will make priests and Levites. This is My word to you.

22Because just as the new heavens and the new earth that I am making will go on by My enduring will,
So your name and the people who come from you will go on as well.
23From one month to the next, on Sabbath after Sabbath, everyone, every living thing, will come to this holy place
To honor Me as God of all.
This is My word to you.
24They'll visit the site where the people who rejected Me lie rotting on the ground,
crawling with worms that never die on a fire that just keeps smoldering.*
All who see it will recoil at the horrible sight.

JEREMIAH

Oracles of judgment and restoration regarding Judah and Israel

The message of Jeremiah, the weeping prophet

The word of God comes to young Jeremiah in seemingly good times around 627 B.C., when King Josiah of Judah is instituting reforms and the nation is returning to God. But Jeremiah's is an age of great upheaval. The Assyrian Empire that conquered Israel is giving way to a new world power—Babylon. Many find themselves caught in the chaos of these changes, including Judah, her leaders, and her capital, Jerusalem. Because Judah compromises her devotion to God in exchange for mundane treaties with stronger, pagan nations and attractive pagan cults, her days are numbered. Such is the unpopular message Jeremiah is called to proclaim.

Jeremiah dares to speak truth to power—in his own country and beyond. He confronts kings and calls out religious leaders for their empty worship and soothing lies. He holds nothing back in his condemnation of those who abandon God for the worship of pagan idols. These prophecies are difficult to hear and hard to deliver. The strong rebukes and warnings of disaster are spoken by a man sometimes called "the weeping prophet." So vivid and personal are his messages from God that it is clear they are based on a robust, ongoing dialogue between God and His reluctant prophet. Jeremiah invites his audience into such a personal and authentic relationship with God.

The book consists of many different kinds of literature: autobiography, discourses, sermons, and historical narratives. The story does not unfold in a modern, chronological way. Instead, it flashes back and forth among Israel's past, present, and future; between local and international concerns; between declarations of doom and assurances of hope. This collection of oracles and events from the prophet's life are best understood as reflections on the turbulent times in which Jeremiah and his secretary, Baruch, lived.

As an old man, the horror of his predictions comes true before his eyes. Jerusalem falls to Babylon in 586 B.C., and God's rebellious people are scattered and taken into exile. Considered a traitor by many contemporaries, Jeremiah still has great faith that his people will survive and one day return to live in the land of promise. For this reason, Jeremiah may be best known as the prophet of the new covenant, a promise which not only comforts the exiles in his day but later inspires the followers of Jesus as amazing events unfold before their eyes.

1 1-2This is an account of the words and deeds of Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah, one of the priests who lived in the village of Anathoth in the land of Benjamin. The word of the Eternal came to him in a series of messages that started coming to the prophet in the 13th year of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah. 3These disturbing and awesome messages continued throughout the reign of Jehoiakim, Josiah's son, king of Judah, until Jerusalem was captured in the 5th month of the 11th year of Zedekiah, another of Josiah's sons, who was also king of Judah.

4*And now the fateful day when* the Eternal One first spoke to me:

Eternal One: 5Before I even formed you
in your mother's womb,
I knew all about you.
Before you drew your first breath, I had already chosen you to be My prophet to speak My word to the nations.

Jeremiah: 6Ah, Eternal Lord!
I'm too young and inexperienced
to speak for You.

Eternal One: 7Don't use your youth as an excuse;
you can and will go wherever I send you.
You can and will say whatever I tell you to say.
8You have no reason to fear the people you speak to,
for I am with you and will defend you.

9Then the Eternal reached out and touched my mouth, and He gave me His divine message.

Eternal One: Look, I have placed My words in you.
You will know what to say now,
for you will be My voice.
10This very day I appointed you to speak with My authority over nations and kingdoms.
Your word—My word—will have the power to uproot and stamp out;
it will destroy and upend.
And then your word—My word—
will rebuild and plant anew.

► Nations and empires will now hear Jeremiah's voice as God's in these days of painful change. To confirm that Jeremiah has indeed been called to speak for God, two simple visions are given to him, each with an explanation. Both speak of coming judgment and remind the young prophet of his difficult assignment.

11The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: What do you see, Jeremiah?

Jeremiah: I see the branch of an almond tree.

Eternal One: 12That's right. From this know that I am watching over My word until it is accomplished.

► Words are the tools of a prophet. The word of God comes asking the prophet what he sees. He responds that he sees something rather ordinary: an almond tree. God uses this ordinary sight to give him an extraordinary message. There is a play on words here between the Hebrew words for "almond" and "watching," which sound alike in that language. Jeremiah sees an almond, which is shaped like a person's eye, and God says He is watching. This playful and clever use of words gets Jeremiah's attention; it stirs his prophetic imagination so that he will similarly use poetry, wordplay, and object lessons to get the attention of his listeners. Just as the almond tree is usually the first sign of spring, soon the first signs of God's approaching judgment will appear.

13Then the word of the Eternal came to me a second time.

Eternal One: What do you see this time?

Jeremiah: I see a boiling pot, tilting away from the north, ready to spill out toward the south.

Eternal One: 14That is because an evil out of the north will indeed begin spilling onto the people of this land. 15Watch
now, as I summon the clans and kingdoms of the north to march against Judah, rule with power at the very gates of Jerusalem, press in on every side, and vanquish all the cities of Judah. 16I will declare My sentence for their wicked crimes. My own people have abandoned Me, burning incense to other gods and bowing down to handmade idols.
17Now stand with courage, and tell the people exactly what I command.
Don't break down in front of them, or
I will break you Myself. 18*Remember,*
Jeremiah, this very day I have made you
as a fortress, a column as strong as iron,
a wall of bronze able to withstand the attacks of the entire nation of Judah—
from her kings and leaders to the priests and people. 19*Eventually, they will all give* you trouble, but you will be safe. They will fight you, but they will not win.
Remember, I am with you. I promise I will always deliver you.

2 The word of the Eternal came to me
again.

With Jeremiah as God's mouthpiece, the mighty oracles begin about a loving husband (God) divorcing his unfaithful wife (Judah).

Eternal One: 2Go now, and say this loud enough for all Jerusalem to hear. Tell them that the Eternal speaks these words:

"I still remember the way you clung to Me in your youth, in the early days of our union.
Like a young bride, you loved
the vows you made.
As I led you from slavery in Egypt to your freedom in Canaan, you drew close to Me.
Even in the barren wilderness along the way, I filled your every need.
3*In those days, you,* Israel, were set apart for Me, the Eternal.
You were like the first portions of the harvest—devoted and true.
All who defied this arrangement and ate My portion for themselves were guilty,
and evil rained down upon
them."

4Listen to the very word of the Eternal,
house of Jacob and all the clans of Israel!

Eternal One: 5*What happened between* us?
What could I have done to your ancestors that was so wrong,
so unfair?
Why would they pull away from Me
to pursue the empty worship of idols that has left them just as empty?
6They didn't think to say, "Where is the Eternal who rescued us
from slavery in Egypt?
Where is the One who led us
through the wilderness—
a land of deserts and ravines?"
No one seems to remember how they crossed a scorched and lifeless land,
a darkness none had ever crossed before, a place where none survive.
7I am the One who delivered you into this land of abundance to enjoy its fruits and many good things.
But you have now taken the very
land I gave you and defiled it.
You have done a most disgusting thing with this gift
I reserved only for you.
8*Even then,* the priests didn't think
to say, "Where is the Eternal
One?"
Those who understand and teach the law act as if they've never known Me.
The rulers also have moved
against Me.
Even the so-called prophets spoke in the name of Baal
and pursued worthless idols in their vain attempt for greater
prosperity.

9This is the case that I bring against you and your descendants:
10You can search from the coastlands of Kittim in the west to the deserts of Kedar in the east, and you won't find anything as sickening as
this.
11Has a nation ever exchanged its gods for some others, even if they weren't really gods
in the first place?

Israel's plan to submit herself to the authority of a stronger pagan nation in return for protection makes no sense to an objective observer, much less to God Himself. During the long history of this nation, her troubles have often resulted from a stubborn refusal to trust God. They have a habit of looking elsewhere—to anywhere or anyone but God—for relief, of turning to nations that are never constant friends. For example, when the Assyrian Empire was conquering the region 100 years earlier, the Northern Kingdom of Israel attempted to ward off the threat by making treaties with other nations. Despite their feeble plans, Israel fell in 722 B.C. to Assyrian might and cruelty. Now God points out to Judah's leaders in the Southern Kingdom how useless it is to align with either Egypt or Assyria when the punishing Babylonian army is on the horizon. It doesn't matter how powerful her allies may seem; once the covenant with God is broken, Israel must pay for her infidelity.

But My beloved people have done just that: they have exchanged their glory
to pursue worthless idols in their vain attempt for greater
prosperity.
[12]Be horrified, O you heavens, at this appalling betrayal.
Cringe in horror and be repulsed.
[13]My people are guilty of two evils:
They have abandoned Me, the spring of living waters;
And instead, they have settled for dead and stagnant water from cracked, leaky cisterns of their own making.

[14]Is Israel some common slave, born into bondage?
Why has he been carted off as if he were
the spoil of battle?
[15]The nations have circled him like hungry
young lions,
roaring and growling their war cries.
They have left Israel a wasteland—
the cities destroyed and the people scattered.
[16]Even your Egyptian allies, from Memphis and Tahpanhes,
have stripped you of land and your crowning glory.
[17]Is there anyone to blame but yourself?
Weren't you the ones who abandoned the Eternal,
Your True God, even as He led you on this journey?

Eternal One: [18]What do you hope to accomplish by going to Egypt
and drinking from the waters of the Nile?
What do you think you will gain by traveling to Assyria
and drinking from the waters of
the Euphrates?
[19]It is your wickedness that will punish you and your desertion of My ways
that will convict you.
See the evil and taste the bitterness of forsaking the one True
God, the Eternal.
At the core of this evil is the sad truth that you have forgotten
the wonder and terror of who I am.

So says the Eternal Lord, Commander of heavenly armies.

Eternal One *(to His people): [20]A long time ago, I broke the yoke that weighed you down
and tore off the chains that enslaved you;
Still you boldly said, "I will not serve
You!"
Instead, you bowed down like a whore to pagan gods on the high hills, under every green
tree.
[21]I am the One who planted you like a select vine, chosen from vintage stock.
How could you turn into such a useless, wild weed of a vine?
[22]You can scrub yourself with all the soap you want,
but you'll never be able to wash away the stain of what you've done before Me.

So says the Eternal Lord.

Eternal One *(to His people): [23]How can you say, "I have not been defiled"?

How can you reply, "I have not run after the idols of Baal?"
You know exactly what you've done down in the valley—
you're like a young camel running here and there without any direction.
24*You've acted like* a wild donkey at home in that desert, sniffing at the wind for any scent of the next encounter, unbridled in her lust.
It's not even fair to say you were seduced by these gods.
You sought them out!
25*I warn you again:* stop running after these rituals
till your feet are bare and your throat is dried out.
You said, "I can't help myself, for I love these strange gods I am chasing after."

26Like a thief caught in the act, the people of Israel will be put
to shame:
kings, leaders, priests, and prophets will be shamed.
27They say to a piece of wood, "You are my father";
they confess to a stone, "You gave me birth."
They have shunned Me, who gave them life—turning their backs
instead of facing Me—
But that will change when troubles
come.
That's when they will cry out to Me, "Stand up for us, and save us!"
28*O Judah,* where will your pagan gods be then?
You know, the ones you made yourself?
Let them stand up on their own.
See if they're able to save you
from your troubles.
You have as many gods as villages,
Judah. *Now let them take care
of you.*

29Why are you leveling charges
against Me?
You are the unfaithful one here.
You have all pulled away from Me.
30I tried to discipline your sons, but it didn't work; they wouldn't
listen.
You destroyed the prophets I sent to speak truth to you.
You devoured them as a lion *does
his prey*.

31People of this generation, consider again
the word of the Eternal.

Eternal One: Have I been a barren wasteland to Israel with nothing to offer?
Am I no more than a land
cloaked in darkness to them?
Why do My own people say to Me,
"We would rather wander where we want than come to You"?
32Does a young woman ever forget her jewelry?
Does a bride forget to bring along her wedding dress?
And yet My people forgot Me long,
long ago.
33How good you've become at your reckless loving!
You could teach even a loose woman a thing or two.
34*The stain of* the blood of the poor and the innocent is on your clothes
Even though you didn't find them
breaking into your houses.
In spite of it all,
35Still you dare to say, "I am innocent;
surely God could not be angry with me anymore."
Yet watch as I condemn you because you perjure yourself
saying, "I have not sinned."
36How do you keep changing
directions,
*making a covenant with Me, then
a treaty with them?*
You will soon be disappointed by the alliance with Egypt
just as you were by the one with Assyria.
37You will leave this land as captives,
with your hands on your head.
Why? Because I, the Eternal
One, have rejected those you relied on.
You will never prosper from their
help.

3 Eternal One: If a husband divorces his wife and she leaves him and marries another man, should he ever go back to her again? Such behavior would violate what is right, and the land itself would be tainted with sin. Now you, Judah, have acted like a whore and taken on many lovers. Why are you trying to return to Me now?

From the beginning, the covenant between God and His people is clear. They are to worship and trust Him alone. They are to remain true to His teachings. So when God sees His people worshiping idols made of stone and wood, when He sees them participating in demeaning sexual practices with prostitutes as part of local fertility rites, it is too much. The people of Judah have been unfaithful in nearly every way imaginable. They have witnessed what happened to the adulterous Northern Kingdom of Israel. But somehow, these stubborn people think they are special, even immune to such disaster. They think if they say the right prayers in the right ways to the right God from time to time, then all the blatant violations of God's covenant will be ignored. The prophet Jeremiah sees it all differently.

God will send out a message to the ten tribes of the Northern Kingdom, which He still calls Israel. For decades, those people have been scattered throughout the Assyrian Empire to the north, while their land has been under enemy occupation. But despite the tribes' faithlessness, these many years later, the God of mercy offers to restore them. In the midst of divine judgment, God utters words of hope; but this hope, this restoration, is only found in true repentance.

[2]Look up to the hilltops. Take a good look.
Is there anywhere you have not committed perverse acts in the company of other gods?
You sat on the side of the road, offering yourself to lovers;
like a desert nomad you waited, patiently.
Even the land itself is tainted by your prostitution and wickedness.
[3]That is why I have held back the rain,
why the spring rains have not come.
But you still look and act the part of a prostitute—
unfazed, unashamed.
[4]But wait, did you just now call out to Me, saying,
"My Father, You have been my friend, my confidant since I was young"?
[5]You ask, "Surely He won't be angry forever, will He?
Surely He won't hold this against us to the end, right?"
This is how you talk—as if all I want are your words;
meanwhile you continue in your selfish and evil ways.

[6]Then the Eternal who rules over all of history reminded me of a lesson my people, Judah, should have learned from Israel a century ago. He spoke these words to Judah early in my career, during the days of Josiah the king.

Eternal One: Have you not learned anything from Israel's unfaithful ways? How she turned away from Me, went up every high hill and under every green tree to worship another. She acted like a prostitute and broke our covenant there. [7]I thought, "After she's done all this, she'll return home to Me," but it never happened. She didn't come back. And her deceitful sister, Judah, saw all of this and learned nothing. [8]She saw that I sent unfaithful Israel away with a decree of divorce for these acts of adultery. But it didn't matter to her deceitful sister, Judah. She wasn't afraid or moved by any of this. She went her own way and played the prostitute as well. [9]In fact, because her own infidelity bothered her so little, she defiled the land by committing adultery, worshiping stones and trees instead of Me. [10]And while this was a lesson to be learned by deceitful Judah, it was an opportunity lost—for she never learned it; she never completely returned to Me. She only pretended to be Mine, as if empty words would satisfy Me.

[11](to Jeremiah) Despite her faithlessness, Israel has proven to be more righteous than her deceitful sister, Judah. [12]Now go and cry out these words of hope to those people in the north:

"Return to Me, faithless Israel.
I will look on you with mercy, not anger.
I will not hold this grudge against you forever.
[13]Just admit what you did—your sin against Me.
How you rebelled against the Eternal your God.

How you gave yourself away to these foreign gods in the open, under the trees!
How you disobeyed My voice.
14Come back home, My restless,
faithless ones,
for I am your master, your husband (not that other god),
And I will take you in—one from this city, two from that clan;
I will bring you home to Zion.

15"Then I will give you shepherds who trust and know Me, wise teachers who will impart knowledge and understanding to you. 16In those days, after your people have grown and increased in the land, they will no longer talk about the covenant chest of the Eternal. They won't think about it, remember it, or even miss it. There will be no need for it to be made again. 17In this coming age, Jerusalem will be known as the throne of the Eternal. All the nations of the world will be drawn there to her, to honor the name of the Eternal. The days of people insisting on their own stubborn ways dictated by their own evil hearts will be gone. 18In that day, the split between My people will be mended. Judah and Israel will walk together again. From a land to the north, they will come to this land I gave only to your ancestors.

19"I thought to Myself how much
I wanted to welcome you home as children
and bless you with a good land
and a future to be envied by all the world.
I hoped for the day when you would call Me 'My Father,' and no longer pull away from Me and My ways.
20But just as an unfaithful wife
betrays her husband,
so have you betrayed Me,
O house of Israel."

Jeremiah tells the people what could happen, if only they will repent. The prophet hopes for dialogue between Israel and the God who has never stopped loving her.

21A sound now echoes from the deserted hills
where Israel betrayed her God.
It is the sound of bitter tears mixed with the prayers
of the lost and rebellious people of Israel
who have forgotten the Eternal, their True God.

Eternal One: 22Come back to Me, My
faithless ones,
and I will heal your faithlessness.

Israel: Look! We come to You now, because You are the Eternal our
God.
23The idols we worshiped on the hills,
the rituals we performed on the mountains were based on a lie.
You, the Eternal, our one True God,
are the only hope of Israel's rescue.

24Everything our parents worked for—their livestock and even their families—has been devoured by the worship of the shameful god. 25Let us fall on our faces in shame, covered in our humiliation. Ours is a legacy of rebellion, for we and those before us have sinned against the Eternal our God. From the time we were young to this very day, we have refused to obey His voice.

4 Eternal One: O Israel if you turn,
turn home to Me.
Just turn away from the vile worship of those things,
those idols that repulse Me.
Put them out of My sight for good.
Come home to Me and never stray.
2If you make a promise in My name,
saying, "As the Eternal lives," and do so in truth, justice, and
righteousness,
Then the nations will discover true blessing in Me
and give Me the praise I deserve.

3This is what the Eternal now says to the people of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem.

Eternal One: Break up the hard,
untilled soil!
It is a waste to plant seeds
among thorns.
4Circumcise yourselves to Me;
cut away the foreskin of your
hearts,
men of Judah and people of Jerusalem.

Remove all that stands between us,
and devote yourselves fully to Me,
Or the heat of My anger will burn
as an unquenchable fire against your wicked ways.

► The warnings now climax with a vision of invasion and destruction that is almost more than the young prophet can bear. Still God instructs Jeremiah to speak these words of terror, and this prophet who loves the people he has been called to chastise struggles with his mission. In the midst of this painful vision, Jeremiah begins to wonder aloud to the very God for whom he speaks. As he proclaims, he prays. As he waits for answers, the words of devastation continue.

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): [5]Cry out to those in Jerusalem. Proclaim to all of Judah.
Let the trumpets blare
throughout the land!
Say to the people, "Gather everyone
from the outlying villages,
and run toward the fortified
cities."
[6]Raise a banner toward Zion,
Jerusalem;
point everyone toward her refuge.
Don't wait, for I am releasing an evil from the north that will devastate the land.
[7]For a lion has stepped out of the thicket;
A destroyer of nations is on the move.
He has left his den to devour
your land;
your cities will be left in ruin,
empty and lifeless."

[8]The time of mourning is here.
Put on your sackcloth, and get ready
to cry and scream.
Since we have not turned from our sin,
the blazing anger of the Eternal has not turned away from us.

Eternal One: [9]On that fearsome day, even
the hearts of kings and leaders will fail.
Priests will recoil in horror. Prophets will be shocked into silence.

Jeremiah: [10]But Eternal Lord, You have misled this people and all of Jerusalem
when you said, "You will live in peace."
Even now the cold blade of the sword is pressed against our throats.

[11]The day is coming soon when Jerusalem and the people beyond will be told, "A blistering wind will blow in from the desert mountains toward My daughter, My people: a wind too strong to winnow the grain and clean the crops, [12]a wind too powerful to withstand for it comes from Me. It is My judgment that will bear down on you."

[13]Look, you can see Him coming in the distance, like a cloud on the horizon.
Like a whirlwind, His chariots of destruction will descend on you.
Swifter than eagles are His horses. At the sight of this, you will cry out, "Alas,
we are doomed!"

[14]Hear me, O Jerusalem, for even now there is time.
Wash these wicked ways from your hearts
So that you can be saved.
How long will you cling to those wicked thoughts?
[15]From the tribe of Dan in the north comes
the first cry;
news of disaster arrives from the hill country of Ephraim.

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): [16]Tell the nations to beware.
Announce to Jerusalem:
"Invaders are coming from a distant
land.
Their war cries will soon be heard in Judah's villages."
[17]They will spread out and surround Jerusalem on every side like guards in a field,
all because she has acted
against Me.

(to the people) [18]You chose this path
that led to disaster.
Your plans and actions brought it on.
It is your wickedness that tastes so bitter,
your evil that pierces your heart.

[19]I've got this awful feeling in the pit of my stomach. I'm in agony.
Every beat of my heart pounds with an awful dread.

I can't stay silent, for I know what is coming—
oh my soul, there it is: the blast of the trumpet;
The battle cries of the invading hoards.
20Crushing defeat after crushing defeat.
That's the news.
The land is in ruins, all of it.
In an instant, my world changed;
in a moment, my tents destroyed, my curtains torn, my refuge gone.
21How long must I see the flags of the enemy?
How long must I be forced to hear the trumpets sound?

Eternal One *(to Jeremiah): 22My people are foolish.
They do not know Me at all.
They are reckless, senseless children.
They are clever and cunning when it comes to evil,
But inept and incapable of doing good.

23I looked at the earth and saw that it was again formless and empty;
I looked at the heavens and saw no light.
24I looked at the mountains and saw them quaking;
all the hills, they shuddered.
25I looked around and saw no hint of life.
The people were gone. The birds had fled the sky.
26I looked at what was once a garden and saw a desert—
the rubble of its cities torn down right in front of the Eternal and His fierce anger.

Eternal One: 27The whole land will lie in ruin,
but I will not completely destroy it.
28Because of this devastation,
the earth will mourn and the skies will darken—for I have spoken.
Once I have decided, I will not change My mind.
I will not turn back from this.

29As the horseman thunders closer and the archer draws near,
the people panic and the cities empty.
They scatter to the bushes; they scramble to the hills.
The villages are abandoned, for no one dares remain.

30So what are you doing, my ravaged one?
Why are you dressing up in scarlet, putting on your gold jewelry,
And painting your eyes to make them larger, more beautiful?
You're wasting your time.
Your lovers want nothing to do with you.
In fact, they despise you, and are looking to kill you.

31I hear a cry like a woman in labor, the distress of a first-time mother.
It is the anguish of my people; it is the voice of the daughter of Zion, Gasping for breath, reaching for help, as she cries out,
"I am faint, and my life is in the hands of murderers!"

5 Eternal One: Roam the streets of Jerusalem, and tell Me what you see, Jeremiah.
See if you can find anything good happening anywhere.
Look in the marketplaces and open spaces of the city.
If you can find just one honest person who lives according to My ways,
I'll spare the city of this horror.
2I hear them making oaths in My name. "As the Eternal lives," they say.
But they know the oaths are not true.

As when Abraham pleaded with God over Sodom's fate (Genesis 18:23-32), God is willing to spare Jerusalem if the prophet can find a single person, honest and true, living there.

Jeremiah: 3O Eternal One, aren't You looking for truth and integrity?
You struck them, but they did not flinch.
You destroyed them, but they did not yield to Your correction.
They wouldn't change their ways.
They have set their stony faces against You—
defiant and determined, refusing to repent.

4And I thought to myself, "How could they know any better?
They are poor and senseless people, unfamiliar with the ways of the Eternal,
Unaware of what their God requires.

5So I will go to their leaders and share
what I see.
They will do the right thing because they know the Eternal's ways.
Surely, they will do what their God requires."
But to a person, I was wrong: leaders
were no different;
They, too, had broken the yoke, burst the bonds,
and pulled away from God's guidance and correction.
6Therefore, from the forest, a lion will strike.
From the desert, a wolf will pounce
and destroy.
And from the shadows, a leopard now
stalks their villages,
waiting to tear apart any who dare
wander outside.
Such is the fate of all who fall away,
for their rebellion is great; their sins
are many.

Eternal One (to His people): 7How can I forgive what you've done?
You have passed on your legacy of rebellion to your children who also rejected Me.
They have made unholy oaths in the names of so-called gods.
Why? I have fed them till they were full, and still they wanted more.
So they betrayed Me with their
adultery,
trooping off to worship idols,
filling up the houses of prostitutes.
8They have everything they need,
and still they want more.
Like lusty stallions, they call for each other's mate.
9Should I not punish them for these
atrocities?
Against this nation, should I not avenge Myself?

(to His people's enemies) 10Walk
through the rows in her vineyards, and destroy them.
But do not destroy them
completely.
Lop off the branches,
for they do not belong to Me, the
Eternal.
11Both the house of Israel and the house of Judah have betrayed Me.

12They spew lies about the Eternal that mock My sovereign power.
They have said, "Nothing will happen! God will not hurt us!
All this talk of war and famine is just talk.
13As for the prophets, they are full of hot air;
the word of God is not in them;
Let their words of doom fall on them."

14The Eternal One, Commander of heav- enly armies, has this to say:

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): Because this is the way they* speak,
I am going to turn My words in your mouth into a fire,
A fire that will consume these people; they are nothing but kindling for My fury.

(to His people) 15O house of Israel,
I am stirring up a distant nation to march against you.
They are an enduring people
from ancient times.
The language they speak is unknown to you;
you will not understand them.
16Their quiver is like a gaping grave,
full of death.
They are all mighty warriors.
17They will devour your harvest and your food.
They will devour your sons and
daughters.
They will devour your livestock,
flocks, and herds.
They will devour your vineyards
and orchards.
They will wield their swords
and cut down the fortified cities
you think are so safe.

(to Jeremiah) 18But even then, I will not destroy your people completely. 19So
when they ask you, "Why has the Eternal done this to us? Why would our one True God treat us this way?" remind them and speak to them My words: "Because you have rejected Me and bowed down
to foreign gods in a land that was yours, now you will bow down to a foreign people in a land that is not yours."

20Declare My truth to the house of Jacob.
Proclaim it throughout the land
of Judah:

* 5:14 Hebrew manuscripts read, "you."

21 Hear Me you foolish, heartless
people.
Even with eyes and ears you are still blind and deaf to what is happening.
22 Do you not realize who I am? Do you not fear Me?
Do you not shake in the presence of the Eternal, the Creator of all things?
It is I who has drawn for all time
the boundaries of the sea.
The waves may crash and roar
against the sand,
But the waters do not cross the lines I have drawn.
23 But with stubborn and defiant hearts, this people ignored Me and left *Me for
another.*
24 It never occurs to them to say,
"Let us stand in awe of the Eternal our God,
For He sends the rain—both the autumn and the spring rain—and He brings the harvest at just the right time year after year." 25 It is your sins that hold back the rain.
It is your rebellion that keeps good things from happening
to you.
26 Lurking among My own people are
the wicked
who watch and wait, preying on the less fortunate.
Like hunters who set traps for birds,
they ensnare people for their own benefit.
27 Like a cage full of noisy birds,
their homes are filled with screeching lies.
This is how they have become so rich and important—
because others fell for their lies.
28 This is how they have grown so fat
and polished.
Their evil deeds know no
boundaries.
They do not take the side of the orphaned to help them
prosper.
They do not seek justice for the
poor;
29 Should I not punish them *for these
atrocities*?
Against a nation like this, should
I not avenge Myself?
(to His people) 30 Something horrible and appalling has happened
in this land of promise.
31 The prophets *who claim to speak
for Me*
are nothing more than false prophets, spewing lies and empty predictions.
The priests who were to do My bidding have chosen to go their own way,
and all the while, My people think nothing of it.
They actually prefer it this way,
but when the end comes, when My justices arrives, what will you do then?

► God, through His prophet, speaks about the ills of a greedy people who have forgotten how much the poor and orphaned matter to Him. The stench of injustice has become unbearable. For God, it is time to act.

As the swirling clouds gather to form a storm only Jeremiah sees on the horizon, the destruction of Jerusalem seems at hand. This ancient city, this storied place, is on the brink of a disaster beyond imagination. God is raising up an army from an ancient nation, known for its power and cruelty. For the prophet of God, the minutes are blurring into seconds. There seems to be little time to run and hide as the city will soon fall into the hands of those who mean her harm.

6 Eternal One (to His people): Run away, people of Benjamin,
and take refuge anywhere but Jerusalem.
You're not safe inside those walls.
From the village of Tekoa, blow
the trumpet, sound the alarm.
Light the warning fires above Beth-haccerem across the land.
For evil peers down; a dark army of destruction is gathering in the north.
2 I will destroy Jerusalem,
beautiful and delicate daughter of Zion.

3As shepherds come and surround
her with flocks of hungry
sheep,
so their enemies will gather their troops around you, set up camp,
And feed off your land as they see fit.
4"Get ready for the battle," they cry.
"Come on, let's attack. It's already noon!
But look, the day is half over—
the shadows are growing longer.
5*So arise,* let us launch our attack at
night.
The palaces will fall in the
darkness!"

6This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, decrees.

Eternal One: Cut down her trees—make battering rams and siege ramps—
for Jerusalem will soon be under attack.
Swarm over those walls, you invading hoards,
and punish My Jerusalem, the city of oppression.
7Like fresh water from a well, fresh wickedness flows from deep inside of her.
Sounds of cruelty and destruction
rumble through this city;
her wounds are always
before Me.
8*Take Me seriously,* O Jerusalem; this warning is for you!
Listen to My words and turn away from evil
Or I will turn away from you in disgust.
I will turn you into a land so barren that no one would dare to live there.

9This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, decrees:

Eternal One: The enemy will pass over the remnant of Israel again
and glean what is left,
like the worker who checks the vine again for any missed
grapes.

10To whom should I speak and give this warning?
Who will listen to what I say?
Their ears are closed; they cannot hear.
They're deaf to anything about
God.
The Eternal's word is offensive to them. They take no delight in it.
11*But* I am welling up with His anger.
I'm too tired to try to hold it in any longer.

Eternal One: Pour it out on children playing in the streets,
on young men meeting together.
Husbands and wives, old and even the very old—
let each of them know they will be taken.
12Their homes will be seized and lived in by others;
so, too, will their fields and wives be taken from them and given to others when I reach out against the people of this land.

13*Greed has corrupted this culture,*
from the least to the greatest:
all are tainted with this lust for what they don't deserve.
The prophets and priests are no
better.
Their lives reek with deceit.
14To heal the brokenness of My
people,
they offer superficial words.
They say, "Peace, peace," as if all is well.
But there is no peace.
15Do they feel any shame for their
disgraceful deeds?
Absolutely not. My very own
have forgotten how to blush.
And so it is that they will fall among the fallen and be
defeated;
when the time comes, they will
stumble beneath the weight
of My punishment;
They will know soon enough what
they have done.

This is what the Eternal decrees:

Eternal One *(to the people): 16Stand at the crossing, and consider the ancient path,
for it is good and it leads to Me.
Walk on this path, and you will find rest for your souls.
But they have said, "We will not walk upon this road."

17 Even then I sent watchmen to warn you of what is to come.
"Listen for the blaring of the trumpet," I warned.
But the people did not listen.
They said, "We will not pay
attention."

18 Now listen to Me, nations of the earth.
Learn, O congregation, what is about to happen to My
people.
19 Listen, O Earth, for I am bringing this disaster upon Judah.
This is the fruit of their own scheming.
For My people would not listen
to My instructions;
They have rejected My guidance—
My law—to go their own way.

► Many people in Judah keep going through the motions of worship; they offer sacrifices and incense to the one True God. They speak superficial words when they think it counts, and they give Him extravagant gifts. But the prophet knows the mind of God, and God is not impressed with any of it. Empty worship is meaningless. In fact, empty worship may do more harm than good. These gifts and actions, it seems, have no meaning unless the hearts of the people are attuned to God, unless they are willing to hear and do what God asks. Obedience, you see, is better than sacrifice.

Eternal One: 20 What use do I have of your expensive incense from Sheba
or the fragrant reeds you offer
Me from a faraway land?
I will not accept your burnt offerings;
the aroma of these empty
sacrifices does not please Me.

21 And so I, the Eternal One, will place stumbling blocks on your path of rebellion.
You will stumble indeed, fathers
and sons alike.
Neighbors and friends will be wiped
out.

22 Look in the distance, and you will see an army marching toward you out of the north.
A nation whose size and might you can't imagine
is now awakening and coming
from the remote parts of the
earth.
23 They are armed with bows and
spears.
Their hearts are cruel and will
show you no mercy.
The sound of their massive army,
riding in on their horses, is like
the sound of an angry sea;
They are ready for battle, marching
in formation,
coming to destroy you,
O Jerusalem, daughter of Zion.

► As clear as God's pronouncements have been, there must be a moment of decision. The warnings are all invitations for the people of Jerusalem to return to the God who loves them. But their fate is up to them; it is their choice. At this place of decision, long overdue, Jeremiah voices the fear in the hearts of those who hear of the impending attack. Speaking for the nation, he once again responds to God's awesome decree.

24 We heard the news, and our strength vanished—anguish and fear
grip us.
We twist in pain like a woman giving
birth.
25 Do not go into the field alone.
Do not walk the streets, for our enemy is armed and approaching fast.
Terror is everywhere we turn.
26 You who are my people, weep with me for it is time.
Put on sackcloth and roll in ashes.
Cry as you would for the loss of an only child.
The time for bitter tears has come.
The destroyer is descending upon us quickly,
and the days of sadness will soon
begin.

One of the most important and difficult messages Jeremiah ever delivers is given at the entrance to the temple. In the seventh century, the problem isn't that people are refusing to worship, for the crowds continue to form at the temple in Jerusalem, but that they are embracing a superficial form of worship. They are acting as if their motives do not matter; their immoral behavior seems to be of little or no concern. As long as they have the temple—with its rituals and rich history—they believe they are immune to anything. As long as they have the building in their midst, they seem to think they have God—as if He could be contained in this beautiful and storied structure.

Imagine the scene as this bold prophet speaks to the crowds streaming into the temple area. Imagine how startling these words sound to people who think religious activity and merely showing up at the temple will protect them. Listen now as Jeremiah preaches strong words about the dangers of worship gone bad.

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 27Put My people to the test.
Examine their ways as a refiner
tests the ore's purity.
28They are all stubborn rebels,
lying to each other and to Me.
They are nothing more than bronze and iron—
lesser metals, corrupt and
common.
29The refining fire has blazed fiercely,
My prophet;
the lead is burned away in the
fire.
But it's no use. Though the refining fire burns hot,
their wickedness cannot be removed.
30Now I, the Eternal, reject them as impure—
"rejected silver" is what they will
be called.

7 The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 2*Go now and* take a stand for Me at the entrance to My temple. Proclaim there My message. Tell all the people of Judah who enter these gates to worship the Eternal to stop and listen to the word of the Eternal. 3*Tell them* this is what I, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, have to say:

"Change your ways and stop what you are doing, and I will let you live in this land. 4Do not rely on the misguided words, 'The temple of the Eternal, the temple of the Eternal, the temple of the Eternal,' as if the temple's presence alone will protect you. 5But if you genuinely change your ways and stop what you are doing; if you deal with each other fairly; 6if you don't oppress foreigners, orphans, and widows; if you don't shed the blood of the innocent in this land; and if you don't practice the self-destructive worship of other gods; 7then I will let you live forever in this land I promised your ancestors long ago.

8"But instead, you are clinging to lies and illusions that are worthless. 9Do you think you can steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, make offerings to Baal, and chase after other gods and still expect Me to protect you? 10*Do you think all it takes is for* you to run back to Me in this house, which is called by My name, and say, 'We're safe now'? Does this somehow make it all right to do these vile things in front of Me? 11Do you think this house, which is called by My name, is a den of thieves?* I see what you're doing.

12"Go and take notice of what happened in Shiloh, the place where I first met your ancestors in the tabernacle that bore My name. See what I did in response to the wickedness of My people, Israel. 13Now, because of all the evil you have done, and because when I spoke to you time and again you never listened, and because when I called your name you never answered, 14*watch* what I will do to this house which bears My name, this sacred place I gave to you and your fathers. I will do to this temple, where you have put your trust, what I did to Shiloh all those years ago. 15I will throw you from My presence, just as I did to all your kinsmen in the Northern Kingdom, the descendants of Ephraim."

* 7:11 Matthew 21:13; Mark 11:17; Luke 19:46

(to Jeremiah) 16Don't pray or plead for these people. No matter how badly
you want to come to Me on their behalf, don't bother. For I won't hear such cries from you. 17Can't you see what's happening in the villages throughout Judah
and even in the streets of Jerusalem?
18The children gather the firewood, the fathers tend the fire, and the mothers
bake the bread for the so-called queen of heaven! The people pour out drink offerings in honor of other gods as if to spite Me. 19What they are doing doesn't hurt me; it only hurts them, to their own disgrace. 20Now hear what I, the Eternal Lord, declare: "The heat of My anger will pour out on this land, on man and beast, on the trees of the field and the fruit of the soil. My wrath will burn through this place and not be quenched.

► Generally, prophets are called to speak to people on behalf of God (prophecy) and to speak to God on behalf of the people (intercession). But in this stinging message, God tells Jeremiah not to waste his breath by praying for the people because He will not hear the prophet's pleas. God is determined to right His people's wrongs with punishing fury. God's honor is at stake, and so is His people's future. The powerful and beautiful rituals God gave the Hebrews in order to shape them as individuals and as a community have become nothing more than empty rites that God cannot tolerate.

21This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has
to say:

Eternal One: Treat your burnt offerings
the way you treat other sacrifices. Go ahead and eat the meat yourselves. I won't have any part of it. 22When I freed
your ancestors from slavery in Egypt, burnt offerings and sacrifices were not something I required of them. 23*I wanted* them to trust Me and obey My voice. In those early days, I told them, "I will be your God, and you will be My people.
Follow Me every step of the way into a life that is good." 24But they didn't trust Me. They didn't obey My voice. They refused to listen to Me. Instead they followed the plans of their own stubborn hearts. Each step was a step backward, not forward. 25From the time your ancestors left Egypt until now, I have shown them the way to a better life. Day after day, I sent all of My servants, the prophets, to speak the truth. 26But did any of them listen or pay attention? Did they change their ways? No, they only hardened their resolve to go their own way. Each generation has done more evil than the generation before.

(to Jeremiah) 27This is how I want you to speak to the people—say it all, don't hold anything back—but they won't hear you. Your voice will call throughout the land, but no one will answer you. 28And
so you will say to them, "This is the nation that dared not obey the voice of the Eternal, their one True God. This is the people who would not be taught."
Truth has died and disappeared from their very lips.

29Shave your head and throw your hair away, for it is time to mourn.
Climb the hills and grieve for the darkness has gone too far.
The Eternal has rejected His
faithless people;
He has forsaken this generation
that has stirred up His wrath.

30For the people of Judah have done
what is plainly evil right in front of Me.
They have brought their revolting idols into My temple! They have desecrated this place that stands in honor of My name. 31They have built shrines to other gods at Topheth, the garbage dump in the valley of Ben-hinnom, where they sacrifice their own sons and daughters and burn them in the fire to dark and pagan gods. I never taught them to do such unspeakable evil; it never even crossed My mind. 32But I tell you this: the days are coming when that place will no longer be known as Topheth, or the garbage dump in the valley of Ben-hinnom. But it will be called the valley of Slaughter, for they will bury the bodies of those who sacrifice children there until there is no more room. 33The remains of these wicked people will feed the vultures of the sky and wild animals of the earth
because no one will be there to scare them away. 34I will silence the sounds of laughter and joy from the villages of Judah to the streets of Jerusalem. Even the joy of a wedding will not be heard in this land of ruin.

8 Eternal One: When that sad day comes, the graves of My people will be desecrated. The remains of Judah's kings and her leaders, of priests and prophets, of the citizens of My city Jerusalem will be pulled from their graves. 2Their bones will be spread out over the ground, exposing them to the sun, moon, and the stars of heaven, the heavenly hosts, which our enemies loved, served, chased after, sought out, and worshiped. These bones will not be gathered or buried again, but they will be scattered like dung on the ground. 3As for the survivors of this wicked nation, they will prefer death to life in all the places where I have driven them.

The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has spoken!

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 4Tell My people that these are My words:
"When people stumble and fall,
don't they get up again?
When people are lost, don't they try to find their way back?

5So why have these people turned away from Me
and refused to come back?
They hang onto lies that lead them further away
instead of embracing the truth and coming home to Me.
6I listen intently for someone,
anyone, to speak the truth.
But it never happens. No one corrects his lies.
No one regrets his evil, saying,
'What have I done?'
Instead, everyone keeps running farther down that path, away from Me,
Like a horse charging into a battle.
7Even the stork in the sky knows her time to migrate.
The dove, the swallow, and the crane
All take flight when the time is right.
But not so with My people.
They do not know or care about the Eternal's commands."

8How can any of you say, "We are wise, because we have the Eternal's law"?
How little you care about the truth!
A pen in the hand of your teachers
drips nothing but lies.
9*The day is coming when* these so-called wise teachers will be put to shame;
their lives will be shattered
when they are captured and taken away.
Why will this happen? Because they have rejected and perverted
My word.
Are these the works of wise men?
10This is why I will give their wives away to intruders
and their property to invaders.
Greed has corrupted this culture,
from the least to the greatest:
everyone is tainted with this lust
for what they don't deserve.
The prophets and priests are no better.
Their lives reek with deceit.
11To heal the brokenness of My people,
they offer superficial words.
They say, "Peace, peace" as if all is well, but there is no peace.
12Do they feel any shame for their
disgraceful deeds?
Absolutely not. My very own
have forgotten how to blush.
And so it is that they will fall among
the fallen and be defeated:
when the time comes, they will
stumble beneath the weight
of My punishment;

13The harvest will soon be gone, a thing of the past.
There will be no grapes on the vine, no figs in the tree;
Even the leaves will wither and fall.
For what I have given so generously, I will now take
away.

► Some people in the land believe they know God's ways, but they don't. In fact, the ways they twist God's words and perform empty rituals only make things worse. Over and over again, prophets such as Jeremiah have attempted to describe the devastation that will result from the actions of those who refuse to listen to and really know God. As the invading army comes across the borders, some realize that what God has said—what the prophet has spoken in His name—is all coming true. God may long to bring His people close, to forgive and restore them, but it will not happen. They have refused both His forgiveness and His final warning, and so the enemy from the north is on the move.

People: 14Why are we still sitting here,
exposed and waiting for death to come?
Let's get together and run to the walled cities and die there.
We are without hope because the Eternal our God has pronounced our judgment.
He has given us a cup* of bitter poison to drink because we have sinned against Him.
15We were counting on peace, but none came.
We waited for a time of healing, but now all we have is terror.
16We can hear the snorts of their warhorses as they charge into Dan;
at the thunder of their hoofs and noise of their neighs the whole land trembles.
They have come to devour us—our land and everything in it,
the city and all her citizens.

Eternal One: 17Look, I have released an army of serpents against you;
they slither like vipers across the land.
There is no hope of charming them.
There is no escape from their deadly bite.

Jeremiah: 18There is no cure for my grief.
My heart breaks *for what I see and hear.
19Listen, my Lord, don't You hear the daughter of our people weeping, crying out to You from exile?
"Is the Eternal no longer in Zion?
Does her King no longer reside there?"

Eternal One: But Jeremiah, why have they provoked Me with their dark and evil practices?
Why do they worship these handcrafted idols, these worthless gods?

Jeremiah understands that the time for Judah to repent and change her ways is past. She has had her last chance, but that doesn't stop him from pleading with God.

Jeremiah: 20The harvest is over,
summer has ended,
and we are not saved.
21And because the daughter of my people is being ripped apart,
I am ripped apart.
From within, a dark and cold hurt arises.
From without, I am strangled by the horror of it all.
22Is there no healing medicine in Gilead, no balm that could help my people?
Is there no physician who can help?
Why is there no healing for the wounds inflicted on my people?

9 Jeremiah: O that my head were a spring of water and my eyes a fountain of tears;
Then I could weep day and night for my poor people who have been slaughtered.
2O that I had a place in the desert I could run to,
a haven for travelers.
Then I could leave my people,
for they are all an adulterous and treacherous lot.

Eternal One: 3With tongues bent like bows they shoot their lies at one another.
Truth does not win out in this land; deceit always seems to triumph.
One evil leads to another because they don't know who I am.
4Let everyone be careful of his neighbor,
and think twice before he trusts his brothers;

* 8:14 Literally, waters of the head; possibly, salty tears * 8:18 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

For every brother is ready to cheat
and deceive;
every neighbor is prepared to lie
when it suits him.
5*In this land of liars,* friends have no
misgivings about deceiving
one another;
no one even thinks to tell the
truth.
They've trained their tongues to utter lies;
they wear themselves out with all their sinning.
6*Jeremiah,* you live in a place where deception is assumed;
as their lies pile up, they refuse to acknowledge Me.

7Here is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has to say:

Eternal One: Watch, I will refine this nation and put them to the test.
What else can I do with My
people?
8Their tongues are like deadly arrows;
they speak such lies;
Each one leads his neighbor with kind words
into a trap that was already set.
9Should I not punish them for what they do?
Should I not repay a nation that acts this way?

Jeremiah: 10I will weep bitterly for the mountains of my homeland
and grieve for the death of her wild meadows.
For they have become a silent
wasteland
where no one dares to travel.
Pastures once filled with the lowing of cattle, now are empty and lifeless.
All the animals have fled; even
the birds have left the sky.

Eternal One: 11I will leave Jerusalem in ruins;
her rubble will be the haunt of
jackals.
I will wreak the same havoc on the cities of Judah;
no person will be found there.

Jeremiah: 12Who is wise enough to take all this in? Who has heard the Eternal speak and can explain His ways to others? Can anyone say why this land has been ruined and left a wasteland, a desert where no one dares to travel?

Eternal One: 13*I will answer you Myself.* Because they have ignored the law I gave them generations ago. They haven't listened to My voice, and they refuse to walk in My ways. 14Instead, they have stubbornly followed after their own hearts. They have chosen to worship images of Baal just as their ancestors taught them. 15This is why I, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, must now take action. Look, I will now give them bitter food to eat and poisoned water to drink. 16I Myself will scatter them among the nations—nations neither they nor their ancestors ever knew existed—and I will hunt them down with the sword and destroy them completely.

These images are too real, too vivid. Jeremiah tells of the people's judgment. He can't help but grieve for them and the land that was once a place of promise.

17The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has this to say:

Eternal One: Think this over, and summon the mourners.
Send for the women who will chant the dirge, that they may come.
18Let them be quick about it: weep
and wail,
that our eyes may fill with tears
that streak down our faces.
19Listen to the voice of sorrow
weeping from Zion herself:
"We are ruined. All that remains for us is great shame.
Now we must leave this land that
was ours;
they have torn down our houses."

Jeremiah: 20So listen now, women of Judah, to the word of the Eternal.
Mark His words well.
It is time to teach your daughters
how to mourn,
time to teach your neighbors
the song of lament.
21For death has found us all.
It has crept in through our windows and slipped past
our defenses.

It has cut down our children in the streets,
and our young men in the public squares. Death has found us all.
22Tell everyone what the Eternal has said:
"The dead bodies of men will fall like dung on the open field.
Corpses will lie on the ground like grain cut in the harvest;
but on this day, there will be no one to gather and bury the dead."

Eternal One: 23Let not the wise boast in their wisdom, nor the mighty in their strength, nor the rich in their wealth.
24Whoever boasts must boast in this: that he understands and knows Me.* Indeed, I am the Eternal One who acts faithfully and exercises justice and righteousness on earth. These are the things that delight Me.
25Look, the day is coming when I will set things right with all people. I will punish all those who are circumcised in their bodies but not in their hearts—26*the people of* Egypt, Judah, Edom, Ammon, and Moab, and all who live in the desert and clip the corners of their hair. All these nations are really uncircumcised, and all of Israel is uncircumcised where it counts, in the heart.

► Circumcision is supposed to be a sign of God's covenant with the people of Israel, but it has become a mark on the body that has little to no effect on how God's people live. Now God speaks a rather shocking message. Judgment is coming on all nations—those inside and those outside the covenant—whose people are not distinguished by a mark that truly matters. God calls this judgment the circumcision of the heart—a strange phrase indeed. The difference is between the inside and the outside, the superficial and the real. God has had enough, the prophet says, of those who go through the motions, confident in their wisdom, strength, and wealth. God wants a people who are truly devoted to knowing and honoring Him.

10 This message is for all of Israel. Listen to what the Eternal is saying to you.

Eternal One: 2Don't learn the strange practices and beliefs of other nations.
Don't be terrified by signs in the sky just because the other nations are.
3For their traditions and customs are useless; there is nothing to them.
A tree is cut down in the forest; then an artisan takes out a tool and carves it into an image.
4They dress it up with gold and silver to make it more impressive.
Then they nail it down so it won't fall over!
5*This is what they worship?* The idol just stands there— lifeless, powerless like a scarecrow in a cucumber patch.
It cannot speak. It cannot move.
They must pick the thing up and bring it along.
Do you see why there's nothing to fear from these dead pieces of wood?
They cannot harm you, and they cannot help you either.

6O Eternal One, there is no comparison.
You are great; even Your name is powerful.
7Who wouldn't worship You? It is only right;
You are the King of all kingdoms.
The wise and powerful men of all nations in their realms
are still nothing compared to You.
8They are stupid fools for taking their cues from blocks of wood,
as if that idol could lead them anywhere.
9Beaten silver from Tarshish, and hammered gold from Uphaz—
materials made by artisans and goldsmiths—
Draped with royal blue and purple, even with the work of craftsmen—
still a lifeless object!

* 9:24 1 Corinthians 1:31; 2 Corinthians 10:17

10 Just look at the contrast! The Eternal is the True God:
He is the living God and eternal King, not some lifeless idol.
The whole earth trembles when He is angry; nations crumble beneath His wrath.

11 Say this to anyone still worshiping idols:
The so-called gods you worship did not make the earth and starry sky above it.
And one day, they will all be blotted from the earth beneath those stars.

12 Know whom you're dealing with!
God alone is powerful enough to create the earth.
He alone is wise enough to put the world together.
He alone understands enough to stretch out the heavens.
13 His voice thunders through the heavens, and the waters gush from the sky;
He summons the clouds to build up over the earth.
As the rain falls, the lightning flashes at His command;
the wind rushes in from where He alone can store it.
14 All of humanity is stupid and bankrupt of knowledge.
Those who make idols are shamed by their creations.
What they fashion out of gold are imposters—
breathless, lifeless frauds.
15 Their idols are worthless, the work of their hands an embarrassing mockery.
They are doomed to perish under God's judgment.
16 The portion of Jacob, the Eternal One, is not like any of these.
He was not fashioned out of human hands.
Instead, it is He who made all things and appointed Israel to inherit it all.
His name is the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies.

► These words are directed at a nation that cannot remember the beauty and power of true worship; instead, her people are always drifting toward profane and useless practices that leave them empty and far from the God who loves them so. The warnings against idolatry, no matter how many times or how loudly they are offered, always seem to fall on deaf ears. But now the judgment is close at hand. The enemy first seen in Jeremiah's visions is drawing closer. The dreaded hour of judgment is coming.

17 Pack up what you have; take what you can from the land.
You'll soon be under siege!
18 The word I have from the Eternal is clear:

Eternal One: Look, I will pitch out these people who live in the land of promise.
Now is the time for Me to bring hardship on them, so they may be found.

19 When I think of what is about to happen,
I can't begin to express my hurt; the wound is so deep, so painful.
But I keep telling myself,
"This sickness is mine to bear."
20 Like a tent, my nation has collapsed, all the ropes cut apart.
My sons are gone,
And there is no one left to help me put things back together.
So I am exposed, with no tent and no shelter.
21 The shepherds of my people have lost their senses;
they never thought to ask what the Eternal would have them do.
So now they are in trouble,
and all their flocks are scattered.
22 Listen! The news we've dreaded is finally here:
Rumblings are being heard in the north; an army is moving into our land.
The villages of Judah will be laid to waste;
their rubble will be the haunt of jackals.

Jeremiah: 23 O Eternal One, I know our lives are in Your hands.
It is not in us to direct our own steps—we need You.
24 Discipline me, Eternal One, but do so fairly.
Hold back Your wrath, or I'll be destroyed completely.
25 O God, pour out Your wrath on those nations that do not acknowledge You,
on those peoples who never call on Your name.

For they have ravaged the land
of Jacob and devoured it completely.
They have made sure nothing is left of our land.

11 The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 2Tell the people of Judah, and specifically those who live in Jerusalem, to hear the terms of our covenant. 3Tell them this is what the Eternal, the God of Israel, has to say: "Cursed is anyone who ignores the terms of this covenant. 4All of this was laid out for your ancestors long ago when I first delivered them from slavery, rescued them from the fire of Egypt. I told them, 'Hear My voice, and do all that I command you. This way you will be My people, and I will be your God.' 5I wanted nothing more than to keep My promise and to bless your ancestors with a land flowing with milk and honey—the land of promise on which you stand today."

Jeremiah: Yes, O Eternal One! Let it be.

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 6Now it is time to announce My message in the villages of Judah and on the streets of My city, Jerusalem. I want them to hear this: "Listen to the words of this covenant, and start doing what it says. 7I sternly warned your ancestors when I rescued them from Egypt, and I've repeated that warning many times, even today, saying, 'Listen to My voice, and do as I say.' 8But they didn't listen, and they didn't obey Me. Instead, they deliberately chased their own dark desires, ignoring Me at every turn. So I enforced the terms of our covenant, including the curses that came from refusing to do that which I had commanded them."

9The people of Jerusalem and all of Judah conspire against Me. 10They have gone back to the sins of their ancestors, who long ago ignored My words. They have chased after other gods and worshiped them. Do you not see how both the house of Israel and the house of Judah have violated the covenant I made with their ancestors? 11This is why I, the Eternal, declare that I will bring disaster upon these rebellious people. And they will not escape what awaits them. They will beg for My help, but I won't listen to them. 12Let the citizens of Judah and Jerusalem run to their precious gods for help. Let them burn incense and pray to their detestable images when trouble comes. Those impotent idols will not be able to save them, no matter how many they have to choose from! 13For you have as many gods as there are towns, people of Judah—as many altars to burn incense to Baal as there are streets in Jerusalem. 14Don't pray for these people, Jeremiah. Don't bother making any pleas for them, for that time has passed. I will not listen when they call out to Me in their time of trouble.

15What right does My beloved have coming into My temple, having done such vile things with so many? Do you really think that animal sacrifice is going to make this all go away? Will you then be able to rejoice? 16The Eternal once proclaimed you a lush olive tree, full of beautiful fruit. But all that has changed. With the roar of a violent storm, He will now strike that tree—leaving it battered, broken, and burned. 17Now the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has decreed disaster against you, the same tree He planted—all because of the evil done by the people of Israel and Judah, all because they provoked Me by worshiping and sacrificing to Baal.

► At this point in the prophecy, Jeremiah reveals a bit of his private struggles. Because he has faithfully delivered God's messages to the nation, people from his hometown are scheming against him. They would like nothing better than to silence God's mouthpiece . . . permanently. God, however, lets Jeremiah in on the plot. Wisely, Jeremiah puts his trust in God to protect and defend him.

Jeremiah: 18The Eternal revealed to me
the plans of my enemies.
Then You showed me what they wanted to do.
19I was like an unsuspecting lamb led to its slaughter.
I had no idea they were plotting against me. They were saying,

"Let's cut down that lush olive tree
and destroy all its beautiful fruit.*
Let's cut him off from the land
of the living.
Let's make sure no one even remembers his name."
20But You, Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, You who judge fairly,
You know the heart and the
mind.
Let me see Your vengeance exacted
against them;
I am entrusting my cause, my future to You.

21-22This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has to say regarding your men back in Anathoth who are threatening your life and saying, "You will die by our hands if you do not stop prophesying in the name of the Eternal."

Eternal One: Look, I will soon punish them! The young men will die in battle; their sons and daughters will starve during a famine. 23*In the end,* no one from Anathoth who schemes against you will remain, for I will bring disaster upon these schemers when the year of their reckoning arrives.

12 Jeremiah: Eternal, You always do what is right
when I bring a complaint Your
way.
So now let me put a case before You:
Why do the wicked prosper so
much?
Why do all the untrustworthy
have it so easy?
2You plant them and watch them
take root;
You allow them to grow and
even bear fruit.
And yet, Your words mean
nothing to them, deep down.
3Still, You know me, Eternal One; You see what is deep inside me.
You've examined my heart,
So why aren't they brought to justice?
Deal with them as sheep
set aside for slaughter, singled out for death.
4How long must the land cry out in
mourning,
the grasses of the field wither
and bake in the sun?
The birds and wild animals have simply vanished,
all because of the wicked living
here—Because they say, "God does not see what will become of us."

► Jeremiah's complaint is a common one; it is as old as civilization itself: Why do the wicked prosper? Why do good people have to wait for God's justice? God doesn't shrink back from such questions, and He does not punish those who dare ask them. In fact, Scripture invites us to ask God the hard questions through Jeremiah's example. The answers to hard questions are never easy. In fact, as Jeremiah will soon discover, his troubles are only beginning. God calls him again to endure.

Eternal One: 5If you are worn out after only running with a few men,
how will you one day compete against horses?
If you stumble on the easy terrain,
how will you manage in the thick brush near the Jordan?
6*Jeremiah,* even your brothers and the rest of your family
are ready to betray you.
Even they cry out for your death;
don't trust any of them,
no matter how nicely they speak
to your face.

7I have turned away My house,
abandoned My heritage;
I have given My deeply beloved one over to her enemies.
8My very own people have acted toward Me like a lion in the wild,
roaring at Me in defiance. For this, I hate her.
9Have My own people become like colorful vultures?
Are birds of prey circling all around them?*
Gather the wild beasts and bring them on to devour My beloved.

* 11:19 Hebrew manuscripts read, "bread." * 12:9 Meaning of the manuscripts is uncertain.

10 Many shepherds have already destroyed My vineyard;
they have crushed My fields.
My beautiful land of promise
has turned into a barren
wasteland.
11 The very ground cries out to Me
in this empty and forsaken
land;
the whole land is desolate, but
no one seems to care.
12 The destroyers pour over the bare hills in the desert
as the sword of the Eternal devours the land from one end to another.
There is no peace for anyone.
13 The people planted wheat, but they will reap only thorns.
In the end, there will be nothing to show for all their hard
work.
Shame will be their harvest because of the Eternal's burning anger against them.

Jeremiah now speaks to the nations. They, too, must trust God. His love and mercy are not for Israel alone.

The Eternal has this to say:

Eternal One: 14 As for My wicked neighbors so eager to take away the inheritance I gave My people Israel, look! There will come a day when I will uproot them from their lands, and I will take Judah from their midst. 15 But after I have uprooted them from their homelands, I will have mercy on them and restore them to their own lands and their own possessions. 16 And if they diligently learn the ways of My people and trust in Me instead of idols, if they swear by My name saying, "As the Eternal lives," just as they taught My people to swear by Baal, then I will establish them alongside My people. 17 As for any nation that will not listen to and follow My ways, I will uproot it and destroy it completely.

This is what the Eternal has declared.

13 The Eternal directed me.

Eternal One: Go and buy a linen undergarment; put it around your waist next to your body beneath your clothes, but do not wash it.

2 So I bought the undergarment, just as the Eternal had told me, and put it around my waist. 3 Then the Eternal spoke to me a second time.

Eternal One: 4 Now take off this undergarment you've purchased and have been wearing around your waist, and go to the Euphrates. I want you to hide it in a crevice in the rocks there.

5 So I took the undergarment to the Euphrates and hid it in the rocks, just as the Eternal told me. 6 After many days had passed, the Eternal spoke to me a third time.

Eternal One: Now go back to the Euphrates, and get the linen undergarment I told you to hide there.

7 When I went back and dug up this garment from the place where I'd hidden it, I found it had begun to rot. This garment that was once new and clean was now completely worthless. 8 The word of the Eternal came to me to drive home His point.

At times God's message given through Jeremiah must be acted out. He wants so badly for His people to understand, that mere words aren't sufficient. This is one such moment.

Eternal One: 9 Mark My words, for the same thing will happen to the pride of Judah and the great pride of Jerusalem. 10 I will ruin these haughty and wicked people who ignore My words, who follow their own stubborn hearts, who run after other gods, who bow down to lifeless idols. They will end up like this rotten undergarment in your hands—completely worthless! 11 Just as the undergarment clings to a person's waist, so did I, the Eternal One, make Israel and Judah to cling tightly to Me. They were to be My people, known by all, bringing honor and glory to My name. That was My plan for them, but they did not listen.

► This is the first of several symbolic actions or prophetic dramas in the book. God made Israel and Judah to stick close to Him—as close as an undergarment—but because they disobey Him and refuse to live within the bonds of the covenant, God will bury them in exile, and they will be ruined.

Eternal One: 12Speak this word to the people as well: "Listen to what the Eternal, the God of Israel, has to say: 'Every jug will be filled with wine.' When they respond, 'Tell us something we don't already know, prophet! Don't you think we know that every jug will be filled with wine?' 13Go on telling them, 'This is what the Eternal says: "I am going to fill all who live in this land with drunkenness—the kings who sit on David's throne, the priests, the false prophets, and all the citizens of Jerusalem. 14And
then I will smash them together in confusion and panic—smashing fathers against sons in the chaos of the enemy invasion. I will have no pity on them. My sorrow or compassion will not keep Me from ruining them."'"

15Listen carefully to me!
Stop being so smug, because the Eternal has spoken.
16*It is time to* honor the Eternal your God
before He makes the darkness fall and you stumble on the darkening
mountains.
You will long for the light,
but He will make the darkness
deepen as the gloom settles in.
17If you still won't listen, I will weep for you in secret.
From the depths of my soul, I will cry
bitter tears,
Because the Eternal's own flock will be taken captive.
18Tell the king and the queen mother:
"Come down from your thrones, and take a seat in a humble place, for your glorious crowns will be taken from you."
19The cities in the Negev have already shut
their gates.
There will be no one to open them.
The people of Judah will be taken captive,
all of them carried away into exile.

(to Jerusalem) 20*Now* look to the north and see who is marching toward you.
Where is the beautiful flock that was entrusted to you?
21What will you say when He appoints
your so-called allies,
the very ones you trained, to rule
over you?
Will not the pain stab at you
as it does a woman in childbirth?
22When you begin to ask yourself, "Why is all this happening to me?"
know this: it is because of the weight of your sins.
This is why your enemies will tear off your skirts and violate your bodies.
23*And still, you will not change.*
Can the Ethiopian change his skin?
Can a leopard change its spots?
It seems just as unlikely that you will change your ways and do good,
when you are so used to doing evil—
it has become such a part of you.

Eternal One *(to His people): 24This is why I will scatter you like chaff driven by the desert
wind.
25This is now your fate—retribution measured out for you from
the Eternal—
for you have forgotten Me and trusted in the lies of another.
26For all this, I will be the One who lifts your skirts over your face, exposing you and letting others
see your disgrace.
27As for your faithlessness, your adulteries and your lustful
ways,
as for the degrading way you prostitute yourself to other gods out in the open, I see it all.
For all this, your fate is sealed.
O Jerusalem—how bad it will be for you!
How long before you are clean
again?

14 The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah about the coming droughts.

A series of droughts come upon the land of Judah, making life very difficult for the people. Even the animals suffer as God holds back the rain.

Eternal One: 2Judah mourns and her cities grow weak;
her people collapse to the ground in grief.

The cries of Jerusalem echo
through the city.
3The nobles send their servants for water that is not there.
They come to cisterns only to return home with their jars
empty.
They have all been shamed,
humiliated,
so they cover their heads.
4*The fields are dry and* the ground is cracked because there is no rain.
The farmers suffer shame; they,
too, cover their heads.
5*Even the animals of the field struggle:*
the devoted doe walks away
from her newborn fawn,
all because there is no grass to be found.
6The wild donkeys stand on barren hills panting like jackals in the dry heat.
With no plants to eat, their bodies
weaken—their eyes grow dim.

People (to God): 7*We know* our guilt cries out against us,
but O Eternal One, step in now
and do something!
For the sake of Your own good name, help us.
It's true—our betrayals are many, so much have we sinned against You.
8But O Hope of Israel, her Savior in times of trouble, don't forget us!
Why are You acting like a stranger
here in Your own land, Treating us like some traveler who's only staying for the night?
9Why do You seem surprised,
like a warrior who cannot defend us?
But we know You are here, among us even now.
Eternal One—we are Your people.
You know us by name;
do not disown us!

Eternal One: 10(about His people*) All this* is true, but they love to wander from Me;
they cannot control their restless feet—
which are constantly running after other gods. That is why I won't accept them and take them back. I will remember their guilt and hold them accountable for their sins.

11(to Jeremiah) Do not pray for this people's well being. 12*They will try to* impress Me again, but when they fast, I will not hear their cry; when they bring Me their burnt offerings and grain offerings, I will not accept any of them.
Instead, I will offer to them their own destruction by war, by famine, and by disease.

Jeremiah: 13But Eternal Lord, there are prophets in the land who keep telling the people none of this will happen. They claim to speak for You, saying, "No war or famine will come to you. Instead, I will give you peace and security in this place."

Eternal One: 14But these so-called prophets are "prophesying" lies. And they do so in My name! I have said no such thing. I have not sent them and directed them to speak in My name. Their prophecies are based on false visions, faulty revelation,
and dark delusions of their own making.

15This is what the Eternal says regarding the false prophets who attempt to speak in His name.

Eternal One: I simply did not send them.
Those who are proclaiming to the people,
"No war or famine will touch this land,"
will themselves die in war and famine.
16And those foolish enough to listen to their prophecies will be tossed into the streets of Jerusalem, weakened by famine, victims of war. They will die, and there will be no one to bury them, their wives, their sons, or their daughters because I will pour out their own evil upon them.

17God told me to speak these words to
them:

Jeremiah: May my eyes fill with tears
day and night.
Let me not stop crying for what I
see:
for my tender virgin daughter—
my people—
Has suffered a crushing blow.
I see her now with a serious,
gaping wound.
18If I go to the countryside, I see the bodies of those cut down in
war;
if I walk into the city, I see the misery brought on by famine.

And yet the prophets and priests
go about their business in blissful ignorance,
unaware of what they are doing.

(to God) [19]Have You abandoned Judah completely?
Do You now hate Zion?
Why have You wounded us beyond healing?
We longed for peace, but nothing good ever came.
We hoped for healing, but only terror came our way.
[20]We admit our wickedness, O Eternal One.
We confess the sins of our ancestors.
We know we, too, have sinned against You.
[21]For the sake of Your good name, do not disown us;
do not dishonor the throne of Your glory.
O God, remember Your people!
Do not break Your covenant with us.
[22]Do any of the foreign idols bring the rain?
Do the showers fall from heaven by themselves?
No. They come from You, Eternal One our God.
That is why our hope is in You, for You alone do all this.

15 Eternal One (to Jeremiah): Even if Moses and Samuel stood before Me to defend this rebellious nation, I would not turn back to this people right now. Send them away from Me, Jeremiah; make them go! [2]And when they look to you and ask, "Where should we go?" tell them I, the Eternal, said,

For some, their destiny is deadly disease,
for others it is war,
And still others, their destiny is starvation,
and lastly, some are doomed to be captives of an enemy state.

[3]I am sending four destroyers: the sword to slaughter, the dogs to drag away the carnage, the birds of the sky, and the wild beasts of the earth to devour and destroy what is left. [4]What I do to this evil nation will horrify the watching world for generations. What Manasseh (son of Hezekiah), king of Judah, did in Jerusalem will not be overlooked.

[5]Who will have compassion on you, O Jerusalem?
Who will mourn for your losses?
Who will stop and ask how you are?
[6]You have rejected Me time and again.
You keep backing away from Me, so I will reach out and destroy you.
I am weary of feeling sorry for you;
I will not relent this time.
[7]Like a farmer, I will use my winnowing fork to remove the chaff at the city gates.
I will deprive them of their children.
I will destroy My own because they refuse to turn away from their wicked and hurtful ways.
[8]The widows in this land will outnumber the grains of sand by the sea.
As for the mothers of young men,
I will send the destroyer against them at midday, when no one is expecting.
In the blink of an eye, I will rain down terror and anguish on them.
[9]The mother of seven suffers in her sadness;
gasping for breath, she realizes the sun has set even while it is day.
Alone and childless again, she is disgraced and ashamed.
As for those who survive the first wave of violence,
I will put them to the sword before their enemies.

So says the Eternal.

Jeremiah: [10]Oh, the anguish that is mine!
If only you had not given birth to me, mother;
I feel like a man who fights and struggles with the whole land.
I have not lent money or borrowed from others.
So why am I treated this way?
Everyone is ready to curse me.

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 11*Hear me, Jeremiah:*
I will make you strong in these trying times to accomplish My good.
I will make it so your enemies ask you to pray for them in times of disaster and suffering.

12Can a man break iron that is forged in the north?
What about bronze?*
13Because you have committed so many sins throughout the land,
I will freely hand over your wealth and treasures to this enemy as plunder.
14I will incite your enemies to capture you and take you* off to a distant land you do not know.
I am doing this because My anger burns like a roaring fire that lasts forever.

► The calling of God has left Jeremiah with a loneliness he can hardly bear. The words he must deliver, the sins he continually confronts, and the future God has revealed to him—they all lead to an unbearable isolation. God has heard the lonely cry of His prophet, and He has offered encouragement and a promise to strengthen Jeremiah. At this point, Jeremiah is enduring the pain with his assignment. In fact, in this agony, he openly questions and accuses God Himself.

Jeremiah: 15O Eternal One—You know what I am facing;
Remember me, and pay attention to my plight.
Take my side; pay back those who persecute me.
I know You are patient, but don't let them take me away.
Think of the suffering I've endured for Your sake.
16When I discovered Your words, I ate them up:
they were my great joy and my heart's delight.
I am Yours, and I bear the name of the Eternal God,
Commander of heavenly armies.
17I never sat in the circle of jokesters, nor did I celebrate with them.
No. I stayed to myself, sat alone because Your hand was heavy on me;
You filled me with indignation over their sins.
18So why does my pain never end?
Why does this wound never heal?
Will you be to me as deceptive and unreliable as a dry stream to a thirsty man?

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 19If you will turn back to Me,
I will restore you—
and you will stand before Me.
If you will speak worthy words instead of worthless complaints,
You will be My spokesman.
Let the people come to you, but don't go to them!
20They will come at you, but I will make you like a wall of bronze against them.
They will not beat you, because I am with you to save and rescue you.
This will be so, for I have declared it.
21I will rescue you from the hands of the wicked and redeem you from the grasp of the violent.

16 The word of the Eternal came to me.

► The loneliness Jeremiah has already endured is indeed painful. Surely he wants just one companion in whom he can confide; even that would be something. If only he could find solace in a loving spouse! Certainly society is composed of husbands and wives; even the worst people have families, while Jeremiah is alone. It now becomes clear that this isolation is his life's calling. He is banned not only from starting his own family, but from being with others. He cannot enter into the sorrow of his people's grief or enjoy any celebration in the community. To abstain from both the sorrow and joy of those around him ensures Jeremiah's isolation. But it also raises important questions with painful answers. As always, God anticipates these questions.

* 15:12 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 15:14 Hebrew manuscripts read, "I will cause your enemies to pass over."

Eternal One: 2*Jeremiah,* you must not get married and have children in this place, 3because this is what I, the Eternal One,
say about the sons and daughters of this land and about their mothers and fathers: 4They will die of deadly diseases.
There will be so many dead that no one will bury them or grieve for them;
they will be like dung scattered on the ground. Others will perish from war and famine, and their corpses will feed the vultures and wild beasts of the earth.

5This is what I declare to you, My prophet: Do not go inside a house that is mourning. Do not grieve with these friends and families. Do not comfort them because I, the Eternal One, have taken My peace, even My loyal love and mercy, from them. 6Death will come to the great and small of this land, but they will not be buried or mourned. There will be no one left to cut themselves or shave their heads in ritual displays of mourning. 7No one will bring food to comfort those in mourning or offer a drink to console even one who has lost a parent. 8You are not to enter a house
where they are feasting and celebrating.
Refuse to eat and drink with them. 9For
this is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, now declares: Before your eyes and during your lifetime, I will silence the sounds of laughter and joy in this place; the joy of a wedding will no longer be heard.

10When you tell these people all of this, they will ask you, "Why has the Eternal decided to bring this horrendous evil on us? What have we done wrong?
What sin have we committed against the Eternal our God?" 11I want you to answer them with My words: All this is because your ancestors deserted Me and followed after other gods. They served and worshiped them, but Me they have deserted. My instruction they have ignored. 12As for you, you are even worse than your ancestors because every one of your hearts is evil and stubborn, and you continue to ignore Me as you follow your own wicked ways. 13For this reason, I will throw you out of this land into a land you and your ancestors have never known.
There you will be able to serve these other gods all you want—day and night—
for I will show you no compassion.

This horrible vision of judgment is tempered with words of God's gracious restoration. Though the sentence against faithless Judah is harsh, it will not be the end of her.

(to the people) 14Look, days are coming when people will remember how I restored you. They will no longer say, "As the Eternal lives who brought the people of Israel out of the land of Egypt." 15Instead,
they will say, "As the Eternal lives, who brought the people of Israel out of the lands of the north and the countries where He had exiled them." For I will bring them back to their promised land,
the land I gave to your ancestors.

16But first, I will send for many fishermen who will catch them. After this, I will summon many hunters, and they will hunt them down on every mountain and every hill, in every crack and crevice of this land. 17My eyes are fixed on all they are doing. Nothing is hidden from Me; their sins are exposed before My eyes. 18For their wickedness and sin—
polluting My land with the lifeless husks of their disgusting idols, taking what is Mine and filling it with these abominable things—I will repay them doubly.

Jeremiah: 19O Eternal One, You are my
strength,
my fortress, my sanctuary in
times of trouble.
The day will come when the nations will come from all over the world and admit,
"Our ancestors were fools! They inherited and clung to empty
lies,
Worthless gods that gained them
nothing good.
20Can people make their own gods?
No, because a man-made idol is not a god."

Eternal One: 21Behold, I will teach
these people.
This time, they will learn of My power and strength.

I will teach them, and they will know and fully understand
that I am the Eternal.

17 Eternal One: Judah's sin is engraved on the tablets of their hearts, inscribed on the horns of their altars with an iron tool, tipped with a diamond point. 2Their children remember their pagan altars and the sacred poles* used in idol worship beside leafy green trees on high hills. 3I will see that My mountain in the land, your nation's wealth, and all your treasures will be handed over as plunder to your enemies. I will even give your pagan high places to pay the cost for the sins you committed all over Judah. 4You'll let this inheritance I gave you slip through your fingers. I will make you slaves to your enemies in a land you have never known because you have stirred My anger into a roaring fire that will last forever.

5Cursed is the one who trusts in human strength and the abilities of mere mortals.
His very heart strays from the
Eternal.
6He is like a little shrub in the desert
that never grows;
he will see no good thing come
his way.
He will live in a desert wasteland,
a barren land of salt where no
one lives.
7But blessed is the one who trusts in Me alone;
the Eternal will be his
confidence.
8He is like a tree planted by water, sending out its roots beside the
stream.
It does not fear the heat or even drought.
Its leaves stay green and its fruit is dependable, *no matter
what it faces.*

The choices and consequences are clear. Rely on people alone, and life will be tough and brutish. Rely on the one True God, and life will be rich and productive.

9The heart is most devious and incurably sick.
Who can understand it?
10It is I, the Eternal One, who probes
the innermost heart and examines the innermost thoughts.
I will compensate each person justly,
according to his ways and by what his actions deserve.
11Like a partridge that hatches eggs
that are not hers,
so is the person who gains
wealth unfairly.
In the middle of his life *a fool's
money* will abandon him.
In the end he, too, will be shown for what he is—a fool.

Jeremiah (to God): 12But from the beginning, Your throne of
glory,
our holy place, has always been exalted.
13O Eternal One, the hope of Israel, all who forsake You will be put
to shame.
Those who turn their backs on You will be written in the dirt,
because they have forsaken You,
the spring of living water.
14Heal me, O Eternal One, and I will be healed.
You alone can save me; to You alone do I sing my praise.
15The scoffers keep mocking me,
saying,
"Where is the word of the Eternal
you keep talking about?
Why haven't His words come to pass?"
16*You know* I have not run from my calling—
I have been a shepherd to Your people as You commanded.
I have not secretly desired the day of disaster and sorrow.
You know everything I've spoken *to
these people,*
because it was the task You'd set
before me.
17Do not turn and terrify me.
Be my refuge when the dreaded
day of reckoning comes.
18Bring shame on those who persecute me, but save me
from that shame.
Bring terror on them, but save me from that terror.
Bring them to the day of disaster;
shatter them, destroy them
with double the destruction.

* 17:2 Hebrew, Asherim

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 19Go, stand at the public gate of Jerusalem, the one through which the kings of Judah come and go; then take up your post at the other gates around the city. 20Say to them, Listen, you kings of Judah, you people of Judah, you citizens of Jerusalem, and any who pass through these gates. Listen to the words of the Eternal; 21this is what He says: "For the welfare of your lives and the good of this city, be careful! Stop violating My Sabbaths by carrying your loads through Jerusalem's gates on the Sabbath day. 22Do not bring your loads out of the house on that day—do not work at all on the Sabbath. Keep the Sabbath day holy as I commanded your ancestors *all those years ago. 23But even then, they did not listen or pay attention to Me; instead, they stiffened their resolve not to listen or accept any instruction from Me.

24"But if you will listen to My words and obey Me by not carrying your loads through these city gates on the Sabbath, if you will live differently on the Sabbath, differently from the rest of your week by not working on it, I promise Jerusalem will be your home forever. 25The family of David will always reign on his throne here. The kings and rulers of this land will pass through these gates in chariots and on horses. As for their officers, the people of Judah, and the citizens of Jerusalem, they will live securely in this city forever. 26People will come from Jerusalem's surrounding villages and the towns and the regions in Judah. They will come from the territory of Benjamin, from the rolling hills in the west, from the hill country, and from the Negev wilderness. They will bring their burnt offerings and sacrifices, grain offerings, incense, and freewill offerings to the Eternal's temple. 27But if you refuse to obey Me—if you continue to bring your loads though the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath even though I've separated that day as a time of rest—you will be punished. I will kindle a fire to these very gates that cannot be quenched, and all Jerusalem will burn—even her palaces."

18 The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Now God's message comes through another prophetic drama played out in a potter's shop somewhere in the city. The prophet sees an ordinary event but receives an extraordinary message.

Eternal One: 2Go down to the potter's shop in the city, and wait for My word.

3So I went down to the potter's shop and found him making something on his wheel. 4And as I watched, the clay vessel in his hands became flawed and unusable. So the potter started again with the same clay. He crushed and squeezed and shaped it into another vessel that was to his liking. 5In that moment, I heard again God's word for His rebellious people.

Eternal One: 6O people of Israel, can I not do the same to you as this potter has done? You are like clay in My hands—I will mold you as I see fit. 7If I declare that I am going to uproot, stamp out, or destroy a nation or kingdom because of its wicked ways, and 8then that same nation I warned turns away from its evil, then I will change My plans. In My compassion, I will not destroy it. 9If at some other time I declare that I am going to build up and establish a nation, 10but then it ignores My voice, thus committing evil right in front of Me, I will hold back the good I had planned for them.

(to Jeremiah) 11Now, prophet, say to the people of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem these words from the Eternal: "Look! I am planning and shaping disaster against you. Like clay on a wheel, I will shape you and your destiny. Turn back from your evil ways—all of you—before it is too late. Do what is right and good." 12But they will tell you, "It's no use trying to persuade us. We have our own thoughts about how we should live, and each of us is firmly committed to our own way, evil or not."

13Who has heard of such betrayal as this? Ask the nations around you.
Even they won't believe this dreadful thing the virgin Israel has done to Me.
14Does the snow ever melt on the peaks of Lebanon's mountains?

* 17:22 Exodus 20:8

Does the cool water of those mountain streams ever run
dry?*
15They have forgotten Me. Instead,
My people offer incense to worthless gods,
worshiping them as though they are real.
They have lost their way, stumbling from the ancient path of
blessing.
Now they walk in the ruts of rebellion instead of taking
the high road of obedience.
16*Because of their forgetfulness,* their homeland will become a
wasteland;
those who pass by will hiss and
whistle;
Disturbed at the sight of this eerie
desolation,
they will shake their heads in
horror.
17As the strong east wind off the desert
scatters the dust,
so I will scatter My people
before their enemies.
Just as they turned from Me, now I will turn from them.
I will not even look their way on the day of their disaster.

► The strong words of Jeremiah and the warnings from God are difficult to hear. But it seems when evil is entrenched in a life, when people stubbornly persist in their wicked ways, such words are not just difficult, they are infuriating. The people of Judah now conspire again to silence this outspoken prophet.

People of Judah (to one another): 18Come on. Let's devise a plan against Jeremiah, for there is no way the teaching of our priests, the wisdom of our elders, or the words of our prophets are going to be lost and proven wrong. Do we really need to hear any more from him? Let's attack his reputation, ruin his standing among us, and ignore everything he has to say.

Jeremiah: 19O Eternal my God, please listen to me.
Do You hear what my enemies
are saying?
20Should good be repaid with such
evil?
They have set a trap for me.
Remember how I stood before You
in prayer,
begging You to do them good, Pleading for You to turn Your anger
away from them,
and this is how they repay me!
21Well then. Let their children starve!
Let their young warriors fall in battle!
Let their wives become childless
widows!
Let their husbands be struck down and killed
and their young men die in battle!
22Let them scream from their houses
when You suddenly release the attackers on them.
Why? Because they have set a trap
for me;
they have hidden snares along
the way to trip me up.
23Yet, You knew this already, Eternal.
You know of their plans to kill me.
That's why I am asking You not to forgive them,
not to forget their sins or erase
their crimes from Your sight.
Let them be overthrown and killed
before Your eyes.
Deal with them while Your anger is still hot.

19 Eternal One (to Jeremiah): Go again to a potter, but this time buy a clay jar from him. Then invite some community leaders and some of the head priests to walk with you. 2Take them out of the city through the potsherd gate into the valley of Ben-hinnom, where the city dumps its trash. Once you're there, cry out for all to hear the words I will give you. 3Start out saying, "Hear the word of the Eternal, O kings of Judah and citizens of Jerusalem! This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has to say."

► Jeremiah now performs yet another symbolic act. The prophet's words and sermons are sometimes forgettable;

* 18:14 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

but people cannot forget what they see, hear, smell, and taste. The message registers loud and clear. Standing with community and religious leaders amid the broken pottery shards (that's what "potsherd" means), God has a strong word for these people. The time of being shaped and re-formed on the potter's wheel has passed. Like the clay jar Jeremiah is holding, the people's hearts are hardened. A more drastic measure will now be taken. It is no coincidence that God leads them to stand in this valley of refuse—this place sometimes called Topheth. It is where the horrors of human sacrifice occurred. It is where God's vengeance would be remembered.

Eternal One: Tell the leaders, I am certainly bringing on this city a dreadful disaster that will echo in the ears of those who hear about it. 4*Why is this happening?* Because the people have abandoned Me and defiled this place where you now stand by making sacrifices to foreign gods. They have burned offerings to other gods—idols never before worshiped by My people, their ancestors, or all the kings of Judah. The blood of innocent people has been spilled in this valley—human sacrifices in the shadow of Jerusalem. 5They have built high places and altars to Baal where they have sacrificed their own children as burnt offerings to this dark and pagan god. How could this be My people? I never taught them to do such unspeakable evil. It never even crossed My mind. 6So beware: The days are soon coming when this place will not be known as Topheth or even the valley of Ben-hinnom. Soon it will be called the valley of Slaughter. 7I will spoil the plans of Judah and Jerusalem to defend this city against Babylon. I will cause their people to be killed by enemies in battle and by those who hunt them down to take their lives. No one will bury them; I will feed their dead bodies to the birds of the air and the wild beasts of the land. 8I will destroy this city, making their homeland a wasteland, a place of scorn. Those who pass by and see this desolation will shake their heads in horror. 9As the enemy lays siege to the city and closes in around them, food will run out and those inside the city walls will become desperate. Then they will turn on each other, eating one another and even their own children to stay alive.

10At this point, Jeremiah, smash the clay jar in front of your companions, 11and say to those leaders, "This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has to say: 'Take a good look at this shattered jar! Is there any hope of these fragments being pieced together again? So, too, will you be without hope of repair when I smash this nation and this city. Topheth will be used as a burial site until there is no room. 12Then I will make Jerusalem and all its citizens as unclean as Topheth itself. 13As for the houses of Jerusalem and the palaces of the kings of Judah, they will be defiled like the wasteland of Topheth because people have done shameful things on their rooftops—burning sacrifices to the starry hosts and pouring drink offerings to other gods in My city!'"

14Jeremiah returned to the city from Topheth where the Eternal sent him to deliver this disturbing message. He stood in the court of the Eternal's temple and proclaimed the same sermon to all its citizens who came there to worship.

Jeremiah: 15This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has to say: "Watch as I bring every disaster I have promised onto Jerusalem and all the towns and villages of Judah, because they are a stiff-necked, stubborn people who refuse to listen to what I say."

► The people take these words and actions seriously because they understand something about the power of words and actions. In other words, Jeremiah isn't just acting out another object lesson for the people; this is God's declaration that the time has truly come for judgment to begin. God's words, when spoken by His prophet, create this new reality. When the clay cannot be reworked, more drastic measures are taken. Judah will now be broken.

20 When the priest Pashhur (son of Immer, chief officer of the temple guard) heard what Jeremiah was prophesying, 2he had the prophet beaten and put in the stocks* at the upper Benjamin gate near the temple,
*a place where everyone in the city could see
this painful and embarrassing spectacle.*
3The next morning, Pashhur released him from the stocks, hoping Jeremiah had learned his lesson. Instead, this is what he heard from the prophet:

Jeremiah: The Eternal no longer knows you by the name Pashhur. He has renamed you Magor-missabib, which means "terror on every side." 4And these are the words the Eternal has spoken of you: "Certainly I am going to make you a symbol of terror—to yourself and to all your loved ones. You will see those close to you die in battle against the enemy.
I will give all of Judah over to the king of Babylon, who will make them either casualties of war or prisoners of war.
5I will also give the wealth of Jerusalem over as plunder to this enemy. The resources and treasures of this city and Judah's kings will be taken and carted off to Babylon. 6And you Pashhur, along with your entire household, will be taken to Babylon and become exiles. You and your friends who have heard your lies will never see home again; you will all die
in exile in Babylon and be buried there."

7O Eternal, You deceived me into being Your prophet,
and I went along and allowed it
to happen!
Your strength is too much for me,
and so You win; *I speak Your
words.*
Just look at what I have become: a
laughingstock;
all day long people mock me.
8The only words coming out of my mouth
are loud cries of "Violence and
destruction!"
It is the Eternal's words—*Your
words*—
that bring me insults and jokes
all day long.
9But when I tell myself, I'll never mention Your name or speak for You again, it's no use.
The word of God burns in my heart;
it is like fire in my bones.
I try to hold it all in, but I cannot.
10I hear the crowds whispering
*behind my back and mocking
my prophecies*:
" 'Terror is everywhere we turn,'
he says. Let's report him for breaking some law."
Even my trusted friends are waiting for me to make a mistake:
"Maybe he will be deceived,
and then we'll win, take control,
and have our revenge on him."
11*But I am not alone.* The Eternal is here with me.
He stands beside me, as a dreaded warrior.
That is why my tormentors will fail
so miserably. They cannot win.
Their humiliation and permanent dishonor will be remembered for all time.
12Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, You test the righteous;
You see my deepest thoughts;
You know my heart.
Let me see Your vengeance exacted
against these people.
for I am trusting my cause, my future to You.
13Sing to the Eternal God!
Praise the Eternal *now for what
He will soon do.*
For a troubled soul is snatched from the hands of the wicked.

14Cursed be the day I was born—cursed, not blessed is the day my mother gave birth to me.
15Cursed be the man who told my overjoyed father,
"You have a son."
16May he be as cursed as the towns of Sodom and Gomorrah,
which the Eternal decimated
without a care.
Let him hear cries for help in the morning.
Let him recoil at the shouts of war at noon, 17For he did not kill me before I was born
so my mother's womb would become my grave—
my mother's womb forever
enlarged.

* 20:2 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

How wild and raw are the emotions of Jeremiah in these days of anticipation! The pain and embarrassment of being publicly punished, the betrayal of his friends, and the ridicule of so many lead to an honest longing for vindication. But there are moments when God's sustaining love fills the prophet with joy. His are not the rants of a madman. He expects to be vindicated. God has called him to speak truth to powerful people, and those words are becoming reality. To this promise, Jeremiah clings.

But as emotions often do, this sense of resolve again evaporates, leaving the painful awareness of his calling. He must continue to speak hard and frightening words to a people he still loves. He will soon witness the destruction of a country and city he still loves. At times, his task is almost unbearable; but as always, Jeremiah remains honest in his dealings with God who calls him into this role. Sometimes, pouring his heart out is all he can do.

18 Why was I ever born? To watch such tragedy?
To feel such sorrow? To live my days in utter shame?

21 It was during this ironic turn of events that the word of the Eternal came again to the prophet, Jeremiah. King Zedekiah sent Pashhur (not the son of Immer mentioned previously, but the son of Malchijah) and the priest Zephaniah (son of Maaseiah) to speak with Jeremiah.

► How time changes things! Jeremiah, the rejected prophet, is now being petitioned by those in power. The same man who has been arrested and abused for prophesying God's judgment is sent a request from the king himself because the words of Jeremiah are indeed coming true before the people's eyes. Jerusalem now faces certain siege by the Babylonian king. Out of desperation, the same leaders who tried to silence the prophet are now asking him to speak up for them—to God!

King's Messengers: 2 Please speak to the Eternal on our behalf. We desperately need your help because Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, is attacking Judah and is about to lay siege to Jerusalem. Perhaps the Eternal will respond to you, perform a miracle, and cause this dreaded king to withdraw his forces and leave us alone.

Jeremiah: 3 Tell King Zedekiah that 4 this is what the Eternal, the God of Israel, has to say: "I will indeed rise up and turn back the weapons of war you hold in your hands, the very weapons you plan to use against the approaching enemy—the king of Babylon and his army from Chaldea that now surrounds your city walls. I will bring that enemy inside your walls, into the city itself. 5 With My strong hand and powerful arm I will rise up and fight against you, fueled by My great wrath, anger, and fury. Do you think I will fight beside you? You misunderstand. 6 I will strike those who live in this city with a plague: both man and beast will die. 7 After that," says the Eternal, "I will hand over King Zedekiah of Judah, his advisors, and the citizens of Jerusalem who survive the plague, the war, and the famine to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, their enemy, and those who seek their lives. In that dreadful day, he will slaughter them without mercy. He* will neither pity nor have compassion for them.

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 8 Tell the people that I said, "I will give you the choice of life or death. 9 Stay in the city, and you will die by war, famine, or plague. But walk outside the city walls and surrender to the Chaldean army about to lay siege to your city, and you will live. You will be prisoners of war, but you'll be rewarded with life. 10 For I have turned My back on this city, purposing evil instead of good. The city will be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon, who will burn it to the ground."

* 21:7 Greek manuscripts read, "I."

11To the royal household of Judah say,
"Hear the word of the Eternal. 12O house
of David, this is what He has to say to you:

Administer justice each morning;
save the victim from the hand of the thief.
If you do not, My anger will burn and no one will be able to put it out
because they themselves have done evil.
13I am against you, Jerusalem,
enthroned high above the
valley,
O rock of the plain,
You who boast, "Who will come down to fight against us,
and who will enter our homes?" 14I will visit you, Jerusalem, and punish you for your wicked deeds.
I will start a fire in your forests that will surround you and consume everything.

So says the Eternal.

22 Eternal One *(to Jeremiah): Go down to the palace of the king of Judah and say to him, 2"Hear the word of the Eternal. Listen, O king of Judah, who sits on David's throne. Listen, you advisors of the king. Listen, you people who walk through these city gates. 3This is what the Eternal has to say: 'Do what is just and right. Rescue those poor ones being robbed by the extortionists. Protect the outsiders, orphans, and widows in your land from any oppression, for they have no one. Stop the violence and the shedding of innocent blood in this place. 4If you do what I say, there will always be a king on the throne in Jerusalem. The descendants of David will ride through these gates leading a great processional of chariots and horses, of advisors and subjects. 5But if you refuse My words of warning, I swear by My name and all that I am that this palace of yours will be laid to waste.'"

6This is what the Eternal says concerning the king of Judah and his household.

Eternal One: You are as precious to Me
as the lush forests of Gilead;
you are like the cedars on the summit of Lebanon.
But I swear I will make you into a wilderness—stripped of trees— with cities that lie empty and
lifeless.
7I will unleash destroyers against
you—
ruthless men with fearful
weapons.
They will cut down your best trees
and throw them on the fire.

8When other nations pass by the ruins of Jerusalem, they will ask each other, "Why did the Eternal destroy this great city?" 9The answer they will hear is the one you already know: "Because these people violated the covenant they had made with the Eternal their God by worshiping and serving other gods."

10Do not cry for the one who is dead; do not mourn for him.
Cry instead for the living one going into exile
For he will not come back again,
he will never see his home again.

11This is a word of the Eternal for Shallum (son of Josiah), who succeeded his father as king of Judah and went from this place into exile:

Eternal One: He will never return, 12and he will die in that land of captivity, never to see this place again.

13Woe to the one* who builds his palace on the proceeds of unrighteousness,
who adds upper rooms on the
gains of injustice,
Who forces his own people to labor
for nothing,
who refuses to pay them for all their hard work.
14He thinks to himself, "I will build a huge palace
with a large second story and many windows.
I will panel the walls with the best cedar and paint it red to impress
everyone."
15Do you become king because you have more cedar than
another?
Your father, so different from you,
had plenty to eat, plenty to
drink.

* 22:13 A reference to Jehoiakim

Didn't he live his life as a righteous and fair man?
And look how well he did.
16He stood up for the poor and needy;
then things went well for him
and the people.
Isn't this what it means to know Me?
17But you are so different: your eyes are focused and your heart is set on one goal: deceitful personal gain.
You make the innocent pay with their blood;
you violently oppress them and
take what is not yours.

18So this is what the Eternal says regarding Jehoiakim (son of Josiah),
king of Judah:

Eternal One: Upon his death, no one in his family will weep and say,
"Oh my brother, oh my sister—
our loved one is gone."
Nor will any of his subjects weep
and say,
"Our leader is gone; our great king is gone."
19*No,* he will be buried like a dead donkey—his body dragged
away
and dumped outside Jerusalem's gates in the trash heap.

(to Jerusalem) 20Go to the mountains
of Lebanon and cry out.
Run to Bashan and the peaks of Abarim, and cry out loudly
Because all of your lovers have been destroyed.
21I warned you when things were going well,
but you said to Me, "I will not
listen."
You have treated Me this way since
the days of your youth;
you have never listened to My voice.
22All your shepherds will be driven away by the wind,
and your lovers will be led into
captivity.
In that moment, you will be covered with shame,
humiliated because of your evil
ways.
23You who live in Lebanon, safe and nestled among the
cedars—
How you will cry in anguish when the judgment comes,
like the anguish and pain of a woman giving birth.

24As surely as I live, I declare the following about Coniah (son of Jehoiakim), king of Judah: Even though you were a signet ring on My right hand, I have torn you away. 25I will drop you into the hands of those who want you dead, those you fear—Nebuchadnezzar (king of Babylon) and his Chaldean army. 26I will cast you and your mother into another country, where you were not born. It will be there, in that foreign land, where you will die. 27Though they will long to come back to this land you call home, they will never return.

28Is this man, Coniah, a broken and worthless pot?
Is he like something tossed on the garbage heap that no one wants?
Why are he and his children being thrown out—
no, hurled out into a foreign land?
29O land, land, land!
You must hear the word of the Eternal!

Eternal One: 30Write in the record that this man is childless and
disgraced.
As long as he lives, none of his children will succeed him
And sit on the throne of David and rule over Judah again.

23 Eternal One: Woe to the shepherds who slaughter and scatter the sheep of My pasture!
2This is what I, the Eternal God of Israel, have to say about the shepherds tending My people:

You have scattered My flock, driven them far away, and failed miserably at being their caregivers. So look! I will punish you for your negligence, for the careless evil you've done. 3I will personally gather the remnant of My sheep from the lands where I have driven them. I will bring them back to their home pasture where they will be fruitful and multiply. 4I will appoint new, responsible shepherds to take care of them, and My sheep will no longer have to be afraid. These new, responsible shepherds will make sure that none of My sheep go missing.

The shepherd-leaders and shepherd-teachers of God's people have misled them, and the results have been disastrous. Now God intervenes. God Himself, personally, gathers His exiles from wherever He scattered them and places them under the guidance and tutelage of new shepherds, responsible leaders who will bring them home once again safe and secure. As if that is not enough, God will fulfill the covenant He made with King David hundreds of years earlier and establish a righteous branch of David to reign from Jerusalem. This king will be everything the earlier kings of Judah were not: just, fair, and wise. The restoration of God's exiles and the installation of this new king—God's anointed—will be so glorious, so momentous that it will change the course of history. It will surpass God's rescue of the Hebrew slaves from Egypt.

Jeremiah's prophecy of this coming king inspires many to look and long for God's Anointed One, His Messiah, from among the sons of David. Indeed, some of the earliest followers of Jesus will find in Him the fulfillment of these hopes, dreams, and aspirations.

5Watch! The days are coming when I will raise up a righteous Branch of David—an heir of his royal line—who will rule justly, act wisely and make things right again in the land. 6During His reign, Judah will be redeemed and Israel will be a safe place again. The name he is called will tell the story: The Eternal Is Our Righteousness!
7So be ready and watch carefully.
The days are coming when no one will say any longer, "As the Eternal lives, who brought the people of Israel out of slavery in the land of Egypt." 8Instead,
they will say, "As the Eternal lives, who brought the people of Israel out of exile
in the lands of the north and out of all other countries where He had scattered them." Then the Israelites will live securely in their own land.

9As for the false prophets:
Deep in my chest, my heart is broken.
I am shaken to the core, like a man who is drunk,
overcome by too much wine
All because of the Eternal,
all because of His holy words.

Eternal One: 10The land is full of adulterers;
surely the curse is in effect and the land mourns.
The pastures in the wilderness are
all dried up,
for they have set an evil course,
and their might is not right.
11For even the prophets and priests
are ungodly;
I have witnessed them perform
wicked acts in My temple.

12Now this path they are on will become treacherous, and they will slip and slide;
they will stumble and fall into the darkness, driven into the gloom.
For in the year of their punishment,
I will bring them to ruin.

13I saw something repulsive
among the prophets of Samaria:
They prophesied in the name of Baal
and led My people, Israel, away
from Me.
14I have seen something horrible
among the prophets of Jerusalem:
worship that is adulterous and deceitful.
They inspire and encourage people
to even more evil;
now no one turns back from
his sin.
The citizens of Jerusalem remind Me of the wicked people who once lived in Sodom and Gomorrah.

15So this is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has to say about those prophets:

Eternal One: Watch, I will give them bitter food to eat and poisoned water to drink,
because the prophets of Jerusalem have released their ungodliness
And it has spread into all the land.

16These are the words of the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies.

Eternal One: When these prophets "prophesy" to you, filling you with empty hopes, do not listen to one word! They do not speak for Me. They speak of visions they have only imagined. 17They keep saying to those who openly reject My word, "Don't worry, the Eternal has promised you peace." And to those stubborn souls who go their own way, they say, "Don't worry, nothing bad will happen to you."

18Which one of these false prophets has stood in the presence of the Eternal and heard His voice or seen His plan?
Who of them has paid attention to His word and truly listened?
19Behold, the storm of the Eternal's wrath
will now break open,
swirling down out of the sky like a whirlwind onto the heads of the
wicked.
20The Eternal's anger will not relent until He has carried out His most fervent plans.
You will understand all of this in the days to come.

Eternal One: 21I did not send these so-called prophets,
but they have run to you with their empty words.
I did not speak to them,
but they claim to speak for Me.
22If only they had stood in My presence and heard My voice,
then they would have spoken
My words to My people!
They would have turned this nation
back from its evil ways and evil deeds.

23Am I only a God who is close by,
and not a God of the farthest reaches?
24*Am I a God* anyone can hide from?
Do I not see what happens in secret?
Am I not everywhere, filling heaven and earth? 25I have heard these prophets who speak lies in My name. They say, "I had a dream, I had a dream," and claim it was Me speaking to them! 26How long will this go on? Will the hearts of these lying prophets ever change? How long will they deceive themselves and all who listen to them? 27They think they can make My people forget My name with all this talk of dreams—just as their ancestors forgot My name as they worshiped Baal.
28If a prophet has a dream, he should tell others of that dream. But the one who has My word should speak it with unshakable faith. For what is straw worth, when compared to grain? 29Does not My word burn like fire? Does it not shatter rock like a strong hammer? 30Look, this is why I oppose the prophets who steal My word from others and offer it as their own.
31I oppose the prophets whose tongues
"declare" something, as if I, the Eternal,
have declared it. 32I oppose the prophets who prophesy with lying dreams. They lead My people astray with their reckless lies. But I did not send these prophets or direct them to speak in My name, so they are of no use to My people.

This is what the Eternal declares.

► Prophets stretch the meanings of words in order to instruct and challenge their audiences. Although it's difficult to appreciate in translation, in the following passage Jeremiah uses an important Hebrew word that has a double meaning. It means "message," as in the message from God that he is about to declare, but it also means "burden"; therefore, the "message" he receives from God—the "message" he must now declare—is a "burden" both to hear and deliver. As the message goes out of Jeremiah, others use this word to ridicule him and minimize what God is saying. In this passage, God makes it quite clear what He thinks of these mocking and sinful people.

Eternal One (to Jeremiah): 33When someone, some prophet or some priest, asks, "What is the message the Eternal burdened you with today, Jeremiah?" Simply answer, "[You are the burden, and]* the Eternal declares, 'I will cast you aside.'" 34If a prophet or priest or any of these people claim, "This is the burden of the Eternal," let them be warned, I will punish that person and his family.

(to the people) 35*Instead of making light of My declarations, from now on* you should say to your friends and family, "What is the Eternal's answer to you?" or

* 23:33 Hebrew manuscripts read, "What burden?"

"What is the Eternal saying to us?" [36]Do not use the phrase "the burden of the Eternal" again. It means nothing to you. All people say they have a message from Me when they don't. You are twisting the words of the living God, our God, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies. [37]You should say to the prophet, "What answer is the Eternal giving to you?" or "What is the Eternal saying to us?" [38]But if you keep saying, "This is the burden of the Eternal," expect Me to declare this: "You continued to use the phrase 'the burden of the Eternal,' even though I warned you not to use it. [39]That is why I will forget you and cast you out of My presence, both you and the city I gave you and your ancestors. [40]I will bring endless disgrace upon you—an enduring shame that no one will forget."

24 The day came when King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon took Jeconiah (son of Jehoiakim), king of Judah, into exile along with the princes of Judah and the artisans and skilled laborers from Jerusalem. Sometime after they arrived in Babylon, the Eternal showed me a vision: I looked and saw two baskets of figs placed in front of His temple. [2]One basket was filled with very good figs, freshly ripened, while the other was filled with very bad figs, too rotten to eat.

► In 597 B.C. the dreaded King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon has Jehoiachin, king of Judah, deported to Babylon. Along with the king, he takes many skilled laborers and craftsmen to help with the great building projects of his empire. While the loss of powerful and talented men is a tragedy, it will not be the end of Judah's troubles. The prevailing thought of those who remain in Jerusalem is that they have indeed avoided God's judgment while those in exile are being punished. This shortsighted perspective is corrected by a vision given to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: [3]Jeremiah, what do you see?

Jeremiah: Figs, both good and bad. The good ones are very good, but the bad ones are so rotten they cannot be eaten.

[4]At this, the word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: [5]This is what the Eternal God of Israel says: "These good figs are like those who have been taken into exile from Judah, the ones I have sent to Chaldea. [6]And even though they are in captivity, I will watch over them. I will look out for their good. And one day, I will bring them home. Then I will rebuild them and not tear them down; I will plant them anew and not uproot them. [7]I will give them a new, intense desire to know Me because I am the Eternal One. They will be My people, and I will be their God because they will return to Me completely.

[8]"But the bad figs that are so rotten they cannot be eaten are like King Zedekiah of Judah, his leaders, and the citizens of Jerusalem—those who are left behind in Judah and those who escaped to Egypt. So I, the Eternal One, will deal with them like the rotten figs they are. [9]I will make them a horror to the watching world, a disgrace and a lesson for all to learn, an object of scorn and cursing wherever I scatter them. [10]I will send war, famine, and disease against them until they are completely destroyed in the very land I gave to them and their ancestors."

25 The word of God concerning all of Judah again came to Jeremiah when Jehoiakim (son of Josiah), king of Judah, had reigned for four years. Meanwhile, the dreaded Nebuchadnezzar was in his first year as king of Babylon. [2]During these ominous days the prophet Jeremiah spoke to the citizens of Jerusalem and the people of Judah.

Jeremiah: [3]I have been warning you since the word of the Eternal started coming to me in the 13th year of King Josiah (son of Amon), ruler of Judah. For these last 23 years, I have been telling you again and again what was coming, but you never listened. [4]It wasn't just me whom the Eternal sent. He sent you His servants, the prophets, again and again, but you never paid attention to them. You never listened as [5]they said, "Turn back from your evil ways and actions so you can live forever in this land the Eternal gave to you and your ancestors. [6]I will not harm you if you do not chase after other gods to serve and worship them or provoke Me to anger with the little idols your hands have made."

Eternal One: [7]But you did not listen to Me or My prophets! Now I, the Eternal One, declare that you have stirred up My anger with the little idols your hands have made, and you have brought this harm upon yourselves. [8]Therefore, I, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, declare that since you have not heard or obeyed My words, [9]I am about to summon the clans of the north along with King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon who serves Me. I will use them to punish this land and those of you who live in it. I will also use them against all the surrounding nations of Judah. I will destroy them completely, making them a place of horror, an object of scorn, a land of everlasting ruin. [10]I will silence any hint of laughter and joy, the sweet words of the bride and bridegroom at a wedding, the milling of grain and the lighting of a lamp. [11]It will all end, and this place will be a horrific wasteland. And these nations will serve the king of Babylon for 70 years.

► The judgment of God is drawing near. Although Babylon is His instrument of judgment, this empire is not immune to His justice; she, too, will answer to God for her brutal treatment of God's people. And so the focus of the prophecy shifts from Judah's pain to the destruction of this now-emerging world power.

Eternal One *(to Babylon): [12]When the 70 years of servitude are complete, I will then punish the king of Babylon, his people, and the land of Chaldea for their guilt. I, the Eternal, will make it a land of everlasting ruin. [13]All that I warned would happen to that land—all that Jeremiah prophesied against all the nations and is now written in this book—I will do. [14]For the mighty Babylonians will be turned into slaves for many nations and powerful kings; I will repay them according to what they have done and how they have treated My people.

[15]This is what the Eternal God of Israel said to me.

Eternal One: Take this cup from My hand and offer it to every nation where I send you. Make them drink deeply from it, for the cup is brimming with My anger. [16]When they drink, they will stumble and lose their minds because I am sending the sword against them.

[17]So I took the cup from the Eternal's hand and did just as He said—I went to the nations where He sent me and made them drink it: [18]Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, her kings and leaders drank from the cup and became a wasteland, an object of hissing, scorn, and cursing, a land of ruin; [19]then Pharaoh (king of Egypt), his advisors, his officers, and the entire nation, [20]including the foreigners living there; all the kings of the land of Uz, and all the Philistine kings in the cities of Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and what was left of Ashdod; [21]Edom, Moab, and the Ammonites; [22]all the kings of Tyre, Sidon, and the other coastlands across the sea; [23]Dedan, Tema, Buz, and the nations who clip the corners of their hair; [24]all the kings of Arabia, the kings of the various desert nomadic tribes; [25]all the kings of Zimri, Elam, and Media; [26]all the kings of the north, both near and far. I went from one kingdom to another until every one of them on the face of the earth had drunk it. And then finally, the king of Sheshach[, that is, Babylon,]* will drink from this cup.

[27]Then He told me what to say to each of these nations and rulers.

Eternal One: This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says: "Drink until you are drunk enough to vomit; stagger and fall to the ground, and rise no more because I am sending the sword against you." [28]If they refuse to drink from the cup you offer to them, tell them, "This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, says: 'You must drink it! [29]Do you think I will bring disaster to the city that is named after Me, but let you escape? You will not go unpunished, for I am summoning a sword of judgment against all who live on the earth.'"

So declares the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies.

* 25:26 Most manuscripts omit this portion. Compare to 51:41.

Eternal One: 30*Jeremiah,* now prophesy against the nations. Speak to them these words:

The Eternal roars from on high;
from His holy place above, His voice thunders.
Like a lion, He will roar against His
land
and shout, like those who tread
the grapes,
against those living on the earth.
31The uproar will echo to ends of the
earth
because the Eternal brings His charge against the nations.
He will judge all humanity and punish the wicked in battle.

So says the Eternal.
32This is what the Eternal, Commander
of heavenly armies, has to say:

Eternal One: Look what is happening!
Disaster is spreading *across the
earth,*
From nation to nation;
a mighty storm is gathering
from the ends of the earth!

Coming in the wake of that fateful storm, the death and destruction are unimaginable.

33Those killed by the Eternal in that day will blanket the earth from one end to the other. So great is their number that no one will gather the dead and bury them. No one will be there to mourn them. They will lie like dung upon the face of the earth.

34Cry out, you shepherds, and weep;
wallow in the dust—roll in ashes,
you leaders of the flock.
For the time has come for you to be slaughtered and scattered abroad.
You will fall and shatter like a treasured vessel.
35As for the shepherds, they will have nowhere to hide;
as for the leaders, they will not escape My punishment.
36Listen to the sound—the cry of the shepherds,
the wailing of the leaders of the flock!
The Eternal is ruining their pleasant
pastures.
37Their peaceful meadows are now
deathly silent,
for the fierce anger of the Eternal has blown through.
38Like a lion leaving his lair, so He has left His,
for their land has become a horror—
Kindled by the enemy's hot anger and the burning fury of the Eternal.

26 The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah not long after Jehoiakim (son of Josiah) began his reign as king of Judah.

Eternal One: 2Stand in the court of My temple, and speak to the crowds who have come to worship from all the towns of Judah. Give them all of My words, Jeremiah; don't leave out a single
one. 3Maybe they will listen this time,
and each one of them will stop the evil
actions and return to My path. Then I, too, will stop the impending disaster I have planned for them because of all the evil things they do. 4Tell them what the Eternal says: "If you will not listen to Me or obey My law that I have already given you, 5and if you will not listen to what My servants the prophets have to say even after I've sent them to you again and again, 6then I will deal with this temple as I did Shiloh. But this time I will also make this very city a curse for all the nations of the earth."

7The priests and the so-called prophets and the crowds heard the message Jeremiah delivered in the temple of the Eternal. 8As soon as Jeremiah finished saying all the Eternal directed him to say, the priests, the prophets, and those who stopped to listen grabbed him and began to shout.

Temple Audience: You deserve to die!
9Why have you uttered such prophecies
in the name of the Eternal declaring that this temple will be destroyed like Shiloh
and Jerusalem will be empty and lifeless?

Jeremiah has a lot of nerve. To speak against Jerusalem and the temple—God's holy place on earth—is tantamount to blasphemy, and blasphemers deserve death.

At this point, a large mob of people gathered around Jeremiah in the Eternal's temple.

10When some officials of Judah heard what was happening, they left the palace and hurried to take their seats at the entryway of the new gate leading to the Eternal's temple. 11The priests and so-called prophets brought charges against Jeremiah to these officials as the crowd looked on.

Priests and Prophets: This man should be sentenced to death! You heard with your own ears how he prophesied against our city.

Jeremiah (to the officials and the crowd): 12The Eternal sent me to prophesy against the temple and this city—every word you heard came from Him. 13If you stop your evil actions and obey the Eternal your God, then He will stop the impending disaster He has planned for you. 14As for me, my fate is in your hands. Do with me what you think is right and fair. 15But know this: if you execute me, innocent blood will be on your hands and on this city and on all who live here, because the Eternal truly did send me to speak each and every word you heard.

Officials and the Crowd (to the priests and prophets): 16This man should not be sentenced to death because he has spoken to us in the name of the Eternal our God.

17*At this point,* some of the elders, who were leaders of other communities, stood and supported the verdict, speaking to the entire crowd.

Elders: 18*Remember* the prophet Micah of Moresheth in the days of King Hezekiah of Judah. It was he who said to the people of Judah, "This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has to say:

> Zion will be plowed under like a field,
> Jerusalem will be left in ruins,
> And the hill on which the temple stands
> will be overgrown with a forest."*

19*As difficult as those words were to hear,* did King Hezekiah or anyone else in Judah demand Micah's death? No, he humbly worshiped the Eternal and asked for mercy, and what happened then? The Eternal stopped the impending disaster he had planned for them and turned back the Assyrian army. Now it is our turn to listen to the prophet of God, but instead, we are about to bring this terrible disaster upon ourselves by ignoring Him again!

20Uriah (son of Shemaiah) from Kiriath-jearim had prophesied in the name of the Eternal with essentially the same message as Jeremiah against this city and nation. 21When King Jehoiakim, his soldiers, and his officials heard what Uriah had been saying, they decided to kill him. When Uriah became aware of these plans, he was afraid and escaped to Egypt. 22Then King Jehoiakim sent Elnathan (son of Achbor) to Egypt along with others to bring Uriah back. 23*Once they found him,* they brought him back from Egypt and took him to King Jehoiakim, who had him executed by a sword and then buried in a commoner's grave.

24Ahikam (son of Shaphan) used his influence to help Jeremiah. As a result, the prophet was not handed over to the people to be put to death.

27 Early in the reign of Zedekiah (son of Josiah), king of Judah, the word from the Eternal came to Jeremiah. 2This is what He said to me.

Eternal One: Make a yoke out of leather straps and wooden bars, and place it upon your neck as you would upon an ox. 3Then send word to the kings of Edom, Moab, Ammon, Tyre, and Sidon through the royal envoys they sent to Jerusalem to King Zedekiah of Judah. 4*Intercept them, and* give them a message for their masters: "This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says to your masters: 5'By My great power and with My outstretched arm, I made the earth, along with all the people and animals that live on it. I am the ruler of all creation, and I give it to anyone I choose. 6*Watch* now, as I have given all these lands over to Nebuchadnezzar (king of Babylon), who does My bidding. I will make even the wild animals serve him. 7All the nations will serve him, his son, and his grandson until that empire's

* 26:18 Micah 3:12

The next three chapters are a collection of stories and prophetic sayings from the reign of King Zedekiah of Judah, who suffers from the same weaknesses and mistakes as his predecessors. These are challenging times for Judah: Jerusalem has already been invaded once by Nebuchadnezzar. It was then that the previous king was deported, along with thousands of necessary leaders, to Babylon. The people long for freedom from this empire and yearn for the day when the exiles will return home. But this new king, Zedekiah, does not lead his people back to God as they live through this time of judgment. Rather, he listens to false prophets and is eventually convinced by the surrounding nations to join a coalition that will attempt to revolt against Nebuchadnezzar. This mistake will lead to the siege of Jerusalem in 587 B.C. and to the destruction of the city itself in 586 B.C. During these restless years leading up to that revolt, Jeremiah continues to take the unpopular side on this very public debate. Now that Babylon is a part of God's plan for Judah, it is critical for the king and his people not to revolt against the empire.

time is up. Only then will many nations and great kings rise up and make Babylon their slave. 8Any nation or kingdom that refuses to serve King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon or put its neck under his yoke will be punished with war, famine, and disease. I promise you I will destroy it,
and My weapon will be the conquering hand of Nebuchadnezzar himself. 9So do not listen to your false prophets, your fortunetellers, your dreamers, your mediums, or your sorcerers who tell you, "Do not worry, for you will never have to serve the king of Babylon." 10Their prophecies are lies that will only separate you from your lands, for I will take you far from your home—I will drive you out, and you will die there. 11However, any nation that will put its neck under the yoke of Babylon's king and serve him will remain in their land. I will allow them to live there and to farm the land.'"

So declares the Eternal.

12I delivered a similar message to King Zedekiah of Judah.

Jeremiah: Put your neck under the yoke of Babylon's king. Serve him and his people so you and your people can live!
13Why do you and your people insist on dying by war, famine, and disease? Do you not realize the Eternal has threatened any nation that refuses to serve the king of Babylon? 14So do not listen to the false prophets who tell you, "Do not worry, you will never serve the king of Babylon." Their prophecies are lies! 15The Eternal declares, "I did not send these prophets to you. They are telling lies in My name. Therefore, I will drive you out and you will die—you who believe these lies and the prophets who speak them
to you."

16(to the priests and people) This is what the Eternal says: "Do not listen to the prophets who are trying to reassure you by saying, 'It won't be long before the articles stolen from the temple will be brought back from Babylon.' They are lying to you! 17Do not listen to them.
Serve the king of Babylon, and you will survive. Why would you sacrifice this city because you won't listen? Why should it become a ruin to the destructive forces of your pride? 18If they are truly My prophets and have My word, let them pray to
the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, that what treasures are left in the temple and in the palace of Judah's king will stay in Jerusalem and not be taken to Babylon." 19-21For this is surely what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, declares about the bronze pillars of the temple, the bronze sea, the bronze stands, and all the other treasured
items King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon did not take from Jerusalem when he took Jeconiah (son of Jehoiakim), king of Judah, into exile away from Jerusalem and into Babylon, along with the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem: 22"They will all be carried away to Babylon and will stay there until the day I come for them. This is what I, the Eternal One, promise. But the day will come when I will bring all these treasures back and restore them to this place."

28 One day in the fifth month of the same year (this was early in the reign of King Zedekiah of Judah, the fourth year), a prophet from Gibeon named Hananiah (son of Azzur) contradicted me in front of the priests and all the people who had come to worship in the temple of the Eternal.

Hananiah: [2]This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says: "I will break the yoke Babylon's king has placed upon you. [3]Within two years, I will bring back the items King Nebuchadnezzar took from My temple and carried away to Babylon. [4]I will also bring back Jeconiah (son of Jehoiakim), king of Judah, and all the exiles from Judah taken with him to Babylon. This is what I, the Eternal One, declare: 'I will break the yoke that Babylon's king has placed upon you!' "

[5]Then Jeremiah the prophet addressed Hananiah the prophet in front of the priests and all the people who had come to worship in the temple of the Eternal.

Jeremiah: [6]May it be so! May the Eternal do just as you said. May He confirm that your prophecy is true by bringing back the items stolen from the temple. Better yet, may He bring all of the exiles home from Babylon.

[7]But now hear what I have to say to you and to all these people listening to us: [8]Long before either of us was here, in the days of old, there were prophets who spoke strong words against many nations and kingdoms. They, too, predicted war, famine, and disease; and they have been proven right. [9]Now, as for the prophet who prophecies peace, how are we to know whether he is a true prophet sent by the Eternal? Only when that prediction comes true.

[10]At this point, the prophet Hananiah grabbed the yoke from around Jeremiah's neck and broke it. [11]He then turned to the people and said:

Hananiah: This is what the Eternal says: "This is how I will break the yoke King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon forced you and all the nations to wear. I will remove it from your neck within two years."

And with that, the prophet Jeremiah walked away.

[12]Not long after Hananiah had broken the yoke off Jeremiah's neck, the word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: [13]Go to Hananiah and tell him, "This is what the Eternal says: 'You may have broken a wooden yoke, but now you will get a yoke of iron that you could never break.' [14]For this is what the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, declares: 'I have put an iron yoke on the necks of all these nations, and they will serve King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. Even the wild animals of the field will obey Him.' "

Jeremiah *(to Hananiah): [15]Listen, Hananiah! The Eternal has not sent you, but still the people of this nation have believed your lies. [16]So the Eternal now says this to you: "Pay attention. I am about to wipe you from the face of the earth. Because you have stirred up rebellion against Me with your words, you will die this year."

[17]Later that year, in the seventh month, Hananiah the prophet died.

29 The prophet Jeremiah wrote a letter from Jerusalem to the elders, priests, prophets, and all the rest who had been taken to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar. [2](This was after King Jeconiah of Judah and his mother had been taken into exile, along with servants of the court, officials of Judah and Jerusalem, and many of the craftsmen and artisans.)* [3]The letter was hand-carried by Elasah (son of Shaphan) and Gemariah (son of Hilkiah), whom Zedekiah king of Judah dispatched to Babylon on a diplomatic mission to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon.

Jeremiah's Letter: [4]This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says to those He exiled from Jerusalem to Babylon: [5]"Build houses—make homes for your families because you are not coming back to Judah anytime soon. Plant gardens, and eat the food you grow there. [6]Marry and have children; find wives for your sons, and give your daughters in marriage, so that they can have children. During these years of captivity, let your families grow and not die out. [7]Pursue the peace and welfare of the city where I sent you into exile. Pray to Me, the Eternal, for Babylon because if it has peace, you will live in peace."

These are indeed difficult days for Judah. In 598 B.C. her king was deported to Babylon along with thousands of Jerusalem's key citizens; their capture tore the nation apart. But God has not forgotten those in exile. It is during this period of separation that Jeremiah writes a letter to those who were taken to this foreign land.

For many reasons, relations between Judah's new king, Zedekiah, and the ruler of Babylon are strained; so messengers are sent back and forth in an effort of diplomacy. It is through these men that the prophet of God is able to communicate with those held captive in Babylon. Jeremiah's message to them is the same as to those remaining in Judah: do not revolt against Babylon, for this season of judgment will be longer than others are telling you. In the midst of the struggle, he calls those who are far from home to trust God and His timing. Unfortunately, such words are received no better by those in exile than by those who hear them in Judah.

8This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says to you: "Do not be fooled by the false prophets and fortune-tellers among you. Do not listen to dreamers or their interpretations of dreams, 9for I did not send them to you. They are prophesying lies in My name!" So says the Eternal. 10*If you want the truth,* this is what the Eternal has to say: "You will remain in Babylon for 70 years. When that time is over, I will come to you, and I will keep My promise of bringing you back home. 11For I know the plans I have for you," says the Eternal, "plans for peace, not evil, to give you a future and hope—never forget that. 12At that time, you will call out for Me, and I will hear. You will pray, and I will listen. 13You will look for Me intently, and you will find Me. 14*Yes,* I will be found by you," says the Eternal, "and I will restore your fortunes and gather you from all the nations where you've been scattered—all the places where I have driven you. I will bring you back to the land that is your rightful home."

15Now you might say, "The Eternal has raised up prophets here in Babylon who tell us other things." 16-17This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, has to say about the king who currently sits on David's throne and all those who remain in Jerusalem and were not taken into exile: "Watch, for I will send war, famine, and disease on them. I will make them like figs so rotten they cannot be eaten. 18I will pursue them with war, famine, and disease. I will make them a horror to the watching world, an object of cursing and terror, of scorn and blame wherever I scatter them 19because they have not listened to Me," says the Eternal. "They ignored the warnings I sent to them again and again through My servants, the prophets. And you who are in exile are no better, for you have not listened either." 20Therefore, hear now the word of the Eternal, all you who have been exiled from Jerusalem to Babylon. 21This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says about your so-called prophets, Ahab (son of Kolaiah) and Zedekiah (son of Maaseiah), who are telling lies in My name: "Watch, for I will hand them over to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, and he will execute them right in front of you. 22Even their names will be used as a curse by those in exile from Judah when they say, 'May the Eternal treat you like Zedekiah and Ahab who were burned alive by Babylon's king.' 23These men have engaged in disgraceful acts among My people Israel. They have committed adultery with their neighbors' wives and told lies in My name, prophesying when I never gave them a message. I know this because I am a witness to all they have done," so says the Eternal.

► Jeremiah's letter is not well received by those in exile. They choose instead to listen to the empty promises of false prophets. One such prophet, Shemaiah, becomes so angry with Jeremiah's correspondence that he writes back to the priest Zephaniah in Jerusalem. In this letter, he complains of Jeremiah's prediction of a long captivity and urges the priest to punish the prophet. Hopefully this embarrassment will silence him. While Zephaniah does not place Jeremiah in shackles, he does read Shemaiah's letter aloud to Jeremiah (and no doubt to others) in Jerusalem.

24Say this to Shemaiah the Nehelamite:

Jeremiah's Letter: 25This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says about you: "I know that you sent letters on your own authority to the people in Jerusalem, to the priests, and specifically to the priest Zephaniah (son of Maaseiah). In that letter to Zephaniah, you said, 26'The Eternal has appointed you as the priest in charge of the temple to replace Jehoiada. When a madman tries to speak like a prophet, you must take action by putting him in shackles and in the stocks.* 27So why haven't you put a stop to Jeremiah of Anathoth who poses among you as a prophet of God? 28He sent a letter to those of us in Babylon predicting that our exile will be a long one. He actually said we should settle in this place—building homes and planting gardens of food that we can enjoy for many years.'"

29When Zephaniah the priest received this letter, he read it to Jeremiah the prophet. 30It was then that a message came to Jeremiah from the Eternal concerning all of this.

Eternal One: 31Write back to all the exiles and tell them, "This is what the Eternal says about Shemaiah the Nehelamite: 'Because Shemaiah has acted like a prophet when I did not send him, and because he has misled you with lies, 32watch! I will now punish him and his descendants. None of his family will live here long enough to see the good I will do for My people in the coming years because his words stirred rebellion against Me,' so says the Eternal."

► The words of Jeremiah are often dark prophecies of destruction, for Judah willingly betrayed and disobeyed God. Clearly, a major aspect of his call is foreshadowing the coming judgment of God. But in the following oracles, Jeremiah delivers a strong message of hope to those in exile. The next three chapters are often called the "Book of Consolation." Tucked in the middle of vivid declarations of God's punishment of the unjust, these promises speak of hope and restoration. These, too, are part of the prophet's message.

30 The word of the Eternal again came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 2Write in a book all the words I, the Eternal, the God of Israel, have said to you. 3Look! the days are coming when I will restore the fortunes of My people—both Israel and Judah. I will bring them home to the land I gave their ancestors, and they will again possess it.

4So says the Eternal in a message about Israel and Judah.

Eternal One: 5A cry of fear is heard—
it is the sound of panic, not of peace.
6Ask and see for yourself:
can a man give birth to a child?
Then why do I see strong men clutching themselves,
their hands on their abdomens as if they are in labor?
Why has every face paled, looking sickly?
7*I will tell you why:*
for that great and awesome day is like no other.
It will be a time of suffering for Jacob's descendants;
still they will be rescued from it.

8For on that day of deliverance, declares the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, I will break Nebuchadnezzar's yoke off their necks and tear off their shackles; no longer will foreigners force them into slavery. 9Instead, they will serve the Eternal their God, and I will raise up a descendant of David their king to rule over them.

* 29:26 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

10So do not be afraid, O Jacob, My servant;
do not be troubled, O Israel.
For I, the Eternal One, promise to liberate you from that distant place,
to bring your children home from where they are in exile.
Jacob will return home to peace and quiet,
and no one will make him afraid,
11Because I am with you, and I will deliver you.
I will completely destroy all the nations where I have scattered you,
But I will not destroy you completely.
I will discipline you, but My discipline will be just.
I will not let you go unpunished.

12Your wound is incurable;
your shattered pieces are beyond repair.
13There is no one to plead your case—
no healing for your injury,
no relief for your affliction.
14All of those allies you loved have forgotten about you;
they care nothing about you.
For I have struck you as an enemy would
and punished you like the cruelest of foes.
Why? Because your sins abound and your evil actions are abundant and brazen.
15Why do you cry out over this wound,
this pain that won't go away?
I have done these things to you because your sins abound
and your wicked acts are abundant and brazen.
16But all those who devour you will be devoured.
Exile awaits each of your enemies.
Those who plunder you will be turned into plunder,
and all who prey upon you will be turned into prey.
17For I will make you well again and heal your wounds
I, the Eternal One, declare to you,
Because they have called you an outcast:
"Look, it is Zion, the one for whom no one cares."

18I, the Eternal, have this to say:
Look, I will bring back those from captivity.
I will show mercy to Jacob's tents and dwellings;
From the ruins I will rebuild Jerusalem,
and the palace will once again stand where it belongs.
19Songs of joy and gratitude will rise from the people.
I will bless My people and increase their numbers;
nothing will diminish them.
I will honor them in the presence of others;
no one will despise them.
20Their children will live as they did long ago,
their community will be established again before My watchful eyes,
And I will punish anyone who tries to harm them.
21The prince who leads them will come from among Jacob's descendants;
their ruler will be one of their own.
I will draw him near to Me, and he will delight to come close,
for he will devote himself to remain close by My side.
22*And as before,* you will be My people,
and I will be your God.

23Behold, the storm of the Eternal's wrath will now break open, swirling down out of the sky like a whirlwind onto the heads of the wicked.
24The Eternal's anger will not relent until He has carried out His most fervent plans.
You will understand all of this in the days to come.

31 1-3This is what the Eternal has to say:

Eternal One: There will come a time when I will be the God of all the clans and families of Israel, and they will be My people. This is what I, the Eternal One, declare to you:

My people who survived the sword found grace as they wandered in the wilderness;

When Israel went in search of rest,
I appeared to them from far away and said:
"I have loved you with an everlasting love—
out of faithfulness I have drawn you close.
4And so it shall be again, My virgin Israel;
I will build you up, and you will be rebuilt.
You will again take up the tambourine
and join with those who are dancing for joy.
5You will again plant vineyards on the hillsides of Samaria;
Your farmers will plant them,
and you will enjoy the fruit yourselves.
6The day will come when those who guard the land
will cry out from the hills of Ephraim,
'Get up! Let us go to Zion, dear Jerusalem, and worship the Eternal our God.'"

7Sing a song of joy for Jacob; shout for this greatest of nations.
Shout it out with praise in your hearts:
"O Eternal, save Your people—rescue the remnant of Israel." 8Watch now, as I bring them from the land to the north,
as I gather My people from the ends of the earth.
Look who is among those returning home: the blind and the lame, expectant mothers and even those giving birth—
All of these together in the multitude on its way home.
9*Listen,* as they come home weeping and repenting, praying for direction, pleading for mercy as I bring them back.
In that day I will lead them beside quiet streams of water and take them upon a straight path where they will not stumble.
Why? Because I am Israel's father, and Ephraim is My firstborn son.

10Listen to the word of the Eternal, you nations of the earth;
take this story to distant shores and make it known:
The One who scattered Israel will now gather His people and watch over His flock as a shepherd.
11For the Eternal has rescued Jacob and redeemed him from people who are too strong for him.
12The redeemed will return home and shout for joy from the top of Mount Zion;
they will shine with the sheer goodness of the Eternal—
The harvests of grain, wine, and oil; the healthy flocks and herds.
Their lives will be like a lush, well-watered garden.
From that day on, they will never know sorrow.

Eternal One: 13Young women will dance for joy;
young men will join them, old ones too.
For I will turn their mourning into joy.
I will comfort My people and replace their sorrow with gladness.
14From the overflow of sacrifices,
I will satisfy My priests;
All My people will feast on My goodness.

The people now cling to this promise as they struggle with exile. Jeremiah returns the focus to the heartbreak of a people being deported to a foreign land.

This is what the Eternal declares!

Eternal One: 15A voice rises from Ramah—
mourning and bitter weeping are heard day and night.
The voice is Rachel's; she's weeping for her children.
She will not be comforted,
for her children are no more.*

► The setting is Ramah, a village a few miles north of Jerusalem, where exiles are assembled before the long march

* 31:15 Matthew 2:18

to Babylon. Later the prophet himself will spend time in this refugee camp awaiting his own exile (40:1). For now, he paints the picture of Rachel, one of the matriarchs of this nation, weeping for her children as they head off into captivity.

16But listen to what the Eternal says:

Eternal One: Do not weep, Rachel— wipe the tears from your eyes—
for I promise I will reward you for what you have done.
Your children will return from this exile;
they will come back home from this enemy land.
17There is hope for your future, I promise.
Your children will come home to their own land.
18I have heard the cries of Ephraim, groaning, "You have disciplined me.
I was like an unruly calf, but You disciplined me.
Bring me back, so I can return home,
for You are my God, the Eternal.
19After I had turned away from You, I repented.
I turned back toward You when I understood what I had done;
I slapped my thigh in shame and regret for the disgraceful things I did when I was young." 20So I, the Eternal One, asked:
"Is this not Ephraim, My beloved son, My darling child?
As often as I speak against him, I have never forgotten him.
Even now, My heart longs for him;
I will surely show him mercy!"

21Set up markers along the road;
put up guideposts so you can find your way home.
Pay attention to the highway, the road you take into exile.
Return by the same way, My virgin Israel;
return to your cities and villages.
22How long will you drift this way and that,
My renegade daughter?
Take heart—for now the Eternal will do a new thing on the earth:
a woman will surround a man.*

23This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has to say:

Eternal One: When I bring them back from exile, people throughout the land and villages of Judah will speak these familiar words:

May the Eternal bless you, home of righteousness,
O sacred mountain!

24*In those days of restoration,* farmers and herders all across Judah will live together in peace alongside those who live in the cities. 25I will satisfy those who are weary, and I will refresh every soul in the grips of sorrow.

26At this moment, I woke up from a wonderful sleep and looked around.

► Jeremiah receives God's messages in a variety of ways. In this dream-vision, he sees the future for his people. This is a sweet comfort and a welcomed contrast to other messages of doom and judgment. But as Jeremiah will see, God's message of consolation is not only a hope of restoration for one rebellious nation, but a promise for all people. Jeremiah is perhaps best known as the prophet of the "new covenant." According to the prophet, God is about to establish a new relationship with a new people. It will be unlike any earlier agreement. It will not be written on stone tablets that can be broken or on scrolls that can be lost or forgotten or even burned (36:23). No, this covenant between God and humanity is so intimate that it is to be written on the heart.

* 31:22 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

Even as words of hope and consolation are offered, the stark reality of the present looms large. The Babylonian army is near. The siege of Jerusalem is now under way. It is a dark time in the land; there is much fear, and many have questions as the capture of the capital city is now a certainty. Again, Jeremiah must live out his faith in front of a people who have abandoned God. He is under arrest and being questioned by King Zedekiah. Though the details surrounding his imprisonment come in chapter 37, once again it is an unpopular message that makes Jeremiah a most unpopular prophet. But he willingly lives out his faith in an attempt to offer an unreceptive audience hope.

As strange as the other assignments given to Jeremiah may seem, this one may be the most difficult to understand. A rotting linen belt (chapter 13) and a shattered clay jar (chapter 19)—these were at least vivid pictures of the people's rebellion and God's judgment. But now, in the face of certain captivity and ruin, Jeremiah is instructed to do a most absurd thing: he is to purchase a piece of property with his money. Given its location, this plot of ground may even be under Babylon's control. Why this apparent waste of money? To show the people that one day this land of promise will again be theirs.

Eternal One: 27Look! the days are coming when I will plant anew the house of Israel and the house of Judah. I will repopulate the land with people and animals. 28Just as I watched over them in order to uproot and stamp out, to upend and destroy, and to bring disaster from the north, so now I will watch over them as I rebuild and replant them. This is what I, the Eternal One, declare. 29In those coming days, people will no longer speak the proverb,

> Fathers have eaten sour grapes,
> and their children's teeth are set on edge.

30No, now it will be that each one will die for his own sins. If you eat sour grapes, then it is your own teeth that will be set on edge.

31Look, the days are coming when I will bring about a new covenant with the people of Israel and Judah. 32It will not be like the covenant I made with their ancestors long ago when I took them by the hand and led them out of slavery in Egypt. They did not remain faithful to that covenant—even though I loved and cared for them as a husband. 33This is the kind of new covenant I will make with the people of Israel when those days are over. I will put My law within them. I will write it on their hearts. I will be their God, and they will be My people. 34No longer will people have to teach each other or encourage their family members and say, "You must know the Eternal." For all of them will know Me intimately themselves—from the least to the greatest of society. I will be merciful when they fail and forgive their wrongs. I will never call to mind or mention their sins again.

35These are the words of the Eternal,

> The One who orders the sun to give light to the day,
> the One who directs the moon and the stars to light the night,
> The One who stirs up the sea so its waves churn and roar.
> The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, is His name.

Eternal One: 36Only if the natural order disintegrates before Me will the people of Israel cease to be a nation in covenant with Me.

37This is what the Eternal says:

Eternal One: If the heavens above could ever be measured,
or the depths below be fully explored,
Only then would I disown the children of Israel
because of everything they have done.

So says the Eternal.

Eternal One: 38Look! The days are coming when I will rebuild Jerusalem for My own purpose and glory—from the tower of Hananel to the corner gate. 39A measuring line will stretch out to the hill of Gareb and then sweep across to Goah. 40The valley of Ben-hinnom where the dead bodies and ashes from the sacrifices were thrown, and all the terraced fields leading out to the Kidron Valley, and as far east as the corner of the horse gate—all of these most defiled and polluted areas will again be made holy to the Eternal. The city will never again be uprooted or destroyed.

32 The Eternal spoke again to Jeremiah in the 10th year of Zedekiah's reign as king of Judah. This was also the 18th year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign as king of Babylon. 2At this time, Jerusalem was under siege by the Babylonian army, and Jeremiah the prophet was being held in the court of the guard in the royal palace of Judah. 3Zedekiah king of Judah had ordered him held there and leveled this charge against him:

Zedekiah: Why do you continue to prophesy such things? You tell us the Eternal says, "Look! I am going to hand this city over to the king of Babylon, and he will capture it. 4King Zedekiah of Judah will not escape from the Chaldean forces. He will be turned over to the king of Babylon and have to stand eye-to-eye before this powerful ruler. 5Nebuchadnezzar will order Zedekiah to be taken to Babylon, where he will stay until I am ready to visit him. This is what I, the Eternal One promise: if you try to fight the Chaldeans, you will fail."

Jeremiah (to Zedekiah): 6The message of the Eternal came to me through my cousin: 7"Look! Hanamel (son of Shallum, your uncle), is going to come to you and say, 'Buy my field at Anathoth; as my nearest relative, it is your right to buy it before I offer it to anyone else.* It is also your duty to keep it in the family.'" 8And just as He had predicted, my cousin Hanamel came to me while I was being held in the court of the guard. He said, "Jeremiah, buy my field in your hometown of Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin. It's your right to buy and redeem it so that it stays in our family." Then I realized this message was from the Eternal.

9So I bought the field in Anathoth from Hanamel my cousin for seven ounces of silver. 10I signed and sealed the deed in front of witnesses; after weighing out the silver on the scales, I paid Hanamel. 11Two copies of the deed were made. I took the sealed copy along with the terms and conditions of the purchase and the unsealed copy and 12handed them to my trusted friend and confidant, Baruch (son of Neriah and grandson of Mahseiah). I did all of this in the presence of my cousin Hanamel, the witnesses who had signed the deed, and all of the people of Judea who were there that day in the court of the guard. 13In the presence of all those people, I directed Baruch: 14"'The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says: 'Take both the sealed deed and the unsealed deed and place them in a clay jar to preserve them. I want this deed of sale to last for a long time.' 15For this is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and the God of Israel, promises: 'The day will come when My people will buy houses and vineyards and fields again in this land.'"

16After I had given the deed of purchase to Baruch (son of Neriah), I prayed to the Eternal: 17"Eternal Lord, with Your outstretched arm and Your enormous power You created the heavens and the earth. Nothing is too difficult for You. 18You show loyal love and endless mercy to thousands. But You also allow the damaging effects of the parents' sins to fall into the laps of their children. You are the great and powerful God; the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, is Your solemn name. 19Your instructions are great, and Your actions are too wondrous for words. You see all that happens on this earth; You know what everyone does, and You deal with each fairly. 20What miraculous signs and wonders You did in the land of Egypt! You continue to perform them for Israel and the rest of humanity to this day! You have made a great name for yourself among the nations, and we still remember Your great works today. 21You rescued Your people Israel out of Egypt with miraculous signs and wonders—with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, with a power too terrible for words. 22*But You did not stop there, O gracious God.* Then You gave them this land, the very land You had promised to their ancestors, an abundant land flowing with milk and honey. 23They entered this land and conquered it as You

* 32:7 Leviticus 25:23-28

led them. But even as they settled in, they refused to listen to Your voice and live as You instructed. They rebelled against Your entire law. So You caused these disastrous consequences to fall on them. 24Look! The siege ramps are built against the walls of the city. Soon the Chaldeans will begin the assault. Because of war, famine, and disease, the enemy will soon have control of the city. It is all happening as You said it would. 25But You, Eternal Lord, tell me, "Buy Hanamel's field with your own money in the presence of witnesses"—even as You hand over the city of Jerusalem to the Chaldeans.

For almost two years the Babylonians have tightened their grip: food supplies are dwindling, disease is rampant, and there is little hope supplies or relief might get through to besieged Jerusalem.

26Then the Eternal spoke to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 27Look! I am the Eternal, the God of all living things. Is anything too difficult for Me? 28I tell you this: I am about to hand this city over to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and his Chaldean army, and they will conquer it. 29The Chaldeans who are now assaulting the city will enter and set everything on fire. They will set houses ablaze where people set up shrines on roofs to burn incense to Baal and pour out drink offerings to other gods. Their offerings have ignited My anger. 30The people of Israel and Judah have done nothing but evil in My sight since their early days. They have done nothing except kindle My anger with their handmade idols and the way they live their lives. 31From the day Jerusalem was built until this very moment, the people have stirred My anger and provoked My wrath; so now I am forced to remove this city completely from My sight. 32The people of Israel and Judah have angered Me with their wickedness—from their kings and their officials to their priests and prophets, from the people of Judah to the citizens of Jerusalem. 33They have all turned their backs to Me instead of their faces. They have refused to listen and learn from My instruction, even though I tried to teach them again and again. 34They even put up their detestable idols in My temple, defiling the very place that is supposed to honor Me! 35They built altars to another master* in the valley of Ben-hinnom so they'd have a place to sacrifice their own children to Molech! I never demanded they do such a thing—it never even crossed My mind that they would do such a disgusting evil or that Judah would sin like that.

36*Jeremiah,* listen to what the Eternal God of Israel has to say about Jerusalem: you say that by war, famine, and disease this city will fall to the king of Babylon, and you are right. 37Look! I will gather My people from all the countries where I scattered them in My righteous anger, in My great wrath and fury. I will bring them back to this place, Jerusalem, and let them live here safely under My protection. 38They will be My people, and I will be their God. 39I will unite them behind a single desire and purpose: to revere and worship Me forever for their own good and for the good of all who will come after them. 40I will make an everlasting covenant with them: I will never stop blessing them with good things, and I will put in them a fear and respect of Me so they will not turn their backs to Me again. 41It will be My great joy to do good things for them, and you can be sure that I will devote Myself completely to planting them anew in this land.

42This is what I, the Eternal, declare: Just as I brought this great disaster upon My people, so will I do all these good things I have promised to them. 43Property will be bought and sold once again in this land about which you say, "This land is a wasteland—not fit for man or beast—for it has been handed over to the Chaldeans." 44Property will be bought and sold once again for silver—deals will be made and deeds signed in the presence of witnesses—in the territory of Benjamin, in the vicinity of Jerusalem, in the villages of Judah and the hill country, in the villages of the western hills, and in the cities of the Negev. In all these places I will restore them from their exile.

So says the Eternal.

33 1-2For a second time the message of the Eternal came to Jeremiah as he was being held in the court of the guard. The Eternal who made the earth, who formed and

* 32:35 Hebrew, the baal

fashioned it, the One whose name is the Eternal, has this to say:

► Time is growing short; the city is being squeezed, and the dreaded enemy is one step closer to victory. Some hope Egypt might come to Jerusalem's rescue, but nothing can stop her inevitable defeat. In these dark days just before the fall of Jerusalem, Jeremiah is still a prisoner of the king. People come to Jeremiah as he sits shackled in a courtyard, surrounded by guards. In this humiliating scene, another message comes to the prophet from God. Once again, Jeremiah is looking past the city's present despair to a future God is showing him: one day God will restore Jerusalem and the people of Israel.

Eternal One: 3Call to Me, and I will answer you. I will tell you of great things, things beyond what you can imagine,
things you could never have known. 4I,
the Eternal God of Israel, tell you that all these public buildings and royal palaces have been dismantled in vain. You thought you could strengthen the city walls with the scraps of those buildings, but it is a useless defense against the siege ramps and swords 5of the Chaldeans. In this fight, the city will be filled with the dead whom I will destroy in My anger and wrath, for I have hidden My face from this city because of their wickedness. 6*Nevertheless,* keep watching! I will restore this city and heal the wounds of My people. I will lavish them with peace and stability. 7I will bring both Judah and Israel back from captivity, and I will rebuild their land to what it was before.
8I will cleanse them from all the sins
they committed against Me and forgive
all the wrongs they have done and all the ways they rebelled against Me. 9*Jerusalem* will have a sweet-sounding name once again. The good I do for her will bring Me joy, praise, and honor among all nations of the earth, for they will be in awe and tremble at the peace and prosperity I give to this city.

10*Listen to Me, Jeremiah.* You say this place will become a desolate wasteland with no people and no animals, but it will not always be so. The towns of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem may indeed become lifeless, but I, the Eternal One,
promise you the silence will be broken.
Once again you will hear 11the sounds of laughter and joy, the sweet words of the bride and bridegroom at a wedding, and voices of those who bring thank offerings to the temple singing,

> Give thanks to the Eternal,
> Commander of heavenly
> armies,
> for He is good. His faithful love > endures forever.

All of this will happen because I will restore the riches of this land to what they once were.

12I, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, promise: even this desolate place—with no people and no animals—
and all of its ruined cities will once again have pastures where shepherds will rest their flocks. 13In the towns of the hill country, in the villages of the western hills, in the cities of the Negev, in the territory of Benjamin, in the vicinity around Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, once again flocks will be cared for by a faithful shepherd who will count each and every one of his sheep.

14Look! The days are coming when I will fulfill the promise I made to the people of Israel and Judah. 15In those days, when the time is right, I will cause a righteous Branch to sprout from the old stump of David's lineage; He will do what is right and just in the land. 16In
those days, Judah will be liberated, and Jerusalem will live in safety. And the city will be called by His name, The Eternal Is Our Righteousness. 17I tell you, the royal dynasty of David will not cease; the throne of Israel still belongs to his family.* Remember this, even as other kings rule over you. 18*Remember also that* the line of Levitical priests will not cease; for all time they will stand before Me offering burnt offerings, grain offerings, and making sacrifices.

19-20*Again,* the word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: If you can figure out a way to break My covenant with the day and with

* 33:17 1 Kings 2:4; 8:25; 9:5

the night so they do not always arrive on schedule, the very rhythm of life on this earth, 21only then will My covenant with My servant David be broken and his son not rule from his throne. Only then will My covenant with the Levitical priests who minister before Me be null and void. 22I will make David's descendants, along with the Levitical priests who minister before Me, so numerous they will seem like the stars of the skies that cannot be counted and the sands of the seashore that can never be measured.

23The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah again.

Eternal One: 24Have you noticed what some people are saying? "The Eternal chose these two families, Israel and Judah, but He has now rejected them." They clearly despise My people—they don't even consider them a nation any longer! 25*But again,* this is what the Eternal promises: "Just as I am not about to stop ruling the universe with fixed laws so that the day and the night become confused, 26*I will likewise keep My promise to* the descendants of Jacob and David, My servant; I will not reject them. I will not forget the covenant I made with David that one of his descendants will rule over the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. I will restore their fortunes and have mercy on them.

34 King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon led his army, and all the kingdoms and peoples of his empire, to begin the final assault against Jerusalem and all the towns and villages. One by one they fell. As this dreaded ruler and his vast army drew closer to Jerusalem, the word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 2The Eternal God of Israel has this to say: Go and deliver this message to Zedekiah, king of Judah: "I, the Eternal, am about to hand this city over to the king of Babylon, and he will burn it to the ground. 3*As for you,* you will not escape from him. No, you will be captured and turned over to the king of Babylon. You will have to stand before him and look this powerful ruler in the eyes as you are sentenced to exile in Babylon.

4"But hear this promise from the Eternal, O Zedekiah, king of Judah: 'I declare that if you obey Me now, you will not die in battle, 5but you will die in peace.' People will burn spices at your funeral in your honor, just as they did for your ancestors, the kings who ruled before you. Mourners will weep for you saying, 'O, our king is dead!' I, the Eternal, promise you this can still happen."

6The prophet Jeremiah faithfully related all of this to Zedekiah, king of Judah, while both were still in Jerusalem. 7This was when the Babylonian king's siege of Jerusalem and the rest of Judah's cities was under way, with Lachish and Azekah the only other fortified cities that had not been conquered.

8*Now as the siege continued and the conditions became more severe, another* message came to Jeremiah from the Eternal after King Zedekiah had made a covenant with the citizens of Jerusalem to free the slaves in the city. 9The king commanded all those who held Hebrew slaves to release them—both men and women—so that no Jew would hold a fellow Jew in slavery. 10So all the leaders and people of the city entered this covenant and agreed with the king to free all of their Hebrew slaves.

11*Not long* after the people had freed their slaves, they changed their minds and forced the men and women they released back into slavery. 12It was then that a word from the Eternal came to Jeremiah regarding the people of Jerusalem:

Eternal One: 13I, the Eternal God of Israel, am reminding you that I made a covenant with your ancestors when I rescued them from slavery in the land of Egypt. I told them: 14After six years of service, a fellow Hebrew slave must be freed from slavery in the seventh year.* But your ancestors never took My directive seriously or obeyed Me. 15Not long ago, you changed your mind and did what was right in My eyes: you set your kinsmen free from bondage. You even established a sacred covenant before Me in the house that bears My name. 16But now you have reversed yourselves, turned around, and broken that covenant! You have defiled My name by forcing these men and women you freed back into slavery.

17That is why I proclaim the following: Since you have disobeyed Me and not declared that your fellow countrymen are set free, I will now set you free from My protection. I declare that you will be "free" to die by war, disease, and famine. The destiny I set before You will terrify the watching world. [18]Those who violated this covenant with Me will now be treated like the calf they cut in two and walked between when this promise was made.

► In Jeremiah's time, the agreeing parties affirm the terms of a covenant by participating in an ancient ritual. They gather in a sacred place, cut an animal in half, and pass between the two parts. These ritual actions depict an implicit threat that if either covenant partner violates this agreement, he will become like the sacrifice and suffer the consequences of death and dismemberment. It is hard to imagine people taking such solemn ceremonies lightly, but they do. They always will.

Eternal One: [19]The leaders of Judah and Jerusalem, the court servants, the priests, and all people in the land who walked between the halves of the calf will suffer a common fate. [20-21]I will hand them over to their enemies, to those who want them dead. Their corpses will not be buried; they will lie on the ground and become food for the birds and wild animals. I will also hand Zedekiah (king of Judah) and his officials over to their enemies, to those who want them dead. Although King Nebuchadnezzar and his army have pulled back from your city, that is only temporary. [22]I, the Eternal One, will give the order and call them back to Jerusalem. They will fight against this city, capture it, and burn it to the ground. I will use the army of Babylon to destroy the towns of Judah so no one can live there.

35 This word from the Eternal came to Jeremiah when Jehoiakim (son of Josiah) was king of Judah.

► The next two chapters are a flashback to earlier times and circumstances. Jehoiakim is in the last years of his reign as king of Judah. Babylon, along with Aram, is raiding Judean villages. These raids cause many to seek refuge in Jerusalem, which is not yet under attack. Among those who run to the capital city is a nomadic clan known as the Rechabites. Their customs are simple and austere; their lifestyles are not suited to city living. However, they now find themselves in Jerusalem. Their faithfulness to those strict customs is held up as an example for the rest of Judah.

Eternal One: [2]Go to where the Rechabites are now staying and invite them to My temple. Take them to one of the side rooms there and offer them wine to drink.

[3]So I took the leader of this clan, Jaazaniah (son of Jeremiah and grandson of Habazziniah) along with his brothers and sons who represented all of the Rechabites [4]to the temple of the Eternal. I led them into a side room that was used by the sons of Hanan (son of Igdaliah), a man of God. This room was right next to the room used by temple officials and right over the room of Maaseiah (son of Shallum), the doorkeeper. [5]Once we were in the room, I set before these Rechabite men pitchers full of wine with some cups.

Jeremiah *(to the Rechabites): Have some wine.

Rechabites: [6]We do not drink wine because our ancestor, Jonadab (son of Rechab), gave us very clear commands: "You and your children must never drink wine. [7]You must not build houses or plant crops or have vineyards. You are not to do anything that resembles settling down in this land. Instead, live in tents and roam the land as nomads. Do this, and you will live for a long time in this land." [8]So we have done just that—we have obeyed our ancestor Jonadab (son of Rechab) throughout these many years. We have never drunk wine, nor have our wives or children. [9]We have never built houses to live in or owned a vineyard or a field or even planted seed. [10]We have faithfully lived as nomads in tents and have obeyed what our ancestor, Jonadab, commanded all those years ago. 11But when King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon invaded this land, we knew we could no longer wander the countryside. So we said, "Come on, let's go to Jerusalem so we don't fall victim to the Babylonian and Aramean armies." That is why we are here in Jerusalem.

12After this encounter with the Rechabites, the word of the Eternal came to instruct Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 13I, the Eternal One, the God of Israel, Commander of heavenly armies, want you to go and deliver this message to the people of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem: "Why won't you hear My words and learn from Me? 14Jonadab (son of Rechab) told his children, among other things, not to drink wine, and they obeyed him! To this day they still obey their ancestor for this is his command. But I speak to you again and again, and you have never obeyed Me. 15I have sent My servants, the prophets, to you again and again. They warned you with My words: 'Turn back from your wicked ways and change what you are doing. Stop worshiping other gods so that you may continue to live in this land that I gave to you and your ancestors.' But you did not bother to listen to Me. 16The descendants of Jonadab (son of Rechab) have obeyed the orders of their ancestor and leader, but these people have not obeyed Me.

17"Listen! This is why I, the Eternal One, the God of Israel, Commander of heavenly armies, will send all the disaster I promised against Judah and all the citizens of Jerusalem. For I spoke to them, but they never listened. I called out to them, but they never answered back."

Jeremiah *(to the Rechabites): 18-19The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has this message for you and your families: "Because you obeyed your ancestor Jonadab and faithfully followed his instructions for all these years, I promise that Jonadab (son of Rechab) will always have descendants who serve Me."

36 When Jehoiakim (son of Josiah) was in his fourth year as king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the Eternal.

Though prophecy is primarily oral, eventually Jeremiah's companion, Baruch, records Jeremiah's sermons and actions on a scroll that in turn becomes critical.

Eternal One *(to Jeremiah): 2Write down on a scroll all that I have told you over the years about Israel, Judah, and the surrounding nations. Start with the first words I gave you when Josiah was king, and include every message up to the present. 3Maybe when the people of Judah hear all of it together—every disaster that I will bring upon them—maybe then they will turn from their wicked ways so that I can forgive their sins and wrongdoings.

4So Jeremiah called for Baruch (son of Neriah) to help him. Jeremiah then dictated the messages and prophecies the Eternal had given him while Baruch wrote it all down on a scroll.

Jeremiah *(to Baruch): 5Since I am prohibited from going to the Eternal's temple, 6you must go for me. Go to the temple on a fasting day; and once you are there, read the Eternal's words from the scroll just as I dictated them to you. That way, people from all the towns of Judah who have gathered for the holiday will hear this message from Him. 7Maybe they will turn from their wicked ways and seek the Eternal's forgiveness, because they will realize His great anger and wrath are coming their way.

► It is 605 B.C., many years before the siege and fall of Jerusalem. But the increasing power of Babylon is casting its shadow across the region. Egypt has been defeated by Nebuchadnezzar at the battle of Carchemish. The warning signs are clear—Judah is at risk and must heed the words of God's prophet while there is still time. The following is an account that takes place during this pivotal time, when Judah still has hope. But the reaction of King Jehoiakim—perhaps the fiercest opponent to Jeremiah's ministry—begins to seal not only his own fate but also his people's. If they had hope, it quickly fades with his arrogant and outrageous actions. The lesson for this evil king and his people is clear: The power of God's word always prevails, even when others attempt to destroy it.

8Baruch (son of Neriah) did everything Jeremiah the prophet told him to do; he went to the Eternal's temple, stood among the crowds there, and read from the scroll the words of the Eternal.

11When Micaiah (son of Gemariah and grandson of Shaphan) heard the words of the Eternal that were written on the scroll, 12he immediately went to the palace, to the secretary's room where all the officials were meeting. Elishama the secretary, Delaiah (son of Shemaiah), Elnathan (son of Achbor), Gemariah (son of Shaphan), and Zedekiah (son of Hananiah) were among the officials who were there. 13Micaiah reported to them everything he heard Baruch read to the people from the scroll. 14Then all the officials sent Jehudi (son of Nethaniah and grandson of Shelemiah and great-grandson of Cushi) with a message for Baruch.

Jehudi: Bring the scroll you have read to the people and come to the palace.

So Baruch (son of Neriah), with the scroll in hand, made his way to the palace and entered this room where some of Judah's most influential leaders were waiting.

Officials (to Baruch): 15-16Please sit down and read this scroll to us.

Baruch then read the entire scroll to them. When they heard it, they were visibly upset. They began to look around the room at each other, each one afraid but knowing what must happen next.

Officials (to Baruch): We must report to the king all we have heard, but first we must ask you some questions. 17Tell us how you wrote all of this? Did Jeremiah dictate this to you?

Baruch: 18*Yes.* He dictated each and every word to me. I simply wrote down his words with ink on this scroll.

Officials: 19*Before we take this to the king,* you and Jeremiah should go into hiding. For your own safety, don't tell anyone where you are!

20After the officials put the scroll in the room of Elishama the secretary, they approached the king in the palace and told him everything they had heard. But the king was not satisfied. 21So he ordered Jehudi to go and get the scroll. Jehudi brought it from Elishama's room and read it to the king and all his officials as they stood around him. 22Since it was the ninth month and the colder winter weather had set in, the king had moved to a more sheltered apartment in the palace where he could stay warm by the fire. 23*The king listened as* Jehudi read column after column of the scroll. As soon as he finished reading three or four columns, Jehoiakim would take a knife, cut that section out of the scroll, and then throw it on the fire. This happened again and again until the entire scroll was burned in the fire. 24Neither the king nor his advisors seemed to be concerned about what they had just heard. They weren't afraid. They didn't tear their clothes in remorse and repentance.

The king shows everyone, including his advisors, exactly what he thinks of God's message written on the scroll.

25Even when Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah pleaded with the king not to burn the scroll, he ignored them. 26Instead, he ordered his son, Jerahmeel, along with Seraiah (son of Azriel) and Shelemiah (son of Abdeel), to arrest Baruch the secretary and Jeremiah the prophet. But the Eternal had already hidden them.

27After the king burned the scroll containing Jeremiah's prophecies, which Baruch had carefully recorded, the word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 28Take another scroll and write down all the words that were on

Many years have now passed since Jehoiakim's arrogant scroll-burning incident, but the prophecies against him and his people are coming to pass: Babylon is now exerting its power in the land, and Jehoiakim's legacy has indeed crumbled. His own son Jehoiachin (also known as Coniah) has already been sent into exile by the Babylonians in 598 B.C. In his place, Nebuchadnezzar has placed Zedekiah on the throne of Judah. This new king has pledged to remain loyal to Babylon in exchange for the crown. And while he is not as arrogant and openly rebellious as Jehoiakim, in his own weak way, he, too, disobeys God. At times he seems genuinely interested in the words of Jeremiah, but he never shows the courage necessary to obey God during this dramatic time. Throughout his 11 year reign (597-587 B.C.), Zedekiah is unable to stand up to his advisors and at one point agrees to break with Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, siding instead with the pharaoh of Egypt. This sets in motion the final retaliation of the Babylonians, including the siege and destruction of Jerusalem.

the first one King Jehoiakim destroyed in the fire. 29As for Jehoiakim king of Judah, this is what I want you to say: "You burned this scroll and asked, 'Why have you written that the king of Babylon is coming to destroy this land and will leave it a lifeless wasteland?'" 30That is why I, the Eternal now declare this about Jehoiakim, king of Judah: His reign will soon end, and none of his descendants will sit upon the throne of David. His dead body will be tossed out and exposed to the heat of the day and the frost of the night. 31I will punish him, his children, and his advisors for their wickedness. Because they did not listen to My word, I will bring about every disaster I predicted against them, the citizens of Jerusalem, and all the people of Judah.

32Jeremiah did just as God instructed—he took another scroll, gave it to Baruch (son of Neraiah) the secretary, and dictated everything that was on the first scroll. This new scroll had all the words that Jehoiakim, king of Judah, had burned in the fire, plus many more prophecies.

37 Zedekiah (son of Josiah) was made king of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. He reigned instead of his nephew, Coniah (son of Jehoiakim) who had already been deported to Babylon. 2Neither young Zedekiah nor his inexperienced advisors nor the people of Judah themselves listened to what the Eternal said through His prophet Jeremiah.

3Zedekiah one day sent Jehucal (son of Shelemiah), along with the priest Zephaniah (son of Maaseiah) to ask the prophet Jeremiah, "Please pray to the Eternal our God for us." 4Now Jeremiah had not yet been put in prison, so he was free to move about the city. 5This happened when the Chaldeans pulled back from their siege on Jerusalem because they heard Pharaoh's army was marching out of Egypt toward them. 6It was then that the word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah the prophet, who faithfully delivered it to the king's messengers.

Jeremiah: 7This is what the Eternal God of Israel has to say: "Tell the king of Judah, who sent you to ask for My help: 'Look! Pharaoh's army—which you hoped would help you—will turn back to Egypt to protect its own land. 8Then the Chaldeans will come back to attack Jerusalem. They will capture this city and burn it to the ground.'" 9The Eternal says this to you: "Do not fool yourselves into thinking the Chaldeans will leave you alone. They will not! 10Even if somehow you defeated their entire army, their wounded soldiers lying in tents would come out and burn this city to the ground in a fiery blaze."

11Now during this time when the Chaldeans had pulled back from Jerusalem to face Pharaoh's army, 12Jeremiah started to leave Jerusalem. He was heading back to the land of Benjamin to settle his affairs regarding a piece of family property there.* 13But as he was leaving through the Benjamin gate on the north side of the city, the captain of the guard, Irijah (son of Shelemiah and grandson of Hananiah), arrested him.

* 37:12 Jeremiah 32:8

Irijah: You traitor! You are trying to desert to the Chaldeans!

Jeremiah: 14That's not true! I'm not deserting to the Chaldeans.

But Irijah would not listen to Jeremiah, so he arrested him and brought him to the city leaders. 15They were already angry with Jeremiah because of his predictions of destruction and his advice to surrender. So they had Jeremiah beaten and placed him under arrest in the house of Jonathan the secretary (which they had made into a prison). 16He was placed in a dark, damp cell below ground and left there for a long time.

17Eventually, King Zedekiah had him secretly brought to the palace so the king could talk with him.

King Zedekiah: Have you received any more messages from the Eternal?

Jeremiah: Yes, but they haven't changed: you will still be handed over to the king of Babylon. But while I'm here, let me ask you—18what crime have I committed against you, your advisors, or this nation that I should be imprisoned? 19*I told you nothing but the truth about Babylon from the beginning, so why am I in this cell?* Meanwhile, your so-called prophets keep telling you, "Don't worry, the king of Babylon will never attack you or this land," and they go unpunished? 20Please, I'm asking you, my lord the king, do not send me back to that cell in the house of Jonathan the secretary, or I will die there.

21*Though the news he heard was not encouraging,* King Zedekiah granted Jeremiah's request. He gave the order and had the prophet transferred to the court of the guard. He also gave strict orders that each day Jeremiah be given bread from the city's bakers until the supplies ran out. That is how Jeremiah ended up a prisoner in the court of the guard.

38 Shephatiah (son of Mattan), Gedaliah (son of Pashhur), Jucal (son of Shelemiah), and Pashhur (son of Malchijah) overheard Jeremiah speaking to the people of Jerusalem.

Jeremiah: 2The Eternal says that anyone who stays in the city will die by war, famine, or disease; but those who surrender to the Chaldeans will at least have some reward—they'll keep their own lives. 3The Eternal has proclaimed that Jerusalem will be handed over to the army of Babylon's king, who will capture it.

4When these officials heard Jeremiah's remarks, they advised the king.

Court Officials *(to King Zedekiah): This man is a traitor; he should be put to death! His words border on treason; they are affecting the morale of what troops we still have in the city, as well as all the rest of the people. This man does not have the best interests of this people at heart—only their downfall.

King Zedekiah: 5Look, do what you want with Jeremiah. The king will not interfere.

6So they took Jeremiah and threw him into a muddy cistern in the court of the guard that belonged to the king's son, Malchijah. Rather than killing him immediately, these officials lowered Jeremiah by ropes into this deep, dark cistern where he sank into the mud. Now he would be silenced. Soon he would be dead.

7-8But another court servant in the palace, Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, overheard that Jeremiah had been dropped down into this cistern. So he left the palace and went directly to the king who was sitting in the Benjamin gate where he was holding court for the people.

Ebed-melech: 9My lord the king, do you know what some of your court officials have done? They have done a wicked thing to Jeremiah the prophet. They have thrown him into a muddy cistern and left him to die, which will surely happen when he, like the rest of the city, runs out of food.

King Zedekiah (to Ebed-melech, the Ethiopian): 10Take 30 of my men with you, and rescue Jeremiah the prophet from that cistern before he dies.

11So Ebed-melech did as the king commanded and took the men with him. But before he left the palace, he went to a room under the treasury. There he found

* 38:10 Some manuscripts read, "three."

some rags and old clothes that he lowered with the ropes to Jeremiah in the cistern. 12Ebed-melech the Ethiopian then called down into the cistern and told Jeremiah:

Ebed-melech: Put these rags and old clothes under your armpits so the ropes won't hurt you as we pull you up.

The prophet did as he was told, 13and the men pulled Jeremiah out of that muddy cistern. Still however, Jeremiah remained a prisoner in the court of the guard.

► Sometime later Zedekiah summons Jeremiah. This will be the last encounter between prophet and king. Will the king finally respond with courage and faith to the word of God? Despite decades of warnings from a faithful prophet who has the courage to speak truth regardless of the consequences, Jerusalem and her leaders continue to disobey God. And now Jeremiah's dreaded predictions come true. After a long siege that leaves the city weak and impoverished, the walls of Jerusalem are breached.

14King Zedekiah sent for the prophet Jeremiah and had him brought to the third entrance to the Eternal's temple.

King Zedekiah: I am going to ask you something, and I want you to tell me the truth; don't hold anything back.

Jeremiah: 15If I give you another honest answer, how do I know you won't kill me? Besides, even if I do give you advice, you won't listen to me.

King Zedekiah *(leaning in so no one could hear this secret oath): 16Jeremiah, as surely as the Eternal lives and gives us life, I promise not to kill you or hand you over to those who want you dead.

Jeremiah: 17*All right.* This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, the God of Israel, says about your situation: "If you surrender to the officials of the Babylonian king, you will survive this invasion and Jerusalem will not be burned to the ground. You and your entire family will live. 18But if you refuse to surrender to the officials of the Babylonian king, not only will this city be handed over to the Chaldeans, but they will burn it to the ground and you will not escape their punishment."

King Zedekiah: 19But I am afraid of the Judeans who have already defected and gone over to the Chaldeans. What if our captors hand me over to them and they abuse and torture me?

Jeremiah: 20*That will not happen.* The Babylonians will not hand you over to your former subjects. This is your chance to obey the voice of the Eternal by just doing what I tell you. You will come out of this alive, and things will go well for you if you do what God says. 21But if you refuse to surrender, let me tell you something else the Eternal revealed to me: 22"All of the women left in your palace will be taken and given to officials of the Babylonian king. As they are being led away, those women will mock you and say:

Look how they misled you and defeated you—
these so-called friends of yours.
While your feet sank in the mud,
your friends all deserted you.

23All your wives and sons will be marched out before the Chaldeans. And as for you, Zedekiah, you will not escape capture by the king of Babylon. As for this city, Jerusalem, it will be burned to the ground."

King Zedekiah: 24Do not tell anyone about our conversation, or you may be killed! We must keep this a secret. 25If my officials learn that I spoke to you, they may come to you and threaten you saying, "Tell us everything you told the king and what he said to you. Don't try to hide anything from us or we will execute you." 26If that happens, tell them, "I was only begging the king not to send me back to Jonathan's house again because I was afraid of dying there."

27The king's officials were curious about the encounter and did come to Jeremiah and question him just as Zedekiah had predicted. So Jeremiah responded as the king instructed and shared only what they had agreed earlier. Because no one overheard the conversation between Jeremiah and Zedekiah, the officials eventually stopped questioning him. [28]Jeremiah remained a prisoner in the court of the guard until the sorrowful day Jerusalem was captured.

39 This is how Jerusalem fell: When the Egyptian threat in the south was over, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon brought his army back to Jerusalem and resumed the siege. This began in the 10th month of the 9th year of Zedekiah's reign as Judah's king. [2]For the next 18 months, the siege continued until the 9th day of the 4th month of Zedekiah's 11th year. On that sad summer day, Jerusalem finally fell when the Chaldeans broke through the city wall. [3]All the officials designated by Babylon's king to exercise his authority entered the city and sat at the middle gate. These included Nergal-sar-ezer, Samgar-nebu, Sar-sekim (who was a chief officer), Nergal-sar-ezer (a high official), and all the other officials sent by the king of Babylon.

[4]When King Zedekiah of Judah and his troops saw the Babylonians break through the wall on the north side of the city, they fled under the cloak of darkness. They made their way out of the city by passing through the king's garden and then through the gate between the two walls. Once they left, they headed toward the Jordan Valley. [5]But the Chaldean army discovered this and chased after Zedekiah, capturing him on the plains of Jericho. They took him to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, who had set up his command post at Riblah in the old Aramean city of Hamath. It was here that the dreaded king pronounced judgment on Zedekiah for rebelling against him. [6]Zedekiah was forced to watch as his own sons and the nobles of Judah were slaughtered right in front of him. [7]This was the very last thing he saw, because Nebuchadnezzar then blinded the eyes of Zedekiah. This blinded and humiliated king was then placed in bronze shackles and carried off to Babylon. [8]Back in Jerusalem, the Chaldean troops burned down the king's palace and the commoners' houses and then tore down the walls of the city. [9]Those who were left in the city, along with those who had previously surrendered, were then deported to Babylon by Nebuzaradan (captain of the imperial guard). [10]But he left some of the poorest people in Judah and gave them vineyards and fields to care for.

Removing only the rich and influential citizens, who might cause them trouble, is a political strategy. They leave behind the poor and destitute to serve as their labor force.

[11]In these days of conquest, King Nebuchadnezzar learned about the prophet Jeremiah and gave this order to his captain of the imperial guard, Nebuzaradan:

King Nebuchadnezzar: [12]Go and get this prophet they call Jeremiah, and look after him. Make sure he isn't harmed, and give him whatever he wants.

[13]So Nebuzaradan (the captain of the imperial guard), Nebushazban (a chief officer), Nergal-sar-ezer (a high-ranking official), and the other officials from Babylon [14]ordered Jeremiah released from the court of the guard and brought to them. They eventually handed him over to the care of Gedaliah (son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan), who took Jeremiah back to his home. And so it was that Jeremiah was allowed to remain in the land of Judah among his people.

[15]While Jeremiah was still confined in the court of the guard, the word of the Eternal came to him.

Eternal One: [16]Go and give this message to Ebed-melech, the Ethiopian. "This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, promises you: 'Look! Very soon I will bring disaster not prosperity on Jerusalem and her citizens as I warned through Jeremiah. And you, Ebed-melech, will see all this happen with your own eyes. [17]But do not worry, for I will rescue you on that day so that you will not be taken prisoner by those you fear. [18]I will protect you, and you will not die in the war. Your life will be your reward because you trusted in Me. I, the Eternal One, declare this to you.'"

40 The word of the Eternal came again to Jeremiah after Nebuzaradan (captain of the imperial guard) found the prophet in chains with the rest of the exiles from Jerusalem and Judah and let him go. He had been taken to Ramah with the others who would soon be deported to Babylon. [2]When the captain of the imperial guard learned of the mix-up, he took Jeremiah aside and spoke to him.

► In the aftermath of war, confusion and mistakes are rampant. Nebuchadnezzar himself has ordered that Jeremiah be placed in the care of Gedaliah (39:11-12), but some incompetent staff member has sent Jeremiah to be processed for exile in Babylon. It falls to Nebuzaradan to try to fix the mistake, before it is too late.

Nebuzaradan: Your God, the Eternal, commanded all of this to happen. 3He brought this disaster on this land, just as He said He would. And it all happened because your people sinned against the Eternal and refused to obey His voice. 4But today I am giving you your freedom. I am ordering the chains removed from your wrists. I am also giving you the chance to decide where you will live. If you'd like, you can come with me to Babylon, and I will look out for you. But if you'd rather not come to Babylon, then don't. Look around you; you can go from here today and live anywhere you want. You decide.

5But before Jeremiah turned to leave, Nebuzaradan made a suggestion.

Nebuzaradan: Why don't you go back to Gedaliah (son of Ahikim and grandson of Shaphan)? The king of Babylon has put him in charge of the towns of Judah. You could live with him and still be among your people. But again, feel free to go where you please.

At this point, the captain gave Jeremiah some food and supplies, along with a gift, and released him. 6Jeremiah took his advice and went to Mizpah where Gedaliah (son of Ahikim) had settled. There he remained with the others who had been left behind in the land of Judah.

7The news reached Judah's army officers and soldiers who were scattered throughout the countryside that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah (son of Ahikam) governor and put him in charge of the men, women, and children—the poor people of the land—who had not been deported to Babylon. 8So a group of them came to Gedaliah's home in Mizpah to meet with him. These included Ishmael (son of Nethaniah), Johanan and Jonathan (sons of Kareah), Seraiah (son of Tanhumeth), the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and Jezaniah (son of the Maacathite), along with all their men. 9Gedaliah (son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan) reassured those who gathered.

Gedaliah *(to the leaders and their men): Do not be afraid to serve the Chaldeans. If you will settle peacefully in the land, agree to serve the king of Babylon, and give up any idea of rebelling against him, things will go well for you. 10I will continue to live here in Mizpah and act as your representative whenever the Chaldeans come and want something from us. Go back and live in the villages and towns you have taken over. Harvest the grapes for wine, the summer fruits, and the olives for oil. Store what you gather, and live your lives in peace.

11When all the Judeans living in Moab, Ammon, Edom, and the other neighboring nations heard that the king of Babylon had permitted a few people to remain in Judah and left Gedaliah (son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan) in charge, 12they began to return home to the land of Judah from all the places to which they had run. With Gedaliah as their leader, governing from Mizpah, they returned to their ancestral lands to gather a great harvest of grapes for wine and summer crops.

This ragtag group of fugitives and survivors, along with the poorest of the poor, try to go back to life as normal. Perhaps there is still a glimmer of hope.

13Now Johanan (son of Kareah) and the rest of the army officers who were still in the field came to Mizpah to speak with Gedaliah.

Johanan *(speaking for the rest): 14Are you aware that Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) has been hired by Baalis, the king of the Ammonites, to kill you?

But Gedaliah (son of Ahikam) had not heard of this threat and was not inclined to believe them. 15So while he was in Mizpah, Johanan asked to speak with Gedaliah privately.

Johanan: Authorize me to go and kill Ishmael (son of Nethaniah). No one will know what happened. Should he be allowed to kill you just because he thinks you're a pawn of Babylon? Think of what will happen to those Jews who have returned home and look to you as their leader. They will be scattered again, left to die because Babylon would consider this an act of aggression against them.

Gedaliah: [16]Do not kill him! What you are saying about Ishmael is not true!

41 But in the seventh month of the year, this same Ishmael (son of Nethaniah and grandson of Elishama)—a member of Judah's royal family and a former captain of the king—came with 10 of his men to Mizpah to visit Gedaliah (son of Ahikam). As they were eating together, [2]Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) and his 10 men betrayed their host and suddenly got up and with their swords attacked and killed Gedaliah (son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan), the man the king of Babylon had appointed governor of the land. [3]Ishmael and his men then killed all the rest of the Judeans who were with Gedaliah at Mizpah and the Chaldean soldiers who had been left there.

[4]The next day, before anyone had learned of Gedaliah's assassination, [5]a group of 80 men arrived from Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria. They were on their way to Jerusalem, bringing grain offerings and incense to what was left of the temple of the Eternal. It was obvious they were in mourning, having shaved their beards, torn their clothing, and cut their bodies. [6]Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) met them just outside Mizpah, weeping as if something terrible had happened. When he got to their company, he said:

Ishmael: Please, come and see what has happened to Gedaliah (son of Ahikam).

[7-8]But once they were in the city, Ishmael and his men started to slaughter the innocent worshipers and throw their murdered corpses into a large cistern. Now there were 10 of these men who pled with Ishmael.

Men: Please do not kill us. We have a large quantity of wheat, barley, oil, and honey hidden in the field.

Ishmael agreed to let them live in exchange for these supplies. But he did kill 70 of their company.

[9]Now the cistern into which Ishmael threw the corpses of Gedaliah, his men, and these worshipers on their way to Jerusalem had been dug by King Asa years ago when he was preparing for an attack from King Baasha of Israel. Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) filled it with dead bodies.* [10]After this massacre, Ishmael took the rest of the people in Mizpah captive, including the royal princesses and the others left under the care of Gedaliah (son of Ahikam) by Nebuzaradan (captain of the imperial guard). Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) forced everyone to leave the city with him as he escaped to the land of the Ammonites.

[11-12]Now when Johanan (son of Kareah) and the other army leaders who were with him heard about this massacre carried out by Ishmael, they rallied all their men and pursued Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) to fight him. They caught up with him not far from the great pool in Gibeon. [13]When the people Ishmael had captured saw Johanan (son of Kareah) and the other army leaders closing in, they rejoiced. [14]All those who had been taken prisoner by Ishmael at Mizpah escaped and joined Johanan (son of Kareah) in the fight against Ishmael. [15]But somehow Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) and eight of his men were able to escape from Johanan and cross over into the land of the Ammonites.

► What little hope there is for a relatively peaceful future in Judah quickly vanishes with the massacre at Mizpah. The Babylonians show leniency in allowing Gedaliah—one of their own—to rule over this region, but that will change. There will be a response from Nebuchadnezzar. It will be swift and brutal. The question on the minds of those still living in the land is this: how can we escape the vengeance of Babylon? Johanan, by default, has become the new leader of these people. Although he quickly decides the next move, both he and this remnant of Judah hope it is not a mistake.

[16]Then Johanan (son of Kareah) and the other army leaders led the people they had just rescued away from Gibeon. This group (who had been taken from Mizpah after Ishmael assassinated Gedaliah) included soldiers, women, children, and court officials. 17 They made their way south and stopped at Geruth Chimham near the village of Bethlehem. The entire company was on its way to Egypt 18 to escape the Chaldeans; for the Judeans were afraid of what would happen when the Chaldeans discovered that Ishmael (son of Nethaniah) had killed Gedaliah (son of Ahikam), the man appointed governor of the land by the king of Babylon.

* 41:9 1 Kings 15:17-22; 2 Chronicles 16:1-6

42 At this point, all the army leaders, Johanan (son of Kareah), Jezaniah (son of Hoshaiah), and the rest of the Judeans from the least to the greatest, came 2 to the prophet Jeremiah.

People: Please hear our request and pray to the Eternal your God for the few of us who are still here. As you can see, what used to be many people is now just a remnant. 3 Pray that the Eternal your God will tell us where to go and what to do.

Jeremiah: 4 I have heard your request, and you can be assured that I will pray to the Eternal, just as you asked. I will tell you everything He says. I will hold nothing back.

People: 5 May the Eternal be a true and faithful witness against us if we do not obey every word He speaks to us through you. 6 Whether we like the answer or not, we promise to obey the voice of the Eternal our God. That is why we are sending you to Him. We want to obey the Eternal our God so things will go well for us.

7 Ten days later, the Eternal gave His answer to Jeremiah. 8 Then the prophet assembled Johanan (son of Kareah), all the army leaders, and the rest of the Judeans from the least to the greatest.

Jeremiah: 9 You sent me to present your request to the Eternal, the God of Israel. Here is His answer: 10 "If you will stay here in this land, I will bless and protect you. I will rebuild you and not tear you down. I will plant you anew and not uproot you. For I deeply regret the disaster I had to bring upon you. 11 I know you are afraid of this king of Babylon, but don't fear him any longer. For I, the Eternal One, declare that I am with you and I will save you and rescue you from his authority. 12 I will show you compassion, and then he will have compassion on you. He will even restore you to your land. 13 But if you disobey the Eternal your God and say, 'We're not staying in this land; 14 no, we will go and live in Egypt where we will not have to face the sights and sounds of war or go hungry for lack of bread,' 15 then listen closely to what I am saying to you, O remnant of Judah. The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, declares: if you are determined to go to Egypt anyway and settle there after hearing My answer, 16 the wars you fear and the famine you dread will follow you into Egypt. And there, you will die. 17 Yes, all of you who are determined to run to Egypt and settle there will die from war, famine, and disease. None of you who go there will survive or escape the disaster I will bring to them—not even a remnant of this remnant."

18 For this is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, promises: "Just as My anger and wrath were poured out on the citizens of Jerusalem, so it will be poured out on you when you step foot in Egypt. You will become a curse, an object of horror, a disgraced and ridiculed people. And you will never see this place, Judah, again."

19 O remnant of Judah, listen to what the Eternal has said to you: "Do not go to Egypt!" You must recognize that today I have given you fair warning. 20 Your lives are at risk, for you did not mean it when you sent me to the Eternal your God with this promise: "Pray to the Eternal our God for us, and tell us everything He says. We will obey Him no matter what the answer is." 21 So today I have given you His answer, but I can see you have no intention of obeying the Eternal your God, regardless of what He sends me to tell you. 22 So you will surely die from war, famine, and disease in that place where you are now determined to go.

43 When Jeremiah finished giving the people this answer from the Eternal their God—and he did tell them everything that is recorded here, just as he promised—2 Azariah (son of Hoshaiah) and Johanan (son of Kareah) and all the other overconfident men in that group spoke.

Leaders (to Jeremiah): These words are lies! The Eternal our God didn't tell you to say, "Do not go to Egypt and settle there." These are not His words at all. 3*They are the words of* Baruch (son of Neriah), your secretary. He is trying to turn you against us so we will be handed over to the Chaldeans, when they come back. If we listen to his counsel, we will be killed or taken into exile in Babylon.

4So Johanan (son of Kareah), all the other army leaders, and all the people refused to obey the Eternal's command to remain in Judah. 5So Johanan (son of Kareah) and the other army officers gathered up all the Judeans who had survived and returned to Judah from the countries they fled to. 6*This vast company of refugees included* the men, women, children, and daughters of the royal family and everyone else who Nebuzaradan, captain of the imperial guard, had left in the care of Gedaliah (son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan). Jeremiah the prophet and Baruch (son of Neriah) were also forced to join the company leaving Judah for Egypt. 7And so it was that this vast company of Judeans entered the land of Egypt in disobedience to the voice of the Eternal. They traveled as far as the northern city of Tahpanhes.

► Egypt is not where Jeremiah or Baruch want to be, especially since God clearly tells these Judeans—survivors of the Babylonian attack on their land—not to go there. After all these years, Jeremiah again delivers a difficult message to an unreceptive people, this time in Egypt. And once again, he is instructed to act this message so that all can see and clearly understand. Many years have passed since Jeremiah told God he was too young to be His prophet; but here he is, an old man, still performing strange and difficult feats to make His point.

8While they were in Tahpanhes, the message of the Eternal came to Jeremiah.

Eternal One: 9While everyone from Judah is watching, pick up some large rocks and then bury them in the clay of the brick pavement at the entrance of Pharaoh's palace in Tahpanhes. 10*Once you've done this,* give the people this message from the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel: "I am sending My servant Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, to Egypt. I will set his throne over the exact spot where I've hidden these stones, and he will spread his royal canopy over this exact spot. 11He is coming to attack Egypt, and he will bring death to those destined to die, captivity to those destined to be captive, and war to those destined to die in battle. 12I will start a fire, and then he will burn the temples of Egypt's so-called gods. He will take these idols back to Babylon. He will pick through the land of Egypt as easily as a shepherd picks clean his robe. And once he's finished, he will return home unharmed. 13He will tear down the obelisks of Egypt in the temple of the sun. Yes, he will burn down the temples of Egypt's gods.

44 This is the message that came to Jeremiah concerning the Judeans living in the northern Egyptian cities of Migdol, Tahpanhes, Memphis, and the southern region of Pathros.

► Some time has now passed since the Judeans who were not deported to Babylon fled to Egypt in a kind of self-imposed exile. Their reason for leaving Judah and settling in Egypt is fear—fear of reprisal from Nebuchadnezzar for the assassination of Gedaliah. Against the protests of Jeremiah, the people settle down in Egypt. Ironically, as they escape the wrath of the dreaded Babylonian king, they foolishly ignore the wrath of God that follows their complete disregard of His prophet. Jeremiah now delivers what will be his last recorded message to these faithless Judeans who have settled in Egypt.

Jeremiah: 2-3This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has to say: "You saw what happened to Jerusalem and the towns of Judah when the people disobeyed Me. I brought disaster upon them because of their wickedness, and now the cities are in ruins and no one dares to live there. The people infuriated Me when they burned incense and worshiped other so-called gods that neither they nor you nor any of your ancestors ever knew. 4Time after time I would send My servants, the prophets, saying, 'Oh, stop doing these disgusting things. You know I hate them!' 5Still they refused to listen and ignored what I had to say; they refused to abandon their wicked ways and kept burning incense to other gods. 6Therefore, My hot anger was poured out; it raged and burned its way through the towns and villages of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem. That is why they are a desolate wasteland today."

7And now the Eternal God, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, asks: "Why are you doing this to yourselves again? Why are you bringing further disaster upon yourselves and all your people? For there will be no man or woman, no infant or child who will survive this onslaught and return to Judah from this place. 8Why do you stir up My anger with your handmade idols and the incense you burn to the gods here in the land of Egypt where you are determined to live? You will destroy yourselves and become objects of scorn and cursing to the nations of the earth. 9Have you forgotten the evil committed by your ancestors, the kings of Judah and their wives? What about the evil that you and your wives committed throughout the land of Judah and on every street in Jerusalem? 10To this day, I've seen no evidence of sorrow or regret for what has been done by My people. They have shown no reverence for Me, nor have they obeyed My law and the decrees I set before them and their ancestors."

11Therefore, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, now declares: "Look! I have decided to destroy you and bring disaster on all of Judah. 12I will wipe out the remnant of Judah who were so determined to make a new start and settle in Egypt despite My command, and I will finish it there. They will all die in Egypt, from the least to the greatest, either from war or famine. I will make them a horror, a disgrace, an object of scorn and cursing. 13I will punish those living in Egypt with war, famine, and disease, just as I punished unfaithful Jerusalem. 14None of those who made it out of Judah alive and fled to Egypt will survive. None of them will escape what is coming. None of them—except for a few fugitives—will ever return to the land of Judah for which they long.

15All the men who were aware that their wives had been burning incense to other gods gathered in a large crowd, along with the women. They had come from the northern cities of Egypt and the region of Pathros to the south to speak with Jeremiah.

People: 16We will not listen to you or the message you claim comes from the Eternal! 17We are going to stand by our own word: we will burn incense and pour out our drink offerings to the queen of heaven* just as we have always done—just as our ancestors, our kings, and our officials did in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. Back then we had plenty to eat, and no harm came to us. 18But ever since we stopped burning incense to the queen of heaven and pouring out our drink offerings to her, we've not had enough of anything. Besides that, we are being finished off by war and famine.

Women (to Jeremiah): 19Do you think our husbands didn't know and approve of the fact that we were burning incense to the queen of heaven and pouring out drink offerings to her? How could we have baked bread marked with her image and poured out offerings to her and our husbands know nothing of this?

20Then Jeremiah addressed all these men and women who responded so rebelliously.

Jeremiah: 21Do you think while you and your ancestors, your kings and officials, and all the rest of the people were burning incense in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem that the Eternal knew nothing of this? Did you think He would forget or that it would somehow slip His mind? 22Today, your land is an object of cursing, a horror, a lifeless ruin because the Eternal could no longer stand your wickedness and the detestable things you did. 23*Take a good look at* the disaster that has come upon you. It happened because you burned incense to other gods and sinned against the Eternal. It happened because you refused to obey His voice or follow His law and His decrees, because you ignored His warnings.

24(to the entire assembly) Hear the word of the Eternal! You people of Judah who live in Egypt, 25the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has a message for you: "You and your wives have shown where your true devotion lies with both your words and your actions! You say, 'We will keep our vows to the queen of heaven; we will continue to burn incense and pour out drink offerings to her.' Well I say, 'Go ahead. Keep your vows! Do exactly what you promised!'" 26But hear what the Eternal now says to the Judeans now living in Egypt: "I swear by My great name that no man or woman of Judah now living in Egypt will ever again invoke My name or begin an oath with the words 'As the Eternal Lord lives!' 27because I will watch over their lives to bring harm, not good. All the Judeans living in Egypt will suffer from war and famine until all have died. 28There will be only a few who survive and return to Judah from Egypt. All the remnant of Judah who were so determined to live in Egypt will finally know whose word can be trusted—theirs or Mine. 29Here is a sign for you so that you will know I am going to punish you in Egypt. This way you can be sure that My threats against you are not idle—they will come true. 30*And this will be your sign:* watch as I hand over Pharaoh Hophra, king of Egypt, to his enemies who want to kill him, just as I handed over Zedekiah, king of Judah, to his enemy, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.

► To the very end, Jeremiah speaks out against the injustices and infidelities of his countrymen who keep turning to other gods. His words are strong, and Jeremiah lives to see many of his painful prophecies come true. What remains in the following chapters are words surely spoken before the prophet was an old man in Egypt: first is a brief message for his scribe Baruch in the heartbreaking aftermath of the burning of the scroll (36:1-8) and the terrible judgment then declared on Judah; second is a series of declarations or oracles against the various nations surrounding Judah in these historic times.

45 This is the message the prophet Jeremiah gave to his secretary, Baruch (son of Neriah) when he had written on a scroll all the words Jeremiah dictated to him. It took place when Jehoiakim (son of Josiah) had been king of Judah for four years.

Jeremiah *(to Baruch): 2The Eternal, the God of Israel, has given me a message for you, Baruch. 3*He heard you when* you cried out, "Oh my, what pain I am in! As if I weren't hurting enough, the Eternal has piled on even more sorrow. I am so tired from groaning; I can find no rest." 4And so the Eternal has given me this message for you: "Hear Me, Baruch, for I tell you I am about to upend what I have built and uproot what I have planted in this land, in the whole land. 5Should you worry about achieving personal greatness? No, do not chase after such a dream! But take comfort that when I bring this disaster on all people, I will reward you by sparing your life. I promise to protect you wherever you go.

46 The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah concerning the nations.

► Prophets often speak against foreign nations. God is not neutral to the designs and practices of outsiders. These first oracles are directed against the nation of Egypt, who fought and lost the Battle of Carchemish in 605 B.C. Though the fallout was not immediate, this battle was the undoing of Egypt. Babylon is now clearly the dominant world power, and Nebuchadnezzar is her despotic and cruel ruler. But as powerful as he is now and is destined to become, the Babylonian king is only an instrument in the hand of God. By continuing to oppose Babylon and fostering ill-fated political alliances with other nations, Egypt is, in effect, opposing God Himself. God will accomplish what He sets out to do—and all will answer to Him—for God is the God of all history and sovereign over all rulers.

2This message is about Egypt and the army and her king, Pharaoh Neco; they were defeated at Carchemish on the Euphrates River by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. This decisive battle happened when Jehoiakim (son of Josiah) had been king of Judah for four years.

Eternal One: 3Line up your shields, large and small.
March toward the battle!
4Harness your horses; mount your stallions!
Get in position; put your helmets on!
Polish your spears; put on your
armor!
5And what do I see when I look at the Egyptian army?
They are panicked, pulling back
in retreat;
their mighty warriors are already defeated.
Look how they run away so quickly, never looking back, for terror is everywhere they turn.
6The fast cannot outrun it; the mighty cannot escape it.
Beside the river Euphrates in the north, they stumble and fall.
7Who is this I see rising like the river Nile,
like a swollen, flooding river?
8*It is* Egypt that rises like the river Nile,
her pride like a swollen, flooding river.
Pharaoh blusters, "I will rise and cover the earth, like a river.
I will destroy the cities and their people who dare to stand in my way." 9Charge, O horses; go up into the fray! Let your chariots madly rush in!
March, mighty warriors,
summoned to war.
Soldiers of Ethiopia and Libya who carry shields,
archers of Ludim who bend the bow, march to your defeat!
10For this day belongs to the Eternal Lord, Commander of
heavenly armies;
it is a day of vengeance, a day to pay back His enemies.
The sword will devour them until it is satisfied,
until its thirst for their blood
has been quenched.
For the Eternal Lord, Commander
of heavenly armies,
will offer them as a sacrifice
beside the river Euphrates in the land of the north.
11Go up to Gilead to find balm for your wounds,
O virgin daughter of Egypt.
But you will find no relief in your many medicines.
This time your wound will not
heal.
12The nations of the world hear of your shame;
the earth is filled with your cries.
One mighty warrior stumbles over
another,
and both of them fall down
together.

13This is the word the prophet Jeremiah received from the Eternal about the coming of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, to attack the land of Egypt.

Eternal One: 14Make this announcement in Egypt, and tell everyone in Migdol;
proclaim it in Memphis and Tahpanhes as well:
Take your positions, and get ready for battle,
for the sword will devour
everyone around you.
15Why are your mighty warriors lying face down?
They do not stand, indeed cannot stand,
Because I, the Eternal One, have pushed them to the ground.
16These soldiers will stumble again and again—falling over each other.
They will say to each other, "Pick yourself up! Let us go home
To our own land and people;
let us escape the edge of our enemy's sword."
17It is there, in that moment, that they will cry out,
"Pharaoh, king of Egypt, makes a lot of noise, but he missed
his chance."

Between Egypt and Babylon are several smaller nations whose futures hang in the balance. To whom will they submit in the coming years? The first of these smaller states to receive a word of judgment is Philistia. At one time a formidable foe of Israel, this nation has seen its power and influence slowly weakening for the last 400 years, since the time of the great King David. In these days of political intrigue, it is likely that the Philistines have entered into a treaty with the city-states of Tyre and Sidon to the north. These allies are among those considering standing up to Babylon (27:3). Perhaps it is this rebellion against God's greater plan to use Babylon that is the reason for this judgment, or perhaps it is something else He sees in these people who live along the coastal plains of the Mediterranean. Whatever the case, it is God, the mighty warrior, who now moves against the Philistines.

18 As I live, says the King
whose name is the Eternal,
Commander of heavenly armies,
That one is coming who will tower over you
like Mount Tabor over the mountains,
like Mount Carmel over the sea.
19 Pack for the coming exile, you citizens of Egypt,
for Memphis will be a wasteland, a city destroyed and empty of life.
20 Egypt is like a heifer—beautiful, but helpless—
because a biting horsefly from the north is coming against her.
21 The mercenaries in her army are like fattened calves:
they will turn and run, all of them together.
They will not stand their ground, for the day of disaster is coming;
the time for their punishment is upon them.
22 Egypt will slither away like a hissing serpent
as her enemy marches on.
They will come with axes,
like woodsmen who cut down trees.
23 I, the Eternal One, declare, "As thick as the forest of Egypt might be,
they will chop her down,
For they are more numerous than locusts,
their numbers too great to count.
24 The daughter of Egypt will be disgraced;
she will be handed over to this nation from the north."

25 Then the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, gave this word to Egypt and anyone foolish enough to side with Egypt.

Eternal One: Look! I will soon punish Amon, the god of Thebes, and all the other so-called gods of Egypt. I will punish all her rulers, including Pharaoh (who claims to be a god himself) and any who trust in him. 26 I will hand them over to the enemy who wants them dead—to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and his officers. But later, I will restore Egypt. Her people will return in numbers to live there again as in the days of old. I, the Eternal, promise this.

27 Do not be afraid, O Jacob, My servant.
Do not be dismayed, O Israel.
For I will rescue you from that distant land;
I will bring your children home from the exile.
Jacob will again know peace and what it means to feel secure.
No one will make him afraid.
28 Do not be afraid, O Jacob, My servant, for I am with you.
Even if I completely destroy all the nations
To which I have scattered you, I will not completely destroy you.
Remember this, O Israel: I will discipline you out of justice.
I will not let you go unpunished.

47 The word of the Eternal came to Jeremiah the prophet about the Philistines, before Pharaoh attacked Gaza, one of Philistia's five major cities.

Eternal One: 2 Do you see how the waters are rising in the north?
They will become an overwhelming flood.

They will flow across the land, covering everything—
including the towns and the people who live there.
Those people will cry out;
those who live in that land will weep loudly,
3For they will hear the pounding
hooves of the charging horses,
the clatter of enemy chariots, and
the rumbling of their wheels.
Fathers will panic and abandon their children,
their hands limp with fear.
4For the time will come to destroy all the Philistines.
She will find no help in Tyre and Sidon—
these allies, too, will be cut off.
The Eternal will destroy the Philistines,
this remnant from the coasts of Caphtor.
5The people of Gaza will shave their heads in mourning,
for Ashkelon is no more.
You who remain in the valley,
how long will you cut yourselves
in grief?

6*You cry out,* "O sword of the Eternal,
when will you stop?
Return to your sheath, rest from your destruction, and be still!"
7But how can His sword be still when the Eternal has given it a direct order?
For Ashkelon and those along the coast
will be no more!

48 This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, has to say about Moab.

Next is Moab, a familiar enemy of Israel. Despite Jeremiah's warning they will answer for their trust in themselves, their material wealth, and their god Chemosh.

Eternal One: Woe to the city of Nebo,
for she is in ruins.
So, too, will Kiriathaim be put to shame when she is captured.
The proud fortress of Moab will be humbled and shattered
into pieces.
2No one will praise you, Moab—that time has gone.
Instead, in places like Heshbon, men are planning your
destruction.
"Come," they will say, "and let us finish off that nation."
Indeed, the town of Madmen will be silenced,
for war will surely find you.
3Do you hear the voice from Horonaim—
the cries rising up from the ruins and desolation?
4Moab is broken,
and her little ones cry in desperation.
5The defeated make their way up Luhith, crying bitterly as they go;
as they descend to Horonaim,
they hear the anguished
cries of destruction.
6Run for your lives! Save yourselves!
Live in the desert like a juniper
bush, alone and forsaken.
7You depended on your own works
and your own wealth,
and now you will *be humbled
and* taken captive.
Your so-called god, Chemosh, will go with you into exile
along with his priests and officials.
8The destroyer is coming to each of your towns; none of them will escape.
The valley will be ruined;
The plateau will be destroyed
because I, the Eternal One, have spoken.
9Give Moab wings so she can fly away.
Her cities will be a wasteland
with no one living in them.

10A curse on any who do not finish the work I, the Eternal One, have given you! A curse on anyone who holds back his sword and refuses to shed blood.

11Moab has been at rest since his early days—
like wine that is carefully left to age,
Not poured from jar to jar,
not going from nation to nation
in exile.
And so his flavor has remained; his aroma has not faded.

12*But all of that will change.* Look, in the coming days, I, the Eternal One, declare that I will send those who will upend

him, stirring him up and pouring him out until his jars have nothing left. They will empty his jars and smash the empty jugs.

13Then Moab will be ashamed of his pow- erless god, Chemosh, just as the people of Israel were ashamed of Bethel when they trusted in their false gods.

Eternal One: 14How can you still boast,
"We are mighty warriors, brave
in battle?"
15*Because* Moab is destroyed;
invaders have laid waste his towns.
His best young men have gone
down to slaughter.
So say I, the King whose name is the Eternal, Commander of
heavenly armies.
16The fall of Moab is at hand;
his disaster is coming quickly.
17Grieve for him, you neighbors of Moab,
all who know his name.
Say, "Look how his mighty scepter
is broken,
how the splendor of his staff is
gone!"
18You people of Dibon, come down from your glory on the hills and sit on the dry, dusty ground
and wait,
For the same one who destroyed
Moab
is coming against you and will tear down your strongholds
as well.
19Stand by the road and watch closely,
you people of Aroer.
Call out to the refugees running from Moab.
Ask them what happened!
20*And they will answer:* "Moab has been humiliated and crushed.
Weep for him, and cry out.
Go down to the Arnon River and proclaim that Moab has been destroyed."

21Judgment has come to the cities of the plain: to Holon, Jahzah and Mephaath; 22to
Dibon, Nebo, and Beth-diblathaim; 23to
Kiriathaim, Beth-gamul, and Beth-meon; 24to Kerioth and Bozrah. To all the cities of Moab, far and near, judgment has come.

Eternal One: 25*The symbols of his strength* are gone; the horn of Moab has been cut off, and his arm broken.

26Make Moab drink deeply from this cup
until he is drunk, for he has exalted himself above the Eternal. Make him drink until he wallows in his own vomit; then he will be ridiculed by all who see him. 27Did you not ridicule Israel? Was he guilty of a crime?
Was he caught among thieves? Is that why you, Moab, shake your head in contempt
every time you speak of him?

Eternal One: 28Run from your towns and live in the wilderness,
you citizens of Moab;
Hide among the rocks
like doves who nest among the cliffs.
29We have all heard about the pride
of Moab—
so vain and so smug.
We have all heard about her pride and arrogance
and her overconfident heart.
30I, too, know of the arrogant
outbursts, but they are pointless;
empty boasts accomplish
nothing.
31This is why I will mourn for Moab;
for all her people, I will cry aloud;
for the men of Kir-heres, I will moan.
32You who tend the prolific vineyards
in Sibmah,
I will cry for you more than I did
for Jazer.
Your vines once spread as far as the sea, as far as the sea of Jazer.
But now the destroyer has spoiled your summer harvest and sweet grapes.
33The joy of the harvest is gone from Moab's orchards and vineyards.
For I have stopped the flow of wine; no one treads the
grapes.
The land is full of shouting, but they are not shouts of joy.

34The anguish of their cries rises from Heshbon to Elealeh and Jahaz, from Zoar
all the way to Horonaim and Eglathshelishiyah; for even the waters of Nimrim will dry up.

Eternal One: 35I will put an end to idol
worship in Moab, to those who make offerings on shrines in high places and burn incense to so-called gods.

36Like the somber sound of a flute, my heart mourns for Moab. My heart mourns for the men of Kir-heres, for everything they had is gone.

37For every head is shaved, and every beard is cut short;
every hand is cut, and every waist is wrapped in sackcloth.

Eternal One: 38On every rooftop in Moab and on every street
corner,
there is nothing but mourning
Because I have smashed Moab like a jar that no one wants.

39How broken he is! How the people wail!
How the once-proud Moab turns away in shame!
See how Moab has become a
laughingstock
and a horror to all his neighbors.

Eternal One: 40Look in the distance: an eagle will swoop down
and spread his wings over Moab,
his prey.
41The cities will be captured and the strongholds seized.
On that day the heart of Moab's
warriors
Will be like the heart of a woman in labor—helpless and vulnerable.

42The nation of Moab will be no more because he dares to defy the Eternal.
43Terror and traps and snares lie ahead,
O citizens of Moab.

Eternal One: 44If you run from the terror, you will fall into a pit.
If you climb out of the pit, you will be caught in a trap.
There is no escape, for I will bring these disasters against Moab;
the year of their judgment has come at last.

45*Run if you will, but* in Heshbon's shadow the refugees are helpless.
Look! A fire rages from Heshbon; destroying flames leap from Sihon;
They consume the northern regions
of Moab
and destroy his clamoring rebels.

46Woe to you, O Moab! Worshipers of Chemosh are destroyed;
your sons are sent away, your daughters taken captive.
47But even so, in latter times the day
will come
when I will restore the fortunes
of Moab.

This is the end of Jeremiah's oracle of judgment against Moab.

49 Now concerning the Ammonites. This is what the Eternal has to say:

► Long is the history between Ammon and Israel, and many are the conflicts between them. In Jeremiah's day, Ammonite raiders have taken land originally meant for Israel, specifically the tribe of Gad. Along with other nations, the Ammonites have conspired against Babylon. After the fall of Jerusalem, the king of Ammon hires the assassin, Ishmael, to kill Gedaliah at a pivotal moment in the relationship between Judah and Babylon. Time and again, this proud nation defies the God of Israel and His people. They put their trust in their god, Malcam, and they find security in the mountainous region where they live.

Eternal One: Does Israel have no sons?
Is there no one to inherit the land I gave her?
Is that why Ammon's god, Malcam,
has taken the land of Gad?
Why would his people be living in her cities?
2I, the Eternal, tell you the days are coming
when you will hear the shout of war raised against Rabbah, Ammon's capital.
On that day it will be reduced to a pile of ruins,
and the villages surrounding the city will be burned.
Then Israel will take back what was taken from her.
3Weep, O Heshbon, for the town of Ai
is destroyed!
Cry out, O citizens of Rabbah!

Put on sackcloth and mourn your losses.
Run back and forth inside your city walls
Because your so-called god, Malcam,
will be carried into exile
along with his priests and officials.
4You boast of your abundant valleys,
you faithless daughter,
but they are fading away.
You trusted in your own wealth and thought,
"Who could ever attack me?"
5Watch! I will surround you with terror.
I, the Eternal Lord, Commander of heavenly armies, declare this.
You will be driven out of the land in single file,
with no one to keep your exiles together.
6But after this, there will come a day when I will restore the fortunes of the Ammonites.

So says the Eternal.

► Like the relationship between Esau and Isaac—the twin ancestors from whom Edom and Israel descend—relations are often stormy between these two peoples. It is no secret that the Edomites hate the Israelites and often rejoice in their troubles. But it is pride that ultimately is Edom's undoing, for they cannot imagine any enemy penetrating their mountain fortresses. They, too, are part of the council of nations that consider standing against Babylon (Jeremiah 27). As always, Jeremiah instructs that such resistance is an affront to the God of Israel who is using Babylon to accomplish His purposes in history.

7Here now is the oracle concerning Edom, the descendants of Esau, spoken by the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies.

Eternal One: What happened to the wise men of Teman?
Has their insight failed them?
Has their wisdom merely vanished into thin air?
8You who live in Dedan,
run and hide deep in the caves,
For I will bring a disaster on Esau's descendants
when I come to punish him.
9When workers harvest the grapes,
do they not leave some on the vine for those who are poor?
Even when thieves enter your home
in the middle of the night,
do they not destroy and steal only what they need?
10But I will treat Esau's descendants differently:
I will strip them bare, exposing their secret places—no place to hide.
Their children, their families, and even their neighbors will die,
and this nation will be no more.
11Leave your orphans to Me, for I will protect them.
Leave your widows as well, for they can trust Me.

12This is what I, the Eternal, have to say: "If the innocent must drink of this cup of wrath, why do you think you should escape punishment? You will not escape, for you will surely drink from this cup! 13I swear by My own name, the Eternal, that Bozrah, Edom's capital, will become a wasteland, an object of horror, of scorn and cursing; Edom's towns will forever lie in ruins."

14I have heard a message from the Eternal.
An envoy was sent to the nations to say,
"Assemble your troops to attack Edom!
Rise up, and prepare for battle!"

Eternal One *(to Edom): 15Look! I will humiliate you among the nations, make you small and insignificant, despised by all.
16The terror you inspire in others
and your ingrained arrogance have deceived you!
You think you are safe in your mountain hideaways;
you hold the high ground above your enemies.
You may build your fortress as high as an eagle's nest,
but I can still bring you down from there.

17Edom will become an object of horror; all who pass by and see what I have done will shudder and gasp at all of his wounds. 18Just as Sodom and Gomorrah and all their neighbors were destroyed, never to rise again, I, the Eternal One, declare that no one will live there; no one will dare to make Edom their home. 19Like a lion that suddenly emerges from the dense undergrowth beside the Jordan to attack a flock feeding in the lush pasture, so in an instant I will arrive and chase the people of Edom from their land. Then I will put in place a leader of My choosing. For who is like Me, and who can challenge Me? What shepherd can stand against Me?

20That is why you must hear the plan that the Eternal has for Edom, and what He intends to do to those who live in the city of Teman.

Eternal One: The little ones will be dragged away from the flock.
All will scatter when their pasture is left desolate.
21The sound of Edom's fall will cause
the earth to shake.
Their anguished cry will echo to the Red Sea.*
22Look, an eagle is rising, spreading its wings!
Soon it will swoop down and attack Bozrah.
On that day, the heart of Edom's
warriors
will be like the heart of a woman in labor—helpless
and vulnerable.

► Damascus has long been at odds with Israel and Judah, and she controls caravan routes in the region. But she must also submit to the sovereign power of the Eternal.

23*Here now is an oracle* concerning Damascus.

Eternal One: The towns of Hamath and Arpad are put to shame,
for they have heard bad news:
doom is coming!
They are distressed, troubled, and unsettled like the swirling
sea.

24Damascus is weak and helpless; she has turned and run away.
Panic grips her heart;
Torment and pain have grabbed her like a woman giving birth.

Citizens of Damascus: 25Why is this glorious city—this city that gives us so much joy—not already deserted?

Eternal One: 26Her young men will fall
in the streets,
and her warriors will fall silent
on that day.

So says the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies.

Eternal One: 27I will set fire to the walls of Damascus,
a fire that will spread and burn
up the palaces of Ben-hadad.

28Here is an oracle from the Eternal concerning Kedar and the nomadic tribes of Arabia known as the kingdoms of Hazor, all defeated by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.

Eternal One: Rise up and attack Kedar.
Destroy the tribes of the east.
29They will take away their tents and their flocks,
their curtains, their camels, and
all their possessions.
They will shout to one another,
"Terror is everywhere we turn!"
30Run away quickly while there is time!
Hide deep in the earth, people of Hazor.
For Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, has schemed
against you.
He has a plan for your defeat.
31So I tell you to rise up and attack
this complacent nation,
which assumes it is secure—
A nation without walls or gates that lives alone in the desert.
32Their camels and livestock will be the spoils of war.
I will scatter to the wind these people who cut the corners of their hair

* 49:21 Hebrew, Sea of Reeds

And surround them with disaster
on every side,
so I, the Eternal, declare.
33Hazor will become a haunt for
jackals,
a place of desolation for all time.
Certainly no one will live there ever
again.
No one will make it his home.

34Here is an oracle concerning Elam. The word of the Eternal came to the prophet Jeremiah early in the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah. 35This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies has to say:

Eternal One: I will break the bows of Elam's archers—the very best of their military might. 36I will bring the four winds from the four corners of heaven to blow against Elam. I will scatter them to the four winds, and there will not be a nation where her exiles will not go. 37I will shatter Elam right in front of her enemies, before those who want her dead. I will bring disaster upon these people, for My violent anger burns against them. I will pursue them in war until they are no more. 38I will destroy her wicked king and officials and set the king I want on the throne over Elam. 39But even so, in the latter times, the day will come when I will restore the fortunes of Elam.

So says the Eternal.

50 This now is the word the Eternal spoke through His prophet Jeremiah concerning the mighty empire of Babylon and the land of the Chaldeans.

► Babylon is a dominant world power in Jeremiah's time that God uses to accomplish His purposes. The prophet says that even Babylon will answer to God. East of Chaldea, the Persian Empire will take over the region and conquer Babylon. This time the Persian King Cyrus will be used by God to alter the course of events.

Jeremiah now conveys his firm belief that it is the God of Israel—not kings and their armies—who shapes history. He delivers a strong message from God concerning Babylon (who oversteps her bounds in the treatment of Judah and the other nations). Intermixed is Jeremiah's message of hope for those in exile. One day, the people of Judah will return home from Babylon. Those who make the journey will find that God never stops loving them, even as He disciplines them.

Eternal One: 2Tell the nations of the world; announce it to them all.
Raise a flag—get their attention—tell them! Hold nothing back; tell them,
"Babylon has fallen; Bel has been put to shame:
Marduk has been shattered. Her images are disgraced;
There's nothing left of Babylon's idols but broken pieces."

3Now it is Babylon's turn to be attacked from the north; another nation will destroy her land. No one will live there; both man and beast will run away.

4But in those days of judgment and when the time is right, I, the Eternal One, declare this: The people of Israel and those of Judah will come to Me together. With tears in their eyes, they will come and seek the Eternal their God. 5They will ask about the way back to Zion and turn toward home. They will come together and bind themselves to the Eternal in a lasting covenant that will never be forgotten.

6My people have become like lost sheep, and their shepherds have led them astray. They wandered so far from My protection—on mountaintops and hills they lost their way, worshiping false gods, forgetting where I was and where they could find rest. 7And whoever found My lost sheep devoured them. Their enemies said to themselves, "Why worry? We are not the guilty ones here. They are the ones who sinned against their God, the Eternal One, their place of safety, the Eternal One, the hope of their ancestors."

8Get out of Babylon while you can! Leave behind this land of the Chaldeans. Be like the goats at the head of the flock; lead the way home. 9For I am stirring up trouble against Babylon; I am bringing together the armies of great nations to attack Babylon from the north. They will draw up their battle plans and march against her. The arrows of this army will be like those of a skilled marksman; they will not miss the target or come home empty-handed. 10Chaldea will be plundered; all her conquerors shall have their fill of the land's wealth.

This is what the Eternal declares.

Eternal One (to Babylon): 11*Because of your treatment of* My people, because you rejoice and celebrate as you plunder My heritage, Because you dance about like a heifer roaming the grassland and neigh like a stallion as you plunder them, 12Your homeland will be put to shame.
She who gave you life will be disgraced.
She will become the least of all nations,
nothing but a patch of wilderness, a dry and dusty patch of land, a barren desert.
13Because of My anger, no one will live there.
She will be a desolate wasteland.
All who pass by Babylon and see what I, the Eternal, have done will shudder and gasp at her many deep wounds.

(to Babylon's enemies) 14*Prepare for battle!* Take your positions!
Surround Babylon on every side, all you archers.
Shoot at her! Show no mercy! Spare no arrows,
for she has sinned against the Eternal.
15Shout your battle cries on every side!
She has already given up.
Her towers have fallen, and her walls have crumbled.
Since this is My vengeance, the justice of the Eternal,
Do not hold back—take vengeance on her.
Do to her what she has done to others.
16Uproot from Babylon those who plant crops
and those who harvest with the sickle.
When they see the flash from the enemy's sword,
everyone will run away;
everyone will go back to his own land.

17Israel is like a frightened flock scattered by the lions who hunt them. The first to attack and devour them was the king of Assyria, and the last to chew on their remains was Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. 18For this reason, I, the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, promise this: Just as I punished the king of Assyria for the way he treated you, so will I punish the king of Babylon and his land. 19*But you,* Israel, I will bring back to your own pasture. Once again you will graze in the lush fields of Carmel and Bashan; your hunger will be no more; you will fill yourself on the hills of Ephraim and Gilead. 20And in those days when the time is right, I, the Eternal One, promise this: If anyone searches for even a trace of Israel's wrongdoings, they will find nothing. If they look for the sins of Judah, none will be found because I will have forgiven this remnant of My people.

(to Babylon's enemies) 21Go up and attack the land of Merathaim
and those who live in Pekod.
Slay them all; completely destroy them.
Do everything I, the Eternal One, have commanded you.
22The sounds of war can be heard in the land,
anguished cries of great destruction.
23That hammer who pounded the nations of the earth
now lies broken and pounded into pieces herself!
Mighty Babylon—how you have become a horror
to the watching world!
24I set a trap for you, O Babylon, and you fell for it.
Before you realized what had happened,
You were discovered and captured
because you dared to fight against the Eternal.

25*Yes,* the Eternal has opened His armory—
unleashed the weapons of His wrath—

For the Eternal Lord, Commander of heavenly armies, is at work in the land of the Chaldeans.
26Come against her from far away and on every side.
Break open her storehouses;
Crush her cities, and leave her dead in piles like so much grain.
Destroy her completely; let nothing
survive.
27Let her young bulls die by the sword.
Let them all be slaughtered!
Woe to each of them, for their day of punishment has come.

28Hear the clamor of refugees and fugitives, fresh from the land of Babylon. They arrive in Zion to announce how the Eternal our God has paid Babylon back for what she did to His people and His temple.
29Call up the archers to attack Babylon; surround her on all sides so no one can escape. Repay her for her horrible deeds; do to her what she has done to others, because she has proudly defied the Eternal, the Holy One of Israel. 30The Eternal declares that her young men will fall in the streets, and all her soldiers will fall silent on that day.

Eternal One: 31See I am against you,
O prideful one.
I, the Eternal Lord, Commander of heavenly armies, declare
That your time has come:
I will now punish you for all you've done.
32In your pride, you will stumble and fall,
and no one will help you up.
I will set fire to your cities and towns,
and it will devour everything
around you.

33This is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, says about Israel:

Eternal One: The people of Israel are oppressed—
so, too, the people of Judah.
All those who took them captive continue to hold them
and refuse to let them go.

34But their Redeemer is strong;
the Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, is His name.
He will take their side and defend their
cause;
He will give them rest in their own land.
But He will shake the earth beneath the citizens of Babylon.

Eternal One: 35*I will send* a sword against the Chaldeans—
against the citizens of Babylon herself—
against her leaders and wise
men.
36*I will send* a sword against her
diviners;
they will be exposed as fools.
I will send a sword against her
mighty warriors;
they will be paralyzed with terror.
37*I will send* a sword against her war
horses and chariots
and all the foreign troops
fighting alongside her;
They will all become weak like
women.
I will send a sword against her
treasures;
They will all be plundered.
38*I will send* a drought against her water supplies;
they will all dry up Because this is a land filled with images,
and the people are madly
devoted to their idols.

39So the beasts of the desert will roam this land—jackals and ostriches will make it their homes. But never again will it be home to people; from generation to generation, no one will live there. 40As God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah and all of their neighbors,* so does the Eternal declare that no one will live in the land of Babylon. No one will make his home there.

Eternal One: 41Look in the distance and you will see an army marching toward you out of the
north.
A nation of many kings whose size and might you can't imagine
is now awakening and coming
from the remote parts of the
earth.
42They are armed with bows and
spears;
their hearts are cruel and will
show you no mercy.

* 50:40 Genesis 19:24-25

The sound of their massive army,
riding in on their horses,
is like the sound of an angry sea;
They are ready for battle, marching
in formation,
coming to destroy you,
O daughter of Babylon.
43The king of Babylon has received
the news about them,
and his hands fall to his side,
weak and helpless—
Distress has gripped him so,
like a woman in the agony of giving birth.

44Like a lion that suddenly emerges from the dense undergrowth beside the Jordan to attack a flock feeding in the lush pasture, so in an instant I will arrive and chase Babylon from her land. Then I will put in place a leader of My choosing. For who is like Me, and who can challenge Me? What shepherd can stand
against Me?

45That is why you must hear the plan that the Eternal has for Babylon, and what He intends to do to those who live in the land of the Chaldeans: The little ones will be dragged away from the flock. He will leave their pasture desolate. 46The sound of Babylon falling will cause the earth to shake; her cry will echo among the nations.

51 The Eternal has this to say
regarding Babylon:

Eternal One: Watch as I stir up a destroying wind
against Babylon and the people of Chaldea.*
2I will send outsiders to sift through this nation,
separating the wheat from the chaff, laying waste this land.
They will fight her from every side
on that fateful day of Babylon's reckoning.
3Do not let the archers draw back their bows.
Do not let them put on their
armor!
Do not spare the life of one young soldier.
Destroy her army completely.
4They will all fall dead in the land of the Chaldeans;
her streets will be full of the dead and dying.
5For Israel and Judah have not been forsaken
by their God, the Eternal One,
Commander of heavenly armies,
Even though their land is awash with the guilt of their sins
against the Holy One of Israel.
6Get out of Babylon! Escape with your lives!
Do not be caught up in Babylon's
punishment,
For this is the time for the Eternal to avenge His people.
He will pay Babylon what she
deserves.
7Babylon has been a golden cup in the Eternal's hand,
intoxicating the whole earth.
Yes, the nations drank her wine,
which is why they went mad.
8But now Babylon—cup of God's wrath—
has fallen and shattered.
Weep for her, if you can!
Give her something for her pain;
perhaps she may still be healed.

Exiles: 9We would like to have healed
Babylon,
but she was beyond our help.
It is time to leave her and go home
before it is too late,
before we get caught in her coming judgment.
Look, even now it fills the skies,
rising up to the clouds.
10The Eternal has vindicated us;
come, we must tell those in Jerusalem
What the Eternal our God has
done!

11*Enemies of Babylon,* sharpen your arrows and fill your quivers. Get ready to attack!
For the Eternal has stirred up the spirit of the kings of the Medes to accomplish His purpose against Babylon.
He will exact His vengeance for what the Chaldeans did to His temple.
12Raise up the battle flags around the walls of Babylon!
Reinforce the guard. Station
watchmen along the way.
Prepare to make a surprise attack, for the Eternal will see His plan carried through
against the people of Babylon.

* 51:1 Hebrew, Leb-kamai, which means "heart of those who rise against," a cryptic name for Chaldea.

13You who live by the great river with the comforts of your abundant
treasure,
The end has come, and you will lose it all.
Your time has run out.
14The Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies, has sworn by Himself.

Eternal One: I will cover your land with enemy troops
the way a swarm of locusts covers a field.
And they will shout victory over you.

15God alone is powerful enough to create
the earth.
He alone is wise enough to put the world together.
He alone understands enough to stretch out the heavens.
16His voice thunders through the heavens,
and the waters gush from the sky.
He summons the clouds to build up over the earth.
As the rain falls, the lightning flashes at His command;
the wind rushes in from where He alone can store it.
17All of humanity is stupid and bankrupt
of knowledge.
Those who make idols are shamed
by their creations.
What they fashion out of gold are imposters—breathless, lifeless
frauds.
18Their idols are worthless, the work of their hands an embarrassing mockery.
They are doomed to perish under God's judgment.
19The portion of Jacob is not like any of these.
He was not fashioned by human
hands.
Instead, it was He who made all things and appointed Israel to inherit it all.
His name is the Eternal, Commander
of heavenly armies.

Eternal One: 20You are My war club—
My weapon for battle;
with you I shatter nations;
with you I destroy kingdoms; 21With you I shatter the horse and its rider;
with you I shatter the chariot
and its driver;
22With you I shatter men and women;
with you I shatter both young and old;
with you I shatter the young man and the maiden;
23With you I shatter the shepherd
and his flock;
with you I shatter the farmer
and his oxen;
with you I shatter governors and
leaders.

24But now, before your very eyes, I will repay Babylon and the people of Chaldea
for all the harm they have done in Zion.

25I have turned against you,
O mountain of destruction,
you destroyer of the earth.
So now I will raise My hand
against you;
I will roll you down from the lofty rocks where you offered
sacrifices
and turn you into a mountain of ashes.
26*When I am finished with you,*
there will be no stones to salvage—
No cornerstones, no foundation
stones;
you will be desolate forever.

27Lift up a battle flag; let it wave in
the land!
Sound the trumpet—call the nations together!
Prepare the forces for battle against
her;
summon the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz.
Assign a commander to lead the troops against her.
Send in the war horses, seething
like bristly locusts.
28Prepare the nations for battle against her—the kings of the Medes,
their governors and leaders, and
the lands they rule.
29*As the battle rages,* the land
trembles and writhes,
for the Eternal is accomplishing
His purposes against Babylon.
He will lay waste her land
and leave it completely empty.
30Babylon's mighty warriors have stopped fighting;
they stay inside their fortresses,
afraid.
Their strength is gone; they have become as weak as women.
The houses of Babylon are burning, the bars of her city
gates broken.

31 The news travels fast—a runner races to meet another;
the word goes from messenger
to messenger
Until it reaches the king of Babylon:
His entire city has been captured.
32 The river crossings have been taken,
the marshlands have been set
ablaze,
and the soldiers are terrified.

33 This, then, is what the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies and God of Israel, says:

Eternal One: The people of Babylon are like wheat ready to be threshed,
spread out on the floor waiting
to be trampled.
A little while longer and the time
for her harvest will come.

Citizens of Jerusalem (crying out to God):
34 Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon,
has devoured us.
He has squeezed the life out of us
and left us an empty jar.
Like a monster from the sea, he swallowed us
and gorged himself on the richness of Israel
Only to cough us up and throw us
out.
35 "May the violence done to our people be repaid to Babylon," we the people of Zion pray.
"May our blood be upon those who live in Chaldea,"
so Jerusalem prays.

Eternal One: 36 Watch now as I defend your case
and avenge what was done to
you.
I will expose this monster and dry up her sea.
I will deplete her wellsprings.
37 Babylon will be reduced to a heap
of rubble,
the haunt of jackals,
An object of horror and hissing
scorn,
a place where no one lives.
38 O how this nation roars! Like a pack of young lions,
like lion cubs, they growl.

39 And once they are stirred up,
I will lay out a feast and make them all drunk
until they laugh and feel happy.
But when they fall asleep, they will sleep forever.
This is what I, the Eternal One,
promise you.
40 I will bring these proud lions down like lambs going to their own
slaughter.
Like rams and goats they will be humbled.

Prophets see things not as they are but as they will be. Babylon is still powerful, but her end is coming. Jeremiah sees her fall as an accomplished fact.

41 How Babylon* has been captured!
Babylon, the pride of all the earth, has fallen!
How mighty Babylon has become an object of horror
among all the nations that once
feared and admired her.
42 The rising tide of the sea has flooded Babylon.
She disappears beneath its raging waves.
43 Her cities have become an object of
horror.
Her fruitful land has been left
parched, like a desert,
a wilderness where no one lives,
where no wants to go.
44 I will punish Bel, the false god of Babylon;
I will make him cough up all he has swallowed.
The nations will no longer make their way to worship him because even the great walls of Babylon have fallen.

45 Get out of Babylon, My people,
before it is too late!
Run! Save yourselves!
Run! Do not get caught up in the
destruction
caused by My fierce anger.
46 Do not lose heart or give in to fear and panic
when the rumors start to fly in
the land.
Year after year, the rumors will come—rumors of violence and reports of one ruler warring against another.

* 51:41 Hebrew, Sheshak

47 So, look! the days are coming when I will punish Babylon's
idols.
Her whole land will suffer
humiliation,
and her dead will lie unburied
within her borders.
48 Then the heavens and the earth
and all that is within them
will shout for joy over the disaster
that comes upon Babylon,
For the destroying armies will march against Babylon from out of the north.

49 As the slain of Israel fell, so must Babylon fall.
As the slain of all the earth fell,
so must Babylon fall.
50 You who escape the blade of the
sword
must get out now. Don't delay!
Remember Me in that distant land;
remember the Eternal, and think fondly of Jerusalem.
51 In that bittersweet moment,
the remnant of My people will say,
"We are ashamed—we have been insulted by invaders,
and disgrace covers our faces
When we think of foreigners entering the holy places of the Eternal's temple
and defiling it by their presence."

52 But I, the Eternal One, declare that the day will come
when I will punish Babylon's
images and idols;
and the groans of her dying will echo through the land.
53 No matter how high she reaches or how strong her defenses,
I will send enemies to destroy
her.

So says the Eternal.

54 Listen! Hear the cry that comes from Babylon.
It is the sound of great destruction in the land of Chaldea.
55 For the Eternal is destroying Babylon;
He will drown out the piercing sound
of her cries
As wave after wave of her enemies
roars in,
crashing against her, with the deafening sound of battle in the air.

56 A destroyer is coming to attack Babylon;
her mighty warriors will be captured.
Their weapons will be broken.
For the Eternal is a just God who pays accordingly,
and He will repay Babylon in full.

Eternal One: 57 I will make her leaders and wise men drunk
as well as her governors, leaders,
and mighty warriors.
And when they fall asleep, they will
sleep forever,

So says the King, whose name is the Eternal, Commander of heavenly
armies.

Eternal One: 58 The wide and sturdy walls of Babylon will be toppled,
and her massive city gates will be set on fire.
The people toiled to build those walls,
but it was all in vain.
Prisoners from other lands exhausted themselves to build this city,
but their work went up in flames.

► This strongly worded message about Babylon is the last of the oracles against the nations. Such is the message that the prophet Jeremiah is called to give—even while Babylon's power is at its height. And so in 594 B.C., before the final fall of Jerusalem, the prophet to the nations delivers this prophecy to the exiles already in Babylon and—if they choose to listen—to the Babylonians themselves. Jeremiah instructs an assistant to the king of Judah to take this oracle to Babylon and read it aloud. As if that is not enough, he then instructs the man to perform a symbolic act—the sort of thing Jeremiah himself would do if he were there. His willing accomplice will dramatize the ultimate sinking of the Babylonian Empire by fulfilling the prophet's strange request.

59Jeremiah the prophet gave the following order to Seraiah (son of Neriah and grandson of Mahseiah), when Seraiah was accompanying Zedekiah (king of Judah) to Babylon in the fourth year of Zedekiah's reign. Seraiah worked in the king's administration. 60Jeremiah had written on a scroll all of the terrible things that would one day happen to Babylon (those things which you have just read). Once this important message had been recorded, 61he said to Seraiah,

Jeremiah: When you get to Babylon, find a public place and read aloud every single word written on this scroll. 62Then say loud enough for others to hear, "O Eternal One, You have promised that You will destroy this place so that neither man nor beast will live here. Babylon will then be a wasteland forever." 63When you have finished reading the scroll and saying these things, tie it to a heavy stone and throw it into the Euphrates River. 64Then say loud enough for others to hear, "Just as this stone and scroll sink, so will Babylon and her people sink, never to rise again, for they shall be tired after the disaster I, the Lord, am bringing to her."

The messages of Jeremiah end here.

► Jeremiah's words are often not "his" words. Early in life, his mouth is touched by God, and from then on the prophet is God's mouthpiece to the world. Jeremiah thinks with God's mind and speaks with God's voice when the world around him is crumbling (1:9-10). In many ways, he sees the world as God sees it and then shares those visions, no matter the cost. His ministry spans five kings of Judah, few of whom bother to listen to him. He survives public ridicule, loneliness, and attempts on his life. He witnesses his beloved Jerusalem fall just as he predicts. But he knows the faithfulness of God. The Eternal has promised to sustain him through a difficult life, and so He does.

52 Zedekiah was 21 years old when he became king. His reign in Jerusalem lasted for a total of 11 years. His mother was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah (not the prophet of Anathoth). 2Zedekiah committed evil in the eyes of the Eternal, just as Jehoiakim had done. 3All that then happened to Jerusalem and Judah took place because of the Eternal's anger. He finally forced them out of the land and away from His presence. It was then that Zedekiah foolishly rebelled against the king of Babylon.

4King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon brought his entire army to surround Jerusalem. On the 10th day of the 10th month, during the 9th year of Zedekiah's reign, the mighty army of Babylon was camped outside the city and built siege mounds around it. 5This siege lasted 18 months, well into the 11th year of Zedekiah's reign. 6By the 9th day of the 4th month of that year, the famine had become so severe inside the city that no one had anything to eat. Panic was setting in as people feared starvation. 7When a section of the city wall was breached, all the warriors of Jerusalem escaped through a gate between the two walls near the king's garden. Even though the Chaldeans had the city surrounded, these warriors escaped the city under the cover of night and fled east toward the Jordan Valley. 8But the Chaldean army discovered this and chased after Zedekiah, catching him on the plains of Jericho. All of his soldiers had scattered, and he was alone 9when they captured him. They took him to the king of Babylon, who had set up his command post at Riblah in the land of Hamath. It was here that the king pronounced judgment on Zedekiah. 10Zedekiah was forced to watch as his own sons and the nobles of Judah were butchered in front of him in Riblah. 11*This was the very last thing he saw, because* after this Nebuchadnezzar blinded Zedekiah's eyes. He was then placed in bronze shackles and carried off to Babylon, where he remained in prison until his death.

12*About a month later,* on the 10th day of the 5th month, Nebuzaradan (the captain of the imperial guard and trusted advisor of the king) arrived in Jerusalem. This was during the 19th year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign in Babylon. 13He systematically destroyed the important structures of the city. He set fire to the Eternal's temple, the king's palace, and all the houses of Jerusalem. 14All of the Chaldean troops that had accompanied the captain then tore down all the walls surrounding Jerusalem. The capital was now in ruins. 15-16Then Nebuzaradan, the captain of the imperial guard, gathered together those still living in the city, including some of the poor and those artisans who had not been deported earlier. He put them with the deserters who had fled to Nebuchadnezzar and forced them all into exile, far away from their homeland. But he left the remaining poor people behind to care for Judah's vineyards and fields.

17*Before the Babylonian army burned the temple, they proceeded to take everything of value.* They took the bronze pillars at the entrance of the temple and the stands and bronze sea that were inside the Eternal's temple. After breaking them in pieces, the Chaldeans took the bronze back to Babylon. 18They also took the pans, the shovels, the snuffers, the bowls, the dishes, and every bronze utensil that was used during the temple rituals. 19The captain of the guard also took the various sacrificial bowls, firepans, pots, lampstands, dishes, and anything else made of gold or silver. 20The weight of bronze from the two pillars, the sea, the 12 bronze bulls under the sea, and the stands was so great that it could not be accurately measured. These items were very old, for they had been crafted for the temple of the Eternal in the days of King Solomon. 21The bronze pillars were 27 feet high and had a circumference of 18 feet; they were hollow, but the bronze walls of the pillars were about 3 inches thick. 22-23The bronze capital atop each pillar was 7½ feet high and covered with latticework and pomegranates—all made of bronze—circling the entire capital. There were 96 pomegranates on all sides of the capital, 100 total in the latticework around the top.

24*Nebuzaradan,* the captain of the imperial guard, took Seraiah (the high priest) and Zephaniah (next in line to be high priest), along with 3 officers in charge of the gates. 25Of those still in the city, he took the officer in charge of the army and 7 of the king's advisors. He also took the army commander's secretary, who was in charge of enlisting people into the army, and 60 other men. 26-27Nebuzaradan, the captain of the imperial guard, took this entire group to the king of Babylon, whose command post was in Riblah in the land of Hamath. Nebuchadnezzar had them all beaten and killed. This is how Judah was taken from her land and sent into exile.

28This, then, is the number of people Nebuchadnezzar took captive during 3 deportations: In the 7th year of his reign: 3,023 Judeans; 29in the 18th year of his reign: 832 citizens of Jerusalem; 30and in the 23rd year of his reign: 745 people were taken into exile by Nebuzaradan, captain of the imperial guard. In all 4,600 people were taken captive.

► Years later, during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar's son, Evil-merodach (562-560 B.C.), hope emerges. The exiled king Jehoiachin is shown kindness; it seems God has not forgotten them.

31On the 25th day of the 12th month during the 37th year of the exile of Jehoiachin king of Judah, Evil-merodach, king of Babylon, ascended to the throne and showed mercy to Jehoiachin and released him from prison. 32*Babylon's* new king was good to Jehoiachin and gave him a place of honor higher than the other nations' exiled kings in Babylon. 33And so it was that Jehoiachin exchanged his prison clothes for new clothes, and for the rest of his life he dined regularly at the king's table. 34The king of Babylon even gave him a daily allowance on which he lived until the day of his death.

LAMENTATIONS

A communal response to the fall of Jerusalem

By Jeremiah, the heartbroken prophet

Oh, the pain and despair of it all! How can God allow such oppression, such suffering, such agony? There are no words to title this book, only the "aaghh" of grief and despair. And so it begins. The people of Judah are broken, humiliated, and abandoned in the aftermath of Jerusalem's destruction and fall at the hand of Babylon (586 B.C.). Grief can be such dark chaos. Words tumble recklessly, senselessly, out of a heart broken with total despair. But how does one express these dark thoughts? They need shape and order. To get a handle on this sadness, to pull the thoughts together, they are brought under the discipline of poetry. They are forced into the order of an acrostic, or rather four separate acrostic poems. In the Hebrew each poetic set of lines begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet, with the exception of chapter 3 where sets of three lines are set as an acrostic. The words and thoughts are made to conform to this literary device simply to make it possible to bend these horrific scenes into a shape that the people can bear and remember long after the event. In this way, the writer (whoever he may be) can speak the unspeakable. This English translation uses a form of the acrostic without the strict adherence to the Hebrew style. This poetic form is essential to the presentation of the message.

Tradition associates this book with Jeremiah, so the Christian canon places it after Jeremiah's prophecy. There is nothing in the book itself to say who composed its mournful lines, but it was obviously written in the land of and for a people completely devastated by Babylon's victory.

Lamentations is not just the record of a dark period in history, but it also faces head-on some of the most difficult issues that God's people must ever consider. How can a loving God allow His people to suffer in such a horrible fashion? How can a sovereign God let other nations oppress His own? How can pain and utter loss be reconciled with God's mercy, righteousness, and justice? Echoing through these dark moments is the voice of hope, for the Lord is using these harsh measures to bring His wayward people back to Him. From the dust of destruction comes the rebuilding of the nation and the hope of His redeeming love. God's anger may not last forever, but His faithfulness to His covenant promises will. For those who put their trust in God, every day is an opportunity to experience His love and mercy.

1 Aaghh!* Lonely is this city that once bustled with life;
Cheer is empty; like a widow, she is abandoned
and oh, so lonely.
She who was a princess, great among
the nations,
has lost everything and been forced to serve as a slave.

2*Bawling,* she weeps without constraint
every night,
cries herself to sleep, bitter tears
streaming down her cheeks.
Her former friends ignore her;
there is no one there to share her
sorrow;
Companions contend and have betrayed
her;
friends have been unfaithful and
turned against her as enemies.

3*Carried off to a foreign place,* Judah is exiled in misery
and debased by affliction and hard
labor;
She cannot find rest living among the pagan nations.
She tried to run and hide, but in her distress pursuers have overcome
her.

4Despair permeates the very dust of Zion's roads.
Nobody walks them in anticipation of celebration and worship.
No one enters the city's desolate gates *bringing offerings or sacrifices to
God.*
The religious leaders are heavyhearted,
And the virgin women despair.
It's so bitter for dear Zion!

5Enemies of Jerusalem have gained the upper hand.
Her foes prosper against her.
The Eternal One has caused her sorrow
because of her rebellions,
for she acted against Him, willfully,
again and again.
Even her little ones are taken away at the whim of her foes.

6Faded beauty, this daughter Zion.
Her princely young men, like stags,
They have no place to graze, no strength to fight;
they fled to the woods,
Pursued mercilessly by hunters.

7Gone are the days that she remembers,
happy and precious;
Jerusalem wanders aimlessly and remembers what precious things
she has lost—
Things from the old days of David, Solomon, and Josiah.
But now her people have fallen to her enemies,
And in this defeat by her enemies, no one ran to her aid,
and her enemies now snicker and gloat at her downfall.

8Hideous must be Jerusalem's crimes that the city itself is now morally and ritually impure.
Those who once admired her now hate
her.
They strip her naked and laugh.
All she can do is groan
and shrink back, ashamed.

9Impurity clung to her inside the cover of her clothes.
She refused to consider anything but
the present,
Never expecting her impurity would be revealed.
Nobody came forward with comfort—no one.

Lady Jerusalem: See, Eternal One, how badly I suffer
and how my enemies swell with pride.

► The people of Judah and Jerusalem have had many opportunities to recognize their failings. Now they learn that their choices have grave consequences. For generations they have ignored the warnings and continued in idolatry, dependence upon foreign powers, and oppression of the less fortunate. Yes, the sacrifices in the temple have continued, but they have continually turned away from God. One prophet after another has called them back to a life of trust in the Lord, but they still look to others for assurance. Time has run out.

* 1:1 A Hebrew acrostic poem. Each verse begins with a successive letter of the alphabet.

10 Jabbing and fondling, mauling all her treasures, the enemy takes stock.
Foreign nations enter even her holy place, claiming what You decided was off-limits
And forbidden to them—Your temple.*

11 Kept in hunger,
her people are desperate for food.
Once prosperous, they trade her treasures
for nourishment of any kind.

Lady Jerusalem: Look, Eternal One—really see how hated I've become.

12 Look around, you who pass by and go about your business.
Is there any sorrow as great as
mine?
Any pain as great as that which has been forced on me?
No. Because my pain comes from
the Eternal.
It is His judgment, rendered on the day of His intense anger.

13 My bones burn with the wrath of God,
the fire sent from on high.
He laid a trap, then left me, turned me back to the
destruction,
With the shakes, constantly sick
and faint.

14 Now the burden of all my wrongs is a yoke.
God has laid them upon my shoulders,
Bound them around my neck.
He has made sure I'm too weak to support them.
The Lord gave me into the hand of an enemy.
I could not resist.

15 Overwhelmed by none other than
God,
the Lord has determined that all
my warriors are worthless.
He has summoned a meeting of those who are against me to crush the young men who would protect me,
And He has stomped lovely Judah,
virgin daughter,
like grapes in a winepress.

16 Pity, my eyes won't stop their crying; I can't stop.
There is no one nearby to comfort me or revive my spirit,
No one to pull me up.
My children know it—they're left empty,
The enemy has won.

17 Quietly, Zion spreads out her hands,
pleading for comfort.
But no one comes. The Lord forbids it.
God has commanded Jacob's enemies
to surround her.
Jerusalem has become their foe;
she is an impurity among them.

The poetic imagery is violently and sexually disturbing. Zion's captors enter her sacred area and cart off her children. She has been unfaithful to her husband, the Eternal One.

Lady Jerusalem: 18 Right and true is the Eternal One.
I am the one in the wrong: I have rebelled against His law.
Listen all of you peoples.
See how much I have suffered;
My handsome men and my gentle
women, unmarried and unprotected,
have marched away into captivity.

19 Summoning my lovers brings
nothing—
nothing but pain in their betrayal.
The old guard, religious and political leaders,
have died starving here in the
city;
Their search for sustenance failed.

20 Take account, Eternal One, of me;
how miserable I am.
My belly growls and turns;
My heart is wrung out like a rag;
my faults and failings are to blame
because I have been rebellious.
Death is everywhere in the homes;
the sword makes women
childless in the streets.

21 Uncaring, with no compassion from
others,
they know how badly I suffer.

* 1:10 Deuteronomy 23:3

O how alone I am.
My enemies gloat, and You have brought about my misery,
So happy to know I'm in pain.
But You, O God, will make them
as bad off as I.

22Vindicate me and judge their evil
actions
and make them suffer,
As You've made me suffer
for all my wrongdoings.
I'm a wreck, and I groan with a faint
heart.

2 Aaghh! How could the Lord surround Zion in a cloud of His anger
as if He has cast the beauty of Israel down from heaven to
earth?
Majestic Israel, God's footstool, is debased by God's anger in a moment of wrath.

2*Buried beneath the dust,*
Jacob's houses have been swallowed.
The Lord did this without mercy,
shattering her fortresses.
God brought down to the ground
daughter Judah,
and defiled her kingdom and her
leaders.

3Cut down by God's anger,
the pride and strength of Israel falls;
He withdrew His right hand and stood back and allowed Israel's enemies
to wreak havoc in the land.
God has burned and consumed Jacob
in an insatiable fire.

4Deployed like an enemy, God stood poised against Judah—
bow bent, right hand clinched—crashing down
On everything that we admired
among daughter Zion's tents.
The anger of the Lord whipped like flickering flames to reduce it to ashes.

5Enemy of ours—our God—who would have thought?
Yet the Lord chewed up Israel,
Swallowed its mighty palaces;
He spit out fortresses and reduced them to dust.
God increased suffering and sorrow
to a fever pitch in daughter Judah.

6Felling His own dwelling like a garden
hut,
God destroyed His meeting place;
He did away with the sacred festivals
and Sabbaths in Zion,
and in fierce anger
He ignored and spurned our leaders—
our king and priests alike.

7God disdained the most sacred religious spots—
His altar, His sanctuary, the centerpiece of our tradition.
The Lord gave our enemy full charge of
the city,
palaces and all.
And in the temple itself, the Eternal's
house,
they hoot and holler as if it's one of our sacred festivals.

► For generations the Judeans have looked upon the temple in their midst as a comfort and even a protection. Jeremiah stood before the temple and preached to these same people that they should not trust in the lying words of others: "Change your ways and stop what you are doing, and I will let you live in this land. Do not rely on the misguided words, 'The temple of the Eternal, the temple of the Eternal, the temple of the Eternal,' as if the temple's presence alone will protect you" (Jeremiah 7:3-4). Even good things from God can be misconstrued to turn us away from Him. Now the temple itself will be brought low because of the hard hearts of the people.

8Hesitating not for one moment,
the Eternal measured across *the city
of* daughter Zion;
Unrelenting, He was determined to destroy,
to bring the city down with rampart
and wall
To its knees in rubble and grief.

9Into the earth, Jerusalem's defenses, the bars and gates, are sunk—
her leaders, both king and prince, scattered among surrounding
nations,

Gone to foreign places.
Now there is no law, no wise instruction;
The prophets receive no divine visions;
who can see the Eternal's way?

10*Jerusalem* elders of daughter Zion are mute,
dispensing no precious wisdom.
They sit on the ground distraught, clad in sackcloth;
they hurl dust on their heads.
The young maidens of Jerusalem hang their heads down to the ground.

11*Knowing the fate of Zion,* my insides are in turmoil and pour out for Jerusalem, the devastation of the daughter of my people.
I can't see because of the tears for the children in the streets—
I can't stop crying for infants and toddlers too weak to wail.
My people are destroyed.

Little Children: 12Mother, grain and wine—where is it?

Like the wounded,
collapsing in the city streets,
They pine and die
on their mother's breast.

13*My dear* daughter Jerusalem,
how can I tell your tragedy?
To what can I liken this disgrace?
O virgin daughter Zion, would that I could comfort you.
Who can heal your massive injury
that is as deep and wide as the sea?

14Nothing but vanity from your prophets—nothing but worthlessness from them;
They never warned and exposed you to correct your wicked ways
so that things would go well again with no captivity.
Instead, they told divine oracles of lies and deceit,
that everything was fine.

15*On your head, now,* passersby heap scorn; they wag their fingers, shake their heads at daughter Jerusalem.

Passersby: Is this the city everyone thought was so great—a city of perfect beauty and Earth's pride and joy?

16*Pursuing you,* your enemies cut you down.

Enemies: Ha! Would the day ever come? We've got her now!
Look, we've swallowed her whole, destroyed her.
We waited anxiously for today, and we made it happen!

17*Question* the Eternal One about what He has done.
He determined—punished according to the term and tenets
He laid down so long ago.
He executed fierce destruction without pity
And made your enemy glad.
He has made them prevail with might.

18Raise your cry to the Lord with all your might!
Take no relief; be ceaseless in grief.

Lady Jerusalem: Oh walls, may your stones cry out,
cry out for daughter Zion;
Make rivers with tears of sorrow, rushing.
Do not cease from your weeping.

19Stand up and yell in the night with all your heart;
call to God even while the city sleeps during the night watch;
Pour out your heart like water in the presence of the Lord!
Lift your hands and plead to Him for the lives of your children,
For the babies weak with hunger dying on every street corner.

20Take heed, Eternal One!
Look what You've done and to whom you have done this.
Can it be—women eat their offspring, even their tender newborns;
and in the most sacred places of the Eternal,
Priests and prophets are slaughtered?

21*Unable to go on,* young and old fall, lying in the dusty streets.
My strong young men and women, all unmarried,
are attacked and killed by Your sword in Your anger.
You are responsible for this mayhem and misery.
You, God, slew without pity.

22Victims all, You summoned those terrors surrounding me as if You were calling together a sacred festival.
On the day of Your divine wrath
there was no escapee,
not even one survivor.
The ones whom I raised up and made numerous,
my enemy made a complete end
of them.

3 Afflicted, I have seen and know what it's like to feel the rod of God's anger:
2An absence of light and only darkness.
Darkness—that's where God has driven me.
3Against me and me alone, over and
over,
God raises His hand incessantly.

4Bones are broken, skin rubbed off, and my flesh wasted;
this is God's doing:
5Besieged in hardship,
wrapped in *a husk of bitter poison
and* trouble;
6Brought to darkness like those dead and decaying,
and left there alone to live.

7Cut off from every avenue of escape, God has fenced me in
and tied me up with heavy chains.
8Crying and carrying on do me no good;
God shuts out my prayer.
9*Closed in and* blocked by walls of cut stone,
what paths I have left, He has twisted and confused my steps.

10*Dangerous* as a stalking lion or a lurking bear,
God lies in wait for me.
11Dragging me off the path and tearing
me up,
He has left me desolate.
12Drawing back His bow, God aims straight at me with His own arrow.

13*Ever true* arrows, ready in His quiver,
now sink into my gut.
14Echoing taunts ring 'round me from the mouths of my own people, laughing and joking about me all day
long.
15*Enough!* He has filled me with bitterness, saturated me with gall.

16For He crushes my teeth *with a mouth
filled* with gravel;
He humiliates me, trampling me in
ashes.
17*Fragmented,* my self knows no peace.
I cannot remember what it's like to be happy.
18"Failed," I say to myself. "My hope fails in the face of what the Eternal One has done."

19*Grievous* thoughts of affliction and wandering plagued my mind—
great bitterness and gall.
20*Grieving,* my soul thinks back;
these thoughts cripple, and I sink down.
21Gaining hope,
I remember and wait for this thought:

22How enduring is God's loyal love;
the Eternal has inexhaustible
compassion.
23Here they are, every morning, new!
Your faithfulness, God, is as broad as the day.
24*Have courage, for* the Eternal is all that I will need.
My soul boasts, "Hope in God; just wait."

25*It is good.* The Eternal One is good to those who expect Him,
to those who seek Him wholeheartedly.
26It is good to wait quietly for the Eternal to make things right
again.
27It is good to have to deal with restraint and burdens when young.

28Just leave in peace the one who waits in silence,
patiently bearing the burden of God;
29Just don't interfere if he falls, gape-mouthed in the dust.
There may well be hope yet.
30Just let him offer his cheek when struck.
Let him be the butt of jokes.

This is the heart of the lament. Pain and despair are deep and lasting, but God's rejection is not forever because Jerusalem is the city of the Lord.

31*Kept in God's care:*
the Lord won't reject him forever.
32*Kindness prevails:* Even though God torments sometimes,
the greatness of God's loyal love wins
out.

33 Keeping us down: it is not the desire or way of God's heart to hurt and grieve the children of men.

► Hope is realized when the next generation of exiles in Babylonia receive God's mercy and are brought back to the promised land, Palestine, in a second exodus, a journey not unlike what the Israelites experienced as they left Egypt under Moses' leadership.

God surely causes grief and torment, but He also provides kindness that originates from His heart of compassion. The discipline administered by the heavenly Father hurts, but the pain is not lasting and actually reflects His compassion. When the Lord sends affliction, it is instructive, restorative, and temporary. Affliction and judgment may sometimes come from the Almighty, but what always springs from the heart of God is a deep and eternal mercy for His people.

34 Left as captives of the land
to be stomped on and crushed, 35 Legal action and human rights denied
in the very presence of our exalted God, 36 Lord, surely You do not approve it—they deny
one person's rights and a fair trial.

37 Matters not who says a thing will or won't happen
unless the Lord determines that it should.
38 Most High God must proclaim it so—for both good and bad, joy and sorrow come from Him, so 39 Mind your complaint. Why should a person fuss
when faced with the consequences of his own wrongdoing?

40 Now let's search out our thoughts and ways
and return to the Eternal.
41 Now let's lift up to God in heaven
our hearts along with our hands in praise and supplication.
42 Now, let us admit that we persisted in wrong
and You, God, were right to deny us forgiveness.

43 You have wrapped Yourself in anger.
You hunted us down and became our merciless killer.
44 Our prayers couldn't penetrate the cloud
You then wrapped around Yourself.
45 Oh, we are trash: You've made us so in the eyes of all people.

46 Putting us down, our enemies scoff.
They gape and gawk at us.
47 Panic and pitfalls are all around us,
nothing but breakdown and decay.
48 Pouring out from my eyes are tears like rivers
over the destruction of my people, daughter Zion.

49 Quenched? It can't be quenched,
this sorrow in my eyes,
50 Quelled only by knowing that the Eternal looks down from heaven and sees.
51 Quickly I recoil from what my eyes see; I am choked with grief at the fate of the young women of my city.

52 Running me down, my enemies for no reason hunt me, a tiny bird.
53 Rattling my bones with stones thrown down on my head, having flung me mercilessly in a pit.
54 'Round about me and over me, watery darkness closes in.
I cry out, "I'm drowning! All is lost, lost."

55 Saying Your name, Eternal One, I called to You from the darkness of this pit.
56 Surely You've heard me say,
"Don't be deaf to my call; bring me relief!"
57 So close when I've called out in my distress,
You've whispered in my ear, "Do not be afraid."

58 Taking up my cause, Lord, You've been my champion.
You've paid the price; You saved my life.
59 Terrible things have been done to me.
You've seen it, Eternal One.
Judge my case with justice.
60 Their abuses against me are not hidden from You.
You've seen all the awful things my enemies determine to do to me.

61Ugly words and uglier plans they have
for me—
You've heard it all, Eternal One.
62*Under their breath,* my adversaries whispering about me,
devising nasty schemes all the time.
63Unkind jokes at my expense, whether they're sitting around or going to and fro.

64Villains You will return to their recompense,
Eternal One, according to their
deeds.
65Visit them with anguish and an insensitivity to Your words.
Make Your curse fall hard on them.
66Vehemently pummel them. Chase them down, obliterate them
from below the heavens of the Eternal, from the earth itself.

4 Aaghh! The gold no longer shines;
even our finest gold is changed,
And precious gems *from the holy
place*
are scattered and spilled in the street.

2But worse yet, the people themselves, the precious children of Zion, are treated like clay pots formed by a potter—
Now debased and devalued,
but they were once worth their weight in gold.

3Cruelty marks our young women.
Even jackals nourish their young,
But like the stupid ostrich in the desert,
my people don't care *a whit for their
own.*

4*Desperate* infants thirst for milk,
their tongues stuck to the roofs of
their mouths.
Hungry children beg for food,
and no one responds.

5Even those raised with a silver spoon,
swaddled in the richest fabrics,
Are starving, perishing in the streets.
They swarm through rubbish like flies.

6*Forever,* without relief, it seems my city will suffer
more for their wrongdoing than cruel
Sodom did;
With their instant and violent overthrow,
no one wrung hands in despair for that city.

Eternal One: 7*Glory comes in service for* those consecrated to Me;
they are purer and cleaner than
snow and whiter than milk
Their bodies chiseled and healthy,
as polished as sapphires and redder than coral.

8*How stark the contrast; they have suffered so.*
Now they are sullied with
grime,
Unrecognizable on the streets,
skeletal and frail, as dry as tender.

9If only they could have died
valiantly by the sword—
rather than doubled over by
famine,
This long-drawn agony of hunger,
deprived of the yield of the field.

10*Just imagine the injustice:* loving mothers
are forced to cook their babies'
flesh.
Children have become their food!
All because of the destruction of the daughter of my people.

► Is this poetic hyperbole, or could such a horror really have happened? Even today, famine and disease cause devastation in developing nations reminiscent of what this poet describes happening in Jerusalem. Suffering will always exist because sin—rebellion against God—affects every aspect of a culture at every level of society. When Nebuchadnezzar laid siege to Jerusalem in the early sixth century B.C., he did not allow any food or provision to enter the city; he literally waited for God's people in Jerusalem to starve to death. As the executioner of God's judgment, Nebuchadnezzar punished everyone equally, regardless of the severity of his or her sins, because all sin is worthy of death. The people in Jerusalem really experienced God's dark cloud and His frowning countenance.

11 Kindling a fire, the Eternal attacked Zion until nothing was left—not even the foundations.
His anger was poured out
as that angry fire consuming all.

12 Little did they know, thinking Jerusalem could not be breached—not by kings, not by ordinary people, and not by anyone on the earth—
Absolutely no one imagined Jerusalem's enemies would get in.

13 Many and terrible were the crimes that her leaders,
the ones who should be most righteous of all, committed.
Prophets and priests shed the blood of the upstanding
and also the just in her midst.

14 Never had leaders wandered blindly, polluted by the blood they spilled,
Untouchable even by their garments.

15 "Out! Get away from us. We're impure. Do not touch us!"
the priests and prophets yelled.
So they wandered like fugitives, rejected wherever they went.
Even the foreign nations wouldn't take them.

16 Presence of the Eternal is overwhelming.
God has scattered them to the winds.
He no longer held them in esteem:
the priests received no honor, the elders no respect.

17 Quietly we waited for help until our eyes failed.
We hoped and watched for a nation to rescue us.
But we waited in vain: no rescue came.

18 Routinely our steps were tracked
so that we could not even walk our own streets.
This was it, our days at an end;
we were done for.

19 Swifter than eagles in the sky,
they pursued us through the mountains;
And in all the wild places,
they hunted us and lay in wait.

20 Trapped, our king, the Eternal's anointed,
the breath of our life,
was taken to their pits;
Of him we said, "He casts a long shadow that will protect us from the nations."

21 Utter your words of joy: Edom, inhabitants of the land of Uz,
go ahead—be happy.
In time the cup of suffering will be yours too,
and you'll drink so deeply, so perilously as to be intoxicated and stripped naked.

22 Viciously, daughter Zion, your iniquity has been punished.
That is done; your exile is over.
Daughter Edom, on the other hand, is a different story:
you'll be called to account for your sins and uncovered accordingly.

A pun encourages daughter Zion that she will no longer be exiled or "uncovered," but the same idiom condemns daughter Edom, for she will be "uncovered."

5 Remember, Eternal One; don't forget what happened.
Just look at how we are demeaned, disgraced.
2 All that You gave to us has been handed over to strangers.
Even our houses foreigners have taken for their own.
3 Abandoned too early and on our own, we are like fatherless children;
and our mothers, now widows, have nothing either.
4 The most basic necessities, food and water, shelter and warmth, we must pay dearly for.
5 Those pursuing us breathe down the backs of our heavily-yoked necks, driving us relentlessly.
Like overworked oxen, we are exhausted and without rest.
6 So what else could we do? We succumbed to agreements with Egypt and Assyria just so we could get enough to eat and survive.
7 Our fathers sinned and got us into this.
Now they've passed on, and we suffer for it and bear their deeds.
8 Those less capable and less deserving slaves rule;
they are actually in charge of us—
Your chosen ones—and nobody sets it right.
Nobody comes to rescue us from their cruel hand.

9 At risk of life and limb, we seek our daily
food
despite threats of sword and danger
in the wild places.
10 We are feverish with hunger.
Famine's scorching heat burns our flesh like an oven.
11 In the place where God should be—
Zion and the surrounding towns of Judah—
Women, young and old alike,
are brutally raped and violated.
12 Our leaders are made an example, hung
by their hands,
and our elders are treated with
contempt.
13 Our best youths are forced to grind grain relentlessly;
and boys stagger, bent under burdens of wood too heavy.
14 Gone from the gates are *debate, trade,
and the wisdom of* sages.
The streets, too, are silent—the young neglect their music.
15 The joy from our hearts is gone, *utterly
gone.*
Our once-dancing feet now plod
along mournfully.
16 The wreath that crowned our head has slipped and fallen; now it's crushed.
O how we've sinned! Pity us for the punishment we brought on ourselves.
17 We're sick at heart about it all,
blind with the sorrow and grief we caused.
18 God's heaven on earth, our Mount Zion, is desolate
except for the jackals *who haunt only
ruins.*

19 But You, Eternal One, despite all this,
You will abide and rule forever, from generation to generation.
20 Why, then, have You completely forgotten about us?
Why have You turned Your back on us through so many dark days?
21 We are so sorry and have suffered for it.
Eternal One, take us back again,
That we may be restored to You *and You
to us,*
just as it used to be.
22 Or are You so very angry that You've rejected us,
that You've given up on us completely?

EZEKIEL

Judah is taken into exile

The message of Ezekiel, a prophet of God

01 02 03 04 05 06

Born into a priestly family before the conquest of Judah by Babylon, Ezekiel is an intelligent man blessed with a good foundation in God's law. His family's status in Jerusalem prior to 598 B.C. suggests he enjoys a socially prominent life. But power and influence have one major drawback—these are the qualities Nebuchadnezzar is looking for when he deports the chief citizens of Jerusalem in 597 B.C. As the only biblical prophet called by God to minister directly to His exiled people, Ezekiel begins teaching and writing in 593 and continues until 571 B.C. Other than in God's visions, Ezekiel is never to return to Jerusalem. He dies in exile a full generation before the Persians conquer the Babylonians in 539 B.C. and the first wave of expatriates returns to rebuild Jerusalem.

Ezekiel lives and works through one of the most turbulent periods in Israel's history. As a younger contemporary of the prophet Jeremiah, Ezekiel watches King Jehoiakim scheme against the Babylonian Empire and bring about the siege and capture of Jerusalem in 597 B.C. This results in the deportation of a number of key citizens from the holy city, including Ezekiel and the king's son. Now living in exile, Ezekiel prophesies that King Zedekiah—Babylon's puppet king—will do the same thing. When Zedekiah does rebel, Nebuchadnezzar responds by leveling Jerusalem, burning God's temple, and effectively ending the Davidic monarchy. Nebuchadnezzar's destruction of Jerusalem is the turning point for Ezekiel's prophecies. Prior to that war, Ezekiel sounds a lot like Jeremiah—urging his people to return to God and accept His punishment, and prophesying what will happen if they ignore His warnings. But after Jerusalem's destruction in 586 B.C.—when hope appears lost—Ezekiel sees a vision of a restored Jerusalem and gains insight into God's new covenant with His people.

Ezekiel's prophecies of restoration come true. The temple is rebuilt late in the sixth century, and God begins a new work with His people through Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Ezra, and Nehemiah. However, the return from political exile does not produce the ideal existence back home many are hoping for. Political, economic, social, and spiritual realities do not match the lofty visions and prophetic imaginations about the world as God would make it. As a result, many of God's faithful people continue to feel as if there is more to come; and as it happens, they are right.

1 1-2When I was thirty years old, I was living near the Chebar Canal off the Euphrates River among the exiles. On the fifth day of the fourth month (during the fifth year of King Jehoiachin's exile), the windows of the heavens were thrown open and I saw visions of the True God.

► The literary structure of Ezekiel is arranged by how long the exiles have been in Babylonia after the 597 B.C. deportation of Jehoiachin and those with him (8:1; 20:1; 24:1; 26:1; 29:1; 31:1; 32:1; 40:1). The expatriates are counting the days until they can return to their ancestral lands in order to rebuild the temple. If Ezekiel is 30 years old when he has his initial vision, he is about 50 years old when he has the temple vision (chapters 40–48).

3The word of the Eternal One came to Ezekiel the priest (Buzi's son) near the Chebar Canal in the land of the Chaldeans. It was there that the hand of the Eternal settled on him.

4I looked up, and I saw a ferocious and stormy wind coming from the north—a monstrous cloud filled with the constant dance of lightning, surrounded by a glowing, all-encompassing light. At the center of the lightning flashes was something that looked like gleaming metal, 5and within that otherworldly scene were what looked like four living creatures. The creatures had a form that resembled humans, 6but they each had four faces and four wings. 7Their legs were straight like the pillars of a temple, and their feet looked like the hoofs of a calf and shimmered in the firelight like polished bronze. 8They had human hands on all four sides under each wing. All four of these living creatures had faces and wings, 9and their wings touched one another. As they moved, they did not turn to the right or left; they all went straight ahead. 10Each of the four creatures had four faces: a human face in front, the face of a lion on the right, the face of an ox on the left, and the face of an eagle in the back. 11*The features of* their faces were similar. Two of the creatures' wings stretched upward, and one wing on each side of each creature was touching the wing of the creature on either side of it. The other two wings covered each creature's body. 12All of the living creatures went straight ahead wherever the spirit directed them; the creatures moved without turning to the right or left. 13The living creatures had an appearance of something that looked like burning charcoal. Untamed ribbons of fire darted back and forth among them. It was all very bright, and lightning bolted out of the glowing fire. 14The living creatures ran back and forth like flashes of lightning.

15As I observed the living creatures with their four faces, I saw a wheel on the ground next to each of them. 16The wheels glittered like sun-kissed jewels. All four wheels looked exactly alike, each appearing to have another wheel inside it. 17As the wheels moved, they were able to go in the four directions the living creatures faced. They rolled straight ahead, never swerving off to the side. 18The rims of the four wheels were tall and inspired fear, filled with eyes all around. 19*The wheels went wherever the living creatures went:* when the living creatures moved, the wheels stayed right beside them; when the living creatures rose up from the ground, the wheels rose with them. 20The living creatures went wherever the spirit directed, and the wheels stayed right beside them; for the spirit of the creatures directed the wheels. 21When the creatures moved, so did the wheels; when the creatures stood still, so did the wheels; when the creatures rose up from the ground, so did the wheels, because the spirit of the four living creatures was in the wheels.

22Suspended above the living creatures was something like a broad expanse; it had an awesome gleam like a crystal ceiling and stretched wide over them. 23Beneath the expanse, the creatures stretched out their wings toward each other, and each creature had another pair of wings it used to cover both sides of its body. 24-25Whenever the creatures moved, I heard the violent fluttering of their wings, like roaring rapids, like the voice of God Almighty, like the sound of an army besieging a city. Whenever the creatures stopped, they lowered their wings to their sides. As they stood silent, with their wings lowered, a thunderous voice sounded high above the expanse over their heads.

26And above that expanse over their heads was something that looked like a throne made of sapphire. Sitting on that throne high above the earth was a human-like figure. 27From his waist up, I saw what looked to be glowing metal surrounded by an all-encompassing fire. Below his waist,

I looked and saw something like a blazing fire. A glorious radiance was all around Him. [28]The glorious radiance resembled a rainbow that lights up the clouds on a rainy day. This was nothing less than the glory of the Eternal that appeared to me. When I saw the vision of the Eternal and His glory, I fell upon my face and heard a voice speaking to me.

► Ezekiel's strange vision of clouds and fires, light and lightning, creatures with four faces, wheels within wheels, and a throne-chariot is a prelude to his ultimate vision. For a moment he glimpses a humanlike figure seated on a throne; this, he says, is the glory of the Eternal. The word "glory" refers to God's visible manifestation. Though God is unseen, from time to time human beings are given the privilege of seeing His glory. This glory accompanies Israel in the wilderness and resides in the temple in Jerusalem. But Ezekiel realizes God's glory is not restricted to Jerusalem; it is in Babylon with those in exile. The fact that God's glory is seen in Babylon and reported by His prophet offers comfort to those displaced in a foreign land.

2 The Voice (to Ezekiel): Son of man, rise to your feet. I want to speak to you.

[2]As soon as the voice spoke, the Spirit entered me and lifted me to my feet; I listened to what the voice told me.

The Voice: [3]Son of man, I am dispatching you to the people of Israel. They are a rebellious nation that lives in defiance of Me. They and their ancestors have broken loyalties with Me even up to this very day. [4]Go to the Israelites, who are stubborn and hardhearted, and tell them, "This is what the Eternal Lord has to say." [5]Whether this nation of rebels listens or refuses to listen to My message, at least they will know a prophet has visited them. [6]Do not fear them or their words, son of man. Though you will dwell among the thistles and briars of their hostility, though their reactions will make you think you're sitting on scorpions, do not be afraid. Pay no attention to their threats, and don't let their glaring faces intimidate you. They are a rebellious lot. [7]It is vital you feed them My words, whether they choose to digest them or not, for they are a rebellious people.

[8]Listen to what I tell you, son of man. Do not follow their rebellious ways. Open your mouth and eat what I give you.

[9]When I looked, I saw a hand extended toward me. In its palm was a scroll. [10]As I looked on, the scroll was unrolled, and I could see that there was writing on the front and back. It was covered with words of lament, grief, and disaster.

► The scroll Ezekiel is handed is a transcript of what he will report about Jerusalem's fate to his fellow exiles in Babylonia. Although scrolls typically have writing on only one side (the front), the prophet sees that this scroll is covered with writing on both sides. This signals not only the overflowing anger that God harbors for His people but also the scope of the disaster that will overwhelm God's rebellious nation.

3 The Voice (to Ezekiel): Son of man, eat what you find here—consume the scroll you see before you. Then go and preach to the people of Israel.

[2]So I opened my mouth, and He fed me the scroll.

The Voice: [3]Son of man, swallow this scroll I am giving you, and let it fill your stomach.

So I ate it, and these words of God tasted as sweet as honey in my mouth.

The Voice: [4]Son of man, go to the people of Israel and preach My message to them. [5-6]You are not being sent to a far away nation with an unintelligible language. I am sending you to the people of Israel. But if I had sent you to foreign peoples with unintelligible languages, surely they would listen to you. [7]But the people of Israel will refuse to listen to you because they refuse to listen to Me. As I told you, the Israelites are a hard-headed, stubborn-hearted people. 8But I have set your jaw just as tightly and furrowed your brow just as deeply as theirs. 9I have made your head as hard as any rock. Do not be scared or intimidated by them, even though they are a rebellious lot.

10Son of man, take to heart all the words I am speaking to you. Listen carefully to what I am saying. 11Now go to your people, the exiles in Babylonia, and give them My message. Proclaim to them, "This is what the Eternal Lord has to say." It doesn't matter whether they listen to you.

12*Suddenly* the Spirit picked me up, and I heard a loud rumbling sound behind me—it seemed to say, "May the glory of the Eternal One be praised in His holy place!" 13The sound I heard was the sound made by the wings of the four living creatures brushing up against one another and the rumble made by the spinning wheels beside them. 14The Spirit picked me up and carried me away. I was at once resentful and impassioned, but I couldn't escape because the hold the Eternal had on me was strong.

The name Ezekiel means "God strengthens." God makes Ezekiel strong enough to face many challenges and accomplish his mission, but his strength is no match for God's.

15*The Spirit* took me to a group of the exiles who lived by the Chebar Canal at Tel-abib. I sat there among them in a daze for seven days.

16After those seven days of confusion, the word of the Eternal finally came to me.

Eternal One: 17Son of man, I have appointed you a sentry for the people of Israel. Listen to what I say, then deliver My warning to them. 18If I send this message to a wicked person—"You will die"—but then you fail to warn him or help him to reconsider his wickedness so that he may not die, then he will die as a result of his evil deeds. It will be your fault for not warning him. His blood will be on your hands. 19But if you do forewarn a wicked person and give him My message, and yet he does not change his wicked thoughts and actions, then he will die as a result of his evil deeds. But you will have saved your own life by doing what I directed. 20Or again, when a righteous person turns his back on righteousness and falls into evil, then I will place a stumbling block before him, and he will surely die as well. Since you haven't alerted him, he will die for his evil ways. None of the righteous things he did will be remembered, and I will hold you responsible for his death. 21But if you do forewarn a righteous person not to give in to sin, and he does not sin, he will certainly live because he listened to your warning, and you will have saved your own life by doing what I directed.

22There the hand of the Eternal came upon me, and His voice spoke to me:

Eternal One: Get up, and venture out to the plain near Tel-abib. I will speak to you there.

23So I stood up and ventured out to the plain where I saw the glory of the Eternal looming there—the same glory I had seen earlier by the Chebar Canal. I was overwhelmed, so I fell down with my face on the ground. 24The Spirit entered me, lifted me to my feet, and spoke to me.

Eternal One: Go inside your house and shut the door behind you. 25Son of man, they will tie you up with ropes so that you cannot get out of your house and walk among your fellow exiles. 26I will stick your tongue to the roof of your mouth so that you cannot speak to warn them because they are a rebellious lot. 27But when I speak to you the next time, I will reopen your mouth, and you will proclaim to them, "This is what the Eternal Lord has to say." At that point, it's each person's choice whether to listen. Some will listen; others will refuse because they are a rebellious lot.

► Like other prophets, Ezekiel often acts out his messages in bizarre ways. These chapters contain a series of prophetic actions that communicate God's message in powerful, nonverbal ways. By dramatizing God's plan before an audience, a prophet is better able to change the people's perceptions, attitudes, and behaviors because they can see an outcome instead of just imagining it.

4 Eternal One: Now, son of man, put a brick in front of you, and draw a picture of the city of Jerusalem on it. 2Then lay siege against it: build a wall around it and place a siege ramp against it; prepare to attack it by placing tiny battering rams and pitching tiny camps around it. 3Then take an iron pan and put it between you and the city to represent the iron wall My people have put between them and Me. Turn your face toward it to show that Jerusalem will be under siege. This will be a sign to the people of Israel.

4Then lie down on your left side, facing the Jerusalem brick, and place all of Israel's sins on you. You are to carry their sins for as long as you lie on your left side. 5I have decided you will represent the carrying of sins the exact number of days as the years of their sin. For 390 days, you will carry the wickedness of Israel's Northern Kingdom. 6After you have completed this, lie down again, this time on your right side. While you lie down on your right side, you carry the sins of the people of the Southern Kingdom, Judah. This time, you are to lie on your right side for 40 days, one day for each year of their wickedness. 7Turn your face toward the siege on Jerusalem, and preach to her with raw passion, with your arm bared ready to strike. 8I will see that you are tied up with ropes so that you cannot turn from side to side or move until the days of your siege are completed.

9Then take wheat and barley, beans and lentils, millet and spelt; store them together in one crock; use them to make bread for yourself during the siege. Eat the bread during the 390 days you are lying on your left side. 10Eat no more than 8 ounces of bread per day, and eat your portion at set times each day. 11Drink no more than 11 ounces of water each day, and drink it at designated times. 12Eat the bread in the same manner you would eat a barley cake. Let the people see you bake it, and use human excrement instead of animal dung as fuel. 13This is exactly what will happen to the people of Israel. They will be forced to eat their bread defiled and impure when I drive them to other nations.

Ezekiel: 14Never, Eternal Lord! I have never defiled myself in such a way. Since childhood, I have never eaten anything that is impure—nothing diseased or ripped apart by wild animals.* Not a morsel of impure meat has ever been in my mouth.

Eternal One: 15All right then, I'll let you bake your bread over cow dung instead of human excrement.

16-17Son of man, I am going to cut off the food supply from Jerusalem. The people will slowly starve, living off minimal rations of food and water. As they eat their morsels of bread and drink their minimal ration of water, they will be constantly worrying about what they will eat and drink the next day. When bread and water become more and more scarce, everyone will look at each other in horror. They will slowly waste away beneath the weight of their sins.

5 Eternal One: Now, son of man, take a sharp sword and use it as a straight razor to shave your head and beard. Then take scales and divide the hair up by weight into thirds. 2When the days prescribed for the siege are over, take a third of the hair and burn it in a fire within the city walls. Then take another third and thrash it with a sword all around the city. Scatter the last third of the hair to the wind. Then I will draw My sword and chase them! 3Keep a few strands of the hairs and tie them to the edges of your garment. 4Take some of these extra strands of hair and fling them into the fire to burn them up. From there, a fire will spread to the whole house of Israel.

5This is what the Eternal One says:

Eternal One: This stands for Jerusalem. I have placed her at the center of all nations, with countries surrounding her. 6Yet she has defied My teachings and acted more wickedly than any of the other nations living around her; she has rejected My decrees and ignored My guidance. 7This is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say: You have been more rebellious toward My guidance and decrees than any other nation, choosing not to live even under the ethical and moral standards of other nations, and certainly not under My laws. 8Therefore, I say, I am no longer your ally, Jerusalem. I am your enemy! I am going to punish you in front of all nations. 9Because of your shocking actions, I am going to do something I have never done before and will never do again: 10*The day will come when* fathers will devour their sons, and sons will feed off their fathers' flesh. This is how I will punish you and scatter the few of you who survive to the wind.

► When a powerful army surrounds the walls of a city, it cuts off the people's access to their fields, animals, and water sources. If the siege lasts long enough, death is inevitable for those inside the city walls. As the bodies pile up and hunger becomes unbearable, cannibalism may be the only way to stay alive. There is something horrid about cannibalism. The notion that parents may be reduced to eating their children disrupts every natural impulse a parent has. But Scripture teaches that those who break God's law and violate His holiness may be cursed with this punishment (Leviticus 26:29).

Eternal One: 11Consequently, as surely as I live, because you have degraded My holy sanctuary with all your detestable images and shocking actions, I will leave you. I will shed no tears of compassion over you. 12One-third of your people will suffer during the siege, starving to death or dying from disease within the city walls. Another third of you will die in battles outside of the city walls as they try to escape. The remaining third will be scattered to the winds, and I will draw My sword and chase after them.

13After this My anger will subside. I will not be satisfied until I have unleashed My fiery judgment on them. Then they will know that I, the Eternal One, am the one who commanded all of this, for I jealously desire their devotion. 14When I am finished with you, your nation will lie in ruins. You will be mocked and ridiculed by the nations around you and those who pass by. 15You will become a byword to the nations, a warning to the world as they watch your horrific downfall when I punish you with anger, with fury, and with fiery judgment. I, the Eternal One, have spoken. 16When I shoot My deadly arrows of famine and war at you, I will shoot to kill. I'll curse you with more famine and cut off your food supply. 17And when the famine has run its course, I will send savage beasts to attack you and eat the rest of your children. Plague, disease, murder, and bloodshed will pass through your land as I wage war against you!

I, the Eternal, have spoken.

6 The word of the Eternal came to me about Israel's coming destruction.

The personification of the mountains and land of Israel emphasizes the severity of the situation. The actions of God's wayward people not only defile them—they defile the land.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, turn your gaze to the mountains of Israel; prophesy against them. 3Tell the mountains of Israel to listen to the word of the Eternal Lord. I have a message for the high mountains and green hills, riverbeds and lush, fertile valleys: I am bringing the weapons of war against you, and I will demolish the shrines on your heights. 4Your sacrificial altars will be ruined, your incense altars smashed. I will throw down your slain before your lifeless idols. 5I will lay the remains of the dead Israelites in front of your lifeless idols; and I will scatter your bones around your altars so the place is contaminated with death. 6In every place you live, the towns will be left in ruins and the high places will be rubble so that every place becomes a desolate wasteland. Your sacrificial altars will be destroyed and abandoned, your idols crushed and flattened, your incense altars smashed, and all you have created will be wiped out. 7Your towns will be full of corpses. Then you will know I am the Eternal One.

8But I will spare a few of you, and those who escape My punishing war will be scattered throughout other lands and nations. 9In the nations where they have been taken as exiles, those who have been spared will remember Me—how I have been wounded by their promiscuous hearts that turned away from Me, how I have been hurt by their wandering eyes that desired lifeless idols. They will hate themselves for the evil they have done and for their detestable actions. 10Then they will know I am the Eternal One. They will understand I did not utter empty threats when I said I would bring disaster on them.

11Here is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say: Clap your hands together, stomp your feet, and shout, How awful it will be for the people of Israel because of all the evil, shocking actions they have committed. They will be slain. War, famine, and disease will fall upon them! 12Those who are far away will die of disease; those who are near will fall in battle; those who are spared will die of starvation. This is how I will spend My wrath on them. 13After all the destruction, you will know I am the Eternal—when the rotting corpses of their slain are spread out among their fallen altars and shattered idols, on every green hill and high mountaintop, beneath every green tree and leafy oak, any place they offered sweet incense to their breathless idols. 14Wherever they live, I will stretch out My hand against them and make their land an empty wasteland, from the wilderness to Diblah. Then they will know I am the Eternal One.

God is concerned about the glory of His name, so He must punish Jerusalem and the Judean population for their adulterous rebellion. Ironically, it is in the very places where God desires to have sweet and unhindered fellowship with His people that all types of lewd, profane acts of worship transpire. If there is any confusion as to what the Eternal is planning to do, then one need look no further than Ezekiel's daily behavior.

7 The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, this is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say to the land of Israel:

The end! The end has arrived for the four corners of the land and everyone in it.
3The end is upon you,
and I will release My wrath against you.
I will judge you according to your ways,
and I will repay you for all your shocking actions.
4I will not look on you with pity or spare you—
I will fully repay you for your shocking behavior and despicable deeds.
Then you will know I am the Eternal One.

5This is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say:
Wave after wave of evil is coming!
6The end has arrived! The end has arrived!
It has awakened against you! It has arrived!
7Doomsday has come for all who live in this land.
The time has arrived; the day is near;
There is no joy upon the mountains—
only shouts of alarm and horrifying terror.
8It won't be long now until I pour out My wrath on you,
until I unleash My fierce anger against you;
I will judge you according to your ways
and repay you for all your shocking actions.
9I will not look on you with pity or spare you.
I will fully repay you for your shocking behavior and despicable deeds.
Then you will know it is I, the Eternal, who have crushed you.

10Look, the day is here! It has arrived!
Your doom has erupted.
The rod has budded; conceit has blossomed!
11*The consequence*—violence—has grown up into a rod to punish the wicked;
no one will be left, not one of the many!
No wealth, no valuables will be left from this doomsday.
12The time has arrived; the day is now.
Buyer, don't celebrate; seller, don't grieve,
for My anger will come to burn all of you!

13The seller won't regain his treasures
while they both live;
for the vision has to do with everyone, and no one will escape My wrath!
Because of each person's iniquity,
no one will be able to hold onto his life.

14Though the trumpet will sound to get everything ready,
no troops will march into battle
because My wrath is against all the people of Jerusalem.
15The sword falls on anyone outside *the
city*;
disease and famine ravage those who remain inside.
Those in the open will die by the sword;
those inside the city walls will be consumed by famine and disease.
16The survivors will run for the mountains and moan like doves because of their sins.
17Every hand will go weak and limp;
every knee will turn to water.
18They will dress in sackcloth,
and horror will cover them.
Their faces will be plastered with
shame,
and their heads will be shaved.
19They will throw their silver into the streets
and treat their gold as impure,
worthless,
Once they discover their silver and gold cannot rescue them
on the day the Eternal ignites His fierce anger.
They will not satisfy their hunger or fill their bellies with their riches,
for their earthly riches are what made them stumble into sin.
20They took pride in their attractive jewelry
and constructed breathless idols
and disgusting images with it.
Therefore, I will make their riches
impure and disgusting to them.
21I will give their religious rubbish away to strangers
as the wicked marauders of the earth loot and defile their treasures.
22I will turn My head
so they may desecrate My treasured
place;
Pillagers will enter into it, profane it,
and vandalize it.

23Forge a chain,
for the land is soaked in blood and
violence,
And the city is brimming with brutality!
24I will stir up the very worst of the nations
to take possession of their houses.
I will put an end to the strong ones' pride,
and their most sacred sites will be desecrated.
25When the horror of My wrath comes,
they will look for a calm place,
but there will be nothing but torrential terror.
26One disaster after another will hit them;
one bad report after another will come to them.
Then they will seek a vision from any prophet,
but no instruction in the law from the priest
and no wise counsel from the elders
will be found.
27The king will grieve,
the prince will wrap himself in
despair,
and the hands of the common people will tremble.
I will deal with them according to the way they dealt with others;
I will judge them according to way
they judged others.

Then they will know I am the Eternal One.

8 Fourteen months after my first vision, on the fifth day of the sixth month of the sixth year, while I was sitting at my house, the elders of Judah came to me. The hand of the Eternal Lord fell upon me, and I had a vision. 2I looked, and I saw what appeared to be a human—just as in my first vision. From his waist down I saw something like radiant fire, and from his waist up it was like gleaming metal surrounded by a glowing light. 3He held out what looked to be a hand and seized me by the hair. The Spirit hoisted me up between heaven and earth and transported me—through a vision of God—to Jerusalem. I was taken just inside the entrance of the gate to the inner court that faces north where the infuriating image sat—the image that arouses God's jealousy. 4Right in front of me was the glory of the God of Israel, just as I had seen before in the plain.

Eternal One: 5Son of man, lift your eyes and look northward.

So I looked to the north, and I couldn't help noticing the infuriating image that arouses God's jealousy beside the entrance to the altar's gate.

Eternal One: 6Son of man, do you see what they are doing right in front of the temple? The people of Israel are committing shocking actions that drive Me away from My own sanctuary! But you will see them doing things far worse than this.

7He then led me to the entrance of the temple court. I looked and saw an opening in the wall.

Eternal One: 8Son of man, dig through this wall.

So I dug through the wall, widening that small hole until I saw another entrance.

Eternal One: 9Go inside, and witness the shocking sins being committed by the people of Israel.

10And so I went in and looked around. It was unbelievable! There were engravings all over the wall of every forbidden thing—reptiles, impure animals, and all the lifeless idols worshiped by the people of Israel. 11In front of the idols stood the 70 elders of Israel's community, worshiping. Even Jaazaniah, son of Shaphan (a leader of Josiah's reforms), was standing with them. Each one of the elders held a censer, and a perfumed cloud of incense was ascending from them.

Eternal One: 12Son of man, are you seeing what each of the elders of Israel is doing in the dark with their carved images? They are foolish enough to say, "The Eternal does not see what we are doing since He abandoned the land to our Babylonian conquerors and their gods."*

13*This isn't even the worst of it.* You will see them doing things far more shocking than this.

14Then He led me to the entrance of the north-facing gate of the Eternal's own sanctuary, and on the edge of the holiest ground in Judah, I saw women sitting around weeping for Tammuz.

Tammuz is a Babylonian god who descends every year into the underworld when the vegetation begins to die. Weeping is part of the religious rites performed for him.

Eternal One: 15Are you seeing this, son of man? You will see things far more shocking than this.

16Then He led me to the inner court of the Eternal's temple. There, in that sacred place between the portico and the altar of burnt offerings, were roughly 25 men. They all had their backs to the temple of the Eternal One so they could face the east and bow to the rising sun.

Eternal One: 17Are you seeing this, son of man? It's bad enough that the people of Judah partake in the kind of shocking things that are happening here. But do they have to fill the land with violence and continue to arouse My anger with their disgusting acts over and over again? Look, they are putting the branch to their nose!* 18This is why I will respond in anger. I will not spare them or shed a single tear of compassion for them. No matter how loudly they plead to Me, I will not listen to them!

9 Then I heard Him exclaim a judgment on the people of Jerusalem.

Eternal One: Heavenly executioners, approach the city! Have your weapons in hand!

2I then saw six men marching from the direction of the upper gate which faces north. Each of them had a deadly weapon in hand. Another man accompanied God's executioners. He was clothed in linen and carried a writing kit at his side. All of them entered and stood next to the bronze altar.

3The glory of the God of Israel rose up from the winged guardian* where it had rested and moved to the doorway of the temple. Then the Eternal called to the man who was dressed in linen—the one carrying the writing kit at his side.

Eternal One: 4Go through this city, yes Jerusalem, and put a mark on the forehead of all those who are grieved by the shocking things going on in the city.

5I listened as He addressed the other six, the heavenly executioners.

Eternal One: Follow this man through the city, and kill. Don't shed a single tear of compassion. 6Obliterate the old people,

* 8:12 2 Kings 24 * 8:17 Meaning of the manuscripts is uncertain. * 9:3 Hebrew, cherub

The elders who come to Ezekiel to hear this vision must be confused. Jerusalem, they think, has already suffered enough. Surely it will not suffer more. But that is wishful thinking, not the prophet's message. The subjugation of Judah to Babylon takes place over about 20 years. The Babylonians first assaulted Jerusalem in 605 B.C. and took some of the chief citizens into exile. Then in 597 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar laid siege to Jerusalem for 3 months, captured the city, looted the temple and palace, and deported many of the most prominent people to Babylon. The current exiles can hardly imagine anything worse, but it will happen. In 586 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar will return to Jerusalem, and this time he will leave nothing but ashes. After a grueling 18-month siege, Nebuchadnezzar will break through Jerusalem's wall and level it, take whatever riches he desires, burn every building (including God's temple) to the ground, and deport what few people survive the battle. This final battle and conquest will decimate God's home; it will leave Jerusalem in ruins. There will be no place left for the exiles to return.

young people, even women and children. Slaughter them all! But don't lay a finger on anyone with the mark on his forehead. Begin at My sanctuary.

So the executioners started by killing the elders in front of the sanctuary.

Eternal One: [7]Defile the sanctuary: fill the courts with the bodies of the slain! Go!

So they continued their slaughter in the city. [8]While they went out to kill the people, I was left alone. I fell down and buried my face in the ground. I cried out to God.

Ezekiel: O Eternal Lord! Do You intend to wipe out everyone left in Israel the way You unleashed Your anger on Jerusalem?

Eternal One: [9]The sins committed by the people of Israel and Judah are very great and serious indeed. The land is saturated with blood. The city has perverted justice. They all say, "The Eternal has abandoned the land to our Babylonian conquerors and their gods, so He doesn't see anything." [10]Therefore, I will not spare them or shed tears of compassion. I will set their deeds on their heads. They have done this to themselves.

[11]Right then, the man clothed in linen and carrying the writing kit at his side returned and said, "I have done as You commanded."

10 Then I looked and saw what looked like a throne made of sapphire up above the expanse over the heads of the winged guardians.* [2]God spoke to the man clothed in linen.

► These fantastic winged creatures are the same living beings Ezekiel encounters in his initial vision (chapter 1). They serve two purposes in Scripture: accompanying the presence of God—as Ezekiel describes twice—and guarding some of God's holiest places. Creatures like these, of course, strike fear in anyone who sees them; their otherworldly appearance is perfect for decorating the covenant chest in the temple and guarding the way to the garden of Eden (Genesis 3:24). The creatures' fantastic appearance has inspired artists and craftsmen for generations. Depictions of these heavenly creatures appear all over the temple and the tabernacle; they are sewn into tapestries, engraved on walls, and used to decorate tools of worship.

Eternal One: Go among the spinning wheels beneath the winged guardians; gather the burning charcoal among them into your hands, and then spread the coals over the city.

While I was watching, the man clothed in linen went among the wheels.

[3]Now the winged guardians stood on the south side of the temple when the

* 10:1 Hebrew, cherubim

man clothed in linen entered. A great cloud filled the inner court. 4Then the glory of the Eternal rose above the guardians and moved to the doorway of the temple. The cloud swelled and filled the temple, and the court was full of the blazing presence of the glory of the Eternal. 5The otherworldly sound made by the guardians' wings could be heard as far away as the outer court and sounded like the voice of God Almighty.*

6When God instructed the man clothed in linen, "Remove fire from among the wheels that sit next to the winged guardians," the man went and stood next to a wheel. 7Then one of those creatures reached into the fire burning among them, grabbed hold of some of the fiery coals, and placed them into the hands of the man wearing linen. The man took them and left the temple court. 8*It was then I noticed that* underneath the wings of the creatures were what looked like human hands.

15Then the winged guardians ascended. These were the same living creatures I had seen earlier near the Chebar Canal. 16When they moved, the wheels stayed right beside them. When the guardians stretched out their wings to rise from the ground, the wheels followed after them. 17When the guardians stood still, so did the wheels. And when they flew up, so did the wheels, because the spirit of the four living creatures was in the wheels.

20These were the same living creatures I had seen beneath the God of Israel near the Chebar Canal. I understood that they were the heavenly winged guardians. 21Each of the living creatures had four faces and four wings, and beneath each wing was what looked like human hands. 22Their faces looked exactly like the faces I had seen near the Chebar Canal. Each of them went straight ahead.

11 Then the Spirit lifted me up and transported me to the eastern gate of the Eternal's house. I saw 25 men standing at the entrance of the gate. I recognized 2 leaders among them—Jaazaniah (Azur's son) and Pelatiah (Benaiah's son).

Eternal One: 2Son of man, these are the ones concocting evil plans and pushing wicked schemes on the city. 3They say, "This is not a good time to build houses. The city of Jerusalem is like an iron pot, and we are the meat inside it." 4Therefore, prophesy against them, son of man; speak My message to them.

5Then the Spirit of the Eternal came over me and said to me:

Eternal One: Tell them this is what the Eternal has to say: Those may be your secret thoughts, people of Israel, but I know what's going on in your minds. 6You have murdered masses of people in this city, and you have filled the streets with dead bodies. 7The corpses you have scattered in the streets are the meat, and this city is the pot; but I will make sure you are taken out of this city. 8Since you fear war, that is exactly what I will bring against you.

I, the Eternal Lord, declare that. 9After I drive you out of the city, I will give you over to the control of foreigners, and they will punish you! 10You will die in battle, and My judgment will fall on you as you flee for the border of Israel. Then you will know I am the Eternal One. 11This city will not be a protective pot for you, and you certainly won't be the meat tended within it. I will execute My judgment against you all the way to the border of

* 10:5 Hebrew, El Shaddai

Israel, [12]and you will know I am the Eternal One. You have been careless with My laws and disregarded My instructions, mindlessly conforming to the standards of the nations around you.

[13]As I was prophesying, Pelatiah (Benaiah's son) died. Then I fell to the ground, face down, and exclaimed in a loud voice, "Hear me, Eternal Lord! Will You do away completely with the remnant of Israel?"

[14]At this, the word of the Eternal came to me:

Eternal One: [15]Son of man, your people in exile—your own relatives, your countrymen, and the whole nation of Israel—are the ones the citizens of Jerusalem have disparaged, saying, "They have been taken far away from the Eternal. This land is ours now. It has been given to us to keep." But they are mistaken. It is those in exile whom I will redeem.[16]Give the citizens of Jerusalem My message. "Tell them that I, the Eternal Lord, drove them far away from My temple and scattered them among other countries, but I have still been a sanctuary for them during this time in those other lands where they have gone." [17]Then deliver My message to the exiles. "Tell them that I, the Eternal Lord, will gather you and reassemble you from the places where I scattered you, and I will return your inheritance—the land of Israel—to you because you are My true children."

► Ezekiel may seem like a prophet of doom and gloom, but like most prophets he sees beyond judgment to God's restoration of His people. The only hope for the Judean exiles is that they be given a new heart and spirit from their Creator. The prophet receives this optimistic message again and again. Although divine punishment is severe, divine rescue will eclipse any tragedy because God will recreate His people.

Eternal One: [18]When they return home, they will demolish all the disgusting idols and remove all the shocking images from the land. [19]I will give them a new will—an undivided heart—and plant a new spirit within them; I will remove their cold, stony heart and replace it with a warm heart of flesh. [20]Then they will follow My commands and uphold My laws and actually do as I say. They will be My people, and I will be their God. [21]As for those who remain dedicated to their disgusting idols and shocking images, the very things they have done will be brought down upon them as judgment.

So said the Eternal Lord.

[22]Then the winged guardians* stretched out their wings, the wheels moved along with them, and the glory of the God of Israel hovered above them. [23]The glory of the Eternal arose from the center of the city and began to move east, stopping momentarily above the mountain to its east called the Mount of Olives. [24]The Spirit snatched me up and brought me in a vision given by God's Spirit to the exiles in the Chaldea. Then the vision left me, [25]and I told the exiles everything the Eternal had revealed to me.

12 The word of the Eternal One came to me again, this time over two days.

Eternal One: [2]Son of man, you are living among a rebellious lot. They have eyes, but they do not see. They have ears, but they do not hear. They are a rebellious lot. [3]Because of this, son of man, act as if you are being sent into exile. I want you to go pack your bag and go about from one place to another so that everyone can see you leaving. Then perhaps they will understand what you're demonstrating, although they are a rebellious lot. [4]During the day, bring out the bag you have packed for the journey where they can see you; in the evening, while they watch, leave the city as if you are going into exile. [5]While they are watching you leave, dig out an opening in the wall—as if you were escaping—and carry your bag through it. [6]Put your bag over your shoulder, and while everyone is watching, carry it out into the dark. Cover your face so that you don't see the land. I have made you a sign of the coming destruction of Jerusalem to the people of Israel.

[7]So I did exactly what He told me to do. During the day, I brought out my bag as if it were an exile's bag. Then in the evening, I dug out an opening in the wall with my hands. I put my bag over my shoulder and carried it out into the dark. People watched as I acted out all of this.

* 11:22 Hebrew, cherubim

8The word of the Eternal came to me the next morning and told me how to explain the sign to the exiles.

Eternal One: 9Son of man, haven't the rebellious people of Israel asked you, "What do you think you are doing?" 10*You have been silent, but now you may* answer, "The Eternal Lord says: This message has to do with the prince in Jerusalem and all the rest of Israel still living there." 11Tell them that I am an example to you, a living sign. As I have done, so it will be done to the people in Jerusalem. They will be carried off and taken into exile. 12*Not just the people,* but the prince himself will put his bag over his shoulder and carry it out in the dark. People will dig a hole in the city wall to help him escape, and he'll cover his eyes so that he cannot look upon the land he'll never see again. 13But I will set a trap for him, and he will be caught in My net. Then I will bring him to Babylon, the land of the Chaldeans, but the blind prince won't see any of it. There he will die. 14I will scatter all of his helpers and troops to the wind, and I will hunt them down with a drawn sword.

► Again God calls upon Ezekiel to act out His message. These dramatic actions apply specifically to Zedekiah. After Nebuchadnezzar attacked Jerusalem in 597 B.C., he deported Judah's king Jehoiachin and most of the powerful citizens of the city—many of whom are now members of Ezekiel's audience in exile. Nebuchadnezzar then installed Zedekiah as king to represent Babylonia's interests and guarantee Judah's submission. But Zedekiah will rebel against Nebuchadnezzar, who will then flatten Jerusalem in 586 B.C. (a decade after Ezekiel performs this sign-act). During that final siege, Zedekiah will do everything Ezekiel portrays here: he will attempt to escape the starving city, but he will be caught and taken to the Babylonian king. As punishment Nebuchadnezzar will order him to be blinded and taken into captivity. Zedekiah's fate is a warning to any other who might consider opposing Babylonia's king.

Eternal One: 15They will know I am the Eternal when I send them far away and scatter them like chaff among other lands. 16I will spare a few of them from slaughter, starvation, and disease, so that wherever they are, they will tell the world of all the shocking acts they committed against Me. Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

17The word of the Eternal came to me yet again.

Eternal One: 18Son of man, tremble as you eat your meals. Shake with anxiousness as you drink your water. 19Tell the people of the land what the Eternal Lord says regarding the people living in Jerusalem in the land of Israel: They will eat their meals in fear and drink their water with anxiety, for their land will be pillaged of everything in it because of their own violent acts. 20Every inhabited town and city will be destroyed, and the land will be deserted. Then you will know I am the Eternal One.

21The word of the Eternal came to me with another message.

Eternal One: 22Son of man, what is this saying the people keep repeating in the land of Israel: "The days pass by, and the prophecies never come true"? 23Tell the people of Israel the Eternal Lord says that this saying will not be quoted for long. I am going to make sure it is never said again in Israel. The time is near when every prophecy will be fulfilled. 24There won't be any more false visions or favorable predictions in Israel. 25I, the Eternal One, will speak, and what I speak will be fulfilled without delay. You rebellious crowd! I will fulfill whatever I say during your lifetime.

So said the Eternal Lord.

26The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 27Son of man, the people of Israel are saying, "The visions of the prophet are for the distant future; He speaks of events a long way off." [28]Therefore, tell the people of Israel the Eternal Lord most certainly says that nothing I've predicted will wait any longer. Whatever I speak will be fulfilled without delay.

13 The word of the Eternal came to me with two more messages about Jerusalem.

Eternal One: [2]Son of man, preach against the false prophets of Israel—the ones making up predictions and visions out of their own imaginations. Tell them to listen to the real word of the Eternal One! [3]The Eternal Lord says woe to those foolish prophets whose message is based on their own spirits and have not had a vision! [4]Your prophets, Israel, are like jackals foraging through the ruins. [5]You have put forth no effort to repair the broken-down defenses or to reinforce the wall around the city so that it will stand strong in battle on the day the Eternal sends His judgment. [6]Their warnings and predictions are all false. They utter only lies. They speak in the name of the Lord, claiming, "the Eternal declares," but I have not sent them. The funny thing is, they actually expect their predictions to come true. [7]Did you not perceive a false vision and speak an untrue divination when you proclaimed, "The Eternal declares," although I hadn't said anything at all?

[8]So I say because you have spoken falsely and have seen empty visions, I am against you who prophesy out of your own imaginations. [9]I will set My hand against those who see false visions and lying divinations. These self-proclaimed soothsayers will not be a part of the council of My people or be listed among the people of Israel. They will be forbidden from entering the sacred land of Israel. Then you will know I am the Eternal Lord. [10]It is because these false prophets have lied to My people and led them off course, saying, "Everything is peaceful and fine," when nothing is peaceful or fine. When the people build a weak and wobbly wall, the false prophets are right behind them, coating it with plaster. [11]Tell these plasterers that your wall is going to fall. Torrential rains will pour down upon your lies, hail will pound your flimsy creation, and mighty winds will knock down your fabricated dreams. [12]And guess what? When your nicely plastered wall collapses, the people will ask you, "Where is your plaster? Didn't it strengthen the wall?" [13]So I say that in My fury I will release a mighty wind to knock it down. In My anger I will produce hailstorms and torrential rains to destroy it. [14]I will demolish the wall you covered with plaster and level it to the ground so that nothing is left but its foundation. When your wall falls, you will be destroyed. Then you will know I am the Eternal. [15]This is how My wrath will be satisfied against the wall and those who covered it with plaster. Then I will say to you that there is nothing left of the wall or those who plastered it—[16]those fraudulent seers of Israel who prophesied concerning Jerusalem, claiming everything was peaceful and fine when everything was not peaceful or fine.

[17]Now, son of man, you must also preach against the women of your people who prophesy out of their own imaginations. Preach against these false prophetesses, [18]and tell them the Eternal Lord says, "Woe to the women who sew magic charms on wrists and make veils of various sizes for heads in order to hunt down souls with their magic. Do you actually think you can entrap the souls of My people for your own purposes without endangering your own lives? [19]You have profaned Me among My people, trading precious souls for a few scraps of barley and bread. Your lies have caused many to die who should not have and many to live who should not have, all because they listened to your lies."

[20]I, the Eternal Lord, have this to say regarding your enchantments: I oppose your magic charms you use to hunt precious souls like birds! I will strip them from your wrists and set the people free. [21]I will tear off your veils and rescue My people from your power; they will no longer fall prey to your hunt. Then you will know I am the Eternal One. [22]Because you have discouraged the innocent and unsuspecting with your lies and deceptions when I left them in peace, and because you have encouraged the wicked instead of showing them the error of their ways so they could live, [23]you will no longer conjure up lying visions or practice divination. For I will save My people from your seductive powers. Then you will know I am the Eternal One.

At first glance, the naming of these three men—Noah, Daniel, and Job—seems odd. Noah and Job are, of course, central characters in the Scripture; and these heroes lived long before Ezekiel was called to be God's prophet. But the Daniel most people know as the biblical prophet will achieve his fame long after Ezekiel dies. The Daniel mentioned here is not the biblical prophet but another Daniel (also known as Danel) whose story is found in an ancient Ugaritic text called the Epic of Aqhat. Like Noah and Job, Danel is an ancient non-Israelite who lives to an old age and becomes famous for his wisdom. Like Noah, he is surrounded by wicked people; like Job, he loses a son.

Perhaps God references these non-Israelite heroes—as opposed to the people's Israelite ancestors—because Ezekiel's audience is living outside of Israel. They would be able to identify with the foreign cultures in these accounts because they are surrounded by the strange customs and the novel stories of Babylon. These three men show an unusual level of devotion to God when the culture around them appears to be moving contrary to His way, so they are more appropriate examples than any Israelite ancestor—such as David, Solomon, or Josiah—who had all the benefits and blessings of God's covenants.

Eternal One: 3Son of man, these men are devoted to breathless idols and have pursued things that cause them to stumble into sin. Why should I even bother to listen to their prayers? 4Therefore tell them the Eternal Lord says to you, "Any Israelite who devotes himself to breathless idols and pursues things that will cause him to stumble into sin and still has the audacity to consult a prophet will be answered by Me, personally, in light of his pagan devotions. 5I am going to recapture the hearts of Israel, all of whom have deserted Me for their idols."

6Therefore, tell the people of Israel the Eternal Lord commands you to repent! Turn away from your breathless idols, and relinquish all of your shocking ways! 7When any Israelite—or any foreigner living in Israel—severs his relationship with Me, devotes himself to his idols, pursues anything that may cause him to stumble into sin, and then has the audacity to consult a prophet to ask questions of Me, I will answer the inquirer personally. 8I will turn against him and make an example of him. I will cut him off from the midst of the people. Then you will know I am the Eternal.

9Also, if a prophet is deceived into offering a message, it is I, the Eternal One, who has deceived him. I will raise My hand against him and cut him off from My people, Israel, until all memory of him is erased. 10The prophet and the one who inquires of him will be equally guilty and equally punished, 11so that the people of Israel will not lose their focus on Me or filthy themselves with any more of their rebellious evil. After this, they will be My people, and I will be their God.

So said the Eternal Lord.

12The word of the Eternal came to me with a new message.

Eternal One: 13Son of man, suppose the people of a particular country wander away from Me in pursuit of sin and I raise My hand against them destroying their food source, sending famine, and killing off the people and animals who live there; 14even if these three legendary men—Noah, Daniel, and Job—were all living in that country, they could save only themselves by their righteousness. 15Suppose I send wild beasts into that land and they kill the people, and the place becomes so desolate and dangerous because of the animals that no one dares to travel through the land. 16As surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, even if these three men were living there, they could not save their own sons and daughters. Only those three righteous men would be saved, and the land would become a wilderness. 17Suppose I bring war against that land and say to let the sword invade and pass through the land; 18as surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, even if these three men were living there, they could not save their own sons and daughters. Only those three righteous men would be saved. 19Suppose I send a disease to spread across that land, flooding it with My anger in blood, infecting and killing people and animals alike; 20as surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, even if Noah, Daniel, and Job were living there, they could not save their own sons or daughters. Only those three men would be saved because of their righteousness.

21For this is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: It will be far worse when I send out My four tragic judgments upon Jerusalem—war, starvation, wild beasts, and disease—to kill the people and animals! 22-23Still, a few survivors will remain—sons and daughters—who will join you in exile. They will come to you, and once you see how they behave and what they do, you will be comforted regarding the awful disaster I have poured out upon Jerusalem. For you will understand that every single judgment and catastrophe I have set against Jerusalem has been necessary.

15 The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, what is the difference between the wood of a grapevine and the wood of a tree in a forest? 3Is the wood of a grapevine ever used to make anything practical? Can it be carved into pegs to hang things on? 4*No.* When vine wood has been bundled together and thrown into the fire as fuel, its ends are burned but the middle is only charred. Are the remains good for anything then? 5Even when vine wood is whole and not yet singed, it is not useful for anything; so how can it be made useful after the fire has scorched some and consumed the rest?

6Therefore, this is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say: Just as I have gathered the wood of the grapevine among the trees of the forest to be used as fuel for the fire, so I will bundle together those who live in Jerusalem. 7I will turn My back on them. Even though they may survive the fire, another fire will nonetheless consume them. And when I turn My back on them and oppose them, you will know I am the Eternal One. 8I will transform this land into a wasteland because of their faithlessness.

So says the Eternal Lord.

16 The word of the Eternal came to me with a message for Jerusalem.

In Scripture marriage is often used to depict God's covenant with His people. In this oracle God is described as Israel's faithful husband, while Jerusalem is His faithless wife.

2*My Lord commanded me*, the son of man, to confront Jerusalem, condemn her shocking actions, 3and tell her what He says to Jerusalem.

Eternal One: You won't be able to shake your pagan heritage. Your ancestors were Canaanites, and you were born among the Canaanites. Your father was an Amorite, and your mother was a Hittite. 4When you were born, no one cut your umbilical cord. No one took care of you: you were not washed with water and purified, nor were you rubbed with salt and wrapped for warmth. 5No one felt sorry for you or had compassion on you or did anything to help you. Instead, your parents abandoned you, tossed you out into an open field. For on the day you were born, people looked upon you with deep contempt.

6Then I passed by and saw you squirming around in your blood. As you lay there in your own blood, I said to you, "Live!" Again, I insisted, "Live!" 7*And that's exactly what you did.* I helped you flourish like plants in the field. In time you grew, became a tall, beautiful young woman:* your breasts developed and your hair grew thick and long. But you were still naked and bare. 8I passed by you again and saw you were old enough to love and to be loved, so I offered Myself to you in marriage. I wrapped my garment over you to cover your nakedness. Then I gave you My divine promise to always be your Beloved, and I entered the sacred covenant of marriage with you. I wed you, and you became Mine. 9I bathed you with pure water and washed away the old blood from your skin, and then I anointed you with fragrant oils.

* 16:7 Hebrew manuscripts read, "and came into most beautiful jewels."

10I dressed you in an embroidered gown and put the finest leather sandals on your feet. I gave you the most luxurious linens and exquisite garments. 11I decorated you with the most expensive jewelry: bracelets for your wrists and a necklace for your neck, 12a nose ring, costly earrings, and a stunning crown for your head. 13I adorned you with everything a woman could wish for: gold and silver, the finest clothes of linen, silk, and embroidery. You dined on elegant meals made with fine flour, honey, and olive oil. You became a beautiful woman and carried yourself as a queen! 14You became famous among the nations for your extraordinary beauty—beauty that flourished only because I lavished My splendor on you.

So said the Eternal Lord.

Eternal One: 15But you trusted in your own beauty and used your fame to become a whore. You slept with every man who was simply passing by. 16You made shrines for your idols out of the luxurious linens I gave to you and gave yourself to play the harlot there. Such things should never have happened and must not ever again. 17Then you took all of the expensive gold and silver jewelry and precious stones I gave to you, and you created male images so that you could play the harlot with them!
18-19You took the embroidered gown I gave you to clothe your male images.
Then you took other gifts I had given to you—oil, incense, bread, fine flour,
and honey—and you offered them all as a pleasing aroma to your idols. This is what happened, I, the Eternal Lord proclaim. 20Then you took your sons and daughters—the ones you bore to Me—and slaughtered them, sacrificing your precious children to your idols to be consumed! Wasn't your prostitution enough? 21You killed My children and sacrificed them to breathless idols as burnt offerings! 22Not once during all this prostitution and other shocking deeds did you remember your youth
when I found you naked and bare,
squirming in your own blood!

23To top off all your wickedness—
how bad it will be for you, I, the Eternal Lord, promise you—24you built yourselves sacred sites and put lofty shrines
in every public square. 25You put them on every street corner and degraded your priceless beauty, opening yourself up wide to every man who passed by to add yet another lover. 26Then you started whoring with your well-endowed Egyptian neighbors, and I became more and more angry with your escalating promiscuity. 27Finally, I reached out and struck you, decreasing your territory.
I handed you over to your enemies,
the Philistines, to do with you as they pleased. Even they were embarrassed by your lascivious behavior! 28You even started whoring it up with the Assyrians
because your lust could not be satisfied.
But even after you prostituted yourself,
you still weren't satisfied! 29So you pros-tituted yourself to Chaldea, the land of merchants, but that still wasn't enough to satisfy you.

30How sick is your heart as you instigate all these vile perversions, the deeds of a brazen harlot? 31When you built your shrines in every public square and constructed lofty shrines on every street corner, you were different from most prostitutes because you wouldn't take money for your favors. 32Adulterous wife!
You would rather sleep with a stranger than your own husband! 33Whores are glad to accept fees from their customers, but you are the one paying fees and giving gifts to bribe strangers to come to you. 34So you are the perverse opposite of all other whores. No one solicits your services, and you pay instead of taking their money! This is why you are so different.

► To understand the comparison of Jerusalem to a harlot, knowledge of the city's political history in the eighth, seventh, and sixth centuries B.C. is helpful. Two political powers dominate Judah and much of the ancient Near East in this period: Egypt in the south and Assyria (which is later replaced by Babylonia) in the north and east. Jerusalem is caught between these empires—geographically, politically, and economically. Over the centuries, power in the region shifts back and forth, and Jerusalem aligns herself with whichever country offers the most protection. But this protection is not free; Jerusalem has to pay for it. In accepting foreign protection instead of trusting in God, Jerusalem prostitutes herself to the highest bidder, giving up everything that is valuable and sacred in exchange for eventual exile and slavery.

Eternal One: 35Therefore, harlot, listen to My word! 36Because you wasted the gifts I gave to you, spent your lust, and exposed your body in promiscuous acts with countless lovers; and because you devoted yourselves to despicable idols; and because you gave your children as burnt sacrifices to these breathless effigies, 37I am going to round up all of your lovers—all those you have seduced into mutual pleasures, those you have loved and those you have hated. I will gather them from every corner of the earth and set them against you. I will strip you naked before the assembly of your lovers, and they will see every part of you exposed. 38Then I will condemn you to the punishment of an adulterous or murderous woman! I will bring on you the blood of My fury and jealousy. 39Then I will give you over to your lovers, and they will destroy your sacred sites and lofty shrines. They will rip off your fine garments and expensive jewelry, and they will leave you naked and bare, just as I found you when you were a baby. 40They will bring an angry mob against you, and the mob will stone you and hack you to pieces with their swords. 41They will burn down your houses in a fiery blaze and punish you in the sight of many women! You will be ashamed. I will put an end to your perverted prostitution, and you will no longer bribe lovers to come to your bed! 42Then My fury and jealousy will be satisfied, and I will be at peace and not angry with you any longer. 43Because you failed to remember the days of your youth but instead you infuriated Me with countless perverted love affairs, I will pay you back for every ounce of indecency you instigated. I, the Eternal Lord, proclaim this.

Did you not add vulgar acts to your streak of shocking sins? 44Everyone who likes to quote proverbs will certainly be quoting this proverb about you: "Like mother, like daughter." 45You truly are the daughter of your pagan mother, who loathed her husband and despised her children. You truly are a sister of your sisters, who loathed their husbands and despised their children. Your mother was a Hittite, and your father was an Amorite. 46Your older sister is Samaria, who lives to the north with her daughters. Your younger sister, Sodom, lives to the south with her daughters. 47Not only did you imitate the ways and follow the shocking actions of your sisters, but soon you became even more corrupt than they ever were. 48As surely as I live, your sister, Sodom, and her daughters never acted as badly as you and your daughters have acted. 49This was the sin of your warped sister, Sodom: She and her daughters were arrogant, gluttonous, and lazy. She never gave help to the poor and needy. 50They were prideful, and they did abhorrent things right in front of Me, shamelessly and without remorse! As you already know, I put an end to Sodom and her daughters when I saw their behavior. 51*And don't forget* Samaria! She didn't sin half as much as you. You have committed far more shocking deeds than they ever did. With all the detestable things you have done, you make your sister seem righteous. 52Face your humiliation; your sisters will fare better in judgment in light of your wickedness. Compared with your despicable deeds, they are more righteous than you. You should be ashamed of yourself! You have to live with your disgrace; for compared to you, your sisters seem righteous!

53However, I am going to restore the fortunes of your sisters—Sodom and her daughters, Samaria and her daughters—and I'll restore your fortunes too. 54You still must live with your disgrace and bear the shame for what you have done, for your two sisters will be comforted in comparison with your wickedness. 55You and your sisters, Sodom and Samaria, and all of your daughters will become again what you once were. 56In the days when you were prideful, you looked down upon your sister, Sodom. You wouldn't even say her name. 57But that was before your evil was exposed! Now you are looked down upon by everyone! The daughters of Syria* and all of her neighbors and the daughters of Philistia despise you! 58But you must live with the consequences of your indecent and shocking behavior. I, the Eternal Lord, proclaim this.

59You will get what you deserve from Me because you have despised My oath

* 16:57 Most ancient manuscripts read, "Edom."

and broken our sacred covenant. 60But I will remember the covenant I made with you when you were young, and I will establish with you a new covenant which will last forever! 61Then you will remember your evil ways and be filled with remorse when you receive back your older and younger sisters. I will give them to you as daughters, but not because of our covenant. 62I will securely establish My covenant with you, and you will know I am the Eternal One. 63You will remember your wretched past and shut your mouth because of the deep sense of shame within you when I forgive you for all the evil you have done. I, the Eternal Lord, proclaim this.

17 The word of the Eternal came to me with a riddle.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, tell the people of Israel a riddle. 3Tell them the Eternal Lord says that a great eagle with strapping wings, long feathers, and thick plumage of various colors came to Lebanon. The great eagle took the top off of a cedar, 4carried its top growth away to a land of merchants, and planted it in a city of traders. 5Then the great eagle took some of the seed of the land and planted it in lush, fertile soil beside abundant waters so it could grow like a willow. 6The seed sprouted in the soil and became a flourishing vine, growing low to the ground. The vine's branches grew toward the great eagle, and the roots remained beneath it. The vine produced many sprouts and branches.

7There was another great eagle with strapping wings and thick, colorful plumage. From where it had been planted, the vine sent out its roots and branches toward the second eagle, so that eagle could give it even more water. 8The vine had been planted in lush, fertile soil beside abundant waters in order to produce healthy growth and branches, bear fruit, and become a magnificent vine instead of remaining a lowly one.

9Now I, the Eternal Lord, ask, will that vine continue to flourish? Won't the eagle pull it out of the lush, fertile soil by its roots, strip it of its fruit, and leave it to wither? It won't take much strength or many people to pull it up by the roots. 10Now if it is transplanted, will it flourish? When the angry east wind strikes it, won't it wither away completely? Won't it shrivel up in the plot of ground where it had grown?

11The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 12Ask this rebellious crowd if they know what these stories represent. Give them this explanation: Remember how Babylon's king swooped into Jerusalem like an eagle and took its young king and national leaders back to Babylon. 13He replaced that young king with a member of the royal family and made a covenant with him, making the new king swear an oath of loyalty. Babylon's king also ordered all the remaining leaders of Judah taken into exile 14so that the kingdom would remain weak and lowly, not able to rise up against him, and survive only by following the provisions of his covenant. 15But Jerusalem's newly appointed leader rebelled against Babylon's king by sending his ambassadors to another king in Egypt to receive horses and recruit a large army. Do you think Jerusalem's king and his ambassadors will succeed? Is it possible to get away with such things? Can this vassal king break a covenant and escape?

16As surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, I declare that Jerusalem's King Zedekiah will die in Babylon, the land of the king who gave him Jerusalem's throne and whom he despised when he broke that covenant. 17Pharaoh and his powerful army, a vast company, won't be of any help when Babylon builds ramps and erects siege walls against Jerusalem; many will be destroyed behind those city walls. 18Jerusalem's king broke his word and betrayed the covenant. Because he pledged his allegiance, yet committed these betrayals, he will not escape.

19Therefore, I say, as surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, what Jerusalem's king despised was My oath and what he betrayed was My covenant. I will make him pay the consequences. 20I will set a trap for him, and he will be caught in it. I will bring him to Babylon and punish him there because of his unfaithfulness and disloyalty to Me. 21All of his elite soldiers will be killed in battle, and whoever manages to survive will be scattered to the winds. Then you will know that I, the Eternal One, have promised this.

► This parable dramatizes Babylon's attack on Jerusalem. Nebuchadnezzar, represented by the first eagle, is indeed the largest predator in the area. He swooped into Jerusalem and exiled the young king, Jehoiachin, who was plucked from the top of the cedar tree. Nebuchadnezzar then planted a new monarch in Jerusalem, Zedekiah, as a vassal of Babylon.

Jerusalem flourishes under Zedekiah but doesn't gain any power, just as the vine is strong but not tall. But when Zedekiah becomes ambitious for sovereignty, he will send envoys to King Hophra in Egypt—represented by the second eagle—looking for mercenaries. This betrayal will lead to Jerusalem's complete destruction by Nebuchadnezzar. Since God is using Babylon to punish His disobedient people, and since Zedekiah's betrayal will reflect badly on Him, the coming destruction is none other than divine judgment.

Eternal One: 22-23I personally will take a sprig from the top growth of a lofty cedar—the highest, youngest, and most flexible—and plant it on a high and lofty mountain, on the mountain of Israel. It will produce healthy branches and bear fruit and become a noble cedar. All sorts of birds will come and nest in it and find shade in its branches. 24All the trees of the field will know that I am the Eternal; I cut down the tall tree and make the small tree tall; I cause the flourishing tree to wither and the withering tree to flourish. I, the Eternal, have spoken, and I will do exactly as I've promised.

God will plant a sprig that grows into a noble cedar, bears fruit, and provides shelter. All other trees, the nations, will recognize the power and sovereignty of God.

18 The word of the Eternal came to me with a message.

Eternal One: 2Why do you people continually quote this proverb about Israel:

Fathers have eaten sour grapes,
and their children's teeth are set on edge?

3As surely as I live, I, the Eternal Lord, declare you will not quote this proverb in Israel anymore. 4For every living being belongs to Me—parent and child alike. You will die for your own sins, not because of what your ancestors did. 5Imagine a righteous man who always does what is right: 6*First, he worships Me exclusively;* he doesn't feast at the heathen shrines atop mountains, nor does he worship idols as others do in Israel—he won't even look at them! Second, he does not sleep with his neighbor's wife or have sex with a woman when she is menstruating. 7*Third,* he does not persecute or abuse anyone; he gives back a debtor's collateral and does not seize poorer men's property. Fourth, he tends to the poor; he clothes the naked and gives his bread to the hungry 8and doesn't charge those poor people who borrow from him interest or keep their profits. Fifth, he is law-abiding; he does not participate in wrong deeds and is fair toward all others. 9*Sixth,* he is obedient to Me, living by My statutes and faithfully keeping My laws. This man who is righteous—he will surely live.

10-11Now suppose this righteous man has a violent son. The son is a killer and does wicked things that the righteous father has never done: He worships other gods, feasting at the heathen shrines atop mountains. He defiles his neighbor's wife. 12He abuses the poor and persecutes the needy. He seizes property and keeps a debtor's collateral. He looks up to breathless idols, worshiping them. He breaks the law and commits shocking deeds. 13He charges those who borrow from him interest and makes excessive profits. Do you think the wicked son will live? Of course not! Because he has done all of these shocking things, he will be put to death, and it will be his own fault.

14Now, suppose the wicked son has a son of his own, and this son watches his father's vile lifestyle and chooses not to do as his father has done: 15*He worships Me exclusively;* he doesn't feast at the heathen shrines atop mountains, nor does he worship idols as others do in Israel—he won't even look at them! He does not defile his neighbor's wife. 16He does not persecute or abuse anyone; he gives back a debtor's collateral and does not seize poorer men's properties. He tends to the poor; he clothes the naked, gives his bread to the hungry, 17does not participate in wronging the poor, nor does he charge those who borrow from him interest or make excessive profit. He is obedient to Me, faithfully keeping My laws and living by My statutes. This man who is righteous will not die for his father's sins. He will surely live. 18But his father will surely die for his own wicked deeds—taking advantage of the poor, seizing property from poorer Israelites, and refusing to do good for his people.

19So why do you ask, "Why is the son not also punished for his father's guilt?" Don't you see? The son did not commit his father's sins. The son chose to do what is just and right by remembering and following My laws, so he will surely live. 20The person who sins will die. The child will not be punished for the guilt of the parent, nor will the parent be punished for the guilt of the child. The righteous will be credited with righteousness. The wicked will be charged with wickedness.

21*But there is good news even for the wicked.* If the wicked turn away from their sins, choose to uphold My laws, be honest, and live a righteous life, then they will surely live. They won't die. 22I won't remember any of their previous wrongs against them because of the right things they have done. They will surely live. 23Do I enjoy watching the wicked die? No. I, the Eternal One, would prefer for the wicked to stop doing the wrong things they do and live. 24If the righteous stop doing what is right, choose the sinful path, and commit the shocking things the wicked do, do you think they will live? Certainly not! I won't remember any of their righteous deeds because of all the unfaithful and wicked things they do. They will surely die.

25You say, "The Lord's way is not fair at all!" Hear Me, people of Israel: You think My way is unfair? You are the ones with unjust ways! 26If a righteous person turns away from the right path and chooses to act wickedly, he will die for it. He will die because of the sin he committed. 27But if a wicked person turns from the wicked path and chooses to be honest and live a righteous life, he will end up saving his life! 28Because he thought about his wrongs and turned away from the wicked things he'd done, putting them behind him, then he will surely live. He will not die! 29Yet the people of Israel continue to complain, "The Lord's way is not fair at all!" You think My way is unfair, people of Israel? Don't you think you are the ones with perverted ways?

30Therefore, people of Israel, I will judge each of you according to what you have done. Repent! Turn from your wicked ways so that your sins do not trip you up! 31Get rid of all your wicked ways! Acquire a new heart and a new spirit! Why would you choose to die, people of Israel? 32I don't enjoy watching anyone die, so turn back to Me and live!

19 Eternal One: Sing a dirge over the princes of Israel.

2What was your mother? A lioness
among the pride!
She settled down among the young
lions and reared her cubs.
3She trained one of her own, and he became a strong and fierce lion.
He learned to hunt and tear into his
prey; he became a man-eater.
4The nations heard about him and set a trap for him.
They caught him and led him away
with hooks to the land of Egypt.
5When the lioness realized that her hopes for her son had vanished,
she chose another one of her cubs and trained him to be a strong and fierce young lion.
6He prowled among the other lions;
he was now a robust young lion.
He learned to hunt and tear into his
prey; he became a man-eater.
7He seized their widows and left their cities in ruins.
The whole land—everything in it—
was terrified when he roared.
8Then all the nations in the surrounding provinces came together to hunt the great lion.
They set traps for him, and they caught him.
9With hooks they pulled him into a cage
and took him to the king of Babylon.
The great lion was put in a prison
so that his roar was no longer heard in the mountains of Israel.

► Again God informs Ezekiel and the exiles of the coming destruction of Jerusalem. The lioness is Judah, the young lions are the nations surrounding Judah, and the cubs are her kings. This metaphor is appropriate since the Davidic monarchy comes from the tribe of Judah, characterized as a lion in Genesis 49:9. The first cub is Jehoahaz. This son of the great King Josiah ruled for only three months after his father died in 609 B.C.; he was quickly captured and deported to Egypt by Pharaoh Neco when Egypt made Judah a vassal state. The story of this cub is the historical precedent for what will happen to the second cub, Zedekiah. Prior to 586 B.C. Zedekiah fraternizes with leaders of other nations—represented by the other lions—until he will be imprisoned in Babylon by those other lions, specifically Nebuchadnezzar.

Eternal One: [10]Your mother was like a vine in your vineyard,
planted near a rushing stream;
The vine grew healthy fruits and
branches
because of the abundant supply of
water.
[11]Its branches were strong, like royal scepters;
but one branch grew up into the
clouds,
towering high above everything else.
It was easily seen because of its great height,
noticeable for its many branches.
[12]But the vine was uprooted in rage
and thrown to the ground!
The hot east wind blew, and soon all the fruits shriveled up;
the strongest branch broke, and the leaves withered;
fire consumed it.
[13]Now the remains of it are planted in the wilderness—
in a dry and thirsty land.
[14]Fire has spread from its branch;
it scorched its shoots and devoured
its fruit.
There is no longer a strong branch left on the vine
that is fit to be made into a royal scepter.

This lament is to be sung once the prophecy comes true.

The Davidic monarchy is the vine, and the branches are the strong monarchs. Zedekiah is the tallest branch. His failures will consume the dynasty, leaving nothing but charred remains.

20 During the seventh year of King Jehoiachin's exile, on the tenth day of the fifth month, some of the elders of Israel approached me and sat down in front of me, wanting good news from the Eternal One. [2]The word of the Eternal came to me with a message for them.

Eternal One: [3]Son of man, talk to the elders of Israel, and tell them I have a question: "Have you come to ask questions of Me? As surely as I, the Eternal Lord live, I will not allow you to question Me."

[4]Will you pass judgment on them, son of man? Will you judge whether they have been serving other gods? Confront them about the shocking acts of their fathers, [5]and tell them the Eternal Lord says that on the day I selected Israel, made an oath to the descendants of Jacob's family, and revealed Myself to them in Egypt, I lifted My hand and swore to them, "I am the Eternal your God." [6]On the same day, I swore to them that I would rescue them from the land of Egypt and take them to another land I had looked for and found just for them—a land flowing with milk and honey, the most splendid of all lands. [7]And I said to them, "Get rid of all the vile images that captivate your eyes, and do not degrade yourselves with the idols of Egypt! I am the Eternal your God." [8]But they rebelled against Me and refused to heed My warnings. They kept staring at the vile images and worshiping the idols of Egypt.

I was just about to pour out My anger upon them and express My wrath while they were still in Egypt, [9-10]but for the sake of My good name and reputation, I decided against it. I thought it better not to profane My name in the eyes of those nations around where My people lived. After all, I had revealed Myself to them when I brought My people out of the land of Egypt and into the wilderness. [11]I gave them My laws and commandments so that if they would follow them, they might live. [12]I also gave them My Sabbaths as a sign that they would know that I, the Eternal One, have made them holy. 13But the Israelites rebelled against Me in the wilderness. They refused to follow My laws and ignored My commandments, even though they knew the one who follows them will live. They also polluted My Sabbaths and treated them like any other day.

So I said I would pour out My anger upon them and destroy them in the wilderness. 14For the sake of My good name and reputation, however, I chose not to profane My name in the eyes of those nations who had witnessed Me bringing the Israelites out of Egypt. 15Also, I raised My hand and swore to them in the wilderness that I would not bring them into the land I had given them—a land flowing with milk and honey, the most splendid of all lands! 16*I swore this to them* because they ignored My rules and strayed from My laws and polluted My Sabbaths; for they were completely devoted to their idols. 17I looked on them with mercy, and I did not destroy them in the wilderness.

18I told their children in the wilderness, "Do not follow the example set by your fathers. Do not live by their standards or degrade yourselves with their idols. 19I, the Eternal One, am your God. Follow My laws and remember to obey My rules. 20Keep My Sabbaths holy as signs between us so you will know I, the Eternal, am your God." 21But the children also rebelled against Me. They strayed from My laws and ignored My commandments, even though they knew that one who follows My rules will live. They polluted My Sabbaths, and they were not careful to keep My rules. So I told them that I would pour out My anger upon them and express My wrath against them in the wilderness. 22But for the sake of My good name and reputation, I suspended their punishment. I chose not to profane My name in the eyes of those nations who had witnessed Me bringing the Israelites out of Egypt. 23Also, I swore to them in the wilderness that I would scatter them among those nations and cast them out into unfamiliar lands 24because they had refused to obey My rules and rejected My laws. Instead, their eyes were devoted to their fathers' breathless idols, and they polluted My Sabbaths. 25I handed them over to bad laws and rules that could not lead to life. 26I declared them ritually impure because they were giving every firstborn child as a burnt sacrifice to pagan gods. I did this to horrify them, so that they would know I am the Eternal One.

27Therefore, son of man, confront the people of Israel and tell them the Eternal Lord says, "Your fathers showed their contempt for Me and betrayed Me. 28When I brought them into the land I had solemnly promised to give them, they offered their sacrifices on every high hill and under every shade tree they saw. In the land I gave them, they irritated Me with their offerings. They burned fragrant incense and poured out their drink offerings there. 29I asked them, 'What is this shrine you visit?'"

To this day, a shrine is called a "high place."*

Eternal One: 30Therefore, tell the people of Israel that the Eternal Lord says if you degrade yourselves in the same ways your fathers did—prostituting yourselves to the same foul, breathless images, 31giving your children to them as burnt offerings, and degrading yourselves with those idols still today—do you think I should allow you to ask questions of Me, Israel? As surely as I live, I, the Eternal, say I will not allow you to ask Me anything.

32You entertain thoughts such as, "We want to be like the other nations, like the other people of the world who serve idols made of wood and stone." But your secret thoughts will never become a reality.

33-34As surely as I live, I, the Eternal Lord, proclaim I will rule as your king with a fierce and mighty hand, an outstretched arm, and an overflowing wrath. With My power, I will bring you out of the nations and gather you from the unfamiliar lands where you have been scattered. 35I will bring you into the wilderness of nations, and I will personally render My judgment upon you. 36I will judge you in the same way I judged your fathers in the wilderness that lies east of the land of Egypt.

37I will have you pass under My rod, and I will make you live up to the terms of the covenant. 38I will get rid of the rebels and traitors among you. I may bring them out of the lands where they are exiled, but I will not allow them back to the land of Israel. Then you will know that I am the Eternal One.

* 20:29 Hebrew, bamah

39(to the people of Israel) Go ahead and worship your idols—all of you! Eventually, you will see that what you are doing is pointless. Then you will start listening to Me and stop profaning My sacred name with your gifts and false gods. 40There upon the high mountain of Israel, which is My holy mountain residence, all the people of Israel will worship and serve Me when they return to the land. There I will accept them. There I will expect your gifts and your firstfruit offerings, with all of your other sacred duties to Me. 41When I bring you out from the nations and gather you from the unfamiliar lands where you have been scattered, I will accept you as a pleasant aroma. I will put My holiness on display by the way you live as all the world watches! 42You will know that I am the Eternal One when I bring you into the land of Israel—the splendid land I solemnly promised to give your ancestors. 43*Then and* there, you will remember your wrong turns and all of the wicked things you have done to degrade yourselves, and you will hate yourselves every time you see your reflection because of all the evil things you have done. 44You will know, O people of Israel, that I am the Eternal when I deal fairly with you in order to protect My good name and reputation, and not out of My frustration toward your wickedness and mindless corruption.

So said the Eternal One.

45The word of the Eternal came to me with a parable.

Eternal One: 46Son of man, look south! Preach against the south, and prophesy against forests in the Negev. 47Tell the southern forest to listen to the word of the Eternal. The Eternal Lord says, "I am about to set you on fire, and it will spread and devour all of your trees—both green and dry. The raging fire will not be put out! Everything and everyone from south to north will be scorched by it. 48Then everyone will see that I, the Eternal One, started the unquenchable fire!"

Ezekiel: 49Eternal Lord, they are all talking about me, saying, "He's just speaking in parables."

21 The word of the Eternal once again came to me with a similar message.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, look toward Jerusalem, and speak against My temple. Prophesy against the whole land of Israel, 3and tell the land of Israel what the Eternal One says: "Pay attention. I am against you. I will draw My sword from its sheath and kill both the righteous and the wicked who live within your borders. 4Because I am going to kill everyone, both good and evil, all flesh from south to north will feel the wrath of My sword! 5Then everyone all over the world will know I, the Eternal One, have drawn My sword from its sheath and do not intend to return it."

God tells Ezekiel to act out His message. He must demonstrate what it will be like when the bad news arrives of what has happened back home in Jerusalem.

6Now as for you, son of man, groan as if your heart is breaking. Groan in front of people because of your bitter agony! 7When they see you, they will ask you, "Why all this loud and noisy groaning?" Answer them this way: "I am groaning because of the horrible news that is coming. Every heart will melt, every hand will fall limp, every spirit will grow faint, and every knee will become as weak as water. So pay attention. The time is near! It is going to happen soon."

So said the Eternal Lord.

8The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 9Son of man, prophesy, and tell them this message is from the Eternal.

A sword! Yes, a sword—
keenly sharpened and polished.
10*A razor-sharp blade* honed to slaughter anything in its path,
polished to flash like lightning!

Should we celebrate My son's scepter?
The sword repulses every such bit of wood.

11My sword is sent to be polished till radiant,
comfortably wielded.

It is keenly sharpened and brightly
burnished,
ready for the hand of the slayer.
12Cry out and wail, son of man!
My sword is against My people;
It swings for all the princes of Israel.
I have deserted them all—princes and people—to the wrath of My
sword!
Therefore, beat your thigh, Ezekiel,
in front of everyone
So they understand what a tragedy this is.
13For the test will come;
so what happens if the sword
repulses the scepter
And the scepter is gone?
I, the Eternal Lord, say this to you.

14As for you, son of man, prophesy;
clap your hands loudly!
Let the sword strike two, even three
times!
It is a sword honed and polished to massacre!
This sword is ready for the great
slaughter,
coming after them on all sides.
15Hearts will melt, and masses will fall because I have placed the tip of the blade at every city gate!
Oh, this beautiful instrument flashes
like lightning;
it's wrapped and ready for slaughter.
16*Now, My sword, thrust* to the right—
and slash to the left!
Be ready to attack wherever the blade
is turned.
17I will clap My hands together,
and I will cool My wrath once judgment has been executed.
I, the Eternal One, have spoken.

18The word of the Eternal came to me regarding Babylon's sword.

Eternal One: 19Son of man, mark out two roads for the sword of Babylon's king to take. Have both roads begin in the same place. Make a signpost, and put it at the fork in the road: 20one road leading the sword to Ammon and its capital, Rabbah; the other road leading to Judah and its fortified capital, Jerusalem. 21The Babylonian king will stop at the fork in the road and look for a sign to see which way to go: he will shake the arrows and draw one, call to his household gods* for advice, and examine an animal liver.

► Kings never go into battle without first looking for signs and omens. War is too risky—even for Babylon—not to have the blessings of the gods. The Babylonian king stops at the crossroads: which way should he go? So he calls for his priests to consult the gods for signs. Their mediation may be something like drawing straws. At times it involves the ancient practice of "reading" the liver of a sacrificial animal. When a king wants to make sure his decision is the correct one, he uses several forms of divination. The ancients do not believe in chance; they believe their gods are involved in orchestrating their lives and decisions. In this case, Babylon's king happens to be correct because the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob is directing him to take the road to Jerusalem.

Eternal One: 22He reads "Jerusalem" in his right hand, so he will march first in that direction with battering rams for the gates and a command to massacre the city, sounding war cries and building siege ramps and siege walls. 23Everyone in Jerusalem will believe the omen to be false because they had pledged loyalty to Babylon. But his actions will remind the doubters of their guilt, and they will be taken prisoners.

(to the Israelites) 24Because you have reminded Me of your sins and once again exposed your rebellious ways, making every wicked thing you ever did obvious, you will be forcefully taken prisoner. 25You are already dead, you wicked prince of Israel! Your hour has arrived! Your day of excruciating punishment has come! 26This is what the Eternal Lord says: "Remove your royal turban and crown. Everything is about to change: the lowly will be brought high, and the high will be brought low. 27Ruination! I will make a total ruin out of everything! It will remain in ruins until the one to whom it rightfully belongs arrives, and then I will hand it over to Him."

28But you, son of man, must preach to them what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say about the Ammonites and their insults:

* 21:21 Hebrew, teraphim

A sword! Yes, a sword
is drawn to slaughter the Ammonites—
Honed to destroy, polished to flash like
lightning.

29"In spite of false prophesies and lying omens concerning you, the sword will slice the necks of the wicked. They are as good as dead. Their hour has come! Their day of punishment has arrived! 30Put the sword back in its sheath. In the place where you were conceived, in the land of your origin, I will judge you with My sword of judgment. 31I will pour out My anger
over your head, I will breathe fiery wrath
on you, I will give you over to barbaric men (artists of destruction who love to mutilate and kill). 32You will become coals for a fire; Babylonian blood will flood the land, and you will be forgotten! I, the Eternal, promise this."

Babylon's reign of terror is short-lived. God orders the Israelites to put their swords away, go home, and wait. When the time is right, they will get what they deserve.

22 The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, will you judge this bloody city? Will you? You must! Confront her about her shocking actions, 3and speak to her.

Then the Eternal Lord declared this for me to say to her:

Eternal One: You are a city of bloodshed,
and your ways will come back to haunt
you. You are a city of idols, making them even though they defile you. 4The blood you shed covers you with the heaviness of guilt. The idols you have made degraded your spirit. You have reached the end of your life, so I have made you an object of scorn to all the nations! 5Those near and far will mock you—city of infamy and turmoil!

6Look, the princes of Israel who reside in your walls use their political power to murder. 7*Infamous city of tur-* moil, your people mistreat their elders,
disrespect their parents, take advantage of foreigners passing through, and treat orphans and widows with contempt. 8In you My holy things are desecrated and My Sabbaths are profaned. 9Your citizens lie and give false testimonies at capital tri- als, shedding innocent blood. Your people feast at lofty shrines devoted to false gods and commit lewd sexual acts. 10In
you men expose their fathers' nakedness
by having intercourse with their wives and engage in sexual relations with women who are impure because of their menstrual cycles. 11In you one man commits unspeakable things with his neighbor's wife, while another practices incest with his daughter-in-law or half-sister. 12In
you murder is for hire, exorbitant interests and profits are taken from the poor, neighbors are oppressed for personal gain; and in you I am forgotten.

13I will strike My hands at your extortion and murderous ways. 14Will you be courageous and strong when I come to deal with you? I, the Eternal One, will do what I've said I will do. 15I will scatter you among the nations and disperse you throughout unfamiliar lands! I will put an end to your impurity. 16When you have been defiled in front of the nations,
you will know that I am the Eternal.

17Then the word of the Eternal came to me with how He would judge these crimes.

Eternal One: 18Son of man, the people of Israel have become dross to Me; all of them are the dross metals—bronze, iron, tin, and lead—left inside a furnace after silver has been refined. 19Therefore, I, the Eternal Lord, say to them, "Because you've become worthless dross, I will gather you up in the middle of Jerusalem. 20-21Just as men throw copper, iron, tin, lead, and silver into a furnace to melt the impurities away with fiery blasts, I will gather you inside My furnace called Jerusalem, and you will experience the fire of My wrath
as it blows across and melts you inside that city! 22Just as silver is melted in a furnace, you will be melted in My city. Then you will know I, the Eternal One, have poured out the fire of My wrath upon you."

23The word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 24Son of man, say to her,
"You are a land plagued with drought
during My wrath—[not a single drop of rain has fallen from the sky]." 25Her prophets conspire in her midst like

* 22:24 Hebrew manuscripts read, "You have not been purified."

* 22:25 Greek manuscripts read, "princes."

raging lions killing their prey; they have destroyed lives, stolen treasures and other valuable things; they have made many wives widows all over the city. 26Her priests violate My laws and desecrate My holy things. They fail to distinguish between the sacred and profane. They no longer teach that there is a difference between pure and impure! They completely disregard My Sabbaths; as a result I am defamed among My people. 27Her princes and officials are like a pack of wolves tearing apart their prey. They kill innocent people and ruin lives just to get what they want! 28Her false prophets whitewash these wicked acts by claiming to receive divine visions, but they are all false! Their divination turns up only lies! They say, "This is what the Eternal Lord says . . . ," when the Eternal Lord has not said anything to them at all. 29Her people are full of wickedness: they are bullies and thieves; they have abused the poor and helpless; they have taken advantage of foreigners and perverted justice. 30I searched for one man among them, a man who could build the wall and stand in the gap before Me and advocate for the land, a man who could convince Me not to destroy it; but I found no one. 31Therefore, I will dump the fires of My fury on them, and the flames of My indignation will devour them. I will give them what they deserve.

So said the Eternal Lord.

23 The word of the Eternal came to me with a parable about two sisters.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, there were two women born of the same mother. 3They became promiscuous in Egypt at a young age. Their breasts were fondled, and their virgin bodies were caressed. 4The older sister was named Oholah, and her younger sister was named Oholibah. They married Me, and they gave birth to many sons and daughters.

Oholah is Samaria (the mother city of Israel), and Oholibah is Jerusalem (the mother city of Judah).

► After King Solomon's death, Israel splits into two kingdoms, the two sisters described in this parable. Israel is ruled from Samaria; Judah is ruled from Jerusalem. Both kingdoms are ruled autonomously until Assyria dominates Israel, forcing her to pay tribute. Eventually the Assyrians conquer Israel in 722 B.C. and annex her land. Throughout this struggle, the various kings of Israel turn for help to everyone they can—everyone, that is, except God. Israel's last cry for help is raised to Egypt in the 730s B.C. by her last king, Hoshea (2 Kings 17:4). Unfortunately, surviving historical records are incomplete, and what happens next is unclear. But in the end, Egypt proves to be no help to Israel.

Eternal One: 5Oholah played the whore while she was still Mine. She coveted many lovers, lusting after her neighbors, the Assyrians—6*sharply* dressed in handsome blue, governors and commanders—all attractive young men mounted on great horses. 7She offered herself as a prostitute to all of the fine Assyrian men and anyone who desired her. She degraded herself with the idols of her lovers. 8She didn't stop the promiscuity she began in Egypt, for when she was young she slept with men who caressed her virgin breasts and poured out their lust on her. 9So I handed her over to those she loved, the Assyrians whom she desired. 10They stripped her naked, stole her children, and slaughtered her during the war. So among women, her name became synonymous with disgrace, when they saw the punishment she received.

Unfortunately Judah, the younger sister, repeats Israel's mistakes. She turns to Egypt against a conquering Babylonian Empire; but this is a grave mistake, for soon she will be completely destroyed.

11Her younger sister, Oholibah, witnessed all that happened; yet Oholibah became more corrupt than her sister. Her wanton lust and prostitution were even worse than her sister's. 12She was obsessed with the Assyrians, too, lusting after the elite—governors and commanders, sharply-dressed warriors—all attractive young men mounted atop great horses. 13I saw how she degraded herself. Both she and her sister followed the same path, 14but Oholibah's path went further and she traveled longer. She added the Babylonians to her list of paramours. She was captivated by images of men painted on a wall: figures of Chaldeans dressed in red, 15with expensive belts wrapped around their waists and flowing turbans adorning their heads. All of them looked highly distinguished, like Babylonian officers from the land of Chaldea. 16As soon as her eyes met these portraits, she lusted after them. And so she sent messengers to them in Chaldea. 17And the Babylonians accepted her invitation and came into her bed of love, degrading her with their lust. When they had completely defiled her, she turned away from them in disgust. 18Because she carried on her whoring so publicly and exposed herself to so many, I was repulsed by her just as I was her sister. 19Yet she went deeper into prostitution when she remembered how she played the whore when she was young in the land of Egypt. 20She lusted for lovers whose genitals were as large as a donkey's and whose emissions were like a horse's.

21You, Judah, longed for the lewd
promiscuity of your youth in Egypt, when men fondled your breasts and caressed your virgin body."*
22Pay attention, Oholibah! I will turn your forgotten lovers against you,
the ones whom you turned away
from in disgust.
I will bring them against you from every direction.
23Babylonians and all the Chaldeans,
the people of Pekod, Shoa, and Koa,
and all the Assyrians,
All attractive young men, governors
and commanders,
sharply-dressed officers and high-ranking officials mounted atop great horses.
24They will come after you with lethal
weapons* in hand,
shields in place, dressed in armor;
And troops will storm you from every side
in war chariots and wagons.
I will hand you over to their judgment,
and they will punish you according to their customs.
25I will unleash My jealous fury against
you.
They will slice off your nose and ears and kill the rest of your people in battle.
They will steal your children,
and they will burn any who survive
in a fire.
26They will strip you and take away your
clothes;
they will rob you of your expensive
jewelry.
27This is how I will put a stop to the promiscuities and prostitution you brought from the land of Egypt.
You will not admire or remember Egypt
with yearning anymore.

28Here is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: Pay attention! I am a moment away from handing you over to those whom you loathe, the ones whom you turned away from in disgust. 29They will treat you with hatred and rob you of your lot. They will rip off your clothes in public and leave you naked. The marks of your prostitution—your lewd, promiscuous life—will be apparent. 30You have brought this upon yourself because you played the whore with your neighboring nations, degraded yourself with profane images and breathless idols. 31You have followed the same path as your sister; therefore, I will let you drink from her very own cup.

32You will drink from your sister's cup,
a cup deep and wide.
It will bring you shame and scorn
and a lot of it.
33You will drink your fill of drunkenness
and agony,
*with tears of sorrow running down
your cheeks.*
This is the cup of ruination, of
destruction—
the cup of your sister Samaria!
34You will drink it down and drain it dry;
then you will smash the cup to pieces
And gnaw on its shattered remains;
you will tear at the breasts your enemies once fondled.

For I, the Eternal Lord, have spoken.
35Because you have forgotten Me and tossed Me over your shoulder like

* 23:21 Hebrew manuscripts read, "because of your young breasts."
* 23:24 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

a piece of trash, you must reap the consequences of your promiscuities and prostitution.

36(to Ezekiel) Son of man, will you judge Oholah and Oholibah? You must! Confront them about their shocking actions—37the adulterous liaisons they commit with bloody hands, even sacrificing their sons and daughters, My children, as burnt offerings to breathless idols. 38-39Not only that, but they have also polluted My sanctuary and profaned My Sabbaths by sacrificing their children to the breathless idols on the same day they came into My house. This is what they did to Me and My house. This is how they profaned it. 40They even sent a special invitation to men who lived far away. When they arrived, you had bathed in fragrant waters, painted around your eyes, dressed in seductive garments, and adorned your body with shiny jewelry for your honored guests. 41You reclined on a silky couch in front of a table set for your visitors with the incense and oils that belonged to Me. 42*As for Oholibah,* the mellowed crowd gathered around her—drunkards from the desert and noisy commoners. They adorned the arms of the sisters with bracelets I'd given them and placed ostentatious crowns on the heads of My queens. 43Then I wondered about this woman who was exhausted from adulterous sex: "Will they still want to sleep with her, here and now?"* 44*Yes,* they all went into her bed, one after another, and used her as a prostitute. This is what they did to both these wanton women: Oholah and Oholibah. 45But righteous people will condemn these sisters to punishment befitting adulterous and murderous women! For they are indeed adulteresses and their hands are covered with innocent blood.

46This is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: Bring a vast army against them! Overtake them with terror and plunder their goods! 47Their enemies will crush them with large rocks and hack them down in battle. They will massacre their children—My children—and burn down their houses!

(to the sisters) 48This is how I will put an end to the lewdness practiced in the land and make you an example to all women, that they may learn from your mistakes and never commit the wicked acts you did. 49You will suffer the consequences of your promiscuity; you will bear the penalty for worshiping your idols. Then you will know that I am the Eternal Lord.

* 23:43 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

► This memorable allegory traces the fate of two sisters who represent the two capital cities of Israel and Judah: Samaria and Jerusalem. The graphic portrayals of their sexual exploits are some of the most disturbing in Scripture; they highlight the disgust God and His prophet must feel toward God's wayward people. Anyone who hears Ezekiel speak this message must come to the same conclusion: God must judge His unfaithful wives. It is right. It is just. It is necessary.

24 The word of the Eternal came to me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, remember this date. Write it down. The Babylonian king laid siege to Jerusalem today. 3Tell this rebellious crowd a parable. Here is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Put the cooking pot on the fire;
put it on and fill it with water.
4Put the finest cuts of meat into it—legs and brisket;
fill it with the best bones.
5Pick out the best from the flock,
stack wood beneath the pot,
Bring it to a rolling boil,
and cook what's in the pot.

No one is safe in the cauldron of Jerusalem.

6Woe to this city polluted with blood—
that pot thickly corroded, whose filth is impossible to clean!
Empty the pot one piece at a time;
don't bother choosing one or the other!
7The blood she shed is still polluting the city.
She poured it out on bare rock

Instead of into the ground
to be absorbed by the dust where blood belongs.
8I have spilled her blood on bare rock
so that it may not be covered,
knowing My anger would be ignited and My revenge accomplished.
9That's why I, the Eternal Lord, speak out:
Woe to this city polluted with blood;
I will stack the wood Myself—10Stack it high beneath the pot
to feed the fire.
Mix spices and seasoning into the boiling brew
and cook the meat and then burn the bones.
11Set the empty pot on the coals
until it grows so hot its metal begins to glow,
its filth melts inside, and no trace of corrosion remains.
12But she has thwarted My efforts!
Her massive corrosion remains when the fire should have cleansed her.

13*Jerusalem,* I tried to cleanse your lewd impurity, but you would not stay pure. Because of this, you will not be clean again until after you have suffered the full punishment of My wrath. 14I, the Eternal One, have spoken. Your day of judgment has arrived, and I will act. I will not be easy on you; I will not feel sorry for you; I will not regret My actions. You will be judged by what you have done and get only what you deserve.

So said the Eternal Lord.

15The word of the Eternal came to me regarding my wife.

Eternal One: 16Son of man, in the blink of an eye, I am going to take away the delight of your eyes. Do not weep or grieve or shed a tear. 17Any groaning must be inward and silent, but do not grieve for the dead. Dress as you always dress: with a turban on your head and sandals on your feet. Don't do any of the things mourners do. Don't eat the food others bring to comfort you or cover your upper lip.

18*It happened as such:* I preached to the people in the morning, and that evening, my wife passed away. The next morning, I did exactly as I had been instructed to do.

People: 19Tell us what all of this has to do with us. Why are you acting this way?

Ezekiel: 20The word of the Eternal came to me 21with a message for the people of Israel: "Look! I will desecrate My sanctuary—the magnificent house in which you take pride, the desire of your eyes, your complete delight—and all of the children you left behind in Jerusalem will be put to the sword and slaughtered." 22You will do exactly as I have done in hiding your grief: You will not eat the food others bring to comfort you or cover your upper lips. 23*You will dress as you always dress:* with turbans on your heads and sandals on your feet. You will not mourn or grieve. God tells me, "Instead, you will rot away from within because of your wickedness and moan among yourselves. 24In this way, Ezekiel will be a living example for you. You must do exactly as he has done. When this happens, you will know that I am the Eternal Lord."

Eternal One: 25As for you, son of man, on the day I seize their fortress—the joyous aspect of their pride, the desire of their eyes, their complete delight—and all of their children, 26a fugitive will escape from the destruction and will come to you in Babylon with news of what happened. 27The day you learn of My judgment, your mouth will be opened, and your silence will be broken. Then you will be able to converse with the fugitive. You will be a living example to them, and they will know that I am the Eternal One.

The word of the Eternal came to me regarding how He plans to punish Israel's neighbors.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, face the Ammonites and preach against them. 3Tell them to listen to the word of the Eternal Lord:

(to Ammon) Because you delighted in the desecration of My sanctuary, because you rejoiced when Israel became a wasteland, and because you cheered when the Judeans went into exile, 4I will certainly hand you over to the people of the East. They will set up camp all around you, pitching their tents and settling among you. They will feast off of your tables, eating your fruit and drinking your milk. 5I will transform Rabbah, your great city, into a pasture for camels, and Ammon will be turned into a resting place for sheep and goats. Then you will know that I am the Eternal One.

6This is what the Eternal Lord has to say about Ammon:

Eternal One: Because you have clapped your hands and stomped your feet, delighting with a malevolent heart against the land of Israel, 7I will raise My hand against you and divide you among the nations as prisoners and slaves. I will destroy you completely and make sure you are never a nation again. Then you will know that I am the Eternal One.

8This is what the Eternal Lord has to say about Moab:

Eternal One: Because Moab and Seir said, "Look! There's nothing special about Judah; she is just like every other nation," 9I will lay bare the western defenses of Moab by exposing its frontier cities—Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriath aim. 10I will hand Moab and her northern neighbors the Ammonites over to the people of the East. Then the Ammonites will be entirely forgotten by the nations. 11I will exercise My justice against Moab. Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

12This is what the Eternal Lord has to say about Edom:

Eternal One: Edom took revenge on the people of Judah, and her people are undeniably guilty for avenging themselves against My people. 13Because of this, I—the Eternal Lord—will raise My hand to strike Edom and slaughter the people and animals who live there. I will make Edom a wasteland—and everyone from Teman to Dedan will be put to the sword and die. 14I will take My own revenge on Edom and use My own people Israel as the weapon against them. Israel will do to Edom everything My anger and wrath require, and Edom will experience My vengeance. This I, the Eternal Lord, declare.

15This is what the Eternal Lord has to say about Philistia:

Eternal One: Because the Philistines had an old grudge against Judah and acted out of revenge and total malevolence to try to destroy My people, 16therefore I, the Eternal Lord, promise this: I will raise My hand and strike the Philistines, cut off the Cherethites, and slaughter anyone left along the coast. 17I will bring My fierce vengeance against them, rebuking them and punishing them in My wrath! When I bring My vengeance against them, they will know that I am the Eternal One.

► Israel and Judah are not the only nations infuriating God with their conduct. The surrounding countries—Ammon in the northeast, Moab in the east, Edom in the southeast, Philistia in the west, and Tyre in the northwest—have often been at odds with Israel and Judah. So when Judah falls, they celebrate in the streets and begin to figure how they might maneuver around these political and economic changes. Judah's fall might be a windfall for them. As the Judean exiles are forcibly marched out of their land, their neighbors mercilessly mock them for their crushing defeat. But God takes all of this very personally. He will not tolerate their disrespect of His people, which amounts to disrespect of Him too. So God takes His own revenge and punishes those who delight in Israel's and Judah's tragedies.

26 During the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, the word of the Eternal came to me regarding Tyre.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, Tyre has delighted in the news of Jerusalem, saying,

Hurray! The gateway to the nations is broken,
And now it is open for me to receive all of her commerce.
My markets will be full now that she is in ruins.

3Therefore I, the Eternal Lord, am telling you that I am your enemy, Tyre, and I will gather many nations and march them against you, just as the sea marches its waves against the unsuspecting shore. 4The waves of the nations will demolish the city walls of Tyre and crumble her towers. After the city is pummeled, I will sweep away all of her rubble and leave nothing but a bare rock. 5In the loneliness of the ocean, she will become a desolate island, used only for drying out fishnets. She will become prisoner and slave to all the nations, 6and her villages on the mainland will be massacred in battle. Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

7I am going to bring the great Babylonian king, the king of kings named Nebuchadnezzar, against Tyre. He will charge down from the north with strapping horses and indestructible chariots, master horsemen, and an enormous army. 8He will dispatch his soldiers to destroy your villages on the mainland and then lay siege against you with ramps against your walls and shields raised to deflect your opposition. 9He will demolish your walls with his siege machines and dismantle your towers with axes. 10You will be covered with dust from the galloping of his war horses. Your walls will shake from the tumult of the horses, wagons, and chariots when he breaches your walls and comes storming into the city. 11His rampaging horses will trample all your streets. He will slaughter everyone in the battle and topple every strong pillar to the ground. 12They will loot your wealth and claim your goods! They will tear down your walls and fine houses, and they'll toss the wood and stone and rubble into the sea. 13I will use My avenger to silence your lutes and harps and put an end to your songs. 14I will leave you a bare rock in the lonely ocean, a desolate island used only for drying out fishnets. I promise you will never be rebuilt. Never. I, the Eternal Lord, declare this.

15(continuing to Tyre) Don't you think the coastlands will shake at the sound of your fall, at the groans of the injured, at the great massacre that takes place inside your walls? 16Then the princes from the other coastal cities will step down from their thrones, give up their royal robes, and remove their embroidered garments. They will clothe their nakedness with sheer terror and sit on the ground, constantly shaking with horror at what happened to you. 17Then they will sing a dirge over you:

How you are destroyed, O famous city!
City of sea people!
You and your kind were a great force
on the seas;
you terrorized all who lived around
you.

18Now, the coastlands will quake on the day when you fall,
and the cities along the shore will be terrified by your passing.

19When I destroy you and empty your streets, when I drown you and bury you within the ocean depths, 20I will sink you down into the pit where those people from long ago sleep in death. I will make you stay there, in the lower parts of the earth among the ancient ruins with those who dwell in the pit of the dead, and you will never be inhabited again. You will never resurface in the land of the living where I rest My glory. 21I will terrify you, and you will meet your end. You will be sought, but you will never be found again.

This is what the Eternal Lord declares.

27 The word of the Eternal came to me with a lament for Tyre.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, sing a lament over Tyre. 3Sing of Tyre, gateway to the sea, merchant to many ports and many people. I, the Eternal Lord, say to you:

Tyre, you have claimed,
"I am perfect in beauty."
4Your territory extends to the heart of the seas;
your builders have perfected your
beauty.
5*Like a great ship* they have made you from the finest firs of Senir;
they took a cedar from Lebanon to make you a noble mast.
6They brought oaks from Bashan and made your oars.
They planked your deck with pines
from the coasts of Cyprus
and inlaid it with ivory!
7Your sail was made of fine linen from Egypt, embroidered by hand;
your blue and purple awning was tinted with dyes imported from the coasts of Elishah.
8Your oarsmen were strong men from Sidon and Arvad;
your crew was the most skilled and experienced men, O Tyre.
9Expert craftsmen from Gebal were on board
to make any repairs needed.
All the ships of the sea and their sailors huddled around you
to trade for your goods.

10 Soldiers from Persia, Lydia, and Libya* were your army.
Their shields and helmets hung from your ship and announced your splendor.
11 Men from Arvad and Helech patrolled your walls,
and men from Gammad manned your towers.
Their shields hung on all your walls
and announced your splendor.
They have perfected your beauty.

12 Tarshish traded with you because of your great wealth and plentiful goods; they bartered silver, iron, tin, and lead for your wares. 13 Greece,* Tubal, and Meshech did business with you as well. They bartered slaves and boatloads of bronze for your wares. 14 The men of Beth-togarmah bartered work horses, war horses, and mules for your goods. 15 The people of Rhodes* traded with you too. You made the people of the coastland your own special market, and they paid you in ivory tusks and ebony. 16 Aram* traded with you because your goods were plentiful. They bartered precious stones,* purple cloth, embroidered work, exquisite linens, coral, and rubies for your wares. 17 Judah and the rest of Israel did business with you. They paid you fine wheat, fresh produce,* sweet honey, fragrant oil, and exotic balm for your merchandise. 18 Damascus—the hub of caravan trading—traded with you because of your great wealth and plentiful goods as well. They brought wine from Helbon, wool from Zahar*; 19 Greeks from Uzal* bartered iron, cassia bark, and other herbs for your goods. 20 Deban traded in saddle blankets with you. 21 Arabia and all of the Kedar princes certainly traded with you. They traded lambs, rams, and goats. 22 The businessmen of Sheba and Raamah exchanged the finest spices, gems, and gold for your plentiful goods. 23-24 Haran, Canneh, Eden, and merchants from Sheba, Asshur, and Chilmad did business with you, exchanging exquisite clothing, indigo fabrics, embroidered cloth, carpets dyed of various colors, and tightly braided ropes. 25 Commerce was bustling as Tarshish's ships transported your goods. In the heart of the sea your docks were full, Tyre, and your business brought you glory and success.

Tarshish was probably located in what is southern Spain today, so Tyre's commercial reach extended to the other side of the Mediterranean.

26 Expert seafarers row you out into the high seas;
there, a squall from the east shatters you in the heart of the sea!
27 All is lost: your treasures and goods and products along with all crew aboard—seafarers, pilots, carpenters, traders, and soldiers.
Everyone and everything will sink into the heart of the sea when the ship is wrecked.
28 The coastal plains shudder at the shrieks and cries of your pilots.
29 All oarsmen, seafarers, and pilots come down from their ships.
They stand on the shore and gaze out to your catastrophe.
30 They mourn over you with bitter cries that drown out your screams.
They throw dust on top of their heads and wallow in beds of ashes.
31 They shave all their hair and wear sackcloth around their waists.
They grieve and weep over you, deeply and bitterly.
32 And they shout their dirge over your demise:
"Who is like Tyre, sunken and silent in the heart of the sea?"
33 Your goods pleased many people when your sailors went to sea.
Your treasures and products made kings rich all over the world.
34 But now you are shipwrecked, devoured by the great waves.
Your products and all your crew have been swallowed by the sea.
35 All the inhabitants of the coasts are shocked at what happened to you;
their kings grimace in fear as they look on.
36 And the traders of the nations jeer at you;
the end of your story is a horror, for you are gone, never to return.

* 27:10 Hebrew, Lud and Put * 27:13 Hebrew, Javan * 27:15 Hebrew manuscripts read, "Dedan." * 27:16 Some manuscripts read, "Edom." * 27:16 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 27:17 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 27:18 Or, white * 27:19 Or, wine from Isal

28 The word of the Eternal came to me with a message about the prince of Tyre.

► Tyre's troubles start not long after Judah is destroyed in 586 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar marches there and begins a siege that lasts for almost 13 years. The part of the city on the mainland is captured by Nebuchadnezzar, but the princes of Tyre continue to rule from their island palace for another two centuries. In 332 B.C. Alexander the Great will use the rubble of the mainland city to construct a bridge to the island. Soon the island of Tyre will be in ruins, as it will remain forever.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, go to the prince of Tyre, and give him this message. This is what I, Eternal Lord, have to say:

Your heart is swollen with pride—
a pride that says, "I am a god.
I sit on a divine throne in the heart of the sea."
But I assure you, prince, you are nothing more than a mortal man—a man of mortal destiny.
Even though you have the self-confidence of a god,
you are made entirely of flesh and blood.
3But obviously you must be wiser than Daniel, that ancient judge in Ugarit.
Clearly, you understand every mystery.
4You used your wisdom and discernment to amass a great fortune,
to fill your treasuries with gold and silver.
5Your knack for trade has built your wealth,
but your success and riches have made your heart swell with pride.

► Because of Tyre's location off the coast, she receives daily supplies and survives a long war; therefore, her ruler, Ethbaal III, has every human reason to be confident. Such confidence and wickedness is bred into him: Ethbaal's ancestor, Ethbaal I, was a priest of their goddess Astarte and seized the throne for himself. He was a powerful prince, making political connections and spreading the worship of his goddess all over the region. Ethbaal I's daughter, Jezebel, was famous for entrenching pagan worship in Israel, so Tyre is indirectly the root of Israel's wickedness.

6Here is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: Because you imagine yourself as wise as a god, 7I am going to recruit outsiders—merciless nations—to take you down.
They will draw their swords and cut you down to size,
attacking the beautiful things your wisdom procured and destroying your splendor.
8They will force you down to the pit, and you will die the death of those struck down in the heart of the sea.
9At that moment, will you protest to your executioners, "But I'm a god!"?
To those who strike you down you are no god.
To them, you are nothing more than a mortal man.
10You will die the death of all who are uncircumcised,
at the hand of outsiders.

Like the Israelites, the people of Tyre practice circumcision.

So said the Eternal Lord.
11The word of the Eternal continued giving me His message.

Eternal One: 12Son of man, sing a lament for the prince of Tyre. Tell him this is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say:

You were a paradigm of perfection,
human life at its best.
You had everything a leader needs: immense wisdom and perfect beauty.
13You lived in Eden, God's garden.
You were clothed in magnificent splendor, covered in jewels:

Sardius, topaz, diamond, beryl, onyx, jasper,
lapis lazuli, turquoise, and emerald.
All the mountings were made of gold,*
prepared for you on the day you were created.
14I anointed you the guardian* of the garden and stationed you at your post to protect it.
You were on the divine mountain, the holy mount of God.
There you walked among the fiery stones.
15You were entirely pure from the day you were created,
until wickedness crept in and was found in you!
16Too much buying and selling—a greedy obsession!
You became motivated to violence and did wicked things.
Polluted and disgraced, I drove you off the mountain of God!
I expelled you, O guardian protector, from the fiery stones.
17Your heart swelled with pride because of your beauty and talents.
Your hunger for fame, your thirst for glory corrupted your wisdom.
This is why I drove you to the ground and made an example out of you before a company of kings.
18You desecrated your sanctuaries by pursuing sin after sin and cheating in business.
I set a flame inside of you, and it devoured you completely.
I reduced you to a pile of ashes on the ground,
a sight for all to see.

Ezekiel prophesies that the prince of Tyre will die violently without the benefit of a proper burial and find no peace in the afterlife.

19All the nations who know you are appalled at what has happened to you.
The end of your story is a horror: you are gone, never to return.

► The prince of Tyre's biography echoes the creation story. Adam, too, is described as a perfect and honored creation of God, given guardianship of the earth and full access to God. Expelled from paradise, wickedness becomes entrenched and spreads until God is forced to execute His judgment.

20The word of the Eternal came to me with a message against Sidon.

Eternal One: 21-22Son of man, face Sidon and preach to her. This is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say:

Look, Sidon! I am against you;
My glory will be revealed when I prevail over you.
They will know that I am the Eternal One when I have punished her and revealed My holy self to her.
23I will rain down disease upon her—an epidemic of death!
Her streets will become rivers of blood!
The wounded will fall within her walls,
and the battle will rage on every side!
Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

24As for the people of Israel, they will no longer have to deal with the spiteful, thorny neighbors who mocked their destruction. Then they will know that I am the Eternal Lord.

25Here is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: When I gather the people of Israel from the nations where they have been scattered, I will reveal My holiness through them with all the nations watching. They will live in their own land—the land I gave to My servant, Jacob. 26They will live safely there, building houses and planting vineyards. They will live safely there when I punish all of their neighbors who mocked them and treated them shamefully. Then they will know that I am the Eternal their God.

29 In the 10th year, on the 12th day of the 10th month, the word of the Eternal came to me with a message about Egypt.

* 28:13 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 28:14 Hebrew, cherub

Eternal One: [2]Son of man, face Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and preach against him and against all of Egypt! [3]Tell him this is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say:

Look, I am against you,
Pharaoh king of Egypt.
You are like a great river monster,
snaking through the streams in the Nile, declaring, "I own the Nile. I made it, and it is mine."
[4]But I will set a hook in your jaws
and make the fish of the Nile cling to your scales.
I will haul you in out of your waterways,
with all the fish clinging to your scales.
[5]Then I will take you and leave you out in the desert,
you and all the fish of your waters.
You'll collapse in the wide open space,
but no one will bother to collect your remains
Or bury you with your ancestors.
You'll be food for wild beasts of the earth and birds in the sky.
[6]Then all who live in Egypt will know that I am the Eternal One.
You have been nothing more than a staff made of wobbly reeds to the people of Israel.
[7]When they took hold of you, looking for support,
you splintered and tore their hands.
When they leaned on you, you snapped in two,
and they wrenched their backs *because of you.

[8]So this is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say: "Look, I will march an army against you! It's coming to slaughter your people and your animals. [9]I am going to make the land of Egypt a lonely wasteland; then they will know that I am the Eternal One."

Because of your arrogant utterance, "I own the Nile. I made it, and it is mine," [10]I oppose you and your streams. I will turn the land of Egypt into a lonely wasteland from Migdol to Aswan,* all the way to Ethiopia.* [11-12]No people or animals will pass through there. Not a single person will live there for 40 years. I will turn the land of Egypt into a wasteland, a tragedy among tragedies, the most devastating of devastations! Any cities still standing after the war will lie in ruins for 40 years. I will scatter the Egyptians to the wind and divide them among the nations.

[13]After 40 years have passed, I am going to gather the Egyptians from the nations where I scattered them. [14]I will restore their fortunes and lead them back to the land of Pathros, the land of their ancestors. There, Egypt will begin again, but this time as an insignificant kingdom.

According to Egyptian legends, their people originate in southern Egypt near Pathros. Ezekiel is apparently aware of these stories and indicates God will give Egypt a new start.

[15]She will be the weakest of any kingdom, never gaining power and never again ruling over other nations. [16]The people of Israel will never again turn to Egypt in a time of crisis because Egypt's fate will be a reminder of her sins—when Israel chose to trust a pagan nation instead of Me. Then My people will know that I am the Eternal Lord.

► The prophet directs his oracle against Pharaoh, but in reality the pharaoh represents all of the people. Pharaoh's audacious claim that he created the Nile stands in clear contradiction to the fact that Israel's God created the heavens and the earth. So God becomes his enemy, fishes the great river monster out of the river—the lifeline of Egypt—and leaves his body as food for the animals and birds of the desert. The "monster" could refer either to the Nile crocodile—a symbol of the Pharaoh's power—or the mythical creature of chaos who opposes God but is ultimately defeated by Him. The other fishes clinging to his scales appear to represent all those who depend on Pharaoh, including the Egyptian people and those foolish enough to align with them.

[17]In the 27th year, on the 1st day of the 1st month, the word of the Eternal came to me.

* 29:7 Hebrew reads, "made their loins shake." * 29:10 Hebrew, Syrene * 29:10 Hebrew, Cush

Eternal One: [18]Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, has exhausted his army with the long siege of Tyre. His soldiers' bodies are spent, their heads bald and shoulders rubbed raw, yet they have made little progress. The king and his army have not been rewarded for all of their hard work against Tyre.

[19]Therefore, the Eternal Lord says:

Eternal One: Look, I am going to hand the land of Egypt over to Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon. He will take away her wealth—her goods and her population—by force and pay his army with the treasures he acquires there. [20]I have given him Egypt's land as his reward to compensate him for all the work he has done for Me.

[21]When that day comes, I will make a horn grow for the people of Israel so that they will be confident that My deliverance is near. Then I will open your mouth so that they will realize you have been speaking for Me all along. Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

30 The word of the Eternal came to me with a lament for Egypt.

Eternal One: [2]Son of man, speak! Tell them this is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Weep and wail,
for today is the day you've dreaded;
[3]The day of God's judgment is near;
the day of the Eternal is closing in!
It is a day of dark clouds and gloom
that foreshadows the doom of the nations.
[4]A sword will come against Egypt,
agony will invade Ethiopia,
When the dead cover the land of Egypt,
when her wealth is taken away and her foundations are leveled.

[5]Every nation in league with her will be destroyed in the war: Ethiopia,* Put, Lud, all of Arabia, and Libya.

[6]Egypt's friends will crumble
along with her arrogance, her proud strength.
From Migdol to Aswan,*
they will fall by the sword.
[7]Egypt will be laid waste, a tragedy among tragedies, the most devastating of devastations! Her cities will lie in ruins, surrounded by the empty desolation of other ruined cities. [8]Then they will all know that I am the Eternal One after I burn down Egypt and demolish her allies. [9]On that day of destruction, I will dispatch messengers in ships to wake up the sleeping nation of Ethiopia. They will drown in agony when they hear the news of Egypt's doom! They will know, "We're next! Judgment is on the horizon!"

[10-11]This is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: I will put an end to the wealth and population of Egypt
using the power of Nebuchadnezzar as My weapon.
I will dispatch the king of Babylon and his armies—
the most ruthless in the world—
to ravage the land!
They will unsheathe their swords against Egypt
and fill the land with the slain.
[12]I will dry up the waterways of the Nile
and sell the land to those who have evil designs.
I, the Eternal, promise to recruit foreigners
to destroy the land and plunder away everything of value.

[13]I, the Eternal Lord, have this to say:
I will demolish the breathless idols
and destroy the vulgar images in Memphis.*
There won't be a prince left in all the land of Egypt anymore;
I will infect the entire nation with a plague of fear!
[14]I will crush Pathros in the south, set fire to Zoan in the delta, and deliver a horrific punishment to Thebes* and all its temples.
[15]I will drown Sin*—the great fortress of Egypt—in My wrath and put an end to the wealth and population of Thebes.
[16]I will set fire to all of Egypt!
Sin will writhe in pain.
Thebes will be torn apart;
day after day Memphis will live in fear.
[17]The young soldiers of Heliopolis* and Pi-beseth will die in the battle;
the women will go into captivity.

* 30:5 Hebrew, Cush * 30:6 Hebrew, Syrene * 30:13 Hebrew, Noph * 30:14 Hebrew, No * 30:15 Egyptian city of Sais.
* 30:17 Hebrew, On

In the ancient world, conquered peoples become the victors' property. While the men are often killed, the women are taken away and used as slaves for various purposes.

18 An unnatural darkness will cover Tehaphnehes
when I destroy the dominion of Egypt.
I will put an end to her arrogance, her proud strength!
Dark clouds will veil her,
and her daughters will be led away
as slaves.
19 This is how I will deliver My punishing judgments against Egypt;
then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

20 During the eleventh year, on the seventh day of the first month, the word of the Eternal came to me with a message about Egypt:

Eternal One: 21 Son of man, I've broken the arm of the Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Look! The bone has not yet been set, and his arm has not been splinted in order to promote healing. Therefore, he won't be able to handle a sword to defend the nation's power. 22 So this is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say: Look! I oppose Pharaoh, king of Egypt. I will break both arms—the strong one and the already-broken one. I'll make sure he'll not be able to handle a sword! 23 I will scatter the Egyptians to the wind—dividing them among the nations. 24-25 Meanwhile I will strengthen the arms of Babylon's king, and I will place My sword in his hand. But I will break Pharaoh's arms, and the king of Egypt will groan with the pain of his injury before Nebuchadnezzar. So I will make the arms of Babylon's king strong, even as the arms of Pharaoh grow weak and fall limp at his side. Then Egypt will know that I am the Eternal One—when I place My sword in the hands of the Babylonian king and he wields it against the land of Egypt. 26 When I scatter the Egyptians to the wind and divide them among the nations, they will know that I am the Eternal One.

► Egypt is the last in this series of oracles against the nations. The imagery is just as profound and poetically graphic as in the other oracles. The terror of Tyre and Sidon's defeat is fresh on the minds of Jerusalem's citizens, and they wonder, what else will Nebuchadnezzar do to the Egyptians and their forces? The prophet has the answer. Like a locust hopping from city to city, the Babylonian army will move from the northern capital, Memphis (in lower Egypt), to the southern capital, Thebes (in upper Egypt). God proclaims through His living example, Ezekiel, that He has put His sword in Nebuchadnezzar's hand to punish Egypt. If Egypt with all its history and splendor will fall to Babylonia, what chance do other nations have?

31 During the eleventh year, on the first day of the third month, the word of the Eternal came to me with a message about the Pharaoh.

Eternal One: 2 Son of man, tell Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and all his subjects,

Who is comparable to your greatness,
Pharaoh?
3 Think about Assyria—a land once broad and handsome.
Like a cedar in Lebanon offering shade
and beauty,
it grew high enough to reach the
clouds!
4 Heaven's waters made it grow, kept it healthy;
the deep waters made it grow
tall,
Causing the rivers to flow around
where it was planted,
channeling water to all the thirsty
trees of the field.
5 It towered high above all the other trees in that place.
Its boughs increased in number;
Its branches grew stronger, thicker, and
longer—
nourished by the generous waters
beneath it.
6 All the birds of the air built their nests
in its strong limbs;
all the wild beasts of the earth
gave birth beneath its mighty
branches;
all the great nations flourished in its long shadow.

7It was magnificent in its beauty,
grand in its form, and long in its branches;
For its roots grew deep and tapped the sources of many waters.
8No cedar trees in God's garden could rival it;
no junipers could grow as many boughs;
no oriental plane trees could match its many branches;
No trees in God's garden could rival its magnificent beauty!
9I made it mighty and beautiful;
I molded its limbs, leaves, and branches
To be the envy of every tree in Eden, of each tree in God's garden.

10Therefore, this is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: Because it is a giant tree, towering high above the rest, because its upper branches reach the clouds and it boasts of its unrivaled, stately stature, 11I will hand it over to the ruler of the nations for him to deal with it according to its wickedness. I have cast it aside. 12Foreigners who strike terror in the heart of the nations chopped it down and left it to rot. Its mighty branches crashed to the ground upon mountains and valleys. Its limbs shattered in ravines and littered rivers and streams. The tree was no longer a giant and no longer provided cool shade, so all the nations of the earth abandoned it. 13Birds of the air perched on the trunk of the fallen tree. Wild beasts made homes within its limbs. 14Consequently, no trees should ever boast of their stately stature, nor have their branches reach the clouds, nor tower high above the rest. There will be no more giants nourished by the deep waters of the earth, for they're all destined to die and be for the world below. They will go down to the pit with all the people of the earth.

15So I, the Eternal Lord, say that on the day when Assyria, the giant cedar, went to the place of the dead, I filled the deep waters with mourning. I halted the flow of its rivers and streams and veiled Lebanon's hills and mountains with black for mourning. All the trees in the woodland withered away because of its demise! 16-17I caused the nations to shake at the sound of its fall when I sent the giant tree to the destiny of all mortal things—death. All the trees of Eden, the finest and most well-watered trees in all of Lebanon, were comforted in that place of death. They accompanied it to the pit along with all those slain in battle—those who once kept it strong and rested in the cool of its shade along with the rest of the nations. 18Which of the trees in Eden could rival your magnificent beauty and stately glory? But even you will perish and be taken to the earth below, along with other trees of Eden. You will lie in the grave beside the uncircumcised who were slain in battle. This is the fate of Pharaoh and all his people.

So said the Eternal Lord.

32 During the twelfth year, on the first day of the twelfth month, the word of the Eternal came to me with a lament over Pharaoh and his people.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, sing a lament over Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Tell him,

You imagine yourself a lion moving mightily through the nations,
but you're really like the great sea monster Rampaging through the waterways—muddying up the streams and fouling the rivers with your feet.

3So I, the Eternal One, say:
I will use a company of many people to cover you with My net
Using the nations to make the trap.
Once you are caught, they will haul you up in My net.
4I will leave you on dry land
and cast you in an open field.
I will summon the birds of the sky to land on you and feast on your flesh.
I will bring the wild beasts of the earth to satisfy their hunger with you.
5I will scatter bits and pieces of you on the hills and fill the valleys with your remains.
6I will see that the land drinks your flowing blood
as it streams to the mountains and fills the dry riverbeds.
7When I blot you out, I will cover the heavens and dim the stars;

I will hide the sun behind a cloud,
and the moon will not shine.
8I will darken the lights that shine in the heavens
and shroud your land in darkness.

9I will disturb the hearts of many people across the world with accounts of your destruction. The news will travel to places you have never heard of or knew existed. 10I will shock many peoples with your story; kings will be terrified to remember your fate when I wave My sword at them. On the day of your destruction, they will tremble constantly, fearing your tragic destiny might also be theirs.

11I, the Eternal Lord, say that the sword of the Babylonian king will strike against you, Egypt. 12I will use the swords of mighty warriors—all from the most ruthless nation on earth—to strike down your vast population.

They will hack the pride of Egypt to pieces and slaughter her vast population.
13I will destroy all her livestock that drink from the abundant rivers and streams so they will no longer be muddied by the feet of man or beast.
14*Once they are gone,* I will settle the waters of Egypt and let them flow as smoothly as olive oil.
15After I make the land of Egypt a wasteland,
strip the land bare, and crush all of her inhabitants,
Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

16This is the lament they will sing over her. The daughters of the nations will mourn and sing for Egypt and for all her people.

So says the Eternal Lord.

17In the twelfth year, on the fifteenth day of the first month, the word of the Eternal came to me regarding Egypt.

Eternal One: 18Son of man, grieve for the vast population of Egypt. Deliver Egypt and her foreign allies to the lowest regions of the earth, to the pit where they may join the rest of the dead.

► In Ezekiel's day the Israelites believe that after death, all people go down to the pit, often called "Sheol." The Hebrew word comes from a root that means "to ask a question" because no one knows exactly what happens on the other side. The afterlife remains an open question for Ezekiel's contemporaries. The Bible describes it as a dark, shadowy place, located perhaps in the lowest regions of the earth. It stands in sharp contrast to the descriptions Jesus' apostles will give of heaven and hell later in the New Testament. The Scriptures do not reveal everything at once. They invite the reader to keep digging and keep seeking to find answers.

Eternal One: 19*Ask Egypt,* "Who compares to your beauty now?
Go down into the pit and rest among the uncircumcised pagans."
20They will fall and be buried with those who died in battle. The sword is drawn and at her throat! They have dragged her and all her vast population away. 21The mighty rulers in the place of the dead will hail them: "Welcome to the world of the dead! Come on down and take your place among the uncircumcised pagans and those killed in battle."

The Egyptians practice circumcision and are careful in burying their dead. They consider it an insult to be laid to rest with the uncircumcised and those never properly buried.

22Assyria is in the pit—she and her entire company. She is encircled by the graves of her people—all of them slain, fallen by the sword. 23Their graves are in the lowest regions of the pit; a vast company encircles her grave; all of them are slain, fallen by the sword. Their reign of terror among the living has ended in an eternity of dishonor.

24Elam is there, too, with all her population around her grave. They all died in battle, slaughtered by the sword. They descended to the lowest regions of the pit uncircumcised. 25Their reign of terror among the living has ended in an eternity among the disgraced in the pit. They have made her a bed among those killed in battle. The graves of her people surround her. They were slaughtered by the sword and descended into death without being circumcised. Their reign of terror among the living has ended in an eternity among the disgraced in the pit. They have taken their place among the slain.

26Meshech and Tubal take residence in the lowest parts of the pit as well. The graves of their people surround them. Although they terrorized the living, they have all died in battle without being circumcised. 27But they won't share a space with the other uncircumcised pagan warriors (who also reigned down terror on earth) inhabiting the place of death honorably, buried with their weapons. Meshech and Tubal won't rest on their swords in valor; instead, the punishment for their wickedness will rest on their bones. 28*Pharaoh,* you, too, will lie with the other residents of the underworld. Your place is set beside the uncircumcised and those who died in battle.

29Edom is there, too, with all her royalty and leadership. Even though they possessed great power while on earth, they dwell with others in the pit. They lie beside the uncircumcised and those who died in battle.

30All the northern princes and all the Sidonians will end up in the pit too. They used their power to terrorize others in the land of the living. But now they dwell in shame with others in the pit. They lie beside the uncircumcised and those who died in battle.

31I, the Eternal One, declare that Pharaoh will see and take comfort in the company of all his people—especially his army—slaughtered by the sword. 32Even though I used him to terrorize the living, I am consigning him and all his people to lie in the deepest parts of the pit beside the uncircumcised and all those who died in battle.

So says the Eternal Lord.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, talk with your fellow exiles, and tell them, "If I wage war against a country and the people appoint one of their own to be a lookout, 3and if the lookout sees an army advancing toward the land and blows a trumpet to warn the people, 4-5and if someone hears the alarm and ignores it, allowing that army to come and capture him; then it is his own fault for not taking appropriate action. His blood will be on his own hands. If he had done something, he could have saved his life and the lives of others. 6But if the lookout sees an army advancing and does not sound the alarm to warn the people and if some are captured or killed, then their blood will be on the hands of the lookout."

7Son of man, I have appointed you as a lookout for the nation of Israel. You must listen to what I have to say, then go and pass My warning on to your countrymen. 8If I have a message for the wicked such as, "Wicked one, you are going to die," and you don't warn him to change his ways, then he will surely die because of his wickedness; but I will hold you responsible for his death. 9If you do warn him to change his ways and he doesn't do anything about it, then he will die because of his wickedness; but you will have saved your own life.

10Son of man, you must tell the people of Israel, "You keep saying, 'Our crimes and sins are weighing us down! We are rotting away! How can we live?'" 11Tell them, "As I live," says the Eternal Lord, "I don't enjoy watching the wicked die; I want the wicked to stop doing what they're doing and live! Repent! Turn from your wicked ways. Why would you choose to die instead of live, people of Israel?"

12Son of man, tell your people, "The righteousness of the righteous won't save him on the day he breaks My law, and the wickedness of the wicked won't cause him to stumble and fall if he turns away from his wickedness. The righteous is not able to depend on his former right actions to save him when he decides to sin. 13If I assure life to the one who does what is right, but he depends on his reputation for doing right and ends up sinning, then none of his former right actions will be remembered or tallied in his favor. He will surely die because of his sins. 14If I tell the wicked, 'You are certainly going to die,' but he turns from his wicked path and chooses to be honest and do what is right, 15if he gives back a debtor's collateral, if he returns what he has stolen, if he lives by the laws that offer true life and abandons his evil ways; then he will certainly live. He will escape death. 16Not one of his former sins will be remembered and tallied against him. He has lived by what is right and true, and he will certainly live."

17Still your own people say, "The Lord's way is not fair at all." But they are the ones with perverted ways. 18If a good person turns from the good path he is on and chooses to act wickedly, he will die for it. 19If a wicked man turns from the wicked path he is on and chooses to live by what is right and true, he will save his life. 20But you, people of Israel, continue to complain, "The Lord's way is not fair at all." I will judge each of you according to what you have done.

21During the twelfth year of our exile, on the fifth day of the tenth month, someone who had survived the Babylonian attack on Jerusalem brought me news as God said he would:* "The city has been captured!" 22The evening before the Judean refugee came to me, the Eternal took hold of me; and by the time the refugee arrived the next morning, He had opened my mouth, renewed my voice, and broken my silence.

23Then the word of the Eternal came to me with a message for the survivors.

Eternal One: 24Son of man, the survivors dwelling in the rubble in the land of Israel are speaking nonsense, saying, "Abraham was but one man, yet he took possession of the land. We are many; surely the land has been given to us to own." 25Because they continue in their false hope, go give them this message from the Eternal Lord: "You eat raw meat with blood still in it, you worship idols, and you shed innocent blood. Do you really think you are worthy of owning the land of Israel? 26You rely on your own strength in battle, you do shocking things, and you all partake in adulterous sex with your neighbors' wives. Do you really think you are worthy of owning the land?" 27Tell them the Eternal Lord says, "As surely as I, the Eternal live, those dwelling in the rubble will be killed in battle, those who live out in the open will be fed to wild beasts, and those hiding in fortresses or caves will die of disease. 28I will turn this land into a wasteland, and no one will step foot there. Her pride in her power will be knocked out from under her, and Israel's mountains will become so desolate that no one will dare to pass through them. 29When I have made the land nothing more than a wasteland of rubble because of their shocking actions, they will know that I am the Eternal One."

30But you, son of man, your own people are talking about you everywhere—in the streets and at doorsteps—saying to their kinsmen, "Come listen to what Ezekiel is saying. He has a word from the Eternal." 31They come to you, just as people flock to see someone famous. My people sit at your feet and seem to hang on your every word, but they never apply those sacred instructions to their own lives. For they act as they speak—with lustful desire—and think only of how they'll make a profit. 32To them you are nothing more than a gifted singer of lustful songs, a teller of tales, a master of instruments! They hear what you say but fail to put any of it into practice. 33But when the messages you've given them actually come true—and I assure you, everything you tell them is going to come true—they will realize a true prophet has been among them.

► The fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. must confound Ezekiel. While he is, of course, devastated by the destruction of his homeland and the deaths of his countrymen, their defeat vindicates him and his life's work. Everyone now knows that Ezekiel is a true prophet of God, and his years of suffering to bring his fellow exiles God's message are rewarded by the people fawning over him. Unfortunately, the people's sudden attention to Ezekiel's words is akin to a person's adoration of his favorite entertainer. They love to be in his presence, but they take him no more seriously than they ever have. Ezekiel's popularity will be short-lived.

34 The word of the Eternal came to me with a message for Israel's leaders.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, preach against Israel's shepherds! Speak directly to the shepherds and tell them this is what the Eternal Lord has to say: "Woe to the shepherds of Israel whose only concern is to protect and nourish themselves!

* 33:21 Ezekiel 24:26

Isn't a shepherd's job to look after the sheep? 3*Yet you exploit them in every way.* You devour their fat, make soft clothes and blankets out of their wool, and slaughter the best sheep for your table. Meanwhile you don't take care of the sheep at all. 4You have not sought to nurse the weak. You have not gone out to tend to the sick. You have not bandaged the injured. You don't bring back the strays or look for the lost. You have led them with neglect, ruled them with harshness, shepherded them with cruelty! 5They had no real shepherd, so they have scattered; the entire flock was prey for wild beasts. 6My sheep drifted aimlessly through all the mountains and up and down every hill. My flock was scattered all over the world, scattered like the stars in the night sky, and not a single shepherd went looking for them."

God condemns the shepherd-rulers of Israel for neglecting their duties and exploiting their human flock. Heaven will not remain silent at this injustice. A change is coming.

7Now pay attention, shepherds, to My word: 8As surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, because My sheep are without a shepherd, because they have become prey for all the wild beasts to feed upon, because my shepherds have not gone in search of My sheep but have only looked out for themselves and not watched after and cared for My flock; 9I encourage you, shepherds, to listen to the word of the Eternal.

10-11Those self-centered shepherds are My enemies! As far as I am concerned, they are no longer shepherds. They will not help themselves to My sheep any longer. I will recover My flock from those corrupt shepherds. I will snatch My sheep from their mouths! My sheep will no longer provide milk, clothing, or meat to them. I will personally go out searching for My sheep. I will find them wherever they are, and I will look after them. 12In the same way one shepherd seeks after, cares for, and watches over his scattered flock, so will I be the guardian of My sheep. I will be their Rescuer! No matter where they have scattered, I will go to find them. I will bring them back from the places where they were scattered on that dark and cloudy day. 13-14I will call them out from the nations, gather them from the countries, and bring them into their own land. I will feed them in the high mountain pastures and meadows of Israel. I will feed them on good pastures; they will graze on the mountain heights of Israel. They will lie down to rest on this good ground, and they will feed on succulent grasses in bountiful pastures on the slopes of Israel's sanctuary mountains. 15I Myself will watch over My sheep and feed My flock. Whenever they are tired, I will lead them to rest on the cool mountain grass. 16When they are lost, I will seek them and bring back every last stray. I will bind up the injured and strengthen the weak. However, I will destroy the fat and powerful. I will feed them a healthy portion of judgment.

17As for you, My flock, this is what the Eternal Lord has to say: "Watch carefully! I will judge between one sheep and another, between rams and male goats." 18Are you not satisfied grazing in blooming pastures, feasting off rich mountain lands? Do you have to trample all of the pastures with your feet? Are you not satisfied drinking out of clear mountain streams? Do you have to muddy all of the mountain streams with your feet? 19Why should the rest of My flock have to graze on trampled pastures and drink from muddied streams because of your careless feet?

20So this is what the Eternal Lord has to say to them: "Watch carefully! I will personally judge between the fat sheep and the skinny sheep." 21Because you fat sheep bully the weak, push them around, and threaten them with your horns until you scatter them to distant mountains, 22*I will step in and save them.* I will rescue them, and they will no longer be hunted and hassled. I will judge between one sheep and another. 23I will designate one shepherd over the entire flock: My faithful servant, David. He will watch over them and care for them. He will be their shepherd. 24I, the Eternal, will be their God; and My faithful servant, David, will be their prince.

I, the Eternal One, have spoken.

25I will establish a covenant of peace with them and drive away all the dangerous wild animals from the land. Then they will be able to live safely in the wilderness and sleep soundly in the forests. 26I will make them and the area around My holy hill a blessing. At My direction, there will be plenty of rainfall when it is needed. There will be showers of blessing! 27The trees of the fields and orchards will bear abundant fruit, the soil of the

After God declares His opposition to the shepherd-rulers who neglected and exploited their human flock, God pledges to get involved personally. He will search for the lost sheep, return the strays, and care for them tenderly back in the beautiful land of Israel, the land of promise.

But in God's human flock are trouble and competition. Even as God lovingly supplies His flock with plenty of good food, clear water, and pleasant pastures, some trample what they can't control and foul what they can't consume. Some bully and push their weight around, while others move aside or run for the hills. Again God sees the problem and promises to step in, personally, to rescue His hassled people and put an end to injustice. So God promises to send another shepherd-ruler, in the spirit of King David, who will love and care for the flock as God Himself does. This Davidic shepherd will be unlike the wicked, neglectful shepherd-rulers in Israel's past; this son of David will rule as their prince in submission to Israel's one True God.

But there is more. In the final movement of this oracle, God announces a new covenant—a covenant of peace. Its scope is beyond human community and politics. It is a renewal of life in the land of Israel and, by extension, in the rest of creation.

fields will produce ample crops, and My people will rest securely within their land. They will know that I am the Eternal when I destroy the dominion of their oppressors and liberate them from those who made them slaves. 28Foreign powers won't ravage them anymore, and wild beasts will no longer feast on their flesh. They'll be safe and free and fearless. 29I will make their land famous for its beauty and productivity. Never again will famine strike their land. Never again will other nations sneer at them. 30They will know that I, the Eternal One their God, am on their side and that they, the people of Israel, are My people.

The Eternal said this, 31then added,

Eternal One: As for you, you are My sheep, the human flock of My pasture, and I am your God.

35 The word of the Eternal came to me with a message for Edom.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, turn toward Mount Seir and preach against it. 3Tell the Edomites that this is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Pay attention! I oppose you, Mount Seir!
I will raise My hand against you, strike you,
and leave you an empty wasteland.
4I will turn your cities to rubble,
and you will lie desolate and deserted.
Then you will know that I am the Eternal One.

5You held an old grudge against the Israelites, and you handed them over to death and defeat when they were in the midst of disaster, at a crucial moment of their final punishment.

► Israel has no more implacable enemy than Edom. As the descendants of Esau, whose brother Jacob stole his birthright and his father's blessing, the Edomites view the Israelites as illegitimate rulers and thieves. So shortly after Nebuchadnezzar razes Jerusalem in 586 B.C., Edom seizes its opportunity for revenge and swoops in to fill the political vacuum that results. The Edomites are not operating as God's instruments. They attack Israel out of their own greed, thinking no one is left to oppose them. They are wrong. The land of Israel never belongs to the people themselves; it belongs to God. When the Edomites sneak in to pillage the land of Israel, they find the stewards of the land gone or severely weakened, but the true Owner is at home and is ready to prosecute them for their actions.

Eternal One: 6As surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, what you have given, you will receive! I will hand you over to bloodshed, and it will come after you. Because you have been quick to shed blood, I will make your blood flow! 7I will leave Mount Seir an empty wasteland and destroy any who come and go. 8I will spread your corpses upon the mountains; all those slaughtered in battle will fill the hills and valleys and riverbeds! 9I will turn you into an eternal wasteland; your cities and towns will lie empty and silent. Then you will know that I am the Eternal.

10You keep saying, "We will take possession of these two countries and two nations—Israel and Judah. We will own them." And you have the nerve to say this right in front of Me! 11Consequently, as surely as I, the Eternal Lord, live, the rage and jealousy you have shown as a result of your hatred of them will be returned to you. When I judge you, I will show them who I am and remind them they are still mine. 12*When that day arrives,* you will know that I, the Eternal One, have overheard all the despicable threats you made against Israel's mountains: "They're nothing but rubble! They're as good as ours; let's take what we want!" 13You said so many haughty things against Me, and I heard every word of it.

14This is what the Eternal God has to say.

Eternal One: While everyone else in the world sings songs and has happy feasts, I will leave you empty and desolate. 15Since you celebrated the destruction of the land Israel was meant to inherit, I'm going to treat you the same way. O Mount Seir, you and the rest of Edom will be turned into an empty wasteland! Then you will know that I am the Eternal One.

36 Eternal One: Son of man, preach to Israel's mountains. Tell them to heed the word of the Eternal.

2Here is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: The enemy rejoiced over you and said, "Finally! The ancient highlands are ours." 3Because they rejoiced, I, the Eternal Lord, say, "Your enemies crushed you from every side and left you nothing but an empty wasteland. They have carried you off in pieces, divided you up, and made you a remnant among the nations; and you became the topic of everyone's gossip and malicious attacks."

4Because of this, you mountains of Israel, heed the word of the Eternal Lord. The Eternal Lord says this to the ancient mountains and hills, to the riverbeds and valleys, and to the empty wasteland and deserted cities that have been plundered and mocked by every nation around you.

Eternal One: 5With fiery passion I have spoken against the rest of the nations, but most especially to Edom, who with malicious joy took My precious land for themselves and divided it up as their spoil. 6Therefore speak out about the land of Israel to the ancient mountains and hills and rivers and valleys.

The Eternal Lord gave this message to me.

Eternal One: Look! I have spoken with fiery anger and jealousy because you have been scoffed at by the nations. 7Therefore, I, the Eternal Lord, lift My hand and swear to you that those nations around you will suffer as you have; they'll be mocked and put to shame.

8But you, Israel's mountains, will shoot forth new branches and bear fruit for My people Israel. They will be home soon. 9I, of course, care about you and will turn My attention on you. Therefore, your soil will be plowed and your fields sown. 10I will increase the population and replenish the whole community of Israel. I will bring life back into the desolate cities, and heaps of rubble will be turned into grand structures. 11I will increase the population of people and animals that live on your slopes once again; they will be more numerous, and you will become more productive than ever before! After all these things come to pass, you will know that I am the Eternal. 12I will settle My people Israel on you, and they will possess you, and you will be the land they pass from one generation to the next. You will never again take their children.

13This is what the Eternal Lord said.

Eternal One: Because some say, "The land of Israel is known for devouring its people and depriving them of their children," 14I declare that you will never devour any of My people again or deprive them of their children. 15I will see to it that you do not have to listen to the other nations scoff at you anymore, and you will no longer suffer humiliation or be the cause of your own nation's faltering.

So said the Eternal.

16*Again* the word of the Eternal came
to me.

Eternal One: 17Son of man, when Israel's people lived in their own land, they desecrated it with their foul lifestyles. Their actions were as impure as a woman's menstrual cycle. 18Because they infected
the land, pouring out innocent blood and filling their hearts and homes with idols, I poured out My wrath upon them.
19I scattered them among the nations
and dispersed them through many lands.
I judged them based on their lifestyles and actions. 20Whenever they settled among the nations of their exile, they defiled My sacred name. Everywhere they went people were saying, "These are the Eternal's people, yet they have been forced out of His land." 21I became concerned for My sacred name, for everywhere they went the people of Israel were giving Me a bad name.

22Consequently, tell the people of Israel that the Eternal Lord says, "When I act, people of Israel, it won't be for your own good, but for the sake of salvaging
My own reputation, which you have slandered in front of those outside our covenant.* 23I will restore My great name to its holy state which has been desecrated in every nation by you! After all these things come to pass and I reveal My holiness through you right before their eyes, then these nations will know that I am the Eternal. 24I will take you away from the nations, gather you from all the foreign soils, and bring you back to your own land. 25I will sprinkle you with clean water, and you will be clean. I will wash away all of your dirtiness, and you will be clean and pure, free from the taint of idols. 26I will plant a new heart and new spirit inside of you. I will take out your stubborn, stony heart and give you a willing, tender heart of flesh. 27And I will put My Spirit inside of you and inspire
you to live by My statutes and follow My laws. 28Then you will live in the same land I gave your ancestors; you will be My people, and I will be your God. 29-30I will rescue you from your impurity. I will summon the grain to produce large harvests and never bring a famine upon you again. I will increase your harvests of fruit and grain, so that you will never have to face the disgrace of famine again among the nations. 31Then you will recall your evil ways and wicked deeds.
You will recognize how bad they were and hate yourselves for all the shocking and despicable things you did! 32But
I, the Eternal Lord, am not doing this for your own good. You should still feel shame and humiliation for all you've done, people of Israel!"

33This is what the Eternal Lord has to say.

Eternal One: On the day I cleanse you from all your sins, I will bring people back into your desolate cities, and heaps of rubble will be turned into grand structures. 34The wasteland will be plowed and sown—a vast change from the emptiness those passing by are used to seeing. 35They will be amazed, saying, "This place used to be an empty wasteland.
Now it's like the garden of Eden! The cities were demolished, lying in ruins and completely abandoned. Now they are all restored, strong and full of people!"
36Then the nations near you will know that I, the Eternal, am the One who rebuilt and restored the ruined cities and replanted the empty wilderness. I, the Eternal One, promise to do exactly what I've said.

37This is what the Eternal Lord has to say.

Eternal One: I will soothe Israel's desire and do as they have asked Me to do: I will make their population grow like a flock of sheep. 38Just as flocks of sheep fill Jerusalem before the sacrifices at the public feasts, the cities filled with rubble will be filled with flocks of people. Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

37 The Eternal had a hold on me, and I couldn't escape it.
The divine wind of the Eternal One picked me up and set me down in the middle of the valley, but this time it was full of bones. 2God led me through the bones. There were piles of bones everywhere in the valley—dry bones left unburied.

* 36:22 Romans 2:24

This oracle may be one of the best known in Ezekiel's prophecy. God's promise of a new heart and a new spirit echoes Jeremiah's new covenant prophecy (Jeremiah 31:31-34). What God's people need more than anything is for God to do a work of grace within them. Like other prophets of his day, Ezekiel is convinced that heaven must intervene in order to fix what is wrong on earth. It is not enough for people to try harder and do better. This work of grace begins with God cleansing His people with fresh water. Idolatry and various sins have made them impure and unclean, so before they can be restored, they must be made pure by the washing of water. Then, once God gives them a new heart, His people will become willing covenant partners; they will give up on their rebellious, hurtful ways and embrace God's designs for their lives. With a new spirit—which seems to be nothing other than God's Spirit living in and among them—they will have the desire and ability to live out God's reasonable demands on them.

God insists that all He intends to do to save and redeem His people is not for their good; He is working to restore His good name. God's covenant people have given Him a bad reputation among the nations, so God must act in His own interest to make sure His name is given the honor it is due.

Eternal One (to Ezekiel): 3Son of man, do you think these bones can live?

Ezekiel: Eternal Lord, certainly You know the answer better than I do.

Eternal One: 4-5*Actually, I do.* Prophesy to these bones. Tell them to listen to what the Eternal Lord says to them: "Dry bones, I will breathe breath into you, and you will come alive. 6I will attach muscles and tendons to you, cause flesh to grow over them, and cover you with skin. I will breathe breath into you, and you will come alive. After this happens, you will know that I am the Eternal."

God is not only the Creator of life, but He is also the Restorer of life.

7So I did what God told me to do: I prophesied to the bones. As I was speaking, I heard a loud noise—a rattling sound—and all the bones began to come together and form complete skeletons. 8I watched and saw muscles and tendons attach to the bones, flesh grow over them, and skin wrap itself around the reforming bodies. But there was still no breath in them.

Eternal One: 9Prophesy to the breath. Speak, son of man, and tell them what the Eternal Lord has to say: "O sweet breath, come from the four winds and breathe into these who have been killed. Make these corpses come alive."

10So I did what God told me to do: I prophesied to the breath. As I was speaking, breath invaded the lifeless. The bodies came alive and stood on their feet. I realized then I was looking at a great army.

Eternal One: 11Son of man, these bones are the entire community of Israel. They keep saying, "Our bones are dry now, picked clean by scavengers. All hope is gone. Our nation is lost."

12-13He told me to prophesy and tell them what He said.

Eternal One: Pay attention, My people! I am going to open your graves and bring you back to life! I will carry you straight back to the land of Israel. Then you will know that I am the Eternal One. 14I will breathe My Spirit into you, and you will be alive once again. I will place you back in your own land. After that you will know I, the Eternal, have done what I said I would do.

So said the Eternal One.

15*Again* the word of the Eternal came to me.

Eternal One: 16Son of man, find a stick and write these words on it: "For Judah and the people of Israel associated with him." Then go find another stick, and write these words on it: "For Joseph—the stick of Ephraim—and the entire community of Israel associated with him." 17Now take both sticks and join them together in your hand as if they are one. 18When your compatriots question you about what you are doing, asking, "Will you not tell us plainly what these actions mean?" 19tell them I say, "Watch as I take Joseph's stick (the one held by Ephraim) and the ten Israelite tribes of the North, your compatriots, and put it end to end with Judah's stick. The two sticks will become one in My hand." 20*Make sure* the people are able to see what you have written on each stick. 21Then tell them what I say: "Look! I'm gathering the Israelites up from the countries where they've been scattered and putting them back in their own land." 22I will form them into one nation upon Israel's mountains, and they will live under the reign of one king. They will no longer live as two separate peoples, split into two different kingdoms. 23From then on, they will not defile themselves with idols and abhorrent images and strange perversions. I will rescue them from all the places where they've lived and sinned. I will make them pure and clean again! They will be My people, and I will be their God.

24My beloved servant, David, will be their king. They will all live peaceably under one shepherd. They will live according to My laws and obey My statutes and do them. 25My people will dwell in the same land I gave to Jacob, My servant.

► How could David be the king of Israel's new nation? He died 500 years earlier! Certainly God does not mean that David comes back from the dead to reign; He means that David is the archetype for the eternal king. This new king will carry David's name because He will be a descendant of David. He will rule a united kingdom just as David ruled a united Israel in his day. He, too, will be a shepherd of God's people.

These hopes and aspirations will remain in the psyche of God's people for hundreds of years. When Jesus begins His ministry, His followers will be certain they have found the good shepherd.

Eternal One: It will be the same land where your ancestors dwelled, but their past wickedness will be forgotten there. They, their children, and their children's children will live there forever; and My servant David will be their prince forever. 26I will establish a covenant of peace—an everlasting promise—with them. I will make them strong and numerous in the land I gave them. My sanctuary will be at the heart of their community forever. 27I will make My home with them. I will be their God, and they will be My people.* 28After all these things come to pass and My sanctuary is at the heart of their community forever, all the nations will know that I, the Eternal, am the One who makes Israel holy.

38 The word of the Eternal came to me.

Gog likely refers to Gyges who ruled Lydia in Asia Minor. As a contemporary, Ezekiel accords him larger-than-life, nearly cosmic significance.

Eternal One: 2Son of man, turn your face toward Gog in the land of Magog, the highest ruler of Meshech and Tubal. Prophesy against him, 3and tell him what the Eternal Lord has to say: "Beware, Gog, highest ruler of Meshech and Tubal. I oppose you. 4I am going to turn you around, insert sharp hooks into your jaws, and haul you off with your entire army—horses and riders outfitted with armor, breastplates, body shields, and swords. 5Persia, Ethiopia*, and Libya* will be there, too, marching behind with shields and helmets, 6along with Gomer's troops and Beth-togarmah's troops from the far north. Numerous nations will be a part of your coalition.

7"Get prepared. You're in command of all the armies who've come to help you. Now watch over them. 8After many days, you are going to be summoned to fight. Sometime in the latter years, you are going to seize a nation that has been reconstructed after a war—a nation of people gathered from many countries and brought to Israel's mountains—the mountains that were, for many years, nothing but rubble. They were gathered from the nations, and now they all live safely. 9You, your troops, and all of your armies will go up and attack that nation. You'll be like a fierce storm whose clouds cover the land."

* 37:27 2 Corinthians 6:16 * 38:5 Hebrew, Cush * 38:5 Hebrew, Put

Eternal One: On that day, you will begin pondering an evil plan. 11You'll think to yourself, "I will go up and invade an open country of unprotected villages and will assault the tranquil, unsuspecting people living safely there without walls, without gates, without bars. 12I will pillage and plunder the entire place! I will tear down the rubble that's been rebuilt and attack the people who have been gathered from the farthest nations to live at the center of the world. All their animals and goods—I will steal." 13Sheba, Rhodes, and the traders of Tarshish and their villages will ask you, "Did you come here simply to steal everything? Did you assemble so great an army to plunder their goods, to seize their silver and gold, to carry off their livestock and valuables?"

14The Eternal Lord told me, the son of man, to prophesy and tell Gog:

Eternal One: When you see My people Israel living safely, will you not take note? 15You and your vast army recruited from the many nations, all mounted on horses, will march as one force down from the far north. 16Like a storm whose clouds cover the land, you will go up and attack My people Israel. In the last days, Gog, I will summon you to storm My land. Then, right in front of everyone's eyes, I will exhibit My holiness through you.

17This is what the Eternal Lord continued to say:

Eternal One: Are you not the one I was talking about all those years ago through My servants, the prophets of Israel? For years, they prophesied that I would summon you to march against them. 18On the day the prophecy is fulfilled, when Gog comes against the land of Israel, most certainly My wrath will come like a fire. 19My jealousy and burning anger guarantee that all of Israel will quake on that day! 20Creatures of the sky, earth, and sea—all people and beasts—will shake with awe in My presence. The mountains will be knocked down! Great cliffs and every fortress will crumble to the ground. 21I will summon the sword against Gog upon all of My hills and mountains. Confusion will abound; Gog's soldiers will turn and fight each other. 22I will come down and render My judgment in person. Disease and massacre will be their sentence. I will command heaven to throw everything it has upon Gog and all his armies, pouring down rain, hail, lightning, and burning sulfur. 23They will see just how great and holy I really am. I will make Myself known to the nations of the world. Then they will all know that I am the Eternal One.

39 Eternal One: Son of man, prophesy against Gog, and tell him that this is what the Eternal Lord has to say: "I oppose you, Gog, highest ruler of Meshech and Tubal. 2I will turn you around and lead you. I will bring you from the remote regions of the north and send you up against Israel's mountains. 3*But just when you think you've had success,* I will knock the bow out of your left hand and the arrows out of your right hand. 4*Right then and there,* on the mountains of Israel, you will meet your end—you and all your troops and everyone in your coalition. I will feed your remains to the predatory birds and wild beasts and deny you an honorable burial. 5You will fall and be defeated out in the open fields." I, the Eternal Lord, have spoken. 6I will pour fire on Magog and on the heads of all those who believe themselves to be living safely on the coastlands. Then they will know that I am the Eternal One.

7Everyone in Israel will know My holy name! No longer will I allow My name to be profaned! All the nations will know that I, the Eternal, am the Holy One of Israel. 8Pay attention! The time is coming! I promise it will happen just as I have said. This is the day I've been talking about for so long.

► The Lord's slaughter of Gog and his forces serves two purposes. Obviously, it reminds Israel and the other nations of God's ultimate power, but more importantly, it solidifies His new covenant with Israel. In ancient Israel, when two people made a covenant with one another, they would slaughter an animal, cut it in half, lay the two halves parallel to each other on the ground, and walk between them. This action indicated, "If I break this covenant, then you may do this to me." The covenant partners would then share a meal together. In this case, God makes Gog's armies the sacrifice that establishes His covenant with Israel. He, of course, will never break the covenant, and He warns Israel that He could destroy them if they abandon Him again.

Eternal One: [9]Those dwelling in the cities of Israel will leave and make huge bonfires with all of Gog's weapons—body and chest shields, bows, arrows, clubs, and spears. The troops will be so numerous and their weapons so many that Israel will have fuel to burn for seven years. [10]No one will have to go into the fields or woods to fetch kindling or cut down trees because they'll use their enemies' weapons for fuel. They will strip the ones who stripped them and rob the ones who robbed them. I, the Eternal Lord, declare it so.

[11]On that day, I will set aside a burial ground for Gog in Israel in the valley of the travelers east of the Dead Sea. No one will be able to pass through there anymore once Gog and all of Gog's armies are buried there. The place will be renamed the valley of Hamon-gog, which means, "the hordes of Gog." [12]It will take seven months for the people of Israel to bury Gog and Gog's armies in order to cleanse the land of death's defilement. [13]Everyone in the nation will participate; and on the day I display My glory, their name will be famous. This I promise. [14]At the end of the seven months of burial, men will be designated to patrol the land and bury any of the bodies that remain on the ground and the bodies of any others who may die while traveling across Israel. This is how they will keep the land clean. [15]As they search through the land, anyone who happens upon even one bone will set up a marker beside it, and it will remain untouched until the buriers find it and lay it to rest in the valley of Hamon-gog. [16](There will be a town called Hamonah there.) This is how the Israelites will purify the land from death's defilement.

[17-18]Then the Eternal Lord told me, "Son of man, I am telling you to send My message to every bird and wild beast":

Eternal One: Come together, all you creatures of the sky and earth—birds of the air, beasts of the forests and field! From all around, gather around My sacrifice. I am preparing an enormous feast for you atop Israel's mountains. You will eat the flesh of great men and drink the blood of princes as if they were rams and lambs, goats and bulls—all the finest, meatiest animals in all of lush Bashan! [19]I will sacrifice all these people for you, and you will eat fat until you are stuffed and drink blood until you are drunk. [20]At the table of My feast, you will devour horses and charioteers from Gog's forces, heroes and champions of every kind!

[21]I will exhibit My glory for all the nations to see, and they will all recognize the results of My judgment. They will understand that Gog was destroyed by My own powerful hand. [22]From that day on, the people of Israel will know I am the Eternal One, [23]and all the nations will know the people of Israel were exiled because they acted wickedly and willfully turned their backs on Me. This is why I turned My back on them and allowed their enemies to do with them as they pleased. As a result, all of them fell by the sword. [24]I judged them according to their impurities and crimes, and I kept My back turned on them because they violated our covenant.

[25]So this is what the Eternal Lord continued to say:

Eternal One: I am going to restore the fortunes of Jacob and have compassion upon all My people Israel, for I am eager to defend My reputation and to protect My holy name. [26]Once they are living comfortably back in their ancestral lands without anyone terrorizing them, the memory of their shame and faithlessness toward Me will fade. [27]By gathering them from the enemy nations and bringing them home, I will reveal My holiness right in the sight of all the nations. [28]After all these things take place, My people will know that I, the Eternal, am their God. Even though I banished them to exile in other lands, I gathered them and put them back in their own land. No one was left behind. [29]I will not turn My back on them ever again, for I have poured out My Spirit upon the community of Israel.

So said the Eternal Lord.

The description and measurements of the new temple are both complex and staggering. The outer walls form a square with priestly kitchens for preparing sacrifices and food on each corner. On the four sides of the temple complex, a total of thirty chambers line the perimeter wall. The actual temple and inner courtyard is a smaller version of the outer walls, three gates (east, north, and south), and outer courtyard. As Ezekiel walks in a westerly direction from the outer east gate, he ascends a set of stairs that leads to the outer courtyard where he then goes up another staircase to the inner courtyard and altar where he then finds a third staircase leading to the temple portico and the two holy and most holy chambers of the Eternal's sanctuary.

Ezekiel's mysterious tour guide first begins at the eastern outer gate facing the rising sun. Then he takes Ezekiel to the outer courtyard where he measures the north gate before taking him to the south gate for its measurements. They then enter the inner courtyard via its south gate. Now at the inner courtyard, they follow the same path of measuring the east and north gates. Finally, after exiting the north gate of the inner courtyard, they move to the original east gate of the outer courtyard where Ezekiel witnesses the awesome return of the Eternal's presence.

40 During the 25th year of our exile (which was the 14th year after Nebuchadnezzar conquered Jerusalem), at the beginning of the year on the 10th day of the month, the Eternal took hold of me and brought me to the ruined city. 2In the visions God showed me, He carried me into the land of Israel and put me on top of a very high mountain. Southward, there was a building that looked like a city unto itself. 3God led me to that place, and there I saw a man whose appearance gleamed as if he were made of bronze. He stood at the structure's gate with a linen tape for long measurements and a reed for short measurements.

The Man (to Ezekiel): 4Son of man, sharpen your senses! See with your eyes, and listen with your ears! Take notice of everything I am about to show you, because you are here to see what I do
and to relay it all to the people of Israel.

► The measuring reed is a long cubit, at 20 to 21 inches, rather than a short cubit at 18 inches. The sheer grandeur of this new temple and city and its surrounding land—along with its most prominent, divine dweller—calls for nothing less than royal measurements.

5I saw a wall surrounding the temple. The measuring reed in the man's hand was about 10½ feet long. He measured the wall and found it to be about 10½ feet thick and 10½ feet high. 6He walked around to the wall of the eastern gate and climbed its steps. He measured the depth of the gate's entrance, and it was 10½ feet deep as well.

7*Inside the gate,* the side guard chambers on each side were about 10½ feet square, with 8¾-feet-thick walls between each of them. The threshold of the gate entrance nearest to the portico that faced the temple was about 10½ feet deep. 8Then he measured the portico that faced the temple; it was also 10½ feet deep. 9But the portico on the inner side of the gate complex was 14 feet with columns of 3½ feet. 10The eastern gate had 3 chambers on each side. All 3 chambers, as well as all of the columns, had the exact same measurements. 11Then he measured the entrance of the east gate: it was 17½ feet wide and 22¾ feet long. 12The short barrier stood in front of each guard chamber; it was 21 inches high on both sides. The chambers themselves were 10½ feet square. 13He then measured the distance between the top of the back wall of one chamber to the top of the wall opposite of it: 43¾ feet. 14Then he measured the length of the gate-complex portico at 35 feet, which stretched to the outer courtyard.* 15*The measurement* from the outer courtyard gate entrance to the farthest end of the outer courtyard at the inner portico of the inner east gate was 87½ feet. 16This inner gateway complex had windows with multiple recessed frames toward the side chambers and columns, as did the portico. And all the columns were decorated with palm trees.

17Then the man with the appearance of bronze led me to the outer courtyard. There, I saw a paved walkway all around the courtyard. Thirty chambers had been built on all four sides of the outer courtyard facing the walkway. 18This lower walkway for the outer courtyard was laid in front of the chambers and connected all the gates and was as wide as the gates were long. 19The man then measured the area between the inner entrance of the lower east gate and the outside of the inner courtyard upper gate. It was about 175 feet on the east and the north.

20Then I followed my guide to the north gateway at the outer courtyard and measured its length and width. 21It had 3 chambers on each side, and all of their columns and porticos had the exact same measurements as the first east gate: 87½ feet long and 43¾ feet wide. 22All its windows, its porticos, and its decorations of palm trees had the exact same measurements as the east gate. There were 7 steps from the outside of the gate complex leading up to it, and the portico was on the opposite side of the gate from the steps. 23Facing the lower north gate was another gate that led to the inner courtyard, just as an inner court gate faced the lower east gate. The man measured the distance between one gate and the one opposite of it, and the distance was 175 feet.

24Then I followed him south along the wall where I saw the south gate. He took measurements of its columns and porticos and found that they were the same size as the other gates'. 25The gate complex and its porticos had the same kind of windows with multiple recessed frames all around it as the other ones did. It was 87½ feet long and 43¾ feet wide. 26There were 7 steps leading up to it, and the portico was on the opposite side of the gate from the steps. The columns on both sides were adorned with palm trees. 27There was also a lower south gate that led to the outer courtyard facing the upper south gate, and the man measured the distance between one gate and the one opposite of it, on the southern side. The distance was 175 feet.

28Then I followed him to the inner court across from the south gate. He took measurements of the gate complex and discovered it had the exact same dimensions as the others. 29Its chambers, columns, and porticos were the exact same as the others. The gate and its porticos had the same kind of windows with multiple recessed frames all around. It was 87½ feet long and 43¾ feet wide. 30The interior gate had porticos all around that were 43¾ feet wide and 8¾ feet deep. 31Eight steps led up to its porticos, which faced the outer courtyard. Palm trees decorated the columns.

32Then I followed my guide to the inner courtyard on the eastern side, and he took measurements of the gate complex and discovered it had the exact same measurements as the others. 33Its chambers, columns, and porticos were the exact same as the others. The gate and its porticos had the same kind of windows with multiple recessed frames all around. It was 87½ feet long and 43¾ feet wide. 34Eight steps led up to its porticos, which faced the outer courtyard. Palm trees decorated the columns.

35Then I followed the man around the inner court to the interior north gate. He took measurements and discovered it had the exact same measurements as the others. 36Its chambers, columns, and porticos were the exact same as the others. The gate had windows with multiple recessed frames all around. It was 87½ feet long and 43¾ feet wide. 37Eight steps led up to its porticos, which faced the outer courtyard. Palm trees decorated the columns.

38Near the porticos in each of the inner gates was a chamber with a doorway. There the burnt offerings were cleansed after their slaughter but before their offering. 39Inside of the portico, there were four tables (two on each side) where the whole burnt offerings, the sin offerings, and the guilt offerings were slaughtered. 40There were also two tables outside at each outer wall of the portico where one would climb up to the north gate. 41*This means* there were eight tables in all—four inside each gate and four outside. These tables were where the offerings were slaughtered. 42-43There were also four tables carved from stone used for the burnt offerings. They were 31½ inches square and 21 inches high and held the flesh of the offerings. The tools used to slaughter the sacrificial animals for burnt offerings rested on these tables. Hooks, about 3 inches long, were attached to the walls around the stone tables. The meats for the burnt offerings were prepared on these tables.

44There were two chambers for the singers and the priests within the inner court, just outside the inner gate. One chamber was on the side of the north gate and faced the south. The other chamber was on the side of the south* gate and faced the north.

The Man (to Ezekiel): 45The chamber that faces south is designated for the priests who take care of the temple. 46But the chamber that faces north is set aside for the priests who take care of the altar.
They are all sons of Zadok and are the only Levites allowed to approach the Eternal and to minister before Him at the altar.

47Then the man took measurements of the inner courtyard: it was 175 feet square.
The altar sat in front of the temple in the inner courtyard.

48Then I followed him to the temple's portico, and he took the measurements of the portico's columns. They were 8¾ feet wide on both sides. The gate entrance was [24½ feet deep, and the walls were]* 5¼ feet wide on both sides. 49The portico was 30 feet long and 18 feet wide. There were steps leading* up to the portico, as well as columns like the Jachin and Boaz columns of Solomon's temple on both sides.

41 Then I followed the man whose appearance was like bronze to the outer nave of the temple; he took measurements of the pillars. Each was 10½ feet wide on each side.

► Now Ezekiel is at the outer porch or nave of the actual temple structure. He watches as the man measures the holy place and then proceeds deeper into the recesses of the most holy place. Ezekiel cannot enter these areas because he is not one of the "sons of Zadok" (40:46).

2The entrance was 17½ feet wide. The walls on both sides of the entrance were 8¾ feet wide. He measured the outer nave of the temple and discovered it was 70 feet long and 35 feet wide. 3Then he went inside by himself and took measurements of the columns of the entrance to the inner sanctuary. Each column was 3½ feet wide, the entrance was 10½ feet wide, and the [walls on each side of it were]* 12¼ feet long. 4Then the man took measurements of the inner sanctuary, which was 35 feet long and wide.

The Man: This inner sanctuary is the most holy place in all the temple.

5Then he walked over to the temple wall and took its measurements and the measurements of each chamber surrounding the temple. The wall of the temple was 10½ feet thick, and each side chamber was 7 feet wide. 6-7The side chambers were built in 3 stories (one right on top of the other), and there were 30 chambers on each level. The chambers on the second story were wider than those on the first,
and the chambers on the third story were wider than the second's. To keep the second and third stories from overhanging the temple's sacred space, the wall separating the temple's inner chamber and the side chambers widened from top to bottom.
One entered the third story by climbing stairs through the first and second stories.
8I noticed the temple floor was higher than the rest of the complex. This raised foundation was also the foundation of the side chambers, and it was 10½ feet thick. 9The wall on the outside of the side chambers was 8¾ feet thick. The open area between the temple's side chambers 10and the priests' chambers circumscribed
the temple, 35 feet around. 11In that open space were two entrances to the temple's side chambers. One of the entrances was on the north side, and the other one was on the south side. The open area was exactly 8¾ feet wide all around the temple.

12On the west end of the complex
there was a structure that faced the temple courtyard. It was 122½ feet wide and 157½ feet long. Its walls were 8¾ feet thick. 13Then the man measured the temple and discovered that it was 175 feet long. The courtyard of the temple plus the western structure and its walls measured 175 feet as well. 14The eastern courtyard
in front of the temple was 175 feet wide.
15Then he measured the length of the western structure and the galleries on both sides that faced the courtyard west of the temple. It, too, was 175 feet.

* 40:44 Hebrew manuscripts read, "east." * 40:48 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion. * 40:49 Hebrew manuscripts read, "and by these steps." * 41:3 Hebrew manuscripts read, "width of the threshold was."

The temple's nave and outer portico* [16]were paneled.* The recessed windows were trimmed in wood. The interior walls and the space between the floor and the windows were all covered with wood. [17-18]Images of winged guardians* and palm trees were carved into the wood above the entrance that led to the sanctuary and also all over the walls of the inner and outer sanctuaries. The two symbols alternated palm tree, guardian, palm tree, etc. Each winged guardian was carved with only two faces: [19]the face of a man peered in the direction of the palm tree on one side, and the face of a lion gazed in the direction of the palm tree on the other side. This relief encompassed the entire temple. [20]Carvings of winged guardians and palm trees covered the wall of the sanctuary in the space between the floor and the top of the entrance.

[21]The doorframes leading into the outer sanctuary were square, as were the ones leading to the inner sanctuary. [22]The altar was made of wood. It was 5¼ feet high and 3½ feet square. All of it—its base, horns, and sides—was made of wood.

The Man (to Ezekiel): This is the table that sits before the Eternal.

[23]The outer nave and the inner holy place each had a double door. [24]Each door was made of two panels hinged together.* [25]On the doors of the outer sanctuary were carvings of winged guardians and palm trees—the exact same images that were on the walls. A wooden roof hung over the front of the outside portico. [26]On both side walls of the portico were windows that had carvings of palm trees. There were roofs over all the side chambers of the temple.

► Ezekiel's descriptions of the Jerusalem temple are often difficult to comprehend. Since Jerusalem's temple was completely destroyed, archaeology is helpful in reconstructing Ezekiel's description of it. In Northern Syria lie the ruins of a temple at 'Ain Dara' that closely resemble the biblical descriptions of God's temple. It, too, had three rooms, winged beings guarding the holiest place, and an eastern gate through which a deity entered. But what might be the most helpful parallel between it and Jerusalem's temple are its windows. Carved into the stone are false windows, each with three successively smaller window frames—the largest frame on the outside and the smallest on the inside. Apparently this architectural detail was popular in ornate Near Eastern buildings during the first millennium B.C., especially in temples, and it sheds light on Ezekiel's obscure description.

42 Then the man whose appearance was like bronze took me north into the outer courtyard. He brought me to the chambers that were opposite the open area around the temple and opposite the outside wall on the northern end. [2]This building with its north-facing door was 175 feet long and 87½ feet wide. [3]Facing a 35-foot-wide section of the inner court and facing the paved area of the outer court were rows of chambers 3 stories high. [4]An interior passageway ran in front of each chamber. It was 17½ feet wide and ran the entire length of the gallery, 175 feet. The doors faced north. [5]All the upper chambers were narrower because the galleries took up more space than they did on the first and second levels. [6]There were no columns for the chambers on the third level—no columns like the ones in the courtyards—so the chambers on the third level were set back further than the chambers on the first and second levels. [7]The wall behind the chambers ran parallel to them and the outer courtyard for a distance of 87½ feet. [8]On the side next to the outer courtyard, the row of chambers was 87½ feet long. On the side nearest to the sanctuary it was 175 feet long. [9]The chambers on the first level could be entered from the east when coming in from the outer courtyard.

These chambers on the wall surrounding the inner courtyard are where the priests prepare themselves for their sacred duties.

* 41:15 Hebrew manuscripts read, "and the porticoes of the court." * 41:16 Hebrew manuscripts read, "the thresholds." * 41:17-18 Hebrew, cherubi * 41:24 Each had two portions that opened: either they were swinging doors allowing for a double opening divided in the middle or they were bi-fold doors that could be opened half way or completely creating a larger passageway.

10There were rows of chambers on the south* side of the temple, just like on the north, separating the inner and outer courtyards. 11There was a walkway in front of them. These chambers were exactly like the chambers on the northern side—same measurements and architecture. 12In front of each walkway in the south chambers was a doorway near the wall that could be entered from the east when coming in from the outer courtyard.

The Man *(to Ezekiel): 13The north and south chambers that face the courtyard around the temple are sacred, set apart for the priests who come near to the Eternal to eat the holiest of offerings. In those sacred chambers, the priests store
the holiest of offerings—grain offerings, sin offerings, and guilt offerings. 14As
soon as the priests enter into the sacred areas, they can't leave and go into the outer courtyard until they first take off their holy clothes in which they have ministered to the Lord. These ministerial clothes are sacred. They must put on other clothes before they go anywhere other people are allowed to be, because their priestly garments can't come into contact with anything impure.

15When the man completed taking measurements inside the temple, he took me out through the lower eastern gate and began measuring around the temple complex. 16He took his measuring reed and measured the entire east side. It was 875 feet long. 17-19He measured the north, south, and west sides; and they, too, were each 875 feet long. 20He measured the temple complex on all four sides. The wall around it formed a square 875 feet by 875 feet. It served to separate the sacred from the common.

43 Then the man whose appearance was like bronze led me to the gate that faced the east.
2There, I witnessed the glory of the God of Israel storming from the east. His voice thundered like a great waterfall. The entire earth reflected His shining glory.

Just as God's glorious presence departs Jerusalem for Babylon in the east (Ezekiel 10), so He returns with spectacular fullness to the eastern gate of a restored temple.

3The vision I saw then was just like the vision I saw when He arrived to destroy the city and was kindred to the vision I had near the Chebar Canal. I fell on my face to the ground. 4The glory of the Eternal entered the temple by the east gate, 5and
the Spirit picked me up and brought me to the inner courtyard so I could watch as the Eternal's glory filled the temple.

6While the man stood beside me, I heard a voice addressing me from inside
the temple.

Eternal One: 7Son of man, this temple is the home of My throne on earth and the place where I'll rest My feet. I will dwell here among My people Israel forever.
Never again will the Israelites or their kings desecrate My holy name. Never again will they prostitute themselves by worshiping false gods or erecting monuments to their dead kings. 8They defiled
My name and committed disgusting acts right next to My sacred space by putting their thresholds and doorposts right next to Mine with only a wall separating Me from their idols. This is why I consumed them in My wrath. 9Now it's time for the people to change—to put away their whoring and the monuments to their dead kings. If they do that, then I will dwell among them forever.

10Son of man, go to the people of Israel, and give them a detailed description of the temple you have seen so that they will feel ashamed of their abhorrent living. Give them some time to study the plan. 11If they express shame for all they have done, explain to them the temple design, the structure, the complex's entrances and exits, its rules and regulations. Write it down so that everyone can see the design and the regulations and be sure to follow the specifications and rules when the time comes. 12Now here is My directive concerning the temple: the mountaintop and everything around the temple must be regarded as sacred ground. Pay strict attention to this directive concerning the temple.

13The following measurements are the dimensions of the altar. They were taken with the long measure, which is 21 inches long. The gutter at the base of the altar is 21 inches deep and 21 inches wide and has a 9-inch rim around the edge of it. These are the heights of each part of the altar: 14The altar rises from the ground 3½ feet to the lower ledge that is 21 inches wide; from there it rises an additional 7 feet to an upper ledge that is also 21 inches wide. 15The altar's hearth rises another 7 feet and has 4 horns that protrude from each of its 4 corners. 16The altar's hearth is square, 21 feet by 21 feet. 17The upper ledge is square, too, 24½ feet on each side. The rim around it is 10½ inches, and the base is 21 inches wide all around. The steps of the altar face east.

* 42:10 Hebrew manuscripts read, "east."

► Burnt offerings are arguably the most important sacrifices and the centerpiece of the temple practices. They are performed every morning and evening without fail, at every festival holiday, and by individuals for various personal reasons. The burnt offerings differ from other offerings because they are totally consumed in the fire. No meat is left over to serve the priests and Levites or to be the main course in a festival meal; everything is offered up to God. The burnt offerings attract God's attention to the temple because they rise up to heaven with a pleasing aroma. Before the people can begin their steady stream of offerings to God, the altar itself must be consecrated to Him.

Eternal One: 18Son of man, this is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say regarding the regulations for the altar after it is built; these apply to burnt offerings and sprinkling blood on the altar. 19For a sin offering, give a young bull to the Levitical priests who belong to Zadok's line; these are permitted to come before Me to serve. 20Take some of the young bull's blood and wipe it all over the altar's four horns, the four corners of the upper ledge, and its rim. This ceremony will cleanse the altar and cover any of the impurities. 21Then take the young bull to the appointed area outside the temple complex and burn its carcass. 22On the second day, offer another sin offering—a perfect male goat—and cleanse the altar the same way you cleansed it with the bull. 23After you have finished this part of the cleansing ritual, find a perfect young bull and a perfect young ram from the flock and bring them to the altar. 24Present them to the Eternal, and the priests will throw salt on them and give them as a burnt offering to the Eternal. 25Then every day after that for seven days, you are to offer a male goat at the altar as a sin offering. Along with the male goat, you are to prepare a perfect young bull and a perfect ram from the flock. 26Present these offerings for seven days in a row, and they will cleanse and cover the altar, dedicating it for service. 27After the seven days of cleansing are over, the priests will offer your burnt offerings and peace offerings on the altar. This will begin on the eighth day and continue forever. Then I, the Eternal Lord, will accept you and your offerings.

44 Then the man whose appearance was like bronze led me back to the eastern gate where the Eternal One had entered, but I could see that the outer gate was now closed.

Eternal One *(to Ezekiel): 2This gate must remain closed. It will never be opened again for anyone to walk through. The Eternal God of Israel has entered through this gate, so it must remain shut for all time. 3Only the prince is allowed inside the gateway to sit and feast before the Eternal. He will not go all the way through the gate but only through the portico of the gateway where he will stop and sit. He'll exit the same way he came in.

4Then he led me back through the inner northern gate to stand in front of the temple. From there I witnessed the Eternal's glory illuminating His temple. I fell and buried my face in the ground.

Eternal One: 5Son of man, look closely and listen carefully. Pay attention to all I am about to tell you. I am going to lay out the rules and regulations for My temple. Take note of those having to do with entering the temple and exiting the sanctuary. 6Tell the rebellious people of Israel living in exile what the Eternal Lord says: "I've had it with your disgusting actions, people of Israel! 7Not only do you engage in shocking behaviors, but you have the audacity to bring the uncircumcised—in heart and in flesh—into My sanctuary, knowing they'll contaminate it. You allowed them in even as you offered My food, the fat and blood of the sacrifices, on the altar. In doing so, you shattered our pact. 8When you should have been upholding your side of the covenant and taking care of My holy things yourselves, you put outsiders in charge of My sanctuary."

9This is what I, the Eternal Lord, have to say: "Do not let any foreigner—even if he lives among the people of Israel—come into My sanctuary because foreigners are uncircumcised in both their hearts and their flesh. 10The Levites who abandoned Me when the rest of Israel strayed and pursued their idols instead of Me will bear the consequences for the wicked things they have done. 11They are still allowed to minister in My sanctuary, guard the temple outer gates, and serve in the temple proper. They are allowed to slaughter the burnt offerings and other sacrifices for the people, and to help serve them. 12But because they acted as a stumbling block to Israel and helped the people worship their worthless idols, I have made an oath that they must pay for the wicked things they have done. This I, the Eternal One, promise. 13They are not allowed to approach Me as the priests do. In fact, they aren't permitted anywhere near Me or any of My sacred things and holy offerings. They must endure the shame of their shocking and deplorable actions. 14But I will still allow them to be in charge of the maintenance of the temple and keep it running day to day.

15"As for the Levitical priests who are the descendants of Zadok—the ones who took care of My holy place even as the rest of Israel strayed—they will draw near to Me and serve Me. They will stand before Me in the sanctuary and present offerings of fat and blood. 16They are permitted to enter My sanctuary, draw near to My holy table, and accomplish all that priestly service requires. 17When the Zadokite priests enter a gate to the inner courtyard, they should already be clothed in linen. They are not allowed to wear any wool clothing while serving inside the temple or inside any gate to the inner courtyard. 18I want them to wear linen turbans on their heads and linen undergarments. They should not wear any clothing that will cause them to perspire. 19When they enter the outer courtyard where all the people congregate, they should remove the linen clothes they wore while serving and leave them in the sacred chambers. They are to dress in regular clothing so that they do not pass on holiness to the people who may come in contact with their clothing. 20They are not allowed to shave their heads or have long hair. They are always to keep their hair neatly trimmed. 21Priests are not allowed to consume wine before they enter the inner courtyard. 22The priests are not allowed to marry widows or women who are divorced. They are only allowed to marry virgins of Israelite ancestry or widows of other priests. 23They are responsible for teaching My people Israel the line between the sacred and common. They are to instruct My people on how to detect what is ritually pure and impure. 24I want the priests to act as the judges to resolve any dispute among My people. They are to judge and make their decisions according to the statutes I've outlined. The priests must uphold My rules and regulations regarding all My required feasts and all My holy Sabbaths. 25Priests are not allowed to defile themselves by being in the presence of a dead person. The only exception is when the corpse is that of a close relative: mother or father, son or daughter, brother or unwed sister. In that situation a priest may be near and defile himself. 26After the priest has been ritually purified from death's defilement, he is required to wait seven days before returning to his duties. 27When he does return to the sanctuary, he is to enter the inner court and first present a sin offering for himself before ministering for others.

28"The priests are to have only one inheritance: Me. I am their inheritance. You are to allot them only one possession in Israel: Me. I am their possession. 29*As for the food they eat,* they are to consume the grain offerings, the sin offerings, and the guilt offerings brought to the temple by the people. Everything devoted to Me will be theirs. 30The priests are to receive the first and finest gifts of your firstfruit offerings, even your grain offerings, so that your household will be blessed. 31The priests are not allowed to eat any animal—bird or beast—that dies of natural causes or is torn apart by a predator."

45 Eternal One: When you divide the land among the people to determine inheritance, you must set aside a plot of land for the Eternal as His sacred ground. It is to be 8⅓ miles long and 6⅔ miles* wide; every bit of it will be regarded as holy. 2Within this sacred ground, designate a 875-foot square for the temple. Leave a strip of land 87½ feet wide around the perimeter of the temple. 3And from these sacred grounds allot a section of land 8⅓ miles long by 3⅓ miles wide to place the sanctuary, which will contain the most holy place. 4These sacred lands will be set apart for the priests who serve in the sanctuary and draw near to the Eternal. They will build their homes there, not far from the holy precincts of the sanctuary. 5*As for the other half of the sacred ground—an area* of 8⅓ miles long and 3⅓ miles wide—it will be designated for the Levites who serve in the temple. They will live there and possess those cities. 6Next to this sacred land, you are to set aside a strip of land 8⅓ miles long and 1⅔ miles wide to build a city. This will be common land that belongs to all the people of Israel. 7The prince is to have possession of the land on either side of the sacred grounds and the common property of the city. His land will run westward from the west side and eastward from the east side occupying an area equal to one of the tribal inheritances. 8This will be the prince's own section of land in Israel. Never again will My princes rob and oppress My people. Then they are to divide the rest of the land between the tribes of Israel.

► Ezekiel's vision of the land of Israel once the Jews return from exile has several significant features: each tribe receives a similar allotment of land, the rulers are given property of their own (so the tribes don't have to support them), the temple is situated in the exact center of the country, and the priests and Levites all live around the temple itself (instead of being scattered among the tribes). These changes in the nation's political and social structure reflect many of the changes that take place during the exile.

Eternal One *(to the princes of Israel):
9That's enough tyranny, you princes of Israel! Stop your abuse and persecutions! Do the right thing; choose to be just in your actions. Stop cheating and depriving My people of their land. I, the Eternal Lord, insist!

10I command you to be honest in your commerce. You are to use accurate and fair weights and measures. 11Regarding measures, the standard dry measure and liquid measure are to have a similar volume, about 6 bushels or 55 gallons, making the standard dry unit of measurement ⅗ of a bushel and the standard liquid unit of measurement 5½ gallons. 12Regarding weights, one small counterweight will weigh ⅖ of an ounce, and one large counterweight will weigh 1¼ pounds.

13You are to offer the following: 1⁄60 of your wheat, 1⁄60 of your barley, 14one percent of your oil, 15and one sheep from every flock of two hundred that wanders the rich watering places of Israel. I, the Eternal Lord, declare that these gifts will act as the grain offerings, burnt offerings, and peace offerings that will cover the wrongs of the people and will be offered on your behalf by the priests. 16Everyone in Israel will be required to give these offerings to the prince in Israel. 17Then it will be the prince's responsibility to provide the burnt offerings, grain offerings, and drink offerings at all the sacred festivals, the new moon festivals, the Sabbaths, and all the rest of the feasts appointed for Israel. Using the animals and produce he's collected, the prince will provide the sin offerings, grain offerings, burnt offerings, and peace offerings to cover the wrongs done by the people of Israel.

(to Ezekiel) 18On the first day of the first month, take a perfect young bull and purify the sanctuary. 19The priest will smear some blood of the sin offering on the temple doorposts, on the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and on the gateposts of the entrance to the inner courtyard. 20On the seventh day of the month, do this same ritual for anyone who strays from Me unknowingly. Cover the impurities of the temple this way.

21On the fourteenth day of the first month, I want you to observe the Passover for seven days. During the feast, I want you to eat only yeast-free bread. 22When that day arrives, it is the prince's responsibility to provide a bull for himself and for all the people of the land as a sin offering. 23Every day for the seven days of the feast, the prince is to bring seven perfect bulls and seven perfect rams as a burnt offering to the Eternal. Also, he will present a male goat each day as a sin offering. 24The prince is also to provide a grain offering: ⅜ of a bushel of grain mixed with one gallon of oil for each bull and each ram. 25The seven-day feast begins on the fifteenth day of the seventh month. On each of the seven days, the prince is responsible for providing the same sin offerings, burnt offerings, and grain offerings (made from grain and oil).

* 45:1 Hebrew manuscripts read, "three miles."

46 This is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: During the six working days of each week, I want you to close the east gate of the inner courtyard; but keep it open on the seventh day, the Sabbath, and on the new moon. 2The prince is to enter from the outside through the portico of the gateway and stand directly outside the gate where he can watch the priests offer his burnt offerings and peace offerings. He is to worship as his offerings are being made, and then exit the same way he entered. The priests won't shut the gate until the evening. 3On Sabbaths and new moons, the rest of the people are to worship the Eternal at the entrance to that gate. 4I want the prince to give this burnt offering to Me, the Eternal, on the Sabbath: six lambs and a ram—all perfect. 5I want him to give a grain offering along with it as is customary: ⅜ of a bushel of grain and a gallon of oil with the ram and as much grain and oil as he is able for each lamb. 6During each new moon celebration, I want the prince to offer a young bull, six lambs, and a ram—all perfect. 7He is to provide a customary grain offering as well: ⅜ of a bushel of grain and one gallon of oil for each ram and bull, and as much grain and oil as he can for each lamb. 8The prince is to enter the temple through the portico of the eastern gate and exit the same way.

9When the people of the land come together to worship the Eternal at the regularly scheduled feasts, all those who come in through the north gate are to go out through the south gate, and all those who come in through the south gate are to go out through the north gate. They will exit the temple through the opposite gate so they continue to move straight ahead. 10*During these feasts,* the prince will walk with everyone else, entering and exiting at the same time and in the same way as the commoners.

11At all the feasts and the regularly scheduled festivals, the customary grain offering is to always be the same: ⅜ of a bushel of grain plus one gallon of oil for each bull and each ram, and as much grain and oil as is available for each lamb. 12Whenever the prince gives a voluntary offering to the Eternal, be it a burnt offering or a peace offering, he will have the same privileges as he does for all Sabbath offerings: the east gate will be opened for him. He will offer his burnt offering or peace offering as he does on the Sabbath. After he leaves, the priests are to close the east gate.

13Every single morning, I want the priests to offer a perfect one-year-old lamb to Me as a burnt offering. 14Along with it each morning you are to offer a grain offering: ⅒ of a bushel of grain mixed with ⅓ gallon of oil in order to moisten the flour. This grain offering is to be an ordinance you observe for all time. 15The lamb, the grain, and the oil are to be offered every single morning as a regular burnt offering.

16This is what the Eternal Lord has to say:

Eternal One: If the prince gives one of his sons a piece of property as his inheritance—the property I allotted him on either side of My land—that piece will belong to all the descendants of that son and never leave the family. 17But if the prince gives a piece of property to one of his servants, it will be leased by the servant only until the fiftieth year—the jubilee year when liberty is granted; then the inheritance will return to the prince. The prince's inheritance belongs to his sons alone. It is never to leave the family. 18*Similarly,* the prince must never demand possession of other people's property and evict them from their own land. He is to give his sons their inheritance from his own property. This way, none of My people will be separated from his property.

19The man whose appearance was like bronze then took me through the entrance next to the gateway and led me to the priests' sacred chambers, which faced northward. He took me to a place on the far western side.

The Man (to Ezekiel): [20]This is where the priests are to boil the meat of the guilt offerings and sin offerings and bake the bread made from the grain offerings, so that they won't have to transport the gifts through the outer courtyard and accidentally transmit holiness to the people.

[21-22]Then my guide brought me to the outer courtyard and took me to each of its four corners. In each corner were smaller, confined courts, each measuring 70 feet long and 52½ feet wide. [23]There was a stone shelf that ran along the inside wall of each of the four courts. Beneath these stone shelves were hearths.

The Man (to Ezekiel): [24]These are kitchens. Everyone who serves in the temple will boil the peoples' sacrifices here.

47 The man whose appearance was like bronze led me back to the temple's entryway. There I observed a stream of water bubbling up from beneath the temple threshold, flowing eastward in the same direction the temple faced. The water was running parallel to the temple's wall south of the altar.

This flowing, running, living water cleanses, heals, and restores everything in its path.

[2]My guide led me through the north gate and took me around the outside wall to the east gate. I looked and could see the water trickling out from the south end of the east gate.

[3]The man walked toward the east with a measuring line in his hand and measured off 1,750 feet or about ⅓ mile. Then we walked together through the ankle-deep water. [4]He measured off another 1,750 feet, and we walked together now through water that was knee-deep. He measured as we walked another 1,750 feet, and we waded together through water that was waist-deep. [5]Then he measured off another 1,750 feet, but this time I couldn't wade any farther because the water was too deep. Now the stream of water had become a river, deep enough for swimming.

The Man: [6]Son of man, have you seen anything like this?

Then my guide brought me back to the river's edge. [7]When we got back there, I looked and saw orchards along both sides of the river.

The Man: [8-9]This river flows eastward and runs down into the Jordan Valley to the place where it flows into the Dead Sea. The moment it meets the sea, the salty water becomes fresh. Swarms of creatures will flourish wherever this river flows. Schools of fish will swim through currents of fresh water, for wherever this water flows everything will come alive! [10]From Engedi to Eneglaim, fishermen will stand upon the shore and spread out their nets! They will come there because the waters contain many fish of various kinds, just as the Mediterranean Sea* does. [11]However, the swamps and marshes won't become fresh; these will continue to provide salt. [12]All kinds of trees will flourish along both sides of the river. Their leaves won't wither, and their fruit won't fail. Every month they will bear a fresh crop of fruit because they are nourished from the water that flows from the temple sanctuary. Their fruit will be for food, and their leaves will be for healing.

The Eternal Lord has this to say regarding the land:

Eternal One: [13]Here's how I want you to divide up the land for the inheritance of the twelve tribes of Israel (Joseph's descendants are to be given two portions of land). [14]I want you to divide it up equally. I made an oath to your ancestors that this land would be your inheritance, and I am keeping My promise.

[15-16]Here are the boundaries of the land: The northern boundary will run east from the Mediterranean Sea through Hethlon and along to Lebo-hamath and then Zedad. From there it will go through Berothah and Sibraim (which lie on the border between Damascus and Hamath), all the way to Hazer-hatticon (near the border of Hauran). [17]This northern boundary will stretch from the Mediterranean Sea to Hazar-enan (on the northern border of Damascus) and the border of Hamath on the far north. [18]The eastern boundary will run south between Hauran and Damascus along the Jordan between Gilead and the land of Israel to the Dead Sea, all the way to Tamar. [19]The southern boundary will run west

* 47:10 Literally, Great Sea

The distribution of land to resident aliens is a marked change in Israelite custom. Prior to the exile, foreigners and outsiders had a special status among the Israelites. They were considered members of the community, participating in civic (though not governmental) activities, allowed to worship at the temple in a restricted capacity, and protected under God's law. Leviticus 19 explains that Israelites were to love their foreign neighbors, treating them with special care because they were disadvantaged—as widows and orphans were—because they were not allowed to own land in Israel and therefore often couldn't provide for themselves.

But God's new law changes this. For the first time, resident aliens who adopt the worship of Israel's God may legally join with the tribes and enjoy all of God's blessings in Israel. This only makes sense for the exiles who return to the land from all over the world and have difficulty proving their Israelite heritage. As generous as this law may seem, it is not the first instance of God's grace to those outside Israel; His kindness is demonstrated over and over again in the pages of Scripture. The very monarchy of Israel is descended from a resident alien, Ruth, the grandmother of King David. Certainly God loves equally all who know and worship Him.

from Tamar to the waters of Meribath-kadesh, then along the brook of Egypt to the Mediterranean Sea. 20The western boundary will run along the coast of the Mediterranean from south to north, opposite Lebo-hamath.

21I want you to divide up this land among the tribes of Israel. 22Allocate it to yourselves and to the foreigners who have chosen to live among you and raise their children. Consider them native Israelites. They are to be given a portion of the land as their inheritance no different than the tribes of Israel. 23They are to receive land in the area of the tribe with whom they immigrate.

So says the Eternal Lord.

48 Eternal One: Here are the tribes and their allocated regions from north to south: Dan will have the land in the far north. It will run west to east along the road from Hethlon to Lebo-hamath to Hazer-enan (on the border of Damascus and next to Hamath). 2Asher will get the territory south of Dan's border from east to west. 3Naphtali will be allotted the region immediately south of Asher's border from east to west. 4Manasseh will have the land south of Naphtali's border from east to west. 5Ephraim will get the territory that borders Manasseh on the south from east to west. 6Reuben will be allotted the region immediately south of Ephraim from east to west. 7Judah will have the land south of Reuben's border from east to west.

8The land adjoining Judah's southern border from east to west is to be set aside as sacred ground. It will be 8⅓ miles wide and as long as the other tribal regions from east to west. The temple complex will sit at the center, 9in an area dedicated to the Eternal One that is 8⅓ miles long and 3⅓ miles wide. 10-11The priests will be allotted an area that is 8⅓ miles wide along its northern border, 3⅓ miles wide along its eastern and western borders, and 8⅓ miles wide along its southern border. The temple of the Eternal will sit at the center of the sacred ground. It will be set aside specifically for the priests who descended from Zadok, the only people who remained faithful to Me when all of Israel, including the Levites, abandoned Me. 12-13This sacred ground will be allotted to them when the rest of the land is distributed to the other tribes. To its north will be the Levites' sector. It will be the same size and shape as the land given to the priests: 8⅓ miles long and 3⅓ miles wide. 14Neither the priests nor the Levites may sell or trade any of this land. No one is to put it to any other use, for this land is holy to the Eternal One.

15Another strip of land will be available to the rest of Israel for building houses and pasturing their animals. It will be 8⅓ miles long and 1⅔ miles wide. A city will be built in the heart of this land. 16It is to be arranged as a square, measuring 1½ miles on each side: north, south, east, and west. 17Around the perimeter of the city will be an open area extending 150 yards to the north, south, east, and west. 18The rest of the land running south of the priests' allotment will be used to grow food for those who work in the city. It will stretch 3⅓ miles to the east and 3⅓ miles to the west of the city. 19Anyone who works in the city—regardless of his tribal affiliation—will be allowed to farm the land. 20The entire area will be a square that measures 8⅓ miles on every side; you are to set aside this ground as holy for the priests and Levites, for the temple, and for the city as I've directed.

21The land located on both sides—east and west—of the sacred ground and the city is to be given to the prince. It will stretch 8⅓ miles to the east and 8⅓ miles to the west of the Levites', priests', and the city's squares of land. So the prince will have two areas of land adjoining the sacred ground containing the temple complex at its center. 22The prince gets one share (in two sections adjacent to the sacred ground) between Judah's southern border and Benjamin's northern border.

23Here are the remaining tribes and their allocated regions: Benjamin will have the territory directly south of the prince's and the city's lands from the east to the west. 24Simeon will get the land that borders Benjamin's southern border from east to west. 25Issachar will be allotted the region south of the border of Simeon from east to west. 26Zebulun will have the land adjoining Issachar's southern border from east to west. 27Gad will get the territory south of Zebulun's border from east to west. 28The southern border of Gad will run from Tamar in the east to the waters of Meribath-kadesh and along the brook of Egypt all the way to the Mediterranean Sea.* 29This is how I want you to divide the land between the tribes of Israel. Their portions will be their inheritances.

30-31As for the exits from the city—the city gates—they are to be named after the tribes of Israel. On the north wall, which is 1½ miles long, the three gates are to be named after Reuben, Judah, and Levi. 32On the east wall, which is 1½ miles long, the three gates are to be named after Joseph, Benjamin, and Dan. 33On the south wall, which is 1½ miles long, the three gates are to be named after Simeon, Issachar, and Zebulun. 34On the west wall, which is 1½ miles long, the three gates are to be named after Gad, Asher, and Naphtali. 35The total distance around the city will be 6 miles. From that day forward, the name of the city will be The Eternal One Lives There.

Stories and visions of freedom and faithfulness for a nation in captivity

The story of Daniel, a wise man who found favor

The Book of Daniel has two sections: accounts of the life of Daniel, a gifted young Jew taken into exile (chapters 1–6), and reports of the visions of Daniel (chapters 7–12). Throughout the book, Daniel—whose Hebrew name means "God is my judge"—models how Jews are to live when they are the minority group living among powerful pagan influences. Resistance to assimilation is not futile; Daniel's life demonstrates that those who are devoted to God not only survive but succeed despite their status.

As a story, the faithfulness of Daniel and his friends contrasts the foolishness of powerful emperors and idolaters. The courage these Jews exhibit is matched only by the wisdom and deliverance God grants them. As an apocalypse, the Book of Daniel records visions that reveal what heaven has in store for earth. While Daniel is himself a gifted dream interpreter, he needs assistance unpacking the meaning of his night visions that coincide with the rise and fall of various empires in the Near East, including Babylon, Persia, and Greece. Although rooted in historical events, Daniel's visions provide an outlook that transcends history because the inexact setting allows the faithful of many generations to interpret these visions in light of their own lives.

Because the book relates a message of hope and rescue in a pain-filled world, it was studied widely by Jews throughout the ancient Near East. The prophecies were particularly comforting for the Jews living in Jerusalem during the Maccabean Period, when the book was probably completed. Like Daniel, these Jews experienced constant threats and persecution by powerful, cruel leaders such as the Syrian king, Antiochus IV. The popularity of Daniel and these accounts is proven in various ways, in particular the discovery of many fragments of this text in the Near East and the writing of other books inspired by Daniel's larger-than-life persona.

The Book of Daniel makes various contributions to the New Testament and early Christians. It is the only Old Testament book to reference the resurrection of the dead. In addition, the heavenly "son of man" (chapter 7) provides New Testament writers with language suitable for expressing key aspects of Jesus' significance.

1 Now it happened during the third year of King Jehoiakim's reign over Judah, the armies of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon marched against him and laid siege to Jerusalem, Judah's capital. 2The Lord gave Nebuchadnezzar the victory and allowed him to take King Jehoiakim of Judah as his prisoner. At the same time, He permitted the Babylonian king to rob God's temple of some of its sacred vessels and carry them away to Babylonia (called Shinar), which was the land between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, to fill the treasury of his own gods, Marduk and Nebo.

3After the king returned home, he commanded Ashpenaz, chief of the royal eunuchs, to bring some of the Israelites who had been taken captive to the palace. These included members of Judah's royal family and the nobility. 4*He was looking for* potential candidates from the exiles to serve in his court, fit young men with no physical or moral infirmities, handsome, skilled in all wisdom, knowledgeable, discerning, and understanding. Those selected would be taught the language and literature of the Chaldeans, the people who lived in Babylonia. 5*As part of their assimilation into Babylonian court life,* the king offered them a daily portion of food and wine from his own table. They were to be educated for three years before serving in the king's court. 6From among Judah's exiles, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah were selected. 7*Ashpenaz,* chief of the royal eunuchs, gave them Babylonian names to signify their new identities in a foreign place: Daniel he renamed Belteshazzar; Hananiah, Shadrach; Mishael, Meshach; and Azariah, Abed-nego.

► Nebuchadnezzar seizes the wisest, strongest, and most powerful people in each land he conquers and deports them to Babylonia. This serves three purposes: it gives the government an unending supply of capable people; it further cripples the conquered nation, rendering them helpless; and it ensures the conquered nation will not want to retaliate because their own loved ones live in the conquering land.

Daniel and his friends are among these deportees. When they arrive in Babylonia, they are expected to assimilate to the Babylonian way of life; this includes changing their names. Nebuchadnezzar renames the deportees to complete their conversion to the Babylonian society and to demonstrate his status as their master.

8*Although the king ate only the finest Babylonian fare,* Daniel was determined not to violate God's law and defile himself by eating the food and drinking the wine that came from the king's table; so he asked the chief of the royal eunuchs for permission not to eat the food.

Daniel's concern is the food has been offered up to Marduk and does not meet Israelite dietary laws.

9Now God had given Daniel special favor and fondness in the eyes of the king's chief eunuch. 10Still the eunuch was concerned.

Ashpenaz (to Daniel): Belteshazzar, your request puts me in a difficult position. I am afraid of what my lord the king might do. He has ordered that you are to eat the food and drink the wine prepared for his table. What will happen if he sees you and your friends over time in poorer health than the other young men your own age? I am certain he will have my head.

11*When Ashpenaz refused,* Daniel reasoned with the guard whom the chief of the royal eunuchs assigned to watch over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah.

Daniel (to the guard): 12Please, do us a favor. Put us, your servants, to the test for the next 10 days. Give us a vegetarian diet and water. 13When the time is up, you can see for yourself our condition and compare it to the condition of the other young men who are eating from the king's table. Then, after you have seen what has happened, do whatever you think is best with us, your servants.

► Daniel and his companions ask for a diet consistent with God's instructions to His covenant people: vegetables and grains, without the rich cuts of meat that are normally a staple of those who eat at the king's table. They also want to exclude any wines or mead because they intend to avoid any unnecessary entanglements with Babylonian culture. Most of those meats and wines have been offered to the Babylonian gods, and Daniel wants no part of that. Daniel and his exiled friends may have to live in Babylon, but they don't have to be absorbed into the culture. Every bite of every meal reminds them that they are different.

14So the guard agreed to do as Daniel requested. He tested them on a diet of only vegetables, grains, and water for 10 days.
15When the 10 days were up, he looked them over and noticed that Daniel and his friends were better off than all the young men eating from the king's best foods.
They looked healthy and well nourished, 16so the guard continued to hold back their royal rations and replaced them with a strictly vegetarian diet. 17*Through* all of this, God conferred upon these 4
young men superior abilities in literature, language, and wisdom. God had given Daniel an additional gift, too: the ability to interpret visions and dreams. 18When the 3-year period of training and conditioning, as set by the king, was over, the king sent for the candidates; the chief of the royal eunuchs himself escorted them to Nebuchadnezzar. 19The king interviewed all of them and found that none of the candidates were any better than Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; so they were each assigned an important place in the king's court. 20When the king inquired further into their grasp of wisdom and understanding, he discovered that they were better prepared than all the magicians and enchanters in his empire, even 10 times better. 21This is how Daniel came to serve the royal court, a position he safely held until the first year of King Cyrus when his Persian army conquered Babylonia.

Cyrus allows some of the Judean exiles to return home around 538 B.C.

2 In the second year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign,* the king had a dream that disturbed him so much that he was unable to fall asleep. 2So the king sent for his usual advisors—magicians, enchanters, sorcerers, and other Chaldean wise men—to come and help him understand the dream. They came and stood before the troubled king.

Nebuchadnezzar *(to his advisors): 3I've had a dream that has disturbed me. I know I am not going to have any peace
until I know what it means.

Wise Men *(in Aramaic): 4Long live the king! We are your servants. Tell us your dream, and we will tell you what it means.

The king has his suspicions about his advisors, so he purposely makes the task more difficult.

Nebuchadnezzar: 5*My mind is made up;*
my decree is firm. If you do not tell me what I dreamed and what it means, you will be torn apart, limb from limb, and those houses of yours will be turned into piles of rubble. 6But if you do tell me what I dreamed and what it means, then you can expect to receive great honor, gifts, and other rewards as I see fit. So tell me the details of the dream and what it means.

Wise Men: 7*Perhaps* the king should first tell his servants what he dreamed; then we can tell him what it means.

Nebuchadnezzar: 8It's obvious to me that you are just buying time, hoping to figure a way out of this, because you can plainly see I will do as I've said. 9If you do not tell me what I dreamed, then there can be only one fate for you: death as I have decreed. You have conspired to lie and deceive me until the situation turns around. But it won't. I will not change my mind. So tell me, right now, what I dreamed. If you can do that, then I will have some assurance that you can tell me what it means.

Wise Men: 10No one on earth is able to do what the king demands. And never in history has a great and powerful king,
such as yourself, asked this sort of thing
of any magician, enchanter, or wise
man. 11What the king requires is far too

* 2:1 About 604 B.C. 2:4 The language shifts from Hebrew to Aramaic through 7:28. This was the language of commerce and diplomacy in the ancient Near East that became the spoken language of the Jews and displaced Hebrew after their return from Babylon in the late sixth century B.C.

difficult for any human being. Only the gods can reveal it to the king, and they do not live among us mortals.

12When the king heard their reply, he was absolutely outraged and ordered that all the so-called wise men of Babylon be put to death. 13So the decree was issued, and the king's officials began to round up all the wise men in Babylon for execution; officers were sent to find and kill Daniel and his friends, too, for they were renowned for their wisdom. 14As Arioch, the chief of the royal guard, was searching for the wise men of Babylon to kill them, he came across Daniel. Daniel responded to the situation shrewdly and with discretion.

Daniel: 15*What has happened?* Why has the king issued such a harsh decree?

Arioch did his best to explain the situation to Daniel. 16So Daniel entered the palace and asked the king to give him a little more time so that he could come back and tell the king both what he dreamed and what it all meant.

17After Daniel made his request, he returned home and told his friends—Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah—what was going on. 18He asked them to pray and plead for mercy so that the God of heaven might reveal this mystery. If Daniel and his friends could tell the king what he wanted to know, then they would not be put to death along with the other wise men of Babylon. 19Then, one night, the mystery was revealed to Daniel in a vision, and so Daniel offered this blessing to the God of heaven:

Daniel: 20Praise the name of God forever
and ever,
for all wisdom and power belong
to Him.
21He sets in motion the times and the ages;
He deposes kings and installs
others;
He gives wisdom to the wise and grants knowledge to those with
understanding.
22He reveals deep truths and hidden secrets;
He knows what lies veiled in the
darkness;
pure light radiates from within Him.
23I recognize who You are, and I praise
You, God of my ancestors, for You have given me wisdom and
strength.
And now You have graciously revealed
to me what we asked of You,
for You have revealed to us the king's dream and its meaning.

24So Daniel went back to Arioch, the officer charged with rounding up and executing all the wise men in Babylon, and tried to stop him.

Daniel: Stop what you are doing. It is not necessary to execute the wise men of Babylon. Instead, take me to the king, and I will tell him what the dream means.

25Arioch did not waste any time in bringing Daniel before the king.

Arioch *(to Nebuchadnezzar): Mighty king, I have found a man from among the exiles from Judah who says he is able to tell the king what the dream means.

26The king turned to Daniel, who you remember had been given the Babylonian name, Belteshazzar.

Nebuchadnezzar: So, Belteshazzar, are you able to tell me what I dreamed and what it all means?

Daniel: 27*The Chaldeans were correct.* There are no wise men, enchanters, magicians, or sorcerers in all the world who are able to reveal the mystery the king requested. 28But there is a God in heaven who can reveal such mysteries. The dream you dreamed and the visions you saw, King Nebuchadnezzar, unveil the future and disclose what will happen at the end of the age. Now I will tell you what you dreamed and the visions you saw as you slept in your bed.

29*Good* king, as you lay in your bed that night, thoughts about the future sprang up in your mind, and the revealer of all mysteries unveiled to you what is going to happen. 30I am here today, not because I have greater wisdom than any other in the land, but because God in His wisdom has revealed this mystery to me. It is God's plan that the king knows the meaning of this dream and understands the thoughts that raced through your mind.

► Daniel agrees with the counsel given to the king by his own advisors. No worldly source can possibly answer the king's challenge. To know the content of the dream without any prior information is beyond anyone but the God of Israel.

Daniel: 31*In your dream,* you were looking, O king, and suddenly a great statue of what appeared to be a man stood before you. It was enormous in size, shining bright as the sun at midday. Its appearance was frightening. 32The head of the statue was fashioned of fine gold, its chest and arms of silver, its trunk and thighs of bronze, 33its calves of iron, and its feet partly of iron and partly of clay. 34As you were watching, a special stone was quarried and cut, but not by human hands. The divinely hewn stone began to move; it struck the statue on its iron and clay feet and smashed them to pieces. 35Suddenly the entire statue collapsed—its iron, clay, bronze, silver, and gold were all broken into pieces and turned to dust, like the chaff carried away by the wind from the threshing floors in summer. Soon not a trace of the statue was left. But the divinely hewn stone that struck the statue became a mountain that filled the whole earth. 36That, good king, was your dream.

If you allow, we will now tell you what it all means. 37You, O king, are the king of kings. The God of heaven has conferred upon you the kingdom you now rule, along with the power and strength and glory to subdue it. 38He has placed all people everywhere and all the beasts that roam the fields and all the birds that fly in the sky under your control. He has made you ruler over them all: you are the head of gold. 39After your reign is over, another kingdom will rise, but its glory will never match yours. This lesser kingdom is the chest and arms of silver. When that kingdom has come and gone, a third and even less majestic empire will rise, which will rule over the whole earth. This kingdom is the trunk and thighs of bronze. 40Then, when those days are past, a fourth kingdom will come to power with the strength of iron, though lacking in grandeur. Just as iron breaks and shatters everything, so this kingdom will break and shatter all these former realms. 41-42But as you saw in your vision, this kingdom will be divided, with feet and toes made of both clay and iron. The strength of iron runs through it, but as the toes are made partly of iron and partly of clay, the kingdom, too, will be partly strong and partly fragile. 43Your dream envisions that this kingdom of iron mixed with clay will be of peoples mixed but not united, the kingdoms joined in the bonds of marriage but not true allies, for iron and clay form no alloy.

These four kingdoms of gold, silver, bronze, and iron/clay are probably the Neo-Babylonian, Median, Persian, and Greek kingdoms, respectively.

44In the days when these kings of iron and clay reign, the God of heaven will set up another kingdom, a kingdom that can never be destroyed, a kingdom that will never be ruled by others. It will crush all the other kingdoms and bring them to an end. This kingdom will last forever. 45It will be as you have seen in your dream, that a special stone quarried and cut from the mountain—but not by human hands—will crush the iron, the bronze, the clay, the silver, and the gold. The great God, the one True God of heaven, has revealed to the king what will happen in the future. You can be sure that the dream and its meaning are true.

46When Daniel had finished, King Nebuchadnezzar did something remarkable. He fell on his face before Daniel, worshiped him, and ordered his officials to offer grain offerings and burn incense to him as they would to a god.

Nebuchadnezzar: 47I am now certain that your God is the God of all gods, the Lord of all kings, and the Revealer of mysteries, for unlike the other wise men in my service, you were able to reveal to me this mystery. You told me not only what I dreamed but what it all means.

48The king bestowed high honors and many gifts on Daniel. He promoted him to new positions in his court and made him governor over the whole province of Babylon and head over all the wise men in his realm. 49Daniel approached the king and requested that he put his friends—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego—in charge of affairs in the province of Babylon while Daniel remained in the royal court.

3 One day King Nebuchadnezzar ordered his craftsmen to make a statue plated with gold that was 90 feet high and 9 feet wide.

This giant idol clearly is meant to intimidate.

When finished, it was set up on the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon, 2-3and King Nebuchadnezzar planned an elaborate ceremony to dedicate the statue. He sent out invitations to his officials. At the appointed time, his officers, prefects, governors, trusted advisors, treasury officials, judges, magistrates, and all the rest of his provincial leaders arrived and gathered near the statue for the dedication ceremony.

► The Babylonian Empire has a complex governmental structure. At the top is the king, a man descended from Nabopolassar, the Babylonian who wrested the region from Assyrian control about 612 B.C. A resident of the Chaldean region of the Babylonian Empire, he brings his friends with him to the top, making the Chaldeans the most powerful group of people in the empire. As the empire grows, the king needs friends under him to rule the far-flung provinces, so he appoints satraps, guardians of large portions of the empire and representatives of the king in his absence. Within each large portion, prefects rule the conquered cities and report to the satraps. In every part of the empire, the power of the king is felt through his servants who administer justice, protect the lands from invasions, and collect hefty taxes.

Herald (shouting): 4People of all nations and languages: by order of the king, you are commanded 5to bow down and worship the golden statue erected by King Nebuchadnezzar every time you hear the sound of the horn, flute, lyre, lute, harp, pipe, and all the other musical instruments. 6Anyone who does not obey the king's command and refuses to bow and worship will be taken immediately and thrown into a furnace of blazing fire.

7So, on cue, the moment all the people in the crowd heard the sound of the musical instruments—horn, flute, lyre, lute, harp, pipe, and all the rest—all of the people, regardless of their heritage, nationality, or language, bowed down and worshiped the golden statue erected by King Nebuchadnezzar.

8Meanwhile, certain Chaldean leaders stepped forward to make accusations against the Jews.

Chaldeans: 9Long live the king! 10You, good king, have made a decree that every person who hears the sound of the horn, flute, lyre, lute, harp, pipe, and all the other musical instruments is supposed to bow down and worship the golden statue you erected. You have also decreed that 11anyone who does not obey the king's command and refuses to bow and worship will be taken immediately and thrown into a furnace of blazing fire. 12*It has come to our attention that* certain Jews whom you appointed to govern in the province of Babylon are ignoring your order, O king. They refuse to serve your gods, our gods, and they do not fall and worship the golden statue you erected. Their names: Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego.

13When Nebuchadnezzar heard this, he flew into a rage and ordered that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego be brought in for questioning; so his officials went out, found them, and brought these men before the king.

Nebuchadnezzar: 14*It is reported to me* that you, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, refuse to serve my gods and do not bow and worship the golden statue I had set up. Is that true?

Before they have a chance to answer, Nebuchadnezzar decides to see for himself what they will do.

15If you are ready to comply with my order and fall down and worship the statue I have made when you hear the sound of the horn, flute, lyre, lute, harp, pipe, and all the other musical instruments, then things will go well for you from here. But if you refuse to worship, you will be taken immediately and thrown in a furnace of blazing fire. What god could possibly rescue you from my hands then?

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego: [16]Nebuchadnezzar, we have no need to defend our actions in this matter. We are ready for the test. [17]If you throw us into the blazing furnace, then the God we serve is able to rescue us from a furnace of blazing fire and release us from your power, Your Majesty. [18]But even if He does not, O king, you can be sure that we still will not serve your gods and we will not worship the golden statue you erected.

► Daniel's friends are men of conviction. They are ready for anything the king throws at them and know that God can release them from the king's angry grip. They just don't know if He will. That line—"But even if He does not"—resonates with faith. Everyone wants to follow a God who does miracles-on-demand. But Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego know the one True God does not always rescue His martyrs. Still they will not back down; they will not compromise. They will follow Him and not serve Nebuchadnezzar's gods.

[19]At this Nebuchadnezzar flew into such a rage at Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego that onlookers saw his face twisted and distorted. With fury burning in his eyes, he ordered the furnace heated up seven times hotter than usual. [20]He commanded some of his strongest soldiers to tie up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego so they could be thrown into the furnace of blazing fire. [21]So the Jews were taken and tied up so quickly that they were still wearing the clothes they had on when they arrived—pants, cloaks, hats, and all.* Then they were picked up and thrown into the furnace of blazing fire. [22]The furnace was so hot and the king's command carried out so quickly, without any precautions, that the soldiers who took Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego up to the furnace were themselves killed by the heat of the raging fire. [23]And the three Jews, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, tied and bound, fell into the furnace of blazing fire.

[24]Nebuchadnezzar could hardly believe his eyes. Shocked, the king jumped up and asked his advisors, Nebuchadnezzar: Didn't we tie up and throw three men into the heart of the fire?

Advisors: Yes, O king.

Nebuchadnezzar: [25]Then why do I see four men, completely unbound, walking around in the middle of the fire? They don't appear to be hurt at all. And the fourth . . . he appears to be like a son of the gods.

[26]Then Nebuchadnezzar moved as close to the door of the furnace as he dared without being scorched. He shouted over the roar of the blazing fire.

Nebuchadnezzar: Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, servants of the Most High God, come out, right now. Come here!

So the three men made their way out of the fiery furnace.

[27]The officers, prefects, governors, and king's advisors moved closer to see what had happened to these men. They, too, could hardly believe their eyes. The fire had done nothing to harm these men. Their hair was not singed. Their clothes were not scorched. They didn't have the faintest smell of smoke on them.

Nebuchadnezzar: [28]Praise is certainly due the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego today. He sent His heavenly representative and rescued His servants who put their trust in Him. They had the audacity to disobey the king's order and surrendered their bodies to the fire rather than serve and worship any god other than their own God. [29]Therefore, I decree that any people—regardless of their heritage, nationality, or language—who speak against the God worshiped by Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego shall be torn apart, limb from limb, and their houses reduced to rubble; for no god I have ever heard of is able to rescue as this God has rescued His servants today.

[30]Afterward the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego to even higher positions in the province of Babylon.

4 One day King Nebuchadnezzar sent out a herald with a message for all the peoples, nations, and languages of the earth.

* 3:21 Meaning of the Aramaic is uncertain.

Message: May peace and prosperity be yours!
2I am pleased to be able to tell you about all the signs and miracles the Most High God has done for me.

3How great are His signs;
how powerful are His miracles!
His kingdom will endure forever;
His reign will last from generation to generation.

4I, Nebuchadnezzar, was at home in my palace; things were going well, and I was prospering. 5Then one night I had a dream that terrified me. As I rested that night on my bed, the images in my mind—the visions in my head—disturbed me greatly, and I could not shake the fear. 6So I ordered my servants to gather all the wise men of Babylon and bring them before me in order to tell me what this dream might mean. 7So they came: magicians, enchanters, Chaldean astrologers, and diviners. And though I told them the dream, they could not tell me its meaning. 8Finally, Daniel came before me. This man had been given the Babylonian name Belteshazzar after the name of my own god, Bel, and it certainly seems the spirit of the holy gods is with him. I told him my dream:
9"Belteshazzar, chief of the magicians, it is clear to me that the spirit of the holy gods is with you and no mystery is too difficult for you to figure out. Listen to my dream, then tell me what it means. 10Here is the vision I saw as I lay upon my bed:

"A tree stood in the middle of the land;
it was huge, rising high in the sky.
11The tree grew tall and strong,
and it reached right up to the top of the sky.
It was so large that it could be seen from one end of the earth to the other.
12It had beautiful leaves and plenty of fruit.
In fact, it provided sustenance for
everyone.
Wild animals came and rested in its cool shade.
Birds flew in and built nests on its sturdy branches.
Every living creature plucked its fruit and was satisfied.

13"But that was not all. The visions kept coming as I lay there on my bed, and I saw a heavenly messenger, a holy watcher coming down from heaven. 14He shouted out orders regarding the tree.

"'Cut down the tree, and lop off its
branches.
Strip off its leaves, and scatter its
fruit.
Let all the wild animals beneath it run
away
and all the birds on its branches *fly
away*.
15But leave its stump intact,
its roots in the ground,
Strapped down with iron and bronze, surrounded by the tender grass of the field.
Let the dew of heaven fall heavy on it
every night and make it wet, and let him live off the plants of the earth among the wild animals.
16Let his human heart be changed, exchanged for the heart of a wild animal until seven times have come and
gone.
17The verdict comes down as the watchers decreed;
the sentence is passed by order of the holy ones
So that all who live on the earth
may know that the Most High God is the true sovereign over all kingdoms of the earth;
He grants authority to anyone He wishes and installs the lowliest of people into positions of power.'

(to Daniel) 18"This is the dream I, King Nebuchadnezzar, dreamed, the vision I saw. None of the other sages and wise men in my kingdom are able to tell me what it means. But I believe you, Belteshazzar, can because the spirit of the holy gods is with you and you have a special gift. Now tell me what it means."

19*As the interpretation of the king's dream became clear,* Daniel (who was also called Belteshazzar) became visibly upset for a while. His thoughts troubled him. The king noticed, and he spoke to Daniel.

Nebuchadnezzar: Belteshazzar, don't let my dream or its meaning alarm you. Tell me what you know.

Belteshazzar: My lord, I wish the dream described those who hate you and its meaning concerned the fate of your enemies! 20The tree you saw in your vision, the one which grew tall and strong so that its top reached up to the sky and could be seen from one end of the earth to the other, 21the tree whose leaves were beautiful and fruit plentiful and provided sustenance for everyone, the tree under which the wild animals came to rest in the cool shade and in which the birds built their nests on its sturdy branches—22that tree is you, O king! You have become great and strong. Your greatness has grown tall and reached the sky; your authority and power extend to the end of the earth. 23*But that is just one part of your dream.* The king saw the messenger, the holy watcher of heaven come down from heaven and declare, "Cut down the tree, and destroy it, but leave its stump intact, its roots in the ground, strapped down with iron and bronze, surrounded by the tender grass of the field; let the dew of heaven fall heavy on it every night and make it wet, and let him live among the wild animals off the plants of the earth, until seven times have come and gone." 24Here is the interpretation, O king. It is a decree the Most High God has issued against you, my lord and king. 25You will be driven away from all that is human and live in the company of wild animals; you will be forced to eat grass like oxen, and night after night the dew of heaven will fall on you and make you soaking wet. Seven times will pass until you learn your lesson and acknowledge that it is the Most High God, and no other, who is the true sovereign over all kingdoms on earth, and He grants authority to anyone He wishes. 26The watcher's order to leave the stump and roots of the tree intact means that your kingdom will be restored to you when, and only when, you acknowledge that Heaven alone is sovereign over the earth. 27So, O king, please accept my advice to you. Make a clean break with your sins and invest in what is right. Bring an end to your wicked deeds and show mercy to those you have beaten down. If you do, perhaps your future will be different and your prosperity will continue.

28But King Nebuchadnezzar forgot Daniel's advice, so everything Daniel had predicted happened. 29Twelve months later, as the king was strolling across the roof of his royal palace in Babylon, 30the king uttered foolish words:

Nebuchadnezzar: Isn't Babylon a great city? I have built this royal residence from the ground up with my own might and ingenuity to honor my own majesty.

31The words had scarcely left his lips when another voice thundered from heaven.

Voice: King Nebuchadnezzar, these solemn words are for you. The kingdom has been taken away from you. 32You will be driven away from all that is human, and you will live in the company of wild animals. You will be forced to eat grass like oxen. Seven times will pass until you learn your lesson and acknowledge that it is the Most High God, and no other, who is the true sovereign over all kingdoms on earth, and He grants authority to anyone He wishes.

33Instantly the heavenly decree against Nebuchadnezzar was fulfilled. He was driven away from all that is human and began to eat grass as oxen do. The dew of heaven fell and drenched his body. In time his hair grew as long as the feathers on an eagle and his nails grew long and curved back on his hand like the claws of a bird.

Message: 34When these days of exile came to an end, I, Nebuchadnezzar, looked up toward heaven and came to my senses. I blessed the Most High God and praised and gave glory to the One who lives eternally:

"His reign will endure forever;
His kingdom will last from
generation to generation.
35Among all the people of the earth,
there are none who compare.
He does as He wishes with the armies
of heaven
and those who live on earth.
No one can stop His hand from acting;
no one dares to ask, 'What have You done?'"

36It was in that moment that I came to my senses. Soon my honor and splendor were restored as Daniel predicted, and the former glory of my kingdom returned. Those who had served me before, my advisors and officials, sought me and returned me to the throne of Babylon. In time my kingdom and power grew even greater than it was before. 37Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, acknowledge the true King of heaven. I praise, lift up, and glorify Him because all He does is true, all His ways are just, and He is able to cut down those who strut about in their pride.

► A theme found throughout Scripture is that God humbles the proud and exalts the humble. Nebuchadnezzar is stronger than anyone else, and he knows it. He willingly accepts credit for all that has happened in his life, so God moves decisively to show how insignificant Nebuchadnezzar truly is. It takes little to reduce him to an animal-like state, a wild man living at the margins of humanity, his power and prestige eroded overnight. If one of the greatest kings in history degenerates so completely, what can be done to common folks? Seven years of living as an animal go by, however, and he comes to his senses. He recognizes the truth of who he is and who God is. That realization is his salvation.

5 1-2*A few decades later,* the king, Belshazzar, held a state banquet and invited a thousand of his officials.

► The regent stands in for the king and performs his duties while King Nabonidus spends 10 years campaigning abroad, that is, fighting to expand the kingdom. In this case, the regent is Nabonidus' son Belshazzar.

As he was tasting the wine, he ordered servants to bring in the gold and silver vessels his predecessor Nebuchadnezzar had stolen from the temple in Jerusalem many years earlier. He wanted his officials to join him, his wives, and his concubines in drinking a royal toast from them. 3*A little later* his servants returned carrying in the gold* vessels that had been taken from the temple, the house of the one True God in Jerusalem. The king, his officials, his wives, and his concubines began to drink from them. 4As they drank the wine, they offered praise to their idols crafted in gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone.

5Suddenly the fingers of a hand—a human hand—appeared and began to write on the plaster of one of the palace walls lit by a nearby lampstand. The king stood transfixed, watching the hand as it wrote. 6Then his face changed. He grew pale and began to feel sick. His thoughts frightened him: what was this strange vision? His legs felt weak and wobbly. His knees knocked together. 7The king cried out to his servants, ordering them to bring in the enchanters, the Chaldean wise men, and the diviners.

Belshazzar *(to Babylon's wise men): A great reward awaits the first person who can read this writing and tell me what it means. He will be clothed in purple, wear a gold chain around his neck, and ascend in rank and privilege to be the third-highest-ranking ruler in the kingdom.

8All the king's purported wise men came forward to examine the wall, but no one could read the writing or tell the king what it meant. 9*When it became clear that none of his sages could help him,* King Belshazzar became even more frightened. His face grew even paler, and his officials were dumbfounded.

10*Belshazzar's mother,* the queen, overheard some of the discussions between the king and his noble guests, so she entered the banquet hall.

Queen: Long live the king! Don't let this strange incident frighten you or let your face grow pale. 11*Need I remind you that* there is a gifted man in your kingdom who possesses the spirit of the holy gods. Years ago, in the time of your predecessor, King Nebuchadnezzar, he was discovered to have insight, understanding, and wisdom like that of the gods. That is why King Nebuchadnezzar put him in charge of the magicians, enchanters, Chaldean astrologers, and diviners in his kingdom. 12This man Daniel, whom King Nebuchadnezzar named Belteshazzar, has special abilities, knowledge, and wisdom; he is able to interpret dreams, explain riddles and solve problems no one else can. Why don't you call for Daniel? He will tell you what the writing means.

13-14*With no other options, Belshazzar gave the order, and* Daniel was brought before him.

* 5:3 Other manuscripts add, "and silver."

Belshazzar (to Daniel): Are you that Daniel I've heard so much about, one of the exiles brought here from Judah by my predecessor, King Nebuchadnezzar? I have been told that you possess the spirit of the holy gods—that you have insight, understanding, and exceptional wisdom. 15Before you arrived, I had the wise men and enchanters brought before me to see if they could read this writing on the wall and tell me what it means, and not one of them was able to tell me. 16But it has been reported to me directly that you can offer accurate interpretations and solve problems no one else can. Now I will offer you what I offered the others: if you can read this writing and tell me what it means, you will be clothed in purple, wear a gold chain around your neck, and ascend in rank and privilege to be the third-highest-ranking ruler in the kingdom.

Daniel: 17Keep the gifts for yourself, or else award them to another. That is up to you. Still, I will agree to read the writing on the wall and tell you what it means.

18O king, the Most High God gave sovereignty, greatness, honor, and splendor to your predecessor, Nebuchadnezzar. 19God made him so great and powerful that all peoples, regardless of their heritage, nationality, or language, trembled in fear before him. He did as he pleased: executing or sparing, honoring or shaming anyone as he wished. 20But there came a point when his heart was so proud and his spirit so haughty that he acted arrogantly; he lost his royal throne and was stripped of his royal honors. 21He was driven away from all that is human, and he took on the base instincts of an animal; he lived in the company of wild donkeys and bent over to eat grass like the oxen; every night the dew of heaven fell heavy on his body and made him wet until he learned his lesson and acknowledged that the Most High God is the true sovereign over all earthly kingdoms, and He grants authority to anyone He wishes.

22But even though you knew all this, you, Belshazzar, his descendant, have followed in his ways and not lived humbly. 23On the contrary, you have risen up against the true Lord of heaven. By demanding that the sacred vessels from His temple be brought before you and having you, your officials, your wives, and your concubines drink from them, you have issued a challenge you cannot win. You have made toasts and offered praise to the idols crafted in silver and gold, bronze, iron, wood, and stone—idols which cannot see you, hear you, or know anything at all. And you have failed to honor in all you do the one True God who holds the breath of life in the palm of His hand and makes possible all your days. 24He is the one who sent this hand and inscribed this message on the wall, 25and this is what the inscription says: "MENE, MENE, TEKEL, PARSIN."

The cryptic word play is short and sweet. MENE, MENE; TEKEL; PARSIN: Numbered, numbered (your days); weighed (deficiently); divided (your empire).

26Here is what these words mean:
MENE: God has numbered the days
of your reign and brought it to an end; 27TEKEL: You have been weighed on the scales and found defective; 28PERES: Your kingdom has been divided and handed over to the Medes and Persians."

29*True to his word,* Belshazzar gave the order and Daniel was clothed in purple, a gold chain was placed around his neck, and the king proclaimed that he ascend in rank and privilege to be the third-highest-ranking ruler in the kingdom.

30That very night, under the cloak of darkness, Belshazzar, the Chaldean king of Babylonia, was killed. 31Then Darius the Mede, in his 62nd year, gained control of the kingdom.

► Belshazzar makes a promise he cannot keep. The night that he gives the order to reward Daniel for his service is his last night on earth. By sunrise a new king—even a new empire—rules Belshazzar's kingdom. But Daniel doesn't mind because the true King is with him. Darius, Belshazzar's successor, will recognize Daniel's obvious talents and one day promote him to the same rank Belshazzar promised.

Belshazzar's story is a great reminder that people—regardless of their rank—who insult God or try to render God irrelevant are doomed to fall. They may not fall as quickly as Belshazzar, but they will fall.

6 Darius decided to rule by stationing 120 officers strategically over the entire empire. 2Over the officers he appointed 3 governors, including Daniel, and required each officer to report directly to them. This way the new king hoped not to lose any territories from his recent conquests or the revenue they provided. 3Because of Daniel's exceptional abilities, it wasn't long before he distinguished himself over the other governors and officers. So the king decided to appoint him as head over the entire realm. 4*This appointment did not sit well with the other leaders,* so the governors and officers tried to find reasons to level charges against Daniel for the way he supervised the kingdom. Though they tried, they could find no basis for charges or any corruption in his office. Daniel was loyal and attentive in his duties.

Conspirators: 5We will never find any credible basis for charges against Daniel for how he conducts his office. Perhaps we can uncover some suitable charge in regard to the law of his God.

6The governors and officers agreed and went to the king with what they thought would be a way to entrap Daniel.

Conspirators *(to the king): May King Darius live forever! 7All the leaders of the empire—the governors, prefects, officers, advisors, and other administrators—have consulted together and are in complete agreement that the king should issue an edict and enforce it strictly to the effect that anyone who prays to another—whether divine or human—except for you, of course, good king, for a period of 30 days, will be thrown into the lions' den. 8Now, O king, we ask that you establish such an ordinance and sign it into law, so that it cannot be changed. For the laws enacted by the Medes and Persians cannot be rescinded.

9After considering their proposal, King Darius signed the ordinance and made it law. 10Even though Daniel was aware the king had signed the ordinance into law, he continued to do what he always did. He would go home, ascend the stairs to the upper room—which had windows facing toward Jerusalem—and get down on his knees three times a day and pray to his God and praise Him. 11*One day* the conspirators came to his house and found Daniel on his knees praying and seeking God's help. 12So they went back to the king and asked to speak to him about the edict he had made.

Conspirators: O king! Did you not sign an edict expressly forbidding anyone, regardless of his nationality, to pray to another—whether divine or human—except for you, of course, good king, for a period of 30 days or else he would be thrown into the lion's den?

Darius: Indeed. I did sign it, and I intend to enforce it according to the laws of the Medes and Persians. It cannot be rescinded. Why do you ask?

Conspirators *(to the king): 13*Well, recently we found your servant,* Daniel, one of the exiles from Judah, kneeling and praying at his home three times a day to his God. He is ignoring you, O king, and the edict you signed into law.

14When the king heard the charge, he was very upset. He thought a great deal of Daniel, so he tried to figure out a way to help him. All day long until evening he looked for some loophole in the law to keep Daniel from falling victim to his edict. 15The conspirators returned to press the matter further.

Conspirators *(to the king): We have no need to remind the king that according to the law of the Medes and Persians, no edict established by the king can be revoked, changed, or ignored.

16*With his honor at stake,* the king had no choice. He gave the order for Daniel to be captured. Before Daniel was thrown into the pit with the lions, the king spoke to him.

Darius: May your God, the God you have served so faithfully, rescue you!

17*Daniel was thrown into the lions' den and* a stone was brought in and placed over the opening to shut the mouth of the den. The king himself sealed it with his own signet ring and with the signets of his nobles. That way no one could tamper with the pit and nothing could happen to change Daniel's fate. 18The king retired to his palace and spent the night fasting. That evening he stayed to himself, turning down his regular evening musical entertainment. When he finally went to bed, he could not sleep.

19When first light of morning finally arrived, the king got up and didn't waste any time returning to the lions' den.

Darius can hardly wait to see what has happened to Daniel, who has become indispensable to the king.

20As he drew near the den, with anguish in his voice he called out to Daniel, hoping somehow he was still alive.

Darius: Daniel, servant of the living God, has your God, the One you have served so faithfully, been able to rescue you from these hungry lions?

Daniel (to the king): 21Long live the king! 22*As soon as you shut the mouth of this den,* My God sent His heavenly representative to shut the mouths of these hungry lions so that they could not hurt me. He has rescued me because I am as innocent before Him as I am before you, O king. I have done you no harm.

23The king could hardly contain his excitement and joy. He ordered that Daniel be taken up out of the lions' den. He was removed and examined carefully, but not even a scratch was found on him—all because he put his trust in His God. 24The king gave yet another order; this time he demanded that those who accused Daniel of wrongdoing be captured and thrown into the lions' den—but not only them—their wives and children too. As they were being pushed into the den, before they even hit the bottom, the lions jumped on them, overpowered them, and crushed their bones in their powerful jaws.

25Afterward King Darius sent a message to all the peoples through the world, regardless of their heritage, nationality, or language.

Message: May peace and prosperity be yours! 26I decree that all people everywhere who live under my sovereign rule ought to tremble before and fear the God of Daniel.

For He is the living God,
and He will endure forever.
His kingdom will never be overthrown;
His reign will know no end.
27He saves and rescues those who fear Him,
performing signs and wonders in heaven and on earth;
For He has rescued His servant Daniel
from the power of the lions.

28*With his enemies defeated,* Daniel continued to thrive during the reign of Darius and into the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

7 In the first year of Belshazzar's reign over Babylon, Daniel had a dream and saw visions as he slept in his bed. When he got up, he remembered the dream and wrote it down. This is the beginning of his record:

These events most likely take place in 554 B.C. They are a flashback to before the feast in chapter 5.

Daniel: 2As I dreamed that night, I saw a vision: I was looking and saw the four winds of heaven blow in from all directions and sweep across the surface of the Mediterranean Sea,* whipping up waves and turmoil within the deep. 3Four great beasts rose up from the churning waters, each one different from the other. 4The first to surface was like a lion. It had giant wings like an eagle's protruding from its shoulders. I watched as suddenly its feathers were plucked and its wings removed. The great beast was lifted up from the earth so that it could stand on two feet like a human being. Then it was given human intellect. 5After this I looked and saw a second beast rising from the sea, this one resembling a bear. It was raised up on one of its sides, and in its mouth, gripped tightly between its teeth, were three ribs. And the bear was told to get up and devour even more flesh. 6After witnessing this, I continued to look and saw another beast appear from beneath the waves. This one was fierce and fast like a leopard. It had a bird's wings like the lion, but two pairs instead of one coming out of its back. It had four heads, and men bowed to this beast, and it was permitted to rule over them. 7While I continued to gaze at this vision that night, a fourth beast arose. As if from a nightmare, it was terrifying, more awful and more powerful than anything I had ever seen. Its enormous iron teeth devoured and shattered its prey. Everything was crushed beneath its massive feet. And this fourth beast was unlike the previous three, having ten horns protruding from its head. 8As I stared at the creature and wondered about the ten horns, suddenly another horn grew out of its head, smaller than the rest. Three of the first horns were pushed up from their roots to make room for the little horn. It appeared to have eyes like a human and a mouth that boasted and bragged of its great exploits.

9As I watched the vision unfold,
 thrones were set in place,
And the Ancient of Days took His throne above all.
 His clothes were the purest white, as white as snow,
 and the hair of His head was like
 the finest wool.
His throne was a flaming fire,
 set on wheels that blazed like the sun.
10A stream of fire emerged and flowed
 from His presence.
 Thousands upon thousands of heavenly beings were there to serve Him;
 millions upon millions stood by to attend Him.
The heavenly court sat to hear a case,
 and the books of judgment were opened.

11I continued to look on the scene and heard the clatter of arrogant words spoken by that smaller horn. And as I watched, the verdict was given, and the sentence enacted: the fourth beast was slain, and its body was destroyed, delivered over to the consuming fire. 12As for the other beasts, their power and position were taken away, but they were allowed to live for a little while longer.

13I saw another spectacle in the night
 visions:
 I looked and saw someone like a son of man
 coming with the clouds of heaven.*
He approached the Ancient of Days
 and was ushered into His presence.
14To Him was given authority, honor, and a kingdom
 so that all people of every heritage, nationality, and language might
 serve Him.
His dominion will last forever,
 His throne will never pass away,
 and His kingdom will never be destroyed.

15As for me, Daniel, I was deeply disturbed by all that I saw; these night visions terrified me. 16So I approached one of the heavenly beings standing before the flaming throne and asked him to explain exactly what had happened. So he did. And this is what he told me it all meant, the interpretation he gave me to all I had seen and heard:

Heavenly Being: 17The four great beasts you saw that rose from the wind-whipped sea are four kings who will rise from the earth and come to rule vast empires. 18But the holy ones of the Most High God will receive that kingdom which will last for all the ages to come, forever and ever.

Daniel: 19But I wanted to know more. I wanted to understand the whole truth about the fourth beast. It was different from the other three, so fearsome with its iron teeth and bronze claws devouring and shattering its prey and trampling everything in its path beneath its massive feet.

► The beasts can be identified by a careful study of history. The lion, bear, leopard, and fourth terrifying beast represent Babylon, Media, Persia, and Greece. Persia had four kings, so the leopard had four heads. The ten horns of the fourth beast with iron teeth represent the ten dominant Seleucid kings after Alexander the Great's empire splintered into four regions. The smaller horn is Antiochus IV who put down three potential Seleucid leaders (horns) before him.

Daniel: 20*I was intrigued* with the 10 horns on the beast's head and that 11th horn that grew up and uprooted the other 3 horns, that horn with eyes like human eyes and a mouth that uttered arrogant words, that horn that looked greater than the rest. 21I looked on as that 11th horn waged war against the holy ones; for a while it seemed it might triumph over them, that is, 22until the Ancient of Days arrived and ruled in favor of the holy ones of the Most High. Now the appointed time had come when the holy ones took possession of the eternal kingdom. 23The heavenly being told me,

* 7:13 Mark 13:26; 14:62; Revelation 1:7; 14:14

Just because a prophecy has been fulfilled once, it doesn't mean the prophecy is no longer instructive. Daniel's prophecies are excellent examples of this idea. Written from the perspective of the Babylonian exile, these prophecies describe the coming suffering of God's people under foreign rule and look forward to a time when God will liberate them. During the next 300 years, the Jews watch Daniel's prophecies unfold. The Persian Empire is conquered by a Greek, Alexander the Great, in 333 B.C. Alexander's short reign is followed by the division of the empire into four districts governed by his politically inexperienced generals; Israel is ruled by a string of cruel men—culminating in the reign of Antiochus IV who attempts to turn Jerusalem into a Greek city, bans the Torah, and even builds an altar to Zeus in God's temple. In the face of such pagan influence, God instigates the Maccabean Revolt of 167-165 B.C. At that time, Jerusalem's God-fearing traditions return, and Israel is ruled by the Jews. But these historical facts are not the end of God's message. Within Daniel's prophecies is a description of the end of the age, a time when evil will be punished and the Liberator will reign.

"The fourth beast, like the other three,
represents a fourth kingdom that will rule on earth.
This kingdom will be different from the rest;
it will devour the whole earth
And crush everything beneath its feet
and shatter it all to pieces.
24 The 10 horns are 10 kings
that will arise from this fourth kingdom.
After these another king will come to power
who will be very different from the kings before him,
seizing power until he subdues three kings.
25 This king will speak out against the Most High,
and try to wear down His holy ones;
He will seek to alter the sacred times and special law God gave them,
and they will be under his control
for time, times, and half a time.
26 After this, the heavenly court will sit in judgment,
his authority will be taken from him,
and his supremacy over the earth will come to a permanent end.
27 Then the great ruling authority of the kingdoms under the heavens Shall be handed over to the covenant people,
the holy ones of the Most High;
Their kingdom will last forever,
and all the remaining kingdoms will worship and serve Him."

28 This is the end of his record.

Daniel: My thoughts on these matters upset me greatly. My face grew pale, but I kept it all to myself.

Daniel awakens from these night visions shaking and pale, but he is never able to shake these thoughts. They are always on his mind.

8 Daniel: In the third year of Belshazzar's reign over Babylon, I, Daniel, saw another vision.

These events most likely happen around 552 or 551 B.C.

This vision followed the first I had just a couple of years earlier. 2 In my vision, I looked and suddenly found myself in the fortress-city of Susa in the province of Elam. I was standing next to the Ulai Canal. 3 When I looked up, I saw a ram near me standing on the bank of the canal. The ram had two horns, both of which were long, but one was even longer than the other. I watched as the horns grew, and the longer came up after the other, the shorter horn. 4 As I looked, the ram charged to the west, the north, and the south. It defeated all the other beasts in its path, and there was no one great enough to rescue its victims from the ram's power. It did whatever it liked, and with each conquest, it grew stronger.

5 As I was trying to figure out what I was seeing, suddenly a male goat came from the west to challenge the ram. It moved so quickly across the face of the entire earth that it seemed his feet never touched the ground. On its head the goat had a prominent horn sticking out between its eyes. 6He approached the ram with the two horns—the same one I had seen standing by the Ulai Canal—and charged at it with a violent rage. 7I saw the goat in reckless fury butt the ram and shatter his two horns. The ram had no power to stand against its foe, so it was thrown to the ground and trampled to death; there was no one great enough to rescue the ram from the goat's power. 8*With this conquest,* the male goat with the prominent horn took the place of his rival and grew more powerful. But at the height of his power, the great horn was broken off, and four prominent horns grew in its place, each one pointing toward one of the four winds of heaven.

9A fifth, smaller horn grew out of one of these new horns. Its power grew, and its influence reached toward the south and toward the east and toward the beautiful lands of promise. 10Then it grew straight up to challenge the army of heaven; it knocked some of the heavenly beings and stars to the ground and trampled them beneath it. 11The horn grew even greater, and in its arrogance came up against the Prince of the heavenly army. It halted the daily sacrifices to Him and took control of His established sanctuary. 12As a result of this great rebellion, the heavenly army and the daily sacrifices were handed over to the horn. For a time it cast truth to the ground and succeeded in everything it tried.

13Then I heard two heavenly beings in conversation with each other.

Heavenly Being *(to its companion): When will it all end? How long will these events—the desecrating rebellion, the perverted daily sacrifices, and the trampling of the sanctuary and heavenly army—how long will they continue?

Second Heavenly Being *(to me): 14*The world will see* 2,300 mornings and evenings before all this will pass. After this the trampling will cease, and the holy sanctuary will be set right.

15As I, Daniel, was trying to understand the meaning of this vision I had seen, suddenly, someone who looked like a human stood in front of me. 16I heard a human voice call out, coming from somewhere between the waters of the Ulai Canal.

Voice: Gabriel, explain to this man what he has seen.

17So the one called Gabriel moved closer to me; as he did, I became very scared. I fell to the ground, my face down.

Gabriel *(to Daniel): Son of man, allow me to help you understand this vision. All you have seen has to do with the time of the end.

► Some Jews and Christians have read this cryptic language, "time of the end," to refer to the end of the world; but others believe the context points to the "time of the end" of the exile of God and His people from the full and final restoration of temple worship in Jerusalem.

18As he was speaking, I slipped into a deep sleep—my face pressed to the ground. But Gabriel touched me and helped me stand to my feet where I was before.

Gabriel: 19I have been sent here to help you understand the things that will take place later in the final time of wrath; for everything you have seen refers to the appointed time of the end. 20The ram you saw by the Ulai Canal, the one with the two long horns, represents the kings of Media and Persia. 21The shaggy male goat represents the king of Greece. The great horn that stuck out between his eyes symbolizes the first king of Greece. 22The breaking off of the first horn and its replacement by four prominent horns depicts four kingdoms that will arise from this one nation, none of which will have as much power as that first king.

23When their reign has come to an end,
when their rebellion has run its course,
A new king will rise to power,
defiance written across his face,
expert in riddles and ruses.
24This king will grow strong—
but not on his own power.
He will stun the world with his dreadful destruction
and succeed in everything he tries.
He will wipe out a vast circle of mighty leaders and turn his deadly hand against the holy people of God.

25He will use his skill and power to stir up deceit;
in the darkness of his heart he shall believe himself great.
When all seems well, he will destroy
many people,
and will even stand up against the Prince of princes.
But when the time is right, he will be broken,
though not by a human hand.

26What you have seen and heard about the 2,300 evenings and the mornings is true. It will happen, but not for a long time. So seal up this vision and keep it a secret, for now.

Daniel: 27With this I, Daniel, was completely exhausted. I was ill for several days, unable to get out of bed. But after a time I grew stronger, got up, and resumed my service to the king. But I was very upset by the vision, for though I tried, I could never really understand it.

9 Daniel: 1-2In the first year that Darius the Mede (Ahasuerus' son) ruled over the Babylonians, I, Daniel, was studying the word of the Eternal One according to the prophet Jeremiah and discovered in the scrolls the number of years that Jerusalem must lie desolate before it is restored, that is, seventy years.

Darius is a title and may refer to Cyrus about 539 B.C. or Artaxerxes I (Ahasuerus' son) in 465 B.C.

3After learning this, I turned to the Lord God, praying diligently, begging for His mercy, grieving and fasting in sackcloth and ashes. 4I prayed to the Eternal One my God, praising His greatness and confessing our sins: Lord God, You are great and awesome! You are always faithful to the covenant You made with us. Your unfailing love extends to all who love You and keep Your commandments. 5But we have sinned and wronged You. We have acted wickedly in our rebellion, going so far as to disregard Your commandments and regulations. 6We have ignored the message given through Your servants, the prophets, who spoke on Your behalf to our kings, princes, ancestors, indeed every last person of the land. 7O Lord, You always do what is right. It is Your due, but we deserve nothing this day but public and open shame. The people of Judah, Jerusalem—indeed of all Israel, those who are in neighboring regions and those who are in the farthest reaches, driven into exile by You for all the treacherous acts they committed against You—we all deserve nothing but shame. 8Eternal One, public and open shame is our due, for we have sinned against You, all of us, our kings, princes, and ancestors. 9But You, O Lord our God, still show us compassion and forgiveness even though we have openly rebelled against You. 10We have not obeyed the voice of the Eternal our God, for we have failed to live by the teachings You gave us directly through Your servants, the prophets. 11All the people of Israel have abandoned Your teachings, deserted Your covenant, and refused to obey Your voice. This is why the curse and the oath inscribed in the law of Moses,* the servant of God, has been poured out on us—for we have sinned against You. 12By unleashing on us this great calamity, You have carried out Your solemn words warning us and our leaders who led us astray. Under all of heaven, nothing like what happened to Jerusalem has ever happened before. 13All the calamity that has befallen us fulfills the warnings written in Moses' law; but despite our adversity, we have not sought the favor of the Eternal our God by walking away from our sins and pursuing insight into Your truth. 14And now we have earned the misery that the Eternal has stored up for us. Truly, the Eternal our God was right to do all He has done, for we refused to obey His voice.

15Now, Lord our God, You have made Your name great among the nations to this day by liberating Your enslaved people from the land of Egypt with powerful deeds; yet we have sinned against You, our Liberator, and we have acted wickedly. 16Lord, the reputation of Your city Jerusalem has suffered, and Your people are mocked by those around us because we and our ancestors have done wrong. I beg You to spare Your city Jerusalem, Your holy mountain; turn away Your burning anger and fiery wrath from Your people according to all Your covenant mercies. 17Now, God, please hear the prayers and petitions voiced today by your servant. Shine Your face on Your destroyed and desolate sanctuary for the

* 9:11 Leviticus 26:14-45; Deuteronomy 28:15-68

Daniel is just one man, yet he carries the sins of his nation to God and pleads with the Almighty to forgive and rescue His people. Their collective failures to live up to the covenant they made with God have scattered the chosen people to the four corners of the earth and have brought ruin to Jerusalem. After reading the prophet Jeremiah, Daniel knows that the calamity will not be over until God's people come back to Him. With fasting and prayer, Daniel hopes to begin the process of restoration.

God's covenant with Israel includes provisions for both blessings and curses. When the people follow God and keep His teaching, they can expect to live peacefully in the land God promised. But when the covenant people rebel against God and ignore His teaching, their actions—or lack of actions—bring into effect the curses. Daniel appeals to God's own interest as the One who cares about His name and His reputation. The fate of Jerusalem and His people reflects on Him.

sake of Your name, my Lord. 18Lend an ear, my God, and hear this prayer. Open Your eyes and see our deserted streets and witness the devastation across the city that bears Your name. We are crying to You and asking for mercy, not because we are righteous and deserve it. No, we bring these petitions to you because we know of Your great mercy. 19Lord, hear our prayer! Lord, forgive our sins! Lord, pay attention to our plight and act without delay, not for our sake, my God, but for Yours because these people and this city bear Your name.

20*For much of the day* I was pleading and praying, confessing my sin and the sins of my people Israel, presenting my case to the Eternal One my God on behalf of Jerusalem, His holy mountain. 21About the time of the evening sacrifice, while I was still pleading and praying and almost completely exhausted, the man Gabriel, who had appeared to me in an earlier vision, appeared again and reached out to me.

Gabriel *(to me): 22Daniel, I have come for one purpose: to offer you insight and understanding into these matters. 23When you began your pleading earlier today, a word was issued. I was instructed to come and tell you about it, for you are highly regarded by God. So pay close attention so you can understand the vision.

24The decree has been issued: your people and your holy city have 70 sevens of time* to bring rebellion to a close, to put an end to sin, to wipe away guilt, to bring in a righteousness that endures, to seal up the prophet's vision, and to anoint the most sacred place. 25Know and understand this: from the proclamation of the word to restore and rebuild Jerusalem to the arrival of the Anointed Ruler, there will be 7 weeks of time. For 62 weeks of time the community will be restored, the city rebuilt with broad streets and deep defenses, even through times of trouble. 26After those 62 weeks of time the Anointed One will be cut down and have nothing; then the warriors* of the prince who is to come will destroy the city and defile the sanctuary. Its end will come swiftly as in a flood and to the end there will be war. The decree has been issued: Desolation.

27And that prince will make a binding treaty with many people for a one-week period of time. In the middle of that one period he will put a stop to all sacrifices and offerings to the Lord. And at the height* of his atrocities he will set up an abominable idol that desecrates the most holy place, until the desolation decreed is finally poured out on the defiler.*

► Although God has countless heavenly messengers, only two are named in the Bible: Gabriel and Michael. These heavenly messengers fill many functions in the Bible; for example, they are members of God's divine council, they lead the heavenly army, and they deliver the words of God. In Daniel, Gabriel is a messenger in the most literal sense, bringing a revelation to Daniel through the explanations of a dream and of Scripture. Gabriel's announcements about the coming Liberator do not end with Daniel. In the New Testament book of Luke, he is the one who announces the impending births of John the Baptist and Jesus to Zechariah and Mary, respectively.

10 1-2In the third year of King Cyrus' reign over the Persian Empire, Daniel, who had been named Belteshazzar by his Babylonian captors, received a word from God through another vision. The message proved reliable, and it had to do with a great war. Daniel understood the word and gained insight into the future through this vision. Here is his account.

These events happen around 535 B.C., when Babylonia is part of Persia.

Daniel: When I received this vision, I, Daniel, had been in mourning for three weeks. 3I had eaten very little, no meat and no rich foods at all. I had not enjoyed the taste of wine, nor had I used any oils to bathe or groom myself. I continued this way throughout the three full weeks. 4*The vision came to me* on the 24th day of the 1st month. As I was on the bank of the great Tigris River, 5I lifted my eyes and saw what seemed at first to be a man dressed in linen clothing. Around his waist was a belt made of the purest gold. 6His body had the appearance of yellow topaz; his face was bright like flashes of lightning; his eyes flamed like torches; his arms and legs sparkled like polished bronze; his voice sounded like thunder. 7I, Daniel, alone saw this man and heard his voice. Though there were others around me who did not see this sight, they were still overcome with fear and ran to hide. I did not. 8I was left all alone to witness this glorious sight. My strength soon left me. My face was drained of its natural color, and I was confused. I had no energy at all. 9Then I heard his voice and caught the sound of his words. As I did, I fell into a deep sleep—my face pressed to the ground. 10Just then, a mighty hand touched me and lifted my trembling body onto my hands and knees.

Messenger: 11Daniel, you are highly regarded by God. I have been sent to help you understand the destiny of your people. Stand up and listen carefully to what I have to tell you.

As he spoke, I slowly rose to my feet, though I was still shaking.

Messenger: 12Do not be afraid, Daniel. From the very first day that you began to pursue understanding and humble yourself before your God, your words have been heard. I have been sent in response to what you've said. 13*I would have been here sooner;* however, for the past 21 days the spirit prince of Persia opposed me and prevented my coming to you. Then Michael, one of the chief princes of heaven, came to my aid because I alone was busy dealing with the kings of Persia. 14I have come to help you understand what will happen to your people in the last days,* for this vision is about a time yet to come.

15As he was saying all this to me, I dropped my head and looked at the ground, completely quiet, unable to respond. 16Then one who looked like the sons of men approached and touched my lips. After that I was able to open my mouth and speak again. I turned to the one standing before me.

Daniel: My lord, what I have seen has left me utterly depressed. I have no strength left. 17How can I, your humble servant, even begin to address someone like you, my lord? My strength is gone, and I can hardly catch my breath.

18Again the one who looked like a man reached out and touched me. With that I felt my strength begin to return.

Messenger: 19Do not be afraid, you who are highly regarded by God. May peace rest on you and make you whole; be strong; be brave.

At his words, I grew even stronger.

Daniel: Please continue, my lord, for your words have given me strength.

Messenger: 20Do you realize, now, the reason I have come to you? Soon I must return to continue the fight with the spirit prince of Persia. When I do go, the spirit prince of Greece will come to do battle. 21Nevertheless, I will tell you what is inscribed in the scroll of truth. No one stands with me against the guardians

except for Michael, your heavenly prince.

11 Messenger: Darius the Mede had been on the throne less than one year when I came forward to back him and strengthen him.

[2]Now I am here to reveal to you the truth: Three more kings will rule in Persia. After them, a fourth will arise who will be much richer than all the others. He will use his wealth to build his power and extend his influence; then he will incite the nations to fight against the kingdom of Greece. [3]Meanwhile in Greece, a warrior king will come to power.

The Greek warrior king is Alexander the Great in the late fourth century B.C.

With great authority he will rule his lands and do as he desires. [4]But no sooner than he rises, his kingdom will be broken up and divided to the four winds of heaven. None of his own offspring will receive any portion, nor will these kingdoms exercise the great authority he once did, for his empire will be ripped from its foundation and given to others.

A series of powerful Persian kings arises after Cyrus. Over the next century, Persian power wanes until Alexander the Great brings down the Persian Empire.

[5]The king of the south will then grow in power and prosper. Yet in time one of his own officers will become more powerful than he and rule over an even greater empire. [6]Several years later, the king of the north and the king of the south will form an alliance. That alliance will be established by the marriage of the daughter of the king of the south to the king of the north; however, this union will not last. The princess will not hold onto power, and the king, too, will lose his throne. She will be given up along with her royal court, her father, and those who backed her. [7]In response, one of her relatives, a branch from her roots, will rise to take his place and become king in the south. He will take up the sword and lead an army into the fortress of the northern king. He will fight against them and in the end be victorious. [8]He will sack their temples and carry back to Egypt their gods, cast in metal images, and take their precious vessels crafted of fine gold and silver; for several years the king of the south will resist going to war against the king of the north. [9]But then, in later times, the king of the north will invade the provinces of the king of the south, but soon will be forced to withdraw to his own northern lands. [10]His sons will commit to war and assemble a powerful army, a force that will flood over the land, pass through the territories, and take the battle as far as the southern king's fortress. [11]At this provocation, the enraged king of the south will rally a large force to repel the northern invaders. And though the king of the north had assembled a powerful army, it will go down in defeat. [12]When the invading army is repelled, the heart of the king of the south will be caught up in pride, and so he will execute tens of thousands of his enemies; still he will not prove to be strong. [13]For the king of the north will return after a few years, having raised a fighting force far larger and better equipped than before. [14]When this happens many people will rebel against the king of the south. Violent people from your own people, Daniel, will join the fray in order to fulfill the vision, but none will succeed. All will fall. [15]Then the king of the north will come and build a siege ramp against a fortified city and eventually take it; for the south, even with their very best warriors, will have no strength left to fight. [16]The king of the north will go where he pleases, and his army will march on unmatched and undeterred. None can resist him. One day he will stand in the beautiful lands of promise with the power to destroy it or let it be. [17]Using the might of his kingdom, the king of the north will decide to force an alliance. He will give the king of the south his daughter for a wife with the hope that she might help conquer the kingdom from within; but his plans will not succeed. [18]Afterward, the king of the north will turn his attention to the coastlands, attacking the cities there, claiming many. Eventually a commander will put a stop to the violent attacks and turn the aggression back on the invader and his army. [19]The king of the north will flee to his own land and seek the protection of his own strongholds, but he will trip and fall, never to be seen or heard of again.

► After his death Alexander's kingdom is partitioned among his four generals, two of whom figure prominently in Daniel's prophecy. Alexander's generals continue to fight over Israel and its citizens. Seleucus Nicator rules in the north (Syria). Ptolemy Soter rules in the south (Egypt).

Messenger: 20Another northern king will rise to take his place. He will send out an official to exact taxes from the most glorious jewel of the kingdom, namely Jerusalem, but his tyranny will not last long. He will be cut down, though not in the heat of battle or in an angry loss of control.

21Yet another will rise to take his place: a truly despicable person. Though royal honors were not his by right, he will come in quietly and take over with cunning and clever promises. 22Armies will be overwhelmed and crushed before him, and the prince of the covenant will be cut down as well. 23Though his supporters are few in number, he will grow strong by deceiving those who have made alliances with him. 24In a time of ease and great wealth he will quietly invade the wealthiest parts of the region and do what none of his royal predecessors had ever done before; instead of hoarding the treasure, he will distribute the plunder, possessions, and property among those loyal to him. And though he will make plans to attack fortresses, these plans will not last for long.

25*But the king of the north is not finished.* Once again he inspires courage and gathers a large and powerful fighting force to attack the south; but the king of the south takes notice and gathers his own large, powerful army to wage war. But he will not be able to resist the northern invader because treacherous plans will be devised against him. 26*His closest advisors,* those who eat from the royal table, will betray him and bring about his downfall even as his army is swept away. Many will die in battle. 27Both kings will sit at the same table and lie to each other, their only interest in deceiving and harming the other. But none of this will matter, for the end is yet to come at the appointed time. 28The king of the north will eventually return to his own land with riches won from conquered peoples. With his heart set against the holy covenant, he will do whatever his evil will desires and then return to his own land.

29At the chosen time, he will once again attempt to invade the south, but this time will be different from any time before. 30For warships will arrive from the west* and confront him. Fearful of their power, he will withdraw. On his way north, he will unleash his violent fury against the holy covenant and those loyal to it. At the same time he will look with favor on those who turn their backs on it. 31The king will command his forces to take over the city and pollute the temple fortress. After they outlaw the daily sacrifices to the one True God, they will set up the disgusting idol that will desecrate the most holy place.* 32With smooth talk, he will entice people who act wickedly and break the covenant. But those who truly know their God will remain strong and work against him. 33The truly wise among God's people will help the many understand the need to resist; yet for quite some time they will be killed by sword and fire, or they will be imprisoned and their property taken. 34Those who fall victim to this persecution will receive only a little help, and many will join their cause out of smooth, deceptive speech. 35Some of the wise will fall victim and be martyred in order to be refined, purified, and made clean until the end, for the appointed time is still to come.

Messenger: 36The king of the north will do as he desires. He will elevate himself and make the audacious claim that he is greater than all the gods. He will say horrendous things about the One who truly is God of gods. He will be successful in his exploits—but not forever—for the time of wrath must be fulfilled and what is decreed must be accomplished. 37He will have no respect for the gods worshiped by his ancestors or the one loved by women or any other god for that matter! For he will make himself greater than all gods. 38Instead of these, he will honor only the god of fortresses—a god his ancestors never knew—with gold and silver, with costly stones and other precious gifts. 39When he attacks the strongest fortresses, he will call upon this foreign god for help. He will bestow great honor on those who are loyal to him, and for any who acknowledge him, he will grant power and authority over many people and divide up the land as their reward.

* 11:30 Hebrew, Kittim * 11:31 Literally, abomination of desolation; Matthew 24:15; Mark 13:14

40Then at the time of the end, the king of the south will make war against the king of the north. The king of the north will storm through the troops with chariots, horsemen, and many ships, overwhelming the people 41and advancing to the south. The northern king will enter the beautiful lands of promise and take control of many nations along the way. Yet other peoples will be rescued from his tyrannical hand: Edom, Moab, and the best of Ammon. 42He will extend his reach over many other nations, and even the land of Egypt will not elude his wrath. 43He will seize control over the treasures of Egypt, all of its precious items skillfully crafted of gold and silver. The Libyans and the Ethiopians will follow in his steps and do his bidding. 44But various reports from the east and the north will eat away at the tyrant. Distressed and furious, he will send his forces to destroy and annihilate many nations. 45*One day* he will pitch his palatial, royal tents between the Great Sea and the holy mountain of beauty, namely Mount Zion. Then and there his end will come, and no one will stand with him.

12 Messenger (to Daniel): At that time, Michael, the great heavenly prince, the grand defender and guardian of your people, will arise. Then the world will enter a time of distress unlike any in history, an hour of anguish greater than any nation has ever known. But during this time your people, those whose names have been written in the scroll, will be liberated. 2And many who sleep the sleep of death in the dust of the earth will awake, some to eternal life with the Lord and others to utter shame and eternal disgrace far from Him. 3Those who are wise will shine as bright as the sky at midday, and those who make the many righteous will shine as the stars forever and ever. 4As for you, Daniel, keep these visions and their meaning a secret. Write down what you have seen and heard, then seal the scroll until the time of the end. Many will wander here and there, and knowledge will expand.

5Then I, Daniel, stood on the bank of the Tigris River and looked as two others appeared, one on my side of the river and the other on the far side. 6One of them spoke to the man dressed in linen clothing, who was upstream.

Heavenly Being: How long will it be until these disturbing events come to an end?

7*I watched and listened carefully.* The man dressed in linen clothing who was upstream raised both of his hands into the sky toward heaven. He swore an oath by Him who lives eternally that these disturbing events would last for a time, times, and half a time; and that when the shattering of the power of God's holy people comes to an end, then all of this will be over. 8I heard what he said but could not understand its meaning.

Daniel: My lord, how will all of this come out in the end?

Man in Linen: 9*It is time for you to* go on your way, Daniel, for the words must be kept secret and sealed until the time of the end. 10Many will keep themselves pure and clean and refined despite the pressures of these times, but those who are wicked will continue their wicked ways and none of them will ever understand. But those who are wise will. 11From the time when the daily sacrifice is prohibited and the disgusting idol that desecrates the most holy place* is put in its place, there will be 1,290 days.* 12Those who remain true to God and reach the end of the 1,335 days are sure to experience God's blessing. 13As for you, Daniel, go and be faithful to the end of your life. You will surely rest, but when the end of days arrives, you will rise again to receive the inheritance allotted for you.

HOSEA

God's faithfulness expressed though Hosea's family

The message of Hosea, a prophet of consolation

01 02 03 04 05 06

God often asks people to do hard things. During the second half of the eighth century B.C., the prophet Hosea lives in Northern Israel and is called by God to do something amazingly hard: God tells him to marry Gomer, a woman with a promiscuous past whom He knows has a promiscuous future. Even after they are husband and wife, Gomer runs away and stays with other men. Feeling the hurt of Gomer's betrayal, Hosea begins to understand what God is doing. The pain he experiences when his wife is unfaithful is the same pain God experiences when His people are unfaithful, that is, when the Israelites seek relationships with other gods and forge alliances with foreign nations. These activities violate their covenant with God just as Gomer and eventually Hosea's unnamed second wife (3:2) violate their marriage covenants with Hosea. Marriage and adultery perfectly symbolize the broken relationship between God and His people. The Lord wed Israel at Mount Sinai; He wooed and pursued His bride only to have her pursue other lovers. Because of her infidelity, God's judgment is sure to fall on His people, and even the land itself will suffer the consequences of Israel's actions.

The metaphor of Israel's current and future relations with God continues in the names given to Gomer's children: Jezreel ("God sows"), Lo-ruhamah ("No mercy"), and Lo-ammi ("Not my people"). These children are a constant reminder of Hosea's broken marriage and his wife's infidelity. These unusual names are a sign to the Northern Kingdom that their current worship of other gods and abandonment of the Lord's laws will result in His abandonment of the next generation. This will actually happen in 722 B.C., when God uses the Assyrians to destroy His people and sends the ten northern tribes into the oblivion of foreign exile. But separation is not the end of the story, for God continues to love and pursue His people. A day is coming, the prophet says, when His people will forget her former lovers and God will love her completely (14:1-4).

1 The words in this book are the words of the Eternal One, which were told to Hosea (Beeri's son) when Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah were kings of Judah; and when Jeroboam (Joash's son) was king of Israel.

2This is the word the Eternal spoke through Hosea first.

Eternal One *(to Hosea): Go and marry a woman who is a prostitute and have children who come from this unfaithfulness. This will represent how the land of Israel has abandoned Me and become a prostitute to other masters!

3So Hosea married a woman named Gomer (Diblaim's daughter). She became pregnant and gave birth to his son.

Eternal One: 4*I want you to* name this boy Jezreel because I'm just about to punish Jehu's dynasty for all the blood Jehu shed at the city of Jezreel.* I will bring an end to the monarchy in Israel. 5*Here's how I'm going to do it:* I'll destroy their army and break their bow when they fight the Assyrians in the valley of Jezreel.

This judgment is for the crime of slaughtering Ahab's family at the city of Jezreel by Jehu when he made himself king, and the punishment includes Jehu's great-grandson, King Jeroboam.

6Gomer became pregnant again, and this time she had a girl.

Eternal One: I want you to name her Shown No Mercy,* because I'm not going to show any more mercy to the people of Israel. I won't forgive them anymore. 7But I will have mercy on the people of Judah. Even though they could never win in battle with their own weapons—bows and swords, horses and cavalry—I'm going to save them personally.

8After Gomer finished nursing Shown No Mercy, she became pregnant again and had another boy.

Eternal One: 9*I want you to* name him Not My People,* because these people aren't Mine anymore, and I am not their God.

10But things won't always be this way. Someday there'll be so many people in Israel that they'll be like the grains of sand at the seashore—too many to count! It shall turn out that in the very place where it was said to them, "You are not My people," they will be called "Children of the living God."* 11The people of Judah and the people of Israel will return from exile and gather together as one nation again, and they'll agree on only one leader for all of them. It will be a great day when they go up from the land and "Jezreel" is a reality.

Jezreel means "God sows [seed]." He will bring the people back to their land, and they'll never be uprooted again.

2 Eternal One *(to the future reunited people): Give your brothers a new name: My People;
and give your sisters a new name too: Shown Mercy.
2*I'm going to publicly charge* your mother, Israel, with being unfaithful to Me.
But you must bring the accusation against her—you bring it—
Because she's not My wife anymore and I'm not her husband.

Israel was unfaithful to God by worshiping the fertility gods of her neighbors and forging diplomatic and military alliances with these foreign nations.

Look at her! She must cease from her whoring ways, even her adulteries from her breasts; she must remove her lovers.
3If she doesn't stop, I'll take away all her clothes and jewels and leave her as naked as the day she was born.
I'll make her like the bare rocks and soil of the desert where nothing grows because there's no rain:
I'll kill her with thirst.

4*When I divorce her,* I won't take care of her children because they are children of wickedness, tainted by that very prostitution.
5Their mother was a prostitute;
she brought shame on herself when she had these children.

* 1:4 1 Kings 19:15-17; 2 Kings 9–10 * 1:6 Hebrew, Lo-ruhamah * 1:9 Hebrew, Lo-ammi * 1:10 Romans 9:26

Whenever God's children abandon proper worship of Him in favor of any earthly thing—be it worship of another god, dependence on themselves, or trust in foreign leaders—they break their covenant with Him. Breaking that promise is like committing adultery, which is literally the destruction of a marriage covenant. Here, God is furious with Israel because they have chosen to serve the gods of other nations in addition to Him; they are committing adultery against Him.

Under the rule of King Jeroboam II in the Northern Kingdom of Israel, worship of a Canaanite deity named Baal is common. Many people believe he is the god of weather and therefore the one who makes the earth fertile and produces crops. Like God, he is worshiped through the donation of gifts and sacrificing of animals, but Baal is also honored by the activities of prostitutes at shrines dedicated to him. The men and women who are employed at those shrines are paid for their fertility rituals by customers (worshipers) not only with money but also with the produce of the land their sexual activities supposedly fertilized: bread and water, wool and flax, oil and wine.

She chased her customers,
saying, "I'm going to go
looking for my lovers.
They're the ones who give me my
bread and water,
my wool and flax, my oil and wine." 6But I'll block her way with a thorn
hedge;
I'll put a wall up around her,
blocking her usual paths,
7*and she will wander after* her lovers like a dumb sheep.
She'll chase after them, but she won't catch them.
She'll look for them, but she won't find them.
Then she'll say, "I'm going to go back to my original husband because I was better off then than I am now!"

8She didn't know I was the One who gave her the grain and wine
and oil—
not those fertility gods she was worshiping.
I made her rich with silver and gold,
but she devoted it to another
divine master!*

9So when harvest time comes, I'll take back My grain,
and when the grapes ripen, I'll take back My wine.
I'll take away the wool and flax I gave her to make clothes
so she wouldn't be naked.
10*The land will be stripped bare,*
and this unfaithful wife of Mine
will be walking around Embarrassingly naked in the sight of her lovers,
and none of them will be able to rescue her from Me.

11So I'm going to end all of her celebrations
*now that she uses them to honor
other masters—*
Her pilgrimage festivals, her new moon celebrations, her Sabbath feasts,
and all her other gatherings.
12She says she's entitled to her vines and fig trees
because they're her wages from prostitution; they're gifts from her lovers.
But I'm going to destroy them all.
I'll turn them into a tangle
of brush,
and wild animals will eat up *the
fruit.*
13I swear that I'll punish her for honoring other masters* on My special days,
even her burning incense to
those false gods.
She got dressed up in her rings and
jewelry;
she went after her lovers, and she forgot about Me.

14*But once she has nothing, I'll be able to get through to her.*
I'll entice her and lead her out into the wilderness where we can be alone,
and I'll speak right to her heart
and try to win her back.

* 2:8 Hebrew, Baal * 2:13 Hebrew, baals

15And then I'll give her back her
vineyards;
I'll turn the valley of Achor, that
*"Valley of Trouble,"
into a gateway of hope.

This is where Achan was judged for keeping forbidden spoils of war when Israel first entered into the land after the exodus.

In the wilderness of exile she'll learn to respond to Me
the way she did when she was young, when I brought her out of Egypt.

16And I swear when that day comes, she'll call Me "my husband" and never address Me again as "my master" as she did those other gods. 17She'll never invoke the name of any other master again.

Everyone will forget that gods by that name ever existed. 18When that day comes, this is what I'll do for My people: I'll make a covenant for them with the wild animals and flying birds and crawling insects, and they'll agree never to devour her crops again. I'll smash all the bows and swords and weapons that could be used to invade their land, and they'll live in security.

(to His reclaimed bride) 19I'm going to marry you, and this time it'll be forever in righteousness and justice. Our covenant will reflect a loyal love and great mercy; 20our marriage will be honest and truthful, and you'll understand who I really am—the Eternal One.

21And I swear that when that day comes I'll answer the sky and prayers
for rain,
and the sky will give the land the
water it's asking for.
22And the land will give the grain and wine and oil the fertile soil
they need to develop,
and the crops will shout back to Me, "God sows!"*
23*I won't just restore the agricultural*
abundance;
I'll sow into My beloved land and plant the people in the land and make them My own.
To the one who has not been shown mercy,*
I'll rename her Mercy.
I'll tell Not My People,* "You are now My People!"
and he'll respond, "You're my
God!"*

3 The Eternal spoke with me again.

Eternal One: Go and love a woman who is loved by someone else and is adulterous. Care for her and protect her, just as I love the people of Israel even though they're unfaithfully turning to other gods and selfishly eating sacred raisin cakes in their honor.

2So I paid the bride-price for this woman, less than I would pay to own a slave: six ounces of silver, about ten bushels of barley.

Hosea *(to the woman): 3You're going to live with me for a long time. I didn't buy you just for my own pleasure, and I'm not going to cast you aside. But I'm not going to let you commit adultery again—in fact, you're not going to have sexual relations with anyone, not even me.

4In the same way, the people of Israel will go for a long time without having a king or prince of their own, without having any altars or sacred pillars, and without having any way of divining answers through a vestment* or images. 5And afterward, once their devotion is renewed, they'll return and genuinely worship the Eternal their God, and they'll end their rebellion against the royal house of David. In those days they'll come trembling to the Eternal One and rediscover His goodness.

4 Listen to what the Eternal says, you people of Israel!

Eternal One: I am bringing charges against everyone who lives in
your land
because there's no truth and no faithfulness and no knowledge of God in the land.
2There is only cursing and lying and killing and stealing and
adultery—
so that one act of bloodshed follows right after another.
3*It's because you're breaking My most* basic directives
that the land will mourn with grief and even dry up like a desert plant.
Those dwelling in it waste away,

* 2:15 Joshua 7:24 * 2:22 Hebrew, Jezreel * 2:23 Hebrew, Lo-ruhamah * 2:23 Hebrew, Lo-ammi * 2:23 Romans 9:25
* 3:4 Literally, ephod

As the wild animals, the flying birds, and the swimming fish are all dying.

4Be careful in bringing these charges and contending with one
another,
for this is My charge against you,
you priests—I have a divine contention against you!
5You stumble around during the day,
and the prophets stumble
with you at night.
And so I will destroy your mother,
the land where you live.
6You've forgotten the law of your God:
you've rejected My judgments.
I'll reject you because of your lack of knowledge—reject you as My priests;
I'll even forget your children!

7The more powerful the priests grew, the more they sinned
against Me.
So I'll turn their honor* into
shame.
8Because these priests are allowed to eat the sin offerings,
they actually want the people to sin so they'll have more meat
to eat!
9And so it's "like priest, like people":
a low standard for living.
I'll punish them for this and repay them for what they've
done:
10They'll eat, but they won't be satisfied; they'll be active like whores, but have no children because they've rebelled in guarding Me and My ways.

11Through prostitution, wine, and new wine,
My people have lost their senses;
12They expect to hear oracles from a wooden idol,
to get guidance from a diviner's
wand!
For a spirit of prostitution is leading them astray—
that's why they're so unfaithful to their God and are becoming prostitutes.
13They offer sacrifices on the mountain tops
and burn incense on the hills, Gathering under sacred trees like
oaks, poplars, and terebinths, relaxing in their comforting
shade.
This is why your own daughters become prostitutes
and your daughters-in-law
commit adultery!
14I won't punish your daughters for their prostitution
or your daughters-in-law for their adultery,
Because you men are visiting common prostitutes
yourselves
and offering sacrifices with cultic prostitutes.
My people have no understanding,
and they're being ruined!

15But even though Israel is being so unfaithful,
don't you become guilty, too,
Judah!
Don't go to Gilgal, and don't go to that "house of wickedness," Beth-aven.
Don't swear by My name while you're worshiping other gods!
16The people of Israel are stubborn,
just like heifers,
so how can I shepherd them like lambs in a pasture?
17Ephraim is allied with idols;
don't have anything to do with
him!*
18When they've finished drinking,
they turn to prostitution to sate their thirst.
Their rulers love shame rather *than living decently.
19They'll be swept away by the wind, and they'll be ashamed of the way they sacrificed to idols.

5 Eternal One: Hear this, you priests!
Pay attention, you leaders of Israel!
Hear all of you in the royal court,
My judgment is against you!
You've been a snare at Mizpah, a net spread out on Mount Tabor;
you've led the people astray:
2Those who have revolted against Me have dug a deep pit of
slaughter,
so I'm going to punish all of you.

* 4:7 Other manuscripts read, "they exchanged My honor." * 4:17 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 4:18 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

Hosea's prophecy is fulfilled in 722 B.C., when Shalmaneser V leads his Assyrian army to conquer Samaria, the capital city of Israel. But leveling the city and slaughtering countless citizens isn't what ends Israel's legacy. In the years following the war, Sargon II systematically deports the remaining Israelites to cities in the Assyrian Empire and repopulates Samaria with foreigners to suppress future rebellions. This policy decimates the cultures of the ten tribes who inhabited the Northern Kingdom and leads to the fabled "Lost Tribes of Israel."

It may be assumed that the members of the ten tribes assimilate into their new cultures and abandon their history and religion; they simply blend into their surroundings to survive. However, in the third century A.D., Christian poet Commodian compiles the writings of several early rabbis and weaves the story of the ten tribes' post-deportation lives. These ten tribes reside in a sort of paradise beyond a river, where everyone lives long lives, experiences no pain, and follows God's laws. One day, the story goes, these tribes will return to Jerusalem, recapture her, and dwell in her.

God is describing the fate of those rebellious leaders who have dug a deep hole: because of their depravity, they will be led to slavery in shackles.

3 I know Ephraim; Israel isn't hiding
from Me.
Even now Ephraim plays the part of a whore;
Israel is covering herself in impurity.
4 They're so caught up in their way
of life
that they can't return to their God.
They have a spirit of prostitution
within them,
so they don't know Me; I am the
Eternal One.

5 The pride of Israel testifies against her to her very face.
Israel (which is called Ephraim)
will stagger because of its guilt.
Judah, too, will stagger with them.
6 They'll go with their flocks and their herds to seek Me, offering a multitude of sacrifices,
but they won't find Me
because they are abandoned.
7 They've been unfaithful to Me, the Eternal,
and produced defiled, illegitimate
children.
Now at a new moon, a foreign nation will devour them and their fields.

8 Blow the ram's horn in Gibeah, sound the trumpet in Ramah, and raise a war cry in Beth-aven.
Even as your cities fall, Benjamin,
more armies are behind you!
9 Ephraim will be devastated when they are punished with this invasion from the south.
(This is sure to happen, and I'm announcing it to all the tribes of Israel!)
10 But I'll also punish the leaders of Judah—
I'll pour out My wrath on them
like water—
Because they're trying to snatch this territory of Benjamin's.
They've become like the dishonest people who move
boundary-stones.
11 Ephraim is oppressed, crushed by
punishment,
because he insists on pursuing empty ways and trusting others to save him.

12 In My judgments I'm like a disease that devours Ephraim as a moth eats wool,
like an infected wound to the people of Judah.
13 But when Ephraim saw how sick
he was
and Judah saw his open sore, Ephraim went to Assyria and sent to the great king for relief.
But a foreign ruler can't cure
you; he can't heal your sore.

The great king is the king of Assyria from whom both Israel and Judah eventually seek help.

14 I'll be like a lion to Ephraim,
like a young lion to the people
of Judah.

I'll tear them to pieces myself and make off with My kill.
I'll carry it away, and no one will be able to take it from Me.
15I'll go back to My lair and stay there until they admit their guilt
and come looking for Me.
In their distress, they'll desperately try to find Me.

6 Come on, let's renew our loyalty to the Eternal One!
He tore us like a lion, but He'll heal us;
He wounded us, but He'll bandage us.
2He'll bring us back to life after two days;
He'll raise us up on the third day, and we'll live with Him.

While not clearly a reference to the Anointed One, this is a remarkable prefiguring of the time and consequence of His death and resurrection.

3So let's know Him; let's strive to know
the Eternal.
As surely as the sun rises, He'll come out from His lair.
As surely as the rains come each year—
those spring rains that drench the earth—He'll come back to us.

Eternal One: 4What am I supposed to do with you, Ephraim?
What am I supposed to do with you, Judah?
Your loyalty to Me is like fog in the morning,
like dew that evaporates at sunrise.
5This is why I cut them with the words of the prophets and destroyed them with the words of My mouth.
My judgment went forth like the light of the rising sun.
6For I want not animal sacrifices,
but mercy.*
I don't want burnt offerings; I want people to know Me as
God!
7They broke their covenant with Me, treated it as just a common
human affair;
they were unfaithful to Me there.
8*The city of* Gilead is full of evil, murderous people.
Their footprints are bloody.

This may be a reference to Jephthah's return from the slaughter of the Ephraimites (Judges 11).

9As the priests travel together down
the road,
they're like a band of robbers
setting an ambush.
They are like their ancestor Levi who committed murder at Shechem,*
deceiving the people by their treachery.
10I've seen a horrible thing in the house of Israel:
Ephraim engages in prostitution
there by worshiping at other shrines.
Israel pollutes itself *through violence
and idol worship.*
11But a harvest is set for you, too,
Judah
when I restore my people's fortunes *and return them
from captivity.*

7 Eternal One: I will heal Israel of her exposed sins:
Ephraim's wickedness will be laid open;
Also Samaria's evil will be revealed:
dishonesty is tolerated, thieves break in and bandits rob in the open.
2They don't realize I'm aware of all of the evil they're doing.
Even now their sins are all around them—I can see them clearly.

3The king celebrates their evil deeds,
and princes enjoy their deceptions.
4All of them are adulterers with unquenchable lust.
They are like an oven overheated by
a baker,
An oven so hot it doesn't need to be stoked for several hours
from the time the dough is kneaded
until it finishes rising.

Eternal One: 5When the king was celebrating* and the princes
were sick with drunkenness, his conscience was dulled and he joined forces with rebels.
6Their hearts are like a heated oven
as they plot their schemes.

* 6:6 Matthew 9:13; 12:7 * 6:9 Genesis 34:25 * 7:5 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

Two types of ovens are used in ancient Israel: tabuns and tannurs. Both are beehive-shaped structures molded of clay, broken potsherds, and chopped straw, and are commonly found in a house's courtyard. At the top is a capped opening, which regulates the inside heat and allows the baker access to the oven's interior. Tabuns are fueled with cakes of dried manure and straw (Ezekiel 4:12-15), while tannurs are fueled by wood fires. Once a tannur's wood fire burns down to the embers, the oven is ready for baking.

Each day, women mix flour and water, knead the dough, and add a small amount of salt and fermented dough (from the previous day's work) to the mixture. After balls of dough have risen, they are flattened and shaped into discs. These discs are then easily tossed inside the oven's opening, where they stick to the walls and cook in just minutes.

All night their anger smolders,
but at dawn it blazes into a flaming fire.
7All of them are as hot as an oven,
and they consume their own judges.
All of their kings have fallen; none of them calls on Me.
8Ephraim is mixed up with all the other nations.
Ephraim is like a cake that hasn't been turned over.
9Foreigners are devouring his strength, taking territory and tribute,
but he doesn't realize how weak he's grown.
Gray hair is sprouting on his head,
but he doesn't see what others observe.
10Israel's stubborn pride will testify against him.
The people haven't come back to Me, their True God;
they haven't asked Me for help despite all their troubles.

11Ephraim is like a dove caught in foreign intrigues, silly and without sense:
they call to Egypt; they go to Assyria.
12But as they fly to others for help, I'll throw My net over them.
I'll bring them down like birds out of the sky and punish them,
as their congregation knows full well.

13May they experience sorrow for wandering away from Me!
May they be destroyed for the way they've rebelled against Me!
I would like to buy them back from death,
but they would just keep lying to Me and against Me.
14They're not sincere when they cry out to Me for help.
They howl on their couches;
Hoping a god will send grain to gather and wine to enjoy.
They turn away from Me.
15I trained them, I made their arms strong, I could have protected them,
but they devised evil schemes against Me.
16They turn for help, but not to the Most High;
they've become as weak and ineffective as a loosely-strung bow.
Because of their defiant words, their leaders will be killed in battle,
and they'll be the laughingstock of everyone in Egypt.

8 Eternal One: Blow the ram's horn to sound the alarm!
The eagle of Assyria is hovering above My house,*
Waiting for My instruction to snatch its prey,
because they've broken My covenant and rebelled against My law.
2*Still* Israel calls out to Me, "Our God, we know you!"
But even with your words of worship, you abandon our agreement.

* 8:1 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

3Israel has rejected what is good;
that is why an enemy will pursue him.

4They've overstepped their rights by changing leadership, but not by My authority;
they've anointed kings and appointed princes without consulting Me.
They've made idols out of their silver and gold,
so Israel will be destroyed.
5I reject your calf, Samaria! My anger is kindled against them.
How long will they be unable to do what's right?
6This idol is from Israel.
A craftsman made it; it's not God!
Samaria's calf will be smashed to pieces.

► Israel's harlotry is practiced not only by diplomatic accords with other nations but also by worship of their gods who serve as witnesses to these alliances. Here an idol is fabricated and worshiped by God's own people. As their ancestors did in the wilderness while Moses was on the mountain with God, they make an image of a calf. They turn from the True God to worship their own creation, a crude imitation of God's creation. The anger of the Lord is again aroused as it was in the wilderness, and He will crush both the idol and the idol worshipers.

Eternal One: 7*Then these proverbs will come true:*
"Because they sow the wind,
they'll reap the whirlwind."
"A shoot without a grain head doesn't make any flour."
"If the shoot does produce, foreigners will devour it!"
8Israel has been devoured by that eagle and strewn among the
nations.
Now it's like a discarded pot,
valuable to no one.

9All alone like a wild donkey, Ephraim went up to Assyria
and had to hire her own lovers!

10But because they paid tribute money to other nations instead of depending on Me,
I'm going to gather them up and send them into exile,
And they will struggle for a time beneath the burden imposed by the great king of princes.*

11Even though Ephraim built many altars to cover sin,
they've all become places where he commits sin!
12It wouldn't matter how many copies of My law I wrote for him;
he'd treat them all as something strange and foreign.
13*No matter how many* sacrifices they offer,
no matter how many sacred
meals they eat,
I am not pleased with them.
I'll remember their guilt and punish their sins:
they'll return to slavery in Egypt!
14Israel has forgotten his Maker and built palaces;
Judah has built many walled
cities.
But I'll send fire on those cities,
and My righteous wrath will burn
up those citadels.

9 Don't rejoice, Israel! Don't shriek in ecstatic joy like the other nations!
You've prostituted yourself and been unfaithful to your God.
You eagerly expect that you'll get your prostitute's pay at the threshing floors with a rich harvest.
2Neither the threshing floor nor the oil or winepresses will feed you;
you won't have any new wine this year.
3You won't remain in the Eternal's land,
and you can count on this:
Ephraim will go back to slavery in Egypt,
but this unclean food he'll eat in Assyria.

4*Separated from Jerusalem,* they won't be pouring out any libations of wine
to the Eternal,
and the sacrifices they make will not please Him.
Whatever they offer will be like mourner's bread:
whoever eats it will be impure.

* 8:10 Other manuscripts read, "kings and rulers"

In Israel's final years before conquest, the political atmosphere is in turmoil. Kings Zechariah, Shallum, and Pekahiah have been assassinated in political coups, and ambitious men are making alliances with foreign enemies hoping to gain international support for their own factions and solidify their own powers. These attempts at ascension and stability with the help of international alliances voids the one thing that can bring peace to Israel—the people's covenant with God.

Instead of relying on God, all of Israel's leaders allow themselves to be consumed in the regional politics. In the early eighth century B.C., Egypt's power is waning and Assyria is gaining momentum. Israel is the battleground between the empires, so Israel's kings think they can leverage the nation's geographical position and gain protection from one empire or the other by paying tributes. Instead, the cities are trampled in successive wars, and Israel's borders continue to shrink until Samaria is finally overrun by the Assyrians in 722 B.C.

Hebrew law prohibits any contact with the dead. In this case the bread is polluted by its proximity to death.

Besides, they'll need all the bread they've got just to stay alive;
they won't have anything worthy to bring to the Eternal's temple.
5What will you do on the appointed day
when you're supposed to celebrate a feast in honor of the Eternal One?
6Even if they escape destruction, Egypt
will be ready to gather them up,
and Memphis will be set to bury them
in the city's massive cemeteries.
All their valuables will be choked out by weeds,
and thornbushes will live in their tents.

7The days of punishment have come!
The time of retribution is here! Israel will know this!
But because you are so hostile and sinful, you say about me,
"The prophet is a fool! The man of the Spirit is raving mad!" 8The prophet stands watch over Ephraim along with God,*
but birds' traps are set all along his
paths;
Even in the temple of his God *they show
their* hostility.
9They've become deeply depraved, as in the days of Gibeah.
God won't overlook their wickedness;
He'll punish them for their sins.

Eternal One: 10When I discovered Israel, he was a rare find,
like grapes in the wilderness,
like early figs on a young fig
tree.
I met your ancestors;
when they came to Baal-peor,
They dedicated themselves through their worship to an object of
shame,
and they became as detestable
as the thing they loved.

11Ephraim's glory will fly away like a bird:
no offspring, no gestation, no conception!
12And even if they do have children,
I'll take every single one of them
away.
It will be sorrowful for them
when I abandon them!
13*There was a time* when I saw Ephraim like Tyre,
a pleasant palm planted in a lovely meadow,
But now Ephraim must bring out her children to be slaughtered.*

14Give them, Eternal One—what should I ask You to give them?
Give them a miscarrying womb and dried-up breasts!

Eternal One: 15In Gilgal My hatred grew
for them
because of all their evil that was
there.
I will force them out of My temple
because of the depths of their wickedness.
I won't love them anymore; all of their leaders have rebelled
against Me!

16Ephraim has been cut down; their root has dried up,
and they won't bear any fruit.

* 9:8 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 9:13 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

And even if they do bear children,
I'll kill those precious ones they carried.

17My God will reject them because they haven't listened to Him.
They'll be drifters and fugitives among the nations.

10 Israel, once a vibrant vine that bore adequate fruit, is now barren.
The more fruit he bore, the more altars he made;
the more his fertile soil produced, the more he made the sacred pillars.
2But they aren't loyal to God in their hearts, and now they'll pay the penalty:
the Eternal will break apart their altars and smash their sacred pillars.
3Then they'll say, "We don't have our own king anymore
because we didn't fear the Eternal One.
But even if we still had a king, what could he do for us?"

A nation without a functioning king is no nation at all.

4They speak a lot of sensible words,
but their oaths are insincere, and their covenant promises are empty.
This is why the king's judgment sprouts up like poisonous weeds in a plowed field.
5The people of Samaria are afraid of what will happen to the calf-idol of Beth-aven;
the people will mourn for it, and its pagan priests will join in lament.
They'll wail when its glory departs.
6The wretched idol will be taken to Assyria and given to the great king.
Ephraim will be disgraced;
Israel will be ashamed because of this king's counsel.
7Samaria and her king will be cut off,
carried away like a twig on the swirling waters.
8The wicked high places where Israel's people sinned will be destroyed;
thorns and thistles will cover their once-proud altars.
People will beg the mountains,
"Surround us!"
They'll plead with the hills,
"Cover us!"*

Eternal One: 9From the days of Gibeah you, Israel, have sinned!*
And they're still the same today.
Nothing has changed.
Will war overtake these people of wickedness in Gibeah?
10At the time I choose, I'll punish them:
nations will gather against them because they have compounded their own guilt.
11Ephraim was a trained heifer who loved to tread on the threshing floor.
Now I have lashed a yoke to her fair neck.
Judah will plow, and Jacob will break up the hard, compacted soil.

12Plant a crop of righteousness for yourselves,
harvest the fruit of unfailing love,
And break up your hard soil,
because it's time to seek the Eternal until He comes and waters your fields with justice.

13You've plowed wickedness and reaped injustice;
you've eaten the fruit of deception.
Because you've trusted in your own might,
in the size and skill of your army, 14So the nations will line up against you in battle
and all of your fortifications will be destroyed,
Just as Shalman destroyed Beth-arbel when he fought against it and dashed its mothers to pieces with their children!
15The same thing will happen to you, O Bethel, because you're so wicked.
When that day breaks, the king of Israel will be completely destroyed.

11 Eternal One: When Israel was a child, I loved him;
and out of Egypt I called My son.*

* 10:8 Luke 23:30 * 10:9 Judges 19 * 11:1 Matthew 2:15

2But the more I called to Israel,
the more they walked away
from Me.*
They kept on sacrificing to other divine masters*
and burning incense to idols!

3But I was the one who taught Ephraim to walk, holding him up by his arms,
but his people didn't know I was the One who took care of
them.
4I led them along with leather cords;
with ropes of love *I showed them
the way.*
As I dealt with them, I lifted the yoke
from their neck;
I bent down to give them their
food.
5The people of Israel will return to bondage
like they knew in the land of Egypt,
And this time Assyria will be their
king
because they refuse to return
to Me.
6The sword will be turned loose in their cities.
It will destroy their defenses and put an end to them because of their schemes.
7My people are determined to turn
away from Me.

Even when they call out to the Most High,
He won't rescue them.

Eternal One: 8But how can I give you up, Ephraim?
How can I turn you over to your enemies, Israel?
How can I give you away as I did Admah or treat you like Zeboiim?

The four cities of the plain—Admah, Zeboiim, Sodom, and Gomorrah—were all destroyed (Genesis 14).

My heart is changed within Me,
and all at once My compassion is stirred up.
9I will not carry out My burning
anger;
I will not destroy Ephraim
completely.
For I am God, not a human being;
I am the Holy One in your midst;
I won't unleash My anger for an attack.

10They'll turn back to Me.
He'll roar like a lion, and when He roars,
His children will scurry in from the west.
11They'll scatter like birds from Egypt or like doves from the land of Assyria,
And I'll restore them to their homes.

The Eternal declares that He'll do this.

Eternal One: 12Ephraim has surrounded Me with lies.
The people of Israel surround Me
with their weapons of deceit.
But Judah continues to roam with
God,
even with the faithful Holy One.*

12 Eternal One: Ephraim feeds on the wind.
He chases the hot east wind
all day long.
He's becoming more and more deceitful and violent.
They've abandoned their covenant to make an alliance with Assyria,
trading oil for favor from Egypt.

As Israel pursues what she cannot obtain, she becomes entangled in affairs of other nations.

2The Eternal has charges to bring against Judah;
He'll punish the nation of Jacob for the way he's acting and pay him back for the things he's
done.
3Even from the womb, he fought with his brother by grabbing his heel;*
when he grew to be an adult, he struggled against God.
4-5He wrestled with a heavenly messenger
and won;*
he wept and begged for his help.
It was the Eternal, the Commander of heavenly armies, who met him at Bethel;
the Eternal Himself spoke with him
there; the Eternal One is His memorial name.

* 11:2 Hebrew manuscripts read, "But the more they called to Israel, the more they walked away from them." * 11:2 Hebrew, baals * 11:12 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 12:3 Genesis 25:26 * 12:4-5 Genesis 32:28

6So you must return to your God, maintain loyalty and justice,
and wait patiently for your God.
7*Like Canaan, Israel is* a merchant who uses dishonest scales—
he loves to cheat people!
8Ephraim gloats, "I've gotten rich! I've made a fortune for myself!
And in all my dealings no one can charge me with iniquity and dishonesty."

Eternal One: 9I'm the Eternal One; I've been your True God ever since you left Egypt.
I'm going to make you live in tents again,
As you do in remembrance during the Feast of Tabernacles.

► Every year, the Israelites live in tents for one week as part of the Feast of Tabernacles. This festival reminds the people of God's constant protection of their ancestors as they wandered for a generation in the Sinai desert. However, the Israelites won't enjoy their coming time in tents. Living in tents will mean they've lost all the wealth and security they built up in their solid houses and cities; they'll be nomads wandering the earth, but this time without God's constant protection. In a reversal of the Exodus story, these wanderings will be a prelude to bondage in a foreign nation, where they will be slaves without the ear of God, as their ancestors were in Egypt.

Eternal One: 10I've spoken to the prophets; I've given them
many visions,
and I've told you parables
through them.
11Because Gilead is so wicked, it is
worthless.*
They sacrifice bulls at *the cultic
center of* Gilgal,
But their altars will be heaps of stone next to a plowed field.

12Jacob fled to the fields of Aram;*
Israel worked for Laban in exchange
for a wife;
to pay the bride-price, he shepherded
Laban's flocks.
13But the Eternal One led Israel out of Egypt by a prophet;
Moses, God's own prophet, kept the people safe.
14But now Ephraim has made his Lord
furious, and this is His judgment:
God will punish him for the blood
he's shed
and pay him back for his defiance.

13 When Ephraim spoke, people trembled
because he was powerful in
Israel.
But he was guilty of worshiping another
divine master*
and was sentenced to death.

2Even now they keep on sinning; they cast metal idols for themselves, shaping silver to fashion wretched
images.
These idols are all skillfully crafted by humans.
People say, "Offer your human sacrifices to them, and kiss these calf-idols."
3*God will destroy them for this,* and they'll be like fog in the morning,
like dew evaporating at sunrise,
like the chaff blown from the threshing floor,
Like the smoke that drifts out of a window.

Eternal One: 4I'm the Eternal One.
I've been your God ever since you left Egypt.
You are supposed to be exclusively loyal to Me.
No other god can be your
liberator.
5It was I who established the relationship with you in the wilderness,
I who looked after you in that parched and weary land.
6When I fed them, they were satisfied, but when satisfied, they filled with pride and then forgot Me.
7So I'll be like a lion to them,
like a panther stalking the
roadside.
8I'll meet them like a bear who's lost
her cubs;
I'll rip open their chests.

* 12:11 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 12:12 Genesis 28:5 * 13:1 Hebrew, baal

I'll devour them as if I'm a lion, and I'll tear them apart as if I'm a wild animal.

9This is why you're going to be destroyed, Israel:
you're against Me, against the
One who's helping you!
10Where is your king now?
Let's see if he comes to save you
and all your cities.
Where are your leaders, the ones of whom you demanded,
"Give me a king and princes!"?
11I gave you a king, even though you made Me angry by asking for one,
and in My rage, I decided to take him away!

12Ephraim's guilt has been wrapped up;
his sin has been hidden.
13The labor pains of his mother are coming for him, but he is unwise;
he does not move from the birth
canal.
14Should I deliver them from the power of the grave?
Should I rescue them from death's cold grip?
Hey, Death! Where is your big win?
Hey, Grave! What happened to your sting?*
I'll look the other way and not show them any pity.

15Though Israel, among his brothers, is like a plant that flourishes
in the wetlands,
an east wind will come—a dry
desert wind sent by Me—And the waters will dry up. His spring will run dry.
All the treasures in his storehouse will be plundered.
16Because of her guilt and her rebellion against her God, Samaria will be punished: her people will be cut down by
the sword;
Her children will be dashed to pieces; her pregnant women will be torn open.

14 Return, Israel, to the Eternal,
your True God.
You've stumbled because of your wickedness.
2Think about what to say, and come back to the Eternal One.
Say to Him, "Forgive all our sins, and take us back again.
Bring us into Your good grace so we can offer You praise and sacrifice,
the fruit of our lips.
3*We admit that* Assyria can't save us, nor can riding horses and chariots into battle.
We'll never again say to idols made with our own hands, 'You're our gods!'
We know You're merciful because You take care of orphans."

Eternal One: 4I'll heal their apostate hearts so they won't turn away from Me again;
I'll love them freely because I won't be angry with them
anymore.
5I'll be like dew that waters Israel.
She'll blossom like the lily.
She'll put down roots like the stable cedars of Lebanon; 6She'll send out shoots until her beauty is like the olive tree and her fragrance like the cedars
of Lebanon.
7The people will return from exile and sit in My shade once again;
they'll flourish like grain; they'll send out shoots like the vine.
And their fame will be like the wine
of Lebanon.

8Ephraim, what do I have in common with deaf and blind
idols?
I'm the One who responds to your pleas and cares for you.
I'm like a flourishing juniper tree; I provide life year-round.

9The wise will understand these things;
the perceptive will know them.
For everything the Eternal One does is
right,
and the righteous follow His ways.
But those who turn against Him will stumble along His path.

JOEL

01 02 03 04 05 06

The day of the Eternal is near

The message of Joel, the son of Pethuel

The Book of Joel continues the redemptive story of the Book of the Twelve (also known as the Minor Prophets) that starts with the Book of Hosea. Little is known about the author of this intense and graphic prophecy which uses a locust infestation to predict an invasion by a powerful army. Joel, like many other prophets, has a gift known as second sight. This means that God shows him a deeper, transcendent reality through what he sees in the real world. These are more than visions; they are harbingers of real events, visible to all, and God uses them as an occasion to voice His message. Joel's focus on Judah and Jerusalem may suggest he is prophesying sometime after the conquest of the Northern tribes of Israel in 722 B.C., but the oracles are general enough to refer to any of several invasions of the holy land: the Babylonians in the sixth century B.C., the Greeks in the late fourth century B.C., or the Romans in the first century B.C. Or perhaps they anticipate a future apocalyptic invasion. Regardless of its particular historical context, the book uses the locust invasion to warn God's people of divine judgment and call them to repent and change their ways. More than any other prophet, Joel builds this message on his understanding of the day of the Eternal One. When that day comes, the prophet says, God will judge the nations and His people; however, for all who repent and turn back to God, that day will usher in a time of joy, prosperity, and restoration like the world has never seen.

Locusts in the ancient world are no small matter; a swarm can devour everything in its path, and no pesticides are available to stop it. The insects kill vegetation in the short-term and cause famine in the long-term. Since the loss of entire crops means the loss of seed for the next planting season, the effects of a locust swarm sometimes last for several years. Not only do the people starve, but there is no grain, wine, or oil to give to the Lord (1:9-10, 13; 2:14)—a fact that concerns the prophet most of all. God does promise to make up for the calamity, to send rain on the land and pour out His Spirit on all people (2:19-29). This divine rain nourishes and replenishes the land as the divine Spirit re-creates and restores the people. It is fitting that such a book—concerned as it is with agriculture and ecological restoration—concludes with the expectation that one day the mountains will drip sweet wine, the hills will flow milk, and Judah's streams will cascade cool, clear water.

1 This is the word of the Eternal One that came to Joel, Pethuel's son:

2 Hear this, elders and leaders.
All who live in the land should pay close attention.
Has anything like this ever happened?
No, not in your lifetimes or your
fathers'.
3 So be sure to tell this story to your sons and daughters.
Your sons should tell their sons and so on, for generations.

4 We have been invaded!
What the cutting locusts left,
the swarming locusts consumed;
What the swarming locusts left,
the creeping locusts consumed;
What the creeping locusts left,
the stripping locusts finished off.*

These four locusts are probably not different species of insect. Joel is describing four different locust invasions and how each ravages the land.

5 All you drunks, get up and cry!
Weep and wail, all of you wine drinkers.
Your sweet wine
has been snatched from your mouths.

Eternal One: 6 For a people invaded My
land.
Their army is strong; their numbers cannot be counted.
They attack with teeth as sharp as a lion's;
they bear their fangs like a lioness.
7 My vines are ruined.
My fig trees are reduced to stumps now.
These enemy insects have stripped off the bark and tossed My trees aside like refuse.
The branches lie bare, broken
and white.

8 Wail like a bride dressed in sackcloth
instead of her gown, as a virgin mourning the death of the groom she'd long been betrothed to.
9 Those who serve the Eternal One,
His priests, are in mourning too—Because no one is able to bring grain or wine to offer
in the Eternal's temple.

The priests are mourning because they have no offerings to make, but they are more concerned for themselves because without these offerings the priests lose their main source of food.

10 The fields lie desolate.
The earth herself mourns the loss,
For her golden grain is ruined.
The fruits of her vines have withered.
Her gift of oil has dried up.

11 Wilt in shame, you farmers. Wail with screams, you vinedressers.
Grieve for the wheat and the barley;
Grieve, for the crops in the field are ruined.
12 The grapevines have withered and died.
The fig trees have dried up.
The pomegranate, the date-palm, the apple tree—
indeed all the trees of the field—have dried up.
Joy has withered on the branches of the people and turned to shame.

13 You priests, throw off your fine robes.
Dress in sackcloth and grieve.
Wail, you servants at the altar.
Come into the temple and spend all night
in your sackcloth,
you ministers of my God,
Because no one brings grain and wine
to offer at your God's house these days.
14 So consecrate a holy fast; call everyone
together.
Gather all the elders and leaders and the rest who live in the land.
Call everyone to the temple of your God,
the Eternal.
Then cry out to Him with all your heart.

15 But look! It is coming!
The day of the Eternal One is near.
Destruction, not salvation,
will be the sentence from the Highest
God.
16 Hasn't all our food been destroyed right
before our eyes?
Haven't joyful celebrations ceased in God's house?

17 The seeds the farmers planted have shriveled beneath the ground;*
all the storehouses are empty; their supplies are gone.
The barns are breaking down because there is no more grain to fill
them.

* 1:4 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 1:17 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

18Now even the beasts groan!
Herds of cattle wander, confused and agitated,
For they have no more pasture to feed in.
Flocks of sheep suffer this ordeal too.

19I cry out to you, O Eternal One,
along with everyone else.
For the fire of Your wrath has consumed the open pastures,
And flames have scorched all the trees in the field.
20Even the wild beasts call to You:
they are dying of thirst—the streams have dried up;
They are dying of hunger—the fire of Your wrath has consumed open pastures.

2 Eternal One: 1Blow the trumpet in Zion;
signal the alarm from My holy mountain!
It is almost here. Let all who live in the land tremble because the day of the Eternal One is coming.

2*Judgment will come on* a black and fearful day;
a thick cloud of darkness will loom over everything.
A great and mighty army advances like dawn spreading across the mountains.
Never has the world seen anything like it before,
nor will future generations ever see anything like it again.

3*The army is like* a fire, consuming everything in its path—
a scorching flame burning everything behind them.
The land before them is sweet like the garden of Eden.
The land following—only a lonely desert; nothing is spared in judgment.
4They look like horses arrayed for battle;
they charge ahead like warhorses.
5They sound like clattering chariots racing over mountaintops,
like a crackling fire engulfing stubble,
Like a mighty army maneuvering for battle.
6Seeing the result of God's judgment looming, the nations writhe in anguish;
each face grows as pale as a ghost.
7They run like champions into the fight.
Like skilled soldiers, they scale city walls;
Every man marches in formation, never leaving his rank.
8*Organized*—no soldier crowds another.
Independent—each man marches straight ahead.
Together—they are unstoppable as they break through the defenses and do not break off the attack.
9They charge the city, scurry along its wall.
They swarm through windows into houses, like common thieves.
10Before them the earth trembles and the heavens shake.
The sun and the moon become a void of darkness.
The stars lose their radiance too.
11The Eternal One shouts commands from the front line of His army;
His forces are vast—uncountable mighty soldiers obey His command.
The day of the Eternal One is great, fearsome indeed.
Who can survive?

Eternal One: 12Even now, turn back your heart and rededicate yourselves to Me;
Show Me your repentance by fasting, weeping, and mourning.
13Rip the wickedness out of your hearts; don't just tear your clothing.

Now return to the Eternal, your True God.
You already know He is gracious and compassionate.
He does not anger easily and maintains faithful love.
He is willing to relent and not harm you.
14Who knows? Perhaps He will turn and relieve you of this threat, and leave behind some blessing as He goes—
Maybe enough grain and wine to offer to the Eternal, your True God?
15Blow the trumpet in Zion; set apart a time for fasting;
tell everyone to be still and stop working.
16Assemble the people. Consecrate the congregation.
Gather the elders and other leaders,

The young children, and even the nursing babies.
Let the bride and groom leave their chambers on their wedding night.
17Let the priests, the Eternal's servants, stand between the porch and the altar
and weep as they intercede. Let them
say,

Priests: Have pity on Your people,
O Eternal One!
And do not let Your legacy—
Your covenant people—
Be taunted and mocked by the
nations,
who ask, "Where is their God?"

18*But wait*—the Eternal One has become possessive of His land;
He will restore us in compassion, His
people!
19In response to our prayers, the Eternal
will answer:

Eternal One: Listen! I am sending you a great harvest of grain, wine,
and oil.
You will be completely satisfied
and no longer
Will I make you a people held in contempt by the nations.

20I will remove My armies who attack
from the north far from your borders,
driving them into a parched and lonely desert.
Then I will separate them: the front line to the Dead Sea,
the rear guard into the Mediterranean Sea
with the vile stench of their rotting corpses rising up.

Surely the Eternal One has done great
things!

21Do not fear, O land. You have been revived.
Celebrate and rejoice, for the Eternal
One has done great things!
22Do not fear, you wild beasts: You will eat
again,
for the desert pastures are green
again!
And so will we: the trees bear their fruit;
the fig trees and the vines produce their bounty once again.

23People of Zion, shout with joy and happiness in the Eternal, your
God;
The drought is over; He has sent the early autumn rain as a sign of His faithfulness.
He has poured down heavy rain,
autumn and spring, as before.
24The threshing floors will be covered in grain;
the vats will spill over with new wine
and fresh oil.

Eternal One: 25I will compensate you for the years
that the locusts have eaten—the swarming locusts,
The creeping locusts, the stripping locusts, and the cutting locusts—*
My great army that I unleashed
against you.

26*In that day,* you will eat plenty of food and always have enough,
so you will praise My name,
The Eternal One, your God who is merciful to you.
Never again will My people be
shamed among the nations.
27*Return to Me* and you will know that I live among My people
Israel
and that I, the Eternal One, am your God and there is no
other.
Never again will My people be
shamed among the nations.

28Then in those days I will pour My Spirit to all humanity;
your children will boldly and prophetically speak the word of God.
Your elders will dream dreams;
your young warriors will see
visions.
29*No one will be left out.* In those days
I will offer My spirit
to all servants, both male and female.

30In the heaven above and on the earth below,
I will give signs of My intervention: blood, fire, and clouds of smoke.

* 2:25 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

31The sun will become a void of darkness, and the moon will become blood
just before the great and dreadful day of the Eternal One arrives.

► Was the day of the Eternal One wonderful to long for or horrific to dread? For Joel, it is both. Each of the five times this day is mentioned, he expresses a different expectation. In Joel 1:15 the prophet signals distressing locust invasions, in Joel 2:1 the day is filled with human invaders against Jerusalem, and in Joel 2:11 it is a stunning event. But in Joel 2:31 the outlook begins to change. Not only is the earth transformed with the heavenly rains and Spirit of God, but also the celestial bodies cease to carry out their functions of giving light and setting seasons for the earth. Both in verse 31 and in Joel 3:14, the day of the Eternal is positive for Israel but ominous for all other nations. Now the tables have been turned, and Zion is not a mountain devoured by locusts and human armies. It is a wonderful garden where the Eternal One meets constantly with His people, surrounded by abundant and perennial agriculture.

32Then everyone who calls on the name of the Eternal One will be liberated.*
Mount Zion and Jerusalem will shelter those who survive exile,
Just as the Eternal says, "Among those who survived, He will call them."

3 Eternal One: Know that in those days and at that time
I will bring back Judah and Jerusalem from their captivity.
2I will assemble all Israel's enemies in the valley of Jehoshaphat—My judgment.
I will judge them for how they treated My people, My legacy,
Israel—
Whom they deported and exiled to
the nations.
They divided My land *among
themselves*;
3They cast lots for My people, selling them into slavery—
trading boys for prostitutes, selling young girls for a drink
of wine.
4Tyre, Sidon, and all the districts of Philistia, what do you have
against Me?
Are you trying to get back at Me?
Do you pay me back?
I will turn your wicked actions back upon your heads, fast
and sure.
5You have taken wonderful treasures
from My house, My silver and
gold,
and you carried them to your own temples and palaces.
6You sold the people of Judah and Jerusalem to the Greeks to send them far away from their home *without hope of
return.*
7*But now,* watch! I am going to awaken them to action,
and in those distant lands
where you sold them
I will turn your wicked actions back upon your heads:
8I will sell your sons and daughters
into slavery.
Now the people of Judah will be your children's masters.
Indeed, they will sell your children
to the Sabeans,
who will take them far, far away.

The Eternal One has spoken.

9Proclaim this among the nations: "Get ready for war.
Awaken your great warriors.
Let all the soldiers come near the valley,
poised for battle.
10Hammer your sickles into swords.
Forge your pruning shears into
spears.
For this final battle, even the weakling
must say, 'I am a warrior!'

11"Hurry up! Join the battle, you nations all around;
gather in the valley of Jehoshaphat."
Eternal One, march Your troops to war.

Eternal One: 12Let the nations awaken and come to the valley of Jehoshaphat.

* 2:28-32 Acts 2:17-21; Romans 10:13

For that is where I will come Myself and set forth judgment against the nations who surrounded and attacked My Israel.

13 Swing the sickle, for the harvest is ripe
for judgment.
Come on and tread the grapes, for the winepress is full.
Indeed, the vats are overflowing with oil,
for their evil is great.

14 The thunder of battle goes up in the valley of decision,
and the day of the Eternal One is near that valley.
15 It is time. The sun and moon have become a void of darkness;
the stars, too, lose their radiance.
16 The Eternal roars from Zion;
His voice thunders from Jerusalem.
The earth and the heavens tremble
before Him.
But the Eternal is a hiding place for
His people,
a fortress for the Israelites.

Eternal One: 17 Then you will know that I am the Eternal, your God,
and I live in Zion, My sacred
mountain.
Jerusalem will be My holy city;
never again will foreign invaders
infiltrate it.

18 On that great day, the Eternal will provide:
Sweet wine will drip down from the mountains.
Fresh milk will pour down from the hills.
Clear water will run through Judah's
ravines.
A fountain will bubble up from the Eternal's temple
and water the arid stream bed of Shittim.
19 Egypt will become a wasteland and Edom a lonely desert,
because they violently attacked the
people of Judah
And murdered the innocent in Israel.
20 But as for Judah, it will always be full of
people.

Eternal One: Jerusalem, too, will endure for generations to come.
21 I will avenge those who were hurt,
enslaved, exiled, and killed;
I will not let the guilty go free.

For the Eternal One lives in Zion.

AMOS

The judgment of God and the call for justice

The message of Amos, the shepherd and orchard worker

Amos insists that he is not a professional prophet. Prophecy is not the family business. From working the land and tending sheep in peaceful Tekoa, a pastoral village of Judah, he is called to go north and echo God's voice during the prosperous reign of King Jeroboam II (786-746 B.C.).

Like other prophets, Amos rails against Israel's neighboring peoples, such as the Philistines, the Ammonites, and the Edomites. He denounces them for their violent ways and unjust use of power. But Amos saves his strongest condemnation for God's own people, his fellow citizens of Judah and Israel, because they rejected the teaching and will of God. Amos warns Israel that their covenant with God guarantees nothing as long as they continue to violate God's laws, especially regarding the poor. He criticizes the shallow prosperity of his day, knowing that often wealth is not the signature of God's blessing; instead it may be a thin veneer that covers the people's greed, cheating, and injustice. So he announces that those addicted to violence will themselves die by the sword, and that the people of Israel will be carried off into exile. He calls for justice and right living before God rather than empty religious ritual, but such faultfinding is always unwelcome in the uneasy alliance of politics and religion. Therefore, Amos is driven from the king's shrine in Bethel by Amaziah, the priest in charge, and told never to return again.

Amos's prophecies often emerge from a phenomenon known as second sight. The prophet sees something rather ordinary—such as a locust or a plumb line or a basket of ripe fruit—and receives an extraordinary message from God in that moment. These events are the bases of many of his oracles. In the visions, he is inspired both to announce God's message and to plead with God to spare His people from judgment. Amos's message predicts coming judgment, but his book ends with beautiful promises of restoration. God does not tear down simply to tear down: He tears down to build up again. He destroys to restore. Amos may be the first prophet to have his words collected and then written down for future generations, but soon other prophets or disciples of prophets will also record their visions and prophecies so that God's messages will reach more of God's people.

1 These are the words of Amos, one of the shepherds in Tekoa, a city in the highlands of Judah. God gave him these visions regarding Israel in the time of Uzziah (who ruled Judah) and Jeroboam (the son of Joash, who ruled Israel) two years before the great earthquake.

2 The Eternal One roars from Zion;
His voice thunders from Jerusalem.
The pastures shrivel and die beneath the shepherds' feet,
and the crest of Mount Carmel dries to dust as all await His judgment.

Eternal One: 3 For three crimes of Damascus,
no for four, I have laid down My sentence and will not revoke it Because they have threshed the people of Gilead with threshing-sledges made of iron.
4 I will send down fire on the house of Hazael, the ruler in Damascus, and burn down the fortresses of Ben-hadad, his son and successor.
5 I will smash the gates of Damascus,
wipe out those who live in the valley of Aven.
I will cut off the hand that holds the scepter in Beth-eden and force the people of Aram into exile in Kir.

So says the Eternal about Aram, Israel's constant enemy to the northeast.

Eternal One: 6 For three crimes of Gaza,
no for four, I have laid down My sentence and will not revoke it Because they sent entire communities into exile,
including women and children,
Because they sold My people as slaves to Edom.
7 So I will send down fire on the wall that protects Gaza
and burn down all of its fortifications.
8 I will destroy those who live in Ashdod
and cut off the hand that holds the scepter in Ashkelon.
I will raise My hand against Ekron and the rest of the Philistines;
even those in the formerly great city of Gath will perish.

Four of the five major cities of Philistia are mentioned here; only Gath is excluded. It was previously destroyed by Judah under King Uzziah (2 Chronicles 26:6).

So says the Eternal Lord about Philistia, Israel's enemy in the southwest.
9 Here is what the Eternal says about Tyre, that maritime power to the northwest:

Eternal One: For three crimes of Tyre,
no for four, I have laid down My sentence and will not revoke it Because they also handed over whole communities to Edom and ignored the covenant of brotherhood, the treaty between Phoenicia and Israel.
10 So I will send down fire on the wall that protects Tyre
and burn down all of its fortifications.

11 Here is what the Eternal says about Edom, our neighbor to the southeast:

Eternal One: For three crimes of Edom,
no for four, I have laid down My sentence and will not revoke it Because he pursued his brother, Israel, with the sword without any pity, Because he continually stoked his anger
and nourished his rage.
12 So I will send down fire on Teman, its largest city in the south,
and burn down the fortresses of Bozrah in the north.

13 Here is what the Eternal says about Ammon, just northeast of the Jordan:

Eternal One: For three crimes of the Ammonites,
no for four, I have laid down My sentence and will not revoke it Because they ripped open the bellies of pregnant women in Gilead as they made war to expand their territory.
14 So I will send down fire on the wall that protects Rabbah, its only major city,
and burn down all of its fortifications.
With shouts and war cries on the day of battle,
with a whirlwind in the midst of the storm,

15 I will force the king into exile,
along with all the officials who
counsel him.

So says the Eternal One.

2 Here is what the Eternal says about Moab, Ammon's brother nation east of the Jordan:

Eternal One: For three crimes of Moab,
no for four, I have laid down
My sentence and will not
revoke it
Because they burned to ash the bones of the king of Edom, believing this would prevent his resurrection.
2 So I will send down fire on Moab and burn down the fortresses of Kerioth,
where the people worship
Chemosh.
Moab will be destroyed in an uproar,
with warriors screaming and
war horns blaring,
3 And I will destroy their ruler,
along with all the officials who
counsel him.

4 Here is what the Eternal says about Judah:

Eternal One: For three crimes of Judah,
no for four, I have laid down
My sentence and will not
revoke it
Because they have rejected the teachings of the Eternal One and have not kept His commandments,
But they have walked away to follow the same lying idols
their ancestors pursued.
5 So I will send down fire on Judah and burn down all the fortresses of Jerusalem.

6 Here, Israel, is what the Eternal says about your past and present behavior:

Eternal One: For three crimes of Israel,
no for four, I have laid down
My sentence and will not
revoke it
Because they have sold the right-living for silver
and the poor and their property
for a pair of sandals.
7 They have trampled the heads of the weak into the dirt and pushed the oppressed even further down.
A father and his son sleep with the same girl,
trampling My holy name in the process.
8 And the religious lie beside every altar
on garments taken as collateral
from their debtors;
And in the house of their pagan god, they drink
wine bought with the fines they have imposed on others.

9 Still I destroyed all of Canaan's Amorites before them,
those Canaanites who were as tall as the towering cedars,
as strong as the mighty oaks.
As entrenched as they were, I still destroyed their fruit above and their roots underneath My
promised land.
10 And I brought you up out of the land of Egypt
and led you safely through 40 years of wilderness wandering to take possession of the land of the Amorites.
11 I took some of your children and raised them up as prophets,
and I called some of your youth to be Nazirites, set aside to My service.
Isn't this true, people of Israel?

God's very own people are forcing those who have dedicated their service to Him to abandon their calling. Here He renders His judgment on them.

So says the Eternal.

Eternal One: 12 But you made the Nazirites break their vows
and drink wine.
You told the prophets, "Don't you dare prophesy!"

13 I will press you down beneath your enemies, just as a wagon full of fresh grain creaks
and groans beneath its own weight.
14 The swift will lose their speed; there will be no escape;
the strong will lose his strength;
the warrior will not survive
the battle;

15The archer will not be able to stand
his ground and aim his arrows.
Even the fastest runner will not escape, nor will the one who rides on horseback.
16The bravest and strongest soldiers will throw down their weapons and run naked for cover on that day.

So says the Eternal One.

► We are appalled to hear of horrible atrocities and crimes against humanity. Today we work to put an end to ethnic cleansing and sex trafficking, but these crimes are nothing new. Consider the world Amos occupies: it's a world where the Philistines, the most technologically advanced people in their region, sell people into slavery; where the Edomites attack their neighbors in hand-to-hand combat and violently end their lives; where Ammonites rip open pregnant women in order to annex a few more acres; and where the Israelites, God's own covenant people, sell the needy, while both father and son have sexual relationships with the same girl. If we are appalled to hear these stories, imagine how much more God, the Father of all, is angry with those who act in these ways. Since God's prophet Amos knows His mind, he will not sit idly by and let the poor and right-living suffer.

3 Hear the message that the Eternal has spoken about you, people of Israel—the words He has spoken against the whole family:

Eternal One: I brought you up from
Egypt
2Of all the peoples on the earth,
I knew and chose you for a relationship with Me.
So I will punish you for the wrong
you have done.

3Do two people travel together
if they had to set up a time to meet?
4Does a lion roar in the forest
if it has not found its prey?
Does a young lion growl in its den
if it has not caught something?
5Does a bird fall into a trap
if no net has been set for it?
Does a trap snap shut
if nothing has set it off?

6Does the trumpet sound the alarm in
the city
without frightening the people?
Does disaster come to a city unless the Eternal One has permitted
it?
7*The answer to all is the same:* No.
The Eternal Lord does nothing Without revealing His plan to His servants, the prophets.
They are His spokespeople.
8The lion has roared;
who is not afraid?
The Eternal Lord has been heard;
His prophets can't help but prophesy.

9Speak to the fortresses of Ashdod and to the fortresses in the land of Egypt.
Tell their leaders, "Gather on the hillsides
in Samaria
and see what great wrongs are done
in Israel;
Witness the acts of oppression done
there.

Eternal One: 10Those who fill their fortresses with finery through violence and robbery
have no idea how to do what is
right.

Israel has forgotten God's laws, so of course the people can't follow them. They have fallen into slavery and oppression.

11So the Eternal Lord says to Israel,

Eternal One: An enemy will surround and besiege your land.
It will overwhelm your defenses,
and your fortresses will be plundered.

12Just as the shepherd rescues
two legs or the tip of an ear from the hungry lion, that is the kind of rescue the wealthy people of God dwelling in Samaria will see: only a small piece of fabric from their luxurious linens and furnishings will remain.*

13Listen to what I am saying, and testify against Jacob's house.

The Eternal Lord, the Commander of heavenly armies, says,

Eternal One: 14On the day I punish Israel for its wrongdoing,
I will also fall upon the altars of Bethel, that center of cultic
worship,
Where the horns of the altar will be hacked off
and topple to the ground,
making their illegal sacrifice impossible.
15I will demolish the winter house of the rich and the summer house as well;
their palaces decorated with
ivory will be torn down,
And their fine mansions will be laid low.

So says the Eternal One.

4 Hear this word, you cows on the fertile pastures of Bashan, who grow fat and happy on the hillsides of Samaria,
Who oppress the poor and destroy the needy
while you order your husbands to do your own work.
2The Eternal Lord has made a vow by His own holiness:

Eternal One: The day will come when your enemy will drag you
away
with hooks like sides of beef—will subdue you with fishhooks,
each and every one of you.
3You'll be forced to leave through breached walls,
each one of you taken straight out and cast into Harmon, a place of exile.
4*I dare you:* Come to My shrine at Bethel and do wrong;
come, worship Me at Gilgal, and watch your sins multiply.
Go ahead, bring your ritual sacrifices
there every morning
and ten percent of your earnings
every three days.
5Burn a thanksgiving offering of
leavened bread,
boast about your freewill
offerings, and let everyone
know
because these things are what you love to do, people of Israel.

So says the Eternal Lord.

Eternal One: 6I kept your teeth clean and your stomachs empty
when famine struck all your cities and no food could be found in your towns,
But still you did not come back
to Me.

7I held back the rain from your fields when there were still three months left until harvest.
I would send rain on one city
but not on another.
I would send rain on one field
but not on another, so the dry field withered.
8So people from two or three towns stumbled to one that had water to drink, but they were still thirsty.
And still you did not return to Me.

9I struck your crops with disease and mildew.
Whatever survived in your gardens and vineyards,
Whatever remained of your fig
and olive trees, the locusts
devoured;
and still you did not return to Me.

10I sent plagues on you like the plagues I unleashed upon
Egypt.
I slaughtered your young men
in battle,
Stole away your horses, and sent the stench
of those bodies rotting in your camps reeking into your
nostrils;
And still you did not return to Me.

11I destroyed some of you as I destroyed the ancient cities of Sodom and Gomorrah,
and those who survived were like a smoking branch
plucked from the fire;
And still you did not return to Me.

* 3:12 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

12So this is what I am going to do to you, Israel.
Because of what I am planning,
prepare to meet your God,
people of Israel!

13Witness the One who shapes the mountains and fashions the wind, who reveals His thoughts to human beings,
Who changes dawn to darkness and treads upon the high places of
the earth.
The Eternal God, Commander of heavenly armies, is His name.

5 Hear this message I sing about you;
it is my dirge for you, people of
Israel:
2The virgin Israel has fallen,
fallen never to rise again;
Forsaken in her land, *forgotten where she
lies.*
No one is there to help her rise again.
3So says the Eternal Lord:

Eternal One: The city that sent out a thousand soldiers
will see only a hundred of them
survive;
And the town that sent out a hundred
will see only ten remain for the house of Israel.

4So says the Eternal to Israel:

Eternal One: Turn back to Me and you will live. There is still time.
5But don't hang your hopes on Bethel,
Or travel to Gilgal or Beersheba *or any other sanctuary expecting
help,*
because Gilgal will surely be sent into exile,
And the shrine at Bethel will come to nothing.

6Turn back to the Eternal One, and you will live.
If you don't, He will flame up like fire
against the house of Joseph, Burn it to the ground, and no one in Bethel will be able to put it out.

7*Listen,* you who distort justice and make it taste bitter
and trample righteousness to the ground.

8The One who set the Pleiades and Orion
in the heavens,
who turns night's shadow into morning and darkens the day
with night,
Who calls forth the waters of the sea
to pour down rain and flood the
earth—
the Eternal One is His name, 9Who destroys the mighty in a flash,
and crashes against the fortress with the force of a tidal wave.

10Those of you who hold power now hate
the one who judges in the courts
at the gate
and detest anybody who speaks the
truth.
11So because you have climbed to success
on the backs of the poor* and your wealth comes from taxes
you impose on their harvests,
You may well build mansions of expensively-cut stones,
but you'll never occupy them.
You may plant beautiful vineyards,
but you'll never enjoy their delicious
wine.
12For I know the depth of evil that you've
done,
and I see the gravity of your sins:
You persecute those who do the right thing, you take bribes,
and you push the poor to one side
in the courts at the city gates instead of helping them.
13So the wise may decide to keep quiet
just then,
because truly, it is an evil time.

14Search for good and not for evil
so that you may live;
That way the Eternal God, the Commander of heavenly armies,
will be at your side,
as you yourselves have even said.
15Hate what is evil, and love all that is
good;
apply His laws justly in the courts at
the city gates,
And it may be that the Eternal God, the Commander of heavenly armies,
will have mercy on those descendants of Joseph who survived.

* 5:11 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

► Amos looks into the future to a day when God's judgment will fall on His people. But judgment and destruction are not intended to be the end. The last word belongs to God, and it is a word of mercy on His covenant people. Sin, of course, must be dealt with; it must be punished decisively. But in God's grace, some will survive the onslaught. These survivors the prophets call "the remnant." They are the ones God destines to be restored and to carry on His name. Centuries later, the remnant will refound Israel and extend the covenant blessings to every family on the face of the earth.

16So says the Eternal God, Commander of heavenly armies, the Lord of all:

Eternal One: Get ready to hear wailing
from every street,
people crying out in pain and
sorrow along every highway.
The farmers will be pulled away
from their fields to mourn, and those who are trained to grieve will wail with them.
17In every vineyard, there will be
mourning
because I will pass through the middle of you.

Says the Eternal One.

► Most people think they are OK with God; it's the other fellow who should be worried. Some apparently think that they will fare well in the day of the Eternal One, a day when God will judge sin and defeat His enemies. Ironically, God's own people have become His enemies. So Amos warns that the day of the Eternal One will bring a big surprise to those who think they are in good standing with God. It will be a day of darkness, not light—a day of gloom from which there will be no escape.

18How horrible for you who look forward to the day of the Eternal One!
Why do you want it to come?
For you, its arrival will mean darkness,
not light.
19It will be as if you were to escape from a lion
only to run headlong into a bear,
As if you ran into a house to hide, leaned against the wall to rest,
and a poisonous snake latched onto
your hand.
20Will not the day of the Eternal One be darkness instead of light, pitch black, without even a hint of brightness?

Eternal One: 21I hate—I totally reject—
your religious ceremonies and have nothing to do with your solemn gatherings.
22You can offer Me whole burnt offerings and grain offerings,
but I will not accept them.
You can sacrifice your finest, fattest young animals as a peace offering,
but I will not even look up.
23And stop making that music for Me—it's just noise.
I will not listen to the melodies
you play on the harp.
24*Here's what I want:* Let justice thunder down like a waterfall;
let righteousness flow like a mighty river that never runs
dry.

25Did you offer Me sacrifices or give Me offerings during the 40 years I guided you in the wilderness, people of Israel? 26But now you place your trust in false gods; you pray to the idols Sikkuth (your king) and Kiyyun (the star god), those detestable images that you've made for yourselves. 27*Because of your worship offered to man-made images,* you must go away—beyond Damascus.*

So says the Eternal God, the Commander of heavenly armies.
