A WORD FROM ECCLESIA BIBLE SOCIETY

I speak for every artist, musician, editor, writer, and scholar involved in this project when I tell you that we are all honored to have a small part in the sacred work of translating the Scriptures. It has been an honor to have labored, studied, fasted, and prayed over the work that we believe God has placed before us. We have not taken the task lightly, and through the process we have been changed. We are thrilled to see the ways that God uses His Word to speak to His people and reveal Himself to those who had never heard His voice clearly.

As you engage in this story, you may experience a strange feeling that may be best described as a vague sense that you are being followed or pursued. If so, your instincts are correct. This pursuit is one of the distinguishing characteristics of the Christian faith. This is the story of God's relentless pursuit of us, and in the story we will begin to hear His footfalls following unfailingly behind us. Some religions invite seekers to study a new language before they can read their sacred text; then they are asked to chase after a god that dwells in the heavens. But those of us who walk in the path of Jesus are able to read the truth about God in our native tongues, and we experience the beauty of God who has drawn near to us in the person of Jesus. He continues to speak to us through His Spirit and the Scriptures as He has to other men and women, boys and girls, since the beginning of time.

We believe that as you read you will be able to experience God taking the broken pieces of your life and making you whole; your anger and resentment will be replaced with hope and grace; you will imagine a new way to live as a participant in God's redemptive work in this world.

I invite you to listen to The Voice with an open heart. You will hear God as He whispers of His love to you.

President, Ecclesia Bible Society

the voice.
Step into the Story of Scripture

Any literary project reflects the age in which it is written. The Voice is created for and by a church in great transition. Throughout the body of christ, extensive discussions are ongoing about a variety of issues including which style of worship is most appropriate, how we distinguish cultural expressions from genuine expressions of faith, what it means to live the gospel, and how we faithfully communicate the essential truths of historic Christianity. At the center of these discussions is the role of Scripture. Instead of widening the division between culture and theology, it is time to bring the body of Christ together again around the Bible. Thomas Nelson Publishers and Ecclesia Bible Society together are developing Scripture products that foster spiritual growth and theological exploration out of a heart for worship and mission. We have dedicated ourselves to hearing and proclaiming God's voice through this project.

Previously most Bibles and biblical reference works were produced by professional scholars writing in academic settings. The Voice uniquely represents collaboration among scholars, pastors, writers, musicians, poets, and other artists. The goal is to create the finest Bible products to help believers experience the joy and wonder of God's revelation.

Uniqueness of The Voice

About 40 different human authors are believed to have been inspired by God to write the Scriptures. Most English translations attempt to even out the literary styles of the different authors in sentence structure and vocabulary. Instead, The Voice distinguishes the unique perspective of each author. The heart of the project is retelling the story of the Bible in a form as fluid as modern literary works while remaining painstakingly true to the original Greek, Hebrew, and Aramaic texts. Accomplished writers and biblical scholars have been teamed up to create an English rendering that, while of great artistic value, is carefully aligned with the meaning inherent in the original language. Attention is paid to the use of idioms, artistic elements, confusion of pronouns, repetition of conjunctions, modern sentence structure, and the public reading of the passage.

To help the reader understand how the new rendering of a passage compares to the original texts, several indicators are embedded within the text.

- Standard type denotes the dynamic translation that is the foundation these elements are built on. It translates the many imprecise words that English translations have borrowed in their renderings, including LORD, Christ, baptism, angel, and apostle. The translation process for each book began as negotiation between a gifted writer and scholars working in the original language. After that first phase, a few selected scholars carefully read the manuscript, compared it to the original language, and evaluated the faithfulness to the text and the theological and historical nuances of the translation. At the same time a publishing team ran consistency checks, copyedited the manuscript, and compared the rendering with the major existing English translations. A final acceptance process included each of the three groups—biblical scholarship, English writing competence, and publishing expertise—impacting the translation.

- Italic type indicates words not directly tied to the dynamic translation of the original language. These words bring out the nuance of the original, assist in completing ideas, and often provide readers with information that would have been obvious to the original audience. These additions are meant to help the modern reader better understand the text without having to stop and read footnotes or a study guide.
- Delineated material expands on the themes found in the text. This portion is not taken directly from the original language and is set apart in a second color or by a colored line from the Bible text. It may include cultural, historical, theological, or devotional thoughts.
- Screenplay format is used to identify dialogue and to avoid the repetition of conjunctions, articles, and certain verbs. The speaker is indicated, the dialogue is indented, and quotation marks are avoided. This helps greatly in immediate comprehension of the situation for the user and in intensification of the dramatic presence during the public reading of Scripture. Sometimes the original text includes interruptions in the dialogue to indicate the attitude of the speaker or of who is being addressed. This is shown either as a stage direction immediately following the speaker's name or as part of the narrative section that immediately precedes the speaker's name.

We follow the standard conventions used in most translations regarding textual evidence. The Voice is based on the earliest and best manuscripts from the original languages (Greek, Hebrew, and Aramaic). When significant variations influence a reading, we follow the publishing standard by bracketing the passage and placing a note at the bottom of the page, while maintaining the traditional chapter and verse divisions. The footnotes also reference quoted material and help the reader understand the translation of a particular word. Words that are borrowed from another language and words that are not common outside of the theological community (such as baptism, repentance, and salvation) are given expanded translations derived from more common terminology. For clarity some pronouns are replaced with their antecedents. Because Greek and Hebrew word order and syntax differ significantly from English, we have followed standard translation practices and altered these elements when necessary to help the reader achieve clarity in understanding Scripture and its meaning.

Our purpose in using these literary devices is to reveal the beauty of the Scriptures and to assist the reader in clearly and quickly understanding the meaning of the text. We are constrained to be faithful to these ancient texts while giving the present reader a respectful and moving experience with the Word of God.

A Different Translation Process

The Voice Bible is a different sort of translation. It combines the relative strengths of scholars who are experts in the original languages and modern writers, musicians, and poets who are skilled in their use of English, our target language. Our idea was to set up a collaborative process whereby scholars and writers could work together to create a translation that was faithful and accurate to the original languages while at the same time beautiful and readable to an English-speaking audience. In some cases scholars and writers worked closely together; in others they worked at some distance or even anonymously. Members of the translation team from Ecclesia Bible Society and Thomas Nelson coordinated the overall process.

Whenever people render one language into another (whether ancient or modern), they are involved in translation. There are levels of formality in the translation process. Generally, these are described on a continuum between formal and functional equivalence. But these approaches are not followed strictly by any Bible translation team, and most translations must mix formal with functional elements in order to communicate clearly. Realistically, languages are too complex and fluid to be reduced to a single approach in translation. A strictly formal translation process will result in an unreadable text that obscures the meaning of Scripture rather than making it accessible. A strictly functional translation process will result in a text that might communicate to a reader well what the original text means but not what the original says.

With The Voice Bible we acknowledge the difficulties translation teams face and offer what might be described as a mediating position between the extremes. We describe our approach as "contextual equivalence." Recognizing that context is the most important factor in determining the meaning of a word, sentence, paragraph, or narrative, we have sought to create a Bible translation that preserves both the linguistic and literary features of the original biblical text. A "contextual equivalent" translation technique seeks to convey the original language accurately while rendering the literary structures and character of a text in readable and meaningful contemporary language. This particular translation approach keeps in mind the smaller parts and the larger whole. In endeavoring to translate sacred Scripture, The Voice captures uniquely the poetic imagery and literary artistry of the original in a way that is beautiful and meaningful.

Two other related descriptors are used to situate a Bible translation in the field. Some claim their translations are "word-for-word" in contrast to those that are "thought-for-thought." Word-for-word translations generally claim to be more literal and therefore superior to those that are thought-for-thought. The critique is sometimes made that thought-for-thought translations reflect the interpretive opinions of the translators and are influenced by the contemporary culture more than word-for-word translations.

There are four primary objections to these claims. First, every translation is an interpretation. Anyone who has studied translation theory recognizes that it is impossible for translators to get outside their skins and objectively render a text. The Italians say it bluntly: tradutorre, traditore—"The translator is a traitor." Even if it were deemed useful to design a computer program to translate mechanically the Scriptures into English, human subjectivity and judgment would still come into play in various ways; for example, choosing which texts to translate and deciding which English word to use to translate a specific Greek, Hebrew, or Aramaic word. Subjectivity and interpretive opinions are impossible to avoid in the translation process and do not necessarily have a negative impact on a translation.

This leads to a second objection regarding the nature of words and thoughts. The strict distinction between "word" and "thought" must be questioned. After all, a word is merely an expressed thought, whether spoken or written. This becomes clear when dealing with people who are fluent in multiple languages. When they have a thought they wish to express, they must choose which language, then which word or words, then which word order. There may be a line of distinction between a thought and a word, but it is not a hard and fast line; it is at best a dotted line.

Third, words generally do not have a single meaning; they have a range of meanings—what linguists refer to as a "semantic field." Even the translators of the King James Bible recognized that words do not carry the same sense every time they occur in a text (see preface to the 1611 edition). For example, how should one translate the Greek noun dikaiosunē? In one place the word might mean "justice," in another "righteousness," in another "equity" or "integrity," and in another something that is "true" or "right." One must understand the context in which a word is used in order to render carefully its meaning in another language. This context is not just semantic but also historical and social. For example, our use of "God's Anointed" or the "Anointed One" as a translation of the title Christ—and in selected places expanded to "God's Anointed, the Liberating King"—captures something of the historical and social reality behind Jesus' identity. He is God's Anointed King who comes to liberate His people from sin, addiction, disease, oppression, and death.

To press this point even further, words don't just mean things, they do things. Words have both meaning and function; they function within clauses, sentences, paragraphs, and stories in ways that are different from the definition a person might find in a dictionary or lexicon. Beyond this, however, words also function in various ways to elicit emotions, actions, and responses from those who hear them. In order to translate a text well, one must consider not only what words mean but what they do.

Fourth, a word-for-word correspondence is difficult to maintain because translators may need multiple words in one language to express the meaning of a single word in another. Take for instance the Greek word sōthēsetai (Romans 10:13). Because of the way the English language works, it takes no fewer than four words to translate this single Greek verb: "he/she will be saved." Again, the context reveals who will be saved, what salvation entails, and when it is realized.

When all of these factors are taken into consideration, The Voice represents a hybrid of the word-for-word and thought-for-thought approaches. In some places The Voice follows a word-for-word translation; in others it expresses the meaning more in a thought-for-thought approach. This is necessitated contextually both by the original language and by our target language (English). Responsibility to render the biblical languages carefully and to create a readable translation for an audience is not an either/or pursuit; a "contextual equivalent" translation seeks to be faithful and realistic to both tasks.

Another issue The Voice project team had to address involved inclusive language. Generally speaking, we have made no attempt to make The Voice gender neutral or gender inclusive. We have tried to follow the sense of the text and have made translation decisions based on the context. When, for example, Paul reminded the adelphoi ("brothers") of Corinth of the content of the gospel (1 Corinthians 15:1-8), it is unlikely that he intended to include the "brothers" and exclude the "sisters." Since the apostle adopted typical letter-writing practices of his day, his manner of addressing the community was likely determined by cultural mores. In such cases, we have decided to render the text "brothers and sisters." However, in passages where it is clear that the admonition is addressed to one gender and not the other, we have taken seriously the historical situation and utilized the appropriate masculine or feminine nouns and pronouns. The warnings against loose women in Proverbs 5–7, for example, are clearly aimed at young men. Furthermore, Proverbs 31 does not describe a remarkable partner or spouse but a remarkable woman who happens to also be a wife. This perspective respects the particular situations that gave rise to the texts in their original historical settings and does not seek to exclude (or include for that matter) those not being directly addressed by the biblical writers. Commentaries and proper exegesis can make reasonable application of texts across gender lines in ways translations cannot.

Finally, although The Voice represents a new approach to Bible translation, we have intentionally avoided the tendency to use trendy language. Our goal was to capture the beauty and brutal honesty of the Scriptures in language that is timeless and enduring. In the process, we have come to recognize our profound indebtedness to the various strands of Christian tradition that have made these texts available. We stand in gratitude to a multitude of saints who gave their lives to preserve and transmit the Scriptures in their original languages from one generation to the next. We acknowledge the significant contributions made by the Reformers and their followers (not to mention their predecessors) to give us a common language and scriptural heritage in the English-speaking world. Although we have not always tried to imitate them, we have always learned from them. Our hope and prayer is that a new generation of people will encounter the Scriptures through The Voice and step into the story of Scripture.

Christ in This Translation

In its original Greek language, the New Testament refers to Jesus hundreds of times as Christos. Most English translations of Scripture render this "Christ," which is not a translation but a transliteration. The unfortunate effect of this decision is that most readers mistake "Christ" as a kind of second name for Jesus. In fact, Christos is not a name at all; it is a title. It is a Greek translation of the Hebrew title Messiah. So when the New Testament writers call Jesus "(the) Christ," they are making a bold claim—one of the central claims of the Christian faith—that Jesus is the Messiah. While there was no single expectation about the Messiah in Jesus' day, many of His contemporaries would have recognized the Messiah as God's agent who comes in the last days to redeem God's people and repair our broken world.

Because we understand that no single English word or phrase captures the richness of the term Messiah or Christos, we made a strategic decision in The Voice to translate Christos and not simply to transliterate it. The root idea of Christos is derived from a Greek verb meaning "to anoint (with oil)." The act of anointing someone with oil is a way of setting that person apart for God's use. When people are anointed—kings and priests, for example—oil is poured over their heads, signifying God's Spirit coming upon them and empowering them for the tasks ahead. This is why we have decided to translate Christos as "God's Anointed," the "Anointed," or the "Anointed One," depending on context and narrative flow.

But there is another aspect of Christos we need to highlight. You see, according to tradition, the Messiah is to be a son of David, and as such He has a royal function to continue David's dynasty and to reign over a newly constituted kingdom. In order to become king, a person must have God's anointing. So from time to time, as we translate Christos as "God's Anointed," we have added the explanatory phrase "the Liberating King" to remind us of the primary mission and the reason God elects and empowers Jesus in the first place. Jesus comes as the King of a new kind of kingdom and exercises His royal power to rescue and liberate His creation. This liberation takes place on various levels, all of which are related.

Not long after Jesus begins His public ministry, He returns to the synagogue in Nazareth—where He had grown up—and reads the Scripture portion that day from Isaiah 61:

> The Spirit of the Lord the Eternal One is on Me.
> Why? Because the Eternal designated Me > to be His representative to the poor, to preach good news to them.
> He sent Me to tell those who are held captive that they can now be set free, > and to tell the blind that they can now see.
> He sent Me to liberate those held down by oppression.
> In short, the Spirit is upon Me to proclaim that now is the time;
> this is the jubilee season of the Eternal One's grace.
> (Luke 4:18-19)

From the way Jesus responds to the reading that day, it is clear that He understands His Spirit-enabled work to be about proclaiming the good news, releasing exiles and other political prisoners, healing the sick, and freeing the oppressed—in a word, "liberating" the poor, the captive, the sick, and the marginalized from whatever threatens them. But there is more. The Scriptures declare that Jesus comes to liberate those made in His image from the power and penalty of sin, which is the reason God's good creation is so fouled up and disordered in the first place. In fact Paul tells the Romans that all creation has been damaged by sin and longs for the day when God's children are revealed and set free from the power of sin and death. When that day comes, creation itself will be liberated from its own slavery to corruption (Romans 8:18-25). By translating Christos as "God's Anointed, the Liberating King" on occasion, we are reminded of the title's true meaning and an important truth: the extent of Jesus' kingdom and the reach of His liberating work extend beyond our hearts, beyond our politics, beyond our world.

The Divine Name

To know a name is to know something special. When people tell you their names, they signal willingness to know and be known. It is often a prelude to their personal journeys, an invitation to relationships. This dynamic is certainly true in the story of Scripture when God chooses to reveal His name to His people.

While many titles are attributed to God in the Scripture (for example, "Lord," "God," "God-All-Powerful," and "Commander of heavenly armies"), He has only one name, the name He revealed to Moses at Mount Sinai. It is used about 6,000 times in the Old Testament to refer to the one True God of Israel. The English transliteration of the Hebrew name is YHWH. Although we do not know which vowels would have been pronounced with these four consonants, we think the name may best be spoken as Yahweh. In the past, some translators rendered the divine name Jehovah; but this is actually a name made up from the consonants of YHWH and the vowels of Adonai, one of the Hebrew words for "Lord." Today most Bible translations render the divine name as "LORD." The capitalization of each letter tells the reader that the word appears in place of God's Hebrew name and is not just a title of reverence and honor. In The Voice we have taken special care to translate the divine name as the "Eternal One" or the "Eternal," depending on the context.

The translation of God's name is based upon a number of factors. First, the name YHWH is clearly understood to be God's covenant name. It was revealed to Moses at Mount Sinai (Exodus 3:13-15). Here is that classic exchange:

Moses: [13]Let's say I go to the people of Israel and tell them, "The God of your fathers has sent me to rescue you," and then they reply, "What is His name?" What should I tell them then?

Eternal One: [14]I AM WHO I AM. This is what you should tell the people of Israel: "I AM has sent me to rescue you."

[15]This is what you are to tell Israel's people: "The Eternal, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob is the One who has sent me to you." This is My name forevermore, and this is the name by which all future generations shall remember Me.

The revelation of God's name to Moses is associated with the liberation of the Hebrew slaves from Egyptian bondage and the institution of God's covenant with Israel at Sinai. The declaration affirms that this God is none other than the God who had already appeared and established a covenant of blessing with Abraham and his sons. Therefore, it is a covenant name that links past, present, and future: "I am the God who was with Abraham. I am the God who hears the prayers of My people now. I am the God who will rescue them in the future. I am the Eternal." It is a relational name that emphasizes God's saving actions and His dedication to His covenant people.

Second, the name YHWH appears to be built on the Hebrew verb meaning "to be." When asked His name, God responds, "I AM WHO I AM . . . . [say,] 'I AM has sent me to rescue you.'" The verbal idea has a timeless quality, particularly since it links God's past, present, and future saving actions on behalf of His people and the world. This is why we think the English word "eternal" helps to capture something of its meaning. Furthermore, God emphasizes that this name is eternal; it stands forever and must be remembered by future generations of God's covenant partners.

Third, while we have anglicized most other names in Scripture (Benyamin = Benjamin; Shemuel = Samuel; Jeshua = Joshua; Petros = Peter; Paulos = Paul), we have chosen not to do so with the divine name out of respect for that name and our deep appreciation for both Jewish and Christian traditions. The Ten Directives warn against using the name of God in any frivolous, self-serving way (Exodus 20:7). Over time—and under the influence of this directive—faithful Jewish communities spoke the name less and less until it was prohibited from use altogether except on the most solemn occasions in the temple. Even when Scripture was read aloud in the synagogue, the reader did not utter the divine name; instead, when he came across it in the text, he substituted a word for it. In Aramaic-speaking synagogues they would say Adonai; in Greek-speaking synagogues they would say Kyrios. Many Jews today carry on this tradition of reverence by refusing to speak the name at all and indicating the presence of the written name in Scripture by saying HaShem, which means, "the name." Early Christians continued similar practices regarding sacred names and invented new ways to signal that respect. When, for example, scribes wrote and copied the Scriptures, they refrained from fully spelling out the names and titles associated with God the Father, Son, and Spirit. Instead, they employed what we call today nomina sacra (that is, "sacred names"). When copyists came across these special names in the text, they would abbreviate them with two letters (generally) and draw a line above those letters to indicate to the reader that the word is a sacred name.

The Voice translation of the divine name as the "Eternal" and the "Eternal One" carries on the church's long-standing tradition of reverence for God and His name. It also attempts to translate the meaning of the name and recontextualize it for our culture. We wish to emphasize both the covenantal and everlasting aspects of God's name. It is covenantal in that God is revealing His special name as a prelude to an enduring relationship with Him, a relationship in which He promises to be with and for us. It signals God's willingness both to know us and to be known by us. It is everlasting in that God's name, like God Himself, is timeless and unchanging. Although existing outside of time and space, God has revealed Himself in time and space in order to engage His people—past, present, and future—in a loving and faithful relationship. The "Eternal One" stands in sharp contrast to everything else in the universe which is temporary and constantly changing.

STEP INTO THE STORY OF SCRIPTURE

A New Way to Process Ideas

Chris Seay (president of Ecclesia Bible Society) first recognized a need for The Voice more than 20 years ago during his early attempts to teach the whole biblical narrative as the story of God's redemptive work in God's Anointed, Jesus of Nazareth. Chris observed that the way this postmodern generation processes ideas and information raises obstacles to traditional methods of teaching biblical content. Instead of primarily propositional-based thought patterns, people today are more likely to interact with events and individuals through complex observations involving emotions, cognitive processes, tactile experiences, and spiritual awareness. The result of Chris's observations is a retelling of the Scriptures in a narrative form: this is The Voice, not of words, but of meaning and experience.

The Timeless Narrative

The Voice is a fresh expression of the timeless narrative known as the Bible. Stories of God's goodness that were told to each generation by their grandparents and tribal leaders were recorded and assembled to form the Christian Scriptures. Too often, the passion, grit, humor, and beauty have been lost in the translation process. The Voice seeks to recapture what was lost.

From these early explorations by Chris and others has come The Voice: a Scripture project to help readers step into the story of Scripture. Thomas Nelson Publishers and Ecclesia Bible Society have joined together to develop Scripture products and resources to foster spiritual growth and theological exploration out of a heart for the mission of the church and worship of God.

Communicating the Story

Putting the Bible into the language of modern readers is a painstaking process that involves correlating ancient languages and cultures with the English vernacular. Scripture is filled with passages intended to inspire, captivate, and depict both the beauty and the ugliness of the world; but earlier translations have not always been successful in communicating the beauty, grit, and story of Scripture. The Voice is a translation of the Bible's collage of compelling narrative, poetry, song, truth, and wisdom. The Voice will call you to step into the whole story of God with your whole heart, soul, and mind.

INTRODUCTION

the voice.
Step into the Story of Scripture

The book you are reading is no ordinary book. The Bible is a veritable library, a book of books, but not just any books. These books are inspired by God, written by people flush with their encounters with Him, shaped by communities of faithful believers, and recognized by the church universal as an authoritative account of God's activities in the world. Speaking of the first part of the Christian Scriptures, Paul reminds Timothy that these books are in fact "God-breathed" (2 Timothy 3:16). Generations of Christians have sensed the warm, sweet breath of God as they thumbed through the pages and breathed in the enduring message it contains. If you allow His breath to wash over you, you will hear the authentic voice of the one True God addressing you, correcting you, and training you for what is ahead.

The Christian Bible is the most translated and retranslated book in all history. All or part of it is available today to the vast majority of the world's population in nearly 2,300 of the world's 6,909 languages.[1] When the Scriptures were published in English in 1611 under the auspices of King James I of England, they provided the English-speaking world a common language and a shared heritage which shaped Western culture in significant ways. In America the first book read by children and adults was the King James Bible. The memorable stories in its pages entertained them, trained their minds, formed their consciences, and fashioned their societies. No book has had a greater impact on so large a group of people. However, the English language has changed in the last four centuries—as all languages do over the course of time—so we arrive at a new moment with a fresh opportunity to retell these classic stories in the common language of a new generation.

We have not arrived at this moment on our own. We stand upon the shoulders of countless dedicated sinners-made-saints who gave the best of themselves to God and passed the Scriptures along to their sons and daughters. For 1,500 years the Christian Scriptures were meticulously hand copied, checked, and rechecked in order to ensure the accurate transmission of these vital books in their original languages. Others gave themselves to the study of those original languages and translated the Scriptures into the languages of the people, often at great risk to their own lives.[2] So now it is our turn. Our scholars have worked from the best Greek and Hebrew texts available.[3] We have wrestled with the

[2] William Tyndale (c. 1494–1536) was one of the first to translate the Scriptures from the original languages into English. He was tried for heresy and burned at the stake in 1536, yet his translation greatly influenced the scholars who would translate the King James Bible.

[3] For the Hebrew Scriptures we turned to Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia (Stuttgart: Deutsche Bibelgesellschaft, 2004). In a few places the biblical texts of the Dead Sea Scrolls and the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible (known as the Septuagint) have influenced translation decisions. For the Greek Scriptures we worked from The Greek New Testament, 4th ed. (Stuttgart: United Bible Societies, 1993) and Novum Testamentum Graece, Kurt Aland and Barbara Aland, ed., 27th ed. (Westphalia: Institut für neutestamentliche Textforschung, 1993). Textual variants in Greek, Aramaic, and Hebrew are only occasionally referenced in footnotes.

languages—the original languages and English, our target language—debated every decision, and taken inordinate care to make sure we are passing along to the next generation a readable, personal, faithful, creative, and transformative version of Scripture.

The heart of the Christian Scriptures—both Old and New Testaments—is the story of God's covenants with and promises to His people and the world. Concerned with the proliferation of evil, sin, and its dire consequences to His good creation, God decides that the best route to reclaim and repair His broken creation is to reveal Himself to one person, then another, and then another on the way to redeeming the entire world. Each book of the Bible tells part of the story. Each chapter fits into this grand scheme. Each verse contributes some fact, some detail, some nuance to the overall drama. You will notice that the content of some books overlaps (for example, 1 and 2 Samuel, 1 and 2 Kings, and 1 and 2 Chronicles), and that is because they are written from different perspectives with unique interests.

Now let us be clear. The Scriptures offer more than an account of God's past actions in history. They also speak of a future that has not yet been fully realized, a future when all things will be made new. That vision of the future is what drives the church and directs its mission. It reminds us that things are not now as they are supposed to be, not now as they are destined to be. It tells us what the world will be like when the one True God finally reigns supreme over a restored creation and evil, suffering, sin, and death are things of the past.

The Scriptures invite us to begin or deepen our connections with God, repair our relationships with each other, take our rightful places as stewards of God's creation, all while discovering what we are made to do. Properly understood, the Bible is deeply relational and must be read in relational terms. It is not just a story about people "way back when." On each page we read about our spiritual ancestors: Abraham our father, Sarah our mother, Paul our brother, Deborah our sister, and a host of other siblings. These books may well have been written by different people to different audiences, but in them we hear God addressing and wooing us. When we immerse ourselves in its story, we find our places in the world as men and women have been doing since the church was born during Pentecost (Acts 2:1-6).

Some well-meaning people tend to reduce the Bible to a set of manageable propositions. They select certain verses to memorize and judge for themselves which parts to read, which rules to follow. But the Scriptures are not meant to be stripped of their storied context. They are meant to be read as chapters in a larger drama of love and redemption. To read part of the Bible is to know only part of the story, not the grand sweep of sacred history. The Scriptures demand that we read and re-read them, that we study and dig deep in order to discover the truth about God, ourselves, and the world. Had God wanted us to have only a few dozen verses to memorize or a set of rules to follow, He could have provided that. Instead, He decided to disclose Himself in the messiness of people's lives, the intrigues of political power, the occasional miraculous deed, and the inescapable still, small voice. Now don't misunderstand, there is nothing wrong with memorizing verses or following the rules, but these must be selected carefully and understood for what they are. It is always unwise to abridge the greater story of Scripture with our own chopped-up versions. Read Obadiah as well as Isaiah. Read Jude as well as John, for you will find in the smallest books a generous portion of the story as it drives toward its fulfillment.

This is why we have added so many valuable resources to The Voice. In addition to the 66 books of the Bible, you will find

- resources for personal and communal study,
- brief essays and commentaries that explain difficult passages,
- suggestions on how to read the Bible with greater clarity,
- a plan for reading through the entire Bible in three years, and
- strategies for engaging the story of Scripture during Advent, Lent, and Easter.

Each of these resources has been designed with you—the reader—in mind, whether you are coming to the Bible for the first time or have spent a lifetime studying the Scriptures.

As you read through The Voice and consult the helps provided, we invite you to step into the story of Scripture, hear the authentic voice of God, and experience the beauty, power, and grace resident in each book. Unlike other stories you may hear—ancient and modern—this story is completely true.

OLD TESTAMENT

GENESIS

The book of beginnings

By Moses, the shepherd of God's people

Every great story has a great beginning. Genesis, the first book in the Bible, is no exception. It opens with a memorable phrase, "in the beginning," a phrase that is echoed later in Scripture (John 1:1) and answers some basic questions: Where have we come from? Why are we here? What has gone so terribly wrong? It chronicles the beginning of time, of heaven and earth, and of all God's splendid creatures. It tells the story of a loving God who has acted to restore His broken creation to its original beauty and goodness. But where has this book come from? Like most things ancient, its origin is cloaked in mystery. Tradition ascribes the authorship of this and the next four books in the Bible to Moses, a man of extraordinary ability through whom God rescued and gave laws to His people. But even if Moses was not responsible for the final form of the book we have today, his life and work helped shape it through all the lively stories told and retold by generations that remember and celebrate his life.

Genesis offers a fascinating account from creation through the age of the patriarchs: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The Scriptures reveal God as a covenant-making and covenant-keeping partner who relentlessly pursues and loves His creation. When it becomes clear that Adam's and Noah's descendants have strayed from God, He chooses Abraham and his family to begin the work of repairing the world and bringing true blessing and healing to the rest of the families of the earth.

As the story unfolds, Genesis recounts the great exploits of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (whose name God changes to Israel). At times the patriarchs flourish under God's blessing and protection. At other times, they fail miserably to remain faithful to what God requires of them. Despite their flaws, God is clearly at work, moving and transforming them into a people who are chosen to declare His love and truth to the world.

The final chapters of Genesis are devoted to telling the story of Joseph, one of Israel's sons, and they relate how Abraham's descendants come to live as free people in Pharaoh's Egypt. But when the Book of Exodus begins, it is clear their freedom has been taken away.

Out of nowhere, time, space, and all the living whirl forth as God speaks the universe into existence. With the utterance of His voice, creation takes form, chaos yields to order, light eclipses darkness, and emptiness fills with life. Not long after God creates the first man, Adam, and the first woman, Eve, the story takes a tragic turn when the first couple disobeys the clear instruction from God not to eat the fruit from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. As a result, humanity falls from God's intended perfection. The disastrous consequences of this decisive act are demonstrated in Cain's murder of Abel, Noah's flood, and the Tower of Babel.

1 In the beginning, God created everything: the heavens above and the earth below. Here's what happened: 2*At first* the earth lacked shape and was totally empty, and a dark fog draped over the deep while God's spirit-wind hovered over the surface of the empty waters. Then there was the voice of God.

God: 3Let there be light.

And light flashed into being. 4God saw that the light was beautiful and good, and He separated the light from the darkness. 5God named the light "day" and the darkness "night." Evening gave way to morning. That was day one.

God: 6Let there be a vast expanse in the middle of the waters. Let the waters above part from the waters below.

7So God parted the waters and formed this expanse, separating the waters above from the waters below. It happened just as God said. 8And God called the vast expanse "sky." Evening gave way to morning. That was day two.

God: 9Let the waters below the heavens be collected into one place and congregate into one vast sea, so that dry land may appear.

It happened just as God said. 10God called the dry land "earth" and the waters congregated below "seas." And God saw that His new creation was beautiful and good.

God: 11Earth, sprout green vegetation! Grow all varieties of seed-bearing plants and all sorts of fruit-bearing trees.

It happened just as God said. 12The earth produced vegetation—seed-bearing plants of all varieties and fruit-bearing trees of all sorts. And God saw that His new creation was beautiful and good. 13Evening gave way to morning. That was day three.

God: 14-15Lights, come out! Shine in the vast expanse of heavens' sky dividing day from night to mark the seasons, days, and years. Lights, warm the earth with your light.

It happened just as God said. 16God fashioned the two great lights—the brighter to mark the course of day, the dimmer to mark the course of night—and the Divine needled night with the stars. 17God set them in heavens' sky to cast warm light on the earth, 18to rule over the day and night, and to divide the light from the darkness. And God saw that His new creation was beautiful and good. 19Evening gave way to morning. That was day four.

God: 20Waters, swarm with fish and sea creatures. Let birds soar high above the earth in the broad expanse of sky.

21So God created huge sea creatures, all the swarm of life in the waters, and every kind and species of flying birds—each able to reproduce its own kind. And God saw that His new creation was beautiful and good. 22And God spoke this blessing over them:

God: Be fruitful and multiply. Let creatures fill the seas. Let birds reproduce and cover the earth.

23Evening gave way to morning. That was day five.

God: 24Earth, generate life! Produce a vast variety of living creatures—domesticated animals, small creeping creatures, and wild animals that roam the earth.

It happened just as God said. 25God made earth-creatures in a vast variety of species:

wild animals, domesticated animals of all sizes, and small creeping creatures, each able to reproduce its own kind. God saw that His new creation was beautiful and good. And God paused.

God: 26Now let Us conceive a new creation—humanity—made in Our image, fashioned according to Our likeness. And let Us grant them authority over all the earth—the fish in the sea and the birds in the sky, the domesticated animals and the small creeping creatures on the earth.

27So God did just that. He created humanity in His image, created them male and female. 28Then God blessed them and gave them this directive: "Be fruitful and multiply. Populate the earth. I make you trustees of My estate, so care for My creation and rule over the fish of the sea, the birds of the sky, and every creature that roams across the earth."

► The crown of God's creation is a new creature, a creature that can sound the heartbeat of its Creator. That creature, made male and female, reflects God's own relational richness. The human family is to join God in the ongoing work of creation. The earth below and the sky above with all their inhabitants are too beautiful and too good to be left alone. They need the tender care and close attention that only God's favored creature can give.

God *(to humanity): 29Look! I have given you every seed-bearing plant that grows on the earth and every fruit-bearing tree. They will be your food and nourishment. 30As for all the wild animals, the birds in the sky, and every small creeping creature—everything that breathes the breath of life—I have given them every green plant for food.

And it happened just as God said. 31Then God surveyed everything He had made, savoring its beauty and appreciating its goodness. Evening gave way to morning. That was day six.

2 So now you see how the Creator swept into being the spangled heavens, the earth, and all their hosts in six days. 2On the seventh day—with the canvas of the cosmos completed—God paused from His labor and rested. 3Thus God blessed day seven and made it special—an open time for pause and restoration, a sacred zone of Sabbath-keeping, because God rested from all the work He had done in creation that day.

God's rest on the seventh day is a model for the kind of Sabbath rest He wants for His people.

4This is the detailed story of the Eternal God's singular work in creating all that exists. On the day the heavens and earth were created, 5there were no plants or vegetation to cover the earth. The fields were barren and empty, because the Eternal God had not sent the rains to nourish the soil or anyone to tend it. 6In those days, a mist rose up from the ground to blanket the earth, and its vapors irrigated the land. 7One day the Eternal God scooped dirt out of the ground, sculpted it into the shape we call human, breathed the breath that gives life into the nostrils of the human, and the human became a living soul.

► When human body meets divine spirit, soul is born. Divine breath and sculpted earth come together to make up the living soul. For thousands of years, philosophers and theologians have posed the question: what is a human being? Here God gives the answer.

8The Eternal God planted a garden in the east in Eden—a place of utter delight—and placed the man whom He had sculpted there. 9*In this garden,* He made the ground pregnant with life—bursting forth with nourishing food and luxuriant beauty. He created trees, and in the center of this garden of delights stood the tree of life and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

10A river flowed from Eden to irrigate the garden, and from there it separated into four smaller rivers. 11-12The first, the Pishon, flows around the land of Havilah—a rich land plentiful in gold of premium quality, bdellium, and onyx stones. 13The second, the Gihon, flows around the entire land of Cush. 14The third, the Tigris, flows east of Assyria, and the fourth is the Euphrates.

15The Eternal God placed the newly made man in the garden of Eden in order to work the ground and care for it. 16He made certain demands of the man regarding life in the garden.

God: Eat freely from any and all trees in the garden; 17I only require that you abstain from eating the fruit of one tree—the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Beware: the day you eat the fruit of this tree, you will certainly die.

After God gives man this directive, He realizes something is missing.

18It is not good for the man to be alone, so I will create a companion for him, a perfectly suited partner.

19So out of the same ground the man was made from, the Eternal God sculpted every sort of animal and every kind of bird that flies up in the sky. Then He brought them to the man and gave him the authority to name each creature as he saw fit: whatever he decided to call it, that became its name. 20Thus the man chose names for domesticated animals, birds, and wild beasts. But none of these creatures was a right and proper partner for Adam.

The authority to name something is unique to humanity. To name is to share in God's creative act.

21So the Eternal God put him into a deep sleep, removed a rib from his side, and closed the flesh around the opening. 22He formed a woman from the rib taken out of the man and presented her to him.

Adam: 23At last, a suitable companion, a perfect partner.
Bone from my bones.
Flesh from my flesh.
I will call this one "woman" as an eternal reminder that she was taken out of man.

24Now this is the reason a man leaves his father and his mother, and is united with his wife; and the two become one flesh. 25*In those days* the man and his wife were both naked and were not ashamed.

► Genesis provides an image of the ideal marriage: One man. One woman. In a one-flesh relationship. For life. These four elements constitute the ideal, as Jesus reminds His followers (Matthew 19:4-5). Anything less, anything more, or anything other misses the ideal. In marriage two individuals, who once lived as "me," come together as "we" in one flesh and one life. No earthly bond can match the intimacy of this divinely sanctioned union.

3 Of all the wild creatures the Eternal God had created, the serpent was the craftiest.

Serpent *(to the woman): Is it true that God has forbidden you to eat fruits from the trees of the garden?

Eve: 2*No, serpent. God said* we are free to eat the fruit from the trees in the garden. 3*We are granted access to any variety and all amounts of fruit* with one exception: the fruit from the tree found in the center of the garden. God instructed us not to eat or touch the fruit of that tree or we would die.

Serpent: 4*Die? No,* you'll not die. God is playing games with you. 5*The truth is that* God knows the day you eat the fruit from that tree you will awaken something powerful in you and become like Him: possessing knowledge of both good and evil.

6The woman approached the tree, eyed its fruit, and coveted its mouth-watering, wisdom-granting beauty. She plucked a fruit from the tree and ate. She then offered the fruit to her husband who was close by, and he ate as well. 7Suddenly their eyes were opened to a reality previously unknown. For the first time, they sensed their vulnerability and rushed to hide their naked bodies, stitching fig leaves into crude loincloths. 8Then they heard the sound of the Eternal God walking in the cool misting shadows of the garden. The man and his wife took cover among the trees and hid from the Eternal God.

► The story of humanity's sin begins with a tree and ends on a tree: first, the tree of the knowledge of good and evil; and finally, the cross on which Jesus dies. The first tree offers fruit that leads to death, but the second offers a death that leads to eternal life.

God (calling to Adam): 9Where are you?

Adam: 10When I heard the sound of You coming in the garden, I was afraid because I am naked. So I hid from You.

God: 11Who told you that you are naked?
Have you eaten from the tree in the center of the garden, the very one I commanded you not to eat from?

Adam (pointing at the woman): 12*It was she!* The woman You gave me as a companion put the fruit in my hands, and I ate it.

Since Adam and Eve, people have been blaming others for their mistakes. Adam has the audacity to blame God for his.

God (to the woman): 13What have you done?

Eve: It was the serpent! He tricked me, and I ate.

God (to the serpent): 14What you have done carries great consequences.
Now you are cursed more than cattle or wild beasts.
You will writhe on your belly forever, consuming the dust out of which man was made.
15I will make you and your brood enemies
of the woman and all her children;
The woman's child will stomp your head,
and you will strike his heel.

16(to the woman) As a consequence of your actions,
I will increase your suffering—the pain of childbirth
And the sorrow of bringing forth the next generation.
You will desire your husband; but rather than a companion,
He will be the dominant partner.

17(to the man) Because you followed your wife's advice instead of My command and ate of the tree
From which I had forbidden you to eat, cursed is the ground.
For the rest of your life,
You will fight for every crumb of food from the crusty clump of clay I made you from.
18*As you labor,* the ground will produce thorns and thistles, and you will eat the plants of the field.
19Your brow will sweat for your mouth to taste
even a morsel of bread until the day you return
To the very ground I made you from.
From dust you have come,
And to dust you shall return.

20The man named his wife Eve because she was destined to become the mother of all living. 21The Eternal God pieced together the skins of animals and made clothes for Adam and Eve to wear.

In Hebrew "Eve" sounds like the word meaning "life-giver."

God: 22Look, the human has become like one of Us, possessing the knowledge of good and evil. If We don't do something, he will reach out his hand and take some of the fruit from the tree of life, eat it, and live forever.

23So the Eternal God banished Adam and Eve from the garden of Eden and exiled humanity from paradise, sentencing humans to laborious lives working the very ground man came from. 24After driving them out, He stationed winged guardians* at the east end of the garden of Eden and set up a sword of flames which alertly turned back and forth to guard the way to the tree of life.

4 Now Adam and Eve discovered the pleasures of lovemaking, and soon Eve conceived and gave birth to a son whom they named Cain.

* 3:24 Hebrew, cherubim

Eve (excited): Look, I have created a new human, a male child, with the help of the Eternal.

► One of the first things Adam and Eve do after being banished from the garden of Eden is to make a baby. Despite the pain of childbirth, Eve speaks with joy of the birth of her son. She certainly suffers and could have easily died in childbirth, but the desire to reproduce and the joy of joining with God in the creative process brings great reward. Every parent knows the risks and rewards of bringing forth the next generation.

2Eve went on to give birth to Cain's brother, Abel. Abel grew up to become a shepherd, and Cain grew up to become a farmer. 3After he had learned how to produce food from the fields, Cain gave the Eternal One an offering—some of the crops he had grown from the ground. 4For his part of the offering, Abel gave God some tender lamb meat—the choicest cuts from the firstborn of his flock. The Eternal One accepted Abel and his gift of lamb, 5while He had no regard for Cain and what he presented. Because of this, Cain became extremely angry and his face fell.

God notices Cain's reaction and confronts him.

Eternal One (to Cain): 6Why are you angry? And why do you look so despondent? 7*Don't you know that* as long as you do what is right, then I accept you? But if you do not do what is right, watch out, because sin is crouching at the door, ready to pounce on you! You must master it before it masters you.

Jealousy is eating at Cain's heart. Left unattended, it consumes him.

8Cain spoke to his brother Abel. When they were in the field, Cain's envy of his brother got the better of him, and he attacked and killed Abel.

Eternal One (to Cain): 9Where's your brother Abel?

Cain: I have no idea. Am I supposed to be responsible for where he goes and what he does?

Eternal One: 10What have you done? Listen! I can hear the voice of your brother's blood crying out to Me from the ground! 11And now you are cursed, cut off from the ground—the ground that opened up and received your brother's innocent blood, spilled by your own murderous hand! 12*From now on,* when you till the ground, it will no longer yield for you its strength and nourishment. You will be a fugitive and a wanderer on the earth.

Cain: 13My punishment is more than I can bear! 14Today You have banned me from the soil and hidden me from Your presence! I will be a fugitive and a wanderer on the earth, and anyone who meets me will want to kill me!

Eternal One: 15That's not the case! Whoever kills you will suffer My vengeance and pay the penalty seven times!

Then God put a special mark on Cain, so that no one who came in contact with him would try to kill him.

16Then Cain went away from the Eternal's presence and settled in the land of Nod, a place for wanderers, to the east of Eden. 17Cain made love to his wife, and she conceived and gave birth to Enoch. Cain built a city there and named it Enoch after his son. 18*And this is how their family progressed:* Enoch's son was Irad, and Irad was the father of Mehujael. Mehujael was the father of Methushael, and Methushael was the father of Lamech.

19Now Lamech married two wives, Adah and Zillah. 20Adah gave birth to Jabal. His descendants are those who make their homes in tents and keep livestock. 21Jabal's brother's name was Jubal, and his descendants are musicians who play instruments such as the lyre and the pipe. 22Zillah, Lamech's other wife, gave birth to Tubal-cain. Now he was a bronze- and ironsmith, and his sister was Naamah.

23*One day,* Lamech announced to his wives:

Lamech: Adah and Zillah, listen to me!
Wives of Lamech, I need to tell you something!
I killed a man who struck me.
He was a young man who wounded me first.

24*Here's how I see it:*
if Cain is avenged seven times, then surely Lamech must be avenged seventy-seven times!

25*Meanwhile,* Adam made love to his wife again, and she gave birth to another son and named him Seth.

Eve *(to herself): God has given me another child to replace Abel, since Cain killed him.

26*After many years passed,* Seth became the father of a son and named him Enosh. This was about the time when people began to worship and call on the name of the Eternal One.

5 Here now is the account of Adam's descendants. You remember, when God created humans, He made them in His own likeness. 2He created them male and female; and after creating them, God put a special blessing on them and named them "humanity."

3When Adam had lived 130 years, he fathered a son who looked just like him. He was Adam's spitting image, and so resembled God too. Adam named him Seth. 4After Seth was born, Adam lived another 800 years, and he had other sons and daughters as well. 5So Adam was 930 years old when he died.

6When Seth had lived 105 years, he fathered a son named Enosh. 7After Enosh was born, Seth lived another 807 years, and he also had other sons and daughters. 8He was 912 years old when he died.

9When Enosh had lived 90 years, he fathered a son named Kenan. 10After Kenan was born, Enosh lived another 815 years, and he had other sons and daughters too. 11He was 905 years old when he died.

12When Kenan had lived 70 years, he fathered a son named Mahalalel. 13After Mahalalel was born, Kenan lived another 840 years, and he had other sons and daughters. 14He was 910 years old when he died.

15When Mahalalel had lived 65 years, he fathered a son named Jared. 16*After Jared was born,* Mahalalel lived another 830 years, and he, too, had other sons and daughters. 17He was 895 years old when he died.

18When Jared had lived 162 years, he fathered a son named Enoch. 19After Enoch was born, Jared lived another 800 years, and he had other sons and daughters. 20He was 962 years old when he died.

21When Enoch had lived 65 years, he fathered a son named Methuselah. 22After Methuselah was born, Enoch lived in a close relationship with God for 300 more years; he also had other sons and daughters. 23He lived to be 365 years old, 24but Enoch had such a close and intimate relationship with God that one day he just vanished—God took him.

Enoch leaves this world in an unusual way. He is taken without experiencing death. But he is not the last.

25When Methuselah had lived 187 years, he fathered a son named Lamech. 26After Lamech was born, Methuselah lived another 782 years, and he also had other sons and daughters. 27He was 969 years old when he died.

28When Lamech had lived 182 years, he fathered a son 29named Noah. He named him this because he predicted, "From out of the ground the Eternal cursed will now come someone who will bring relief from our work and painful toil." 30After Noah was born, Lamech lived another 595 years, and he had other sons and daughters. 31He was 777 years old when he died.

6 As human beings began to multiply and spread across the surface of the earth as God commanded, they had lovely daughters. 2The sons of God saw how beautiful the humans' daughters were, and they decided to take any daughters they wanted as their wives.

Eternal One: 3My life-giving Spirit will not sustain human beings forever because they are, after all, made of flesh. Therefore, I will put a limit on their lifespan of about 120 years.

► Throughout Scripture God is described as spirit and humans as flesh. God's statement emphasizes the eternal, life-giving nature of spirit and the mortal, dependent nature of flesh. Without God's Spirit-breath sustaining humanity, life itself is not possible. Humans are totally dependent on God. The upper limit of human life is set at roughly 120 years; but the change comes gradually, and Aaron is the last of the patriarchs to live beyond the limit.

4Now at that time and for some time to come, a great warrior race* lived on the earth. Whenever the sons of God would have sex with the humans' daughters, the women bore them children who became mighty warriors. In the days of old, they became famous heroes, the kind people tell stories about!

By Noah's time nearly all people are drugged on the fumes of their egos. Wickedness has become the number one, all-consuming human addiction.

5The Eternal One saw that wickedness was rampaging throughout the earth and that evil had become the first thought on every mind, the constant purpose of every person. 6-7*At that point* God's heart broke, and He regretted having ever made man in the first place.

Eternal One: I know what I'll do. I will wipe humanity, My special creation, from the face of the earth—humans, animals, creeping things, and birds of the sky—for I regret that I ever made them.

9Here is the account of Noah and his descendants. Noah was a good man, a right-living man, the best man of his generation; and he walked closely with God. 10Noah fathered three sons: Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

11-12*They lived at a time when* the world had become vile and corrupt. Violence was everywhere. God saw that the earth was in ruins, and He knew why: all people on earth except Noah had lived corrupt lives and ruined God's plans for them. He had to do something.

Eternal One (to Noah): 13*Noah,* I have decided to wipe out all the living creatures I have made because they are spreading violence throughout the earth. Watch! I will destroy them with the earth. 14I want you to build an ark. Build it out of cypress wood. Make rooms in the ark, and cover it inside and outside with tar. 15Here's how you will do it: build the ark 450 feet long, 75 feet wide, and 45 feet high. 16Put a roof* on the ark and leave a gap of 18 inches below the roofline for air to circulate. Put the door of the ark in its side, and build it with lower, middle, and upper decks. 17Look! I am going to unleash a torrent and flood the earth to destroy all flesh under the heavens which breathes the breath of life. Everything that is on the earth will die.

18But I will make a pact with you, Noah—a covenant agreement. To survive, you and your family—you, your wife, your sons, and your sons' wives—must go into the ark. 19And, out of all the living creatures I have made, you must bring two of each kind into the ark with you, to keep them alive. Bring one male and one female of each kind. 20Bring all kinds of birds, all sorts of animals, and all varieties of creatures that creep on the ground in pairs, so that each species will survive. 21Also, you must bring food with you. Bring every kind of food that may be eaten, and store it all inside the ark. That way, you and all of the creatures will have enough food to eat.

22So Noah listened to God, and he built the ark. He did everything God asked him to do.

7 Eternal One (to Noah): It's time! Go into the ark now. Take your entire household with you, because I see that you are the only one in this generation who lives right before Me. 2*Take the animals with you.* Take seven pairs of all ritually acceptable animals, both the male and female; and take one pair of any animal that isn't acceptable, both the male and female. 3And take seven pairs of the birds of the sky, too, also male and female, so that we can keep each kind alive on the earth. 4Seven days from now, I will send a massive rain to cover the earth. The rain will last 40 days and 40 nights, and every living thing I have made will be wiped off the face of the earth.

* 6:4 Hebrew, Nephilim * 6:16 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

► In distinguishing between animals that are ritually acceptable and unacceptable, God is anticipating the instructions He will give His people later regarding holiness and purity (Leviticus 11:1-47; Deuteronomy 14:4-20). Some animals are ritually acceptable for sacrifices, so they are suitable for food. Other animals are not to be offered to God or eaten. Ultimately, what enters human bodies matters to God; after all He made them.

6Noah was 600 years old when the flood waters swept over the earth. 7Noah and his wife, his sons and their wives, all went into the ark in order to escape the waters of the flood. 8*Noah made sure to take along all of the animals* (both ritually acceptable and unacceptable), the birds, and all the small creeping creatures 9*in pairs* by males and females, just as God had told him to do. They all went into the ark with him, two by two. 10After seven days, the rains began and waters flooded the earth.

8 But God remembered Noah and all of the wild and domesticated animals with him in the ark. When it was time, God sent the wind to blow over all of the earth, and the waters began to subside. 2The subterranean waters from the depths of the earth and the casements of the heavens were again closed. The drenching rains that once fell from above finally stopped. 3*All of* the waters gradually receded from the land. At last, after 150 days, the waters abated; 4and on the 17th day of the 7th month, the ark at last came to rest on the mountains of Ararat. 5The waters continued to recede until the 10th month. On the 1st day of the 10th month, the tops of the mountains began to appear.

6After 40 more days, Noah opened a window he had built into the ark, 7and he sent one of the ravens out into the sky. The raven flew back and forth until all of the waters had dried up on the land. 8He then sent out a dove to see if the waters had subsided from the surface of the land. 9But the dove found no place to land safely, and it returned to the ark. The waters were still covering the surface of the whole earth. So Noah put out his hand and brought the dove back into the ark. 10Noah waited another seven days, and then he sent the dove out again from the ark. 11*This time* the dove came back to him in the evening, and there, in its beak, was a freshly plucked olive leaf. So Noah knew then that the waters had begun to retreat from the land. 12*For good measure,* Noah waited another seven days. Once more, he sent out the dove. This time, it didn't return.

13On the 1st day of the 1st month in Noah's 601st year, the waters had dried up from the land. Noah removed the covering of the ark, looked out, and saw that the land was nearly dry. 14By the 27th day of the 2nd month, the earth was completely dry. 15God came to Noah with a message.

Eternal One (to Noah): 16*It's time.* Leave the ark now, you and your wife, your sons, and your sons' wives. 17Release every animal with you on the ark—everything of flesh: birds, animals, and every creeping thing—so that they may be fruitful, multiply in great numbers, and fill the land and the sky again.

20*Once he was back on dry land,* Noah built an altar—a special offering table—for the Eternal One. He took some of every ritually acceptable animal and of every acceptable bird, and he gave them to God on the altar as a burnt offering. 21When the Eternal smelled the delicious aroma of the sacrifice, He was moved.

Eternal One (to Himself): Never again will I curse the ground because of humankind, even though every thought of the mind and inclination of the heart is set on evil from the time they are young. Never again will I destroy every living creature as I have done. 22As long as the earth endures, nothing will put a stop to planting and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night.

9 God spoke a blessing over Noah and his sons.

Eternal One: Be fruitful, multiply, and populate the earth! 2All the animals on the earth, all the birds in the sky, all the creatures that creep along the ground, and all the fish of the sea will now be afraid and run from you; they have been handed over to you. 3Every living thing that moves will be available to you as food. Just as I once gave you the green plants to eat, I now give you everything. 4But listen carefully: Do not eat any meat with its life-blood still in it. 5*More than that, do not spill the blood of any human.* If anyone spills your blood, I will hold him responsible. It makes no difference whether it is a man or an animal, both will be accountable to Me! If someone murders a fellow human being, then I will require his life in return.

6Whoever sheds the blood of a human,
that person's blood will be shed in return by another for God made humanity in His own image.
7Now all of you, be fruitful and multiply;
spread out and populate the earth.

► All life is sacred. Human life is especially so. Protecting it is of utmost importance to God. He takes this so seriously and personally because He made humanity to reflect Him. We are His earthly representatives, made in His image. To murder another person is to mount an attack on the One who created him.

8But God was not finished. He had more to say both to Noah and his sons.

Eternal One: 9Look, for I am now going to make a pact, a special covenant, with you and all your descendants. 10*This covenant* also extends to every living creature in the world—the birds, the domesticated animals, and every wild animal on the earth—as many as emerged with you from the ark. 11As part of this covenant, I promise you I will never again wipe out all living flesh by means of flooding waters. Never again will a flood destroy the earth. 12As a sign of this perpetual covenant I now make between Me and you and all living creatures along with you, as well as all future generations, 13I will hang a rainbow among the clouds. It will serve as a sign of the covenant between Me and the earth. 14*And from now on,* whenever a cloud rises over the earth and a rainbow appears in the sky, 15I will remember My covenant—My promise I have made between Me and you and all living creatures. No waters will ever again turn into a flood powerful enough to destroy all living creatures. 16When that rainbow appears in the clouds, I will see it and remember this eternal covenant I have made with all living creatures.

17*Look for the rainbow, and remember My promise.* With it I sign the covenant I have made between Me and all the living creatures residing on the earth.

18Now Noah's sons who came out of the ark were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. (Ham, by the way, was the father of Canaan.) 19*Yes,* these three, Noah's sons, went on to populate the entire earth.

20Now Noah became a farmer and decided to plant a vineyard. 21One day he drank too much of the wine he had made and fell into a deep, drunken sleep in his tent. As he lay there stark naked, 22Ham (the father of Canaan) peeked in and saw his father's exposed body. After leaving the tent, he told his two brothers what he had seen. 23So Shem and Japheth took a large cloak and laid it across their shoulders, and they walked backward into the tent. They never looked behind, as they covered their father's nakedness. Out of respect, they purposely kept their faces turned away, so they wouldn't see their father lying there naked. 24When Noah regained consciousness and realized what his youngest son had done, 25he uttered this curse:

Noah: A curse upon your son, Canaan!
May he become the lowest of servants to his brothers.
26May the Eternal One, the God of Shem, be blessed, and let Canaan be his slave!
27May God make plenty of room for Japheth's family and give them homes among Shem's tents.
And let Canaan be his slave also!

► Noah's words are not idle words. As the story unfolds, the importance of this curse becomes clear. But as the ancients knew, and we now have forgotten, words have power. It was with a word that God created the heavens above and the earth below. Now Noah's words create a new reality, a harsh reality for Ham and his children.

28From the time the flood was over, Noah lived another 350 years. 29In all, Noah lived 950 years, and then he died.

10 Here is the account of the descendants of Noah's three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, who fathered many children after the flood.

2The descendants of Japheth were Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. 3Now the descendants of Gomer were Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah. 4The descendants of Javan were Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim. 5*The descendants of Japheth* became the peoples who settled the coastal and island regions. They developed their own languages, their own families and cultures, and they would eventually become separate peoples.

6The descendants of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan. 7Cush's descendants were Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. The descendants of Raamah were Sheba and Dedan. 8Cush also fathered Nimrod, who was the first man on earth to be known as a powerful warrior. 9He was also a skillful hunter before the Eternal One. That's why you often hear people say, "So-and-so is like Nimrod, a skillful hunter before the Eternal." 10The center of his kingdom was in Babel, Erech, Accad, and Calneh; all are located in the land of Shinar. 11From there, he traveled into Assyria and established the cities of Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah, 12and Resen, which lies between Nineveh and Calah—and that is one magnificent city! 13Now Mizraim fathered Ludim, Anamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim, 14Pathrusim, Casluhim (the ancestor of the people known as the Philistines), and Caphtorim.

15Canaan fathered Sidon (his firstborn), Heth, 16the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites, 17the Hivites, the Arkites, the Sinites, 18the Arvadites, the Zemarites, and the Hamathites. Soon all of the families of Canaan's descendants would spread abroad. 19*As a result,* the territory of the Canaanites extended from Sidon in the direction of Gerar all the way to Gaza; and in the direction of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim all the way to Lasha. 20*All of* these are descendants of Ham, who grew from a few initial families into a great people with their own languages, lands, and nations.

well. He was the patriarch of all of the people of Eber. 22His descendants include Elam, Asshur, Arpachshad, Lud, and Aram. 23Aram's descendants were Uz, Hul, Gether, and Mash. 24Now Arpachshad fathered Shelah, and Shelah fathered Eber. 25Eber had two sons: one was named Peleg, which means "division," because in his days, the earth was divided into many languages, and his brother's name was Joktan. 26Joktan fathered Almodad, Sheleph, Hazarmaveth, Jerah, 27Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah, 28Obal, Abimael, Sheba, 29Ophir, Havilah, and Jobab. All of these peoples were descended from Joktan. 30They lived in the territory that extended from Mesha in the direction of Sephar to the eastern hill country. 31Shem's descendants also grew from a few initial families to become a great people with their own languages, lands, and nations.

32So these are the families descended from Noah's sons according to their known genealogies. These cultures would soon spread farther and farther across the earth after the flood.

According to Genesis, the sons and daughters of Noah established the first known cultures of the world.

11 There was a time when everyone on the earth spoke the very same language. 2As many of these people began moving from the eastern regions into the western part of Mesopotamia, they settled down on a plain in the land of Shinar. 3Since stone was not readily available, they discovered how to make bricks and use tar for mortar to build their structures.

People *(to each other): Come on, let's make bricks out of mud and bake them in the fire. Then we can build all we want. 4Let's go build ourselves a city with a huge tower that reaches into heaven. That way we will make a name for ourselves. If we don't, we'll run the risk of being scattered all over the earth.

► The desire to settle in one place and build a city runs counter to God's command to spread out across the earth. They want to make their mark on the world rather than conform to God's plan for their lives. They want power and prestige. They want to ensure that they will not be scattered; that is, they want to choose their own destiny. But God has a different plan and purpose. He is the One who determines destiny.

5The Eternal One came down and took a look at the city and the tower the children of Adam were building. He was not pleased.

Eternal One: 6*Will you* look at that! The people are all together on this. With one language they are able to start this kind of project. This is only the beginning of what they will do. Soon they will think they can accomplish anything and everything on their own. 7Let's go down and break this up! If We confuse their language, they won't be able to understand each other's words.

8This is how the Eternal scattered people from Shinar all across the surface of the earth. Since they were unable to communicate, they stopped working on the city and went their separate ways. 9So this is why the city was called Babel:* because it was there that the Eternal confused the language of all the peoples and scattered them across the surface of the earth.

Once again the generations are recorded. This time the purpose is to link those who survived the flood with Abraham. God has a special plan for him.

10Here is the account of the descendants of Shem, Noah's son. When Shem was 100 years old, he fathered Arpachshad. (This was about two years after the flood.) 11After Arpachshad was born, Shem lived another 500 years, and he had other sons and daughters.

12When Arpachshad had lived 35 years, he fathered Shelah. 13After Shelah was born, Arpachshad lived 403 more years, and he had other sons and daughters.

14When Shelah had lived 30 years, he fathered Eber. 15After Eber was born,

* 11:9 In Hebrew Babel sounds like the word for "confusion." Babel is also known as Babylon, a city which comes to symbolize every vile, arrogant, and corrupt human impulse.

Shelah lived 403 more years, and he had other sons and daughters.

16When Eber had lived 34 years, he fathered Peleg. 17After Peleg was born, Eber lived 430 more years, and he also had other sons and daughters.

18When Peleg had lived 30 years, he fathered Reu. 19After Reu was born, Peleg lived 209 more years, and he had other sons and daughters as well.

20When Reu had lived 32 years, he fathered Serug. 21After Serug was born, Reu lived 207 more years, and he had other sons and daughters.

22When Serug had lived 30 years, he fathered Nahor. 23After Nahor was born, Serug lived 200 more years, and he had other sons and daughters as well.

24When Nahor had lived 29 years, he fathered Terah. 25After Terah was born, Nahor lived 119 more years, and he had other sons and daughters.

26When Terah had lived 70 years, he had fathered Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

27Here is the account of Terah's descendants. Terah, as said, had fathered Abram, Nahor, and Haran; and Haran fathered Lot. 28While Terah was still alive, Haran died in the same land in which he was born—in Ur, the land of the Chaldeans. 29However, Abram and Nahor lived on and married. Abram's wife was named Sarai, and Nahor's wife was named Milcah. Now Milcah was the daughter of Haran, who fathered both Milcah and Iscah. 30But Sarai couldn't conceive and didn't have a child.

31Terah took his son Abram and grandson Lot (Haran's son) and his daughter-in-law Sarai (Abram's wife). They left Ur of the Chaldeans together and traveled in the direction of the land of Canaan. When they arrived in Haran, they settled there. 32Terah was 205 years old at that time, and he ended up dying in Haran.

12 One day, the Eternal One called out to Abram.

Eternal One: Abram, get up and go! Leave your country. Leave your relatives and your father's home, and travel to the land I will show you.* Don't worry—I will guide you there. 2I have plans to make a great people from your descendants. And I am going to put a special blessing on you and cause your reputation to grow so that you will become a blessing and example to others. 3I will also bless those who bless you and further you in your journey, and I'll trip up those who try to trip you along the way. Through your descendants, all of the families of the earth will find their blessing in you.*

► Out of all the descendants of Noah, God chooses Abram to have a special relationship with Him. He calls Abram to enter into a particular kind of relationship that changes the course of his life and the lives of his people forever. God has a plan to rescue the world from sin and destruction, and that plan begins with one man. He promises to make Abram a great nation, to bless and protect him, and ultimately to bring true and lasting blessing to the world through his children. To enter into that promise, Abram must do something daring; he must leave everything he knows and put his trust in God.

4-5*Without any hesitation,* Abram went. He did exactly as the Eternal One asked him to do. Abram was 75 years old when he left Haran. He took with him his wife Sarai, his brother's son Lot, all of their possessions, and all of the persons they had acquired for their household while in Haran; and they all set off toward the land of Canaan. When they reached Canaan, 6Abram kept going through it to a sacred place called Shechem where the oak of Moreh stood. (At this time, the Canaanite people were living on this land, so Abram could not take it as his own.) 7There the Eternal appeared to Abram.

Eternal One: I am going to give this land to your future generations.*

So, out of honor and respect, there Abram built an altar table to the Eternal One, who had appeared to him and spoken these words of promise. 8After that, Abram traveled on to the hill country east of Bethel, and there he pitched a tent and made a home for himself and his family between Bethel in the west and Ai in the east. Here Abram built another altar table

* 12:1 Acts 7:3 * 12:3 Galatians 3:8 * 12:7 Galatians 3:16 for the Eternal One, where he called upon the name of the Eternal frequently. 9Then Abram journeyed south toward the Negev region.

This is the southernmost part of the land God promises to give Abram. One day his children will possess it.

10Now at this time, there came a severe famine in the land of Canaan. Food was scarce, so Abram made his way to Egypt to live there for a while as a foreigner. 11As Abram was about to enter Egypt, he pulled Sarai his wife aside.

Abram: Sarai, you are a very beautiful woman, and I am well aware that 12when the Egyptians see you, they will say, "Look, she's his wife"; then they will kill me and let you live so they can have you for themselves. 13Tell them you are my sister so that nothing will happen to me because of you. In this way you can save my life.

► Sarai is an unusually attractive woman. Even at her age of 65, Abram is afraid of what the Egyptian men might do when they see her and desire her. So he takes matters into his own hands and devises a half-truth to conceal their marriage. We learn later—when Abram repeats this half-truth to Abimelech (chapter 20)—that Sarai and Abram have the same father but a different mother.

14So when Abram came into Egypt with Sarai and his family, the Egyptians did indeed see that Sarai was very beautiful. 15And when Pharaoh's officials saw her, they told Pharaoh just how beautiful she was. So Sarai was taken into Pharaoh's house and made part of his harem. 16She pleased the Pharaoh, so he treated Abram very well, giving him gifts of sheep, oxen, male donkeys, male and female servants, female donkeys, and camels. 17But the Eternal One was not pleased and began afflicting the Pharaoh and his household with skin diseases because of what was happening to Sarai, Abram's wife. 18So Pharaoh summoned Abram to come before him.

Pharaoh: What have you done to me? Why didn't you tell me this woman was your wife? 19Why did you say she was only your sister, so that I felt free to take her to be one of my wives? Here she is—take your wife, and get out of here!

20And Pharaoh gave his men orders to make sure Abram went on his way along with his wife and all of his belongings.

13 Abram left Egypt with his wife, Lot, and everything he owned, and he went back up into the Negev region. 2*Because of his experience in Egypt,* Abram had become quite rich. He had livestock, silver, and gold to carry with him. 3He journeyed north in stages from the Negev as far as Bethel to the place where he had pitched his tent earlier between Bethel and Ai. 4*He returned* to one of the first altar tables he had made in the land, stopped there, and called on the name of the Eternal once again. 5Lot, who had gone with Abram, also had flocks and herds and tents, 6so the land was no longer large enough to support the two of them living together as one household. They each had so many possessions that they just couldn't stay together any longer. 7Arguments erupted between Abram's and Lot's livestock herders as they tried to graze their flocks side-by-side. (During this time, the Canaanites and the Perizzites were living on this land too.)

Abram *(to Lot): 8*Let's not fight.* I don't want there to be any animosity between you and me, or between our herders. After all, we're family. 9A vast land is out there and available to you. It is time for us to go our separate ways. You choose your land. If you choose east, I'll go west. If you choose west, I'll go east—it's your call.

► Abram is an exemplary man of faith. Being older than Lot, he by custom has first choice of the property, but he waives his right and grants Lot the first choice. Given their recent experiences in the famine, it is no wonder that Lot chooses the lush, fertile soils of the Jordan Valley for his new home. But as Lot moves his family east, he moves farther from Abram and closer to danger.

10Lot looked around, and he noticed the grassy plains in the Jordan Valley looked well watered and fertile, just as he imagined the Eternal One's gardens might be or as he knew the land of Egypt in the direction of Zoar to be. (This all happened before the Eternal destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah.) 11So Lot chose to settle his family on the plains of the Jordan Valley, and he journeyed eastward. This is how Abram and Lot separated from each other and established two different households. 12Abram settled in the land of Canaan, and Lot settled among the cities of the Jordanian Valley. He eventually spread out and pitched his tent as far away as Sodom. 13(Now you need to know that the people of the city of Sodom were quite wicked—utterly defiant toward God.)

14After Lot had moved away, the Eternal spoke to Abram.

Eternal One: Look around you now, as far as you can see to the north, south, east, and west. 15All of the land you see is for you and your descendants to possess forever. 16I will make your descendants as many as there are specks of dust on the earth. If anyone could count the dust of the earth, then he could also count how many descendants I'm talking about! 17Go on now, and walk the entire expanse of the land, for you need to see what I am giving you!

18So Abram moved his family and belongings again, this time to Hebron, settling near the oaks of Mamre. Abram built yet another altar table to the Eternal here in this new place.

14 Back when King Amraphel of Shinar, King Arioch of Ellasar, King Chedorlaomer of Elam, and King Tidal of Goiim ruled the land, 2these four kings formed an alliance and made war on five other kings: Bera of Sodom, Birsha of Gomorrah, Shinab of Admah, Shemeber of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (a city now known as Zoar). 3All of these joined forces in the valley of Siddim (near the area now known as the Dead Sea*). 4*You see,* the five latter kings had been conquered by Chedorlaomer and so they had served him for 12 years; but in the 13th year, they rebelled against him. 5In the 14th year, Chedorlaomer and the three kings who were allied with him squashed rebellions of the Rephaim in Ashteroth-karnaim, the Zuzim in Ham, the Emim in Shaveh-kiriathaim, 6and the Horites in the hill country of Seir all the way to El-paran, which lies on the edge of the wilderness.

7Then Chedorlaomer and his allies turned back and did the same in En-mishpat (a city also known as Kadesh), and they conquered all of the country of the Amalekites and also the Amorites, who lived then in Hazazon-tamar. 8-9The five kings of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, Zeboiim, and Bela (that is, Zoar) all went and joined in battle in the valley of Siddim against the four kings (Chedorlaomer of Elam, Tidal of Goiim, Amraphel of Shinar, and Arioch of Ellasar). 10The valley of Siddim held many dangers; it was full of tar pits, and as the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled the battle, some of their soldiers fell into the pits and were killed. The rest managed to make it out alive to the hill country. 11As a result, Chedorlaomer and his allies captured all of the spoils of battle from the retreating forces of Sodom and Gomorrah—their provisions, weapons, and other supplies. Then they left. 12But before they left they took Lot, the son of Abram's brother who lived in Sodom, prisoner along with all of his goods.

13Then one of the men who had escaped the battle went and found Abram, the Hebrew, who at that time was living by the oaks of Mamre the Amorite (brother of Eshcol and of Aner—some of Abram's allies). He told Abram what had happened. 14As soon as Abram heard that his nephew had been taken prisoner, he gathered a company of his most reliable and best-trained men (there were 318 of them, all born in his household) and pursued the enemy as far north as Dan. 15*When he caught up with them,* Abram divided up his men, surrounded the enemy, and attacked them during the night. He and his soldiers crushed the invaders and pursued any survivors all the way to Hobah, north of Damascus. 16*After the battle* Abram recovered all the spoils the enemy had taken and brought them back with him. He rescued his nephew Lot and brought him back, along with his goods; there were other captives, too, including some women whom he rescued.

17After Abram and his men defeated Chedorlaomer and the other kings allied with him, the king of Sodom went out to meet him on his return at the valley of Shaveh (an area also known as the King's Valley). 18The priest-king of Jerusalem,* Melchizedek, came out to meet him as well and brought out bread and wine for them. Melchizedek was a priest of the One whom he called the "the Most High God."* 19Priest-king Melchizedek offered a special blessing to Abram.

* 14:3 Literally, Salt Sea

King Melchizedek: May Abram be blessed by the Most High God, Creator of the heavens and earth.
20Blessing and honor to the Most High God, who has clearly delivered your enemies into your hands!

Abram gave the priest-king a tenth of all of the captured goods he was bringing back with him.

► This unusual encounter has sparked much interest over the centuries. Melchizedek, it seems, appears out of nowhere. There is no genealogical record for him; he is described simply as the priest-king of Salem, likely a reference to the city that will one day be known as Jerusalem. The Hebrew root of the name Salem means "peace" (shalom). Melchizedek comes in peace, offering the victors a meal to sustain them on their journey home. Abram, in return, gives Melchizedek ten percent of the spoils claimed in battle. There are two other scriptural references to Melchizedek in Psalm 110 and Hebrews 7. The writer of Hebrews compares the priestly role of Jesus to the ancient priestly order of Melchizedek showing that Jesus' role, like that of Melchizedek, is superior in every way to the later Levitical priests.

King of Sodom *(to Abram): 21Give me the people, and you can take all of the spoils for yourself.

Abram: 22I have pledged a solemn oath to the Eternal One—the Most High God, Creator of the heavens and earth. 23I promised that I would not keep any shred of what belongs to you—not a thread of a garment or a strap of a sandal. That way you could never take credit for any wealth of mine. 24I will take nothing except the food my men have eaten. As for the men who fought with me—Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre—let them take their shares, but I will take nothing more.

15 Some time passed. One day, the word of the Eternal One came to Abram through a vision—a kind of waking dream.

Eternal One: Do not be afraid, Abram. I am always your shield and protector. Your reward for loyalty and trust will be immense.

Abram: 2Eternal Lord, what could You possibly give to me that would make that much of a difference in my life? After all, I am still childless, and Eliezer of Damascus stands to inherit all I own.* 3Since You have not given me the gift of children, my only heir will be one of the servants born in my household.

4Immediately the word of the Eternal One came to him.

Eternal One: No, Abram, this man will not be your heir. No one but your very own child will be an heir for you.

5God took him outside to show him something.

Eternal One: Look up at the stars, and try to count them all if you can. There are too many to count! Your descendants will be as many as the stars.*

6Abram believed God and trusted in His promises, so God counted it to his favor as righteousness.*

Eternal One *(to Abram): 7I am the Eternal One. Remember, I am the One who brought you from Ur of the Chaldeans in order to give you this land to possess and to pass on to your descendants.

Abram: 8But Eternal Lord, how am I supposed to know I really will possess it?

* 14:18 Hebrew, Salem * 14:18 Hebrew, El Elyon * 15:2 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 15:5 Romans 4:18
* 15:6 Romans 4:3, 22; Galatians 3:6; James 2:23

Eternal One: [9]Bring to Me the following: a three-year-old cow, a three-year-old female goat, a three-year-old ram, a turtledove, and a young pigeon.

[10]Abram brought God all of these animals and cut them in two, laying each half next to the other, making two rows. Only the birds were not cut in two. [11]And when any birds of prey swooped down on the carcasses, Abram swatted them away.

Eternal One *(to Abram): [13]I will tell you this on which you can stake your life: Your descendants will first be foreigners in a land that is not theirs. They will be made slaves there and will be oppressed for 400 years. [14]But then I will judge the nation that enslaves them.* When that time comes, your descendants will emerge from that land with many possessions. [15]As for you, you will rest with your fathers in peace and be buried at a ripe old age. [16]Not until the fourth generation will your descendants return here to possess the land, because the sin of the Amorite people has not yet reached its full measure.

[17]When the sun had gone down and darkness had fallen, a smoking firepot and a flaming torch passed between the halves of the animal carcasses. [18]With this ritual and on this day, the Eternal One made a covenant with Abram.

► This ritual may sound strange, but it is a common way of making agreements between parties in Abram's day. The exact meaning is unclear, but the various elements and actions point to one undeniable fact: Abram and the Lord are entering into a relationship that has serious and long-lasting consequences. God's covenant with Abram changes not only Abram's future but the future of the world itself.

Eternal One: I make a solemn promise to give this land to your descendants—from the river of Egypt to the great Euphrates River, [19-21]the land where the Kenites, the Kenizzites, the Kadmonites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaim, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites, and the Jebusites all live. All of this I will give to you.

16 Despite God's promise, years went by. Still Abram's wife Sarai remained childless. But she did have an Egyptian servant girl whose name was Hagar. Sarai had an idea so she approached her husband.

Sarai *(to Abram): [2]You can see that the Eternal One has still not allowed me to have any children. Why don't you sleep with my servant girl? Maybe I could use her as a surrogate and have a child through her!

Sarai's solution to her problem is not unique. Ancient Near Eastern custom allows for these kinds of arrangements.

Abram listened to Sarai and agreed to follow her plan. [3]After they had lived 10 years in Canaan, Abram's wife Sarai took her servant girl Hagar, the Egyptian, and gave her to her husband Abram as a wife. [4]So Abram slept with Hagar. It was not long before she conceived. But as soon as she knew she was pregnant with Abram's child, Hagar's attitude changed and she became haughty toward Sarai. [5]Sarai would not tolerate her servant looking down on her, so she approached Abram again.

Sarai *(to Abram): This is all your fault. I allowed my servant girl to be intimate with you, and as soon as she saw she was pregnant with your child, she started behaving arrogantly and disrespectfully toward me! I have done nothing to deserve this. Let the Eternal One judge who is in the wrong here—you or me!

Abram *(to Sarai): [6]Sarai—look, she's still your servant girl. Do whatever you want with her. She's under your control.

So Sarai clamped down on Hagar severely, and Hagar ran away. [7]The Special Messenger of the Eternal One found Hagar alone by a spring of water out in the desert. It was the spring of water along the road that went to Shur.

* 15:14 Acts 7:7

► When the Lord sends His Special Messenger, it is generally an important and sensitive mission (see, too, Exodus 3; Numbers 22; and Judges 6). This special agent bears God's unique, covenant name and speaks with divine authority in ways other messengers do not. In fact, by what Hagar says and does next, it is clear she thinks she has encountered the Lord Himself.

Special Messenger: 8Hagar, Sarai's servant girl? Where have you come from, and where are you planning to go?

Hagar: I am running away from my mistress, Sarai!

Special Messenger: 9Hagar, go back to your mistress, and change your attitude. Be respectful, and listen to her instructions. You're pregnant, and you need to go home. 10*Trust me:* I am going to give you many children and many descendants, so many you won't be able to count them!

The descendants from Hagar are included in the promise given to Abram that his family will be so large that he will not be able to count them.

11Look, you are pregnant, and you're going to have a son.
I want you to call him Ishmael because the Eternal One has heard your anguished cries.
12*Just to warn you, though:*
Ishmael, your son, is going to be a wild and rowdy man;
he'll put his fist in every face,
And everyone will turn against him, and he will live at odds with all of his relatives.

13As a result of this encounter, Hagar decided to give the Eternal One who had spoken to her a special name because He had seen her in her misery.

Hagar: I'm going to call You the God of Seeing* because in this place I have seen the One who watches over me.

14Because of this, the well between Kadesh and Bered is called Beer-lahai-roi, which means, "Well of the Living One who watches over me."

15So Hagar returned home and gave birth to Abram's son. Abram named his son (that is, the one born to Hagar) Ishmael. 16Abram was already 86 years old when Hagar gave birth to Ishmael.

17 When Abram was 99 years old, the Eternal One appeared to him again, assuring him of the promise of a child yet to come.

Eternal One: I am the God-All-Powerful.* Walk before Me. Continue to trust and serve Me faithfully. Be blameless and true. 2*If you are true and trust Me,* then I will make certain the covenant with you that I promised. I will bless you with a throng of descendants.

3Abram bowed low, his face and body flat on the ground.

Eternal One: 4Here is My covenant with you. I promise you will become the root of a huge family tree of multiple nations. 5*To symbolize your foundational role in this covenant, I hereby change your name.* You will no longer go by the name "Abram." Your new name will be "Abraham," which means "father of a great multitude of nations," because that is exactly what I will make of you.* 6Your descendants will be exceedingly fruitful. Nations and kings will descend from you. 7I hereby make this covenant—this sacred bond—between Me and you and all of your children and their children's children throughout the coming generations. It will be an eternal covenant. I will be your God and the God to all who come after you! 8I will fulfill My promise to give you and your descendants the land of Canaan, where you now live as foreigners. I will place all of Canaan into your hands to be yours forever. I will be your God and their God forever.

9(continuing to Abraham) As for your part in the agreement, you and your descendants must keep My covenant throughout the generations. 10-11The sign that you and your family keep My covenant is this: each male who lives among you shall be circumcised. The circumcised flesh of your foreskins constitutes a special "sign" of the covenant

* 16:13 Hebrew, El Roi * 17:1 Hebrew, El Shaddai * 17:5 Romans 4:17

I made with you, a relationship bonded together by loyalty and love. 12-13*From this point onward,* throughout coming generations, each male child born to you should be circumcised when he is eight days old. You must circumcise all male members of your household, even the slaves born within your household or the servants purchased from foreigners who aren't your flesh and blood; anyone and everyone within your household must carry this sign. This external mark on his body will be a sign of My everlasting covenant. 14Any male who is not separated from his foreskin will be cut off from his people and excluded from these covenant promises because he has broken My covenant.

15(continuing to Abraham) As for Sarai, your wife, the covenant applies to her as well. No longer will she be known as Sarai; her new name will be Sarah. 16She will receive My special blessing, and she will conceive a son by you. With My blessing on her, she will become the founding princess of nations to come. Kings of many peoples will be counted among her children.

► The Scriptures tell us that names matter. What we call people and places often describes and defines them in ways other kinds of words do not. People's names may recall the circumstances of their birth or reflect their character or perhaps depict their destiny. God changes Abram's name to Abraham to signify that he will become the founding father of many nations. The change in Sarah's name is a bit more complicated because both "Sarai" and "Sarah" mean "princess." Still the name "Sarah" becomes her covenant-name, the name by which generations know her. As the wife of Abraham's youth and old age, Sarah is destined to become the founding princess of many nations, a royal mother to many kings.

Abraham *(to God): 18*There's Ishmael of course.* May my son Ishmael be blessed and live a long life beneath Your watchful eye.

Eternal One: 19No, Abraham. I mean what I am telling you. Your wife Sarah will certainly become pregnant and bear a son. I want you to name him Isaac. I will continue to establish My covenant with him; through his line My covenant will last forever. 20As for Ishmael, I have heard your prayers for him! Look, he is your son too. I will bless him as well and make his lineage fruitful. His descendants will also be of a huge number. In fact, he will be the father of 12 princes. I will make sure that a great nation arises from his descendants as well. 21But My special covenant—this I will establish with Isaac. Sarah is going to give birth to him at this very time next year.

22When God was finished talking with Abraham about all of this, He left and Abraham went home. 23Abraham immediately took his son Ishmael and all of the slaves born in his household or bought with his money—every single male within his household—and circumcised the flesh of their foreskins on that very day, just as God had told him to do. 24Abraham was already 99 years old when he was circumcised. 25His son Ishmael was 13 years old when he received the mark of the covenant. 26On the day Abraham and Ishmael were circumcised, 27all men of the household, no matter where they had come from, were circumcised along with them.

18 The Eternal One appeared once again to Abraham by the oaks of Mamre, while he was resting at the entrance to his tent in the middle of a hot afternoon. 2Abraham glanced up and saw there were three men standing nearby. They seemed to appear out of nowhere. As soon as he saw them, he ran from the entrance of the tent out to where they were standing and greeted them warmly, instinctively bowing to the ground.

Abraham: 3My lord, if you would like to stay for a while, I beg you not to pass me by. I am your humble servant. 4Let me send someone for water in order to wash your feet. Please go and sit down under that tree over there and rest. 5Meanwhile, let me send for some bread so that you can nourish yourselves. After that I will not detain you further—you may be on your way—since you have come and honored your servant with your presence.

Three Men: Please, go and do what you have suggested.

6*In spite of the heat,* Abraham hurried into his tent to Sarah.

Abraham (to Sarah): Sarah, we have guests. Quickly prepare three measures* of our best flour, knead it, and make cakes.

7Then Abraham ran to where his herds were pastured. He took a tender calf and gave it to one of his servants, who rushed off to prepare the choice meat. 8When it was ready, Abraham took curds and milk, along with the meat, and he placed all of this lavish feast before his honored guests. He stood nearby under the tree while they ate to their fill.

Three Men: 9Where is Sarah, your wife?

Abraham: She's right in there . . . in the tent.

One of the Men: 10I will return here to you when life emerges from the womb* of your wife, Sarah. She will give birth to a son.*

Now Sarah was behind her guests, listening to all of this from the entrance of the tent. 11Abraham and Sarah were quite old at this time, well advanced in years, and Sarah had long ago gone through menopause. 12So Sarah laughed to herself, saying under her breath, "At my age—old and decrepit, as is my husband—both of us long past having any desire to engage in lovemaking?" 13But the Eternal heard what Sarah said and addressed Abraham.

Eternal One: Why does Sarah laugh and say to herself, "There's no way I'm going to give birth at my age!" 14Is anything too difficult for the Eternal One to accomplish? At a time that I will determine, I will return here to you when life emerges from her womb. I'm telling you, Sarah will give birth to a son.*

15Sarah was embarrassed and tried to deny laughing. She feared these were no ordinary guests.

Sarah: I wasn't laughing.

Eternal One: That is not true, Sarah. You did laugh.

16At that point, the three men set off on foot toward Sodom, and Abraham walked with them to start them on their way.

Eternal One (to the other two men): 17I wonder if I should hide from Abraham what I am about to do. 18After all, Abraham will become the father of a great and powerful nation, and all the other nations of the earth will find their blessing in him.* 19I have chosen him for a reason, namely that he will carefully instruct his children and his household to keep themselves strong in relationship to Me and to walk in My ways by doing what is good and right in the world and by showing mercy and justice to all others. I know he will uphold his end of the covenant, so that he can ensure My promises to him will be fulfilled and upheld as well.

20(continuing so Abraham could hear) I have heard terrible things—urgent and outraged calls for help—coming from the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, and their sin has become a serious problem. 21I must go down and see for Myself whether the outcries against them that My ears have heard are really true. If not, I will know.

22At this point the men turned and headed toward Sodom while Abraham remained standing before the Eternal One. 23Then Abraham approached Him solemnly and pled for the city.

Abraham (to God): God, would You really sweep away the people who do what is right along with those who are wicked? 24What if there were 50 upright people within the city? Would You still wipe the place out and not spare it on behalf of the 50 upright people who live there? 25Surely it can't be Your nature to do something like that—to kill the right-living along with those who act wickedly, to consign the innocent to the same fate as the guilty. It is inconceivable to me that You, my God, would do anything like that! Will not the "Merciful and Loving Judge" of all the earth do what is just?

* 18:6 Literally, 3 seahs or about 28 cups * 18:10 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 18:10 Romans 9:9 * 18:14 Romans 9:9 * 18:18 Galatians 3:8

Eternal One: [26]If I find 50 good and true people in the city of Sodom, I give you My word I will spare the entire city on their behalf.

Abraham *(emboldened): [27]Look, I know I am just a human being, scooped from the dust and ashes of the earth, but if I might implore You, Lord, a bit further: [28]What if the city lacked 5 of those 50 right-living people? What then? Would You destroy the entire city because it lacked those 5?

Eternal One: I won't destroy the city if I find 45 good and true people there.

Abraham *(persisting): [29]Suppose 40 are found there.

Eternal One: I won't destroy the city for the sake of 40.

Abraham: [30]Please don't be angry, Lord, at my boldness. Let me ask this: What if You found 30 there who are good and true?

Eternal One: I will not do it, even if I find only 30 there.

Abraham: [31]Since I have implored the Lord this far, may I ask: What if there were 20?

Eternal One: For the sake of 20, I will not destroy the city.

Abraham: [32]Please don't be angry, Lord, at my boldness. Let me ask this just once more: suppose only 10 are found?

Eternal One: For the sake of only 10, I still will not destroy it.

► Scripture records here an amazing exchange between the Lord and Abraham. In all of the Bible there is nothing quite like it. In these verses Abraham is negotiating with God over the fate of Sodom and its inhabitants. But this is no game. Abraham isn't bargaining with a peddler over the cost of his wares; the lives of many people hang in the balance. Abraham has followed God long enough and knows Him well enough to stand confident as he presses and probes the extent of God's mercy. God's mercy, he learns, runs deep; but there are limits, and Sodom has crossed the line.

19 The two heavenly messengers arrived in Sodom that evening, and Lot was sitting at the gate of the city. When Lot saw them, he went out to meet them and bowed low, his face touching the ground.

Lot: [2]Please, my lords, take time to come into your servant's house to spend the night and wash your feet. Then you can rise early and be on your way.

Messengers: No, we will be fine spending the night in the city square.

[3]But Lot persisted and urged them to come home with him and enjoy his hospitality. They agreed finally and came with Lot to his house. Lot prepared a huge meal for them, served with unleavened bread, and they ate until they were full. [4]But before they could lie down to rest for the night, the men of the city—that is, the men of Sodom, young and old alike, every last one of them—surrounded the house [5]and called out to Lot.

Men of Sodom: Where are the men who came with you to your house tonight? We saw them go in with you! Bring them out here. We want to have sex with them!

[6]Lot slipped out of the door to address the men, shutting it firmly behind him.

Lot: [7]Look, I beg you, brothers, don't do this. Don't sink to this level of depravity! [8]Look—I have two daughters. Both are virgins. How about this: I'll bring them out for you instead. You can do with them as you please. But please don't do anything to these men. They are my guests. They deserve the protection of my home.

► Lot leaves the safety of his home to negotiate with the men of the city, all of whom seem determined to have sex with his guests. Although his courage is commendable, his solution is deplorable—offering his virgin daughters for the deviant pleasures of his neighbors. But Lot knows their sexual preference is for his guests, not his daughters; so the offer is safe, and he has bought some time.

Men of Sodom: 9Get out of the way, man!
(to each other) Look, this guy came to our city as a stranger. He's not one of us, and yet he thinks he has the right to judge all of us!
(to Lot) You better watch out, or we'll treat you far worse than we will your guests!

They came at Lot and pushed him hard against the door until it was about to break. 10Just then the men inside reached out and pulled Lot into the house with them, shutting the door securely to block the men of Sodom out. 11Then the heavenly messengers struck all of the men pressing at the door with blindness—both young and old alike. It wasn't long before they exhausted themselves blindly groping for the door.

Messengers *(to Lot): 12Do you have anyone else here in the city—sons-in-law, sons, daughters, or any other members of your family—whom you want to save? If so, you need to get them out of here right now! 13We are going to destroy this place. Because of the immense outcry the Eternal One has received regarding the depravity of this city, the Eternal has sent us here to destroy it.

14So Lot went out and found the young men who had pledged to marry his daughters.

Lot: Get up, and get out of this place. The Eternal One is going to destroy the city!

But his sons-in-law thought he was kidding and wouldn't budge. 15At dawn, the heavenly messengers urged Lot to action again.

Messengers: Lot, you need to get up and take your wife and two daughters out of here. Otherwise you will be consumed along with the rest of the city.

16But Lot kept procrastinating, so the two heavenly messengers grabbed him, his wife, and his two daughters by the hand. They took them outside the city, a safe distance away, because the Eternal decided to show mercy to Lot and his family. 17As they were leading them to safety, one of the messengers gave this instruction:

Messenger: Now run! Run for your lives! Don't look back or stop anywhere in the plain. Head for the hills, or you'll die along with everyone else.

Lot: 18My lords, no. 19I realize you have shown me great kindness and favored me by saving my life. But please—I can't run that far. The devastation will surely catch up with me, and I'll die anyway. 20Look, over there is a city. It's not too far. I could escape there. It's just a little one. Please, let me go there instead. Then my life will surely be saved!

Messenger: 21Look, as a favor to you, I won't destroy the little city you're talking about. 22But hurry now; escape there, because I can't do anything until you arrive there safely!

Because of this, the little city Lot escaped to was called Zoar, which means, "little."
23Lot and his family arrived in Zoar just as the sun was coming up. 24Then the Eternal One rained sulfur and fire from out of the heavens onto Sodom and Gomorrah. 25He destroyed both cities, along with the other villages and towns in the valley and all of the people who lived there—even the vegetation was wiped out! 26But Lot's wife never made it; she lagged behind her husband and looked back—despite the messenger's advice—and turned into a pillar of salt.

Perhaps curiosity gets the better of her; but instead of looking ahead to her destination—a place of safety and security—she turns around and looks back at what she has left behind. In that instant, as the messenger warned, she perishes. All that is left of her is a standing pillar of salt.

27Meanwhile, Abraham rose early in the morning and went out to the place where he had stood at the feet of the Eternal One. 28He looked down toward where Sodom and Gomorrah had been. He looked up and down the valley, and everywhere he looked clouds of smoke were billowing up—black, like smoke from a giant furnace. 29Now you know the story of how God destroyed the cities of the valley, but remembered Abraham and His covenant with him. So He sent Lot out of the destruction—out of the cities where he had been living.

30After a brief time, Lot left Zoar and settled in the hill country with his two daughters. He was afraid to stay in Zoar, so he and his daughters made their home in a cave. 31One day, the firstborn daughter took her younger sister aside to discuss the future.

Firstborn Daughter: Our father is getting old. We'll never find a suitable husband around here. There's no one to father our children according to accepted custom. 32Come on—let's get him drunk on wine. Then we'll each sleep with him. That way, we'll be sure to have children to continue the family line.

33So they got Lot drunk that night, and the firstborn daughter went in and slept with her father. He was so drunk, he had no idea when she entered or when she left. 34On the next day, the firstborn told her younger sister what had happened.

Firstborn Daughter: Look, I did it. I slept with my father last night. Now it's your turn. Let's get him drunk again tonight. Then you go in and sleep with him too. That way we'll both have children through our father to ensure our family line.

35So they made their father drink wine until he was drunk a second time, and the younger daughter slept with him that night. Again Lot had no idea when she entered or when she left. 36As a result, both daughters became pregnant by their father. 37The firstborn daughter gave birth to a son and named him Moab. He became the ancestor of the Moabites that you know of today. 38The younger daughter also gave birth to a son and named him Ben-ammi. Ben-ammi is the ancestor of the Ammonites that you also know of today.

► Scripture is brutally honest when it comes to people. It never sugarcoats the depths of human degeneracy. Here is a prime example: Lot's daughters conspire to commit incest with him, an act so reprehensible it is universally condemned. They do so in order to guarantee their future and security, but as a result they create a future where insecurity and trouble are guaranteed. The nations which they birth become two of the most troublesome enemy nations God's people will ever have to deal with. As time goes on, the Moabites and Ammonites become fierce adversaries to the children of Abraham.

20 After spending a period of time in the hill country, Abraham moved on into the region of the Negev and settled in the land between Kadesh and Shur. Then he moved on to Gerar. 2*Because he was living in Gerar as a foreigner,* Abraham once again told everyone that his wife, Sarah, was his sister. King Abimelech of Gerar sent for Sarah and took her into his harem. 3But God spoke to Abimelech in a dream during the night and warned him.

Eternal One: Look, you are a dead man because the woman you have taken into your harem is a married woman.

4Up to this point, Abimelech had not physically approached her.

Abimelech: Lord, would You jeopardize a nation by killing its innocent king? 5The man himself said to me that she was his sister. Even she said he was her brother.

I took her in my harem without knowing the truth. I acted with integrity. I am completely innocent.

6Then God replied to him still in his dream.

Eternal One: Yes, I know you did this with integrity in your heart. It was I who prevented you from crossing the line. I protected you from yourself by not letting you touch her. 7Now do the right thing. Return the man's wife. He is one of My prophets. He will pray and intercede for you, and you will live. But if you do not give her back, I assure you, you will die—you and everyone associated with you.

The first person in Scripture to be called a "prophet" is Abraham. Prophets often speak for God; here he speaks to God on behalf of another.

Abimelech *(to Abraham): 10What have you done to us? What were you thinking? What have I ever done to deserve your bringing such great shame and guilt on me and my kingdom? You have done things to me that should never be done to another human being.

Abraham: 11*I did it for my own protection.* I did it because I thought this was not a God-fearing place, and I was afraid you would surely kill me to possess my wife. 12Besides it isn't entirely a lie. She really is my sister. She's the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother. But, of course, she did become my wife. 13Ever since God called me away from my father's house years ago, I told her, "I need you to do this favor for me—whenever we visit or stay in some strange or foreign place you need to tell people I am your brother."

14*For good measure* Abimelech took sheep and oxen, as well as male and female slaves, and he gave them to Abraham when he gave back his wife Sarah to him.

Abimelech *(to Abraham): 15Look, my land is your land; make your home wherever you please.

16(to Sarah) Look now, I have given your brother a thousand pieces of silver. This is to make up for what has happened. Everyone will see that you are completely vindicated of any wrongdoing.

17Abraham prayed to God on Abimelech's behalf, and God healed Abimelech. He also healed the infertility that plagued Abimelech's wife and female slaves enabling them to again bear children 18because God had temporarily sealed the wombs of all of the females of Abimelech's household—all because of what happened to Sarah, Abraham's wife.

► Once again Abraham and Sarah take matters into their own hands. Although God has promised to protect and prosper them, they choose half-truths and deception in order to stay in Abimelech's favor. The results could have been disastrous; but God's intervention stops Abimelech from violating Sarah's marriage, and in the end obedience preserves them all. Abraham, it seems, is rewarded, not because of his deception but in spite of it. Since Abimelech does the right thing, God brings hope and healing to his family as well. Does good then result from evil? Not at all. The good comes from God's action and everyone's eventual obedience. What is clear through these narratives is that God has a plan, and He can manage any contingency in achieving His purpose. When God is on the move, even evil can be turned into good.

21 The Eternal One kept His promise, 2and Sarah conceived and gave birth to Abraham's son (in their advanced age) exactly as the Eternal had indicated. 3Abraham named his child, who was born to Sarah, Isaac; 4and Abraham circumcised his son Isaac when he was eight days old, just as God had told him to do. 5Abraham was already one hundred years old when his son Isaac was born.

Sarah: 6God has graced me with the gift of laughter! To be sure, everyone who hears my story will laugh with me.

7Who would ever have said to Abraham that Sarah would one day nurse children? Yet I have given birth to his son at this late stage in his life!

8*Time went on,* and Isaac grew and was weaned from his mother. Abraham prepared a special feast in Isaac's honor, to celebrate the day he was weaned. 9But a damper was put on the day when Sarah saw the son Hagar (the Egyptian girl) bore for Abraham laughing and teasing her son. 10She became jealous and demanded of Abraham:

Sarah: Throw this slave woman and her son out right now! The son of this slave is not going to share the inheritance along with my son, Isaac, *if I have anything to do with it!

11Sarah's demand was extremely distressing to Abraham, since Ishmael was also his son. 12But God assured Abraham.

Eternal One: Don't worry about the young man and your servant. Go along with whatever Sarah says, for through Isaac your covenant children will be named.* 13As for the son of the slave woman, I will take care of him. I will raise up a nation through him as well because he is also your son.

14So Abraham got up early in the morning, took bread and a container of water, and gave them to Hagar. He placed them on her shoulder, gave her the child—his firstborn—and sent her away. She left and wandered in the wilderness near Beersheba. 15When the water in the container was all gone, in desperation she left the child under the shade of one of the bushes. 16Then she walked off and sat down opposite him, about a bowshot away.

Hagar: I can't bear to watch my child die.

Though Ishmael is about 16 years old at this time, she still considers him her child.

As she sat there, she cried loudly. 17God heard the voice of young Ishmael, and a messenger of God called out to Hagar from heaven.

Messenger: Why are you so upset, Hagar? Don't be afraid. God has heard the voice of young Ishmael. 18Come now, lift him up, and take him by the hand. I have plans to make a great nation from his descendants!

19Then God opened Hagar's eyes. She looked up from her grief and saw a well of water not far away. She went over to it, filled the container she carried with water, and gave the young man a drink. 20God watched over him for the rest of his life. Ishmael grew up, lived in the wilderness, and became an expert archer. 21So Ishmael went on to live out his life in the wilderness of Paran. When the time was right, his mother obtained a wife for him from her homeland Egypt.

22Meanwhile, Abimelech, along with Phicol, the commander of his army, spoke confidentially to Abraham.

Now that Abraham's people are so numerous and powerful, Abimelech wants to see whether Abraham will remain loyal to him.

Abimelech: God seems to bless everything you do. 23So swear to me right now on the name of your God that you and your people will be honest with me and never try to deceive me, my children, or my descendants. Promise that you will always treat me and this land where you have resided as a foreigner with kindness and grace, as I have treated you.

Abraham: 24I swear.

25Then Abraham complained to Abimelech about a time when he wasn't treated so kindly: a well of water Abraham's men had dug had been seized by Abimelech's servants.

Abimelech: 26I don't know who has done this. You didn't tell me before; this is the first I have heard about it.

27Abraham took sheep and oxen and gave them to Abimelech, and the two men made a covenant-treaty together. 28Abraham took seven female lambs from the flock and set them aside.

Abimelech *(to Abraham): 29Why have you set these seven female lambs apart from the others?

Abraham: 30These seven female lambs I am presenting to you represent your personal and public acknowledgment that I am the one who dug this well, and that it belongs to me.

* 21:10 Galatians 4:30 * 21:12 Romans 9:7; Hebrews 11:18

31From then on, the place where the well was located was called Beersheba because it was there that the two of them swore this oath together. 32After they had made the covenant-treaty at Beersheba, Abimelech, along with Phicol, the commander of his army, left and went back to the land which now belongs to the Philistines. 33And Abraham planted a tamarisk tree in Beersheba at the site, and he used it as yet another place to honor and call upon the name of the Eternal One, the Everlasting God.* 34For many years Abraham lived in peace as a foreigner in what would become the land of the Philistines.

22 After a period of time, God decided to put Abraham to the test.

Eternal One: Abraham!

Abraham: I am right here.

Eternal One: 2Take your son, your only son Isaac whom I know you love deeply, and go to the land of Moriah. When you get there, I want you to offer Isaac to Me as a burnt offering on one of the mountains. I will show you which one.

3Abraham did as he was told. Early in the morning he got up, saddled his donkey, and taking two of his trusted servants with him and his son Isaac, he cut the wood for the burnt offering and traveled to the place God had told him about. 4On the third day of the journey, Abraham looked up and saw the place far in the distance.

► Abraham leaves Beersheba as he left Haran many years earlier. God calls and he leaves. It is as simple as that. No map. No directions. Just an unwavering trust that God will lead him where he needs to go. Mount Moriah becomes one of the most important places in all of the promised land, the one place in the world set apart for the worship of the one True God. According to 2 Chronicles 3:1, Solomon builds his temple on Mount Moriah in Jerusalem, not far from where God tests Abraham.

Abraham *(to his servants): 5Stay here with the donkey. The boy and I will go over there. We will worship, and then we will come back to meet you here.

6Abraham took the wood for the burnt offering and set it on the shoulders of his son Isaac to carry. Abraham himself carried the fire and the knife. The two of them walked on together.

Isaac *(to Abraham): 7Father!

Abraham: I am right here, Son.

Isaac: Look, we have the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for the burnt offering?

Abraham: 8God will provide the lamb for the burnt offering, my son.

The two of them continued to walk on together.

9When they finally arrived at the place God had shown him, Abraham took some stones and built an altar there and arranged the wood carefully on top of it. Then he bound up his son Isaac with rope and laid him on the altar on top of the stack of wood. 10Just as Abraham reached over to grab the knife that would kill his son, 11the special messenger of the Eternal One called his name from heaven.

Special Messenger: Abraham! Abraham!

Abraham: I am right here!

Special Messenger: 12Don't lay your hand on the boy or do anything to harm him. I know now that you respect the one True God and will be loyal to Him and follow His commands, because you were willing to give up your son, your only son, to Me.

13Abraham glanced up and saw a ram behind him with its horns caught in the thicket. He went over, dislodged the ram, and offered it up as a burnt offering in the place of his son. 14*From that day forward,* Abraham called that place, "The Eternal

* 21:33 Hebrew, El Olam

One will provide." Because of this, people still today say, "On the Mount of the Eternal, all will be provided."

15The special messenger of the Eternal One called out to Abraham yet a second time from heaven.

Special Messenger: 16*Listen to* the solemn vow the Eternal One has spoken: "Because you have done what I asked and were willing to give up your son, your only son, 17I will reaffirm My covenant of blessing to you and your family.* I will make sure your descendants are as many as the stars of the heavens and the grains of sand on the shores. I reaffirm My earlier promises that your descendants will possess the lands and sit in the gates of their enemies, 18and from your descendants all the peoples of the earth will discover true blessing.* All this is because you have obeyed My voice.

► We reach the climax of Abraham's covenant story. God tests Abraham, and he passes with flying colors. Somehow he knows God will provide, for he tells his servants that he and his son will come back from the mountain. He also knows that God's covenant promises are going to be fulfilled through Isaac and not another. Although Abraham is willing to sacrifice him, he expects Isaac to still be the one through whom God's blessings come to the world. How could it all happen? Only God knows, and Abraham trusts in God and His promises. Abraham's level of trust is unmatched in all of Scripture. This is why he stands as the founding father of our faith.

19Then Abraham returned to the place where he left his trusted servants. They traveled together—Abraham, Isaac, and his servants—back to Beersheba where Abraham lived on for some time.

20After this happened, Abraham was informed that Milcah had also given birth to many children by his brother, Nahor. 21Uz was the firstborn, then came his brother Buz, Kemuel (Aram's father), 22Chesed, Hazo, Pildash, Jidlaph, and Bethuel. 23Bethuel fathered Rebekah. Nahor, Abraham's brother, had eight children in all by Milcah. 24*Not only that, but* Nahor's concubine (whose name was Reumah) also gave birth to Tebah, Gaham, Tahash, and Maacah.

23 When Sarah reached the end of her life, she was 127 years old. 2She died at Kiriath-arba (a city now known as Hebron) in Canaan. Abraham went in where her body was laid out to mourn and weep over her. 3When he got up from his place beside her, he spoke to the Hittites who had been his neighbors for many years.

Abraham: 4I am a stranger and an outsider living here among you. In my heartache, I am asking you please to allow me to obtain some property here among you as a grave site for my dead wife. This would allow me to give her a proper burial.

5The Hittites conferred and answered Abraham.

Hittites: 6Listen, my lord. We recognize you are a powerful prince among us, and God is certainly with you. Bury your dead in the best of our burial places. None of us will deny you any tomb so that you might properly bury your dead.

7Abraham got up and bowed in respect to the people of the land, the Hittites.

Abraham (to the Hittites): 8If you are really willing for me to give my dead wife a proper burial, then would you please ask Ephron (Zohar's son) for me 9if I might buy the cave of Machpelah. It is a tract of land he owns located at the end of his field. With you as my witnesses, I will offer him full price for the property as a place to bury my dead.

10Now it happened that Ephron was sitting right there among the Hittites. He personally answered Abraham so that all those present at the city gate could hear.

Ephron: 11No, my lord, listen: I will not sell it to you; I will give you the field and the cave that lies on the property. In the presence of all of these people, my

* 22:17 Hebrews 6:13-18 * 22:18 Acts 3:25; Galatians 3:8

This account reveals the complex and rather ambiguous Near Eastern way of negotiating a purchase. The transaction takes place publicly at the city gate in the presence of the community leaders who could serve as advisors to the deal or witnesses if the deal goes awry. Initially Ephron offers to give the land to Abraham for a burial site, but in true Near Eastern style the patriarch indicates respectfully that he desires to purchase it instead. Ephron's true motive may be seen in his counteroffer; the property is worth 10 pounds of silver, a not-so-insignificant price for a tract of land on the edge of his property. Abraham's motive is clear enough. He wants to own outright a parcel of land near where he and his family have lived for many years, a land promised to him by God, a land where now Sarah has died and needs a proper burial. Gifts come with strings attached, and Abraham does not want to owe Ephron or anyone else for that matter. He knows full well he owes everything to God.

people, I give it to you so that you can go and bury your dead.

12Abraham again bowed in respect to the people of the land 13and replied to Ephron so all those present could hear.

Abraham: Please, listen to what I have to say. I will gladly pay you a fair price for the field. Please accept it from me. That way I can bury my dead in peace.

14Ephron answered Abraham.

Ephron: 15My lord, listen to me. The property is worth 10 pounds of silver. Surely that is an amount we can agree on. So go, and bury your dead in peace.

16So Abraham accepted Ephron's offer, and he weighed out the silver for him in the amount they had agreed upon in the presence of the Hittites—10 pounds of silver, according to the weights among the merchants of that time.

24 Abraham was now very old. He had seen many years come and go. The Eternal One had blessed his life in every imaginable way. 2*One day,* Abraham spoke to his oldest and most-trusted servant, the man in charge of all his affairs.

Abraham: Put your hand here underneath my thigh. 3Swear by the Eternal One, the God of heaven and earth, that you will not arrange for my son to marry any of the Canaanite daughters here where I am living. 4Instead promise me you will go to my own country and my own relatives to find a wife for my son Isaac.

Servant: 5But what if the woman is not willing to follow me here to this unfamiliar land? Do you want me then to take Isaac back to your homeland?

Abraham: 6Absolutely not! Isaac's future is here. Do not take my son back there. 7The Eternal One, the God of heaven, the God who led me from my father's house and from the land of my birth long ago, the God who spoke to me and swore to me, "I am going to give this land to your future generations"—that God will send His messenger to guide and help you find a wife for my son from there. 8If for some reason the woman is not willing to follow you, then I free you from the obligation of my oath. But you must never take my son back there!

9The trusted servant took the oath, holding in his hand Abraham's power to give life. He swore to do what his master required.

This solemn oath, sworn with the servant's hand beneath Abraham's thigh, binds the servant to carry out the request.

10Then the servant gathered together 10 of his master's camels and left, taking all kinds of valuable gifts from his master to give to his relatives. He traveled all the way to Mesopotamia, to the city of Nahor.
11Outside of the city, he made the camels kneel down by a well of water to rest after the long journey. It was nearly dusk, the time when all of the women were coming out to draw water from the well. 12He said a prayer.

Servant: O Eternal One, God of my master Abraham, please make me successful today and show Your loyal love to my master Abraham. 13You see that I am standing here by the spring as the young women of the city are coming out to draw water. 14Let the girl to whom I say,
"Please dip your jar in the water that I may drink," and who will reply, "Drink, and I will draw water for your camels"— let her be the one You have chosen to be a wife for Your servant Isaac. When You do this, I will know of Your loyal love for my master.

15Before he could finish his prayer, it happened that Rebekah, the daughter of Bethuel (Milcah's and Nahor's son—Nahor, you remember, was Abraham's brother) approached the spring with her water jar on her shoulder. 16She was a very beautiful girl and still a virgin. No man had ever touched her. He watched her go down to the spring, fill her jar, and come back up the hill. 17The servant wasted no time; he ran down to meet her.

Servant: Please let me have a little water to drink from your jar.

Rebekah: 18Drink, my lord.

She quickly lowered her jar onto her hand and tipped it for him to drink. 19After she had finished giving him water, she offered to do more.

Rebekah: I'll draw some water for your camels too. I'll make sure they drink all they need.

20She quickly emptied her jar into the trough and ran again to the well to draw more water. She continued to draw water until all of the camels had drunk their fill.
21The man gazed at her in silence, waiting and wondering if she was the one the Eternal One intended for Isaac, the one who would make his journey a success. 22When
the camels had finished drinking, the man took out from his things a gold nose ring weighing about a fifth of an ounce, plus two gold bracelets for her arms weighing four ounces.

Servant: 23Please tell me, whose daughter are you? Is there any room in your father's house for us to spend the night?

Rebekah: 24I am the daughter of Bethuel (son of Milcah, Nahor's wife). 25We have plenty of straw and feed for your camels and also space for you to spend the night.

26The servant bowed his head and worshiped the Eternal One.

Servant: 27Blessed be the Eternal One, the God of my master Abraham, who has not failed to show His loyal love and faithfulness to my master, for the Eternal has led me directly to the house of my master's relatives.

28The girl ran ahead and told her mother's household everything that had happened.
29-30Now Rebekah had a brother named Laban. As soon as Laban saw the nose ring and bracelets on his sister's arms and heard what his sister, Rebekah, had to say about how this man had spoken to her, he ran to the man and found him waiting by the spring with the camels.

Laban: 31Come in, please, you who are blessed by the Eternal One! Don't stand outside. I have prepared the house for guests and have a place for the camels.

32The servant *did exactly as Laban asked.
When they* arrived at the house, Laban unloaded the camels, gave the man straw and feed for his camels, and gave him enough fresh water to wash his feet and the feet of the men who traveled with him.
33Then food was prepared and set in front of him to eat.

Servant: I will not eat until I tell you why
I am here.

Laban: Please, tell us!

Servant: 34I am Abraham's servant. 35The Eternal One has blessed my master in a multitude of ways; he has become a great and wealthy man. The Eternal has given him flocks and herds, silver and gold, male and female servants, camels and donkeys. 36Sarah, my master's wife, gave birth to his son when she was quite old, and Abraham has passed on all he has to him.

37My master made me swear, saying, "You will not arrange for my son to marry any of the Canaanite daughters here where we are living; 38instead, you will go to my father's house—to my own relatives to find a wife for my son." 39I asked my master, "What if the woman won't follow me to this unfamiliar land?" 40But he told me, "The Eternal One, with whom I walked all these years, will send His messenger with you to guide and help you along the way. I know you will find a wife for my son among my relatives, from my father's family. 41When you reach my family, then you will be free from my oath. Even if they won't give her to you, you will still be free from my oath."

42I arrived here today and came to the spring and said a prayer: "O Eternal One, God of my master Abraham, if You will only make my trip successful! 43You see that I am standing here by the spring. Let the young woman who comes out to draw water and to whom I shall say, 'Please give me a little water from your jar to drink,' 44and who will reply to me, 'Drink, and I will draw water for your camels,' let her be the woman the Eternal has chosen to be a wife for my master's son." 45Before I could even finish speaking to God from my heart, Rebekah approached the spring with her water jar on her shoulder. She went down to the spring and drew water. I said to her, "Please let me have a drink," 46and she quickly lowered her jar from her shoulder and said, "Drink, and I will also give your camels some water." So I drank, and she made sure my camels had enough water. 47Then I asked her, "Whose daughter are you?" And she said, "The daughter of Bethuel (son of Milcah, Nahor's wife)." That's when I put the ring on her nose and the bracelets on her arms. 48Then I bowed my head and worshiped the Eternal, and blessed the God of my master Abraham because He led me in the right direction and to the right place in order to find the granddaughter of my master's brother for his son.

49Now then, if you intend to show loyal love and faithfulness to my master, tell me. If not, also tell me, so that I know which way to go from here.

Laban and Bethuel: 50*There is no doubt* this comes from the Eternal One. We cannot find fault or add anything to what you have said. 51Look, you've found Rebekah here. Take her, and go. Let her marry your master's son as the Eternal has intended.

52When Abraham's servant heard this, he bowed low to the ground before the Eternal. 53He brought out silver and gold jewelry and beautiful clothes, and the servant presented them to Rebekah. He also gave her brother and her mother expensive ornaments to pay her bride-price. 54Then he and the men who traveled with him ate and drank heartily, and they spent the night there. After everyone had risen the next morning, he asked his hosts for permission to leave and return to his master with Rebekah.

Laban and Rebekah's Mother: 55Allow Rebekah to remain with us just a little while longer—perhaps 10 days. After that, she may go.

Servant: 56Please don't delay my journey. Since the Eternal One has made me successful in my mission, grant me permission to leave and return to my master.

Laban and Rebekah's Mother: 57We'll call Rebekah now and ask her what she wants to do.

58They called for Rebekah.

Laban and Rebekah's Mother *(to Rebekah): Are you willing to go with this man?

Rebekah: Yes, I will go.

59So the family gathered and sent Rebekah, their sister, along with her nurse to go with Abraham's servant and his men. 60They all blessed Rebekah, saying,

> May you, our dear sister, > be blessed with thousands upon > thousands of children,
> And may your descendants possess
> the cities of their enemies.

61At last Rebekah and her maidservants all went out, mounted the camels, and followed Abraham's trusted servant back toward Canaan. This is how the servant found Rebekah and took her to be Isaac's wife.

62Meanwhile, Isaac had come back from a trip to Beer-lahai-roi and was living in the Negev. 63Isaac went outside toward evening to take a walk in the field. As he was deep in thought, he looked up and saw the camels coming toward him. 64*At the same time,* Rebekah looked up; and when she saw Isaac, she slipped down quickly from the camel 65and spoke softly to the servant.

Rebekah: Who is that man over there,
walking in the field to meet us?

Servant: Ah, it is my young master.

So she took her veil and covered herself so as to be in proper attire to meet her future husband. 66*When Isaac reached them,* the servant told him all of the amazing things that had happened. 67Then Isaac brought Rebekah into his mother Sarah's tent. He took her as his wife and slept with her, and grew to love her deeply. In this way, Isaac found comfort in the wake of his mother's death.

25 In time, Abraham married another woman named Keturah. 2Keturah gave birth to additional children: Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak, and Shuah. 3Jokshan fathered Sheba and Dedan. Dedan's sons were Asshurim, Letushim, and Leummim. 4Midian's sons were Ephah, Epher, Hanoch, Abida, and Eldaah. All of these were Keturah's children and grandchildren. 5*In the end, though,* Abraham gave everything he owned to Isaac. 6To the sons of his concubines, Abraham gave gifts while he was still alive. But then he sent them away to the east, far away from what would now be his son Isaac's household.

7Abraham lived a total of 175 years. 8By the time Abraham took his last breath and joined his ancestors in death, he had reached a ripe old age and had lived a full life. 9His sons, Isaac and Ishmael, buried him in the cave of Machpelah in the field of Ephron (the son of Zohar the Hittite) to the east of Mamre. 10This was the field Abraham had purchased from the Hittites. Here he was buried with his wife Sarah by his side. 11After Abraham's death, God blessed his son Isaac. And Isaac settled into his home at Beer-lahai-roi.

19This is the lineage of Isaac, Abraham's son. Abraham was of course his father, 20and Isaac was 40 years old when he married Rebekah (the daughter of Bethuel the Aramean of Paddan-aram, sister of Laban the Aramean). 21Isaac prayed to the Eternal One on behalf of his wife because she wasn't becoming pregnant. The Eternal granted his prayer, and Rebekah conceived after 20 years. 22But the children she carried struggled and fought with each other until, in great pain, she exclaimed, "What is going on? Why is this happening to me?" In frustration she inquired of the Eternal One why this civil war was occurring inside of her.

Eternal One (to Rebekah): 23"Two nations are growing inside of your womb, and the two peoples will be divided in the future.
One will be stronger than the other,
and the older will serve the younger.*

24When it was time for Rebekah to give birth, she saw that she was carrying twins. 25The first came out red—his entire body like a hairy blanket—so they named him Esau. 26His brother followed with his hand clutching Esau's heel, so they named him Jacob. Isaac was 60 years old when Rebekah gave birth to the twins.

27When the boys grew up, they could not have been more different. Esau became a skillful hunter and preferred to be outdoors. Jacob, on the other hand, grew up to be a contemplative man, content to stay at home. 28Esau was Isaac's favorite because he was fond of good meat, but Jacob was Rebekah's favorite.

* 25:23 Romans 9:11-12

29One day, while Jacob was cooking a stew for dinner, Esau came in from the field. He was tired and hungry.

Esau (to Jacob): 30Please let me have some of that red stew you have there. I'm famished!

(That's why he was nicknamed Edom, which means "red.")

Jacob sees Esau's weakness and decides to take advantage of the situation.

Jacob: 31First, you have to sell me your birthright.

Esau: 32Look! I am about to die of starvation! What good is my birthright to me if I am dead?

Jacob: 33Swear to me first!

And so Esau swore to Jacob and handed over his rights as the firstborn son. 34Then Jacob gave Esau some bread and lentil stew. Esau ate and drank. When he was satisfied, Esau went his way as if nothing had happened. Esau treated his valuable birthright contemptuously.

26 Once again, a famine spread through the land, similar to the one that occurred in Abraham's time. Isaac went to the land of Gerar to appeal to King Abimelech of the Philistines. 2The Eternal appeared in a vision to Isaac.

Eternal One: Don't go down to Egypt, Isaac. Instead settle in the land I will show you. 3Live in this land as a foreigner, but don't worry. I will be there with you. I will put a blessing on you, and I will one day bestow this land on you and your descendants. You can be assured that I will honor the solemn vow I made to your father, Abraham: 4I will make your children and their children's children as numerous as the stars in the sky. One day I will give them all of these lands. Through your descendants all the peoples of the earth will discover true blessing,* 5because Abraham obeyed My voice, stayed loyal to Me, and kept My commands, statutes, and teachings.*

6So Isaac settled into the land of Gerar. 7When the men of the area asked him about his wife, he was afraid to say, "Rebekah is my wife," because he thought, "The men here might kill me in order to have her for themselves. She is after all an attractive woman." So Isaac said instead, "She is my sister." 8After they had lived there for a while, King Abimelech of the Philistines looked out of his window one day and saw Isaac affectionately touching and caressing his wife Rebekah. 9So Abimelech called Isaac to his court.

Abimelech: I see that she is your wife! Why did you say then, "She is my sister"?

Isaac: Because I thought I might die because of her!

Abimelech: 10*What's the matter with you?* What have you done to us? One of my people might easily have slept with your wife. Then you would have brought great shame and guilt upon me and my kingdom!

11(warning his people) Whoever so much as touches this man or his wife will be put to death.

► Isaac repeats the ruse his father used in Egypt and Gerar many years earlier. Abraham told another Abimelech (likely the father or grandfather of this Philistine king) that Sarah was his sister to avoid being killed. Isaac tries the same trick for the same reason but is soon found out. Many rulers in that day would have killed or severely punished a man for telling such tales and jeopardizing their reign. Somehow, however, Abraham and Isaac not only survive, but they grow rich from the experiences.

12Isaac settled in and made a place for himself in the land, sowing seeds and reaping one hundred times what he had planted that year. The Eternal One indeed put a blessing on him, 13and Isaac became very rich. He prospered more and more until he became enormously wealthy. 14He had so many flocks and herds and servants that the Philistines began to envy him. 15(For spite, some of the Philistines filled with dirt all of the wells his father's servants had dug in the days when Abraham was living there.) 16Even Abimelech was threatened by his prosperity.

Abimelech *(to Isaac): It is best you leave our land. Your success has made you more powerful than we are. You can't live here any longer.

17Isaac left there, set up camp in the valley of Gerar, and decided to live there for a while.

18Isaac had to re-dig all of the water wells that his father had installed because the Philistines had filled them in after Abraham's death. He renamed them with the names his father had given them. 19But when Isaac's servants dug in the valley and found a new well of fresh water, 20the herders of Gerar began quarreling with Isaac's herders.

Herders of Gerar: This water is ours!

So Isaac named this well Esek, which means "contention," because of the arguments he had with the herders. 21Isaac's men dug another well, and the water wars started again. So Isaac called it Sitnah, which means "enmity." 22Isaac didn't want any more trouble, so he moved on from there and dug yet another well. At last, they didn't quarrel over this one, so Isaac named this well Rehoboth, which means "wide spaces."

Isaac *(explaining): Now the Eternal One has provided this wide space for us. We will become numerous and prosperous in this land.

23From there, Isaac traveled to Beersheba. 24The night they arrived, the Eternal One appeared to him.

Eternal One: I am the God of your father, Abraham. Don't be afraid because I am there with you. I will bless you with many descendants according to the promise I made to My servant, Abraham.

25*Inspired by this vision,* Isaac built an altar at that place. He invoked the name of the Eternal and sacrificed to Him there, pitched his tent, and directed his servants to dig a well.

26One day Abimelech came from Gerar to see him along with Ahuzzath, his advisor, and Phicol, the commander of his army.

Isaac: 27Why are you coming to see me? You made it clear that you hate me and want me banished from your kingdom.

Abimelech and his Advisors: 28It is not hard to see that the Eternal One is with you. So we agreed among ourselves that it is in our best interests for us to enter into a binding treaty with you. Let us make a covenant 29that you would pledge to do us no harm, just as we have not harmed you. We have behaved honorably toward you and sent you away in peace. You clearly have the hand of the Eternal resting on you.

Isaac agreed to take the oath. 30He prepared them a feast, and they all ate and drank. 31In the morning, they got up early and exchanged oaths. Then Isaac sent them on their way, and they left in peace. 32That very same day, Isaac's servants came and excitedly told him about a new well they had dug.

Servants: We found water!

33Isaac named this well Shibah, which means "oath," and that's why the name of the city there is called Beersheba to this day.

34Meanwhile Esau (Isaac's son) was turning 40. He married Judith (the daughter of Beeri the Hittite) and also Basemath (the daughter of Elon the Hittite). 35They would make life miserable for Isaac and Rebekah.

27 When Isaac grew old, his eyes were so bad he could see only shadows. He called his eldest son, Esau, to his side.

Isaac: My son.

Esau: I'm here.

Isaac: 2You see that I am growing old now. I may die any day. 3Take your hunting weaponry—your quiver and your bow—and go out to the field and hunt game for me. 4Then prepare for me some savory food, just the way I like it. Bring it to me to eat so that I may speak a blessing over you before I die.

5Rebekah was listening at the doorway as Isaac spoke to his son Esau. When Esau went into the field to hunt for game to bring to his father, 6Rebekah called her son Jacob.

Rebekah: I heard your father say to your brother Esau, 7"Bring me game and prepare for me some savory food to eat, so I can bless you before the Eternal before I die." 8My son, listen and do what I tell you: 9Go to the flock, and bring me two of the best young goats. I can prepare the savory food for your father from them. I know just how he likes it. 10Then you take it to your father to eat so that he speaks a blessing over you before he dies.

Jacob *(to Rebekah, his mother): 11Look, my brother Esau is a hairy man, and I have smooth skin. 12If father reaches out and touches me, he'll figure it out and think I'm mocking him. Then I'll bring a curse upon myself instead of a blessing!

Rebekah: 13*If that happens,* then let the curse be on me and not you. Just listen to me. Go, and get them for me.

14Jacob went and brought the young goats to his mother, who prepared a mouth-watering meal just as his father liked it.
15Then Rebekah took the best clothes of her older son Esau, which were with her in the house, and she put them on her younger son Jacob. 16She affixed the skins of the young goats onto the back of his hands and on the smooth part of his neck.
17Then she handed him the delicious food and the fresh bread she had prepared.
18Jacob went in to his father.

Jacob: My father.

Isaac: I'm here. Who are you, my son?

Jacob: 19I'm Esau, your firstborn son. I have done as you asked. Now sit up and eat the game I have brought for you so that you can speak a blessing over me.

Isaac: 20How did you manage to hunt the game and cook the food so quickly, my son?

Jacob: The Eternal One, your God, gave me success today.

Isaac: 21Please come over here so I can feel you, my son, so that I know it is really you, Esau.

22So Jacob went over to his father, and Isaac reached out and felt his hands. He was a bit confused.

Isaac: Your voice sounds like Jacob's, but your hands feel like Esau's.

23Because of the young goat's fur on the back of his hands, his father did not recognize him, and so Isaac proceeded to bless Jacob instead of Esau.

Isaac: 24Are you really my son, Esau?

Jacob: I am.

Isaac: 25Then bring the food to me, and I'll eat my son's game and give you my blessing.

Jacob brought Isaac the food, and Isaac ate it. Then Jacob brought him some wine to drink. 26When he finished it, his father, Isaac, told him to approach.

Isaac: Please come near and kiss me,
my son.

27Jacob went over and kissed his father, and Isaac breathed in the scent of the outdoors on Esau's clothes. Then he gave Jacob the blessing, passing on the promise of God's covenant.

Isaac: Ah, the smell of my son, Esau, is like the smell of a field the Eternal One has blessed.
28*Therefore,* may God grant you gentle showers from heaven and the fertile soils of the earth, and rich harvests of grain and wine.
29May many peoples come and serve you,
and may nations bow down to you.
May you be the master of your brothers, and may your mother's sons all bow down before you.
May anyone who curses you be cursed,
and may everyone who blesses you
be blessed!

30Now as soon as Isaac had finished blessing Jacob and when Jacob had barely left his father, his brother Esau returned from hunting. 31He had also prepared a sumptuous meal and brought it to his father.

Esau: Father, sit up now and eat the game
I have brought for you, so that you can speak a blessing over me.

Isaac: 32Who are you?

Esau: I am your son, Esau, your firstborn!

33*It began to dawn on Isaac what had happened.* Then Isaac began trembling violently.

Isaac: Who was it then that hunted game and brought it to me to eat before you came? I have already given him my blessing! It's now too late. He has already received the blessing.

34When Esau realized what happened, he cried out in an angry, loud, and bitter voice.

Esau: Bless me—me also—Father!

Isaac: 35*I cannot my son.* Your brother came deceitfully, and he has taken away your blessing.

Esau: 36"Jacob" is certainly the right name for him! He has once again grabbed me by the heels! He has deceived me now two times. He took away my birthright, and now he has taken away my blessing! Have you no blessing reserved for me as well?

Isaac: 37Understand that I have already made him your master. I have declared all of his brothers are subject to him. I have granted him prosperity, sustained him with grain and wine. What then could I possibly do for you, my son?

Esau: 38Have you only one blessing, Father? Bless me—me also—Father!

Esau realized the futility of his pleas. He raised his voice, and he cried pitiably.
39Isaac spoke over him the only blessing he thought he could:

Isaac: You will make your home far from the richness of the earth, far away from the gentle showers of heaven above.
40You will live by your sword,
and you will serve your brother.
But when you grow restless to be free,
you will break his yoke from your neck.

41Esau hated Jacob with a fury, because his brother now carried the blessing his father meant for him.

Esau *(to himself): The days of mourning for my father are approaching. When he has died, I will kill my brother, Jacob.

42But someone overheard him speaking of this and informed Rebekah. She called for Jacob, her younger son, and told him to flee.

Rebekah *(to Jacob): Listen to me. Your brother Esau is consoling himself by planning to kill you. 43Do as I say. Get up and go to my brother Laban's house in Haran. 44Stay with him for a while until your brother has calmed down.
45Wait until his anger against you subsides and he forgets what you've done to him. Then I will send for you and bring you back. I don't want to lose both of you—one to death and one to punishing exile—in one day!

Rebekah comes up with a plan to send Jacob away. But it must look like Isaac's idea.

46Rebekah then went to Isaac complaining about Esau's Hittite wives.

Rebekah *(to Isaac): These Hittite women Esau is married to are making my life miserable. If Jacob marries a Hittite woman like one of these, a woman from here in this land, what good can come of that? Why should I even go on living?

28 Isaac called Jacob to him, blessed him again, and instructed him.

Isaac: You are not to marry one of the Canaanite women. 2Get up and pack your things, go to Paddan-aram to the house of Bethuel (your mother's father), and find a wife there among Laban's daughters. (Laban is your mother's brother.) 3May the All-Powerful God* bless you, make you fruitful, and multiply your descendants so that you will give rise to nation after nation! 4May God give to you and to your children in this inheritance all of the blessings of Abraham, so that you might someday possess the land where you now live as a foreigner—a land that was promised by God to Abraham.

► When the Lord told Abraham to leave Haran and travel to Canaan,

* 28:3 Hebrew, El Shaddai

most of his relatives remained in Northern Mesopotamia in towns between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. The area southwest of Haran becomes known as Paddan-aram (the plain of Aram). Abraham and some of the other patriarchs continue to see this land and its people as their own. This is why Jacob and his family are known as Arameans (Deuteronomy 26:5).

5So Isaac sent Jacob away, and he went to Paddan-aram to Laban, son of Bethuel the Aramean and brother of Rebekah (Jacob and Esau's mother).

6Now Esau saw that his father, Isaac, had again blessed Jacob and sent him to Paddan-aram to find a wife there, instructing him not to marry any of the Canaanite women. 7He learned, too, that Jacob had gone there just as his father and mother both wanted. 8So, realizing his father did not like his Canaanite wives, 9Esau went to see Ishmael and took Mahalath, the daughter of Ishmael (Abraham's other son) and the sister of Nebaioth, to be his wife in addition to the two others.

Eternal One: I am the Eternal One, the God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac. The land on which you are now lying is the land I have promised to give to you and your descendants. 14Your descendants will be as many as there are specks of dust on the earth. You will spread out to the west, east, north, and south. Through your descendants, all the families of the earth will find true blessing. 15Know I am with you, and I will watch over you no matter where you go. One day I will bring you back to this land. I will not leave you until I have done all I have promised you.

► Dreams are a bit mysterious. There are many theories about what dreams are and why we dream, but no one knows for sure. What is sure is that at times in the Scriptures God uses dreams to reveal Himself to His covenant partners. Certainly not everyone has revelatory dreams, and not all dreams are revelatory. But sometimes, on special occasions, when it suits God's purposes, dreams can be a vehicle to see, hear, and experience reality as God knows it. It happens here with Jacob, who has not yet fully embraced the Eternal as his God; and it continues to happen in both testaments with Joseph, Daniel, Peter, and others.

16*The dream ended, and* Jacob woke up from his sleep.

Jacob *(to himself): There is no doubt in my mind that the Eternal One is in this place—and I didn't even know it!

17*But even as he said this,* a bit of fear came over him.

Jacob: This place is absolutely awesome! It can be none other than the house of God and the gateway into heaven!

18So early the next morning Jacob took the stone he had put under his head, set it up as a pillar, and then poured oil on top of it to commemorate his experience with God. 19He named that place Bethel, which means "house of God." Before that the name of the city had been called Luz. 20Then Jacob made a vow.

Jacob: If God is going to be with me, keeping me safe on this journey and giving me bread to eat and clothing to wear 21so that I return to my father's house in peace, then the Eternal will be my God. 22And this stone I have made into a pillar will be the first stone laid in God's house. And Lord, of everything You give me, I will give one-tenth always back to You!

29 Jacob continued on his journey until he came to the land of the people who lived in the east.

2As he approached, he saw a well in the field and three flocks of sheep lying beside it because the flocks were used to being watered from the well. The stone on the well's mouth was large; 3and when all of the flocks were gathered, the shepherds would roll the stone from the mouth of the well, give water to the sheep, and then roll the stone back in its place over the mouth of the well. 4Jacob spoke to them as he approached.

Jacob *(to the shepherds): Brothers, where do you come from?

Shepherds: We are from Haran.

Jacob: 5Do you know Laban, son of Nahor?

Shepherds: We do.

Jacob: 6Is he well?

Shepherds: Yes, he is. Look, here comes his daughter Rachel with the sheep right now.

Jacob: 7Look, it's still broad daylight, too early to gather the livestock together for the evening. Why don't you water the sheep and take them out to graze in the pasture?

Shepherds: 8We can't—not until all of the flocks are gathered together and the stone is rolled from the mouth of the well. Then we water the sheep.

9While Jacob was still speaking to the shepherds, Rachel came with her father's sheep for she, too, was a shepherd. 10Now when Jacob saw Rachel, the daughter of his mother's brother Laban, along with Laban's sheep, he went up to the well, rolled the stone from the well's mouth by himself, and watered Laban's flock. 11Then Jacob greeted Rachel with a kiss and cried for joy. 12Jacob told Rachel he was her father's relative—Rebekah's son—and she ran and told her father.

13When Laban heard the news about the arrival of his sister's son, Jacob, he ran to meet him. He hugged him and kissed him, and he brought Jacob to his house. Jacob told Laban everything.

Laban: 14You are surely my flesh and bone!

And Jacob stayed with Laban for a month and helped out with all his livestock.

15Then Laban spoke one day to Jacob.

Laban: Just because you are my relative, that doesn't mean you should be working for me for nothing! Tell me what I can pay you.

16Now Laban had two daughters. The older was Leah, and her younger sister was Rachel. 17There was no brightness to Leah's eyes, but Rachel had a beautiful shape and was lovely to look at. 18Jacob truly loved Rachel.

Since Jacob has no money to pay a bride-price, he offers a creative solution to the problem.

Jacob: I'll make a deal with you. I'll serve you for seven years in exchange for the hand of your younger daughter Rachel in marriage.

Laban: 19*Agreed.* I'd rather you have her than any other man I know. You may stay here and work.

20So Jacob served Laban for seven years in exchange for Rachel. The years went by quickly and seemed to him to be only a few days because of the immense love he had for her.

21When the time came, Jacob approached Laban.

Jacob: I have now completed seven years of work for you. I ask you now to give me my wife so that I may consummate my marriage.

22So Laban gathered together all of the people in the area and prepared a great feast. 23But in the evening, he took his daughter Leah and brought her to Jacob, and Jacob slept with her thinking she was Rachel. 24Laban gave his servant Zilpah to his daughter Leah to be her servant. 25When morning came, Jacob realized Leah was the one with him in the marriage bed.

Jacob: What have you done to me? Did we not have a deal—seven years of labor in exchange for your daughter Rachel? Why have you deceived me?

Laban: 26That isn't something we do here in this country—giving the younger daughter in marriage before the first-born. 27If you complete this wedding week with Leah, then I will also give you

Rachel. But in return, you must serve me another seven years.

Wedding celebrations last seven days, plenty of time for Leah to become pregnant with Laban's first grandchild.

28Jacob agreed and completed his week with Leah. And then Laban gave him his daughter Rachel in marriage. 29Laban gave his servant Bilhah to his daughter Rachel to be her servant. 30Then Jacob also slept with Rachel, and he clearly loved Rachel more than Leah. As agreed, he served Laban for another seven years.

31When the Eternal One saw how Leah was unloved, He made her fertile, but Rachel remained barren. 32Leah conceived and gave birth to a son, and she named him Reuben.

Leah: Because the Eternal One has been compassionate to me in my painful predicament, allowing me to bear this child, surely now my husband will love me.

33*In time,* she conceived again and gave birth to another son.

Leah: Because the Eternal One has heard I am unloved, He has given me this son too.

So Leah named the second son Simeon. 34Then she conceived for the third time and gave birth to her third son.

Leah: Surely now my husband will be more attached to me, because I have given him three sons.

Leah named the third son Levi. 35And once again, she conceived and gave birth to her fourth son.

Leah: This time I will praise the Eternal One!

So Leah named this son Judah. After Judah, Leah didn't have any more children for a while.

30 When Rachel realized she couldn't have Jacob's children, she grew envious of her sister and complained to Jacob.

Rachel: I'll just die if you don't give me children!

2Jacob became angry with Rachel.

Jacob: Am I God? He's the One responsible for you not getting pregnant, not me!

Rachel: 3Here's my servant, Bilhah. Sleep with her so she can be a surrogate for me. I'll have my children through her.

► What Rachel suggests is not at all improper for her time. As you may recall, Sarah and Abraham had a similar situation with Hagar (16:1-4). Custom allows for these kinds of arrangements, just as technology today allows for an infertile woman to have a child through a surrogate. Any child born to Bilhah is regarded as Rachel's, because she has the right to name the child. As we have seen, the naming of a child carries great significance.

4So she gave Jacob her servant Bilhah to be another one of his wives, and Jacob slept with her. 5Bilhah conceived and gave birth to Jacob's son.

Rachel: 6God has absolved me. He has heard my plea and has given me a son after all!

So this is why Rachel named her son Dan. 7Rachel's servant Bilhah soon conceived again and gave birth to a second son for Jacob.

Rachel: 8I have had to wrestle with my own sister as I've wrestled with God, but I have prevailed.

So Rachel named this son Naphtali.

9When it seemed Leah was not going to have any more children, she took her servant Zilpah and gave her to Jacob to be a wife as well. 10So Leah's servant Zilpah gave birth to a son for Jacob.

Leah: 11Good fortune has arrived!

This is why she named him Gad.

12Then Leah's servant Zilpah gave birth to a second son for Jacob. 13Leah named him Asher to express her joy.

Leah: I am so happy! All of the women can see how happy I am!

14When it came time to harvest the wheat, Reuben went out and found some mandrakes in the field and brought them to his mother Leah. Rachel heard about this and approached her sister.

Rachel: Would you please give me some of the mandrakes your son found?

Leah: 15You know it is no small matter that you've stolen the attentions of my husband. Now you want my son's mandrakes too?

Rachel: Then he can sleep with you tonight in exchange for some of your son's mandrakes!

16So when Jacob came from the field in the evening, Leah went out to meet him.

Leah: Tonight you must sleep with me because I have hired you for a good price—some of my son's mandrakes.

So he slept with her that night. 17God listened to Leah and showed her His favor, and after many years she again conceived and gave birth to her fifth son for Jacob.

Leah: 18God has paid me my wages, since I gave my servant to my husband.

This is why she named her son Issachar.
19And God's favor didn't stop with him; Leah conceived again and gave birth to a sixth son for Jacob.

Leah: 20God has given me a plentiful gift. Now my husband will surely honor me, because I have given him six sons.

This is why she named her sixth son Zebulun. 21And at last after that, she gave birth to a daughter and named her Dinah.
22Then God remembered Rachel. He heard her prayer and made her fertile. 23She conceived and gave birth to her first son.

Rachel: God has taken away my shame.

24She decided to name him Joseph.

Rachel: May the Eternal One add to me another son!

25-26After Rachel had given birth to Joseph, Jacob asked Laban for release.

Jacob: It's time for me to return home, to my own people and country. Please release me with my wives and my children. I have worked for you a long time to obtain them, and you know how well I have served you.

Laban: 27If you look upon me with favor, please stay here. You are a good omen. The Eternal One has blessed me because of you. 28Name your price, and I will give it to you.

Jacob: 29You know how well I have served you. You have seen your livestock flourish and your herds grow under my supervision. 30You had little before I arrived, but your wealth has increased significantly since the Eternal One has blessed you in whatever I did for you. But now, when will it be time for me to provide for my own household?

Laban: 31What do you want me to give you?

Jacob: I don't want you to give me anything. I only ask for one favor. Do this for me, and I'll keep on feeding and taking care of your flocks. 32Let me go through the flock today and put aside for myself every speckled and spotted sheep and every black lamb, and also the spotted and speckled goats, and this is how you can pay me. 33My honesty will be evident when you come to check on me. If you find one lamb or goat among my flocks that isn't speckled, spotted, or black, then you may count it as stolen.

Laban: 34Agreed. Do this exactly as you have said.

35But that day, Laban secretly removed the male goats that were striped and spotted, all the female goats that were speckled and spotted—every one with any white on it at all—and every lamb that was black. He put them under the watch of his sons. 36Then he set off with his sons and those mottled animals a three-day distance away from Jacob to make sure the flocks would stay separated. Meanwhile Jacob was pasturing the rest of Laban's flock.

Jacob soon figures out what Laban has done. The deceiver has once again been deceived.

[37]But Jacob cut some fresh branches of poplar, almond, and plane trees; and he striped off the bark in streaks exposing the white wood beneath. [38]He set the striped branches in front of the flocks in the troughs—the water troughs, that is—where they came to drink. Since they would mate when they came to drink, [39]the flocks mated in front of the branches and produced young that were striped, speckled, and spotted. [40]Jacob separated these newly born lambs from Laban's flock, and when they mated again he faced Laban's animals toward the striped and black animals. He kept his own droves separate from Laban's. This is how he increased his own flock. [41]Whenever the stronger females of the flock were ready to mate, Jacob laid the striped branches in the troughs right in front of them, so that they would breed among them. [42]But when he saw the feebler animals ready to mate, he didn't lay the rods out so that in the end, the feebler of the animals became Laban's and the stronger became Jacob's. [43]In this way, Jacob grew extremely rich, and he ended up with very large flocks, male and female slaves, and camels and donkeys too.

► Jacob, the heel-catcher, has met a kindred spirit. Both men are deceivers and manipulators. Both do whatever they can to get the better of the other. It just comes naturally. Laban tricks Jacob first by marrying him to Leah before Rachel. Then, after Jacob and he agree on a clear strategy to separate the flocks, Laban goes behind his back and takes away the animals that rightfully belong to Jacob. But Jacob is crafty, too, and he devises a way to produce striped, speckled, and spotted animals from Laban's flocks. After the many years of service, Jacob finally outwits Laban and gains a more valuable flock in the process. Deception may work for a while, but there are dire consequences that come with it. Jacob's situation is about to change, and it isn't long before his deceptive days are behind him.

31 As time went on, Jacob overheard what Laban's sons were saying about him.

Laban's Sons: Jacob has taken everything that belonged to our father; he gained all his wealth from taking advantage of him.

[2]And Jacob also noticed a change in how Laban looked at him and treated him. He seemed colder toward him than before.

Eternal One (to Jacob): [3]You must now return to the land of your ancestors and to your own family. I will be with you always.

[4]So Jacob called his wives Rachel and Leah to meet him in the field where his flock was grazing.

Jacob: [5]I notice your father's attitude toward me has changed; he doesn't regard me with the same respect as he did before. But the God of my father has been with me. [6]You both know how well I have served your father—with all my strength. [7]However your father cheated me by changing the terms of my salary 10 times, but beyond that my God did not allow him to harm me. [8]If your father said, "The speckled will be your payment," then all of the flock became speckled; and if he said, "the striped will be your payment," then all of the flock became striped. [9]In this way, God has taken away your father's livestock and given them to me. [10]During the mating season of the flock, I once paid attention to a dream, and in the dream, I saw the male goats that mated with the flock were striped, speckled, and mottled. [11]Then God's messenger said to me in the dream, "Jacob!" and I answered, "I'm here." [12]And the messenger said, "Look up right now, and see all of the goats that are mating with the flock are striped, speckled, and mottled because I have noticed everything Laban is doing to you. [13]I am the God of Bethel, the place where you poured oil on a pillar and made a vow to Me.* Now get up, leave this land, and return to the land where you were born."

Rachel and Leah: [14]Is there any inheritance at all left for us from our father's house? [15]He regards us as foreigners now that we've married you. He sold us in exchange for your years of labor, and he has been using up all of the money that should have been ours. 16All of the property God has taken from our father and given to you actually belongs to us and to our children anyway! So do whatever God said to do.

17So Jacob got up, and he put his children and his wives on camels for the journey. 18He rounded up all of his livestock and all of the property he had gained, including the livestock he had acquired in Paddan-aram, and he began to drive them to his father Isaac in the land of Canaan. 19*Meanwhile* Laban had gone off to shear his sheep. While he was out, Rachel stole her father's household idols. 20And Jacob likewise deceived Laban the Aramean by hiding from him the fact that he was leaving. 21He just left quickly with everything he had. He crossed the Euphrates River and set pace south toward the hill country of Gilead.

22Three days later, Laban was told that Jacob had left. 23So he gathered a group of his relatives, and together they pursued him for seven days until they closed in on Jacob in the hill country of Gilead. 24Then God came to Laban the Aramean in a dream during the night with a message.

Eternal One: Be careful what you say and do to Jacob.

25Laban caught up to Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent and set up camp in the hill country; and Laban, along with his relatives, also camped in the hill country of Gilead. Laban went out to meet Jacob.

Laban *(to Jacob): 26What have you done, deceiving me and carrying off my daughters as if they were your prisoners of war? 27Why did you run out on me and try to trick me? Why didn't you just tell me you were going? I would have sent you off with celebration and songs, with the joyful sounds of the tambourine and lyre. 28And why didn't you even allow me to kiss my daughters and grandchildren good-bye? What you have done is foolish. 29It is certainly in my power to punish you, but the God of your father Isaac spoke to me last night and said, "Be careful what you say and do to Jacob." 30Now you have left because you missed your father's household—I can understand that—but why did you have to steal my family gods?

Jacob *(answering Laban): 31*I left* because I was afraid, and because I thought you would take your daughters away from me by force. 32But I pledge to you that anyone who stole your gods will not live. I certainly did not take them. Here in the presence of all of our relatives, search the camp and let's see if anything I have is yours. If there is, you can take it back!

Of course, Jacob had no idea Rachel had stolen the idols.

33So Laban went into Jacob's tent, into Leah's tent, and into the two female servants' tent; he searched, but he did not find them. Then he came out of Leah's tent and into Rachel's. 34Now Rachel had taken the household gods and concealed them in the camel's saddle, and she sat on them. Laban looked around and felt everything in the tent, but he did not find them.

Rachel *(to her father): 35Please don't be angry that I cannot get up for you, sir, but I am in the midst of my "time of month."

Rachel has learned the art of deception well from her father and her husband.

So Laban searched, but he did not find the household gods.

Jacob: What is my offense? What have I done that is so wicked to make you pursue me like a common criminal? 37You searched through all of my things, and what have you found that belonged to you? Whatever it is, set it down here between your family and mine, and they can decide whose it is. 38I've worked for you for 20 years. Your ewes and your female goats have never miscarried under my care. I have never feasted on any of the rams in your flocks. 39When wild animals attacked, I didn't bring the carcass to you to deal with; I bore the cost myself. You required me to cover any losses, whether the animals were stolen by day or night, and I did so. 40There I was—at your service—during the day I was hounded by heat; during the night I was cold and couldn't get a good night's sleep. 41For 20 years, I have been in your household. I served you 14 of those years in return for your two daughters, and six years for your flock. And you have altered my payment 10 times. 42If the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the Fear of Isaac had not been on my side, surely now you would have sent me away empty-handed. But God knows my plight and how hard I've labored for you, and it was He who reprimanded you last night!

Laban: 43The daughters you speak of are my daughters; the children are my grandchildren; the flocks are my flocks; all you see is mine. But what can I do today about these daughters of mine and the children from their wombs? 44Come, let's make a covenant between us, you and me, and let there be a witness to our agreement.

45So Jacob took a stone and set it up as a pillar. 46He told his relatives to gather up more stones. So they all took stones and made a large pile of them. Then they ate there by the pile. 47Laban called it Jegar-sahadutha (Aramaic for "witness-pile") and Jacob called it Galeed (Hebrew for "witness-pile").

Laban: 48This pile of stones stands as a witness to the agreement we have made today.

This is why he called it Galeed. 49The pillar was called Mizpah, which means "watch post."

Laban: May the Eternal One watch us when we are away from one another. 50If you in any way mistreat my daughters or if you take wives in addition to my daughters, even though no one else is with us, remember that God is a witness between you and me.

51See this pile of stones and this pillar which I have set between us. 52This pile is a witness and this pillar is a witness that I will not pass beyond this pile of stones to harm you, and you will not pass beyond this pile and this pillar to harm me. 53May the God of Abraham and the God of Nahor (the God of their father Terah) serve as judge between us.

► This is no sweet farewell. It is a parting of the ways between two men who don't trust one another. Both are tricksters, but they are family. It is probably best from now on if they avoid each other completely.

So Jacob swore an oath on the Fear of Isaac, his father; 54and Jacob offered a sacrifice on the hill there and called all of his relatives together to eat bread. And they all ate bread and spent the rest of the night in the hill country. 55Early the next morning, Laban got up, kissed his grandchildren and his daughters, and blessed them; and then he left and returned home.

32 Jacob went on his way as well. As he went, messengers of God met him along the way. 2When Jacob saw them, he acknowledged that this was God's camp, so he named that place Mahanaim, which means "two camps." 3-4Jacob knew he had to pass by the territory of Edom where his brother Esau lived in the land of Seir. He sent messengers ahead with a message for Esau.

Jacob *(to his messengers): This is what I want you to say to my master Esau: "Your servant Jacob says this: 'I have lived with Laban as a foreigner and stayed there working for him until now. 5I have oxen, donkeys, flocks, and male and female slaves. I have sent my messengers to inform you, my master, of all this so that I might regain your trust and favor.'"

6The messengers went out to Esau and then returned to Jacob with a troubling report.

Messengers: We went to your brother Esau and gave him your message. He is coming to meet you, but 400 men are with him.

7When Jacob heard their report, he was afraid and extremely distressed. He divided up the people who were with him, the flocks, the herds, and the camels into two camps, 8thinking, "If Esau comes to one camp and crushes it, at least then the other might escape." 9Then Jacob prayed.

Jacob: O God of my father Abraham and God of my father Isaac, O Eternal One who said to me, "You must now return to the land of your ancestors and to your own family. I will make good things happen for you." 10*I know* I am not worthy of even a little of all of the loyal love and faithfulness You have shown to me, Your servant. You have already blessed me because I left home and crossed the Jordan with nothing except my staff. Now I have grown into two large camps. 11Rescue me now, please, from the hand of my brother, from the grip of Esau. I am afraid that he may come and crush us all, the children alongside their mothers. 12*Remember* You told me, "I will make good things happen for you and make your descendants as many as the grains of sand on the shores, which are too numerous to count."

Jacob has come to the end of himself. He has struggled with his brother and the rest of his family for his entire life. He was born a "heel-catcher," a deceiver, and he lived the part well. But he can't go on like this any longer. With Esau on his way, by this time tomorrow he could well be dead and his family killed or captured. He desperately needs God's blessing and protection, so he grieves and agonizes through the night. Through stabbing pain Jacob demands a blessing from his unknown assailant, but he cannot receive it until he confesses his name. Once he does, his name is changed. No longer is he known as Jacob; from now on he is "Israel," he who wrestles with God. This is the turning point in Jacob's life. He lays aside his former self and takes up a new name, a new identity. If Jacob is to be the one to carry on God's covenant and the source of universal blessing, he has to change.

And Jacob prayed on. 13He spent the night there, and from his possessions he prepared a gift for his brother Esau: 14200 female goats and 20 male goats, 200 female sheep and 20 rams, 1530 milk camels and their colts, 40 cows and 10 bulls, 20 female donkeys and 10 male donkeys. 16*When he had rounded them up,* he made various servants responsible for driving each herd. He gave them instructions.

Jacob: Travel on ahead of me, and put some distance between each herd.

17(to the leader) When Esau, my brother, meets you and asks you, "To whom do you belong? Where are you going? And whose herds are these?" 18then say, "They belong to your servant, Jacob, and are a gift sent to my master, Esau. Jacob is coming along behind us."

19Jacob instructed those responsible for the second and third herds, as well as those who followed behind to help:

Jacob: When you meet Esau, say the same thing these other herdsman have said, 20and make sure you tell him, "Your servant Jacob is coming along behind us."

(to himself) I might be able to appease Esau with these gifts. He will see them before he sees me. When I see his face, I'll know whether he'll accept and forgive me.

21So the gifts were driven on ahead, and he stayed the night in the camp, waiting.

22*Later* that same night, Jacob got up and took his two wives, his two female servants, and his 11 children; and he crossed the Jabbok River. 23He sent them all ahead across the stream along with everything he had; 24but Jacob stayed behind, left alone in his distress and doubt. In the twilight of his anguish, an unknown man wrestled with him until daybreak. 25When the man saw he was not winning the battle with Jacob, he struck him on the hip socket, and Jacob's hip was thrown out of joint as he continued to wrestle with him.

Man: 26Let me go; the dawn is breaking.

Jacob: I will not let you go unless you bless me.

Man: 27What's your name?

Jacob: Jacob.

Man: 28You will no longer go by the name Jacob. From now on, your name will be Israel because you have wrestled with God and humanity, and you have prevailed.

Jacob: 29Please, tell me your name.

Man: Why do you ask what my name is?

Right then and right there the man blessed Jacob. 30So Jacob called the place Peniel because as he said, "I have come face to face with God, and yet my life was spared." 31The sun began to rise as Jacob passed by Penuel, limping because of his dislocated hip. 32And to this day, the Israelites do not eat the tendon attached near the hip socket of any animal, since that is where God struck Jacob when He dislocated his hip.

33 Jacob looked up and saw Esau coming, and 400 men were with him. Jacob quickly divided the children among Leah and Rachel and their two servants. 2He put the female servants with their children in front, then Leah with her children, and Rachel and Joseph last of all. 3He himself went on ahead of them, and he bowed to the ground seven times as he approached his brother. 4But Esau ran to meet him. He embraced Jacob, kissed his neck, and they both cried. 5Esau looked up and saw the women and children.

Esau: Who are these people with you?

Jacob: These are the children God has graciously given your servant.

6Then the female servants came closer, along with their children, and they bowed down. 7Leah did likewise; she and her children approached and bowed down. Finally Joseph and Rachel came forward, and they bowed down as well.

Esau: 8What was your intent in sending all of your men and herds ahead of you?

Jacob: I hope to find favor with you, my master.

Esau: 9I have enough, my brother. Keep what you have for yourself.

Jacob expects trouble from Esau, but he finds the pain of the past healed. Now Esau wants nothing from his brother.

Jacob: 10No, please. If I have found favor with you after all these years, please accept the gifts I offer. Seeing your face again is like seeing the face of God, so graciously and warmly have you welcomed me. 11Please accept the blessing I bring. God has graciously provided for me and my family. I have everything I could want.

Jacob kept insisting that Esau accept the gift. Finally he did.

Esau: 12Now let's be on our way, and I will walk on ahead of you.

Jacob: 13My master knows that the children are very small and the nursing flocks and herds are under my care. If they are driven too hard for even one day, I'm afraid I'll lose all the flocks. 14Please, my master, go on ahead of me, and I will keep on at a slower pace—the pace of the animals up ahead and the children—until I come to you in Seir.

Esau: 15Let me leave some of my people to accompany you.

Jacob: Why go to all that trouble? You have done enough already. Just let me find favor with my master.

16Esau agreed and set out that day to go back to Seir. 17But Jacob journeyed instead to Succoth, and he built himself a house there and put up some shelters for his cattle. That's why this place is called Succoth, which means "shelters."

18At last Jacob came to the city of Shechem in the land of Canaan. Overall it had been a safe and peaceful journey from Paddan-aram. He camped outside of the city 19and purchased the land on which he had pitched his tent from the sons of Hamor (who was Shechem's father) for one hundred pieces of money. 20And there also he built an altar he called El-Elohe-Israel, which means "God, the God of Israel."

34 One day Dinah, Leah and Jacob's daughter, went out to visit some of the women who lived in the land. 2But when Shechem (son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the region) saw Dinah, he grabbed her and raped her. 3His soul was drawn to Dinah, Jacob's daughter. He fell in love with her and spoke tenderly to her. 4Shechem went then and spoke with his father, Hamor.

Shechem: I need you to arrange for this girl to be my wife.

5Now Jacob found out that Shechem had dishonored and raped his daughter,

Dinah, but at the time, all of his sons were out in the field working with the livestock. So Jacob stayed calm and did not react until they came back. 6Meanwhile Hamor, Shechem's father, had come to speak with Jacob to arrange a marriage. 7When news of the attack reached Jacob's sons, they came in from the field. The young men were appalled and extremely angry because Shechem had done such a horrible thing in Israel by raping Jacob's daughter. Something like this should never happen.

Hamor: My son's soul longs for your daughter. Please give her to him in marriage. 9*In fact,* let's intermarry our families. Give your daughters to us, and take our daughters for yourselves. 10We'll live together. The entire land will be open to you. You can live on it, trade on it, and buy property on it.

Shechem (to Jacob and his sons): 11Please, let me find my way into your favor! Whatever you ask, I will give it to you. 12Set the bride-price and gift as high as you like, and I will give you whatever it takes. Just please allow me to marry the young woman.

13Jacob's sons were still angry that Shechem had defiled their sister Dinah, so they answered him and his father Hamor deceitfully.

Jacob's Sons: 14We can't agree to this arrangement: to give our sister to someone who isn't circumcised would bring shame on all of us. 15We will consent to allow you to marry our sister on one condition: you must be circumcised as the rest of us have been. Every male among you must be circumcised.* 16Then we will give our daughters to you and will take your daughters for ourselves, and we will live with you in peace and become one people. 17But if you don't agree to this condition and be circumcised, then we will take our sister* and go.

Hamor and Shechem (to the men of the city): 21These men are peaceful and friendly to us, so let's allow them to live in the land and trade in it. You see this land is large enough for them too. Let's take their daughters in marriage, and let's give them our daughters. 22They will agree to live among us in peace and become one people on one condition: every male among us must be circumcised, just as they already are. 23Wouldn't we have much to gain—their livestock, property, and animals? Let's agree to their condition, and they will live among us and increase the vitality of our city.

24So everyone who passed by the city gate listened to Hamor and his son, Shechem, and they all were circumcised—every single man who went out the city gates that day. 25Three days later, when the men of the city were still in pain, two of Jacob's sons (Dinah's brothers Simeon and Levi) took their swords and attacked the unsuspecting people of the city, killing all of the men. 26They killed Hamor and his son Shechem with the sword as well; they took Dinah out of Shechem's house—where she had remained during the negotiations—and then went away. 27Jacob's other sons saw those who were killed, and they plundered the city. All of this was done in anger, because it was here that their sister had been raped and the family dishonored. 28They took all of the flocks, herds, donkeys, and whatever was in the city and the field. 29All of their wealth, all of their children, and all of their wives—everything they could find in the houses—they plundered and made it their own.

Jacob (reacting to Simeon and Levi): 30You have brought a lot of trouble to me. The people of this land, the Canaanites and the Perizzites, can smell the stink of my sons' actions. I don't have huge armies of men to defend us. If they all decide to gather against me and attack me, I will be destroyed along with my entire household.

Simeon and Levi: 31Would you rather have our sister treated as a whore?

* 34:15 Genesis 17:10 * 34:17 Hebrew manuscripts read, "our daughter."

► Genesis is filled with moral failures and ethical dilemmas, the kinds of things that happen in real life. Abraham's children are not perfect people; they—like the rest of us—are deeply flawed and conflicted over the tough moral choices we all have to make. After Dinah is forcibly raped, what are her brothers to do to protect her and restore their family honor? How is justice to be done? How can they make things right? These are important questions. The desire to protect those you love and to make things right is a noble impulse, but ignoble deeds follow. Skilled in deception, her brothers use circumcision—their covenant obligation—to temporarily disable the men and make them vulnerable to attack. After the carnage, Jacob, the older, wiser head of the family, knows the score: actions like these have consequences. Violence only breeds more violence. If they are to survive, they must leave . . . soon.

35 God *(to Jacob): Get up, go back to Bethel, and settle there. Build an altar to Me, to the God who appeared to you when you ran away from your brother, Esau.

2Jacob told his household and those with him to get ready to move.

Jacob: Get rid of any foreign gods you have in your possession. Purify yourselves: bathe and change your clothes. 3Then come with me. We're going to Bethel so that I can build an altar there to the God who answers me whenever I am in distress and who is with me wherever I go.

4So they handed over to Jacob all of the foreign gods they had, as well as the rings in their ears. Jacob buried them in the shadow of a mighty oak that was near Shechem.

5As they traveled, God struck terror into the hearts of all of the cities along the way so that no one pursued Jacob's family. 6Jacob, and all those who were with him, arrived in Luz (which is also known as Bethel) in the land of Canaan. 7There he built an altar and called the place El-bethel because it was there that God had revealed Himself to Jacob when he was running away from his brother. 8Along the way, Deborah (Rebekah's nurse) died, and they buried her under the branches of a stately oak below Bethel. Since that day, it has been known as Allon-bacuth, which means "oak of weeping."

9Now that Jacob had come back from Paddan-aram, God appeared to him again at Bethel and blessed him.

God: 10Your name is Jacob, but you will no longer be known as Jacob. Israel will be your name.

From then on, God addressed him by his new name: Israel.

God: 11I am the God-All-Powerful.* Be fruitful and multiply. You will give rise to a great nation; indeed nation after nation will come from you. Kings and rulers shall be numbered among your descendants. 12Your children will one day possess the land I promised to Abraham and Isaac.

13Then God ascended from the place where He had spoken with Jacob. 14And Jacob set up a pillar of stone in that same spot. He poured wine on it as an offering to God and doused it with oil. 15Jacob named this place where God had spoken with him "Bethel."

16After that, they all traveled on from Bethel. While still a long way from Ephrath, Rachel began having labor pains, and it was a hard labor. 17And when the labor pains were most intense, the midwife tried to comfort her.

Rachel's Midwife: Don't be afraid. You're going to have another son.

18But as her life slipped away, just before she died, Rachel named her son Ben-oni, but his father decided to call him Benjamin instead. 19So Rachel died, and they buried her on the way to Ephrath (which is also known as Bethlehem). 20Jacob set up a pillar to mark Rachel's tomb, and the pillar at her tomb still stands to this day.

21Israel then continued on the journey, and he pitched his tent beyond the

* 35:11 Hebrew, El Shaddai

tower of Eder. 22During the time Israel lived in this land, Reuben slept with his father's concubine, Bilhah, and Israel found out about it.

23*Now Jacob (Israel) had twelve sons.*
Leah's six sons were Reuben (Jacob's first-born), Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, and Zebulun. 24Rachel's two sons were Joseph and Benjamin. 25Rachel's servant, Bilhah, had two sons: Dan and Naphtali. 26Leah's servant, Zilpah, had two sons: Gad and Asher. These were the sons born to Jacob in Paddan-aram and on the journey home.

27Jacob finally arrived at his father Isaac's house at Mamre not far from Kiriath-arba (which is also known as Hebron). This is where Abraham and Isaac had resided as foreigners.

28Isaac lived 180 years. 29By the time he took his last breath and joined his ancestors in death, he had reached a ripe old age and lived a full life. His sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him.

36 Here is an account of Esau's descendants (his nation is known as Edom).

2Esau had taken his wives from the Canaanites: Adah (daughter of Elon the Hittite), Oholibamah (daughter of Anah, granddaughter of Zibeon the Hivite), 3and Basemath (Ishmael's daughter and Nebaioth's sister). 4Adah gave birth to Eliphaz. Basemath gave birth to Reuel.
5Oholibamah gave birth to Jeush, Jalam, and Korah. All of these were Esau's sons, born in the land of Canaan.

6Esau took his wives, sons, daughters, all of the members of his household, his cattle, his livestock, and all of the property
he had acquired while living in Canaan;
and he moved to a land some distance from his brother, Jacob. 7Since they were too wealthy to live in close proximity—that is, the land couldn't support both of their vast numbers of livestock—8Esau settled in the hill country of Seir. (Esau is also known as Edom.)

9Here is an account of Esau's descendants. He was the founding father of the Edomites, a people who lived in the hill country of Seir.* 10Esau's sons were Eliphaz (son of his wife Adah) and Reuel (son of his wife Basemath). 11Eliphaz's sons were Teman, Omar, Zepho, Gatam, and Kenaz. 12(Timna was a concubine of Eliphaz, Esau's son, and she gave birth to Amalek.) These were the grandsons of Adah, Esau's first wife. 13Reuel's sons were Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah.
These were the grandsons of Basemath (Esau's wife). 14These were the sons of Esau's wife Oholibamah (daughter of Anah, Zibeon's granddaughter): Jeush, Jalam, and Korah.

As the number of Esau's descendants grows, they settle into different tribes. Each tribe has its own leader.

15These are the chiefs among Esau's descendants: From the sons of Eliphaz (Esau's firstborn) were Teman, Omar, Zepho, Kenaz, 16Korah, Gatam, and Ama-lek. These grandsons of Adah became tribal leaders in the land of Edom. 17From the sons of Reuel (Esau's son) were Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah.
These grandsons of Basemath (Esau's wife) became tribal leaders in the land of Edom.
18From the sons of Oholibamah (Esau's wife and Anah's daughter) were Jeush, Jalam, and Korah. They became tribal leaders. 19These were the tribes and tribal chiefs descended from Esau (who is also known as Edom).

20-21The sons of Seir the Horite, who also inhabited the land, were Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan. They became the tribal chiefs of the Horites (who were the sons of Seir) in the land of Edom. 22The sons of Lotan were Hori and Hemam, and Lotan's sister was Timna. 23The sons of Shobal were Alvan, Manahath, Ebal, Shepho, and Onam. 24The sons of Zibeon were Aiah and Anah. (This is the same Anah who found the hot springs in the wilderness, as he was pasturing his father Zibeon's donkeys.) 25The children of Anah were Dishon and Oholibamah (Anah's daughter). 26The sons of Dishon were Hemdan, Eshban, Ithran, and Cheran. 27The sons of Ezer were Bilhan, Zaavan, and Akan.
28The sons of Dishan were Uz and Aran.
29-30These descendants of the Horites were the tribal chiefs of their respective tribes in the land of Seir: Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan.

31There were kings who reigned in the land of Edom long before any king ruled over the Israelites: 32Bela (Beor's son) ruled in Edom from his city Dinhabah.
33Bela died, then Jobab (son of Zerah's son from Bozrah) succeeded him as king.

[34]Jobab died, then Husham from the land of the Temanites succeeded him as king. [35]Husham died, then Hadad (Bedad's son, who defeated Midian in the country of Moab) succeeded him and ruled from his city Avith. [36]Hadad died, then Samlah of Masrekah succeeded him as king. [37]Samlah died, then Shaul of Rehoboth on the Euphrates River succeeded him as king. [38]Shaul died, and then Baal-hanan (Achbor's son) succeeded him as king. [39]Baal-hanan (Achbor's son) died, then Hadar succeeded him and ruled from his city Pau. His wife's name was Mehetabel (daughter of Matred, daughter of Mezahab).

[40]These are the names of the tribal chiefs among Esau's descendants, according to their families and where they lived: Timna, Alvah, Jetheth, [41]Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, [42]Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, [43]Magdiel, and Iram. These were the tribal chiefs of Edom (who is also known as Esau, the father of Edomites) according to the land they owned and where they settled.

► God's promises are not exclusive. As Isaac's son, Esau becomes great in the land of Seir, a land to the south and east of the Dead Sea. He has sons and daughters, many of whom go on to become tribal chiefs and influential leaders among the people known as the Edomites. But the story now returns to Jacob, for he has a special place in God's plan.

37 Jacob ended up settling in the land where his father had lived as a foreigner for many years—in the land of Canaan. [2]Here now is the story of Jacob and his family:

Joseph, when he was a young man of 17, often shepherded the flocks along with his brothers. One day as he was with Bilhah's and Zilpah's sons (his half-brothers), he decided to report back to their father about things they were doing wrong. [3]Now Israel loved Joseph more than any of his other children because he came along when he was an old man. So Israel presented Joseph with a special* robe he had made for him—a spectacularly colorful robe with long sleeves in it. [4]But when his brothers saw that their father loved him more than the rest, they grew to hate him and couldn't find it in themselves to speak to him without resentment or argument.

[5]One day Joseph had a dream. When he told the dream to his brothers, they hated him even more.

Joseph: [6]Please listen to this dream I had! [7]There we were, binding sheaves in the field. Suddenly my sheaf rose and stood up, and then your sheaves all gathered around it and bowed down to my sheaf.

* 37:3 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Greek and Latin manuscripts read, "many-colored"; similar Aramaic words mean, "long-sleeved."

Joseph's Brothers (annoyed): 8*Are you serious?* You think you are somehow destined to reign over us? You think you are going to be our king?

This dream and what he told them about it made them hate him even more.

9But Joseph had another dream, and he made the mistake of telling them about this dream too.

Joseph: Listen! I've had another dream: I saw the sun, the moon, and 11 stars bowing down to me.

10When he told this dream to his father and brothers, even his father scolded him.

Israel: What kind of dream is this? Do you actually think your mother and I and your brothers are going to bow down before you?

11Joseph's brothers had become extremely jealous of him. But his father—though he scolded Joseph—kept this dream in the back of his mind.

12About this time, Joseph's brothers went north toward Shechem in search of better pasture for their father's flocks.

Israel (to Joseph): 13Aren't your brothers pasturing the flock at Shechem? Come on then, I will send you out to them to see how they are doing.

Joseph: I'm ready, Father.

Israel: 14Get going then. See if they're doing all right, and make sure the flocks are well. When you get back, give me a report.

With that, Israel sent Joseph out to the valley of Hebron. When he came to the area around Shechem, 15a man found him wandering around in a field. The man asked him what he was looking for.

Joseph: 16I'm looking for my brothers. Please tell me where they are pasturing our flock.

Man: 17They've already gone. I heard them say they were going to Dothan.

So Joseph hurried off and followed his brothers to Dothan.

18They saw him coming even though he was still a long way off. Before he was near enough to hear them, they conspired to kill him.

Joseph's brothers are tired of his arrogant pretense. Each and every one of them has a bill of complaint against Joseph.

Joseph's Brothers (to each other): 19Oh, here comes the great dreamer. 20Let's kill him and throw his body into one of the pits. Then we can tell everyone a wild animal killed and devoured him. We'll see then what becomes of his stupid dreams.

21When Reuben heard the plan, he tried to help Joseph.

Reuben: Let's not kill him. 22We don't need to shed any blood to be free of him. Let's just toss him into some pit here in the wilderness. We don't need to lay a hand on him.

Reuben thought perhaps he could secretly come back later and get Joseph out of the pit and take him home to their father before any more harm came to him.

The brothers agreed. 23When Joseph arrived, they ripped his robe off of him—the fancy, colorful* robe he always wore that his father had made for him, 24and they threw him into the pit. Now this pit happened to be an empty cistern; there was no water in it.

25Then they sat down to eat. Soon they looked up and saw a caravan of Ishmaelite traders approaching from Gilead. Their camels were loaded with gum, balm, and a fragrant resin; and they were on their way down to Egypt with their goods.

Judah (to his brothers): 26What profit will it be for us if we just kill our brother and conceal the crime? 27Come on, let's sell him to the Ishmaelites instead. We won't have to lay a hand on him then. He is, after all, our brother, our own flesh and blood.

All of the brothers agreed. 28As the Midianite traders were passing by, they brought Joseph up out of the pit and sold him to the Ishmaelites for about eight ounces of silver, the usual price of young

* 37:23 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

male slaves. The traders set off with Joseph in the direction of Egypt.

29*Now Reuben had not been around when the caravan came by, so* when Reuben came back to the cistern later and saw that Joseph was not there, he tore his clothing in agony and despair. 30He went back to his brothers.

Reuben: The boy is gone. What do I do now? What am I supposed to tell Father?

► As the oldest, Reuben is responsible for what happens to Joseph. Does he dare go home and face his father? After sleeping with his father's concubine, he has little chance now of being confirmed as Israel's firstborn.

31-32The brothers took Joseph's fancy, colorful robe, slaughtered a male goat, and dipped it in the blood. Then they took the special* robe to their father.

Joseph's Brothers: We found this, Father. Tell us if you think this is Joseph's robe.

Israel (recognizing the robe): 33This is my son's robe! A wild animal must have killed and eaten him. Joseph is without a doubt torn to shreds!

34Then Jacob wailed in agony and tore his clothes with the depth of emotional pain only a father could feel upon losing a child. He dressed in sackcloth and mourned his son for a long time. 35All of his sons and daughters tried to comfort him, but he refused to be comforted.

Israel: No, I will go to the grave grieving for my son.

Israel is inconsolable. His grief over his son transcends even death itself.

This is how deeply Joseph's father grieved for him. 36Meanwhile, the Midianites arrived in Egypt and sold Joseph to Potiphar, one of Pharaoh's officers and the captain of the guard.

38 It was about this time that Judah decided to leave home, so he parted company with his brothers and went to see Hirah, a fellow from Adullam. 2When he was there, Judah laid eyes on the daughter of a Canaanite man named Shua. He married her and slept with her. 3She conceived and gave birth to her first son. Judah named him Er. 4She conceived again and gave birth to her second son, whom she named Onan. 5She then gave birth to her third son, and she named him Shelah. (Judah was away in Chezib when she gave birth to him.)

6Now Judah arranged for Er, his firstborn, to marry a woman named Tamar. 7But Er, Judah's firstborn, was a particularly wretched human being in the eyes of the Eternal One, and so the Eternal ended his life. Judah summoned his second son, Onan.

Judah (to Onan): 8You know our customs and the duty of a brother-in-law in a situation like this. You must go and marry your brother's wife and make sure your brother has an heir.

9*Resentful that* any child born in this kind of marriage would not be his, Onan would interrupt intercourse and spill his semen onto the ground whenever he slept with his brother's wife. That way he would not father a child that would belong to his brother. 10Onan's selfish behavior was as wretched as his brother's to the eyes of the Eternal One; so the Eternal ended Onan's life like his brother. 11Judah summoned his daughter-in-law Tamar.

Judah: Tamar, it is best if you remain a widow in your father's house until my son Shelah grows up.

Now Judah said this because he was afraid that Shelah, too, would die as his brothers had. So Tamar went and remained a widow with her father.

After losing two sons, Judah thinks Tamar must be a dangerous woman. What he isn't willing to admit is that his own sons were wicked.

12After a while, Judah's wife (Shua's daughter) also died. When Judah's time of mourning was over, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite went to Timnah to work with his sheepshearers and enjoy the festivities. 13When Tamar learned that her father-in-law would be coming to Timnah to shear his sheep, 14she took off her widow's clothes, put on a veil to conceal her true identity, and sat down at the entrance to Enaim along the road to Timnah. You see, Tamar harbored deep resentment toward her father-in-law because she knew by this time that Shelah had grown up, but she had not been given to him in marriage as Judah had promised. 15When Judah passed by and saw her, he thought she was a prostitute because she had her face covered. 16*He decided to proposition her, so* he walked over to her by the roadside.

Judah: Come on, I want to have sex with you.

He had no idea she was his daughter-in-law, but she had a proposition of her own.

Tamar: What will you give me in return if I do?

Judah: 17I'll send you a young goat from my flock. How about that?

Tamar: Only if you give me something to hold until you send it.

Judah: 18What should I give you as my personal guarantee?

Tamar: Your personal seal on the cord you wear around your neck, plus the staff you carry.

Tamar knows Judah cannot be trusted, so she asks for two items so personal and unique they can easily be linked to him.

Judah did as she asked and gave her his seal and walking stick. He then went and slept with her, and she conceived his child. 19Then she got up, took off the veil, and went back home, putting on her widow's clothes once again.

20Judah kept his word and sent his friend Hirah the Adullamite with the young goat so he could retrieve his seal and walking stick from the woman. But Judah's friend couldn't find her anywhere.

Hirah the Adullamite *(to Timnah's elders): 21What happened to the temple prostitute who was at Enaim by the side of the road?

Elders: We have not seen any temple prostitute here.

22*Bewildered,* the Adullamite returned to Judah.

Hirah the Adullamite: I couldn't find her, and what's odd is that the elders claimed they haven't seen any temple prostitutes around there.

Judah: 23Well let her keep my things then. If you go back, we'll be laughed at. I did what I promised. I sent the young goat, and you tried but could not find her.

24Approximately three months later, someone told Judah, "Your daughter-in-law Tamar has been promiscuous. It's obvious her business has even made her pregnant."

Judah: Bring her out and expose her for what she is, and then let her be burned.

25As she was being brought out, she sent word to her father-in-law.

Tamar: It was the owner of these items who made me pregnant. Please, take a close look and tell me whose personal seal, cord, and walking stick these are.

26When Judah saw them, he realized they were his.

Judah: She is more in the right than I am. I did not keep my word and give her in marriage to my son, Shelah.

Judah didn't sleep with her again.

27When the time came for her to deliver, she discovered she was carrying twins. 28While she was in labor, one of them put out a hand; and the midwife tied a scarlet thread on it, so she would know which one came out first. 29But just then he drew his hand back into the womb, and his brother came out first. The midwife had never seen anything quite like this.

Midwife: What a breach you've made here, little one!

So the child was named Perez. 30His brother followed, the one with the scarlet thread on his hand. He was named Zerah.

► This disturbing chapter is artfully inserted at the beginning of Joseph's story for a reason. Though Joseph has the key role in getting Israel to Egypt and saving his family from the upcoming famine, it is Judah's line that is chosen by God to play a crucial part in Israel's more distant future. Judah's son, Perez, is the ancestor to King David and ultimately to the Anointed One (Matthew 1). But Perez's strange birth is overshadowed by the sleazy events that lead to his conception. The sexually-charged atmosphere of this chapter may well upset some, but Scripture is brutally honest about people and what they do. Lust and lies, deception and prostitution do not frustrate God's plan; in fact God has a way of taking them, redeeming them, and including them within His greater will.

39 Now Joseph had been taken to Egypt. Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh and captain of the guard, himself an Egyptian, bought him from the Ishmaelites who had brought him there to sell along with their goods and wares. 2The Eternal One was with Joseph, however, and he became successful in his own right as a slave within the house of his Egyptian master.

3Potiphar could not help but notice that the Eternal One was with Joseph and caused everything Joseph did to prosper. 4-5Joseph became the favorite of the household and rose in the ranks to become Potiphar's personal attendant. In time, Potiphar made Joseph overseer of the entire household and put him in charge of everything he owned. From that moment, the Eternal One blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake, a blessing which seemed to cover everything Potiphar possessed from house to field. 6Potiphar entrusted everything to the care of Joseph. With him in charge, Potiphar had no concern about anything except for his private affairs, such as the food he chose to eat!

Now Joseph was a well-built, good-looking young man. 7After a while, his master's wife began watching him, and she tried to seduce him.

Potiphar's Wife: Come. Sleep with me.

8But Joseph refused.

Joseph *(to Potiphar's wife): Look, please don't take offense, but with me in charge, my master has no concerns for anything that goes on in his house. He has trusted me with everything he has. 9He hasn't treated me like I am any less than he is, and he hasn't kept anything from me—except, of course, for you because you are his wife. Why would I do something so clearly wrong and sin so blatantly against God?

Joseph's refusal to have sex with Potiphar's wife demonstrates how God wants His people to act. How different he is compared to Judah and Reuben!

10Although she pursued him day after day, Joseph would not consent to sleep with her and refused to be alone with her. 11One day, however, when he went into the house to do his work while no one else was in the house, 12she grabbed him by his clothes and tried again to seduce him.

Potiphar's Wife: Come on. Sleep with me.

But Joseph ran outside away from her, as far and as fast as he could, leaving her holding his clothes in her hand. 13When she realized he rejected her again and she had his clothes in her hand, 14she called out to the other servants of her household.

Potiphar's Wife: See here! My husband brought this Hebrew into our house to take advantage of us! He came to me and wanted to sleep with me. I screamed as loudly as I could, 15and when he heard me yell, he dropped his clothes here beside me and ran outside.

16She kept Joseph's clothes beside her until her husband came home. 17Then she told him the same story.

Potiphar's Wife: The Hebrew servant you brought into this household came in to take advantage of me. 18When I screamed as loudly as I could, he dropped his clothes here beside me and ran outside.

19When Potiphar heard his wife's account, his face flushed with anger. 20So Potiphar, Joseph's master, put him into prison and locked him up in the place where the king's prisoners were confined. Joseph remained there for a time. 21But the Eternal One remained with Joseph and showed him His loyal love and granted him favored status with the chief jailor. 22The jailor put Joseph in charge of all of the prisoners who were confined there. Whatever needed to be done, Joseph was the one to do it. 23The chief jailor, like Potiphar, didn't need to worry about anything that was in Joseph's care because the Eternal One was with him. And whatever Joseph did worked out well because the Eternal made it so.

40 Some time later, the cupbearer of the king of Egypt and his baker both offended their lord, the king of Egypt. 2-3Pharaoh was angry with his two attendants, and so he put the chief cupbearer and the chief baker in custody in the house of the captain of the guard in the same prison where Joseph was confined. 4The captain of the guard put Joseph in charge of the men, and Joseph took care of them as he did the others. They remained there in custody for some time.

5One night while they were in prison, the cupbearer and the baker of the king of Egypt had dreams. Each had his own dream, and each dream had its own meaning.

6When Joseph came to check on them the next morning, he saw that both men looked troubled.

Joseph *(to Pharaoh's prisoners): 7Why do you both look so dejected today?

Cupbearer and Baker: 8We've both had dreams, and there is no one here in prison to interpret them.

The Egyptians thought that dreams were often moments of revelation, but they also thought it took special training to know how to interpret them.

Joseph: Interpretations belong to God, don't they? If you'd like, tell them to me!

9So the chief cupbearer told Joseph his dream.

Cupbearer: In my dream, there was a vine in front of me, 10and on the vine were three branches. As soon as it budded, its blossoms opened up and its clusters ripened into grapes. 11Pharaoh's cup was in my hand, and I took the grapes and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and then I placed the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

Joseph: 12This is what your dream means: the three branches are three days. 13Within three days, Pharaoh will lift up your head and restore you to your office; you will place Pharaoh's cup in his hand, just as you used to do when you were his cupbearer.

14But I ask one thing. Remember me when things are going well for you. If you have the opportunity, do me a favor and mention me to Pharaoh. Perhaps he will get me out of this place. 15You see I was stolen from the land of my people the Hebrews, and I've done nothing to deserve being thrown into this pit.

16When the chief baker saw that the cupbearer received such a good interpretation, he told Joseph his dream as well.

Baker: I've also had a dream: There were three baskets of fine cakes stacked on my head. 17In the upper basket, there were all sorts of baked goods for Pharaoh, but the birds swooped down and kept eating Pharaoh's food out of the basket on my head.

Joseph: 18This is what your dream means: the three baskets are three days. 19Within three days, Pharaoh will lift your head and remove it from you. He will impale your body on a tree and vultures will swoop down and eat the flesh from your bones.

20-21On the third day, which also happened to be Pharaoh's birthday, he prepared a huge feast for all of his servants. As they were gathered together, he lifted up the head of the chief cupbearer and restored him to his former office. That day the cupbearer resumed placing the cup in Pharaoh's hand. But Pharaoh lifted off the head of the chief baker 22and impaled him on a tree for the birds, just as Joseph had interpreted. 23*Sadly* the chief cupbearer did not remember Joseph at this time; instead, he forgot all about him.

► Although the text is not clear, the chief baker dies a particularly gruesome death. The way the story is told,

Pharaoh lifts up the baker's head—a gesture which would seem to signal royal favor—but in the next treacherous instant, his head is removed. Then his lifeless corpse is impaled on a tree, exposed to the elements. Because the body is left to rot outside and be eaten by birds—instead of being carefully embalmed and entombed—the Egyptians believe the victim's soul can never enter the afterlife. This is the worst form of capital punishment, leaving the cupbearer to fear not only death but also eternal oblivion.

41 Two years later, Pharaoh had a dream. He dreamed that he was standing by the Nile River, 2and out of the Nile came seven healthy, fat cows. They all grazed in the grassy reeds at the river's edge. 3Then, seven other cows, ugly and thin, came up out of the Nile and stood by them on the bank of the river. 4And the ugly, thin cows ate the seven healthy, fat cows. And then Pharaoh woke up, startled.

5Again he fell asleep and dreamed a second time. This time, seven ears of grain, all plump and fine, were growing on one stalk. 6Then seven other ears that were shriveled and burnt by the east wind sprouted up after them. 7The shriveled ears swallowed up the seven plump and full ears. Then Pharaoh woke up again, realizing it was only a dream.

8In the morning he felt uneasy, so he sent for all of the magicians and all of the wise men of Egypt to come and consult with him. Pharaoh told them his dreams, but no one could interpret them for him. They had no idea what they could mean.

9The chief cupbearer remembered Joseph, so he went to Pharaoh.

Cupbearer: I am reminded today of something I did wrong. 10Once when Pharaoh was angry with his servants, he put me and the chief baker in custody in the house of the captain of the guard. 11One night we both had a dream. The dreams were unique, and their interpretations were also unique. 12There was a young Hebrew there with us, a servant of the captain of the guard. When we told him our dreams, he interpreted them for us. 13Things turned out exactly as he had interpreted them: I was restored to my office, and the baker was impaled.

14Pharaoh sent for Joseph, hoping he could also interpret Pharaoh's dream. His officers rushed to the dungeon to get Joseph ready to meet the king. After he had been allowed to shave and change his clothes, he was brought before Pharaoh.

Pharaoh *(to Joseph): 15I've had a dream, and I can't find anyone who can tell me what it means. But I've heard that when someone tells you a dream, you are able to interpret it.

Joseph: 16I cannot do this, but God will answer Pharaoh's request and relieve your concerns.

Pharaoh: 17In my dream, I was standing on the bank of the Nile River, 18and seven healthy, fat cows came up out of the Nile River and grazed in the grassy reeds at the river's edge. 19Then seven other cows came up after them. They were miserable, very ugly and thin. Never had I seen such horrible-looking cows in all the land of Egypt. 20*Anyway,* the thin, ugly cows ate the first seven fat cows. 21But after they had eaten them, no one would have known they had done so because they were still as ugly as before. Then I woke up. 22*I fell asleep and dreamed* a second time. I saw in this dream seven ears of grain, all plump and fine, growing on one stalk. 23And then seven ears that were withered, shriveled up, and burnt by the east wind sprouted after them. 24The thin ears swallowed up the seven good ears. When I told the magicians about these dreams, there was no one who could explain them to me.

Joseph *(to Pharaoh): 25Pharaoh's dreams are one and the same. God is revealing to Pharaoh what He is going to do. 26The seven good cows are seven years and the seven good ears are the same seven years—years of plenty. Both dreams tell one story. 27The seven thin and ugly cows that came up after them are also seven years, as are the seven thin ears burnt by the east wind. These are seven years of famine. 28As I told Pharaoh, God is showing Pharaoh what He means to do and what will come. 29There will be seven years of great abundance throughout all the land of Egypt. 30But after that, there will be seven years of famine. Whatever abundance was once enjoyed will be totally forgotten, because the famine will consume the land. 31The famine will be so severe that no one will know what it is like to have enough of anything. 32The doubling of Pharaoh's dream means this future is fixed by God, and He will make it happen very soon.

33*My advice is that* Pharaoh should select someone who is wise and discerning and put him in charge of the land of Egypt during this time. 34Pharaoh should appoint officers over the land and direct them to take one-fifth of all that the land of Egypt produces during the seven abundant years, 35gather it together, store it up, and guard it under Pharaoh's authority. That way each city will have a supply of food. 36The food would then be held in reserve for the people during the seven years of famine that are sure to come to Egypt. In this way, the people of Egypt will not starve to death during the famine.

37Pharaoh and all his advisors liked Joseph's suggestion.

Pharaoh *(to his advisors): 38Is there anyone else you know like Joseph who has the Spirit of God within him?

39(to Joseph) Since God has shown all of this to you, I can't imagine anyone wiser and more discerning than you. 40Therefore you will be in charge of my household. All of my people will report to you and do as you say. Only I, because I sit on the throne, will be greater than you. 41I hereby appoint you head over all of the land of Egypt.

42*As a symbol of his power,* Pharaoh removed the signet ring from his hand and put it on Joseph's. Then he dressed him in fine linens and put a gold chain around his neck. 43He had Joseph ride in the chariot reserved for his second-in-command, and servants ordered everyone, "Kneel!" as he rode by. So this was how Pharaoh appointed Joseph head over all of the land of Egypt. 44But Pharaoh had one more declaration.

Pharaoh *(to Joseph): I am Pharaoh, and I decree that no one may do anything in the land of Egypt without your consent.

45Then Pharaoh gave Joseph an Egyptian name, Zaphenath-paneah, and arranged for him to marry an Egyptian woman, Asenath (daughter of Potiphera, priest of On). So this was how Joseph gained authority over all the land of Egypt.

► Pharaoh wants there to be no doubt that Joseph is his second-in-command. So he holds a formal ceremony and presents Joseph with special gifts, symbols of high office and power. He gives Joseph his signet ring, mounted with Pharaoh's personal seal. He dresses him in royal garb and provides him with the finest chariot available. He issues decrees that put Joseph in charge of all affairs in Egypt. Finally, to top it off and to make sure this son of Israel would be fully accepted into Egyptian society, he gives him an Egyptian name and arranges a marriage with a high-profile priestly family. Just a few hours before, Joseph was a prisoner. Now he is in charge of all the land.

46Now Joseph was 30 years old when he entered into Pharaoh's service. He left the king of Egypt's presence to travel throughout the land. 47For seven years—the years of plenty—the land produced abundantly. 48Joseph gathered up all of the food he could during those seven years of plenty in the land of Egypt and stored the grain in the cities. He arranged for every city to store the food grown in local fields. 49And he stored up so much grain—as much as the grains of sand on the seashore—that he stopped measuring it. It was more than anyone could measure!

50Now before the famine began, Joseph had two sons by his wife Asenath (daughter of Potiphera, priest of On). 51Joseph named his firstborn son Manasseh because he said, "God has made me forget all about my hardship and all of my father's family." 52He named the second son Ephraim, because as he said, "God has made me fruitful in the land of my misfortune."

53Eventually, the seven years of plenty in the land of Egypt came to an end, 54and the seven years of famine settled in, just as Joseph had predicted. Although the famine extended to all the surrounding lands, in Egypt there was still food stored away in the cities. 55When the people in Egypt became famished, they appealed to Pharaoh for food; and Pharaoh directed them all to Joseph.

Pharaoh: Go to Joseph, and do what he tells you to do.

56So when the famine had spread across the land of Egypt, Joseph opened up the storehouses and sold grain to the Egyptians. But he waited until the famine had become severe in the land. 57When the surrounding peoples heard Egypt still had food, they journeyed to Egypt to buy grain from Joseph, because by this time the entire world was in the grip of a severe famine.

► Famine in this part of the world normally involves a drought that extends for years. Only those with access to bodies of fresh water can survive. The Egyptians are perfectly positioned to use the Nile River to irrigate their crops during a drought. Most of the land of Canaan, on the other hand—where Jacob and his sons still live—has little fresh water even when there is no drought. Although some grain can be moved up and down the Nile or across the Mediterranean over established trade routes, the amount of grain needed to keep large populations alive cannot be moved across land or sea. So people have to go where the food is, or they starve to death. Israel knows he is out of options at home, so he has to look abroad.

42 Now when Jacob found out there was grain to be had in Egypt, he talked to his sons about it.

Jacob: Why do you just keep sitting here looking at each other? 2Listen! I've heard they have grain for sale in Egypt! Go down there, and buy grain for us so that we have enough to live and won't die of hunger.

3So ten of Joseph's brothers went down to buy grain in Egypt. 4But Jacob didn't send Joseph's brother Benjamin with the others, because he was afraid something might happen to him. 5So the sons of Israel decided to go down and buy grain along with many others, because the famine had reached the land of Canaan.

6Since Joseph was in charge of Egypt, he was the one responsible for selling the grain to the people who came from the various lands. When it was their turn, Joseph's brothers came and bowed down before him with their faces to the ground. 7The moment Joseph saw his brothers, he recognized them even though nearly 20 years had passed since last he saw them, but he treated them like strangers and spoke gruffly to them.

Joseph: Where do you come from?

Joseph's Brothers: We come from the land of Canaan to buy food.

8Although Joseph recognized them, they did not recognize him. 9He then remembered the dreams he had as a young man regarding his brothers.

Joseph: You are spies! You have come to see how this famine has weakened our defenses so you can attack us.

Joseph's Brothers: 10No, my lord. We, your servants, have only come to buy food. 11We are all sons of one man, and we are honest men. We are not spies.

Joseph: 12No. I think you have come to scout out our land and defenses.

Joseph's Brothers: 13My lord, we are twelve brothers, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan. The youngest, however, is with our father back home, and one brother is no longer with us.

Joseph: 14*I don't believe you.* My accusation is true; you are surely spies! 15-16But let's see if your story is true. Here is how you will be tested: as surely as Pharaoh lives, you will not leave this place unless your youngest brother comes here! Choose one of you to go and bring your brother to me while the rest of you remain locked up in prison. I want to see if you are telling me the truth. If he doesn't come back with your brother, as Pharaoh lives, then I know you are truly spies.

17Then Joseph put all ten of his brothers in prison for three days.

18Three days later, Joseph had come up with a different plan.

Joseph (to his brothers): Do what I am about to say and you will live, because I am a man who respects God. 19If you really are honest men, then I will choose one of your brothers to stay here in prison. The rest of you may go and carry grain to your families who are suffering because of the famine. 20*Then all of you must return and* bring your youngest brother to me. In that way, I can see if you have been telling the truth, and you will not die.

They agreed to Joseph's conditions.

Joseph's Brothers (to each other): 21Now at last, we are paying the penalty for what we did to our brother. We saw his anguish when he pleaded with us, but we wouldn't listen. Now that very anguish has come to us.

Reuben: 22Didn't I tell you not to harm the boy? But you wouldn't listen. Now we will all pay for spilling his blood!

23Now Joseph's brothers were speaking to each other in their own language and had no idea that Joseph understood what they were saying, since he had been speaking with them through an interpreter. 24But their words moved him, so he withdrew from them and cried. When he had composed himself, he came back and spoke to them again. He selected Simeon to remain behind and had him bound in ropes right in front of them. 25Then Joseph gave orders to fill their bags with grain, to return their money to each man's sack, and to give them food for their journey home. All of this was done for them.

When they heard this, their hearts sank. They looked at one another and trembled.

► The brothers of Joseph are in the dark. What does this mean? Is this some sort of trick? Has someone planted the money there only to later claim it or the grain has been stolen? Are the Egyptians even now bearing down on them? Is this part of the test? Should they go back and tell the gruff Egyptian governor what has happened? And if they do, will he believe them? What happens to Simeon? They have a thousand thoughts, but their most profound thought occurs next.

Joseph's Brothers (nervously to each other): What is God doing to us?

29When they finally arrived in the land of Canaan at their father Jacob's house, they told him everything that had happened.

Joseph's Brothers: 30The man, the lord of the land, was very tough with us and accused us of spying on Egypt. 31But we told him, "We are honest men. We are not spies. 32We are twelve brothers, all sons of one father. One is no longer with us, and the youngest is with our father in Canaan right now." 33And then the man, the lord of the land, told us, "Here is how I will know if you really are honest men: leave one of your brothers with me, take grain back to your families suffering because of the famine, and go your way. 34*All of you must return and* bring your youngest brother to me, and then I will know you aren't spies but honest men. At that point, I will release your brother to you, and you may go about Egypt freely and buy as you wish."

35Now as all the brothers went to empty their sacks, each found his bag of money inside. And when they and their father saw the money there, they were very frightened.

Jacob (to his sons): 36You have robbed me of my children: Joseph is gone, and Simeon is gone, and now you want to take Benjamin. Everything and everyone is against me!

Reuben: 37*Father,* you may kill my own two sons if I do not bring Benjamin back to you. Put him in my care, and I promise to bring him back to you.

Jacob: 38*Absolutely not;* I can't let my son go with you. His brother Joseph is already dead, and he's all I have left of Rachel. If I put him in your care and any harm should come to him on that journey, the sorrow would kill me. I can't allow you to condemn this old, gray head to the grave.

43 Now the famine raged on across the land. 2And after Jacob and his sons had eaten up all of the grain they had brought from Egypt, their father was ready to send them again.

Jacob: Go to Egypt again, and buy us some more food.

3But Judah cautioned him.

Judah: The man who rules Egypt clearly warned us, Father, that he will not agree to see us again unless our brother Benjamin accompanies us. 4If you will send Benjamin along with us, then we will go down and buy the food. 5But if you won't allow him to go, we will not go either because the man clearly told us, "You will not see my face unless your brother is with you."

Jacob: 6Why did you do this to me? Why did you tell this man you had another brother?

Joseph's Brothers: 7The man questioned us about every detail of ourselves and our relatives. He asked if our father was still alive and if we had another brother. What we told him was only in answer to all of his questions. How could we in any way know he would tell us to bring our brother down there?

Judah *(to Israel, his father): 8Send the boy with me, and let's be on our way. It's the only way we're going to live through this famine and not die of hunger—you, us, and all of our little ones. 9I will guarantee his safety. You can hold me personally responsible if I don't bring him back to you in one piece. If anything happens to him, I am perfectly willing to bear the blame forever. 10Had we not waited this long already, we could have made the journey twice now and have enough food.

Jacob: 11*All right.* If that's the way it has to be. But do this: take some of the best products our land has to offer; carry them in your bags and present them to the man as a gift—a little balm and honey, some gum and resin, some pistachio nuts and almonds. 12*This time,* take double the money with you. Carry back the money that was returned in the top of your sacks. Perhaps it was an oversight on their part. 13Take your brother, be on your way again, and go see the man. 14And may the All-Powerful God* grant you mercy from this man, so that he sends back your other brother and Benjamin. As for me, if I am to suffer the loss of my children, then what am I to do?

15So the brothers packed up the presents, and they took double the money and their brother Benjamin with them. Then they set off on their way down to Egypt, and they came before Joseph.

16When Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he spoke to his steward of his household.

Joseph: Bring the men into the house. Slaughter an animal, and prepare a feast. These men are to dine with me at noon today.

17The man did as Joseph told him, and he brought the men to Joseph's house. 18The brothers became very concerned when they realized where they were being taken.

Joseph's Brothers: It must be because of the money that was put back into our sacks the last time we were here. He's looking for an opportunity to arrest us, make us slaves, and take our donkeys.

19They went up to the steward of the house as he was standing at the door.

Joseph's Brothers: 20My lord, we came down to Egypt the first time to buy food, 21but on our return to Canaan when we came to our lodging place, we opened our sacks and were surprised to find each one's money in the top of his sack. All our money was returned apparently, so we have brought it back with us. 22We also brought additional money to buy more food. We don't know who put our money back into our sacks the last time we were here.

* 43:14 Hebrew, El Shaddai

Steward: 23There is no need to worry or be afraid. Be at peace. Your God and the God of your father must have filled your sacks with this treasure. I received your money the last time.

In a while the steward brought Simeon out to see them. 24After he had escorted all eleven men into Joseph's house, given them water, and made sure they had washed their feet, he gave their donkeys some fodder. 25The brothers prepared the presents they had brought for Joseph. It was almost noon, and they had learned they would be dining with him soon.

26When Joseph arrived home, they brought the presents into the house. With gifts in hand, they bowed to the ground before him. 27*This time* he greeted them warmly.

Joseph: Is your father well, the old man of whom you spoke? Is he still alive?

Joseph's Brothers: 28Your servant, our father, is alive and well.

They bowed down again out of respect. 29Then Joseph looked up and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother's son.

Joseph: Is this your youngest brother whom you told me about last time? God's grace be upon you, my son!

30Joseph hurried from the room because he was overwhelmed with affection for his brother and was afraid he would cry in front of everyone. So he went into a private room and wept there. 31After he regained his composure, he washed his face and came out. With a controlled voice, he commanded his servants.

Joseph: You may serve the meal.

32The staff served Joseph, who was seated separately, and then his brothers, who were seated apart from other Egyptians invited to eat with Joseph that day. (You see Egyptians do not eat with Hebrews or any other foreigners because they find the practice utterly offensive.) 33As the brothers were seated in front of him, the men noticed the arrangement, and they looked at each other amazed and amused for they were seated by age, the firstborn on one end, the youngest on the other. 34They were served their portions from Joseph's table, and everyone noticed Benjamin's portion was five times as much as any of theirs. But they celebrated and drank freely until everyone was quite relaxed.

44 After the meal was over, Joseph commanded the steward of his house.

Joseph: Fill the men's sacks with food—as much as they can carry. Put each man's money back into the top of his sack. 2*One more thing: I want you to* put my personal cup, my silver cup, into the top of the sack of the youngest, along with his money for the grain.

The steward did everything Joseph told him to do.

3The next morning, as soon as it was light, the men were sent off with their donkeys toward home. 4But when they had gone only a short distance from the city, Joseph spoke to his steward.

Joseph: Go now, and follow them. When you catch up to them, say to them, "Why have you repaid kindness with evil? My master's silver cup is missing, and you have it. 5Isn't this the cup from which he drinks? Doesn't he use it for divination, to discover secrets hidden from most men? You have committed evil in doing this."

6*So the steward went after them.* And when he caught up to them, he repeated the words Joseph told him to say.

Joseph's Brothers: 7Why would my lord accuse us of something like this? We, your servants, would never do such a thing! 8Remember the money we found at the top of our sacks after our first trip? We brought it back to you from the land of Canaan. Why then would we steal silver or gold from your lord's house this time? 9If you find his cup with any one of us, let that man be put to death, and the rest of us will become my lord's servants.

Steward: 10Let it be as you say, but I'll be more lenient: whoever is found to possess the cup will become my servant. The rest of you will be considered innocent and may go free.

11Then they all moved quickly, retrieved their sacks, lowered them to the ground, and opened them so the steward could see what was inside them. 12He searched each sack, beginning with the eldest son and ending with the youngest; at last, the cup was found in Benjamin's sack. 13When the brothers saw this, they tore their clothes in anguish. They knew what had to happen.
They had no choice but to load their donkeys and return to the city.

14Judah and his brothers all came to Joseph's house while he was still there, and they fell to the ground in front of him.

Joseph: 15What have you done? Don't you know that someone in my position practices divination and can discover secrets hidden from most men?

Judah *(speaking for the rest): 16What can we possibly say to you, my lord? How can we explain this? How can we clear ourselves of this mistake? God has found your servants to be guilty. Here we are then, slaves to you, my lord, all of us and also the one in whose possession the cup has been found.

► Judah speaks the truth. God has uncovered their guilt and exposed it for all to see. Not that someone in their party has stolen Joseph's cup—that's not what he means—but years ago they conspired and stole Joseph's freedom. Ironically they could now lose their freedom to Joseph.

Joseph: 17Far be it from me that I should do something like that! Only the one in possession of the cup will be my slave.
As for the rest of you, go in peace to your father!

18But then Judah stepped up to Joseph and begged him for mercy.

Judah: O, my lord, let your servant please speak a private word to you. Please don't be angry with me, for you are just like Pharaoh himself. 19You asked us once if we had a father or a brother, 20and we told you, "Yes. We have a father, an old man, and a young brother, the child of his old age. His brother is dead, so he alone is left of his mother's children, and his father loves him dearly." 21Then you told us to bring the boy down to you, so that you could see him. 22At first we said to you, "The boy cannot leave his father because his father would die without him," 23but you told us that unless he came with us, you wouldn't agree to see us again.

24When we went back to your servant, our father, we told him what you said, my lord. 25And when our father asked us to go again to buy more food, 26we told him, "We cannot go without our youngest brother, or we won't be able to get in to see him." So our youngest brother came with us. 27Then your servant, my father, responded, "You know that my wife Rachel bore me two sons:
28one went off and never came back, and I know he was without a doubt torn to pieces. I haven't seen him since he left.
29But now if you take my youngest also from me and any harm should come to him, the sorrow would kill me. I can't allow you to condemn this old, gray head to the grave."

30-31So now if I go back to your servant, my father, without the boy, he will die because his life depends completely on the welfare of his boy. As soon as he sees that Benjamin is not with us, the sorrow will kill him and we, your servants, will condemn the old, gray head of our father, your servant, to the grave.
32I gave my father my word that I would take care of the boy and return him safely home. I told him, "If I don't bring him back to you in one piece, then I am perfectly willing to bear the blame forever." 33So please let me, your servant, remain as your slave in place of the boy; and let him go back with his brothers. 34For how can I go back to my father without the boy? I couldn't stand to see the terrible suffering this would put him through.

► Judah has come a long way. He is no longer the selfish young man who conspired with his brothers to sell Joseph into slavery (37:26-27). Though he knew that decision would have a devastating effect on his father, Judah did not seem to care. Nor is he the lustful man who propositioned the prostitute who happened to be his daughter-in-law (38:1-30). Now he is different. His priorities have changed. He is willing to sacrifice his freedom and future to save his father the grief of losing Benjamin. Judah's transformation is not immediate; it takes years to accomplish. But his place in the family and his selfless example impact the children of Israel for generations to come.

45 Then Joseph could no longer keep his composure. The room was crowded with people so he ordered his attendants:

Joseph: Send everyone out of the room!

Joseph didn't want anyone else in the room when he finally told his brothers his true identity. 2But he began to cry so loudly that the Egyptians heard it, and the Pharaoh's household heard it too! Joseph turned and addressed his brothers:

Joseph: 3I am Joseph. Is my father still alive?

But his brothers were too shocked to speak. They couldn't answer, for they were so overwhelmed that they were standing in Joseph's presence.

Joseph *(to his brothers): 4Come closer to me.

His brothers approached him cautiously.

Joseph: I am your brother, Joseph, whom you sold into Egypt. 5Don't be upset or angry with yourselves any longer because of what you did. You see God sent me here ahead of you to preserve life. 6For famine struck this land two years ago, and there are five more years in which there will be no plowing or harvesting. 7God sent me here ahead of you to make sure you and your families survive this terrible ordeal and have a remnant left on earth. 8So it wasn't really you who sent me here, but God; the same God who made me an advisor to Pharaoh, master of his household, and ruler over everyone in the land of Egypt.

9Hurry now, go to my father, and relay this message: "Here is what your son Joseph says: 'God has made me master over all Egypt. Come to me and don't delay. 10*I'll arrange for* all of you to settle in the land of Goshen where you can be near me—you and all of your children and grandchildren, as well as your flocks and herds and everything you have. 11I will provide for you there. Since five more years of famine are still to come, I will make sure your household and everything you have will not descend into poverty.'"

12Now you see with your own eyes, and even my brother Benjamin sees, that it is really I who speak to you even without an interpreter. 13You must tell my father how honored I am here in Egypt. Tell him everything you've seen here. Hurry. Bring my father here.

14With that he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck. They embraced, and both wept. 15Then he kissed all of his brothers one by one, cried on their shoulders as well, and after that they talked for a time together.

16The news spread to Pharaoh's house that Joseph's brothers had come. When Pharaoh and his other advisors heard, they were pleased.

Pharaoh *(to Joseph): 17Tell your brothers, "Do this: Load your animals, and go back to the land called Canaan. 18Get your father and your families; come here to me, and I will give you the prime properties of Egypt. You will enjoy the very best Egypt has to offer." 19Now, Joseph, I command you to tell them also, "Do this: Take wagons from the land of Egypt so that your little children, your wives, and your father can make the journey. Come quickly. 20Don't worry about bringing all your things, for once you get here, the best of Egypt will be spread out at your feet."

21-22The sons of Israel did exactly as Pharaoh ordered. Joseph followed Pharaoh's directive and made sure they had enough wagons. He gave them food and other supplies for their journey including an extra change of clothes. But to Benjamin he gave about seven and a half pounds of silver and five sets of clothes. 23To his father, he sent even more: 10 donkeys loaded with the best Egyptian gifts and 10 female donkeys loaded with grain, bread, and provisions for his father for the journey. 24Then he sent his brothers on their way. As they were leaving, he gave them one last piece of advice.

Joseph: Don't argue along the way!

► Once again Joseph and his brothers are parting company. But this time is much different: they know where he is and who he has become. Although Joseph has been separated from his brothers for many years, he remembers how they were; and he is counting on the fact that they are a quarrelsome bunch. He has intentionally given Benjamin more money and clothes than the others. That in itself is enough to cause bickering and squabbling among the crew. In addition, he knows they are worried. They have just received quite a shock. To learn after all these years that the brother they sold into slavery has become one of the most powerful men in the world takes time to process. The famine, the journey from Canaan, and the shock of seeing him again have taken a toll on them. Now they have to go back, get their families, and return. The road home leaves plenty of time to worry about what might become of them, plenty of time for nerves to fray and anger to stir. Joseph knows they have a hard journey ahead, and they need to pull together and not apart.

25The brothers traveled east out of Egypt and eventually turned north to return to their father, Jacob, in the land of Canaan.
26They couldn't wait to tell him the good news.

Joseph's Brothers: Father, Joseph is still alive! But more than that, he is ruler over all of the land of Egypt.

Their father was stunned; he couldn't believe his ears. 27But when they told him everything Joseph had said to them and when he saw the wagons that Joseph had sent to carry him to Egypt, his spirits soared, and he resolved to make the trip.

Israel: 28I have seen enough. My son Joseph is alive! I must go and see him before I die.

46 Israel set out on his journey to Egypt with all of his belongings, and when he came to Beersheba, he offered sacrificial gifts to the God of his father, Isaac. 2God spoke there to Israel in visions during the night.

God: Jacob, Jacob!

Jacob: I'm here. I'm listening!

God: 3I am the True God, the God of your father. Don't be afraid to go down to Egypt and leave the land I promised you, for I am going to make you into a great nation there. 4I will go down with you to Egypt, and one day I will be the One to bring you back again. And something else—Joseph's own hands will be the ones to close your eyes at the time of your death.

5Then Jacob got up and continued on from Beersheba toward Egypt, and the sons of Israel carried their father Jacob, their little children, and their wives in the wagons Pharaoh sent with them. 6-7They also brought their livestock and the goods they had acquired in the land of Canaan.
And at last, Jacob and his family arrived in Egypt. His sons, his grandsons, his daughters, and his granddaughters—all of his descendants came with him to Egypt.

8Here are the names of the descendants of Israel—that is, Jacob and his family—who settled in Egypt. Reuben (Jacob's firstborn son) 9and his sons: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi. 10Simeon and his sons: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul (the son of a Canaanite woman). 11Levi and his sons: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. 12Judah and his sons: Er and Onan (who both died in the land of Canaan), Shelah, Perez, and Zerah; Perez and his sons (Judah's grandchildren): Hezron and Hamul. 13Issachar and his sons: Tola, Puvvah, Iob, and Shimron. 14Zebulun and his sons: Sered, Elon, and Jahleel. 15These sons, along with his daughter Dinah, are the 33 sons and daughters born to Jacob by Leah in Paddan-aram.

16Gad and his sons: Ziphion, Haggi, Shuni, Ezbon, Eri, Arodi, and Areli. 17Asher and his sons: Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, Beriah, and their sister Serah; Beriah and his sons (Gad's grandchildren): Heber and Malchiel. 18These are the 16 children born to Jacob by Zilpah. (Zilpah was the servant Laban gave to his daughter, Leah, when she married Jacob.)

19Jacob's sons by Rachel were Joseph and Benjamin. 20Joseph had Manasseh and Ephraim in the land of Egypt with his wife Asenath (daughter of Potiphera, priest of On). 21Benjamin and his sons: Bela, Becher, Ashbel, Gera, Naaman, Ehi, Rosh, Muppim, Huppim, and Ard. 22These are the 14 children born to Jacob by Rachel.

23Dan had only one son: Hushim. 24Naphtali and his sons: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Shillem. 25These are the 7 children born to Jacob by Bilhah. (Bilhah was the servant Laban gave to his daughter, Rachel, when she married Jacob.)

26So all of Jacob's children and grandchildren who came to Egypt—those who were in some way his offspring, but not the wives of his sons—were 66 in all. 27Joseph had two sons who were born in Egypt. All of the people directly related to Jacob who now lived in Egypt numbered 70 people.

28Now Israel decided to send Judah ahead to Joseph in order to learn the way into Goshen. When they came to the land of Goshen, they stopped. 29Joseph got into his chariot and went out to meet his father, Israel. When he saw him, he fell on his neck and wept for a long time.

Jacob (to Joseph): 30I can die now in peace, because I've seen your face and I know you are alive.

31Joseph gathered his brothers and his father's household and told them his plans.

Joseph: I'm going now to let Pharaoh know you are here. I will tell him, "My brothers and my father's household have arrived from Canaan. 32The men are shepherds. They make their living by keeping livestock, and they've brought their flocks and herds and all of their belongings." 33When Pharaoh calls you to the court and asks your occupation, 34tell him, "Your servants keep livestock. We start in the family business when we are just boys. That is what we and our ancestors have always done." That way, you'll be allowed to settle in the land of Goshen because Egyptians can't stand to be around shepherds.

47 So Joseph went to Pharaoh.

Joseph (to Pharaoh): My father and brothers have arrived from the land of Canaan with their flocks and herds and the rest of their belongings. They are now waiting in the land of Goshen.

2Now Joseph had chosen five of his brothers and brought them along to present to Pharaoh.

Pharaoh (to Joseph's brothers): 3What is your occupation?

Joseph's Brothers: Your servants are shepherds. We tend sheep and goats as our ancestors did before us.

4We've come to reside in this land as foreigners for a time because there is no place in the land of Canaan for us to pasture our flocks on account of the severity of the famine. Now please, allow your servants to settle in the land of Goshen until this famine is over.

Pharaoh (to Joseph): 5Your father and brothers have come to you for help. 6You have the entire land of Egypt at your disposal. Settle your family in the best areas of the land. Let them live in Goshen, and if you know of any who are particularly good at what they do, then put them in charge of my livestock.

7Then Joseph brought his father, Jacob, and presented him to Pharaoh, and Jacob gave Pharaoh a blessing.

► Jacob blesses Pharaoh. As we have seen, words spoken as a blessing have great meaning at this time. It may be no more than a greeting spoken, such as "shalom," which means "peace." However the story of Genesis prompts us to consider another possibility. In God's plan to redeem and reclaim His creation, He chooses Abraham and his descendants to be a blessing to all the families on earth. Jacob, Abraham's grandson and God's covenant partner, speaks a blessing over Pharaoh that creates a new reality for Egypt and its king. Little does Pharaoh know that this humble nomadic family in need of his help will one day change the course of history.

Pharaoh (to Jacob): [8]How old are you now?

Jacob: [9]I have journeyed through life for 130 years. My life has been short and hard. But they don't compare with the many years my ancestors traveled this earth.

[10]Jacob gave Pharaoh a blessing for a second time and left his presence. [11]So Joseph settled his father and brothers on some of the best land in Egypt—granting them property of their own in a region known as Rameses, as Pharaoh had instructed. [12]And Joseph also provided them with food, according to the number of all of their dependents.

[13]As time went on, the famine became more severe, and food became scarce in the lands of Egypt and Canaan. The people were starving. [14]Everyone from the lands of Egypt and Canaan spent all the money they had to buy grain. Joseph collected all the money and stored it in Pharaoh's palace. [15]But when the people of Egypt and Canaan ran out of money, the Egyptians came to Joseph to plead with him.

Egyptians: Please, give us food! Why should we all die here in front of you? Our money is gone.

Joseph: [16]You can pay with livestock then. I will give you food in exchange for your livestock, if your money is gone.

[17]So the people brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them food in exchange for horses, flocks, herds, and donkeys. That year, he supplied them with food in exchange for livestock. [18]But when that year was over, they came to him the next year.

Egyptians: My lord, we cannot hide the fact that our money is all spent, and now the herds of livestock all belong to you. We have nothing left to exchange for food except our bodies and our lands. [19]Why should we and our land perish now right before your eyes? Buy us and our land in exchange for food. We will become slaves to Pharaoh. We will work the land for him. Just please give us seed, so that we can live and avoid dying of hunger and so that the land doesn't become wild and deserted.

[20]So Joseph agreed. He bought up all of the land of Egypt for Pharaoh. The Egyptians sold their fields because the famine was too severe for them to get by on their own, and so all of the land became the property of Pharaoh. [21]As for the people, he made slaves of them, from one end of Egypt to the other. [22]But he did not purchase the land belonging to the priests because they received an allowance from Pharaoh and were able to live off of it. So they didn't have to sell their land.

Joseph (to the people): [23]See I have done what you asked. I have bought you and your lands for Pharaoh. Now here is the seed you need to sow the land. [24]When the harvest arrives, you will be required to give one-fifth of what you produce to Pharaoh; and four-fifths will be your own to plant the fields and feed your families, households, and children.

Egyptians: [25]You have saved our lives. If it pleases my lord, we are honored to serve as slaves to Pharaoh under these terms.

[26]So Joseph made a law regarding the land of Egypt—which stands to this day—declaring Pharaoh is due one-fifth of all the land produces. Only the land of the priests remained personal property.

[27]So this was how Israel and his descendants came to live in the land of Egypt, in the region known as Goshen. They acquired property in the area, had children, and their number increased rapidly. [28]Jacob lived another 17 years in the land of Egypt; he lived to be 147. [29]And when Israel was close to death, he called his son Joseph to his side.

Jacob (to Joseph): If I have found favor with you, I need a favor from you. Put your hand here under my thigh. Swear to deal kindly and faithfully with me by honoring my dying wish: please do not bury me in Egypt. [30]When I die let me lie with my ancestors. Take my body away from Egypt, and bury me where they are buried.

Joseph: I will do as you ask, Father.

Jacob: [31]Swear to me.

And Joseph took the oath. Then, Israel bowed down at the head of his bed.

Jacob bows his final bow—perhaps in the weakness of old age or in thankfulness for Joseph's promise, or maybe in prayer to the Lord.

In the days of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, custom demands that the firstborn son become the next head of the family and inherit the name, status, and wealth of his father. But as we have seen throughout Genesis, God makes a habit of ignoring human customs, subverting tradition, and privileging the younger over the older. When it comes to the covenant, God typically chooses to pass its blessings and duties to the younger. The trend continues throughout Scripture as God selects David and then Solomon, both younger sons, as the two greatest kings over Israel. It is almost humorous the way Joseph tries to engineer the situation placing Manasseh, his firstborn, at his father's right hand to receive the greater blessing. But Israel has none of it. He crosses his hands and extends the right hand to Ephraim, the second-born. Joseph is sure his ailing father has made a mistake. But Jacob knows exactly what he is doing.

48 Soon after this, Joseph was brought word that his father was gravely ill; so he took his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, to see Jacob. 2When Jacob was told that his son Joseph had come to see him, he gathered his strength and sat up in bed.

Jacob (to Joseph): 3The All-Powerful God appeared to me at Luz in the land of Canaan many years ago and spoke His blessing over me, 4telling me, "I am going to make you fruitful and multiply your descendants so that you will give rise to nation after nation. I will give this land to them after you to have as their possession forever." 5So Joseph, your two sons who were born to you in Egypt before I came here are mine. I claim Ephraim and Manasseh as my own, just as Reuben and Simeon are mine. 6As for any children you father after them, you may regard them as your own. When it comes time for your other children to gain their inheritances, they will be given land within the regions granted to their brothers, Ephraim and Manasseh. 7When I left Paddan, your mother Rachel died on our journey in the land of Canaan. We were not far from Ephrath, so I buried her there on the way to Ephrath (which is also known as Bethlehem).

8Just then Israel noticed Joseph's sons.

Jacob: And who are these?

Joseph: 9These are my sons, Father, whom God has given to me here in Egypt.

Jacob: Please bring them here to me, so I can lay my hands on them and bless them.

10Israel's eyes were dim because of his old age, so he couldn't see well. Joseph brought the boys near to him, and Israel kissed them and hugged them warmly.

Jacob *(to Joseph): 11I didn't know if I would ever see your face again, but now God has given me more than I hoped: He has let me see your children too.

12Then Joseph moved the boys aside—they had been at his father's knees—and he bowed down low with his face to the ground. 13Then Joseph took his sons and brought them near to his father. He took his younger son Ephraim in his right hand and put him to the left hand of Israel, and he took Manasseh in his left hand and put him to the right hand of Israel. 14But Israel stretched out his hands and crossed his arms, laying his right hand on the head of Ephraim, the younger, and his left hand on the head of Manasseh, the firstborn. 15And he spoke this blessing over Joseph.

Jacob: May the God before whom my ancestors Abraham and Isaac walked,
the God who has been my shepherd
all of my life and still to this day, 16The messenger who has rescued me from all harm, bless these boys.
And let my name be perpetuated through them,
as well as the name of my ancestors
Abraham and Isaac,
And let them grow into a great multitude of people throughout the world.

17When Joseph saw that his father had laid his right hand on Ephraim's head, he was troubled, and so he took his father's hand to move it from Ephraim's head to Manasseh's.

Joseph: [18]No, Father! Since this one is the firstborn, put your right hand on his head.

[19]But Israel refused.

Jacob: I know, my son, I know. Manasseh will also become a people, and he will be great. Nevertheless, his younger brother will be greater than he, and his children will give rise to many nations.

[20]So it was that Israel blessed Joseph and his sons that day.

Jacob: When the people of Israel speak blessings, they'll remember you: "May God make you like Ephraim and Manasseh."

So this is how Israel ranked Ephraim ahead of Manasseh.

Jacob *(to Joseph): [21]Look, I am about to die; but I know that God will be with you, and He will bring you back to the land of your ancestors someday. [22]I am going to hand down to you more land than I give to your brothers. You will inherit a mountain ridge that I seized from the Amorites with my sword and my bow.

49 After this, Jacob called all of his sons to him.

Jacob: [2]Gather near to me, so I can let you know what to expect in the days to come.

Gather around and pay attention, you sons of Jacob.
Listen carefully, my sons, to Israel, your father.

[3]Reuben, you are my firstborn son,
my power and the vigor of my youth,
first in rank and first in power.
[4]But you are out of control, like floodwaters; you have forfeited your place and defiled his bed—you climbed onto my couch!

[5]Simeon and Levi are indeed brothers, kindred spirits who use their swords* for cruelty and violence.
[6]May I never enter their confidence;
from the two of them I must part company to retain my honor.
Because in their anger, they've killed men,
and they've hamstrung oxen on a whim.
[7]Their anger be cursed, for they have fierce tempers.
Their wrath be cursed, for they can be cruel.
I will scatter their children among Jacob's descendants and spread them throughout the land of Israel.

► Israel's blessing speaks not only what is but what will be. His words establish Judah as the father to the royal line from which King David and his dynasty will one day come. They anticipate God's eternal covenant with David that brings peace and prosperity to the entire world. It is little wonder that early Christians referred to the risen Jesus as "the lion of the tribe of Judah," for they found in Him the fulfillment of Israel's blessing.

described them when he blessed them—blessing each one with a blessing that suited each son.

► When Israel's inheritance of the land is divided, Levi is not included; but Joseph's two sons become the leaders of two tribes descended from Joseph. Manasseh and Ephraim take Joseph's and Levi's places, filling out the twelve tribes.

Jacob (charging his sons): 29-30I am about to join my ancestors in death. Please do as I ask, and bury me with my ancestors in the cave at Machpelah, near Mamre in the land of Canaan. It is located at the edge of a field owned by Ephron the Hittite. Abraham acquired the field from Ephron as a burial site for his family. 31This is where Abraham and his wife Sarah are buried, also Isaac and his wife Rebekah. I buried Leah there myself. 32The field and cave were purchased from the Hittites long ago.

33After Jacob finished with these instructions to his sons, he pulled his feet up onto the bed, breathed his last breath, and joined his ancestors in death.

50 As his father passed on, Joseph threw himself onto his father's face, crying and kissing him. 2Then Joseph told the physicians in his service to embalm his father and prepare him for the journey. So the physicians embalmed Israel. 3It took 40 days to embalm him because that's how long it takes to embalm a body properly. And the Egyptians paid their respects by mourning and weeping for him for 70 days.

4When the time of mourning had passed, Joseph addressed Pharaoh's household.

Joseph: If I have found favor with you, please speak to Pharaoh on my behalf. 5My father made me swear an oath. He said, "I am about to die. I want you to bury me in the tomb I made for myself in the land of Canaan." So I ask that you allow me to go out of Egypt to bury my father. When I have honored his request, I will return to Egypt.

Pharaoh: 6Go up to Canaan, and bury your father as he made you swear to do.

7So Joseph went up to Canaan to bury his father. And all of Pharaoh's servants went with him in a long procession that included the elders of Pharaoh's household and the land of Egypt. 8Joseph's own household, his brothers, and his father's household joined in the solemn march. Only their children, flocks, and herds were left in the land of Goshen. 9Both chariots and charioteers accompanied him as well. It was a grand procession. 10When they came to the threshing floor of Atad near Canaan but still beyond the Jordan River, the great company of mourners paused to observe seven days of mourning for Joseph's father. The weeping and lamentation grew so loud that 11the people who lived there, the Canaanites, could not help but notice the profound grief expressed on the threshing floor of Atad.

Canaanites: The Egyptians must have experienced a terrible loss to mourn so deeply.

This is why this place of mourning that lies beyond the Jordan was renamed Abelmizraim.

12So Jacob's sons carried out his last instructions as he had directed. 13They carried him to the land of Canaan and buried him in the cave of the field at Machpelah near Mamre, which Abraham had bought along with the field from Ephron the Hittite so he could have a place to bury his family. 14After he had buried his father, Joseph gathered his brothers and the vast company of mourners who had journeyed with him to bury his father, and they all returned to Egypt.

15When Joseph's brothers began to realize the implications of their father's death, Joseph's brothers began to worry.

Joseph's Brothers: What if Joseph still bears a grudge in some way against us and decides to pay us back in full for all of the wrong we did to him?

16So they sent a message to Joseph.

Joseph's Brothers' Message: Your father gave us this instruction before he died. 17He told us to say to you, "Please, I beg you. Forgive the crime of your brothers and the sins they committed against you. They were wrong to treat you so badly." So please do what your father asked and forgive the crime that we, the servants of the God of your father, committed against you.

Joseph cried when they spoke these words to him. 18And his brothers approached and fell at his feet.

Joseph's Brothers: Look! We are your slaves.

Joseph: 19Don't be afraid. Am I to judge instead of God? It is not my place. 20Even though you intended to harm me, God intended it only for good, and through me, He preserved the lives of countless people, as He is still doing today. 21So don't worry. I will provide for you myself—for you and your children.

This same sentiment is expressed in Paul's letter to the Romans (8:28). God can take even the meanest intention and make it work for good for His devoted followers.

So Joseph reassured them and continued to speak kindly to them.

22Now Joseph remained in Egypt for the rest of his life—he and all of his father's household. He lived to be 110 years old, 23long enough to see Ephraim's children down to the third generation. Joseph adopted the children of Machir (Manasseh's son) and brought them up as his own. 24*One day,* Joseph told his brothers,

Joseph *(to his brothers): I am about to die, but God will someday come to you, lead you out of this land, and bring you back to the land He swore to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

25At that, Joseph made the rest of Israel's sons swear to him an oath.

Joseph: When God comes to you, you must take my bones along with you out of this place and back to our homeland.

26Then Joseph died. He was 110 years old, and he was embalmed and placed in a coffin in Egypt.

► The story of Joseph ends with the children of Israel living in Egypt. They live there in peace and security through many generations knowing that their future is not in Egypt; their future is in another land, a land of promise, a land most of them have never seen.

EXODUS

The rescue of Abraham's children from Egyptian slavery

By Moses, the shepherd of God's people

The Book of Exodus continues the story of God's unique relationship with a people known as Israel. But the situation for Israel in Egypt has changed drastically. As Exodus begins, hundreds of years have gone by from the time when Joseph and his family settled in the land of Egypt. With Joseph as Pharaoh's second-in-command, Jacob (Israel) and his children enjoyed favored status. But Exodus announces that a new Pharaoh is in charge, and he wants to write his own history. Meanwhile, as God had promised, Israel has become a nation; but it is a nation living as aliens and outsiders within a land not their own. So, for many reasons Pharaoh and the Egyptians turn against these outsiders and cruelly oppress them.

Exodus then is a story of divine rescue. God remembers the covenant He made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and He prepares a new prophet, Moses, to be His mouthpiece to Israel and to Egypt's powerful king. With miracle after miracle, God defeats the so-called gods of Egypt demonstrating that He is the True God and these slaves belong to Him. The title of the book, Exodus, is taken from the Greek translation and means literally "a going out." It is named for the central, miraculous event in the book, the "going out" of the Hebrew slaves from a land of oppression toward a new land that would become their home.

The book ends with the people of Israel on their way to this new land. But for a time they must discontinue their journey and camp at Mount Sinai, a special place where God chooses to reveal Himself initially to Moses and then to the rest of the people. At Mount Sinai, God establishes a new covenant with Israel, a covenant that builds upon and expands the earlier relationship He formed with Abraham and his descendants. At the heart of this covenant are God's directives to His people. They put into law His will and form a blueprint for a new kind of society that God intends to be an example to the rest of the world. These directives order their private and public lives; they form the basis for civil and religious society. They demonstrate God's perspective on right and wrong and set Israel apart from other nations.

Moses' greatness as God's prophet and the people's priest is demonstrated on nearly every page of this book. Although Moses stammers badly, God uses him and his brother Aaron to speak more clearly and effectively than any prophet in history. Moses is surely a giant in Israel's history, which may be why tradition ascribes this book—as well as the rest of the Pentateuch—to Moses as author.

1 These are the names of Israel's sons—
the ones who traveled from Canaan and entered into Egypt with Jacob during the great famine. Each of these men arrived in Egypt with his family:

2Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah; 3Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin;
4Dan and Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

5*At that time,* Jacob had 70 children and grandchildren. All of them came to Egypt, except for Joseph; he was already there.* 6Joseph died, and so did all of his brothers. It was not long before that entire generation was gone. 7But the people of Israel were prolific; they had children easily, and their numbers increased rapidly. As their numbers grew so did their strength. Eventually, they filled the land.

► God has done what He promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: He has made Israel's children fertile, productive, and strong. Over time Jacob's 70 children have become a nation within a nation, and the Egyptians are taking notice. History teaches the Pharaohs and the ruling classes to be wary of outsiders. So now that the Israelites are swarming all over the land like flies, and they are not fully assimilating into Egyptian life and culture, the Pharaoh thinks they pose a clear and present danger. So the Egyptian king decides that strong measures are necessary. The welcome that Joseph and his family once enjoyed turns into outright hostility.

8*One day,* a new king came to power and ruled over Egypt, but this king had no knowledge of Joseph.

Pharaoh *(to some of his advisors): 9Look! There are more Israelites than ever before, and they are growing more powerful than we are. 10We need to be careful in our dealings with them. Otherwise, they may grow even greater in number, and in a time of war join forces with our enemies, fight against us, and then leave the land.

12But the harder the slave drivers pushed the Israelites, the more rapidly they had children and spread throughout the land. Because of this, the Egyptians grew to detest the Israelites even more 13and violently forced them to work until they were sore and tired—far beyond exhaustion. 14The Egyptians made life bitter for all those Israelites forced to mix mortar, make bricks, and do all types of grueling work in the fields. They tormented their Israelite slaves until all the work was done.

15*Pharaoh,* Egypt's king, called for some of the Hebrew midwives. Their names were Shiphrah and Puah.

Pharaoh: 16*Listen closely.* Whenever you are looking after a Hebrew woman who is in labor and ready to deliver, if she gives birth to a son, then kill the baby. If it is a daughter, then allow her to live.

17But the midwives respected God more than they feared Pharaoh, so they did not carry out the Egyptian king's command. Instead, they let all the boys live. 18When Egypt's king heard this news, he sent for the midwives.

Pharaoh: Why have you disobeyed my orders and allowed the boys to live?

Midwives: 19Because unlike Egyptian women, Hebrew women are hearty and energetic, and they give birth before the midwife arrives to help.

20God was good to the midwives, and under their care the Israelite women had many more children. Despite Pharaoh's orders, the people of Israel became stronger and more powerful. 21Because the midwives respected God, He blessed them with families of their own. 22In response to the rapid growth in the Hebrew population, Pharaoh issued a command to his people.

Pharaoh: Every boy who is born to the Hebrews must be thrown into the Nile, and every girl is to be left alive.

* 1:5 Genesis 46:27

► Pharaoh wants the boys dead because he knows they may grow up to fight against him, but he wants the girls to live. He is sure he can find a use for them.

2 One day a man and woman—both from the tribe of Levi—married. 2She became pregnant and gave birth to a son. When she saw that her son was healthy and beautiful, she feared for his safety; so she kept him hidden from view for three whole months.

3When she could no longer keep him hidden away, she took a basket made of reeds, sealed it with tar and pitch, and placed her baby boy in it. Then she wedged the basket among the reeds along the edge of the Nile River.

The Hebrew word for the "basket" that Moses' mother prepared is the word used in Genesis 6:14 for the "ark" that preserves Noah and his family from a watery judgment.

4*All the while,* the child's sister watched from a distance to see what might happen to her baby brother.

5*Later on* Pharaoh's daughter came down to bathe in the river while her young attendants walked along the bank nearby. Pharaoh's daughter noticed the basket wedged among the reeds and wondered what it might contain. So she instructed her maid to bring it to her. 6When Pharaoh's daughter opened the basket, she found the baby boy. He was crying, and her heart melted with compassion.

Pharaoh's Daughter: This is a Hebrew child.

Child's Sister *(coming out of her hiding place): 7Would you like me to find a Hebrew woman to nurse the child for you?

So the baby's sister went and fetched his mother. The boy's mother approached Pharaoh's daughter.

Pharaoh's Daughter *(to the nurse): 9*Here!* Take this child and nurse him for me, and I will pay you for your services.

So the woman took the child—who was secretly her own son—and nursed him just as Pharaoh's daughter had instructed.

This child is destined for greatness. Powerful people want him dead; instead, Providence intervenes.

10The boy grew, and when the time was right, the woman brought him to Pharaoh's daughter, and she adopted him as her own. She named him Moses because, as she explained, "I took him out of the water."

11Years later, when Moses had grown up, he went out to observe his people—the Hebrews—and he witnessed the heavy burden of labor forced upon them. He also witnessed an Egyptian beating one of his Hebrew brothers. 12He looked around to see if anyone was watching but there was no one in sight, so he beat the Egyptian just as the Egyptian had beaten the Hebrew. Moses ended up killing the Egyptian and hid the dead body in the sand.

13He went out again the next day and saw two of his Hebrew brothers fighting with each other. Moses confronted the offender.

Moses: Why are you hitting your friend?

Offender: 14Who made you our prince and judge? Are you going to kill me as you did the Egyptian yesterday?*

Fear immediately gripped Moses.

Moses *(to himself): The news of what I did must have spread. I must get out of here quickly.

15*Moses was right.* When the news reached Pharaoh, he sought to have Moses killed. But Moses ran away from Pharaoh until he reached the land of Midian. There he sat down beside a well.

16Now the priest of Midian had seven daughters. While Moses was sitting there, resting from his journey, they came to get water from the well in order to fill the troughs with water for their father's flock. 17At that moment, a band of shepherds came and forced the priest's flocks away from the well; but Moses stood up for the young women, came to their rescue, and even watered their father's flock for them. 18The women returned to their father Reuel (he was also known as Jethro).

Many people and places in the Scriptures have more than one name. Jethro is likely his given name, while Reuel is his priestly name.

Jethro: Why are you back so early today?

Women: 19An Egyptian was at the well and he saved us from the bullying of the shepherds. He even drew water from the well and watered the flock for us.

Jethro: 20Where is this man? Why did you leave him at the well? Go find him, and invite him over for a meal.

21*After experiencing Jethro's hospitality,* Moses agreed to come and live with him; and eventually Jethro arranged for one of his daughters, Zipporah, to marry Moses.* 22Later Zipporah became pregnant and gave birth to a son; and Moses named the child Gershom because, as he explained, "I have been an outsider in a foreign land."

► What begins as a dinner invitation turns into an adoptive home for this wandering fugitive. Through all the twists and turns in Moses' life, God is preparing him for a special task. Since he is raised by his Hebrew mother, he hears the stories of his people and learns to love them and identify with their suffering. Since he becomes part of Pharaoh's extended family, he knows how to gain access to power. Since he spends these years in the land of Midian taking care of Jethro's flocks, he has an intimate connection with a land through which one day he will lead a vast company of people. In the meantime, Moses must figure out who he is and whose he is, for soon there will be a job to do.

23Many years later, Egypt's king died. The Israelites continued to moan because of their bondage, and they cried out to be rescued from their oppression. Their cry for help ascended to God. 24He heard their pleas and remembered the covenant He made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 25God saw the situation the people of Israel were in, and He was moved to take action.

3 Now one day when Moses was shepherding the flock of his father-in-law, Jethro, the priest of Midian, he guided the flock far away from its usual pastures to the other side of the desert and came to a place known as Horeb, where the mountain of God stood. 2There, the Special Messenger of the Eternal appeared to Moses in a fiery blaze from within the bush. Moses looked again at the bush as it blazed; but to his amazement, the bush did not burn up in flames.

► Burning bushes in the desert are not uncommon. Dry plants make good tinder, and lightning strikes quickly set them ablaze. What is unusual is the fact that this bush continues to burn: a curiosity for this seasoned shepherd. As Moses draws close, he sees more than he expects; he encounters the one True God and His Special Messenger. But the form of the encounter is not completely clear. Moses hears directly from God, but he sees only fire and God's Special Messenger. The point here is not simply to amaze Moses with miracles but to call him to an important task. God's people are suffering, and they need someone willing to go and rescue them. God has already decided the right person for the job, but he needs to be persuaded.

Moses *(to himself): 3Why is this bush not burning up? I need to move a little closer to get a better look at this amazing sight.

4When the Eternal One saw Moses approach the burning bush to observe it more closely, He called out to him from within the bush.

Eternal One: Moses! Moses!

Moses: I'm right here.

Eternal One: 5Don't come any closer. Take off your sandals and stand barefoot on the ground in My presence, for this ground is holy ground.* 6I am the True God, the God of your father, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.*

A feeling of dread and awe rushed over Moses; he hid his face because he was afraid he might catch a glimpse of the True God.

Eternal One: 7I have seen how My people in Egypt are being mistreated. I have heard their groaning when the slave drivers torment and harass them; for I know well their suffering. 8I have come to rescue them from the oppression of the Egyptians, to lead them from that land where they are slaves and to give them a good land—a wide, open space flowing with milk and honey. The land is currently inhabited by Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites. 9The plea of Israel's children has come before Me, and I have observed the cruel treatment they have suffered by Egyptian hands. 10So go. I'm sending you back to Egypt as My messenger to the Pharaoh. I want you to gather My people—the children of Israel—and bring them out of Egypt.*

Moses *(to God): 11Who am I to confront Pharaoh and lead Israel's children out of Egypt?

Eternal One: 12*Do not fear, Moses.* I will be with you every step of the way, and this will be the sign to you that I am the One who has sent you: after you have led them out of Egypt, you will return to this mountain and worship God.

Moses: 13Let's say I go to the people of Israel and tell them, "The God of your fathers has sent me to rescue you," and then they reply, "What is His name?" What should I tell them then?

Eternal One: 14I AM WHO I AM.* This is what you should tell the people of Israel: "I AM has sent me to rescue you."

15This is what you are to tell Israel's people: "The Eternal, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob is the One who has sent me to you." This is My name forevermore, and this is the name by which all future generations shall remember Me.

16Round up all the elders in Israel and tell them, "The Eternal, the God of your fathers and the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, has revealed Himself to me and said, 'I have been watching over you, and I am deeply troubled by what has been done to you in Egypt. 17So I will rescue you from the oppression you have suffered in Egypt, and lead you to the land of the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites—a rich and productive land flowing with milk and honey.'" 18They will listen to all that you tell them; you and the elders will then go to visit Egypt's king and tell the king, "The Eternal, the Hebrews' God, has appeared to us. We ask that you allow us to travel three days' distance into the desert to offer sacrifices to the Eternal."

19But I already know that Egypt's king will turn down your request. He will not allow you to go, unless he is compelled by a hand stronger than his own. 20So I will stretch out My hand, display My power, and crush Egypt with a series of miracles I will perform. After that the king will send you out of Egypt. 21I will make it so the Egyptians treat My people favorably; and when you leave Egypt, you will not leave empty-handed. 22Every Hebrew woman will ask her Egyptian neighbor and any foreigner in her home for anything made of silver or gold or even fine clothing. You will give all the items you collect to your children to wear. In this way, you will strip these items from the Egyptians.

4 Moses: What if they don't trust me? What if they don't listen to a single word I say? They are more likely to reply: "The Eternal has not revealed Himself to you."

The Eternal One answered Moses.

Eternal One: 2What do you have in your hand?

* 3:5 Acts 7:33 * 3:6 Matthew 22:32; Mark 12:26; Luke 20:37; Acts 7:32 * 3:7-8, 10 Acts 7:34 * 3:14 "Eternal One" is derived from the Hebrew word meaning, "I am."

God has been called by many names and titles, and those reflect to some extent aspects of God's nature and character. In this encounter, God reveals to Moses His name. This is a special name by which God invites His covenant partners to know and call on Him for all time. It sometimes appears in books or translations as YHWH or Yahweh, but this is only a transliteration of the four letters in Hebrew; it's not a translation of its meaning. The name is built on the Hebrew verb "to be" and refers to the fact that God is the Self-existent One—"I AM WHO I AM." Many translations render the divine name "LORD" (in capital and small capital letters), but this translation uses "the Eternal One," for at the heart of the name is the notion that God has always been and always will be. God transcends time and existence; He is the ground of existence. Out of respect, the ancients would seldom speak or write the covenant name; they would use it only on the most solemn occasions. Still God is establishing a unique relationship with Abraham's descendants, and it is time to reveal to them His name.

Moses: My shepherd's staff.

Eternal One: 3Throw your staff down on the ground.

So Moses threw the staff on the ground, and it was transformed into a snake. Moses quickly jumped back in fear.

Eternal One: 4Reach out and grab it by the tail.

Despite his natural fears, Moses reached out and grabbed the snake; and as he held it, it changed back into a shepherd's staff.

Eternal One: 5This sign is so the people will believe that I, the God of their fathers—Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—have revealed Himself to you.
6Now for the second sign. Put your hand on your chest inside your shirt.

Moses did as the Eternal instructed; and when he pulled his hand out, his hand was covered with some disease that made it look as white as snow.

Eternal One: 7Put your hand back inside your clothes.

Moses again did as He instructed, and when he removed his hand from his shirt, it returned to normal like the rest of his skin.

Eternal One: 8-9If they refuse to believe you, and are not persuaded after you perform the first sign, perhaps they will be after the second sign. But if they refuse to believe you and are not persuaded after you perform the first two signs, then here is a third sign: Take some water from the Nile and pour it out onto the ground. The water you take from the Nile will become blood on the ground.

Moses: 10Please, Lord, I am not a talented speaker. I have never been good with words. I wasn't when I was younger and I haven't gotten any better since You revealed Yourself to me. I stutter and stammer. My words get all twisted.

Eternal One: 11Who is it that gives a person a mouth? Who determines whether one person speaks and another doesn't? Why is it that one person hears and another doesn't? And why can one person see and another doesn't? Isn't it because of Me, the Eternal? You know it is. 12Go now, and I will be there to give you the words to speak; I will tell you what to say.

Moses: 13Please, Lord, I beg you to send Your message through someone else, anyone else.

14Then the Eternal became angry with Moses.

Eternal One: How about your brother—Aaron the Levite? I know he speaks eloquently. And look, he is already on his way to meet you. When he sees you, his heart will be delighted. 15I want you to talk to him and put the right words in his mouth. I will guide your mouth and his mouth and instruct you both on what you should do. 16He will address the people as your spokesman. He will serve as your mouth; and you will instruct him in what he is to say as if you were God to him.

17Take this staff in your hand, and use it to perform the signs I have shown you.

18*Barely convinced,* Moses went back to his father-in-law, Jethro.

Moses (to Jethro): Please let me leave now, so that I can go back to my Hebrew brothers and sisters in Egypt and find out if they are still alive.

Jethro: You may go now with my blessing and peace.

19The Eternal spoke to Moses while he was still in Midian.

Eternal One: Go back to Egypt. I assure you, all the men who wanted to kill you are no longer alive.

20Moses placed his wife and sons on a donkey, and he started on the long journey back to Egypt. As he walked, he carried God's staff—his shepherd's staff—with him.

Eternal One: 21When you arrive in Egypt, I want you to pay Pharaoh a visit. Make sure you perform all the wonders that I have entrusted to your hand. But I am going to harden Pharaoh's stony heart, so that he will not free the people. 22Then I want you to give Pharaoh a message for Me. Tell him, "This is what the Eternal says: 'Israel is My firstborn son. 23I say to you, "Release My son, so that he may serve Me," but in your stubbornness you refused to free him; therefore, I am going to kill your firstborn son.'" 24While on their way to Egypt, they stopped at a place to rest. But the Eternal met Moses, and it seemed like He was about to kill him, 25when Zipporah grabbed a flint knife and quickly cut off her son's foreskin. She dropped it at Moses' feet.

Zipporah: Certainly you are a bridegroom of blood to me.

26So the Eternal released Moses from this offense. When Zipporah made the remark, "a bridegroom of blood," she was talking about the circumcision.

► This strange episode is difficult to understand. There is much here that is unexplainable. What is clear is that Moses has been called by God to challenge Pharaoh—one of the most powerful men in history—and to rescue hundreds of thousands of Hebrew slaves from lives of hard labor. On a human level, at least, this seems like risky business. But Moses' mission is something else entirely; it is God's business, involving promises made by a holy God to Abraham hundreds of years earlier, promises to provide for and protect His people. One key aspect of that covenant is the obligation of all males to be circumcised. Apparently Moses has neglected to circumcise his son, a fact that could jeopardize the entire mission. So when Zipporah realizes the gravity of the situation, she takes action and circumcises him. With their covenant responsibilities now met, Moses is free to continue the mission.

Eternal One (to Aaron): 27Go into the wilderness and meet Moses.

So Aaron journeyed to meet Moses, and they met at the mountain of God. When he saw his brother, he kissed him. 28*During their joyful reunion,* Moses told Aaron everything that the Eternal had sent him to do, and he explained the miraculous signs He had instructed him to perform.
29Moses and Aaron then traveled back to Egypt and gathered together all of the elders of Israel's people. 30Aaron gave a speech that conveyed all the words that the Eternal had given to Moses and then performed the miraculous signs in front of the people. 31The people believed Moses and Aaron. When everyone heard that the Eternal was concerned about the Israelites and that He had observed their oppression, they bowed down and began to worship with grateful hearts.

5 Not long after, Moses and Aaron confronted Pharaoh.

Moses and Aaron: The Eternal, Israel's God, has a message for you: "Release

My people, so that they may go and celebrate a feast in My honor in the desert."

Pharaoh: 2And who is this god you call "the Eternal One" that I should heed His message and release His people Israel? I do not know any god by that name, and furthermore I do not intend to release Israel.

Moses and Aaron: 3The God of the Hebrews has visited us. We ask that you allow us to travel three days' distance into the desert to sacrifice to the Eternal our God. Otherwise, He may become angry and come after us with disease or sword.

Pharaoh: 4Moses and Aaron, why are you distracting people from their work? Stop wasting time, and get back to your labor!
5Look, there are vast numbers of people in this land who should be working; instead they are all idle because of you.

6That same day, Pharaoh gave instructions to the slave drivers who were over the people and their supervisors.

Pharaoh: 7Don't supply the people with any more straw to make bricks as you have been doing. Let them go out and find their own straw. 8But I still want you to expect the same number of bricks from them as before. Even though the task will be harder, do not lessen their load! They are lazy and are asking for time off, saying, "Release us so that we can go sacrifice to our God in the desert and feast in His honor." 9*Therefore,* make the work so heavy that the men don't have the energy to do anything but work; perhaps then they won't be distracted by these lies!

Slave Drivers and Supervisors *(to the people): 10Pharaoh has a message for you: "I am not going to supply you with any more straw. 11You must go out and get it for yourselves—wherever you can find it—but you must produce the same number of bricks as before. Your workload will not be reduced."

12The people quickly and desperately spread out across the land of Egypt looking for dry stalks of grain to use for straw. 13The slave drivers pushed them hard.

Slave Drivers: Hurry, you must meet your quotas. You must produce the same number of bricks as you did before when we provided you with straw.

14Plus they beat and interrogated the supervisors of the Israelites, the Hebrews whom the slave drivers had appointed over the workers.

Slave Drivers: Why are you lagging behind? Why haven't you met your quotas of bricks yesterday or today as you did before?

15The supervisors of the Israelites were unable to meet the demands and so they appealed to Pharaoh.

Supervisors *(pleading with Pharaoh): Why are you treating your servants this way? 16No more straw is being provided to your servants, yet the slave drivers keep yelling at us, "Make bricks!" And then your servants are beaten; it is your people who are at fault here, not us.

Pharaoh: 17*No. It is you.* You are lazy! You are all so very lazy! You try to escape your work by making up excuses, saying, "Please release us so that we may go sacrifice to the Eternal." 18Leave me now, and get back to work, you indolent whiners! You will not be provided any straw, and you must make the same number of bricks as before.

19The supervisors of the Israelites knew they were in deep trouble when they were told, "You are not to lessen the workload. You must still make the same number of bricks every day as you did before." 20After the supervisors left Pharaoh, they went directly to Moses and Aaron who were already waiting for them.

Supervisors *(to Moses and Aaron): 21May the Eternal see and judge what you have done. Now because of you Pharaoh and all who serve him look on us as if we were some kind of disgusting odor. You might as well have put the sword in their hands they will use to kill us.

22Moses went back to meet with the Eternal One.

Moses: Eternal, these are Your people. Why have You brought so much trouble on them? And why have You sent me here? 23Ever since I approached Pharaoh to speak in Your name, he has done more harm to them than ever before. And You have done absolutely nothing to rescue Your people.

6 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: Now you will see what I have in store for Pharaoh. When Pharaoh sees the power of My hand, he will not only send My people from this land, he will drive them out.

2(pointedly to Moses) I am the Eternal. 3I revealed Myself to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, as God-All-Powerful;* but I did not reveal My name, the Eternal One, to them. 4I also made My covenant with them. I promised I would give them Canaan—the land where their ancestors lived as strangers. 5In addition, I have heard the constant cries of the Israelites who have been enslaved by the Egyptians. I have remembered My covenant; 6*go now and* tell the people of Israel, "I am the Eternal, and I will rescue you from the heavy load the Egyptians have laid on you. I will liberate you from their oppression. I will stretch out my powerful arm and free you with amazing acts of judgment. 7Then I will gather you to Me as My people, and I will be your God. You will know that I am the Eternal who rescued you from the heavy load the Egyptians have put on you. 8I will lead you into Canaan—the very land I promised Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. I will give it to you as a possession for I am the Eternal."

9So Moses went and told these things to the Israelites, but they turned a deaf ear to him because they were in such low spirits and exhausted from their harsh labor.

10The Eternal One once again instructed Moses.

Eternal One: 11Go speak with Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and tell him to release the Israelites from his land.

Moses: 12The Israelites haven't paid attention to anything I've said. How do You expect Pharaoh to listen to me if my own people won't? I am not fit to speak for You.

13The Eternal then addressed Moses and Aaron and gave them instructions about dealing with the Israelites and Pharaoh, king of Egypt. The instructions had to do with bringing the Israelites out of Egypt.

14These are the heads of their fathers' families: The sons of Reuben, who was the firstborn of Israel—Hanoch and Pallu, Hezron and Carmi. This is the clan of Reuben. 15Simeon's sons—Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul (a Canaanite woman's son). 16Levi's sons (according to the genealogical records)—Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. Levi lived to be 137 years old. 17Gershon's sons—Libni and Shimei; each became the head of a clan. 18Kohath's sons—Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. Kohath lived to be 133 years old. 19Merari's sons—Mahli and Mushi. These are the clans of Levi according to the genealogical records. 20Amram married his father's sister, Jochebed, and she gave birth to his sons Aaron and Moses. Amram lived to be 137 years old. 21Izhar's sons—Korah, Nepheg, and Zichri. 22Uzziel's sons—Mishael, Elzaphan, and Sithri. 23Aaron married Elisheba (Amminadab's daughter and Nahshon's sister). Elisheba gave birth to his sons Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 24Korah's sons—Assir, Elkanah, and Abiasaph. The clans of Korah descended from these. 25Aaron's son, Eleazar, married one of Putiel's daughters, and she gave birth to his son Phinehas. These are the ancestors which founded the various clans of the Levites.

► Up until this point in the story, Moses has taken the lead in rescuing the people of Israel from Egyptian bondage. But this genealogy signals that Aaron will play an increasingly important role in the days ahead. Both Moses and Aaron are descended from Levi—whose children are set aside to serve Israel as priests—but the genealogy traces Aaron's lineage, not Moses'. Later generations will look back at Aaron as the ideal priest.

26-27These are the same Aaron and Moses whom the Eternal directed, "Lead the people of Israel out of the land of Egypt like a victorious army." These two brothers spoke to Pharaoh, Egypt's king, about releasing the Israelites from Egypt.

* 6:3 Hebrew, El Shaddai

28-29One day the Eternal visited Moses in Egypt and said to him,

Eternal One: I am the Eternal. Go tell Pharaoh, Egypt's king, everything that I tell you.

Moses: 30Please, I am not fit to speak for You. How do You expect Pharaoh to listen to me?

7 Eternal One (to Moses): Look! I have made it so that Pharaoh will deal with you as a god and your brother Aaron as your prophet. 2I want you to tell Aaron everything that I command you. Then your brother Aaron will tell Pharaoh to release My people Israel from his land. 3But I am going to harden Pharaoh's stubborn heart so that I can perform sign after sign, wonder after wonder in the land of Egypt. 4Still Pharaoh will ignore the message you give him. Then I will unleash the power of My hand against Egypt and liberate My vast armies—My people, the children of Israel—from Egypt with amazing acts of judgment. 5When I stretch out My hand against Egypt and free the children of Israel from their oppressive grasp, the Egyptians will have no doubt that I am the Eternal.

6Moses and Aaron did exactly what the Eternal commanded. 7When they confronted Pharaoh, Moses was 80 years old, and Aaron was 83.

8The Eternal then continued His instructions to Moses and Aaron.

Eternal One: 9When Pharaoh says,
"Do something wondrous to prove yourselves," then, Moses, tell Aaron,
"Take your staff and toss it at Pharaoh's feet, and it will be transformed into a snake."

10So Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and did exactly what the Eternal told them to do. Aaron threw his staff down before Pharaoh and his servants, and it was transformed into a snake.

11Pharaoh then sent for all the sages and sorcerers; and the most talented magicians in Egypt stepped up and performed the same act with their own incantations.
12Each magician threw down his staff, and each staff turned into a snake. But Aaron's staff devoured all of the other staffs. 13And still Pharaoh's heart was as hard as stone;
he did not pay any attention to what Moses and Aaron said, just as the Eternal had predicted.

Eternal One (to Moses): 14Pharaoh's heart is as hard as stone. He refuses to release My people. 15Go visit him again in the morning when he is walking out to the water. Wait for him along the bank of the Nile and carry the staff which turned into a snake. 16Give Pharaoh My message: "The Eternal One, the God of the Hebrews, has sent me to you: 'Release My people, so that they may serve Me in the desert. You have not paid any attention until now. 17You will know that I am the Eternal by the next miracle I am going to perform. I will strike the water of the Nile with this staff that is in my hand, and the water will be turned into blood. 18The fish in the Nile will die, and this river will be fouled with the rotting mess so that the Egyptians will no longer be able to drink from it.'" 19Give this instruction to Aaron: "Take your staff in hand and raise it over all the waters of Egypt—over the rivers, canals, ponds, and lakes—so that the water will be turned into blood. Blood will appear throughout the land of Egypt, even in the water kept in wooden and stone vessels."

20Moses and Aaron did exactly as the Eternal had instructed. In full view of Pharaoh and all of his servants, Aaron raised his staff and struck the water in the Nile. When he did, all the water turned into blood. 21The fish that lived in the Nile began to die, and the river took on a foul smell. The Egyptians were no longer able to drink from it. The water-turned-blood was everywhere in the land of Egypt. 22But Pharaoh summoned the most talented magicians in Egypt who performed the same act with their own incantations. So Pharaoh's heart remained as hard as stone, and he paid no attention to Moses and Aaron just as the Eternal had predicted.
23Then Pharaoh turned and went back to his house without giving this wondrous miracle a second thought.

24The Egyptians had to dig wells along the edge of the Nile in order to have water to drink, because they were no longer able to drink from the Nile. 25Seven days and nights went by after the Eternal had struck the Nile and turned the water into blood.

8 Eternal One (to Moses): Go visit Pharaoh and give him My message: "The Eternal says to you, 'Release My people, so that they may serve Me. 2If you do not release them, I will send an infestation of frogs across your entire land. 3The Nile will swarm with frogs. They will hop up from the river to assault your palace, make their way into your bedroom, and even crawl into your bed. The frogs will crowd into the houses of your servants and eventually of all your people. They will find their way into your ovens and kneading bowls. 4*Mark My words,* these frogs will be all over you, your people, and all your servants.'"

5Give this message to Aaron: "Take your staff in hand and raise it over the rivers, canals, and ponds, and call forth the frogs to invade Egypt."

6Aaron reached out with his staff over all the waters of Egypt, and countless frogs came forth and soon covered the land. They were everywhere. 7The most talented magicians in Pharaoh's Egypt were called to perform the same act with their incantations and they, too, called forth the frogs into Egypt.

Pharaoh's magicians may be able to conjure up frogs, but they can't make them leave.

8Pharaoh sent for Moses and Aaron.

Pharaoh: Plead with the Eternal to remove the frogs from my land, from my house, and from the houses of my people. If He does this, I will release the people so that they can go sacrifice to the Eternal One.

Moses: 9You may have the honor of naming the time when I plead for you, your servants, and your people and ask God to get rid of the frogs that are plaguing you and your houses. There will be no frogs left except in the Nile.

Pharaoh: 10Tomorrow.

Moses: Then tomorrow it is—just as you have requested—so that you will know that there is no one like the Eternal our God. 11The frogs will leave you, your houses, your servants, and all your people. After tomorrow, there will be no frogs anywhere except those in the Nile.

12Moses and Aaron then left Pharaoh, and Moses pled with the Eternal about the frogs, which He had brought upon Pharaoh, that He would rid the land of them. 13He did as Moses asked of Him, and all the frogs that had infested the houses, streets, and fields died. 14The Egyptians gathered up all the dead frogs and made great piles of them, and the land took on a rotten stench. 15But when Pharaoh saw that the infestation of frogs had ended, he was relieved; and he hardened his own heart and refused to listen to Moses and Aaron, just as the Eternal had said.

Eternal One (to Moses): 16Give this message to Aaron: "Raise your staff and strike the dust of the earth and the land of Egypt will be overrun with swarms of gnats."

17They did exactly as God had instructed. When Aaron reached out and struck the dust of the earth with his staff, swarms of gnats flew up from the dust and covered the people and animals. It seemed as if all the dust in the land of Egypt turned into gnats.

18The most talented magicians in Pharaoh's Egypt tried to perform this same act with their incantations, but none could do it. So the gnats continued to swarm all over the people and their animals.

Magicians (to Pharaoh): 19This must be the finger of God.

If God can do this with a finger, what must His whole hand be able to accomplish?

But Pharaoh's heart was as hard as stone, and he refused to pay any attention to Moses and Aaron, just as the Eternal One had said.

Eternal One (to Moses): 20Get up early in the morning and get in Pharaoh's way as he is walking out toward the water. Stand up to him, face-to-face, and give him My message: The Eternal says to you, "Release My people, so that they may serve Me. 21If you do not release My people, I will release swarms of flies upon you, your servants, and your people, and into all of your houses. The houses of the Egyptians and the ground they walk on will be overrun with these swarms. 22On the day this plague begins, I will separate Goshen—where My people live—from the rest of the land. It will be a safe place, unharmed by the hordes of insects that I release against Egypt. Then you will know that I am the Eternal; and I am here, right in the middle of this land. 23I will make a distinction between My people and your people. This sign will happen tomorrow."

24The Eternal did just as He said. Thick swarms of insects darkened the skies and invaded Pharaoh's palace and his servants' houses. The land was wiped out by the swarm of insects that infested all the land of Egypt. 25Pharaoh sent for Moses and Aaron.

Pharaoh: Go and sacrifice to your God. But you must stay here in the land.

Moses: 26It would not be right to do what you ask, for our manner of offering sacrifices to the Eternal our God is deeply offensive to the Egyptians. If we offend them with these sacrifices, will they not stone us? 27*No.* We must travel for three days into the desert and sacrifice to the Eternal our God, just as He has asked us to do.

Pharaoh: 28I will allow you to go on a short journey into the desert and sacrifice to the Eternal your God. But you must not travel too far from here—certainly not three days away. And do not forget to offer prayers for me.

Moses: 29I am leaving you now, and I am going to offer prayers to the Eternal that the swarms of insects will leave Pharaoh, his servants, and his people by tomorrow. But, Pharaoh, do not go back on your promise to allow the people to go and sacrifice to the Eternal.

30Moses left Pharaoh and offered prayers to the Eternal. 31He honored Moses' prayers and removed the swarms of insects that had plagued Pharaoh, his servants, and the people of Egypt. Not a single insect remained. 32But Pharaoh hardened his stubborn heart this time as well and refused to allow the people to go.

9 Eternal One *(to Moses): Once again, go visit Pharaoh and give him My message: "The Eternal, God of the Hebrew people, says to you, 'Release My people, so that they can serve Me. 2If you refuse to release them and strengthen your grip on them, 3then the hand of the Eternal will come down hard on you: a terrible disease will afflict all of your livestock in the fields—horses, donkeys, camels, cattle, and sheep. 4But the Eternal will distinguish between Israel's livestock and Egypt's livestock, so that not a single animal that belongs to Israel's people will die.'" 5He has already determined the time when this plague will begin, saying: "Tomorrow He will strike the land."

6Then the Eternal did exactly as He said and sent this sign on the next day. All of the Egyptians' livestock began to die, but not a single animal from Israel's livestock perished. 7Pharaoh sent investigators to check Israel's livestock, and they found that not a single one of their animals had died or become sick. But Pharaoh's heart was still as hard as stone, and he refused to release the people.

Eternal One *(to Moses and Aaron): 8Reach into the furnace and grab handfuls of ashes. Moses, throw these ashes up into the air—right in front of Pharaoh. 9It will turn into a fine dust that will cover all the land of Egypt and cause painful abscesses to break out on people and animals throughout the land of Egypt.

10So they removed ash from the furnace and stood directly in front of Pharaoh. Moses threw the ashes up in the air, and it caused abscesses to break out on people and their animals. 11Even the most talented magicians in Pharaoh's Egypt could not stand before Moses, because the abscesses broke out on their bodies as well as the rest of the Egyptians.

12The Eternal made Pharaoh's hard heart even harder, and Pharaoh was not moved by the miraculous deeds and the words of Moses and Aaron, just as the Eternal had told Moses.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 13Get up early tomorrow morning and stand before Pharaoh. Tell him, "The Eternal, the God of the Hebrews, has a message for you: 'Release My people, so that they may serve Me. 14This time, if you refuse, I'm going to send a series of plagues upon you yourself, your servants, and your people. Then you will see that there is no one else as great as I am in all the earth. 15For by now I could have easily raised my hand and struck you and your people with a disease so lethal that you would be erased entirely from the earth. 16But I have kept you in power for a reason, to show you My greater power and to see that My name and reputation spread through all the earth.* 17But you still try to dominate My people and refuse to release them from the land. 18This time tomorrow, I will unleash an enormous hailstorm upon you—a storm like no other that has ever occurred in Egypt since its beginning until now. 19So gather all your livestock and anything left in your fields into a safe place. Protect it the best you can, for every man or animal left unprotected in the field when the hailstorm arrives will die.'"

20Some of Pharaoh's servants feared the Eternal's message, so they gathered their servants and livestock into the safety of their houses. 21But there were others who did not take seriously the Eternal's word, and they left their servants and livestock unprotected in the field.

Eternal One (to Moses): 22Raise your hand up toward the heavens, and hail will rain from the sky across the entire land of Egypt—upon people and animals and all the crops in the field throughout the land of Egypt.

23So Moses raised his staff up toward the heavens, and the Eternal released loud thunder and hail from the sky, and fire streaked down upon the earth. He caused hail to rain down upon all of Egypt. 24As the hail fell, lightning pierced the darkness and lit up the sky. The hailstorm was so intense that it was like no other that had ever occurred in Egypt since its beginning. 25The hail pounded everything to the ground that remained in the fields, both people and their animals; it crushed every crop, it shattered every tree. 26There was only one place the hail did not fall—Goshen—where the people of Israel lived.

27Pharaoh then sent for Moses and Aaron.

Pharaoh: I admit that this time I've gone too far. I have sinned. The Eternal is in the right; I and my people have done wrong. 28*Go back* to the Eternal and plead my case. We have had enough of your God's thunder and hail. I will agree to release you—you and your people will not stay any longer.

Moses: 29*Watch closely*. The moment I step outside the city gates, I will lift up my hands to the Eternal, and the thunder and hail will stop. Then you will know that the earth belongs to Him. 30But I know very well that you and your servants do not yet fear the Eternal God.

31(The flax and barley crops were both destroyed, because the barley heads were nearly ripe and buds had formed on the flax when the hail fell. 32But the wheat and the spelt had not yet sprouted, so these crops were spared.)

33Moses left Pharaoh and departed the city. He lifted up his hands to the Eternal and prayed. When he did, the thunder and hail and heavy rains stopped. 34But as soon as Pharaoh saw that the weather had changed, and he and his servants were certain that the hail and thunder and heavy rains were no longer a threat, they became utterly defiant and Pharaoh hardened his stubborn heart once again. 35Because his heart was as hard as stone, he refused to release the Israelites as he promised. This happened exactly as the Eternal One predicted through Moses.

10 Eternal One (to Moses): Go pay Pharaoh another visit. I have made his heart and his servants' hearts as hard as stone, so that I can perform My wondrous signs among them and reveal My power. 2*I have done all these things* so that you can tell your children and grandchildren stories of how I treated the cruel Egyptians with contempt and performed My signs among them. I have done all this so that you may believe I am the Eternal.

3So once again Moses and Aaron went to see Pharaoh.

Moses and Aaron: The Eternal, the God of the Hebrews, has a message for you: "How long do you plan to resist Me and refuse to humble yourself before Me? Release My people, so that they can go and serve Me in the desert. 4If you refuse to release My people, tomorrow I will fill your land with locusts, 5and they will blanket the ground. There will be so many that you will not be able to see the ground! The locusts will devour every crop the hail did not destroy, and their horde will strip every tree that grows in your fields! 6They will fill every corner of your houses, your servants' houses, and all the Egyptians' houses. This will be a spectacle that none of your ancestors have ever seen—never from the day that they were born until this present day."

* 9:16 Romans 9:17

Starvation for the majority of Egyptians is becoming a real possibility. How far they have come from Joseph's day when Egypt fed the world!

Moses then turned and left Pharaoh.

Servants (to Pharaoh): 7How much longer will you let this man trap us? Why don't you just release the people and let them go serve the Eternal their God? Look around you! Don't you see that Egypt is in ruins?

8Then Pharaoh had Moses and Aaron brought back to him.

Pharaoh: Some of your people may go and serve this God of yours, the Eternal! But not all. Who will be going with you?

Moses: 9*No.* All of us must go—the young and the old. We will take our sons, daughters, flocks, and herds with us. We are all going into the desert to celebrate a great festival to the Eternal.

Pharaoh: 10The Eternal had better be with you if you really think I am going to let you take your little ones with you! Look, I know you have some evil plan. I can see it in your face. 11No! I will allow you to take only the men to go and serve the Eternal One, since that is what you have been asking for all along.

Then Pharaoh had Moses and Aaron thrown out.

Eternal One (to Moses): 12Stretch your hand over the land of Egypt and call forth the locusts, so that they may invade Egypt and devour anything that grows from the earth and everything the hail did not destroy.

13Then Moses raised his staff over the land of Egypt, and the Eternal directed the east wind to blow over the land all that day and night. When the morning dawned, the east wind brought with it a cloud of locusts. 14They dropped from the sky and overran the land of Egypt from one end to the other. Countless numbers of them swarmed in the air and crawled over the ground. Never had there been nor would there ever be again such a swarm of locusts in Egypt. 15The locusts blanketed the whole land until the ground was smothered in darkness. They devoured every plant growing in the fields and stripped every tree of its fruit, everything the hail had not destroyed. Not one green leaf was left on any tree, not one plant was left growing in the field anywhere in the land of Egypt.

Pharaoh: I have sinned against the Eternal your God and against you. 17Now, please forgive me, just this once; and pray to the Eternal your God, and ask Him to take away this plague of death from me.

19He caused the winds to shift, and a strong west wind blew and lifted the cloud of locusts up into the air and drove them out into the Red Sea.* Not a single locust was left in all the land of Egypt. 20But He hardened Pharaoh's stubborn heart, and he refused to release the Israelites.

Eternal One (to Moses): 21Raise your hand up toward the heavens, and a great darkness will cover the land of Egypt, a heavy, oppressive darkness.

22So Moses raised his hand up toward the heavens, and a deep darkness settled over all the land of Egypt for three days. 23*It was so dark that* people could not even see each other, and no one dared to venture out from their houses for three whole days. But all the people of Israel had light where they lived. 24Once more Pharaoh sent for Moses.

Pharaoh: You may go and serve the Eternal. Everyone can go—even your little ones—but leave your herds and flocks behind.

Moses: 25You must also allow us to take our herds and flocks as sacrifices and

* 10:19 Literally, Sea of Reeds

burnt offerings, for we must offer them to the Eternal our God. 26We need to take every single animal—not a hoof can be left behind—because we need some of them to sacrifice to Him. And until we get to where we are going, we will not know what animals we need to worship the Eternal.

27But the Eternal hardened Pharaoh's stubborn heart once again, and he was unwilling to release the Israelites.

Pharaoh *(to Moses): 28Get out of here, and never come back! If you ever try to see my face again, I will have you killed!

Moses: 29What you say is true. I will never see your face again!

11 Eternal One *(to Moses): I am going to strike Pharaoh and his Egypt one more time, and after this final plague, Pharaoh will release you from Egypt. When he finally releases you, he will be so glad to see you go that he will practically force you out of this land. 2*Go now and* speak to all the people. Have every man and every woman ask their neighbors to give them items made of silver and gold.

3Now the Eternal caused the Egyptian people to have a favorable attitude toward His people. And Moses was already highly regarded in the land of Egypt by Pharaoh's servants and most Egyptians.

Moses *(to Pharaoh): 4This is the message of the Eternal: "About midnight I will move through Egypt, 5and every firstborn son in every family in Egypt will die—from the firstborn of Pharaoh (who rules from his throne) to the firstborn of the slave girl (who grinds at the mill). The firstborn of all your cattle and livestock will die as well. 6The air will be heavy with loud wailing throughout the land of Egypt, a deep and dismal mourning unlike any that has been or will ever be again in the land. 7But among the people of Israel not even a dog's bark will disturb the night. Then you will know that the Eternal makes a sharp distinction between Egypt and Israel."

8All those who are servants to you, Pharaoh, will come down to me and humbly bow before me and beg, "Please go! You and all those who follow you! Leave now!" That is when I will go.

Then Moses, who was boiling with anger, left Pharaoh's presence.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 9Pharaoh will not pay attention to what you say. As a result, My wonders will increase in all the land of Egypt.

Pharaoh's stubbornness never frustrates the divine plan. God turns it and uses it to demonstrate to all that He is the one True God.

10Moses and Aaron performed all of these wonders in the presence of Pharaoh. But the Eternal hardened Pharaoh's stubborn heart, and Pharaoh refused to release the Israelites from his land.

► Perhaps the best way to look at the confrontation between Moses and Pharaoh is as a contest to see who truly is God. In Egypt Pharaoh is considered a god. He has certain powers and abilities, and the might of Egypt resides with him. When Moses and Aaron appear before him to demand the release of the Hebrew slaves, each refusal becomes an occasion for the True God to demonstrate His superiority over Pharaoh and all the other gods of Egypt. Each successive miracle attacks deeper into the heart of Pharaoh's power and politics. Slowly but surely, Pharaoh's power is subverted until God breaks Pharaoh's grip on the people of Israel completely. With the final miracle everything begins to unravel: the death of the firstborn is personal for Pharaoh.

12 Eternal One *(to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt): 1-2Mark this month as the first month of all months for you—the first month of your year. 3Declare this message to the entire community of Israel: "When the tenth day of this month arrives, every family is to select a lamb, one for each household. 4If there aren't enough people in the family to eat an entire lamb, then they should share a lamb with their nearest neighbor according to how many people are in the neighbor's family. Divide the portions of the lamb so that each person has enough to eat. 5Choose a one-year-old male that is intact and free of blemishes; you can take it from the sheep or the goats. 6Keep this chosen lamb safe until the fourteenth day of the month, then the entire community of Israel will slaughter their lambs together at twilight. 7They are to take some of its blood and smear it across the top and down the two sides of the doorframe of the houses where they plan to eat. 8That night, have them roast the lamb over a fire and feast on it along with bitter herbs and bread made without yeast. 9Do not eat any meat raw or boil it in water; only eat the meat after the entire animal has been roasted over a fire with its head, legs, and intestines attached. 10*Eat whatever you can,* but don't leave any of it until morning; whatever is left over in the morning burn in the fire. 11Here is how I want you to eat this meal: Be sure you are dressed and ready to go at a moment's notice—with sandals on your feet and a walking stick in your hand. Eat quickly because this is My Passover.

12I am going to pass through the land of Egypt during the night and put to death all their firstborn children and animals. I will also execute My judgments against all the gods of the Egyptians, for I am the Eternal One! 13The blood on the doorframes of your houses will be a sign of where you are. When I pass by and see the blood, I will pass over you. This plague will not afflict you when I strike the land of Egypt with death.

14This will be a day for you to always remember. I want you and all generations after you to commemorate this day with a festival to Me. Celebrate this feast as a perpetual ordinance, a permanent part of your life together. 15You are to eat bread made without yeast for seven days. On the first day get rid of any yeast you find in your house. Anyone who eats bread made with yeast during the seven festival days must be cut off from the rest of Israel. 16On the first day of the festival and again on the seventh, gather the community together for a time of sacred worship. No one may work on those two days except to prepare what every person needs to eat. 17Celebrate the Feast of Unleavened Bread because it commemorates the day that I led your forces out of Egypt. Honor and celebrate this day throughout all your generations as a perpetual ordinance, a permanent part of your life together. 18From the evening of the fourteenth day of that first month to the evening of the twenty-first day of that month, eat bread made without yeast. 19-20No yeast is to be found in any of your houses during the seven festival days. Whoever eats anything that has yeast in it must be cut off from the community of Israel. It doesn't matter whether he is a foreigner or a native; the same standards apply. During the seven festival days, do not eat anything made with yeast; wherever you live and gather together, be sure you eat only unleavened bread.

21Then Moses called all of Israel's elders together and gave them instructions.

Moses: Go and pick out lambs for each of your families, and then slaughter your family's Passover lamb. 22Take a handful of hyssop branches, dip them down into the bowl of blood you drained from the sacrifice, and mark the top of the doorway and the two doorposts with blood from the bowl. After you do this, no one should go out that door until the next morning.

23The Eternal will pass through the land during the night and bring death to the Egyptians. But when He sees the blood-markings across the tops of your doorways and down your two doorposts, He will pass over your houses and not allow His messenger of death to enter into your houses and strike you down. 24You and all your descendants are obligated to keep these instructions for all time. 25Even after you arrive in the land the Eternal has promised you—the land flowing with milk and honey—you must keep these instructions and perform this ritual. 26When your children ask you, "What does this ritual mean to you?" 27you will answer them, "It is the Passover sacrifice to the Eternal, for He passed over the houses of the Israelites when we were slaves in Egypt. And although He struck the Egyptians, He spared our lives and our houses."

The name of this festival, "Passover," comes from the fact that God "passes over" those houses where the Israelites gather and eat the sacrifice.

When Moses finished these instructions, the people bowed down and worshiped.

28The Israelites went and did as they were instructed; they were obedient to what the Eternal had commanded Moses and Aaron.

29Now this is what happened: at midnight, He struck down all the firstborn sons in Egypt—from the firstborn son of Pharaoh, who sat on his throne, to the firstborn son of the prisoners locked in the dungeon, and even the firstborn of all the livestock in the land. 30Pharaoh woke up during the night. He wasn't the only one. His servants, as well as all of the Egyptians in the land, had awoken. A great scream shattered the night in Egypt, for there was not a single Egyptian house where someone was not dead.

31Pharaoh sent for Moses and Aaron before the night was over.

Pharaoh *(to Moses and Aaron): Get up and get out. Leave my people right now—you and all the rest of the Israelites. Go and worship this god of yours, the Eternal One, just as you have said. 32Take your flocks and your herds as well with you—just as you said—and go! But bless me on your way out!

Pharaoh hates to admit he has been beaten by Moses and his God. After losing his firstborn son—destined to be the next Pharaoh—he has little choice.

33The Egyptians frantically urged the people of Israel to hurry and leave their land.

Egyptians *(imploring): If you do not leave soon, we will all be dead.

34*So the Israelites hurried.* They took their bread dough before any yeast had been added, packed up their kneading bowls, wrapped them in some of their clothing, and carried them on their shoulders.

35The people of Israel also did what Moses had told them to do; they asked the Egyptians for items made of silver and gold, and they asked for extra clothing as well. 36The Eternal caused the Egyptians to have a favorable attitude toward His people, so the Egyptians fulfilled these requests and gave the people what they asked for. This is how the Israelites stripped the Egyptians of their valued possessions.

For many years the Egyptians stripped the people of Israel of their lives, labor, and dignity. God's justice demands that Israel be paid for all they lost.

40-41The Israelites had lived in the land of Egypt for a total of 430 years. On the last day of their 430th year, all the forces belonging to the Eternal left the land of Egypt. 42This was the night when the Eternal kept watch over His people and brought them safely out of the land of Egypt; now this night is to be kept by His people, to be celebrated by all of the people of Israel throughout all generations.

Eternal One *(to Moses and Aaron): 43This is the requirement for Passover: no foreigner or outsider should eat this meal. 44But every slave bought with money may participate in this celebration if he has been initiated into the community by circumcision. 45No temporary residents or paid servants may share in it. 46The meal must be eaten in only one house. Don't take any of the meat outside. Not one of the lamb's bones shall be broken.* 47The entire community of Israel must celebrate it. 48If you have outsiders living among you and they want to celebrate the Passover to the Eternal with you, then all the men must agree to be circumcised. Only after circumcision may they join in and celebrate with you; then you must treat them as if they were native-born. But make sure no uncircumcised male eats any part of the sacred meal. 49The same instruction applies to everyone equally—without distinction—the native as well as the outsider who is living among you.

50Then all of the Israelites did exactly as the Eternal had instructed Moses and

* 12:46 John 19:36

This night is still remembered by Jewish people each year during the festival called Passover. The exodus—God's liberation of the Hebrew slaves from Egypt—is one of the most important events in all Scripture. For over 400 years, God's covenant people lived as outsiders in Egypt. For as long as that last generation could remember, they had been slaves living embittered lives under a cruel regime. But God heard their cries and acted finally and decisively to rescue them. Now it is time to go home, to a land they have never seen, a land of promise and prosperity. They return not as slaves but as free people, a powerful force for God in the world. The exodus leaves a permanent mark on the people of Israel. It is celebrated in song, recorded in Scripture, and commemorated in a festival; the prophets even see a day when a new exodus is coming.

Aaron to do. 51On that same day, He led the Israelites as they marched out of the land of Egypt like an army.

13 Eternal One *(to Moses): 1-2Set apart all of the firstborn and dedicate them to Me. The first male offspring—both human and animal—that opens the womb among the people of Israel belongs to me.

Moses *(to the people): 3Remember this day, the day when you departed from Egypt and left behind lives of slavery. For the strong hand of the Eternal has freed you from Pharaoh and his Egypt. In observing this day, be careful not to eat any food containing yeast. 4You are leaving today in the month of Abib. 5When He leads you into the land which He promised your ancestors He would give to you—a wide, open space flowing with milk and honey, a land currently inhabited by the Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Amorites, and Jebusites—I want you to observe the following festival during this month: 6For seven days, you are to eat only bread made without yeast. On the seventh day, celebrate a feast in honor of the Eternal. 7*Remember the directive:* only bread made without yeast can be eaten during the seven festival days. Don't keep any bread with yeast around; in fact, get rid of all yeast anywhere in your territory during those days. 8You are to explain to your children on that day, "We observe this feast because of what the Eternal did for me when I came out of Egypt." 9This festival will be a sign to you—like a mark stamped on the back of your hand or a reminder written across your forehead—so that the Eternal's instruction will never be far from your lips. For He led you out of Egypt with a strong hand. 10Observe what I have decreed at the designated time every year.

11The Eternal will lead you into the land He promised you and your ancestors—the land where the Canaanites are now living. 12You are to dedicate to Him every offspring that opens the womb—your firstborn sons and the firstborn male of all your livestock—for they belong to Him. 13You may redeem every firstborn of a donkey by sacrificing a lamb in its place. If you choose not to redeem it, then you must break its neck. But you must redeem all of your firstborn sons and not sacrifice them.

14There will come a time when your children ask you, "What is this thing we are doing?" You will say, "With a strong hand the Eternal led us out of Egypt and freed us from lives of slavery. 15When Pharaoh's heart was as hard as stone, and he refused to release us, the Eternal killed all the firstborn in the land of Egypt (both humans and animals). That is why I sacrifice the firstborn male of all our livestock to Him, but then I redeem every firstborn son by sacrificing a substitute."

16These practices will be like a mark stamped on the back of your hand and a reminder written across your forehead, a constant reminder that the Eternal led us out of Egypt with a strong hand.

17After Pharaoh sent the people out, God did not take them by the coastal road that runs through the land of the Philistines, even though that was the nearest and easiest route. Instead, God said, "For if they see battle with those contentious Philistines, they might regret their decision and then return to Egypt." 18So God chose a different, longer path that led the community of His people through the desert toward the Red Sea. The Israelites marched out of the land of Egypt like an army ready for battle.

19Moses took the bones of Joseph with him, for Joseph made the Israelites swear an oath, "God will certainly come and rescue you. Carry my bones with you when you leave this place."*

20The people of Israel departed from Succoth and set up camp in Etham at the edge of the desert. 21The Eternal went on ahead to guide them during the day in a cloud shaped like a pillar; at night He appeared to them in a fire shaped like a pillar to light their way. So they were able to travel by day and by night. 22The Eternal did not remove the cloud pillar or the fire pillar; by day and by night it continued to go ahead of the people.

Often clouds and fire signify the presence of God in Scripture; that is especially true here in the Book of Exodus.

14 Eternal One (to Moses): 1-2Speak to the Israelites and tell them to go back and set up camp in front of Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, opposite Baal-zephon. Camp there next to the sea. 3Pharaoh will talk about the Israelites, saying, "They are wandering around in circles. The desert has closed them in on all sides." 4Then I will harden Pharaoh's stubborn heart even more, and he will pursue the Israelites. Honor will come to Me through the actions of Pharaoh and his army, and the Egyptians will know that I am the Eternal One.

And so they did exactly as the Eternal instructed.

5When Egypt's king received the news that the Israelites had run away, the attitude of Pharaoh and his servants changed. They began talking among themselves.

Pharaoh's Servants: What have we done? We have released the Israelites from serving us and lost our labor force!

6Pharaoh prepared his chariot and called out his army. 7He took a select group of the 600 best chariots in the land plus all the other chariots in Egypt with drivers commanding all of them.

8The Eternal hardened the stubborn heart of Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and he chased after the Israelites just as they were marching out of the land with victorious hands held high.

9The Egyptians pursued the Israelites. All of Pharaoh's horses and chariots, his chariot-drivers and army caught up with the Israelites as they were camping by the sea not far from Pi-hahiroth, opposite Baal-zephon.

Israelites (to Moses): 11Were there not enough graves in Egypt? Is that why you brought us out here to die in the desert? Why have you done this to us? Why have you made us leave Egypt? 12Didn't we tell you in Egypt, "Stop pestering us so that we can get on with our lives and serve the Egyptians"? It would have been better for us to live as slaves to the Egyptians than to die out here in the desert.

Moses (to the people): 13Don't be afraid! Stand your ground and witness how the Eternal will rescue you today. Take a good look at the Egyptians, for after today you will never see them again. 14The Eternal will fight on your behalf while you watch in silence.

Eternal One (to Moses): 15Why do you call for Me? Instruct the Israelites to break camp and keep moving. 16Raise your staff and reach out over the sea to divide it. The Israelites will be able to walk straight through the sea on dry ground. 17-18I am going to harden the stubborn hearts of the Egyptians, and in their arrogance they will continue to chase the Israelites. My honor will be on display when I defeat Pharaoh, his army, his chariots, and his chariot-drivers. The Egyptians will know that I am the Eternal when I display my glory through Pharaoh, his chariots, and his chariot-drivers.

19God's messenger, who had been out front leading the people of Israel, moved to protect the rear of the company; the cloud pillar moved with him from the front to the back of them. 20The cloud pillar

took its position between Egypt's and Israel's camps. The cloud cast darkness by day yet it lit up the sky by night. As a result, the Egyptians never got close to the Israelites the entire night. 21Moses then took his staff and reached out over the sea. The Eternal parted the sea with a strong east wind, which blew all night and turned the floor of the sea into dry ground between the divided waters. 22The Israelites broke camp and traveled on dry ground through the parted waters, and the sea stood like a solid wall on their right and on their left.

23The Egyptians were undaunted. They continued their pursuit; all of Pharaoh's horses, chariots, and chariot-drivers followed the Israelites into the middle of the sea.

24Before daybreak the Eternal peered down upon the Egyptian army through the fire pillar and the cloud pillar and threw them all into confusion. 25He caused the wheels of their chariots to break down so that it was nearly impossible for the drivers to control them. The Egyptians knew something was wrong.

Egyptians: Let's go and get away from these Israelites. Their God, the Eternal One, is fighting for them against us.

26*After all the Israelites had reached the other side of the sea,* the Eternal spoke to Moses.

Eternal One *(to Moses): Now take your staff and reach out over the sea. The waters which I parted will crash upon the Egyptians and cover their chariots and chariot-drivers.

27So Moses raised his hand and reached out over the sea, and the walls of water collapsed. As dawn gave way to morning, the sea returned to normal and the Eternal swept the retreating Egyptian army into the sea. 28The waters rushed and covered all the chariots and their drivers, swallowing up all of Pharaoh's army that had pursued Israel into the sea. Not one Egyptian survived.

► Throughout this redemption story, it is clear that the Lord has protected Israel while He has judged and frustrated Egypt. After the many wonders before the Passover and the miraculous guidance by the cloud and the pillar of fire, God destroyed the Egyptian army in the midst of the sea. For centuries people have sought to explain this great miracle and make sense of it. Was it a volcanic eruption and a tsunami that parted the waters? Was it a shallow lake that drowned Pharaoh's army? Perhaps. Perhaps not. Only God knows. But reason cannot grasp all that took place that day. When God's covenant people were on the verge of extinction, God stepped in to fight for them. No one survived that day except by the miraculous grace of God.

15 Moses and the Israelites sang this song to the Eternal One.

Moses and the Israelites: I will sing to the Eternal, for He has won a great victory;
He has thrown the chariot into the sea: horse and rider.
2The Eternal is my strength and my song,
and He has come to save me;
He is my God, and I will praise Him.
He is the God of my father, and I will exalt Him.
3The Eternal is a warrior;
the Eternal is His name.
4Pharaoh's chariots and his army He has thrown into the sea.
And his high-ranking officers are drowned in the Red Sea.
5The deep waters covered them;
they sank to the muddy depths like a stone.
6Your right hand, Eternal One, is magnificent in power.
Your right hand, Eternal, vanquishes the enemy.

7In Your majestic greatness You conquer
those who rise against You;
You unleash Your burning anger, and it consumes them like straw.
8With a blast of Your anger the waters piled high,
the waves stood up like a wall;
in the heart of the sea, deep waters turned solid.
9The enemy said, "I will go after them, chase them down, and divide
the spoils;
my desire will be spent on them.
I will draw my sword; my powerful hand will take possession of them once again."
10But You blew Your breath-wind, and the sea covered them;
they sank like lead down into the mighty waters.
11Who compares to You among the gods,
O Eternal?
Who compares to You—great in holiness,
awesome in praises, performing marvels and wonders?
12You raised Your right hand, and the earth swallowed Your enemies.
13With Your loyal love, You have led the people You have redeemed; with Your great strength, You have guided them to Your sacred dwelling.
14*Already* people have heard and they tremble;
those who inhabit Philistia are gripped by fear.
15*Even* now the chiefs of Edom are deeply disturbed;
Moab's leaders cannot stop trembling;
all who live in Canaan are deeply distressed and wasting away.
16Horror and fear overwhelm them.
Faced with the greatness of Your power,
people are afraid to move; *they fall
as silent* as stone, Until Your people pass by, Eternal One, until the people whom You purchased pass by.
17You will bring them and plant them on the mountain of Your inheritance—
the place, Eternal, that You have designated to be Your dwelling, the sanctuary, Lord, that Your hands founded and made ready.
18The Eternal will reign as King forever and always.

19When Pharaoh's horses, chariots, and chariot-drivers drove into the sea, the Eternal caused the waters to collapse upon them. But the Israelites walked through the sea on dry ground.

20The prophetess, Miriam (Aaron's sister), picked up a tambourine, and all the rest of the women followed her with tambourines and joyful dancing.

Miriam: 21Sing to the Eternal One, for He has won a great victory;
He has thrown the horse and its chariot into the sea.

22Then Moses led Israel away from the Red Sea, and they entered the desert of Shur. They traveled for three days in the desert before they found water.

23When they came to the place where they did find water, they could not drink it because it was so bitter. So they called the place Marah, or bitter. 24*Because they were very thirsty,* the people complained to Moses.

Israelites: What are we supposed to drink?

25Moses then asked the Eternal for help, and the Eternal showed him a log. Moses threw the log into the bitter water, and the water became sweet. At Marah the Eternal established an important principle and set a standard for His people so that He could test them.

Eternal One: 26If you will listen closely to My voice—the voice of your God—and do what is right in My eyes, pay attention to My instructions, and keep all of My laws; then I will not bring on you any of the plagues that I did on the Egyptians, for I am the Eternal, your Healer.

27Then they traveled on to an oasis called Elim, where there were 12 freshwater springs and 70 palm trees with dates. They set up camp there next to the waters.

16 Then the entire community of Israel departed from Elim and entered the desert of Sin, which is located between Elim and Sinai. They arrived there on the fifteenth day of the second month after they had departed from Egypt.

The covenant people leave the pleasant, coastal area around Elim to begin the long journey through the wilderness. It will take longer than anyone expects.

2*As soon as* they got to the desert of Sin, the entire community of Israelites complained to Moses and Aaron.

Israelites: 3It would have been better if we had died by the hand of the Eternal in Egypt. At least we had plenty to eat and drink, for our pots were stuffed with meat and we had as much bread as we wanted. But now you have brought the entire community out to the desert to starve us to death.

Eternal One (to Moses): 4Look! I will cause bread to rain down from heaven for you, and the people will go out and gather a helping of it each day. I will test them to see if they are willing to live by My instructions. 5On the sixth day, they will gather the usual amount; but when they go to prepare it, it will end up being twice what they usually gather.

Moses and Aaron *(to the Israelites): 6When evening falls, you will know that the Eternal has led you out of the land of Egypt. 7In the morning your eyes will see His glory because He takes your complaints against us as complaints against Him. Who are we, that you direct your complaints to us?

Moses *(continuing): 8This will take place when the Eternal One provides you with meat in the evening and plenty of bread in the morning because He hears all your grumbling and complaining against Him. Why do you complain to us? Your complaints are not against us, but against Him.

9*(to Aaron)* Tell the entire community of Israelites, "Draw near to the Eternal. He has heard your complaints."

10While Aaron was speaking to the entire community of the Israelites, they all looked out toward the desert, and the radiant glory of the Eternal could be seen in the cloud. 11The Eternal spoke to Moses.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 12*Rest assured,* I have heard the constant complaining of the Israelites. Tell them, "In the evening, you will have meat to eat; and in the morning, you will have enough bread to satisfy your gnawing hunger. Then you will know that I am the Eternal your God."

13That evening, quail flew in and covered the camp; and when morning arrived, what seemed to be ordinary dew was all around the camp.

14But when the dew evaporated, it left behind a thin, mysterious, flaky substance that looked like frost on top of the dry desert ground. 15The people of Israel went out to examine it. They had never seen anything quite like it.

Israelites *(to one another): What is it?

The people didn't have a clue what this strange substance was.

Moses: It is the bread which the Eternal has given you to eat. 16Here are His instructions: "Gather only as much of it as you should eat by yourself. Pick up two quarts* of bread for each person who lives in your tent."

17The Israelites did as they were told. Some people gathered a lot, others gathered less. 18When they used a two-quart jar to measure it, the one who had gathered a lot didn't have more than he needed; and the one who gathered less had just what he needed.* Miraculously, each person and each family—regardless of how much they gathered—had exactly what they needed.

Moses *(continuing God's instructions): 19Don't try to keep any of it until the morning. Either eat it all, or throw it away.

20But some people ignored Moses and tried to keep some of it until the next morning. Overnight it became wormy and started to have a dreadful smell. Moses became furious with them because they had disobeyed God's instructions.

21Every morning the people went out and gathered it—each family took only what it needed. By the time the sun became hot, it had melted away. 22On the sixth day the people went out and gathered, but they came back with twice as much as usual—four quarts per person. All the leaders of the community thought they needed to tell Moses what had happened.

* 16:4 John 6:31 * 16:16 Hebrew measurement is omer. * 16:18 2 Corinthians 8:15

Moses *(to the leaders): 23Listen to what the Eternal commanded: Tomorrow, the seventh day, is to be a day of rest, a holy Sabbath dedicated to Him. Bake or boil whatever you need for today's meals. Whatever is left over, keep it to eat tomorrow. It won't spoil.

God wants His people to keep the Sabbath as a special day and to depend on Him—not their own efforts—to supply all they need.

24So the people stored some of it until the next morning, just as Moses had instructed. None of it spoiled, nor did it have any worms.

Moses: 25Eat what is left over today, because today is a Sabbath to the Eternal, a day of rest. You will not find any of it in the field today. 26You are to gather it for six days, but on the seventh day (the Sabbath), none of it will be on the ground.

27When the seventh day arrived, some of the people ignored Moses and went out to gather it anyway; but there was none to gather.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 28How much longer are you going to disobey My commands and instructions? 29Look! I have given you the Sabbath as a day of rest. That is why I give you an extra portion of food on the sixth day. Everyone should stay where they are and not go out to work on the seventh day.

31The community of Israel decided to name this mysterious substance "manna" (which means, "What is it?"). It was white like a coriander seed, and it tasted sweet like honey wafers.

Moses: 32This is the instruction of the Eternal: "Preserve two quarts of the manna so that future generations can see the bread I provided for you in the desert when I led you out of the land of Egypt."

33(to Aaron) Go, find a jar and fill it with two quarts of manna. Put it in a special place before the Eternal to preserve it for future generations to see.

► "The Eternal Provides." That could well be the theme for the entire exodus adventure. When there is no water, He provides. When there is no bread, He provides. When there is no meat, He provides. These provisions are clearly God's gift to His people. They do not depend upon the cleverness, skill, or hard work of the Israelites. It must be difficult for these former slaves—whose lives have been all about work—to stop, to rest, and to truly believe their lives and futures depend upon God and not upon themselves.

34Aaron did as the Eternal commanded. He stored the jar before the covenant to keep it safe.

► This is an interesting statement. Aaron is directed to place the jar with the special breadlike substance that God provides "before the covenant," which is either a reference to the directives God will provide (chapter 20) or to the special container—the covenant chest—God directs Aaron to build (chapter 25) to preserve some of Israel's most precious treasures from the exodus and their time in the wilderness. Neither of these items exists at this point in time.

35For 40 years, the Israelites were sustained by the manna God supplied. They ate it until they arrived at the borderlands of Canaan, the edge of the land they would one day inhabit. (36And their omer was a two-quart measurement and in turn was one-tenth of an ephah.)*

* 16:36 An ephah was about 21 quarts or seven-tenths of a bushel.

17 The entire community of Israel traveled in stages out of the desert of Sin, just as the Eternal instructed. They camped at Rephidim, but there was no water there to quench their thirst. 2*Once again* the people complained to Moses.

Israelites: Give us water to drink! We're thirsty.

Moses: Why do you aim your complaints at me? Why are you testing the Eternal One?

3But the people were so thirsty for water, they complained to Moses and leveled accusations against him.

Israelites: Why did you lead us out of Egypt? Was it to kill all of us—our children and livestock included—with this thirst?

4Moses had had enough of their complaints, so he cried out to the Eternal One.

Moses: What am I supposed to do with these people and their relentless complaining? They are on the verge of stoning me.

Eternal One (to Moses): 5*Here's what I want you to do:* go on ahead of the people and take some of the elders of Israel with you. Also, be sure to bring your shepherd's staff—the one with which you struck the Nile. 6I will be there when you arrive standing at the rock of Horeb. I want you to strike the rock with your staff; and when you do, water will flow out of it so that everyone will have enough to drink.

The elders of Israel accompanied Moses and watched as he did what the Eternal directed.

7Moses named the place Massah* and Meribah,* because the Israelites complained and tested the Eternal, saying, "Is He standing with us or not?"

8While the Israelites were camped at Rephidim, soldiers of Amalek came and attacked them. 9Moses called for a young leader named Joshua.

Moses (to Joshua): Select some of our best men, and go fight against the soldiers of Amalek. Tomorrow I will stand at the crest of that hill overlooking the battlefield with God's staff in my hand.

10Joshua did exactly as Moses had instructed him to do. He gathered the strongest men he could find and fought against the soldiers of Amalek. Meanwhile, Moses, Aaron, and Hur climbed to the top of the hill.

11It happened that whenever Moses raised his hand, the battle went well for Israel; but whenever he lowered his hand to rest, Amalek began to win. 12When Moses became too tired to hold his hands up any longer, Aaron and Hur took a stone and sat him down on it. Then both men stood beside Moses, one on each side, holding his hands up and keeping them steady until sunset. 13*In the end,* Joshua and the men of Israel defeated Amalek and his soldiers with the sword.

Eternal One (to Moses): 14Write down what I say on a scroll as a memorial record of these events, and read it aloud so Joshua can hear: "I will erase all traces of the memory of Amalek from under heaven."

15Then Moses constructed an altar and called it, "The Eternal Is My Battle Flag."

Moses: 16*Because Amalek raised a defiant hand against the throne of the Eternal,* He has promised to wage war against Amalek through future generations.

18 Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, the priest of Midian, heard about all that God had done for Moses and His people Israel, and how the Eternal had rescued Israel out of Egypt. 2-3Now Moses had sent his wife, Zipporah, and her two sons back to Jethro from Egypt, and Jethro had cared for them in his long absence. Moses had named one son Gershom, because as he said, "I have lived as an outsider in an unfamiliar land."* 4*Moses had* named the other son Eliezer, for he said, "My father's God was my helper, and He rescued me from Pharaoh's sword." 5Jethro (Moses' father-in-law) brought Zipporah and her two sons into the desert to meet Moses when he and the people of Israel were camped near God's mountain.

* 17:7 Literally, "testing" * 17:7 Literally, "complaining" * 18:2-3 Exodus 2:22

This place is special for Moses, for it was here that he first met God in the burning bush.

6Jethro sent a servant with a message for Moses.

Jethro (to Moses): I, Jethro, your father-in-law, am coming out to see you and I'm bringing your wife and two sons with me.

7So Moses went out to meet his father-in-law. When he saw him, he bowed down before Jethro and kissed him. They each asked how the other was doing, and then they went into Moses' tent.

8Moses told Jethro the whole story. He told him everything that the Eternal had done to Pharaoh and the Egyptians on behalf of Israel. He told him about all the misery and tribulations they had run into during their long journey. And then he told how the Eternal had rescued them. 9Jethro was thrilled to hear of all the kindness the Eternal had shown Israel, especially how He rescued them from the powerful hand of the Egyptians.

Jethro: 10Praise to the Eternal, for He rescued you from the powerful hand of the Egyptians, from the cruel grip of Pharaoh. He has liberated His people from beneath the harsh hand of their Egyptian masters. 11Now I know with all my heart that the Eternal is greater than all gods because of the way He delivered His people when Egyptians in their arrogance abused them.*

12Jethro then took a burnt offering and sacrifices and presented them to God. Aaron and the rest of the Israelite elders gathered to dedicate a meal to God with Moses' father-in-law.

13On the next day, Moses sat and served as judge, settling disputes among the people. Those with grievances surrounded him from sunrise to sundown waiting to present their case. 14Jethro noticed all Moses was doing for the people.

Jethro: What do you think you are doing? Why are you the only one who is able to judge the disputes of all these people who surround you from sunrise to sundown?

Moses: 15These people come to me seeking direction from God. 16When two people are arguing and can't resolve their differences, they come to me; and I settle the matter between them. This is one way I help God's people understand His requirements and instructions.

Jethro: 17What you are doing is not good for you. 18The responsibility is just too much. You are going to wear yourself out. Not only that, you're going to wear out the people too. You can't do it all by yourself. 19I am going to give you a piece of advice, so listen up and God will be with you. You should represent the people before God, and carry their concerns to Him. 20Teach them God's requirements and pass on His laws. Show them the right way to live and the kind of work they should be doing. 21*As for all these other duties you have taken on,* choose competent leaders who fear God, love truth, despise dishonesty, and won't take bribes. After you divide and subdivide all the people into various groups of a thousand, hundred, fifty, and ten, put the men of integrity you selected in charge over the various groups. 22Let these righteous leaders be ready to judge the people whenever it is necessary. If there is some major problem, they can bring that to you. Otherwise, these select leaders ought to be able to handle the minor problems. This will be much easier for you, and they will help you carry this burden. 23If you do what I advise and God directs you, then you will be able to handle the pressure. Not only that, but all these people standing around needing help, they will be able to return to their tents at peace.

24Moses accepted Jethro's advice and did all that he said. 25He chose competent leaders and put them in charge of the community of Israel. He divided and subdivided the nation into groups of a thousand, hundred, fifty, and ten, and he appointed a leader over each group. 26The righteous leaders judged the people whenever disputes or problems arose. Any major quarrel, they brought to Moses for his judgment; but every minor argument, they judged themselves.

27When it was time for Jethro to return to his own land, Moses sent his father-in-law on his way.

* 18:11 Meaning of the Hebrew is unclear.

Jethro is more than Moses' father-in-law; he is also an insightful leader and a skilled counselor. He sees that what Moses is trying to do is counterproductive. Moses is wearing himself down in continual service to the people, and the people are frustrated with the many hours they must wait to have their cases heard by a single arbitrator. Jethro's counsel advances the best possible solution for all concerned. Moses remains the sole spiritual leader of the emerging nation, the people's representative to God, and the conduit of God's wisdom to the people. But now he is to delegate his governing authority to a set of judges.

The legal and administrative system Jethro proposes is much like a military command with the masses of people divided and then subdivided. Those who are honest and capable hear the normal disputes that arise on a daily basis, much as they have observed Moses handling them in the past. The more difficult and unique issues are still dealt with by Moses. In this system, there is no difference between civil disputes and religious inquiries. This is an administration designed to handle all problems, secular or spiritual. Life, after all, doesn't fall into nice, neat categories.

19 The Israelites entered the desert of Sinai on the day the third new moon appeared after the Israelites left Egypt. 2After departing from Rephidim, they entered into the desert of Sinai and set up camp out in the desert. The entire community of Israel camped right in front of the mountain of God.

3Moses climbed the mountain to meet with God, and the Eternal spoke to him from the mountain.

Eternal One: This is what I want you to say to the house of Jacob—to all the people of Israel: 4"You are eyewitnesses of all that I did to the Egyptians. You saw how I snatched you from the bonds of slavery and carried you on eagles' wings and brought you to Myself. 5Now if you will hear My voice, obey what I say, and keep My covenant, then you—out of all the nations of the world—will be My treasured people. After all, the earth belongs to Me. 6You will be My kingdom of priests, a nation holy and set apart." Tell the Israelites exactly what I have told to you.

As a kingdom of priests, Israel exists to serve as agents of God's blessing. The people are to bear witness to God's character and carry to Him the world's concerns.

7Moses descended from the mountain and assembled the elders of Israel and told them everything the Eternal commanded him to say.

Israelites: 8We will do everything the Eternal has told us to do!

Moses took what the people said back to the Eternal.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 9I will come to you in a thick cloud so that the people will be able to hear My voice when I speak to you. That way they will trust you forever.

Then Moses told the Eternal all that the people had said.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 10-11Go down to the people and get them ready to meet Me today and tomorrow by purifying themselves and washing their garments. By the third day, they need to be ready, for on that day I will descend from Mount Sinai so that everyone can see. 12You are to set up boundaries all around the mountain and tell the people, "Be careful that you do not cross the boundaries and go up on the mountain or even touch the edge of it. If anyone so much as touches the mountain, he should be put to death. 13No one is to touch the person or animal who crosses the boundary; stone them or shoot them with arrows but do not touch them. It doesn't matter whether it is a human or an animal, it must be put to death." But when they hear the long blast of the ram's horn, then they are permitted to make their way up on the mountain.

14Moses went down the mountain and purified all the people. They washed their clothes. 15He gave instructions to everyone.

Moses: Be ready for the third day. Do not have sexual relations with your spouse between now and then.

16When the morning of the third day arrived, thunder cracked and lightning lit up the sky. A thick cloud veiled the mountain, and there was a long, loud blast of a ram's horn. Every person in the camp trembled. 17Moses led the anxious people away from camp to encounter God. Everyone waited at the base of the mountain. 18Now Mount Sinai was covered in thick smoke because the Eternal descended on the mountain in fire; and the smoke of that fire rose up to the sky as if it were billowing out of a furnace, and the entire mountain shuddered and quaked intensely. 19The blast of the ram's horn grew louder and louder. Moses spoke, and God answered with a voice that rumbled like thunder.

20The Eternal descended to the summit of Mount Sinai. He called for Moses to come and meet Him, so Moses began the long, hard climb up the mountain.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 21Go down, and warn the people not to cross the boundaries in order to try to see Me, or else many of them will die. 22Any of the priests who draw near to Me must first rid themselves of any impurity so that I do not break loose and kill them.

Moses *(to the Eternal): 23No one can approach Mount Sinai because You warned them when You said, "Set up boundaries around the mountain and keep the area holy and separate."

Eternal One: 24Go back down and bring Aaron with you next time. But do not let any of the people (including priests) cross those boundaries to come up and meet Me, unless they want Me to break loose and kill them.

25Moses went back down the mountain and told the people all the Eternal had said.

Then God began to speak directly to all the people.

► Until now God has dealt only with Moses on behalf of His people; at Mount Sinai, He turns to address them directly in order to express the core of His covenant obligations. He begins by reminding them of all He has done for them. His miraculous deeds in liberating the Hebrew slaves and providing for them in the desert become the basis of this new relationship. He then proceeds to lay out the Ten Directives that will define and shape their lives together. The first four Directives concern their duties to know and worship the one True God. The last six pertain to how Israel is to live with one another in a covenant-based society. Properly understood, all the other teachings, prescriptions, and directives that come in later chapters derive from these Ten Directives.

Eternal One: 2I am the Eternal your God. I led you out of Egypt and liberated you from lives of slavery and oppression.

3You are not to serve any other gods before Me.

4You are not to make any idol or image of other gods. In fact, you are not to make an image of anything in the heavens above, on the earth below, or in the waters beneath. 5You are not to bow down and serve any image, for I, the Eternal your God, am a jealous God. As for those who are not loyal to Me, their children will endure the consequences of their sins for three or four generations. 6But for those who love Me and keep My directives, their children will experience My loyal love for a thousand generations.

8*You and your family are to* remember the Sabbath Day; set it apart, and keep it holy. 9You have six days to do all your work, 10but the seventh day is to be different; it is the Sabbath of the Eternal your God. Keep it holy by not doing any work—not you, your sons, your daughters, your male and female servants, your livestock, or any outsiders living among you. 11For the Eternal made the heavens above, the earth below, the seas, and all the creatures in them in six days. Then, on the seventh day, He rested.

That is why He blessed the Sabbath Day and made it sacred.

12 You are to honor your father and mother. If you do, you and your children will live long and well in the land the Eternal your God has promised to give you.

13 You are not to murder.

14 You are not to commit adultery.

15 You are not to take what is not yours.

16 You are not to give false testimony against your neighbor.

17 You are not to covet what your neighbor has or set your heart on getting his house, his wife, his male or female servants, his ox or donkey, or anything else that belongs to your neighbor.

18 As all the people witnessed the signs of God's presence—the blast of the ram's horn, the roaring thunder, the flashing lightning, and the smoke-covered mountain—they shook with fear and astonishment and wisely kept their distance.

Israelites (to Moses): 19 We are afraid to have God speak directly to us; we are certain that we will die. You speak to us instead; we promise to listen.

Moses: 20 Don't be afraid. These powerful manifestations are God's way of instilling awe and fear in you so that you will not sin; He is testing you for your own good.

21 But everyone remained far away from the mountain as Moses began moving toward the thick, dark cloud where God was.

Eternal One (to Moses): 22 This is what I want you to tell the people of Israel: "You yourselves witnessed that I have spoken to you from heaven. 23 It is essential that you not make any idols to rival Me. Do not make any idols out of silver or gold for yourselves! 24 Take earth and build an altar to Me and sacrifice all of your burnt offerings and peace offerings there. Offer Me the best of your sheep and oxen. Wherever I choose for My name to be remembered, I will come to you and shower blessings upon you. 25 But if you decide to build an altar out of stones for Me, use only natural stones, not hand-cut stones, because any attempt to shape them with your tools will desecrate the altar. 26 Also, do not approach My altar by walking up steps, for you might profane the altar by exposing your nakedness."

► After God gives Israel the Ten Directives, He gives them other instructions that derive from the first ten. They do not cover every situation but provide guidance for how God's people should live.

21 Eternal One (to Moses): These are other rules and guiding principles that you must present to the Israelites:

2 If you purchase a male Hebrew slave, he will be your servant for six years only. When the seventh year arrives, he will go free without having to pay a price for his freedom.

In Moses' day, slavery exists everywhere in the world, and slaves are the first to be given protection under these guiding principles or judgments.

3 If you acquire a slave who is not married, then he will depart as a single man. But if you acquire a man who is married, then his wife will also leave when he goes free.

4 If his master provides a wife for him, and the wife gives him sons and daughters, then both the wife and the children belong to the master, and only the slave will leave the master's service when the seventh year arrives.

5 But if the seventh year arrives and the slave freely renounces his right to freedom, saying, "My heart is full of love for my master, my wife, and my children. I will not leave my master's service as a free man," 6 then his master will present him to the True God.* Next his master will escort him to the doorway and pierce his ear against the doorpost with an awl. Then everyone will know this slave will serve his master for life.

7 Women are to be treated differently. If a man decides to sell his daughter as a slave, she will not be freed as male slaves are when the seventh year arrives.

* 21:6 Greek manuscripts read, "to the lawcourt of God."

8If for any reason she does not please her master who handpicked her for a wife, then he is to allow her to be bought by another. He has no right to sell her to a foreign people because he has broken the agreement with her.

9If the master chooses her as a wife for his son, then the master must treat her just as he would his own daughter.

10If the master decides he wants to marry an additional wife, then he must not reduce his slave-wife's food or clothing or any other marital rights. 11If he does not provide these three things for her, then she is free to leave without owing him any money for her freedom.

12If a man attacks another and the victim dies from the attack, then the attacker must be put to death. 13But if God allows a person to die at the hands of another who never intended to kill him in the first place, then I will appoint a place where he can run and take refuge from those who would exact revenge. 14But if a man plans an attack and cunningly kills his victim, then he will find no refuge at my altar. Take him from there and put him to death.

15Also, anyone who strikes one of his parents must be put to death.

16Anyone who kidnaps another—whether he has already sold his victim or still has him when he is caught—must be put to death.

17And anyone who curses either of his parents must be put to death.*

18If people are engaged in an argument and one hits the other with a rock or his fist, and the victim does not die but is bedridden for a time and unable to work, 19then the one who struck him will not be punished as long as the injured party recovers enough to be able to get out of bed and walk around with the help of his staff; however, he must pay his victim for lost time and wages, and make sure he has the care he needs until he recovers. 20If a person hits his male or female slave with a rod, and the slave dies because of the blow, then that person must be punished. 21But if the slave survives a couple of days, then there will be no penalty because the slave belongs to the master.

28If a bull gores a man or woman and the injury leads to the victim's death, then the bull must be put to death by stoning. No one is allowed to eat the bull meat, and the owner of the bull has no further liability. 29But if a bull has gored people before and its owner is aware of the problem but has not confined it, and if that bull kills a man or woman, then the bull must be stoned and the owner must also be put to death.

30*There is an exception.* If the relatives of the dead demand money instead of his life, then the owner of the bull may redeem his life in exchange for whatever is required of him. 31The same rule applies whether the bull gores someone's son or daughter. 32If the bull gores a slave (male or female), then the owner of the bull is to give the dead slave's master 12 ounces of silver, and the bull must be stoned.

33If someone uncovers an old pit or digs a new pit and leaves it uncovered, and an ox or a donkey falls into it, 34then the person who owns the pit will be held responsible and must compensate the owner for the full cost of the animal; but the dead animal at the bottom of the pit belongs to the man who owns it.

35If a person's bull injures another's bull and it dies, then together they must sell the living bull and split the money equally; they must also divide the dead bull equally. 36Now if the bull already has a reputation for goring and the owner has not confined it, then the owner of the living bull must pay a healthy bull for the dead one, but he may keep the dead bull for himself.

* 21:17 Mark 7:10 * 21:24 Matthew 5:38

22 Eternal One: If someone steals an ox or a sheep and either kills or sells it for profit, then he must pay five oxen for the one ox he stole or four sheep for the one sheep he stole. [4]But if the stolen animal—the ox or donkey or sheep—is still alive and in his possession when he is caught, then the thief must pay the owner double. [3b]A thief must make restitution for what he has taken. If he has no means of doing so, he must be sold to pay for his theft.

[2]If a person attacks a thief in the act of breaking into his house and the thief is killed during the attack, then the homeowner is innocent of blood guilt. [3a]It is different if the sun has already risen; so any homeowner who kills a thief during the day must be considered guilty of bloodshed.*

► The difference between these two situations is the difference between daylight and dark. If a homeowner is protecting his property at night and injures a thief, it is to be treated as a case of self-defense. But if the crime takes place during the light of day, it is not necessary to incapacitate or capture the thief; it is necessary only to recognize the thief and bear truthful witness against him in court. The right to personal property does not eclipse the right to life.

Eternal One: [5]If someone allows his animals to graze a field or vineyard until it is bare and then lets his animals wander over onto a neighbor's field, then he must compensate his neighbor from the very best of his field and vineyard.

[6]If someone starts a fire and the fire spreads and sets the thorn bushes ablaze, and eventually that fire burns up stacks of harvested grain and everything growing in the fields, then the person who started the fire is responsible and must pay reparations for what was lost.

[7]If someone gives his neighbor money or items to keep for him and it is stolen from his neighbor's house, then if the thief is captured, he must pay double for what he stole. [8]If the thief is not found, then the person who owned the house that was burglarized must go stand before God's presence so that He can decide whether he is the one who stole the property.

[9]Whenever there is a breach of trust—regarding an ox, a donkey, a lamb, a piece of clothing, or any lost item—and the contested item is discovered in the possession of a neighbor and claimed by two different parties, then both sides must appear before God. If God finds the neighbor guilty, he must pay double for what he stole.

[10]If someone leaves a donkey, an ox, a sheep, or any other kind of livestock in his friend's keeping, and the animal dies or is injured or disappears while no one is watching, [11]then the two are to make an oath in the presence of the Eternal. The neighbor must swear he had nothing to do with the loss of the animal, and the owner of the animal must accept his statement and not demand any compensation for the loss.

[12]But if the animal was stolen while in his neighbor's care, then the neighbor must compensate the owner. [13]If it was torn to pieces by another animal, then the neighbor may use the remains as evidence, and not have to pay any compensation for the torn animal.

[14]If someone borrows an animal from a neighbor and it is harmed or dies while not in the possession of the owner, then the borrower must compensate the owner in full. [15]But if the owner was there when the animal dies or is harmed, then no compensation is required. If the animal has been rented and not borrowed, then the rental fee paid shall cover the loss of the animal.

The owner who rents the animal must calculate the risk of losing the animal when he assesses the rental fee.

[16]If a man entices a virgin who is not promised to another man to have sex with him, then he must pay her father the bride-price and marry her. [17]If the young woman's father refuses the marriage offer because he disapproves of the man, then the man still must pay the amount of money that is customary for the bride-price for virgins.

* 22:2-4 Verses 2-4 have been rearranged to assist in the comprehension of the passage.

18You are not to allow a sorceress to live.

19Anyone who has sex with an animal must be put to death.

20Anyone who dares to sacrifice to any god other than the Eternal must be declared under the ban and destroyed.

21Do not wrong or oppress any outsiders living among you, for there was a time when you lived as outsiders in the land of Egypt.

22You must not take advantage of any widow or orphan. 23If you do oppress them and they cry out to Me, I will certainly hear them, 24and My wrath will be kindled. I will make sure you are slaughtered by your enemy's sword, and your own wives and children will become widows and orphans.

25If you loan money to any of the poor among My people, do not treat them as borrowers and act as their creditors by charging interest. 26If your neighbor gives his coat to you as collateral, then be sure to give it back before night falls—even if he has not repaid you in full. 27You see that coat covers his body and may be his only protection against the cold. What do you think he would sleep in? When he calls out for Me, I will hear his cry. I am kind and compassionate as you should be when a fellow Israelite is in need.

28Do not curse the one True God or any rulers of your people.*

God demands respect from His people and expects His people to honor those He puts in charge.

29You must not hold back or delay your offering from the bounty of your harvest or the juice of your vineyard.* Dedicate every one of your firstborn sons to Me. 30But dedicate your livestock—your ox and sheep—to Me in sacrifice. The firstborn of your livestock may stay with its mother for the first seven days. When the eighth day arrives, give the firstborn to Me. 31You must be holy before Me. Do not eat any animal that has been torn to pieces by wild beasts in the field. Toss its remains to the dogs.

23 Eternal One: Do not pass along a false report. Do not plot with evil people to give a false witness.

2Even if the majority of people are doing evil, do not follow them. Also when you are called to give testimony in a dispute, do not let the crowd pressure you into perverting justice. 3*In the same way,* do not side with the poor in a complaint just because he is poor.

4If you are walking along and come across your enemy's ox or donkey that has wandered away, then you must return it to its owner. 5If you see the donkey of someone you know who hates you and it has fallen beneath its load, you must not leave it there. You must stop and help the donkey recover the load.

6Do not deny justice to the poor among you in their disputes. 7Stay far away from false accusations, and do not condemn the innocent or righteous to death. Understand this: I will not acquit those who commit such miscarriages of justice.

8Do not accept a bribe, for a bribe can blind those who see and twist the words of those who are in the right. 9Do not oppress an outsider. You know well what it is like to be an outsider living in a foreign land, for you were strangers once in the land of Egypt.

10You have six years to plant your fields and harvest your crops. 11When the seventh year arrives, let your land rest and lie fallow. Let the poor and hungry among you come and harvest the volunteer crops that spring up in your fields. Whatever is left over, the beasts may eat. Do the same thing with your vineyards and your olive groves. 12You have six days to work. When the seventh day arrives, stop all work so that your ox and donkey can rest. When you observe the Sabbath Day, your female slave's son and any outsider serving you have a chance to catch their breath and relax.

13Be careful to do all that I have instructed you. Do not even acknowledge the names of other gods or let their names spill from your lips.

14I want you to celebrate a feast in My honor three times a year. 15*First,* celebrate the Feast of Unleavened Bread. As I instructed you before, you are to eat only bread made without yeast for the seven feast days beginning at the appointed

* 22:28 Acts 23:5 * 22:29 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

The Hebrews follow a lunar calendar that has 11 fewer days than the solar calendar. Since it has only 354 days in the year, an extra month (a "leap" month) is added periodically to bring the dates into alignment with the seasons. Within this annual cycle, God sets aside several great feasts for the people to celebrate. The people are to honor their God by having days of pure rejoicing as they recall their rescue from Egypt and God's ongoing provision. In keeping with the needs of an agricultural people, these feasts are situated around the harvests: first, the collection of the winter grains; second, the harvest of the other grains 50 days later; third, the gathering of the main crops of the field.

time in the month of Abib, for that is when you fled out of Egypt. During this time, no one is to come before Me without some offering. 16*Second,* celebrate the Feast of Harvest in the spring when you bring to Me the first and best of the wheat crop you planted in the field. Third, celebrate the Feast of Ingathering at the end of the harvest season when you gather your crops from the fields, orchards, and groves. 17All of your men must come before the Eternal your Lord, these three times a year.

18*When you make offerings* before Me, do not present any bread made with yeast along with an animal sacrifice. Do not let the fat of the sacrifice remain until the next morning. 19Bring only the best crops from your first harvest into the house of the Eternal your God. You must not boil a baby goat in its mother's milk.

20Look! I am going to send a heavenly messenger before you to protect you during your journey and lead you safely to the place I have prepared for you. 21Pay attention to all he shows you and obey whatever he tells you. Do not cause him any trouble. He will not forgive you if you rebel against him for he carries My name in him.

22If you are obedient to his voice and follow all of My instructions, then I will be an enemy to all of those who are against you, and I will oppose all those who oppose you. 23When My messenger moves ahead of you and leads you to the land of the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Canaanites, Hivites, and Jebusites—I will annihilate them. 24Do not bow down to their gods, worship, or serve them in any way. Do not engage in any of their wicked practices. Instead, you must destroy every idol you find and shatter their sacred pillars into tiny pieces.

25Worship and serve only the Eternal your God, and I will bless you with an ample supply of wholesome food and clean water. I will take away all sickness from you, [26]prevent miscarriages and barrenness, and give you long, productive lives. [27]My fear and My dread will move ahead of you, and wherever you go people will greet you with panic and confusion. I will see to it that all of your enemies turn and run from you. [28]I will unleash hornets ahead of you; and they will drive out the Hivites, Canaanites, and Hittites from the land before you. [29]Now I will not do all this in a single year, because the land would become a wasteland, overpopulated with wild animals that would roam unchecked. [30]Rather, I will drive them out a little at a time—a few here, a few there—until your numbers grow and you are strong enough to take over the land and its care. [31]I will set your borders from the Red Sea to the Mediterranean Sea west of where the Philistines live and from the desert to the Euphrates River. I will give to you all those who inhabit the land, and you will drive them all out. [32]But do not make a covenant-treaty with them or agree to serve their gods. [33]They must not be allowed to live in your land; otherwise they will cause you to sin against Me, the only True God. If you serve their gods, you will be trapped and be drawn into sin.

24 Eternal One (to Moses): Come up the mountain to Me, Moses, and this time bring with you Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, and 70 elders of Israel. These may come, but you must worship from a distance. [2]Only Moses is permitted to approach Me; but be careful, for the others must stay at a distance. The rest of the people of Israel must stay below; they are not to come up the mountain with you.

[3]Moses then went and told the people exactly what the Eternal had said, and he carefully laid out God's instructions. All the people answered as if they had one, single voice.

People (answering together): We will do all that the Eternal has asked us to do!

[4]Moses wrote down in great detail everything that the Eternal had said. Then early the next morning he woke up and constructed an altar at the foot of the mountain and erected twelve stone pillars.* Each pillar represented one of the twelve tribes of Israel.

[5]Moses directed some of the young men of Israel to offer burnt offerings and sacrifice young bulls as peace offerings to the Eternal. [6]He gathered half of the blood from the animals and filled the basins with it. He sprinkled the other half of the blood against the altar. [7]Then Moses took the book of the covenant—the very instructions spoken to him by God—and read it aloud so all the people could hear.

People (responding): We will do all that the Eternal has said! We will obey every word of His command!

[8]Moses took the blood of the sacrifices and sprinkled it on the gathered people.

Moses (to the people): Look! Here is the blood signifying the covenant that God has established with you according to all He has said and all we have promised.

[9]Then Moses took Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, and 70 of Israel's elders and went up the mountain. [10]There they saw Israel's God. Beneath His feet, there appeared to be paving stones of sapphire, as pure and clear as the sky above. [11]But God did not raise His hand against the leaders of Israel to strike them down. They beheld the True God, and they feasted and drank in His presence.

Eternal One (to Moses): [12]Come up the mountain to Me and stay here with Me for a while. I will give you stone tablets inscribed with My law and commandments in order to provide instruction and guidance for the people.

[13]So Moses and his assistant, Joshua, got up and began the long climb up toward the summit of the mountain of God.

Moses (to the elders): [14]Wait here for our return. Aaron and Hur will stay with you. If anyone has a complaint, then they can speak to them.

[15-16]Moses* made his way up the mountain. A thick cloud blanketed the mountain because the Eternal's glory had settled upon it. The cloud stayed there for six days; and when the seventh day arrived, the Eternal spoke to Moses from the cloud.

* 24:4 Other manuscripts read, "stones." * 24:15-16 Greek manuscripts add, "and Joshua."

17For the Israelites below, the Eternal's glory appeared to be a consuming fire on the top of the mountain. 18As Moses walked further toward the top, he was swallowed by the cloud of God's glory, and he remained there for a total of 40 days and 40 nights.

► From above God's glory appears as a cloud. From below it appears as a fire. As with the burning bush earlier on Mount Sinai, the mountain seems to burn but is not consumed.

25 Then the Eternal spoke to Moses.

Eternal One (to Moses): 2-3Instruct the Israelites to bring Me a sacred offering. All those whose hearts move them are to make an offering to the One who delivered them from bondage. You should accept only the finest things: gold, silver, and bronze metals; 4blue, purple, and scarlet thread and fabric; fine linen and goat-hair garments; 5ram skins (dyed red) and sea-cow* leathers; acacia wood; 6olive oil for the lamps; spices for anointing oil and incense; and 7onyx and other gems for the ceremonial vestment and the breast piece worn by the high priest.

8Direct them to build a holy sanctuary in My honor so that I can dwell among them. 9Instruct the people to follow the pattern I am about to show you for the congregation tent and its furnishings.

10I want them to build a covenant chest made from acacia wood. It should be 45 inches long, 27 inches wide, and 27 inches high. 11Overlay it inside and out with pure gold, and decorate it with gold trim around the outside. 12Cast four gold rings and attach them to the four corners—two rings on each side. 13Also, make poles out of acacia wood and overlay them with pure gold. 14Slide the poles through the rings on the chest in order to carry it. 15The poles must remain in the rings of the chest at all times; they are not to be removed. 16Inside the chest you are to store the stone tablets that I will give you as a witness to our agreement. 17Build a cover for the chest out of pure gold. It will be known as the seat of mercy—where sins are atoned—and it should be 45 inches long and 27 inches wide. 18-19Fashion two winged guardians* out of hammered gold, and place them at both ends of the seat of mercy. Put one winged guardian at each end, but have your artisans make them appear as one solid piece with the cover. 20The guardians must face one another with bowed heads, their wings spread so that they reach up and cover the seat of mercy. 21After you put the stone tablets that I will give you as a witness to our agreement in the chest, place the seat of mercy—where sins are atoned—as a lid to cover the chest. 22I will meet with you there. I will speak to you from above the seat of mercy between the two winged creatures that sit atop the covenant chest. From there, I will speak to you about all the commands and instructions I have for the people of Israel.

23*I want you to* build a table made of acacia wood. It should be 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 27 inches high. 24Overlay it with pure gold, and decorate it with gold trim around the edge. 25Put a three-inch-wide* rim around it, and place gold trim around the rim. 26Then make four gold rings, and attach them to each of the table's four corners at its four legs. 27The rings need to be near the rim, so that they can hold the poles that carry the table. 28Make the poles out of acacia wood and overlay them with gold. You will use them to carry the table.

29*Have your artisans* make different kinds of dishes for the table—platters, pans, pitchers, and bowls—out of pure gold. 30Place the bread of the Presence on the table and keep it before Me at all times.

► This table is to be placed in a special room of the congregation tent with the elements symbolic of God's place among His people. One of the major elements is the bread of the Presence; it is arranged in two rows of six flat loaves representing the twelve sons of Israel. There is also a pan for holding incense and pitchers for fine wine; all these elements remind God's people of His loving grace. The golden lampstand stands nearby, bathing the room and its contents in warm light. This special room and all it contains stimulate the senses—sight, smell, touch, and taste—and serve to remind those who enter of God's tangible blessings.

Eternal One: 31Fashion a lampstand out of pure, hammered gold. Make it and all its parts—its base, trunk, branches, decorative buds and blossoms, and lamp cups—out of one solid piece. 32Six branches will extend from the trunk's sides—three on one side and three on the other. 33Each of the six branches will have three decorative cups shaped like almond blossoms whose buds have just flowered. 34On the trunk of the lampstand, there are to be four cups shaped like almond blossoms whose buds have just flowered. 35A single almond bud will sit beneath each pair of branches extending out from the trunk of the lampstand. 36All the buds and branches are to be crafted out of pure, hammered gold and made to look as one solid piece. 37Make seven lamps for the lampstand, and position them so that they illuminate the area in front of it. 38The tools and accessories for trimming the wicks and caring for the lamps are to be made of pure gold as well. 39The lampstand and all its accessories will require 75 pounds* of your finest gold. 40Be sure that you make the covenant chest, table, lampstand and all their accessories according to the pattern I have shown you on the mountain.*

The valuable materials used to make the congregation tent and its furnishings are provided by the Egyptians when the Israelites make their exodus.

26 Eternal One: Make the interior of the congregation tent out of 10 curtains made of the finest woven linens. Decorate it with blue, purple, and scarlet threads, beautifully embroidered by skilled workers with images of winged guardians. 2Make each curtain 42 feet long and 6 feet wide. 3Attach five of the curtains together to form one larger curtain. Then take the other five, and attach them to form a second curtain. 4Make loops out of material dyed blue and attach them on the outer edge of both sets of curtains. 5Attach 50 more loops to the long edge on both sets of curtains so that the loops match up with one another. 6Make 50 gold clasps to connect the curtains together so that all the curtains for the interior of the congregation tent form one continuous piece.

7*Next* make 11 panels of tent fabric out of goat hair to cover the congregation tent and protect the beautiful embroidered curtains inside. 8Each of the 11 panels is to be 45 feet long and 6 feet wide. 9Attach five panels together to form a single wide panel. Then attach the remaining six to form a second panel. Fold the larger panel over at the front of the tent. 10Make 50 loops on the long edge of each of these panels and 1150 bronze clasps to connect the panels together, so that this covering for the congregation tent may function as one continuous piece. 12The extra length of the leather tent panels—the remaining half panel—will hang over the back of the congregation tent. 13The extra length in the sides of the tent panels should be left to overlap so that the tent is covered completely. 14You must add two more layers to protect the congregation tent: an inner layer made of red-dyed rams' skins and an outer layer made of sea-cow hides.

15Construct the supporting frame panels for the congregation tent out of the acacia wood. 16Each panel should be 15 feet high and 27 inches wide. 17For every panel, carve two tenons so that one panel fits perfectly into the next. 18You will need 20 frame panels for the south wall of the congregation tent. 19Make 40 silver bases to support the 20 frame panels, two bases beneath each panel so that each fits securely into the bases for support.

20Make 20 frame panels for the north* wall of the tent as well, 21sitting on 40 silver bases—two bases beneath each of the 20 panels.

22For the back wall of the congregation tent (the side that faces west), make six frame panels. 23Make two special panels for each corner on the back side of the tent. 24They are to come together

* 25:39 Or one talent of gold * 25:40 Hebrews 8:5 * 26:20 Greek manuscripts read "south."

At the very center of Israel's camp is the congregation tent. It is the heart of the nation, a place of unique revelation, and a constant reminder of God's presence and actions which create and form His people. Everything must be portable because this is not a settled population but a people on the move. God describes exactly how this large tent and its furnishings are to be constructed. Each layer covering the tent and the detailed work on the covenant chest, the seat of mercy, the table of presence, the lampstand, and all the utensils are physical reminders of deep, spiritual realities. The building, assembling, disassembling, and reassembling of the tent are labor-intensive; yet it is a work of obedience and devotion calling Israel to remember their special relationship with God. These are signs—located right in the center of the camp—that point to the fact that His graciousness is ever before them.

with the side panels at the bottom to make a strong corner and attach at the top to the first ring. This is how both corner panels should be made. 25So there are to be eight frame panels on the back wall that fit into 16 silver bases—two bases beneath each panel.

26-27Make five crossbars of acacia wood to connect the frame panels on each of three sides of the tent: north, south, and west. 28Run one bar from corner to corner in the middle, halfway up the panels. 29Overlay the frame panels with gold and make gold rings to hold the crossbars. Overlay the crossbars with gold as well. 30Set up the congregation tent according to the pattern you were shown on the mountain.

31*As for the interior of the congregation tent,* have your skilled workers take the blue, purple, and scarlet threads, as well as the finest woven linens, and make a veil that is richly decorated with images of winged guardians. 32Erect four posts made of acacia wood overlaid with gold onto four silver bases. When the veil is complete, hang it on the four posts using gold hooks 33suspended beneath the clasps that hold together the curtains; and place the covenant chest, which holds the sacred tablets, behind the veil. The veil will separate the two rooms and serve to divide the holy place from the most holy place.

27 Eternal One: Make the altar of burnt offering from acacia wood. It should be square and measure seven and a half feet by seven and a half feet. Make it four and a half feet high. 2Construct it with horns on each of the four corners so that the top forms one whole piece, and overlay it with bronze. 3Fashion buckets and shovels for the ashes, basins, forks, and fire pans out of bronze. 4Make a grate out of bronze, and attach four bronze rings at each of its four corners. 5Place the grate beneath the ledge of the altar, halfway up from the base. 6Make poles out of acacia wood for the altar, and overlay them with bronze. 7Slide the poles through the rings on both sides of the altar so that it can be moved. 8Make the altar out of wooden planks, and make it hollow—exactly like the pattern you were shown on the mountain.

9-10Then enclose the courtyard in front of the congregation tent with large fabric panels made of finely woven linen on the south side that run 150 feet on silver hooks and rings supported by 20 bronze posts set securely into 20 bronze bases. 11The north side is to be made the same way: hang a series of panels for 150 feet on silver hooks and rings supported by 20 bronze posts set securely into 20 bronze bases. 12The fabric panels on the west end of the court are to run 75 feet (10 posts set into 10 bases). 13The east end of the court facing the sunrise is to be 75 feet wide. 14-15*Fabric* panels, measuring 22½ feet wide, are to be hung on each end of the east entrance, held up by three posts set into three bases. 16The entrance to the court is to be a 30-foot fabric screen, made out of finely woven linen richly embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet thread. It is to be held up by four posts set into four bases.

17All the posts that define the courtyard are to have silver bands and silver hooks, and be set into bronze bases. 18The courtyard itself is to be 150 feet long and 75 feet wide. The finely woven linen panels should be seven and a half feet high including the height of the bronze bases. 19As for the items used in the ceremonies held in the congregation tent and the tent pegs used both inside and outside the tent, they are to be made of bronze.

20Direct the Israelites to bring you oil from olives whipped until it is clear in order to keep the lamps burning continually and producing the best light possible. 21From dusk till dawn—inside the tent but outside the veil shrouding the most holy place—Aaron and his sons are to keep the lamps burning in My presence. This directive stands forever and must be carried out by the priests and people of Israel throughout all generations.

28 Eternal One: Have your brother, Aaron, and his sons (Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar) brought to you and appoint them to serve Me as priests for the people of Israel. 2In order to reflect the glory and beauty of their office, create sacred garments for your brother, Aaron. 3Talk with all the skilled workers—those whom I have gifted with talent and the spirit of wisdom—and instruct them to create distinct garments that set Aaron apart from others whenever he is serving Me as priest. 4Here are the ceremonial garments they need to make: a breast piece, a special vest, a robe, a checkered tunic, a turban, and a sash. The craftsmen are to make these sacred items for Aaron your brother and his sons to wear when they come before Me in priestly service. 5They are to make the garments out of similar materials used for the congregation tent: gold, finely woven linen, and blue, purple, and scarlet thread.

6Skilled workers are to make the special vest worn by the high priest out of finely woven linen embroidered with gold and with blue, purple, and scarlet thread. 7It is to be made of two pieces joined together at the shoulders so that front and back form one piece. 8The waistband should also be made by skilled workers from the finest quality materials: from gold; from blue, purple, and scarlet thread; and from finely woven linen. 9Then take two onyx stones and engrave the names of Israel's twelve sons upon them. 10*Carve* six names onto each stone in the order of their birth. 11Engrave the twelve names upon the two stones, just as a jeweler would engrave a seal. Mount each stone into ornamental gold settings, and 12fasten them on the shoulder pieces of the vest to represent Israel's sons. Aaron must wear the names on both shoulders as a memorial before Me. 13Create ornamental gold settings at the shoulders of the vest 14and attach to them two chains made of pure gold braided together like cords.

15*Have your skilled workers* make a breast piece of judgment out of the same quality materials and in the same style as the vest. Use finely woven linen; blue, purple, and scarlet thread; and gold. 16Make it square and fold it over to double the material, and create a pouch nine inches by nine inches. 17Attach four rows of stones to the breast piece. The first row is to be a ruby, topaz, and emerald; 18the second row is turquoise, sapphire, and diamond; 19the third row is jacinth, agate, and amethyst; 20the fourth row is beryl, onyx, and jasper. Attach all the stones to the breast piece with ornamental gold settings. 21These stones stand for the twelve tribes of Israel. Each will be engraved like a seal with the name of one of the twelve tribes. 22Also braid strands of gold into chains and attach them to the breast piece. 23Fashion two gold rings for the breast piece as well and attach them to the two ends. 24Fasten the two gold chains to the two gold rings at the ends of the breast piece. 25Fasten the loose ends of the chains on the two ornamental gold settings to the shoulders of the special vest. 26Fashion two more gold rings and attach them to the breast piece at the inside edge next to the vest. 27Make two additional gold rings and attach them to the front of the vest below the shoulders near the seam just above the waistband. 28Connect the rings on the breast piece to the rings on the vest using a blue cord.

This way, it will be attached above the waistband and not come loose from the vest. 29Aaron must keep the names of the tribes of Israel in the breast piece of judgment over his heart whenever he enters the holy place; and this will serve as a memorial before the Eternal One, a constant reminder of the covenant.

► Whenever Aaron and his sons enter into God's presence, they wear these heavy ceremonial garments covered with the names of the tribes of Israel to remind them of their holy calling; they come before God to represent His people, not their own interests. But these stones, carved with the names of the twelve tribes, are there to remind God as well. It is not that God forgets, but as our story shows there are times—sometimes long seasons—when the heavens seem silent while God's people are suffering. The Scriptures tell us that when God's covenant people call on Him, He remembers His promises and comes to save them. These stones sit prominently on the shoulders of Aaron and later high priests as a memorial, as unspoken prayers calling out and calling upon God to act on behalf of His people.

Eternal One: 30Keep the Urim and Thummim in a special pouch on the front of the breast piece of judgment. Aaron must wear these two objects over his heart whenever he enters My presence. This way he will always have with him a way to know My will and make sound decisions for the people of Israel.

31Make the robe worn under the vest blue. 32Make a hole for the head in the center of it. Form a collar around the hole by lining it with an extra layer of woven material so it will not tear. 33Embroider pomegranates out of the blue, purple, and scarlet thread and attach them to the hem of the robe. Fashion bells out of gold, and place them all around the hem between the pomegranates. 34Use an alternating pattern: bell, pomegranate, bell, pomegranate, and so on. 35Whenever he serves as priest, Aaron must wear the robe so that he will not die, because the tinkling of the bells will announce that he intends to enter or leave My presence in the holy place.

► The richly detailed description of the high priest's attire reflects key aspects of God's relationship with His people. The engraved onyx stones on the vest remind the priest that he stands before God representing the people of Israel. The Urim and Thummim offer assurance that God will direct and guide His people through difficult times and decisions in the future. The beautifully embroidered robe worn under the breast piece represents the riches and beauty of God's provision. The medallion on the front of the turban announces that Israel must be holy in order to serve the Lord.

Eternal One: 39The tunic is to be made of finely woven checkered linen. Make the turban out of fine linen as well, and have skilled workers embroider the sash. 40As for the rest of Aaron's sons, make tunics, sashes, and special caps to reflect the glory and beauty of their office. 41When they serve as priests, dress Aaron, your brother, and his sons in these ceremonial garments; anoint them, ordain them, and consecrate them. 42Furnish them with linen undergarments, so that they are covered from their waists to their thighs. 43Aaron and his sons are to put them on whenever they go into the congregation tent or go near the altar to minister in the holy place. They must do this so that they don't incur guilt and die. This directive stands forever for Aaron and all those who come after him.

29 Eternal One: Here is how to conduct the ceremony that consecrates Aaron and his sons as priests: select one flawless young bull and two flawless rams. 2Using a good quality wheat flour, make bread without yeast, cakes without yeast with oil, and wafers without yeast spread with oil. 3Place all these baked goods in a basket, and offer them to God along with the young bull and two rams.

4Then escort Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the congregation tent, and wash them carefully with water. 5Take all the ceremonial garments and put them on Aaron: the tunic, the robe worn under the vest, the vest, and the breast piece. Fasten the vest's waistband around him as well. 6Place the turban on his head and attach the sacred medallion to the front of it. 7*When he is completely dressed,* pour the anointing oil over his head.

8Then escort Aaron's sons to the congregation tent, and dress them in tunics as well. 9Fasten sashes around the waists of Aaron and his sons and put special caps on their heads. This is how you are to ordain* them.

19Then bring the other ram, and have Aaron and his sons lay their hands on its head. 20Slaughter the ram, and smear some of its blood on the right earlobe of Aaron and his sons. Then smear it on the thumbs of their right hands and the big toes of their right feet. Splatter the remaining blood on all sides of the altar. 21Collect some of the blood from the altar and some of the anointing oil, and sprinkle it on Aaron and his garments and on his sons and their garments. This is how you are to consecrate Aaron, his sons, and their garments. 22Next remove the fat from the ram, the fat tail, the fat from around the internal organs, the long lobe of the liver, the two kidneys and the fat surrounding them, and the right thigh (because this is an offering for ordination). 23Take one loaf of bread, one cake of bread with oil, and one wafer from the basket of yeastless bread that was placed before Me. 24Place all of these in the hands of Aaron and his sons to lift up as a wave offering to Me. 25Then take them from their hands and burn them on the altar along with the burnt offering. This offering by fire presented to Me will give off a pleasing aroma.

26Then take the breast from Aaron's ordination ram, and lift it up before Me as a wave offering. This will be your portion of the sacrifice. 27Consecrate the breast and the thigh which were lifted up before Me as a wave offering from the ordination ram. They belong to Aaron and his sons. 28From now on when the people of Israel offer a peace offering, Aaron and his descendants must receive a share of what the people offer Me in that sacrifice. It is their due for their priestly service.

This ceremony becomes the ritual by which generations of priests and high priests are consecrated for their sacred duties.

29When Aaron dies, his sacred garments must be passed down to his descendants. They will wear them when they are anointed and ordained. 30Aaron's son who succeeds him as high priest to minister in the congregation tent and holy place will wear these clothes for seven days.

* 29:9 Hebrew idiom is to "fill the hands."

Western world) is the use of animal sacrifices. The Israelites are first a nomadic people; later when they are settled, they become a shepherding people. For them to offer their best and dearest to God means most naturally an animal, one without blemish and young. These animals are the basis of their economy and provide them with food, clothing, shelter, and security. To offer God an animal sacrifice is to offer a piece of their lives. So offerings are very personal and differ based on what families can afford. In some cases, the sacrifices are completely consumed, but in others the priests and the people take some of the meat home to their own tables. This way the whole community shares in the bounty of the sacrifice.

Eternal One: 31Take the meat of the ordination ram and boil it in a sacred place.
32Aaron and his sons are to eat it and the bread from the basket at the entrance to the congregation tent. 33Only they are allowed to eat the bread and meat which was part of their purification rite in the ordination ceremony. An outsider may not eat them because they are holy. 34If any meat or bread is left over from the ordination ceremony the next morning, burn it completely. No one is allowed to eat it, for it is holy.

35The ordination period is to last for seven days. Here is what you must do to ordain Aaron and his sons to My priestly service. 36Offer a bull as an offering every day for seven days to purify them from sin. Cleanse the altar and consecrate it by anointing it with oil. 37For seven days you must purify the altar and consecrate it. As a result of these rituals it will be most holy and anything that touches the altar will become holy.

38Here are the sacrifices you are to offer on the altar: every day offer two one-year-old lambs. 39Offer one lamb in the morning, and the other at twilight. 40With the lamb offered in the morning bring two quarts of fine flour mixed together with one quart of beaten olive oil, and one quart of wine for the drink offering. 41With the second lamb offered at twilight, bring the same gifts of grain and drink that you offered with the morning lamb. These offerings by fire presented to Me will give off a pleasing aroma. 42From generation to generation, the ritual of the burnt offering is to begin daily at the entrance of the congregation tent in My presence. I will meet with you and talk with you there. 43I will meet with My people Israel there, for My glory will make that place sacred. 44I will sanctify the congregation tent and the altar. I will also consecrate Aaron and his sons to serve as My priests. 45I will live among the Israelites and be their God. 46And they will know that I am the Eternal their God, who led them out of Egypt so that I could live among them. I am the Eternal One their God.

30 Eternal One: Make an altar out of acacia wood for burning incense 2in the shape of a square—18 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 36 inches high. Carve the horns and the top of the altar out of one piece of wood. 3Overlay the top, sides, and horns with pure gold, and attach gold trim around its edges. 4Fashion two gold rings, and attach them beneath the trim on the two opposite sides; the rings are to hold the poles so that the altar can be carried. 5Make the poles out of acacia wood as well and overlay them with gold. 6Place this altar just outside of the veil that conceals the covenant chest and the seat of mercy that sits on top of the covenant chest. I will meet with you there.

7Aaron is to burn fragrant incense on it every morning when he trims the lamps' wicks 8and every evening when he lights the lamps. Incense must be burned in My presence throughout all your generations. 9Do not burn any strange incense, burnt offerings, or grain offerings at this altar. Also, do not pour out any drink offerings on it. 10Since this altar is sacred to Me, Aaron is to cleanse it once each year by smearing blood from the sin offering on its horns. Throughout all your generations, the high priests are to perform this ritual.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 12When you take a census of the population of Israel, each person should pay a ransom to Me so that no disease will spread among them when you count them. 13Everyone who is counted must bring ⅕ ounce of silver—a weight based on the sanctuary's measure, where ⅖ ounce equals 20 gerahs*—and it is to be given to Me as an offering. 14Everyone who is 20 years old and older will be counted and must give this offering to Me. 15The rich will not pay more, and the poor will not pay less than ⅕ of an ounce. This money will go to Me in order to ransom your lives. 16Take all the money collected from the people of Israel and use it to provide for the service of the congregation tent. This will serve as a constant reminder of My covenant with Israel and provide a way to atone for your lives.

Eternal One: 18Make a bronze basin for ceremonial washing and set it on a bronze stand. Place it between the congregation tent and the altar. Keep water in it at all times. 19-20When Aaron and his sons enter the congregation tent, or when they approach the altar to minister before Me by offering a sacrifice by fire, they must wash their feet and hands so that they will not die. 21It is important that they are to wash their hands and feet, so that they will not die. This directive stands forever for Aaron and his descendants, and they must observe it throughout all generations.

22The Eternal One instructed Moses regarding the anointing oil.

Eternal One: 23Collect the best spices: twelve and a half pounds of liquid myrrh, six pounds of fragrant cinnamon, six pounds of fragrant cane, 24and twelve and a half pounds of cassia—in accordance with the sanctuary weights—and one gallon of olive oil. 25Blend all these spices together like a skillful perfumer to make a holy anointing oil; this fragrant mixture will be used as a holy anointing oil. 26Use it to anoint the congregation tent and the covenant chest, 27the table and all its accessories, the lampstand and its tools, the altar of incense, 28the altar for the burnt offering and all its tools, and the basin and its stand. 29Consecrate all these furnishings and their utensils so that they are most holy. Anything that touches them will become holy.

30Anoint Aaron and his sons and consecrate them, so that they are able to serve as My priests. 31Address the Israelites and say, "This is My sacred anointing oil that you will use for all generations. 32It must not be poured on anyone else. Do not attempt to make an anointing oil for your own purposes with the same ingredients in the same proportions. It is sacred, and it is to be sacred to you. 33Whoever makes a similar blend or anoints anyone who is not ordained as a priest will be cut off from the community."

34The Eternal One instructed Moses regarding the fragrant incense.

Eternal One: Gather three aromatic spices—stacte, onycha, galbanum—and mix them with pure frankincense in equal measure. 35Have a perfumer take this mixture and blend it carefully with salt in order to create a pure and sacred incense. 36Grind it into a fine powder, and place some of it in front of the covenant chest in the congregation tent where I will meet with you. It will be most holy to you. 37Do not attempt to make incense for yourselves with the same ingredients in the same proportion. You must regard this as perfectly sacred to Me. 38Whoever makes an incense like it and uses it for themselves will be cut off from the community.

31 The Eternal One instructed Moses.

Eternal One: 2Look, I have a special calling upon one of the sons of Judah. His name is Bezalel (the son of Uri, son of Hur). 3I have filled him with God's Spirit, gifted him with wisdom, understanding, knowledge, and skills with a variety of crafts. 4He is an expert designer and works well with gold, silver, and bronze. 5He is able to cut and set gems, work with wood, and skillfully perform any craft needed to help construct the congregation tent and its furnishings. 6I have appointed Oholiab son of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan to assist Bezalel. I have gifted all of Israel's artisans with the skills needed to build everything I have instructed you: 7the congregation tent, the covenant chest, the seat of mercy that covers it, all the furnishings for the tent, [8]the table and its accessories, the pure gold lampstand with all its tools, the altar of incense, [9]the altar for burnt offering with all its utensils, the washing basin and its stand, [10]the woven garments, Aaron's sacred priestly garments, the clothes worn by Aaron's sons when they serve as My priests, [11]the anointing oil, and the fragrant incense to be used in the holy place. The craftsmen are to design and build all of these exactly as I have instructed you.

Eternal One: [13]Speak to the Israelites and tell them, "You must be careful to observe My Sabbaths. For the Sabbath Day serves as a sign between Me and you for all generations, so that you will know I am the Eternal One who has set you apart from all the other nations. [14]Keep the Sabbath because it is a sacred day for you, different from all other days. Anyone who violates the Sabbath or defiles it must be executed; anyone who works on the Sabbath will be cut off from the community. [15]You have six days out of every week to do whatever work is needed, but the seventh day is the Sabbath, a day set aside for rest and only rest. It is sacred to Me. Anyone who works on the Sabbath must be executed. [16]Therefore, the Israelites are to keep the Sabbath and celebrate it throughout all their generations as an everlasting covenant. [17]The Sabbath exists as a sign forever of the covenant between Me and the people of Israel for I made heaven and earth in six days, but then on the seventh day I stopped My work and was refreshed."

[18]When God had finished giving these instructions to Moses on Mount Sinai, He gave Moses the two stone tablets as a witness to their agreement inscribed by the very finger of God.

32 When the people realized Moses was taking a long time to return from his trek up the mountain, they got together and approached Aaron.

People: We have no idea what happened to this fellow Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt.* He left you in charge, so get up and make us gods who will lead us from here.

Aaron: [2]I want you to bring me the gold earrings your wives, sons, and daughters are wearing.

[3]So everyone took out their gold earrings and handed them over to Aaron. [4]He collected the gold they brought and used a tool to fashion an idol in the shape of a calf. When the people saw the calf Aaron made, they were elated.

People *(seeing the calf): Israel, these are your gods—the ones who led you out of the land of Egypt.

[5]When Aaron saw how the people responded, he built an altar in front of the golden calf.

Aaron: We are going to have a feast to the Eternal tomorrow.

[6]Everyone woke up before dawn the next day and presented burnt offerings and peace offerings on the altar. When the food was ready, they sat down to eat and drink and then rose up to dance and play.*

[7]Meanwhile, on the mountain, the Eternal One spoke to Moses.

► This is truly a dark moment for Israel. Moses left Aaron and Hur in charge 40 days ago, and both men are beginning to feel the strain. The people are stuck in the desert, and they are growing increasingly impatient without Moses and direction from God. So the people begin to question, and eventually they demand a physical representation of God like the ones their neighbors have. Aaron complies. With Moses and God occupied, the people begin breaking the Ten Directives, one after another: worshiping other gods, making idols, invoking God's name for their own selfish purposes, and committing other indecent acts. The people of God fall quickly, and they fall hard. For a brief period, their very survival is in doubt.

Eternal One: Go back down the mountain immediately, because your people whom you led out of Egypt have corrupted themselves. [8]They have quickly abandoned the way of life I require of them. They have fashioned a calf out of gold, bowed down to it, and offered it sacrifices. They are even crediting My work to that detestable idol, saying, "Israel, these are your gods—the ones who brought you out of the land of Egypt!"

[9]I know these people, and they are unbelievably stubborn. [10]Leave Me alone so that My anger can flare up and destroy them. Then I will start over and continue My plans without them and make a great nation out of you.

Moses *(begging): [11]Eternal One, why are You so angry? Why does Your anger flare up against the people You led out of Egypt with so much power and a strong hand? [12]Do You really want the Egyptians to say: "You deceived them and led them into the mountains in order to kill them and to wipe their memory from the earth"? I beg you to curb Your anger, and change your mind. Don't harm Your people. [13]Remember the sacred promise You made to Your servants Abraham, Isaac, and Israel. You swore, "I will make your descendants as many as the stars in the sky, and I will give them all of this land as I promised. It will be their everlasting inheritance."

[14]So the Eternal relented and decided not to destroy the people as He had threatened to do.

[15]Moses left God's presence and went back down the mountain. In his hands, he carried the two stone tablets of witness, inscribed on both sides, front and back. [16]The tablets were God's handiwork, and the writing on the tablets was written by God Himself.

[17]As they neared the camp, Joshua heard all the commotion and the people shouting.

Joshua *(to Moses): It sounds like a battle going on down at the camp.

Moses: [18]It is not the sound of victory, and it's not the sound of defeat, but I do hear singing and celebration.

[19]As soon as Moses arrived at the camp, he saw the calf and the revelry around it. His anger flared, and he hurled down the stone tablets and they shattered at the foot of the mountain. [20]He took down the calf they had made and burned it. He ground it down to a powder, scattered it over the water, and then he forced the Israelites to drink it.

Moses *(to Aaron): [21]How could you lead these people into such a heinous sin? What did they do to you?

Aaron: [22]Control your anger, my master. You know these people. You know how evil they can be. [23]They told me, "We have no idea what happened to this fellow Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt. He left you in charge, so get up and make us some gods to lead us from here." [24]So I told them, "If you are wearing any gold, take it off." So they gave me all their gold and I just tossed it into the fire, and out came this calf!

[25]When Moses saw that the people had lost all control because Aaron had let them get that way, and he realized their wild behavior had become a mockery in the sight of their enemies, [26]he stood at the camp's entrance and shouted to them.

Moses: If you are on the side of the Eternal One, stand over here with me!

All of the Levites gathered around him.

Moses *(to the Levites): [27]This is the message of the Eternal One, Israel's True God: "Every one of you strap on your sword and move throughout the entire camp. Kill your brother, friend, and neighbor."

[28]The Levites did exactly as Moses told them to do, and about 3,000 men were killed that day.

Moses *(to the Levites): [29]Dedicate your lives to the Eternal today—for every one of you has moved against sons and brothers. Because of your devotion to God, you have earned His blessing today.

[30]On the very next day, Moses addressed the people.

Moses: You are guilty of a great sin. Now I am going back to the Eternal One, and I hope to make atonement for your wickedness.

31Moses then went back up the mountain to the Eternal.

Moses: These people are guilty of a great sin against You. They fashioned gods out of gold for themselves. 32If You will only forgive their sin, but if You do not, then erase me from the book You have written.

Eternal One: 33I will erase from My book the name of everyone who has sinned against Me. 34It's time to go and leave this mountain. Lead the people to the place I told you. Look, My messenger will guide you there. When the time comes, I will punish them for what they have done.

33 Eternal One *(instructing Moses): The time has now arrived. Leave, and take all the people you have led out of Egypt with you. Go to the land I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to whom I said, "I will give this land to your future generations." 2I will send a messenger to guide you, and I will force out the Canaanites, Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and the Jebusites. 3Travel to the land that flows with milk and honey, the land of your inheritance. However, because you are such an incredibly stubborn people, I will not be going with you. Otherwise, I would completely destroy you during the journey.

4When everyone heard the dreadful news, they began to grieve and stopped wearing their jewelry to remind them of the calf made from their gold earrings. 5You see the Eternal One had instructed Moses, "Give the Israelites this message: 'You are such an incredibly stubborn people, therefore I am not going to travel with you. If I allowed Myself to travel with you for only a moment, I would completely destroy you. Stop wearing your jewelry so I can figure out what to do with you.'" 6So the Israelites took off all of their jewelry from the time they left Mount Horeb.

7Moses used to take a tent* and put it up far away from the camp. He referred to it as the meeting tent. Everyone who sought the Eternal One would go out to the meeting tent, which was located well outside the camp. 8When the people heard that Moses was going out to the tent, they would get up and stand at the entrance of their own tents and watch him until he had gone inside. 9When Moses entered the tent, the cloud pillar descended to the tent's entrance, and the Eternal would talk with Moses. 10When people witnessed the cloud pillar standing at the meeting tent's entrance, they would stand and bow in worship at the entrance of their own tents. 11The Eternal spoke with Moses face-to-face, just as a friend speaks to another friend. After they were done, Moses would come back to camp but his young assistant Joshua (Nun's son) would remain behind.

► The golden-calf incident creates a deep rift between God and His people. For their safety, God refuses to travel with them to the land of promise; instead, He sends His messenger to guide them. The people's response to God's threatened absence is to mourn and refuse to wear their jewelry and fine clothes. The meeting tent and the congregation tent reflect this rift too. The congregation tent is to be God's unique dwelling with His people, so it is located right in the middle of the camp. But now there is another tent, the meeting tent set up a long way from camp, far from the contagion of evil spreading there. From time to time, God and Moses meet there to talk; and Joshua stands watch over this intimate encounter, for only Joshua and Moses are not imperiled when the rest of Israel violates God's directive and worships the golden calf. Moses speaks with God and does his best to get God back on good terms with His covenant people.

Moses *(to the Lord): 12Look, You tell me, "Lead these people!" but You haven't yet told me whom You will send to accompany me. Yet You tell me, "I know you by name, and you have gained My trust and blessing." 13If I have gained Your trust and blessing, reveal Your way to me so that I can truly know You, and so that I may gain Your favor. Remember that this nation is Your covenant people.

Eternal One: 14My presence will travel with you, and I will give you rest.

Moses: 15If Your presence doesn't travel with me, then don't lead us away from here. 16How will the people know that I have gained Your trust and blessing if You do not travel with us? Isn't it the very fact that Your presence travels with us that distinguishes us from every other people on earth?

Eternal One: 17I will do what you have said because you have gained My trust and blessing, and I know you by name.

Moses: 18*If Your presence will go with us,* then let me see Your glory!

Eternal One: 19I will cause all My goodness to pass before you, and I will declare My name, the Eternal One, before you. I will show mercy to whomever I choose to show mercy, and I will demonstrate compassion on whomever I choose to have compassion.* 20You cannot see My face, for no one can see Me and live. 21Look, there is a place next to Me on the rock where you may stand. 22While My glory is passing by you, I will place you in a large crevice of the rock and hide you beneath My hand until I have completely passed by. 23Then I will remove My hand, and you will see only My back. But you won't be able to see My face.

34 Eternal One *(to Moses): I want you to cut two stone tablets exactly like the first ones I gave you. I will write the same words on these tablets that were on the tablets you shattered. 2Make sure you are ready when morning arrives. Climb up to the summit of Mount Sinai and present yourself to Me. 3No one is allowed to accompany you this time. No one is allowed to be anywhere on the mountain. This goes for your flocks and herds as well; take them to graze away from the mountain.

4So Moses cut two stone tablets that were exactly like the first set. He woke up early the next morning and climbed up Mount Sinai carrying the two stone tablets, just as the Eternal One had instructed him to do.

5The Eternal One descended in the cloud and stood with Moses as He proclaimed His name, the Eternal One. 6Then the Eternal One passed before him.

Eternal One: The Eternal God, full of compassion and mercy, slow to anger, and abundant in loyal love and truth, 7who maintains loyal love to thousands of people, who forgives wrongdoing, rebellion, and sin; yet does not allow sin to go unpunished, extending the consequences of a father's sin to his children, his grandchildren, and even to the third and fourth generations.

Moses: 9If I have gained Your trust and blessing, Lord, please go with us, despite the incredible stubbornness of this people. I also ask that You forgive our wrongdoing and our sins, and receive us as Your very own people, Your inheritance.

Eternal One: 10Look, I am about to make an extraordinary covenant with you. Before the eyes of all your people, I will do miraculous things that have never been done among any nation on earth. All of the nations living around you will witness the work that I do, for everything I do among you will inspire fear and awe. 11You must be careful to obey the instructions I give you today. I am about to force the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites out of the land you will inherit. 12Be careful. Do not make a covenant with the people who now live in the land where you are going. Any promises you make to these people could entrap you. 13Destroy their altars and pillars, and cut down their sacred poles 14because you must not worship any god except for Me. My name is Jealous, and I am a jealous God. 15Do not make a covenant with the people who live in the land; for when they prostitute themselves with their so-called gods and sacrifice to them, they will coax you and you will feast upon their sacrifices. 16And when you take some of their daughters as wives for your sons—the daughters who prostitute themselves with other gods—they will seduce your sons into joining them in chasing after other gods.

Here is a brief summary of some essentials found in the laws and ordinances handed down from the Eternal One to Moses.

18You are to celebrate the Feast of Unleavened Bread every year as I have instructed you. Eat bread made without yeast for seven days at the designated time in the month of Abib, the month that you departed from Egypt. 19All the firstborn belong to Me. Every male animal from your livestock, both cattle and sheep, that opens the womb is Mine. 20You may redeem the firstborn of a donkey with a lamb. If you choose not to redeem it, then you are to break its neck. Redeem all of your firstborn sons as well. No one may appear before Me empty-handed.

21You are to work for six days; but when the seventh day arrives, you are to observe the Sabbath and rest. Even when it is the time to plow and harvest, you must still rest on the seventh day. 22Also, you are to celebrate the Feast of Weeks, when the firstfruits from the wheat harvest are gathered. And when one year ends and another begins, celebrate the Ingathering Feast. 23All your men are to appear before Me, the Lord and one True God of Israel, three times a year at these feasts. 24For I will force the people out of the land before you and expand your borders. No one will try to take your land while you are going up those three times a year to appear before Me, your God.

25You are not to offer blood from a sacrifice with bread made with yeast. Do not leave any of the meat from the Passover sacrifice until morning. 26Offer only the best of your harvest when you bring a gift to the house of the Eternal One your God. Also you are not to boil a young goat in its mother's milk.

27(to Moses) Be sure to write down all that I have said to you. By these words of Mine, I have made a covenant with you and with Israel.

28In all Moses was with the Eternal One for 40 days and 40 nights. He fasted the entire time—no food or water. He wrote down the Ten Directives, the essential words of the covenant, on the two stone tablets.

29When Moses went back down Mount Sinai, he carried the two stone tablets in his hands as a witness to their agreement. But he did not realize that the skin on his face was glowing and radiant because he had been speaking with God.

30When Aaron and the Israelites saw that Moses' face was shining, they were afraid to get too close to him. 31But when Moses summoned them, Aaron and all the leaders of the community were reassured and approached him. Moses talked to them. 32After this, all the rest of the people of Israel approached Moses, and he instructed them to do everything that the Eternal had told him on Mount Sinai. 33When Moses finished sharing the words of God with them, he covered his face with a veil. 34From this time on whenever Moses went into the meeting tent to talk with the Eternal, he took off the veil until he left to share with the Israelites the Eternal's instructions. 35*As Moses was speaking,* the Israelites could see that the skin on his face was all aglow. Then Moses would put the veil back over his face until the next time he went to speak with God.

Moses had the entire community of Israel gather together so he could address them.

Moses: These are the instructions the Eternal One has commanded you to do: 2"You are to work for six days; but when the seventh day arrives, you are to observe a day of solemn rest on the Sabbath. You are to regard this day as holy to the Eternal. Anyone who works on this sacred day must be executed. 3Do not even start a fire in any of your houses on the Sabbath."

4These are the instructions The Eternal One has commanded you to do: 5"Take up an offering to the Eternal One. Let those with willing hearts bring the following as an offering to the Eternal One: gold, silver, bronze; 6blue, purple, and scarlet thread; fine linens; goat hair; 7rams' skins dyed red; sea-cow skins; acacia wood; 8olive oil for lamps; spices for anointing oil and fragrant incense; 9and onyx stones and other stones for the high priest's vest and breast piece.

10"Let all who are gifted with wisdom and skill come and make these things the Eternal One has instructed: 11the congregation tent, including the tent itself, its covering, all its hooks, panels, crossbars, posts, bases, and sockets; 12the covenant chest and its poles for carrying it, including the seat of mercy that covers the chest and the veil shrouding the most holy place; 13the table and its poles for carrying it, all the utensils, and the bread of the Presence; 14the lampstand that illuminates the tent, its tools, its lamps, and the oil for the light; 15the altar of incense and its poles for carrying it; the anointing oil and the fragrant incense; the curtain at the entrance to the congregation tent; 16the altar of burnt offering, including the bronze grate, its carrying poles, and various tools; the basin for washing and its stand; 17the panels that hang around the perimeter of the courtyard, its posts and bases; and the curtain for the entrance to the courtyard; 18the tent pegs and ropes for the congregation tent and its courtyard; 19the finely woven clothing for priests serving in the holy place, the sacred garments for Aaron the priest, and the clothes for his sons to wear
when they serve as priests."

20*After Moses completed these instructions,*
the entire community of Israel filed out of his presence. 21Then all those whose hearts and minds moved them came back, bringing their valuables as a contribution to the Eternal One for the congregation tent, all its service, and the sacred garments. 22Everyone with a willing heart, both men and women, came back with brooches, earrings, signet rings, bracelets, and all sorts of other gold items, and presented them as an offering of gold to the Eternal One. 23Those who possessed blue, purple, and scarlet thread, fine linens, goats' hair, rams' skins dyed red, and sea-cow skins brought them as well. 24And those who were able to give items of silver and bronze brought their offering to the Eternal One. Those who had acacia wood brought it to be used in the project.

25-26All the skilled and creative women who were able to spin made the blue, purple, and scarlet thread. All the women who were willing came forward to use their skills in spinning the goat hair.
27The leaders brought the onyx stones and the stones for setting in the high priest's vest and the breast piece. 28They also brought the spices and oils for the light,
the anointing oil, and the fragrant incense.

29All the Israelites, both men and women, who felt moved to provide the material needed to do this work, brought these offerings willingly and set them before the Eternal One exactly as He had instructed Moses.

Moses *(to the Israelites): 30Look, the Eternal One has called Bezalel (the son of Uri, son of Hur the Judahite) by name.
31He has filled him with God's Spirit, gifted him with wisdom, understanding, knowledge, and skills with a variety of crafts. 32He is an expert designer and works well with gold, silver, and bronze.
33He is able to cut and set gems, work with wood, and skillfully perform any work needed to help construct the congregation tent and its furnishings. 34Also, God has placed within both Bezalel and Oholiab (son of Ahisamach the Danite) the ability to teach. 35He has gifted them and made them expert engravers, designers, and embroiderers using blue,
purple, and scarlet thread on fine linen.
They are master weavers, skilled craftsmen, and expert designers.

► Two skilled craftsmen are given special mention in this work of the people. They are called to transform the abundant gifts the people freely provide into the congregation tent and its furnishings. It is God who gifts the hearts and hands of these two individuals and further inspires them to teach others. Of all the women and men who lend their expertise to this project, only Bezalel and Oholiab are recorded. Until Solomon's temple is built in Jerusalem, their handiwork will be admired by all of Israel as the house of the Eternal One.

36 Moses: Bezalel, Oholiab, and every skilled person whom the Eternal One has gifted with expertise and wisdom in order to build the sanctuary shall use these gifts as the Eternal One has directed.

2Moses called together Bezalel, Oholiab, and every skilled person whom the Eternal had gifted with special skills—everyone whose heart moved them to work—to help out and contribute to the construction work.

► This project is nothing like the forced labor the people endured back in Egypt. All the creativity and work put into the building and furnishing of the congregation tent comes from the heart. People with various skills—skills honed in slavery—step forward as free men and women to create a home on earth for God. Ultimately all talent and skill comes from God. Used properly they all point back to God.

3Moses handed over to the workers all the materials the Israelites donated to build the congregation tent. Every morning new contributions continued to come in. 4Eventually the craftsmen who were working on every aspect of the sanctuary project interrupted their particular jobs 5and reported to Moses.

Workers: The people are bringing far more than we need to complete the work which the Eternal One has instructed us to do.

6So Moses issued a new directive, and it spread quickly throughout the camp.

Moses: We do not need any more contributions to complete the congregation tent. We have more than enough.

With that the people stopped bringing contributions, 7for the material already on hand was more than enough to construct, furnish, and decorate the sanctuary.

8All the craftsmen made 10 curtains out of finely woven linen for the congregation tent. Using blue, purple, and scarlet thread, Bezalel had skilled workers embroider images of the winged guardians *on the curtains. 9Each curtain was 42 feet long and 6 feet wide. All 10 curtains were identical in size and shape. 10Bezalel had his craftsmen connect five curtains together to make one large panel; then they connected the other five curtains to make a second. 11-12He had 50 blue loops made and attached along the edge of the outer curtain of the first panel, and then did the same thing on the edge of the outer curtain of the second. He made sure the loops matched up with each other. 13He also had 50 clasps fashioned from gold and used them to join the curtains together, so that the interior of the congregation tent formed one continuous piece.

14He then had 11 panels of tent fabric made out of goat hair to use as a covering for the interior of the congregation tent. 15Each panel was 45 feet long and 6 feet wide. All 11 of the panels were identical in size and shape. 16He joined five panels together to form one large panel and then did the same with the remaining six to form a second large panel. 17He had 50 loops made and attached along the edge of the outer panel of each set. 18Then he had 50 clasps fashioned from bronze and used them to connect the panels together, so that they formed one continuous piece. 19He then covered the goat hair panels with a layer of red-dyed rams' skins and covered that with a layer made from sea-cow hides.

31He then made crossbars of acacia wood, five to connect the frame panels on one side of the congregation tent, 32five more to connect the panels on the other side, and five more to connect the panels at the back, the side that faces west. 33He ran one bar in the center from corner to corner, halfway up the panels. 34He overlaid the panels with gold and fashioned gold rings to hold the crossbars, and he overlaid the crossbars with gold as well.

6He built a cover for the chest out of pure gold. It is known as the seat of mercy—where sins are atoned—and it was 45 inches long and 27 inches wide. 7He also fashioned two winged guardians out of hammered gold and placed them at both ends of the seat of mercy. 8*He placed* one winged creature at each end of the seat of mercy. He had it made so that the winged guardians appeared as one solid piece with the cover. 9The guardians faced one another with bowed heads, their wings spread so that they were reaching up and covering the seat of mercy.

25Bezalel then built the altar of incense out of more acacia wood. He made it in the shape of a square—18 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 36 inches high. He carved the horns and the top of the altar out of one piece of wood. 26He overlaid the whole thing, the top, the sides, and the horns with pure gold and attached a gold trim around its edges. 27He fashioned two gold rings and attached them beneath the trim on the two opposite sides to hold the poles used to carry the altar. 28He made the poles out of acacia wood and overlaid them with gold.

29With the skill of a master perfumer, he blended the ingredients to make the sacred anointing oil and fragrant incense.

38 Bezalel made the altar for burnt offerings out of acacia wood. He made it square—seven and a half feet long by seven and a half feet wide—and four and a half feet high. 2He constructed it with horns on each of the four corners so that the top formed one piece and overlaid it with bronze. 3He fashioned all the tools and accessories needed for the altar out of bronze—the buckets and shovels for the ashes, basins, forks, and fire pans. 4He made a grate out of bronze and attached it beneath the ledge of the altar, halfway up from the base. 5He cast four bronze rings and attached them at the four corners of the bronze grating in order to hold the poles. 6He made poles out of acacia wood and overlaid them with bronze. 7He then slid the poles through the rings on both sides of the altar so that it could be carried. He made the altar out of wooden planks and made it hollow so that it would be easier to move.

9Bezalel then made fabric panels out of finely woven linen to enclose the courtyard in front of the congregation tent. On the south side, he hung a series of panels for 150 feet 10on 20 bronze posts set securely into 20 bronze bases. The hooks and bands used to attach the panels to the posts were made out of silver. 11On the north side, he hung a series of panels for 150 feet on 20 bronze posts set securely into 20 bronze bases. The hooks and bands used to attach them to the posts were made out of silver. 12On the west end, he hung panels for 75 feet on 10 bronze posts set securely into 10 bronze bases. The hooks and bands used to attach them to the posts were made out of silver. 13For the front, which faced the east, he hung panels for 75 feet. 14-15On both sides of the entrance, he hung panels that were 22½ feet wide on three posts set into three bases. 16All the fabric panels enclosing the courtyard were made of finely woven linen.

17The bases for the posts were all crafted out of bronze. The hooks and bands on the posts were all made out of silver, and the tops of each post were overlaid with silver. All the rings which attached the panels to the posts were made of silver.

18The fabric screen that served as the entrance to the courtyard was made of finely woven linen richly embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet thread. It was 30 feet long and seven and a half feet high, the same height as the rest of the panels around the court. 19It was held up by four bronze posts set into four bronze bases. The hooks and the rings which attached the panels to the posts were crafted out of silver, and the tops of each post were overlaid with silver. 20Every peg which anchored the congregation tent and the courtyard enclosure to the ground was made out of bronze.

39 For the priests who served in the holy place, they decorated finely woven garments with blue, purple, and scarlet thread donated by the people. They also made the sacred garments Aaron was to wear, exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses.

2Bezalel had Aaron's vest of gold made out of finely woven linen embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet thread. 3Craftsmen hammered gold into gold leaf, sliced it into individual threads, and interlaced them with the blue, purple, and scarlet thread as they embroidered intricate designs into the fine linens. 4They also made two pieces for the shoulders of the vest that attached so that the front and back form one piece. 5The vest's waistband was skillfully made of the same materials—blue, purple, and scarlet thread on finely woven linen—and with a similar design made by skilled artisans exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses. 6They prepared onyx stones, engraved them the same way signet rings are engraved, and set them in ornamental gold settings. 7As the Eternal instructed Moses, he positioned the onyx stones on the shoulder pieces of Aaron's vest as a memorial for the people of Israel before the Eternal One.

8He then had skilled workers make the breast piece in the same style as the vest out of finely woven linen embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet thread and with gold. 9They made it square by folding over the material to double it and created a pouch in it nine inches by nine inches. 10They placed four rows of stones in it. The first row was ruby, topaz, and emerald; 11the second row was turquoise, sapphire, and diamond; 12the third row was jacinth, agate, and amethyst; 13the fourth row was beryl, onyx, and jasper. They were all attached to the breast piece with ornamental gold settings. 14The twelve stones stood for the twelve tribes of Israel. Each was engraved like a seal with the name of one of the twelve tribes. 15They braided strands of pure gold into chains and attached them to the breast piece. 16They fashioned two ornamental gold settings and two gold rings, and they placed the two rings on opposite ends of the breast piece. 17Then they fastened the two gold chains to the two gold rings at the two ends of the breast piece. 18They fastened the loose ends of the chains to the two ornamental gold settings at the front of Aaron's vest on the shoulders. 19Then they fashioned two more gold rings and attached them to the breast piece at the inside edge next to the vest. 20They made two additional gold rings and attached them to the front of the vest below the shoulders near the seam just above the waistband. 21They connected the rings on the breast piece to the rings on the vest using blue cord, so that it would be attached above the vest's waistband and not come loose from the vest. They did all this exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses.

27They made tunics out of finely woven linen for Aaron and his sons. 28They made the turban, caps, and undergarments out of fine linen as well. 29They also made the sash out of finely woven linen and embroidered it with the blue, purple, and scarlet thread. They did all this exactly as the Eternal One instructed Moses.

30They made the medallion, the sacred emblem that set the high priest apart, out of pure gold and engraved it like a seal with the inscription, "Holy to the Eternal." 31They fastened it with a blue cord to the front of Aaron's turban, exactly as the Eternal One instructed Moses.

32All the work that went into the sanctuary of the congregation tent was finally finished. The Israelites did everything exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses.

33Then the Israelites brought all they made to Moses. They brought the tent and all its furnishings, including its hooks, frame panels, crossbars, posts, and bases; 34the layers of red-dyed rams' skins and the sea-cow skin that covered the sanctuary; the veil shrouding the most holy place; 35the covenant chest with its poles and the seat of mercy; 36the table, its tools, the bread of the Presence; 37the gold lampstand, its lamps and all its tools, the lamp oil; 38the golden altar of incense, the anointing oil and the scented incense; the fabric screen for the tent's entrance; [39]the bronze altar for burnt offerings, the bronze grating, its poles and tools, the basin and its stand; [40]the panels that enclose the courtyard, the posts and bases, the screen that covers the court's entrance, the cords and pegs; and all the tools used in the sanctuary of the congregation tent, [41]the finely woven clothing for priests serving in the holy place, the sacred garments worn by Aaron the high priest, and the clothes his sons are to wear when they serve as priests as well. [42]The Israelites completed each part of the project exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses.

[43]Moses inspected every piece of work they had completed, and he saw that they had done it all with excellence according to the specifications given to Him by the Eternal One. So Moses blessed them.

Then the Eternal One instructed Moses.

► The last half of the Book of Exodus offers a picture of the relationship between God and humanity through powerful symbols. The amazing truth of all Scripture is reflected here: God resides in the midst of His people. In every detail of God's directives—the ethical rules, the people's offerings, the design of the congregation tent and its furnishings, God's redemptive acts—God is announcing the central truth: He is present with His covenant people. So the physical elements of this covenant bear witness to deep, spiritual realities. God is in the process of repairing the world from the damage caused by sin and death; but to do so, He needs a people. This is why He chooses Israel and makes them different from everyone else. He needs agents on the ground devoted to liberating a world held hostage to lesser powers and feebler gods. But where will those people be formed and trained to be God's effective agents? They will be shaped in the crucible of worship and obedience.

Eternal One: [2]When the first day of the first month arrives, erect the sanctuary of the congregation tent. [3]Place the covenant chest in there—as a witness to our agreement—and screen it from sight with the veil. [4]Move the table into place and arrange the utensils on it. Then move the lampstand into place and set up all its lamps. [5]Place the golden altar for incense in front of the covenant chest outside the veil, and install the curtain at the entrance to the congregation tent. [6]Set up the altar for burnt offerings in front of the entrance to the congregation tent. [7]Place the basin between the sanctuary of the congregation tent and the altar, and fill it with water. [8]Erect the posts and fabric panels around the courtyard, and hang the panel at the court's entrance. [9]Anoint the tent and everything in it with the anointing oil. Consecrate it and all its furnishings, so that it will all be holy. [10]Anoint the altar for burnt offerings and all its tools, and consecrate the altar so that it will be most holy. [11]Anoint the basin and its stand, and consecrate it as well. [12]Escort Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the sanctuary of the congregation tent and cleanse them with water. [13]Dress Aaron in the sacred garments, then anoint and sanctify him so that he may serve Me as high priest. [14]Next bring his sons forward and dress them in tunics. [15]Anoint them in the same way that you anointed their father, Aaron, so that they may serve Me as priests. With their anointing, they will enter the priesthood and remain priests forever for all their generations.

[17]The congregation tent was erected on the first day of the first month of the second year after the exodus from Egypt. [18]Moses raised it. He began by laying down the bases, installing the frame panels, attaching the crossbars, and erecting the posts. [19]He covered the frame of the tent with the tent fabric and then covered that with other layers they made. He did this exactly as the Eternal One had instructed him.

[20]He then placed the stone tablets—as a witness to their agreement—inside the covenant chest. He slid the poles through the rings on the chest and covered the chest with the seat of mercy, where sins are atoned. [21]He carried the covenant chest into the congregation tent and hung the veil to screen it from sight exactly as the Eternal One had instructed him. 22He then placed the table on the northern end of the sanctuary of the congregation tent outside of the veil. 23He arranged the bread on the table before the Eternal exactly as the Eternal One had instructed him. 24He took the lampstand into the sanctuary of the congregation tent and set it up on the southern end, directly opposite the table. 25He lit the lamps before the Eternal One, exactly as the Eternal One had instructed him. 26He put the golden altar in front of the veil within the sanctuary 27and burned fragrant incense on it, exactly as the Eternal One had instructed him. 28He hung the screen at the entrance of the congregation tent. 29He put the altar for burnt offering in front of the entrance to the sanctuary of the congregation tent, inside the courtyard. He offered burnt offerings and grain offerings on it exactly as the Eternal One had instructed him. 30-31He put the basin between the sanctuary and the altar for burnt offerings and filled it with water so Moses, Aaron, and Aaron's sons could wash their hands and feet and cleanse themselves. 32When they went into the congregation tent and when they came near the altar, they washed themselves exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses. 33Moses then raised the posts and panels that enclosed the courtyard around the congregation tent and altar. He put up the screen at the court entrance. Moses completed the work.

The congregation tent faces the rising sun in the east. Its orientation along with the bronze and gold objects all around create a brilliant sight every morning.

34*At that moment,* a cloud blanketed the congregation tent, and the glory of the Eternal filled the sanctuary. 35Moses could not even go into the congregation tent because the cloud had enveloped it, and the glory of the Eternal filled the sanctuary. 36Through all their wanderings in the desert, whenever the cloud lifted up from the congregation tent, the Israelites would break camp and set out. 37But when the cloud covered the tent, they remained where they were and did not set out until once again the cloud lifted. 38Through all their wanderings, the cloud of the Eternal stood over the congregation tent during the day and at night fire was lit for all the community of Israel to see.

LEVITICUS

The shape of worship

By Moses, the shepherd of God's people

There is a story behind every book of the Bible, and Leviticus is no exception. Only a few months before, the Israelites had been slaves in Egypt, breaking their backs every day to serve a paranoid and despotic Pharaoh. God had heard their cries and remembered the covenant He made with Abraham and his family, so He sent Moses to rescue them. After many miracles, the liberated slaves lumbered en masse out of Egypt and headed east toward Abraham's ancestral lands. But on the way, they had a stop to make. God commanded Moses to return to Mount Sinai, the place where the Eternal revealed Himself and commissioned Moses to be His emissary to the beleaguered slaves. Moses met with God frequently on the mountain and at the congregation tent, a specially designed tent, a meeting place between God and His people. Leviticus is part of a larger dialogue where God lays down certain stipulations for the new covenant with His people, a covenant that builds upon and extends God's relationship with Abraham's people. These traditions begin in Exodus 25–31; 35–40, continue through Leviticus, and end in Numbers 1–10.

Essentially Leviticus is a manual for the priests, those individuals set apart by God in order to care for and maintain the covenant with the Eternal One. Priests are mediators between God and the average person. They communicate God's grace to those who desperately need it and carry the concerns of people who live with great burdens to a loving God through offerings, feasts, and other services.

At the heart of the book is worship, how an unholy people approach an absolutely holy God. The former slaves are fully convinced that God is in their midst and is calling them to be a different sort of people, a people chosen to bear witness to the one True God and make Him known to all the nations. But His nearness means an acute sense of sin, guilt, and impurity. So Leviticus provides the spiritual leaders with the spiritual means by which hopelessly flawed people can discover grace and find their broken lives repaired.

1 The Eternal One called Moses and addressed him from the congregation tent.

Eternal One: 2*Moses, I want you to go* talk with the Israelites and tell them how to perform ritual offerings: Any time one of you brings an offering to Me, you must bring the offering from the animals of either the herd or the flock. 3If you are bringing a burnt offering from your herd, then you are to pick an unblemished bull. No diseased, weak, or injured animals are allowed. Offer it at the entrance to the congregation tent so that I can accept it. 4The person offering the sacrifice shall place his hand on the head of the living animal, and the offering will be accepted to atone for the person's sins. 5You shall slaughter the young bull in My presence. Aaron's sons, the priests, will offer the blood and splatter it around the altar at the entrance of the congregation tent. 6You shall then skin the burnt offering and cut the animal up into pieces. 7The sons of Aaron the priest will place fire on the altar and arrange the pieces of wood. 8Aaron's sons, the priests, will place the head, the fat, and individual pieces of the sacrifice on the altar as the wood burns. 9Wash the animal's organs and legs with water so that unclean elements are not included in the offering. The priest will offer up the whole burnt offering on the altar, and the smoke of the offering will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me.

10If you give a burnt offering from the flock, either of sheep or goats, you are only to offer an unblemished male. No diseased, weak, or injured animals are allowed. 11Slaughter it on the north side of the altar before Me. Aaron's sons, the priests, will splatter the blood all around the altar. 12Cut the sacrifice up into pieces. The priests will take the head, fat, and rest of the pieces and place them all on the altar as the fire burns. 13Wash the animal's organs and legs with water. The priest will offer up the whole burnt offering on the altar, and the smoke of the sacrifice will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me.

14But if you have no flock or herd of your own, then you may offer Me birds; your offering is to be turtledoves or young pigeons. 15The priest will take it to the altar, pull off its head, and offer up the sacrifice as smoke on the altar. Its blood will be drained onto the side of the altar. 16The priest will remove the crop and feathers and toss them on the eastern side of the altar in the ash pile. 17Then the priest will tear the bird open by its wings without separating them completely from its body. The priest will offer up the burnt offering as smoke on the wood-fire of the altar, and the smoke of the sacrifice will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me.

2 Eternal One: Any time one of you brings a grain offering to Me, it should be the finest flour mixed with olive oil and frankincense. 2Give it to Aaron's sons, the priests. One of the priests will take a handful of the fine flour mixed with olive oil and frankincense and offer up a memorial portion on the altar, and the smoke of the offering will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me. 3The rest of the grain offering is for Aaron and his sons. It is a most holy part of the fire-offerings dedicated to Me. No one other than the priests may eat it.

► The sacrifices and offerings not only please God but they provide for the physical and spiritual needs of the people. All the priests are from the tribe of Levi and participate in the spiritual heritage of Aaron, Moses' brother. With some of the offerings, God prescribes that the priests must share in the food brought by the people. By eating from their sacrifices, the priests participate in the lives of those who wish to approach God. Some sacrifices are described as "memorial" offerings to God. These are offerings that ask God to remember His people and keep them in His good favor.

Eternal One: 4Any time one of you brings a grain offering that was prepared in an oven, it should be bread made without yeast from the finest flour mixed with oil or a wafer made without yeast spread with oil. 5Any time one of you brings a grain offering that was prepared on a griddle, it should be made without yeast from the finest flour mixed with oil. 6Separate it into pieces, pour oil on it, and present it as a grain offering. 7Any time one of you brings a grain offering that was prepared in a pan, it should be made from the finest flour and mixed with oil. 8Whenever you bring any of these grain offerings to Me, it should be given to the priest who will then take it to the altar. 9The priest will offer up the memorial portion on the altar, and the smoke of the offering will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me. 10The rest of the grain offering is for Aaron and his sons. It is a most holy part of the fire-offerings dedicated to Me. No one other than the priests may eat it.

11Every grain offering that is presented before Me must be made without yeast because it is forbidden to offer up any yeast or honey to Me by means of the fire-offering. 12When you bring an offering of the first and finest part of the harvest to Me, you may bring yeast and honey but they must not be offered up in smoke as a pleasant aroma. 13You must salt every grain offering you bring so that the salt of your covenant with God* will not be missing. You will season all of the offerings you present with salt.

► In the ancient world, salt was a valuable substance. It was used for a variety of purposes: to preserve meats, promote healing, and seal friendships. When covenants were made, people celebrated with fine meals seasoned with salt and other spices. The permanence of salt symbolized the permanence of God's covenant with His people (Numbers 18:19). Jesus echoes this covenant practice when He instructs His followers to be salt in the world (Matthew 5:13).

Eternal One: 14If you present a grain offering from the first ripe grain of your harvest to Me, bring fresh new grain, crushed and roasted in the fire. 15Also mix it with oil and frankincense because it is presented as a grain offering. 16The priests will then offer up a memorial portion of the grain mixed with oil and all of the frankincense as a fire-offering to Me.

3 Eternal One: Any time one of you presents a sacrifice from the herd as a peace offering, you must offer only an unblemished cow or bull before Me.

* 2:13 Numbers 18:19

► In Leviticus there are many kinds of sacrifices. Some celebrate God's covenant with His people. Some atone for sin. The peace offering is a meal in which the worshiper, his family, and the priests all participate. Some parts of the animal become part of the fire-offering. The rest is eaten by the priests and people. In a sense, God, the priests, and the worshipers all share a common meal.

Eternal One: 2You will put your hand on the animal's head and slaughter it at the entrance of the congregation tent. Aaron's sons, the priests, will splatter its blood against the sides of the altar. 3From the sacrifice of the peace offerings, you must bring to Me as a fire-offering the fat covering and surrounding the animal's organs, 4the two kidneys and also the fat on them from the loins, and the lobe of the liver (which will be removed along with the kidneys). 5Aaron's sons will offer this peace offering on top of the burnt offering on the altar, and the smoke of the sacrifice will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me.

6If the animal sacrifice for the peace offering to Me is of the flock, then you must offer an unblemished male or female. 7If you bring a lamb as your offering before Me, 8you must place your hand on the head of the offering and slaughter it at the entrance of the congregation tent. Aaron's sons will then splatter the blood of the lamb against the sides of the altar. 9From the peace offering, you must bring to Me as a fire-offering its fat, the tail (which is to be cut off near the backbone), the fat covering and surrounding the organs, 10the two kidneys and the fat on them from the loins, and the lobe of the liver (which must be removed along with the kidneys). 11The priest will then offer all these on the altar as a fire-offering to Me.

12If you bring a goat as your offering before Me, 13you must place your hand on its head and slaughter it at the entrance of the congregation tent. Aaron's sons will then splatter its blood against the sides of the altar. 14From this offering, you must bring to Me as a fire-offering the fat covering and surrounding the organs, [15]the two kidneys and the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver (which must be removed along with the kidneys). [16]The priest will then offer all these on the altar, and the smoke of the sacrifice will rise and be a pleasant aroma. All the fat belongs to Me.

[17]Do not eat any fat or blood. This directive stands throughout all generations regardless of where you live.

4 The Eternal One then spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: [2]Moses, go, talk with the Israelites, and tell them that if someone unwittingly commits a sin that violates any of the directives I have given, this is what you should do.

► Sin is serious business; it destroys one's relationship with God and can even endanger entire communities. So sin must be dealt with seriously. God provides a process whereby sin may be forgiven and guilt may be set aside. It begins with admitting you are wrong and then following the requisite sacrifices. But note: these sacrifices only atone for sins committed unwittingly. There is no sacrifice offered for sins committed deliberately.

Eternal One: [3]If the person anointed as priest commits a sin, he brings guilt on the people and they suffer the consequences. So the priest must offer the most valuable animal—an unblemished, young bull—to Me as a purification offering for sin. [4]He must bring the bull to the entrance of the congregation tent, place his hand on the bull's head, and slaughter it in My presence. [5]The anointed priest must then carry some of the bull's blood inside the congregation tent. [6]While in the tent, he is to dip his finger into the blood and sprinkle it seven times before Me in front of the veil of the sanctuary. [7]He must then approach the altar of fragrant incense and place some of the blood on its horns before Me. He must then pour the rest of the bull's blood at the base of the altar of burnt offering located near the entrance of the congregation tent. [8]The priest must remove all of the fat from the bull being offered as a purification offering for sin, the fat covering and surrounding the organs, [9]the two kidneys and the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver (which must be removed with the kidneys). [10]He should remove these portions in the same manner that they are removed from the ox sacrificed as a peace offering. The priest should then offer them on the altar of burnt offering. [11]As for the bull's skin and the rest of its meat, head, legs, intestines, and excrement—[12]basically, the rest of the bull's body—the priest must move it to a ritually clean space where ashes are dumped outside the community, and he must burn it there on the wood-fire. It must be burned in the place where the ashes are dumped.

This procedure makes sure that the priest does not benefit from his own sins. Nothing is left over from the sacrifice for him to consume and enjoy.

[13]If the entire community of Israel unintentionally commits a sin and, for a time at least, the sin goes unnoticed by the community, and they have violated any one of the directives I gave them, and they are guilty, [14]then later when the sin is realized, the community must offer a young bull as a purification offering for sin. They must bring the bull to the entrance of the congregation tent. [15]The community elders are to place their hands on the bull's head and then slaughter the bull in My presence. [16]The one anointed as high priest must then carry some of the bull's blood into the congregation tent, [17]where he is to dip his finger into the blood and sprinkle it seven times in My presence in front of the veil of the sanctuary. [18]The priest must also approach the altar, which is before Me in the congregation tent, and place some of the blood on its horns. He is to pour the rest of the blood at the base of the altar of burnt offering located at the entrance to the congregation tent. [19]The priest must remove all the bull's fat and offer it up in smoke on the altar. [20]He is to do the same thing with this bull that he did with the bull of the purification offering for sin. This is how the priest will cover the sin of the community of Israel, and the entire community will be forgiven. 21Then the priest must carry the rest of the bull's body outside the camp and burn it in the same manner that he burned the first purification-offering bull. This is the purification offering for sin when the entire community is involved.

22-23*The following are instructions for what to do* when a leader unwittingly commits a sin by violating any of My directives: When he realizes his guilt or the sin he committed is brought to his attention, then he must bring an unblemished male goat as his offering.

24He is to place his hand on the head of the goat and slaughter it in the same spot where the burnt offerings are slaughtered in My presence. The goat is to be presented as a purification offering for sin. 25The officiating priest must dip his finger into the blood of the sin offering, put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and then pour the rest of the blood at the base of the altar. 26The priest is to offer up all of its fat as smoke in the same way that the fat of the peace offering is offered up. This is how the priest will cover the leader's sin, and the leader will be forgiven.

27-28If a common person among you unwittingly commits a sin by violating any of My directives, once he realizes his guilt or the sin he committed is brought to his attention, then he should offer an unblemished female goat for his wrong. 29He must place his hand on the head of the purification offering for sin and slaughter it in the same spot where the burnt offerings are slaughtered. 30The priest will then dip his finger in some of its blood, put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and then pour the rest of the blood at the base of the altar. 31The priest is then to remove its fat in the same manner that the fat is removed from the peace offerings. The priest must offer up the fat on the altar, and the smoke of the sacrifice will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me. This is how the priest will cover the sins of common people and how they will be forgiven.

32If a person presents a lamb for the purification offering for sin, then he must bring an unblemished female. 33He is to place his hand on the lamb's head and slaughter it as a purification offering for sin in the same spot where the burnt offerings are slaughtered. 34The priest must then dip his finger into the blood of the purification offering for sin, put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and then pour the rest of the blood at the base of the altar. 35The priest is to remove all of its fat in the same manner that the fat is removed from the sacrifice of the peace offerings, and the priest will offer it up on the altar on top of the fire-offering to Me. This is how the priest will make atonement for the sin this person committed, and this is how he will be forgiven.

5 Eternal One: When anyone sins by hearing a public call to testify about a matter he has seen or knows something about, yet he does not speak up, then he is considered guilty and must be punished. 2If anyone has physical contact with some impure thing such as the carcass of a ritually unclean wild animal, domestic animal, or even an insect—even if he is unaware of the incident—he has become ritually unclean and must accept the consequences. 3If anyone has physical contact with some kind of human impurity, regardless of the form of impurity it is—even if he was unaware of it at the time—once he realizes it, he must accept the consequences. 4If anyone speaks a careless vow to do something bad or something good or any careless vow for that matter—even if he was unaware of it at the time—once he realizes what he has done, he must accept the consequences. 5Regarding any of these situations, when the guilty party realizes the offense, he must confess it. 6He must present to Me an offering for his guilt as a remedy for the sin he has committed. This purification offering for sin must be a female lamb or goat from the flock. The priest will make atonement for the guilty person's sin.

► These are some cases where a purification offering for sin is required. It is important to note that sacrifice is not some magical cure for sin or its consequences. Before you come to God through the sacrifice, you must realize the error of your ways and confess it. Confession has always been act one of restoration.

Eternal One: 7But if the guilty person is poor and cannot afford to offer a lamb, then he must bring to Me two turtledoves or two pigeons as a purification offering for sin. One of these will act as the purification offering and the other will be a burnt offering. 8The guilty person must take them to the priest, and the priest will offer the purification offering for sin first. He will wring the bird's neck but not separate its head from its body. 9He will sprinkle some of its blood on the side of the altar and drain the remaining blood out at the base of the altar. This will be the ritual for the purification offering for sin. 10Then the priest will conduct the ritual for the second sacrifice, the burnt offering, in accordance with the regulations. The priest is to make atonement to cover the sin of the guilty, and the guilty will be forgiven.

11If a person cannot afford to offer two turtledoves or two young pigeons, he must offer four pints of his finest flour as the purification offering for sin. He should not mix it with oil or frankincense because it is an offering for the purification of sin. 12He will give it to the priest, and the priest will take a handful of the flour as a memorial portion and offer it up as smoke along with the other fire-offerings presented to Me. The flour is a purification offering for sin. 13This is how the priest will make atonement to cover the sin of anyone guilty of these things, and the guilty will be forgiven. The leftover flour belongs to the priest as in the grain offering.

14The Eternal One then told Moses about the guilt offering.

Eternal One: 15If anyone violates his covenant duties and unwittingly commits a sin against any of My sacred objects, then that person must bring Me an unblemished ram from the flock or its value in silver (according to the sanctuary standards) for a guilt offering.

A guilt offering provides a remedy for offenses when there is some type of financial restitution with 20 percent interest.

16The guilty person must offer restitution for the wrong he has committed against the sacred thing, add ⅕ of its value, and then give it to the priest. The priest will then make atonement for him by offering the ram to cover his guilt; and the guilty will be forgiven.

17If anyone commits a sin by violating the directives I have given you—even if he was unaware of it—once he realizes it, he bears the guilt and must still accept the consequences. 18He must bring to the priest an unblemished ram from the flock or its equivalent value as a guilt offering. The priest will then make atonement to cover the guilty person's wrong, which he unwittingly committed, and the guilty will be forgiven. 19This is a guilt offering because the person was guilty in My eyes.

6 Then the Eternal One told Moses:

Eternal One: 2*The following are instructions regarding liars and cheaters:* Anytime someone commits a sin and violates his covenant duties to Me by deceiving his neighbor in financial or security matters, by stealing or by extortion, 3or if a person finds something that is lost and lies about it and makes a false claim, or in anything that someone does, 4and if he has sinned and comes to realize it, he will give back what he has stolen or extorted, or the deposit entrusted to him, or the lost object he found, 5or any other object he lied about. He will repay it entirely plus ⅕ of its value. He must give it to its rightful owner the very day he gives his guilt offering. 6He is to bring to the priest an unblemished ram or its equivalent value as his guilt offering to Me. 7The priest will make atonement and cover the guilty person's wrong before Me, and the guilty will be forgiven for anything that he did wrong.

8The Eternal One spoke again to Moses.

Eternal One: 9Give Aaron and his sons these instructions regarding the ritual of the burnt offering: The burnt offering must stay on the wood-fire all night until morning arrives. The fire on the altar is to be tended and kept burning during the night. 10The priest must dress in his ritual linen clothes and undergarments, and he must take the ashes from the burnt offering on top of the altar and place them next to the altar. 11Then the priest must remove his ritual clothes and dress in other clothes to transport the ashes to a ritually clean space outside the camp. 12The fire on the altar must burn continually; it must not be allowed to go out. The priests are to feed wood to the fire every morning, arrange the burnt offering on the fire, and offer up the fat portions of the peace offerings. 13The fire on the altar must burn continually; it must not be allowed to go out.

14Here are the instructions for the ritual of the grain offering: Aaron's sons must offer it to Me in front of the altar. 15A priest is to take a handful of the finest flour from the grain offering, together with the oil and frankincense that are part of the grain offering, and offer it as a memorial portion on the altar. The smoke of the sacrifice will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me. 16Aaron and his sons get to eat whatever is left over. They must eat it without yeast in the holy place or in the courtyard around the sanctuary. 17It must not be baked with yeast. I am assigning this as their portion of the fire-offerings. Their portion is most sacred in the same way that the purification offering and guilt offering are sacred. 18All of Aaron's male descendants are allowed to eat of it. It will be their portion of the fire-offerings presented to Me. This directive stands throughout all generations. Anything that touches them will become holy.

► Holiness is contagious. We're accustomed to thinking about it in the negative. "A bad apple spoils the barrel," our Western wisdom instructs us. But the Scriptures are clear that holiness, too, spreads from contact. Essentially, holiness refers to whatever is set apart for God's purpose and use. The act of setting apart creates a reality that can transform anything it touches. Holy bread consumed in the holy place by holy priests created a holiness that could spread throughout the community.

Eternal One: 20Here are instructions for the ritual sacrifice which Aaron and his sons are to offer Me on the day Aaron is anointed high priest: bring four pints of the finest flour as a grain offering. Offer half of it in the morning and the other half in the evening. 21Prepare it with oil and bake it on a griddle. After it has been mixed with the oil and thoroughly cooked,* offer it as a pleasant aroma to Me. 22This directive stands for all time. The priest from Aaron's line who is selected to be his successor must bring this same offering when he is anointed, and all of it must be burned. 23The grain offering from the priest is not to be eaten; all of it must be consumed on the altar.

Eternal One: 25*Go,* talk with Aaron and his sons, and give them these commands for the ritual of the purification offering for sin: The purification offering is to be slaughtered in My presence in the same place where the burnt offering is slaughtered; it is most sacred. 26The priest who presents the purification offering is to eat his portion of it in a sacred place inside the courtyard around the sanctuary. 27Anything that comes in contact with the flesh of the sacrifice will be made holy. When the blood of the sacrifice gets on any clothing, you must wash the bloodstain out in a sacred place. 28If a clay pot is used to boil the sacrifice, it must be shattered and discarded. If it was boiled in a bronze bowl, however, then it must be scrubbed and rinsed with water. 29Every man who is a priest may eat it; it is most sacred. 30But none of the offerings from which blood is brought inside the congregation tent as a covering for sin may be eaten. All of it must be consumed on the altar.

7 Eternal One *(to Moses): Here are the instructions for the ritual of the guilt offering; it is most sacred. 2The slaughter of the guilt offering must take place where the burnt offering is slaughtered, and the priest must splatter its blood against the sides of the altar. 3Then the priest is to offer all of its fat, the fat tail, the fat covering and surrounding the organs, 4the two kidneys and the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver (which he is to remove along with the kidneys). 5The priest must offer it all up on the altar as a fire-offering to Me. It is a guilt offering. 6Every man who is a priest may eat of it, as long as he eats in a holy place; it is most sacred.

7The guilt offering is similar to the purification offering for sin. The instructions are the same for both rituals. The priest who makes the atoning sacrifice is allowed to have some of it. 8Also, the priest who presents anyone's burnt offering gets to keep the skin from what he has offered for himself. 9In the same way, any grain offering that is oven-baked or cooked in a pan or griddle belongs to the priest who offered it. 10Any other grain offering—whether it is dry or mixed with oil—is to be shared equally among Aaron's sons after the ritual is completed.

► There are three kinds of peace offerings described: (a) thanksgiving, expressing gratitude for God's favor; (b) votive, fulfilling a promise made to God; (c) freewill, made out of appreciation but not obligation.

Eternal One (to Moses): 11Here are the instructions for the various kinds of the peace offerings that one may offer to Me. 12If someone offers a sacrifice out of thanksgiving, then in addition to the sacrifice he must offer loaves of unleavened bread mixed with oil, unleavened wafers topped with oil, and loaves of the finest flour mixed with oil. 13Along with the peace offerings for thanksgiving, a person must include loaves of leavened bread. 14He must present one of each kind of bread as a gift to Me; it will belong to the priest who officiates the sacrifice and splatters the blood of the peace offerings against the sides of the altar.

15The meat of the sacrifice for the thanksgiving peace offering must be eaten on the day it is offered. None of it is to be left over for the next day. 16If the sacrifice for a peace offering accompanies a vow or comes simply as an act of free will, it is to be eaten on the day it is offered; but if any remains on the next day, it may still be eaten. 17But all the meat from the sacrifice left over on the third day is to be burned completely so that none is left. 18If any of the leftover meat from the peace offering is eaten on the third day, then the person who offered it will not be accepted and will receive no benefit from the sacrifice. By then it has become foul, and the person who eats from it will bear his guilt and suffer the consequences.

19Do not eat meat that comes in contact with any impure thing. Burn it up completely. As for any remaining meat that is pure, people who are ritually clean may eat it. 20Any person who eats meat from the sacrifice of My peace offering during a time when he is impure must be cut off from his people. 21Also a person who comes into contact with something impure—whether it pertains to human or animal impurity or some totally detestable creatures—and then eats some of the meat from the sacrifice of My peace offerings must be cut off from his people.

► As hard as it may be for us to understand, being "cut off from your people" is another way of saying "death penalty." God is tough on disobedience because sin and impurity is a contagion that can ruin and ultimately destroy His people. To deal with these matters decisively requires decisive action. Like a deadly disease, sin has to be quarantined.

Eternal One: 23*Go,* talk with the Israelites, and tell them not to eat any fat from an ox, sheep, or goat. 24If an animal dies a natural death or is killed by another animal, then you are allowed to make use of its fat, but under no condition are you allowed to eat any of it. 25Whoever eats animal fat from a fire-offering to Me must be cut off from his people. 26Be sure not to consume any animal or bird blood regardless of where you live. 27Anyone who consumes animal or bird blood must be cut off from his people.

28The Eternal One continued speaking to Moses.

Eternal One: 29*Go,* talk with the Israelites, and tell them that anyone who offers a peace offering to Me must bring it from the sacrifice of his peace offerings. 30He is to present the fire-offerings to Me with his own hands. Bring the fat along with the breast so that the breast can be lifted up as a wave offering to Me. 31The officiating priest is to offer the fat as smoke on the altar, but the breast will belong to Aaron and his sons. 32The right thigh from the sacrifice of your peace offerings is to go to the priest as your contribution to his service. 33The right thigh will be the portion set aside for the son of Aaron who officiates at the sacrifice and presents the fat and blood of the peace offerings. 34For I, the Eternal One, have taken the breast from the wave offering and the thigh as a gift from the sacrifices brought by the people of Israel as peace offerings, and I have handed them over to Aaron the priest and his sons. This is for all time their rightful portion of the offering from the people of Israel. 35From the first day they are brought forward as priests in My service, this is the portion set aside for Aaron and his sons taken from the fire-offerings presented to Me. 36From the day when I anointed and consecrated them as priests, I directed this gift be made to them by the people of Israel. This is their rightful portion for all time and throughout all generations.

The wave offering is a particularly solemn moment in the ceremony when the priest lifts and waves the sacrifice before God. Afterward, the portions waved became property of the priests.

37These are the instructions for the burnt offering, grain offering, purification offering for sin, guilt offering, ordination offering, and peace offering. 38The Eternal gave these instructions to Moses on Mount Sinai the same day He told the Israelites to bring their offerings to Him in the desert.

8 The Eternal One addressed Moses.

Eternal One: 2*Moses,* take Aaron and his sons together with their sacred garments, the specially prepared anointing oil, the bull set aside for the purification offering for sin, the two rams, and the basket of unleavened bread. 3Then gather the entire community at the entrance of the congregation tent.

4So Moses followed the Eternal's instructions. When the community of Israel was gathered together at the entrance of the congregation tent, 5Moses addressed the assembly: "The Eternal One has commanded that we gather and ordain Aaron and his sons as priests."

6So Moses had Aaron and his sons approach, and he washed them with water and purified them. 7Moses put a tunic on Aaron, fastened the sash around his waist, and put the robe and vest on him. He wrapped the skillfully made waistband of the vest around him and tied it to him. 8Then Moses placed the breast piece on him and put the Urim and the Thummim inside a specially designed pouch on the breast piece.

► There is much we do not know about the Urim and the Thummim. We do know the high priest used them to ascertain God's will on difficult questions (see Numbers 27:21; 1 Samuel 14:41-42).

9Moses then put the turban on Aaron's head and fastened a golden medallion, a holy crown, to the front of it. Moses did all this exactly as the Eternal commanded.

10Then Moses anointed and consecrated the sanctuary of the congregation tent along with everything in it with the anointing oil. 11He sprinkled some of the oil on the altar seven times; he anointed and consecrated the altar, its tools, and the basin and its stand with the oil. 12Moses poured some of the oil on Aaron's head and anointed him to set him apart as head of the priestly order. 13Then Moses had Aaron's sons step forward and dressed them with the special tunics, fastened sashes about their waists, and placed caps on their heads. He did exactly as the Eternal commanded.

► This consecration is of Aaron and his sons along with the enclosed part of the congregation tent, the sanctuary, and their objects. They are all set apart for God's special purpose.

14Moses brought the bull for the purification offering for sin and had Aaron and his sons place their hands on the bull's head.

15After the bull was slaughtered, Moses dipped his finger in its blood and rubbed it on the altar horns, purifying the altar.
Moses then poured the remaining blood at the base of the altar. This is how Moses consecrated the altar and covered over any impurity it possessed. 16Moses also removed the fat from around the organs, the lobe of the liver, the two kidneys and the fat around them, and offered it all up as smoke on the altar. 17As for the rest of the bull—its skin, its meat, and its excrement—he took and burned it outside the camp. Moses did exactly as the Eternal commanded.

18Moses then brought out the ram for the burnt offering and had Aaron and his sons place their hands on its head.
19After Moses slaughtered it, he splattered its blood against the sides of the altar.
20Moses cut it up into pieces, and then he took the head, the cut portions, and the fat and offered them up on the altar as smoke. 21After rinsing off the organs and legs with water—in order to remove any impurities—he took everything that was left of the ram and offered it up on the altar. The smoke of the burnt offering rose and became a pleasant aroma, a fire-offering to the Eternal One. Moses did all this exactly as the Eternal commanded.

22Then Moses prepared the second ram, the ordination ram. He had Aaron and his sons place their hands on its head.
23After Moses slaughtered it, he put some of the ram's blood on Aaron's right ear lobe, on his right thumb, and on his right big toe. 24Then Moses sent for Aaron's sons and put some of the ram's blood on their right ear lobes, on their right thumbs, and on their right big toes. Moses then splattered the remaining blood against the sides of the altar.

25He then removed the fat, the fat tail, the fat around the organs, the lobe of the liver, and two kidneys and the fat from them, as well as the right thigh of the ram. 26Then Moses reached into the basket of unleavened bread dedicated to the Eternal One and took out one loaf of unleavened bread, one loaf made with oil, and one wafer. He put them on the fat and on the right thigh. 27Then he placed it all in the hands of Aaron and his sons, who raised them to the Eternal One as a wave offering. 28Moses then took it all back from Aaron and his sons and offered it on the altar along with the burnt offering. The smoke of the ordination offering rose and became a pleasant aroma, a fire-offering to the Eternal. 29Moses also lifted up the breast of the ram as a wave offering to the Eternal. The breast served as Moses' portion of the ordination offering as the Eternal had commanded.

30Moses took some of the anointing oil and some of the blood from the altar and sprinkled it on Aaron and his garments. He did the same on Aaron's sons and their garments. This is how he consecrated Aaron and his priestly garments, as well as his sons and their garments.

Moses (to Aaron and his sons): 31Boil the meat at the entrance to the congregation tent, and feast on it together with bread from the basket of the ordination offering, in accordance with the instructions
I gave: "Aaron and his sons may eat it."
32Burn the rest of the meat and bread in the fire. 33You are not allowed to go beyond the entrance of the congregation tent for seven days when your ordination period is complete; for it will take seven days to ordain you. 34Everything we have done today the Eternal commanded us to do in order to cover your impurity.
35Stay here at the entrance of the congregation tent all day and all night for the seven days. Do whatever the Eternal requires, or else you will die, for this is the command He has given me.

36So Aaron and his sons honored the Eternal One's instructions, which He commanded through Moses.

9 When the eighth day arrived, Moses called for Aaron, Aaron's sons, and the elders of the Israelite community.

This ceremony inaugurated the daily sacrifices in the congregation tent.

Moses (to Aaron): 2Take a young unblemished calf for a purification offering and an unblemished ram for a burnt offering and offer them to the Eternal One. 3Then go instruct the Israelites, "Take a male goat for a purification offering and an unblemished calf and lamb, both a year old, for a burnt offering. 4Take also an ox and a ram for a peace offering and a grain offering mixed with oil, and offer them to the Eternal One for He will reveal Himself to you today.

5So the people gathered the sacrifices as Moses had commanded and brought them to the front of congregation tent. The entire community gathered around and stood in the presence of the Eternal One.

Moses: [6]The Eternal One has told us to conduct this ceremony so that His glory will be revealed to you.

[7](to Aaron) Approach the altar, and present your purification offering and burnt offering. Do this first to cover the impurity of your own life so that you will be fit to cover the impurity of all the people. Then present the offering of the people so that the impurity of their lives may be covered. Do exactly as the Eternal has commanded.

[8]Aaron approached the altar and slaughtered the calf as the purification offering for himself. [9]Aaron's sons held the blood out to him, and Aaron dipped his finger in the blood and spread it on the four horns of the altar. Then he poured the remaining blood around the base of the altar. [10]After this he removed the fat, the kidneys, and the lobe of the liver of the purification offering and offered them as smoke on the altar, exactly as the Eternal had commanded Moses. [11]He took what remained of the meat and skin and burned it up in a fire outside the camp.

[12]Then Aaron slaughtered the burnt offering and his sons brought him the blood, and he splattered it against the sides of the altar. [13]Then Aaron's sons gave him all the pieces of the burnt offering, including the head, and he offered them up as smoke on the altar. [14]He washed the organs and the legs with water so nothing unacceptable would be added and offered them with the burnt offering as smoke on the altar.

[15]Now with his own sins covered, Aaron was able to offer the sacrifices for the masses. So he took the goat for the purification offering, slaughtered it, and offered it as reparation for the people's sin. He did this in the same way he presented the first offering. [16]He brought the burnt offering as well and offered it in accordance with the ordinances God handed on to Moses. [17]Then he presented the grain offering, took some of it in his hand, and offered it up as smoke on the altar in addition to the morning's burnt offering.

[18]Then he slaughtered the ox and the ram as the peace offerings for the masses. Aaron's sons gave him the blood, and he splattered it against the sides of the altar. [19]The fat of the ox and ram—the fat tail, the fat covering the intestines, the kidneys, and the lobe of the liver—[20]they put on top of the breasts and offered them as smoke on the altar. [21]Aaron lifted the breasts and the right thigh as a wave offering before the Eternal as Moses commanded.

[22]Then Aaron raised his hands in the direction of the people and blessed them.* After he had completed the sacrifices for the purification offering, burnt offering, and peace offerings, he descended from the altar. [23]Moses and Aaron entered the congregation tent. When they returned, they blessed the people, and the Eternal One's glory appeared to all the people. [24]Then flames erupted from the presence of the Eternal One and devoured the burnt offering and all the fat on the altar. At the sight of this, everyone cried out and fell on their faces.

► The glory of God is a hard notion for us. The word often translated "glory" means essentially heaviness or weight. The Eternal One uniquely is the most substantial and most significant being in the cosmos. Only God is eternal. Only God has true substance. Creation runs out, wears out, and peters out eventually. In the Scriptures the term "glory" is used often for those unique times and places when God manifests Himself in some visible way. It is His epiphany, or manifestation, one might say. To see God's glory is a fearsome thing. That's why people fall on their faces and call out for mercy. Not many people have seen God's glory, but those who do never forget it.

10 Nadab and Abihu, two of Aaron's sons, took censers and filled them with embers; then they put incense on top of the fire and presented it to the Eternal One. This was a strange and unauthorized fire that the Eternal did not command them. [2]Flames erupted from before the Eternal and burned up Nadab and Abihu. They both died in the presence of the Eternal One.

* 9:22 See Numbers 6:24-26.

Moses (to Aaron): 3This is what the Eternal One was talking about when He said,

By those authorized to come near,
I will be treated as sacred.
In the eyes of all the people,
I will be honored.

Aaron remained silent.
4Moses summoned Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Aaron's uncle Uzziel.

Moses: Make your way forward. Gather the dead bodies of your relatives from the front of the sanctuary, and carry them outside the camp.

5So Mishael and Elzaphan did as Moses instructed; they came forward, picked them up—while they were still wearing their priestly tunics—and carried them outside the camp. 6Moses spoke to Aaron and his sons, Eleazar and Ithamar.

Moses: Do not let your hair go unkempt or rip your garments in customary acts of mourning, or else you will die. Follow this instruction so that the Eternal One does not grow angry toward the entire community. Everyone else—our relatives, the entire community of Israel—can lament the great fire the Eternal One has produced that killed your sons. 7Do not go beyond the entrance of the congregation tent. If you do, you will meet a quick death, for the Eternal's anointing oil covers you.

Aaron and his sons followed Moses' instructions.
8The Eternal One addressed Aaron.

Eternal One: 9You and your sons must not drink wine or any alcoholic drink before entering the congregation tent, lest you die. This directive stands for all time throughout your generations. 10You must know the difference between the sacred and the profane, the ritually pure and the impure, 11and teach the people of Israel the directives, which I have revealed to them through Moses.

God demanded that the priests stay entirely sober while performing their ritual duties to ensure good judgment and orderly worship.

Moses (to Aaron and his surviving sons, Eleazar and Ithamar): 12You may take whatever grain is left from the fire-offerings devoted to the Eternal and eat it unleavened next to the altar; this is most sacred. 13You are to eat it in a sacred space; it is your and your sons' portion of the Eternal One's fire-offerings, according to the commands I have given. 14You, your sons, and your daughters may eat the breast of the wave offering and the thigh presented to God in some ritually pure place. The breast and thigh are your portion and your children's portion from the sacrifices of the peace offerings brought by the people of Israel. 15Have them bring the thigh that is contributed and the breast that is waved, along with the fire-offerings of fat, to present as a wave offering before the Eternal One. This will be your and your children's portion for all time; it is your due as the Eternal has commanded.

16Moses began asking for the goat for the purification offering, but he discovered that it had already been burned up. He was furious with Eleazar and Ithamar (Aaron's surviving sons).

Moses (to Aaron's sons): 17Why did you disobey my instructions and not eat the purification offering in the area of the sanctuary? It is most sacred. God has given it to you so that you can take on the guilt of the community and cover their wrongs before the Eternal. 18Look, its blood was never taken inside the sanctuary; therefore the rightful place for you to eat it was in the sanctuary as I commanded.

Aaron (to Moses): 19Look, my sons offered their purification offering and their burnt offering to the Eternal One today. But think of all that has happened to me. Given the tragedy I have seen, would the Eternal have approved if I had eaten a purification offering today?

20After Moses listened to what Aaron had to say, he was satisfied.

11 The Eternal One addressed Moses and Aaron again.

► Now that Aaron and his sons have been set aside as priests, it is time to instruct them on one of their major duties, that is, helping God's covenant people understand the difference between purity and impurity. Impurity is a constant challenge and threat to holiness, and God has called His people to be holy. But many actions and circumstances in life put holiness in jeopardy. God knows that His people need help figuring these things out. That's one of the reasons He sets aside Aaron's family as priests and gives them these instructions.

It is important to note that purity and impurity, as understood here, are much more than what is sanitary or unsanitary. The ritual purity instructions encompass nearly every aspect of social and religious life in Israel.

Eternal One: 2Go talk to the Israelites and explain to them which animals of the earth you may and may not eat. 3You are allowed to eat any animals with split hooves divided into two parts or that chew the cud. 4But from those animals with split hooves or that chew the cud, you are not allowed to eat camels. Because they only chew the cud and do not have split hooves, camels are impure to you. 5In the same way, the rock badger chews the cud but does not have split hooves. Therefore, rock badgers are impure to you. 6Also the hare chews the cud, but it does not have split hooves. Therefore, they are impure to you. 7The pig has split hooves divided into two parts, but it does not chew the cud. Therefore pigs are impure to you. 8Do not eat their meat or touch their dead bodies, for they are impure to you.

9You are certainly allowed to eat these creatures of the water: any fish with fins and scales that swim in the seas or rivers. 10But any finless or scaleless fish that comes from the abundance of water-life in the seas or rivers, and any other creatures living in the water, are detestable to you. 11*Recognize and* treat them for what they are: detestable. You are not allowed to eat their meat, and their dead bodies are repulsive to you. 12Any finless or scaleless fish or animal or insect in the seas or rivers is detestable to you.

► Have you noticed how often faith and food come together? One of the most authentic expressions of our spiritual lives has to do with the table where we gather with family and friends to bless God for the goodness the earth provides. These regulations recorded here helped Israel to maintain its status as God's chosen and holy people. Kosher laws, as they are called, are unique to Israel's covenant with the Eternal One. They aren't God's laws for everyone; they serve as a cultural boundary-marker indicating what kinds of meat should be eaten.

Eternal One: 24Also you will become impure until dusk if you touch the carcass of any creature. 25A person who picks up any part of its carcass must wash his clothes and remain impure until dusk. 26All animals that do not chew cud or have split hooves that are not in two parts are impure to you. Anyone who has contact with them becomes impure. 27Also, any four-legged animals that walk on paws are impure to you. Anyone who has contact with their carcasses will be impure until dusk. 28And anyone who carries their carcass is to wash his clothes and remain impure until dusk. They are impure to you as well.

29These small creatures that scamper about the earth are impure to you:

small rodents, great lizards, [30]geckos, monitor lizards, other lizards, sand reptiles, and chameleons. [31]These small creatures of the earth are impure to you. Anyone who touches their remains will be impure until dusk. [32]If one of the carcasses touches an object you intend to use—such as a piece of wood, an article of clothing, an animal hide, or a sack—then that item is impure and should soak in water until dusk. After that, it will be pure again. [33]If one of the carcasses falls into any container made of clay, the substance within the container will become impure and you should destroy the container. [34]If any food in the container that is ready to eat is touched by water, then the food becomes impure. Any drink from a contaminated container will become impure as well. [35]If any part of a dead body touches something—say, an oven or stove—then that oven or stove must be destroyed. They are impure and will always be impure to you. [36]However if a carcass falls into a spring or a container accumulating water, the water will be ritually pure because it is continually renewed. But the person who pulls the carcass out of the water will be ritually impure. [37]If any part of the dead body has contact with a seed that is to be planted, then the seed remains ritually pure because it is dry. [38]But if the seed becomes wet and any part of a dead body touches it, then the seed is ritually impure.

[39]If a clean animal dies naturally, whoever touches the carcass will be impure until dusk. [40]And if anyone eats some of its meat, then that person is to wash his clothes and remain impure until dusk. Anyone who touches the dead body is to wash his clothes and remain impure until dusk.

[41]Any swarming creature that scurries along the ground is detestable to you and must not be eaten. Do not consume any of them! [42]Also do not eat any creature that moves on its belly, walks on four legs, or has multiple pairs of feet, for they are detestable to you. [43]Do not defile yourselves by having contact with any of the swarming creatures. Do not become impure by having contact with any of them. [44]For I am the Eternal One, your God. You are to consecrate yourselves and be holy, for I am holy.*

Do not cause yourselves to become impure by having contact with any swarming creature that crawls along the ground. [45]I am the Eternal One who led you out of the land of Egypt to be your God. Therefore, you are to be holy, for I am holy.*

[46]So this is God's instruction concerning animals, birds, creatures that live in the waters, and small creatures that move along the ground, [47]so that the people will be able to distinguish between what animals are ritually acceptable and ritually unacceptable, and what is to be eaten and what is not to be eaten.

Eternal One: [2]Go, talk with the Israelites, and tell them, "If a woman conceives and gives birth to a boy, then she will be ritually unclean for seven days, just like she is unclean when she is menstruating. [3]When the eighth day arrives, the boy will be circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin. [4]A woman who gives birth to a boy must not have contact with any holy thing or go into the sanctuary for 33 days. She must wait until her purification is complete and her bleeding from childbirth ends. [5]But if the woman gives birth to a girl she will be ritually unclean for 14 days—just like she is unclean when she is menstruating. She must wait 66 days for her purification from bleeding to be complete.

[6]After her days of purification are over—regardless of whether she had a boy or a girl—she will bring several things to the priest at the entrance of the congregation tent: a year-old lamb for a burnt offering and a young pigeon or turtledove for a purification offering. [7]Then the priest will present it to Me and cover the woman's blood impurity, and she will be ritually clean from her flowing of blood. This is My instruction for any woman who gives birth to a child, either a boy or a girl. [8]If the woman cannot afford a lamb, then she may instead present two turtledoves or two young pigeons*—one for a burnt offering and the other for a purification offering. The priest will offer them to cover her blood impurity, and she will be ritually clean.

Humans suffer from many different kinds of skin disorders. Although one of the most dreaded diseases known to antiquity was leprosy, it is most likely that few Israelites in Moses' day suffered from the disease we know as leprosy. The Hebrew word that appears in this chapter covers many disfiguring and debilitating skin diseases that certainly can be infectious. The priests are given the challenge of making critical observations as to what is indeed infectious and what is not. The term applied not only to a variety of skin diseases, but it was also used to describe articles of clothing or buildings marred from leprouslike outbreaks.

By the time of the New Testament, leprosy is present in Israel. It is caused by a bacterium that can begin as a blemish on the skin; but when it runs its course, the skin is left discolored. There are unsightly lumps and scaling, and eventually the nerves are paralyzed so that there is no feeling of pain. Without the pain sensation people eventually wear down their fingers and toes into mere nubs. It is a terrible, contagious disease that socially marginalized people from their families' loving touch and intimate relationships.

13 The Eternal One spoke to Moses and Aaron.

Eternal One: 2Any time a person has an area of swelling or a rash or a white patch of skin, it may be the sign of a serious skin disease; so he must be taken to one of the priests—Aaron or one of Aaron's sons. 3The priest must examine the spot on the skin. If the hair on it has turned white, and the affected area appears to go deep beneath the skin, then it is a serious skin disease. After the examination, he will then pronounce the diseased person unclean. 4But if the patch on the skin is white and does not appear to go deep beneath the skin, and the hair on it has not turned white, then the priest will quarantine the person for seven days. 5When the seventh day arrives, the priest will examine the affected area again; and if the priest thinks it has not grown worse and has not spread to other parts of the skin, then the priest will continue the quarantine for another seven days. 6At the end of the second seven days, the priest will examine the person again; and if the affected area has faded and has not spread to any other part of the body, then the priest will pronounce that he is clean and suffers only some minor skin problem. The person is to wash his garments and must be considered clean again.

Only if the individual is declared clean by the priest can he or she come back fully into the life of the community.

7But if the rash spreads to other parts of the skin after the priest examines the person and pronounces him clean, then he must go back to the priest to be examined again. 8The priest will check the person again; and if the rash has grown worse and spread, then the priest must pronounce the person unclean. He does, in fact, have a serious skin disease.

9When a person contracts any serious skin disease, he must be taken to the priest. 10The priest will check the skin; and if the priest finds an area of white swelling on the skin where the hair has turned white, and if there is a raw, open sore, 11then the person has a chronic skin disease and the priest must pronounce him unclean. The priest does not have to quarantine the person because it is evident that he is already unclean. 12If the disease gets worse, spreads across his body, and involves all of his skin from head to toe—as far as the priest can tell—13then the priest will check; and if the disease has covered the person's entire body, then the priest will pronounce the infected man clean because the disease has turned his entire body white. 14But if a raw, open sore shows up, then he must be declared unclean. 15The priest will examine the raw skin and pronounce the man unclean because the raw skin is unclean. It is definitely a serious skin disease. 16If the raw skin changes again and becomes white, then the infected person must go see the priest 17to be examined. If the affected area has turned white, then the priest will pronounce the diseased person clean;

for he is in fact clean.
18If a boil shows up on someone's skin, and the boil goes away 19and is replaced by a swollen white or a reddish-white spot, then he must point this out to the priest. 20The priest will check; and if the affected area appears to go deep beneath the skin and the hairs on it have turned white, then the priest will pronounce the person unclean. It is a case of serious skin disease that started out as a boil. 21But if the priest examines the person and finds there are no white hairs on it and the condition does not appear to go deep beneath the skin, and is, in fact, improving, then the priest will quarantine the infected person for seven days.
22If the condition spreads to new places on the skin, the priest will pronounce him unclean; it is a serious infection.
23However, if the affected area does not get worse or spread to new parts of the skin, it is simply a scar from the boil, and the priest will pronounce him clean.
24If a person suffers a burn in a fire, and the raw skin from the burn turns shiny white, reddish-white, or white, 25the priest will examine the affected area. If the hair on it is white and the sore appears to go deep beneath the skin, then the person has a serious skin disease that started out from the burn;
the priest will declare him unclean. 26If
the priest examines the affected area and finds no white hair on it, and the condition does not go deep beneath the skin but instead seems to be improving, then the priest will quarantine him for seven days. 27When the seventh day arrives, the priest will examine him once again. If the condition appears to be spreading, the priest will declare him unclean; the person has a serious skin disease. 28If the affected area does not get worse and spread to new parts of the skin, but seems to be improving, then it is simply swollen from the burn.
The priest will pronounce him clean because it is simply a scar from the burn.
29If a man or a woman has a spot on the head or chin, 30the priest must examine it, and if it appears to go deep beneath the skin and has thin, yellowish hairs in it, then the priest must pronounce the infected person to be unclean; it is a scaly skin disease on the head or chin. 31If the priest examines the scaly area and it does not appear to go deep beneath the surface of the skin and there are no dark hairs in it, then the priest will quarantine the infected person for seven days. 32When the seventh day arrives, the priest will examine the area again. If the scaly area has not gotten worse and there are no yellowish hairs in it, and the scale does not appear to go deep beneath the surface of the skin, 33then the infected person should shave the head or beard except where hair is growing in the affected area. The priest will then quarantine the infected person for another seven days. 34When the seventh days arrives, the priest will examine the scale again; and if it has not gotten worse and does not appear to go deep beneath the skin, the priest will pronounce the person clean. He will wash his clothes and be considered clean again. 35But if the scale gets worse and shows up on new parts of the skin anytime after the priest declares him clean, 36the priest must examine the person again. If the condition has spread to new parts of the skin, the priest is not required to look for yellowish hair because it is evident the person is unclean. 37However, if he inspects the person and the scaly skin has not gotten worse and dark hairs are growing on it, then the condition is healed and the person is once again clean. The priest will declare the person clean.
38If a man or a woman discovers bright shiny spots on the skin, including bright white ones, 39the priest must check them out. And if he determines that the bright spots on the skin are pale, this is only a minor skin rash; the person is clean.
40If a man loses his hair and goes bald, he is clean. 41If he loses it on his forehead but not on the sides, he is only partially bald on the forehead; he is still clean. 42However, if a reddish-white spot shows up on his bald head or forehead, then a serious skin infection is developing. 43The priest must examine him; and if the affected area is reddish-white on his bald head or forehead and looks similar to a reddish-white outbreak on the body, 44then that means the man has a serious skin disease and is unclean. The priest has to pronounce him unclean because of the skin disease on his head.
45Anyone with a serious skin disease must wear torn clothing, not comb his hair, and cover his face beneath the nose. He must call out, "Unclean! Unclean!" 46As long as the disease persists, he will be unclean. He must live alone, outside the camp, away from the rest of the community.

47-48Now if it ever looks as if an article of clothing has some outbreak like leprosy—whether it is made of wool, linen, or leather—49and if the affected area in any leather or woven material has turned a greenish or reddish color, it is a sign of a serious problem and should be taken to the priest. 50The priest must examine the article and quarantine it for seven days. 51When the seventh day arrives, the priest must check it again; and if the affected area has spread to other parts of the article—whether in the wool, linen, or leather, regardless of what the leather was used for—the article has a serious outbreak which makes it unclean. 52So the priest has to burn the garment—whether it is made of wool, linen or leather—because it has some serious outbreak like leprosy and must be destroyed by fire.

53But if the priest examines the article, and the affected area has not spread in either the woven or knitted material, or the leather, 54the priest must direct the article be washed, and then quarantined for another seven days. 55After it has been washed, the priest must check it again; and if the affected area looks the same, then the article is still unclean even though the outbreak has not spread. Therefore, you must burn it in the fire; it doesn't matter whether the affected area is on the front or the back.

56But if the priest examines it, and the affected area has faded after it has been washed, the priest must rip the affected material out of the garment, leather, or woven or knitted material. 57If another spot shows up in the article again—either in the woven or knitted material, or the leather—then the outbreak is spreading, and the article must be burned in the fire. 58But if the spot is gone once the article has been washed—whether it is woven or knitted or leather—you must wash it; then it will be considered clean.

59So this is God's instruction for how to deal with linen, woolen, or leather garments that have suspicious-looking spots on them. With these instructions, priests are able to determine whether they are clean or unclean.

14 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 2-3These are the instructions for determining when an infected person has recovered from a skin disease and should be pronounced clean. The priest must go outside the camp and examine the infected person. If the priest determines the skin disease has been healed, 4then he will prescribe that two healthy birds—both ritually pure—some cedar wood, scarlet string, and hyssop be brought for the cleansing ritual. 5The priest will direct that one of the birds be killed in a clay jar over running water. 6He will then take the living bird along with the cedar, the scarlet string, and the hyssop and dip them in the blood of the first bird killed over running water. 7Then the priest will sprinkle the one who is being cleansed from his skin disease seven times with the blood, pronounce that he is once again clean, and set the living bird free in a wide, open field. 8The person who is presented for cleansing will wash his clothes, shave all the hair from his body, and wash himself with water; then he will be clean. After all this is done, he is permitted to enter the community but he must remain outside of his tent for seven days. 9When the seventh day arrives, he must shave all the hair from his body again—his head, beard, and eyebrows—and he has to wash his clothes again and bathe in water. This is how he is to be made clean.

10On the eighth day, the person must bring two unblemished male lambs, an unblemished year-old ewe lamb, six quarts of the finest flour mixed with oil to act as a grain offering, and ⅔ pint of oil. 11The priest who pronounces the person clean will bring the man and his offering into My presence at the entrance of the congregation tent. 12The priest is then to take one male lamb as the guilt offering, along with the ⅔ pint of oil, and lift them up as a wave offering in My presence. 13Then he must slaughter the lamb in the same area of the sanctuary where they kill the purification offering for sin and the burnt offering. The guilt offering, like the purification offering, belongs to the priest. They are most sacred. 14The priest will then collect some of the blood of the guilt offering and place it on the right ear lobe, the right thumb, and the right big toe of the person who is being cleansed. 15The priest will take some of the ⅔ pint of oil and pour it into the palm of his own left hand, 16and then he will dip his right finger into the oil in his left hand and sprinkle drops of it with his finger seven times before Me. 17He will then take some of the oil from his left hand and place it on the right ear lobe, the right thumb, and the right big toe of the person being cleansed and on top of the blood of the guilt offering. 18The priest should take any remaining oil from his left hand and put it on the head of the person being cleansed. Then the priest must perform the atoning sacrifice before Me to cover the person's sins. 19The priest is to offer the purification offering to cover the sin of the one being cleansed. After this, the priest must present the sacrifice for the burnt offering 20along with the grain offering on the altar. This is how the priest will cover the sin, guilt, and uncleanness of the person seeking to be cleansed; this person must be considered clean once again.

Taken together, these rituals and sacrifices allow the formerly unclean person to reenter the life of the community.

21If the person who comes for cleansing is poor and cannot afford the prescribed offerings, then he may be covered by bringing one male lamb as a guilt offering to be lifted up as a wave offering. He should also present four pints of the finest flour mixed with oil for a grain offering, along with ⅔ pint of oil. 22He should also bring two turtledoves or two young pigeons, whichever he can afford. One of the birds will be for the purification offering and the other one will be for the burnt offering. 23When the eighth day arrives (which is the day after he shaves the second time), the person must present them for his cleansing to the priest at the entrance of the congregation tent in My presence. 24The priest will receive the lamb for the guilt offering and the ⅔ pint of oil, and lift them as a wave offering before Me. 25Afterward, he will kill the lamb for the guilt offering, collect some of its blood, and place it on the right ear lobe, the right thumb, and the right big toe of the person being cleansed. 26The priest is to pour some of the oil into the palm of his own left hand 27and sprinkle drops of it with his right finger seven times in My presence. 28The priest will then take some of the oil from his left hand and place it on the right ear lobe, the right thumb, and the right big toe of the person being cleansed and on top of the blood from the guilt offering. 29The priest should take any remaining oil from his left hand and put it on the head of the person being cleansed to cover him before Me. 30-31He will then present one of the turtledoves or young pigeons—whichever he can afford—one for the purification offering and the other for the burnt offering that accompanies the grain offering. The priest will cover the sin, guilt, and uncleanness before Me of the person seeking to be cleansed. 32These instructions explain what to do when someone with a serious skin disease cannot afford all the items for his cleansing.

33The Eternal One spoke to Moses and Aaron.

Eternal One: 34When you go into the land of Canaan—the land which I am giving you as your own—and I contaminate or infect one of the houses in your land, 35the owner of the house must go inform the priest, "I have just noticed a spot in my house." 36The priest must then order the person to remove all the contents from the house before he comes to examine the spot. This saves the person from possibly having everything in the house declared unclean. After this is done, the priest can go inside and inspect the spot. 37If he sees that the spot has greenish or reddish depressions and appears to go deep beneath the surface of the wall, 38then the priest will exit the house through the door and quarantine the house for seven days. 39When the seventh day arrives, the priest will go back into the house and inspect it again. If the discolored spot has shown up on other places on the walls, 40the priest will direct them to remove all the stones that have any suspicious spots on them and discard them in the impure refuse pile outside the camp. 41They are also to scrape off any suspicious-looking plaster and discard it in the impure refuse pile outside the camp. 42Then they are to go out and find other stones to replace the ones they removed and then replaster the walls.

43If there is another outbreak after they have removed all the suspicious-looking stones and plaster and then replastered the walls, 44the priest must enter the house and inspect it once again. If he finds that the spots have reappeared, then the house has a chronic outbreak and is unclean. 45The owner must demolish the house and take all its stones, wood, and plaster to the impure refuse pile outside the camp. 46Whoever enters the house while the house is quarantined by the priest will become unclean until dusk. 47Also anyone who sleeps or eats inside the house must wash their clothes.

48If the priest enters the house to inspect it and the spot has not reappeared after the walls have been rebuilt and replastered, the priest will declare the house clean because the spot has not returned. 49To cleanse the house from its contamination, the priest must take two birds, some cedar wood, scarlet string, and hyssop, 50and slaughter one bird in a clay jar over running water. 51He will then dip the cedar wood, hyssop, scarlet string, and the living bird in the blood of the first bird and in running water and sprinkle the house seven times. 52This is how the priest will cleanse the house from the outbreak using the blood of the sacrificed bird, running water, the living bird, cedar wood, hyssop, and scarlet string. 53He will set the living bird free over a wide, open field outside the camp. In this way, the priest will cover over the impurity of the house, and the house will be declared clean.

54-57These are God's instructions for how to deal with suspicious-looking spots: for scaly areas, swelling, rashes, and discolored spots on the skin and for discolored spots on clothing or in a house. With these instructions, priests are able to determine whether they are clean or unclean.

15 The Eternal One spoke to Moses and Aaron.

Eternal One: 2*Go,* talk with the Israelites, and tell them that if a man has any sort of a discharge from his body, the discharge renders him impure.

► This is the general principle: a bodily discharge produces a state of ritual impurity for both men and women. As we see in this chapter, some of these discharges are abnormal and caused by active infections or diseases. When this is the case, healing is required. But some discharges are actually normal. For example, a woman's period is normal, but there are conditions that cause her to bleed at odd times or too much. Again, in such cases, healing is required.

Eternal One: 3A man's discharge makes him impure regardless of whether his body allows it to flow out of him or blocks its flow altogether. 4If the person with the discharge lies down in a bed or sits down on a couch, it becomes impure. 5-6Any person who has contact with that bed or that couch must wash his clothes and bathe in water. He will remain impure until dusk. 7Any person who touches the discharging man must wash his or her clothes and bathe in water. He will remain impure until dusk. 8If the discharging man spits on a person who is ritually clean, then that person must wash his garments and bathe in water. He will remain impure until dusk. 9If the discharging man rides on a saddle, the riding saddle will be impure as well. 10Therefore, if anyone touches any of the items that were under the discharging man, then that person will be impure until dusk. Whoever picks up and carries any of these items must wash his clothes and bathe in water. He will remain impure until dusk. 11If the discharging man does not wash his hands and touches another person, then that person must wash his clothes and bathe in water. He will remain impure until dusk. 12If the discharging man touches a clay cup, then it must be shattered; but a wooden cup shall be washed with water.

The impurity of the clay is because it has penetrated the vessel, but the wood is saved because it is less porous.

13Once the discharging man is healed, he must wait seven days to make sure the ailment doesn't return before his ritual cleansing. He will wash his clothes and bathe in running water so that he can be ritually pure again. 14On the eighth day, he is to bring two turtledoves or young pigeons into My presence and hand them to the priest at the entrance of the congregation tent. 15The priest will present the birds—one of them as a purification offering for sin and the other as a burnt offering. The priest will come before Me and cover the impurity of the man with a discharge.

16If a man ejaculates, then he must bathe his whole body with water and remain impure until dusk. 17If an item of clothing or leather is touched by semen, then it must be cleaned thoroughly with water and will remain impure until dusk. 18If a man ejaculates while lying with a woman, then both must bathe with water and remain impure until dusk.

► The impurity referred to in these verses has to do with ceremonial and ritual practices such as making sacrifices, going to festivals, or receiving a revelation. Men, like women, have times when they become ritually impure. For men it happens whenever they have an ejaculation. For women it happens whenever they have their period. It's important to note that these bodily functions are normal and natural, not sinful or evil. The ancients knew the power of such events for making them one with their wives and ultimately creating life. Through these bodily fluids men and women become partners with God in creating other humans who are made in the image and likeness of God. Such power cannot and must not be taken lightly.

Eternal One: 19When a woman has her menstrual period and discharges her blood, she must stay in a state of her menstrual impurity for seven days. Any person who touches her will be impure until dusk. 20Anything she lies down upon or sits down on during her menstruation will be impure, 21-23and any person who touches her bed or her cushion or anything else she sits on must wash his clothes and bathe in water. He will remain impure until dusk. 24If a man has sexual relations with a woman during her menstrual period and her menstrual blood gets on him, he will be impure for seven days, and any bed he lies down upon will be impure as well.

25If a woman discharges blood for several days beyond her menstrual period or outside of it, then she will treat those days as if she were having her menstrual period and will be impure. 26Treat every bed she lies down upon during her irregular discharge like the bed she lies down upon while she is in her menstrual period. Anything she sits down upon will be considered impure just as it is when she is menstruating. 27By the same token, any person who touches the items she touches will be impure and must wash his clothes and bathe in water and remain impure until dusk. 28When the woman's discharge stops, she will wait seven days before she is ritually cleansed. 29On the eighth day, she will bring two turtledoves or young pigeons and present them to the priest at the entrance of the congregation tent. 30The priest will present one as a purification offering for sin and the other as a burnt offering. The priest will come before Me and cover the impurity of the woman with a discharge.

31This is how you are to separate and deal with the people of Israel during those times when they are ritually impure, so that they will not die from their impurity by defiling My sanctuary that stands among them.

32These are the instructions for what to do when someone has a discharge of any kind; and for the man who has become impure from his ejaculation, 33for the woman who is not well from her menstrual period, for any man or woman who has a discharge, and for the man who has sexual relations with a ritually impure woman.

16 The Eternal One spoke to Moses after Aaron's two sons died from entering into the Eternal's presence.*

Eternal One (to Moses): 2*Go,* talk to Aaron, and warn him that he cannot go whenever he wants beyond the veil to the holy place before the seat of mercy that covers the covenant chest. If he does, he will lose his life because I will appear in the cloud above the seat of mercy. 3*Instead,* he may enter into the holy place with a bull from the herd for the purification offering for sin and a ram for the burnt offering. 4Aaron will wash himself with water and then put on his sacred garments: the linen underclothes and the sacred linen tunic. He will tie the linen sash around his waist and put on his linen turban. 5From the community of My people Israel, he will take two male goats as a purification offering for sin and a ram as a burnt offering. 6Aaron will present the bull as a purification offering to cover himself and his family. 7Then he will take the two goats and present them to Me at the entrance of the congregation tent. 8There he will cast lots for the goats: one lot for Me and one lot for the scapegoat. 9Whichever goat My lot falls upon, Aaron will offer that goat as a purification offering for sin. 10Whichever goat the scapegoat's lot falls upon, Aaron will keep it alive, bring it before Me as a covering for the people, and set it free into the wilderness.

► There are two goats for the annual Day of Atonement. Lots are cast—perhaps the Urim and the Thummim—to see which goat is slaughtered for Israel's purification before God and which goat is released into the desert. The meaning of the Hebrew term Azazel is translated "scapegoat" but is uncertain; Azazel may refer to the name of a wilderness demon or a place in the desert, or it may simply refer to the goat that takes Israel's sin deep into the desert, that is, "scapegoat."

Eternal One: 11Aaron will offer the bull for the purification offering to cover his and his family's sins; and he will slaughter it himself. 12He will gather embers from My altar in a censer and also two handfuls of the finest, sweetest crushed incense and take it behind the veil.

13He is to place the incense on the embers in My presence so that the cloud of incense engulfs the seat of mercy—where sins are atoned—on the covenant chest, so he will not die. 14He must also dip his finger into the bull's blood and sprinkle it on the east side of the seat of mercy; in all he is to sprinkle the blood seven times in front of the seat of mercy.

15He will then slaughter the goat for the purification offering on behalf of the community's sin, take its blood behind the veil, and do the same thing with it that he did with the bull's blood. He will sprinkle it on and in front of the seat of mercy. 16This is how he will cover the impurities of the sanctuary because the impurities, rebellion, and sin of the people of Israel have defiled it. He will perform the same ritual for the congregation tent since it stands in the heart of their uncleanness. 17When the high priest enters the sanctuary to cover the impurities in the sacred space, no one else is allowed inside the tent until he comes outside again after atoning for himself, his family, and the entire community of Israel.

20When the priest has finished covering the impurities in the sanctuary, the entire congregation tent, and the altar, he must then present the living goat, the scapegoat. 21-22Aaron will place both his hands on the goat's head and confess aloud over it all the guilt, rebellion, and wrongdoings of the people of Israel. In this way, he will transfer the sins of the people onto the goat's head; then another man who has been selected for this special task will drive the goat into the wilderness. When the man releases the goat into the desert, it will carry all the offenses of God's people away into the desolate wastelands.

23Afterward, Aaron will enter the congregation tent, remove all of the linen clothing he put on when he entered, and leave them there. 24He will wash himself with water in the sacred space, dress himself in his normal, priestly clothes, and present his own burnt offering and the burnt offering for the community to atone for himself and the community. 25Then on the altar, he must offer up the fat of the purification offering as smoke. 26As for the man who let the scapegoat go free, he must wash his clothes and bathe in water, and then he may reenter the community. 27The remains of the bull and goat whose blood was used to purify the sacred space will be carried outside the camp. Their skins, meat, and dung must be burned up completely in a fire. 28Whoever does the burning must wash his clothes and bathe in water, and then he may reenter the community.

29This directive stands for all time: on the tenth day of the seventh month, all of you must humble yourselves and do no work—all native-born children of Israel as well as outsiders living among you. 30This must be a day when the high priest comes before Me to cover your sins and cleanse you from all your impurities. 31This day will be a Sabbath of sacred rest for you and you are to humble yourselves. This directive stands for all time. 32The priest who is anointed and ordained as high priest—succeeding his father Aaron—is to make atonement and thereby cover the sins of the people. He will clothe himself in the sacred linen garments 33and cover the impurities of the sanctuary, the congregation tent, and the altar. He will cover the priests and the entire community. 34This directive stands for all time: atone for the sins of My people Israel once every year.

Moses did exactly what the Eternal commanded him.

► Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, is the holiest day of the year. On this day the high priest enters into the holiest chamber of the congregation tent, the place where the covenant chest resides. Here, in God's immediate earthly presence, he makes reparations for the sins of the people.

Chapters 17–26 are often referred to as the "Holiness Code." The words "holy" and "sacred" are repeated over and over again throughout these chapters. God reminds His people to be different from the rest of the nations for He chose and set them apart for a special purpose. They are to be holy for He is holy.

17 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 2*Go,* say to Aaron, his sons, and all the Israelites: Here is what the Eternal has commanded: 3If an Israelite slaughters an ox, lamb, or goat inside or outside the camp 4and does not present it at the entrance of the congregation tent as an offering to Me in front of My sanctuary, then he is to be considered guilty of murder. He has spilled blood and is to be cut off from the community. 5I want the Israelites to stop sacrificing to Me in the open field and do it only at the entrance of the congregation tent. They must present their sacrifices to the priest and sacrifice them as peace offerings to Me. 6The priest will splatter the blood on My altar at the entrance of the congregation tent and offer the fat on the altar; and the smoke of the sacrifice will rise and become a pleasant aroma to Me. 7They must not offer any more sacrifices to the goat demons, the pagan gods with whom they've been unfaithful to Me until now. This directive stands for all time throughout their generations.

8Then warn them that if any Israelite or outsider living among you presents a burnt offering or other sacrifice 9and fails to present it to Me at the entrance of the congregation tent, then he will be cut off from the community.

10If anyone from the community of Israel or an outsider living among you consumes any blood, I will be at odds with him and cut him off from the community of Israel. 11You see, the life of the body is in the blood, and I have directed that you are to take blood and offer it on the altar to atone for your lives and cover your sins. It is the life flowing in the blood that atones for you and covers you. 12This is why I told the people of Israel, "No one of you or any outsider living among you is allowed to eat blood."

13Now if any Israelite or outsider living among you hunts and kills an animal or a bird that is acceptable and may be eaten, then that person must drain its blood from it and cover it up with the soil of the earth.

14You see, the life of every creature is its blood; blood represents life. Blood is life. This is why I told the people of Israel, "Do not eat the blood of any living creature; for the life of any creature is its blood." Anyone who consumes blood will be cut off from the community.

15Any time a person eats an animal that has died of natural causes or has been killed by another animal—regardless of whether that person is native-born or an outsider living among you—he is to wash his clothes, bathe in water, and be regarded as impure until dusk; afterward, he will be ritually pure again. 16But if the person does not wash his clothes or bathe his body, then he carries his guilt and will suffer the consequences.

► God allowed His people to eat meat, but He had concerns about how and where these animals would be killed. The commandments can be summarized this way: every time an animal is used for food, its death must be treated as a sacred event. That's why God tells the people to present it to Him in the sanctuary. Whenever one of God's creatures gives its life for one of our meals, that life is to be respected.

Blood is central to life. It makes life possible. That's why blood is so significant to the sacrifices, and violating any of these laws results in severe penalties.

18 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 2*Go,* talk with the Israelites. Tell them I am the Eternal One, your God. 3You must not act as you saw the Egyptians do when you lived in Egypt, nor should you act as they do in Canaan where I am taking you. Do not follow their practices. 4*From here on out,* you will live by My commands and honor My decrees and live your lives according to them alone. I am the Eternal One, your God. 5Stay devoted to My decrees and commands. The person who observes them will live by them.* I am the Eternal One.

6You must not have sexual relations with anyone closely related to you. I am the Eternal One. 7This includes your father and your mother. You are to honor her as your mother and not have sexual relations with her. 8You are not to have sexual relations with your father's wife; you might as well violate your father. 9You are not to have sexual relations with your sister—whether she is your father's daughter or mother's daughter, regardless of where she has lived, with your family or elsewhere. 10Do not have sexual relations with your son's daughter or your daughter's daughter; since they are your own flesh and blood, such an act would bring shame to you. 11You are not to have sexual relations with your stepsister, the daughter of your father and his wife;* for she is still your sister. 12Do not have sexual relations with your father's sister, your aunt; she is your father's flesh and blood. 13Do not have sexual relations with your mother's sister, your aunt; she is your mother's flesh and blood. 14You are not to dishonor your father's brother, your uncle, by approaching his wife for sexual relations. She is your aunt. 15You are not to have sexual relations with your daughter-in-law; she is your son's wife. 16You are not to have sexual relations with your brother's wife, your sister-in-law;* you might as well violate your brother. 17You are not to have sexual relations with a woman and her daughter, her son's daughter, or her daughter's daughter; they are blood relations. It would be a disgusting act. 18As long as your wife is living, do not marry her sister or have sexual relations with her. This would make them rivals.

24Do not defile yourselves by engaging in any of these perverse things. I am driving out all these other nations ahead of you because they have corrupted themselves with disgusting acts like these. 25The entire land of Canaan is so impure that I will punish the land until it vomits out those who dwell upon it. 26I want you to keep My decrees and judgments.

* 18:5 Romans 10:5; Galatians 3:12 * 18:11 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 18:16 Mark 6:18

No Israelite and no outsider living among you should commit any of the detestable acts that [27]the people who were in Canaan before you committed when they desecrated the land. [28]Do not desecrate the land or the land will vomit you from it as it has done to those who were there before you. [29]All those who commit these disgusting acts will be cut off from their community. [30]Therefore, observe My laws and do not commit any of these disgusting acts which have been committed by the people who lived in the land before you. If you observe them, you will not defile yourselves like they did. I am the Eternal One, your God.

► People and their land are connected. When people engage in disgusting practices, it affects the land, pollutes it, and makes it sick. But when people live by God's rules, the land is well.

19 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: [2]Go, talk with the community of Israel, and tell them that they are to be holy, for I, the Eternal your God, am holy.* [3]I want all of you to honor your mothers and fathers and keep My Sabbaths, for I am the Eternal your God. [4]Do not turn from Me to follow useless idols or cast metal images of other gods, for I am the Eternal your God.

[5]When you sacrifice a peace offering to Me, present it correctly so you are accepted. [6]Your peace offering should be consumed the same day you present it or the day after. But you must burn any of the offering that is still left on the third day. [7]If any of it is eaten on the third day, your offering will not be accepted; by then it has become foul. [8]Anyone who consumes the peace offering on the third day will bear his guilt and suffer the consequences, for he has desecrated what has been set apart for Me. That person must be cut off from his people.

► God's care for the poor is clearly reflected and codified in these verses. Those who have are to leave something for those who have not. No one is charged to make them care for the poor; God's covenant people are to do this in obedience to His commands. But the poor have a responsibility as well. They are to go and gather the grain left in the fields and collect the clusters left in the vineyard. In this way, they join with the landowners and farmers in caring for themselves and the earth.

Eternal One: [11]Do not take what is not yours or conduct business dishonestly or lie to each other. [12]Do not swear to a lie in My name. If you do, My name is profaned. I am the Eternal One.

[13]Do not mistreat your neighbor or steal from him. Do not keep the payment of a hired hand overnight, but compensate him for work at the end of the day. [14]Do not mock the disabled by shouting a curse at a deaf person or putting something in the way to trip up the blind. Instead, honor and fear your God; I am the Eternal One.

[15]In a court of law, do what is just, not unjust. Do not favor one side or the other, the poor or the wealthy; instead, judge your neighbor fairly. [16]Do not go around spreading malicious lies about other people. Do not take a stand that would endanger your neighbor's life. I am the Eternal One.

[17]Do not harbor a deep hatred for any of your relatives. If your neighbor is doing something wrong, correct him or else you could be held responsible for his sin.* [18]Do not seek revenge or hold a grudge against any of your people. Instead, love your neighbor as you love yourself,* for I am the Eternal One.

* 19:2 1 Peter 1:16 * 19:17 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 19:18 Matthew 22:39; Mark 12:31; Luke 10:27; Romans 13:9; James 2:8

19Honor My decrees. Do not breed two different species. Do not plant two different sorts of seed in your fields. Do not wear clothing made from two different kinds of material.
20If a man has sexual relations with a slave woman who is promised to another man but has not yet been redeemed or freed, then they will face an inquiry.
Neither the man nor the woman will be put to death because she was a slave and not a free woman when the offense took place. 21The man must present to Me a ram as his guilt offering at the entrance of the congregation tent. 22The priest is to sacrifice the ram of the guilt offering before Me to cover the man's guilt; then the guilty man's sin will be forgiven.
23When you go into the land and plant fruit-bearing trees, you are not to eat the fruit right away. It's off-limits for three years.* 24When the fourth year arrives, all the fruit of those trees must be regarded as sacred, a praise offering to Me. 25When the fifth year arrives, you are finally allowed to eat the fruits of those trees. If you demonstrate your faith by following this procedure, these trees will be even more productive. I am the Eternal One, your God.
26Do not consume any meat while the blood is still in it. Do not practice divination or fortune-telling. 27Do not cut the hair at your temples or trim your beard. 28Do not make cuts in your body for the dead or mark yourselves with tattoos. I am the Eternal One.
29Do not defile your daughter by forcing her into prostitution. If you do, you not only corrupt her but you also infect the land with prostitution and wickedness. 30Keep My Sabbaths and respect My sanctuary. I am the Eternal
One.
31Do not turn to mediums or consult with those who communicate with the spirits of the dead. Do not go near them, or else you will defile yourselves. I am the Eternal your God.
32You are to stand in respect for the older people in your community. You must fear your God. I am the Eternal
One.
33Don't take advantage of any stranger who lives in your land. 34You must treat the outsider as one of your native-born people—as a full citizen—and you are to love him in the same way you love yourself; for remember, you were once strangers living in Egypt. I am the Eternal One, your God.
35*In business dealings, be fair and* do not cheat. Measure accurately length, weight, and volume. 36Your scales are to be accurate, your weights true, and your containers standard. I am the Eternal your God, who led you out of Egypt.
37You are to keep all My directives and all of My rules, and do as I have instructed. I am the Eternal One.

► Genuine faith manifests itself in the way God's people treat others. While some may dishonor aliens or take advantage of outsiders, God's own must live differently. The law of love guides them to treat others as they wish to be treated and to extend hospitality to those who look and sound like they are far from home. God reminds them: you were once strangers and outsiders, too, in Egypt. You of all people should know what it is like to be aliens in a foreign land. Likewise genuine faith shows up in the marketplace. True believers conduct business with integrity. Whether they are buying or selling, they insist on proper weights and measures, hard work, and honesty.

20 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.
Eternal One: 2Tell the people of Israel that if any of them or any outsiders living among them present their children as human sacrifices to Molech, they will be put to death. The entire community must see to it that he is stoned to death.
3I will turn against that man and cut him off from his community because he presented one of his children to Molech;
he has desecrated My sanctuary and My sacred reputation. 4If the people in the community fail to handle the situation and do not execute him after he presents his children to Molech, 5then I will take the matter into My own hands and turn against the man and his family. I will

* 19:23 The Hebrew idiom is that the trees are "uncircumcised" for three years.

cut him and all those who prostitute themselves with Molech off from their community.

► Since God has pledged Himself to Israel as a husband to his bride, marriage becomes a powerful symbol of the loving, faithful relationship between God and His covenant people. Marital infidelity then—both adultery and prostitution—signify what happens when His people go after other gods.

Eternal One: 6I will turn against any individual who prostitutes himself by turning to mediums and consulting with those who communicate with the spirits of the dead. I will cut him off from his community. 7Dedicate yourselves exclusively to the one True God and become holy, for I, the Eternal your God, am holy.* 8Keep My directives and practice My commands, for I am the Eternal who sanctifies you.

9Anyone who utters a curse on his father or mother must be put to death,* for he has dishonored them, and their blood is on him.

10If a man commits adultery with his neighbor's wife, both offenders must be put to death. 11If a man has sexual relations with his father's wife, he might as well have violated his father; both offenders must be put to death, for their blood is on them. 12If a man has sexual relations with his daughter-in-law, both offenders must be put to death; for they have engaged in a disgusting act and their blood is on them. 13If a man has sexual relations with another man, they have participated in a detestable act. Both men are to be put to death, for their blood is on them. 14Any man who marries a woman and her mother commits a depraved act. He and both women are to be burned to death so that such depravity will not exist in the community. 15Any man who engages in a sexual act with an animal is to be put to death along with the animal. 16Any woman who approaches an animal to engage in some sexual act must be put to death along with the animal, for their blood is on them.

Sexuality is a powerful force for good in humanity. But perversion brings impurity into the world; it defiles the moral and natural order of creation.

17It is a shameful and dishonorable act for any man to marry his sister and have sexual relations with her; it doesn't matter whether she is his father's daughter or mother's daughter. Both of them must be cut off from their community. Any man who has sexual relations with his sister will bear his guilt and suffer the consequences. 18If a man has sexual relations with a woman who is menstruating, he has uncovered the source of her flow and she has exposed it to him; both the man and the woman must be cut off from the community. 19Do not have sexual relations with your aunt, whether she is the sister of your mother or father. Any man who does such a thing has disgraced his relative. Both offenders are guilty and must suffer the consequences. 20If a man has sexual relations with his uncle's wife, he might as well have violated his uncle. Both offenders will suffer the consequences of their sin; they will die childless. 21If a man has sexual relations with his brother's wife, he has committed a disgraceful, dishonorable act;* He might as well have violated his brother; they will die childless.

22Therefore, keep all My directives and My rules so that the land I am giving you will not vomit you out. 23Do not follow in the footsteps of the people who lived in the land before you and whom I will remove from the land when you take possession of it, for they committed wicked acts like the ones described here; this is why I despise them. 24As I have already told you, "You will inherit the land that was theirs. I am giving you this land flowing with milk and honey as your possession."* I am the Eternal One your God who has set you apart from all the other people. 25Consequently you must know the difference between a ritually pure and impure animal and a pure and impure bird. Do not make yourselves detestable by eating an animal, a bird, or any small creature that I have designated as ritually impure. 26You must be holy, for I, the Eternal One, am holy, and I have chosen you from all the people of the world to be My people.

* 20:7 1 Peter 1:16 * 20:9 Matthew 15:4; Mark 7:10 * 20:21 Mark 6:18 * 20:24 Exodus 13:5

27Any person among you who is a medium or tries to communicate with the spirits of the dead must be put to death. They are to be stoned to death, for their blood will be required of them.

21 The Eternal One addressed Moses.

While it is not a sin to handle a corpse, it makes the person ritually impure.

Eternal One: Go, talk to the priests, Aaron's sons, and tell them that I don't want any priest to make himself ritually impure by having contact with a dead person in Israel. 2There is an exception: a priest is allowed to touch the dead body of his closest family members—his mother, father, son, daughter, brother, 3and any sister who is still a virgin when she dies. Since she has no husband, the priest is her closest relative, so he is allowed to make himself impure for her. 4A priest must not render himself impure and defile himself by touching the corpse of a person related to him only by marriage. 5Priests are not allowed to mourn like other people by shaving their heads, trimming their beards, or cutting gashes into their bodies. 6Priests are to be holy to Me and not treat My sacred name with contempt. They bring the fire-offerings to Me, the food of their God, and so they must be sacred. 7Priests are not to marry women defiled by prostitution or women who are divorced, for priests are holy to Me.

8You must set the priest apart as special and treat him as holy, for he brings the food to your God. The priests must be considered holy to you because I, the Eternal, am holy, and I have set you apart from all other nations. 9If a priest's daughter dabbles in prostitution, then she desecrates herself and also her father. She is to be burned to death.

10Of the brotherhood of priests, the high priest is the one whose head has been anointed with oil and who has been ordained to wear the sacred garments. He is not to leave his hair uncombed or tear his garments when he is mourning. 11He is not to go near any dead bodies—not even his father's or mother's—or else he will make himself impure. 12The high priest is not allowed to go outside the sanctuary during the time of mourning and thereby desecrate God's sanctuary, for he has been anointed with the sacred oil of his God. I am the Eternal One. 13He is to marry a woman who is a virgin. 14He is not allowed to choose a widow, a divorced woman, or a prostitute as a wife—any woman who has already had sexual relations. He is only allowed to marry a virgin from his own community. 15This arrangement will guarantee that his future offspring will not be treated badly among his people, for I am the Eternal who makes him holy.

16The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 17-18*Go,* talk with Aaron, and tell him that throughout future generations those who are physically marred are not allowed to approach the sanctuary and offer food to Me. This includes those who are blind, lame, disfigured, or deformed. 19It includes those who have a broken foot or an injured hand, 20hunchbacks, dwarves, anyone with a defective eye or a festering rash or scabs or crushed testicles. 21No one from Aaron's offspring who has a physical defect is allowed to approach the sanctuary and present fire-offerings to Me; since he is not perfect, he must not approach to offer his God's food. 22He is allowed to eat a portion of the food offered to God, including the sacred and most sacred, 23but he is not allowed to go behind the veil or approach the altar because of his imperfection. This is the rule so that he does not desecrate My holy places. I am the Eternal One who consecrates him.

24So Moses told Aaron, Aaron's sons, and all the Israelites what God had said to him.

► In our world, these rules are hard to understand. But remember, it has only been in recent years that Western society has shown concern for people with disabilities. In much of the world today, people who suffer deformities or disabilities are treated differently—as somehow imperfect. Less than a century ago, these people were undervalued and ostracized in the West. So we must be careful not to judge people who lived 3,000 years ago by our modern standards and sensibilities, as things have changed drastically in recent years. That would not be fair. The logic is clear: just as the sacrifice must be pure and unblemished, so must the priest who offers the sacrifice be whole in body. Disabled priests are mercifully included in God's provision because they are permitted to eat the consecrated bread.

Eternal One: 2Instruct Aaron and his sons to be cautious with the sacred food offerings the Israelites bring—the ones they give in My honor so that they do not desecrate My sacred name and ruin My reputation. I am the Eternal One. 3Tell them that anyone from your present and future generations who is ritually impure and goes near the sacred gifts the Israelites have presented to Me will be cut off from My presence, for I am the Eternal One. 4None of Aaron's offspring who has a serious skin disease or a discharge is allowed to consume the sacred food offerings until he is ritually pure again. If anyone touches something that has become impure by having contact with a dead body or if he has a semen emission, 5or if he touches some small creature or anyone impure, whatever the impurity may be—6anyone who has contact with such impurity will be impure until evening; he is not allowed to consume the sacred gifts until he has bathed in water. 7When evening arrives, it is a new day; he will be ritually pure. Then he can consume the sacred food offerings, which are his food. 8He should not consume any animal that dies a natural death or is torn apart by another animal; if he does, he will become impure, for I am the Eternal One. 9The priests are to respect and keep My instructions or they will have to bear the punishment for their sin and die for treating my instructions with contempt, for I am the Eternal One who makes them holy.

10No laypeople, guests, or hired workers who enter a priest's house are allowed to consume the sacred food offerings. 11But if a priest purchases a slave, then that slave and anyone born into his family can eat his food. 12When a priest's daughter marries a non-priest, she is no longer allowed to eat any of the sacred food offerings. 13But if she—after being childless, and divorced or widowed—goes back to live with her father as she did when she was young, then she is allowed to consume her father's food; but no lay person is allowed to consume it. 14If a man consumes a sacred food offering accidentally, then when he becomes aware, he must present the same amount of food plus ⅕ to the priest. 15When the people of Israel present their sacred offerings to Me, the priests are not to treat them lightly, 16or else they will bear the guilt and punishment for consuming the sacred gifts; for I am the Eternal One who makes them holy.

Eternal One: 18*Go,* talk with Aaron, his sons, and all the Israelites. Tell them that when any Israelite or outsider living among you brings an offering—whether accompanying a vow or out of free will—and offers it to Me as a burnt offering, 19he must offer an unblemished male from the bulls, the sheep, or the goats in order to be accepted. 20You should not offer any animals that are diseased, weak, or injured or have any defects. Such a sacrifice is not acceptable for you. 21Also when a man offers a sacrifice as a peace offering to Me from the herd or flock—whether he is fulfilling a vow or out of free will—he must offer a perfect, unblemished offering in order to be accepted. 22Do not offer any animals that are blind, have broken bones, are deformed, have open wounds, a skin disease, or scabs. Do not offer such a sacrifice by fire on the altar to Me. 23You are allowed to offer an ox or a lamb with a limb that is too long or too short as long as it is a freewill offering, but not if it is an offering that accompanies a vow. 24You are not to offer any animal with bruised, crushed, torn, or removed testicles as a sacrifice to Me, and you will not offer these blemished animals anywhere in your land. 25You are not allowed to accept such an animal as a gift from a foreigner and then offer it as food for your God, because the animal is not whole and carries the foreigner's corruption. Such a sacrifice is not acceptable for you.

Eternal One: 27Any time an ox or sheep or goat is born, you are to leave it with its mother for seven days. On the eighth day, the newborn is old enough to be sacrificed to Me as a fire-offering. 28But do not sacrifice both the newborn ox or sheep and its mother on the same day.

That which gives life, whether human or animal mother, and that which is offered on behalf of life, whether human or animal offspring, should not be disrespected, blurred, or confused.

29When you slaughter a thanksgiving sacrifice to Me, do it in such a way that you will be accepted. 30Consume it on the same day it is slaughtered; do not leave any for the next day. I am the Eternal One.

31This is how you must keep and follow My commands. I am the Eternal One.

32You must not do anything that desecrates My sacred name and ruins My reputation so that the people of Israel will acknowledge that I am holy, for I am the Eternal One who consecrates you. 33*I am the One* who led you out of Egypt to be your God. I am the Eternal One.

23 The Eternal One spoke to Moses regarding the holy days.

Eternal One: 2*Go,* talk to the Israelites. Tell them that I have appointed certain feasts to be celebrated. You are to honor these times and declare them as sacred assemblies.

3You have six days to do your ordinary work; but when the seventh day arrives, it is a Sabbath and must be a day of complete rest, a time for sacred assembly. No work is allowed. Wherever you live, celebrate the Sabbath in My honor.

4Here are times I have appointed for sacred assemblies; you are to celebrate these feasts and declare them publicly at their appointed times. 5*In the spring* on the fourteenth day of the first month, My Passover begins at first light. 6When the fifteenth day arrives, you are to celebrate the Feast of Unleavened Bread in My honor.

For the next seven days, the only bread you are allowed to eat is unleavened bread. 7On the first day of the feast, I want you to gather for a sacred assembly; you are not allowed to do any ordinary work. 8On each of the seven days of the feast, present a fire-offering to Me. When the seventh day arrives, hold a sacred assembly; you are not allowed to do any ordinary work.

Eternal One: 10*Go,* talk with the Israelites, and tell them that when you are settled in the land I am going to give you, and when you harvest there, you are to gather a bundle of stalks from the firstfruits of the barley harvest and present them to the priest. 11On the day after the Sabbath, the priest will raise up the bundle of stalks and wave them before Me so that you will be accepted. 12Also, on the day that the stalks are waved, you must present an unblemished, year-old male lamb to Me as a burnt offering. 13The grain offering you bring with it is to be four quarts of the finest flour mixed with oil. The smoke of the fire-offering will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me. Present it along with a drink offering of 2½ pints of wine. 14Do not consume any bread, roasted grain, or any of the new harvest until this day when you have presented the offering to Me, your God. This directive stands for all time throughout your generations regardless of where you live.

15-16From the day after the Sabbath when you presented the bundled stalks—the firstfruits of the barley harvest—as a wave offering to Me, count off seven whole weeks. Count to the day after the seventh Sabbath, 50 days; then I want you to bring a fresh grain offering to Me. 17Bring two loaves of bread from wherever you live as a wave offering. The loaves are to be made with yeast from four quarts of the finest flour as the firstfruits to Me. 18With the bread, I want you to offer seven unblemished, year-old male lambs, a bull from the herd, and two rams. These will serve as a burnt offering to Me, along with their grain offering and drink offerings; the smoke of this fire-offering will rise and be a pleasant aroma to Me. 19You must also present one male goat as a purification offering and two year-old male lambs as a peace offering. 20The priest will then lift them up along with the bread of the firstfruits and the two lambs as a wave offering before Me. These offerings, which are sacred to Me, will become the property of the priest. 21On this day, you will make a proclamation and hold a sacred assembly. Refrain from doing any ordinary work. This directive stands for all time throughout your generations regardless of where you live.

22Whenever you harvest the crops in your land, do not harvest all the way to the edges of the fields or pick up what was overlooked during harvest. Leave them for the poor and the strangers living with you. I am the Eternal your God.

23The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 24*Go,* talk with the Israelites, and tell them to observe a day of Sabbath rest in the autumn on the first day of the seventh month. Commemorate this day and call together a sacred assembly by sounding the trumpets.
25You must not do any ordinary work that day, but you are to bring a fire-offering to Me.

26The Eternal One spoke to Moses regarding the Day of Atonement.

Eternal One: 27The tenth day of the seventh month is set aside as the Day of Atonement. On that day, you must call together the people for a sacred assembly, humble and discipline yourselves by fasting, and bring a fire-offering to Me.
28Refrain from doing any work on the Day of Atonement, for it is to be a day when you make offerings before Me, your God, that cover your sins. 29If anyone does not humble and discipline himself on this day, he must be cut off from the community. 30If anyone from your community works on this day, I will destroy him from the midst of the community.
31You must not do any of the work you normally do. This directive stands for all time throughout your generations regardless of where you live. 32This is to be a Sabbath Day, a day of complete rest, a day when you humble and discipline yourselves. When the ninth day of the month arrives, you are to honor this Sabbath from dusk till dusk.

► Sin causes damage in ways we do not easily recognize. It damages our relationship with God, other people, and the rest of creation. But we should not forget that sin damages us too. We are damaged goods. The Day of Atonement provides the people of Israel with a regular opportunity to recognize how broken and flawed they are, to repent and turn to God, and to seek His healing and forgiveness.

33The Eternal One said to Moses.

Eternal One: 34*Go,* talk with the Israelites and tell them that when the fifteenth day of the seventh month arrives, they must celebrate the Feast of Booths to Me for seven days.

► The Feast of Booths takes place after the fall harvest is in and the people can take some time off. In this feast, God's people are called to remember how He provided for them, particularly how He provided for them when they wandered in the desert, living in tents or booths, for 40 years.

Eternal One: 35The first day is to be a day devoted to sacred assembly, so refrain from doing any ordinary work. 36Then for seven days, I want you to bring a fire-offering to Me. When the eighth day arrives, hold another sacred assembly and bring another fire-offering to Me.
This is to be a festive gathering, and no one is allowed to do any of their normal work.
37So these are the feasts that I have appointed. At these times, you are to call the people together for a sacred assembly and bring fire-offerings to Me—burnt offerings, grain offerings, sacrifices, and drink offerings—each day will have its own offering. 38These feasts and their offerings are in addition to My Sabbaths and other prescribed offerings, offerings accompanying a vow or a freewill offering.
39When the fifteenth day of the seventh month arrives, after you have harvested the crops from the land,
I want you to celebrate this feast of booths for seven days. Observe a day of complete rest on the first day and the eighth day. 40-41On the first day, gather some branches from the beautiful trees in the area: palm fronds, limbs thick with leaves, and branches from the river willow. Celebrate and feast before Me, your God, for seven days. This directive stands for all time throughout your generations; celebrate it every year in the seventh month. 42All native-born Israelites are to live in booths for seven days. 43*I want you to do this* so that all present and future generations of your people remember that I sheltered the Israelites in booths like these after I led them out of Egypt. I am the Eternal One, your God.

Temporary shelters like these were used during harvest to protect their fields from animals and thieves.

44Moses spoke to the Israelites about the Eternal One's appointed feasts.

24 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 2-3Direct the Israelites to bring you clear oil from pressed olives in order to keep the lamps in the sanctuary outside the veil covering the covenant chest continually burning. Aaron is to make sure the lamps continue to burn in My presence from dusk till dawn. This directive stands for all time throughout your generations. 4On a regular basis, Aaron and the priests are to tend to the lamps on the pure gold lampstand before Me.

5I want you to take the finest flour and bake 12 loaves of bread. Each loaf is to be made of four quarts of flour. 6Then arrange the 12 loaves into two rows on the pure gold table in My presence. Put six loaves in each row. 7Place pure frankincense along each row to serve as a memorial portion for the bread, as a fire-offering to Me. 8Every Sabbath Aaron is to make sure these rows of bread are in order before Me. These loaves, baked and presented by the people of Israel, symbolize the perpetual covenant. 9They are reserved for Aaron and his sons, but they must be eaten only in a sacred space. These loaves are most holy gifts to Aaron out of all the fire-offerings presented to Me; they are his due for all time.

10One day there was a man who had an Israelite mother and Egyptian father who got into a fight with an Israelite inside the camp. 11The first man uttered a curse and disparaged the name of the Eternal One. The people brought him to Moses to decide what must be done. (His mother was Shelomith, Dibri's daughter. Dibri was from the Dan tribe.) 12They kept him in custody until the Eternal One's decision became clear to them.

13The Eternal One told Moses what to do.

Eternal One: 14Take the man who cursed and disparaged Me outside the camp and have everyone who was a witness to what he said place their hands on his head. Then have the entire community stone him. 15Tell the Israelites, "Anyone who curses His God or disparages His name must bear his sin and suffer the punishment. 16Any person who blasphemes My name must be put to death. Then you must have the entire community join in stoning him. Any person—whether native-born or an outsider—who disparages My name must be put to death."

17Anyone who kills another person must be put to death. 18Anyone who kills an animal is to compensate his owner for it, life for life. 19Anyone who injures his neighbor must have done to him what he did to the other. 20If he breaks a man's bone, his own bone must be broken. If he puts out a man's eye, his own eye must be put out. If he knocks out a man's tooth, his own tooth must be knocked out.* Whatever a person does to harm another must be done to him in return. 21Any person who takes the life of an animal is to compensate his owner for it, but any person who takes the life of another human being must be put to death. 22This law applies to everyone equally, both native-born Israelites and outsiders. I am the Eternal One, your God.

The "law of retaliation," as it is called, is designed to curb cruelty. It limits the kind and extent of retaliation a person can suffer when he deliberately injures another.

* 24:20 Matthew 5:38

23Moses told the Israelites what God had decided, so they took the man who had uttered the curse outside the camp and stoned him. The Israelites did exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses.

25 The Eternal One addressed Moses on Mount Sinai.

Eternal One: 2*Go,* talk with the Israelites and tell them that when you arrive in the land I have promised to give to you, you are to make sure the land observes a Sabbath rest before Me. 3Plant your fields, take care of your vineyards, and harvest your crops for six years; 4but when the seventh year arrives, I want the entire land to have a Sabbath rest to Me. Do not plant your fields or prune your vineyards during this seventh year. 5Do not harvest whatever grows on its own from earlier plantings, and do not pick grapes from the unpruned vines. The entire year is to be a year of Sabbath rest for the land. 6-7You, your slaves, your hired workers, the outsiders living among you, your domesticated and the wild animals may eat whatever the land produces naturally during the Sabbath year.

8You are to count off seven Sabbath years (that's seven times seven years), which gives you 49 years. 9After the 49th year is over, sound a ram's horn across the land in the 50th year on the tenth day of the seventh month. Sound the ram's horn throughout the land on the Day of Atonement. 10When the 50th year arrives, sanctify it and declare liberty throughout the land for all who live there—dramatic, radical liberty for all. It is to be your jubilee year. Each of you is allowed to go back to the land that belonged to your ancestors; and each of you may return to your own family. 11-12The 50th year is to be your jubilee year. Do not plant. Do not harvest anything that grows on its own or pick grapes from the unpruned vines. You may eat what the land produces naturally. For it is a jubilee, a special, sacred time for you.

► The year of jubilee is a far-reaching idea in the ancient world. In the 50th year, land that has been sold to pay debts during the preceding 49 years returns to its original owners. Israelites who had to sell themselves into slavery to pay debts are set free. All debts are declared "paid in full." The jubilee is a regular reminder to God's covenant people that every acre of ground, every soul belongs to God, not to those rich enough to buy them. Actually land cannot be sold; it can only be leased in 50-year increments, from jubilee to jubilee. So God's law protects the welfare of future generations by preventing the permanent transfer of land and wealth outside the control of the family.

Eternal One: 13Everyone will return to his ancestral property during the year of jubilee. 14If you sell something to a friend or buy something from your neighbor, do it honestly. 15When you lease property from a friend, you should pay only for the time you get to use it. He will base the price on the number of harvest years remaining until the jubilee returns. 16You will raise the price if the jubilee year is far away. You will lower the price if the year is near, for what you are really buying is the number of harvests you can get in before the next jubilee. 17Do not cheat each other. Instead, fear the God who has power over you; for I am the Eternal One, your God.

18So follow My directives and live by My rules; as you do, you and your people will most certainly be secure in the land I will give you. 19The land will produce an abundance of food, and you will have all you need to eat and live safely in the land. 20You might ask, "What will we eat in the seventh year if we don't plant and harvest crops?" 21*Don't worry.* I will direct My blessing to come to you during the sixth year so that the land will produce three years' worth of crops in that one year: 22Even while you are planting during the eighth year, you will eat your fill of the previous crops harvested in the sixth year. You will eat those crops right up until the time when you harvest the new crops in the ninth year.

23You are not allowed to sell the land in perpetuity because it isn't actually yours. The land belongs to Me. You will always be strangers and outsiders living in My land. 24So every plot of ground you possess carries a "right of redemption."

25If your fellow citizen becomes so impoverished that he has no choice but to sell off a portion of his land, then his nearest family relation is to buy back the portion sold for him. 26If a man doesn't have any relatives but finds a way to earn the money to redeem his land himself, 27then he will buy it back from the man who bought the land from him, less the profit the buyer would have made in the years since he leased it; then the original owner can go back to live on his land. 28But if a man does not earn or find the money he needs to buy back his land, then the man who leased the land will keep it until the year of jubilee. When the year of jubilee arrives, the land will return to the possession of its original owner.

29By the same token, anyone who sells a house that is located within the city walls has one year to buy the house back after it is sold. The right of redemption lasts only one year. 30If the seller does not buy back his house within a year of the date it was sold, then the house located within the city walls belongs to the new owner for all his generations. It will not go back to the original owner in the year of jubilee.

The houses located within the city walls are not protected from permanent sale probably because city dwellers do not live off the land.

31The houses in towns that have no walls are classified as fields. They are subject to the rights of redemption and return to their original owner in the year of jubilee, just like any other field. 32In the Levites' cities, the houses permanently carry the right of redemption: 33The Levites are able to redeem any and all property, and any house that is sold goes back to its original owner when the year of jubilee arrives because all the houses are the Levites' inheritance from the other tribes of Israel. 34The open country around the cities and villages is not allowed to be sold because this land belongs to them for all time.

Levites do not share the land inheritance with the other tribes, so their homes are their inheritance and will come back to them at the jubilee.

35If your fellow citizen becomes poor and cannot take care of his needs, then you must support him with what you have. Look after him, as you would a stranger or outsider, so he may keep living in your community. 36*Let him borrow, but* charge no interest and do not look for ways to profit from his need. Instead, fear God, and allow your fellow citizen to live alongside you. 37Do not ask for interest when you lend him money. Do not try to profit by selling him your food. 38I am the Eternal One, your God, the One who led you out of Egypt so that I could give you the land of Canaan and be your God.

39If your fellow citizen becomes so poor that he must sell himself to you as a slave, do not treat him as a slave. 40Have him work for you as a hired hand, as an outsider might, until the year of jubilee. 41Then he and his children will be released from your service, and he will return to his family and to the property that belonged to his ancestors. 42After all, they are My servants; I led them out of Egypt so they must never be sold as slaves. 43You are not allowed to treat them badly. Instead fear your God. 44*On the other hand,* you may acquire slaves, both men and women, from the nations surrounding you 45and from the outsiders who live among you. You can acquire their family members who have been born in the land. You can keep them as property 46and pass them down to your children as part of their inheritance for all time. You may continue to own them, even after jubilee. Remember if your slave is a fellow Israelite, then you must not deal with him harshly.

47If a foreigner or outsider living among you becomes rich enough to buy a slave, and one of your fellow citizens has become poor enough he has to sell himself as a slave to him or to his extended family, 48-49then your fellow citizen has the right to be redeemed. One of his brothers, his uncle, his cousin, or any more distant relative may buy him back. If he makes enough money, he can purchase his own freedom. 50As for the man who bought him, he and the buyer will determine the price based on how many years are between the year he sold himself and the year of jubilee. The time with his owner must be valued as if he were a hired hand. 51-52Whether there are many years left before the jubilee or just a few, the cost of his redemption is determined by those remaining years. 53He must be treated as a laborer hired

year to year, and you need to make sure the owner does not treat him harshly. 54If he is not able to gain his freedom this way, he and his children will be freed in the year of jubilee. 55For the Israelites are truly My servants; I brought them out of the land of Egypt. I am the Eternal One, your God.

26 Eternal One: Do not fashion any idols or blasphemous images. Do not erect any sacred pillars as the nations around you do. Do not set up any carved stones in your land and bow down to them. I am the Eternal your God. 2Honor My Sabbaths, and treat My sanctuary as a holy place. I am the Eternal One.

3If you walk in My decrees and keep My commandments in your daily lives, 4I will grant you plenty of rain in the seasons when you need it, and your land will produce abundant crops and your trees will be filled with fruit. 5Your grain threshing will last until the time of the grape harvest, and the grape harvest will continue until it is time to plant again. You will fill your bellies with food and feel secure as you live in the land. 6I will see to it that you have peace in your land. You will be able to go to bed at night without a worry on your mind. I will take away the dangerous animals that roam your land, and no armies will invade your land. 7-8When you go after your enemies, they will fall by your sword. Five of you will go after 100 of your enemies, and 100 of you will cause 10,000 to flee. 9I will grant you My favor, and you will be fruitful, multiply, and have many healthy children, and I will continue to honor My covenant with you. 10You will have so much surplus food from year to year that you will have to make room for the new harvest when it comes in. 11I will make my home among you and never turn away from you. 12I will walk among you and be your God, and you will be My people.* 13I am the Eternal One, your God, who led you out of the land of Egypt so that you would no longer be their slaves. I have shattered the yokes that broke your backs and helped you walk straight and upright.

14However, if you do not obey Me or live by all I have commanded, 15if you turn your backs on My decrees and despise what I have commanded so that you fail to do as I have directed and break the covenant that exists between us, 16then this is what you can expect: I will bring a horrific cloud of terror over you, and you will waste away in disease and burning fevers, your eyes will grow dark, and your restless souls will long for life. The seeds you plant will provide you no sustenance because raiders will consume whatever you grow. 17I will turn My face against you and stand by as your enemies strike you down. Those who despise you will reign over you, and you will run away even when no one is chasing you. 18If, after all this, you still do not listen to Me, then I will increase your punishment until you have paid seven times for your sins. 19I will break you of your powerful pride, and I will make the heavens above you as cold as iron and your earth below you as hard as bronze. 20Your strength will be wasted because the land you work will not yield its crops, and the trees you plant will not bear fruit.

23And if, after all these punishments, you still have not turned back to Me but continue to rebel against Me, 24I will move against you, and this time I will punish you Myself until you have paid seven times for your sins. 25I will march armies against you that will execute My vengeance against you for the covenant you have broken. When you retreat into your cities, I will send a vicious plague among you until you fall to your adversaries. 26I will cut off your food supply until there is so little bread that 10 women will need only one oven to bake it. When they serve it, your portion will be carefully weighed and rationed and you won't have enough to satisfy you.

27If, after all this, you still do not listen to Me but continue to rebel against Me, 28I will move against you with the full heat of My fury. I will punish you Myself until you have paid seven times for your sins. 29*You will become so hungry that some of* you will eat the flesh of your own sons and daughters. 30I will demolish your high places where false worship taints the land and tear down your incense altars. I will pile your lifeless bodies on the rubble of your lifeless god-images. I will detest you. 31I will turn your bustling cities into wastelands. I will empty and silence your pagan sanctuaries. When you do sacrifice to Me, I will pay no attention to the pleasant aromas. 32*Yes,* I will move against the land until it lies in ruins, and those who conquer you and settle there will be horrified by what they see. 33I will scatter you among the nations. I will draw My sword against you. Your land will become an eerie wasteland, and your cities will lie in ruins.

34While you are scattered among your enemies, your land will bask in its Sabbaths. For as long as the land is barren, it will enjoy the Sabbaths and the rest it deserves. 35For all the days it lies desolate, it will have the rest it never had while you were living on the land. 36-37For those of you who may survive, I will make your hearts despair as you live in lands occupied by your enemies. You will be so fearful that the noise made by a windblown leaf will startle you and send you running away in panic. Even when no one is chasing after you, you will run away and trip over each other as if you are being chased by an army. You will have no power to stand up to your enemies. 38You will die far from home in foreign lands. The land of your adversaries will devour your corpses. 39Those of you who survive will waste away in the lands of your adversaries because of their sins and the sins of their ancestors; they will surely waste away to nothing.

40But if they own up to their sins and acknowledge the sins of their ancestors, if they admit that they have been unfaithful to Me, defied Me, and rebelled against Me—41which prompted Me to turn against them and scatter them among their enemies—if they humble their uncircumcised hearts and offer reparations for their sins, 42then I will remember My covenant with Jacob, Isaac, and Abraham, and I will also remember the land. 43As long as the land lies deserted without them, it will catch up on the Sabbaths it has missed and be renewed. In the meantime, they must offer reparations for their sins because they turned their backs on My decrees and despised My commands. 44But even then, as long as My people are dwelling in the land of their adversaries, I will not reject them or hate them so much that I break My covenant with them and annihilate them. I am the Eternal One, their God. 45Still they will benefit when I remember the covenant I made with their ancestors when I led them out of the land of Egypt with the whole world watching so that I could be their God. I am the Eternal One.

46These are the directives, commandments, and instructions the Eternal One gave through Moses on Mount Sinai to establish the covenant between Himself and the Israelites.

The Eternal One gave Moses the rules regarding the fulfillment of vows.

► Now there is nothing to suggest that God requires His people to make vows; but when they do, they must be taken seriously. So if a person pledges to give God something in exchange for His help or blessing on a matter, then that person is bound to keep his promise. It would be better not to make a vow in the first place than to make it and not fulfill it.

Eternal One: 2*Go,* talk with the Israelites and tell them that whenever someone makes a special vow to Me regarding the value of a human being, 3the proper value of a 20- to 60-year-old male is 20 ounces of silver, according to the sanctuary weights. 4The proper value of a female of those ages is 12 ounces. 5If the person is 5 to 20 years old, the proper value for the male is 8 ounces; for the female 4 ounces. 6But if the person is anywhere from one month to 5 years old, the proper value is 2 ounces of silver for males and 1¼ ounces of silver for females. 7If the person is 60 years old or older, it is to be 6 ounces for the male and 4 ounces for the female. 8If someone cannot afford these prices, then bring him to stand before the priest, and the priest will assess the situation and value him according to what the person can afford.

9Whenever someone vows to give an animal that is acceptable as an offering to Me, then that animal is sacred and is the property of the sanctuary. 10Whoever makes the vow should not switch one animal for another, a good animal for a bad, or vice versa. If someone does switch one for another, then both animals are considered sacred. 11But if the vow involves an animal that is impure and not acceptable as an offering to Me, he needs to bring the animal before the priest. 12The priest will determine its value—either high or low—and whatever he determines will be its price. 13If the owner desires to buy the animal back from the sanctuary, he must pay that price plus ⅕.

► Animals that are unclean according to the law are not to be donated in fulfillment of a vow because they are not acceptable as sacrifices. They are taken to the market and sold; the money gained from the sale supports the priests and their service.

Eternal One: 14If a man dedicates his house as a sacred gift to Me, the priest will determine its value—either high or low—and whatever he determines will be its price. 15If the person who dedicates his house desires to buy it back, he must pay that price plus ⅕, and the house will be his once again.

16If a man dedicates any piece of his property to Me, the value fixed must be in proportion to the amount of seed it requires for planting. Six bushels of barley seed is worth 20 ounces of silver. 17If he dedicates his field during the year of jubilee, the fixed value still stands. 18If he dedicates his field after the jubilee year, the priest will determine its value according to how many years remain until the jubilee and reduce it accordingly. 19If the person who dedicates the property desires to buy it back, he must pay that price plus ⅕; then the piece of land will be his once again. 20If he decides not to buy the property back, or if he has sold it to another person, then he forfeits the right to redeem it. 21If the original owner releases the field in the jubilee, it must be treated as a holy gift dedicated to Me; then it will become the property of the priests.

22If someone dedicates land to Me that he has bought and is not part of his ancestral lands, 23then the priest will determine its value according to how many years remain until the jubilee. The man must pay that amount as his sacred gift to Me. 24In the jubilee year, the property will revert back to the one who sold it, its original owner; it will be his once again.

25All of your assessments should be based on the sanctuary's weights: the basic unit is ⅔ of an ounce.

26Firstborn animals already belong to Me, so no one is allowed to dedicate any firstborn animal—be it an ox or a sheep. It is already Mine. 27If it is an impure animal—unsuitable as a sacrifice—then the person making the vow may redeem it for its value plus ⅕. If the owner decides not to redeem it, then it must be sold for its proper value and the sanctuary will keep the proceeds.

28Surely nothing devoted to Me as an irrevocable vow, regardless of what it is—a person, an animal, or a piece of property—can be sold or bought back; it must be destroyed. Anything devoted in this way is most holy to Me and cannot be put to another use. 29No person who is devoted irrevocably *to Me can be redeemed. He must be put to death.

30One-tenth of everything the land produces—seeds from the ground and fruits from the trees—belongs to Me and is sacred to Me. 31If a man desires to buy back a portion of My ⅒, he must pay its value plus ⅕. 32Regarding your livestock, ⅒ of the herd or flock must be set apart for Me as holy. As you count them, every tenth animal that passes beneath the shepherd's rod belongs to Me. 33It does not matter whether the animals are good or bad, and one must not think about switching or replacing one for another. If he does, then the original and the replacement are both sacred and cannot be redeemed.

34These are the commandments the Eternal gave to Moses for the people of Israel at Mount Sinai.

01 02 03 04 05 06

The journey in the wilderness

By Moses, shepherd of God's people

At first glance, it is understandable why the Book of Numbers is not the most popular book in the Old Testament; it contains long lists of numbers, and it tells of a long wandering through the desert. But if you read carefully, you realize that Numbers chronicles an amazing journey filled with promise, conflict, victory, adventure, and disappointment. Some of the most dramatic and memorable moments in Scripture are found in these chapters—the spies sent out to reconnoiter the promised land of Canaan, the rebellion of Korah and its deadly aftermath, the bitter defeats and sweet victories of Israel's forces, the constant complaining despite God's provision for His people, the fiery serpents sent to punish the complainers, the oracles and cryptic predictions spoken by the prophet Balaam, and finally, Moses' fateful decision to disobey God. All these add up to tell a remarkable story of how God is moving step-by-step to fulfill His promises to His people.

The story begins with Israel encamped at the foot of Mount Sinai. God has some final instructions for the people before they break camp and begin their long march. As before, despite divine guidance during the journey, the people constantly complain against God and His leaders. Their rebellion reaches its climax at Kadesh—a large oasis on the southern edge of the land of Canaan—when the people reject God's gift and threaten to return to Egypt. Had it not been for Moses' pleading, God would have destroyed them right then. Instead, He punished that generation by making them wander "in the wilderness" (which is the Hebrew title for this book) for 40 years and denying them the privilege of living in the land of promise. Now God's promises may have been delayed, but they were not frustrated. Another generation is born in the desert. And so, when the story ends, that new generation is standing on the eastern edge of Canaan ready to possess the land and realize another component of God's covenant with them.

Paul, the emissary of Jesus, had the Book of Numbers in mind when he wrote 1 Corinthians. He appealed to these defining moments and said they were written down as an example to teach us, so that we will not make the same mistakes our spiritual ancestors did when they hungered after evil, worshiped false gods, and tested the limits of God's patience (1 Corinthians 10:1-11). Numbers reminded him—as it should us—that God's covenant promises are His gifts to His people. Still they demand something of us. They bring out the best in us when we hear and follow God's teaching. Ultimately, the horizon of God's promises lies beyond Abraham and Israel; His purpose in Numbers involves nothing less than the redemption of the entire world.

The people of the Lord have been out of Egypt for more than a year; and God has provided direction, instruction, and correction from inside columns of smoke, from on top of mountains, from anywhere His people were located. But now they have the special congregation tent—a complex, multilayered tent within an enclosed court, which they can take along on their journeys and set up anywhere. This is a holy place for the people of the Lord. It is the place for them to offer sacrifices; and inside this special tent, behind a heavy curtain, is the holiest place of all, where their spiritual leaders receive revelation from God. There are two Hebrew words used for this special place. One is literally "tent" while the other is "dwelling." The word "tent" usually refers to the entire congregation tent, where any Israelite may come to the outer court and sacrifice. The word "dwelling" is used for that extra holy place or sanctuary behind the curtain, the residence of God or the place of His revelation where only certain priests were allowed.

Now the people are ready to begin the preparation to move into the land promised to them by the Lord. First, He sets about organizing this enormous band of escaped slaves.

1 Nearly two years after they had left Egypt, the Israelites were still in the wild desert area of Sinai. But on the first day of the second month, the Eternal One spoke to Moses in the tent of congregation.

Eternal One (to Moses): 2Add up exactly how many Israelites there are, but don't merely count them. Identify all the people by their clans and families, right down to the individual name of every male. 3*Furthermore,* those who are 20 years old or older shall be considered potential soldiers. Aaron can help you organize them into groups and record them as armies. 4Your leadership team will include someone from each tribe who is the head of his extended family. 5They are: Elizur (Shedeur's son) from the Reuben family; 6Shelumiel (Zurishaddai's son) from the Simeon family; 7Nahshon (Amminidab's son) from the Judah family; 8Nethanel (Zuar's son) from the Issachar family; 9Eliab (Helon's son) from the Zebulun family; 10from the two branches of Joseph's family, Elishama (Ammihud's son) from the Ephraim family and Gamaliel (Pedahzur's son) from the Manasseh family; 11Abidan (Gideoni's son) from the Benjamin family; 12Ahiezer (Ammishaddai's son) from the Dan family; 13Pagiel (Ochran's son) from the Asher family; 14Eliasaph (Deuel's son) from the Gad family; 15and Ahira (Enan's son) from the Naphtali family. 16These are the tribal leaders and representatives of the extended families, chosen by the community. They are the heads of the clans that compose Israel.

17Moses and Aaron gathered these chosen leaders by name; 18and on the first day of the second month, they brought the whole community together to register by their clans and extended families and to specify individuals who were 20 years old and older. 19This Moses did in the wild desert area of Sinai, just as the Eternal One had directed him to do. 20-21This is the tally of the twelve clans by extended family, identifying those for battle (20 years old and older): from Reuben's tribe (Reuben was the firstborn of Jacob, whom God renamed "Israel")—46,500; 22-23from Simeon's tribe—59,300; 24-25from Gad—45,650; 26-27from Judah—74,600; 28-29from Issachar—54,400; 30-31from Zebulun—57,400; 32-35from Joseph, the Ephraim tribe—40,500; from Joseph, the Manasseh tribe—32,200; 36-37from Benjamin—35,400; 38-39from Dan—62,700; 40-41from Asher—41,500; 42-43from Naphtali—53,400. 44This is the organization that Moses, Aaron, and the heads of the twelve clans recorded according to their extended families. 45Those who were 20 years old or older and could fight in the army 46totaled 603,550.

► Three times God calls the Israelites to count their people. In Exodus 30, they count the population to develop an orderly funding program for the construction of the congregation tent.

Tribe	chapter 1 First Census	chapter 26 Second Census	change after 38 Years
Reuben	46,500	43,730	–2,770
Simeon	59,300	22,200	–37,100
Gad	45,650	40,500	–5,150
Judah	74,600	76,500	1,900
Issachar	54,400	64,300	9,900
Zebulun	57,400	60,500	3,100
Ephraim	40,500	32,500	–8,000
Manasseh	32,200	52,700	20,500
Benjamin	35,400	45,600	10,200
Dan	62,700	64,400	1,700
Asher	41,500	53,400	11,900
Naphtali	53,400	45,400	–8,000
Total	603,550	601,730	–1,820

Here God tells them to count the men eligible for fighting in their militia; and in chapter 26, after a plague has ravaged the people, they will once again determine the size and makeup of their fighting force. It is interesting to note the change in the number of warriors within each of the extended families. Some tribes experience a tremendous loss in the number of fighters, and other tribes have a considerable increase.

47-49The Levites were not included in this registration and organizing of the extended families' tribe members because the Eternal One had expressly told Moses not to count them.

Eternal One (to Moses): 50You will make the Levites responsible for the congregation tent that houses the terms of the covenant, its furnishings, and accoutrements. They will be the ones who carry all of it, maintain it, and camp around it. 51When it's time to move, it will be the Levites who pack up that tent; they are the ones who shall set it back up. If any outsider tries to get involved, he will be killed. 52The rest of the Israelites will camp according to their troops, each extended family under its own banner. 53*Remember: only* the Levites shall camp around the congregation tent that houses the terms of the covenant, guarding and servicing that place to spare the Israelites an outbreak of My wrath.

* 2:15 Most Hebrew manuscripts read, "Reuel's son."

54The Israelites did all this, exactly as the Eternal One had commanded through Moses.

2 The Eternal One spoke to Moses and Aaron.

Eternal One: 2Here's how the Israelite camp should be arranged, each man with his own banner under his extended family's ensign, all around the congregation tent, but facing the tent at a distance. 3-4*Group the twelve families according to the following four divisions:* The Judah division shall camp under their banner nearest sunrise, on the east. It will comprise the 74,600 troops of the Judah extended family with its head, Nahshon (Amminidab's son); 5-6next to them, the 54,400 troops from the Issachar tribe, headed by Nethanel (Zuar's son); 7-8and the 57,400 from the Zebulun tribe, headed by Eliab (Helon's son). 9These three extended families constitute the Judah division (186,400 total troops). They shall march first.

10-11On the south side, the Reuben division shall camp under their banner. It will comprise the 46,500 troops from the Reuben extended family with its head Elizur (Shedeur's son); 12-13and next to them the 59,300 troops from the Simeon tribe headed by Shelumiel (Zurishaddai's son); 14-15and 45,650 from the Gad tribe, with its head Eliasaph (Deuel's son).* 16Total troop numbers for the Reuben division are 151,450. They shall march second.

17The congregation tent, with its attendant Levites, shall always camp and move at the center of these divisions. Their camping order shall be the same as their order when they travel—well organized, each identified by its own banner.

18-19The Ephraim division will camp under their banner on the west. It includes the 40,500 troops from the Ephraim extended family, whose head is Elishama (Ammihud's son); 20-21and next to them, the 32,200 troops of the Manasseh tribe, headed by Gamaliel (Pedahzur's son); 22-23and finally 35,400 troops from the Benjamin tribe, headed by Abidan (Gideoni's son). 24The Ephraim division's total numbers are 108,100. They shall march third.

25-26*Finally*, the Dan division shall camp under their banner on the north side. It is composed of the 62,700 troops from the Dan extended family headed by Ahiezer (Ammishaddai's son); 27-28camping next to them, the Asher tribe, headed by Pagiel (Ochran's son) with its 41,500 troops; 29-30and the Naphtali tribe's 53,400 troops, headed by Ahira (Enan's son). 31The total numbers for the Dan division are 157,600, and they shall march out last under their banners.

32This is the organization of Israelites according to the twelve extended families—603,550 total arms-bearing troops. 33*Of course,* this does not include the Levite organization because the Eternal commanded Moses not to count them.

34*And things went according to plan.* Just as the Eternal had commanded Moses, the Israelites organized and camped and traveled by the twelve clans and their extended families, each with its own banner. Then they left.

3 At that time (when the Eternal One spoke with Moses on Mount Sinai), the lineage of Aaron and Moses went like this: 2Aaron's sons were Nadab (the eldest), Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar—3*actually*, they were his sons who were anointed as priests, who were supposed to work as priests. 4But Nadab and Abihu perished in the presence of the Eternal when they failed to follow God's instructions and offered profane fire at Sinai. They didn't have any children. The other two, Eleazar and Ithamar, carried on as priests for Aaron's lifetime.

5Then the Eternal One told Moses,

Eternal One: 6Summon the Levi tribe, and send them to Aaron, the priest. 7They are to serve him and all the people in front of the tent of the congregation. They are to do the work for the tent, My sacred dwelling place. 8They are in charge of the tent's furnishings. Their work in service to the congregation tent is on behalf of the people of Israel. 9These Levites are to be given exclusively to Aaron and Aaron's sons. 10Aaron and his descendants alone are the priests. If any outsider gets involved, he will be killed.

11And the Eternal One spoke later to Moses.

Eternal One: 12-13*As you know,* all firstborn children of each woman belong to Me. I made that clear when I killed all the Egyptian firstborn but spared Israel and its animals, setting them apart just for Me. But rather than giving all Israel's firstborn to Me, I accept the Levites as a substitute. They will be Mine. I am the Eternal One.

► The Levites as a whole are given into religious service sacrificing the animals and serving in the congregation tent rather than taking all the firstborn males, as was done with the livestock. To have drawn the servants of the Lord from the entire nation would have resulted in great disruption of each of the families and tribes.

14God formerly gave these instructions to Moses in the wild desert area of Sinai.

Eternal One: 15Organize the male Levites (including infants, one month old and older) by their clans and extended families.

16So Moses did just as the Eternal One told him. 17Levi's three sons were Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. 18Gershon's sons, by their clans, were Libni and Shimei. 19Kohath's sons, by their clans, were Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. 20Merari's sons, by their clans, were Mahli and Mushi. These, remember, are specifically the Levite clans by their extended families.

21So within Gershon were the Libnite and Shimeite clans. 22Counting just the males one month old and older, 7,500 were organized. 23They camped in the area behind the congregation tent on the west. 24Eliasaph (Lael's son) served as head of the Gershonite extended family. 25Their jobs were to take care of everything related to the congregation tent, both the place of revelation and its covering, the screen for the congregation tent's entrance, 26the curtains for the court surrounding the place of revelation and the altar, its entrance screen, the ropes, and anything else for the tent.

27Within Kohath were the Amramite, Izharite, Hebronite, and Uzzielite clans. 28Counting just the males one month old and older, there were 8,600* who worked for the sacred place. 29They camped on the south side of the congregation tent. 30Uzziel's son, Elizaphan, was their head. 31These Kohathites were to take care of everything associated with the chest, the table, the lampstand, the altars, and the furnishings of the sanctuary that the priests use, the screen, and anything else inside the sacred place. 32Priest Aaron's son, Eleazar, was head of the Levite leaders. He was in charge of overseeing the people who took care of the sacred place.

33Within Merari were the Mahlite and Mushite clans, 34of whom 6,200 males one month or older were organized. 35Abihail's son, Zuriel, was their leader. They were instructed to camp on the northern side of the tent area, 36and their work was to maintain the planks of the tent, its bars, posts, and sockets; plus all the furnishings and any other wood items; 37as well as the posts surrounding the courtyard together with their sockets, pegs, and ropes.

38Moses, Aaron, and Aaron's sons camped in front of the congregation tent, on the east facing sunrise, where they worked according to the needs of the sanctuary and on behalf of the Israelites. If an outsider trespassed in this area, he would be killed. 39-45The total number of Levites whom Moses and Aaron organized, according to the Eternal's command, were 22,273. These males, one month or older, Moses listed by name.

The Eternal One told Moses,

Eternal One (to Moses): As a substitute for all the Israelite firstborn children and animals (as all of them are Mine), take all the Levites and all the Levites' animals, which shall belong to Me.* 46But because there are 273 more Israelite firstborn children than there are Levites, you shall pay a substitute price: 47five shekels for each (calculated by the sanctuary weight, which is 35 pounds to the shekel), 48and give that money as a substitute price to Aaron and Aaron's sons.

49-51So Moses did all that concerning the substitute price, just as the Eternal commanded, and it amounted to 47,775 pounds of metal.

4 The Eternal One spoke to Moses and Aaron.

► A census can be ominous or encouraging. Sometimes everyone on the list has to die before a new generation can take the land (chapter 1), but sometimes, like in this chapter, it is an occasion to highlight God's people, the Levites.

Eternal One: 2From among the Levite clans, organize Kohathite men by their extended families 3between the ages of 30 and 50, who serve in the congregation tent. 4They are the ones who shall deal with the most sacred objects associated with the congregation tent. 5When it's time to break camp, follow these instructions: Aaron and his sons shall take down the screen curtain and cover the covenant chest. 6Over that, they shall lay a sea-cow skin,* and over that, a pure blue cloth. They shall then slide in the chest's poles. 7Regarding the table that displays the offerings, they shall spread it with a blue cloth and set the bowls, ladles, cups, pitchers for the drink offering, and regular bread on it. 8This they shall cover with a crimson cloth, and over that a sea-cow skin. And they shall slide in its poles too. 9Regarding the seven-branched lampstand, they shall cover it—the lamps, tongs, fire pans, and all the oil receptacles used with it—with a blue cloth. 10They shall put it and all its furnishings in a sea-cow skin and set that on the frame for carrying. 11Concerning the golden altar for incense, they shall cover it first with a blue cloth, and over that with a sea-cow skin. They shall insert its poles. 12*Likewise,* all of the furnishings used in sanctuary service should go into a blue cloth, be covered with a sea-cow skin, and set on a carrying frame. 13They will need to empty the fat ashes from the burnt offering altar before spreading a purple cloth over it. 14Then load all the things used with it—the fire pans, long forks, spatulas, and basins—and cover the whole with a sea-cow skin. Then they shall slide in the poles. 15When Aaron and his sons are done covering all the holy objects and furnishings, then and only then (so that they don't touch the sacred things and die), the Kohathites can approach. They are the ones who shall transport these items of the congregation tent. 16Aaron's son, Eleazar, shall be responsible for the oil used for light, the fragrant incense, the regular grain offering, the oil used for anointing, the whole congregation tent, and every holy thing within it, including each and every furnishing.

17(continuing instructions to Moses and Aaron) 18-19Take special care to pack everything well so that the people of the Kohathite clans are not killed on account of touching the most sacred things when they shouldn't. Aaron and his sons can direct each person's role and their transportation of the items. 20The Kohathites should never look on the sacred things for even a moment, or else they'll die.

21(continuing instructions to Moses) 22-24Add up the Gershonites, ages 30-50, by their extended families and clans. These are the ones who shall perform the following specific tasks required for the congregation tent: 25They shall be responsible for transporting the tent curtains, the congregation tent with its covering and the sea-cow skin over that (as well as the screen for the tent's entrance), 26the hangings for the courtyard area, the screen at the entrance gate of the designated area around the tent and altar, the ropes, and everything they need for service. And they shall do whatever is needed to maintain and care for these things. 27-28These Gershonites shall answer to Aaron the priest and his sons (particularly Ithamar) with respect to what exactly they should carry and do; and you shall assign into their care what they need to carry. This is what the Gershonite clans are to do concerning the congregation tent.

29-30Number the Merarites in the same way—those ages 30-50 by extended families and clans, whoever qualifies to work for the good of the congregation tent. 31They are to carry the following things (and that's all they need to do for the congregation tent): the tent framework with its bars, pillars, and foundations; 32the pillars of the courtyard area along with their bases, pegs, ropes, and all their furnishings and related items. Specify each object that each one must carry. 33That's all the Merarite clans need to do for the congregation tent. They'll answer specifically to Ithamar (the son of Aaron the priest).

34-37So Moses, Aaron, and all the heads of the community did as the Lord had instructed. They organized the Kohathites by the clans and the extended families, ages 30-50, who were eligible to work on behalf of the congregation tent and found that there were 2,750. 38-45The Gershonites whom Moses and Aaron organized by each clan and extended family numbered 2,630; and the Merarites—3,200. 46All were listed from the Levites organized by Moses, Aaron, and the heads of the families, 47who were between the ages of 30 and 50 and capable of performing their designated congregation tent tasks of maintenance and transportation, 48numbered 8,580. 49Each one had a job specified by the Eternal One and dictated through Moses. Each one was recorded by his job as the Eternal had commanded Moses to do.

5 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

► Now that the arrangement of the camp, the ordering of the families, and the organization of their defenses is complete, God begins sanctifying the people. Because this camp is a holy place—a place where God has chosen to dwell among His people—purity is an obvious concern. But beyond the religious regulations, concern for cleanliness and rules for social interaction are essential because of the vast number of people traveling together. There are more than 600,000 males over the society's average age of 20 years, and logically these men make up one-quarter of society. The laws given to the people are not simply religious instruction, but are necessary for the good morale and accompanying social concerns of such a large population, concerns such as transmission of diseases, mistreatment of individuals, and suppression of crime.

Eternal One: 2-3Tell the Israelites to send outside of the camp anyone, male or female, who is ritually unclean and could spread it to others, namely those with skin lesions, and discharges, or who have touched a dead person. They need to stay outside of the camp in order not to ritually contaminate My dwelling place among them.

4The Israelites did exactly that and sent them outside the camp, just as the Eternal told Moses.

Eternal One (to Moses): 6Tell the Israelites that sinning against each other is just like abandoning Me. All incur guilt, men and women alike. 7He or she must confess, then pay back in kind (if the crime is robbery, or some material offense) what he or she has cost to the wronged person and add one-fifth more. 8If there are no people in the wronged party's immediate family to receive the payback, then it should go* to the priest along with a ram, which the guilty party shall supply as an atonement sacrifice. 9-10The priest also gets anything an Israelite donates. Sacred gifts, anything—they then belong to the priest who receives them.

11(continuing instructions to Moses) 12Tell the Israelites that if a married woman sneaks off to commit adultery, 13that is, if a man has sexual relations with her but her husband doesn't know, even if no one can say for certain that she tarnished herself because no one saw or caught her, 14and her husband feels suspicious and becomes jealous, whether or not she's guilty; 15then he should bring his wife to the priest along with the requisite offering: two quarts of barley flour. Because it's an offering for this particular purpose, jealousy (namely, a grain offering that brings back to mind some kind of wrongdoing), he shouldn't include any oil or incense with it.

16-19Then the priest will set her in front of Me, mix dust from the congregation tent's floor into a jar of holy water, and loosen her hair. He'll make her take an oath and hold the grain offering of jealousy while he holds the curse-causing, bitter water and says, "If you are innocent of this charge, if no man had sexual relations with you, if you didn't reject your husband's authority and tarnish yourself; then let this bitter water have no curse on you. 20But if you are guilty of rejecting your husband's authority and having sexual relations with someone other than your husband," 21[here the priest should make the woman say the cursing-oath], "then may the Eternal One make your name a shunning reproach, an insult or a warning among the people, because you will have a miscarriage* and your belly will swell. 22*If you are guilty,* may this curse-causing water run through your bowels, make your belly swell, and your womb miscarry." And the woman shall say, "Amen. Let it be so."

23The priest will write these curses on a scroll and wash the words into the bitter water. 24He'll then make the woman drink the bitter water that will run right through her, causing terrible pain. 25The priest will take the barley-flour jealousy offering that she was holding, raise it up high before the Me, bring it to the altar, 26burn a handful (a memorial portion) of it into smoke on the altar, and then make the woman drink the water. 27The effect (much pain with her belly swelling and her womb miscarrying) or lack thereof will show whether or not she's guilty of marital unfaithfulness. If guilty, her name will be a curse among the Israelites. 28If innocent and pure, she'll be free from the water's effects and still be able to have children.

► This judgment ritual is a mixture of dust or ash and water to bring objectivity to the accusation of adultery on a wife. The result is either clearing her name or confirming the claim against her. The administration is reserved for the priest, and the results are final.

* 5:8 Hebrew manuscripts add, "to the Eternal One." * 5:21 Literally, thigh to fall away

Eternal One: 29This is what should be done in a jealousy case, when a woman is rejecting her husband's authority and sleeping with other men, 30or simply if her husband gets jealous and suspicious of her. The husband will bring her before Me, and the priest will enact this law. 31The man shall not be charged with anything or considered to have done wrong; the woman must deal with the consequences of her behavior.

6 The Eternal One spoke to Moses again.

Eternal One: 2Tell the Israelites that when anyone of them, man or woman, takes the special Nazirite vow, which distinguishes this Israelite as set apart for Me, 3-4he shall abstain from alcohol, even from any grape products—vinegar, juice, or the fruit itself (dried or fresh), seeds, or skin—for the entire time he is a Nazirite. 5Also, the Nazirite shall not cut the hair on his head but let it grow long for the duration of the Nazirite vow because he is holy and set apart for Me. 6And the Nazirite shall not go near a corpse during that time, 7even if the dead person is a parent or sibling, lest the Nazirite become ritually impure and ignore the fact of his consecration to God. 8For the entirety of his Nazirite separation, he is holy to Me.

9If it happens that someone suddenly dies near a Nazirite, accidentally rendering his special hair ritually impure, the Nazirite should shave it off on the day he purifies himself and again on the seventh day. 10-11On the eighth day, the Nazirite will purify his head, bring two turtledoves and two young pigeons as offerings—sin and burnt—to the priest at the entrance of the congregation tent. The priest shall offer to make things right after inadvertent proximity to a corpse. 12The Nazirite shall also bring a year-old male lamb as an offering for guilt. His head shall be made holy again at that time and the vow reinstated, not counting the previous days because he was defiled.

13The following is how things should be done after the Nazirite has satisfied the duration of the vows: the offering should be brought to the entrance of the congregation tent 14to present the gift to Me—unblemished, one-year-old male and female lambs as burnt and sin offerings, respectively; one unblemished ram as a peace offering, 15a basket of flatbread, delicate cakes of fine flour and oil, crackers spread with oil, plus the regular grain and drink offerings. 16-17The priest shall present all these (sin and burnt offerings, peace offering, and grain and drink offerings) before Me as the law instructs for each offering. 18Then and there at the entrance to the congregation tent, the Nazirite shall shave his consecrated head and burn the hair in the fire underneath the peace sacrifice. 19Once the ram's shoulder has boiled, the priest shall take it and one piece of flatbread and one cracker from the basket, and place those things on the outstretched palms of the shaved Nazirite. 20Then the priest shall raise them up in offering to the Eternal, and keep them as the priest's holy portion along with the wave offering breast and contributed thigh, which were likewise offered up. After all this, the Nazirite may drink wine.

21This is the instruction for the Nazirite who takes a vow. The offerings to Me must be just so, besides anything else that the Nazirite can afford to give. Whatever has been promised, he must do, in keeping with the law for his consecration.

22(continuing instruction to Moses) 23Tell Aaron and his sons to bless the Israelites by saying, 24The Eternal One bless and keep you.

25May He make His face shine upon you
and be gracious to you.
26The Eternal lift up His countenance to look upon you and give you peace.

27In this way, they will set My name upon the Israelites, and I will bless them.

7 When Moses finished setting up the congregation tent, sanctifying, anointing, and setting apart it and everything in it—its furnishings, altar, and sacred receptacles, as befits God's holy dwelling place, 2then Israel's tribe leaders, the heads of their extended families, the leaders of everyone who had been organized and counted, came forward to make an offering. 3*In total,* they presented to the Eternal in His tent six covered carts (one for every two leaders) and twelve oxen to pull them (one for each leader). 4Then the Eternal One responded to the offering.

► Logistical concerns are paramount with this new reality of a traveling nation. With their large numbers and their countless livestock, moving this caravan is a logistical nightmare. Just moving the congregation tent is a challenge, involving a number of families and special carts to carry the tons of layers of the tent and the many utensils for worship. The most holy items are carried manually, but without physical contact. Thus God provides a system of carrying poles fed through loops so the holy item is not touched. The actual arrangement of the caravan is also specified, as well as the arrangement of the tribes in relation to the congregation tent.

Eternal One (to Moses): 5Accept these things, and give them to those Levites who need them to service the congregation tent.

6-8Moses did just that, distributing the gifts based on the needs of the Levites' respective tasks: the Gershonites got two ox-carts and four oxen to haul the tents' many coverings; the Merarites got four ox-carts and eight oxen to haul the tents' heavy frames and stands, and Ithamar (Priest Aaron's son) supervised them. 9The Kohathites didn't get any because the sacred things for which they were responsible were smaller furnishings and could be carried on the men's own shoulders. 10As the altar was being properly anointed, the leaders came forward at its dedication with their offerings 11because the Eternal had directed Moses to oversee that one leader per day came forward with his offering for the altar's dedication.

12Nahshon (Amminadab's son) of the Judah tribe was first. 13He brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds (to hold the blood of sacrifices as it was dashed on the altar), according to the sanctuary scales. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 14*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 15and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 16For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 17for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. These are the things Nahshon, Amminadab's son, brought forward.

24Eliab (son of Helon), head of the Zebulunite tribe, brought the third day's offering—25one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 26*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 27and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 28For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 29and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. This is what Eliab, Helon's son, brought as an offering.

30On the fourth day, Elizur (son of Shedeur), head of the Reubenite tribe, presented the offering. 31He, too, brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 32*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 33and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 34For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 35and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. These things Elizur (Shedeur's son) presented as an offering.

36On the fifth day, Shelumiel (son of Zurishaddai), head of the Simeonite tribe, brought the offering. 37*Like those preceding,* he brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 38*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 39and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 40For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; and 41for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. This is what Shelumiel (Zurishaddai's son) brought.

42On the sixth day, Eliasaph (son of Deuel), head of the Gadite tribe, like those before him, 43brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 44*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 45and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 46For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 47and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. This is what Eliasaph (Deuel's son) brought as an offering.

48Elishama (son of Ammihud), head of the Ephraimite half-tribe, brought the seventh day's offering. 49He also brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 50*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 51and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 52For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 53and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. These things Elishama (Ammihud's son) offered.

54Gamaliel (son of Pedahzur), head of the Manassehite half-tribe, brought the offering on the eighth day. 55He brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 56*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 57and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 58For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 59and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. So Gamaliel (Pedahzur's son) brought the same offering as his Israelite brothers had on each of the days before.

60On the ninth day, Abidan (son of Gideoni), head of the Benjaminite tribe, also 61brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 62*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 63and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 64For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 65and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. These things Abidan (Gideoni's son) offered.

66On the tenth day, Ahiezer (son of Ammishaddai), head of the Danite tribe, brought the same offering: 67He brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 68*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 69and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 70For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 71and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. This is what Ahiezer (Ammishaddai's son) brought as an offering.

72Pagiel (son of Ochran), head of the Asherite tribe, brought the eleventh day's offering, which consisted of the same things: 73He brought one silver plate weighing three and one-quarter pounds and one silver bowl of one and three-quarter pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 74*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 75and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 76For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 77and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. This is what Pagiel (Ochran's son) offered.

78On the 12th day, Ahira (son of Enan), head of the Naphtalite tribe, 79brought one silver plate weighing 3¼ pounds and one silver bowl of 1¾ pounds, as the sanctuary weighs things. Both were filled with prime flour mixed with oil to compose a grain offering. 80*He also brought* one gold dish (four ounces in weight) filled with incense; 81and for a burnt offering, he brought a young bull, a ram, and a yearling male lamb. 82For a sin offering, he brought one male goat; 83and for a peace offering sacrifice, he brought two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five yearling male lambs. Like those before him, Ahira (Enan's son) brought these things to offer.

84This is what the heads of the Israelite families offered up at the occasion of the altar's dedication (when it was anointed): 12 silver plates, 12 silver bowls (to hold the blood of sacrifices as it was dashed on the altar), and 12 gold dishes. 85Because each plate weighed 3¼ pounds and each bowl weighed 1¾ pounds, the total silver was 60 pounds (based on the sanctuary standard); 86and the 12 gold, incense-filled dishes all together weighed three pounds; 87and for the burnt offering, there was a total of 12 bulls, 12 rams, 12 male yearling lambs, plus the grain offering and the 12 male goats for the sin offering. 88As for the peace offering, there were 24 oxen, 60 rams, 60 male goats, and 60 male yearling lambs. All of these were for the altar's dedication after it was anointed.

89*So it was established.* When Moses went into the congregation tent to speak to them, he could hear the voice of God speaking to him from between the winged guardians* above the seat of mercy on the covenant chest. Thus the Eternal spoke to Moses.

8 The Eternal One told Moses,

Eternal One: 2Tell Aaron that when he sets up the seven lamps, they should illuminate the area in front of the lampstand.

3Aaron did just that, arranging the lamps so that they shed light in front of the lampstand across from the presence table, exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses. 4The lampstand itself was made entirely out of hammered gold, its stem and all the petals, in keeping with the pattern the Eternal had given to Moses.*

Eternal One *(to Moses): 6Separate the Levites from the other Israelites, and make them ritually pure 7by sprinkling the cleansing water on them, making sure their entire bodies are clean-shaven and their clothes are washed. Then they'll be appropriately pure. 8After that, tell them to select a bull-calf along with the prime flour-oil combination (the grain offering). You, too, select another bull-calf for use as a sin offering. 9Get the Levites to the congregation tent, and have them stand in front of it. Gather all the other Israelites, too, 10so that when you present the Levites before Me, the Israelites can lay hands on them to indicate that they are the substitutes for all Israel's firstborn. 11*At that point,* Aaron shall present the Levites as an offering lifted up to Me, so that the Levites will work on behalf of all the Israelites in service to Me. 12Next, the Levites can lay their hands on the bulls' heads, one of which is going to be a sin offering to Me, and the other will be a burnt offering to cover the Levites, hiding their sins and protecting them from My presence. 13*Finally,* make clear that the Levites are to assist Aaron and Aaron's sons, lifting them up in front of and for Me to demonstrate that they are that kind of offering. 14In this way, you will show how the Levites are distinct from all other Israelites. They belong directly to Me.

15After all of this, the purification and presentation as an uplifted offering, they will be ready to do congregation tent maintenance and work. 16-17Indeed, they are uniquely designated for Me among the Israelites. Those Levites substitute for the Israelites' firstborn children and animals, which I am within My rights to demand since I killed all the Egyptian firstborn on My peoples' behalf and so consecrated all Israelite firstborn as My own. 18But see, I am willing to accept this representative group—that the Levites, from among the Israelites, will be Mine, 19given to Aaron and his sons from the Israelite people to do whatever is required concerning the congregation tent: maintaining its service and covering Israel's sins for them so they don't make Me send a plague to them because they overstepped the bounds of My sanctuary.

* 7:89 Hebrew, cherubim * 8:4 Exodus 25:31-40

20Everyone did as ordered—Moses, Aaron, and all the Israelites gathered there—handling the Levites exactly as the Eternal One had instructed Moses to be sure was done: 21the Levites washed their clothes and purified themselves, Aaron presented them as an uplifted offering in front of the Eternal, and Aaron covered them in front of Him so they would look pure. 22From then on, they were all set to do what they were supposed to in maintenance and work on the congregation tent, under the direction and supervision of Aaron and his sons. Just as the Eternal had instructed Moses concerning the Levites, so it was done.

► Just like in Leviticus 4:23, the language of 8:24 suggests that the priestly duty is associated not only with divine service but with divine war. Certain Levites of certain ages would maintain sacred space and behavior as Israel prepared to conquer the land.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 24This is how it shall be for the Levites: Those who are 25 years or older shall do whatever is necessary for the congregation tent, 25but when they reach 50, they shall retire and leave the work to the younger ones. 26They can still help out in the fraternity of Levites occasionally, but they shouldn't do any of the priestly work. This is the way you should handle the matter of the Levites and their role.

9 On the first new moon of the second year after the people had left Egypt, there in the Sinai Wilderness, the Eternal One spoke to Moses again.

Eternal One: 2The Israelites should observe Passover at the time it's supposed to happen: 3*offering the sacrifice* at evening twilight on the 14th day of this month, exactly according to the regulations we've already discussed.*

4-5So Moses told the Israelites that they should go ahead with the Passover, offering the sacrifice at its designated evening twilight on the 14th day of this month—in the wild desert of Sinai. They did exactly as the Eternal told Moses they should. 6Complicating things, however, was the fact that some men had needed to handle a dead body and so were impure and couldn't offer the sacrifice right then. They came to Aaron and Moses right away.

Men: 7Why should we be disallowed from offering the Eternal's sacrifice along with the rest of the Israelites at the appropriate time, just because the disposing of a dead body made us ritually impure?

Moses: 8Just hold on a little while. Let me find out what the Eternal has to say about it.

The Lord provides a backup plan for those who can't celebrate Passover properly, but it isn't to replace normal practices.

9The Eternal One told Moses,

Eternal One: 10Tell the Israelites, if any one of you or your descendants becomes ritually impure due to the necessity of handling a dead body, he can nevertheless still celebrate My Passover a month after everyone else does. Likewise, those who are on the road, a long way from My tent, can celebrate Passover to the Eternal then too. 11It should be observed at evening twilight on the fourteenth day of the second month, eating the lamb they sacrificed with unleavened bread and bitter greens. 12Make certain that not one of its bones is broken* and the entire animal is consumed by morning, in keeping with standard procedure for this Passover festival. 13Everyone who is present and ritually pure must observe this foundational moment. If a person fails to observe the Passover, it is a serious offense. Such a person will be ostracized from the community, guilty of not offering to the Eternal at the right time. 14If a visiting foreigner would like to observe the Eternal's Passover with you, he is welcome. Just make certain that he does so completely, exactly as you Israelites are supposed to do. Everyone must observe it the same way, whether foreigner or native to the land.

15When the congregation tent was finally erected and assembled, the cloud of the presence of God covered it and the place where the terms of the covenant were kept. In the dark of night, the presence of God looked like a fire and marked the spot until morning. 16And so it continued—cloud cover by day, and something like fiery storm clouds at night. 17Whenever the cloud lifted up, the Israelites would pack up and move, and wherever the cloud stopped, they would settle. 18This is how the Eternal One indicated when the Israelites should travel and where they should set up camp. As long as the cloud stayed still over the congregation tent, the Israelites also stayed at their tents. 19When the cloud remained many days over the tent, the Israelites stayed there and served the Eternal. 20When the cloud remained only a few days, they did the same. They always followed the command of the Eternal, whether staying or leaving. 21Sometimes it happened that the cloud remained in place only through the night. So, in the morning, they would get going again. Day or night, in this manner they went as God directed. 22Whether it was a couple of days or just a month or even longer, however long the cloud covered the tent, the Israelites stayed put; but when it lifted, off they went again. 23*So it was* that the Israelites obeyed God's command. When the Eternal One indicated that they stop, they stopped; when He directed them to move, they moved. They served Him exactly as God commanded them through Moses.

10 The Eternal One continued, instructing Moses.

► In the first two months of the second year, the nation is organized for religious service, for war, for civil order, and for travel. On the first day of the first month, construction of the congregation tent is completed and dedication of the altar and the priests begins. On the eighth day, the dedication and ordination of the priests is completed. On the twelfth day, the dedication of the altar is completed, the Levites are appointed, and normal services begin. On the fourteenth day, the Passover is celebrated.

In the second month, the census of the men over 20 years of age is started. On the fourteenth day, a second Passover is celebrated for those who were impure from the first celebration. Finally, on the twentieth day, all the Israelites begin their travels to Canaan.

Eternal One (to Moses): 2To more easily get the people's attention and to summon the people and notify the people that they should break camp, make yourself two trumpets out of fine, hammered silver. 3When you blow both trumpets, everyone should gather with you in front of the congregation tent; 4but if you blow only one of the trumpets, then only the leaders, the heads of the divisions, need to gather with you. 5-6You can also use them to sound an alarm. Make the alarm sound when it's time to move on. When you need to break camp, one alarm will indicate that the people on the east side should depart; the second will be the sign for those on the south side of camp to depart. 7But when you only want to gather the people together (not to break camp), simply blow the normal sound.

There are several patterns of trumpet sounds for various purposes; they are distinguished by the length of the blast and the amount of separation between sounds.

8Aaron's people, the priests, shall blow them; this is a decree of peace for all generations to come. 9*There will be times,* when you're living in the land I've promised to you, that you'll need to fight against people who oppress you. Use the trumpets to sound an alarm. Your God, the Eternal, will remember you, and you will be saved from such enemies. 10Also use the trumpets in happy times. Blow them when you celebrate festivals and make sacrifices. On days of joy, feasting and new moons, sound the trumpets as you offer your burnt offerings and sacrifices of peace offerings. Again, they will be a reminder to your God. I am the Eternal One, your True God.

11 When the cloud finally rose up (on the twentieth day of the second month of the second year) from over the congregation tent that housed the terms of the covenant, 12 the Israelites set out from the Sinai Wilderness until the cloud indicated they should stop in the Paran Wilderness. 13 This was the first time they were organized and traveled in this manner—as the Eternal had instructed through Moses.

14 First the Judahite division left, following their banner. Judah's tribal troops were led by Nahshon, Amminadab's son. 15 The Issachar tribal troops were led by Nethanel, Zuar's son; 16 and Helon's son, Eliab, led the Zebulunite tribal troops.

17 At that point, the tent was properly disassembled and carried out by the Gershonites and Merarites.

18 They were followed by the Reubenite division, following their banner. Reuben's tribal troops were led by Shedeur's son, Elizur. 19 The Simeon tribe's troops were led by Shelumiel, Zurishaddai's son; 20 and the Gadite tribal army followed the direction of Eliasaph, son of Deuel.

21 Next to leave were the Kohathites, who carried the holy things as instructed. The tent would be set up again before they arrived by the Gershonites and Merarites.

22 Then the Ephraimite division departed under their banner. Ephraim's tribal troops were led by Elishama (Ammihud's son). 23 The Manassehite tribal troops were led by Gamaliel, son of Pedahzur; 24 and Benjamin's tribal troops were led by Gideoni's son, Abidan.

25 Finally, at the rear came the Danite division following their banner. Dan's tribal troops were led by Ahiezer, Ammishaddai's son. 26 The Asherite tribal troops went under the leadership of Pagiel, Ochran's son; 27 and the Naphtali tribal troops under Enan's son, Ahira. 28 This is the order in which the Israelites broke camp and journeyed through the wilderness.

29 When they were just about to depart, Moses took aside Hobab (son of Reuel, Moses' father-in-law), his Midianite brother-in-law.

Moses: Why don't you come with us? We are going to the place that the Eternal promised to give to us. We'll treat you well in the land. After all, the Eternal said that things will be good for Israel.

Hobab: 30 No, thanks. I'm going to head back home, to my own place and to my kin.

Moses: 31 Please don't leave us. You know where it's best to camp out here in the wilderness, and we could certainly benefit from your watching out for us. 32 It'll work out well for you! The Eternal has promised good things for us, and we'll be sure that you have a share in them too.

33 So off they went, and they traveled for three days after leaving the Eternal's mountain, known as Sinai or Horeb. At the very front of the traveling company was the precious box containing the terms of Israel's agreement with their God—namely, the chest containing their covenant with the Eternal to seek out a good resting place. 34 God's cloud led them on by day when they broke camp and set out. 35 When the chest began to move, Moses would always say, Moses: Eternal One, arise! Get up, and may Your enemies scatter before You, Your opponents flee from Your presence.

36 And when the chest settled down again, Moses would say,

Moses: O Eternal One, turn back ten thousand to Israel's numbers.*

► The people of God are being instructed by Moses, but they are being led by God Himself. They can see the cloud of God before them and hear the blowing of trumpets telling them to move, but at the very front of their column is the chest of the covenant. God's presence and His promises go before them as they wander through this wilderness. One of the great truths of Scripture is that God may send His people out, but they are never alone and He is ever before them. In the same way the Hebrews have led their sheep rather than driving them, God leads His people rather than forcing them to go first into the unknown or into battle.

* 10:36 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

11 The people griped about life in the wilderness, how hard they felt things were for them, and these evil complaints came up to the ears of the Eternal One. He was furious about this ingratitude, faithlessness, and lack of vision. His anger was kindled, and His fire raged among them and devoured some of the camp's perimeter. 2The people of Israel cried out and ran to Moses and begged him to do something! Moses did. He prayed to the Eternal One, and the flames settled down. 3On account of this incident of the burning fire from the Eternal, the place where it happened is called Taberah, which means "burning."

4A contingent of Israelites had a strong craving for different food, and the Israelites started complaining again.

Israelites: Who will give us meat to eat? 5Remember in Egypt when we could eat whatever amount of fish we wanted, or even the abundant cucumbers, melons, leeks, onions, and garlic. But this, this can hardly be called food at all! 6Our appetites have dried up. All we ever have to look at is manna, manna, manna.

7-9*The thing about the manna is this:* It is like coriander seed but the golden color of gum resin, falling on the camp with the morning dew. The people could just walk around and pick it up. After grinding it with millstones to a kind of flour or crushing it with a mortar, they boiled it in a pot and then formed it into patties. These tasted something like cake prepared with oil, a kind of sweet bread. 10Well, Moses overheard the people in all the clans moaning at the door of their tents about the manna. The Eternal grew really angry again, and Moses thought the whole situation was wrong.

Moses *(to the Lord): 11Why are You so hard on me? I am your devoted servant. Why don't You look on me with affection? Why do I have the great burden of these spiteful people? 12Did I conceive them, bear them, and give birth to them? Why should You tell me to carry them—as a nanny does some suckling infant—into the land that You swore to their ancestors? 13And now, where am I supposed to find meat to feed this crowd crying out that I give them food to eat? 14I simply cannot keep carrying them along. They are way too heavy. 15If You plan to treat me like this, then just kill me now. If You care about me at all, just put me out of my misery so I do not have to live out this distress.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 16*Listen, just do this for Me.* Get 70 community elders, ones whom you know are real leaders among the people, and bring them into the congregation tent where we meet. Tell them to stand with you there. 17I will then descend among you. I will speak with you, and withdraw some of My Spirit from you and place it on them so that they can help you with the burden of this people. Then you won't have to carry it all alone. 18Then tell the people this: "Purify yourselves for what will happen tomorrow. You will eat meat because you have cried to Me, saying, 'If only someone would give us meat to eat! We were content back in Egypt.' The Eternal will indeed give you meat, and you shall eat it. 19You'll be eating meat not just one day, or two or five or ten or twenty, 20but every single day for an entire month. Meat, meat, and more meat. You'll eat meat until it comes out of your noses and you can't stand it anymore. For you've rejected Me, who is with you, by asking why you left Egypt."

Moses: 21There are 600,000 people walking with me here. You say that You're going to give them heaps of meat for an entire month? Think of the logistics! 22Are there really enough sheep and cattle traveling with us to slaughter, or enough fish in the sea for that matter, to provide such a supply?

Eternal One: 23Do you doubt Me? Do you question My power, that I can do what I've said? Just watch—you'll see what will happen.

24So Moses went out and told the people what the Eternal One had said. He also gathered 70 community elders and situated them around the congregation tent. 25Then the Eternal descended in a cloud and talked with Moses, and He took some of the Spirit He laid on Moses and laid it on those 70 elders. At the moment when the Spirit touched them, each one prophesied, but they did not continue doing this.

26A couple of men (Eldad and Medad) who had been organized during the Israelite counting, didn't come to the tent but remained in the greater camp area and prophesied there. 27A young man ran to Moses and reported it.

Young Man: Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp!

28Joshua (Nun's son and Moses' assistant from the time he was little), also was alarmed.

Joshua: Moses, my lord, stop them!

Moses: 29Are you so agitated on my account? If only all of the Eternal's people were prophets, that He would lay His Spirit on them.

Joshua thinks they are usurping Moses' authority. But Moses' response is the opposite—if only there were more like them!

30After this, Moses and the elders of Israel went back into the greater camp.

31*Suddenly* the Eternal One blew a wind carrying quails in from around the sea and letting them drop all around the camp. There were quails as far as the eye could see—a day's journey on one side of the camp and another day's journey on the other side, and they were about three feet deep on the ground. 32The people got to work right away, gathering the quails. It took them the rest of that day and all night and the entire next day to pick up all the birds. Finally, no one had fewer than 60 bushels, and they spread them out all over the camp. 33While the people were still biting meat off the bone, before it was even chewed, the anger of the Eternal was unleashed against them. He struck the people down with a terrible plague. 34*Because He killed so many of them* on account of their craving and because of these buried there, the place was called Kibroth-hattaavah, which means "graves of cravings." 35The people journeyed on from there to Hazeroth, where they stayed for awhile.

12 While they were at Hazeroth, Miriam and Aaron chastised Moses for marrying a foreign woman—a Cushite (and it was true that he did indeed marry such an African).

Miriam and Aaron: 2Has the Eternal One spoken only through Moses? No, the Eternal has also spoken through us.

Now, the Eternal One heard this. 3For his part, Moses was a uniquely humble fellow, more humble than anyone in the entire world. 4All of a sudden, the Eternal called the three siblings together.

Eternal One: Come here, you three—Moses, Aaron, and Miriam. Join Me at the congregation tent.

They did. 5The Eternal One descended in a cloud-column, stood at the tent opening, and summoned just Aaron and Miriam. They came forward.

Eternal One: 6Listen to Me. When there are prophets in your midst, I, the Eternal One, will show Myself to them in visions, and will sound My voice in their dreams. 7It's different with My servant, Moses. I have entrusted him above anyone else in My whole house, 8and with him I communicate face-to-face. We speak directly and without riddles. He can even see the very form of the Eternal. So why aren't you nervous about criticizing My servant, Moses?

► Moses is described as uniquely close to the Lord. He is singled out as God's servant, a distinction reserved for a few in the Old Testament, with David being the most notable. His importance is underscored by God's unique communication with Moses. It is direct, plain, and without trances, visions, or dreams. Literally, the communication is right in God's face. The idea here is that it is not veiled but intimate; there is a closeness between God and Moses no other person shares. But in the same way that Jesus will be understood only by those who know Him and are known by Him, God's communication to Moses is different. It is not a riddle that is hard to understand or easy to confuse. God is seen and heard clearly by His servant and friend, Moses.

9The Eternal left, quite angry with Miriam and Aaron. 10When the cloud lifted from the congregation tent, you could see that Miriam had been stricken with a disfiguring skin condition. Her skin looked white, like snow. Aaron looked at her, saw this, 11and immediately turned to Moses.

Aaron: Please, Moses, my lord, don't punish us for this offense that we so stupidly committed. 12Don't leave her in this partial death—like a stillborn baby whose flesh is already half-rotted away!

Moses (pleading to the Lord): 13O, God, I ask You to please heal her!

Eternal One (to Moses): 14If her father had been angry with her and made it obvious by, say, spitting in her face, wouldn't she have to bear her shame for a week?
Just so, you must ostracize her from the camp for seven days. After that, she can rejoin the community.

15So Miriam was shut out of the community for seven days, which also meant that the whole group didn't travel until Miriam was brought back in, 16and they set out again. They journeyed from Hazeroth into the Paran Wilderness and set up camp there.

13 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

► There is dissension in the camp. Some of the leaders have been sharing their doubts with the people, and folks are nervous. The thrill of this wilderness camping experience has worn off, and some are thinking that working for the Egyptians wasn't so bad. So barely two years out of Egypt, the Israelites are standing at the door of their promised land. Moses needs to motivate the people, and he selects 12 key men from each of the tribes to explore the land of abundance God has provided. The nation stands to enter into a time of great reward, but first their leaders must bring back a report that will inspire their confidence.

Eternal One: 2Send men who can spy out the Canaanite land that I'm giving to the Israelites. Pick one man, with demonstrated leadership, from each of the tribal families.

3Moses did so. He sent the twelve heads of Israel out from Paran Wilderness camp just as the Eternal told him. 4These are the men who went and the tribes they represented: Shammua (Zaccur's son) for Reuben; 5Shaphat (Hori's son) for Simeon;
6Caleb (Jephunneh's son) for Judah; 7Igal
(Joseph's son) for Issachar; 8Hoshea (Nun's son) for Joseph's tribe, specifically Ephraim; 9Palti (Raphu's son) for Benjamin; 10Gaddiel (Sodi's son) for Zebulun; 11Gaddi (Susi's son) for Joseph's tribe,
Manasseh; 12Ammiel (Gemalli's son) for Dan; 13Sethur (Michael's son) for Asher;
14Nahbi (Vophsi's son) for Naphtali; 15and Geuel (Machi's son) for Gad. 16These are the names of the men selected to spy out Canaan. And Moses changed the name of Hoshea (son of Nun) to Joshua*, who would succeed Moses.*

17Moses sent this group to spy out the land of Canaan.

Moses: Trek through the southland desert of Negev and up into the high country.
18*I want you to* tell us about the land and especially about its people—are they strong or weak? Are there a lot of them or only a few? 19-20Do their cities have fortifications, or are their camps open all around? Also, is the land itself good or bad, its soil rich or poor? Are there any trees? Be bold, and bring back samples of what grows there like their grapes.

It was in midsummer when you'd expect them to find grapes just beginning to ripen.

21They set out, these men, and explored the land from the flat Zin wilderness, north of Paran where the rest were camped, all the way to Rehob on the coast and Lebo-hamath much farther north.
22They trekked first into the Negev and up to Hebron, a city built seven years before the Egyptian town of Zoan in the Nile Delta. There, they saw the giant Anakite people, including the clans of Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai; 23-24and they checked out the lush Eshcol riverbed that, as its name suggests, grew bunches of grapes. So thick and heavy were the clusters that when two of the men cut down one branch holding one cluster, they had to carry it on a pole between them. They also picked up some pomegranates and figs from that place.

25After 40 days, they returned from exploring 26to the camp at Kadesh, in the Paran Wilderness, and went directly to Moses and Aaron and all the Israelite congregation, which had gathered to hear what the scouts had learned and to see what fruits they had brought back with them.

Twelve Scouts (to Moses): 27We checked out the land, just as you'd instructed us to do, and here's what we discovered: It is rich, very rich. One could say that it flows with milk and honey; and look, here is some of its fruit. The land is highly desirable, 28but the people who already live there are really strong. Their cities are enormous and fortified. What's more, we saw the Anakites there. 29In the Negev, there are Amalekites; and in the high hill country are Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites. As for the seacoast, Canaanites live there and along the Jordan River too.

It is certain the Israelites are deeply discouraged by this report, for what was said about the native inhabitants is most alarming.

30But Caleb calmed the congregation, and he spoke to Moses.

Caleb: We should go straight in, right away, and take it over. We are surely able!

Other Scouts: 31No way. We can't do it. The people who are already there are too strong for us.

32So the report of these other scouts was quite disheartening; it made the people question God's promise.

Other Scouts: The land that we surveyed virtually eats its own, and the people themselves are gigantic. 33We saw the massive Anakites who descended from the ancient Nephilim!* We look like grasshoppers compared to them, and they know it.

14 At this, everybody with one voice cried out, and the people groaned and wept all night.

Israelites (blaming Moses and Aaron): 2If only we had just died in Egypt or somewhere along the way in this wilderness, 3rather than the Eternal One leading us out here to have us slaughtered and our women and the youngsters dragged off as plunder, too, as objects for their pleasure. Wouldn't it be good just to go back to Egypt? 4Let's figure out among ourselves who should head the group and then make our way back to Egypt.

5While all the gathered Israelites watched, Moses and Aaron collapsed to the ground before the people. 6Joshua (Nun's son, Moses' young assistant—the one who would succeed him) and Caleb (who was Jephunneh's son) lamented the Israelites' response. These two, who were among those who journeyed into the promised land to explore it and bring back a report, tore their clothes 7and addressed the whole community of Israelites.

Joshua and Caleb: The land that we saw was extraordinary! It's some of the best land ever, 8flowing with milk and honey. So stop this moaning and wailing! If we all do what is right in the eyes of God, the Eternal will bring us into the land and make it ours. 9Do not rebel like this against the Eternal. Don't be afraid of the land's inhabitants. It is we who will devour them! They are now defenseless, and nothing can protect them from the Eternal, who is with us. You don't need to be afraid of them!

10But the rest of the Israelites were not convinced. Enraged, the crowd moved to stone Joshua and Caleb. Suddenly, the glory of the Eternal swept into the congregation tent in front of them all.

► What a sad time it is for the Israelites! Joshua and Caleb have pleaded for courage among the people, and Moses and Aaron must now plead for patience on the part of the Lord. The Israelites stand on the edge of God's promise, and they can't find the courage to believe and to move forward by faith into the promise. Because of their reluctance to believe, they must wander through this wilderness with only God to supply their basic needs until He has purged the nation of those who lack faith. The next 38 years will cleanse the nation and develop the character each person needs to claim the promises of God. This same two-step process is repeated throughout the Bible: refine and cleanse while building the necessary faith. Unfortunately, the fire necessary for refinement is normally painful.

Eternal One (to Moses): 11How many times will this ungrateful people turn their backs to Me? How long will they persist in their faithlessness, refusing to recognize all the wondrous signs I performed in their midst? 12I will crush them with dreadful sickness and disinherit them from Me and the land. However, I will accept you and make you into a fearsome nation, far greater and more impressive than they might be or could ever dream of being.

Moses: 13*If You kill them*, the Egyptians (whom You forced Your people away from) will get wind of it, 14and they'll tell the people of this new world, because all have already heard that You, O Eternal One, are present among Your people here, that You've been seen face-to-face, and that You personally guide them by a cloud-column during the day and a fire-column at night. 15If You wipe out these, Your chosen people, in one fell swoop, then Your reputation among the other nations will be shot. All of those other peoples who have heard about You will say, 16"The Eternal One couldn't finish the job. He couldn't bring the people into the land He'd promised to them, so He slaughtered them in the desert." 17Instead, demonstrate that great power of Yours when You declared, 18"I am slow to get angry and overflow with consistently boundless love. I forgive wrongdoing and waywardness, but I don't overlook the necessity for justice, so I punish the guilty ones' third and fourth coming generations." 19So, in light of the greatness of Your unwavering love, forgive this people's wrongdoing just as You've done before—from Egypt all the way here.

Eternal One: 20I have pardoned them as you've asked Me to do. 21But as I live, the earth will be filled with My brilliant glory; 22-23this particular generation will never get to enjoy the land I promised to their ancestors so long ago. Although they witnessed My glory and signs firsthand, and the amazing feats I accomplished on their behalf in Egypt and on this desert sojourn, they tested Me over and over again, even 10 times, and even directly disobeyed. None of the people who have turned their backs on Me will ever see the land. 24For Caleb, though, it's a different matter. He's distinct from the others by having a different spirit and has followed My lead wholeheartedly. I will make sure that he is able to enter the land and to live in it—he and his descendants after him.

25Now, to avoid the Amalekites and Canaanites who presently inhabit the valleys, turn around tomorrow, and make for the desert by way of the Red Sea.*

26The Eternal One reiterated to Moses and Aaron,

Eternal One: 27How many times will these bad people grumble against Me and My choices? It seems that all I hear is Israelites complaining, complaining, complaining! 28So tell them I say, "As I live, I will make sure that what you're complaining about really does happen—29you'll die out here in the desert, every single one of you old enough to have been organized in the counting (20 years or older) who complained about Me. 30Not a single one of that group will have the privilege of entering the land I made an oath to give to you. Only Caleb (Jephunneh's son) and Joshua (Nun's son) will enter. 31Your children, those whom you feared would be taken by the land's present inhabitants, will eventually enter the land you've rejected. 32But the rest of you? You'll die out here in the desert. 33Until then, your children will have to wait it out, keeping the herds and flocks out here in the wilderness. On account of your faithlessness, they'll have to wait the 40 years it'll take for you all to die. 34The same number of scouting days—40—is the number of years you'll carry the guilt of your wrongs for being so hard-headed and know Me as only an enemy." 35*Well, there* it is. I, the Eternal One, have spoken, and so I will do it. This especially wicked group that banded together against Me will suffer for it, each and every one, and will come to an end and die out here in this wilderness.

* 14:25 Literally, Sea of Reeds

36-37*Remember that* the men who had been hand-selected by Moses to scout out the promised land delivered a less-than-positive report. Consequently, in the assenting presence of the Eternal, they were all killed by a plague. 38All, that is, except for Joshua (son of Nun) and Caleb (son of Jephunneh).

39When Moses delivered this message from the Lord to the Israelites, they were devastated and greatly mourned. 40But in the morning, they got up with the sun and climbed high into the hills.

Israelites: Well, here we are. Despite our wrongdoings, let's go up into the land the Eternal promised us on our own.

Moses: 41Why do you keep doing what you're not supposed to do? You will not succeed in your efforts. 42-43He will not accompany you, so you're vulnerable on all sides. Because you've rejected the Eternal, you won't have Him in your midst and on your side. When you run into the Amalekites and Canaanites, they will slay you on the spot.

44Despite Moses' protestations, the people tried. The chest of the Eternal's covenant and Moses himself remained back in the camp. 45*Sure enough,* the Amalekites and Canaanites who lived there descended upon them, attacked them, and chased them clear back to Hormah, which means the place of complete destruction.

15 The Eternal One spoke to Moses about sacrifices.

Eternal One: 2Give the Israelites these instructions: "When you enter the land I determined would be yours, where you'll settle and make your homes, 3-4and when you burn a food offering, burnt offering, or sacrifice of meat from the herd or flock to make a pleasing aroma for Me; you should always accompany it with a grain offering—about two quarts of really good flour mixed with about one quart of oil. Do this whether your offering is a sworn vow or something you're freely offering during the appointed festival. 5*Oh,* and give a drink offering of some wine: about one quart for each lamb whenever you make a sacrifice or offering. 6*For bigger animals* like a ram offer about four quarts of flour and about one and one-quarter quarts of oil, 7and make about one and one-quarter quarts for the drink offering of wine. All of this will be a soothing aroma to Me. 8For a bull (whether burnt or simply as a sacrifice to satisfy a promise or as an offering of well-being), 9about six quarts of flour mixed with about two quarts of oil, 10and make the drink offering two quarts of wine. Offer it by fire to make a soothing smell to Me. 11This is how you should offer oxen or rams, male lambs, or young goats. 12*The specified accompaniments are for a single animal,* so increase it based on the number of offerings you make. 13-14Every Israelite should follow these instructions for an offering by fire to make a soothing smell for Me. Others who happen to be living among you temporarily or permanently should offer sacrifices in the same way. 15-16There should be no difference throughout the community in this matter—Israelite or not—forever. You and the foreigner dwelling with you are the same, as I see it, so you all should follow the same rules and regulations."

17(to Moses) 18Tell the Israelites this as well: "After you've entered the land that I'm taking you to, 19whenever you enjoy the land's bread, give a contribution to Me by raising up your offering to Me. 20-21Just as you set aside a little grain on the threshing floor, so you and your descendants should set aside a little cake loaf from the first batch, as an offering to Me.

22"If, somehow, someone overlooked or otherwise accidentally failed to do what I spelled out through Moses for the congregation 23(all those commandments from the first day I gave them to you and throughout coming generations), 24-26and it only came to the attention of the community after the fact, then the whole congregation should offer a bull together. Offer all of it by fire so that it smells good to Me along with the requisite grain and drink offerings, and sacrifice a male goat since it was a sin of sorts. In the process, the priest will cover all the Israelites, and they'll be forgiven, for it was an unintentional offense. So, if they do all the right things to rectify the situation, then everyone

A constant theme as God instructs His people is to remember or to have a memorial: the family of Abraham builds monuments of stacked stones almost everywhere they go, and these people will do the same as they enter the land. Each child is given a name with clear meaning about either the character of the child or about the faithfulness of God. Each town is given a name that recalls something of significance, maybe the founder or a great war. Likewise, the foods they eat in their feasts have meaning or help them recall a shared memory. The offerings of the Israelites and the later sacraments of the church all serve as memorials or remembrances.

Here God instructs the people to alter their garments as a reminder of His commands and their own responsibilities to obey. Since the punishment for unbelief or disobedience is severe, God in His grace builds reminders into everyday life so the people do not have to struggle to remember these critical rules or truths.

(and not just native Israelites but even all the other people who happen to be living with them at the time) will be forgiven.

27"If an individual sins by accident (and the congregation catches it in time), he should offer a female yearling goat as the sin offering. 28Thereby the priest shall cover that individual who sins accidentally in front of Me. Now that the mistake is covered, that person shall be forgiven. 29This is the way it should be for Israelites and outsiders alike—for anyone who accidentally errs. 30-31If it's not an accident—the guilty person simply didn't care about abiding by the instructions I gave to the Israelites through Moses and knowingly disregarded them—that's different. Such a person, whether an Israelite or a stranger, has essentially rejected God. The community will ostracize him, and he'll have to bear the burden of his guilt."

32One time, when the Israelites were wandering in the wilderness, it was discovered that somebody had broken the Sabbath rest commandment by gathering firewood. 33The people who saw the man brought him to Moses and Aaron and the gathered congregation. 34They weren't sure what to do with him because nothing had been declared yet, so they kept him confined. 35The Eternal One told Moses the man should be killed, that the whole congregation should take him outside the camp and stone him to death. 36So they did just as the Eternal told them to do and executed him.

37Once again the Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 38Tell the Israelites to make fringes on each corner of their clothes and include a blue thread in each fringe. They should do this forever, 39as it will bring to mind all My commandments and remind them not to wander off to do whatever their eyes see or hearts desire, and pursue them without restraint. 40Instead, they will remember and do all of My commandments and be holy to your God.

41I, the Eternal One, am your True God, the One who brought you out of Egypt to be your God. I am the Eternal One, your True God.

16 Sometime later, a discontented contingent challenged Moses. Korah (Izhar's son, Kohath's grandson, and Levi's great-grandson) together with the Reubenites Dathan and Abiram (Eliab's sons) and On (Peleth's son) 2gathered another 250 Israelite men, all of them respectable members of the community, some even chosen leaders, and confronted Moses.

Korah and His Men *(to Moses and Aaron): 3You've taken this leadership way too far. We are all holy; indeed each individual is holy to our God. The Eternal One is present among the entire congregation. How can you presume to be better than any of us, the Eternal's chosen community?

4When Moses heard their complaint, he collapsed to the ground, again hoping to divert God's anger.

Moses (to Korah and his men): 5In the morning, the Eternal One will demonstrate exactly who is who among us—who belongs to the Eternal as a holy servant whom He allows into His presence. He will indicate whom He chooses to approach Him. 6All of you, take censers: Korah and your company. 7Light them, put incense on the flame, and set them down in front of the Eternal tomorrow. The person whom He chooses will be the holy one. O Levites, you have taken this too far!

8(to Korah) Listen, you Levites. 9Isn't it enough that the God of Israel has selected you specially, out of the entire Israelite congregation, to allow you to come close to the Eternal in the process of taking care of His very congregation tent and place of revelation? To be so distinguished before all of the other Israelites in your service? 10The Eternal has granted you this privilege, Korah, you and all your fraternity of Levites. Yet you want the whole priesthood too? You should be ashamed. 11This has led you to band together against the Eternal. But why should you be so hard and gripe against Aaron?

12Bring the brothers Dathan and Abiram (Eliab's sons) to me.

Dathan and Abiram: Forget it. We are not going to come running at your bidding. 13You took us out of a place that was so rich—Egypt, flowing with milk and honey—in order to let us die in this desert wasteland, and now you're actually trying to assert yourself as our ruler. 14You haven't brought us to a land flowing with milk and honey or delivered on your promise of fields and vineyards to call our own. What else will you do? Are you going to pluck out the eyes of these 250 men now? There's no way we're coming to you.

15Now, Moses was furious.

Moses *(to the Lord): Whatever You do, do not even look at the offerings from these people. I've never taken anything that belonged to them or hurt them in any way.

Moses responds with a justified and righteous anger. He demands that they be ignored because they're full of themselves, and they are liars too.

16(to Korah) You, get your unruly mob over here tomorrow. Assemble in this spot—before the Eternal One Himself—you and your people. Aaron will be there too. 17Then let each person (all 250) take his censer, put the incense into it, and present it to the Eternal. You, too, Korah; and Aaron will do the same.

18They all did this. They ignited the censers, put their incense inside, and stood with Moses and Aaron at the opening of the congregation tent where God would meet with them. 19But Korah stirred up the people standing there against Moses and Aaron. The glory of the Eternal One was visible to all, 20and then the Eternal spoke to Moses and Aaron.

► Suddenly the brilliance of God's glory overtakes the place. The people are used to the glory of God being reserved for Moses. But now all could experience it. This rare occurrence is again related to open rebellion against Moses. God makes it clear: His conduit to the people is Moses. They must have thought back on the experience at Hazeroth, when Miriam and Aaron chastised Moses for marrying a Cushite, and God also appeared (chapter 12).

Eternal One: 21You two, break away from this crowd. Step aside so that I can devour them in a moment.

22But Moses and Aaron fell down, bowing low before the glory of God.

Moses and Aaron: O God, God of the spirit of all human beings, will You really take out Your anger for one person's wrongdoing on this large group?

23The Eternal One told Moses,

Eternal One: 24*Well, then,* tell the innocent people to step aside, to distance themselves from the places where Korah, Dathan, and Abiram live.

25So Moses picked himself up and went over to Dathan and Abiram, with all Israel's elders closely behind.

* 16:5 2 Timothy 2:19

Moses (to the greater congregation): 26Get away from the houses of these presumptuous people who have made the Lord so angry. Get away from them and from all their possessions so that you're not destroyed along with them for their wrongdoing.

27The people hurried to distance themselves from Korah, Dathan, and Abiram and from their tents. Then Dathan and Abiram, along with their wives and children, stepped out of their tents and stood in the openings.

Moses: 28Watch now, and you'll have proof that I'm not acting out of self-interest but was truly sent by the Eternal One to do everything I've done so far. 29If these instigators die normally, of natural causes, then I am not sent by Him. 30But if He does something completely extraordinary, if the ground underneath them opens up and swallows them whole along with everything they have (so that they go straight down into the land of death even while they're still alive); then you can be absolutely sure that these men have willfully turned their backs on the Eternal One.

31No sooner had Moses finished speaking than the earth split underneath them. 32The earth opened its mouth and swallowed them down—them and everything and everyone associated with Korah. 33Then, just as suddenly, the ground closed up over them again, and so they perished, taken alive to the land of the dead. 34Those who remained ran away, terrified.

Surviving Israelites: What if the earth swallows us up too?

35A fire shot out from the Eternal One and incinerated the 250 men who were offering the incense on Korah's behalf.

36The Eternal One continued speaking to Moses.

Eternal One: 37-40Tell Priest Aaron's son, Eleazar, to pull the censers out of the smoldering pile and scatter the burning coals all around, as far as he can. Take the censers used by these men, at the cost of their lives, and hammer them down into sheets that can cover the altar. After all, the objects are now holy, having been presented to Me. They'll also serve as a cautionary reminder for the Israelites that anyone who isn't related to Aaron shouldn't presume to approach Me with incense—or else he'll end up like Korah and his men, just as I told you to warn would happen.

So Eleazar the priest hammered the bronze censers down into a covering for the altar. 41Nevertheless, on the very next day, all of the Israelite people railed against Moses and Aaron.

Israelites: You murdered Korah, Dathan, Abiram, and their families, those people of the Eternal One.

42-43When the congregation gathered to attack them, Moses and Aaron headed for the congregation tent and stood in front of it. The cloud was there, and the brilliance of the Eternal's presence was obvious to all. 44There, the Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 45Stay clear of this rebellious lot because I am going to devour them right now.

Moses and Aaron fell to the ground, hoping to abate God's anger.

Moses (to Aaron): 46Hurry, light your censer off of the altar's flame, put incense on the flame, and bring it out into the midst of the congregation to cover their sins! The Eternal One's anger has already headed into the crowd, carrying plague and destruction with it.

47So Aaron rushed into the crowd with his sacred censer, even as people had already begun to suffer the plague. He stood there covering their sins with the incense smoke, 48and where he stood, the plague stopped—dead people on one side, the living on the other. 49*Thus the plague ended as swiftly as it had begun,* but a full 14,700 died that day, in addition to all those who died in the Korah affair. 50Then Aaron walked back to join Moses in front of the congregation tent since the plague had stopped.

Eternal One (to Moses): 2-3Tell the Israelites that you'll need twelve staffs—one for each of the extended families. Engrave on each one the respective leader's name. (Aaron's name should be on the Levi family's staff.) [4]Bring the staff of each of them into the congregation tent and lay them in front of My tablets of witness with you in the place where I meet you. [5]I will indicate the person whom I choose by making his particular staff grow shoots and leaves. This will end once and for all any complaints about your leadership.

[6-7]Moses passed these instructions on to the Israelites, and they all agreed to do it. They each gave their staffs as leaders representing their extended families with Aaron's staff among them. Then Moses placed them before the Eternal One in the tent of the congregation and before the covenant. [8]The next day, when Moses went into the tent where the covenant was kept, it was obvious that Aaron of the Levite family was God's choice. Aaron's staff had grown not only little buds, but it had actually flowered and developed fully-ripened almonds. [9]Moses carried the staffs out of the Eternal's presence, showed them to the congregation, and redistributed them to the twelve leaders.

Eternal One (to Moses): [10]Return Aaron's staff to the tent and place it in front of the covenant, to serve as a reminder of whom I've chosen to lead this people. Let it be a warning to any who would question or undermine your leadership. I have made My choice clear and will kill anyone who persists in challenging it.

[11]So Moses returned Aaron's staff to the tent just as the Eternal told him to do.

► The rod or staff is a symbol of guidance, protection, and power. At this time, the people are confused and afraid because the rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram—followed by their sudden and absolute judgment—has caused the Israelites to think hard about their situation. Remember they said in response to God's judgment, "What if the earth swallows us up too?" They are truly in awe of God. Immediately after this upheaval, God establishes the leadership of Aaron and his successors using the staff of Aaron. Only his staff and not those of the other leaders is affected. His staff not only buds but it bears fruit—almonds. Like the symbols of the testimony and the manna, the staff is a memorial for the people. With the staff, they are reminded that the Lord provides and protects.

Israelites (to Moses): [12]We're going to die!
We will be destroyed! [13]If anyone comes close to the tent where the Eternal One is supposed to meet with us, then he'll die. Will we all die, then?

18 Eternal One (to Aaron): It's on you and your sons and your extended family that the respon- sibility for this sanctuary lies. Any offense against the sacred meeting place, whether the sanctuary or the priesthood, is to be born by the members of your ancestral house. [2]So gather your extended family, your immediate family and those belonging to your staff, the tribe of Levi, so that they understand you're all in this together.
Your brothers from the greater Levi family will assist you while you and your sons come up to the tent holding the covenant. [3-5]Those Levites will answer to you and help out with the tent as a whole, but they absolutely may not touch the vessels of the sacred place or approach its altar. If they do, they and you will die.
Also, an outsider may not approach you.
This way, the whole congregation will be forever spared My destructive fury. [6]So I hereby appoint, as your assistants, your fellow Levites out of all of the Israelites. I give them to you as persons set apart for Me to do what is necessary for the maintenance of this congregation tent. [7]That way, you and your sons will be free to carefully attend the altar and My dwelling place behind the veil, which is forbidden to everyone else. Think of it as a kind of gift for the whole people, since it is fatal for anyone else to approach My sacred space.

► Since the Levitical tribe inherits God Himself rather than a territory of land that they can farm and have for livestock, they are given a portion of the meat, grain, and drink offerings offered up by the people.

Eternal One (continuing to Aaron): 8As for you in particular, everything people give to Me for all time, I put you in charge of and give to you and your sons as a priestly portion as a perpetual decree. 9When anything the people give as an offering to Me isn't burnt in its entirety, you will keep it—as the most holy items from the grain offerings, the sin or guilt offerings. All of this is most sacred to you and your sons. 10While recognizing its holiness, you and every Levite male should go ahead and eat it in the most holy place. 11Also, I am giving as a perpetual decree to you, your sons and daughters, too, whatever people raise up in offering to Me. Whoever is ritually pure from your house may eat from those offerings. 12That includes, of course, the very best items—oil, wine, grain, and produce. Whatever people bring by way of offerings to Me, I give to you. 13-14The first of the harvest and anything which is set aside for Me shall be yours; any in your family can eat from it, so long as he or she is ritually pure. 15-16Likewise, the firstborn of men or animals, which are of course Mine, I hereby pass on to you. For the firstborn sons and ritually unclean animals should not be sacrificed; rather the people should simply pay five coins (calculated as the value of a one-month-old), each worth the two ounces (according to the sanctuary standard). 17As for the other animals, the firstborn of a cow, a sheep, or a goat, you shall carry through on their sacrifice. They are indeed holy to Me. Make sure to throw some of their blood on the altar and incinerate their fat because it is to Me a soothing aroma. 18You can have the meat itself, though, just as you get to have the breast of an uplifted offering and the right thigh too. 19Everything sanctified and offered by the Israelites to Me, I am giving to you and your sons and your daughters as a perpetual decree. This is a binding agreement for all time—a covenant of salt, made in the presence of Me and preserved for you and your descendants after you.

20(continuing to Aaron) And you'll need these things because you are not allowed to own land or any part of it in the place I've promised. Rather, I am your portion and possession among the Israelites. 21-24Your family, the Levites, shall not have any property, but they shall have what the Israelites bring to My tent as a tenth portion. Because the Levites alone can approach the congregation tent without dying and must do so to perform the necessary maintenance, but have no land of their own, they get to keep a tenth of the Israelites' offerings.

25(to Moses) 26Tell the Levites that they should set aside a tenth portion of what they get from the Israelites' sacrifices to give back to Me. In other words, they must give a tenth offering of the tenth offering given to them from the people of Israel. 27Tell them, "This portion will be counted as your gift to Me, as if it is all the grain harvested and threshed and all the wine pressed and decanted. 28In this way, you will be making an offering to Me from what you received from the Israelites (though you'll do so by entrusting this tenth portion to the priest Aaron). 29Out of everything you get, you should set aside the very best as a holy portion to Me. 30After this, what's left is absolutely yours, as if it is all the grain harvested and threshed and all the wine pressed and decanted. 31You can eat and drink it anywhere—you and your whole household—because it's what you've earned by working on behalf of the congregation tent. 32After you've given up that superior portion, you may do with the rest as you wish. Just be careful that you treat the holy portion, what was set aside for Me by the Israelites, with utmost respect; or else you'll die."

Eternal One: 2I want to remind you about a decree of instruction by My command: "When they need to make a sin offering, instruct the Israelites to bring a young female cow, red in color, that is perfect in every visible way and has never worked. 3Hand it over to the priest, Eleazar. He will then oversee its slaughter outside the camp, 4dip his finger in the blood, splatter the blood seven times in the direction of the congregation tent's opening, 5and make sure that the carcass is burned, every bit of it—hide, flesh, blood, and dung. 6While the cow burns, the priest will throw onto the fire some aromatic woods—cedar and hyssop—bound together by scarlet thread. 7-8Afterward, the priest should carefully wash himself and his clothes; then he can reenter the camp. Likewise the one who burns the fire should also wash himself and his clothes. But recognize that they are ritually impure until that evening. 9-10Someone else, someone ritually pure, should collect the ashes that remain from the completely burnt offering and put them all in a ritually pure place outside the boundaries of the camp. Then that person, too, should wash his clothes and understand he is ritually impure until evening. The ashes will be used to make a cleansing solution for the Israelites. This is a sin offering.

Remember and observe this perpetual statute concerning ritual contamination and cleansing, which applies to the foreigner who lives among you as well as to all native Israelites: 11Anyone who touches a dead human body will be considered impure for a week. 12*Midweek and at the end,* on the third and seventh days, he will use the burnt offering ashes dissolved in water to purify himself. If he fails to do so, he will not be pure. 13*This is a serious business,* for everyone who comes into contact with a human corpse must purify himself like this. Otherwise, he pollutes My tent and so must be banished from Israel. If he has not been doused with the special cleansing water, his impurity still clings to him. He is impure.

14*Now* if someone dies indoors, then everyone entering or inside the tent will be impure for the full seven days. 15*Not only that, but* any cup, jar, or bowl that is open or didn't otherwise have a cover attached when that person died will also be impure. 16Out in the countryside, the same general rule applies. If someone happens to touch a person either killed outright or who simply died naturally, or if he touches a single human bone or a whole gravesite, he shall be impure for the week. 17For such a person, take some of the aforesaid ashes mixed in a container with running water. 18A person who is ritually pure should then dip a hyssop branch into the water and splash some water on the contaminated home—and on all the things in it and the people, too—or on the person who touched a corpse or some part of a dead person. 19The ritually pure person must do this for the impure individual on the third and seventh days. Then he must purify himself, washing his body and clothes in water, so that he's pure when it becomes evening on the seventh day.

20Those who don't so purify themselves shall be cast out of the community because they have scorned and polluted My holy place. Since the cleansing water hasn't been splashed on them, they are impure. 21This is a perpetual decree. The person who sprinkles the water and the one who touches the water for impurity also needs to wash his clothes after handling the cleansing water and will be ritually impure until evening. 22Everything any impure person touches will be impure and make others who touch it impure, too, until evening.

20 After the Israelites, the whole group of them, journeyed into the Zin Wilderness during the first month, they set up camp in Kadesh. And it was there that Miriam died and was buried.

2They ran out of water and again blamed their leaders, Moses and Aaron.

Israelites (arguing with Moses): 3It would have been so much better if we had simply died along with the rest of our relatives, Korah, Abiram, and Dathan, right in front of the Eternal One.* 4-5Why in the world would you drag us, the Eternal's own group, out of Egypt into this wilderness where we'll soon die and our livestock too? And there aren't any grains, figs, grapes, or pomegranates, and there isn't even any water!

► Will these people never learn? But why should they be any different than the rest of us? We all tend to forget God's provision, and we focus on the challenge before us. God has been leading them through a region full of challenges. You would think that after 40 years of daily provision from God in the wilderness these people would quit fearing the worst, especially since they have already gone through this very same experience once before—when they came out of Egypt in Exodus 17. Unfortunately, Moses doesn't follow God's instruction just as it is delivered to him, so he, too, is unfaithful. Instead of "provision" or "water-of-plenty," the place is known as Meribah

("rebellion"). They are to remember their lack of faith and their active rebellion against God their savior every time they mention this place.

6After hearing them out, Moses and Aaron walked away. At the congregation tent's opening, they collapsed to the ground, interceding for the people. Then and there, the Eternal's glory shone for them to see, 7and He spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 8You and Aaron grab the staff before the covenant chest, gather the whole group so that all the people can see and hear you, and speak to the rock. Tell it to release its water for them to use. In this way, you'll get water from the rock for everyone to drink, including all the animals.

9So Moses did that. He took the staff just as God told him to do. 10Then he and his brother gathered all the people in front of the rock.

Moses *(to the Israelites): Listen up, you rebellious lot. Should we get water for you from this rock?

11*And as he spoke,* Moses raised his hand and hit the rock—once, twice—and immediately the water came gushing out. All drank their fill, people and animals alike. 12But the Eternal One scolded Moses and Aaron for their actions.

Eternal One: Because you didn't trust Me and treat Me as holy before the Israelites, you will not lead this group into the land I have given them.

13Because at this spot the Israelites rebelled against the Eternal and the display of His holiness, the water here is called Meribah, which means "rebellion."

14Also while in Kadesh, Moses sent a message to the Edomite king.

► Kadesh ("holy") is the place where God was not treated in a holy manner by the Israelites, including Moses and Aaron. And neither do Israel's ancient relatives from Esau, the Edomites, who shared a common ancestor with Israel—Isaac.

Moses' Message *(to the king of Edom): Greetings from your brother, Israel. You've heard how hard these past years have been for us; 15how in the midst of famine, our ancestors journeyed down into Egypt; and how after settling there a long while, the Egyptians began to treat our ancestors and then us harshly. 16The Eternal heard and answered our pitiful cry, actually sent a messenger and led us out of Egypt. Now here we are in Kadesh, right at the border of your country. 17Would you please grant us permission to cross through? I promise that we won't take anything from your seeded farmland or cultivated countryside. Nor will we drink from your wells. We will stick to the main road, the king's highway, and not step off it either to the right or left until we're well past your country's limits.

Edom's Message: 18No. If you so much as put a foot in our territory, we'll attack you.

Israelites' Message: 19But we will keep strictly to the highway and pay you if any of us or any of our animals drink any water, only let us pass through.

Edom's Message: 20Absolutely not.

At that point, the Edomites indeed came out in force, fully armed, against the Israelites. 21This response proved there was no negotiating with Edom for passage, so the Israelites turned to go another direction.

22-23The whole Israelite community packed up and left Kadesh. They journeyed to the edge of Edomite territory, to Mount Hor, specifically.

Eternal One *(to Moses and Aaron): 24Because you two didn't follow My orders back at the waters of Meribah, it is time for Aaron to die and be with his ancestors. 25So bring Aaron, along with the son who will be his successor, Eleazar, up to Mount Hor. 26There, you shall strip Aaron of his priestly garments that distinguish him as the priest of priests and put them on Eleazar. There, Aaron will join his ancestors in death.

27 With a heavy heart, Moses did just as the Eternal One had instructed. These brothers, now old, slowly made their way up Mount Hor while the whole community watched. 28 When they reached the top, Moses stripped Aaron of his priestly robes and put them on Aaron's son, Eleazar. And Aaron died there. Then Moses and Eleazar went back down the mountain. 29 Understanding that Aaron was dead, the family of Israel wept for 30 days.

The customary mourning period is seven days, but as with Moses' death later, they mourn for 30 days.

21 Meanwhile, the Canaanite king of Arad (which is in the Negev region) heard that the Israelites were approaching through Atharim, so he engaged them in battle. He even took some Israelites as prisoners of war.

Israelites *(vowing to the Lord): 2 We pledge to You that if You help us win against these people, we will dedicate every last one of them to You and completely destroy their towns.

3 The Eternal One agreed to their proposal.
He gave the Canaanites to the Israelites, and they promptly decimated the population and place. Consequently, the site is called Hormah, which means "destruction."

4 And the Israelites set out again. They left Mount Hor and traveled by way of the Red Sea,* skirting Edom; but again, the difficult travel gave everyone a short temper.
5 They challenged both God and Moses.

Israelites: What were you thinking to bring us up out of Egypt and let us die out here in this desert land? There's nothing to eat and no water either. We are sick and tired of living on what food we have.

6 As a divine response, the Eternal One sent venomous snakes* among them and the people were bitten. A number of Israelites were indeed killed by them. 7 They then appealed to Moses.

Israelites: We are so sorry! We know that it was wrong to speak against the Eternal and against you. Please talk to the Him, and get Him to take these awful snakes away.

So Moses appealed to God on behalf of the terrified and chastened congregation, 8 and He instructed Moses.

Eternal One: Make a venomous snake that looks like the ones tormenting the congregation, and put it on a pole. Everyone who gets bitten can simply look at your serpent and be healed.

9 So Moses took some bronze and cast a likeness of those vicious snakes to serve as an antidote for anyone who had been bitten. If they were to look on the bronze serpent, they would then live.

10-13 And the Israelites continued on their journey. They camped at Oboth; then at Iyeabarim (bordering Moab's eastern border); then in the Wadi Zered; and then on the far side of the Arnon, which put them in the wilderness between the Moabite and Amorite territories. 14 This is what is described in The Book of the Eternal One's Wars:

Waheb in Suphah*
and the river beds of Arnon; 15 The riverbeds that run right up to the settlement of Ar
and along the edge of Moab.

16 From there, they journeyed on to Beer, the place called "the well" where the Eternal One told Moses, "Gather the congregation, so I can give them water." 17 At that time, they all sang the Song of the Well:

Israelites: Spring up, O well!
Sing, sing to the well, 18 The well our leaders dug for us, our noblemen dug with their own scepters and staffs.

And they carried on from the wilderness to Mattanah, 19-20 and from there to Nahaliel, then Bamoth, and on to the valley that's in the higher places of Moab, at Pisgah's peak where one can look down on the Jeshimon Wilderness.

At that point, the Israelites came to the borderlands of another people and needed permission to pass through the land.

21 So Israel sent messengers to the Amorite king, Sihon.

* 21:4 Literally, Sea of Reeds * 21:6 Hebrew, seraphim, which literally is "fiery snakes" * 21:14 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

Israel's Message: 22Please grant us permission to cross your country. We promise not to deviate and take anything from your seeded farmland or cultivated countryside. Nor will we drink from your wells. We will stick to the main road, the king's highway, until we're past your country's far limits.

► The Amorite King Sihon receives the same envoy as the Edomite king, and his response is the same: "You can't pass through here." Many of the other nations in this chronicle are aware of the divine provision of the Israelites because it is obvious that the survival of this enormous group in such an inhospitable environment is the work of God. With this understanding, the Amorite king nevertheless chooses to pick a fight with them. Not only did he say "no" to the Israelites crossing their territory, but he attacked. There is a very important principle here: don't be on the opposite side of God in a fight.

23Sihon would not allow them to pass. Instead, he roused all the Amorites and attacked the Israelites right there in the wilderness. They battled it out at Jahaz. 24Israel met Sihon head-on and won the battle. They killed Sihon and took possession of the whole territory. That land goes from the Arnon to the Jabbok River and extends up to the Ammonites' border, which is very well fortified.* 25-26Israel took over all that area, claimed the Amorite cities and surrounding villages, and settled there. This included the capital city of Heshbon from where King Sihon ruled the Amorites. (It was Sihon who had challenged the late king of the Moabites and prevailed, making the territory of Moab all the way to the Arnon part of the Amorites' lands.) 27That's where the singers get this taunting song:

Come gather at Heshbon, the city built up and strong—
the city of Sihon.
28For a fire went out from Heshbon, a flame from Sihon.
It consumed Ar of Moab, swallowing the heights of Arnon.
29How terrible for you, O Moab!
You are destroyed, O people of Chemosh!
Chemosh has made the Amorite, Sihon, set your sons to rout
and take your daughters into slavery!
30But we destroyed them, from Heshbon to Dibon, and ravaged them to Nophah, even to Medeba.*

31So it was that Israel then took this land from the Amorites and settled there. 32They also captured the Amorite town of Jazer and took its villages and removed the Amorites living in the area.

33Then they went northeast up the road to Bashan, where King Og and his people confronted the Israelites. When they clashed at Edrei, 34the Eternal One encouraged Moses.

Eternal One: Don't be afraid of him. I've already determined that you'll defeat King Og. He, his people, and all his land shall be yours. You'll treat him just as you did the Amorite king, Sihon, in Heshbon.

35Sure enough, the Israelites defeated Og. They killed him, his sons, and everyone, for that matter. No one survived. So the Israelites took possession of Bashan.

22 But they didn't remain there. The Israelites traveled on to the Moabite plains, where they set up camp, just across the Jordan River, east of Jericho. 2*The Moabite* Balak (Zippor's son) knew about the Israelites' victory over the Amorites and what they had done there. 3*Actually, everyone in* Moab was terrified of the Israelites. And Moab hated the Israelites, because there were so many of them!

► Now we overhear this very unusual dialogue between the Moabite leader Balak and the respected prophet Balaam. While Balaam is not an Israelite, he has a healthy respect for the God of the Israelites. No matter how Balak tempts Balaam to curse the people of the Lord, God continues speaking to Balaam and frustrating Balak's plans. Eventually it comes down to a not-so-dumb donkey instructing the great prophet. Both Balaam and Balak learn that God is not one to be toyed with. He can frustrate the plans of even the greatest kings and prophets.

Interestingly, a discovery was made in Jordan of an inscription containing prophecies of Balaam. He specialized in animal divination, slaughtering animals for his prophetic purposes. So Balaam was used to hearing God "speak" through animals, if not always so directly.

Moabites (to elders in the neighboring Midianite community): 4This voracious horde, these Israelites, will wipe us out without so much as a second thought. They'll devour us and move through our land as a herd of hungry cows mows a field.

Balak (Zippor's son), you'll remember, was then the king of Moab. 5*In the face of this threat,* he sent messengers to the famous prophet Balaam (Beor's son), who lived in a town that belonged to his country on the Euphrates River called Pethor. Balak wanted the prophet to come to Moab.

Since the victories over Sihon and Og, the Israelites have gained a reputation of taking over. Their size and strength frighten the local inhabitants.

Moab's Message (to Balaam): There is a group of people who came from Egypt and who have settled right near me. They cover the land with their numbers. 6Come quickly, and curse them for me. There's no other hope that I have of defeating so many of them and driving the rest away. They're too strong. But I know that whomever you bless is blessed, and whomever you curse is cursed.

7So the messengers went—elders, actually, from both Moab and Midian—with money in hand, to pay the prophet to come back with them and curse the Israelites. They gave him Balak's message.

Balaam (to the messengers): 8*It's been a long trip for you.* Spend the night, and I'll give you the prophecy the Eternal tells me.

So the Moabite and Midianite elders stayed overnight with Balaam. 9But God came in the night to Balaam and questioned him.

Eternal One (to Balaam): Who are these people staying with you?

Balaam: 10*Messengers.* Balak, the king of Moab and Zippor's son, sent them to ask me for help on their behalf. 11He says that a certain people, coming from Egypt, seem to be taking over the land. He wants me to curse those people for him so he can fight them and make the survivors leave.

Eternal One: 12Don't do it. The people whom Balak wants you to curse are already blessed.

13So first thing in the morning, Balaam confronted Balak's elders with the news.

Balaam: You'll have to go back to your land without me. The Eternal has prohibited me from returning with you.

14The Moabite contingent returned and told Balak that Balaam wouldn't come. 15But Balak wouldn't take "no" for an answer. He sent another, bigger contingent of even more highly esteemed men to solicit Balaam's help.

Balak's Second Message (to Balaam): 16Don't let anything stop you from coming to Moab; 17there's a lot in it for you—whatever you desire—and I'll make sure you are treated with the greatest honors. Just, please, come and curse these people for me!

Balaam (to Balak's messengers): 18Even if Balak gave me everything he has, riches of silver and gold in his house, I simply couldn't do it. It is impossible for me to say anything less or greater than what the Eternal One, my God, directs me to say. 19But, listen, why don't you spend the night, and I'll let you know whatever else the Eternal might tell me in the meantime.

20Again, God came to Balaam in the night and spoke with him.

Eternal One (to Balaam): If these men have indeed come to get you, go ahead. Go with them, but do only what I tell you to do.

21So when morning came, Balaam got his donkey ready. He set out with the Moabite elders. 22Nevertheless, God was angry that Balaam was going. He sent His own messenger as an adversary to stand in Balaam's way, blocking the prophet's path. Now Balaam was riding on his donkey, and he had two servants too. 23But it was the donkey who saw the Eternal's messenger standing in the road with a sword in his hand, drawn and ready. The donkey went off the road and into the field, and Balaam, not seeing the messenger as his donkey had, hit the beast to drive it back onto the road; 24but then the messenger of the Eternal stood in the narrow walkway separating two vineyards, and there was a wall on either side. 25Spooked by the Eternal's messenger, the donkey pressed herself against one of the walls, trapping Balaam's foot. Balaam hit her again. 26The Eternal's messenger got ahead of them again and faced them in a narrow spot where they had no way to avoid him. 27This time, the donkey, seeing the Eternal's messenger, just lay down, Balaam still sitting on top. Balaam was furious, and he beat the beast with a rod. 28But the Eternal One gave the donkey the ability to speak.

Donkey (to Balaam): What have I done to you that you would hit me three times?

Balaam: 29You've made me look stupid! If I'd had a sword, I'd have killed you by now!

Donkey: 30Aren't I the very same donkey you've always ridden? Have I ever been disloyal or hurt you?

Balaam: No.

31At that point, the Eternal opened the eyes of Balaam to see His messenger standing in the road, sword drawn. Balaam bowed low to the ground, lying with his face in the dirt.

Eternal One's Messenger: 32Why were you so hard on your donkey, beating her these three times? I came here as an adversary against you because I do not approve of the direction you're taking, in more ways than one.* 33Your donkey did the right thing. She saw me and turned away all three times. This donkey saved your life. Perhaps I would have killed you on the spot and let her live.

Balaam (to the messenger): 34I confess I was wrong, but I didn't know you were there, trying to block my way. Now, please, if you don't want me to go any farther, then let me go back home.

Eternal One's Messenger: 35No, go ahead with this Moabite escort, but only say what I tell you to say.

So Balaam traveled on with Balak's men.

36When they neared the very edge of Moabite territory, Balak (who'd heard they were on their way) met Balaam at Moab's city on the Arnon.

Balak (to Balaam): 37Didn't you understand it was I who requested you again and again? Why didn't you come? Am I not able to give you honor?

Balaam (to Balak): 38Well, I'm here now. But do you think I can say whatever I please? I can only say what God tells me to say. God puts the words in my mouth.

39*Nevertheless the two went off together.* Balak led Balaam to Kiriath-huzoth in Moab. 40*Later on,* Balak had some oxen and sheep sacrificed, which he made sure Balaam received (along with the officials who accompanied him).

41The next day, Balak led Balaam up to a high place of Baal worship, an altar dedicated to pagan lords.* Looking down from there, they could see a section of the Israelite camp.

23 Balaam (to Balak): This is what I need from you. Build seven altars here, and then get seven bulls and seven rams ready to sacrifice.

2Balak did just as Balaam had asked him to do. Then together they offered a bull and a ram on each of the seven altars.

Balaam (to Balak): 3You stay here, close to these burnt offerings. I'm going to go a little ways away, in case the Eternal wants to meet just with me. Whatever He lets me know, I'll be sure to pass on to you.

* 22:32 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 22:41 Hebrew, Bamoth-baal

So Balaam went over to an exposed area on the heights, [4]and God met Balaam there.

Balaam (to the Lord): I made seven altars and set an offering of a bull and a ram on each one.

Eternal One (giving Balaam the right words to say): [5]Go back to Balak and recite what I've told you.

[6]So Balaam walked back down and over to where Balak stood waiting next to the burnt offerings, along with the officials of Moab. [7]Balaam recited His words.

Balaam: The king of Moab got me to come here, all the way from my home in Aram.
Balak summoned me from the eastern mountains.
"Come, curse Jacob for me!"
"Come, denounce Israel!"
[8]But I ask you, how can I curse any whom God has not cursed or denounce whomever the Eternal has not denounced?
[9]Here on the heights, from the rocky places where I stand,
I can see them; from these hills I observe them below.
And what do I see but a unique and solitary people who do not have a place among the nations.
[10]Who can count the dust of Jacob or even a fourth of their number?
It's impossible to count even one quarter of Israel.
Let me die as one who has done
what is right.
Let my end be like his!

Balak (to Balaam): [11]What are you doing to me? I brought you all the way out here to curse these people—my enemies—yet what have you done? You've blessed them!

Balaam: [12]But don't you agree that I have to be very careful to make sure I say only and exactly what the Eternal has given me to say?

Balak: [13]Well, come over here. Admittedly, from the place where I'm bringing you, you can only see a small part of that whole congregation. But I am commanding you: from this new place, curse them!

[14]So Balak brought Balaam to the fields of Zophim, on the top of Pisgah's peak. As before, he built there seven altars on which he sacrificed seven bulls and seven rams.

Pisgah dominates the Abarim Mountains and is thus used as a lookout to warn of possible attack.

Balaam (to Balak): [15]You stand here, by the altars with their burnt offerings, while I go just over there to talk with the Eternal One.

[16]And once again, the Eternal met Balaam and gave him the words to say.

Eternal One: Go back to Balak, and recite what I've told you.

[17]So Balaam returned to where Balak stood waiting next to the burnt offerings along with the Moabite officials.

Balak (to Balaam): What did the Eternal say?

[18]And Balaam recited His words.

Balaam: Listen up, Balak, and attend to these words:
Hear, son of Zippor, what God has to say to you.
[19]God is not a man—He doesn't lie.
God isn't the son of a man to want to take back what He's said, Or say something and not follow through,
or speak and not act on it.

[20]Look here, I received a word of blessing, and He has spoken a blessing.
I cannot take it back.
[21]There is no vision of wrongdoing by Jacob;
God has seen no trouble for Israel.
The Eternal One abides among them;
and the shout of a king is among them.
[22]God, who leads them out of Egypt,
His splendor is like the wild bull:
[23]There is no divination against Jacob or enchantment against Israel.
Soon, people will say of Jacob and Israel,
"Look at what God has accomplished!"

24 Look at this people rise up like a lion, like a lion who gets up and does not lie down until it devours its prey, even drinking the blood of the slain.

Balak (to Balaam): 25 Don't curse them, but don't bless them either!

Balaam: 26 Haven't you been listening? Whatever the Eternal tells me, I must do.

Balak: 27 I think we should try a different spot. Come on and maybe God will be happy to let you curse them for me from over there.

28 So off they went again. This time, Balak took the prophet to the top of Peor, from where they could look down over the whole broad spread of Jeshimon, which some call simply "the wasteland."

Balaam (to Balak): 29-30 You know what to do: get the seven altars ready and burn the offerings, just as you did before.

And so Balak did—he built seven altars, on each of which were sacrificed a bull and a ram.

24 Meanwhile, it was obvious to Balaam that the Eternal One was quite happy to bless Israel, so he didn't go through the trouble of looking for omens of God's intent. Instead, Balaam contemplated the wilderness stretched out before him. 2 Seeing the Israelites camping there, in their orderly arrangement by tribes, he was suddenly overcome by God's Spirit. 3 He recited God's words.

Balaam: This is an oracle of Balaam (Beor's son),
a man whose eyes have been opened,
4 Whose ears hear God-given words, and whose eyes see visions from the God of the Mountains.*
I fall down with eyes opened.
5 "O, the lovely tents of Jacob, even the dwelling places of Israel.
6 Like date trees spread out as a garden along the river, as aloe trees planted by the Eternal,
Like cedar trees along the waters.
7 I can see overflowing water, its seed in many waters and its king lifted higher than Agag,*
even its kingdom lifted up.
8 God leads them from Egypt like the splendor of a wild bull.
He will devour the nations, even his adversaries,
And he will crush their bones and strike them through with his arrows.
9 He lies low and crouches down as a lion or lioness.
Who would dare rouse him?
Blessed are those who bless you and cursed those who curse you."

Balak and his men have been engaged in preparing the altars and making the sacrifices; he doesn't like the sound of this at all.

10 He was absolutely furious with Balaam, smacking his hands together with anger.

Balak (confronting Balaam): I can't believe this! I brought you all this way and asked you to curse my enemies, but instead you actually blessed them. And you did that not just once, mind you, or twice, but three times. 11 Now get out of here! Get out of my sight—go back to that miserable place you call home. Yeah, sure, I said I'd greatly honor you, but the Eternal has withheld the honor that I had planned for you.

Balaam (to Balak): 12 Remember the first time that you sent messengers to get me? Even then I told them 13 I don't care how much silver and gold you have or what all you'd give to me; I cannot alter what God would have me say. Whatever the Eternal One puts into my mouth is what will come out, whether good or evil words. 14 So, yes, I'm heading home. But before I go, I will tell you what those people will do to your nation when your time is up.

15 He recited God's words.

Balaam: This is an oracle of Balaam
(Beor's son),
a man whose eye has been opened,
16 Whose ears hear God-given words,
who understands the very thoughts of the Most High God,

* 24:4 Hebrew, Shaddai * 24:7 1 Samuel 15:8

And whose eyes see visions from the God of the Mountains.
I fall down with eyes opened.

17I see him, but at a later time, I'll recognize him, even though he is far away.
A star will come out of Jacob,*
A scepter shall rise out of Israel.
It will break Moab and tear down
the people of Seth.*
18Edom will be its possession, even Seir will belong to its enemies, but Israel will have power.
19One from Jacob will rule, and he'll destroy whatever remains of the city.

20Then Balaam turned toward the land of the Amalekites and spoke his prophecy.

Balaam: Amalek was first among the nations,
but its end is destruction.

21Then Balaam turned toward the land of the Kenites and spoke his prophecy.

Balaam: Your dwelling is lasting,
and your nest is set on a rock;
22Yet Kain will be burned up.
"Until when?" When Asshur takes you away as captives.

23Balaam took up his answers:

Balaam: I ask, "Woe, for who will remain alive when God does this?*
Who will survive?"
24Ships will come from Kittim* and will afflict Asshur and Eber, who is also set for destruction.

25Then Balaam went his way to his country, and Balak went his way toward his country.

25 Now it happened that while Israel was biding its time at Shittim, on the edge of the wilderness near Jericho, some of the men got mixed up with Moabite women. They got friendly and had sexual relations. 2The Moabites invited these Israelites to participate in Moabite religious rituals and worship of their gods, 3and God's people bound themselves to the deity Baal of Peor, which made the Eternal One furious at Israel.

Eternal One (to Moses): 4Grab them! Every wicked leader of this people. Then in broad daylight, in front of the Eternal, string them up on stakes to twist and turn so that My burning rage doesn't consume the entire population.

Moses (to the Israelite judges): 5*Look to your people, and* kill whoever pledged himself to the deity Baal of Peor.

6Just then, even as people were dying right and left, one Israelite returned from among the Midianites with a woman whom he planned to make a part of his family. With her in tow, he walked right past Moses and everybody else while they were mourning in front of the congregation tent. 7When Priest Aaron's grandson Phinehas (Eleazar's son) saw them, he took a spear in his hand. 8He charged into the Israelite's tent and ran the spear straight through the bellies of the couple. That one act appeased God's anger and put an end to the death cascading through the Israelite camp. 9*Nevertheless,* 24,000 people died before it was all over.

10The Eternal One explained to Moses what had happened.

► It is difficult in our age of diversity, tolerance, and equality to accept the prohibition of intermarriage between the Israelites and the peoples of the land and the command to eliminate the natives as the Israelites later occupy the land. Now this is not a command about ethnicity or purity of race; it is about shared purpose and complete devotion. The people cannot tolerate devotion to other deities and still serve the Lord. It is for their protection and well-being that God aggressively punishes those who pollute the faith.

Eternal One: 11Phinehas (Eleazar's son and Priest Aaron's grandson) has done well. He saved the Israelites. Because he was so zealous on My account, tolerating no compromise, I did not consume the people of Israel with My jealousy. 12So I want you to declare this: "I, your God, do pledge to Phinehas a covenant of peace, 13not only for him but for his descendants too. I promise they will always be priests because in his jealousy for Me, Phinehas covered the wickedness of the Israelites."

* 24:17 Matthew 2:2 * 24:17 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 24:23 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. * 24:24 Designation for Cyprus

14*For the record,* the Israelite man killed with the Midianite woman was Zimri (son of Salu, a leader of the Simeonite extended family). 15The Midianite woman's name was Cozbi. She was Zur's daughter, and Zur was the leader of one of the extended families in Midian.

16The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: 17*It's time to* go after the Midianites. Frustrate them, and crush them; 18after all, they frustrated you by luring you into that Peor affair, including the business with Cozbi, who was killed to stop My punishing destruction from the plague, also because of that Peor affair. She was a Midianite leader's daughter.

26 After the deaths of so many Israelites from the plague, the Eternal commissioned another census through Moses and Eleazar (Priest Aaron's son).

Eternal One: 2Add up exactly how many Israelites there are, those who are 20 years and older who are able to go to war. Identify them by their extended families.

3So Moses and Priest Eleazar got everyone together in the Moabite flatlands next to the Jordan River, east of Jericho.

Moses and Eleazar: 4Add up the people 20 years old and older, just as the Eternal One commanded Moses.

This is the record of the twelve Israelite families, the clans within them (according to the names of their founders) who actually enter the land.

The total number of the Israelites who had left Egypt were:

5-9From Reuben (the eldest of Israel's twelve sons)—the clans of Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi; the clans of Reuben number 43,730. Within this extended family, Pallu had Eliab, who had three sons—Nemuel, Dathan, and Abiram. Those last two are the same Dathan and Abiram, who (along with Korah) led that revolt against Moses and Aaron and the Eternal One. 10They are the ones who (along with Korah) were swallowed up by the earth when so many people died and 250 were burned to death, too, as a future warning to the people. 11(Korah's sons were not killed in that episode, however.)

12-14From Simeon—the clans of Nemuel, Jamin, Jachin, Zerah, and Shaul; the clans of Simeon number 22,200.

15-18From Gad—the clans of Zephon, Haggi, Shuni, Ozni, Eri, Arod, and Areli; the clans of Gad number 40,500.

19-22From Judah (remember that Judah also had Er and Onan, the sons who died in Canaan)*—the clans of Shelah, Perez, and Zerah. Within this extended family, Perez had Hezron and Hamul; the clans of Judah number 76,500.

23-25From Issachar—the clans of Tola, Puvah (they're called Punites), Jashub, and Shimron; the clans of Issachar number 64,300.

26-27From Zebulun—the clans of Sered, Elon, and Jahleel; the clans of Zebulun number 60,500.

28From Joseph—the clans of Manasseh and Ephraim. 29*Within this extended family,* Manasseh had Machir, who generated his own clan and fathered Gilead, who also generated a clan. 30-32Gilead's descendants also became clans—Iezer, Helek, Asriel, Shechem, Shemida, and Hepher. 33(Hepher is the one whose son, Zelophehad, didn't himself have any sons. His daughters were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.)* 34The clans of Manasseh number 52,700. 35-37*Also within Joseph's extended family,* Ephraim had Shuthelah, Becher, and Tahan. From Shuthelah came the clan of Eranites. The clans of Ephraim number 32,500. So the total number from Joseph's descendants, Manasseh plus Ephraim and counted by clans, was 85,200.

38-41From Benjamin—the clans of Bela, Ashbel, Ahiram, Shephupham, and Hupham. Bela had two sons, Ard and Naaman, each of which became a clan; the clans of Benjamin number 45,600.

42-43From Dan—the clans of Shuham; the clans of Dan number 64,400.

* 26:19-22 Genesis 38:6-10 * 26:33 Numbers 27:1-11

44-47From Asher—the clans of Imnah, Ishvi, and Beriah. Beriah gave rise also to the clans of Heber and Malchiel. Asher's daughter was Serah. The clans of Asher number 53,400.

48-50From Naphtali—the clans of Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Shillem; the clans of Naphtali number 45,400.

51The grand total of Israelites organized was 601,730.

52The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

God has promised the children of Abraham from the very beginning until this day that they will inherit this land. Now it is time.

Eternal One: 53The land shall be divided up following the number of ancestral families—twelve. 54If one clan has a lot of people in it, then it should receive a large amount of land; if the clan is small, then assign it a smaller plot. Every extended family will be allotted land in proportion to its size, and that particular land will be considered its inheritance. 55Nevertheless, the assignments will be based on lots, and the assigned land will be inherited only within the clan. 56Among the large and small clans, property will be divided by lots.

In this system, Levi is an exception. Because of their priestly status, they don't serve in the military and don't get a portion of land.

57So the Levites were listed according to their clans of Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. 58The clans of Levi include Libnites, Hebronites, Mahlites, Mushites, and Korahites. 59*For the record,* when Levi was still in Egypt, he had a daughter, Jochebed. She married Amram*, the son of Kohath.* Jochebed bore Aaron, Moses, and their sister Miriam. 60Aaron fathered Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 61Nadab and Abihu died when they presumed to offer a strange fire to the Eternal One. 62The total number of Levite men, one month and older, was 23,000. They were not counted along with the rest of the people of Israel since they did not have a land inheritance.

63These are the people and their numbers that Moses and his nephew, Eleazar the priest, organized into armies when they stood on the plains of Moab, just across the Jordan River, east of Jericho. 64Not a single one of the people organized this time by Moses and Priest Aaron were among those so many years ago, when they added up the Israelites in the Sinai Wilderness. 65The Eternal One had declared that the previous generation had to die in the wilderness. No one was remaining from that generation except for Caleb (Jephunneh's son) and Joshua (Nun's son).

As God has said, an entire rebellious generation must die off before anyone can enter the long-awaited and much-anticipated land of milk and honey.

27 Now Zelophehad's five daughters came forward. Zelophehad came from the Manasseh family (he was a son of Joseph's). Zelophehad's father was Hepher, his grandfather was Gilead, and his great-grandfather was Machir. The girls' names were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. 2They approached the congregation tent and boldly stood in front of Moses, the priest Eleazar, the Israelite clan chiefs, and even before the whole congregation.

Zelophehad's Daughters: 3Our father died in the wilderness; he wasn't part of Korah's coup that tried to undermine the authority of the Eternal One. He just died having committed his own wickedness like everyone else in his generation, but he left no sons. 4Why should his name disappear from his clan simply because no boys were born to him? We request that you give us land of our own, just as you are giving it to the descendants of our uncles.

Zelophehad didn't have any sons, and their inheritance—claim to the land—will die with him and his place among the people for all generations.

5Moses disappeared inside the tent to ask the Eternal One what should be done, 6and He answered Moses.

Eternal One: 7Zelophehad's daughters make a good point. They're right, so do as they ask. Give them an inheritance such as would be given to a son. They shall have land alongside their uncles' families. 8Moreover, tell the Israelites that in the future they should pass the inheritance to the daughter if there is no son. 9If a man doesn't have any daughters either, then after he dies, his property shall go to his brothers. 10If he has no brothers, then it should go to his uncles. 11If no uncles, then whoever is his closest relative, give the property to him. This is the system you should apply as a permanent law for the Israelites, coming from Me through Moses.

12(later God called to Moses) Hike up here, to the top of this mountain amidst the Abarim peaks. When you get to the top, you'll be able to see the land I've already given to the Israelites. 13After you've had that glance, you will join your ancestors, as your brother Aaron did not so long ago. 14*You will not set foot in the promised land, even after all you've done for Me and this people* because you didn't follow My instructions back in the Zin Wilderness when the people argued and rebelled. You failed to treat me as holy at the waters before the eyes of the people. This happened at the water called Meribah, in Kadesh of the Zin Wilderness.

15Then Moses addressed the Eternal One.

Moses: 16-17*Please, take care of these people.* Eternal One, God of the spirit in all human beings, see to it that an able leader is appointed to guide and direct Your people by going out and coming in before them so that they are not like sheep without a shepherd.

Eternal One *(to Moses): 18-19Single out Joshua (Nun's son). In him is the breath of My Spirit. Before the whole congregation, bring him to stand before the priest, Eleazar. Put your hand on him, and commission him into leadership. 20*You should make clear that* you are investing him with some of your authority, so that every Israelite accepts his leadership. 21Joshua shall consult with Eleazar the priest, who will ask of Me (by consulting the Urim and Thummim) to show how they should proceed. In other words, Eleazar will consult the oracle and indicate when the people should go forward and when they should pull back, both he and the congregation of Israel.

► Attention now shifts to their future in the land. Just as God has used Moses and Aaron to lead the congregation up until now, a new leader must be trained and in place for Israel to move forward. Remember that Moses and Aaron must be replaced because they are part of that unfaithful generation God won't allow into the land; they, too, acted against Him and are being punished in spite of their consistent favor with God. The preparation to enter the land needed only a couple of years for God to provide the law, the plans for the congregation tent, and an orderly structuring of the tribes. But the time in the wilderness has stretched on for another 38 years because it took a generation for God to purge the lack of belief on the part of the people.

22-23Moses did with Joshua and Eleazar exactly what the Eternal One instructed; he laid his hands on Joshua to indicate this transfer of authority. Just as the Eternal One commanded, Moses did.

28 The Eternal One said to Moses,

Eternal One: 2Make clear to the Israelites that they should make their offerings for My food and fire offerings as a soothing aroma, when they bring their sacrifices at the appointed time. 3Tell them that the gifts they present to Me each and every day by fire should include two spotless, male, yearling lambs—4one in the morning and the other between dusk and evening. 5*They should be sure to* include a grain offering (about two quarts of the best flour mixed with about one quart of oil, from the first pressing). 6I commanded at Sinai that this is to be done regularly, burned up to Me by fire in that soothing aroma as a food offering. 7The drink offering to go with each lamb each time should be about one quart of the strong wine, poured out for Me in the sacred area. 8Do the same for the second lamb and its grain and drink offerings between dusk and evening as a soothing aroma to Me.

9-10*Once a week,* on the Sabbath, they shall add to the regular daily offering of meat and drink another two male yearling lambs (unmarred by injuries or deformities) and make the grain offering of about four quarts of the best flour mixed with oil and a drink offering.

11At the beginning of each month, add to the regular, daily burnt and drink offering these things: two male calves, a ram, and seven male lambs, all perfect yearlings. 12-13As for the grain offering to go along with each bull, mix about six quarts of that prime flour with oil; prepare another offering to go with the ram out of about four quarts of prime flour mixed with oil and an offering for each lamb out of about two quarts of prime flour mixed with oil. These should be burnt. It is a soothing aroma of a food offering to Me. 14The drink part of the offering shall be figured like this each month: accompanying each bull-calf, offer about two quarts of wine; one and one-quarter quarts for the ram; and one quart for each lamb. With this particular monthly offering, 15they should add a male goat and the corresponding burnt and drink offerings to serve as a gift in recognition of their sin offering.

16*Midway through the* first month of the year, on the fourteenth day, you shall make a Passover memorial to Me, 17followed on the next day by a celebration. The whole festival shall be observed in this way: For a full seven days, only bread without any yeast shall be eaten. 18The period shall begin with a ritual marking its holiness, and don't do any work during this time. 19-21*Each of those seven days,* offer by fire to Me the same type of animals (two male calves, a ram, and seven male lambs, all perfect yearlings) and the corresponding grain offerings (with each bull, mix about six quarts of that prime flour with oil, with the ram about four quarts of prime flour mixed with oil, and an offering for each lamb out of about two quarts of prime flour mixed with oil) as you do each month, 22including the male goat for your sin offering to cover your evil actions. 23And be sure to make the normal, morning offering too. 24These things shall be offered daily for seven days to Me (as a food offering of pleasing aroma), along with the drink offering. 25The seventh and final day will also have a ritual marking its holiness, and you won't do any work during this time either.

26You should also have a holy ritual and not do any work when the new grain comes in and you offer it to Me during your Feast of Weeks. 27-31On the day marking the first harvest, make a fire offering as a pleasing aroma to Me by killing and burning the same type of animals (two male calves, a ram, and seven male lambs, all perfect yearlings) as you do each month and by giving the usual burnt and grain offerings that accompany each animal (with each bull, mix about six quarts of that prime flour with oil, with the ram about four quarts of prime flour mixed with oil, and an offering for each lamb out of about two quarts of prime flour mixed with oil). You shall burn a male goat to cover your wrongs, and don't forget the drink offering or that the animals should be without defect.

29 Eternal One *(continuing to Moses): When the seventh month comes around, its first day shall have a ritual marking its holiness, and you won't do any work on it. Blow the trumpets, 2-5and make a burnt offering out of the same animals (one male calf, a ram, and seven male lambs, all perfect yearlings—including the goat) as your sacrifice for a soothing aroma to Me; but use one, rather than two bull-calves. And follow the same procedure for the grain offering, using about six quarts of fine flour mixed with oil for the bull, about four quarts for the ram, and about two quarts for each lamb. 6This shouldn't take the place of either the daily or the regular monthly offering of meat, grain, and wine. Rather, it is in addition to the regular one. I receive these as a pleasing aroma.

7On the tenth day of that seventh month, you shall have a ritual marking its holiness. Celebrate it soberly, don't do any work, 8-11but make an offering just like the one on the first day (one male calf, a ram, and seven male lambs, all perfect yearlings—including the goat as a sin offering). Also follow the same procedure for the grain offering using about six quarts of fine flour mixed with oil for the bull, about four quarts for the ram, and about two quarts for each lamb. This will cover all the evil you did in the last year with the burnt offering, grain offering, and drink offering.

12*Mid-month,* on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, you shall observe another ritual marking that day's holiness, and you won't work. Celebrate for a full seven days a festival of Mine. 13Prepare another burnt offering of animals that have no signs of injury or illness—thirteen bull calves, two rams, and fourteen yearling lambs. 14-16Make your grain offerings as you always do for each of the animals offered; include the sin-offering goat. These, again, are in addition to the regular burnt offerings with their respective grain and drink offerings.

17On the second day of that week-long festival in the middle of the seventh month, offer twelve bull calves, two rams, and fourteen male yearling lambs—all unblemished—18along with the grain offerings in amounts coordinating with each animal. 19Include the goat as a sin offering, and don't neglect the regular offerings of meat, grain, and wine.

20On the third day, offer eleven bull calves plus the two rams, fourteen male lambs, 21corresponding amounts of grain and drink offerings, 22and the sin-offering male goat in addition to the usual offering. 23-34On the fourth day, the number of young bulls that you offer should be ten; on the fifth, nine; on the sixth, eight; on the seventh, seven and on each of those days you shall also offer two rams and fourteen male lambs along the sin-offering male goat in addition to the usual offerings of burnt, grain, and drink. 35On the eighth and final day, gather everyone together for a solemn ritual, and don't do any work. 36-38In addition to the regular gifts and the goat whose offering covers sins, offer the following by fire, sending a sweet smell to God: one bull, one ram, and seven perfect male yearling lambs. Mix up the grain offerings in proportion to each animal, and prepare the corresponding burnt, grain, and drink offerings.

39These are the offerings you should give to Me when observing these particular festivals. They are not a substitute for the other required offerings—the ones accompanying certain promised vows; those you make freely; and the regular burnt, grain, and drink offerings; as well as your offerings of well-being.

40Moses passed these instructions on to the Israelites just as the Eternal One told him to do.

Moses gathered the heads of the twelve Israelite tribes and explained vows.

► The situation concerning vows with men is clear and straightforward: keep your word. With women, it's more complicated. The promises made by women have certain restrictions that don't apply to men's vows: whatever a woman promises to God or others is subject to review by her father, if she still lives at home, or by her husband, if she's married. Those men have the power to nullify her promises.

Moses: 2Whatever a man promises to God or others, whether a vow or a binding oath with a pledge, he must do. He is bound by his word: no excuses and no exceptions.

3-12If a woman makes such a binding statement in the hearing of her father

(if she's not married) or husband (if she is married), and he keeps quiet, then the promise stands. But if her father or her husband (depending on her marital status) disapproves of what she said, then she's not bound by whatever she promised, and the Eternal won't hold it against her. If she gets married after making a vow or pledge (even a rash one) and her husband knows about it but says nothing, then she's responsible for keeping those promises. But if her husband hears about some rash promise she made and says that he thinks it's foolish, then he can erase any obligation she had to keep it. The Eternal will forgive her. A woman who's not connected to any man—a widow or divorcée—must take full responsibility for keeping her promises.* 13*Now if a woman is already married and* vows to undertake some kind of self-denial, fasting or the like, her husband has the power to either approve or reject it. 14If he doesn't say anything about it while she is doing it, then whatever she's pledged to do is truly binding; he cannot come back later and change his mind about it. 15If he does require her to break her promise while she's doing it, then the punishment for breaking it will be on him, not her.

16This is what the Eternal determined should be the rules for fathers or husbands evaluating a woman's vows, whether she's a youngster still living under her father's roof or has married.

31 Eternal One *(to Moses): 1-2It's finally time for the Israelites to make the Midianites suffer for the trouble they caused back at Peor and then you will leave this world and join your ancestors.

► The Israelites took Midianite women as wives and consequently started worshiping their gods. Some 24,000 Israelites died in that judgment. Moses is now told to pick up where the priest Phinehas left off and kill the Midianites.

Moses *(to the Israelites): 3-5Get yourselves ready for war. From among your men, select 1,000 from each of Israel's tribes. Arm them, and send them out to fulfill God's desire to make the Midianites pay for their treachery.

So it was that 12,000 Israelite men went off to war. 6Moses sent the zealous priest Phinehas (Priest Eleazar's son) with each tribe's contribution toward the army of 1,000 men, too, carrying the holy vessels and trumpets to sound the alarm. 7At the direction of God through Moses, the Israelites fought fiercely. By the time it was over, they had managed to kill every single Midianite male. 8They killed all five of Midian's kings (Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba), and they even executed Balaam (Beor's son) too.

► This is a surprising note about Balaam. He honored the Lord and would only speak blessing over Israel (22–24). Here and later (Joshua 13:22; 24:9-10), Balaam is cast as an enemy of God's people (also 2 Peter 2:15; Revelation 2:14).

9-11They captured Midian's women and children and everything of value—livestock, luxury items, whatever seemed good—to bring back with them, and they burned what was left of the cities and camps. 12The victorious Israelites headed back to present these prisoners, animals, and things to Moses, Eleazar the priest, and all of the Israelites who had gathered at their camp on the Moabite plains, just across the Jordan River, east of Jericho.

13Moses, Priest Eleazar, and the leaders of the community went out to meet them, just outside the settlement. But instead of commending them for their bravery and success, 14in his anger, Moses berated the men who just a little while earlier were commanding battalions of hundreds or thousands of soldiers.

Moses: 15*What were you thinking that* you would allow these women to live? 16They are the ones, on the advice of that instigator Balaam, who are responsible for seducing our men by leading Israelites to reject the Eternal at Peor. They brought down on us that punishing plague that killed so many of the people of the Eternal One. 17Now you must slaughter every last boy in this Midianite group and kill every woman who has ever slept with a man. 18As for the virgins, you can take them, as you desire. 19-20*According to the purity laws*, you must stay outside the boundaries of the camp for seven days. Anyone who has killed or otherwise touched a corpse, remember to wash up on the third and seventh days as prescribed. Every piece of clothing—cloth, leather, or goat's hide—and every wooden object on your person must be purified too. This applies to you and your prisoners.

► Because of the details concerning priestly matters of ritual process and purity, Eleazar the priest explains how the Lord commanded they should proceed. They have been in contact with corpses, blood, and pagan objects, and it is essential that they cleanse themselves properly as members of this holy congregation.

21Then Eleazar stepped forward and took it from there.

Priest Eleazar (to the soldiers): It is a law that God made clear to us through Moses. 22-23Whatever you wear or have with you that is not flammable—all metals such as gold, silver, bronze, iron, tin, and lead—shall be cleansed by fire. To fully purify such objects, wash them in the water for ritual impurity too. But anything that cannot stand fire, wash with the water. 24On the seventh day, strip and wash what you're wearing. After that, you shall be considered pure and may return to the camp.

Eternal One: 26Get Priest Eleazar and the heads of the extended families of the group to help you inventory everything the soldiers brought back with them from Midian, prisoners and possessions. 27Then divide it in half. One part will go to the men who went to war, and the other to the people who stayed here. 28Out of the warriors' half, take a portion as a gift to Me. For every 500 items of any kind—persons or animals—set one aside for God 29by giving it to Eleazar the priest (who will make the actual offering to Me). 30Out of the general population's half, take one out of every 50 of any particular item—persons or animals—and give it to the Levites who are in charge of maintaining God's special tent.

31Moses and Priest Eleazar did as the Eternal One commanded Moses, 32and even after they had killed the boys and a lot of the women, the war booty was substantial. There were 675,000 sheep, 3372,000 oxen, 3461,000 donkeys, 35and 32,000 virgin women. 36From the half that was for the warriors, there were 337,500 sheep 37(675 for the Eternal), 3836,000 large oxen (72 for the Eternal), 3930,500 donkeys (61 for the Eternal), 40and 16,000 people (32 for the Eternal). 41Moses handed God's portion over to the keeping of Eleazar the priest as the Eternal had commanded Moses. 42-46The general community received the same amounts: 337,500 sheep, 36,000 large oxen, 30,500 donkeys, and 16,000 people. 47Out of the general community's half, Moses took one out of every 50 of any particular item—persons or animals—and gave it to the Levites, the ones who were in charge of maintaining God's tent just as he had been told by the Eternal One. 48Then the military officers of all ranks approached Moses with yet more stuff.

Officers (to Moses): 49Each of us, who loyally answer your call to serve, has counted up the people in our battalions. We are happy to report that not a single person is missing. 50*Yet* to cover any sins we may have committed before the Eternal, we wish to present to you all the articles of value we found in Midian—objects of gold, jewelry of all kinds (armlets, bracelets, rings, earrings, and pendants).

51-52Moses and Eleazar the priest received from the commanders and officers these pieces of gold fashioned into all shapes and sizes. Collectively, the officers' offering to the Eternal equaled 420 pounds. 53The soldiers had also raided things for themselves. 54But Moses and Eleazar set up the gold objects from the officers inside the congregation tent to commemorate the Israelites' actions before the Eternal One Himself.

32 Now it so happens that a couple of the tribes (the Reubenites and Gadites) had an exceptionally large herd of livestock. They observed that on this eastern side of the Jordan, in the regions of Jazer and Gilead, there was some excellent grazing land. 2So the heads of the Reuben and Gad tribes approached Moses, the priest Eleazar, and other of the community's leaders.

Reubenites and Gadites: 3-5This territory, which the Eternal One has already enabled us to dominate, is for livestock land; and we have livestock. If it is pleasing to you, may we settle here instead of crossing the Jordan into the promised land? We'd like this territory to be ours (Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Sebam, Nebo, and Beon) rather than laying claim to any territory across the Jordan.

► Although slightly misunderstood by Moses, Reuben and Gad still express loyalty to the Lord and to their Israelite kin, but they like the prospects of settling in the fertile land that they will also share with the Ammonites, Moabites, and Edomites.

Moses: 6-9*You're missing the big picture.* How can I let you settle here on this side of the Jordan, while your kinsmen on the other side of the Jordan may have to go to war in order to possess the land? Why would you dishearten the rest of the people today just as the spies did who disheartened the people in the last generation after I sent them from Kadesh-barnea and they saw the Eshcol Valley and the surrounding land? 10*Remember* how angry the Eternal became with them that day? He declared that 11-13even though that particular land had been promised to the Israelites beginning with Abraham, then to Isaac and to Jacob after him, the whole generation that left Egypt when they were 20 years or older would have to die, wandering aimlessly in the desert, before God would allow the community to enter that great land. Only Caleb the Kenizzite (Jephunneh's son) and Joshua (Nun's son) out of that generation would be allowed to enjoy settlement there because they followed Him completely. 14Now you dare to propose this—you're as sinful as your predecessors! The Eternal will surely loose His tremendous anger against us again. 15If you decide to stop following God's plan for the land, He will abandon the whole congregation out here in the wilderness, and it's you who will be blamed for our people's destruction.

Reubenites and Gadites *(approaching Moses): 16-19What if we lay claim to the land here, but then proceed with the others west across the Jordan and into their land? We would fight alongside all the other Israelites, but we wouldn't take any of that land for ourselves since our inheritance is on the eastern side of the Jordan. Only after we've seen to it that everyone else is safely settled there would we return here to take up our lives as residents of this place. We could set up preliminary dwellings now for our sheep and livestock and towns for our women and children. The towns should be fortified, since there are still inhabitants in the land who would like to run us out. We really feel that we've found our home here, east of the Jordan.

Moses: 20If you keep your word—to fight with us before the Eternal One Himself 21until by our warfare God drives out His enemies 22and that land becomes undeniably ours—then, yes. Then you will have satisfied your responsibilities to the Eternal and to Israel, and you may count this land as your own. 23But if you fail to follow through, your sin against the Eternal will follow you. Wherever you go, it will go badly for you. 24Then go ahead and build the enclosures you need for your flocks and the cities for your youngsters that you'll leave behind. But don't forget to live up to your promise.

Reubenites and Gadites: 25We are your servants, our lord, and we'll do as you tell us. 26Here in Gilead, we'll get our women and the little kids settled along with all of our animals. 27Then you can count on us, armed and ready to battle for the Eternal. We will obey your orders and see to it that the other families successfully gain their own territory.

28Moses gave instructions to Eleazar the priest, Joshua (Nun's son), and the heads of the other extended families of the Israelite clans.

Moses: 29If indeed the Gadites and Reubenites fight in front of the Eternal One and beside the rest of you to successfully dominate that land across the Jordan River, then you must honor their desire to return here to have this Gilead land for their own. 30But if they don't take up their weapons and go with you into battle, then their ownership of this territory is null and void, and they shall be assigned land in Canaan along with the rest of the Israelite tribes.

Reubenites and Gadites: 31Exactly as we understand this to be the will of God, we will do it. 32We'll arm ourselves and fight with you under His direction in Canaan, but with the understanding that our home is right here, on this side of the Jordan River.

33*With this agreement established,* Moses gave the Gadites and the Reubenites, along with Manasseh (half of the greater Joseph clan), King Sihon's Amorite land and King Og's Bashan land, including the cities and their neighboring towns inside those boundaries. 34The Gadites immediately got to work rebuilding the cities of Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, 35Atroth-shophan, Jazer, Jogbehah, 36Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran with strong defenses and enclosures for their livestock. 37As for the Reubenites, they rebuilt Heshbon, Elealeh, Kiriathaim, 38Nebo, Baal-meon, and Sibmah. They gave names to each of the new cities and changed the names of those they rebuilt. 39As far as the Manasseh family goes, Machir's clan overran the Amorites in Gilead, 40so Moses gave them that land to live in. 41Jair's Manassite clan also captured settlements for themselves and named them Havvoth-jair, 42and Nobah took over the former Kenath with its surrounding villages and renamed it Nobah, after their own clan.

► In this next chapter, Moses outlines the Israelites' journey to this point, and in doing so reminds them of the events that have brought them to this place. In that walk down memory lane, it can be difficult to place the locations within a linear reference of time. The entire book moves through a few months in the first 14 chapters, and suddenly it is 38 years later. After that, time seems to stand still as the people are prepared to go into the promised land. It is hard to determine when things happened in those 38 years.

33 1-2Based on the meticulous records of departure points Moses kept, at the direction of the Eternal One, he reported that the Israelites' wilderness journey from Egypt led by Moses and Aaron followed this itinerary: 3They started out from Rameses in Egypt on Month 1, day 15 (the day after observing the Passover), and were exalted before the Egyptians' eyes 4(who were burying their firstborn dead, struck down by God, and whose gods the Eternal was punishing). 5The Israelites' first camp after Rameses was Succoth. 6The next, Etham, was right where the wilderness begins. 7From Etham, they went toward Pi-hahiroth, facing Baal-zephon, and camped in front of Migdol. 8From Pi-hahiroth, they crossed the sea and entered the wilderness proper. For three days, they crossed that Etham Wilderness, stopping over at Marah 9and then Elim. That was a good spot to camp. Elim was an oasis with 12 springs and 70 palm trees. 10After Elim, their next stop was at the coast of the Red Sea;* 11then they camped in the Sin Wilderness. 12After leaving Sin, they traveled to Dophkah, 13then Alush, 14and then Rephidim. At that point, the people were getting desperate for water *and ornery on account of their discomfort and thirst. There, God told Moses to produce water for them from out of a rock. 15After that, the Sinai Wilderness. 16-17Their stopping places after Sinai were first Kibroth-hattaavah, then Hazeroth. 18-23They camped as they moved from place to place through Rithmah, Rimmon-perez, Libnah, Rissah, Kehelathah, and Mount Shepher. 24-27From there they moved through Haradah, Makheloth, Tahath, and Terah. 28-33Continuing their journey from place to place, they went through Mithkah, Hashmonah, Moseroth, Bene-jaakan, Hor-haggidgad, and Jotbathah. 34-37They camped in Abronah, Ezion-geber, Kadesh (in the Zin Wilderness), and then Mount Hor (on the Edomite border). 38It was at Mount Hor that Aaron the priest went up the mountain and died as the Eternal said he would. That was in the 40th year after the Israelites had left Egypt, and it happened on the first day of the fifth month. 39Aaron was 123 years old when he died on Mount Hor. 40That was also when the Canaanite king of Arad, from the Negev region, caught wind of the Israelites' arrival and attacked them.

* 33:10 Literally, Sea of Reeds * 33:14 Exodus 17:1

► One battle between the Amorites (a people of Canaan) and the Israelites seems to be mentioned in four different passages (14:45; 21:1; 33:40; Deuteronomy 1:44). In this chapter, Moses is looking back at what has brought them to this place, ready to enter the land. He rehearses the death of Aaron (20:27-29) and the battle that followed. Initially, the Amorites overcome the Israelites at Hormah (14:45; 33:40; Deuteronomy 1:44) and take prisoners (21:1). Then with the Lord's help, the Israelites rebound to defeat the king of Arad and rescue the people who have been captured (21:2-4). For some reason, this battle is mentioned in different contexts three times and with two different outcomes.

41-47After Mount Hor, their next camp site was Zalmonah, then Punon, Oboth, Iye-abarim (on Moab's border), Dibon-gad, Almon-diblathaim, and Nebo's foothills of Abarim. 48From Abarim, they set up camp on the flatlands of Moab, on the western banks of the Jordan River, east of Jericho. 49Their camp stretched from Beth-jeshimoth on the riverbank to Abel-shittim in the flatlands.

50In that Moabite flatland, next to the Jordan, east of Jericho, the Eternal One told Moses to speak to the people.

Moses is instructed to remind the people of their mission to take the land and utterly decimate the peoples who are presently living there.

Eternal One: 51Tell this new generation of Israelites that as soon as they cross the Jordan into Canaan, 52they must make its inhabitants flee. They must obliterate any carved or molded images of other gods and goddesses and the high places where they're worshiped. 53Tell them they must take that land. I promised it to them and have determined they should live in it as their own. 54Divide it up among the people by clan, and make decisions about who gets what partly based on the size of the groups. But once you've made that rough distinction, draw lots for the specific territories. Whatever you draw, that's how the land shall be allotted. Each of the tribes from Jacob's extended families shall have their own land. 55If they do not fully conquer and take the land from its native inhabitants, those remaining people will be a constant irritation, causing trouble and annoyance like thorns in their eyes and barbs in their sides 56*because if they don't fully dispossess the present occupants,* I will do to the Israelites what I would have done to the Canaanites.

► Aaron is now dead, and Moses is given the final instructions about the division of the land. Even knowing he will not enter the land, Moses doesn't whine or step back from leadership. He continues following God until the nation is about to cross through the waters of the Jordan and begin their new adventure, realizing God's destiny for themselves, because he is the faithful servant of God even when he knows there will be no reward.

34 The Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One (to Moses): 2Command the Israelites, "This is the exact territory you should take, as promised to you by Me for an inheritance throughout the succeeding generations—the entire land of Canaan. 3The southern part runs from the Zin Wilderness along the border with Edom. The southern boundary begins at the end of the Dead Sea* on the east, 4turns south of the Akrabbim highlands, and crosses over to Zin. Its far end is south of Kadesh-barnea, over to Hazar-addar, across to Azmon, [5]and from there to the Egyptian Wadi straight out to the great Mediterranean Sea. [6]This great sea will be your western boundary. [7]At the northern end, make a line from the great Mediterranean Sea to Mount Hor, [8]then to Lebo-hamath, and up to Zedad. [9]Your territory will be south of Ziphron and Hazar-enan. All that makes up your northern boundary. [10]As for the east, mark your boundary from Hazar-enan to Shepham, [11]down to Riblah (east of Ain), follow the eastern slope of the Sea of Chinnereth, [12]and down the Jordan River all the way to the Dead Sea.* That's it. Those are the boundaries of your promised land."

* 34:3 Literally, Sea of Salt

Moses *(to the Israelites): [13]Exactly which parts of it go to which family shall be determined finally by lot. That is, at least, for the nine remaining tribes and for Ephraim, the other half of the Joseph tribe. [14-15]The extended families of Gadites, Reubenites, and Manassehites (from Joseph's line) have already gotten their land on this eastern side of the Jordan River.

[16]Again the Eternal One spoke to Moses.

Eternal One: [17]The priest Eleazar and Joshua (Nun's son) shall have the honor of assigning the territories that will henceforth be each one's ancestral land. [18]One from each of the tribes will then execute these directions. [19]Those men are: for Judah—Caleb (Jephunneh's son); [20]for Simeon—Shemuel (Ammihud's son); [21]for Benjamin—Elidad (Chislon's son); [22]for the Danites—Bukki (Jogli's son); [23]out of the greater Joseph family, for the Manassehites—Hanniel (Ephod's son), [24]and for the Ephraimites—Kemuel (Shiphtan's son); [25]for Zebulun—Elizaphan (Parnach's son); [26]for Issachar—Paltiel (Azzan's son); [27]for Asher—Ahihud (Shelomi's son); [28]and for Naphtali—Pedahel (Ammihud's son).

[29]These are the men whom the Eternal One determined should head up the process of dividing the Canaanite land among the Israelites.

35 In that area, on the Moabite flatlands across the Jordan River, east of Jericho, the Eternal One issued more directions mediated by Moses to the Israelites.

God ensures that an allowance is made for the Levites, who will not have any territory of their own.

Eternal One: [2]Tell the Israelite families that once they've received the land that will be undeniably theirs and theirs alone, they must each set aside some cities and those cities' surrounding fields within their particular territory for the Levites. [3-4]The Levites can then live in those cities and use the surrounding fields, 1,500 feet from the wall all around, to keep and raise their animals. [5]In other words, with the city at the center, the fields designated for the Levites should encompass a territory with a radius of 3,000 feet.

[6-8]Make sure they are allocated according to the size of the territory that each group has. The biggest families will give the greatest number of towns; the smaller tribes only a few. Included among the Levites' towns, 48 in total, shall be the six cities of refuge to where a person who killed someone by accident can run for safety from revenge, along with 42 other cities.

[9](continuing to Moses) [10]Tell the Israelites that once they've crossed the Jordan into Canaan and can see the land for themselves, [11-12]they should pick out which cities they want to make safe havens for persons accused of manslaughter. If someone kills another person by accident, the guilty party should be able to live in one of those cities without fear that he'll be killed in revenge before he's had a fair trial in front of his peers. [13-15]It's up to the people exactly which six cities they designate for this purpose, but be sure three are beyond the Jordan and three are in Canaan. These are to be safe places for anyone who unintentionally caused another person's death whether he is an Israelite or a foreigner.

[16-21]If someone picks up an instrument—iron, stone, wood, whatever—and batters somebody else so badly that the victim dies, or if he otherwise kills with intent (fatally pushes with hatred or throws an object from some hidden place that kills its target), the perpetrator is guilty of murder. His punishment is death in return, and someone shall be assigned to kill him. The one to carry out this death penalty is called the "blood avenger." Whenever the avenger has a chance to kill the murderer, he should do so.

22-28Sometimes it happens, though, that a person pushes his friend or acquaintance, throws an object, or happens to drop a heavy stone on someone else without any intention of hurting (much less killing) the person, but the other person happens to die from it. The guilty person should be able to take refuge in one of the six designated cities, safe from the one who would avenge the death he caused. Then people from among the greater community shall judge whether it was indeed an accident or not. When the congregation determines it was an accident, the person who accidentally killed shall be saved from the blood avenger. He must live within the city of refuge, though. If he leaves it, the blood avenger is allowed to kill him with impunity because the man knew not to leave his sanctuary city. However, once the anointed high priest of Israel dies, that restriction shall be lifted, and the person who unintentionally killed another may return home, free and clear. 29This is the way it should be, a binding law based on precedents, for this community down through the generations and wherever they happen to be living.

30The case of intentional murder is different. A person so guilty shall be put to death, but only if there are enough witnesses to render a reliable account. If only one person claims to have seen the crime, you shall not put the accused to death. 31If someone is indeed guilty, there shall be no alternative of life ransom for the death penalty. This crime cannot be paid off. 32Neither shall you take money to get a person accused of manslaughter out of his obligation to live in the city of refuge. He simply must stay there till the term is up, when the high priest dies. 33Failure to honor life in this way contaminates the very land itself. Do not pollute the land where you live by allowing blood guilt to go unpunished. Once the land has been subjected to such violence, it must be purified, so the blood of the one who caused bloodshed must be shed. 34You won't pollute the land where you live and where I also have chosen to dwell among you. I, the Eternal One, dwell among the Israelites.

► These regulations and ordinances detailed in Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers are not just to help the Israelites live better together; they also affect the condition of the nation. Even more importantly, they reflect on the Lord. What the people do or fail to do affects the reputation of God, and that has more far-reaching implications than the people can imagine. God uses the people of His kingdom to demonstrate to the surrounding nations what it means to live in obedience and according to the will of God. It also impacts the purity of the worship made to the Lord and the environment of His holy tent and later the temple. His program in general that is being accomplished through the nation is colored by the moral behavior of the people.

36 The heads of the extended families traced back to Joseph through Gilead (son of Machir, son of Manasseh) approached Moses, the community's leaders, and the heads of Israel's extended families to share their concerns.

One critical issue related to Zelophehad (the man whose daughters claimed his inheritance because he didn't have any sons) remains to be cleared up.

Zelophehad's Family: 2*We appreciate and accept that* the Eternal One told Moses, my lord, that among the land given by lot to the Israelites, whatever would have gone to Zelophehad (our kinsman) as an inheritance should be passed down to his daughters. 3*The trouble is,* if they marry outside of our tribe into another Israelite tribe, their land will go with them. That will reduce the territory designated to our family and increase the other tribe's inheritance. 4And in the great 50th year, the Sabbath of Sabbath years called the Jubilee of the Israelites, whatever land used to be ours through their connection to our family will certainly revert to whichever tribe they married into.* In other words, their inheritance will be forever taken away from the territory that belongs to our extended family.

Moses (to all the Israelites): 5The Eternal has said that these descendants of Joseph are right. 6-9*In light of it,* He has determined that Zelophehad's daughters should marry whomever they think is best, but they should do so within the clan of their extended family so that their land stays in the family. The same goes for any future Israelite daughters in a similar situation. Let them marry whomever they will, but only within the clan of their father's extended family. There shouldn't be any permanent transfer of land from one tribe to another because the territories should be fixed as each tribe's inheritance for all time.

10-11The daughters of Zelophehad didn't argue or dissent. They obeyed the command of the Eternal One as articulated by Moses. Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Noah each married one of their cousins 12from a clan of Manesseh (Joseph's son). Thus, they and their land stayed within the Manasseh clan.

13These are the directions and instructions the Eternal One gave through Moses to the Israelites before they entered Canaan, as they stood on the Moabite flatlands next to the Jordan River, east of Jericho.

The Exodus and Wilderness Wanderings

DEUTERONOMY

Farewell to Moses

By Moses, shepherd of God's people

Deuteronomy has traditionally been attributed to Moses. As a unit, the books of Moses are the foundation of the Scriptures. They lay out the details of God's early encounters with His people as He calls, instructs, and commissions them to extend His blessings to the world. Along the way, God selects a remarkable man named Moses to be His servant; he challenges Pharaoh, rescues the Hebrew slaves, and becomes the mediator of God's covenant with Israel. The books of Moses record some of the high and low points of the prophet's life, and Deuteronomy—the final chapter in Moses' biography—contains his last words to the children of those he liberated from Egypt.

The title "Deuteronomy" means "second law," but it does not refer to an additional law God gives to Israel. It is best understood as a second version of the law God established with Israel at Sinai (17:18). Moses is updating God's law for a new generation facing new challenges as they enter a new land. This new generation watched as their parents, with a weak faith and a grumbling spirit, slowly died in the desert. Now it is their turn to see if they can remain true and faithful to their God who has been true and faithful to them. So they stand on the plains of Moab and listen as Moses reminds them of who they are, where they have come from, and what God requires of them. At the heart of Moses' three farewell addresses is the prophet's call for God's people to love Him with all their heart, soul, and strength, and to teach their children to do the same (6:5-8). When asked, Jesus calls this the greatest commandment (Matthew 22:34-40). Many of the stipulations referred to in this updated version of the law demonstrate what the love of God looks like in matters of business, family, justice, property, and war. Covenant life is not to be motivated by fear but by love.

The Book of Deuteronomy has a distinctive literary shape that reflects the social and political world in which it was written. Its structure is comparable to Hittite treaties of the second millennium B.C. and Assyrian treaties of the eighth century B.C. Treaties like these established relationships between rulers and their subjects, and they laid out expectations for the future. The Book of Deuteronomy follows this form, because the Lord is renewing His covenant treaty with a new generation of Israelites, accepting them as His servants and chosen people.

The book ends with an account of Moses' death and burial on Mount Nebo and a touching tribute to his greatness. Before he dies, Moses commissions Joshua to succeed him; now it is his turn to lead.

1 These are the words Moses spoke to all the people of Israel who were gathered in the wilderness in the Arabah Valley east of the Jordan River, across from Suph. They'd traveled through many places on their way here, from Paran through Tophel and on to Laban, Hazeroth, and Dizahab.

These places serve as various destinations along Israel's wilderness route before they reach the plains of Moab, facing the Jordan River, just outside the land of Canaan.

2It's only an 11-day journey by the Mount Seir road from Horeb (also known as Mount Sinai), where God made a covenant with Israel, to Kadesh-barnea, where the people first tried to enter the promised land. 3-4Now on the first day of the 11th month, 40 years after the nation left Egypt and sometime after Moses had defeated Sihon (king of the Amorites who ruled in Heshbon) and Og (king of Bashan who ruled in Ashtaroth and Edrei), Moses began to give to a new generation of the Israelites each word the Eternal had commanded him to tell them. 5Beyond the Jordan River in the land of Moab, Moses tried to explain this law and its outworking for the people.

► Moses now explains to the current generation of Israelites what the Lord has done for them, so the Israelites can confidently give their full allegiance to this One God, who has already proven Himself as their protector and guide. Even today it's helpful for us to remember God's faithfulness to earlier generations in our own families and nations. Our confidence in God is strengthened most when we recall how He has worked directly in our own lives to protect, provide for, and guide us.

Moses: 6The Eternal, our True God, spoke to us back at Horeb. He told us, "You've stayed long enough at this mountain! 7Break camp, and head up into the Amorite highlands, into the territories of all their neighbors—into the arid valley,* the hills, the lowlands, the southern desert,* and the Mediterranean seacoast. Go into the land of the Canaanites, as far north as Lebanon and all the way east to the great Euphrates River. 8Look! I've brought you right to the edge of the land that I, the Eternal, swore I'd give to your ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and to their descendants after them. Go in, and take possession of it!"

9I had to tell you at the time, "I can't bear you as a people and deal with all of your cases by myself anymore. 10The Eternal your God has kept increasing your numbers, and just look at you today! There are as many of you as there are stars in the sky! 11I hope the Eternal, the God of your ancestors, makes you a thousand times more numerous and blesses you just as He said He would. 12But how can I alone handle your problems and burdens and cases? 13Choose some wise, perceptive, knowledgeable men from your tribes, and I'll put them in authority over you." 14You told me you thought it was a great plan, 15so I took some leaders from your tribes who were wise and well respected; I chose them as authorities over you all—of groups of thousands or hundreds or fifties or tens, and I appointed some as tribal representatives. 16Then I gave your judges careful instructions: "Listen to the disputes between your neighbors that are brought to you, and judge them fairly regardless of who is involved—two Israelites or an Israelite and a foreigner. 17Don't show any favoritism when you judge; whether a person is important or unimportant, hear him out. Don't be intimidated by anybody because it's really God who is the judge; you are just His agents. If any case is too difficult for you, bring it to me, and I'll handle it." 18At that time, I told you everything you needed to do.

19Then we left Horeb, as the Eternal, our True God, commanded us; and we went through that awful, vast wilderness—none of us will ever forget the sight! We headed toward the Amorite highlands until we got to Kadesh-barnea. 20I told you, "You've reached the Amorite highlands, and the Eternal our God is going to give them to us soon. 21Look! The Eternal, your True God, has put this land within your grasp! Go up into these highlands, and

The Book of Deuteronomy, even as it follows a covenant-treaty form, has almost a cinematic quality to it. Much of the action takes place in flashbacks as Moses recalls events and describes them to the Israelites in a drama. As we've been seeing in this opening historical section of the book, sometimes there are even layers of voices. At one point, Moses speaks in the voice of the people as they speak in the voice of the spies. Shortly we'll see Moses speaking in the voice of the Lord as He speaks in Moses' own voice! It begins by showing a storyteller and then shifts locations repeatedly in space and time to depict the various episodes he's describing, with his voice providing continuity throughout. Deuteronomy has a timeless, ancient-modern feel because the story of God's work on earth really is written and told by people as they struggle, with varying degrees of success, to understand God's purposes and to join with those people of God who have gone before us.

take possession of them as the Eternal, the God of your ancestors, promised you would. Go! Don't be afraid, and don't be intimidated!"

22But you approached me with ideas of your own: "Couldn't we send a few people in to investigate first? They could explore the land, come back, and tell us what route we should take and what cities we'd come to along the way." 23I agreed this was a good idea, so I chose 12 of you to go, one from each tribe. 24They went up into the highlands. They explored the Eshcol Valley 25and picked some of the enormous fruit growing there. Then they came back down to us with the fruit and a report: "This is a wonderful land that the Eternal our God is going to give to us!"

26But even after all this encouragement, you still weren't willing to go up and fight. You rebelled against what the Eternal your God told you to do. 27In your homes, you complained to each other, "The Eternal hates us! That's why He brought us out of the land of Egypt—so He could hand us over to the Amorites. They're going to destroy us! 28*He tells us,* 'Go up,' but go up where? The report of the rest of those we sent out was terrifying: 'The people there are bigger and taller than we are. Their cities are huge, with walls as high as the sky! We even saw giants there—descendants of the Anakim.'"

29So I told you, "Don't be scared! Don't be afraid of them! 30*You won't have to fight this battle yourselves;* the Eternal your God, who always goes ahead of you, will fight for you just as He did in Egypt—you saw Him do it! 31And here in this wilderness, all along the route you've traveled until you reached this place, haven't you seen the Eternal, your True God, carrying you the way a parent carries a child? 32But you still don't trust the Eternal your God, 33even though He always goes ahead of you as you travel and finds places for you to camp. In a pillar of fire by night and in a cloud by day, He always shows you the right way to go."

34When the Eternal heard your untrusting words, He angrily swore an oath: 35"Not a single person in this wicked generation will see the good land I swore to give to your ancestors! 36There'll be only one exception: Caleb (Jephunneh's son). He will see it. I'll give the very land he walked through when he spied it out to him and his descendants because he remained completely loyal to the Eternal." 37And He was angry with me, too, because of the way you acted. He told me, "Not even you will go into the land! 38It will be Joshua (Nun's son), a man you've already entrusted with important responsibilities, who will enter it instead. Encourage him, because he will lead the people into the land and give it to Israel as their possession. 39You said that if you fought, all your soldiers would be killed and your little ones would become plunder for your enemies. But it will be those children under age 20, who don't know right from wrong yet, who will enter the land. I'll give it to them, and it will belong to them. 40But as for you, head back into the wilderness, toward the Red Sea."*

41After God's judgment you responded, "We've sinned against the Eternal! We'll go up and fight now, just as the Eternal, our True God, commanded us." So each of you strapped on your weapons and prepared to fight. You thought it would be easy to get up into the highlands. 42The Eternal tried to warn you that it was too late by telling me, "Tell them not to go up and not to fight! I am not with them. They'll be crushed by their enemies." 43I told you everything, but you wouldn't listen. You rebelled against the Eternal's command, and you went up arrogantly into the highlands. 44The Amorites who lived there came out and attacked you, and you ran away from them as if they were a swarm of bees! They crushed more and more of your soldiers all the way from Seir to Hormah, until they gave up the chase. 45You came back and wept before the Eternal. But He wouldn't listen to a word you said. 46So you just stayed in Kadesh and didn't leave for a long time.

* 1:40 Literally, Sea of Reeds

2 Moses: Finally we did as the Eternal had commanded me, and we headed back into the wilderness toward the Red Sea.* For a long time, we wandered around Mount Seir, 2until at last I got new instructions from the Eternal: 3"You've wandered around this mountain long enough. Turn north, 4and give the people these directions from Me: 'You're going to cross into the territory of a people who are related to you. They're the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir. They'll be afraid of you, so be very careful what you do. 5Don't incite a fight with them because I won't give you even a square foot of their land. I gave Mount Seir to Esau, and I want his descendants to live there. 6'You may purchase food from them with silver and eat; you may buy water from them with silver and drink.'" 7*You are not to plunder this nation* because the Eternal your God, has blessed you in every way. He's watched over you as you've journeyed through this vast wilderness. Throughout these 40 years, the Eternal your God has been with you, and you haven't lacked a thing.

10The Emim were formerly living in Ar. They were a large and powerful nation, and they were as tall as the giant Anakim were. 11They and the Anakim are usually known as "Rephaim," but the Moabites call them just "Emim." 12The Horites were formerly living in Seir, but the descendants of Esau drove them out. The Edomites destroyed them and took their place, just as Israel did in the land the Eternal gave them as their possession, saying, 13"Now cross the Wadi Zered into their territory."

Moses: So we crossed the Zered Valley. 14At that point, we'd been traveling for 38 years, from Kadesh-barnea to the Zered Valley. The last of the people in our camp who had been old enough to fight back then, those men of war, finally died. The Eternal had sworn to them that none of them would be left among us when we did enter the land, and this happened just as He said. 15The Eternal struck them with one disaster after another inside the camp until they were all dead.

16Just as soon as the last man of war was gone, 17the Eternal spoke to me: 18"Today you will pass into the territory of Moab when you cross Ar. 19When you get to the other side, you'll be facing the descendants of Ammon. Don't attack them, and don't fight any battles with them because I'm not going to give you any of Ammon's land. I already gave this land to these descendants of Lot, so it belongs to them."

20The land of the Ammonites is also considered the land of the Rephaim because the Rephaim (whom the Ammonites call the Zamzummin) were formerly living in it. 21They, too, were a large and powerful nation, as tall as the Anakim, but the Eternal destroyed them so the Ammonites could take their place. 22He did the same thing for the descendants of Esau who now live in Seir: He destroyed the Horites so the Edomites could take their place. Esau's descendants are still living in Seir. 23In the same way, some Caphtorim came from Caphtor* and destroyed the Avvim, who were the first to live in villages as far away as Gaza, and took their place.

Episodes like the one described in 2:34-35, in which entire populations are wiped out, are among the most deeply troubling parts of the Bible. Particularly when this is done under the leadership of people appointed by God, or even on God's direct instructions, many serious questions are raised. How is this consistent with God's mercy? Interpreters have taken different approaches to try to account for episodes like these, but many problems still remain.

Perhaps the best that can be done is to acknowledge that the Bible presents us with a mixture of materials. Mostly God's mercy, kindness, and forgiveness are stressed; but sometimes we do see judgments of God, whether through natural forces such as flood and fire, or through human armies, carried out against entire populations. Which of these attributes, mercy or justice, most essentially characterizes God? Which passages should we consider normative for our own guidance today, and which ones should we see as exceptional and interpret in light of the others? Discerning why and how these exceptional circumstances arose remains a matter for thoughtful students of the Bible to reflect on with reverence and concern.

Moses: 24*The Lord continued, saying,* "Get up, get going, and move on through the Arnon Valley. Listen: I'm going to defeat Sihon, the Amorite king of Heshbon, for you; I'll give you his land as the beginning of your new territory. Go get it, and attack him! 25Starting today, I'm going to make every nation under the sky terrified of you. When they hear about you, they will tremble and despair."

26We were in the wilderness of Kedemoth when I sent messengers to King Sihon in Heshbon and offered him these terms of peace: 27"Allow me to go across your land. I'll keep to the King's Highway; I won't turn off to the right or to the left. 28*I ask only for these rights*: sell me food and water for silver, so that I can eat and so that I can drink. Just let me walk across your land. 29The descendants of Esau who live in Seir let me pass through their territory this way, and so did the Moabites who live in Ar. I'll keep going right to the Jordan River, where I'll cross into the land the Eternal, our True God, is giving to us." 30But Sihon, king of Heshbon, refused to let us go through his land marching so close to his capital. The Eternal your God made him stubborn and obstinate so that he would fight and be defeated by you, and that's just what happened. 31The Eternal told me, "Look! I have already begun to hand Sihon and his land over to you. Go and take it! His land will be the first of your new territories." 32Then Sihon and his whole army came out to fight against us at Jahaz. 33The Eternal, our True God, defeated him for us; we destroyed Sihon and his sons and his whole army. 34We captured all his cities at that time, and we killed all the men, women, and children in each one of them. We didn't leave a single survivor. 35We kept only the livestock as our plunder, along with the loot from the cities we had captured. 36Not a single city was strong enough to keep us out—from Aroer on the rim of the Arnon Valley, including the settlement down in the valley, all the way to Gilead! The Eternal our God gave all of them to us. 37But you didn't go near the land of the Ammonites along the Jabbok River, or toward their cities in the highlands, or anywhere else the Eternal our God told us not to go.

3 Moses: Then we left those conquered regions and continued up the road toward Bashan. Og, the king of Bashan, came out with his whole army to fight against us at Edrei. 2But the Eternal reassured me, "Don't be afraid of him! I'm going to defeat him and his whole army for you, and I'll give you his land. You'll do the same thing to him that you did to Sihon, king of the Amorites, who ruled in Heshbon." 3The Eternal, our True God, defeated Og, king of Bashan, for us. We destroyed his whole army—there were no survivors left to fight for him. 4-5We captured all 60 of his large cities and their surrounding villages at that time; there wasn't a single one we didn't take from them in the whole region of Argob (which was the kingdom of Og in Bashan) in spite of their strong defenses: high walls, fortified gates, and strong bars latching the gates' doors, but we took them all, and a large number of villages. 6We killed all the men, women, and children in each one of them, just as we had done to Sihon, king of Heshbon. 7We kept only the cattle and the loot from the cities as our plunder.

8This is how at that time we conquered the whole land east of the Jordan River. We captured it all from those two ruling Amorite kings, everything from the Arnon Valley all the way up to Mount Hermon:* 10all the cities of the plateau, all of Gilead, and all of Bashan, right out to the cities of Salecah and Edrei (which were in King Og's Bashan). 12aFrom then on, all of that land belonged to us.

9The Sidonians in the north call Mount Hermon "Sirion," and the Amorites call it "Senir." 11King Og of Bashan was the last of the giant Rephaim. He had a bed made of iron; it was over thirteen feet long and six feet wide! You can still see it in the city of Rabbah in Ammon.

Moses: 12bTo the children of Reuben and Gad, I gave the kingdom of Sihon, the area north of Aroer on the edge of the Arnon Valley, including half the Gilead highlands and all the cities there. 13I gave the kingdom of Og to half of Joseph's descendants in the tribe of Manasseh who settled east of the Jordan, including the rest of Gilead, the region of Argob, and Bashan.

All of Bashan is known as the "land of the Rephaim" because of the size of King Og and his ancestors. 14Jair, a leader of Manasseh, conquered the outlying areas in the whole region of Argob, as far as the border of the Geshurites and Maacathites. He named them after himself, so that portion of Bashan is now known as Havvoth-jair, which means "the villages of Jair."

Moses: 15I gave the city of Gilead to Machir, another leader of Manasseh, because he conquered it. 16And I gave the children of Reuben and Gad the land from Gilead south to the middle of the Arnon Valley, north to the Jabbok River, east to the border with Ammon; 17and west to the Jordan River Valley, from the Sea of Galilee* down to the Dead Sea,* beneath where Mount Pisgah rises to the east. 18Do you remember what I commanded you at the time? I told the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh, "The Eternal your God has given you this land, and now it belongs to you. I want all of your warriors to cross the Jordan, fully armed, ahead of your fellow Israelites. 19Only your wives and children and cattle (I know you have a lot of cattle thanks to the plunder you earned) will stay behind in the cities I've given you. 20When the Eternal your God has given the rest of the Israelites the land that will belong to them on the other side of the Jordan, when they are living in peace just as you are now, then each of you can come back here and live on your own land which I've given you."

21I told Joshua, "You've seen with your own eyes everything the Eternal your God has done to these two kings. He will do the same thing to the kingdoms you're now going into. 22Don't be afraid of them—any of you! The Eternal your God will do the fighting for you."

► The conquered Ammonite land on the eastern side is given to Reuben, Gad, and half of Manasseh. But this allocation does not occur until these tribes help their brothers conquer the land on the western side of the Jordan.

Moses: 23Then I pleaded again and again with the Eternal on my own behalf. 24"Eternal Lord, You've only just begun to show me, Your servant, how very great and powerful You are. What other god in heaven or on earth can do the great and powerful things You do? 25Please let me cross the Jordan and see that good land and those beautiful highlands and Lebanon." 26But the Eternal was angry with me because of you, and He wouldn't listen to me.

► The Lord answers so many of Moses' other prayers, so why can't forgiveness and pardon be extended to Moses now? Why is this man of God banned from entering the promised land? At a time when the people need water in the desert (Numbers 20:2-13), even though in their lack of faith they complain bitterly, the Lord mercifully decides to provide water for them. He chooses to give them a miracle through Moses, who is supposed to command a rock (only verbally) to bring forth water. But Moses is enraged with the people. First he castigates them for being "rebels" and then strikes the rock twice with his staff. This act of disobedience will keep Moses from entering the promised land, and in this case, no appeal is possible.

Moses: The Eternal said to me, "That's enough! Don't ever bring this up to Me again! 27You can go up to the top of Mount Pisgah and look to the west and north and south and east to see the land from there. Take a good look, because you're not going to cross the Jordan River. 28So instruct Joshua, and strengthen and encourage him, because he's the one who will lead the people into the land you see and make it their territory. He will conquer it for them." 29And that's why we've stayed here in this valley by Beth-peor at the foot of Mount Pisgah.

4 Moses: So now, Israel, pay close attention to the laws and judgments I'm going to teach you. If you follow them, you'll enter and live in the land the Eternal, the God of your ancestors, is giving you. You'll conquer it, and it will become your territory. 2Don't add anything to what I command you, and don't take away anything from it; just follow the commands of the Eternal your God that I'm giving you now.

3You saw with your own eyes what the Eternal did about your immorality at Baal-peor, the mountain-god. When some of you followed after the Baal god, the Eternal your God killed them right in front of you—not one of them survived![*] 4But all of you who remained loyal to the Eternal your God are still alive today. 5So pay attention—I'm teaching you the rules and judgments the Eternal my God has given me for you. You're to follow them when you enter the land and settle there. 6If you obey them carefully, all the nations around you will marvel at your wisdom and understanding. They'll hear about these rules and say, "This is a great nation—its people are so wise and understanding!" 7Indeed, what other nation is so great that it has a god that compares to the Eternal our God as He is near to us whenever we call on Him? 8What other nation is so great that it has rules and judgments as just as the ones contained in this whole law I'm presenting to you today?

► The Lord chooses Israel from among all the nations to be His own people; but that choice, paradoxically, is for the sake of all the other nations too. Israel is supposed to create a model society, following His laws, and this is supposed to attract other nations to true faith in Him. Most of the Old Testament describes how the Lord is at work in close relationship with one nation. But it also provides continual glimpses, like this one, of the way that relationship is designed to be a vehicle to reach all nations. The "law" is a complex legal code designed to build a new society out of former desert wanderers.

Moses: 9So watch what you do! Be careful with your very life! Don't forget the things you saw with your own eyes, and don't let them fade from your memory. Remember them your whole life; teach them to your children and your grandchildren. 10Remember the day you stood before the Eternal, your True God, at Horeb when He called you to come close. He told me, "Bring all the people to Me. I want them to hear My words, so that they will learn to fear Me as long as they live on this earth and will teach their children to do the same." 11You all came and stood at the foot of the mountain. It blazed with fire all the way up into the sky while dark clouds and mist obscured your view. 12Then the Eternal spoke to you from inside that fire. You heard His voice, you heard His words, but you didn't see His shape—you only heard a voice. 13He told you what to do to keep the covenant He made with you. He gave you the Ten Directives and engraved two copies of them on two stone tablets. 14The Eternal commanded me at that time to teach you the rules and judgments that make up the law He wants you to follow in the land where you're going to live when you cross the Jordan.

15So be very careful! Your souls are at stake! You didn't see any shape when the Eternal spoke to you at Horeb from inside that fire, 16so don't ever become so corrupt that you carve an idol representing Him for yourselves in any shape, whether in the form of a man or a woman, 17or in the form of an animal that lives on the land, or a bird with wings that flies through the sky, 18or anything that crawls on the ground, or a fish that swims in the sea. 19And don't ever become so corrupt that you look up into the sky and see the sun, the moon, and the stars—as if each of them were a god—and be led astray to bow down to them and worship them, which the Eternal your God has given to all the people on earth. 20But the Eternal has done something unique for you: He chose you and delivered you from slavery in Egypt where you were purified as if in an iron furnace, and He made you His very own people, which you are today. 21The Eternal was angry with me because of you, and He swore I would not cross the Jordan River and enter the good land the Eternal your God is giving you to live in. 22I'm not going to cross the Jordan. I'm going to die over on this side, but you will cross the river and take ownership of that good land. 23So be very careful! Don't forget the covenant the Eternal your God made with you; don't make yourselves an idol in the shape of anything. The Eternal your God has commanded you not to! 24The Eternal your God burns with jealousy when you're not completely loyal to Him.

25It would be disastrous if, after you've lived in the land for a long time and had children and grandchildren, you made an idol in any form. You know the Eternal your God considers this an evil thing to do, and it would make Him furious. 26I call the heaven and the land as witnesses against you today, that if you do this, even though you're going to cross the Jordan and take possession of the land, you won't last long on it. You will die quickly—you will certainly be destroyed. 27The Eternal will scatter what's left of you among all the other nations. Only a few of you will be left in each of the nations He takes you to. 28And there you will worship useless items made of wood and stone carved by human beings, so-called "gods" that can't see or hear or eat or smell. 29But when you're there, you'll look for the Eternal your God. If every part of you is invested in the search, heart and soul, then you'll find Him. 30When you're in trouble in those days yet to come because of all these things, you'll come back to the Eternal your God, and you'll listen to His voice. 31He is a compassionate God. He won't abandon you or destroy you or forget the covenant He made with your ancestors—He swore to them that He'd keep it!

32Ask anyone who's ever lived: has anything this great ever happened before? Has anyone even heard of anything like it? Not since the day God first created humanity, not anywhere in the cosmos, from one end to the other. 33You heard the voice of God speaking from inside the fire at Mount Horeb, and you survived! No other nation has ever done anything like that. 34You saw with your own eyes what the Eternal, your True God, did for you in Egypt: He claimed you as His own nation, and He took you right out of another nation that was holding you captive. He rescued you by testing them with plagues, by warning them with signs and omens, by fighting against them with overwhelming strength, and by totally terrifying them! No other god has ever tried to do anything like that. 35You saw all this so you would know the Eternal is the only God who truly exists. There is no other. 36You heard His voice from heaven as He admonished you; He showed you His blazing fire on the earth, and you heard His words from inside that fire—all at His will. 37Because He loved your ancestors, He's also committed to their descendants who came after them, and that's why He personally brought you out of Egypt by His own great power. 38He defeated nations that are greater and stronger than you, and He let you live on their land. It will belong to you! 39You just need to know with every fiber of your being that the Eternal, and no one else, is God up in heaven and down here on the earth. 40If you remember His rules and keep His commands, which I'm teaching you today, things will go well for you and for your children after you. You'll live a long time on the ground the Eternal your God is giving you. He wants you to have it forever.

41Then Moses designated three cities east of the Jordan 42as places where a person could flee if he or she unintentionally killed someone when there was no grudge between them. By fleeing to one of these cities, a person could be safe from revenge and stay alive. 43*These were the cities:* Bezer on the plateau in the wilderness for the Reubenites, Ramoth in Gilead for the Gadites, and Golan in Bashan for the Manassites.

► Establishing these cities of refuge for those who will be living on the east side of the Jordan is the last thing Moses needs to do before sending the people across the river to conquer the rest of the promised land. But they will keep living in that land only if they remain faithful to their covenant with the Lord. So as Moses continues to represent Him, he now describes the people's obligations to the Eternal, beginning with exclusive loyalty and obedience to the one True God.

44This is the law Moses gave to the children of Israel; 45these are the precedents, rules, and decrees Moses taught the people of Israel when they came out of Egypt. 46They were east of the Jordan, in the valley across from Beth-peor, in the land of Amorite King Sihon who ruled in Heshbon. Moses and the children of Israel crushed him when they came out of Egypt. 47Sihon and Og, the Amorite king of Bashan, ruled the territory east of the Jordan. The Israelites took over their land, 48from Aroer on the edge of the Arnon Valley all the way to Mount Sion* (that is, Mount Hermon), 49including the arid valley* east of the Jordan River, down to the Dead Sea,* at the foot of Mount Pisgah.

5 Moses: Listen, Israel, as I proclaim these rules and decrees directly to you today! Learn them, and put them into practice. 2The Eternal our God made a covenant with us at Horeb. 3The Eternal didn't make that covenant just with our parents; He also made it with all of us who are alive here today, because we were included in the covenant when He made it with them. 4The Eternal tried to talk to you directly at that mountain from inside the fire that rose up into the sky. 5But you were afraid of the fire and wouldn't go up the mountain, so I stood between you and the Eternal and told you what He was saying.

Eternal One *(speaking to the people of Israel through Moses): 6I am the Eternal. I am your True God. I led you out of Egypt where you were slaves.

7You are to worship no other gods before me—My presence is enough.

8You are not to make idols of anything in the sky above or on the earth below or down in the sea. 9You are not to bow down in worship of any images of other gods, for I am the Eternal your God. I am jealous for worship, bringing punishment on you and your children to come, even down to your great-grandchildren, to whoever hates Me. 10Instead, those who obey My commands and truly love Me will receive My loyal love endlessly, even for a thousand generations.

11You are to not use My name lightly or flippantly or as a curse. I will punish anyone who treats My name as anything less than sacred.

12*You and your family are to* honor the Sabbath by setting it aside for the Lord your God. Make sure it remains holy, just as I commanded you. 13You should do all of your work in six days, and 14on the seventh—the Sabbath—do not do any work. This goes for you, your sons, your daughters, your male and female servants, your oxen and donkeys and cattle, and foreign travelers staying at your house. My Sabbath rest is for all to enjoy. 15Remember what it was like when you were a slave in Egypt. Then with overwhelming power I brought you out of there. That's why I have commanded you to observe the Sabbath each week.

16Honor your father and mother,* as I have commanded you. If you do, you will be blessed with long life and all will go well for you as you live on the ground I am giving you.*

* 4:48 Other manuscripts read "Sirion." * 4:49 Hebrew, Arabah * 4:49 Literally, Sea of the Arabah * 5:16 Matthew 15:4; Mark 7:10

17You must never murder anyone.
18You must never commit adultery.*
19You must never steal.
20You must never lie when you're called to give testimony about another person.*

Moses (summarizing): 22When all of you were gathered at the mountain, the Eternal told you these things in a loud voice, speaking from inside the fire while dark clouds and mist obscured your view, and He added nothing more. He engraved two copies of them on two stone tablets and gave them to me. 23Then all of your tribal representatives and elders approached me because you were so afraid when you heard His voice coming from the darkness, as the mountain blazed with fire. 24*They told me what* you were saying: "Today the Eternal our God has displayed His glory and power, and we've heard His voice from inside that fire. We see that God can speak to mortals, and they can survive! 25But if we keep listening to the voice of the Eternal, our True God, that huge fire is going to burn us up, and we'll die! Why should we let that happen? 26Who on earth has ever heard the voice of the living God speaking from inside a flame, as we just did, and survived? 27You, go up and listen to everything the Eternal our God is saying, and then come tell us everything He tells you. We'll listen, and we'll obey."

28The Eternal heard everything you said when you told me this. He responded to me, "I've heard what the people told you. They have a good idea! 29I wish they would always think this way—that they would fear Me and keep all My commands. Then everything would go well for them and their children forever. 30Tell them they can return to their tents, and I will speak solely through you. 31But you are to stand here by Me; and I'll tell you all the commands, rules, and judgments I want you to teach them to follow in the land I'm giving them to live in."

► Moses deals with God directly because the people are simply too terrified of the Lord! These well-known Ten Directives or Commandments teach broad principles for godly life and relationships by presenting specific rules meant to be applied more widely, through thoughtful reflection. There are ten because this is the "human" number in the Bible—people ordinarily have ten fingers and ten toes. But our moral reflection is not supposed to be limited only to the ten areas considered here. The same principles of right relationship illustrated in these areas can be carried into all other areas of human life. The genius of the instruction here is that it's brief enough to be carved on a stone tablet a person can carry or to be remembered when looking at one's fingers or toes, but it has implications that are limitless.

Moses: 32So be very careful to do what the Eternal your God commanded you! Don't turn to the right or to the left; 33stay on the path the Eternal your God has marked out for you. That way you won't die, everything will go well for you, and you'll live a long time in the land that's going to be your territory.

6 Moses: The Eternal your God commanded me to teach you these rules and judgments so that you would obey them in the land that is yours when you cross the Jordan. 2You are to fear Him and obey His rules and commands, just as I'm teaching them to you now. Do this your whole lives—you, your children and your grandchildren—and you'll live in the land a long time. 3Yes, Israel, if you pay careful attention and obey, everything will go well for you in that land flowing with milk and honey; and you'll have many, many descendants just as the Eternal, the God of your ancestors, promised you.

* 5:16 Ephesians 6:2-3 * 5:17-18 James 2:11 * 5:16-20 Mark 10:19; Luke 18:20

► The phrase "a land flowing with milk and honey" is certainly metaphorical. Moses doesn't mean that the rivers and streams of the promised land literally flow with milk and honey rather than with water. But he does want the people to have such a picture in their minds. He wants them to know they will be leaving behind the nomadic, foraging existence they have known in the wilderness. They will settle in a new land where their cattle will be well fed and will be able to provide them with milk in abundance. They will have the freedom to pursue even more discretionary activities since date honey would seep out of the trees without needing cultivating. God's promise isn't just that they will possess the land but that they will find rest, abundance, and health in it.

Moses: [4]Listen, Israel! The Eternal is our True God—He alone. [5]You should love Him, your True God, with all your heart and soul, with every ounce of your strength.* [6]Make the things I'm commanding you today part of who you are. [7]Repeat them to your children. Talk about them when you're sitting together in your home and when you're walking together down the road. Make them the last thing you talk about before you go to bed and the first thing you talk about the next morning. [8]Do whatever it takes to remember them: tie a reminder on your hand and bind a reminder on your forehead where you'll see it all the time, [9]such as on the doorpost where you cross the threshold or on the city gate.

[10]The Eternal your God promised your ancestors, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, that He would give you this land. When He brings you into it, you'll live in beautiful and spacious cities you didn't build. [11]You'll have houses filled with good things waiting for you—cisterns to hold water already dug out of the rock for you, and vineyards and olive orchards that you didn't plant. You'll have all you want to eat and more. [12]When this happens, be very, very careful! Don't forget it was the Eternal who brought you out of Egypt, where you were slaves. [13]Worship Him, your True God, and serve Him and swear oaths only in His name.* [14]Don't become devoted to any of the gods the people around you worship. [15]The Eternal your God is living right among you, and He's a jealous God. He would become furious if you were unfaithful to Him—He'd wipe you off the face of the earth!

► Massah is a bittersweet memory for the Israelites. The people have complained and grumbled against the Eternal and actually prefer Egyptian bondage or even death to following God in the desert, but the Lord shows up and brings water out of rocks!

Moses: [17]Carefully obey the commands, rules, and precedents the Eternal, your True God, has given you. [18]Do the things He considers right and good. Then everything will go well for you, and you'll go and live in the good land He promised to your ancestors. [19]The Eternal will drive out all of your enemies, just as He said He would.

[20]You'll have conversations about this with your children in the future, and this is how they should go:

Child: What are these precedents and rules and judgments the Eternal our God commanded you to obey?

Parents *(to your child): [21]We used to be slaves to Pharaoh in Egypt, but then the Eternal delivered us with overwhelming power. [22]He sent amazing and awful signs and omens to torment the Egyptians, Pharaoh, and his royal court—right before our eyes! [23]He brought us out of there so He could bring us here and give us the land He promised to our ancestors. [24]He commanded us to remember all these rules to show that we fear Him, our God, so that things will always go well for us and so that we can keep living here as we are now. [25]If we carefully obey everything the Eternal our

* 6:5 Mark 12:29-30; 6:5 Matthew 22:37; Luke 10:27 * 6:13 Matthew 4:10; Luke 4:8 * 6:16 Matthew 4:7; Luke 4:12

God has commanded us, then we'll be living as we should, in righteousness and in right relationship with Him.

7 Moses: As the Eternal, your True God, is bringing you into the land where you're going to live when you cross the Jordan, He'll drive out many nations ahead of you—Hittites, Girgashites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites—seven nations that are bigger and stronger than you are. 2The Eternal your God will put them in your power. You must crush them; destroy them completely! Don't make any treaties with them, and don't show them any mercy. 3*Above all,* don't intermarry with them! Don't marry your daughters to any of their sons, and don't marry your sons to any of their daughters.

Eternal One: 4This would cause your enemies to turn your children away from Me to worship other gods.

Moses: If you did worship other gods, the Eternal would become furious with you and destroy you in an instant! 5So this is what you must do to these nations instead: tear down their altars, smash their monoliths, chop down their sacred poles,* and throw the idols they've carved into the fire!

► One of the most important ways faith is communicated is from parent to child. Most people who do find a lifelong faith come into it by the time they are young adults, and the most significant influence on them is what they've seen modeled at home. Stories and experiences are a compelling influence on the faith of children.

The first stage in building this sense of covenant loyalty to God was to eliminate every trace of pagan worship from the land. None of the Canaanites' existing religious fixtures could be used for worship. The altars other nations used to offer their sacrifices were dedicated explicitly to other gods, like Baal and Asherah, through their distinctive designs and decorations. The True God could not be represented in the shape of any created thing since He is the creator of everything!

Moses: 6Remember: you're a people set apart for the Eternal your God; He is your God and has chosen you to be His own possession—His special people—out of all the peoples on the earth. 7The Eternal didn't become devoted to you and choose you because you were the most numerous of all the peoples—in fact, you were the least! 8Instead, He brought you out of Egypt with overwhelming power and liberated you from slavery to Pharaoh the king because He loved you and was keeping the oath He swore to your ancestors. 9I want you to know that the Eternal your God is the only true God. He's the faithful God who keeps His covenants and shows loyal love for a thousand generations to those who in return love Him and keep His commands. 10But He holds personally accountable those who hate Him, and He destroys them; He does not delay when anyone hates Him, but He holds them personally accountable. 11Therefore, be very careful to obey the commands and rules and judgments I'm giving you today.

12If you pay attention to these judgments and keep them carefully, the Eternal your God will keep the covenant He made with your ancestors and show you His loyal love. 13He'll love you and bless you and increase your population. He'll bless your children, and He'll bless your agriculture. The land He promised your ancestors He'd give you will produce abundantly; and you'll have grain and wine and olive oil, many cattle, and new flocks. 14You will be blessed more than any other people. None of your men or women will be unable to have children; all of your cattle will have offspring. 15The Eternal will keep every illness away from you. He won't afflict you with any of those horrible diseases you saw in Egypt—He'll put them instead on those who hate you! 16You are to destroy all the nations the Eternal, your True God, puts in your power. Don't show them any pity! You must not worship their gods—that behavior is a deadly trap!

* 7:5 Hebrew, Asherah

17You might say to yourselves, "Those nations are so much more powerful than we are! How can we ever displace them in the land?" 18But don't be afraid of them! Remember what the Eternal, your True God, did to Pharaoh and to all of Egypt. 19You saw with your own eyes how the Eternal your God brought you out of there by testing the Egyptians with great plagues, warning them with signs and omens, and fighting against them with overwhelming power. He is your God and will do the same thing to all the nations you're so afraid of right now. 20The Eternal your God will even send swarms of hornets against them.
Those hornets will finish off anyone who escapes from you and tries to hide from the death you bring. 21So don't be so terrified of these other nations—the Eternal your God is with you. He's a great and awesome God! 22But He will drive out these nations ahead of you only little by little. You won't be able to finish them off all at once because if you did, the wild animals would reproduce rapidly in the empty land and that would be dangerous. 23But the Eternal your God definitely will defeat these nations in front of you. He will throw them into a great panic until they are all destroyed.
24He'll put their kings in your power, so you will be able to wipe out all their names. No one under heaven will ever know they existed! Not a single person will be able to resist you; you'll destroy them all. 25Then you must burn up all of their carved idols in the fire. Don't admire them because the silver and gold in them are so valuable. If you take those metals, you'll fall into a deadly trap because He abhors these idols! 26You must not bring these horrible things into your house. If you do, you'll be doomed to destruction, just as they are. You should be totally horrified and disgusted by these idols—they are doomed to destruction!

8 Moses: You must obey very carefully all of the law, which I'm commanding you today. If you do, you'll live and thrive, and you'll go in and take possession of the land He promised to your ancestors. 2Remember how the Eternal, your True God, led you through the wilderness these past 40 years. He did this to humble you, to test you, to uncover your motivations, to see if you would obey His commands. 3He humbled you by making you hungry when there was no food in the desert. Then He fed you with manna, a food you and your ancestors had never heard of. He did this because He wanted you to understand that what makes you truly alive is not the bread you eat but following every word that comes from the mouth of the Eternal One.* 4Your clothes didn't wear out, and your feet didn't swell throughout your 40 years of wandering. 5I want you to know in your hearts that the Eternal your God has been training you just as a parent trains a child. 6So obey His commands!
Live as He has instructed, and fear Him.
7The Eternal your God is bringing you into a good land, a land with torrents of rushing water, with springs and underground streams flowing out into the valleys and hills. 8It's a land of wheat and barley, of vines and fig trees and pomegranates, a land of oil-rich olive trees and date honey. 9In that land, you'll always have plenty to eat—you won't lack anything! There's iron in the rocks, and you can dig copper from the hills. 10You'll eat and be satisfied, and then you'll humbly thank the Eternal your God for the good land He's given you.

11But then be very careful! Don't forget the Eternal your God and disobey the commands and decrees and rules
I'm giving you today. 12When your stomachs are full, when you've built comfortable houses to live in, 13when you have large herds and flocks, when you possess plenty of silver and gold, and when you have more things than you imagined possible; 14then don't become proud and puffed up and forget Him. He brought you out of the land of Egypt where you were slaves; 15and He led you through that awful, vast wilderness with its poisonous snakes and scorpions, through that desert where there was no water.
He made water come out of a hard rock;
16and He fed you in the wilderness with manna, a food your ancestors had never heard of. He did all this to humble you and test you, but it was all intended for your good in the end. 17If He hadn't, you might have believed, "I've gotten all this wealth by my own power and strength!"
18Remember the Eternal One your God.
He's the One who gives you the power to get wealth, so He can keep the covenant

* 8:3 Matthew 4:4; Luke 4:4

promises He made to your ancestors, as He is doing now. 19I testify against you today that if you do forget Him and pursue other gods, if you worship them and bow down to them; then you will certainly be destroyed. 20Just like the nations the Eternal is now destroying ahead of you, you'll be destroyed yourselves because you wouldn't listen to His voice.

► Throughout the Bible, God challenges His people to make sure the poor and needy are well cared for. Grinding poverty and deprivation destroy the wholeness of life that God intends for all people. However, as Moses warns here, achieving prosperity can lead people to be complacent and self-sufficient and to forget that God has been the One who has provided for them.

Perhaps no warning is more urgently needed for God's people in our own wealthy and comfortable society. Prosperity can tempt us to forget about God and to act as if we can take care of everything through our own means. But with prosperity often comes poverty. These humbling, testing experiences are meant to build the qualities of gratitude and trust into our lives, and they keep us from forgetting God even when we do enjoy prosperity.

9 Moses: Listen to me, Israel! Today you're going to cross the Jordan and enter the land you'll take away from nations that are bigger and stronger than you. They live in huge cities that have defense walls as high as the sky.
2They're big and tall, giants descended from the Anakim. You know all about them from the 12 spies I sent into the land—you've heard the saying, "Who can ever fight with the descendants of Anak?" 3So I want you to know today that it will be the Eternal your God who will go across the Jordan ahead of you. A blazing fire, He'll destroy those nations.
He'll subdue them so you can destroy them quickly and take their place, as He has promised you will. 4When the Eternal your God has driven them out ahead of you, then don't begin to believe He gave you this land because you're so good and righteous! It's just the opposite; He is giving you their land because those other nations are so bad! 5It's not because you've conducted yourselves so well or because you have such pure hearts that you're going to take the land;
the Eternal your God is driving out those other nations ahead of you because they're so wicked. He's keeping His word, the promise He made to your ancestors, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 6I'll say it again: the Eternal One your God isn't giving you this good land because you're so good. You're stubborn, obstinate people. 7Remember—don't forget—how you kept infuriating Him in the wilderness.
From the day you came out of Egypt until the day you arrived here, you've been rebelling against Him.

8Even at Horeb, you infuriated Him.
The Eternal got so angry with you He was ready to destroy you! 9When I went up the mountain to receive the stone tablets—the tablets of the covenant
He made with you—I stayed on the mountain for 40 days and 40 nights. I didn't eat or drink anything all that time, preparing myself to receive these holy words. 10-11At the end of those 40 days and nights, the Eternal gave me those two stone tablets of the covenant. On them He'd engraved with His own finger everything He told you on the day you gathered at the mountain, when He spoke to you from inside the fire. 12The Eternal told me, "Get up, and go back down the mountain as fast as you can! While you've been up here surrounded by My holiness, the people you led out of Egypt have become corrupt! How quickly they've left the path I commanded them to stay on.
They've melted gold and poured it into a mold and made themselves an idol! 13I've seen how stubborn and obstinate these people are. 14Don't try to stop Me—I'm going to destroy them! I'll wipe out every last trace of them under the sky, and I'll make a bigger and stronger nation out of just you."

15The mountain was still blazing with fire as I hurried back down it, carrying the two covenant tablets in my hands.
16I saw with my own eyes how you had sinned against the Eternal, your True God: you'd cast an idol in the shape of a young bull!

► This young bull is made in imitation of the Canaanite fertility gods. The bull is a prominent symbol of Baal. Creating this idol requires a long, intentional process of collecting enough precious metal for a statue, melting it down and purifying it, pouring it into a mold that also has to be designed and crafted, and making sure the statue cools evenly so that it doesn't break apart. (Perhaps the Israelites learned these crafts by observation or practice in Egypt.) This was no casual slip into an unintentional religious compromise. This is a deliberate embrace of a god other than the Lord, right at the moment when He is drawing up His covenant of love with Israel. They are as unfaithful to the Lord as a person who has an affair while on his honeymoon!

Moses: How quickly you left the path the Eternal commanded you to stay on. [17]Right before your eyes I took the two tablets, hurled them onto the ground, and smashed them to pieces. [18]I went back up the mountain, and for another 40 days and nights I prostrated myself before Him, lying face down on the ground in grief and petition, not eating or drinking anything as before. You had sinned so seriously—you did what the Eternal had just told you was wrong, and this made Him furious! [19]I was afraid* He was so violently angry with you that He'd destroy you, as He said He would. But one more time, the Eternal One listened to me, and He spared you. [20]I had to pray particularly for Aaron because the Eternal was furious with him for making the idol—He would have killed my brother! [21]I took the calf idol you made, that embodiment of your sin, and I burned it up. Then I crushed what was left, ground it into tiny pieces until it was as fine as dust, and threw the dust into the riverbed that rushes down the mountain.

[22]You and your parents were always making the Eternal furious! At Taberah, *you whined and complained; at Massah, *you were sure the Lord was going to let you die of thirst; at Kibroth-hattaavah, *you said you were sick of the food He provided! [23]At Kadesh-barnea, *when you finally reached the promised land, the Eternal sent you in: "Go and take possession of the land—I've given it to you!" But you defied this direct order from the Eternal, your True God! You didn't trust Him, and you didn't listen to His voice. [24]You've been rebelling against Him from the day I met you!

[25]That's why, at Horeb, I lay face down before the Eternal for 40 days and nights, praying for you: He said He was going to destroy you, and I knew He had every reason to! [26]I prayed to Him, "Eternal Lord, please don't destroy Your people! They're Your own possession: You liberated them from another master—You brought them out of Egypt with overwhelming power. [27]Remember Your loyal servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; please forget about how stubborn and wicked and sinful these people are. Don't let their actions spoil Your greater plan. [28]Otherwise, the people back in the land You brought us out of will be saying, "The Eternal couldn't really bring them into that land He promised them. He actually hated those people, and He brought them out into the desert in order to kill them off." [29]Remember they are Your people, Your own possession, the ones You brought out of Egypt Yourself with such overwhelming power!

10 Moses: Then the Eternal answered my prayer: "Cut out two stone tablets like the first ones, come back up the mountain to Me, and make a wooden chest. [2]I'll write on those tablets the same words that were on the first ones, the ones you smashed into pieces, and you can put the new tablets in the chest you make."

[3]So I made a chest of acacia wood and cut out two stone tablets like the first ones, and I went back up the mountain carrying the two tablets. [4]The Eternal engraved on them what He had engraved on the first ones: the Ten Directives the Eternal gave you on the day you gathered at the mountain when He spoke to you from inside the fire. He gave the new tablets to me, [5]and I came back down the mountain and put them in the chest I'd made, as the Eternal had commanded me. And they're still there today.

* 9:19 Hebrews 12:21 * 9:22 Numbers 11:1-3 * 9:22 Exodus 17:1-7 * 9:22 Numbers 11:31-35 * 9:23 Numbers 14–15

► When they make and worship the young bull idol, the people are breaking the first covenant at Horeb, the one the Lord makes with them when He speaks to them from inside the fire and gives them the Ten Directives. Moses signifies that this first covenant is null and void when he smashes the two stone tablets that are the official copies of the covenant terms. That covenant has been conditional on the people maintaining an exclusive allegiance to the Lord, and they have violated this essential requirement. Now, however, through the intercession of Moses, the people are accepted into a second, new covenant on the basis of His forgiveness and mercy. Its continuation is also conditional on their obedience, but its deepest foundation is a grace anticipating the new covenant God ultimately makes with us through Jesus.

6The children of Israel had been staying by the wells that belong to the descendants of Jaakan. They moved from there to Moserah. There, Aaron died and was buried. His son, Eleazar, succeeded him as high priest. 7The people then moved to Gudgodah, and then to Jotbathah where the land is watered by streams. 8There the Eternal set apart the tribe of Levi under Eleazar's new leadership to carry the covenant chest of the Eternal One to serve Him in His presence and to bless the people in His name, as they still do today.
9That's why the tribe of Levi doesn't have any familial hereditary territory alongside the other tribes: the Eternal Himself is Levi's inheritance, just as the Eternal your God told Levi He would be.

Moses: 10I stayed on the mountain just as long as I had before, for 40 days and nights. The Eternal listened to my prayers once again and agreed not to destroy you. 11He told me, "Stand up again—I've granted your request. Now go and lead the people the rest of the way, so they can enter and take possession of the land I promised their ancestors I'd give them."

* 10:22 Genesis 46:27

12And now, Israel, what is the Eternal your God asking of you? Only that you fear Him, live as He wants you to, and love Him; serve Him with every part of you, heart and soul; 13and obey His commands and rules, which I'm giving you today for your good.

14Think of it—everything already belongs to the Eternal your God: the sky and His own dwelling place beyond the sky, the earth and everything on it.
15Nevertheless He devotedly loved your ancestors; and out of all the peoples He chose you, their descendants, to be His own, as you still are today. 16Cut away that hard covering around your heart, and do not harden your neck against me, 17because the Eternal your God is the God of gods and the Lord of lords, the great and mighty and amazing God! He doesn't favor the powerful, and He can't be bribed.

The imagery of cutting the foreskin of one's heart and not hardening the neck are graphic depictions of how God desires internal devotion to reflect external obedience.

18He enforces His justice for the powerless, such as orphans and widows, and He loves foreigners, making sure they have food and clothing. 19You must love those foreigners living with you in the same way. Remember how you were foreigners in the land of Egypt! 20So fear the Eternal your God; serve Him, and be devoted to Him. Show your loyalty by swearing oaths only in His name. 21He's the One you must praise—He's your God who has done such great and amazing things for you, as you've seen with your own eyes. 22When your ancestors went into Egypt, there were only 70 people in their whole clan.* But He kept increasing your numbers, and now there are as many of you as there are stars in the sky!

11 Moses: So love the Eternal your God and always obey His requirements, regulations, judgments, and commands. 2Now keep this in mind: it was you, not your children, who saw and experienced firsthand all the lessons the Eternal your God taught you. You saw how He demonstrated His majesty and His overwhelming power.
3*You saw* the signs He performed in Egypt* and everything He sent against Pharaoh the king and everyone in the country. 4*You saw* what He did to the Egyptian army, to its horses and its chariots, right when they were chasing you: He drowned them in the Red Sea!* The Eternal destroyed them all,* and the Egyptian army still hasn't recovered. 5*You saw* how He took care of you in the wilderness and brought you safely to this place. 6*But remember what happened when people rebelled against Him: you saw* what He did to Dathan and Abiram, sons of Eliab from the tribe of Reuben—how the earth opened up, right in our midst, and swallowed them, their families, their tents, and their livestock!*

7Therefore, as eyewitnesses of all the great things the Eternal did, 8carefully obey all the commands I'm giving you today. Then you'll be strong enough to go and take possession of the land you're about to enter, 9and you'll live long, healthy lives there. This is what the Eternal promised your ancestors: He'd give this land flowing with milk and honey to them and to their descendants. 10The land where you're going to live when you cross the Jordan isn't like the land of Egypt where you came from. When you sowed seeds there, you could water all of your land as if it were nothing more than a small vegetable garden, transporting the water yourselves. 11But in the land where you're going to live, the hills and valleys drink water right out of the sky! 12He takes care of this land; He's always looking after it, all throughout the year.

Eternal One: 13If you carefully obey My commands which I'm giving you today, and if you love Me and serve Me with your whole heart and soul, 14then I'll send rain on your land when it's needed, in the autumn and the spring. You'll have an abundant harvest of grain and wine and olive oil. 15I'll make grass grow in the fields for your cattle. You'll eat all you need and be totally satisfied.

Moses: 16But watch out! Don't be seduced, so that you turn away from the Lord. Don't abandon Him to worship other gods or bow down to them! 17If you do, the Eternal's fiery anger will result in a deadly drought. He won't let any rain fall from the sky, and the ground won't produce any crops. Then you won't last very long in the good land the Eternal One is giving you.

18-20So let what I'm saying sink deeply into your hearts and souls. Do whatever it takes to remember what I'm telling you: tie a reminder on your hand or put a reminder on your forehead where you'll see it all the time, and on the doorpost where you cross the threshold or on the city gate.

Teach these things to your children. Talk about them when you're sitting together in your home and when you're walking together down the road. Make them the last thing you talk about before you go to bed and the first thing you talk about the next morning. 21That way you and your children will be blessed with long life and abundant crops upon the ground the Eternal promised to your ancestors, for as long as there's a sky above the earth.

► Eventually people begin to take these instructions literally. They put abbreviated reminders of the law called mezuzot—scrolls of parchment inscribed with a prayer rolled into a decorative case—on their doorposts. They even wear tefillin—small leather boxes containing the same prayer—on their arms and foreheads with straps. Any discipline that reminds us effectively to live as God intends is helpful. But Moses' goal here is not to create new rituals. It is to encourage God's people to be intentional about learning and remembering God's ways.

Moses: 22If you carefully obey all these things I'm commanding you—if you really do love the Eternal your God and live as He wants you to and devote yourselves to Him—23then He will drive out all of these nations ahead of you. You'll conquer nations that are bigger and stronger than you are. 24Every place you walk will become yours: your territory will extend from the wilderness in the south to Lebanon in the north, and from the Euphrates River in the east to the Mediterranean Sea in the west. 25No one will be able to resist you. The Eternal your God will make everyone throughout the whole land you're going into terrified of you, just as He said He would.

[26]Look, you've got two choices: you can be blessed, or you can be cursed. [27]If you obey His commands, which I'm giving you today, you'll be blessed. [28]If you don't obey His commands—if you leave the path I'm showing you today so you can worship other gods who are foreign to you, then you'll be cursed.

It's not an absolute rule that those who obey God will directly receive blessings in this life, and that those who disobey will suffer immediate consequences as a result. However, this is still generally true. His people should obey simply because the Lord is entitled to their unswerving loyalty and devotion (not because of any promised rewards). God delights to reward obedience, and His people should embrace His generosity gratefully whenever they receive it.

Moses: [29]When the Eternal your God brings you into the land where you're going to live when you cross the Jordan, half of you are going to stand on Mount Gerizim and shout out the blessings that will come to those who obey the Lord. The other half of you will stand on Mount Ebal on the other side of the valley and shout the curses that will fall on those who disobey Him. [30]You'll find these two mountains on the other side of the Jordan River, as you head west of your current path, in the territory of the Canaanites who live in the arid Jordan Valley* around Gilgal, near the great trees at Moreh. [31]I tell you this now because you're just about to cross the Jordan into the land where you're going to live. The Eternal your God will give it to you; you'll take possession of it and settle there. [32]And when you do, you must be very careful to obey all the regulations and judgments I'm giving you today.

12 Moses: These are the regulations and judgments you must carefully obey in the land the Eternal, the God of your ancestors, is giving you to live in, for as long as you are alive. [2]Completely destroy all the places where the nations you're going to conquer worshiped their gods—on the mountain heights and hilltops, and under every leafy tree.

► Commanding heights are recognized as positions of power and advantage. They are also closer to the sky on mountains and hills, which are thought to be the home of the gods. Nations chose heights and hilltops as places of worship. Leafy trees are also a favored location because of the shelter and shade they provided in a hot climate, and because they reach all realms of creation—the underworld, the physical world, and the heavens. In the absence of trees, carved poles serve as portable tree shrines honoring the goddess Asherah.

Moses: [3]Tear down their altars, smash their monoliths, burn their sacred poles,* and shatter their idols! Wipe out every trace of the names of their gods in those places. [4]The Eternal your God doesn't want you to worship Him in the way these nations worshiped their gods, setting up shrines and altars all over the land. [5]He will choose a place within the territory of one of your tribes to be His home; He will put His name there. Go there to worship Him. [6]Whenever you have something to offer, take it there: burnt offerings and sacrifices, tithes, uplifted offerings, freewill gifts, payments to fulfill vows, and firstborn animals from your herds and flocks.

* 11:30 Hebrew, Arabah * 12:3 Hebrew, Asherim

7Eat your sacred meals there in His presence, and celebrate with your whole household how the Eternal your God has blessed everything you've done.
8Right now we're letting everyone do as he or she sees fit here with unregulated sacrifices, 9because you aren't yet living in peace on the land He is going to give you. 10When you've crossed the Jordan River and have settled in the land He is giving you to live in and pass on to your descendants, and you're living in safety because He's defeated the enemies all around you and they're no longer a threat, 11then bring everything I command you to the place the Eternal, your True God, will choose as a sanctuary, as a place for His name. Bring your burnt offerings and other sacrifices there;
bring your tithes, uplifted offerings, and the special gifts you choose to dedicate along with your vow to the Eternal.
12Celebrate in His presence with your sons and daughters and with your male and female slaves. And be sure to invite any Levites who live in your town, because their tribe won't have any property as yours does. 13Be careful! Don't offer burnt sacrifices just anywhere that you find suitable. 14*Offer your burnt sac-* rifices only in the place He will choose in the territory of one of your tribes. And that's the only place you should make any of the burnt offerings and execute everything else I'm telling you.

15However, if you just want to have meat for a meal, if the Eternal your God has blessed you and you can afford it, you can do that in your own towns.
Slaughter the animals and eat them there. It's not a sacred meal, so people don't need to be ritually pure to eat it, and it can be a gazelle or a deer. 16But don't consume any of the blood; pour it out on the ground like water as you would for any slaughter or sacrifice. 17*And* remember you still can't eat any of the special offerings in your own towns:
tithes of grain, new wine, and olive oil;
firstborn animals from your herds and flocks, any payments to fulfill vows, or freewill gifts and uplifted offerings. 18Eat these special offerings in His presence in the place He chooses. Bring your sons, your daughters, and your male and female slaves, and remember to invite the Levites who live in your town. Celebrate together, in His presence, everything you've been able to accomplish. 19(Don't ever neglect the Levites! Make sharing with them a part of your lifestyle the whole time you're living in that land.)

20-21You see, the Eternal your God is going to give you an extensive territory as He's promised. You may be living at some distance from the place where He chooses to put His name. And there will be times when you say to yourself, "I'm going to have some meat—that's what I'm craving!" Go right ahead—as often as you wish. If you take from one of the domesticated animals the Eternal has given you from your herd or your flock and eat it in your own town, I'm telling you it's all right to do that. 22It's just like eating a gazelle or a deer. People don't need to be ritually pure to eat this meat.
23But discipline yourselves not to eat the blood because the blood is the soul, and you mustn't eat the soul along with the meat. 24Don't eat the blood; pour it out on the ground like water. 25If you don't eat it, you'll be doing what the Eternal considers right, and everything will go well for you and your descendants.

26But bring anything that will be a sacred meal and any sacrifice that will be offered to pay a vow to the place He will choose. 27There you will offer both the meat and the blood of your burnt sacrifices on His altar. You must pour out the blood of your sacrifices on the altar, but you will eat the meat. 28Be very careful to obey all these words I'm telling you. Then you'll be doing what the Eternal your God considers good and right, and everything will go well for you and your descendants forever.

► The people are required to make certain offerings and are invited to make others. All of these offerings are to be handled with special care and not treated as ordinary food. Here Moses is warning specifically against pagan magical practice. It is believed by them that the life force, qualities, and powers of an animal can be taken over by consuming its blood, particularly as it flows from its body. The pagan nations look for power within the created order, and they try to tap into that power through fertility rites and other magical acts. All the blessings of life, fertility, and abundance are to be found in obedient relationship to the Lord. They can't be obtained by trying to manipulate the forces of the natural world.

Moses: [29]When the Eternal your God has destroyed the nations whose land you're going to occupy, when you've displaced them and settled there, [30]then be very careful! Don't fall into a deadly trap by doing what those nations did, since they were destroyed when you came into their land! Don't try to find out about their gods. Don't ask, "How did these nations worship their gods? I'm going to do the same thing!" [31]Don't worship the Eternal your God the way those nations worshiped their gods! They did every horrible thing He hates. They even burned up their sons and daughters as sacrifices to those gods. [32]Be very careful to do everything I'm commanding you. Don't add anything to your worship, and don't take anything away from it.

13 Moses: [1-2]Suppose someone who claims to be a prophet, or to have inspired dreams, stands up and tells all of you that some unusual, significant sign or wonder is going to happen, and also says, "I'm here to let you know about some other gods you should be worshiping." What if the thing that person has predicted actually happens? [3]Don't listen to what that prophet or dreamer says! The Eternal your God is testing you to see whether you really do love Him completely, with your whole heart and soul. [4]Remain loyal to Him! Fear Him and obey His commands. Listen to His voice. Worship Him alone. Be fervently devoted to Him. [5]But as for that prophet or dreamer, put him to death! He's tried to turn you away from the Eternal your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt and liberated you from slavery. He's tried to entice you off the path God commanded you to follow. Expel the evil from your community.

[6-7]What if someone close to you whispers secretly, "Let's go worship other gods"? It doesn't matter if it's your brother or half-brother, your own son or daughter, your beloved wife or closest friend. Whether they're gods of the people who live around you or gods of people who live far away—the gods of anyone on the face of the earth! You've never worshiped any of these gods before, and neither did your ancestors, because you're in a covenant relationship with the Eternal. [8-10]So don't listen to this person. Don't agree to go worship other gods with him or her. Anyone who entices you like this must be executed! Don't feel sorry for him, or have mercy on him, or try to hide what he's done. Stone him to death because he tried to entice you away from the Eternal, your True God who brought you out of the land of Egypt and rescued you from slavery. As the witness to what he said, and as the person he tried to corrupt, you must throw the first deadly stone, and then everyone else will join in. [11]All the rest of the Israelites will hear about this and be afraid, and none of them will dare to do such an evil thing again in your land.

► Stoning has been chosen as the method of execution in these cases for several likely reasons: (1) The person who advocates worshiping other gods is like a contagious disease in the midst of Israel. Stoning, killing from a distance, expresses a horror of even touching such a person, for fear of being infected; (2) Stoning is also a community method of execution. Each and every person in the community has to express one's own loyalty to the Lord and rejection of other gods by participating in this elimination of false worship; (3) Anyone who accuses a person falsely would incur bloodguilt when throwing the first stone of the execution. This would have been a deterrent against false testimony.

Moses: [12]You may hear a report in one of the cities the Eternal your God is giving you to live in: [13]"Some wicked people have abandoned our faith, and they've convinced everyone else in their own city to worship other gods we've never had anything to do with!" [14]If you ever hear a report like this, conduct a careful, thorough investigation. If you establish conclusively that the report is true, that such a horrible thing has been done within your nation, [15]then bring your swords and execute everyone who lives in that city! Destroy it completely with everything in it—even the livestock. 16Pile all the city's goods in the middle of the public square, and then burn down the whole city and everything in it. This will be a burnt offering showing your complete loyalty to the Eternal your God. That city must never be rebuilt; let it remain a ruin forever. 17Don't take any of the goods for yourself because they have been banned; destroy everything. Then the Eternal will stop being so furiously angry. He'll show you mercy and compassion; and you'll have many descendants, just as He promised your ancestors, 18if you'll listen to the voice of the Eternal, your True God, obey all the commands I'm giving you today, and do what He decides is right.

14 Moses: You're the children of the Eternal, your True God, so don't cut yourselves or shave off the front of your hair to honor those who die. 2*Remember* you are people who have been set apart for Him; He has chosen you to be His own possession out of all the peoples on the earth.

3Don't eat anything that's forbidden. 4Here are some examples of land animals you can eat: oxen from your herds; sheep and goats from your flocks; 5deer, gazelles, roebucks, wild goats, ibexes, antelopes, and mountain sheep, all from the wild. 6*The rule is,* you can eat any of the animals that has a divided hoof (that is, a hoof separated into two sections) and chews cud. 7You can't eat an animal just because it chews cud or just because it has a divided hoof; both things have to be true. So, for example, the camel, the rabbit, and the rock badger are impure and can't be eaten because even though they chew cud, they don't have a divided hoof. 8The pig is also unclean and can't be eaten because even though it has a divided hoof, it doesn't chew cud. Don't eat the meat of any ritually unclean animals. Don't even touch their carcasses when they die.

9You can eat anything that lives in the water if it has fins and scales, 10but if it doesn't have fins and scales, then don't eat it; it's unclean to you.

21Don't eat any meat from an animal you find dead of natural causes because its blood remains in the meat. You may give it to the foreigners in your city, and they may eat it, or you may sell it to a foreign merchant. But don't eat it yourself; you are people who have been set apart for the Eternal your God. Don't boil a young goat in its mother's milk.

► Behind these dietary restrictions there's a moral ideal. The people are being told to set up their community life exactly as the Lord instructs, so that all the other nations will take notice and acknowledge Him (4:6). To do this, they must recognize their own special place in the world, stick to their own proper realms, and not deviate from the way they should live within it. This is another way the people are to express their exclusive loyalty to the Lord. In other words, the sacrificial food for God encompasses the daily food for the people. And the Israelites can only eat animals, birds, and insects that exemplify and support life and do not have characteristics and locomotive ability that blur them between these three habitations of land, sea, and sky.

Moses: 22Every year, when the seeds you've sown in your fields have grown into crops, make sure you set aside a tenth of the produce. 23Bring this tenth of the grain, oil, and new wine from that year's crop, as well as all firstborn animals from your herds and flocks, to the place the Eternal your God will choose as a place for His name, and have a feast there in His presence. If you do this each year, you'll learn to fear the Eternal your God always. 24If the place where He chooses to put His name is far from where you live, and the distance is too great for you to carry a tenth of that year's produce there—particularly if He has blessed you—25then sell everything you would have carried and bring the money yourself to the place the Eternal your God will choose. 26*When you get there, you can still have a celebration.* Use some of the money to buy whatever you crave: cattle or sheep, wine or strong drink, or any other special thing you'd really like. You and your household can have a feast in His presence. 27Be sure to invite any Levites who live in your city. Be especially generous to them because they won't have any territory and property of their own to pass down to their children as you do.

28-29But at the end of every third year, keep a tenth of the year's produce in your own town instead and give it to the needy people there: the Levites—whose tribe won't have any territory and property of its own to pass down—the foreigners, the orphans, and the widows. Let them come and take as much as they want to eat for as long as these supplies last. If you do this, the Eternal your God will bless you in everything you do.

15 Moses: At the end of every seventh year, cancel all debts. 2This is how it will work: anyone who has made a loan to someone else will just let the debtor keep whatever he's borrowed. That is, if the loan was made to a fellow citizen, to another Israelite, the lender won't demand repayment because it has been announced that the Eternal is canceling all the debts of His servants. 3If you've made a loan to a foreigner, you can still demand repayment, but let your fellow Israelites keep whatever they've borrowed from you. 4-5However, ideally, there shouldn't be any poor people among you. If you listen attentively to the voice of the Eternal your God and carefully obey all the commands I'm giving you today, then the Eternal will bless you with great prosperity in the land He's giving you to live in and pass down within your family. 6Because the Eternal your God will bless you as He promised, you will lend to many nations, but you won't borrow; you will rule over many nations, but they won't rule over you.

7If, in one of the towns in the land the Eternal your God is giving you, a fellow Israelite does become poor, don't ignore him and limit your generosity just because the debt will be forgiven. 8Open your hand willingly, and generously lend as much as is needed at the time. 9Don't think like this: "It's almost the seventh year when debts are canceled. If I lend anything to this other person now, I'll never get it back!" If you think this way, you'll be hostile toward your neighbors and you won't give them anything. They'll cry out to the Eternal against you, and He'll consider what you've done a sin. 10So give generously to the person in need. Don't feel badly about this when you're doing it; because of your generosity, the Eternal your God will bless you in everything you do, in every project you begin. 11*Unfortunately,* there will always be poor people throughout the country. That's why I'm giving you this command: give generously to your fellow Israelite, to the poor and needy in the land.

12If a fellow Israelite, a Hebrew man or woman, is sold to you as a slave, only make that person serve you for six years. In the seventh year, set him free from your service. 13And don't send him away destitute! 14Provide generously: give sheep and goats, grain and wine. Give some of what the Eternal your God has blessed you with. 15Remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt, and He liberated you from another master so you could serve Him. That's why I'm commanding you today to do this. 16-18Don't feel you've been cheated when you set your slave free. It would have cost you twice as much to hire someone to do the same work over those six years, and He will bless you in everything you do because of your generosity. But perhaps your slave will say to you at the end of the six years, "I don't want to be set free! I love you and your whole family. It's really good for me to be here with you." You can accept a slave like this into lifetime service. Perform a special ceremony to mark his new status. Have the slave stand right next to the door of your house, take an awl, and drive it through the slave's ear lobe into the door. Then pull it out. This will make marks in the ear lobe and in the door that will symbolize the slave. Either a male or a female slave can enter lifetime service this way with this physical mark.

19If the firstborn of any animal in your herd or flock is a male, set it apart

There are a number of celebrations found in the Hebrew Scriptures, but only three great feasts are part of the Mosaic law. They retell the story of their covenant relationship with the Lord and provide occasions to share generously with those in need. They give the people the opportunity to acknowledge publicly that He is the source of their abundance, so they won't be tempted to think they've prospered on their own and forget Him.

Each of the three great celebrations are reminders of the servitude in Egypt. Passover, followed by the week of unleavened bread, is a reminder of God redeeming His people from Egypt and falls within March or April each year. The Feast of Weeks, known as Pentecost to Christians, is 50 days after firstfruits or the beginning of the barley harvest and comes in May or June. They are told to remember that they were once slaves in Egypt. The last of the great celebrations, the Feast of Shelters, comes in September or October. It is a reminder of the provision of God when the nation lived in temporary shelters while wandering in the wilderness.

or consecrate it for the Eternal your God. Don't put the firstborn of any ox to work, and don't shear your firstborn sheep. These animals already belong to the Eternal One, so their labor and products belong to Him too. 20Bring them every year to the place the Eternal will choose, and make them part of the feast you and your household eat in the presence of the Eternal your God. 21But if the firstborn has some defect such as lameness or blindness—any serious problem—don't offer it as a sacrifice to Him. 22Instead eat it as a regular meal in your own city. This is not a sacred meal, so people don't need to be ritually pure to eat it. It will be like eating a gazelle or a deer. 23But don't eat its blood; pour it out on the ground like water.

16 Moses: During the month of Abib at the beginning of spring, celebrate Passover in honor of the Eternal, your True God. In that month, He brought you out of Egypt at night. 2Take an animal from your herd or flock, go to the place He will choose for His name, and offer a Passover sacrifice to the Eternal your God. 3Don't eat any leavened bread with it. Eat unleavened bread during the seven days of this celebration because "suffering bread" is what you made when you quickly left your suffering in Egypt. If you eat it again each year, you'll always remember the day you left Egypt. 4For these seven days, no one in the whole country should have any yeast. And none of the meat from the sacrifice you offer on the first night of the celebration should be left over on the next day. 5Don't offer the Passover sacrifice in any of the other cities the Eternal your God is giving you. 6*Even if it's some distance, make the journey to the place* He will choose for His name. Offer the Passover sacrifice in that place, in the evening, at sunset—the time when you left Egypt. 7Cook it, and eat it in the place He chooses. In the morning, you can return to your tents, 8but you must still only eat unleavened bread for the next six days. On the seventh day, the last day of the celebration, soberly gather together to worship Him. Don't do any work on that day.

9-10*Another celebration* the Eternal your God wants you to have is the Feast of Weeks. Hold this celebration seven weeks after you first begin to cut and harvest the barley in your fields. Each of you will choose something to contribute out of what He has blessed you with. 11Go to the place He chooses for His name; and have a celebration there in His presence with your sons and daughters, your male and female slaves, and the Levites, foreigners, orphans, and widows who live in your city. 12Remember you were slaves in Egypt, and obey these regulations carefully.

13*Later in the year,* at the end of the harvest after you've finished threshing all your grain and making all your wine, celebrate the Feast of Shelters for seven days.

The Israelites are to make temporary shelters and live in them for a week to remember how they lived in temporary shelters when they left Egypt.

14Celebrate with your sons and daughters, your male and female slaves, and the Levites, foreigners, orphans, and widows who live in your city. 15Celebrate for seven days in honor of the Eternal your God, in the place the Eternal will choose. The Eternal your God will bless you with abundant produce; He will bless everything you do, and you'll have a lot to celebrate! 16Three times each year, every male Israelite must appear before Him in the place He chooses for the Feast of Unleavened Bread (Passover), for the Feast of Weeks (Pentecost), and for the Feast of Shelters (Tabernacles). Don't come empty-handed! 17Decide what amount you want to contribute voluntarily out of what He has blessed you with, and bring that as a gift.

► This next group of laws describes the rights and responsibilities of community leaders in Israel: the judges who will settle disputes, a king who may be chosen to rule the nation, the Levites who will serve at the central sanctuary, and the prophets who will bring the Lord's word to the people. All of these offices create a balance of power in Israel.

Moses: 18In each of the cities the Eternal your God is giving you, appoint tribal judges and representatives who will decide cases for the people honestly and fairly.

(to these future judges) 19Don't bend the rules for anyone. Don't favor the rich and powerful, and never take a bribe! A bribe makes people who would decide cases wisely overlook injustice, and it makes people who would be honest give false testimony. 20Justice! Justice! That's what you're after. Then you'll keep living in the land He is giving you.

21When you build an altar to the Eternal your God, don't ever put any kind of sacred wooden pole* next to it, 22and don't ever set up a monolith or stone pillar. He hates these things!

17 Moses: Don't sacrifice an ox or a sheep to the Eternal your God if it has any defect or problem. He would be deeply offended by such an offering!

2What if, in one of the towns the Eternal your God is giving you, a man or a woman does what He considers wrong and breaks His covenant 3by going and worshiping other gods, bowing down to them or the sun or moon or stars (which I've never commanded you to do)? 4*If you discover this,* if someone tells you about it, or if you hear about it; then conduct a careful investigation. If you establish conclusively that the report is true, that such a horrible thing has been done within Israel, 5then bring the man or woman who has done this evil thing out to the gates of your town, and stone that man or woman to death. 6But for someone to be executed on a charge such as this, there must be testimony from at least two or three witnesses. No one is to be executed on the testimony of just one witness. 7The witnesses must throw the first deadly stones, and then everyone else must join in. Expel the wicked from your own community.*

8If one person in your town brings a complaint against another to be judged at the city gate, and it's just too difficult for you to decide what a fair resolution would be—if you can't determine whether a killing was premeditated, or if you can't decide who in a dispute makes the best argument, or if you can't tell whether someone was injured accidentally or intentionally—then adjourn your proceedings and go to the place the Eternal your God will choose. 9Bring your case to the Levitical priests and to the judge who is serving at the time, and they will give you a verdict. 10You must carry out their verdict exactly as they stated it because it was delivered in the place the Eternal chose, and it has His authority behind it. 11Follow each word of the law as they interpret it for you; do everything they've told you to do, as they've explained it, without deviating from it at all. 12If anyone is so arrogant that he won't listen to the priest who serves right there in the presence of the Eternal your God or to the judge of the tribunal, that person must be executed to expel this kind of wickedness from Israel. 13Everyone will hear about it, and no one will dare to be so arrogant, for they will be afraid.

* 16:21 Hebrew, Asherah * 17:7 1 Corinthians 5:13

► Having a king is part of God's plan for Israel. This king is supposed to be someone who depends faithfully on the Lord, not on wealth or power, and who would study God's laws and follow them. A king like that will be a blessing to everyone in the country. But when the people ask for this king around 1000 B.C., their motives are wrong. They want to depend on this king instead of on God (1 Samuel 8:7). In the years that follow, many ungodly kings bring trouble to the nation and oppress the people. Their political maneuvering and policies of appeasement even lead them to set up altars to foreign gods. The people are ultimately punished for deserting the Lord by being taken into exile away from the promised land.

Moses: 14Once you've gotten into the land the Eternal your God is giving you, and you've conquered it and settled there, you may say to yourselves, "Let's appoint a king to rule our country, just as all the nations around us have!" 15*If you do have a king, remember* you must enthrone the king He chooses. It must be a fellow Israelite whom you enthrone; you must not enthrone a foreigner who is not a fellow Israelite. 16*Although an Israelite,* he must not try to build a strong army by collecting large herds of horses for his cavalry troops and a chariot corps. The king must certainly not send people back to Egypt to get large herds of horses, because the Lord has commanded you, "Don't ever go back that way again!" 17This king must not have many wives. If he takes foreign wives in marriage alliances, they could turn his heart away from the Lord and lead him to worship foreign gods. And the king must not accumulate great quantities of silver and gold for himself.

18As soon as this king takes the royal throne, he must write out a copy of this law for himself on a scroll with the Levitical priests looking on. 19He must keep this copy with him and read it every day, so that he will learn to fear the Eternal his God and to obey everything in the law and remember all these regulations very carefully in order to do them. 20That way he won't think he's privileged and oppress and exploit his fellow Israelites. He won't deviate at all from what the Eternal has commanded, and he and his descendants will rule over Israel in a long dynasty.

18 Moses: The Levitical priests and the whole tribe of Levi will not have any inherited property within Israel. They will be supported by the sacrifices and other offerings that are burnt and set aside for the Eternal. 2They won't have any share in the land, as the other Israelites do, but the Eternal Himself will be their share as He promised.

► This is a special arrangement between God and the Levites; He'll provide for them and give them their distinct identity so they can focus on serving Him instead of serving their families.

3Whenever someone sacrifices an ox or a sheep, the priests are entitled to these portions: one shank (a thigh and shoulder), the cheeks (those tender delicacies), and the fourth compartment of the stomach so they can have rennet to make cheese curds. 4You must also give the priests the first grain, wine, and olive oil you produce each year, and the first wool you shear from your sheep 5because the Eternal your God chose Levi and his descendants, out of all of your tribes, to stand in His presence and to serve in His name at all times.

6If a Levite who's living in one of your cities anywhere in Israel decides he really wants to go and live in the place the Eternal will choose, 7he must be allowed to serve in the name of the Eternal his God, like all of the other Levites who are already serving there in the Eternal's presence. 8He must be given an equal share of the contributions to eat, apart from anything he earns for performing priestly services.*

9When you've settled in the land the Eternal your God is giving you, don't imitate the horrible practices of the other nations. 10Don't ever burn any of your sons or daughters alive as a sacrifice! And don't ever get involved in any divining, such as predicting fortunes, interpreting omens, sorcery, [11]casting spells, or trying to contact ghosts, spirits, or the dead. [12]The Eternal is horrified when anyone does these things. It's because of these horrible practices that the Eternal your God is driving those nations out ahead of you. [13]You shall be complete in your obedience and devotion to Him.

► The pagan nations around them share the belief that absolute immanent power comes from within creation. They engage in many activities designed to tap into that power so that they can gain knowledge of the future or have influence over others. "Drawing lots" is often done by writing possibilities on pottery shards, putting them in a bag, and then drawing out an answer. Other ways of trying to predict the future or choose the best course include watching the shapes of clouds or listening for natural omens such as bird cries. It is commonly believed that spirits and the dead can also provide guidance and special information. Whatever specific practices are being described here, however, the general principle is once again that the people should trust the Lord, transcendent above creation, as their source of guidance and protection.

Moses: [14]The nations you're going to displace seek guidance from people who practice divination and predicting. But the Eternal your God doesn't want you to do that. [15]He will raise up from among your own people a prophet who will be like me.* Listen to him. [16]This is just what you asked Him for on the day you gathered at Mount Horeb: "Don't make me listen to the voice of the Eternal my God anymore! And don't make me look at that blazing fire! I'll die!"* [17]The Eternal told me, "They're right. [18]I'll send them another prophet like you from among their own people. I'll put My words in the mouth of this prophet who will tell them everything I command him to say. [19]I, Myself, will punish whoever doesn't listen to his words* when the prophet speaks in My name. [20]But a prophet who dares to say anything in My name that I haven't commanded, or who says anything in the name of another god, will die." [21]Now you may be wondering, "How will we recognize something He hasn't commanded a prophet to say?" [22]If a prophet speaks in the Eternal One's name, but the words turn out not to be true or the prediction doesn't happen, then He wasn't actually speaking. That prophet arrogantly spoke in the Lord's name, but he didn't really have a message from Him. And so you don't need to be afraid of what the prophet said.

► The next group of laws in Deuteronomy is concerned with making sure people in Israel treat one another honestly and fairly. Safeguards are to be put in place to protect the lives and property of the innocent and to make sure the guilty are caught and punished. These will include the cities of refuge, property markers, and the court system. Each law in this group seeks specifically to prevent people from abusing or manipulating one of these safeguards.

19 Moses: When the Eternal your God has destroyed the nations whose land He's going to give you, when you've driven them out and have settled in their cities and are living in their houses, [2-3]then designate three cities of refuge for yourselves in the land He is giving you to live in. Divide your territory into three parts, locate one city centrally in each part, and measure the roads to each of them. That way a person who kills someone accidentally can escape to one of these cities and be safe from revenge.

[4]This is the kind of person I'm talking about: someone who kills a friend unintentionally, when there was no grudge between them, [5]such as when two friends go into the forest together to chop wood, and one of them swings an ax to cut a tree, and the ax head slips off the handle, hits his friend, and kills him. A person such as he can flee to one of these cities and be safe from revenge. 6Otherwise, if the distance to the nearest city of refuge is too great, one of the relatives of the friend who was killed is going to feel honor-bound to avenge the dead man's blood, and he'll catch up with him and kill him while he's still furious about his relative's death. This wouldn't be right because the man slaughterer didn't deserve the death sentence. There was no grudge between these friends—the death was accidental. 7That's why I'm commanding you to designate these three cities for yourselves. 8-9Now if you carefully obey the command I'm giving you today, to love the Eternal your God and always do as He wishes, then He will expand your territory as He promised your ancestors; He'll give you all the land He told your ancestors He'd give them. If that happens, then designate three more cities for yourselves, besides the first three. 10That way no innocent blood will be shed in the land He is giving you to live in, and as a nation you won't have any bloodguilt just because a city of refuge was too far away.

11But someone who does hate another person, who ambushes and kills that person can't escape revenge by fleeing to one of these cities. 12The elders of his city must send representatives to bring the killer back and turn him over to the blood-avenger, the relative of the murder victim who will kill him. 13Don't show any pity! You must remove the stain of innocent blood from Israel, so that everything will go well for you.

14Don't steal land from your neighbor by moving the boundary marker your ancestors put in place. Each person's property is an inheritance from the Eternal, who's giving you this land to live in.

These potential "property disputes" are a divine reflection. When you steal land from another person, you're taking away what God has given—that's like stealing from the Lord Himself!

15The testimony of a single witness is not sufficient to convict a person of a crime or to find someone guilty of doing something wrong. Every charge must be confirmed by two or three witnesses.* 16If one person accuses another of some crime, and you suspect it's being done out of malice, 17bring the two people involved into the Eternal's presence at the sanctuary. Present their case to the priests and the judges who are serving on the tribunal at the time. 18The judges will conduct a careful investigation. If it turns out that the witness was lying and accused the other Israelite maliciously, 19-21then do to the witness exactly what he wanted done to the other person. Don't show any pity! If he wanted the other person killed, then kill him; if he wanted his eye put out or a tooth knocked out or a hand or foot cut off, then do that to him.* This will expel the wicked from your own community. Everyone else will hear what happens and be afraid to do the same thing themselves, so none of you will ever do such an evil thing to each other again.

20 Moses: This is how you should act during wartime: When you go to battle against your enemies, if you see their army is larger than yours and they have horses and chariots, don't be afraid of them! The Eternal your God is with you—the same God who defeated Pharaoh and brought you out of Egypt. 2As you are approaching the battlefield, your priest will come over to you and address you: 3"Listen, Israel! Today you're going to fight a battle against your enemies. Don't be intimidated by them! Don't be afraid! Don't run away! Don't let them terrify you! 4The Eternal, your True God, has come out here with you, and He'll fight for you against your enemies and save you." 5Then the officials will say to the people who are eligible for a deferment, "Has anyone just built a new house but hasn't begun to use it yet? Go back to your house, because if you died in this battle, someone else would dedicate it. 6Has anyone planted a vineyard but hasn't enjoyed its fruit yet? Go back to your house, because if you died in this battle, someone else would be the first to enjoy its fruit. 7Has anyone become engaged to a woman but hasn't consummated the marriage? Go back to your house, because if you died in this battle, someone else would take her." 8They'll continue, "Is anyone here afraid or intimidated? You can go back home too! We don't want you to make everyone else as scared as you are!" 9When the officials have finished speaking to the troops, they'll appoint commanders to lead each section of the army.

Israelite teachers and scribes are fond of organizing material using mnemonic devices. If two writings share a key word, phrase, or idea, it is considered clever and attractive to put them next to one another. This principle is applied often as the first law in Deuteronomy 21:1 begins by using some Hebrew words similar to those at the end of the last law in the previous group. Even though the second law in 21:10 is really about marriage, it begins, "When you go to battle against your enemies," transitioning from the warfare laws. The third law follows because it starts by talking about marriage, even though it's really about the inheritance rights of sons. And the next law also talks about sons—except that they're so disobedient, they need to be executed. So the final law in the group is about executions. These language techniques are intended to help the Israelites memorize the laws.

10When you first approach a city you're going to fight against, shout out, "Peace!" 11If they shout back, "Peace!" and open their gates to you, then you must let them surrender. Make everyone in the city your slaves, and put them to work for you. 12But if the city doesn't surrender, if it resists you instead, then lay siege to it. 13When the Eternal your God enables you to capture the city, kill all the men who are left in it with your swords. 14But you can take the women, children, livestock, all the other goods in the city, and all of its spoils as your plunder for your use. The Eternal your God has given you these spoils from your enemies.

21 Moses: If a murder victim is found lying on the ground in the open field, anywhere in the territory the Eternal your God is giving you to live in, and no one knows who the killer was, then perform a special ceremony to remove the bloodguilt from your land. 5Send for the priests, the descendants of Levi, the ones the Eternal your God chose to serve Him and to bless His name, because they're the ones who settle disputes and handle cases of injury like this.* 2Have your elders and judges measure the distance from the body to the nearby cities. 3The elders of the city that's closest to the body will have jurisdiction and offer a special sacrifice. Have them take a heifer that has never been put to work pulling a yoke, 4bring it down by a flowing stream onto land where no crops have ever been planted or grown, and break its neck in that stream. 6Then in the presence of the priests, have those city elders wash their hands over the heifer's corpse and take an oath: 7"Our hands didn't shed this blood, and our eyes never saw who did. 8Eternal, please cover the wickedness of Your people Israel, the ones You delivered from slavery. Please don't consider your people Israel guilty of shedding innocent blood!" If this ceremony is performed, that city will be forgiven for the blood that was shed near it. 9You will remove the bloodguilt from your nation because you've done what the Eternal considers right.

* 21:5 Verse 5 has been moved forward to aid in comprehension.

► The Hebrew practice of kipper is when one party makes a gift to another in order to reestablish a good relationship between two parties and remove bloodguilt. The emphasis is not so much on the gift itself (although it should be a worthy one), but on the first party's desire for reconciliation. When the kipper is a sacrificial animal resolving an offense that would otherwise be settled according to the principle of "a life for a life," the death of the animal is a substitution for what should have been the death of the murderer. This situation helps Christians understand what the sacrificial system provides for Israel before the Lord and what Jesus does for us on the cross. His death is a substitutionary sacrifice, but it is also a kipper, a gift that reestablishes our relationship with God.

Moses: 10When you go to battle against your enemies and the Eternal, your True God, enables you to defeat them and take them captive, 11you may see a beautiful woman among the captives and be attracted to her and want to marry her. 12Bring her back to your house, and then have her shave her head and cut her nails 13and exchange her old clothes she was wearing when she was captured for new ones. Let her stay in your house and mourn for her father and mother for a month. Only after that may you, as her husband, have sexual relations with her. She will be your fully legal wife and you her husband. 14If you are ever displeased with her and divorce her, you must give her freedom and send her anywhere she wants to go. You're not allowed to sell her into slavery, and you can't turn her into your own slave because you humiliated her.

15Suppose a man has two wives, and he favors one over the other, loving one and not loving the other. If they've both borne him sons, but the firstborn doesn't belong to his favorite wife, 16-17he can't designate the eldest son of his favorite wife as the firstborn instead. When he divides his property and gives his sons their inheritances, he must recognize his true firstborn, the eldest son of the other wife, and give him a double portion of all his property as is customary for all men. That son was the first one created by the man's generative power, so the rights of the firstborn belong to him.

18If anyone has a stubborn and rebellious son who refuses to obey his father and mother, who won't even listen to them when they discipline him, 19his parents may bring him to the city gate and formally accuse him in court, 20telling the city elders what wicked things he has done. For example, "This is our son. He's stubborn and rebellious! He won't obey us. He's a glutton and a drunk!" 21Then all the people of the city will stone him to death. You must expel the wicked from your own community.* Everyone else in Israel will hear about it and fear the consequences of such rebellion.

22If someone does something so wicked that it's punishable by death, and if you execute that person and then hang the body on a pole, 23don't leave the body up there overnight. Bury it that same day because everyone who hangs is cursed by God.* Otherwise you will defile the ground the Eternal your God is giving you to live on.

► The next group of laws deals generally with the theme of property: what to do with livestock (whether it's yours or someone else's), what kind of clothes to make and wear, how to build a house, how to grow crops. But this theme is defined so broadly to embrace all these laws that they are likely also gathered together by the same mnemonic principle as the previous group.

22 Moses: If you see your neighbor's ox or sheep wandering away, don't ignore it. Bring the animal back to its owner. 2If the owner lives far from you, or if you don't know whose animal it is, bring it back to your house and take care of it until the owner comes looking for it, and then return it to the Israelite. 3Do the same thing with a donkey or a garment or anything else a neighbor might lose. If you find it, don't ignore it; take care of it until the owner comes looking for it. 4If you see your neighbor's donkey or ox has fallen down in the roadway, don't ignore it. Help that person get the animal back on its feet.

5A woman must not wear men's clothing, and men must not put on women's garments. The Eternal your God is horrified when anyone does this.

6If you come across a bird's nest by the road, either in a tree or on the ground, and there are baby chicks or eggs in the nest and the mother bird is keeping them warm, don't take the mother with them. 7You must let the mother go, but you may take the chicks or eggs for yourself. If you do this, God will bless you; everything will go well with you, and you'll live a long time.

8When you build a new house, make sure you put a low wall around the edge of the roof so that no one will fall off and be killed. That way there will be no bloodguilt on your house as a result of your negligence.

► Whether it be home construction, dietary practices and food preparation, or farming and livestock, Israelite customs should reflect the correct order and division of humans, animals, and plants. Further, all practice should encourage life, and not death.

Moses: 9Don't plant your vineyard with two kinds of seed. If you do, everything that grows there will not be pure, both what grows from the seeds and what grows on the vines. 10Don't plow with an ox and a donkey yoked together. 11Don't wear any material made of both wool and linen.

12Make tassels for the four corners of the cloak you wear, as a reminder of God's instructions.

► The laws in the next group all address cases where sexual relations may have taken place outside of lawful marriage. This is considered not just immoral but also a threat to a foundational institution of Israelite society—the family. Sexual indiscretion is therefore punished with execution, in order to remove the threat from the midst of the community. In a context where a rival pagan value system exerts a constant push away from the pattern of life God outlined, such bold consequences are necessary to keep the nation on track while forming this new type of society.

Moses: 13What if a man marries a woman and has sexual relations with her, but he ends up hating her, 14falsely accuses her of shameful things, and slanders her publicly, saying, "I married this woman, but then I discovered she wasn't a virgin"? 15If this happens, the girl's father and mother can clear her name by providing evidence of her virginity to the elders in a legal proceeding at the city gate. 16The girl's father may tell the elders, "I gave my daughter to this man as his wife. But now he dislikes her 17and has falsely accused her, telling me, 'I found out your daughter wasn't a virgin!' But here is the evidence of my daughter's virginity." If the parents can provide the evidence by spreading out the cloth for the elders to see, 18the city elders must punish the husband. He is to be beaten 19and then fined two and a half pounds of silver, twice the amount of the bride price he paid before the marriage, which will be given to the girl's father because this man publicly slandered one of Israel's virgins. He can't ever divorce her after this; he has to keep her as his wife. 20But if the charge is true, and the girl wasn't a virgin, 21then bring her to the door of her father's house. There the people of her city will stone her to death because she did something no Israelite should ever do: she was a fornicator while she was living in her father's house! Expel the wicked from your own community.*

22If it's discovered that a man has been having sexual relations with a married woman, both the man and the woman must be put to death. Expel the wicked from Israel this way.

* 22:21 1 Corinthians 5:13

[23]What if a man meets a girl who's a virgin but who's engaged to someone else, and he has sexual relations with her? If this happens in the city, [24]bring them both out to the gate of that city where the public will stone them to death: the girl, because she was in the city and could have cried for help but didn't, meaning she consented; and the man, because he violated another man's wife. Expel the wicked from your community this way. [25]But if this happens out in the country—if a man finds an engaged girl out there and overpowers and rapes her—then only the man must die. [26-27]But don't do anything to the girl; she did nothing wrong and doesn't deserve to die. When this man came after her, she cried for help, but no one was there to respond. She's as innocent as the victim of a sudden murderous attack—there was nothing she could do.

[28]If a man meets a girl who's a virgin and who isn't engaged to someone else, and he forces himself on her, when what he's done is discovered, [29]he must pay 20 ounces of silver to her father as a bride price, and she will become his wife. He can't ever divorce her after this because he's dishonored her.

By marrying her, the rapist ensures she will be cared for during her lifetime because no other man would marry a woman who isn't a virgin—even under such circumstances.

[30]A man is not allowed to marry a woman who was once married to his father. He must respect the privacy and dignity of his father's intimate relations with his wife.

► The next group of laws describes certain people who may not come into the holy place to worship the Lord. This is the defining right of a member in good standing of the community, so the people described here are, in effect, being excluded from community membership itself. The reasons for exclusion reflect Deuteronomy's ongoing concerns: rejecting pagan practices, upholding lawful marriage, maintaining wholeness and purity, and showing compassion to those in need.

23 Moses: No emasculated man, either by crushing or severing his male organs, may come and worship the Eternal. [2]No one born from an illegal or incestuous union may come and worship the Eternal. This prohibition stays in effect for 10 generations. [3]No Ammonite or Moabite may join the Israelite community and come and worship the Eternal. This prohibition stays in effect for 10 generations. [4]This is because they wouldn't give you any food or water when you came out of Egypt and because they hired someone to curse you instead—Balaam (Beor's son) from Pethor in northwest Mesopotamia.* [5]But the Eternal your God wouldn't listen to Balaam, and He turned his curse into a blessing for you because the Eternal your God loves you. [6]Don't ever make peace with them, and don't align with them, for as long as you live.

► These ordinances seem unduly harsh, but two ideas are at play. First, Lot's sexual relations with his daughters bring forth the Ammonite and Moabite peoples, so this command is a commentary reflecting on that event. Second, these restrictions are only temporary. God requires a ritually pure and completely devoted people (both internal and external) in order to bring forth the "messianic seed of woman." One day the physically maimed and social outcasts will be fully integrated into the people of God. Although Isaiah 56:3-5 models this expectation, Jesus makes it a reality.

Moses: [7]Don't be hostile toward the Edomites because they're related to you. And don't be hostile toward the Egyptians because you were once foreign residents in their land. [8]The great-grandchildren of an Edomite or Egyptian may join the Israelite community and come and worship the Eternal.

* 23:4 Hebrew, Aram Naharaim

The law in verses 9-14 is loosely connected with those in the preceding group by the theme of someone being excluded from a community that is defined by the Eternal One's presence. In this case, however, both the exclusion and the community are temporary.

The concern for "decency" in this law doesn't relate to moral or immoral acts, but rather to personal bodily functions that should be kept private and discrete. Otherwise, they expose too much of the person to community view. They're described literally as a form of "nakedness." In this context, being "unclean" means needing to deal with a private matter before being able to reengage the community.

An essential principle in the Old Testament is that what is unclean must never come into contact with what is holy. The Eternal One's presence is supremely holy, thus the concern for decency in the camp where the Eternal One travels with the army.

[9]When you go to fight your enemies, maintain strict standards of moral and ritual decency in your camp. [10]If a man becomes ritually impure because of a nocturnal emission, he can't remain in the camp. He has to stay outside that day. [11]But when evening comes, once he's washed himself in water, he may come back into the camp at sunset which begins the new day. [12]Designate an area outside the camp as a latrine. [13]When you go there to relieve yourself, bring the spade you carry with your equipment and turn the soil to cover your excrement. [14]Treat your camp as a sacred place because the Eternal your God will be walking around in it. He travels with your army to bring you victory and defeat your enemies. If He saw something indecent, He'd leave the camp.

[15]Don't send back any slaves who escape from their masters and come to you. [16]Let them live with you in any of your cities, anywhere they choose, wherever seems good to them. And don't take advantage of them!

[17]Neither the women nor the men of Israel shall become cult prostitutes. [18]The Eternal, your True God, will not accept income from male or female prostitution in payment of a vow in His house. Both kinds of cult prostitution are horrifying to Him! [19]You may not charge interest to a fellow Israelite who borrows money or food or anything else you could charge interest for. [20]You may charge foreigners interest, but you may not charge interest to your fellow Israelites. If you follow these instructions, the Eternal your God will bless you in everything you do in the land where you're going to live when you cross the Jordan.

[21]When you make a vow to the Eternal, your True God, pay it promptly. He will be looking for you to fulfill your promise; and if you don't, it will be a sin. [22]It isn't a sin to make a vow in the first place. [23]But whatever you do say, you must fulfill completely: you made a vow of your own free will to the Eternal your God, and you must keep your word.

[24]When you're passing through another Israelite's vineyard, you may eat as many grapes as you want there, but don't carry any away in a container. [25]When you're passing through another Israelite's field, you may pluck the grain with your hand and eat it, but you're not allowed to bring a sickle to cut down the grain and carry it away.

24 Moses: Suppose a man marries a woman but then isn't happy with her because he discovers she is sexually indecent,* and he writes a certificate of divorce, gives it to her, and sends her away from his house. [2]Suppose she leaves his house and becomes another man's wife, [3]and that second man also isn't happy with her, and he writes her a certificate of divorce, gives it to her, and sends her away; or suppose that second man who married her dies. [4]In either case, the first man who divorced her isn't allowed to take her back as his wife because the intimacy of the second marriage defiled her for her first husband. The Eternal would be horrified if anyone did this. It would bring sin on the land the Eternal your God is giving you to live in and pass down to your children.

* 24:1 Literally, a naked thing

5When a man first gets married, he's free from military service and any other civic duty for one year. He and his wife may spend that year happily together in their home.

6A creditor is not allowed to take a pair of millstones for grinding grain, or to take even a single millstone (which would leave the other one useless) as security for a debt.

How can debtors stay alive if they can't prepare food? When a person's debt is due, God has instructions for Israelite life and ethic, and He always considers both parties.

7If someone is caught kidnapping and enslaving other Israelites or selling them into slavery, the penalty is death. Expel the wicked from your own community.*

8Do everything you can to prevent an outbreak of any infectious skin disease. I've commanded the Levitical priests what to do in these cases. Follow all of their instructions very carefully! 9Remember what the Eternal your God did to Miriam as you were on your way out of Egypt.*

► As the Israelites are traveling through the wilderness, the prophetess Miriam, Moses' sister, is struck with an infectious skin disease for questioning her brother's authority as the Lord's representative (Numbers 12:1-15). Moses prays for her, and she is healed after a week. The allusion to this event seems intended to stress that God has complete power over diseases that cause impurity—both to strike people and to heal them—and that the Israelites therefore need to respect the authority of the Lord's representatives, the priests, as they treat cases.

Moses: 10If you make a loan of any kind to your neighbor, don't go into his house to collect the security. 11Wait outside, and let him bring it out to you. 12If the borrower is poor and gives a cloak as security, don't keep it overnight. 13Give the cloak back at sunset so he can sleep in it and stay warm. He'll bless you, and the Eternal your God will recognize your good deed.

14Don't exploit the poor and needy people whom you hire to work for you, whether they're fellow Israelites or some of the foreigners who live in your cities. 15Pay them on the same day they work for you, before the sun goes down, because they're poor and they're really counting on the money. If you don't, they'll cry out to the Eternal, and He'll find you guilty of wicked actions.

16Don't put parents to death for anything their children have done, and don't put children to death for anything their parents have done. People are only to be executed for their own crimes.

17Don't deny justice to someone just because he or she is defenseless, such as a foreigner or an orphan, and don't take a widow's garment as security for a debt. 18Remember you were helpless slaves in Egypt, and the Eternal your God rescued you from there. That's why I'm commanding you to do this and protect defenseless people yourselves.

19When you're harvesting your field, if you forget a sheaf, don't go back out into the field to get it. Let the foreigners, orphans, and widows take it. If you do this, the Eternal your God will bless everything you do. 20When you beat your olive tree to knock the olives onto the ground where you can harvest them, don't shake each branch again and again to strip the tree clean. Leave some for the foreigners, orphans, and widows. 21When you cut the grapes off your vines, don't go around a second time and get all the ones you missed. Leave them for the foreigners, orphans, and widows. 22Remember you, too, were destitute slaves in Egypt. That's why I'm commanding you to do this and provide for the needy people around you.

Gleaning is a right given by God to pick up anything left in the fields at harvest time, and this is a special gift for those with real need.

25 Moses: If two people have a dispute and bring it to court, the judges there will decide the case and declare which one is innocent and which one is guilty. 2If the judges decide the guilty party should be punished with a beating, the judge will make him lie down and be beaten in front of the judge with the number of strokes appropriate to the evil offense—3but it can never be more than 40. This limit is to prevent excessive beatings, which would be publicly degrading.

* 24:7 1 Corinthians 5:13 * 24:9 Numbers 12:10

4Don't muzzle the ox while it is treading out your grain.*

5When two brothers are living together, sharing family property that hasn't been divided, if one of them dies leaving a widow without sons, his widow must not be married to a man outside the family. The brother should marry his sister-in-law and try to have children with her in his brother's name.*

► The widow and any children she has by her second husband, by custom, lose their share in his property. When a widow and her children become the family of her brother-in-law, this is a Levirate marriage.

Moses: 6Her firstborn son will be named after the brother who died, so that the first husband's name will not disappear from Israel and that son will receive his share of the family inheritance. 7If a man doesn't want to marry his brother's widow, she should go to the elders at the city gate and make a formal complaint: "My husband died, and his brother refuses to keep his name alive in Israel. He won't marry me and give me children!" 8The elders of his city will send for him and try to persuade him. He may resist and say, "I don't want to marry her!" 9In that case, the widow will come up to him, with the elders looking on, and pull one of his sandals off his foot, spit in his face, and then say, "If a man won't make sure his brother's family line continues, he deserves this kind of disgrace for not continuing his brother's house!" 10*From then on,* throughout Israel, his family will be known as "the house with the missing sandal," and they'll all be disgraced.

11If two Israelites are fighting, and one man's wife comes to help her husband because he's getting beaten, if she grabs the other man by the genitals, she has disrespected his source of procreative power. 12Cut her hand off; don't show any pity!

17Remember what the Amalekites did to you as you were coming out of Egypt? 18They found you on the road when you were all worn out, and they attacked those who had fallen behind and were isolated and defenseless. They showed no fear of God. 19*When you're in a position to punish them for this,* when all of your other enemies are defeated and you're living peacefully in the land that the Eternal your God is giving you to live in, then wipe out every trace of the Amalekites under the sky. Don't forget!

► The Old Testament places a very high value on plans being brought to fruition. "Futility curses," in which plans fail to reach fruition, are among the worst imagined in the ancient world. To prevent futility from happening, men are exempt from military service if they have not yet married their fiancées, if they have not enjoyed the fruit of a vineyard they have planted, or if they have not lived in a house they have built. Plans reaching fruition are cause for formal celebration and public acknowledgment of the Lord's help. The fulfillment of His promise to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob takes tangible form in the first crops from the new land, and this fulfillment calls for a ceremony of celebration and acknowledgment by each Israelite.

26 Moses: When you go into the land the Eternal your God is giving you to live in, when you've taken possession of it and are living there, 2then take some of the very first produce you harvest from the land He is giving you, put it in a basket, and go to the place He will choose for His name. 3Go to the priest who is serving at the time and say, "The Eternal promised our ancestors He'd give us this land, and I'm here today to acknowledge to the Eternal, my True God—I've officially settled in!" 4Then the priest will take the basket from you and set it in front of the altar of the Eternal your God. 5You will then testify in the presence of Him, "I'm descended from an Aramean nomad. The Lord watched over him everywhere he went. When he and his family moved to Egypt, there were only a few of them. But as they lived there as foreigners, they grew into a large, great, and powerful nation. 6The Egyptians mistreated us and oppressed us. They made us their slaves and worked us mercilessly. 7Then we cried out to the Eternal, the God of our ancestors, and He heard us. He saw that we were oppressed and exploited and mistreated. 8He delivered us with overwhelming power, totally terrifying the Egyptians by testing them with plagues and showing He was the true God by doing amazing things to them. 9He brought us to this place and gave us this land flowing with milk and honey. 10And now I've brought the very first produce from the ground that You, the Eternal, have given to me." Then present the basket to the Eternal your God, and bow down before Him, 11and celebrate all the good things He has given to you and your household. Be sure to invite the Levites and the foreigners who live in your town to the feast.

12When you've gathered a tenth of your produce at the end of the third year, the year for local tithing, give it to the Levites, the foreigners, the orphans, and the widows who live in your town. Let them come and take as much as they want to eat for as long as these supplies last. 13And then pray this prayer to the Eternal, your True God: "I haven't kept this sacred tithe for myself in my own house. I've given it to the Levites, the foreigners, the orphans, and the widows, just as You commanded me. I haven't broken or forgotten any of Your commands. 14I haven't eaten any of it while in mourning. I didn't bring any of it here while I was ritually impure, and I haven't offered any of it to the dead. I've listened to the voice of the Eternal, my God. I've done everything You commanded me to do. 15Look down from heaven, from the holy place where You live, and bless Your people Israel and this land flowing with milk and honey, this ground You've given us just as You promised our ancestors."

16Today the Eternal your God commands you to follow all these regulations and decrees. Obey them carefully and devotedly with your whole heart and soul. 17You've declared today that the Eternal will be your God, that you'll live as He wants you to, that you'll obey His regulations, commands and decrees, and that you'll listen to His voice. 18And today the Eternal has declared that you are His people—His own special possession, just as He said—and He's acknowledged your promise to keep all His commands. 19He's declared that He'll lift you up high above all the other nations He's made. You'll be praised, renowned, and honored. You also will be a people who are set apart for the Eternal your God, just as He said.

► This major section of the book closes with a declaration that a covenant has now officially been made between the Lord and the current generation in Israel. Now the covenant has to be ratified and enforced.

Ancient treaties that great kings made with their subjects included a "document clause" that specified what each party would do with its own copy of the treaty. These copies were kept in prominent places, typically in the temples of the gods the kings worshiped. In the case of the covenant between God and Israel, the stone tablets are to stay inside the Lord's covenant chest at Israel's central place of worship. In addition, Moses specifies that a copy of the entire treaty must be written on giant stones and put on top of a mountain in the middle of Israel's new territory.

27 Moses (commanding the people, with Israel's elders supporting him): Obey all the commands I'm giving you today, and listen to the elders when they help you enact them. 2When you cross the Jordan into the land the Eternal your God is giving you, set up some giant stones and whitewash them with lime. 3Write each word of this law on them when you cross the Jordan to enter the land He is giving you, a land flowing with milk and honey that the Eternal, God of your ancestors, promised you. 4When you cross the Jordan, you will set up these stones on Mount Ebal and whitewash them with lime just as I've commanded you this day. 5Build an altar there to Him with stones that iron has never struck; 6with stones you find whole, build an altar to Him. Offer burnt offerings on the altar to Him. 7Then sacrifice peace offerings and have a celebration feast in His presence. 8*And remember,* write a complete copy of the law on the large stones. Make it clearly legible.

► Ancient treaties included a list of blessings and curses. Ordinarily each party would call upon their own gods and ask for particular blessings for keeping the treaty or for particular curses if they broke it. In this treaty, however, the blessings and curses are spoken only to the people of Israel. It's not necessary to pronounce any blessing or curses on the Lord because there's no danger He'll forget or break any of His agreements!

Moses (to all of Israel, with the Levitical priests supporting him): 9Keep silent, and listen, Israel! Today you've become the Eternal's very own people, and He's become your God; 10so listen to the voice of the Eternal your God and obey the commands and regulations I'm giving you today.

11That day Moses charged the people.

Moses: 12When you cross the Jordan River and settle in the land, hold a ceremony to ratify this covenant with the Lord. The tribes of Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin will stand on the slope of Mount Gerizim to bless the people, 13and the tribes of Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali will stand on Mount Ebal, representing the curse that will fall on anyone who breaks the covenant. 14The Levites will shout in a loud voice, so that every Israelite can hear them and respond to the curses.

Levites: 15A curse on anyone who carves or casts an idol, something so horrifying to the Eternal, and secretly worships what human craftsmen have made!

People: Let it be so!*

Levites: 16A curse on anyone who treats his father or mother with contempt!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 17A curse on anyone who steals his neighbor's land by moving a boundary marker!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 18A curse on anyone who leads a blind person down the wrong road!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 19A curse on anyone who deprives a foreigner, orphan, or widow of justice!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 20A curse on anyone who has sexual relations with his father's wife, who violates the sanctity of his father's intimate relations!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 21A curse on anyone who has sexual relations with an animal!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 22A curse on anyone who has sexual relations with his sister—his father's daughter or his mother's daughter!

* 27:15 Literally, Amen

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 23A curse on anyone who has sexual relations with his wife's mother!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 24A curse on anyone who murders his neighbor when no one else is watching!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 25A curse on anyone who causes the death of the innocent just for a bribe!

People: Let it be so!

Levites: 26A curse on anyone who doesn't live by and do all that is written in the law!*

People: Let it be so!

It is a fearful thing to promise God obedience and break that promise.

28 Moses: If you listen closely to the voice of the Eternal your God and carefully obey all the commands I'm giving you today, He'll lift you up high above every other nation on earth. 2All of the following blessings will be yours—in fact, they'll chase after you—if you'll listen to what He tells you.

► Moses now recites the blessings that will come to the people if they keep their covenant with the Lord and the curses they'll experience if they don't. By making these a part of the treaty itself, Moses is calling on God to use them to enforce the covenant.

The blessings are listed first. This reflects God's primary intention toward us: to bless and not to curse. When the Lord reveals His glory and character to Moses (Exodus 34:6-7), He declares at length that He's a God of love, mercy, grace, and forgiveness, and only then adds that He will never allow injustice.

Moses: 3You'll be blessed in the city and blessed in the fields.
4You'll be blessed with children and crops and cattle.
Your herds will multiply, and your flocks will increase.
5Your basket will be blessed; it will be full
at harvest time, and your kneading bowl will be blessed; you'll always have plenty of bread.
6You'll be blessed when you go out of your home
and blessed when you return to your home.

7When your enemies attack you, the Eternal will defeat them for you. They'll come against you from one direction, but scatter and flee chaotically from you in seven different directions. 8He will bless your barns, and they'll be full of grain; He'll bless everything you do. You'll be blessed throughout the land He is giving you. 9The Eternal will make you a nation that belongs to Him in a special way, just as He promised He would, if you'll obey the commands of the Eternal your God and live as He wants you to. 10Every other nation on earth will see the Eternal has called you by His own name, so they'll be in awe of you.

11The Eternal will give you more than enough of every good thing—children, cattle, and crops—as you live on the ground He promised your ancestors He'd give you. 12He will open up the reservoirs of water in the sky and make the rainy seasons come each year, so that everything you do will be blessed. Your produce will be so abundant that you'll lend to many nations, but you won't have to borrow from any. 13He will make you the head, not the tail; you'll always be on top and never on the bottom—if you'll just listen to the commands I'm giving you today from the Eternal your God, and obey them carefully. 14*All these blessings will be yours* if you don't deviate at all, neither to the right nor to the left, from any of the things I'm commanding you today, if you don't go and worship other gods!

► Moses must now invoke the curses that will come upon the people if they break their covenant with the Lord and worship other gods. He begins with a series of general curses that reverse the general blessings that have just been promised for obedience and faithfulness. But the curses quickly become very specific, predicting that things like plague, disease, and war will devastate the land. These curses will eventually become very personal with skin diseases; they will also make a person ritually impure and thus unable to participate in the community's worship. As long as the diseases are present, even if they are incurable, those who suffer from them are banned from the temple. The punishment for choosing not to worship God, in other words, is ultimately not being able to worship God.

* 27:26 Galatians 3:10

Moses: 15But if you won't listen to the voice of the Eternal your God, if you don't carefully obey the commands and regulations I'm giving you today, then you'll experience all of the following curses—in fact, they'll come after you!

16You'll be cursed in the city and cursed in the fields.
17Your baskets will be cursed, and your harvests will be small.
Your kneading bowl *will be cursed,
and you'll always be short of food.*
18Your children and your crops will be cursed.
Your herds will dwindle, and your flocks will shrink.
19You'll be cursed when you return to your home and cursed when you go out from your home.

Eternal One: 20I'll oppose everything you try to do! I'll send curses and panic and setbacks until you're destroyed, suddenly and completely, because of the evil things you did when you abandoned Me!

Moses: 21-22The Eternal will strike you with plague—consumption and fever and inflammation—in the land where you're going to live, and it will never leave until none of you are left alive there. He'll afflict your land with heat and drought; He'll afflict your crops with blight and mildew. All of these things will keep coming after you until you're destroyed! 23The skies overhead will be like a bronze shield that no rain can penetrate, and the land beneath your feet will be like iron that no seeds can sprout through. 24Instead of rainstorms, the Eternal will send dust storms down on your land, and you'll be destroyed.
25He will hand you over to your enemies already defeated. You'll attack them in an organized unit from one direction, but you'll scatter and flee from them as scared individuals in seven different directions. Every kingdom on earth will tremble with fear when they hear what happens to you. 26Your dead bodies will lie unburied in the open field. The wild birds and animals will eat them, and no one will chase the scavengers away.
27The Eternal will afflict you with all kinds of incurable skin diseases, such as the boils that were a plague in Egypt;
you'll suffer tumors* and scurvy and itch,
but you'll never find relief. 35He will afflict you with severe, incurable boils on your knees and legs, and they'll spread until they cover your whole body, from the soles of your feet to the top of your head.*

28The Eternal will afflict you with madness and blindness and confusion.
29*As you try to figure out which way to go in life,*
you'll be groping around the way a blind person gropes in the darkness,
even in the middle of the day.
You'll never find your way, and you'll never be prosperous.
You'll be exploited and robbed all the time, and no one will rescue
you.
30You'll get engaged to a woman, but another man will violate her.
You'll build a house but never live in it.
You'll plant a vineyard but never enjoy its fruit.
31Your ox will be slaughtered as you look on helplessly, and others will eat it.
Your donkey will be taken away from you and never returned.
Your sheep will be given to your enemies, and no one will help you get them back.

* 28:27 Literally, hemorrhoids * 28:35 Verse 35 has been moved forward to aid in comprehension.

32Your sons and your daughters will be given to foreigners as slaves. You'll always be watching for their return, until your eyes grow dim, but there will be nothing you can do to bring them back.
33Foreigners will eat up all your crops and take everything else you've worked for. You'll be oppressed and abused constantly. 34You'll be driven mad by what you see! 36The Eternal will send all of you, including your chosen king, into exile, to a country you've never heard of, not even from your ancestors. There you'll worship other gods made of wood and stone. 37Whenever the people who live in the places where the Eternal has sent you want to scare someone or insult someone or teach a lesson, they'll say that what happened to you is going to happen to them. Your name will be synonymous with disaster!

38You'll sow many seeds, but you'll harvest only a few because locusts will devour them before they produce. 39You'll plant vineyards and tend them, but you won't drink any wine or collect any grapes because worms will eat them.
40You'll have olive trees throughout your territory, but you won't anoint yourself with oil because the trees will be diseased and the olives will drop off before they ripen. 41You'll still have children, but they won't stay with you; they'll be taken into captivity. 42Your orchards and crops will be infested with buzzing locusts. 43The foreigners who live in your country will rise higher and higher above you, while you sink lower and lower in every aspect of life. 44They will lend to you, but you won't lend to them; they'll be the head, and you'll be the tail. 45You'll experience all of these curses—they'll chase after you and overtake you and destroy you—because you did not listen to the voice of the Eternal and obey the commands and regulations He gave you. 46These curses will test you and leave you in awe of His signs and wonders against you and your descendants forever.

► This list of futility curses is followed by a grisly description of the horrors of foreign invasion and siege. The people, unfortunately, will experience these very terrors when Assyria invades the Northern Kingdom of Israel, conquering it in 722 B.C. and exiling the population, and when Babylon invades the Southern Kingdom of Judah, destroying Jerusalem in 587 B.C. and carrying the people off into exile.

Moses: 47Because you didn't serve the Eternal your God in joy and gladness when you had an abundance of everything, 48you'll serve the enemies the Eternal sends against you, in hunger and thirst and nakedness and destitution.
He'll put an iron yoke on your neck until He's destroyed you.

49The Eternal will bring a nation from far away, from the ends of the earth, and it will swoop down on you like an eagle.
This will be a nation whose language you don't understand, 50a ruthless nation that doesn't respect the old or spare the young. 51They'll eat up your young cattle and crops until you have nothing left.
They won't leave you any grain or new wine or oil, or young animals in your herds or flocks. And that lack will kill you. 52They'll lay siege to all of you and all of your cities throughout the land the Eternal your God is giving you, until the high, fortifying walls you feel so safe within have all been knocked down all over your nation.

53These enemy sieges will cause you so much hardship that you'll resort to cannibalism! You'll eat the flesh of the sons and daughters that the Eternal your God has given you. 54Even the gentlest, most sensitive man among you will turn against his brother and his beloved wife and the rest of his children who haven't been exiled. 55He won't even give them anything to eat from the flesh of the children he's devouring because the hardship of the enemy siege will be so severe in every city that he'll have nothing else to eat himself. 56Even the gentlest, most delicate woman among you, who wouldn't even let her foot touch the ground because she's so refined, will turn against her beloved husband and against her son and daughter. 57*She'll feel no compassion* toward any other children she bears and no delicacy about the afterbirth when it comes out. She'll eat her newborns and the afterbirth in secret because the hardship of the enemy siege will be so severe in every city that she'll have nothing else to eat.

58If you don't carefully obey every word of this law that's written in this book, if you don't fear your God's glorious and awesome name, "Eternal One," 59then He will strike you and your descendants with extraordinary plagues that will be widespread and long-lasting, with serious, persistent illnesses. 60He'll bring back all the Egyptian diseases you were so afraid of when you lived there,
and you'll suffer from them continuously. 61He will even afflict you with diseases and plagues that aren't written about in this book of the law until you're destroyed. 62Only a few of you will be left, even though there used to be as many of you as there were stars in the sky, because you wouldn't listen to the voice of the Eternal your God. 63Even though it used to give the Eternal great pleasure to do good things for you and to increase your numbers, He'll delight in killing and destroying you completely.
You'll be torn from the land you're going to possess, 64and He will scatter you among all the nations, from one end of the earth to the other. There you'll worship other gods, made of wood and stone, that you and your ancestors have never worshiped before. 65Among those nations you'll never be at rest, and you'll never be able to settle down. He will make your hearts tremble, your eyes fail from crying, and your soul languish from despair. 66Your life will hang by a thread;
you'll be terrified day and night, knowing you could die any minute. 67You'll be so terrified, and you'll see such awful things, that in the morning you'll say, "If only evening would come, and this day would be over!" And in the evening you'll say, "If only morning would come, and this night would be over!" 68The Eternal will bring you back to Egypt in ships, even though I told you you'd never go back there again. You'll offer yourselves to your enemies as male and female slaves, but no one will buy you.

► The covenant treaty found in this book ends on a very bleak note. Unfortunately its dismal warnings are not heeded. The people of Israel are unfaithful to the Lord. They worship other gods; and as a result, their land is conquered and they are carried away into exile. However, the covenant God has made with their ancestors is unconditional. Even though the people have broken the specific covenant He has made with them at Mount Horeb, forfeiting the blessings it promised, the Lord is still bound to His covenant relationship with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and their descendants forever. And so He enters into a new covenant with them, to replace the one that has been broken.

29 These are the terms of the covenant the Eternal commanded Moses to make with the people of Israel in the land of Moab, in addition to the covenant He made with them at Horeb.

Moses (summoning all of Israel): 2You saw with your own eyes what the Eternal did in the land of Egypt to Pharaoh and all his servants and his whole country. 3You saw with your own eyes how He tested them with the great plagues He sent against them and the amazing signs and wonders He did to demonstrate His reality and power. 4But to this day, He hasn't given you a mind that understands or eyes that see or ears that hear.

► Spiritual insensitivity is its own punishment. It's not that the Lord doesn't want the people to be able to see and understand how His great works disclose His character and purposes, it's just that such insights are only available to those who will humbly acknowledge and obey Him in response. Spiritual perception is a special gift from God, and it isn't given to those who stubbornly resist. Instead, they are allowed to continue having eyes that don't see, ears that don't hear, and minds that don't understand.

Eternal One: 5I've led you through the wilderness for 40 years. The clothes on your back and the sandals on your feet haven't worn out. 6You haven't had bread to eat or wine or strong drink to consume, but I've fed you each day with manna so you'd know that I, the Eternal, am your God who protects you and provides for you.

Moses: 7When we arrived here in the territory east of the Jordan, Sihon the king of Heshbon and Og the king of Bashan attacked us, but we defeated them in battle. 8We took their land and gave it to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half of Joseph's children—the tribe of the Manassites—as their families' perpetual land. 9If you carefully obey all the terms of this covenant, then you'll be successful in everything you do.

10You're all standing here today in the presence of the Eternal your God: your leaders, your tribes, your elders, and your representatives, all you men of Israel, 11with your children and wives, and even the foreigners who are living with you and working for you—who chop your wood and draw your water—12*you're all standing here* to take an oath and become part of the covenant He is making with you today. 13He'll establish you as His people; and He'll become your God, just as He told you He would, and just as He promised your ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

16You know what life was like in the land of Egypt, and you saw how other nations lived when you traveled through their territories. 17You saw the detestable things they had with them, their idols of wood, stone, silver, and gold. 18There could be a man or a woman among you, or even a whole clan or tribe, that might be willfully turning away from the Eternal this very day to go worship the gods of those nations! They'd be like a root that would bear bitter, poisonous fruit among you. 19Even when they hear the words of the covenant oath, they'll exult, "We can keep going our own way, and we'll be just fine!" They will end up destroying everything in the country. 20He will never forgive them; He'll be furious with jealousy, and they will be struck with all the curses written in this book. He will wipe away every trace of them under heaven. 21He'll single them out for misery from all the tribes of Israel and bring disaster on them according to all the covenant curses recorded in this book of the law.

22Future generations of your descendants and foreigners who come from distant countries will see how the Eternal has struck the land and sickened it, and they'll say, 23"This whole place is a burned-out wasteland of sulfur and salt! No one plants anything here because nothing grows here—not even grass! It's like what happened when He destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah,* Admah and Zeboiim, when He was so furious with those cities." 24People from the surrounding nations will say, "But why did the Eternal do this to this land? Why did He get so furiously angry?" 25And bystanders will answer, "Because they abandoned the covenant the Eternal, the God of their ancestors, made with them when He brought them out of the land of Egypt. 26They went and worshiped other gods. They bowed down to gods they'd never known that He didn't allow them to worship. 27That's why He was furiously angry with that land and struck it with all the curses recorded in this book. 28He was so incredibly angry that He uprooted the people from the land in his wrath and tossed them away into other countries, where they still are today."

29Only the Eternal knows the secret things. But we and our descendants are always responsible for what has been revealed to us, and we need to obey every word of this law.

30 Moses: When everything I've described to you has happened, and you've experienced first the blessings of obedience and then the curses for disobedience, if you reflect on these blessings and curses while you're living in the nations where the Eternal your God has scattered you; 2and if you and your descendants return to Him completely, heart and soul, and listen to His voice, obeying everything I've commanded you this day, 3then He will have mercy on you and bring you back from captivity. He'll gather you from all the peoples you've been scattered among. 4-5Even if you've been sent to the ends of the heavens, He will gather you together and bring you back from there to the land that belonged to your ancestors, and it will be yours once again. You'll be a bigger and more prosperous nation than ever before. 6The Eternal your God will cut away and circumcise the hardness around your hearts and your descendants' hearts so that you'll love Him completely, heart and soul, and you'll live.

► Circumcision of the body is a physical sign of membership in the covenant God has made with Abraham and his descendants (Genesis 17:9-14). When Moses says here that the people's hearts will be circumcised, that the hardness around them will be cut away, he means their thoughts, desires, and intentions will be brought into the covenant—that is, they will want to be faithful to their relationship with the Eternal One. (The same idea is expressed in 10:16, where Moses literally tells the people to "circumcise their hearts," meaning that they should commit to the covenant with the Eternal One not just outwardly but inwardly.) The prophets describe the new covenant in the same way: "a new heart and new spirit" (Ezekiel 36:26-28).

Moses: 7The Eternal your God will strike your enemies, those who hated you and came after you, with all these curses. 8But you'll listen once again to the voice of the Eternal, and you'll obey all the commands I'm giving you today. 9Then, in whatever you do, the Eternal your God, will give you more than enough of every good thing—children and cattle and crops—because the Eternal will once again delight to do you good as He delighted to do good to your ancestors. 10*All this will happen* if you'll return to the Eternal your God, heart and soul, and you'll listen to His voice and obey His commands and remember His regulations, which are written in this book of the law.

11After all, what I'm commanding you today isn't too difficult for you; it's not out of reach. 12It's not up in the sky, so you don't have to say, "Who will go up into heaven and get it for us and tell us what it is, so we can obey it?" 13It's not across the sea, so you don't have to say, "Who will go beyond the watery abyss and get it for us and tell us what it is, so we can obey it?" 14No, the words you need to be faithful to the Eternal are very close to you. They are in your mouth (always talk about these laws, as I've commanded you) and in your heart (treasure them there).*

15Look, I've given you two choices today: you can have life with all the good things it brings, or death and all the bad things it brings. 16If you do what I've commanded you today and love the Eternal your God; if you live as He wants you to, if you obey His commands, regulations and judgments, then you'll live and have many descendants. He will bless you in the land where you're going to live. 17But if your heart turns away and you don't listen, if you go astray and you bow down to other gods and worship them, 18then today I assure you you'll be destroyed. You'll cross the Jordan River into the land that's going to belong to you, but you won't live there very long at all.

► Covenants between two people are typically witnessed by a third party. If one person doesn't live up to his obligations and tries to argue that it was not necessary, the other person can then appeal to the witness to confirm the original terms of the agreement. Moses calls on the sky and the land to be the witnesses here. They will always be around to testify about the covenant terms that were offered to the people and how they agreed to them.

The formal treaty and its supplement have now been drawn up and witnessed. The only business remaining is to establish how the treaty will be carried on once the people who originally made it are gone. The Lord chooses Joshua to succeed Moses, to lead Israel into the land and represent them in their relationship with Him.

* 30:14 Romans 10:6-8

Moses: [19]I'm calling on the heavens and the earth to be the witnesses against you. I gave you the choice today between life and death, between being blessed or being cursed. Choose life, so that you and your descendants may live! [20]If you love the Eternal your God and listen to His voice and always remain loyal to Him, for He is your life, then you'll be able to live a long time in the land the Eternal promised to give to your ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

31 When Moses had finished giving all the words of this whole covenant to the people of Israel, [2]he spoke to them.

Moses: I'm now 120 years old. I'm not physically able to lead you anymore, and the Eternal has told me, "You're not going to cross the Jordan River." [3]Instead, it will be the Eternal your God who leads you across the Jordan. He'll clear out the nations who live there, and you'll take their place. As my successor and the Eternal's representative, Joshua will lead you across, just as He has said. [4]The Eternal will do to those nations just what He did to Sihon and Og, the Amorite kings, and their land when He destroyed them. [5]He will defeat them for you. Then you must do to them exactly what I've commanded you to do. [6]Be strong and brave, and don't tremble in fear of them, because the Eternal your God is going with you. He'll never fail you or abandon you!

Moses: Be strong and brave! You're going to lead these people into the land the Eternal promised their ancestors He'd give them. You'll give it to them, and they'll give it to their descendants. [8]And He will be leading you. He'll be with you, and He'll never fail you or abandon you. So don't be afraid!

[9]Then Moses wrote down everything in this law and gave it to the priests (the descendants of Levi who transported the Eternal's covenant chest) and to the elders of Israel. [10]He gave them these instructions:

Moses: At the end of every seven years, as I've already told you, you're going to cancel all debts. In that same year, during the Feast of Shelters, [11]when all the people of Israel come into the presence of the Eternal your God, at the place He'll choose, read this law aloud to them. [12]Assemble everyone—men, women, children, and any foreigners who are living in the cities with you—so they can listen and learn and fear Him and carefully obey every word of this law. [13]If you do this every seven years, their descendants, who otherwise wouldn't know these things, will hear the law and learn to fear Him, and the nation will be faithful to Him for as long as you live in the land you're going to take possession of when you cross the Jordan River.

Eternal One (to Moses): [14]It's almost time for you to die. Call Joshua and stand with him by the congregation tent, where I'll formally install him and give him his instructions.

So Moses and Joshua went and waited at the congregation tent. [15]The Eternal came and met them at the door of the tent, appearing in the form of a cloud pillar.

Eternal One (to Moses): [16]You're about to leave this world to lie down with your ancestors in death. After you're gone, these people are going to be unfaithful to Me. They're going to worship foreign gods, the gods of the land they're going into. They're going to abandon Me and break the covenant I made with them. [17]When they do, I'll be furious with them and abandon them. I won't look on them when they pray. I won't protect them, and they'll be eaten alive. They'll be in so much trouble and distress then that they'll say, "We must be in all this trouble because our God isn't with us anymore!" [18]And they'll be right. In those days, I won't look at them when they pray because they'll have done such an evil thing by turning to other gods. [19]So I want you to write down this song and teach it to the children of Israel. Teach them to sing it, so it can be a witness for Me against them. [20-21]I know what they're already inclined to do before I've even brought them into the land I promised them. I know that when I've brought them into the land I promised to give to their ancestors, a land flowing with milk and honey, when they have had more than enough to eat and they've grown fat, they'll turn to other gods and worship them. They'll reject Me and break My covenant. Then, when they're in so much trouble and distress, this song will testify against them since their descendants will still be singing it.

22So Moses wrote down this song that day, and he taught it to the children of Israel.

► The Lord commissions Moses to write a song that will serve as an enduring witness of His covenant with the people of Israel. It is to be passed down from generation to generation; and even if it cannot last quite as long as the sky and the land, so long as it does last it will speak in a way that they cannot. Of course, since the song is recorded in the Scriptures the people of God will always cherish it as they do all of His Word!

23Then the Eternal formally installed Joshua (Nun's son) and gave him instructions.

Eternal One: Be strong and brave, because you're going to lead the children of Israel into the land I promised them. I am going with you!

24Then Moses wrote down each word of this law in a book. When he finished, 25he gave instructions to the Levites who carried the Eternal's covenant chest.

Moses: 26Take this book of the law, and put it next to the covenant chest of the Eternal your God, so it will be there as a witness against you. 27I know how stubborn and rebellious you are. Even now, while I'm still alive and here with you, you've been rebelling against the Eternal. I can only imagine what you'll do when I'm dead! 28Bring all the tribes' elders and representatives here so they can listen to everything I must say, and so I can call the heavens and the earth as witnesses against them. 29I know that after I'm dead you'll become corrupt and stop doing what I've commanded. You'll have all kinds of trouble there because you'll have done what the Eternal sees as wrong. You'll make Him furious by your deeds, crafting idols and worshiping them!

30Then Moses presented this whole song, while everyone in Israel was listening.

32 Moses: Listen, O sky, so I may speak!
Pay attention, O earth, to what I say!
2Let my teaching fall on you like raindrops;
let what I say collect like the dew,
Like rain sprinkling the grass,
like showers on the green plants.
3I will proclaim the name of the Eternal;
I will utter greatness to our God.
4He's the Rock, and His work is perfect;
everything He does is right.
He's the God who can be trusted, who never does wrong because He's righteous and upright.
5But a perverse and crooked generation has broken its word to Him.
They are not counted as His children—not with such deficiencies.
6Is this how you repay the Eternal,
you foolish, unwise people?
Isn't He your Father who produced you,
who made you and established you?
7Remember the days long ago;
consider the years of past generations.
Ask your father, and he'll explain it to you;
ask the elders, and they'll tell you:
8When God, the Most High in heaven gave all the nations their inherited territory, when He divided the descendants of Adam into nations,
When He established the boundaries of the peoples, as the number of the sons of God, 9Because the Eternal's territory is His people;
and Jacob is the territory of God's inheritance.
10The Eternal found Jacob out in the wilderness, out in an empty, windswept desert wasteland.
He put His arms around him and took care of him;
He protected him as the apple of His eye.
11Just as an eagle stirs up its nest, encouraging its young to fly,
and then hovers over them in case they need help,

And spreads its wings and catches them if they fall,
and carries them up high on its wings;
12So the Eternal guided Jacob through the wilderness
without the help of any foreign god.
13He set him on the heights of the land and fed him from the produce of the fields.
He even fed him honey from the rocks
and oil from flinty stones, 14Butter from his cows and milk from his flocks, fattened young lambs, rams raised in Bashan, and goats,
the finest fatty kernels of wheat, and wine from the lifeblood of grapes.
15But Jeshurun—my upright ones of Israel—got fat and kicked back—yes, you were fat and bloated and stuffed.
He abandoned the God who made him and disdained the Rock of his salvation.
16They made Him jealous by worshiping foreign gods;
they infuriated Him with their disgusting idols.
17They offered sacrifices to demons that are not God;
they worshiped gods they hadn't known,
New ones that had just appeared, gods their ancestors had never been acquainted with.
18You ignored the Rock who bore you and forgot the God who gave birth to you.

► Earlier Moses has described the Eternal One as Israel's "Father" (verse 6). Now he uses the image of a mother going into labor and giving birth to describe the Eternal One's tender affection and sacrificial love for the nation.

Moses: 19The Eternal saw this and rejected them because His sons and daughters had made Him so angry.

Eternal One: 20I won't look at them when they pray;
I'll just watch and see what happens to them
Because they're a perverse generation, children who are unfaithful.
21They've made Me jealous by worshiping something that isn't God, and they've angered Me with their idols!
So I'll make them jealous by favoring those who aren't a people;
I'll infuriate them with a godless nation.*
22My anger will start a fire that will burn down to the land of the dead.
It will consume the land and all its crops
and set the mountains ablaze, right down to their foundations.
23I'll pile disasters on them and use all My arrows against them.
24They'll be emaciated by famine and consumed by fevers and destroyed by bitter pestilence.
I'll attack them with the fangs of wild animals and the venom of snakes that crawl in the dust.
25While the sword is killing their children outside, they'll be huddling in terror inside their homes.
Everyone will be destroyed: young men and women, infants and old people with gray hair.
26I thought I would smash them in pieces until no one remembered they ever existed, 27But I was afraid of how their enemies would gloat, how their opponents would get the wrong impression and say,
"We conquered them by our own
power;
the Eternal didn't do all of this!"

Moses: 28They're a nation with no sense—
they have no understanding.
29If only they were wise and understood this and realized what was going to happen to them!
30How could one of their enemies pursue a thousand of them,
and two of their enemies make ten thousand of them run away,

* 32:21 Romans 10:19

Unless their Rock had abandoned them, unless the Eternal had handed them over?
31It's not because their rock is anything like our Rock—even our enemies admit this!
32*No,* it's because their vine is grafted from the vines of Sodom, from the terraces of Gomorrah:
It grows poisonous grapes in bitter clusters 33and makes wine that's snake venom and deadly cobra poison.

Eternal One: 34Haven't I been saving this judgment, sealing it away in My storehouse?
35Revenge is Mine. I will settle all scores!*
Soon they'll stumble because the day of disaster is almost here,
And their doom is coming quickly!

Moses: 36The Eternal will judge His people* and have mercy on His servants
When He sees they have no strength left and they're all gone, both slave and free.
37Then He'll say about Israel, "Now where are their gods,
the rocks where they took shelter, 38*The gods* who ate the fat of their sacrifices and drank the wine they offered?
Let them get up and help you, Israel!
Let them protect you!"

Eternal One: 39Now do you see that I am the One, and there is no other God besides Me?
I have power over life and death;
I wound, and I heal;
no one can resist My power!
40I'm lifting up My hand toward the sky to take an oath,
and I swear, "As I live forever, 41When I sharpen My flashing sword and use it to bring about justice, I'll give My enemies what they deserve and pay back those who hate Me!
42I'll get My arrows drunk with blood,
the blood of the dead and the prisoners,
And My sword will feast on flesh,
on the heads with their uncut hair of the enemy leaders!"

Moses: 43You nations, celebrate with His covenant people* because He's going to avenge the blood of His servants.
He'll give His enemies what they deserve and atone for His land and His people.

44This was the song that Moses presented, together with Joshua* (Nun's son), while all the people were listening. 45After Moses had said all of these words, everything recorded in this book, to everyone in Israel, 46he spoke to them.

Moses: Every word I've said to you today will be a witness against you, so set it in your heart, remember it well, and teach it to your children, so they'll be careful to obey every word of this law. 47You can't afford to ignore even one word; your very life depends on it! It's how you'll be able to live a long time in the land on the other side of the Jordan that will be your territory.

48The Eternal spoke to Moses on that same day.

God gives Moses a peek at the blessing he missed because of his disobedience.

Eternal One: 49Climb to the top of Mount Nebo, one of the Abarim mountains here in the land of Moab across the Jordan River from Jericho, and look at the land of Canaan, which I'm giving to the people of Israel as their property. 50Just as Aaron died when he climbed Mount Hor and joined his ancestors in death, you'll die on top of the mountain you climb and join your ancestors in death. 51This is because you and Aaron disobeyed Me in front of all the Israelites at Meribah-kadesh in the wilderness of Zin, when you struck the rock instead of commanding it to give water. You did not honor Me, your holy God, as if you could ignore My instructions if you wanted to, in front of all the Israelites!* 52So you can look at this land from a distance, but

* 32:35 Romans 12:19; Hebrews 10:30 * 32:36 Hebrews 10:30 * 32:43 Romans 15:10; other manuscripts add "and let all the heavenly messengers worship Him." * 32:44 Hebrew manuscripts read, "Hoshea." * 32:51 Numbers 27:14

you can't go into it, this land I'm giving to the Israelites.

33 Before he died, Moses, the man of God, blessed the people of Israel with this blessing.

► The Lord has "called Israel His own" in the way that cities and territories in the ancient world are named after those who have explored, settled, or conquered them. It is understood that the person whose name is attached to a place will have continuing interests there, such as preventing anyone else from taking the crops, oppressing the people, and so forth. The Lord's name is literally "over" the people of Israel, providing shelter and protection. Anyone who wants to harass them has to answer to Him, so His great reputation will keep them safe from marauders. If they are trusting and obedient, they will be protected from spiritual dangers and attacks by the power and reputation of the One who has called them by His own name.

Moses: 2The Eternal came from Mount Sinai:
He glowed like the dawn over Mount Seir;
He shone like the sun over Mount Paran;
He arose in the middle of His chosen ones, gathered in their tens of thousands.
The law was a flame in His right hand.*
3Truly He loves His people;
all Your chosen ones are in Your hand.
They gathered at Your feet and received Your words.
4Moses gave us a law to keep;
it will always belong to the people of Jacob.
5When all their leaders gathered and the Israelite tribes came together, the Eternal became king of Jeshurun—6Let Reuben live and not die, and let not his people be few.

7Moses said this about Judah:

Moses: Listen, Eternal, to the voice of Judah,
and bring him back to his people safely.
He defends himself with his own hands;
help him against his enemies!

8About Levi he said,

Moses: Your Thummim and Urim belong to your loyal servant,
the man you tested at Massah and had a dispute with at Meribah about the water.
9*When the Levites carry out the law,*
they don't give special treatment to their fathers or mothers
Or favor their relatives or recognize their children.
They obey Your word and keep Your covenant.
10They teach Jacob Your rules;
they teach Israel Your law.
They set incense before You and offer burnt sacrifices on Your altar.
11Bless Levi with strength, Eternal, and accept the service he offers You.
Crush the loins of those who hate him and attack him,
so they'll never attack them again!

12About Benjamin he said,

Moses: The Eternal's beloved rests safely next to Him, protected all through the day,
resting between His shoulders.

13About Joseph he said,

Moses: May his land be blessed by the Eternal with the best the sky has to offer—abundant rains— and with the dew and the waters that lie below the ground.
14*May it be blessed* with the best the sun can produce and the best crops of each month,

* 33:2 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

15 With the best that grows on the ancient mountains and the everlasting hills, 16 With the best the land has to offer when it's filled with good things,
And most of all may it be blessed with the favor of the One who appeared in the burning bush.
Let all these blessings rest on Joseph's head, on the head of this prince among his brothers.
17 He's majestic, like a firstborn bull;
he has powerful horns, as does a wild ox.
With them he will gore the nations,
driving them away to the ends of the earth.
This is the power of Ephraim's ten thousands, of Manasseh's thousands of troops.

18 About Zebulun and Issachar he said,

Moses: Rejoice, Zebulun, as you go out to sea,
and rejoice, Issachar, in your tents!
19 They call peoples to the mountain where they offer right sacrifices;
Because they feast on the abundance of the sea,
and they profit from the hidden treasures of the sand.

20 About Gad he said,

Moses: Blessed is the one who expands Gad's territory!
He lives there like a lioness,
tearing at the arm and the top of the head.
21 He chose the best for himself;
a commander's portion was hidden for him there, east of the Jordan.
He came at the head of the army to help the other tribes conquer their land.
He carried out the righteousness of what the Eternal said was to happen,
What was right, and carried out His decrees with the rest of Israel.

22 About Dan he said,

Moses: Dan is a lion's cub, leaping up from Bashan.

23 About Naphtali he said,

Moses: Naphtali, you're satisfied with favor and filled with the Eternal's blessing.
Take possession of the Sea of Galilee and the land on its western and southern shores.

24 About Asher he said,

Moses: Asher is the most blessed of Israel's sons;
may he be the favorite of his brothers!
May the olive trees in his land produce so abundantly that he'll be wading in olive oil!
25 May the bolts of your gates be iron and bronze, and may you have the strength you need for every day.

In Hebrew this expression, "There is no god like God," makes an extremely strong statement. God is one of a kind.

26 There is no god like the God of Jeshurun—
the God of the upright ones of Israel—
Who comes across the sky to rescue you, riding on the clouds in His majesty.
27 The Eternal God is your shelter;
He holds you up in His everlasting arms.
He chased away your enemies ahead of you, shouting to you, "Destroy them!"
28 Now Israel lives in safety;
Jacob's spring is isolated
In a land of grain and new wine where dew falls from the sky.
29 How happy you are, Israel! Who is like you?
You're the people the Eternal has saved.
He's the shield that protects you and the sword that brings you pride.
Your enemies will cringe and surrender before you,
and you'll stamp out their high places of worship into the ground.

34 Moses climbed up from the plains of Moab to the top of Mount Nebo, to the peak at Mount Pisgah on the east side of the Jordan River across from Jericho. The Eternal showed him the whole land that would be Israel's territory: Gilead as far as Dan, 2all of Naphtali, the territory of Ephraim and Manasseh, all of Judah's territory to the Mediterranean Sea in the west, 3the southern desert,* and the basin in the valley of Jericho, the "city of palms," as far as Zoar.

Eternal One (to Moses): 4This is the land I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob when I told them, "I'll give it to your descendants." I've let you see it, even though you won't be going into it.

God Himself buried Moses, with no grave and no monument that the Israelites could use to create another idol for worship.

5So Moses, the Eternal's servant, died there in the land of Moab, just as the Eternal had said. 6He buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, opposite Beth-peor, but to this day no one knows where his grave is. 7Moses was 120 years old when he died, but his eyesight hadn't failed and his strength hadn't diminished. 8The children of Israel stayed in the plains of Moab and mourned for Moses for 30 days, until the grieving period was over.

9Now Joshua (Nun's son) was filled with a spirit of wisdom because Moses had laid his hands on this successor. The children of Israel obeyed Joshua, and they did what the Eternal had commanded Moses. 10Since then there's never been another prophet in Israel like Moses. The Eternal knew him face-to-face! 11No one has ever done anything like the amazing things the Eternal sent Moses to do in the land of Egypt to demonstrate His reality and power to Pharaoh and his servants and his whole country. 12And no one has shown such great power or done such terrifying things as everyone in Israel saw Moses do.

JOSHUA

Entering the promised land

By Joshua, who spied out the land

Some of the most important questions people ask themselves center on identity. Where did I come from? How did I get here? Who are my parents, grandparents, and ancestors? What do these things say about me?

For the Israelites these are important questions too; and some of their formative documents tell of how God chooses them, makes promises to them, and fulfills those promises. These accounts are still important for contemporary believers, even though we live centuries later in very different cultures. While we may understand God's promises and fulfillment in a different way today, we are encouraged to believe in God's faithfulness.

The Book of Joshua fits into the story of God's people in several important ways. It tells the final part of the story of the exodus from Egypt, which begins when Moses leads the people of Israel out of slavery and back to the land that God has promised the descendants of Abraham. It also tells the story of the conquest of the land when the people of Israel claim the land as their own. It then describes in (sometimes meticulous) detail how the land is apportioned to each tribe of Israel and how they begin to make their homes in it. Finally the book records the final message Joshua leaves his people, a message full of prophecy and wisdom.

It is unclear who wrote the Book of Joshua. Ancient Jewish tradition suggests that Joshua, the successor to Moses as the leader of Israel, was the author of much of the book. Later traditions imagine that other figures might have been the primary author of Joshua, while some have more recently suggested that the book is the product of several editors compiling stories at several different times. Ancient ideas of authorship were a lot more fluid than those we have now; and whether the book is the product of one person or several, it communicates God's purpose to us. This book, regardless of who wrote it, is Joshua's story.

The Book of Joshua divides into three major sections: first, in chapters 1–12, the people crossing over into the land of Canaan and its conquest; second, in chapters 13–22, the division of the land among the different tribes of Israel, sanctuary cities, and provision for the priestly tribe of Levi; third, in chapters 23–24, Joshua's final discourse and his death.

1 Moses served the Eternal One faithfully until the end of his days. After his death, the Eternal singled out Joshua, the son of Nun, who had walked at the right hand of Moses during the wilderness wanderings.

Eternal One (to Joshua): 2Since My servant Moses is now dead, you and the Israelites must prepare to cross over the Jordan River to enter the land I have given you. 3I will give you every place you walk, wherever your feet touch, just as I promised Moses.* 4From the southern deserts to the northern mountains in Lebanon, from the great Euphrates River in the east—including all the land of the Hittites—to the great Mediterranean Sea in the west, all of it is yours. 5No one will be able to oppose you for as long as you live. I will be with you just as I was with Moses, and I will never fail or abandon you.

6So be strong and courageous, for you will lead this people as they acquire and then divide the land I promised to their ancestors. 7Always be strong and courageous, and always live by all of the law I gave to my servant Moses, never turning from it—even ever so slightly—so that you may succeed wherever you go. 8Let the words from the book of the law be always on your lips. Meditate on them day and night so that you may be careful to live by all that is written in it. If you do, as you make your way through this world, you will prosper and always find success.

9This is My command: be strong and courageous. Never be afraid or discouraged because I am your God, the Eternal One, and I will remain with you wherever you go.

► Joshua is following in the footsteps of the famous prophet, Moses, who led the people of Israel out of Egypt. It is a journey that will lead them where God wants them—in the lands He has long ago promised to the descendants of the patriarch Abraham. Although mighty people occupy the lands, God tells the Israelites that the land will be theirs, if they only believe. Joshua is reminded often enough of the wanderings in the desert following Moses. It's an intimidating thing to follow a legend, but the charge God gives Joshua also gives him what he needs to succeed: Be strong and courageous, and keep the words of God always in front of you. If you do those things, then you can't go wrong. And if you do those things, God says He will be with you.

10*When* Joshua had heard God's commands, he gathered the leaders of the people of Israel and gave them their instructions.

Joshua (to all the leaders): 11Go through the camp and tell your people, "Gather whatever you need because in three days you will pass over the Jordan into the land the Eternal One, your God, has given you to possess. Soon it will be ours."

12Then Joshua spoke to the leaders of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh.

Joshua: 13Remember what Moses, the servant of the Eternal, told you: "The Eternal One, your God, is making a place for you to settle and will give you this land as your own."

14Your wives, your children, and your livestock will stay on this side of the Jordan in this land that Moses awarded you. But all of you who can fight must lead your brothers in battle formation over the Jordan and help them 15until the Eternal gives them rest from their enemies, as He has given rest to you. Fight with them until they, too, occupy the land your God, the Eternal One, is setting aside for them. Then you may cross the Jordan again and return to this land that Moses, His servant, has given you east of the Jordan and live here.

Leaders (agreeing): 16We will do all you have commanded, and we will go wherever you send us. 17We will follow your orders just as we obeyed Moses in all he told us. May the Eternal One, your God, be with you as He was with Moses. 18Anybody who rebels against or disobeys your words—all you command—will be put to death. Always be strong and courageous!

► Joshua has the promise of God that the Israelites will succeed, and the people have taken to his leadership with enthusiasm. They have begun well, and their faith will keep them strong. But in the conquest story they cannot expect God to do everything. A prayer from the Christian and Jewish traditions reminds us: Pray as if everything depends upon God; work as if everything depends upon us. Throughout the story of God's people, the partnership between human beings' faith and God's power leads to God's purposes being fulfilled in human lives.

2 Then Joshua, the son of Nun, secretly sent two spies from Shittim to the western side of the Jordan.

Joshua: Go in, and see what you can find out about the people in that area. Pay special attention to the city of Jericho.

The men crossed the river, and when they entered Jericho, they stayed at the home of a prostitute named Rahab.

2-3*Somehow* word reached the king of Jericho that Israelite spies had slipped into the area and might be visiting Rahab. That night the king sent soldiers to Rahab's house with a message.

Messengers: The king commands you to turn over the Israelite men who are staying with you because they are here to spy on all the land and its defenses.

4But Rahab had already hidden the two spies before she received the king's messengers.

Rahab: It's true that two men have been to see me. But I didn't take the time to ask them where they came from. 5*All I know is that* when it was getting dark outside and the gate was about to close, they got up and left. I don't know where they went from here. If you hurry, you might still catch up to them.

6*She was lying,* because the two men lay where she had hidden them beneath the stalks of flax laid out on her roof.

7The soldiers ordered the gate opened long enough for them to pass through; then the gate was closed. They took the road that went straight toward the narrowest parts of the Jordan, which would be the easiest place for the spies to cross.

8But the two spies were still on Rahab's roof. She came up and found them awake.

Rahab: 9I know the Eternal has given your people this land. Your coming has paralyzed us all with fear. 10We have heard how the Eternal held back the Red Sea so you could escape from Egypt on dry land and how you completely destroyed the Amorite kings, Sihon and Og—and their kingdoms—on the far side of the Jordan. 11As soon as this news reached us, our hearts melted like wax and none of us had an ounce of courage left. The Eternal One, your God, is truly God of the heavens above and the earth below.

12Because I know all these things, this is my request: Since I have treated you kindly and have protected you, please promise me by the Eternal that you will do the same for my family. Give me some sign of good faith 13that when you destroy this city you will spare my father and mother, my brothers and sisters, and their families from death.

Spies: 14*You had the power to turn us in, but you saved us.* Now we will do the same for you. If you will promise not to tell anyone what we were doing here, then you have our word: we will treat you with kindness and faithfulness when the Eternal One gives us the land.

15Since the rear wall of her house was actually part of the great city wall, she helped the men escape by simply lowering a rope for them from her window. 16*Before they climbed down,* she advised them to go into the mountains.

Rahab: That way you won't be where the soldiers expect you to be. If you'll hide there for three days, the pursuers should have returned here by then and you can go back safely.

Spies: 17We will keep the oath we have sworn to you, but 18only if you will follow these instructions: Gather all of your family here in this house, and tie this scarlet cord in the window where you let us down. 19If anyone goes out of the house and into the streets, then we can't be responsible for what happens to them. They will be killed, and their blood will be on their hands, not on ours. We will be responsible if anything should happen to anyone you gather in here. 20But remember—all of this depends on you keeping your word. If you tell anyone our business, you will free us from our oath.

Rahab: 21Agreed.

The men climbed down and escaped into the night, and she tied the scarlet cord in the window.

► The story of Rahab reminds us that throughout the history of Israel, unexpected people have stepped to the foreground to be used by God. Rahab is a woman in a male-centered world; and she is a prostitute, the kind of person we typically vilify. But if she doesn't rescue these men—and help them escape with the information they have gained—this first campaign in the land of Canaan will fail, and the larger outcome may be complicated—or worse. Her reward is life for herself and those she loves, which tells us that even in a war story like this one, God can be merciful.

22The spies climbed into the mountains, just as Rahab had advised them, and they stayed for three days. During that time Jericho's soldiers combed the countryside and watched the road heading east looking for them. Finally they went back to the city. 23So the two spies came down from their hiding place, crossed over the Jordan, and returned to Joshua (son of Nun), where they told him what had happened.

Spies: 24There is no doubt that the Eternal One has delivered all the land and its citizens into our hands. Everyone there is scared to death about our coming.

3 Early the next morning, with Joshua leading them, the Israelites broke camp, left Shittim, and traveled to the eastern bank of the Jordan to set up camp again before crossing the river. 2Three days later, the leaders went through the camp 3-4and gave the Israelites their marching orders.

They camped where Balaam had come to curse Israel and where the men of Israel had gone after the Moabite prostitutes (Numbers 22–25).

Leaders: Tomorrow, you will know it is time to go when you see the Levite priests carrying the covenant chest of the Eternal One, your God. Follow the chest so that you will know where you're supposed to go because you have not been this way before. But stay about half a mile away from it. Don't come any nearer than that as you march.

Joshua *(to the people): 5Do all the ritual purifications and prepare yourselves because tomorrow the Eternal will show you wonders.

6Joshua told the priests from the tribe of Levi to pick up the covenant chest and to walk in front of the people, so the priests lifted the chest and carried it to the front of the procession.

Eternal One *(to Joshua): 7Today I will do wonders that will begin to show the Israelites that you have My special favor, that I am with you just as I was with Moses before you. 8At your command, the priests will carry the covenant chest into the edge of the Jordan water and they are to stand there in the Jordan, waiting.

9So Joshua called the Israelites together.

Joshua: Come closer, and hear what your God, the Eternal, has to say: 10*Today* you will see a sign that the one, true living God is present among you, the God who will without doubt drive out all this land's inhabitants: Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites, and Jebusites. 11The covenant chest of the Lord of all the earth will pass in front of you into the Jordan River. 12Now select twelve men, one from each tribe of Israel. 13When the priests who bear the covenant chest of the Eternal, who is Lord over all the earth, step into the river, then you will see the waters of the Jordan stop as if behind a wall.

14So the people set out from their tents to cross the Jordan, with the priests carrying the covenant chest before them. 15During harvest time the Jordan is swollen, running over its banks; but when the priests stepped into the river's edge, 16-17the waters stopped, piling upstream at the city of Adam, near Zarethan, while the water flowing downstream toward the sea of the Arabah, the Dead Sea, ran out. Then the Israelites crossed the Jordan opposite the city of Jericho, walking on dry land
just as Moses had led their ancestors from Egypt. While the Israelites crossed on the dry riverbed, the priests who carried the covenant chest stood firmly in the middle of the Jordan until the last Israelite had crossed over.

4 When the last one had crossed the Jordan, the Eternal One spoke to Joshua.

Eternal One: 2Summon the twelve men you chose from the people, one representing each tribe, 3and tell them to take twelve stones from the middle of the Jordan riverbed where the priests stand with the covenant chest. Tell them to carry these stones this day, and when the people make camp tonight, to lay them down.

4Joshua did just as He instructed and summoned the twelve men, who had been chosen from the Israelites to represent the twelve tribes, 5to give them instructions.

Joshua: Go back into the Jordan riverbed to the covenant chest of the Eternal your God, and each carry a stone upon your shoulder, (twelve stones for the twelve tribes of the Israelites) 6so that we may build a memorial of this day. Someday when your children ask you, "Why are these stones piled up here?" 7you will tell them how the waters of the Jordan parted as the covenant chest of the Eternal One crossed the river, and these stones will fix that memory for the Israelites forever.

► Memory is important in the Book of Joshua and in the stories that follow. When the people of Israel remember God's promises—and His goodness—good things happen. But when they forget, they turn to other things for meaning; they put their trust in other gods—money, power, position, and possessions. It's been a problem for the people of God up to the present day, so these attempts to remember can remind us about God's great works. It has always been true that when God's people take their eyes off Him, they forget the lessons of the past. We honor God through our worship, and we are reminded of significant lessons learned when we praise Him.

8The Israelites did as the Eternal commanded through Joshua. They carried twelve stones from the riverbed that day, one for each Israelite tribe, and laid them down that night when they made their camp. 9Joshua also set up twelve stones in the middle of the Jordan where the priests who had carried the covenant chest stood,
and the stones remain there to this day.

10The priests who carried the chest stood in the Jordan until all the people had hurried across, until all had been accomplished that the Eternal and Moses had commanded Joshua to tell the people.

11Only then, when all of the people had passed, did the priests bearing the chest of the Eternal cross over into the presence of the people.

12-13*On the western side of the Jordan* stood about 40,000 men ready for battle, including fighters from the people of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh who had crossed onto the plains of Jericho in the presence of the Eternal, as they had been commanded by Moses. 14That day the Eternal exalted Joshua in the eyes of the people, and they looked up to him (as they had looked up to Moses before him) for the rest of his life.

15Then the Eternal One told Joshua,

Eternal One: 16Command the priests who are carrying the covenant chest to come out of the Jordan.

17Joshua gave the order.

18*As the people watched,* the priests carried the chest of the Eternal up out of the Jordan; and as soon as they had stepped out of the riverbed, the river was filled and overflowing, just as it had been before.

19The Israelites crossed the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month and camped at Gilgal on the eastern edge of Jericho. 20This was where Joshua set up the twelve stones from the Jordan riverbed. 21He summoned the people of Israel.

Joshua: Someday your children will ask you, "What do these stones mean?" 22And you will tell them, "Israel crossed the Jordan here on dry ground." 23For the Eternal One, your God, dried up the waters of the Jordan until you crossed over (just as He held back the Red Sea for our parents until they crossed) 24so that everyone on earth would know how powerful the Eternal is and so that you would reverence your God, the Eternal, forever.

5 When the kings of the Amorites, who lived in the hills west of the Jordan, and the kings of the Canaanite cities on the plain by the sea heard how the Eternal had dried up the waters of the Jordan so the Israelites could cross, they were alarmed, and their courage failed at the thought of the advancing Israelites.

2At that time, the Eternal One commanded Joshua to make flint knives and reinstate the rite of circumcision for male Israelites. 3So Joshua made flint knives as he was told to do, and the Israelite males were circumcised at Gibeath-haaraloth.*
4-5This is because all of the male Israelites who had fled from Egypt and all their soldiers who had fought so bravely had been circumcised, but they had died on the long journey. And those who had been born during the journey had not yet been circumcised.

► Circumcision—the ritual removal of a male's foreskin, usually in infancy—is one of the ways God tells His people to distinguish themselves from those around them. This rite is carried out at this point in the story to reconfirm the Israelites' identity as God's people and to prepare them for the greatest celebration that marks them as God's people—the Passover—which commemorates God bringing them safely out of slavery in Egypt.

6The Israelites had wandered in the wilderness for 40 years, and because they would not listen to the voice of the Eternal, God promised that none of the original community would live to enter the land He promised to their ancestors, a land flowing with milk and honey. 7It was their children and grandchildren whom
He raised up to receive that land instead.
Joshua circumcised those sons and grandsons now because it had not been done previously. 8When they all had been circumcised, they remained in their camp until their wounds were healed.

9*It was here, where they had piled up the stones, that* the Eternal spoke to Joshua.

Eternal One: On this day I have rolled away from you the shame of Egypt.

And the place is called Gilgal, *which means
"circle of stones,"* even today.

10While the Israelites were encamped at Gilgal on the desert plain east of Jericho, they celebrated their first Passover on the evening of the 14th of the month in the land the Lord had promised them; 11and the next day they ate some produce of the land, roasted grain, and flatbread. 12*Beginning after that Passover,* the Israelites were no longer fed with manna, as they were in the desert. From the day they ate from the new land, the manna ceased. From then on they ate only the crops of the land of Canaan.

13Now when Joshua was traveling near the city of Jericho, he saw a man standing in front of him with a sword drawn and ready.

Joshua *(stepping toward him): Are you one of us, or are you one of our enemies?

The Man: 14Neither; I am here now as commander of the Eternal's army.

Joshua *(falling to the ground): What is your command for your servant, my lord?

The Man: 15Take off your sandals, for you are on holy ground.

So Joshua did.

6 The citizens of Jericho had barricaded themselves behind its high walls because of the Israelite forces.
No one could get in or out.

* 5:3 Literally, hill of foreskins

Eternal One (to Joshua): 2I have given Jericho, its king, and all its soldiers into your hands. 3Every day for the next six days, you will march once around the city walls with all your fighting force.
4Seven priests will go in front of the covenant chest, each carrying a trumpet made from a ram's horn. On the seventh day, you will march around the city walls seven times, and the priests will blow their trumpets. 5When they play a long final blast, then all the people will give a mighty shout. The city walls will collapse in front of you, and all the Israelites will charge in and take the city.

6So Joshua, the son of Nun, summoned the priests and instructed them.

Joshua: Take up the chest and have seven priests, each carrying a ram's horn trumpet, march in front of the covenant chest of the Eternal.

7Then he gave orders to the people.

Joshua: March around the city with the fighting men marching ahead of the chest of the Eternal.

8-9So they all proceeded as Joshua had commanded them. The fighting men led the way; the seven priests marched after them, blowing their horns continually in front of the covenant chest of the Eternal, and the rear guard followed behind.

10Joshua gave the Israelites very strict instructions.

Joshua: Don't yell or shout. Don't let your voice be heard until the day I tell you.
And then I want you to shout with all your might.

11So they circled the city once, carrying the covenant chest of the Eternal, and that night they returned to their camp. 12The next morning, Joshua rose early, the priests carried the chest of the Eternal, 13-14and they all marched around the city in exactly the same order as they had the day before: the armed men, seven trumpeting priests, the chest of the Eternal, and the rear guard, all making one complete circuit around the city with its great walls. That night they returned to their camp, and the next four days proceeded just like the first two.

15But on the seventh day, they rose with the sun and the procession marched around the city walls seven times; that was the only day they made seven circuits around the city walls. 16After the seventh and final circuit, when the priests had raised a mighty noise on their trumpets, Joshua turned to the people.

Joshua: Shout! Shout! For the Eternal
One has given you the city! 17The city and all who are in it will be destroyed completely as an offering to Him, except for the prostitute Rahab and those who are with her in her house. Her life will be spared as a reward for sheltering our two spies.
18Be sure to stay away from these things that He has devoted to complete destruction so that you won't be tempted to pick something up and carry it away. Anyone who disobeys God in this matter will bring destruction on all of us.
19Any silver or gold, any bronze or iron vessels should not be burned; instead, they should be set aside for the Eternal's treasury.

20Then the people shouted, and the trumpets blasted. The noise of the voices and trumpets rose higher and higher, and the thick walls of Jericho collapsed, just as God had promised. When the wall fell before them, they rushed straight ahead and took the city, 21killing everyone—all the men and women and children, all the cattle and livestock—with their swords.

Joshua (to the two spies): 22Go back to the house of the prostitute, and bring her out with all of those who have hidden there so that you can keep your word.

23So they set off through the destruction, found Rahab's house, and brought her and all she had—father and mother, brothers and sisters, and all her relatives—out of the fallen city to a place outside the camp of Israel.

24So Jericho was destroyed completely, burned to the ground except for the precious metals and iron and bronze vessels that were put into the treasury of the Eternal's house. 25But Joshua spared the life of Rahab the prostitute, all her family, and all she had because she was faithful to the spies he had sent, and she lived among the Israelites from that day on.

26*When the city lay in smoke and ashes,* Joshua pronounced a curse.

Joshua: May the Eternal curse anyone who ever rebuilds this city, this Jericho! If he lays new foundations, it will be over the grave of his firstborn; if he raises new gates, it will be to contain the corpse of his youngest!

27The Eternal One had helped Joshua, and his fame spread throughout the land.

► The destruction of the city—and the curse Joshua pronounces—are pretty harsh things. Today, of course, there are rules of war, and the international community would punish this kind of military action. But that wasn't the situation in Canaan. The Israelites are invaders in the land, badly outnumbered, and their victory and decisive actions send a message to all the other cities and towns: there's something different—and very dangerous—about these invaders. Moreover, it is essential to purify the land of polytheistic worship before Israel settles in the land with their worship of the Lord.

7 But the Israelites acted unfaithfully in one thing: they did not allow everything from Jericho to be destroyed, as God had ordered. Achan (the son of Carmi, grandson of Zabdi, and great-grandson of Zerah of the tribe of Judah) had carried some things away from Jericho, so the Eternal was angry at the Israelites.

2After Jericho fell, Joshua sent some men to Ai, a town near Beth-aven and east of Bethel, to spy out that region of the land. 3They returned to Joshua with a report.

Spies: You don't need to send all the people since there are so few defenders in Ai. An army of 2,000 to 3,000 men should be plenty.

4So Joshua sent about 3,000 soldiers to Ai; but they were easily repulsed by the defenders, 5who killed 36 of them and pursued them from the gate even to the descent toward Shebarim. When the Israelites heard their soldiers had been defeated, their courage melted away like water. 6Then Joshua and the elders of Israel tore their robes and fell to the dirt in front of the covenant chest of the Eternal, putting dust on their heads and remaining there until evening.

Joshua: 7Why, Eternal One, our Lord? Why have you brought us across the Jordan if only to let the Amorites destroy us? It would have been better for us to settle on the other side of the Jordan! 8Lord, how am I going to explain that our fighting men have had to run for their lives? 9The people of Canaan, all the inhabitants of this land, will hear that we have been defeated. They'll surround us and destroy us as a people forever, and then how will the world remember Your great name?

Eternal One: 10Get up. What are you doing in the dirt? 11*There's a simple explanation:* Israel has sinned. They have lied and have violated the covenant I gave them by stealing some of the property that should have been destroyed along with the rest of Jericho and by hiding it among their own belongings.

12That is why the Israelites can no longer resist their enemies. They run from their foes because they are under a curse and doomed to destruction. I will not be with you or fight for you unless these things devoted to destruction are truly destroyed. 13Get up, and tell the people to purify themselves for tomorrow. Tell them that the Eternal One, the God of Israel says, "There are items among you that were supposed to be destroyed as I commanded. You will not be able to resist your enemies unless you remove the banned items from among you."

14Then in the morning, the people will pass before you tribe by tribe, and by drawing lots you will know which tribe I pick. Then that tribe will come clan by clan, and the chosen clan will come family by family, until at last they come before you one by one and I show you who is guilty. 15With the person selected by lot, you will burn him and all his belongings, including his family and his livestock, with fire as a punishment for breaking the covenant with the Eternal and for bringing dishonor upon Israel.

► There's always an explanation in the Book of Joshua when the people of Israel are defeated in their battles for the promised land, and that explanation is not that God has been unfaithful. It's the other way around: God tells the people of Israel to do something, and they don't. God allows their defeats so that they can see the error of their ways. He corrects His people and punishes them so that they may learn to do better.

16So Joshua arose early, and the Israelites passed before him, tribe by tribe. First the tribe of Judah was chosen by lot. 17From the clans of Judah, the clan of the Zerahites was chosen, and from that clan, the family of Zabdi. 18From that family, the Lord indicated that Achan (the son of Carmi, grandson of Zabdi, and great-grandson of Zerah from the tribe of Judah) had taken the banned items.

Joshua *(to Achan): 19My son, I urge you now to show honor and thanksgiving to the Eternal One, the God of Israel, and confess. Tell me what you have done, and tell the truth.

Achan: 20It's true. I am the one who broke the commandment of the Eternal God of Israel. 21Among the spoils of the city, I found a beautiful Babylonian robe, 5 pounds of silver, and 20 ounces of gold. When I saw them, I wanted them and I took them. They are buried now in the ground inside my tent with the silver at the very bottom of the hole.

22Joshua sent men to Achan's tent, and there they found the valuables with the silver at the bottom just as he had described. 23They carried them back from the tent to Joshua, displayed them in front of the Israelites, and offered them to the Eternal. 24Then Joshua and all Israel led Achan, the son of Zerah, with the robe and silver and gold he had taken, with all his sons and daughters, with all his cattle and livestock, and with his tent and everything he possessed, to the valley of Achor.

Joshua: 25Why did you bring such trouble upon us? Well, now the Eternal is bringing trouble on you.

The people stoned Achan and his family and burned them and all their belongings. 26Afterward they erected a pile of stones over Achan that still stands today. When all of this was done, the Eternal put away His anger; so to this day that place is called the valley of Achor, which means "trouble."

8 Eternal One *(to Joshua): Don't be afraid or discouraged. Take all of your fighters up to Ai. Watch; I will hand over the king of Ai, his people, his city, and his land to you. 2You will do to Ai exactly as you did to Jericho and its king, except you may keep only the cattle and spoil for yourselves. Set an ambush behind the city.

3So Joshua and all his fighting force got ready to depart for Ai, and he chose 30,000 of them and sent them out by night 4with instructions.

Joshua: I want you all to lie in wait behind the city in ambush. Stay close, and stay alert. 5I will bring the others up to the front of the city; and when they come out to fight us, we will run from them. 6Their forces will all come out of the city to chase us because they will think everything is happening the way it did the first time. But when we have lured them all out and away from the city, 7I want you to move in and take it, for the Eternal One, your God will give it to us. 8When you have taken the city, burn it. This is the word of the Eternal and my command.

9The ambush force made its way into the hills and took a position between Bethel and Ai, while Joshua and the remaining fighters spent the night in the camp. 10In the morning, Joshua rose early and roused the people, and he and the elders went on to Ai in front of the people. 11All the fighting men with him went up and moved in close to the city and set up camp in front and north of Ai, with a ravine between the camp and Ai. 12The other force, numbering about 5,000, remained hidden west of the city between Bethel and Ai. 13With his forces situated with men to the north and west of the city, Joshua camped in the valley that night.

14When the king of Ai arose the next morning and saw the Israelites lined up against him, he gathered his forces on the plain to bring the battle to Israel, not knowing that an ambush squad was hidden behind the city. 15*When the battle was* joined, Joshua and the Israelites pretended they were defeated and once again were fleeing toward the wilderness. 16All of the men of Ai came out to pursue them and were drawn farther and farther away from the city. 17At last, not one man was left in Ai or Bethel, since all had gone out to pursue Israel, leaving the city open and defenseless.

Eternal One *(to Joshua): 18Raise your javelin toward Ai, for now I will give it into your hands.

Joshua raised his javelin toward the city; 19and as he did so, the forces he had hidden in ambush rushed into the city, seizing it and setting it on fire.

20-21The men of Ai looked back and saw the smoke rising from their city into the sky; and when Joshua saw that his ambush had been successful, he turned the fleeing Israelites around to crush the disheartened men of Ai. There was nowhere for the men of the city to retreat. Before them, the Israelites turned to attack; 22behind them, the ambush force came out against them from the burning city. So they were surrounded on all sides by their attackers, who killed all of them, 23except for Ai's king, who was captured alive and carried to Joshua.

24When the last of Ai's men in the field and wilderness had been killed by the sword, the Israelites returned to Ai and killed everyone inside the city. 25Twelve thousand fell that day—men and women, all of the people of Ai, 26for Joshua did not lower his javelin until the destruction was complete. 27The people of Israel then took the livestock and the goods of the city for themselves, as the Eternal One had instructed Joshua to do. 28So Joshua burned Ai and made it a city of ruins, as it is to this day, 29and he executed the king of Ai by hanging. At sunset Joshua had them take down his body for burial, as the law commands, put it where once the city gate had stood, and heap over his body a grave of stones that still stands to this day.

30Then Joshua built an altar to the Eternal God of Israel on Mount Ebal. 31*He had it built* just as Moses, the Lord's servant, had commanded the Israelites and is recorded in the book of the law,* an altar of stones that had not been cut with iron tools. They offered sacrifices to the Eternal there—burnt offerings and peace offerings—32and with the Israelites gathered, Joshua had the law of Moses engraved on the stones. 33Israel, the elders, the officers, and the judges gathered around the covenant chest of the Eternal, which was carried by the Levite priests, a gathering Moses had commanded, including Israelites and sojourners. They lined the valley, half in front of Mount Ebal and half in front of Mount Gerizim, as Moses, servant of the Eternal One, had commanded before he died, so that the people could be blessed. 34-35Joshua read out all the words of the law, blessings and curses alike. Every word written, every word that Moses had commanded, Joshua read to the men, women, and children of Israel, and to the sojourners residing among them.

► It's important to remember who you are and what you're fighting for. By gathering everyone and reading the law of Moses to them, Joshua unites the people of Israel in their shared past, present, and future and orients them toward God in their new land.

9 Now when the kings of the land who were beyond the Jordan in the highlands and along the coast of the Mediterranean—the Hittites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites—heard what had happened, 2they unified to oppose Joshua and Israel.

3But the people of Gibeon, who were Hivites, had a different idea when they heard what Joshua had done to Jericho and to Ai. 4*Knowing that Joshua might turn his attention to them next,* they decided to use their wits, not their military might. They formed a delegation to serve as envoys and gathered the most worn-out sacks for their donkeys and worn-out, patched-up wineskins they could find. 5They took some ragged sandals and patched them. They dressed in threadbare clothes—all so it would look as though they had come from far away. Even the food they carried was dry and moldy, as though it had been carried a long distance.

6These envoys went to Gilgal to meet with Joshua and the men of Israel.

* 8:31 Exodus 20:25

Gibeonite Envoys (to Joshua and the men of Israel): We have traveled from a far country and beg you to make a treaty of peace with us.

Israelites: 7How can we make a treaty with you? How do we know you aren't from around here?

► The words from the Lord in Deuteronomy are very clear: Do not make a covenant or show favor with anyone in the land. This instruction, of course, is broken many times by Israel (Deuteronomy 7:2).

Gibeonite Envoys (to Joshua): 8We are your servants.

Joshua: Who are you? Where do you come from?

Gibeonite Envoys: 9Your servants have made the journey from a distant country because even there the name of the Eternal One your God is in the air. We have heard of what He did for you in Egypt 10and what He did to the two kings of the Amorites east of the Jordan (King Sihon of Heshbon and King Og of Bashan who lived in Ashtaroth). 11So our elders gathered us together and directed us to take provisions for a long journey so we could tell you we are your servants. Please, we beg you, make a treaty with us.

12Look. Here is all that remains of our bread. It was fresh, warm from the oven, when we set out, but now it is nothing but mold and crumbs. 13And these patched-up wineskins were new and full when we left home. And our clothes, our sandals are worn—you can see that we have traveled a very long way.

14The leaders did not consult the Eternal. They broke bread with the messengers, 15and Joshua offered them a treaty of peace, with the leaders of Israel swearing an oath to bind it.

16Three days after they had sworn peace with these deceptive messengers, they discovered the visitors were Gibeonites from the land of Canaan, their neighbors, who, in fact, were living in part of the land God had promised the Israelites. 17So the Israelites went to their cities: Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath-jearim on the third day, 18but they did not attack them. Even though they had been tricked into making a treaty, an oath made in the name of the Eternal was sacred. The people of Israel grumbled and complained against their leaders, 19but they replied to the entire congregation.

Leaders: Look, we have sworn an oath in the name of the Eternal God of Israel, and we must not touch them. 20If we attack them now and break our word, God's anger will fall on us. Let them live and serve us.

21So the leaders kept their promise to the Gibeonites who became servants of the entire congregation, cutting their wood and drawing their water.

22Joshua summoned the Gibeonite leaders.

Joshua (to the Gibeonite leaders): Why did you lie to us? Why did you claim to be from far away when really you lived right here among us? 23Your lie comes with a curse. You will live, but you will always be our slaves, carrying our water and chopping wood for the sanctuary of my True God from now on.

Gibeonite Leaders (to Joshua): 24We knew for a fact that the Eternal One, your True God, had told His servant Moses that He would give you all of this land and that you would destroy all of the people in it. We were so afraid of you that this seemed the best thing to do. 25But now we are in your hands. Do to us what seems fair and just to you, and we will accept it.

26So Joshua spared the Gibeonites from the people of Israel and certain death 27but made them servants of the people of Israel, chopping their wood and carrying their water, serving the Eternal's sanctuary from that time on, in whatever place he chose as he directed them.

10 When Adoni-zedek, the king of Jerusalem, heard that Joshua had totally destroyed the kings and cities of Jericho and Ai, and when he discovered that the Israelites had made a treaty with the people of Gibeon and were living alongside Israel, 2he was greatly alarmed. The city of Gibeon was large, almost like a royal city, much larger than Ai and with many trained warriors. 3-5So Adoni-zedek, king of Jerusalem, dispatched messages to King Hoham of Hebron, to King Piram of Jarmuth, to King Japhia of Lachish, and to King Debir of Eglon.

Adoni-zedek (to the Amorite kings): Let us band together and destroy Gibeon, for they have become allies to these invaders, Joshua and the Israelites.

So these five kings of the Amorites gathered their forces and came down upon the city of Gibeon like a mighty wave. 6The Gibeonites, seeing the camps of these five armies, sent a message to Joshua in the Israelite camp at Gilgal.

Gibeonites (pleading with Joshua): Please don't abandon your servants. The five kings of the Amorites who live in the hill country have come down to attack us. Come quickly to help us.

7So Joshua honored the oath they had sworn, and he gathered up all of his fighting forces, all the mighty warriors, and went up from Gilgal toward Gibeon.

Eternal One (to Joshua): 8Don't be afraid of the Amorites. Like Jericho and Ai, I am delivering these armies into your hands. None of them will be able to stand against you.

9Joshua surprised them, having marched his men all night from Gilgal, 10and the Eternal caused fear and confusion among the Amorite armies at the sudden sight of Israel among them. He slaughtered the Amorites at Gibeon like cattle, chasing and killing them all the way up Beth-horon, and striking them down as far away as Azekah and Makkedah. 11As they fled for their lives down the far slope of Beth-horon, He hurled huge and deadly hailstones upon them from heaven, as far as Azekah. More Amorites were killed by God's hailstones than by the people of Israel on that day.

12On the day of the Eternal's great slaughter, Joshua consulted with the Eternal One; and then, in front of all the people of Israel, he commanded the sun and the moon.

Joshua: Sun, stand still over Gibeon, and Moon, remain over the valley of Aijalon.

Gibeon is in the east and Aijalon is in the west, so this is a favorable celestial omen for Israel and an unfavorable omen for the Amorite coalition.

13The sun stood still in the heavens; and the moon did likewise, so that the battle could continue until the Israelites had destroyed their enemies, just as it was written in the scroll of Jashar. The sun stalled in the sky for almost an entire day before it set. 14There has never been another day like this before or since, when the Eternal so answered a person's prayer, for the Eternal fought for the people of Israel.

► God proves that He is greater than any of the local gods—that He is above all other gods—by these cosmic miracles. While today, of course, we know that the earth orbits the sun, not vice versa, the story is clear enough: only an all-powerful God can halt the sun and moon in their courses.

15Joshua and the Israelites later returned to the camp at Gilgal, 16but the kings slipped away at the height of the battle and hid in a cave at Makkedah. 17Someone told Joshua they had been found hiding there.

Joshua: 18-19Seal up the mouth of the cave with large stones, and leave men to guard them while we pursue the other forces and attack them from behind. Don't let them reach their towns because the Eternal One, your True God, has given you victory over them.

20When Joshua and the Israelites had killed all those who did not escape back into the fortified cities, 21they all returned safely to camp with Joshua at Makkedah, and no one dared to speak a negative word about the Israelites.

Joshua: 22Open up the cave and bring the five kings before me.

23They brought forth the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon 24and led them in front of Joshua and the Israelites.

Joshua (to those who had led the warriors): Come here. Place your feet upon the necks of these kings.

So the leaders did.

Joshua: 25There's nothing to be afraid of here. Be strong and courageous because the Eternal will do to all our enemies what He has done to these kings.

26Joshua had the kings executed and hung on five trees; and they hung until sunset 27when Joshua commanded they be taken down, as God's law requires. Their bodies were thrown into the cave where they had hidden, and the cave was sealed as a tomb by piling stones across the mouth. Their remains lie there to this very day.

28Also on that day Joshua defeated Makkedah and its king, destroying it completely, killing everyone in it and the king, as he had done in Jericho.

29Next Joshua led his forces from Makkedah against Libnah, 30and the Eternal gave the town and its king into their hands. They took no prisoners. They killed everyone in the town and destroyed it and the king, as they did to the king of Jericho.

31From there Joshua and the Israelites passed on to Lachish and besieged it, 32and on the second day the Eternal gave Lachish to them. They destroyed it and killed everyone in it, as they had just done to Libnah. 33When King Horam of Gezer came up to help Lachish, Joshua turned the army against him and his people and destroyed them, leaving no survivors.

34Passing from Lachish, Joshua and the people attacked Eglon, 35and it fell to them on the first day. They killed everyone with the sword and destroyed it completely, as they had Lachish.

36Then Joshua went up with all the forces of Israel from Eglon against Hebron, 37and it fell to them—its king, all of its villages, and all of its people. Joshua killed everyone with the sword and destroyed it as he had destroyed Eglon. 38Lastly Joshua, with all of Israel, attacked Debir 39and took its king, its villages, and all of its people. The Israelites killed them with the sword and destroyed them all. Joshua left no one alive. He did to Debir and its king just as he had done to Hebron and to Libnah and its king.

40So this is how Joshua and the Israelites defeated every area they had encountered: the hill country, the wilderness of the Negev, the coastlands, and the foothills with all the people and all their kings, leaving no one alive, as the Eternal God of Israel had commanded. 41Joshua won victories from Kadesh-barnea to Gaza and through all the country of Goshen as far as Gibeon. 42Joshua was able to capture and defeat all these people and all their kings for one simple reason: the Eternal God of Israel fought for Israel.

43Then Joshua returned to Gilgal to camp with all the Israelites.

11 When King Jabin of Hazor heard what Israel had done to the central and southern cities of Canaan, he sent messengers to King Jobab of Madon, the king of Shimron, the king of Achshaph, 2and the kings who were in the northern hill country, in the Arabah south of Chinneroth, in the lowland, and in the heights of Dor on the west; 3to the Canaanites in the east and the west; the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, and the Jebusites in the hill country; the Hivites in the foothills of Mount Hermon in the land of Mizpeh, and to all those who could still fight the invaders. 4They banded together and came out to fight—so many warriors that you could no more count them than you could count the grains of sand on a beach—and leading them was a vast number of horses and chariots. 5All of these kings pooled their forces, and they camped together by the waters of Merom, ready to make war on Israel.

Eternal One (to Joshua): 6Don't be afraid of them. By this time tomorrow, I will have given all of them as dead bodies into your hands. You will disable their horses and burn their chariots.

7So Joshua's army came upon them suddenly where they camped beside the waters of Merom and attacked them, 8and the Eternal delivered this vast army to Israel. They pursued the retreating soldiers as far as Great Sidon and Misrephoth-maim, and to the east as far as the valley of Mizpeh until no one was left to fight. 9And Joshua cut the hamstrings of all their horses and burned all the chariots, as the Eternal had commanded.

10Then Joshua turned against Hazor, which had been the leader of all these armies, and destroyed their king 11and every living, moving, breathing creature within, and burned the city. 12Joshua moved through each of these cities destroying their armies and putting them all to the sword, including their king, and utterly destroying them as Moses, the servant of the Eternal, had commanded.

13But Hazor was the only city Joshua burned to the ground of the cities built up on hills. 14The Israelites looted all of these towns, taking the goods and the livestock as their own but killing all of the inhabitants with the sword, leaving none alive.
15The Eternal had commanded His servant, Moses, and Moses had commanded Joshua; so Joshua did everything he had been told until nothing the Eternal had commanded Moses was left undone.

16So Joshua took all of that land: the hill country, the Negev, and the land of Goshen. He conquered the lowland regions, the Arabah, and central hill country with its foothills, 17-18from Mount Halak, near Seir, to Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon below Mount Hermon. Wherever he went in that land—and it was a long war—he captured their kings and defeated them and executed them. 19The only people who were not destroyed in battle were the Gibeonites (Hivites) who had made peace with the Israelites. 20The Eternal boosted the courage of Israel's enemies so they would come out and oppose Israel as nations receiving no favor but only to be utterly destroyed, just as the Eternal had commanded Moses.

21Finally Joshua went to war with the Anakim and wiped them from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hills of Judah in the south, and from the hills of Israel further north. Joshua's army utterly destroyed them, their kings, their armies, and their cities, 22until not one of the Anakim was left alive in the land of the Israelites. Only a few remained in the Philistine coastal cities of Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

23So this is how Joshua took the whole land, just as the Eternal had commanded Moses in the land beyond the Jordan; Joshua allotted it as an inheritance to the tribes of Israel, and at last the land was quiet from wars.

► During the furious accounts of battle, it is hard to see how much has been accomplished. But now we pause to reflect on everything that God has made possible—how many kings, states, and cities the people of Israel have defeated with God's help.

We start with those who fell when Moses was leader, and then go on to all those who have fallen since Joshua has been given command.

12 Here begins a catalog of the conquered, a list of the kings of the land who met defeat against the Israelites, and an accounting of the land the Israelites gained, beginning with the eastern side of the Jordan, from the valley of the Arnon River, north to Mount Hermon, and all the Arabah eastward: 2King Sihon of the Amorites, who lived at Heshbon and ruled from Aroer (which is on the edge of the Arnon Valley), to the middle of the valley as far north as the river Jabbok, the boundary of the Ammonites (including half of Gilead), 3and the Arabah to the Sea of Galilee* eastward, and in the direction of Beth-jeshimoth, to the Dead Sea,* and south to the foot of the slopes of Mount Pisgah; 4King Og of Bashan, one of the last of the Rephaim giants who lived at Ashtaroth and at Edrei, 5and who ruled from Mount Hermon and Salecah in the north and over all Bashan to the boundary of the land of the Geshurites and the Maacathites and half of Gilead, south to the boundary of Sihon, king of Heshbon.

6It was Moses, the servant of the Eternal, who led the Israelites to defeat these kings; and Moses gave their land to the tribes of Reuben and Gad, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh that would settle east beyond the Jordan.

7This is a catalog of the kings of the land whom Joshua and the Israelites defeated west of the Jordan, from the north at Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon to the south at Mount Halak in the wilderness of Seir. Joshua allotted their land to the tribes of Israel as God directed: 8in the hill country, in the western foothills, in the Arabah, on the slopes, in the wilderness, and in the Negev (the southern desert), and in all the land of the Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites.

9*These are the fallen kings,* one each: the king of Jericho; the king of Ai, which is next to Bethel; 10the king of Jerusalem; the king of Hebron; 11the king of Jarmuth; the king of Lachish; 12the king of Eglon; the king of Gezer; 13the king of Debir; the king of Geder; 14the king of Hormah; the king of Arad; 15the king of Libnah; the king of

* 12:3 Hebrew, Chinneroth * 12:3 Hebrew, Arabah

Adullam; [16]the king of Makkedah; the king of Bethel; [17]the king of Tappuah; the king of Hepher; [18]the king of Aphek; the king of Lasharon; [19]the king of Madon; the king of Hazor; [20]the king of Shimron-meron; the king of Achshaph; [21]the king of Taanach; the king of Megiddo; [22]the king of Kedesh; the king of Jokneam in Carmel; [23]the king of Dor in Naphath-dor; the king of Goiim in Gilgal; [24]and the king of Tirzah: 31 kings in all.

► This second section of the book (chapters 13–22), which details the parceling out of the land of Canaan, makes for slower reading, but it has a distinct literary purpose. It contains some of the elements we often find in ancient epics such as the catalog of the defeated kings and towns that give the scope of the conquest. The list also orients us in the larger story of the people of God, since later books of the Bible will set their action here. That means it's valuable for us to know where the tribes settle and what their lands are like.

13 Now the years passed and Joshua grew old; and one day the Eternal came to him.

Eternal One (to Joshua): You have grown old and there is still work to do, for part of the land I have promised has yet to be conquered. [2]This still remains: all the coastal regions inhabited by the Philistines and the Geshurites [3](from the Shihor tributary of the Nile, east of Egypt, north to the boundary of Ekron, is Canaanite territory); the five capital cities of the Philistines are Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron, and the Avvites [4]remain in the south; all the land of the Canaanites, and Mearah (which belongs to the Sidonians), as far as Aphek, and to the boundary of the Amorites, [5]and also the land of the Gebalites, and all of Lebanon east from Baal-gad, near Mount Hermon, to Lebo-hamath.*

[6-7]For the sake of the people of Israel, I will chase out all the inhabitants of the highlands from Lebanon to Misrephoth-maim, and all the Sidonians, but allot the land among you. Divide the land among the nine tribes and the half-tribe of Manasseh as their inheritance, as I have commanded.

► The twelve tribes of Israel are spread out all across the countryside. Moses has already given some of them land on the east side of the Jordan River, as we read here; but the others are awaiting their land on the west side, in the land of Canaan. Eventually every tribe will have land allotted to them because that has been God's promise.

[8]The other half-tribe of Manasseh and the tribes of Reuben and Gad received their inheritance. Moses, the Eternal's servant, gave them land on the far side of the Jordan and toward the east, [9]from Aroer, which is on the edge of the Arnon Valley, with the town that is in the middle of the valley, and the plains from Medeba to Dibon; [10]and all the cities of Sihon, king of the Amorites, who had reigned from Heshbon, as far as the border regions of the Ammonites; [11]and the land of Gilead, and the lands of the Geshurites and Maacathites, and all of Mount Hermon, and all of Bashan as far as Salecah; [12]in Bashan, this includes all the kingdom of Og who had reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei (who was the last of the survivors of the giants). Moses conquered these kings and took over their lands, [13]although the Israelites did not drive out the Geshurites or the Maacathites, which is why the people of Geshur and Maacath survive among the Israelites to this day.

[14]The tribe of Levi was the only tribe of Israel that was not given land then as its inheritance. To offer burnt offerings to the Eternal God of Israel was their inheritance, as He told them.

[15]Moses gave an inheritance to the tribe of the Reubenites, clan by clan. [16]Their territory comprised the plateau from Aroer, which is on the edge of the Arnon Valley, including the city in the middle of the valley, and the entire plain by Medeba; [17]Heshbon, and all its cities that are in the plains: Dibon, Bamoth-baal, and Beth-baal-meon, [18]Jahaz, Kedemoth,

* 13:5 Hebrew, Lebo-hamath, the entrance to Hamath and Mephaath; 19Kiriathaim, Sibmah, and Zereth-shahar on the mount of the valley; 20Beth-peor, the foothills of Mount Pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth. 21*The tribe of Reuben received, then,* all these cities of the plain and all the kingdom of Sihon, king of the Amorites who had reigned in Heshbon until Moses defeated him and the leaders of Midian (Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba) who were the princes of Sihon in the land. 22*Along with all of those they put to death,* the Israelites also executed Balaam, the son of Beor, who practiced divination but blessed Israel by the command of the Eternal One. 23The western border of the land allotted to the people of Reuben was the Jordan with its banks. This, then, was the land given to the people of Reuben, clan by clan, and all their cities and villages.

24Moses also gave an inheritance to the tribe of the Gadites according to their clans. 25Their territory comprised Jazer, and all the cities of the land of Gilead, and half the country of the Ammonites as far as Aroer, east of Rabbah; 26from Heshbon to Ramath-mizpeh and Betonim, and from Mahanaim as far as the border of Debir; 27and in the valley, Beth-haram, Beth-nimrah, Succoth, and Zaphon—all the rest of the kingdom of Sihon, king of Heshbon—the Jordan and its eastern banks, to the southern end of the Sea of Galilee. 28This, then, was the land given to the people of Gad, clan by clan, and all their cities and villages.

29Finally Moses gave an inheritance to the half-tribe of Manasseh, again allotted clan by clan. 30Their territory started at Mahanaim and included all of Bashan and the whole kingdom of Og, king of Bashan, and all the settlements of Jair, which were in Bashan: 60 towns in all. 31Half of Gilead, Ashtaroth, and Edrei (the royal cities of Og, king in Bashan) were allotted to half of the people of Machir, son of Manasseh, who would dwell east of the Jordan, according to their clans.

14 Here is an account of the land that the other people of Israel were given as an inheritance in the land of Canaan, as the priest Eleazar, Joshua (son of Nun), and the heads of the elders of the Israelite tribes distributed it to them. 2They determined the inheritance of the nine tribes and one half-tribe by lot, as the Eternal One had commanded them through Moses. 3(Remember Moses had already distributed land to the two tribes and the other half-tribe who lived beyond the Jordan, and he gave no land as an inheritance to the Levites. 4Since the descendants of Joseph consisted of two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim, no share of land was given to the Levites but only towns to live in, with pasture for their property and livestock.)

5So the Israelites did as the Eternal commanded Moses and divided the land. 6Some members of the tribe of Judah came to Joshua at Gilgal, including Caleb, son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite.

► This story introduces us to a character who is faithful to his mission even before the events in the Book of Joshua. Caleb and Joshua were part of the group of spies who were sent into Canaan to observe the natural resources and the defenses of the people, and only they reported honestly that the land was wonderful and that it could be occupied with God's help (Numbers 13–14). For Caleb's faithfulness, he is promised that he will have a place and be given a portion in the promised land.

Caleb *(to Joshua): Remember what the Eternal said to Moses, the man of God, about you and me in Kadesh-barnea. 7I was 40 years old when Moses, the Eternal's servant, sent me out from Kadesh-barnea to spy out the land of Canaan. I brought back an honest report. 8The others who were sent as spies only discouraged the people and melted their hearts, but I obeyed the Eternal One, my God, completely. 9At that time, Moses swore an oath to me: "Someday the land on which you have walked will be given to you and your children as an inheritance forever because you have been completely faithful to the Eternal One, my God."*

* 14:9 Deuteronomy 1:36

10So here I am. The Eternal has spared my life these 45 years since He spoke this to Moses while Israel was in the wilderness. Here I am today, 85 years old, 11still as strong today as I was when Moses sent me into this country, able to fight and able to work.
12So now I ask that you give me this hill country the Eternal spoke about on that day. You heard then how the Ana-kim were there with great fortified cities, and so they are still. Because the Eternal goes with me, I will drive them out, just as He has said.

13So Joshua blessed Caleb, son of Jephun-neh, and gave him Hebron as an inheritance. 14Hebron belongs to the descendants of Caleb, son of Jephunneh, the Kenizzite, even now because he obeyed the Eternal God of Israel completely. 15(In ancient times, Hebron was called Kiriath-arba after Arba, who was the greatest of the Anakim.) So that land was peaceful.

15 The territory allotted to the tribe of the Judahites, clan by clan, reached south to the border of Edom, and even further south into the wilderness of Zin. 2Their southern border ran from the bay at the south end of the Dead Sea (the Salt Sea), 3and continued to the south of the ascent of Akrabbim,* crossed the wilderness of Zin, and went up south of Kadesh-barnea, past Hezron, on up to Addar, and then turning toward Karka, 4on to Azmon, then out by the wadi of Egypt, and ending at the Mediterranean Sea. "This," they were told, "will be your southern boundary."
5On the east the territory of Judah was bounded by the Dead Sea up to where the Jordan runs into it. Their boundary on the north began at the bay at the mouth of the Jordan, 6went up to Beth-hoglah, passed north of Beth-arabah, and continued up to the stone of Bohan, Reuben's descendant. 7From there the boundary went to Debir from the valley of Achor, and then northward, turning toward Gilgal across from the ascent of Adummim, which is on the south side of the river valley. From there the boundary passed along to the waters of En-shemesh, and on to En-rogel. 8Then the boundary went up the valley of Ben-hinnom, just at the southern slope of the Jebusite city, Jerusalem, and then up to the top of the mountain west of the Hinnom Valley at the northern end of the valley of Rephaim. 9From the mountaintop, the boundary extended to the spring of Nephtoah, and from there to the towns of Mount Ephron. Then the boundary curved around to Baalah (that is, Kiriath-jearim); 10and from there circled west of Baalah to Mount Seir, passed along to the northern slope of Mount Jearim (that is, Chesalon), went down to Bethshemesh, passed through Timnah 11to the northern flank of Ekron, then turned toward Shikkeron, past Mount Baalah, and out to Jabneel. The boundary ended at the Mediterranean Sea.
12The western boundary, then, was the Mediterranean coast, and this recounts all the boundary of the land allotted to the people of Judah and its clans.
13As the Eternal had commanded him, Joshua gave Caleb, son of Jephunneh, a share of land within the territory allotted to the people of Judah—Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron; Arba was the father of Anak). 14Caleb drove from that land the three sons of Anak: Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai. 15From there he went to battle the inhabitants of Debir (formerly Kiriath-sepher).

Caleb: 16Whoever attacks and captures Kiriath-sepher will receive my daughter Achsah as his wife.

Kiriath-sepher had originally been conquered by Joshua, but it was retaken by the Canaanites. Now Caleb must go back and attack the city once more.

17Othniel, son of Kenaz, Caleb's brother, captured it, so Caleb gave Othniel his daughter Achsah in marriage. 18One day she urged Othniel to ask her father for a field. As she dismounted her donkey, Caleb spoke to her.

Caleb: What do you wish?

Achsah: 19Here is what I would like as a wedding gift: since you have given me the desert of the Negev, give me also some springs of water.

So Caleb gave her the upper and lower springs.
20This, then, is the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Judah, according to

* 15:3 Literally, scorpion their clans. 21A list of the towns belonging to the tribe of the people of Judah, beginning in the far south near the boundary of Edom: Kabzeel, Eder, Jagur, 22Kinah, Dimonah, Adadah, 23Kedesh, Hazor, Ithnan, 24Ziph, Telem, Bealoth, 25Hazor-hadattah, Kerioth-hezron (that is, Hazor), 26Amam, Shema, Moladah, 27Hazar-gaddah, Heshmon, Beth-pelet, 28Hazar-shual, Beersheba, Biziothiah, 29Baalah, Iim, Ezem, 30Eltolad, Chesil, Hormah, 31Ziklag, Madmannah, Sansannah, 32Lebaoth, Shilhim, Ain, and Rimmon—in all, 29 cities with their surrounding villages.

33In the lowlands: Eshtaol, Zorah, Ashnah, 34Zanoah, En-gannim, Tappuah, Enam, 35Jarmuth, Adullam, Socoh, Azekah, 36Shaaraim, Adithaim, Gederah, and Gederothaim—14 cities with their surrounding villages.

37Also Zenan, Hadashah, Migdal-gad, 38Dilean, Mizpeh, Joktheel, 39Lachish, Bozkath, Eglon, 40Cabbon, Lahmas, Chitlish, 41Gederoth, Beth-dagon, Naamah, and Makkedah—16 cities with their surrounding villages.

42Libnah, Ether, Ashan, 43Iphtah, Ashnah, Nezib, 44Keilah, Achzib, and Mareshah—9 cities with their surrounding villages.

45Ekron with its towns and villages, 46from Ekron to the Mediterranean Sea, and everything near Ashdod, with its villages.

47Also Ashdod, its towns and its villages; Gaza, its towns and its villages; on to the wadi of Egypt, and then the Mediterranean with its coast.

48In the hill country: Shamir, Jattir, Socoh, 49Dannah, Kiriath-sannah (that is, Debir), 50Anab, Eshtemoh, Anim, 51Goshen, Holon, and Giloh—11 cities with their surrounding villages.

52Also Arab, Dumah, Eshan, 53Janum, Beth-tappuah, Aphekah, 54Humtah, Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), and Zior—9 cities with their surrounding villages.

55Maon, Carmel, Ziph, Juttah, 56Jezreel, Jokdeam, Zanoah, 57Kain, Gibeah, and Timnah—10 cities with their surrounding villages.

58Also Halhul, Beth-zur, Gedor, 59Maarath, Beth-anoth, and Eltekon—6 cities with their surrounding villages.

60Kiriath-baal (that is, Kiriath-jearim) and Rabbah—2 cities with their surrounding villages.

61In the desert: Beth-arabah, Middin, Secacah, 62Nibshan, the City of Salt, and Engedi—6 cities with their surrounding villages.

63But the people of Judah could not conquer the Jebusites who lived in Jerusalem, so the Jebusites still live alongside the people of Judah in Jerusalem today.

16 The inheritance of the people of Joseph was bounded on the east by the Jordan at the waters of Jericho, and into the desert, then rising from Jericho into the highlands of Bethel. 2From there it went to Luz, and along to Ataroth, the frontier of the land of the Archites, 3then downward and westward to the territory of the Japhletites, as far as the border of lower Beth-horon, then on to Gezer, and it ended at the sea. 4So the people of Joseph, Manasseh, and Ephraim received their inheritance.

Joseph's sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, only receive one land allotment between them. Later this will cause contention (17:14-18).

5The territory of the Ephraimites, clan by clan, was as follows: the eastern border of their inheritance was Ataroth-addar to upper Beth-horon, 6and the boundary went west at Michmethath on the north and turned east toward Taanath-shiloh, and passed along beyond it on the east to Janoah. 7Then it went down from Janoah to Ataroth and to Naarah, touched Jericho, and ended at the Jordan. 8From Tappuah, the boundary ran west to the wadi of Kanah and ended at the sea. This was the land allotted to the tribe of the Ephraimites, clan by clan, 9along with the cities that were set apart for the people of Ephraim scattered within the inheritance of the people of Manasseh, all those cities and their surrounding villages. 10But the people of Ephraim did not drive out the Canaanites who lived in Gezer, who have lived among the people of Ephraim to this day but are forced to serve them.

17 Land was allotted to the tribe of Manasseh, Joseph's firstborn. Machir, the firstborn son of Manasseh, the father of Gilead, received Gilead and Bashan because he was a warrior. 2Then land was allotted to the rest of the people of Manasseh by clans: Abiezerites, Helekites, Asrielites, Shechemites, Hepherites, and Shemidaites (the male descendants of Manasseh, son of Joseph, by clans).

► Women don't make many appearances in Israel's story, mostly because women were not given a prominent role in ancient Middle Eastern cultures, but this episode is a startling example of equality and justice: although inheritance usually is passed from father to the oldest son, this family has only daughters. How will they pass down their land? Well the law of Moses, which has provided for so many things, also provides for this.

3Now Zelophehad, son of Hepher, grandson of Gilead, great-grandson of Machir, great-great-grandson of Manasseh, had no sons to inherit, only five daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. 4These daughters came before Eleazar the priest, Joshua (son of Nun), and the leaders of the people.

Zelophehad's Daughters: In the law, the Eternal commanded Moses to give daughters an inheritance along with male relatives.

So, as the Eternal had commanded, he gave the daughters an inheritance alongside their uncles.

5So Manasseh was given 10 portions (in addition to the land of Gilead and Bashan on the far side of the Jordan) 6since the daughters of Manasseh also received an inheritance among their male relatives. The land of Gilead itself was given to Manasseh's other male descendants.

7The territory of Manasseh reached from Asher to Michmethath, which is east of Shechem; then the boundary went southward to the inhabitants of the spring of Tappuah. 8(The land of Tappuah belonged to the tribe of Manasseh, but the town itself on the boundary of Manasseh belonged to the people of Ephraim.) 9From there, the boundary went south to the wadi of Kanah. The towns to the south of the river among the towns of Manasseh also belonged to Ephraim. Then the boundary of Manasseh went along the north side of the wadi and ended at the sea.

10The south side was given to Ephraim, and the north to Manasseh with the sea forming the western boundary; the northern boundary was the land allotted to Asher, and the eastern was Issachar. 11Within the territories of Issachar and Asher, Manasseh possessed these cities: Beth-shean and its villages, Ibleam and its villages, the inhabitants of Dor and its villages, the inhabitants of En-dor and its villages, the inhabitants of Taanach and Megiddo and their villages, the three towns of the slopes.*

12But the descendants of Manasseh could not conquer those cities because the Canaanites stubbornly continued to live among them in that region. 13At last when the Israelites grew stronger, they made the Canaanites their servants, although they did not remove them completely.

14Then the descendants of Joseph came to Joshua and made demands of him.

Joseph's Descendants: Why are we only receiving one share, one portion to inherit, since we are numerous and the Eternal has always generously blessed us?

Joshua *(to Joseph's descendants): 15If there are so many of you and the hill country of Ephraim is too crowded, then why don't you go up into the forests? Clear more land for yourselves and spread out where the Perizzites and the Rephaim live.

Joseph's Descendants: 16The hill country does not have enough room for us; and what's more, all the Canaanites who inhabit the plains in Beth-shean and its villages and in the valley of Jezreel have iron chariots to use against us.

Joshua *(to Ephraim and Manasseh, Joseph's descendants): 17*All right;* it's true that there are many of you and that you are powerful. You should not have just one share. 18The hill country will be yours, and you can clear the forests and possess the land to its farthest borders. But you will have to defeat the Canaanites even with their iron chariots and powerful warriors.

18 The whole community of Israelites assembled at Shiloh and raised the congregation tent.

* 17:11 Another possible meaning for this difficult Hebrew text is "the third in the list is Napheth."

The region was fully under their control.
2But there were still seven tribes who had not received their inheritance of land.

Joshua (to the remaining Israelites): 3How much more time do you intend to waste before going to claim the land the Eternal God of your ancestors is giving to you? 4Pick three men from every tribe, and I will send them into the land so they can survey the regions in light of your inheritances and bring me back descriptions. 5They will divide the land into seven sections, between the people of Judah remaining in its territory in the south and the people of Joseph in their places in the north. 6After you divide the land, return here with the seven descriptions, and I will draw lots so that the Eternal One, our True God, can choose who will inherit what part of it.

7*Remember that* the Levites will not receive a share in this apportioning since their inheritance is the priesthood of the Eternal. The tribes of Gad and Reuben and the half-tribe of Manasseh have already received their inheritance east of the Jordan that Moses, the servant of the Eternal, gave them.

► The tribe of Levi is the one exception to this process of allocating land because they have been set aside as priests in service to God. The other tribes will have to take care of Levi so that they may do the work God has given them to do for the entire people.

8So the chosen men prepared to go, and Joshua repeated his instructions to them.

Joshua: Go into the land and survey it.
Keep in mind that we need to divide it into seven sections. When you come back, we will draw lots before the Eternal here in Shiloh to divide the land.

9The men went out and passed through the land, marking the cities, dividing it into seven parts and recording their findings on a scroll. Then they returned to Joshua at Shiloh, 10and Joshua drew lots in Shiloh in the presence of the Eternal to divide the land among the remaining Israelites, each getting a share.

11The land assigned by lot to the tribe of the Benjaminites according to their clans was between the people of Judah in the south and the people of Joseph in the north. 12On the north side their boundary began at the Jordan: then the boundary went up to the northern side of Jericho, climbed westward through the hill country, and ended at the wilderness of Beth-aven. 13From there, the boundary went southward in the direction of Luz; near Luz (that is, Bethel) it went down to Ataroth-addar, on the mountain to the south of lower Beth-horon. 14From this point, the western boundary turned southward from the mountain opposite Beth-horon to Kiriath-baal (that is, Kiriath-jearim), a town belonging to the people of Judah. This was the western boundary of their inheritance.

15The southern boundary began on the outskirts of Kiriath-jearim and from there went west to the springs of Neph-toah. 16Then the boundary went along the border of the mountain overlooking the valley of Ben-hinnom, which is at the north end of the valley of Rephaim; and it then went down the valley of Hinnom, south of the slope of the Jebusites, and further to En-rogel. 17Then it curved in a northerly direction toward En-shemesh and from there went on to Geliloth, which is opposite the ascent of Adummim; then down to the stone of Bohan, Reuben's son, 18and passing on to the north of the slope of Arabah, it descended down to the Arabah.* 19The boundary then went north of the slope of Beth-hoglah and ended at the northern bay of the Dead Sea where the Jordan empties into the sea. This was the southern border. 20On the eastern side, the Jordan formed its boundary.

This, then, was the inheritance of the people of Benjamin, clan by clan, boundary by boundary. 21And the cities of the tribe of the Benjaminites allocated to the clans were: Jericho, Beth-hoglah, Emek-keziz, 22Beth-arabah, Zemaraim, Bethel, 23Avvim, Parah, Ophrah, 24Chephar-ammoni, Ophni, and Geba—12 cities and their surrounding villages. 25Also Gibeon, Ramah, Beeroth, 26Mizpeh, Chephirah,
Mozah, 27Rekem, Irpeel, Taralah, 28Zela,
Haeleph, the Jebusite city (Jerusalem), Gibeah, and Kiriath—14 cities with their surrounding villages. This was the inheritance of the people of Benjamin, clan by clan.

19 The second allotment went to the tribe of the Simeonites, clan by clan, and its inheritance lay within the lands of the people of Judah. 2Simeon had for its inheritance Beersheba, Sheba, Moladah, 3Hazar-shual, Balah, Ezem, 4Eltolad, Bethul, Hormah, 5Ziklag, Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susah, 6Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhen—13 cities with their surrounding villages; 7also Ain, Rimmon, Ether, and Ashan—four towns with their surrounding villages; 8also all the villages surrounding these towns as far as Baalath-beer, Ramah of the Negev. This was the inheritance of the tribe of the Simeonites, clan by clan. 9The inheritance of the people of Simeon was taken from the people of Judah because the allotment of the people of Judah was too large for them. So the tribe of Simeon received an inheritance within Judah's inheritance.

Simeon receives no land allotment for himself. He is to be scattered within Judah's territory.

10The third lot fell to the people of Zebulun, clan by clan. The boundary of its inheritance stretched as far as Sarid, 11then it climbed up westward to Maralah and brushed Dabbesheth, then on to the wadi that is east of Jokneam. 12From Sarid it turned in the other direction eastward toward the sunrise to the frontier of Chisloth-tabor; and from there it went to Daberath, then up to Japhia. 13From there it went eastward to Gath-hepher, then Eth-kazin, and going on to Rimmon, it curved toward Neah. 14Then on the north, the boundary curved toward Hannathon and ended at the valley of Iphtahel 15with Kattah, Nahalal, Shimron, Idalah, and Bethlehem—12 cities with their surrounding villages. 16This, then, was the land granted to the people of Zebulun, clan by clan: these cities with their surrounding villages.

40The seventh lot fell to the tribe of the Danites, clan by clan; 41and the territory of its inheritance included Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir-shemesh, 42Shaalabbin, Aijalon, Ithlah, 43Elon, Timnah, Ekron, 44Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, 45Jehud, Bene-berak, Gath-rimmon, 46and Me-jarkon and Rakkon on the border opposite Joppa. 47The people of Dan had a difficult time subduing their allotted territory so they went up and attacked Leshem, and when they had captured it and killed its inhabitants, they settled there, renaming Leshem "Dan,"

* 19:28 Other manuscripts read "Abdon."

after their ancestor. 48This, then, was the land granted to the tribe of the Danites, clan by clan: these cities with their surrounding villages.

49When at last they had finished distributing the territories of the land as inheritances, the Israelites gave Joshua, son of Nun, a special inheritance among them. 50As the Eternal had commanded, they gave Joshua the town he had asked for, Timnath-serah in the highlands of Ephraim. So he built a city and settled there.

51These, then, are the inheritances that the priest Eleazar, Joshua (son of Nun), and the heads of the leaders of the Israelite tribes distributed by drawing lots at Shiloh. All this was done in the presence of the Eternal at the entrance of the congregation tent. And the division of the land was complete.

20 Then the Eternal One spoke to Joshua.

Eternal One: 2Tell the Israelites, "You must set apart cities of refuge, as I directed you through Moses, 3so that anyone who accidentally or unintentionally kills a person may flee there. These cities shall be set up as a refuge from anyone seeking blood revenge. 4If the slayer flees to one of these cities, he can stand at the entrance of the gate of the city and explain the case to the elders of that city; then the fugitive will be taken into the city and given a place, and he will live among them. 5If the person seeking to avenge in blood comes after him, the people of the city may not give up the slayer since the neighbor was killed by mistake and there was no premeditation or prior hatred. 6The slayer may remain in that city until there is a trial before the congregation. And when the high priest who currently holds the office dies, then the slayer may return home to the town from which he fled."

► God asks the people to set aside places of sanctuary. This is a violent time, and people often take justice into their own hands. But these cities of refuge are set aside as places where those who have accidentally killed someone might be safe from avenging relatives until a determination of guilt might be made.

7So they set apart and consecrated Kedesh in Galilee (in the hill country of Naphtali), Shechem (in the hill country of Ephraim), and Kiriath-arba (Hebron, in the hill country of Judah). 8Beyond the Jordan, east of Jericho, they appointed Bezer (in the desert plateau from the tribe of Reuben), Ramoth in Gilead (from the tribe of Gad), and Golan in Bashan (from the tribe of Manasseh). 9These, then, were the cities set aside to be sanctuaries for all the Israelites and for the foreigners residing among them, so that anyone who killed a person accidentally could flee there and not die at the hands of someone seeking blood revenge until there was a trial before the congregation.

21 It was at this time that the heads of the leaders of the Levites came before the priest Eleazar and Joshua, son of Nun, and the other leaders of the tribes of the Israelites 2at Shiloh in the land of Canaan.

Levite Leaders: The Eternal gave orders through Moses that we of the tribe of Levi be given towns to live in, along with pasturelands for our livestock and cattle.

The Kohathites are given land in the areas around what will be Jerusalem, where it will be convenient for them to later serve in the temple.

3So in obedience to the Eternal's command, the Israelites allotted to the Levites towns with their surrounding pasturelands, from out of their inheritances, 4and lots were drawn for the clans of the descendants of Kohath. To those Levites who were descendants of Aaron the priest went 13 towns from the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin. 5The other descendants of Kohath were given 10 towns from the clans of the tribes of Ephraim and Dan and the half-tribe of Manasseh. 6The descendants of Gershon were allotted 13 towns from the clans of the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and the half-tribe of Manasseh that lived in Bashan. 7The descendants of Merari and their clans were granted 12 towns from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun. 8This, then, was the land granted by drawing lots for the Levites, by the other people of Israel as the Eternal had commanded through Moses—these towns with their surrounding pastures. 9From the tribes of the Judahites and the Simeonites came the following towns mentioned by name, 10which were granted to the descendants of Aaron, of the clans of the descendants of Kohath who were Levites, since they were chosen first: 11the city of Kiriath-arba (Arba was the father of Anak), that is Hebron, in the highlands of Judah, as well as the pasturelands around it. 12The fields and villages of the town had already been granted to Caleb, son of Jephunneh, for his inheritance.

13-16So to the descendants of Aaron the priest they gave Hebron, the city of refuge for a slayer, and Libnah; Jattir, Eshtemoa, Holon, Debir, Ain, Juttah, and Beth-shemesh, all with their villages—9 cities with their pastures given by these two tribes.

17-19These cities were given by the tribe of Benjamin: Gibeon, Geba, Anathoth, and Almon, all with their villages—4 cities. So the cities granted to the descendants of Aaron—the priests—totaled 13, with their pastures and their villages.

20-22As for the remaining clans of the people of Kohath of the Levites, the cities allotted to them were given by the tribe of Ephraim: Shechem (the city of refuge in the highlands of Ephraim) Gezer, Kibzaim, and Beth-horon, all with their villages—4 cities with their pastures. 23-24Out of the tribe of Dan they were given Elteke, Gibbethon, Aijalon, and Gath-rimmon, all with their pasturelands—4 cities. 25And out of the half-tribe of Manasseh they received Taanach with its villages and Gath-rimmon with its villages and their pastures—2 cities. 26So the cities given to the clans of the rest of the Kohathites totaled 10, with their pasturelands.

27The Gershonites, another of the clans of the Levites, received from the half-tribe of Manasseh: Golan in Bashan (the city of refuge), with its villages and pastures, and Beeshterah with its villages and pastures—2 cities. 28-29From the tribe of Issachar they received Kishion, Daberath, Jarmuth, and En-gannim, all with their villages—4 cities.

30-31From the tribe of Asher came Mishal, Abdon, Helkath, and Rehob, all with their villages and pastures—4 cities. 32From the tribe of Naphtali: Kedesh in Galilee (the city of refuge), Hammoth-dor, and Kartan, all with their villages and their pastures—3 cities. 33In all, the cities granted to the clans of the Gershonites totaled 13, along with their villages and their pastures.

43That is how the Eternal gave to the people of Israel all the land He had promised to their ancestors; and when they had taken possession of the land, the Israelites settled upon it. 44So He gave them rest from war on every side as He had sworn to their ancestors; none of their enemies still stood against them, for the Eternal had delivered them all into their hands. 45Not a single one of all the good promises that He had made to the house of Israel went unfulfilled; all of them came to pass.

22 It was time for Joshua to discharge the tribes whose land was east of the Jordan, and they came before him—the tribes of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh.

Joshua: 2You have done all that Moses the servant of the Eternal commanded you to do, and you have done all that I asked of you. 3You did not abandon your people through all of the many days we struggled, down to this very day, and you have always been faithful to the charge that was laid upon you by the Eternal One, your True God.

4The Eternal One, your True God, has given rest now to all your people as He promised them. So now it is time for you to return to your tents and your possessions in the land on the far banks of the Jordan that Moses, the Eternal's servant, granted you. 5Be very careful always to follow the commandments and teachings of Moses, the Eternal's servant: love the Eternal your God; walk in His pathways, keep His commandments, be faithful to Him, and serve Him with diligence and devotion.

6He gave them his blessing and sent them home to their tents, 7but since Moses had given to the half-tribe of Manasseh an inheritance in Bashan, east of the Jordan, and to the other half Joshua had given an inheritance alongside the other people west of the Jordan, he blessed them and sent them away.

Joshua: 8You will return now to your tents with great wealth, with herds of livestock and cattle, with silver and gold, bronze and iron, and piles of fine clothing. Be sure to divide these spoils of war among your relatives.

9So the people of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh departed from the other Israelites at Shiloh, in the land of Canaan, and returned to their homes and families in Gilead, which Moses had given them by order of the Eternal.

10When the people of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh came to the western bank of the Jordan, although still in the land of Canaan, they built an immense altar there by the river. 11When the other people of Israel heard that the people of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh had built a huge altar on the frontier of Canaan on the side of the Jordan given to them, they feared the altar was going to be used to worship the gods of the land of Canaan. 12So the Israelites all gathered at Shiloh and talked of going to war against the tribes across the Jordan. 13-14But first they appointed the priest Phinehas, son of Eleazar, to travel with 10 chiefs, one from each Israelite tribe and each clan who were settled in the land of Canaan, to the Reubenites and the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh in the land of Gilead.

15When they came to the people of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh in the land of Gilead, Phinehas and the chiefs delivered the message.

Phinehas: 16We bring a message from all the Eternal's people in Canaan. How dare you! How can you commit this treachery against the True God of Israel by turning away from Him and building this altar to be used against Him? 17Didn't we learn our lessons about the sin of sacrificing to false gods in Peor? We have not yet cleansed ourselves of the stain or gotten over the plague that the Eternal sent among us because of it; 18and now, already, you're turning away from Him? Listen to me: If you rebel against Him today, He will punish the whole assembly of Israel tomorrow!

19If the problem is that there is no holy site in your country, then come over to us in the country where the Eternal's congregation tent is standing. Take an inheritance among us. Only don't rebel against Him or rebel against us by building an altar that isn't going to be used to sacrifice to the Eternal One, our True God. 20Don't you remember what happened when Achan, the son of Zerah, was unfaithful by keeping some of the spoil at Jericho and trying to deceive God and Joshua? His wrath fell upon the whole people, and he was not the only one who perished because of his sin!

21Then the Reubenites and the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh answered Phinehas and the heads of the clans of Israel:

Leaders of Reuben and Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh: 22The Eternal One, God of gods! The Eternal One, God of gods! He knows the truth, and Israel should know, too. If it was out of rebellion against Him or faithlessness against Him, then devote us to destruction today! 23If we have built this altar to renounce our allegiance to Him, or to present burnt offerings or grain offerings or peace offerings on it, then may the Eternal Himself take vengeance on us!

24No, we were afraid that someday, years from now, your sons and daughters might say to our sons and daughters, "Who are you? What connection do you have with the Eternal God of Israel? 25Didn't He set the river Jordan between us, the Reubenites and the Gadites, as a boundary? You have no share in the Eternal One." So your sons and daughters might prevent ours from worshiping Him. 26-28And we thought, should that day ever come, we could point to this altar and say, "Look, this constructed altar dedicated to Him was not set up to sacrifice on, but to be a witness here at the border between us that we serve the same God so that your children will not accuse our children of following other gods."

29It was the farthest thing from our minds to build an altar so that we could turn away from the Eternal God or to present burnt offerings or grain offerings or peace offerings on anything but the altar that stands in front of His congregation tent, the place of revelation.

30When the priest Phinehas, and the leaders of the congregation and the heads of the clans of Israel who accompanied him, heard the reply from the people of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh, they were satisfied.

Phinehas *(to the people of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh): 31We know now that the Eternal is among us. Because you have not committed some treachery against Him, you have saved all of the Israelites from punishment at His hands.

32So Phinehas, the son of Eleazar the priest, and the leaders left the people of Reuben and Gad in the land of Gilead and returned to the assembly at Shiloh to tell them what they had heard. 33Their report pleased the Israelites, and they stopped talking about going to war or destroying the people of Reuben and Gad. 34The people of Reuben and Gad called the altar "Witness."

Tribes of Reuben and Gad: We have built this altar as a witness between us that the Eternal is the True God.

► In this final section of this book (chapters 23–24), Joshua's speeches recap the story of their exodus from Egypt, remind the Israelites (and us) that God has been faithful in keeping all His promises, and call the people of Israel to accountability and faithfulness. It is this last charge that they will fail to keep—and that failure will cause the people of Israel so much trouble in the generations to come.

23 After Israel had taken possession of their inheritances and the Eternal had given them peace for many years and when Joshua was very old, 2he summoned all of Israel, their judges and officers and leaders.

Joshua: I am an old man. 3You have seen everything the Eternal One, your True God, did to these nations for you; the Eternal One, your True God, fought for you. 4I have allotted as your tribes' inheritances the territories of those people who still remain, as well as all the nations I captured from the Jordan River to the Mediterranean. 5The Eternal your God will push them out of their lands and out of your sight and you will live in their lands, just as He promised you. 6So be firm and unswerving, observing all that is written in the law of Moses without deviation. 7That will ensure that you don't start to blend in with the other nations around you or call upon their gods or worship them or serve them. 8Just hold tightly to the Eternal One, your True God, as you always have, 9for He has driven out great and powerful nations before you like leaves in the wind, and you know that no one has ever been able to stand against you. 10One of you can pursue a thousand because it is He who fights for you, just as He promised.

11So always be careful to love the Eternal One, your God. 12If you turn away from Him and toward those left of the foreign nations among you—if your women marry them and their women marry you—13you can be sure that the Eternal will turn from you. He won't remove the nations around you, but instead He will let them be a snare for you to be caught in, a wound in your sides, and thorns in your eyes until you perish from this good land that He has given you.

14The time has come for me to die and return to the earth. But I want to leave you with these thoughts: Think back and you will know without a doubt that not one single good thing that the Eternal One, your God, promised you has been left undone. Not a single one.

15But in the same way the Eternal One, your True God, has fulfilled all these blessings, you can be sure that if you turn away from Him, He will fulfill the curses until the Eternal has obliterated you from this good land He gave you. 16If you break the commandments that He has laid upon you and turn from Him to serve and worship other gods, then His anger will flare white-hot against you, and you will quickly be wiped from the face of this good land He has given you.

► The Book of Deuteronomy, which precedes Joshua, records Moses giving a similar farewell speech prior to his death. Moses reminded the people of Israel where they had come from and foretold many of the things that later came to pass when they entered into the promised land of Canaan. Joshua's speech does the same thing. He reminds the Israelites of their story, and he warns the people of Israel that if they turn from their faith in God they should expect curses instead of the blessings they have experienced.

24 So Joshua summoned all of the tribes of Israel together at Shechem, all the leaders, judges, officers, and elders, and they stood in the presence of the True God.

Joshua: 2The Eternal One, the True God of Israel has told me to give you this message: "Many years ago, your ancestors, Terah and his sons Abraham and Nahor, lived beyond the Euphrates River where they served other gods. 3But I took your father Abraham and led him over the river and into the land of Canaan, and I made his descendants numerous. I gave him Isaac, 4and to Isaac I gave Jacob and Esau. I gave Esau the highlands of Seir for a possession, but Jacob and his sons went down to Egypt. 5*When the time came for them to be delivered,* I sent Moses and Aaron, I struck Egypt with plagues, and I brought you out of Egypt.

6When I brought you out of Egypt, your ancestors were closely pursued by soldiers in their chariots of war to the Red Sea itself. 7When they cried out to the Eternal, He put darkness between you and the Egyptians and brought the sea to cover and drown them, every one, in the sea. Your own eyes saw this. You lived in the desert for a long time, wandering in the wilderness. 8Finally I brought you to the land of the Amorites, who lived on the east side of the Jordan. They fought against you; but I handed them over to you, and you took possession of their land. I destroyed them before you.

9When Balak, son of Zippor, king of Moab, decided to attack Israel, he called on Balaam, the son of Beor, to curse you, 10but I would not listen to Balaam. All he could do was bless you. I delivered you out of his clutches.

11When you crossed over the Jordan into the land of Canaan and came to Jericho, the leaders* of Jericho fought against you. So did the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. But I gave them all into your power.

12I sent hornets ahead of you to run off the two kings of the Amorites; it was not done by your bow or sword. 13I delivered to you fields you had not worked and towns you had not built, yet today you live in them. You eat the fruit of olive trees and of grape vineyards you did not even have to plant."

14So remember: fear the Eternal and serve Him sincerely and faithfully. Put away from you any gods your ancestors served across the Euphrates River or in Egypt, and serve only Him. 15If you decide that you're not willing to serve Him, then today is the day for you to choose whom you will serve, whether the gods your ancestors bowed to in the land beyond the great River, or the gods of the Amorites whose country you possess. But as for me and my family, we will serve the Eternal.

This people that complained in the wilderness now acknowledges that God alone gave them this land, and they pledge their faithfulness to Him.

People of Israel *(responding): 16Nothing could be further from our minds than abandoning the Eternal to serve other gods. 17We know that the Eternal One our God rescued us and our ancestors from slavery in the land of Egypt. We remember that He performed all those great signs in front of us. He protected us from the people we passed as we traveled. 18*And we know that* He removed the Amorites and all the peoples who lived in Canaan. We, too, will serve the Eternal One, for He is our True God.

Joshua *(warning them): 19If you think you will be able to serve the Eternal, you are wrong. He is a holy God and a jealous

* 24:11 Hebrew has "Baals of Jericho."

God; He will not tolerate your shortcomings and your sins. 20If you desert Him and worship these foreign gods, He will fall upon you and totally consume you, even though He has done all this great good for you.

People of Israel: 21All the same, we choose to serve the Eternal.

Joshua: 22All right, then. You are witnesses—against yourselves, if it comes to that—that you have made this choice to serve the Eternal.

Israel: We are witnesses to it.

Joshua (repeating): 23Then you must put all other gods away from you and turn your hearts to the Eternal God of Israel.

Israel: 24We will serve the Eternal One, our God, and we will obey His voice.

25So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day at Shechem and gave them statutes and ordinances to obey. 26Joshua wrote the words in the scroll of the law, and he had a large stone set up underneath the oak tree near the Eternal's holy place.

Joshua (to all the people): 27This stone will also be a witness to your vow. It has heard all the words the Eternal spoke to us, so it will be a witness if you turn your backs on your True God.

28So he sent the people away, back to the lands He had given them.

29After that, Joshua, the son of Nun, the Eternal's servant, died at the age of 110. 30They buried him in the land he had been given at Timnath-serah, which is in the hill country of Ephraim to the north of Mount Gaash.

31And Israel served the Eternal faithfully for as long as Joshua lived, and then throughout the days of the elders who outlived Joshua and had seen all the mighty things that the Eternal One did for Israel.

32The bones of Joseph, which the Israelites had carried out of Egypt, were buried at Shechem, in the land Jacob had bought from the descendants of Hamor, the father of Shechem, for 100 pieces of silver, and which had been passed on to the people of Joseph as an inheritance.

33*Eventually* Eleazar, the son of Aaron, died. They buried him at Gibeah, in the city his son Phinehas had been granted in the highlands of Ephraim.

JUDGES

The period after Joshua and before the kings of Israel

By Samuel or others

The Book of Judges tells the history of God's people after their arrival in the land God had promised their ancestors and of how they live in the period between the conquest of that land of Canaan and their turning away from God and toward earthly kings in search of order and safety. It also continues the Israelites' story of faithfulness—and faithlessness—since they have been freed from slavery in Egypt. Two great leaders, Moses and Joshua, have warned them that if they fall away from faithful worship of God, they will suffer for it; but as is often the case with human beings, a warning is not enough. They have to experience things for themselves.

Judges recounts the experience: On more than one occasion, the people of Israel fall away from the worship of their God, are punished for it, and then pray for deliverance. The deliverer is a divinely appointed judge, a combination of military general and civil leader, a redeemer or liberator. It's a cycle that is repeated many times in the Book of Judges, which finally ends in atrocity as we see how far the people fell in those days when "there was no king in Israel, and everyone did what seemed right to them" (21:25).

One of the most famous judges, Samuel, whose story is not told until the books of Samuel, is traditionally credited with recording the many stories that appear in Judges. This book is divided into three sections: the conquest and settlement of Canaan, the exploits of the judges, and a collection of stories. The juxtaposition of so many differing stories reflects the involvement of many storytellers and editors in this final version of Judges and the importance they all placed on every divinely inspired story—even those stories that are crude, gruesome, and heartbreaking.

Judges shows us an unromantic view of life, love, and faith—but one that seems completely realistic. We see people at both their best and their worst. It is the story of a society in slow descent, arrested sometimes by God's intervention through human agents, and it reads as cosmic truth. We are often guilty of exalting things other than God: our possessions, our relationships, our institutions, even our nation. The stories of the people of Israel remind us that we should place true faith in God alone, and that when we forget, the spiritual and real-life results may be devastating.

Modern readers wrestle with the violence in the Old Testament. In the wake of events like the holocaust, when the Jews were slaughtered by the millions, many do not see God as a protecting God or as a God of might.

But in Judges we learn about a God who fights for His chosen people or empowers champions to protect them. This was certainly the way the people of God in the time of Judges thought about God, as defender and protector, and the way people in the ancient Middle East understood faith, worship, and divinity. But the Lord is different from all the other gods. He is jealous, so when His people abandon Him, all that power is turned against them in the form of invading armies. The Israelites have need of judges who can lead them in their military exploits and who can keep them faithful to the mighty God of Israel.

1 After Joshua died, the people of Israel asked a question of the Eternal One.

Israelites: So now who will lead us in our wars against the armies of Canaan?

Eternal One (to the leaders of Judah):
2 Judah will go and fight. See, I am giving the land into their hands.

3 The tribe of Judah enlisted support from the tribe of Simeon.

Tribe of Judah: If you will help us fight for the land we were given in Canaan, we will do the same for you.

The tribe of Simeon agreed to help them.
4-5 So Judah and her ally went up to fight against Adoni-bezek at the town of Bezek, and the Eternal gave them victory over the Canaanites and the Perizzites. They killed 10,000 of them at Bezek; 6 and although Adoni-bezek tried to escape, they caught him and cut off his thumbs and big toes, which rendered him useless for basically anything.

Adoni-bezek: 7 In my time, I cut the thumbs and toes off 70 kings and left them to scramble for scraps under my table. And now God has done the same to me.

They carried him away to Jerusalem, where he died.

8 Then the people of Judah attacked Jerusalem; and when they had captured it, they killed many, burned the city, and destroyed it. 9 After that the people of Judah swept down upon the Canaanites remaining in the highlands and in the lowlands and in the southern desert. 10 Judah campaigned against the Canaanites of Hebron (formerly Kiriath-arba), where they defeated Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, 11 and then they went out in battle against the people of Debir (formerly Kiriath-sepher). 12 It was about this battle that Caleb had made a vow.

Caleb: Whoever attacks and captures Kiriath-sepher will receive my daughter Achsah as his wife.

13 Othniel, the son of Caleb's younger brother, Kenaz, captured the city, so Caleb gave Othniel his daughter Achsah to marry. 14 When she came to Othniel, she persuaded him to ask her father for a field. As she dismounted from her donkey, Caleb approached her.

Caleb: What do you wish?

Achsah: 15 Here is what I would like as a wedding gift: since you have given me a place in the southern desert, also give me some springs of water.

And so Caleb gave her the upper and lower springs.

16 The people who descended from Moses' father-in-law, Hobab the Kenite, went with the people of Judah from the city of palm trees into the wilderness of Judah, and they settled there with the people, the Amalekites, in the southern desert near Arad.

17 Then Judah and Simeon defeated the Canaanites who lived in Zephath and destroyed them completely, so their city was renamed Hormah, which means "destruction." 18 Judah went on to take the cities of Gaza, Ashkelon, and Ekron and all the land surrounding them. 19 The Eternal was with Judah, and the tribe conquered all of the highlands. But those living in the plains had iron chariots, so Judah could not drive them out. 20 Caleb received the land of Hebron, as Moses had promised many years earlier, and he drove out the three sons of Anak. 21The people of the tribe of Benjamin, however, did not drive the Jebusites out of Jerusalem, and the Jebusites live alongside the Benjaminites in Jerusalem to this very day.

22-23The tribe of Joseph went up against Bethel (which was formerly known as Luz), and the Eternal supported them. They sent out spies 24who intercepted a man leaving the city.

Spies: Show us the way into the city, and we'll spare you.

25He showed them the way, and they destroyed the city with swords; but as they had promised, they let the man and his family go. 26This man went into the land of the Hittites, and there he established a city; he called it Luz, and that is still its name.

27-28The tribe of Manasseh failed to drive out the people who lived in the cities and surrounding villages of Beth-shean, Taanach, Dor, Ibleam, and Megiddo. The Canaanites continued to live in those regions for they were determined to live there; but when the people of Israel grew strong, they made the Canaanites their slaves and did not completely drive them out.

29So it was with the tribe of Ephraim, who did not drive out the Canaanites who lived in Gezer but lived among them.

30Zebulun also did not drive out the people of Kitron or Nahalol, so these Canaanites lived among them and became their slaves.

31-32Asher failed to drive out the people of Acco, Sidon, Ahlab, Achzib, Helbah, Aphik, and Rehob; instead, the tribe of Asher lived among the Canaanites who lived in the land.

33Naphtali did not drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh or Beth-anath but lived among these Canaanites who lived in the land. They also became the slaves of Naphtali.

34The Amorites pushed the tribe of Dan back into the hills and did not allow them to dwell in the valley. 35The Amorites persisted in living on Mount Heres, in Aijalon, and in Shaalbim, but the tribe of Joseph overpowered them and forced them into labor. 36*In those days,* the border of the Amorites ran from the heights of Akrabbim to Sela and beyond.

2 The Eternal's messenger traveled from Gilgal to Bochim.

Messenger (to the people of Israel): I rescued you out of the land of Egypt and brought you into this land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, "I will never break My covenant with you. 2As your part of this bargain, you shall not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land. You must tear down the altars of their gods." But you did not do as I commanded. Do you realize what you have done? 3Now I tell you, "I will not drive them out before you. The people of the land will irritate you, and their gods will ensnare you."

4When the Eternal's messenger spoke these words to Israel, the people wept bitterly. 5So they named that place Bochim, which means "weeping," and there they sacrificed to Him.

6When Joshua sent the people away, each tribe of Israel went to gain possession of its territorial inheritance. 7The people served the Eternal as long as Joshua lived and through all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua—those who had seen all the great works that the Eternal had done for Israel.

8Joshua, son of Nun, the Eternal's servant, died at the age of 110 years 9and was buried within the borders of his inheritance at Timnath-heres in the hills of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaash. 10Now that whole generation, the generation that had walked with Moses—the generation that saw the walls of Jericho fall—that generation passed on, and another generation grew up after them, a generation that did not know the Eternal and had not seen the great works He had done for Israel. 11Consequently this new generation served the gods of Canaan—the Baals* as they were called—doing what the Eternal God considered evil. 12They abandoned the Eternal One, the True God of their ancestors, who brought them safely out of Egypt. Instead, they began to serve the gods of their neighbors, the Canaanites, bowing low before their images, causing the Eternal to burn with anger.

13The Israelites abandoned the worship of the Eternal One and turned to serve Baal and his consort the moon goddess, Ashtaroth. 14So the Eternal's anger burned hot against them, and He caused them to be overcome by those around them, using their enemies to plunder them so that the Israelites could no longer stand against their enemies. 15Whenever they marched out to battle, the hand of the Eternal One was raised against them in evil, as He had warned and promised them, and they were in anguish.

16But the Eternal appointed judges among them, leaders and liberators who rescued the Israelites from their enemies who plundered them. 17Even then the people of Israel did not listen to their judges, but instead passionately pursued other gods and bowed down to them. How quickly they turned from the faithfulness exhibited by their ancestors in obeying the Eternal's commandments. This younger generation did not follow their ancestors' example.

18*Still,* whenever the Eternal appointed judges among the Israelites, He was with each one, saving the Israelites from their enemies as long as that leader lived, for He was moved to compassion by the groans of His people when they were persecuted and oppressed. 19But when the judge died, then the people would fall away from their faithfulness, and the next generation behaved even worse than their ancestors, pursuing and serving other gods, and bowing down before them. They would not change their bad habits but clung to them stubbornly.

20So the Eternal's anger burned hot against the people of Israel.

Eternal One: Since these people have violated the covenant I gave as a commandment to their ancestors and no longer listen to My voice, 21I will no longer drive out from their path any of the nations who still remained in this land when Joshua died. 22I will put My people to the test to see whether or not they will walk the faithful way of the Eternal as their ancestors did.

23So God did as He promised. He left those pagan nations in the land of Canaan. He did not drive them away immediately, nor did He give them into the hands of Joshua and his armies.

3 Here is a list of the nations that the Eternal left in the land to test those Israelites who had not gone to war in Canaan, 2so that those who had not experienced war personally might know it: 3the five Philistine capital cities, all the Canaanite tribes, the Sidonians, and the Hivites who lived on the mountains of Lebanon from Mount Baal-hermon to the entrance of Lebo-hamath. 4They were intended to test the Israelites, to determine whether they would follow the commandments that the Eternal gave to their ancestors through Moses.

► After Joshua dies, the people of Israel are left without a leader. How will they know what to do? They are still surrounded by hostile peoples; there is still land to be fought for and won.

The people of God have some military success, but they are not able to drive out all the people of Canaan. They are forced to live among the pagans; and their ways, women, and gods become a temptation to the people of God. This situation is the catalyst for the next 1,000 years of Israel's cyclical unfaithfulness and repentance.

5The people of Israel lived among the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. 6They took the pagans' daughters as wives, gave their own daughters to the pagans' sons to marry, and worshiped pagan gods. 7Israel committed what the Eternal considered evil: they forgot the Eternal, their True God, and instead worshiped the Baal and Asherah deities,* the various local gods of the people of Canaan.

8So the Eternal's anger burned against Israel, and He gave them into the hands of Cushan-rishathaim, a king of Mesopotamia. The Israelites toiled like slaves for Cushan-rishathaim for 8 years; 9but when they cried out to the Eternal, He raised up a liberator from among them—Othniel, the son of Kenaz, the younger brother of Caleb. 10The Spirit of the Eternal came upon Othniel, and he became a judge over Israel. In God's power, he emancipated Israel and went to war for them. The Eternal then delivered Cushan-rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia, to Othniel, and Othniel's army defeated him. 11Afterward this territory had peace for

* 3:7 Hebrew, Baals and the Ashtaroth

40 years. Then Othniel, the son of Kenaz, died.

12The people of Israel again did what was evil in the eyes of the Eternal, so He gave Eglon, king of Moab, power against the Israelites because they did what He viewed as evil. 13Eglon allied with the Ammonites and the Amalekites; they went to battle against Israel and defeated them, and they captured the city of palm trees. 14The Israelites toiled for Eglon, king of Moab, for 18 years; 15but when the people of Israel cried to the Eternal for relief, He raised up a left-handed liberator from among them: Ehud, son of Gera the Benjaminite.

The Israelites sent Ehud to bring tribute to Eglon, king of Moab. 16*Before he set out,* Ehud made for himself a double-edged sword about 18 inches in length, and he fastened it onto his right thigh, hidden under his clothes.

17Ehud brought the tribute to Eglon, king of Moab, who was a very fat man; 18and when he was done with the presentation of the tribute to the king, he sent away those who carried it. 19Ehud stopped on his homeward journey at the engraved idols near Gilgal and returned to speak with Eglon.

Ehud: I have a secret message for you, O king.

Eglon: Be silent.

Eglon sent his attendants away; 20and Ehud came in to the king, who sat alone in a cool, private, upstairs room supported by beams.

Ehud: I have here a message for you from the True God.

As the king got up from his throne, 21Ehud reached beneath his robes with his left hand, took the sword strapped to his right thigh, and thrust it deep into Eglon's belly, 22*so deep, in fact,* that the hilt followed the blade, and he did not remove the sword because the fat closed over the blade, and the contents of Eglon's intestines spilled out. 23So Ehud locked the doors of the roof area himself and exited through the porch. 24After he had escaped, eventually the servants came to check on their master. When they saw that the doors to the upstairs room were locked, they assumed Eglon was relieving himself in the upstairs chamber. 25They stood around waiting until their embarrassment grew too great. When Eglon didn't open the doors, at last, they opened the doors with the key, and there was their master, lying dead on the floor.

26Ehud took advantage of the delay. He passed the idols of Gilgal and escaped to Seirah. 27Reaching safety, he sounded the trumpet in the hill country of the tribe of Ephraim, and the Israelites followed him back down the mountain.

Ehud: 28Follow me, because the Eternal has given your enemies, the Moabites, into your hands.

So they followed him, and together they captured the crossings of the river Jordan into Moab, not allowing anyone to pass. 29At that time, they killed an army of 10,000 Moabites, all of them strong and well-equipped warriors. No one escaped.

30So Israel defeated Moab on that day, and this region experienced rest from war for 80 years. 31When Ehud was gone, Shamgar, the son of Anath, was also a liberator of Israel, killing 600 Philistines with an ox goad.

► God takes what is different about Ehud and makes it a strength. This is God's habit throughout the Old Testament—making unlikely heroes into agents of His deliverance from the enemies of Israel. Earlier God used Moses, an infant marked for death, to liberate His people from Egypt. Soon God will use two women, marginalized in a patriarchal society, to save Israel from Sisera. And much later, God will choose David, a young boy, to save Israel from the mighty Philistines. Time and again, God proves He can use anyone to accomplish His goals.

4 After Ehud died, the people returned to doing what the Eternal said was evil. 2So the Eternal made them subservient to Jabin, king of Canaan, who ruled from Hazor. Jabin's general was a man named Sisera, who lived in Harosheth-hagoyim.

3The people of Israel cried out to the Eternal again for help. Since Sisera had 900 iron chariots, he prevailed against and oppressed the Israelites for 20 years.

These iron chariots are an especially potent assault vehicle against the Israelites on the plains, but not as much in mountainous regions.

4At that time, Deborah the prophetess, wife of Lappidoth, served as judge over Israel. 5She used to sit beneath the palm tree of Deborah, situated in the hill country of Ephraim between Ramah and Bethel, and the people would go up to her there to settle disputes. 6She urgently sent for Barak, the son of Abinoam, out of Kedesh-naphtali.

Deborah: The Eternal God of Israel commands you: "Go and get into position near Mount Tabor. Take 10,000 soldiers from the tribes of Naphtali and Zebulun. 7I will draw out Sisera, Jabin's general, to meet you at the wadi Kishon with his chariots and his army, and I will deliver him to you."

Barak (to Deborah): 8I will do this if you will go with me; but if you won't, then I won't go either.

Deborah: 9I will certainly go with you, but you should know from the beginning that this battle will not lead to your personal glory. The Eternal has decreed that the mighty Sisera will be defeated by a woman.

Then Deborah got up and accompanied Barak to Kedesh. 10Barak summoned the tribes of Naphtali and Zebulun, and they sent 10,000 men to follow him. With Deborah, they went to Kedesh.

11Now Heber the Kenite had separated himself from all the other Kenites (the descendants of Hobab, the father-in-law of Moses) and had camped far away, under the great tree at Zaanannim, near Kedesh.

12When Sisera the general heard that Barak, the son of Abinoam, had gone up in force to Mount Tabor, 13he called out all 900 of his iron chariots, and all the soldiers who were with him from Harosheth-hagoyim to the wadi Kishon.

Deborah (to Barak): 14Get up! For this is the day that the Eternal has given you victory over Sisera. In fact, He has already gone out ahead of you.

So Barak went down from Mount Tabor with 10,000 warriors following. 15As Barak and his forces watched, the Eternal threw Sisera and all his chariots and his entire army into a panic before them; all Sisera's army died by the sword. Sisera himself climbed down from his chariot and escaped on foot, 16while Barak and his army pursued Sisera's chariots and army all the way back to Harosheth-hagoyim. All of Sisera's warriors perished by the sword; not one of them was left alive.

17Sisera had fled to the tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, and he must have thought himself safe at last, since there was peace between Jabin, the king of Hazor, and Heber the Kenite.

18Jael went out to meet Sisera.

Jael: Come in, my lord, come in with me. There is nothing to be afraid of here.

So he came inside the tent with her, and she covered him with a rug just in case some of Barak's soldiers came looking for him.

Sisera: 19May I have a little water to drink?

He was very thirsty, so she opened a skin filled with milk and gave him a little, then covered him again.

Sisera: 20Stand and wait at the opening to the tent. If anybody comes and asks you, "Is anyone inside?" tell them "No."

21Sisera fell into a deep sleep, for he was weary. Jael, the wife of Heber, took a tent peg in one hand and a hammer in the other. She crept softly to his side. Then she drove the peg into his temple, down into the ground, and killed him.

22When Barak came looking for Sisera, Jael went out to meet him.

Jael: Come inside, and I will show you the man you seek.

So he went into the tent with her, and there lay Sisera dead, with a tent peg driven through his head.

23On that day, God vanquished Jabin, king of Canaan, before the people of Israel; 24and the Israelites bore down harder and harder on him until at last Jabin, king of Canaan, was destroyed.

► Known as the Song of Deborah, this victory song is one of the oldest passages in the Bible; it is beautiful and powerful, as well as filled with information. In addition to praising and chastising certain tribes for their role—or lack thereof—in battle, it also celebrates a victory God has given His people through the agency of two women: the judge Deborah and Jael, who, as Deborah prophesied (verse 9), brings final victory over the enemy general Sisera.

These cultures value masculine strength, aggression, and war-prowess; they don't value female ingenuity and courage. So for the first hearers of this story, the last people they expect to bring military victory are women. But once again, God takes ordinary people with their gifts, strengths, and weaknesses—and brings military victory through the unexpectedly strong hands of women.

5 Then, that same day, Deborah and Barak, the son of Abinoam, sang a song in victory:

[2]The leaders of Israel stood up, and the people offered themselves willingly—
praise the Eternal One!
[3]Listen, all you kings, and pay attention, you rulers:
I, I will sing to the Eternal,
I will sing praise to Him, the True God of Israel!
[4]Eternal One, when You went out from Seir and marched from the field of Edom,
The earth shook,
and the heavens poured;
yes, the clouds poured water.
[5]The mountains flowed like water before the Eternal, the God of Sinai;
they melted into a flood before the Eternal One, the True God of Israel.

[6]In the days of Shamgar, the son of Anath, and in the days of Jael, the main roads were empty of caravans,
and the travelers kept to back roads.
[7]But those from rural areas stayed away,
the destitute in Israel kept far off,*
Until I, Deborah, arose to be a mother to Israel.
[8]They had chosen new gods,
so war came to their gates.
Was there a spear or shield to be found then among the 40,000 of Israel?
[9]My heart is warmed by those in Israel called to command them, who offered themselves willingly to the people.
Praise the Eternal One!

[10]Sing this song, those of you who now ride white donkeys and sit on rich carpets,
you who travel along the road.
[11]All of you who now hear the sound of shepherds at the watering places, proclaim the just victories of the Eternal,
the just triumphs of His destitute people in Israel,
As the people of the Eternal go down to the gates!

[12]Wake up, wake up, Deborah!
Wake up, wake up, and sing!
Get up, Barak! Get up and carry off your captives,
O son of Abinoam!
[13]Then down went a surviving people to those who were noble, and the Eternal One marched to me with the mighty!
[14]People with roots in Ephraim went down against the Amalekites after you, O Benjamin, with your people.
From Machir marched those commanders, and from Zebulun went those carrying the staff of a scribe.
[15]The chiefs of Issachar came with Deborah;
Issachar was faithful to Barak,
And they rushed into the valley, close at his heels.
And the clans of Reuben wondered in their heart,

* 5:7 Meaning is unclear; this is a difficult text.

16"Why did you remain idle and aloof in the sheepfolds?
To hear whistling for the flocks?"
And the clans of Reuben wondered in their heart,
17"Why did those of Gilead remain beyond the Jordan?
Why did the people of Dan stay with their ships?
"Why did the people of Asher stay on the coast, settling down where they landed?"
18But Zebulun did not fear death, and Naphtali, too, stared down death on the heights where the battle raged.

19The kings came, they fought;
the kings of Canaan made war.
They fought at Taanach, by the waters of Megiddo,
but they won no spoils of silver.
20The stars themselves fought against them;
from the heavens, the stars fought against Sisera.
21The raging waters of Kishon swept them away,
the rushing waters, the raging waters of Kishon.
March forward, my soul, march on with strength!

22The hooves of the horses beat loudly;
the galloping of the horses echoed.

23"A curse on Meroz!" said the messenger of the Eternal One;
"May its people be bitterly cursed,
Because they did not come to help the Eternal, to stand with the Eternal against the mighty foes!" 24But Jael, the wife of Heber, the Kenite—most blessed of women is she,
favored above all women who dwell in tents!
25Sisera asked for water, and she gave him milk;
she gave him curds in a dish fit for lords.
26And then she took a tent peg in her left hand and a worker's hammer in her right,
And she struck Sisera.
She broke and battered his head;
she pierced his temple.
27At her feet he bowed, he fell,
he dropped silent.
At her feet he fell, he dropped,
and where he dropped, there he lay dead.
28The mother of Sisera waited for him, watching through the lattice of the window.
"Why is his chariot so long in returning?" she wondered.
"Where are the hoofbeats of his horses?"
29Her wisest ladies in waiting have answers—in fact, she herself thinks she knows the reason.
30"Aren't they still dividing the spoils of a successful battle?
A girl or two given to every man;
Spoils of beautiful dyed cloth for Sisera, spoils of dyed cloth, beautifully embroidered.
Indeed two pieces of beautiful embroidered cloth for my neck."

31So may all Your enemies perish,
O Eternal One!
But may those who love You be like the sun, rising and going forth with power!

After this victory, the people knew peace from war for 40 years.

6 When the people of Israel again did what the Eternal One considered evil, He made them serve the Midianites for seven years. 2The power of Midian prevailed over Israel so that the Israelites built for themselves hiding places in the mountains, in caves, and in safe strongholds. 3Whenever the Israelites planted seed, the soldiers of Midian, Amalek, and others from the east would rise up against them 4and destroy their farms and fields as far as Gaza in the west, leaving them nothing to eat and no livestock. 5They would come up with their tents and their livestock, as thick as a cloud of locusts. They and their camels were so numerous they could not be counted, and they left the land desolate behind them.

6So the people of Israel were impoverished because of the Midianites, and they cried out to the Eternal One for help. 7When the people of Israel cried to the Eternal for relief from the Midianites, 8He sent a prophet to them.

Prophet: Here are the words of the Eternal God of Israel: "I brought you out from slavery in Egypt. 9I delivered you from the Egyptians, from all who would have oppressed you. I drove the Canaan- ites out before you and delivered their land into your care. 10But I said to you, 'I am the Eternal One, your True God, and you must not worship the gods of the Amorites, those people in whose land you settle.' And you have not listened to Me."

► This unnamed messenger brings a familiar message, one we find coming from both well-known and unknown prophets in the Scriptures: "I am the Eternal God, and I have done many things for you. You swore to be My people, but you have turned away from Me and turned toward other gods."

God has brought the patriarch Abraham out of the east and initiated a relationship with him. Later the people of God make a covenant with Him, a sacred contract that both sides are expected to honor. When they are faithful to God and God's laws, the people of Israel prosper. Whenever the Israelites fall away from true belief and true practice, God withdraws His blessing from them. This messenger is simply reminding them of what they already know—as prophets sometimes must.

11Now in Ophrah, the Eternal's messenger sat under an oak tree that belonged to Joash the Abiezrite. Gideon, the son of Joash, was beating out wheat in the winepress so that the Midianites could not see what he was doing. 12The Eternal's messenger appeared to Gideon.

Times are so bad that even when processing the wheat, one has to be quiet about it so that the Midianites do not notice and seize the food.

Messenger of the Eternal One: The Eternal One is with you, mighty warrior.

Gideon: 13Sir, if He is with us, then why has all this misfortune come on us?
Where are all the miracles that our ancestors told us about? They said, "Didn't the Eternal deliver us out of Egypt?" But now He has left us. He has made us servants of the Midianites.

14The Eternal turned to Gideon and addressed him.

Eternal One (speaking through His messenger): Go out with your strength and rescue Israel from the oppression of Mid-ian. Do you understand that I am the one sending you?

Gideon: 15But, Lord, how am I supposed to deliver Israel? My family is the weakest in the tribe of Manasseh, and I am the least of my family.

Eternal One: 16Go. I will be with you, and you will totally destroy the forces of Mid-ian as one man.

Gideon: 17If You do look on me with favor, then give me a sign that I'm really hearing from You. 18Wait here until I return and bring out my offering and place it in front of You.

Eternal One: I will stay here until you return.

19So Gideon went into his house, cooked a young goat, and made cakes of unleavened bread from half a bushel of flour. He then put the meat into a basket, poured the broth into a pot, and brought the food out to present it to Him under the oak.

Eternal One: 20Put the meat and the unleavened bread on this rock, and pour out the broth.

Gideon did as he was told. 21Then the Eternal's messenger touched the meat and bread with the tip of the staff he carried.
Fire raged out of the rock and consumed the food, and the Eternal's messenger vanished from sight.

22Then Gideon realized that he had been speaking to the Eternal's messenger.

Gideon: Have mercy on me, my Lord, the Eternal, since I have seen Your messenger face-to-face!

Eternal One (speaking after the messenger had departed): 23Don't be afraid, Gideon.
Be at peace. You will not die.

Gideon expects sure death after conversing and looking on a divine manifestation of the Lord.

24Afterward Gideon built an altar to the Eternal there and called it "The Eternal One is Peace." It still stands at Ophrah in the land of the Abiezrites.

25That night, the Eternal spoke to Gideon.

Eternal One: Take your father's bull, the second bull, seven years old, and pull down your father's altar that has been consecrated to Baal. Then cut down the image of Asherah made of wood that is beside the altar. 26Then build correctly an altar to the Eternal One, your True God, on the top of this stronghold. Build a fire using the wood from the image; then take your father's bull and offer a burnt offering to Me.

27So Gideon took 10 of his servants and did as the Eternal had told him; but since he was worried about what his family and the people of the town might think, he did it at night while they all slept. 28Early the next morning, when the townspeople left their homes and saw the altar of Baal destroyed, the wooden image cut down, and the second bull offered on the new altar, 29they asked each other, "Who did this?"

After the investigation, it became clear that it was Gideon, the son of Joash, 30so they went to Joash's home and called for him.

People: Send out your son Gideon. He has torn down the holy altar of Baal and the Asherah image beside it, and he must die!

31Joash stood up as the angry crowd lined up against him.

Joash *(to the crowd): Will you fight in place of Baal himself? Can you save him? Anyone daring to say such a thing will be put to death by morning! If Baal is indeed a god, then let him stand up for himself, because his is the altar that has been torn down.

32From that time on, Gideon was also called "Jerubbaal" ("Let Baal fight against him"), because he pulled down Baal's altar.

33At that time, the Midianites, Amalekites, and other people of the east had come together, crossed the Jordan, and camped in the valley of Jezreel.

34Then the Spirit of the Eternal touched Gideon; he sounded his trumpet, and the Abiezrites all gathered behind him. 35Gideon sent messengers to the members of the tribe of Manasseh and called them also to follow him. He also sent messengers to the tribes of Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali, and they, too, gathered at his call.

36Then Gideon spoke to the True God.

Gideon: So that I can know if it's true that You plan to use me to rescue Israel, 37I am going to lay out a wool fleece on the threshing floor. Tomorrow morning, if it is wet with dew while the floor around it is dry, then I will know You are going to use me to deliver Israel, as You have told me.

38So the next morning, that was what he found. In fact, Gideon wrung enough water out of the fleece to fill a bowl, while the floor around it remained dry. But Gideon still was not satisfied.

Gideon *(to the True God): 39Please don't be angry with me, and I will ask this one thing more. Please let me use the fleece again to prove that You are with me. But this time, let me lay out the fleece, and let it remain dry while all the floor around it is wet with dew.

40God did as he asked that night. The next morning, the fleece was completely dry, while all the floor around it was wet with dew. Gideon knew that God was calling him to deliver Israel.

7 So then Jerubbaal (Gideon) and all the troops with him rose early, and they camped beside the spring of Harod. The camp of the Midianites was to their north, in the valley below the hill of Moreh.

Eternal One *(to Gideon): 2You have too many warriors for Me to allow you to defeat the Midianites. As it is now, the people of Israel would just deny Me the credit and claim they had won the victory on their own. 3So go out and tell your army, "Any of you who are afraid and trembling are free to leave Mount Gilead."

After this announcement, 22,000 left, so Gideon reduced his army to 10,000.

Eternal One: 4You still have too many warriors. Take them down to the water, and I will sift them for you. When I say, "This one will fight for you," he will go with you; but when I say, "This one will not fight for you," then he will not go.

5So Gideon led his army down to the water.

Eternal One: All of those who lap water the way a dog drinks, put them to one side. All of those who go down on their knees to drink, put them on the other side.

6Three hundred of the men lapped up water by raising a hand to their mouths, and all the rest went down on their knees to drink.

Eternal One: 7I will use these 300 who lapped from their hands to deliver Israel and to give the Midianites into your hand. Send all the rest home.

8He kept jars and trumpets from the army and sent them back to their tents, but distributed the jars and trumpets to the 300 who stayed with him. The camp of Midian was in the valley below him.

9That very night, the Eternal spoke to Gideon.

Eternal One: Get up and attack the camp of the Midianites because I have given you victory over them. 10But if you should have any fear, take your servant Purah; scout out the camp, 11and listen to what they are saying, and afterward you will find you are strong enough to attack.

So Gideon and his servant Purah approached the outposts of the army's encampment. 12The Midianites and the Amalekites and other people of the east were as thick as locusts in the valley, and their camels were as numberless as the sands of the seashore.

13When Gideon arrived he overheard a man telling his neighbor about a dream he had.

Man: In my dream, a barley cake rolled into our camp. It came to the tent and hit it so hard the tent fell over. It turned over and collapsed.

Neighbor: 14That must symbolize the sword of Gideon, son of Joash the Israelite. Their God has given him victory over Midian and all its camp!

15When Gideon heard the dream and its interpretation, he bowed in worship. He went back to the camp of Israel and roused them.

Gideon: Get up! The Eternal has given you victory over the army of Midian! We strike now.

16He divided the 300 men into three companies, and he gave them all trumpets and empty jars with torches placed inside of them.

Gideon: 17Watch me. Do what I do. When we come to the outskirts of their camp, do what you see me doing. 18When I and my company blow the trumpet, I want all of you to blow the trumpets all around the camp and to shout: "For the Eternal and for Gideon!"

19So Gideon and the 100 men who were with him came to the outskirts of the Midianite camp just after the middle watch had been posted. There they blew their trumpets and smashed the jars they had brought. 20All three companies of men blew their horns and shattered the jars at about the same time. They held the torches in their left hands, held the trumpets in their right, and together they shouted.

Men: A sword for the Eternal and for Gideon!

21They encircled the entire camp and woke the Midianite force abruptly, so that the Midianites cried out and fled. 22When the 300 trumpets sounded, the Eternal set the Midianites fighting against each other with their swords. The Midianites ran away in panic toward Beth-shittah, toward Zererah, to the border of Abel-meholah near Tabbath. 23The men of Israel were summoned out of Naphtali and Asher and from all Manasseh, and they joined in the chase after the Midianite army.

24Gideon sent messengers throughout all the hill country of Ephraim.

Messengers: Come down now and fight against the Midianites, and seize the watering places from them as far as Beth-barah and to the Jordan River.

So the Ephraimites gathered, and they captured the watering places as far away as Beth-barah and the Jordan. 25They also captured the two leaders of the Midianite army, Oreb and Zeeb; they executed Oreb at the place we know today as Oreb's Rock, and they executed Zeeb at Zeeb's Winepress as they chased after the army of Midian. They brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon, who was now beyond the Jordan.

8 Ephraimites *(arguing angrily with Gideon): Why did you treat us this way? Why didn't you tell us you were going to battle against the Midianites so that we could join you?

Gideon: 2*Really now,* what have I accomplished in comparison to you? Wouldn't you say that the gleanings left from Ephraim's grapes are better quality than the choicest of Abiezer's? 3God has given the Midianite captains Oreb and Zeeb into your hands, and you have taken care of them. What have I and my 300 soldiers done compared to that?

And they were calmed by this explanation.

4Gideon came to the Jordan, he and his 300 men, all of them tired and hungry, but they crossed to continue the chase. 5So he spoke to the people of Succoth.

Gideon: Please give some bread to my followers, for they are exhausted, and we are on the trail of the kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna.

Leaders of Succoth: 6Have you already chopped off the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna that we should go to the trouble of feeding your army?

Gideon: 7All right, then. When the Eternal has given Zebah and Zalmunna into my hands, I will tear your flesh with desert thorns and thistles.

8From Succoth, Gideon went up to Penuel and had the same conversation with them, asking for bread and being answered by the men of Penuel just as by the men of Succoth.

Gideon: 9When I return here victorious, I will tear down your tower!

10Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor with an army of about 15,000 men, all that was left from the armies of the east, for they had lost 120,000 soldiers. 11Gideon approached them by the caravan trail east of Nobah and Jogbehah, and he attacked them when they least expected it. 12When Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he followed and captured them, throwing their forces into complete disarray.

13When Gideon, son of Joash, returned from fighting by way of the Heres Pass, 14he captured and questioned a boy from Succoth and got from him the names of 77 leaders and elders of the town.

15Then Gideon came to Succoth.

Gideon: Look, here are Zebah and Zalmunna. Remember when you taunted me about them, saying, "Have you already chopped off the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna that we should worry about feeding your exhausted soldiers?"

16So he took the leaders of the city, and with the desert thorns and thistles, he flailed the flesh of the men of Succoth. 17He also shattered the tower of Penuel and killed the men of the town.

18Then Gideon approached the two kings, Zebah and Zalmunna.

Gideon: What can you tell me about the men you killed at Tabor?

Zebah and Zalmunna: They were just like you—like the sons of a king.

Gideon: 19They were my brothers, the sons of my mother. As the Eternal lives, if you had let them live, I would not kill you now.

20Gideon directed his firstborn son, Jether, to kill them, but Jether was afraid and couldn't draw his sword since he was only a boy.

Zebah and Zalmunna: 21Come and kill us yourself for a man is measured by his strength.

So Gideon executed them, and he took the crescents that had adorned the necks of their camels.

22Then the people of Israel spoke to Gideon.

People: Rule over us—you, your son, and then your grandson, for you have rescued us from the oppression of Midian.

Gideon *(refusing): 23I will not rule over you, and neither will my son. The Eternal will reign over you.

[24]But I have a request to make. Each of you, give me one of the earrings you have taken as plunder.

(The enemy they defeated had gold earrings, as was the fashion of the Ishmaelites.)

People: [25]We will certainly do that.

So they spread a cloak, and each of the men threw in an earring he had taken as spoils of battle; [26]and the weight of the gold earrings was over 42 pounds of gold, which does not include the crescents, the ornaments, and the purple garments they had taken from the kings of Midian, and the collars they had taken from the necks of their camels.

[27]Gideon made it into a priestly vest, sometimes used in seeking oracles, and put it in his hometown of Ophrah. But the people of Israel made an idol of it, and it became a snare to Gideon and to his family as well.

[28]This is how Midian was subdued by the people of Israel, and Midian never lifted up its head to trouble them again. During the time of Gideon, the land had 40 years of peace. [29]Jerubbaal (Gideon), son of Joash, went to live in his own home. [30]Gideon had 70 sons who were his own children, for he had many wives and concubines, [31]and his concubine in Shechem bore him a son whom he named Abimelech.

[32]Gideon, son of Joash, died after many years of life and was buried with his father Joash at Ophrah in the land of the Abiezrites.

► Gideon is one of the most powerful judges of Israel: he attacks and overthrows kings; he plunders their royal treasures; and after his great success against the land of Midian, the people of God actually want to make him their king. This desire is logical. Other peoples have kings to lead them into battle and to rule over them. Why not them? But this is not God's desire for His people, and Gideon knows that pain, destruction, and bloodshed follow when someone pursues the throne against God's will. Gideon tells them he will not rule them—and neither will his sons—so they can get that idea out of their heads. But the thirst for power leads to intrigue, and one of Gideon's sons plays on the people's continual desire for order at the hand of a king.

[33]As soon as Gideon died, the Israelites turned away from the Lord, and they began to prostitute themselves again to the Baals. They made Baal-berith their chief god. [34]The people of Israel did not remember the Eternal One, their True God, who had rescued them from the oppression of enemies on every side, [35]and they were not kind to the house of Jerubbaal (Gideon) despite all the good he had done for Israel.

9 Abimelech, the son of Jerubbaal, went to Shechem to the clan of his mother.

Abimelech *(to his mother's family): [2]Go, and say this so that all the leaders of Shechem can hear you: "Is it better that 70 sons of Jerubbaal should be your rulers, or only one of them?" And remember that I share your own bone and flesh.

[3]So Abimelech's mother's kinsmen went out and repeated these words to the leaders of Shechem, and they were favorably disposed toward him because they said, "He is our brother." [4]They gave Abimelech 70 pieces of silver out of the treasury of Baal-berith, and he used the money to hire some reckless and worthless men who followed him and did his dirty work.

[5]He went to his father's house in Ophrah and killed all 70 of his half-brothers, the sons of Jerubbaal, on one stone. (Only Jotham, the youngest, was left alive, because he hid.) [6]Then all the leaders of Shechem and Beth-millo came together and crowned Abimelech king by the great oak tree at the pillar in Shechem.

[7]When Jotham was told what had happened, he climbed to the top of Mount Gerizim.

Jotham: Listen to me, all you who are the leaders in Shechem, so that God may listen to you.

[8]The trees once decided to go out and anoint a king to rule them all.

They said to the olive tree,
"Reign over us."
9But the olive tree refused, saying,
"Should I stop producing the rich oil used to honor both gods and mortals so I can stand and sway
over the trees?"
10Then the trees went to the fig tree, saying,
"You come and reign over us."
11But the fig tree refused, saying,
"Should I give up my sweetness and stop producing my delicious fruit so I can stand and sway over the trees?"
12Then the trees said to the grapevine,
"You come and reign over us."
13But the vine refused, saying,
"Should I stop producing the wine that cheers both gods and mortals so I can stand and sway
over the trees?"
14At last the trees came to the worthless
thornbush, saying,
"You come and reign over us."
15And the thornbush said to the trees,
"If in good faith you want to anoint me as your king, then come and take refuge in my shade (of which there was precious little).
But if you haven't come in good faith, then let fire come from my brambles and burn down the cedars of Lebanon."

16Now if you have made this decision to crown Abimelech king in good faith, with sincerity, have acted honorably toward my father Jerubbaal and his family, and have treated him as his actions toward you deserve; 17you know how my father fought for you, risked his life for you, rescued you from the hand of the Midianites. 18But now here you are, rising up against my father's house, killing all of his sons, 70 of them, on one stone; and you have made Abimelech, the son of my father's slave woman, king over all the leaders of Shechem, simply because he is your kinsman. 19Well, I say, if you have acted honorably toward Jerubbaal and his family, then now may you take joy in Abimelech, and may he take joy in you.

20But if you have not acted honorably, then may fire come out of Abimelech and burn up the leaders of Shechem and Beth-millo. May fire come from you and burn up Abimelech.

22Abimelech was king over Israel for three years. 23Then the one True God sent an evil spirit to stir up dissension between Abimelech and the leaders of Shechem. Consequently the leaders of Shechem acted with treachery against Abimelech; 24*and all of this happened* so that the brutal murder of Jerubbaal's 70 sons might be avenged and their bloodguilt laid upon their brother Abimelech, who had ordered their deaths, and on the leaders of Shechem who had lent their strength to his cause.

25*As a result of their new hatred for Abimelech,* the leaders of Shechem began to ambush travelers along the mountain roads, robbing everyone who passed by, and these robberies were reported to Abimelech.

26When Gaal, the son of Ebed, arrived in Shechem with his family, the leaders of Shechem trusted him. 27After they had been in the fields, gathered the grapes, and trampled them for wine, they celebrated a festival in the temple of their god. While they ate and drank, they insulted Abimelech.

Gaal: 28Who is this Abimelech, and who are we here in Shechem that we should serve him? Didn't the son of Jerubbaal and his deputy, Zebul, serve the men of Hamor, Shechem's father? Why then should we serve him? 29I wish this people were under my command! I would get rid of Abimelech. I would tell him, "Go ahead. Call out your army!"

30When Zebul, who governed the city, heard what Gaal, the son of Ebed, said, he was furious. 31Secretly he sent messengers to Abimelech.

Zebul's Message: Here's what's happening: Gaal, son of Ebed, and his family have come to Shechem, and they are igniting the city against you. 32You should go by night with your troops and lie in wait in the fields. 33Then in the morning, when the sun comes up, march on the city; and when Gaal and his forces come out to defend it, you can deal with them.

34Abimelech and his troops prepared to do just as Zebul suggested. Four companies of men waited for morning. 35When Gaal, the son of Ebed, went outside, stood in the gate of the city, and looked out, Abimelech and his troops rose from their hiding places to attack.

Gaal (seeing them): 36Look, Zebul, people are coming down from the mountaintops!

Zebul: It's just the shadows on the mountains. They must look like men to you.

Gaal: 37*No,* look! One company is coming right down the center, and another company is coming from the direction of the fortune-teller's tree!

Zebul: 38Where are your big words now? Where is the loudmouth who said, "Who is this Abimelech, that we should serve him?" Aren't these the men you insulted? Go on, fight them!

39So Gaal gathered the leaders of Shechem, and they fought against Abimelech's forces. 40Abimelech overwhelmed Gaal and chased him and his men, many of whom were wounded and fell along the way as they retreated, all the way to the gate. 41Abimelech remained in Arumah, and Zebul threw Gaal and his people out of Shechem.

42The next day the people of Shechem went out to work the fields. After hearing this news, Abimelech 43took his troops, divided them into three groups, and set an ambush in the fields.

When he saw the people emerge from Shechem, he ordered his troops to attack them. 44Abimelech and his men captured a forward position at the city gate, cutting off any retreat. Then the other two companies of Abimelech's men swept down on the people trapped in the fields and cut them down. 45Abimelech continued his attack all day long, until he had captured Shechem and killed everyone in it. Then he demolished the city and scattered salt over the place where it had once stood.

Abimelech here carries out a devastating act in antiquity that ensures the death of an agricultural area, both food and water sources, for subsequent generations.

50Next, Abimelech went on to Thebez. He laid siege to it, captured it, and 51discovered that in the city was a strong tower where the leaders and men and women of the city had locked themselves in to escape and had climbed onto the roof. 52So he stormed the tower, ready to burn this tower as he had the other. 53But this time as he approached the entrance, a woman dropped an upper millstone upon him, crushing his skull.

Abimelech (to his armor-bearer): 54Take your sword and kill me. I won't have anyone say that I died like this—killed by a woman.

The young man killed Abimelech with the sword.

55When the people of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they all went back home.

56So God avenged the evil that Abimelech had committed against his father by murdering his 70 brothers, 57and the evil of the leaders of Shechem God brought back on their heads; everything happened just as Jotham, son of Jerubbaal, had prophesied when he cursed them all.

10 After Abimelech died, Tola (the son of Puah, son of Dodo), who was of the tribe of Issachar and who lived at Shamir in the highlands of Ephraim, rose to deliver Israel. 2He served as judge and defender of Israel for 23 years. When he died, he was buried at Shamir. 3After Tola died, Jair the Gileadite served as judge of Israel for 22 years. 4Jair had 30 sons who rode on 30 donkeys, and they had 30 towns, which are in the land of Gilead and are still called Havvoth-jair today. 5When Jair died, he was buried at Kamon.

6But again the people of Israel did what the Eternal considered to be evil right in front of Him. They worshiped the Baals and Ashtaroth, the gods of Aram and Sidon, of Moab and Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines. When they abandoned the Eternal and no longer worshiped Him, 7He became furious with them and placed them in servitude to the Philistines and Ammonites 8who crushed them and ruled over them for the next 18 years. They oppressed the Israelites east of the Jordan in Gilead, the land of the Amorites, 9and the Ammonites crossed over the Jordan to attack the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, and Ephraim; therefore, Israel was desperate. 10Then the Israelites cried out to the Eternal.

Israelites: We have sinned against You because we have abandoned our True God and worshiped the Baals.

Eternal One: 11Haven't I delivered you in the past from the armies of the Egyptians, the Amorites, the Ammonites, and the Philistines? 12Didn't I come through in your struggle against the Sidonians, the Amalekites, and the Maonites? When they swept down on you and over you, didn't I hear your cries for help and rescue you? 13Yet you have abandoned Me to worship these other gods. That is why I am finished coming to your rescue. 14Why don't you go and cry for help to the gods you have chosen instead of Me? See if they will save you now in your time of trouble!

Israelites: 15We have sinned against You. Do to us as You think best, but please rescue us this one time more!

16They put away the foreign gods they had worshiped and returned to the Eternal, and He could not bear to witness their suffering any longer.

17The Ammonites had prepared for war and were camped in Gilead, so the people of Israel gathered troops and camped at Mizpah.

Gilead Commanders *(among themselves): 18Whoever will lead the attack against the Ammonites will be the leader of all the people of Gilead!

11 Now Jephthah of Gilead was the son of a prostitute but a mighty warrior. His father was Gilead, 2but Gilead's wife bore other sons who grew up and drove Jephthah away because they did not want the son of another woman other than Gilead's wife to inherit anything from their father. 3So he ran away to the land of Tob, where he became the leader of a gang of bandits who followed him.

4-6When the Ammonites attacked Israel, the leaders of Gilead asked Jephthah to return from Tob to be their commander and lead them against the Ammonite invaders.

7Jephthah replied.

Jephthah: Ha! Aren't you the same people who hated me so much that you drove me from my father's house? And you come to me now and ask me for help?

8The leaders responded to Jephthah.

Leaders of Gilead: You're right. All the same we need your help. Come lead us against the Ammonites, and we will make you leader over us and all who live in Gilead.

9Jephthah asked the leaders of Gilead a question.

Jephthah: Let me make sure I understand this—if I come back with you to fight the Ammonites and the Eternal allows me to be victorious, you will really make me your leader?

Leaders of Gilead: 10May the Eternal be our witness. We will do as you say.

11So Jephthah returned with the leaders of Gilead; the people made him their leader and commander, and Jephthah repeated his words before the Eternal at Mizpah.

12Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites.

Jephthah's Message: What do you have against me? Why are you attacking my people in my land?

13This king of the Ammonites answered Jephthah's messengers.

King of the Ammonites: Israel, when it traveled out of Egypt, took away my land from the Arnon River to the Jabbok and from the Jabbok all the way to the Jordan. Give it back, and we will be at peace.

14Jephthah once again sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites.

Jephthah's Message: 15Here is my response to your claim: Israel did not take away the land of the Ammonites or the Moabites. 16When my people came up out of Egypt, Israel passed through the desert to the Red Sea and on to Kadesh. 17At that time, Israel sent a messenger to the king of Edom, asking for permission to travel through his country. But the king would not hear us. Israel also sent a request to the king of Moab, but he also refused. So Israel remained where they were, at Kadesh.

18Then they traveled through the wilderness, passing around the lands of Edom and Moab; and on the eastern edge of Moab, they camped on the far bank of the Arnon, well outside the border of Moab. 19Israel then sent messengers to Sihon, king of the Amorites, in Heshbon, asking, "Let us pass through your land to reach our own country." 20But Sihon, too, did not trust Israel. He gathered his armies at Jahaz and went to war with us. 21Then the Eternal One, the True God of Israel, gave us victory over Sihon and all his people, and we defeated them utterly. That's why Israel occupied the land of the Amorites, who had inhabited that territory, 22all of the Amorite land from the Arnon to the Jabbok, from the wilderness to the Jordan. 23The Eternal One, the True God of Israel, conquered the Amorites for the good of His people, Israel. Do you think you can replace them?

24Are you unsatisfied with what your god, Chemosh, has given you? We will possess what the Eternal One, our True God has given us. 25Are you a greater king than Balak, son of Zippor, king of Moab? Did he ever have a conflict with Israel or go to war against us? 26For 300 years we have occupied Heshbon and its surrounding villages, Aroer and its villages, and all the towns along the Arnon. Why haven't you ever attempted to recover them until now?

27I have not done any wrong to you, but you have wronged me by going to war against me and my people. So let the Eternal, the Judge over us all, decide today who will triumph in this conflict between Israel and Ammon.

28The king of the Ammonites ignored the message Jephthah sent him.

29Then the Spirit of the Eternal descended on Jephthah, and he traveled through Gilead and Manasseh, through Mizpah of Gilead to confront the Ammonite army.

30Jephthah made a vow to the Eternal One.

Jephthah: If you will give me victory over the Ammonites, 31then I will make a burnt offering of the first thing that comes out of my door to meet me when I return in victory.

32Jephthah went to battle, and the Eternal gave him victory over the Ammonites. 33His army conquered 20 towns, from Aroer to near Minnith all the way to Abelkeramim, and Israel defeated Ammon decisively.

34But when Jephthah came home in triumph to Mizpah, who should rush out to meet him but his daughter, dancing and playing a tambourine? She was his only child; he had no other sons or daughters. 35When Jephthah saw her, he tore his clothes in grief.

Jephthah: O, my daughter, no! You have just made me miserable; you have brought me to my knees! I have made a vow to the Eternal, and I cannot break it.

Daughter: 36My father, the Eternal God has given you victory over your enemies the Ammonites. If you have made a vow to Him, then do what you have promised to do to me.

37But please give me two months to go and weep in the highlands with my friends, since I will never love a man and raise a family.

Jephthah: 38You may go.

She and her friends went away and wailed upon the mountains because she would never know the love of a man; 39then when two months had passed, she returned to her father, and he did to her as he had vowed. Since she had never slept with a man, a custom arose in Israel 40that every year the young women in Israel would go out for four days to lament the fate of the daughter of Jephthah of Gilead.

► The judges are often people of great faith or great strength or great power who lead and direct. But like all of us, they are imperfect and sometimes make grave mistakes. Jephthah's name is now remembered mostly because of the foolish vow he makes to sacrifice the first thing he sees when he returns from his great victory. Although this vow comes out of his unfaithfulness—Jephthah does not trust God to give him victory—Jephthah shows immense faithfulness in keeping his word despite the tragic consequence of losing his only child.

12 Some time later, the men of the northern tribe of Ephraim mustered their forces, crossed over to Zaphon, and confronted Jephthah.

Ephraimites: What do you mean, going to war with the Ammonites without asking us to fight with you? You left us out of the battle just as Gideon did. We'll burn your house down with you in it!

Jephthah: 2My people and I were in the middle of a great struggle with the Ammonites, who had us in an iron grip. But when I called for help, you didn't show up to deliver me out of their hand. 3So when I saw you weren't going to help, I took my fate in my own hands and crossed over to fight the Ammonites, and the Eternal gave me the victory. So why are you here now to fight against me?

4Jephthah gathered the men of Gilead and went to war with Ephraim. The men of Gilead defeated them because the Ephraimites told them they were rabble, fugitives from the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, renegades who had abandoned their tribes.

5The men of Gilead captured the fords in the Jordan that led to Ephraim. Whenever a surviving Ephraimite asked to cross over, the men of Gilead would ask, "Are you from Ephraim?" If the man said no, 6they told him, "All right. Say 'Shibboleth.'" And if he said "Sibboleth," they took him and killed him, for he could not pronounce it correctly, betraying that he was from Ephraim. So there at the fords of the Jordan 42,000 Ephraimites were killed in those days.

► The dialect difference between the "sh" sound on the east side of the Jordan in Gilead and the "s" sound on the west side of the Jordan in Ephraim is noticeable to both tribes.

7Jephthah led Israel as judge for 6 years, and when Jephthah of Gilead died, he was buried in a town in Gilead.

8After Jephthah, Ibzan of Bethlehem rose as judge of Israel. 9He had 30 sons and 30 daughters. To marry his sons, he brought in 30 young women from outside the clan, and he gave his 30 daughters in marriage to outsiders. Ibzan judged Israel 7 years; 10and when he died, he was buried at Bethlehem.

11After Ibzan, Elon the Zebulunite was judge of Israel for 10 years. 12When Elon the Zebulunite died, he was buried at Aijalon, in the land of Zebulun.

13After Elon, Abdon, the son of Hillel the Pirathonite, was judge of Israel. 14-15He had 40 sons and 30 grandsons; they rode on 70 donkeys. Abdon, son of Hillel the Pirathonite, judged Israel 8 years; and when he died, he was buried at Pirathon in the land of Ephraim, in the hill country of the Amalekites.

13 Once again, though, the Israelites did evil according to the Eternal God, and He gave the Philistines power over them for 40 years. 2*During that time,* a man of Zorah named Manoah, from the tribe of Dan, was married to a wife who could bear him no children.

Messenger of the Eternal One *(appearing to Manoah's wife): 3You are barren and have no children, but all of that is about to change. You will conceive and have a son. 4Be careful that you don't drink wine or any other spirits (strong drink), and don't eat anything that is ritually impure, 5for you are going to become pregnant and have a son. Don't ever use a razor on his head, because you will raise this boy as a Nazirite, dedicated to the True God from his conception, and he will be the one to begin delivering Israel from the Philistines.

Manoah's Wife *(to her husband): 6A man of the True God visited me. He looked like a messenger of God, awe-inspiring. I didn't ask where he came from, and he didn't tell me his name, 7but he told me that I was going to become pregnant and bear a son. He told me not to drink wine or other spirits or to eat anything ritually unclean because our boy is to be a Nazirite, set apart for God from the day he is conceived until the day he dies.

Manoah (to the Lord): [8]Eternal One, please let the man of God whom you sent visit us again and teach us what to do with the boy You are giving us.

[9]The True God heard Manoah and sent His messenger to visit the woman one day while she was in the fields. Manoah was not with her, [10]so she ran to tell him.

Manoah's Wife: Look, the man who spoke to me the other day is here again!

[11]Manoah got up, followed his wife, and came to where the man was.

Manoah (to the messenger): Are you the one who spoke to my wife the other day?

Messenger of the Eternal One: I am.

Manoah: [12]When your words come true, what rules should we apply to the boy? What is his mission in life?

Messenger of the Eternal One: [13]Your wife should do as I told her on my first visit. [14]She must not eat or drink of the vine, she must not drink any other strong drink, and she must not eat foods that are ritually impure. She must do all that I have commanded.

Manoah: [15]If you will wait, we would like to prepare a young goat for you to eat.

Messenger of the Eternal One: [16]Even if you try to detain me, I will not eat your food. If you prepare a burnt offering, offer it to the Eternal.

Manoah had not realized that he was speaking to the Eternal's messenger. [17]That is why he asked the Eternal's messenger a question.

Manoah: What is your name, so that we may honor you when your words become truth?

Messenger of the Eternal One: [18]Why do you ask my name? It is incomprehensible, beyond human understanding.

[19]Manoah took the young goat, together with the offering of grain, and sacrificed it on a rock to the Eternal, to the wonder-working God. While Manoah and his wife watched [20]the flame going up toward heaven from the altar, the Eternal's messenger rose up to heaven in the flames, and Manoah and his wife put their faces to the ground. [21]When he did not reappear, Manoah realized that they had seen the Eternal's messenger.

Manoah (to his wife): [22]We are most certainly going to die, for we have seen the True God!

Manoah's Wife: [23]If the Eternal had desired to kill us, then He would not have accepted the grain and burnt offerings from us or shown us these wonders or brought these announcements at this time.

[24]In due time, the woman did bear a son, and she named him Samson. The boy grew, the Eternal God blessed him, [25]and the Spirit of the Eternal One began to move in him in Mahaneh-dan, between Zorah and Eshtaol.

14 Samson went down from the hill country to the Philistine town of Timnah, on the coastal plain, and he saw a Philistine woman there. [2]When he came home, he told his parents,

Samson: I saw this woman in Timnah who captured my attention. She's a Philistine, but I want her for a wife. I beg you, make the arrangements for her to be my wife.

Samson's Parents: [3]What? Isn't there a single woman among your tribe, among all of our people, the people of Israel? Do you have to take a wife from among the uncircumcised Philistines?

Samson (to his father): You have to get her for me. She is the one and is pleasing in my eyes.

► The longer the Israelites are in Canaan, the more they find themselves drawn into the beliefs and practices of those around them. Samson, although he is a deliverer of his people and set aside by God, demonstrates the worst traits of his people. He actually takes a wife from among the other people who are trying to conquer Canaan, the Philistines.

But in all of this, we are told, God is working out a purpose; Samson has the Spirit of God. Not only does God use imperfect human beings for His own designs, but God can use human weakness to achieve His goals. Samson's weakness, although it leads to his personal destruction, becomes God's strength and leads to great victories for Israel.

4Samson's parents did not know that this passion was planned by the Eternal, who was working out a way to move against the Philistines who ruled over Israel.

8So Samson returned later to marry her, and on the journey, he turned aside to see again the carcass of the lion he had killed. A swarm of bees was in the carcass, where they had made their hive with some honey. 9*Although he had been set aside as a Nazirite, and was not supposed to touch a corpse,* he scraped some honey out and went on, eating it from his hands. When he came to his parents, he gave some of it to them to eat, but he did not tell them where he had gotten it.

10His father went ahead to the Philistine woman, and Samson made a wedding feast with food and drink, as was the custom for young men being married. 11The Philistines of the bridal party invited 30 men to serve as companions for Samson at the feast, since he had not brought any of his friends.

Samson *(to the 30 young men): 12I have a riddle for you. If you can solve it during the seven days we eat and drink here, I will give each of you a set of linen garments and a change of clothes. 13If you cannot solve it in the seven days, then you will have to give me 30 linen garments and 30 sets of clothes.

Thirty Men: Ask away. What is your riddle?

Samson: 14Out of the eater came something to eat, and out of the strong came something sweet.

For three days the young men puzzled over Samson's riddle. 15On the fourth* day, they went to Samson's wife and threatened her.

Thirty Men: Trick your husband, seduce him if necessary, whatever it takes to find out the answer to this riddle, or we will burn down your father's house with you in it. Did you invite us to this party just to take away what is ours?

16Samson's wife went to him and wept in front of him.

Samson's Wife: You say you love me, but you don't. You asked my people a riddle, but you haven't told me the answer.

Samson: I haven't even told my parents the answer. Why should I tell you?

17She went on crying until the seventh day of the feast; and, at last, because she continued to bother him, he told her the answer. Then she reported it to the young men, 18so that before the sun went down on the last day of the feast, they knew the answer.

Thirty Men: What is sweeter than honey?
And what is stronger than a lion?

Samson: If you hadn't gone behind my back with my wife, you would never have found the answer to this riddle.

19The Spirit of the Eternal came upon Samson, and he immediately received great strength. He went down to the Philistine town of Ashkelon where he killed 30 men, took their possessions, and gave their garments in payment to the young men who had answered his riddle. Then, furious, he left the feast and went back up to his father's house, [20]and Samson's wife was instead given to the companion who had been his best man.

* 14:15 Hebrew reads, "seventh."

15 Later, during the time of the wheat harvest, Samson tried to return to his wife, bringing with him a young goat.

Samson: I want to go in and be with my wife.

But his father-in-law refused.

Samson's Father-in-law: [2]When you left us, I thought you didn't want her anymore. So I gave her to your companion from the feast. Anyway her younger sister is much prettier than she is. Why don't you take her instead?

Samson: [3]This time no one will blame me when I hurt the Philistines.

[4]Samson went and caught 300 foxes. Tying them tail-to-tail, he put a torch between each pair of tails [5]so that when they were lit, the foxes ran into the fields of the Philistines and burned everything up. The grain standing in the fields burned, as well as the grain that had been gathered up along with the olive groves and the vineyards.

Philistines (seeing the disaster): [6]Who did this?

Other Philistines: Samson, the son-in-law of the man from Timnah, because he gave Samson's wife away to his best man.

So the Philistines went and set their house afire, and Samson's wife and her father were burned alive.

Samson: [7]Is this how it's going to be? Then I won't stop until I have taken great revenge on you.

[8]So he fought them mercilessly and killed many of them. And then he went and hid out in a cave near the rock of Etam.

[9]A company of Philistines went up then and camped in Judah, where they made a raid against Lehi.

Men of Judah (to the company of Philistines): [10]Why are you doing this?

Philistines: We've come up to capture Samson, to make him suffer the way he has made us suffer.

Then 3,000 men of Judah went to the rock of Etam to talk to Samson.

Men of Judah (to Samson): [11]Are you crazy? The Philistines are our masters! They have the upper hand. Don't you know what you're doing to us?

Samson: I'm only paying them back for what they have done to me.

Men of Judah: [12]We've come to capture you and take you to the Philistines.

Samson: Will you swear not to kill me yourselves?

Men of Judah: [13]We agree not to kill you, but we will tie you up and hand you over to them.

So they tied him with two new ropes and led him away from the cave near the rock of Etam. [14]When the Philistines at Lehi saw them coming, they raised a mighty shout and ran to seize Samson. At that moment, the Spirit of the Eternal came upon Samson, and he immediately had great strength. He broke free of the ropes on his arms, as if they were no more than string burned with fire, and the bonds fell from his hands. [15]Grabbing up a fresh jawbone of a donkey, he began fighting them. That day he killed 1,000 Philistines.

Samson (singing): [16]With the jawbone of a donkey,
I have piled them high.
With the jawbone of a donkey,
I have killed 1,000 men.

[17]When he finished his triumphant song, he threw away the jawbone, and he called that place Ramath-lehi, "the high place of the jawbone." [18]He was now very thirsty from his exertion, and he cried to the Eternal.

Samson: You have given this great victory into my hands. But am I going to die of thirst now and fall into the hands of the uncircumcised Philistines?

[19]Then God split open a place in the rock at Lehi so that water gushed out. When Samson drank, he found his strength returned and his spirit revived. So that place was called En-hakkore, "the spring of the one who called," and it is still in Lehi to this day.

20Samson judged and delivered Israel during the days of the Philistines for 20 years.

16 When Samson went to Gaza, he saw a prostitute there who pleased him, so he went in to be with her. 2Word went out to the men of Gaza that Samson had arrived. So they surrounded the house and waited quietly for him at the city gate, thinking, "When morning comes, we will strike him down." 3But Samson fooled the men of Gaza: he stayed with the prostitute only until midnight. Then he rose from the bed, took hold of the closed city gates, and pulled them, still barred, and the posts that held them, out of the ground. Then he hoisted them onto his shoulders and carried them up onto the hill in front of Hebron.

4After this he fell in love with Delilah, a woman from the valley of Sorek. 5The rulers of the Philistines came to her with a plan.

Philistine Rulers: If you can charm him into giving you the secret of his great strength so that we can overpower and capture him, each of us will give you 1,100 pieces of silver.

6Delilah agreed. On one of their visits, she questioned him.

Delilah *(to Samson): What makes you so strong? How could anyone bind you and control you?

Samson: 7If you were to bind me with seven fresh bowstrings that have not dried yet, I would be weak and no different from any other man.

It seems as though Samson is toying with Delilah in his answer.

8The Philistine rulers brought Delilah seven fresh bowstrings. As Samson slept, she bound him with them. 9When the warriors had taken their places in the inner chamber, Delilah called out to him.

Delilah: Wake up, Samson! The Philistines are attacking!

But he snapped the bowstrings the way a thread snaps when it is touched by a flame and fended off the attackers. So the secret of his strength remained hidden.

Delilah *(to Samson): 10You're making fun of me now. You haven't told me the truth. Please tell me: how could I bind you and take away your strength?

Samson: 11If you were to bind me with new ropes that have never been used, I would be weak and no different from any other man.

12Using new ropes Delilah bound Samson as he slept. When the warriors had taken their places in the inner chamber, Delilah called out to him.

Delilah: Wake up, Samson! The Philistines are attacking!

But he snapped the ropes like a thread and fended off the attackers. So the secret of his strength remained hidden.

Delilah *(to Samson): 13You just go on making fun of me. You haven't told me the truth. Please tell me: how could I bind you and take away your strength?

Samson: If you were to weave my seven locks of hair into the loom's web and make it tight with a pin, I would be weak and no different from any other man.

14While he slept, Delilah wove his seven locks of hair into the loom's web and tightened it with the weaver's comb. When the warriors had taken their places in the inner chamber, Delilah called out,

Delilah: Wake up, Samson! The Philistines are attacking!

But Samson woke up and easily pulled out the comb from the loom and his hair from the web and fended off the attackers. So the secret of his strength remained hidden.

Delilah: 15How can you say you love me when your actions prove your heart is somewhere else? Three times now you've lied to me and haven't told me why you have such great strength.

16She continued to ask him, day after day, always nagging; and finally he was tired of it, so tired he couldn't stand to hear it any longer. 17Samson told her the truth.

Samson: I have been a Nazirite, set aside to God since I was in my mother's womb, and my hair has never been cut. If my head were shaved, my strength would vanish. I would be weak and no different from any other man.

18 Delilah at last saw that he was telling her the truth. She sent for the rulers of the Philistines and told them, "This time he has told me his whole secret." So the lords of the Philistines came, bringing the money they had promised to pay her for betraying Samson.

► Samson's bride and Delilah are both presented as unfaithful and deceitful, and Delilah's name has become synonymous with any wily and seductive woman who wants to ruin a man. Although these betrayals are part of God's purpose, some readers have used these particular stories to put down all women. It's good to remind ourselves that earlier in the Book of Judges God uses Deborah and Jael, brave and strong women, to achieve His purpose. The characters in the story of God's people—men and women alike—are sometimes good and sometimes evil. Even a Levite, someone set aside to the priesthood of God, can behave with selfishness and cowardice.

19 She helped Samson fall asleep in her lap and called in a man to shave off the seven locks of Samson's hair. Immediately his strength left him. 20 This time she called to him.

Delilah: Wake up, Samson! The Philistines are attacking!

His strength was gone. Samson woke up and thought he would shake himself free, as he had before, because he did not know that the Spirit of the Eternal had left him.

21 But this time the Philistines seized and held him. They put out his eyes. Then they took him to Gaza, where they bound him with bronze chains and put him to work grinding grain in the prison mill. 22 But while he was there, his hair began to grow back.

23 One day, the rulers of the Philistines gathered for a festival of sacrifice to their god Dagon to celebrate Dagon giving their great enemy, Samson, into their control. 24 Whenever the Philistines saw Samson trudging in the mill, it made them joyful.

Philistines: Our god has given us the great ravager of our land, Samson, who killed so many of us.

25 And during the festival when they were feeling merry, they called for Samson.

Philistine Mob: Bring Samson out, and have him entertain us.

So Samson was led out of the prison and brought before all the people gathered for the festival. They displayed him between the pillars for their entertainment, 26 and Samson spoke to the boy leading him.

Samson: Put me between the main pillars, the ones that hold up the roof, so that I can lean against them.

27 For this occasion the building was full of people—men and women and all the rulers of the Philistines were there. About 3,000 people stood on the roof watching as Samson leaned against the pillars. The crowd watched and waited with anticipation.

Samson (crying out to the Lord): 28 Lord, Eternal One, remember me and fill me with strength this one last time, O True God, so that with this last act of revenge I can pay back the Philistines for the loss of my sight.

29 He took hold of the two main pillars of the building, the ones supporting the roof, and he leaned hard against them, his right hand on one, his left hand on the other.

Samson: 30 Let me die here with the Philistines.

He pushed with all his might. The pillars gave; the building collapsed on the rulers and all the Philistine people who were in it. The number of enemies that he killed at his death was greater than the number of Philistines he had killed during the rest of his life.

31 Then his brothers and the rest of his family came down from the hill country and took his body back up to be buried between the towns of Zorah and Eshtaol in the burial ground of his father Manoah. Samson had been judge of Israel for 20 years.

17 A man named Micah lived in the hill country of Ephraim.

Micah (to his mother): 2Do you remember those 1,100 pieces of silver that were stolen from you? I heard you curse the person who took them. Well, I have them. I took them, and now I want to return them to you.

Micah's Mother: May my son be blessed by the Eternal!

3He returned the 1,100 pieces of silver to her.

Micah's Mother: I want to give this silver as a holy offering to the Eternal from me for my son to create an image in cast silver.

4After Micah returned the silver, she took 200 of the coins returned by her son and gave them to the silversmith, who cast an idol that was kept in Micah's house. 5Micah had a shrine, and in his house he had a priestly vest used in seeking oracles and the images of household gods. He had set aside one of his sons to be his priest. 6In those days of the judges, there was no king in Israel, and everyone did what seemed right in his own eyes.

7Now in Bethlehem in Judah, there was a young man who was a Levite, from the tribe of priests, and he was sojourning among the clan of Judah. 8He left Bethlehem in Judah to make his way as best he could. On his way, he arrived at Micah's home in the hill country of Ephraim seeking work.

Micah: 9Where are you from?

Levite: I am a Levite from Bethlehem in Judah, and I am traveling and looking for a place to live and work.

Micah: 10You can stay here. Be a father and a priest to me; and I will give you 10 silver pieces a year, a set of clothes, and your room and board.

11The Levite agreed to stay with Micah and came in to live with him like one of his sons. 12So Micah installed the Levite as priest in his house.

Micah: 13Now I know that the Eternal will look with favor on me, since I have invited this Levite to be my priest.

18 During this period, Israel had no king, and the tribe of Dan was searching for a territory they could call their own because at that time they had not been assigned land among the other peoples of Israel. 2So the people of Dan chose five brave men from out of the entire tribe, men from the towns of Zorah and Eshtaol, to explore the land and to seek a new home for them. "Go and explore the land," was their charge.

When they reached the hill country of Ephraim, they stayed in Micah's home. 3As they came near Micah's house, they recognized from his speech that the Levite priest was not from around there.

Danite Spies (to the young Levite): Who brought you here? What are you doing in this place? Why are you here?

Levite: 4*To make a long story short,* Micah made all this happen for me and put me to work. I serve him as his priest.

Danite Spies: 5Ask the True God if our mission will succeed.

Levite: 6Go in peace. The Eternal is watching over you on this mission.

7The five spies went on their way and came to Laish, in the northern of the land of Canaan, where they observed that the people seemed to live without concern for their security, like the people of Sidon, quiet and without suspicion, lacking in nothing, and in peace. They were far from Sidon and were not allied with anyone.

Danite Spies: 9Come on, let's gather our forces and go to war against them, for we have seen the land and it is good. Why are you just sitting there? Don't waste another minute here. Let's go in and take that land. 10When you get there, you'll see that they don't suspect any danger. The land is large and is full of every good thing on earth, and God has given it into our hands.

11Then 600 men from the tribe of Dan armed themselves for war and set out from Zorah and Eshtaol. 12These warriors of Dan went up and camped at Kiriath-jearim, or city of forests, in Judah, which is why the place just to the west is still called Mahaneh-dan, camp of Dan. 13From there, they entered the hill country of Ephraim and approached Micah's house. 14The five spies who had scouted out the land of Laish spoke to their fellow warriors.

Danite Spies: Did you know that in these houses (the village where Micah lived) are a priestly vest, their household gods, and a cast image of silver? Give some thought to what you would like to do now.

15They turned and went in the direction of the young Levite's house at Micah's place and greeted him. 16So the 600 Danite warriors waited outside the gate, ready to attack, 17while the five men who had spied out the land were to go inside to take the sacred objects: the ritual vestment, the household gods, and the cast image of silver. The priest stood at the gates with the warriors; 18and when the five took the priestly vest, household gods, and the cast image of silver, he said to them, Levite: What are you doing?

Danite Spies: 19Be quiet. Keep silent, come with us, and be a father and a priest to us. Isn't it better for you to be priest and father to an entire tribe and clan of Israel than to a single household?

20The priest agreed. He took possession of the ritual vestment, household idols, and carved image and joined the people of Dan on their journey. 21They traveled on, putting their children, livestock, and their possessions in front of the procession. 22But when they had traveled some distance from Micah's home, his friends who lived nearby gathered together and chased after the people of Dan.

When they caught up to them, 23they shouted after the people of Dan.

Danites *(to Micah): What's wrong? What brings so many of you out after us?

Micah: 24*What's wrong?* You steal my household gods and my priest and go off, and where does that leave me? What do you mean, "What's wrong?"

Danites: 25You would be wise to lower your voice, or else some hot-tempered individuals among us are likely to attack you. Then you'll lose your life and the lives of those you care about.

26With this the people of Dan went on their way. Micah saw that there were too many of them for him to protest any further, so he turned and went back home.

27The people of Dan, having taken Micah's household gods and his priest, came to Laish; and there they attacked those people who were quiet and without suspicion, killed them without mercy, and burned down their city. 28No one came to save the people of Laish, since they were far from Sidon and had no treaties with anyone. This all happened in the valley that is near Beth-rehob, house of a broad place. The Danites rebuilt the city there and lived in it. 29They changed the name of the city from Laish to Dan, after their ancestor and namesake who was born to Israel (also called Jacob). 30There the people of Dan set up the carved image for themselves, and Jonathan (son of Gershom, son of Moses) and his sons became the priests to Dan and were their priests until the people of Israel were taken off into captivity. 31They kept the carved image of Micah as their own for as long as the house of the True God was at Shiloh.

19 During this period, when there was no king in Israel, a certain Levite from the remote part of the hill country of Ephraim had a mistress* from Bethlehem in Judah. 2But she was unfaithful to him and returned home to her father in Bethlehem in Judah, and was away from the Levite for four months. 3Then he went after her, to speak kindly with her and convince her to come home with him. He brought his servant and two donkeys with him. When the Levite reached her father's house, the woman's father saw him and went joyfully out to welcome him and brought him into the house.

4Her father made him stay for three days, so the Levite stayed there, eating and drinking. 5On the fourth day, they got up early to prepare to leave.

The Woman's Father: What's your hurry? Have something to eat, build up your strength, and then you can go.

6So the two men ate and drank.

* 19:1 Throughout this account (19:1–20:47) of the Levite and his relationship with the mistress, the Hebrew uses the term for a married couple. Because the English terminology for marriage does not reflect the relationship revealed in this account, marriage is not used.

The Woman's Father: Why don't you stay another night and enjoy yourself?

7When the Levite got up to go, his mistress's father kept urging him to stay, so, at last, he did.

8On the fifth day, they got up early to prepare to leave.

The Woman's Father: What's your hurry? Have something to eat; build up your strength this morning. Wait and leave this afternoon.

So the two men sat, eating and drinking.

9When the Levite, his mistress, and his servant got up to go, the woman's father tried to persuade them.

The Woman's Father: Look, it's almost evening. The day is almost gone. Why don't you stay another night and enjoy yourself? Tomorrow you can rise early and begin your trip home.

10But the Levite did not want to stay another night; he gathered them, and they set out. They reached the city of the Jebusites (the city we call Jerusalem), riding on donkeys. 11When they were near the city of the Jebusites, the day was almost done.

Servant: Let's spend the night here in this city of the Jebusites.

Levite: 12No, we won't stop here in this city of foreigners, people who are not of Israel, but we'll travel on to Gibeah. 13Let's see if we can reach one of those towns and spend the night in Gibeah or Ramah.

14So they traveled on, and the sun set as they were at Gibeah, which belongs to the tribe of Benjamin. 15They turned off the road, with the intention of staying the night, and went to sit in the city square yet no one invited the Levite and his party home to spend the night.

As was the social custom in antiquity, hospitality is a significant mark of honor. Likewise inhospitality is a significant mark of social shame.

16At last, after evening fell, an old man coming in from his work in the fields noticed them. He was not of the people of Benjamin, but a man from the hill country of Ephraim who was living in Gibeah. 17The old man saw them sitting there in the square.

Old Man: Where are you going? Where are you from?

Levite: 18We are traveling from Bethlehem in Judah to the far parts of the hill country of Ephraim. I went to Bethlehem in Judah, and I am returning to my home. No one yet has offered us hospitality. 19We, your servants, have straw and food for the donkeys, and we also have bread and wine, enough for me, my mistress, and my young servant. We don't require anything else.

Old Man: 20Peace be with you. I will take care of everything you need, but do not spend the night in the square.

21The old man took them home and fed their donkeys. They washed the dust of the road from their feet, ate, and drank. 22While they were eating and drinking, the men of the city, an evil assembly, surrounded the house and began beating on the door. They called to the owner.

Men of the City: Bring out your guest, the man whom you have welcomed into your house. We want to have sexual relations with him!

Old Man *(pleading with them): 23I beg you. Don't do this wicked thing to the traveler I have welcomed into my care. 24I have a virgin daughter, and this man has a mistress. I will bring them out to you to do what you want with them, but don't dishonor my guest with your wickedness.

25The men would not listen. At last the Levite seized his mistress and pushed her outside. They raped her repeatedly and abused her all night long until the sun came up, when they left her alone. 26Then the woman crept to the doorway of the house where her master had spent the night. She collapsed and lay there as the sun rose in the sky. 27Her master, at last, woke and rose; and when he went to the door to prepare to go on his way, there was his mistress, lying near the doorway, her hands on the threshold.

Levite: 28Get up. It's time for us to go.

But she could not answer him. He put her body on the donkey and set out for home.

29When he reached his house, he went in and found a knife. Then holding her firmly, he cut her body up into twelve pieces, cut her limb from limb, and these he sent throughout Israel. 30*And as the pieces were received,* anyone who saw this horrible display said, "Nothing like this outrage has ever happened in Israel since we came up from the land of Egypt. Think about it, weigh it carefully, and decide what to do."

► Certainly the "outrage" the Israelites are reacting to is the Levite's brutal dismemberment of the woman. Why would someone slaughter a woman and send her parts across the country? What is the meaning behind this heinous crime?

Once they hear the Levite's story of his attack by the Benjaminites, the community of Israel supports the Levite and holds Benjamin accountable for the Gibean men's wicked actions. When all the tribes come to the aid of the Levite, we see an Israel that is united—against Benjamin. This story lays the groundwork for our understanding of relations between the tribes as Israel enters the monarchical period. Saul, the first king and a Benjaminite, will abandon the laws of his God and will be replaced by David from Judah, who has the support of the rest of Israel.

20 All the people of Israel from Dan to Beersheba, including the people who dwelt beyond the Jordan River in Gilead, gathered as one before the Eternal at Mizpah. 2The leaders of every tribe, of all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves to the assembly, to the 400,000 soldiers armed for war. 3(And the people of Benjamin heard that the other tribes had gathered at Mizpah.)

Israelites: Tell us, what happened to bring about this criminal act?

Levite (standing in front of the assembly): 4I arrived in Gibeah in Benjamin with my mistress. We only wanted to spend the night, 5but the leaders of the city came to the house where we were staying and surrounded it, wanting to attack me. They intended to kill me, but they raped my mistress until she died. 6So I took her body and cut her into pieces and sent her throughout our land that is Israel's inheritance so that everyone could know what an outrage the men of Gibeah have committed! 7So now, you people of Israel, I am looking to you for counsel. What should we do?

Not only is this act an outrage against the custom of hospitality in that day, but it is a gross violation of the life of another human being.

Israelites (standing together): 8We will not return to our tents, and we will not go home to our houses, 9but this is what we will do to Gibeah: We will cast lots to choose who will go into battle against it. 10We will also choose 10 men from every 100 throughout Israel, 100 of every 1,000, and 1,000 of every 10,000 to bring provisions for the troops who will go to repay the disgrace done by Gibeah of Benjamin against the rest of Israel.

11So all the people of Israel gathered against Gibeah, united in their judgment, intent on action.

12The tribes of Israel sent messengers throughout the land of Benjamin.

Messengers: Do you know what has happened? What about this crime that has been committed among you? 13Turn over those perverted men from Gibeah so we can put them to death and cleanse this evil from Israel!

But the people of Benjamin would not listen to their kinsmen, the other tribes of Israel. 14The Benjaminites gathered together, out of their towns, to Gibeah to go to battle against the rest of Israel. 15-16They gathered a force of 26,000 armed men, in addition to the men of Gibeah, all of them worthy fighting men. Seven hundred of these were left-handed warriors who could sling a stone so accurately that they could hit any target, no matter how small.

17Opposing them were the forces of Israel, 400,000 warriors strong.

18The people of Israel went up to Bethel to ask of the True God who should press the first day's attack.

Israelites: What tribe should lead us in battle against Benjamin?

God: Judah shall lead the attack.

19The people of Israel rose up in the morning and encamped against Gibeah, 20where they went into battle against the warriors of Benjamin. 21That first day the warriors of Benjamin came out of Gibeah and won a great victory, striking down 22,000 warriors of Israel.

23The people of Israel presented themselves before the Eternal and wept until evening came. They laid before Him the question:

Israelites: Should we go back into battle tomorrow against our kin, the Benjaminites?

Eternal One: Yes. Go back into battle.

22The warriors of Israel took courage and drew up their battle lines where they had been at the beginning of the fight on the first day.* 24-25*In obedience to God,* for a second day the Israelites advanced against the Benjaminites. But the warriors of Benjamin came out of Gibeah, struck down 18,000 warriors of Israel, and won another great victory.

26So all the people of Israel, all the warriors, went back to Bethel to weep before the Eternal. They fasted until evening came, and then they offered sacrifices and burnt offerings before the Eternal. 27Again the Israelites questioned the Eternal (for in those days, the covenant chest was still with them, 28and the priest Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, ministered before it.)

Israelites: Should we go back again into battle against our kin, the Benjaminites, or should we give up?

Eternal One: Go up again. Tomorrow I will give you victory.

29So the warriors of Israel changed their strategy and secretly stationed warriors around Gibeah, ready to ambush the Benjaminites. 30The third day they lined up as before and went into battle against Gibeah. 31When the warriors of Benjamin came out, they were drawn away from the city. As before, they began to draw blood, striking down their foes along the main roads (one of which goes to Bethel, the other back to Gibeah) as well as in the open country. About 30 men of Israel fell, 32and the warriors of Benjamin thought they would succeed again.

Benjaminites: This is just like the first time! We're going to destroy the Israelites today just as we did earlier.

But the Israelites were following a new plan: they began to retreat to draw the Benjaminites farther away from the city toward the roads. 33So the majority of Israelite troops pulled back to a line at Baal-tamar, while the hidden group waiting in ambush rushed out of their hiding place on the plain in Maareh-geba. 34Then 10,000 of the hardiest Israelite warriors rushed against Gibeah. The battle was a fierce one, and the warriors of Benjamin did not realize that their end was near. 35For the Eternal defeated Benjamin that day before the people of Israel, who killed 25,100 of them, almost all their men at arms. 36-37Then the people of Benjamin realized their crushing defeat.

The warriors of Israel had retreated before their foes, trusting the men lying in ambush who had rushed upon Gibeah and destroyed the entire city. 38Their plan was that when the ambushers sent a cloud of smoke from the city, 39the main force would turn on the pursuing warriors of Benjamin, thinking that since they had already slain 30 men and the warriors of Israel were retreating, they were going to be victorious over them again.

40But the Benjaminites were surprised. The Israelite warriors who entered Gibeah sent up a towering column of smoke; and the warriors of Benjamin turned around to see their refuge, the entire city, burning! 41The main force of Israel turned and began attacking fiercely, and the warriors of Benjamin lost heart, for their doom was upon them. 42-43They ran from the warriors of Israel toward the wilderness, but they were caught, both from behind and by the victorious soldiers emerging from the ruined Gibeah.

The slaughter continued from Nohah to the east of Gibeah, 44and 18,000 courageous warriors fell. 45Of those who turned and fled in the direction of the wilderness to the rock of Rimmon, 5,000 of those were slain on the main road and another 2,000 were pursued as far as Gidom. 46So in all, the people of Benjamin suffered the loss of 25,000 fighting men, all of them courageous warriors.

* 20:22 Verses 22 and 23 have been transposed to help clarify the sequence of events.

47Six hundred of them survived; they had fled to the rock of Rimmon, where they remained for four months. 48*In the meantime,* the warriors of Israel had done their best to destroy the people of Benjamin, killing them, destroying their livestock, and burning every city and town they encountered.

21 One thing the people of Israel had sworn in their council at Mizpah was that no tribe would give wives to the men of Benjamin. 2The people returned to Bethel, house of God, and there they cried out and wept bitterly before the True God until evening.

Israelites: 3Why, Eternal One, True God of Israel, has this happened? Why do we have one less Israelite tribe today?

4The next day, the people rose early and built an altar, and they made sacrifices and presented burnt offerings and peace offerings.

Israelites: 5What tribe, of all of the tribes of Israel, did not come up to the assembly of the Eternal at Mizpah?

For they had also taken a solemn oath that whoever did not come before the Eternal at Mizpah would be put to death.

6The people of Israel were moved with pity toward their kin, the tribe of Benjamin.

Israelites: Look, one tribe of Israel has been cut off from the rest of us. 7How can the survivors of Benjamin get wives, since we have all sworn by the Eternal not to give them our daughters? 8Are there any of the tribes of Israel that did not come up before the Eternal at Mizpah?

And it turned out that nobody from Jabesh-gilead had come up to the assembly; 9when the roll was called throughout the camp, none from Jabesh-gilead were present.

10-11So those gathered there commissioned 12,000 courageous fighting men to go and destroy Jabesh-gilead. "Kill them all," they instructed, "every man, every woman who has been with a man, every child." 12They found 400 virgins among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead, and they returned these to the camp of Shiloh in the land of Canaan. 13Then those gathered sent word to those warriors of Benjamin in exile at the rock of Rimmon and proclaimed a peace. 14The men of Benjamin returned, and the people of Israel gave them the young women of Jabesh-gilead, but they were not enough for all of them.

15The people of Israel were filled with pity for the people of Benjamin, since the Eternal had separated them from their brothers of Israel.

Israelite Elders: 16What can we do to find more wives for the remaining men of Benjamin, since all the other Benjaminite women were destroyed? 17Benjamin must have heirs and survive, so that not a single tribe may disappear out of Israel. 18But we cannot give them our daughters, for we have sworn curses on anyone of us who gives wives to the men of Benjamin.

Israelites: 19Look, there is a yearly festival of the Eternal in Shiloh, north of Bethel, to the east of the road that links Bethel to Shechem and to the south of Lebonah.

20They told the Benjaminites to go and hide in the vineyards.

Israelites: 21Watch, and when the young women of Shiloh come out to participate in the dances, dash out, grab yourself a wife, and take her back home to Benjamin. 22Then if their brothers or fathers come to complain to us, we can say, "Be generous. We weren't able to capture enough brides for the men of Benjamin, so we needed more women. But none of you suffers the curse, since you didn't give your daughters of your own free will!"

23So that is what the men of Benjamin did: they kidnapped wives for themselves from the dancers at the festival and took them back home, where they rebuilt their towns and lived in them again. 24And the people of Israel went out from their great gathering by their families and tribes, each back to their inheritances.

25During that period, there was no king in Israel, and everyone did what seemed right to them.

RUTH

The struggles of one Jewish widow and her daughter-in-law

By an unknown author

The period of the Judges, after Israel's wandering in the desert and before the founding of the monarchy, is a time of anarchy. Israel's twelve tribes are divided, sometimes warring among themselves (as against the tribe of Benjamin) and sometimes banding together to fight other nations (as against Moab). Only one generation after Israel's last conflict with Moab, described in Judges 3, an Israelite couple living in Moab marries their sons to two Moabite women, one of whom is Ruth. Their willingness to invite a foreign woman into their home results in her conversion to the Israelite religion and lays the foundation for a complete picture of loving-kindness in the Bible. Within the Book of Ruth itself, Ruth and Boaz allow their love for each other to prevail both within and despite the customs of the day—Ruth following her mother-in-law back to Israel and Boaz ignoring harvest protocol to help this lovely woman, while also serving as a kinsman-redeemer—which results in a covenant marriage together. Within the story of God's love for humanity, captured in the Bible as a whole, Ruth is matriarch of a family that God uses to change the world. Her great-grandson, King David, will unite all the tribes of Israel as one nation under God. Her descendant, Jesus, will sacrifice Himself to save humanity.

In spite of its beautiful composition and well-developed narrative, Ruth's literary origins are mysterious. Traditionally accredited to the judge and prophet Samuel in the 11th century B.C., the actual author and date of this story are unknown. Some suggest it was written in Israel during the monarchy, based on its understanding of the laws, between the 10th and 7th centuries B.C.; others believe it was composed after 586 B.C. during the exile, based on its international characters and its occasional use of Aramaic phrases. Just as elusive is the compiler of the story, who was probably male but whose dedication to female lead characters reveals the women who helped him shape this story.

1 A long time ago, when judges still ruled over Israel and the land was dried up with famine, a man from Bethlehem, which ironically means "place of bread," left his home in Judah to live as a foreigner in the land of Moab. He traveled with his wife and their two sons. 2His name was Elimelech, and his wife was Naomi; their two sons were called Mahlon and Chilion.
They were descendants of Ephraim's tribe from Bethlehem in Judah. They had settled and made lives for themselves in Moab, 3but soon after, Elimelech died leaving Naomi in the care of her sons. 4Each son married a woman from Moab—one was named Orpah, the other Ruth—and they lived together for 10 years 5before Mahlon and Chilion died also. Naomi was left alone, without her husband and two sons.

6-7Word had reached Moab that the Eternal One had once again brought life back to the land of Israel and blessed His people with food. Naomi prepared to return with her daughters-in-law. With Orpah and Ruth at her side, she began her journey back to Judah, leaving the place where she had lived.

Naomi (to Orpah and Ruth): 8*You have accompanied me far enough;* you must both return to Moab. Go home to your mothers' care and your people. May the Eternal show His loyal love to you just as you demonstrated it to my dead sons and me. 9I hope He will bring you new husbands and that you will find the rest you deserve in their homes.

She drew close, kissed them, and turned to go on her way, alone. But Orpah and Ruth wailed and sobbed, crying out to her.

Orpah and Ruth: 10*Do not leave us!* We insist you take us with you to live with you and your people.

Naomi: 11Go back to your homes, my daughters. What possible reason would you have for returning with me? Do you think there are more sons inside of me?
Will you marry these unborn sons? 12*Listen to me,* daughters, and go back. I am too old; I will not marry again because I cannot conceive. But even if I could—if I still believed there was hope for me, or if I had a husband and conceived sons tonight—13would you waste a lifetime waiting for them to grow up? Would you let this hope for the future keep you from remarrying now? Of course not, my dear daughters. It is obvious that the Eternal has acted against me. My life is much too bitter for you to share with me.

14At this Orpah and Ruth wailed and wept again. Then Orpah kissed Naomi, said goodbye, and returned the way she had come. Yet Ruth refused to let go of Naomi.

Naomi: 15Look at your sister-in-law. She has returned to live with her people and to worship her gods; go and follow her.

Ruth: 16Stop pushing me away,
insisting that I stop following you!
Wherever you go, I will go.
Wherever you live, I will live.
Your people will be my people.
Your God will be my God.
17Wherever you die, I will also die and be buried there near you.
May the Eternal One punish me—and even more so—if anything besides death comes between us.

18When Naomi heard this and saw Ruth's resolve, she stopped trying to talk her out of returning to Judah. 19The two women went on together to Bethlehem.

News of their arrival spread throughout Bethlehem. In fact, the whole community was humming with the report, with the women exclaiming, "Could it really be the same Naomi who left us so long ago?"

Naomi: 20Do not call me Naomi ever again, for I am no longer pleasant.
Call me Mara instead, for I am filled with bitterness because the Highest One* has treated me bitterly.

There is a Hebrew wordplay here from Naomi, "pleasant," to Mara, "bitterness." Even Orpah ("neck") turns her back on Naomi.

21I left this place full, in spite of the famine,
but the Eternal has brought me back empty from a plentiful land.
Why would you call me "Pleasant" when the Eternal has testified against me,
and the Highest One has brought disaster upon me?

* 1:20ff Hebrew, Shaddai

Naomi's story is similar to the story of Job. God tests them, as Job and Naomi have full lives. Then they go from emptiness to vindication, and finally to redemption.

22This was how Naomi came into Bethlehem with her daughter-in-law, Ruth, from Moab. It was at the beginning of the barley harvest when they returned to the land.

2 Now Naomi's deceased husband, Elimelech, had a relative in Bethlehem, an honorable, wealthy man named Boaz. 2One day Ruth (the foreign woman who returned with Naomi from Moab) approached Naomi with a request.

Ruth: Let me go out into the field and pick up whatever grain is left behind the harvesters. Maybe someone will be merciful to me.

Naomi: Go ahead, my daughter.

3Ruth left and went into the fields to pick up the gleanings, the grain that had been left behind by the harvesters. And so it was that the portion of the field she was working in belonged to Boaz, who was a part of Elimelech's family.

4*As she was working in his field,* Boaz happened to arrive from Bethlehem, and he greeted the harvesters.

Boaz: The Eternal One be with you.

Harvesters: May the Eternal bless you!

5Then seeing Ruth, Boaz spoke to the young man in charge of the harvesters.

Boaz: Whom does this young woman belong to?

Overseer: 6She is the Moabite woman who came back with Naomi from Moab. 7She came and asked my permission to pick up the grain our harvesters leave behind and gather it all into sheaves for herself. Except for one small break she has been here all day, working in the field from the morning until now.

► When God gives His law to the Israelites, He establishes a culture of generosity. Knowing there will be people such as widows, orphans, and resident aliens who will be too poor to farm for themselves, He set limits on how much each farmer should harvest from his own land. In Leviticus 19:9-10, farmers are told not to harvest the corners of their property or return to already-harvested rows to pick up any grain that may have been left. The remaining grain in the field is called gleanings, and those are left for the poor. In a similar law, Deuteronomy 24:19-22 explains that God does this to remind His people that once they were all poor and resident aliens themselves in Egypt. The gleaners face hard labor every day, so Ruth isn't expecting the kindness Boaz shows her.

Boaz *(to Ruth): 8Listen to me, my daughter. Do not go and glean in any other field. In fact, do not go outside my property at all but stay with the young women who work for me following the harvesters and bundling the grain into sheaves. 9Watch the harvesters, and see which field they are working in. Follow along behind these servants of mine. I have warned the young men not to touch you. If you are thirsty, go and get a drink from the water jars my young men have filled for the harvesters.

10*Overwhelmed,* Ruth bowed down before Boaz, putting her face to the ground in front of him.

Ruth: I am just a foreigner. Why have you noticed me and treated me as if I'm one of your favorites?

Boaz: 11I have heard your story. I know about everything you have done for your mother-in-law since your own husband died. I know you left your own mother and father, your home and your country, and you have come to live in a culture that must seem strange to you. 12May the Eternal repay you for your sacrifices and reward you richly for what you have done. It is under the wings of Israel's God, the Eternal One, that you have sought shelter.

Ruth: 13I pray you will continue to look upon me with such favor, my lord. I am comforted by your kind words, even though I am not as worthy of them as even one of your servant girls.

14*Later* during the meal, Boaz spoke to Ruth again.

Boaz: Come over here and have some of my food. Dip your piece of bread in the vinegar wine.

So Ruth sat down among the harvesters. Boaz also offered her some roasted grain. She ate as much as she wanted and even had some left over. 15*When her meal was finished,* she got back up and returned to work. Then Boaz pulled some of the young harvesters aside and gave them instructions about her.

Boaz: Let her pick up grain from among the sheaves. Do not reprimand or humiliate her for gleaning where it is usually forbidden. 16Instead, periodically pick out a stalk or two from the sheaves that have already been bound, and leave them for her to gather for herself. Make sure that no one gives her a hard time.

17So Ruth worked in the field all day until the sun had nearly set. When she finished picking up the leftover ears, she beat her gathered barley grains from the stalks with a stick. All that work resulted in over 20 quarts of grain. 18Then she carried it back to the city where her mother-in-law saw how much she had gleaned. Ruth took out the leftover food from what she could not eat of her midday meal and gave it to Naomi.

Naomi *(to Ruth): 19Where did you go to work today? Where did you glean all this from? May God bless the person who gave you this kind of attention.

So Ruth told Naomi the story of all that had happened to her that day and on whose land she had worked.

Ruth: The man I worked with today is named Boaz.

Naomi: 20May the Eternal bless this man. He has not given up showing His covenant love toward the living and the dead.

This man is closely related to us—he is a kinsman-redeemer of our family.

The kinsman-redeemer is the closest relative and has the responsibility to save his family members from any evil or hardship.

Ruth*: 21That is not all he did. Boaz also instructed me to stay with his young workers for the remainder of his grain harvesting season.

Naomi: 22It is best that you do as he says. Stay with his young women who bind the sheaves. They will keep you safe from the hostility and danger of working in another's field.

23So that is what Ruth did. She kept close to Boaz's young female servants and picked up everything they dropped. She worked hard throughout the seven weeks of the wheat and barley seasons until the harvest was complete in early summer. And this whole time she lived at her mother-in-law's home.

3 Naomi *(to Ruth): My child, it is my responsibility to find a husband and place of rest for you—a place where you will find rest and contentment. 2You have been working alongside the young women who serve Boaz. Is he not a part of our family? Early this evening, during the late afternoon wind, he will be on the threshing floor winnowing the barley.

They toss the stalks into the wind with a fork and watch the grain fall at their feet as the stalks blow away.

3Bathe and perfume yourself. Put on your best dress, then go down onto the threshing floor. Be careful, though. Don't let him know you are there until he has finished eating and drinking. 4*Once he is relaxed,* he will lie down to sleep. Make sure you notice where he is. Once he has lain down, go to him. Uncover his feet and lie down. He will tell you what to do.

► The Hebrew euphemism "to uncover the feet" is a sexual expression; but in this context, and in light of the honorable character of Boaz and Ruth, it is clear that she is simply making herself available for marriage.

* 2:21 Hebrew manuscripts add, "the Moabite woman."

Ruth: [5]I will do everything you have told me to do.

[6]So she went down to the threshing floor and followed through with everything her mother-in-law told her to do. [7]Not much later, Boaz finished eating and drinking and was in good spirits. He made his way to the end of a pile of grain and lay down there to sleep. Then very quietly, Ruth snuck to where he was lying down. She uncovered his feet and lay down at his feet. [8]Later, sometime in the middle of the night, Boaz was startled and woke up. When he rolled over and looked around, he discovered there was a woman lying at his feet!

Boaz: [9]Who are you?

Ruth: I am your servant Ruth. Spread out the hem of your garment so that it covers your servant. You are a near relative of our family.

Boaz: [10]May the Eternal bless you, my daughter, for the loyal love you are showing now is even greater than what you showed before. You have not pursued a younger man—either a rich one or a poor one. [11]You may rest easy. You have nothing to fear, my child. I will do everything you ask. Everyone in this city agrees you are a woman of virtuous character. [12]You are right that I am in line as a near relative of your family. But I am not the only one, nor the most likely. There is another man who is more closely related to you than I am.

► If ever a landowner needs to lease out his land for money, then his closest relative, called the "kinsman-redeemer," is supposed to buy the land back for his relative. The same is true if a man has to sell his family members into indentured servitude—the kinsman-redeemer is to buy back the slave. This system reflects God's relationship with Israel; God continually saves His people from subservience to other nations. Since both Naomi and Ruth are widows without male sons, they are left in poverty. Naomi will have to lease out her husband's land to support them, and she may eventually have to sell herself and Ruth just to stay fed. By redeeming Elimelech's land, marrying Ruth, and eventually giving her a son, Boaz keeps the family intact as it would have been had Elimelech or either of his sons survived.

Boaz: [13]Spend the rest of the night here. In the morning, I will give him the chance to act as your kinsman-redeemer and redeem you and your family. If he is willing to do this, good. But if he is not willing to fulfill his responsibility, then as the Eternal One lives, I promise I will redeem your family by marrying you. Now remain here until morning comes.

[14]So Ruth lay at his feet until early morning—then she got up to leave while it was still dark, before she could be recognized by anyone, because Boaz realized no one should know the woman was on the threshing room floor.

Boaz: [15]Now bring me the outer garment you are wearing. Hold it out, and hold on tightly.

She did so, and Boaz filled her garment with six measures of barley grain. He handed it to her; then he* left her and went into the town to conduct his business.

[16]When Ruth returned to Naomi's home, her mother-in-law asked her daughter what happened. Ruth related all that Boaz had said and done.

Ruth: [17]He even gave me these six measures of barley grain saying to me, "You can't go back to your mother-in-law empty-handed."

Naomi: [18]Now you must wait, daughter. We must wait and see what happens. Be at peace. That man will not rest today until this is resolved.

4 At that same time, Boaz went to the city gate and he sat down. Just then, the kinsman-redeemer of the family he had told Ruth about walked by.

Normally the city gate is where the business of the city is conducted.]

* 3:15 Other ancient manuscripts read "she."

Boaz: My friend, come and sit down with me for awhile. We have some business.

So the man came and sat down beside Boaz. 2*Before he spoke further to the man,* he gathered together 10 elders from the city and asked them to preside there, which they did.

Boaz (to the kinsman-redeemer): 3You have heard of Naomi? She is the woman who recently returned from Moab. She is transferring her rights to the plot of land belonging to her deceased husband—our relative—Elimelech. 4I wanted you to know about it because as a close family member, you have the first right to purchase it. If you want to do so, we have enough elders sitting here to witness the transaction. If you want to become the guardian and redeem this land, it is yours. But if you* are not interested in doing this, tell me now. The right belongs to you, but if you refuse it, I am next in line.

Kinsman-Redeemer: Of course, I exercise my option to redeem this land.

Boaz: 5Now, just so you know, on the day you buy this plot of land [from Naomi, you will also acquire Ruth the Moabitess; she is]* the dead man's widow. It will be your responsibility to make sure she has children so that they can carry on her dead husband's name with the inheritance.

Kinsman-Redeemer: 6Then I will not be able to redeem it. I will not put my own property at risk. I relinquish my right to redeem the land. You do it.

7Now in the old days of Israel when this story was playing out, land was redeemed and property was transferred legally when a man involved in the sale removed one of his sandals and gave it to the other. This was how contracts were sealed in Israel. 8So the kinsman-redeemer took off his sandal and handed it to Boaz.

Kinsman-Redeemer: It's now your responsibility.

Boaz (to the elders and all the people): 9Every one of you have witnessed what happened here today. I secured the rights to everything that belonged to Elimelech and his sons, Mahlon and Chilion, from Naomi. 10I have also taken responsibility for Ruth—the woman from Moab who was married to Mahlon. She will become my wife. I will see to it that his family and this city remember Mahlon. I will raise children who will bear his name and make sure his property stays in the family. You are all witnesses to this today.

Elders and People: 11We are witnesses of what has happened here today. May the Eternal take this woman who is becoming a part of your family today and make her like Rachel and Leah, the two women responsible for building the nation of Israel with their children. And may your reputation become well known and well respected throughout Ephrathah and Bethlehem. 12May the children the Eternal gives you and this woman make your family like the family of Perez, who was born from a Levirate union between Judah and Tamar.*

13Then Boaz took responsibility of Ruth, and they married. After they came together, Ruth conceived by the Eternal's provision, and later she gave birth to a son.

Women (to Naomi): 14Praise the Eternal One. He has not abandoned you. He did not leave you without a redeeming guardian. May your offspring become famous all through Israel. 15May this child give you a new life. May he strengthen you and provide for you in your old age. Look at your daughter-in-law, Ruth. She loves you. This one devoted daughter is better to you than seven sons would be. She is the one who gave you this child.

16Then Naomi held the child tightly in her arms and cared for him. 17All around her, friends cried out, "Naomi has a son!" They named the child Obed because he would provide for his grandmother. Obed grew up and became the father of Jesse. Jesse, too, became a father one day, the father of David.

18Here is the genealogy of Perez's family: Perez was Hezron's father. 19Hezron was Ram's father. Ram was Amminadab's father. 20Amminadab was Nahshon's father. Nahshon was Salmon's* father. 21Salmon was Boaz's father. Boaz was Obed's father. 22Obed was Jesse's father. And Jesse was the father of David.

* 4:4 Most Hebrew manuscripts read, "he." * 4:5 Hebrew manuscripts read, "from Naomi and Ruth the Moabitess, you will acquire." * 4:12 Genesis 38 * 4:20 Most Hebrew manuscripts read, "Salma."

1 SAMUEL

Israel has its first king and the troubles that follow

By Samuel, a prophet of Israel

The story of the people of Israel in some ways resembles a classical tragedy: the ending is foreshadowed; and even in the times of great glory and happiness, disaster isn't far away. The books of Samuel tell how the people of Israel decide that instead of trusting in God, they will place their trust in a human king, as all of their neighbors have. After the chaos and violence of the time described in the Book of Judges, perhaps their desire for security is understandable; but the people of Israel had always been told they are different from other nations, that true security can only be found in God.

Described in the books of Samuel—the stories of Hannah, Samuel, Saul, and David—are people of great faith and courage, like Hannah and Samuel, and people who start off well but fail in a number of ways, like Saul. In the character of David is that human king whom the Israelites want. David, who is loved by God, represents the high point of Israel's civilization and is the model for the Liberator the Jews expect in the time of Jesus (and still today).

Tradition associates the judge Samuel with the recording of these stories collected into the books bearing his name (1 Chronicles 29:29-30). While he may not have literally written the exact words we have today, he certainly crafted the stories compiled in these books by future editors through his divinely inspired work in Israel.

Samuel is the last of the judges of Israel, the last great defender who brings together political and religious power in order to liberate the people. In terms of personal holiness, the Jewish tradition compares him to Moses and Aaron (Psalm 99:6), and this crucial time recorded in the books of Samuel demands all of his resources as prophet and leader. Through his work, Israel transitions from a tribal society led by regional judges to a united kingdom under one monarch.

The people of ancient Israel lived in a time of great fear and conflict—a time not so very different from our own. Their responses—to turn to political and temporal power for safety, to forget the things God had asked of them—may be familiar to us. Leaders rise and fall; nations prosper and decline; but through it all, God remains. While David is the central figure of these books, and his memory inspires us because of his heroism, creativity, and humanity, the images of Hannah, who trusts God completely, and Samuel, who warns that trusting in political power instead of God brings heartbreak, also linger. Great stories never go out of date, and this is one of the greatest.

1 When the judges ruled over Israel,
there was a man from Ramathaimzophim, from the hill country of Ephraim. He was Elkanah, who descended from Jeroham, Elihu, Tohu, and Zuph, an Ephraimite. 2He had two wives: Peninnah, who bore him sons and daughters, and Hannah, who remained childless.

► At the end of the Book of Judges, the world has descended into violence and chaos—it is, as the book concludes, a time when "there was no king in Israel, and everyone did what seemed right to them" (Judges 21:25). And their selfish desires are often very wrong morally, socially, and personally. Israel is a dark place waiting for a light to enter, and as is usually the case in the story of the people of God, God has a plan.

3Elkanah used to go up every year from his city to worship and offer sacrifices at the altar of the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, at Shiloh, where the priests of the Eternal were Eli's two sons, Hophni and Phinehas. 4On the days he made a sacrifice, Elkanah would share a portion of his offering with his wife Peninnah and all her children, 5but he offered a double portion of sacrificial meat for Hannah because he loved her even though the Eternal One had not given her children.
6Peninnah used to infuriate Hannah until Hannah trembled with irritation because the Eternal had not given Hannah children. 7This went on year after year; and every time Hannah went up to the house of the Eternal, Peninnah would infuriate her. So, as she often did, Hannah wept and refused to eat.

► The story of Samuel begins quietly, not with a great warrior coming onto the scene, but with the faithful prayer of a woman who wants to be a mother. The underlying message of the books of Samuel is, as in many other places in the Bible, that faith and trust in God are more important than any trust we place in human beings—even powerful human beings. Hannah's prayers for a child, her absolute faith in God's plan, and her willingness to be a part of it however she can, resonate as the kings and warriors begin to enter the stage. Without her faith, there can be no story.

Elkanah *(seeing Hannah's despair): 8Why are you crying and not eating? Why are you so sad, Hannah? Don't I love you more than any 10 sons could?

9-10One day after they ate and drank at Shiloh, Hannah got up and presented herself before the Lord. It so happened that the priest Eli was sitting in a place of honor beside the doorpost of the Eternal's congregation tent as Hannah entered. She was heartbroken, and she began to pray to the Eternal One, weeping uncontrollably as she did.

Hannah: 11Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, if only You will look down at the misery of Your servant and remember me—oh, don't forget me!—and give Your servant a son, then I promise I will devote the boy to Your service as a Nazirite all the days of his life. [He will never touch wine or other strong drink,]* and no razor will ever cut his hair.

12As she prayed silently before the Eternal
One, the priest Eli watched her mouth:
13Hannah's lips were moving, but since she was praying silently, he could not hear her words. So Eli thought she was drunk.

Eli: 14How long are you going to continue drinking, making a spectacle of yourself?
Stop drinking wine, and sober up!

Hannah: 15My lord, I am not drunk on wine or any strong drink; I am just a woman with a wounded spirit. I have been pouring out the pain in my soul before the Eternal One. 16Please don't consider your servant some worthless woman just because I have been speaking for so long out of worry and exasperation.

Eli: 17Go, don't worry about this anymore, and may the True God of Israel fulfill the petition you have made to Him.

* 1:11 Most manuscripts omit this portion.

Hannah: 18May your servant be favored in your sight.

Then Hannah rose and went back to where she was staying. The sadness lifted from her, so she was able to eat.

19The next morning, they rose early to worship the Eternal One. Then they went back to their home at Ramah, and Elkanah slept with Hannah his wife. The Eternal remembered her petition; 20and in the new year, Hannah became pregnant. When her son was born, she named him Samuel, which means "His name is El (God)," because she said, Hannah: I asked the Eternal One for him.

21*The next year,* Elkanah and all his family went up to Shiloh to make their sacrifices to the Eternal and to fulfill his vow. 22But Hannah remained behind.

Hannah *(to Elkanah): When the child can eat solid food, I will bring him so that he can appear in the presence of the Eternal One and remain there continually.

Elkanah *(to Hannah): 23Do whatever you think best. If you want to wait until Samuel is weaned, do that. Since the Eternal is faithful, surely He will keep His word.

So Hannah stayed at home and nursed her son until he was weaned. 24When that day came, she gathered a three-year-old bull,* over half a bushel of flour, and a skin of wine; and she took him to the house of the Eternal One at Shiloh. Samuel was just a lad. 25They slaughtered the bull, and they brought the child to the priest Eli.

Hannah *(to Eli): 26My lord, I swear I am the woman who was praying to the Eternal One in front of you. 27It was this child I prayed for, and the Eternal has indeed granted me the petition I made. 28So, as I vowed, I will lend him back to the Eternal. For as long as he lives, let him serve our Eternal One.

And she left Samuel there with Eli to serve the Eternal One.

2 Then Hannah prayed out of her deepest feelings.

Hannah: My heart rejoices in the Eternal One;
my strength grows strong in the Eternal.
My mouth can mock my enemies because I celebrate how You have saved me!

2No one is holy like the Eternal One—no, no one but You;
and there is no rock as solid as our True God.
3Stop talking so proudly,
and don't let such arrogance flow from your lips,
For the Eternal One is a True God who knows, and He weighs the actions He sees.
4The bows of the mighty crack in two,
but the feeble are given new strength.
5Those who were full have had to work hard so they can eat, but those who were starving have become fat with rich food.
The one who was infertile has borne seven children,
while the one who bore many sits alone in sadness.
6The Eternal One kills and brings to life;
He sends down to the grave and raises up new life.
7The Eternal One makes both poor and rich;
some He humbles, and others He honors.
8He lifts the poor up out of the dust,
the needy from the trash heap.
He raises them to sit with princes and seats them on a glorious throne.
For the pillars of the earth are the Eternal One's,
and on them, He has set the world.

9He will watch over the footsteps of the faithful,
but the wicked will be made silent in the darkness,
for one does not win by strength alone.
10The Eternal One will shatter His foes;
from His throne in heaven, He will thunder with rage.
The Eternal One will be judge to the ends of the earth;
He gives strength to His king,
And power to the one He chooses to rule.

* 1:24 Hebrew manuscripts read, "three bulls."

11So Elkanah and his family returned home to Ramah, while Samuel remained behind with Eli the priest to minister before the Eternal One.

12Although Eli's sons served as priests, they were really worthless men with no understanding of the Eternal 13-14or of their priestly duties. When someone presented meat as a ritual offering to the Lord, the priest would send a servant with a three-pronged fork to probe around in the pot or kettle as the sacrifice boiled; and whatever he brought up with the fork, the priest would keep as his own. They did this at Shiloh to all the Israelites who came to sacrifice.

15The priest's servant would even tell those who were going to burn fat as a sacrifice,

Servant: Give the priest meat to roast. He won't accept boiled meat from you, only raw meat.

16And if the worshiper protested, saying the priest could take whatever he wanted after the fat was burned, the servant would say,

Servant: Give it to me now; if necessary, it will be taken from you by force.

17Because they despised the Eternal's ritual offerings, the Eternal One judged that the sons of Eli had sinned greatly.

18Now Samuel was then a small boy, working in the house of the Eternal One. He wore a linen vest, one of the priestly garments. 19His mother used to make him a new robe every year, and she would take it up to him when she and her husband came to perform the yearly sacrifice. 20On that joyful occasion, Eli would bless Elkanah and Hannah.

Eli: May the Eternal One bless you with more children by this woman for the great gift she made to the Eternal.

Then they would return home.

21The Eternal One showed his favor toward Hannah again, and she conceived and gave birth to three sons and two daughters, and her son Samuel grew up in the presence of the Eternal One.

22Eli, who had grown old and tired, heard what his sons were doing to all those Israelites who came to Shiloh to perform their sacrifices. He heard that they were even having sexual relations with the women who worked at the door of the meeting tent.

Eli *(to his sons): 23Why do you do such horrible things? The people have told me about all the evil you have done. 24No, my sons, I do not hear good words spoken about you by the people of the Eternal. 25If one person offends another, [at least someone can plead with the True God on the sinner's behalf].* But if someone offends the Eternal One, then who will plead for that person?

But Eli's sons did not listen to his words, for the Eternal One had already decided to destroy them.

26The boy Samuel grew tall, wise in the ways of the Lord, and in favor with God and the people he served.

27A man sent by the True God came to Eli.

Man: This is the message of the Eternal One: "I made Myself known to your family when Israel was enslaved under Pharaoh in Egypt. 28I chose your ancestor Aaron from among all the tribes of Israel to be My priest: to serve at the altar, to offer incense, and to wear the priestly vest in My presence. And I repaid your family by presenting them with all the offerings made to Me by fire from all the people of Israel. 29Why do you look with such greedy eyes on all the sacrifices and offerings I have directed the people to bring to My house? Why do you honor your sons more than you honor Me by feasting on the choicest parts of every single offering made by My people Israel?"

30Therefore the Eternal God of Israel declares: "I promised that your family would go in and out of My presence forever. But now I surely declare, those who honor Me I will honor, but people who choose to despise Me, I, in turn, will consider contemptible: those who hate Me will not matter to Me. 31Look, the time approaches when I will cut away your strength and the strength of your family, so that none of you will live to old age. 32Then, in agony, you will see all the good things I do for Israel; there will be great distress, and no one in your family will live to old age ever again.

* 2:25 Hebrew manuscripts read, "God will mediate for him."

33"Any of your family not cut off will grieve continually and will cry their eyes out. All the other members of your household will die violently in the prime of life. 34The fate of your sons Hophni and Phinehas will be a sign of the future.
Both of them will die on the very same day. 35I will raise up a faithful priest who will do what I desire and purpose in My heart and mind. I will build him a secure house, and he will go in and out before My anointed one continually. 36Those of your family who survive will come to him and bow down for a piece of silver or a loaf of bread, and they will beg him,
'Please make me a priest so at least I can have a morsel of bread.'"

3 The boy Samuel continued to serve the Eternal One under the guidance of Eli. In those days, messages from the Eternal were rare, and sacred dreams or visions were given to very few.

2Eli, who was very old, had become almost blind. He was lying in his room; 3*it was late at night but before dawn* as the lamp of God still burned. Samuel was resting in the house of the Eternal One, where the covenant chest of the True God was located, and he heard a voice.

Eternal One: 4Samuel! Samuel!

Samuel: Here I am! 5(running to Eli) I heard you calling; here I am!

Eli: I did not call you, my son. Go back, and lie down.

So Samuel went back to bed. 6But the Eternal called him again.

Eternal One: Samuel!

Samuel *(running to Eli): I heard you calling; here I am!

Eli: No, I did not call you, my son. Go back, and lie down. I need my rest.

7Samuel did not recognize the voice of the Eternal One, for the word of the Eternal had not been revealed to Samuel yet. So Samuel went back again to his bed. 8And the Eternal One called him a third time.

Samuel *(running to Eli): I know you called me; I am here!

Eli *(realizing the Lord was calling Samuel): 9Go back and lie down, my son. If the voice calls you again, I want you to say, "Speak, Eternal One. Your servant is listening."

So Samuel went to his bed in his place and listened. 10Then the Eternal One came into his presence as before.

Eternal One: Samuel! Samuel!

Samuel: Speak, Eternal One. Your servant is listening.

Eternal One: 11Pay attention! I am about to do something so amazing in Israel that it will sting the ears of everyone who hears it. 12The day is coming when I will carry out the vow I made to Eli about his family, every word of it. 13I have told him that I will punish his house forever for the sins of his sons, bringing a curse on themselves that he knew about but did nothing to stop. 14So I vow that the sins of the house of Eli may never be atoned for by sacrifice or by offering.

15*After hearing this message,* Samuel lay there until morning and then opened the doors of the Eternal One's house, but he was afraid to tell Eli what God had said to him.

Eli: 16Samuel, my son.

Samuel: Here I am.

Eli: 17What was it that He told you? Tell me everything. May the True God carry out His vengeance on you and worse, if you hold anything back from me that He said to you.

18So Samuel told him everything, hiding nothing.

Eli: This message is truly from the Eternal One. Let Him do what seems good to Him.

► When Eli hears God's message to Samuel, a message that surely breaks his heart, Eli knows his sons have dishonored God and deserve punishment. His willingness to honor God's message is truly a measure of his faith. This is one of many places in the books of Samuel where we can recognize the justice of God's plan and still share some sorrow with those who will suffer because of it.

19As Samuel grew, the Eternal One guided him and none of His words were lost on Samuel. 20And all Israel, from Dan to Beersheba, learned that Samuel was a prophet of the Eternal One and that his words could be trusted.

21*From time to time,* the Eternal continued to appear at Shiloh, where He had spoken to Samuel.

4 And all of Israel was influenced by Samuel's words.

[In those days, the Philistines warred against Israel,]* and the warriors of Israel went out to fight them. They camped at Ebenezer while the Philistine forces made camp at Aphek. 2The Philistines lined up against Israel; and when they advanced, they defeated Israel, killing about 4,000 of Israel's warriors on the battlefield. 3When the troops returned to their camp, the elders of Israel asked,

Elders: Why has the Eternal One let us be defeated by the Philistines today? Tomorrow, let us take His covenant chest from Shiloh and carry it before us into battle, so that the chest may be among us and save us from the power of the Philistines.

4So the people sent messengers to Shiloh and brought back the covenant chest of the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, who is enthroned between the winged guardians.

The two sons of Eli—Hophni and Phinehas—accompanied the covenant chest of the True God on its journey to the battlefront. 5When it entered the camp, the Israelites raised a shout so loud it seemed to shake the earth. 6When the Philistines heard the noise, they wondered what the great shout from the Hebrews' camp might mean; and when they heard that it was in response to the arrival of the covenant chest of the Eternal, 7they shook with fear.

Philistines *(among themselves): The Israelites have brought their God into their camp! We're doomed! Nothing like this has ever happened to us before! 8What will we do? What can save us from these powerful gods? These are the same gods who struck down the mighty Egyptians in the desert with every sort of plague.

Philistine Generals: 9Be strong, Philistines. Stand tall like men, or you will become the slaves to these Hebrews, instead of their serving us. Be men, and fight!

10So the Philistines stood their ground and fought and won a great victory. The people of Israel were crushed, and the soldiers fled from the field of battle back to their homes. It was a horrible slaughter, with the Israelites losing 30,000 foot soldiers.

11But more importantly, they lost the covenant chest of the True God. The Philistines captured the chest, and Eli's sons, Hophni and Phinehas, were killed.

12A Benjaminite ran from the battlefield and arrived in Shiloh that same day.
He was in mourning—his clothes torn and dust heaped on his head. 13When he arrived, Eli was sitting in his place of honor next to the city gate waiting anxiously for the covenant chest of God. When the man came into the city and told his news, the entire city cried out in grief. 14But Eli, who could not see the messenger's clothing, wondered at the meaning of the cries.

Eli: What is that noise?

The man hurried to Eli and told him what had happened. 15Eli was by this time 98 years old and blind.

Benjaminite Messenger: 16I have just come from the battle. I fled the front lines to escape with my life.

Eli: How did the battle go, my son?

Benjaminite Messenger: 17Many of the people were slaughtered, and Israel has fled from the Philistines. Your two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead, and the covenant chest of the True God is captured.

18When he heard this news about the covenant chest of the True God, Eli fell backward from his seat beside the gate, broke his neck, and died, for he was very old and heavyset.

* 4:1 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

He was a leader over Israel for 40 years.

19His daughter-in-law, Phinehas's wife, was pregnant and close to the end of her term. When she heard the news—that the covenant chest of the True God had been captured by the Philistines and that her husband and father-in-law were both dead—she was bowed over by her labor pains. She gave birth, 20and as she was about to die, the midwives told her,

Midwives: Don't be afraid. You have a son.

But she did not answer or seem to hear them. 21She said only that the son should be called Ichabod, meaning, "Where has the glory gone?" For so it must have seemed to her with the loss of the covenant chest of God and the deaths of her husband and father-in-law.

Eli's Daughter-in-law: 22The glory has gone from Israel because the Philistines have captured the chest of the True God.

5 The Philistines brought the captured covenant chest of the True God from Ebenezer to one of their capital cities called Ashdod. 2There the Philistines took the chest of the True God into the house of their god, Dagon, and placed it in a place of honor beside the idol of Dagon. 3When the people of the city anxiously awoke early the next morning, there was Dagon, lying on his face on the ground, as if bowing before the covenant chest of the Eternal. So they grabbed the idol and put it back in its proper place. 4But when they awoke the next morning, only the trunk of the idol was untouched. Dagon had fallen to the ground on his face before the covenant chest of the Eternal One again, and this time his head and hands had been cut off and were lying across the threshold. 5That is why the priests and worshipers of Dagon in the house of Dagon in Ashdod refused to step on the threshold even till this day.

6The hand of the Eternal One came down hard with punishment on the people of Ashdod while the covenant chest rested there. He ravaged the people of Ashdod and the surrounding territory and struck them with swollen, painful growths like tumors. 7When the people of Ashdod saw how they were cursed, they said,

People of Ashdod: We can't let the chest of the True God of Israel remain here because their God continues to punish us and our god Dagon.

8-9So they gathered together all the rulers of the Philistines to ask what should be done with the covenant chest of Israel's God.

People of Gath: Send this chest of Israel's God to us.

They did so. But after they had moved the chest of the True God of Israel to Gath, another of the capital cities, the hand of the Eternal One began to punish the people of Gath and sent them into a panic. He also struck them with swollen, painful, tumor-like growths—the young and old alike. 10So then they sent the covenant chest of the True God of Israel on to a third capital city, Ekron; but when the people of Ekron saw that the covenant chest was coming, they protested.

People of Ekron: Have you brought this chest of the Israelite God here to kill us now?

11So they gathered together all the rulers of the Philistines.

People of Ekron: Send away this covenant chest of the God of Israel. Send it back where it came from so that it doesn't kill us all!

For there was great panic throughout the city. The True God's hand rested heavily on them; 12and those He did not kill, He struck with swollen, painful tumors. Their suffering was so intense their cries could be heard in the heavens.

6 The covenant chest of the Eternal One had been in the land of the Philistines for seven months. 2Then the rulers of the Philistines sent for their priests and fortune-tellers.

Rulers: What should we do with this chest of the Eternal One? We need to get rid of it. What should we send with it when we return it?

Priests and Fortune-tellers: 3Whatever you do, don't send this covenant chest of the True God of Israel back by itself. You should certainly offer Him compensation for your guilt. If you do, you will all be healed. That's the only way you can be certain that His hand will be lifted.

Rulers: [4]What should we send as this guilt offering to Him when we return the covenant chest?

► Ancient people understand diseases and various infestations as omens of divine wrath. In order to appease the God of the Israelites, the Philistines cast metal tumors and mice to give back to the Eternal One what He gave to them.

Priests and Fortune-Tellers: Have your artisans make five gold tumors and five gold mice, one for each of the rulers of the Philistines' capital cities, because the same plague came upon all of the Philistines and all of our rulers. [5]So you must make images of the tumors and of the mice that devastate our land and honor this God of Israel. Maybe then He will release His grip on this land, its people, and its gods. [6]Why would you be as stubborn as the Egyptians and their Pharaoh were? You've heard the stories, haven't you? When this God had taught them a lesson, didn't they release the people of Israel? Didn't they go?

[7]So do this now: have your carpenters make a new wagon, find two milk cows that have never been yoked, and yoke them to the cart. But take away their calves and pen them up. [8]Take this chest of the Eternal One and set it upon the wagon. In a box beside it, put the gold images you are presenting to this God as a guilt offering. Then turn the cows loose, and let them go on their way. [9]Watch closely. If the team pulls the wagon up to this God's country, to Beth-shemesh, then you know that He has been the One punishing us. If they don't, then at least we'll know that it was not His hand that struck us, that it has just been bad luck.

[10]And that is what the leaders did. They separated two milk cows from their calves. They yoked the cows to the wagon and took the calves home. [11]They set the covenant chest of the Eternal upon the wagon, and next to it, they placed the box with the gold tumors and gold mice. [12]The cows went straight along the road toward Beth-shemesh, mooing after their lost calves as they went. They went straight ahead without any hesitation, and the rulers of the Philistines followed as far as the border of Beth-shemesh.

[13]The people of Beth-shemesh were in the valley harvesting their wheat at that time. When they looked up and saw the covenant chest, they ran to greet it with joy. [14]The wagon came to a halt at a large stone in the field of Joshua of Beth-shemesh. The people split up the cart for firewood and sacrificed the cattle as a burnt offering to the Eternal One on the large stone. [15]The Levites took the chest of the Eternal and the box next to it down from the wagon. They took the gold images from the box and set them upon the stone altar. Then the people of Beth-shemesh offered sacrifices and made other burnt offerings to the Eternal One.

[16]When the five rulers of the Philistines saw how their offering had been received that day, they returned to Ekron.

[17]The five gold images of swollen tumors presented to the Eternal One by the Philistines as a guilt offering represented Ashdod, Gaza, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron—one for each. [18]Likewise the golden mice represented all the cities of the Philistines governed by their rulers, both the walled cities and the villages surrounding them. The large stone in the field of Joshua of Beth-shemesh where they set the chest of the Eternal remains there as a witness to these events.

[19]The Eternal struck the people of Beth-shemesh because some looked into the covenant chest. God struck down 75* men, and the people were saddened because of the slaughter the Eternal One had brought among their people.

People of Beth-shemesh: [20]Who can stand in the presence of the Eternal One, this holy God? Who will take the covenant chest so we can be safe from Him?

[21]So the people of Beth-shemesh sent messengers to the people of Kiriath-jearim to tell them that the Philistines had returned the chest of the Eternal One to Beth-shemesh and that they should come down and take it with them.

7 The people of Kiriath-jearim did as they were asked. They collected the chest of the Eternal One and brought it up the hill to the house of Abinadab. They performed sacred rituals to set apart his son Eleazar to be in charge of caring for the chest of the Eternal.

* 6:19 Hebrew, "50,000 and 70 men"

► This section about the chest of the covenant shows God's power in the world when all the nations around Israel believe in their own gods. Hebrew literature often talks about the Lord as the greatest of all gods, and this passage shows Him using the covenant chest to declare His preeminence. He embarrasses another god in his own temple, brings death and destruction on those around Him (as He did with the plagues of Egypt), and inflicts something like the bubonic plague, which would devastate Europe in the Middle Ages, on the Philistines. God is powerful and must be treated with the greatest of reverence. Even the people of God are happy to see the chest of the covenant move on, because it is too powerful for sinful human beings to live close to with comfort.

[2]Time passed, 20 years or so, from the time that the covenant chest was taken to Kiriath-jearim, and all the people of Israel began to grieve over their separation from the Eternal One.

Samuel (to the Israelites): [3]If you really want to totally devote yourselves and return to the Eternal One, then get rid of all the foreign gods and goddesses you have gathered. Devote yourselves to the Eternal, serve Him and Him alone, and He will save you from the oppression of the Philistines.

► The Canaanites have a long history of worshiping idols or local gods. In this case, the god being worshiped is Astarte (Ashtoreth), a fertility goddess similar to the Mesopotamian goddess Ishtar. In Canaanite mythology, she is the sister and wife of the high god Baal. She and similar goddesses are worshiped throughout the ancient Near East; and the children of Israel are constantly falling away from serving the Lord by worshiping Astarte, Baal, and other pagan gods. God commands His people not to raise up idols or bow down to any gods except Him. Along with the worship of these gods come many strange practices that pollute the people of the Lord.

[4]So the people of Israel got rid of their gods and goddesses,* and they began to serve only the Eternal One.

Samuel: [5]Assemble all of Israel at Mizpah, and I will pray to the Eternal on your behalf.

[6]That day they gathered at Mizpah, drew water, poured it out ritually in front of the Eternal One, and fasted.

People: We have sinned. We have rebelled against the Eternal.

Samuel judged the Israelites at Mizpah, delivering the people from danger and establishing justice in the land.

[7]When the Philistines heard that the people of Israel had assembled at Mizpah, the rulers of the Philistines gathered an armed force and went to attack them. When the people of Israel heard that the Philistines were coming, they were filled with fear. They turned to God's prophet.

People of Israel (to Samuel): [8]Don't stop calling out to the Eternal our God for us. Ask Him to save us from the Philistine army that is coming.

[9]Samuel took a young lamb and sacrificed it as a whole burnt offering to the Eternal One. He called out to the Eternal on behalf of Israel, and the Eternal responded. Here is what happened: [10]As Samuel was performing the sacrifice, the voice of the Eternal rolled like thunder and confused the advancing Philistine army so that Israel easily struck them down. [11]From Mizpah, the Israelites chased them beyond Bethcar, striking them along the way.

* 7:4 Hebrew, Baals and Astartes

12That's why Samuel set up a stone between Mizpah and Shen; and he called that stone Ebenezer, which means "rock of help," for he said,

Samuel: The Eternal One has helped us so far.

13So the Philistines were humbled and did not invade the lands of Israel again.
The Eternal One held off the Philistines for as long as Samuel judged Israel. 14The Israelite cities the Philistines had seized between Ekron and Gath were returned, and Israel took its territory back from Philistine rule. There was also peace with the Amorites.

15Now Samuel was a prophet and judge over Israel for the rest of his life.
16He traveled a 40-mile circuit just north of Jerusalem every year between Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah, solving Israel's problems in each of these places. 17But he would always return to his home in Ramah, the base from which he judged Israel and where he built an altar to the Eternal.

8 When Samuel was old, he named his sons judges of Israel to rule over the people and be their deliverers. 2His first son, Joel, and his second son, Abijah, were judges in Beersheba, 3but they were not like Samuel. They profited from dishonesty, took bribes, and fostered injustice. 4So the elders of Israel gathered and came to Ramah to tell Samuel.

Elders: 5You have grown old, Samuel, and your sons do not administer justice the way that you did. Before things worsen, appoint a king to rule us, as other nations have.

6This request—"appoint a king to rule us"—bothered Samuel, so he prayed to the Eternal One 7and received an answer.

Eternal One *(to Samuel): Listen to what the people are asking you to do. It is not a rejection of you—it is a rejection of My rule over them. 8It is what they have always done, from the day I brought them out of Egypt until today, rejecting Me and serving other gods. Now they are just doing it to you. 9So listen to what they are asking you to do, but make it plain to them what they are asking.
Warn them about what will happen if a king is appointed to rule them.

10So Samuel told the people who were asking for a king what the Eternal One had said.

Samuel: 11If a king rules over you, things will be different from now on. He will make your sons drive his chariots, be his horsemen, and go into battle ahead of his chariots. 12Your king will select commanders over 1,000 and commanders over 50. He will make some of you to plow his fields and collect his harvest; some of you will be the blacksmiths forging his shields and swords for battle and outfitting his chariots. 13He will force your daughters to make perfumes, to cook his meals, and to bake his bread.
14He will seize the choicest of your fields, vineyards, and olive orchards to give to his courtiers, 15and a tenth of your grain and your vineyards to give to his court eunuchs and servants. 16This king you ask for will take your slaves, male and female, as his own and put the choicest of your donkeys and your young men to do his work. 17He will take a tenth of your flocks. You will essentially become his slaves. 18One day you will cry for mercy from the Eternal One to save you from this king you have chosen for yourselves, but be assured, He will not hear you on that day.

People of Israel *(ignoring Samuel): 19We have decided that we will have a king who will rule over us 20so that we will be like all other nations and will have someone to judge us and to lead us into battle.

21After Samuel had heard their demands, he told the Eternal One what they had said.

Eternal One *(to Samuel): 22Do as they have asked. Give them a king.

So Samuel told the people of Israel to go back to their cities until he would call them together to anoint them a king.

9 A powerful man named Kish, who descended from Abiel, Zeror, Becorath, and Aphiah (the son of a Benjaminite), lived among the people of Benjamin. 2Kish had a handsome young son named Saul. Now Saul was not only the most handsome man in Israel, but he was also the most imposing, standing taller than all others.

3One day Saul's father Kish had lost his donkeys, having wandered away, so he told his son Saul to take one of the servants and look for them. 4They traveled through the hill country of Ephraim, through the land of Shalishah, and through the land of Shaalim, but they did not find them. Then they passed through the land of Benjamin, and still they did not see the donkeys.

5*At last,* when they came to Zuph, Saul told the servant who accompanied him,

Saul: We had better turn around. If we keep going, my father will stop worrying about his donkeys and start worrying about us.

Servant: 6I hear there is a man of God in this village, a man who is respected because what he predicts is always true. Before we go home, let's go and talk to him; maybe he will have some guidance about this journey we have begun.

Saul: 7But if we go, what will we bring to this man? We can't show up empty-handed, but even the bread in our sacks is gone. I have nothing to give the man of God. Do you have anything?

Servant: 8I have a tenth of an ounce of silver. I will give it to the man of God, and maybe he can tell us where to go.

9It used to be in Israel that when people wanted to ask God a question, they would say, "Let's go talk to the seer." Now they are most commonly referred to as prophets, but they were called seers.

Saul: 10-11Very good. Let's go, then.

As they traveled up to the city to visit the man of God, they saw some girls on their way to draw water at the well.

Saul: Can we find the seer here?

Girls: 12Yes, he's just ahead of you. He has come here because there is a sacrifice today at the altar on the high place. You can catch him if you hurry. 13Look for him just as you come into the city, and you should catch him before he goes up to the high place to eat. No one will eat until he gets there, since he is the one who will bless the sacrifice. After he does that, those who have been invited can eat. Now go on. You should encounter him right away.

14They went immediately, and as they entered the city, Samuel was walking in their direction on his way up to the high place.

15Now the Eternal One had told Samuel on the previous day,

Eternal One: 16Tomorrow at about this same time I will send you a young man from Benjamin. You will anoint him to be a ruler over all Israel. I will give him strength to save My people from the Philistines because I hear their cries in their misery.

17When Samuel saw Saul walking toward him, the Eternal spoke to him.

Eternal One: Look! This is the young man I told you about. I've chosen him to rule over My people.

18There inside the gate, Saul walked up to Samuel.

Saul: Can you tell me, please, where I might find the seer's house?

Samuel: 19You have found him. Come with me to the high place, and eat with me today. Tomorrow morning I will tell you what you need to know and then send you on your way. 20As for those donkeys that wandered off three days ago? Don't give them any further thought. Someone has found them. Israel is more concerned today with you and your family.

Saul: 21I come from the tribe of Benjamin, the smallest of the tribes of Israel, and I belong to the poorest family in Benjamin. Why are you saying these things to me?

22Samuel took Saul and his servant up to the hall where around 30 people waited, and he made them sit in the places of honor.

Samuel *(to the cook): 23Bring the portion I gave you and asked you to set aside.

24The cook brought the thigh along with other select parts and set them in front of Saul.

Samuel (pointing to the meat): Take a look. This was set aside for you. Eat and enjoy it all because this has been reserved for you until the appointed time. I have invited these people to be our guests.

So Saul feasted with Samuel the rest of the day. 25When they returned to the city from eating at the high place, Samuel spoke with Saul on the roof.

26*The next morning,* at the break of dawn, Samuel shouted up to Saul on the roof.

Samuel (to Saul): Wake up! It is time for me to send you on your way.

Saul rose, and he and Samuel walked out into the street. 27When they reached the edge of the city, Samuel told him,

Samuel: Send your servant on ahead. When he's far enough away, stop and let's talk. I need to give you a message from the True God.

10 Samuel took a vial of olive oil and poured it on Saul's head, anointing him, and then kissed him.

Samuel: The Eternal One of Israel has anointed you as ruler over His possession, over all Israel. [You will be king over the people of the Eternal One, and you will deliver them from the enemies that surround them now. And this will be the sign to you that I am speaking truth, and God has anointed you king over what is His]:* 2when you leave me today, you will meet two men not far from Rachel's tomb, in Benjamin's territory at Zelzah. These men will tell you, "The donkeys you sought have been found. Your father has stopped worrying about them, and now he is worried about you. He asks, 'But what about my son?'" 3When you leave them behind and reach the oak of Tabor, you will meet three men going to sacrifice to God at Bethel. One will have three young goats; one will have three loaves of bread; another will have a skin full of wine. 4They will greet you and offer you two of the loaves of bread. Take them, and go on. 5When you leave them behind and reach the Philistine garrison at the hill of God (Gibeath-elohim), just as you come into the city, you will meet a group of prophets returning from the high place. Musicians leading them will be playing harps, tambourines, flutes, and lyres; and the prophets will be caught up in prophetic ecstasy. 6Then the Spirit of the Eternal One will overtake you, you will be caught up in the same prophetic spirit as these prophets, and you will be changed into a different person. 7When these signs come to pass, do what you think is best. The True God is with you. 8Go down to Gilgal ahead of me. I will come to present peace sacrifices and burnt offerings. Wait for seven days, and I will show you what to do.

9As Saul turned to leave Samuel, the True God transformed his heart. As a result, all that Samuel had predicted came to pass that day. 10When Saul came up to the hill of God, he met a band of prophets; and as Samuel had said, the Spirit of God overtook him, and he was caught up in their prophetic ecstasy.

11Then the people who knew him saw that he began to prophesy with the prophets.

People (among themselves): What has happened to the son of Kish? Is Saul one of the prophets now?

Local Citizen: 12And who is their father?

This is one way the saying, "Is Saul one of the prophets?" originated.

13When Saul finished prophesying, he went to a high place to a local shrine.

14When Saul returned home, his uncle asked him and his servant where they had been.

Saul: We went to look for the donkeys. When we couldn't find them, we spoke with the seer, Samuel.

Uncle: 15What did Samuel tell you?

Saul: 16He told us that the donkeys had been found.

But Saul did not tell him anything about the kingdom or anything else Samuel had said.

► Why is Saul chosen as the first king? He is from the tiny tribe of Benjamin, so he seems to be outside the mainstream of political power. But he is a handsome and tall young man, meaning he is appealing in appearance and able to inspire confidence in warriors. At this first appearance, it even seems as if his inner qualities might match his outer qualities—God transforms him and gives him the power to prophesy—but as the story goes on, his insecurities and his jealousy of David are his undoing.

* 10:1 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

17Sometime later Samuel called the people to come and gather in the presence of the Eternal One at Mizpah. 18He stood before the Israelites with an important message.

Samuel: Listen to what the Eternal One,
the God of Israel, has to say to you:
"I brought Israel up from Egypt and rescued you from Egyptian bondage, and then I delivered you from all of the nations that sought to burden you."
19Today, though, you have rejected the True God who has saved you from every disaster and distress, and you have asked for a king to rule over you. If that is what you want, then line up by tribe and clan in front of the Eternal One.

20So Samuel brought all of the tribes of Israel in front of him, and he chose the tribe of Benjamin by drawing lots. 21Then he sorted through the clans of the tribe of Benjamin by the same method, and the clan of the Matrites was chosen. [Within that clan, he brought each man forward one by one,]* and Saul, son of Kish, was chosen. But when they looked for him, he was nowhere to be found.

22So they asked the Eternal One if the man had yet arrived.

Eternal One: Look! He has hidden himself among the baggage.

23Then they hurried to find him and bring him in front of the people; and when he emerged, he stood head and shoulders above everyone else.

Samuel (to the people): 24Do you see the man whom the Eternal One has chosen for you as king? No one else among the people of Israel can compare to him.

People (cheering and chanting): Long live the king!

25Samuel informed the people about the rights and responsibilities of the king, and he wrote all these details in a book that he placed in the presence of the Eternal One. Then he sent all the people to their homes. 26Saul, too, went home to Gibeah, accompanied by a group of warriors who had been moved by the True God to accompany him. 27Still, some worthless skeptics and unbelievers asked, "How can this no-name from Benjamin protect us?"
and they refused to honor him with an appropriate gift. But Saul kept silent.

[At that time, Nahash, the king of the Ammonites, tyrannized the men of the tribes of Dan and Reuben, putting out one of each man's eyes and denying the possibility of their deliverance. Not one of the Israelites across the Jordan still had both his eyes, but 7,000 men had escaped from this conflict and reached Jabesh-gilead.]*

11 So after a month had passed,
Nahash the Ammonite besieged Jabesh-gilead. 2The men of Jabesh tried to make a treaty with Nahash, telling him they would serve him.

Nahesh: I will make this treaty with you on one condition: I will put out the right eye of every one of you and so humiliate Israel.

Elders: 3Give us seven days to send messengers throughout Israel. If no one comes to deliver us, we will surrender
to you.

4When the messengers reached Gibeah, where Saul was ruling, they told the people about Nahash and his cruelty, and it made them weep out loud. 5Now Saul was just coming in from plowing in the fields when he heard the commotion.

Saul: What has happened? Why is everyone so sad?

So they told the king about the predicament and request from the people of Jabesh. 6When he heard their story, the Spirit of the True God moved upon Saul, and he was furious. 7He took a team of oxen, just like the one he had just been plowing the fields with, cut them into

* 10:21 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion. * 10:27 This portion appears in the LXX; most ancient texts omit it.

pieces, and sent the pieces throughout the land of Israel with his first royal decree: "May those who refuse to answer this call from Saul and Samuel have their oxen torn apart like this!" Because they were afraid of making the Eternal One angry, people from every tribe came forward to fight as one.

8Saul gathered them at Bezek, and the Israelites numbered 300,000 fighting men, with Judah providing 30,000. 9The messengers who had come from Jabesh were sent back to tell the people in Jabesh-gilead to look for deliverance before the heat of the next day. They were thrilled by the news.

10So the citizens of Jabesh sent a message to Nahash.

People of Jabesh: Tomorrow we will surrender to you, and you may do whatever you wish to us.

11The next morning Saul divided the people into three regiments; they entered the Ammonite camp that night under the cloak of darkness during the morning watch and slaughtered the soldiers until the next afternoon. The survivors were so few and so scattered you could not find two Ammonites together.

People *(to Samuel): 12Who are those people who jeered, "Is Saul going to be our king?" Where are they now? Hand them over so we can kill them!

Saul: 13*No.* Not one man will be executed today because the Eternal One has given a great victory to Israel.

Samuel *(to the people): 14Come with me to Gilgal. There we will renew the kingdom and crown Saul as our king.

15So representatives from all the tribes went to Gilgal. There Saul was installed as king of Israel before the Eternal One; then they joyfully offered peace offerings to the Eternal, and Saul and all the Israelites celebrated.

► The historical books of the Hebrew Bible often have sections where great religious leaders make a final speech. This is a summing-up of their lives and often a prophetic warning about the future. Call it "foreshadowing," if you will, because everyone who hears this story knows that everything Samuel predicts comes true. As long as the people and their king serve only the Lord, they prosper; but if they and their king turn away from that faith, they suffer. As those who read the books of Samuel know, the people of Israel turn away from God; and eventually, great empires come and lay waste to the land.

12 Samuel *(to the Israelites): I have listened to your voice and all you have said, and I have given you a king to rule over you. 2He is now your ruler and will walk before you. I have grown old and gray, but my sons still live among you. I have led you since I was a young man, but those days are over.

3Here I am. Speak up in front of the Eternal One and in front of His anointed king if you have the same grievances against me as you have against my sons. Have I ever taken an ox from you? A donkey? Have I ever cheated any of you? Threatened any of you? Have any of you given me a bribe to make me change my judgment? [If any of this is true, say so,]* I will make it right.

► Samuel asks his listeners to affirm that he has acted with integrity as their leader. Money has not swayed him, nor has personal emotion; he has done what is good in the sight of God. (Maybe, like Eli before him, his sons are a mess, but that's another matter.) The people take seriously what he has to say next for two reasons: they trust Samuel, and they fear God.

Today some leaders taint religion by acting as Samuel's sons did. Their personal greed, desire for political power, or unwillingness to put God first make some think that religion itself is a sham. Faithful leaders can still be found, but Samuel's example suggests that it's a good idea to question the actions of our leaders before we let them tell us what they think God wants from us.

* 12:3 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

People: 4No, you have never cheated us, you have never threatened us, and you have never taken anything from anyone.

Samuel: 5Then let the Eternal One, who witnesses against you, and His anointed king, who bears witness today, see that you have found me innocent of any wrongdoing against you.

People: He is our witness.

Samuel: 6The Eternal One is our witness, the One who first raised Moses and Aaron to be leaders of the people, the One who brought your ancestors here out of the oppression of Egypt. 7Now stand ready as I will present to you, before the Eternal One, a declaration of all the righteous acts the Eternal has done on behalf of you and your ancestors.

8When Jacob went down into Egypt, your ancestors cried to the Eternal One for help, and the Eternal raised Moses and Aaron to lead your ancestors out of their bondage and bring them to this land. 9But once they were here, they forgot the Eternal One, their True God, so He allowed Sisera, the general of the armies of Hazor, and later the Philistines and then the king of Moab to subdue them. So the people had to fight for their survival. 10*Under this heavy oppression,* the people cried out to the Eternal, confessing, "We have sinned. We have forsaken the Eternal to serve the local gods.* But if You will save us now from the heavy hands of our enemies, we will serve You." 11Then the Eternal One raised up Jerubbaal, Bedan, Jephthah, and Samuel, who pulled you out of the grasp of your enemies and brought peace from warfare on every side so that you could live in safety. 12But when you saw that King Nahash of the Ammonites was arrayed for battle against you, you ran to me, saying, "Give us a king to rule over us," even though the Eternal One, your True God, has always been your king. 13So now, look: here is the king you chose, the king for whom you asked. The Eternal has indeed set a king to rule over you.

14If you will revere and serve the Eternal, if you listen to His voice and do not disobey His commands, then you and this king who rules over you will follow the Eternal One, your True God, and all will go well with you.

15But if you ignore His voice, if you disobey the commands of the Eternal, then His mighty hand of judgment will be raised against you and against your ancestors.

16Stand ready, for the Eternal One is going to show you a great sight. 17It is the wheat harvest now, and is this not the time after the early rains? But I will call upon the Eternal to send thunder and rain so you will realize the depths of your sin before God because you demanded a king to rule over you.

18Samuel prayed to the Eternal. He sent thunder and rain to pelt the fields that day, and the people were afraid of Him and of Samuel.

People *(to Samuel): 19Pray to the Eternal One your God on behalf of your servants so we will not die for adding to all the weight of our sin the evil of demanding our own king.

Samuel: 20Don't be frightened. It is true that you have done evil, but never stop following the Eternal One. Serve Him completely, 21and do not follow empty things that do not have the power to benefit or save you. They are worthless. 22For the sake of His reputation, He will not cast away His chosen people. Before you ever chose Him, the Eternal One chose you as His own because it pleased Him.

23As for me, the last thing I would ever do is to stop praying for you. That would be a sin against the Eternal One on my part. I will always try to teach you to live and act in a way that is good and proper in His eyes. 24Make this your one purpose: to revere Him and serve Him faithfully with complete devotion because He has done great things for you. 25But if you continue in your evil ways against Him, you and your king will be swept off the face of the earth.

13 Saul was about 30* years old when he became king, and after he ruled for at least two

* 12:10 Hebrew, Baals and Astartes * 13:1 All Hebrew manuscripts and most Greek manuscripts omit Saul's age. The entire verse is problematic. Many suggestions have been offered, but none are clearly satisfying. Saul was older than 20 and less than 40 when he began his reign. He ruled at least 2 years and less than 42 years. It is difficult to be more specific.

years, 2Saul chose 3,000 men of Israel:
2,000 stayed with him in the hill country of Bethel at a place called Michmash, and the other 1,000 joined Saul's son Jonathan at Gibeah in Benjamin. He sent all the rest home to their tents.

3Jonathan crushed the Philistine regiment at Geba, and news of this slaughter reached the Philistines. Saul ordered that a trumpet be blown throughout Israel to announce Jonathan's victory to the people.

Saul: Let the Hebrew people know about this!

4When all Israel had heard the news of how Saul had defeated the Philistines, and when they learned that the Philistines were filled with hatred toward them, Saul called the people out to join him at Gilgal.

5Now the Philistines had gathered their forces: 30,000 chariots, 6,000 horsemen, and so many foot soldiers they were like grains of sand on the beach. They made camp at Michmash, east of Beth-aven. 6When the people of Israel saw they were in danger, for their troops were seriously outnumbered, they hid in caves and in holes, among the rocks, tombs, and cisterns. 7Some of the Hebrews crossed over the Jordan River into Gad and Gilead. But Saul remained at Gilgal; the people continued to follow him, but they were terrified.

8Saul waited for Samuel for seven days, the amount of time he had been told by Samuel to wait. But the prophet did not come to Gilgal, and the people began to slip away. A few more days and Saul would have no army left, so he decided to take matters into his own hands.

Saul: 9Bring me the animals for burnt offerings and the offerings of peace for the Lord.

10*Although Saul was not a priest,* he offered the burnt offering himself without waiting for Samuel. Immediately after Saul finished the offering, when the aroma of the sacrifice lingered over the land, Samuel arrived, and Saul went out to greet him and to pay his respects. But Samuel knew Saul had overstepped his bounds.

Samuel: 11What have you done?

Saul: The people were deserting me! You didn't come when you promised, and the Philistines were gathering for war at Michmash. 12I thought, "The Philistines are going to attack me here in Gilgal, and I haven't even asked the Eternal One to favor us." So I took matters into my own hands—I didn't want to—but I offered the burnt offering myself.

Samuel: 13That was a foolish thing, Saul. You have not kept the commandment that the Eternal, your True God, gave to you. He was willing to establish your kingdom over Israel for all time, 14but now your kingdom, your dynasty, will not last. He has found a man who seeks His will and has appointed him king over all the people instead of you because you have not kept to what the Eternal One commanded.

15Samuel left Gilgal then and went on his way to Gibeah in the land of Benjamin. When Saul counted his forces, they numbered about 600 men. 16Saul, his son Jonathan, and the people who had remained with him camped at Geba in Benjamin, but the Philistines were camped at Michmash.

19Now at that time there were no blacksmiths in all the land of Israel because the Philistines said, "Then the Hebrews will be capable of making swords or spears." 20That meant that the Israelites had to go to Philistine blacksmiths to have their farm implements and their axes sharpened. 21They charged one-fourth of an ounce to sharpen picks and plow blades, and one-eighth of an ounce for axes and goads. 22That meant that on the day of the battle, none of the forces of Israel owned swords or spears, except for Saul and his son Jonathan.

23The garrison of Philistines left the camp and came to the pass of Michmash.

14 One day Saul's son, Jonathan, came up with a plan. He turned to his armor-bearer.

Jonathan: Come on. Let's go down to the Philistines over there.

But he didn't tell his father what he had decided.

2Saul remained outside Gibeah under the pomegranate tree at Migron with about 600 of his soldiers. 3Ahijah, the son of Ahitub and nephew of Ichabod (who was a son of Phinehas, who was born to Eli, who had been the priest of the Eternal
One in Shiloh), was also there with Saul, bearing the priestly vest. None of the people knew that Jonathan had gone.

4-5The mountain pass that Jonathan took to reach the Philistines was bordered on either end by rocky crags. The one on the north in front of Michmash was called Bozez, and the other on the south near Geba was called Seneh.

Jonathan *(to his armor-bearer): 6Come on! Let's cross over to this force of Phi- listines, these uncircumcised, these idol- worshipers. Maybe the Eternal One will fight for us. If He wants to save us, then no force is too big or too small.

Armor-bearer: 7Do whatever you think is right, and I will follow you. My decision will be your decision.

Jonathan: 8Now we will approach the Philistines and let them see us. 9If they say, "Wait there. We are coming to you," then we will stay where we are, and we will not advance. 10But if they say, "Come here," then we will go to them, and that will be the sign that the Eternal has given us power over them.

11So they let the Philistines see them, and the Philistine soldiers ridiculed them.

Soldiers: Look! There are some Hebrews climbing out of the holes where they've been hiding!

12They signaled to Jonathan and his armor-bearer.

Soldiers: Come here, you two! Come here,
and we'll show you something!

The Philistines believe no one can climb up to them.

Jonathan *(to the armor-bearer): Follow me! The Eternal One has assured victory for Israel.

13Jonathan scrambled up the steep incline on his hands and feet to the Philistine sol- diers, his armor-bearer right behind. When he appeared before the Philistines, they fell before him, and he and his armor-bearer killed them right and left. 14In that first assault, Jonathan and his armor-bearer killed about 20 men within an area of about a half-acre. 15*When the news of this* slaughter spread, it caused trembling in the Philistine camp, among the soldiers in the field, even among the whole nation.
The garrison of troops was confused and afraid, and the raiding parties who had terrorized Israel trembled. Soon the earth itself quaked, and an awesome trembling abounded.

16*From a distance* Saul's watchmen at Gibeah in Benjamin saw the multitude of Philistines melting away, rushing back and forth.

Saul *(to his soldiers): 17Call the roll. I want to know who is missing from our camp.

After the roll call, they realized Jonathan and his armor-bearer were gone.

Saul *(to Ahijah the priest): 18Bring the covenant chest of the True God here.

The chest of God was traveling with the Israelites in those days. 19While Saul was talking with Ahijah the priest, the raucous commotion in the Philistine ranks grew. He turned to Ahijah the priest who was consulting the oracle of the Urim and Thummim to determine God's will.

Saul *(to the priest): Withdraw your hand!

20Then Saul rallied all his troops and led them into battle, and there was so great a confusion that no one knew exactly whom they were fighting. 21Those Hebrews who had been with the Philistines in their camps changed sides and began fighting alongside the Israelites who were with Saul and Jonathan, 22and those Israelites who had gone into hiding in the hill country of Ephraim came flooding out of the hills to fight when they heard the Philistines were running away.

23So the Eternal One gave Israel the victory that day, and the battle passed beyond Beth-aven. 24But Saul did a foolish thing: he placed all of his troops under an oath that caused added pressure.

Saul: A curse on anyone who stops to eat before evening comes and I have my revenge on my enemies!

So none of the army ate anything,
25[although they passed through a forest and by a honeycomb]* with honey on the ground. 26The people passed and the honey was dripping out, but none of them reached out for a taste because they were afraid of Saul's curse. 27But Jonathan had not heard Saul's words, so when he passed the honeycomb, he reached out with the staff he was carrying, took some honey, put it in his mouth, and immediately felt refreshed.

Soldier: 28Your father strictly charged us not to eat anything! He said we would be cursed if we did; that is why we are so weak with hunger.

Jonathan: 29Then my father has troubled our people for no reason. See how much stronger I am after tasting the honey? 30Wouldn't it have been better if our soldiers had been free to eat some of the food they had taken from the enemy? Our slaughter of the Philistines is not as great as it could be because we are too weak to pursue it!

31*So after this victory,* after the Israelites had crushed the Philistines from Michmash to Aijalon, they were faint. 32*When evening came and they were permitted to eat,* they seized the spoils of battle, took sheep and oxen and calves, slaughtered them on the ground, and ate them with their blood, which is strictly forbidden by the law of Moses. 33This was reported to Saul.

Soldier: Look, our soldiers are sinning against the Eternal One by eating the meat together with the blood of those animals!

Saul: You should not have done this. Roll a large stone before me here so I can prepare an altar. 34Go among the people and tell them, "Bring your oxen or sheep; kill them here, and eat, but do not sin against the Eternal by eating the meat together with the blood."

So all the soldiers brought their own animals that night and slaughtered them at the stone altar. 35This was the first altar Saul built to the Eternal One.

Saul: 36Let us go down against the Philistine forces tonight and attack them until morning, until not one of them is left alive.

His followers encouraged him to do as he wished, everyone that is, except for the priest.

Priest *(protesting): Let us consult the True God.

So Saul and his priest come before the Lord and perform the appropriate rituals so that he can know the will of God.

Saul *(to God): 37Do You want me to go after the Philistines tonight? If we go, will You give Israel victory?

But God did not answer him that day. 38*So he gathered the people together.*

Saul: Come now, all you leaders of the land. Let us determine where we have sinned today. 39For as the Eternal One—the God who delivers Israel—lives, wherever the sin lies, even in my son Jonathan, that person will surely die!

No one among the people answered him. 40So Saul separated himself and Jonathan from the others, ordering the people to stand on one side and he and Jonathan on the other.

People: Do as you please.

41Then Saul asked the Eternal One, the God of Israel, to reveal the truth. [The priest consulted the stones of the divine oracle to determine whether the sin was committed by the common people of Israel or by someone in his royal family.]* The oracle indicated that the family of Saul, not the people of Israel, was at fault.

Saul *(to the priest): 42Cast again to see whether it is me or my son Jonathan.

The results indicated Jonathan.

Saul *(to Jonathan): 43What have you done?

Jonathan: I certainly tasted a little honey with the tip of the staff I carried. I am ready to die.

Saul: 44May the True God do the same and more to me, my son. Jonathan, you must die.

But the people step in to protect Jonathan.

* 14:25 Meaning of the manuscripts is uncertain. * 14:41 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

People (to Saul): 45Would you execute Jonathan, the one who won Israel's great victory? Of course not! As the Eternal One lives, not a hair of his head should be harmed because he worked with the True God today to give us victory!

So the people ransomed Jonathan, and he was not killed. 46Saul, now humiliated, stopped pursuing the Philistines, and the Philistines who were left returned to their own land.

47When Saul entered into his kingship, he made war with all of Israel's enemies—Moab, the Ammonites, Edom, the kings of Zobah, and the Philistines. Throughout his life he fought and condemned them. 48He fought bravely and defeated the Amalekites and rescued Israel from the onslaught of all those who plundered her.

49Saul's three sons were Jonathan, Ishvi, and Malchi-shua, and his two daughters were Merab (the firstborn) and Michal (the younger). 50Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz, and the commander of his forces was his cousin Abner, son of Ner, Saul's uncle. 51Kish, the father of Saul, and Ner, the father of Abner, were sons of Abiel.

52The Israelites fought hard against the Philistines throughout Saul's reign; and whenever Saul found a strong or brave fighter, he added him to his forces.

15 Samuel (to Saul): 1-2Because the Eternal One sent me to anoint you as ruler over His people Israel, listen to what the Eternal One, the Commander of heavenly armies, has to say: "I will punish Amalek because they waylaid Israel in her path out of Egypt. 3I want you to go down against Amalek and destroy them, everything they have. Do not allow anything to survive; destroy them all—man and woman, child and infant, ox and sheep, camel and donkey."

► Although Saul is given great victories, God rejects him, regretting that Saul was ever chosen as king. Several reasons are given for why Saul was judged for listening to his own counsel rather than trusting in God's. First he takes the priest's role as his own and carries out a ritual sacrifice. Later his hungry soldiers break the dietary regulations from the law of Moses by devouring meat and blood together. Finally Saul does not destroy every aspect of the Amalekite kingdom as God commanded.

4So Saul gathered his forces, and at Telaim he counted them: 200,000 foot soldiers with 10,000 men from Judah. 5He approached the city of Amalek and set an ambush in the valley there. 6From there he sent a message to the Kenite people.

Message from Saul: Get out! Be gone! You showed kindness to the people of Israel when they came out of Egypt. Get away from among the Amalekites, or I will be forced to destroy you with them.

So the Kenites left their homes among the Amalekites. 7Then Saul attacked the Amalekites from Havilah all the way to Shur, east of Egypt. 8He cut down the entire population with the sword, as God had told him to do, except he captured King Agag of the Amalekites and kept him alive. 9Saul and the army spared Agag, and they saved the best of the livestock: the sheep, the oxen, the lambs, and the best of all the stock. They kept what was valuable instead of destroying it, and they only destroyed those things they considered worthless.

10Then Samuel heard the voice of the Eternal.

Eternal One: 11I regret that I made Saul king over Israel because he has turned away from Me and from executing My commands.

► What do we make of this idea that God has changed His mind? Classical theologians (Augustine and Aquinas, particularly) believed that God is unchangeable, above all such petty things as regret, anger, and sorrow, although His actions sometimes seem as though God feels such things. More contemporary theologians suggest that God can change His mind as His purpose is being worked out through the actions of human beings. In either case, what we see here is God seeking someone who will act as His regent and do exactly as He says—and clearly, Saul is no longer capable of being that person.

Samuel was distressed when he heard this, and he cried out to the Eternal One all night long.

► Samuel feels terrible about what is going to happen, and he spends the night weeping. This reaction makes Samuel's conversation with Saul that much more powerful—what sorrow and anger Samuel must be feeling as he is laying down the law to this young king he anointed with his own hands. This tragic twist in the story of Saul develops because he has failed to live up to God's requirements, so God decides that His chosen king will not remain on the throne.

12 Then he rose early in the morning to go and find Saul, only to hear that Saul had gone on to Carmel, where he had erected a monument to himself, and returned to Gilgal. 13 At last Samuel caught up with Saul. When Saul saw him, he greeted him as if nothing was wrong.

Saul *(to Samuel): May you be blessed by the Eternal One. I have carried out His commands.

Samuel: 14 Then why do I hear the sounds of sheep and cattle?

Saul: 15 They brought the best of the Amalekites' sheep and cattle to sacrifice to the Eternal One your God. But we destroyed all the rest as we were told.

Samuel: 16 That's enough. Stop talking, and let me tell you what the Eternal told me last night.

Saul: Go ahead, I'm listening.

Samuel: 17 Don't you remember when you didn't amount to much in your own sight, but you were made the leader of the tribes of Israel? Wasn't it the Eternal One who anointed you king over them? 18 The Eternal One sent you on a mission, commanding you, "Go and destroy the Amalekites, who are sinners. Fight them until they are completely destroyed."

19 Why didn't you obey the voice of the Eternal One? Why did you grab the spoils of battle, doing what the Eternal considers evil?

Saul *(defending himself): 20 I did what the Eternal One instructed. As He commanded, I went on the mission and decimated all the Amalekites, and I have brought back Agag, their king. 21 It was the people who took the sheep and cattle from the spoil that would have been devoted to destruction and brought them back to sacrifice to the Eternal One, your True God, in Gilgal.

Samuel: 22 Does the Eternal One delight in sacrifices and burnt offerings as much as in perfect obedience to His voice?
Be certain of this: that obedience is better than sacrifice;
to heed His voice is better than offering the fat of rams.
23 Rebellion is as much a sin as fortune-telling,
and willfulness is as wicked as worshiping strange gods.
Because you have rejected His commands,
He has rejected you as king.

Saul: 24 I have sinned. I disobeyed the voice of the Eternal One and your instructions because I was afraid of the people. I listened to their counsel instead of yours. 25 So now, please pardon my sin, and return with me so that I can worship the Eternal.

Samuel: 26 I will not return with you. Because you have rejected the voice of the Eternal One, He has rejected your claims to rule Israel. He is through with you.

27 As Samuel turned to go, Saul knelt to the ground, caught the prophet's robe, and held on so tight that it tore.

Samuel: 28 Today the Eternal One has torn the kingdom of Israel from you to give to your neighbor, who is a better man than you. 29 The One who is the Glory of Israel will not recant or change His mind, for He is not like some mortal being who changes his mind.

Saul: [30]I have sinned. But please, do me this honor in front of the elders of Israel and all the people. Come back with me so that I may worship the Eternal One, your True God.

[31]So Samuel returned with Saul, and Saul worshiped the Eternal One. Samuel then completed what Saul had begun.

Samuel: [32]Bring me Agag, king of the Amalekites.

Agag was led to him, being cautiously optimistic that the worst was surely past.

Samuel: [33]Just as your sword has taken children from women, so will this sword make your mother a childless woman.

So Samuel chopped Agag into pieces before the Eternal One at Gilgal. [34]Then Samuel went back to Ramah, and Saul returned to his house in Gibeah of Saul.

[35]Samuel never saw Saul again until the day he died. The prophet grieved over the hapless king. And the Eternal grieved, too, regretting that He had ever anointed Saul king over Israel.

16 Eternal One *(to Samuel): How long will you mourn over Saul? I have rejected him as king over My people Israel. Now take your horn, fill it with oil, and depart. I have selected a new king for Me from among the sons of Jesse of Bethlehem.

The Lord has yet another mission for Samuel.

Samuel: [2]How can I do that? If Saul hears I am anointing a new king, he will kill me!

Eternal One: Take a heifer with you, and say, "I have come to sacrifice to the Eternal One." [3]Invite Jesse to that sacrifice, and when he arrives, I will show you what to do. You will anoint for Me the one I show to you.

[4]Samuel did as the Eternal One had told him, and he went to Bethlehem. The elders of the city came out to him, unsure of what business he had there.

Elders *(trembling): Do you come in peace?

Samuel: [5]Yes, in peace. I have come to sacrifice to the Eternal One. Sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice.

And Samuel consecrated Jesse and his sons and invited them to the sacrifice as well. [6]When they came, he noticed the eldest son, Eliab.

Samuel *(to himself): Surely this is the one the Eternal One will anoint.

Eternal One *(to Samuel): [7]Take no notice of his looks or his height. He is not the one, for the Eternal One does not pay attention to what humans value. Humans only care about the external appearance, but the Eternal considers the inner character.

[8]Jesse called his son Abinadab and brought him to Samuel. Samuel looked at him.

Samuel: The Eternal has not chosen him either.

[9]Then Jesse brought his son Shammah in front of Samuel.

Samuel: The Eternal has not chosen him either.

[10]Jesse walked seven of his sons in front of Samuel, and each time, Samuel refused them because the Eternal One had chosen none of them.

Samuel *(to Jesse): [11]Are all your sons here?

Jesse: All but the youngest. He is off keeping the sheep.

Samuel: Send for him, and bring him here. We will not sit down until he arrives.

[12]Jesse sent for the youngest son, David, and he came in front of Samuel. He was a handsome boy, with a healthy complexion and bright eyes.

Eternal One: Rise and anoint him, because this is the one.

[13]Then Samuel took the horn filled with olive oil and anointed him in the presence of his brothers, and the Spirit of the Eternal fell strongly on David and remained from that day on. Samuel then left for Ramah.

14The Spirit of the Eternal left Saul, and an evil spirit sent from the Eternal One tormented him. 15*Saul's servants saw this.*

Servants (to Saul): Look, an evil spirit from God is terrorizing you. 16Let our lord command that his servants find someone skillful on the harp, so that when this evil spirit from God is bothering you, he will play and ease your mind.

Saul (to his servants): 17*I agree.* Find someone who can play well, and bring him here to me.

One of the younger men there spoke up.

A Young Servant: 18I know someone, one of the sons of Jesse of Bethlehem, who plays skillfully and who is a man of courage, a warrior, sensible in what he says, and handsome; and the Eternal One is surely with him.

19So Saul dispatched messengers to Jesse.

Saul's Message: Send your son David, who is watching your flocks, to me. Your king needs his service.

20So Jesse did as his king commanded. He sent Saul a young goat and a donkey loaded down with bread and a skin of wine by his son David. 21David came to Saul and served him. The king loved him greatly and made David his armor-bearer. 22Then he sent a message to Jesse.

Saul's Message: David has impressed me. Please allow him to remain here in my service.

23Whenever God allowed the evil spirit to afflict Saul, David would play the harp, Saul would be relieved of his torment, and the evil spirit would depart.

17 Now the Philistines had gathered an army for battle at Socoh, which is in the land of Judah, and they pitched their tents in Ephes-dammim between Socoh and Azekah. 2*Unwilling to allow another Philistine invasion of their nation,* Saul and the forces of Israel went out against them. They camped in the valley of Elah and formed ranks against the Philistines. 3The Philistines stood on one mountain and the Israelites on another, with the valley between them.

4Then a champion emerged from the Philistine camp, Goliath of Gath (one of the five capital cities in the Philistine confederation), who was over nine feet tall.* 5He wore a bronze helmet and a chain-mail coat that weighed more than 100 pounds of bronze. 6His legs were protected by bronze shin guards, and he had a bronze javelin slung between his shoulders, ready to throw. 7The shaft of his spear was as thick as a weaver's beam, the iron head of his spear weighed 20 pounds, and his shield-bearer went ahead of him. He was a fearsome sight.

8Goliath stood and shouted to the watching Israelites.

Goliath: Why have you come to fight us? Am I not a Philistine, a warrior for a powerful empire? And don't you serve Saul, your so-called king? Choose yourselves a champion, and send him out to me. 9If he kills me when we fight, then we will serve you; but if I defeat him and kill him, then you will serve us. 10Today I challenge the entire army of Israel: send me someone to fight!

11When Saul and his army heard the Philistine's words, they were shocked and frightened.

No one compares physically to Goliath. A hand-to-hand battle would be a slaughter, and the Philistines would conquer Israel anyway. Who can save them?

12David was the son of Jesse, an Ephrathite from Bethlehem in Judah who had eight sons. At this time, Jesse was already an old man. 13Jesse's three oldest sons, Eliab (the firstborn), Abinadab (the second), and Shammah (the third) had gone with Saul to the battlefield. 14David was the youngest son; and while the three oldest went with Saul, 15he went back and forth between Saul's battle and his father's sheep in Bethlehem taking provisions to the troops and bringing word from the front line.

16For 40 days this Philistine giant, Goliath of Gath, stepped forward, challenging the men of Israel every morning and evening. But no one was brave enough to accept the challenge.

* 17:4 Greek manuscripts read, "over six feet tall."

Jesse (to his son David): 17Take ⅜ of a bushel of roasted grain and these 10 loaves of bread to your brothers in the camp. 18Also take these 10 blocks of cheese to the commander of their company. See how your brothers are doing, and bring me some word from them. 19Saul, your brothers, and all the men of Israel are arrayed in the valley of Elah fighting against the Philistines.

► The story of David and Goliath is one that has grown in popular attention, and many people who have never read the Bible know it as a simple story of the underdog defeating the favored warrior. Although there is another story of how David is noticed by the king (when he was brought to Saul's court to play his music), in this story, David comes to the king's attention as God's warrior, contrasting Saul in almost every way. A mere boy, David doesn't trust in his own strength or in armor or in fancy weapons. David places his trust in God, and his courage comes from belief that God can use him, as small as he is compared to his opponent, because God is all-powerful.

20David rose early the next morning, left the sheep in the care of another, took the provisions, and obeyed Jesse's instructions. David reached the camp just as the army was lining up and shouting its war cries. 21Both Israel and the Philistines prepared to fight against each other. 22David left the provisions with the person in charge of baggage; he ran to the front lines and shoved his way through the soldiers to greet his brothers. 23As David talked with them, Goliath, the Philistine champion from Gath, emerged again and shouted his challenge to the men of Israel. This time young David heard his words.

24When they saw Goliath, all the Israelites were frightened and retreated from him.

Soldiers: 25Have you seen this man who steps forward? He's trying to taunt Israel. Our king will reward the man who kills him with wealth, a royal marriage, and freedom for his entire family from taxation and obligations in Israel.

David (asking those around him): 26What is the reward for removing this insult from Israel by killing this man? No uncircumcised Philistine can get away with taunting the armies of the living God!

Soldiers: 27You've heard what will be given to the man who kills him. We were just talking about it.

28David's oldest brother, Eliab, overheard this conversation and became angry with David.

Eliab: Why have you come down here? Who is watching your tiny flock in the wilderness? I'm your brother, and I know you—you're arrogant, and your heart is evil. You've come to watch the battle as if it were just entertainment.

David: 29What have I done now? I was just asking a question.

30David ignored him and asked another soldier the same question, and the people gave him the same answer. 31When news of David's valiant words reached the king, Saul sent for David.

David (to Saul): 32Don't let anyone be frightened because of that man. I am your servant, and I will go and fight with him.

Saul: 33*Don't be ridiculous*—you can't fight the Philistine. You're only a youth, and he has been a warrior since his childhood. You lack age and experience.

David: 34I work as a shepherd for my father. Whenever a lion or a bear has come and attacked one of my lambs, 35I have gone after it and struck it down to rescue the lamb from the predator's mouth; if it turned to attack me, I would take it by the chin, beat it, and kill it. 36I have killed both a lion and a bear; and as your servant I will kill this uncircumcised Philistine, too, since he has dared to taunt the armies of the living God.

37The Eternal One, who saved me from the paw of the lion and the paw of the bear, will save me from the hand of this Philistine.

Saul: Go then, and may the Eternal One be with you!

38So Saul outfitted David in the king's own armor: a bronze helmet to protect his head and a coat of mail to protect his chest.
39David strapped on Saul's sword outside the armor and then discovered he could not move because he was not used to the restrictions of the weighty armor.

David: I'm not used to these things. How can I attack an enemy when I can't even walk? So he removed every bit of Saul's armor. He would fight the Philistine as he had fought those lions and bears.

40He took his staff in his hand and went to the stream to choose five smooth stones, which he kept in a pouch in his shepherd's bag. He had his sling ready as he approached the Philistine.

41The Philistine, with his shieldbearer in front of him, came closer to David. 42When he saw that David was only a healthy and handsome boy, Goliath's eyes filled with contempt.

Goliath: 43Am I a dog that you come to beat me with a stick?

And he cursed David, invoking the names of his Philistine gods.

Goliath: 44Come here, and I will feed your flesh to the birds of the air and the wild animals of the fields.

David: 45You come to me carrying a sword and spear and javelin as your weapons, but I come armed with the name of the Eternal One, the Commander of heavenly armies, the True God of the armies of Israel, the One you have insulted. 46This very day, the Eternal One will give you into my hands. I will strike you down and cut off your head, and I will feed the birds of the air and the wild animals of the fields with the flesh of your Philistine warriors. Then all the land will know the True God is with Israel, 47and all of those gathered here will know that the Eternal
One does not save by sword and spear.
The battle is the Eternal One's, and He will give you into our hands.

48When the Philistine stood up and approached, David ran toward the line of battle to meet him. 49*As quick as a flash,* he reached into his bag, put a stone in his sling, and launched it at the Philistine, hitting him in the head. The stone sank deeply into his forehead, and the Philistine fell face-first onto the ground.

50That was how David defeated the Philistine with only a sling and a single stone, striking him down, ending his life without a sword in his hand.

► David's victory over Goliath sets in motion the rest of the story. The army of Israel wins a great victory over the panicked Philistines after David strikes down their champion, and David is elevated in the eyes of all (and soon will become Saul's leading general). But the seeds of the ongoing struggle between Saul and David are also sown on this day, as the people celebrate the good-looking boy's valor and heroism, filling Saul with jealousy. Soon Saul is thinking that David has everything but the kingdom's throne, and he turns on the boy who has saved his people. Their war destroys Saul and complicates David's life and eventual rule.

51Then David ran to the Philistine and stood over his lifeless body. He pulled the man's sword from its scabbard and finished him by cutting off his head.

When the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they knew they would be next, so they ran away. 52The people of Israel and Judah gave a great shout and chased the Philistines the length of the valley* and back to the gates of Ekron; and Philistines wounded in the battle fell all along the five miles of the Shaaraim Way, which ran between the Philistine capital cities of Gath and Ekron. 53Then the Israelites turned back from chasing the Philistines and plundered the Philistine camps.

54*As the sons of Israel were distributing* the spoils from the battle, David took the Philistine's head and went to Jerusalem, but he kept the man's armor and other pos- sessions back in his own tent.

55*Earlier in the day,* as David was choosing his stones and bravely approaching the Philistine, Saul asked his cousin Abner, who was general of the army, where David came from.

* 17:52 Some Greek manuscripts read, "to the entrance of Gath."

Saul: Abner, who is that young man's father?

Abner: I swear to you, my king, I don't know.

Saul: [56]Well, find out who his father is.

[57]When David returned from killing the Philistine, Abner brought him in front of Saul holding the head of the Philistine.

Saul: [58]Who is your father, young man?

David: I am the son of your servant Jesse of Bethlehem.

18 By the time David had finished speaking to Saul, Saul's son Jonathan was bound to David in friendship, and Jonathan loved David as he loved himself. [2]Saul took David into his service on that day and would not let him return to his father's home. [3]And Jonathan made a covenant with David because he loved him as he loved himself. [4]He took off the robe he wore and gave it to David, and also his armor, sword, bow, and belt, symbolically transferring to David his right to ascend the throne.

[5]David went wherever Saul sent him and was successful in battle; and as a result, Saul made him commander of his army. And all the people, even those who served Saul, were pleased.

[6]On the day they were returning from David's victory over the Philistine, the women came out from all the cities of Israel to meet the king, singing and dancing with tambourines and other instruments, making joyful music. [7]At one point, the women sang as they danced and celebrated.

Women: Saul has slain his thousands,
and David, his tens of thousands.

[8]This chant made Saul tremble with fury.

Saul: Do you hear this? They have said that David killed tens of thousands and that I only killed thousands. What else is left for him but my kingdom?

[9]From that moment on, Saul was suspicious of David.

[10]On the next day, the True God sent an evil spirit to overwhelm Saul and put him in a prophetic state inside his residence. While David was playing the harp, as he did every day to try and soothe the king, Saul had his spear in his hand [11]and decided to throw it at David, thinking, "I will pin him to the wall." But David twice escaped Saul's angry attacks.

[12]Saul was afraid of David because the Spirit of the Eternal was with him but had left Saul. [13]So, at last, Saul removed David from his presence, making him a commander over 1,000 men, hoping he would die in battle. But David went out to the battle and returned. [14]David was successful in everything he did because the Eternal One was present with him.

[15]When Saul saw that David achieved such success, he was amazed and afraid of him. [16]All of Israel and Judah loved David, who led their soldiers into battle and brought them back victorious.

Saul came up with a plan and called David.

Saul: [17]David, I want you to take my oldest daughter Merab in marriage. I ask only one thing in return: valiantly fight the Eternal One's battles on my behalf.

Saul was thinking that he did not need to murder David himself; instead, the Philistines would eventually kill David.

David *(to Saul): [18]Who am I, what have I done, and who is my family in Israel, that I should become the king's son-in-law?

[19]But at the time when Saul's daughter Merab was to be given to David as his wife, she was instead given in marriage to Adriel the Meholathite. [20]Saul's daughter Michal, however, loved David; and when Saul heard this, he was pleased.

► Although Michal is the only woman in the Bible described as loving a man, this is not a beautiful love story between David and Michal. Michal, the daughter of a king, was born to be a political pawn, not to marry for love. First Saul offers her as a reward to David if he slays 100 Philistines, a task the king is certain will kill David. When David succeeds, Michal helps him build credibility as the future king among the Israelites who do not know that God has already anointed him king. But those Israelites also don't know that God has condemned Saul's lineage, declaring that none of his descendants will ascend the throne of Israel. That decry excludes any of Michal's children, too, so her marriage to David is doomed to failure, no matter how much she loves him.

21He thought that he would give her to David to trap him in a dangerous situation where the Philistines could still destroy David. So Saul spoke to David again.

Saul *(to David): I want you to marry my other daughter.

22(to his servants) Talk to David privately. Tell him, "The king is very happy with you, and you are loved by those who serve him. So why don't you become the king's son-in-law?"

23So Saul's servants spoke these words to David as requested, but again he replied modestly.

David: Does it seem to you such a simple thing that I should become the king's son-in-law? What about the fact that I have no money to pay the brideprice and come from an unknown family with no political connections?

24Saul's servants reported David's concerns back to the king.

Saul: 25Tell David that in place of the traditional dowry, I want only the foreskins of 100 Philistines, so the king will be avenged against his enemies.

Saul thought David would be killed by the Philistines while attempting this task. 26When the servants repeated Saul's words, he agreed to Saul's terms and decided to fulfill these conditions to be the king's son-in-law. Before the allotted time elapsed to pay the dowry, 27David went with his men, killed 200 Philistines, and presented their foreskins to the king so that he could become the king's son-in-law. So Saul gave David his daughter Michal in marriage; 28but when the king saw how David enjoyed the favor of the Eternal One, and that his daughter Michal loved him, 29he felt even more threatened by David. After his plan failed, Saul considered David his constant enemy.

30Whenever the commanders of the Philistine army came out to fight, David distinguished himself against them more than any of Saul's other servants, so that everyone valued him.

19 Saul ordered his son Jonathan and all his servants to figure out a way to kill David, but Jonathan was very fond of David.

► In the friendship between Jonathan and David, Jonathan stands to lose everything he has if David becomes king, yet he betrays family and ambition by befriending him. These two young men make a pact to protect and love each other in life; and if something should happen to Jonathan, David agrees to honor Jonathan's descendants out of the love he bears for Jonathan. Later that promise results in David elevating one of Jonathan's sons to the king's table. In a time when any reminders of the previous regime would have been distracting and even dangerous, David shows he can do more than just be strategic and political.

Love knocks down barriers and makes us set aside our selfish concerns. This friendship has long been counted as a model for how two people might love and serve each other.

Jonathan *(warning David): 2My father wants you dead. Watch out tomorrow morning. Think of a safe place to hide that nobody knows about. 3I will go into the field near where you are hiding, and I will speak on your behalf to my father. If I learn anything, I will tell you.

4Jonathan spoke generously on behalf of his friend to his father, Saul.

Jonathan: The king should not sin against his servant David, who has never sinned against you. Indeed his achievements have been of real service to you and your kingdom. 5He faced death when he fought against the Philistine, and the Eternal One gave David a great victory for all of Israel. When you saw it then, you were filled with joy. Why would you now sin against an innocent person like David by killing him without a proper cause?

Saul (considering this counsel): 6As the Eternal One lives, David should not be murdered.

7Jonathan found David and told him everything that had happened, and then Jonathan brought David back into the service of Saul the king.

8Once again there was war between Israel and the Philistines, and David went out to fight them. He crushed them and made them flee.

9Again the Eternal sent an evil spirit to disturb Saul as he sat at home, spear in hand, listening to David play music; 10again Saul tried to pin David to the wall with his spear, but Saul missed him and the spear stuck into the wall. David escaped that night and ran to his home.

11Saul dispatched some of his officers to watch David's house so that they could kill him the next day. David's wife Michal warned him.

Michal: If you don't save yourself tonight, tomorrow morning you'll be killed.

12So Michal lowered David down through the window, and he escaped. 13Then she laid a large idol on the bed, made it a wig of goat's hair, and covered it with clothes. 14When Saul's officers came to take David to the king, she told them, "He's sick."

15*Hearing this report,* Saul ordered his officers to return and see David for themselves. He would not be deterred.

Saul: Even if you have to carry him to me in his bed, do it so I can kill him.

16When the officers returned, they threw back the blankets and, instead of David, they discovered the idol with its goat-hair wig in the bed. So they took Michal to Saul.

Saul (to Michal): 17Why have you betrayed me like this, daughter, and let my enemy escape?

Michal (lying): He said to me, "Let me go. Don't make me kill you."

18David fled to Samuel in Ramah, and he told him everything that had happened. Samuel took David to the town of Naioth, and they lived there.

19Saul soon learned that David was at Naioth in Ramah, 20so he sent officers to arrest him and bring him back. But when they came, they found a group of prophets in a prophetic trance with Samuel standing and leading them, and the Spirit of the True God entered Saul's officers so that they, too, were caught up and prophesied.

21When Saul heard this news, he sent other officers who were also affected in this way. He sent a third set of officers, and again, the same thing happened when they encountered Samuel and the prophets.

22So finally Saul went, himself, to Ramah. When he arrived at the large cistern at Secu, he asked where he might find Samuel and David and was told they were at Naoith in Ramah. 23As Saul traveled, the Spirit of God entered him, and he, too, fell into a constant prophetic trance. When he reached Naoith in Ramah, 24he stripped off all his clothes and fell into a prophetic ecstasy before Samuel, lying naked all that day and night. (This is another way the saying arose, "Is Saul also one of the prophets?")

20 David ran for his life. He left Naioth in Ramah and found Jonathan.

David: What have I done? Of what am I guilty? What crime have I committed against your father to make him want to kill me?

Jonathan: 2Impossible! Don't worry about it. You're not going to die. My father doesn't make any decision, large or small, without telling me. And why would my father hide this from me? It is not so.

David: 3But your father knows we are friends, and he has said, "Don't tell Jonathan about this; he will be upset." I swear to you, as the Eternal lives—and as you live—I am on the verge of being killed.

Jonathan: 4Whatever you ask, I will do for you.

David: 5Look. Tomorrow is the new moon, and I should be sitting with the king at his table. But let me go and hide myself in the field until three days have passed.

6If your father asks about me, tell him that I asked to return to my hometown, Bethlehem, for an annual family sacrifice. 7If he says, "Fine," then all will be well with your servant. But if he is angry, you will know that he intends to harm me. 8So deal kindly with your servant, for you have made a sacred covenant with me, your servant. But if I am guilty, then kill me yourself. Why should you have to bring me in front of your father?

Jonathan: 9That will never happen. If I knew my father planned to hurt you, wouldn't I tell you?

David: 10So who will tell me if your father gives you a good or bad answer?

Jonathan: 11Let's go out to the field.

They went out to the field so that David could find a place to lie low.

Jonathan (to David): 12Let the Eternal God of Israel be my witness; this is my vow. When I have talked to my father, about this time tomorrow or no later than the third day, if he acts friendly about you, won't I send an answer to you? 13But if my father plans to harm you, then may the Eternal do to me what he plans for you—and more—if I don't let you know and send you away to safety.

May the Eternal One be with you, as He has been with my father. 14If I live, then show to me the faithful love of the Eternal that I may not die. 15Do not ever take your faithful love away from my descendants, not even if the Eternal were to remove all the enemies of the house of David from the face of the earth.

16With these words, Jonathan made a covenant with David and his descendants.

Jonathan: May the Eternal One guarantee this promise by the hands of David's enemies.

17And Jonathan made David swear again by his love for him, for Jonathan loved him more than life itself.

Jonathan: 18Tomorrow is the festival of the new moon. People will notice you are gone because your place will be empty.
19On the day after tomorrow, you will be greatly missed. On that day, quickly go down to that place where you hid yourself the first time and wait by the stone Ezel. 20I will shoot three arrows to the side of the stone, as if I'm shooting at a target. 21Then I will send a boy after them, saying, "Go find the arrows."
If I tell him, "Look, the arrows are on this side of you," then come back, for as the Eternal One lives, you are not in any danger. 22But if I tell the boy, "No, the arrows are beyond you," then flee, because the Eternal has shown you that you must leave. 23But as for the agreement that we have spoken together, the Eternal One is witness to it forever.

24So David hid himself in the field.

When the new moon festival began and the king sat down to eat, 25he took his usual seat in a place of safety with his back to the wall. Abner, his general, sat at the king's side; Jonathan stood, but David's seat was empty. 26That first night, Saul said nothing. He thought that perhaps David had somehow become ritually unclean, and he could not attend a sacred feast. 27But on the next day, the second day of the feast of the new moon, when David's seat remained empty, Saul spoke to Jonathan.

Saul: Why hasn't the son of Jesse joined us at the feast these past two days?

Jonathan: 28David asked me if he could go to Bethlehem. 29"Please allow me to go," he said. "Our family is sacrificing in the city, and my brother has insisted that I come. So if you think highly of me, I ask that you let me go there and see my brothers." That is why he is not at the king's table.

30Saul, not fooled for a moment, became very angry with Jonathan.

Saul: You son of a degenerate and rebellious woman! Do you think I don't know that you have befriended the son of Jesse? This is just as shameful for you as your mother's nakedness was. 31As long as David walks the earth, you will never rule this kingdom. Now send for him.
Bring him here to me, because he will most certainly die.

Jonathan: 32Why should David be put to death? What offense has he committed?

33At that, Saul threw his spear at him, fully intending to hit him, so Jonathan knew that it was truly his father's intention to have David killed. 34Jonathan left the table in a rage, without eating a bite on the second day of the festival. He was grieved because of David and because his father had disgraced him.

35In the morning, Jonathan took his bow and went out into the field, as he had arranged with David, and he brought a small boy with him.

Jonathan (to the boy): 36Run and find the arrows that I shoot.

The boy ran, and Jonathan shot an arrow beyond him. 37When the boy reached the place where the arrow had fallen, Jonathan called out.

Jonathan: Isn't the arrow beyond you? 38Hurry! Be quick about it. Don't hang around out there!

So Jonathan's young servant gathered the arrows and returned to his master. 39He knew nothing, of course; only Jonathan and David knew what had just transpired. 40Then Jonathan gave his weapons to the boy and told him to take them back to the city.

41As soon as the boy left, David rose from his hiding place south of the stone and prostrated himself before Jonathan. He bowed to Jonathan three times, and then David and Jonathan kissed each other. Both of them wept, but David wept more.

Jonathan (to David): 42Go in peace and safety, since we have both sworn in the name of the Eternal One, "He will mediate between me and you, and between our descendants, forever."

David got up from the ground and left, and Jonathan returned to the city.

► In the law of Moses, people are commanded to love their neighbors as themselves; and Jonathan does just that, loving David as he does himself. David's love for Jonathan is also clear. When they are parted here, David is filled with sadness. Although both of them weep, David weeps more; and when Saul and Jonathan are later killed in battle, David celebrates and remembers their friendship in one of the most beautiful songs in the Bible. These two demonstrate exactly what it means to follow the command of the law and love unselfishly.

21 David went to a place called Nob, where he visited the priest Ahimelech, who came forward fearfully to meet him.

Ahimelech: Why are you here alone, without anyone else?

David: 2The king has given me a mission that is not to be revealed to anyone else, and my servants are waiting for me at a place where I have sent them. 3Now what do you have here to eat? Let me have five loaves of bread or whatever you have.

Ahimelech: 4I have no ordinary bread—only the holy bread. You may take it, if your men have not recently had sexual intercourse.

David: 5Of course. They have stayed away from women since we have been on the road, three days now. If their bodies must be kept pure even when we go on a typical journey, how much more must they be kept pure when we are on a mission like this one?

6The priest gave him consecrated bread since the bread of the Presence was replaced when other fresh, hot bread was brought before the Eternal One and no other bread was available.

7Now one of Saul's servants, Doeg the Edomite, the chief of Saul's shepherds, was waiting before the Eternal that day.

David (to Ahimelech): 8Isn't there a sword or spear here? I left so swiftly on my errand for the king that I did not bring my sword or weapons with me.

Ahimelech: 9*We have no weapons here except* the sword of Goliath, the Philistine you killed in the valley of Elah. Look, you'll find it wrapped in a cloth behind the sacred vest. You may take that, if you like, for that is the only weapon here.

David: It is one of a kind. Let me take it.

from Saul and went to Saul's enemy, King Achish of Gath. 11The king's servants reminded the king,

Servants: Isn't this David who some claim to be the very ruler of the land? Didn't they sing about him while they celebrated and danced?

Saul has slain his thousands
and David, his tens of thousands.

12When David heard that these were the kinds of things people were saying about him, he was afraid of what Achish, the king of Gath, might do, 13so he acted differently when they were around and even pretended to be insane. He scarred the doors at the city's gates with his fingernails and drooled into his beard.

Achish *(to his servants): 14Look at him.
Can't you see this man is crazy? Why have you brought him to me here in my house? 15Don't I have enough crazy people around here already, or did you think I might need yet another?

22 That is how David escaped, and from there, he went to the cave of Adullam to hide. When his brothers and the rest of his family heard he was there, they went down to be with him. 2A group gathered around him, composed of those who were in debt or who were not content with Saul or who were in trouble. Soon David was captain of about 400 such men.

3David traveled then to Mizpah in Moab, the homeland of his great-grandmother, Ruth, to address the king of Moab.

David: Please allow my mother and father to remain here until I can see what it is that the True God has in store for me.

4So David left his parents there, and they remained with the king of Moab as long as David remained in the stronghold.

5*David was visited later by* Gad the prophet.

Gad *(to David): Do not stay here in the stronghold. Leave here, and go to the land of the tribe of Judah.

So David left that place and went into the forest of Hereth.

6Meanwhile Saul was sitting, spear in hand, under a gnarled and bushy tamarisk tree on the crest of a high hill in Gibeah.
His servants were standing around him when he heard the news that David and his followers had been located.

Saul *(to his servants): 7Listen up, all you men of Benjamin. Will Jesse's son, David, do for you what I have? Will he give each of you fields and vineyards? Will he make each of you commander over thousands or over hundreds? 8Is that why all of you have betrayed me? None of you told me that my own son had made a covenant with the son of Jesse.
None of you are sorry for me or let me know that my son had stirred up my servant to challenge me, to lie in ambush, just as he is doing at this moment.

9Doeg the Edomite stood among Saul's servants.

Doeg: I saw the son of Jesse when he came to Nob to speak with the priest, Ahimelech son of Ahitub. 10Ahimelech asked the Eternal One questions on David's behalf, gave him provisions, and even gave him the legendary sword of Goliath the Philistine.

11So the king sent for the priest Ahimelech, son of Ahitub, and for all his family who were the priests at Nob, and they came before Saul.

Saul: 12Pay attention, son of Ahitub.

Ahimelech: I am listening, my lord.

Saul: 13Why have you plotted against me with the son of Jesse, giving him bread and a sword and speaking to the True God on his behalf, so that he should rise up to fight against me? At this moment he must be lying in ambush.

Ahimelech: 14Which of your servants, good king, is so faithful as David? Isn't he the king's son-in-law, the captain of your guard? Hasn't he always been quick to do the king's bidding and honored in the king's household? 15Is this the first time I have inquired of God for David?
Of course not! Do not, O king, imagine that I, your servant, or anyone in my family has intended wrong against the king, for we know next to nothing about your affairs.

Saul (to Ahimelech): 16You will surely die, Ahimelech, you and all of your family.

► Saul may be truly at his worst. He fails to have reverence for God's priests and orders them to be killed for harboring David. Not even Saul's servants can support this horrid behavior, and they refuse to come under God's curse by striking down His priests.

The king turned to his guards.

Saul: 17Kill them, kill all of these priests of the Eternal because they have given their support to David. They knew he was running away, and they did not tell me.

But the servants of the king refused to attack the priests of the Eternal. Saul was furious, so he turned to one he could trust.

Saul (to Doeg): 18Carry out my orders. Turn around, and kill these priests.

So Doeg the Edomite attacked them. That day he turned and killed 85 men who wore the priestly linen garment. 19Then he went after Nob, the city of the priests, with his sword and utterly destroyed everything he found there—all the men, women, children, and infants. Doeg even turned his blade against the oxen, donkeys, and sheep. 20Only Abiathar, son of Ahimelech, son of Ahitub, escaped, and he fled to David for protection. 21He informed David that Saul had massacred the priests of the Eternal.

David (to Abiathar): 22I knew, when I saw Doeg the Edomite that day, that he would certainly tell Saul. I am responsible for the death of every person in your family. 23Stay here with me, and don't be afraid. The one who seeks my life also seeks yours; you will certainly be safe with me.

23 When David heard that the Philistines had attacked Keilah, ransacking the threshing floors and stealing the grain, 2he prayed and asked God for guidance.

David (to the Lord): Should I attack these Philistines?

Eternal One: Yes. Save Keilah, and defeat the Philistines.

David's Men (objecting): 3We have a lot to fear even as we sit here in Judah. Think how much worse it will be if we go to fight the armies of the Philistines in Keilah.

4So David asked the Eternal again just to make sure.

Eternal One: Yes, defend Keilah. I will grant you victory over the Philistines.

5So David and his men went down to Keilah and fought the Philistines, carried away their livestock, and slaughtered them. This is how David saved the people of Keilah.

6When Abiathar, son of Ahimelech, came to David at Keilah, he had fled carrying a sacred priestly garment. 7When Saul heard that David had gone to rescue Keilah, he was hopeful.

Saul: Surely the True God has sent David into my trap because he has entered into a city with gates and bars.

8So Saul summoned the people to go down to Keilah and besiege David and his men. 9When David heard that Saul was coming to attack him, he asked Abiathar to bring him the priestly vest so that he could ask the True God for direction.

David: 10Eternal God of Israel, Your servant has heard that Saul the king is coming to Keilah to destroy the city since I am here. 11Will the leaders of Keilah hand me over to save their lives? Is what I heard true? Is Saul really coming? I beg of You, please tell Your servant.

Eternal One: He will come.

David: 12Then will the men of Keilah hand me over along with my men to Saul when he arrives?

Eternal One: They will do this.

13So David and his followers, who now numbered about 600, left Keilah going wherever they could. When Saul heard that David had left Keilah, he gave up the chase because the trail was now cold. 14David hid out in secure places in the wilderness, in the hill country of the wilderness of Ziph in the land of the tribe of Judah. Every day, Saul sent out spies to find him and kill him, but the True God did not allow Saul to capture or kill David.

15While David was in the wilderness of Ziph at a place called Horesh, he heard that Saul was looking for him. 16Then Jonathan, son of Saul, figured out where David was and went out to meet him at Horesh. Although David and his men were in a tight spot, Jonathan reassured David's faith in the True God.

Jonathan: 17Don't be afraid. My father Saul will not get his hands on you today or any other day. Someday you will be king over all Israel, and I will be second to you. Even my father Saul knows this.

18Then the two of them made a sacred covenant before the Eternal One. David remained at Horesh, and Jonathan returned to his home.

19*At that time, some of* the people of Ziph went to Saul at Gibeah and told him David was hiding in some of the secure places at Horesh, on the hill of Hachilah to the south of Jeshimon.

People of Ziph: 20Now, O king, come down whenever you desire, and we will do our part by handing him over to you.

Saul: 21May the Eternal One favor you for having compassion on me! 22Check one more time to be sure; find out where he is exactly and who has seen him there because I hear that he is crafty. 23Look around, find out all his hiding places, and come back to me when you are certain of your information. Then I will go back with you, and if he is still in the land, I will find him among the tribe of Judah no matter how many thousands of people there are.

24They set out and went to Ziph ahead of Saul. Meanwhile David and his followers were hiding in the wilderness of Maon, in the desert plain* to the south of Jeshimon. 25When Saul and his men went to search for them, David found out and went to the rock in the wilderness of Maon. When Saul heard this, he pursued David in the wilderness of Maon.

26*At one point,* Saul and his men were on one side of the mountain, and David and his men on the other. David and his men picked up the pace, trying to escape, but Saul and his forces were closing in fast and hoped to capture them.

27Then a messenger arrived and spoke to Saul.

Messenger: Come quickly! A Philistine raiding party is in the land!

28So Saul stopped his pursuit of David and went to fight the Philistines, which is why that place is known as the Rock of Escape.

29From there David went up and lived in the narrow canyons and cliffs of Engedi.

24 After Saul had returned from chasing the Philistines, he was told that David had gone to the wilderness of Engedi. 2He gathered 3,000 hardened fighting men from across Israel and sought David in the vicinity of the Rocks of Wild Goats. 3When he came to the sheep shelters beside the road, a cave was there, and Saul went inside to relieve himself. Unguarded, he was especially vulnerable to attack.

Now Saul didn't know it, but David and his men were hiding in the recesses of that very cave. David's guards thought it was the perfect time to strike.

► It seems as if much of the First Book of Samuel is taken up with Saul trying to kill David and David escaping; and when David catches Saul in the most vulnerable position, his men urge him to kill Saul. It would be nothing more than self-defense. Wouldn't Saul kill David if Saul caught him with his pants down? Isn't Saul turning over every stone in the wilderness looking for David so he can kill him?

David's Men: 4This must be the very day the Eternal One told you about: "Watch! I will give your enemy to you, and you will do whatever you please with him."

David crept forward quietly and moved in so close he was able to cut a corner from Saul's robe. 5But immediately afterward, David felt awful about what he had done.

* 23:24 Hebrew, Arabah

David settles for a symbolic victory—he cuts off a corner of Saul's robe while Saul is otherwise occupied—but then he feels ashamed. If David is supposed to be king someday, God will make that happen. But until that time, who is he to bring shame on the king whom God anointed as his ruler?

The exchange between David and Saul shows both men at their best. At times, David could be a schemer; Saul's obsession and possible mental illness could obscure the good qualities that caused God to choose him in the first place. But in this exchange, each acknowledges the other. Saul sees that David could have killed him and chose not to; for the moment, he sees the truth about their relationship. In return Saul acknowledges what he knows in his heart to be true: David will someday be the king, and not he or his sons. And as Eli did earlier, Saul here accepts God's plan, even though it will be the destruction of his line. Saul doesn't always keep this understanding, and he will pursue David again. But Saul has his good—even noble—qualities, especially as his time grows short.

David *(to his men): 6God forbid that I do any harm to my lord, the one chosen by the Eternal to rule. How could I even pretend to assault him, knowing he is the Eternal's anointed king?

7David reprimanded his men, refusing to allow them to attack Saul. At last Saul finished and went outside the cave.

8David followed him at a safe distance. When Saul exited the cave, David called out.

David: My lord, the king!

Saul turned around to see David bowing low, his face touching the ground to show his respect.

David: 9My lord, why do you listen to those who say I plan to harm you? 10Look! Today the Eternal One placed you at my mercy in that cave. I could have done anything to you, and some said I should kill you. But I refused. I said, "I will not raise my hand against my lord, the Eternal's anointed king."

11Father, do you see what I am holding in my hand? It is the corner of your robe. Recognize and understand that I have not committed evil or treason against you—that I cut this off and did not kill you. I have not wronged you, even though you are hunting me and trying to kill me.

12May the Eternal One judge between us. If the Eternal chooses to avenge me and punish you, then let Him, but I will not take revenge against you. 13As the old proverb says, "From the wicked flows wickedness." But I will not harm you.

14Whom did the king of Israel come out in pursuit of, anyway? A dead dog? A lone flea? Someone as insignificant as I am? 15May the Eternal One judge between us. May He see who has done wrong and argue my case and uphold justice on my behalf.

16David's voice fell silent. Saul could hardly believe his eyes and ears.

Saul: Is that really you, David my son? (weeping loudly) 17*It's true that* you are more righteous than I am—you have repaid me with good when I handed you only evil. 18Today you demonstrated how you dealt kindly with me by not killing me when the Eternal gave you power over me. 19Who has ever come across his enemy in such a vulnerable position and yet allowed him to go away safely? So may the Eternal reward you richly for the good you have done for me today.

20Now I know that you will surely be king someday, and that you will establish the kingdom of Israel. 21So swear to me—by the Eternal One—that when that time comes, you will not destroy my descendants, and you won't wipe my name from my family tree.

22David swore this to Saul. Saul went home, and David and his men returned to their hideout.

25 At last, Samuel died, and all of the people of Israel gathered to mourn him. They buried him at his home in Ramah on the border of Benjamin and Ephraim. Once the mourning period was over, David and his men went down to the wilderness of Paran* (the desert area far to the south).

2A certain man in Maon owned property in Carmel, a town south of Hebron near the Dead Sea. This man was very rich: he owned 3,000 sheep and 1,000 goats. It was sheepshearing time in Carmel, which was celebrated with feasting and generosity. 3This rich man's name was Nabal, which means "foolish," and his wife was Abigail, which means "my father is joy." She was smart and beautiful, but he was mean-spirited and bad-tempered, an embarrassment to his Calebite tribe.

4*From his hiding place* in the wilderness, David heard that Nabal was shearing his sheep, 5so David gathered 10 young men to send to Nabal asking for gifts.

David *(to the young men): Go up to Carmel in Judah, to Nabal, and greet him in my name: 6"Live long. Peace be to you, your entire household, and all you possess. 7I hear that it is time to shear the sheep. I want you to know that your shepherds have been among us in the wilderness, and not only did we not harm them, but not an animal was taken during their time among us in Carmel. 8Ask your young men; they will tell you this is true. Please return our kindness and look on my young men with favor since we come on this feast day. Please give whatever you can spare to them and to your son David."

9When David's young men came to Nabal, they delivered David's message and waited for Nabal's response.

Nabal: 10Who is David? Who is this son of Jesse? I've never heard of him, so he must be nothing more than a slave who abandoned his master. 11Should I take bread and water and meat from my own servants and give it to men who come from who knows where?

12So David's young men returned to him by the same road and told him what had happened.

David *(ordering his men): 13Strap on your swords!

All of them put on their swords, including David, and about 400 of his men followed him while 200 remained behind with their supplies.

14One of Nabal's servants recognized his master's insolence and told Abigail, Nabal's wife, what was happening.

Servant: David sent messengers from the wilderness to salute our master, and Nabal returned their honor with insults. 15David's men have been very good to us. Nothing happened to us while we were with his company, and we never lost a single sheep in the fields in the time we were there. 16They were like a wall protecting us day and night the whole time we were near them keeping the sheep.

17You should know this and think about what to do next. Evil is coming to my master and his entire household if you don't do something. Nabal is so worthless that no one can talk to him.

18Then Abigail, knowing the stakes, rushed about gathering gifts similar to what her husband should have offered: 200 loaves, 2 jugs of wine, 5 sheep (butchered and dressed), more than 50 quarts of roasted grain, 100 clusters of raisins, and 200 fig cakes. She had these loaded on donkeys.

Abigail *(to her servants): 19Go ahead of me with all the gifts. I'll be right behind you.

But she never stopped to speak to her husband Nabal. She had decided to approach David herself.

20As she rode down the mountain on a hidden trail, David and his men were approaching, and they met.

21Earlier David had made an oath.

David: It looks as though we protected everything this guy owns—so that he lost none of the things belonging to him—for nothing. We did him a good turn, and now he rewards us with evil. 22May the True God do so to my enemies*—and more—if tomorrow morning I've left alive a single male of Nabal's household.

23When Abigail saw David, she dropped quickly from her donkey and fell to the ground in front of him, bowing.

Abigail *(at David's feet): 24My lord, any guilt here falls on me. Please let me, your servant, speak, and may you hear the words I speak. 25My lord, you must not take seriously the words of this worthless man, Nabal. His actions have proven that his name and his nature are the same: Nabal is a fool. Unfortunately I, your servant, did not see the young men you sent.

* 25:1 Some Greek manuscripts read, "Maon." * 25:22 Some Greek manuscripts read, "me."

26Now, my lord, as the Eternal One lives and as you live, since the Eternal has kept you from senseless killing and from seizing vengeance yourself, may your enemies and all who seek to harm you, my lord, be like Nabal.

27Now, please, accept my gift and distribute it among the young men who are with you. 28Please forgive your servant's shortcomings. The Eternal will certainly make my lord's house into a lasting dynasty because you fight on behalf of Him, and no evil will be found in you as long as you live. 29If anyone dares to rise up against you and seek your life, then you will be protected by the Eternal One, your True God, who will launch the lives of your enemies like stones from a sling.

30When the Eternal has done for my lord all the good things He has promised and has installed you as ruler over all Israel, 31you will never have to be grieved or conscience-stricken for having shed blood needlessly or for taking vengeance into your own hands. When He has dealt generously with my lord, I pray you will remember me, your servant.

David *(to Abigail): 32Blessed is the Eternal God of Israel, who sent you here today to intercept me. 33And blessed is your wisdom—blessed are you—for keeping me from shedding blood needlessly and from taking vengeance into my own hands. 34For as surely as the Eternal God of Israel lives and sent you to me, if you had not hurried out to meet me, tomorrow there would not have been a single male left alive in Nabal's household.

35Then David accepted her gifts.

David: Arise, and return home in peace. I have listened to your words, and I have granted your request.

36Abigail returned to Nabal, who was holding a kingly feast in his house. Nabal's heart was light because he was very drunk, so Abigail chose not to tell him anything until the next morning. 37The next morning, when he was sober, Abigail told him about her meeting with David and he went cold inside. 38About 10 days later, the Eternal One struck down Nabal, and he died.

39When David heard this news, he blessed God.

David: Blessed is the Eternal One, who protected my honor from Nabal's insults and who kept me, His servant, from executing evil. Instead, the Eternal One turned Nabal's evil back on him.

40Then David sent servants to Carmel asking Abigail to be his wife.

Servants: David has sent us to bring you to him so that you can be his wife.

41She stood, and then bowed to the ground before David's servants.

Abigail: I am your servant, willing to wash the feet of my lord's servants.

42Then Abigail quickly got up, mounted her donkey, and went with the messengers of David attended by her five handmaidens. Not long after, she married him.

43David also married Ahinoam of Jezreel; she and Abigail were both wives of David. 44*By this time,* Saul had given his daughter Michal, David's former wife, to Palti (the son of Laish) from Gallim.

► Two women figure prominently in David's ascension to Israel's throne: Michal and Abigail. As the daughter of the king, Michal is born into the world of palace intrigue, but Abigail talks her way into it. As a beautiful, articulate woman, she is desirable to any man, but she has special appeal to David. Abigail brings with her Nabal's wealth and power in the south. By marrying this Calebite widow, David gains political influence with the southern tribes that soon gets him crowned king in Hebron (2 Samuel 2:2-4), a large city within Caleb's territory.

26 Then the Ziphites went to Saul at Gibeah and told him David was hiding on the heights of Hachilah, which is across from Jeshimon. 2Saul again gathered 3,000 seasoned Israelite soldiers, and he went down to the wilderness of Ziph to find David. 3They camped by the road on the hill of Hachilah, across from Jeshimon, but David and his men were hidden in the wilderness. When he learned that Saul was coming after him, 4David sent out some spies who discovered Saul was certainly at it again.

5Then David went to Saul's camp and found where Saul slept, as well as Abner son of Ner, general of the army, surrounded by their men. 6David looked over the situation and spoke to Ahimelech the Hittite and to Abishai, son of Zeruiah and brother of Joab.

David: Who will follow me into the center of Saul's camp?

Abishai: I'm right there with you.

7So David and Abishai snuck into the encampment under the cover of darkness, and at last they found Saul sleeping in the middle of the camp, his spear stuck into the ground near his head, with Abner and the other soldiers lying around him asleep.

Abishai (to David): 8*This is your chance!* God has placed your enemy at your mercy. Let me take his spear and pin him to the ground. I only need one try.

David: 9*No.* Don't kill him. Who can legitimately strike the Eternal's anointed king without consequences? 10As the Eternal One lives, his time will come. The Eternal will strike him down; either he will die, or he will go into battle one day and be slain. 11God forbid that I would be the one to harm the Eternal's anointed king. But please, take his spear next to his head and that water jug, and let's go.

12So David took the spear and the water jug from right beside Saul's head and crept back through the camp. No one saw or knew they were there. No one woke up because the Eternal had caused the entire camp to fall into a deep sleep. 13David went up a hill, standing a safe distance away. 14Then he shouted to Abner, son of Ner, and the army.

David: Abner! Can you hear me?

Abner: Who hails the king's camp?

David: 15What kind of man are you? Is anyone your equal in all Israel? So why haven't you done a better job guarding your lord and master, the anointed king? After all, one of the people who crept into your camp tonight could have murdered your lord. 16This is not a good thing that you have done, because you failed to protect your lord, the anointed of the Eternal. As the Eternal One lives, you deserve to die. Where is his spear? Where is the water jug that was at his head?

17Saul recognized David's voice.

Saul: Is that you, David my son?

David: Yes, you are hearing my voice, my lord, my king.

18Why does my lord continue to chase his servant? What have I done? Am I guilty of something?

19Now then, may my lord the king hear the words of his servant: If the Eternal has stirred you to try and kill me, may He be appeased by an offering. But if mere mortals have done this, may the Eternal curse them because they have driven me away today from Israel, my heritage in the Eternal One. Exiling me is tantamount to saying "Go and serve other gods."

20Now I ask you, don't kill me here, so far from the Eternal's presence. The king of Israel and his army have come after a single flea, as one goes to hunt a partridge in the mountains.

Saul: 21David! I was remiss. Come back, my son. I will never try to hurt you again because today you treated my life as precious and preserved it. I have been a fool and made a big mistake.

David: 22Here is your spear, O king. Send one of your young soldiers to retrieve it.

23The Eternal One rewards those who are faithful and righteous, for He gave you into my power today, and I chose not to harm His anointed king. 24As I treated your life as precious, may He guard my life, rescuing me from all troubles.

Saul: 25*May God* bless you, my son David! May you accomplish everything you set out to do, and may you excel.

So David went his way, and Saul returned home.

27 David was convinced that someday Saul would succeed—that whatever he might have said, he would track David down to kill him. So David decided his safest choice would be to escape to Philistia, because Saul could not pursue him outside Israel and he would be safe. 2So David with his 600 men went to King Achish, son of Maoch, in Gath. 3David and his men stayed with King Achish in Gath. All their families and David's two wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail of Carmel, the widow of Nabal, were there also.

4When Saul heard that David had gone to Gath and allied himself with the Philistines, he gave up his pursuit.

David (to King Achish): 5If I have found favor with you, then give us someplace in one of the villages to live. Why should you share the royal city with me, your servant?

6So Achish set aside Ziklag for them; and ever after, it belonged to the kings of Judah. 7David lived in the land of the Philistines for a year and four months.

8Now David and his men raided the Geshurites, the Girzites, and the Amalekites (the inhabitants of the country of much earlier times from Shur and on toward Egypt). 9David and his men invaded these areas, killing everyone, men and women, but bringing cattle, donkeys, sheep, camels, and garments of these territories back to the land of Achish.

Achish: 10Whom did you raid today?

David (lying to him): Today we went out into the desert country in the south against Judah, the Jerahmeelites, and the Kenites.

11The reason David never permitted survivors of his raids was because he could not risk one of them being brought alive to the Philistines in Gath and telling the truth—that David has done this or that. This was David's practice during the entire time he lived in the land of the Philistines.

12*Because he did not know the truth,* Achish trusted David. He thought David had made himself such an enemy of Israel that he would have to remain Achish's servant for the rest of his life.

28 Then it came time for the Philistines to gather their forces to go to war against the people of Israel, and Achish spoke to David.

Achish: Of course you and your men will join us in the coming fight.

David: 2Good. You will see what your servant can do in battle.

Achish: Excellent. You will be my bodyguard as long as I live.

3Remember, Samuel had died some time previously and had been mourned by all of Israel. He was buried in his hometown of Ramah, and his wisdom died with him.

Another important thing to know: Saul had ordered all of the mediums and any others who claimed to speak to the dead thrown out of Israel.

4The Philistines gathered for war, and they made their camp at Shunem. Saul gathered all Israel, and they encamped at Gilboa. 5When Saul looked out over the forces of the Philistines, he was filled with fear and lost his confidence. 6Saul asked the Eternal for guidance, but He did not give him an answer, neither in dreams nor by consulting the Urim nor through prophecy.

► This is simultaneously one of Saul's greatest offenses against God and one of the times when he is a sympathetic character. As he comes to battle the Philistines, he has been cut off from any contact with God. It must seem as though everyone conspires against him, that he is all alone in the world; so, against his own decree forbidding such a thing, he consults a medium who can speak to the dead, a dark practice according to Hebrew law.

Saul (to his servants): 7Find me a woman, a spiritual medium—someone I can ask for guidance.

Servants: A spiritual medium lives in En-dor.

8So Saul disguised himself in different clothes, and taking two men with him, he went to see this woman in the dark of night.

Saul: I need you to call up someone from the grave—I'll tell you who—so I can ask him questions.

Medium of En-dor: 9Don't you know what Saul has decreed? You should know that he has thrown all the mediums and all others who speak for the dead out of Israel. Why are you asking me to risk my life?

Saul (swearing by the Lord): 10Nothing bad will happen to you. I promise.

Medium of En-dor: 11Whom do you want me to bring up from the dead for you?

Saul: I need to speak with the prophet Samuel.

12*The medium began her rituals, but* when she began to see Samuel, she cried out with a loud voice, realizing that her customer was Saul.

Medium of En-dor: Why have you lied to me? You're really Saul!

Saul: 13Don't be frightened. Nothing will happen to you. Just tell me, what do you see?

Medium of En-dor: I see someone who looks like a divine being rising out of the ground!

Saul: 14Describe him for me.

Medium of En-dor: An old man is coming, wrapped in a robe.

Saul knew this was Samuel, and he dropped to the ground, putting his face to the floor.

Samuel (to Saul): 15Why have you disturbed me by calling me up from the land of the dead?

Saul: I don't know what to do! The Philistines have gathered against us, and the True God has turned His back on me. He won't answer me in dreams or by prophecy, so I've summoned you for advice.

Samuel: 16Saul, why do you ask me what to do since you know the Eternal One has turned against you and is now your enemy? 17He has done to you exactly as He told you through me, for He has wrestled the kingdom away from you in order to give it to your neighbor, David. 18You did not obey the Eternal One's orders to be an agent of His wrath on Amalek. That is why He has brought these circumstances upon you today. 19And that is not all. He will hand you and your kingdom over to the Philistines. Tomorrow you and your sons will be where I am. The Eternal One will hand your entire army over to the Philistines.

20When Saul heard Samuel's words, he collapsed to the ground in terror and weakness, for he had not eaten all day and all night. 21The woman came to him, and she saw that he was filled with fear.

Medium of En-dor: Your servant has done what you asked. I have risked my life to do it. 22Now, please, listen to your servant. Have something to eat before you go. Eat what I offer you, so you can leave with some strength.

Saul: 23No, I won't eat anything.

His servants joined her in urging the king to eat, and at last he listened to them. He rose from the ground and sat on the bed. 24The woman took a fatted calf, slaughtered it, and prepared it. She took flour, kneaded it, and baked unleavened bread. 25*When the food was ready,* she served it to Saul and his servants, and they ate it before they departed that night.

► The medium reveals herself to be a woman of compassion; when the king collapses in fear and hunger, she feeds him—a last meal, prepared and served with kindness, for a condemned man. And Saul, knowing his fate beforehand, is ready to die in battle.

29 The Philistines gathered for battle at Aphek, while the armies of Israel camped near the spring of Jezreel. 2The armies of the Philistines were marching forward by hundreds and by thousands, and David and his men were marching in the rear with King Achish.

Philistine Generals: 3What are these Hebrews doing here?

King Achish: Isn't this David, who used to be the servant of King Saul of Israel? He has been with me for days, for years; and since he came over to our side and my service, I have never had a problem with him.

Philistine Generals (angry): 4Send David back to the place you have appointed for him. Don't let him go into battle with us—we might find him an enemy instead of an ally. Do you know how he could be reconciled with his former master? By handing him our heads!

5Isn't this the same David about whom the Israelites sang war songs while they danced and celebrated?

Saul has slain his thousands
and David, his tens of thousands.

Achish (calling to David): 6As the Eternal One lives, you have been honest with me, and I wish you could march into battle and back at my side. I have found no fault in you before. But the generals—the leaders of my troops—will not have you go with us. 7Go home now, and go in peace. Don't do anything to upset them further.

This decision is certainly in David's favor—could he really have gone to battle against Israel?—but he acts as though he is offended.

David: 8What have I done to deserve this? Has your servant done anything since he entered your service to prevent him going out and fighting against my lord the king's enemies?

Achish: 9As I see it, you are no more to blame than a messenger of God, but the commanders of my troops have said they will not allow you to go into battle with us.

10Get up early tomorrow morning with your lord's servants, and return to the home I have given you in Ziklag. Rise early tomorrow, and go as soon as it is light.

11So the next morning, David and his men got up early and traveled south to the land of the Philistines, but the Philistine army went north to Jezreel.

30 When David and his men reached Ziklag three days later, they discovered that the Amalekites had raided the desert hill country. They had attacked Ziklag in David's absence, burned it, 2and carried away the women and all the other inhabitants whom David had left behind. None of them were killed, but they were taken captive and carried back toward Amalek.

3So David and his men arrived in the burned city and found their wives, daughters, and sons gone, taken captive by the Amalekite raiders. 4*And when they saw this,* they cried out and wept aloud until they could weep no more. 5David's wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail, the widow of Nabal of Carmel, were among those carried off.

6David, too, was in anguish. Some of his men talked about stoning him because they were so bitter about their families being taken. But David took comfort in the Eternal One, his True God.

7He called for the priest, Abiathar, son of Ahimelech, and instructed him to bring the priestly vest, which he did.

David (to the Lord): 8Should we pursue these raiders? Can we catch them?

Eternal One: Go after them. You will catch them, and you will certainly rescue your families.

9-10So David set out with his 600 men. They came to the wadi Besor, a dry creek bed where he left behind 200 men who were too exhausted to continue the pursuit.

11In the open country beyond, some of his soldiers found an Egyptian. They took him to David, fed him, and gave him water. 12They gave him some fig cake and two clusters of raisins. After the man had eaten, he regained his strength. He had not had food or water for three days and nights.

David: 13Who are your people? Where are you from?

Egyptian: I am a young man of Egypt who served an Amalekite, but my master left me behind three days ago because I was sick. 14We had gone raiding in the desert country, against the Cherethites and the territories of Judah and of Caleb, and we burned down the town of Ziklag.

David: 15Can you lead me to this raiding party?

Egyptian: I will take you to them, if you will swear to me by the True God that you won't kill me or give me back to my master.

16He led David to where the Amalekites were spread out all over the place eating and drinking and dancing, because they had taken such great spoils in their raids against Philistia and Judah. 17David fought against them from one twilight to the next, and he killed all of them except for 400 young men who escaped on camels.

18So David recovered everything that had been taken, including his two wives. 19Nothing was missing—from the smallest thing to the greatest treasure, none of the sons or daughters, no property of any kind. David brought everything home. 20David also captured their flocks and herds, which they were driving ahead of other livestock, and the people agreed this would be David's share of the Amalekites' property.

21David and his people returned to the wadi Besor, where the 200 had remained behind, and those men went out to meet David and all those with him. As David approached, he greeted them. 22But some of the wicked and greedy ones who had fought alongside David spoke out.

Wicked Men: Because these men didn't go with us, why should we give them back the things we recovered for them? Sure, let them take back their wives and their children. But that's all. We'll keep the rest, and they must leave.

David: 23My brothers, this is not how we're going to treat what the Eternal One has returned to us. He saved us and gave us success over the raiding party that sacked our city. 24Why would anyone agree with you about this matter? The share of the one who fights is the same as the share of the one who looks after the supplies. We all share equally.

25In fact, he made this a law and an ordinance, and it remains so in Israel today.

26And after David returned to Ziklag, he gave part of the spoil he had taken to his friends who ruled over Judah, with the message, "This is a present for you taken from the enemies of the Eternal."

27These gifts were sent to Bethel, to Ramoth in the desert south, to Jattir, 28to Aroer, to Siphmoth, to Eshtemoa, 29to Racal, to the towns of the Jerahmeelites, to the towns of the Kenites, 30to Hormah, to Bor-ashan, to Athach, 31and to Hebron—all places where David and his men had lived and traveled.

31 Meanwhile the Philistine and Israelite armies had clashed. The men of Israel ran away, but many of them were killed on the heights of Gilboa. 2The Philistines even followed Saul and his sons and closed in on them; there they killed his sons, Jonathan (the beloved friend of David), Abinadab, and Malchi-shua.

► Notice that David does not participate in the battle against his own people, and that even while he lives among the Philistines hiding from Saul, he doesn't serve them. This expedition against the raiding Amalekites offers a powerful explanation both for why David doesn't fight for the Philistine king and why he doesn't fight to preserve the armies of Israel. Because David is far away with his own desperate battles to fight, no shame falls on him for any oaths he might have broken.

3The battle closed in around Saul, and he was shot with arrows and badly wounded.

Saul *(to his armor-bearer): 4*Please* take out your sword and thrust it through me. Don't let these uncircumcised dogs come and put their swords and spears into me for their sport.

But his armor-bearer was afraid and would not do it. Saul drew his own sword and fell upon it. 5When the armor-bearer saw this, he also drew his sword and fell upon it and died. 6So Saul, his three sons, his armor-bearer, and all his men died together on the same day.

► The deaths of Saul and his sons conclude the First Book of Samuel. God's anointed dies, and the armies of Israel are defeated. Some commentators, even though they may condemn suicide, do not fault Saul for falling on his own sword. Remembering how the Philistines blinded and tormented the

That looks like the end of the story, but it isn't. It is a tragedy, though a necessary one for Israel. At the beginning of his reign, Saul gathers a huge army to fight the Ammonites, who threaten to blind the men of Jabesh-gilead. Many years later, the people of the country hear what has happened. They raise an army of their own, march all night into the Philistine town of Beth-shan, and without regard to the danger, take down the bodies and return to their own country to give Saul and his family a decent and respectful burial.

Saul is many things—a brute, a coward, a prince, a warrior, a faithful follower, a faithless wallower—and now he is dead. Some might celebrate; others mourn him. The king the people asked for has been dethroned, and the kingdom lies open to invasion, but God's plan is still operating. In the Second Book of Samuel, it is evident this is part of a larger order. The people's king has been defeated, but God's king is on his way.

hero and judge Samson, Saul knows his fate is torture and abuse. Not only does he not want to suffer that as a man, but also as God's anointed king, he does not want these "uncircumcised dogs"—that is, followers of other gods—to claim such an advantage over the Lord. So he falls on his sword, and the Philistines, prevented from their torture, behead Saul's body, strip him, and exhibit his and his sons' corpses in public.

7When the people of Israel who were on the other side of the valley, and even those beyond the Jordan River, learned that the Israelite army had been defeated and heard that Saul and his sons were dead, they left their cities and fled. Then the Philistines came and lived in them.

8The next day, as the Philistine army was looting the bodies of the fallen Israelites, they found Saul and his three sons dead on the heights of Gilboa. 9They cut off Saul's head, stripped his body of his weapons, and sent messengers with the good news to the temples and to the people throughout Philistia. 10They put Saul's armor in the temple of Astarte and nailed his body to the wall at Beth-shan.

11But when the inhabitants of Jabeshgilead heard about this indignity done to Saul by the Philistines, 12the brave men among them rose up and traveled through the night. When they arrived, they took down the bodies of Saul and his sons from the wall at Beth-shan. They returned to Jabesh and burned them there. 13Then they took their bones and buried them in Jabesh beneath the tamarisk tree, like the one where Saul had held court in Gibeah, and for seven days they fasted and mourned.

2 SAMUEL

From Saul to David with great tragedy and loss

By Samuel, a prophet of Israel

The royal drama that begins in the first volume of Samuel continues in this second volume of the story: the transition from Saul to David as king over Israel, and the downward spiral of David's later years in his kingdom and his own family. Despite everything, David is still a devoted and successful king and prepares Israel for the rule of his son.

The Second Book of Samuel picks up a story already in progress. The First Book of Samuel begins after a long and horrifying period of chaos when the people of God were inconsistent in their faithfulness toward God. Their safety was likewise insecure as He used the surrounding peoples to teach Israel a series of lessons. The people at last demanded a king, a military leader to guide them as all the other nations around them had. How could they be expected to defend themselves just by relying on God and on the leaders God appointed?

Beginnings and endings are important to any story, so it is not surprising to see major changes in the Samuel story in chapters 1 and 24 of 2 Samuel. King Saul and Prince Jonathan are killed at the battle of Gilboa. David realizes that the Eternal One has now placed him in the position of king, but it is a long process to heal a nation and earn the people's trust. He starts with making Hebron his royal capital for 7 years before moving his house and the sacred covenant chest to Jerusalem for the remainder of his 40-year reign. David starts off quite well, but once he leads Israel from Jerusalem instead of from the battlefield, his own house and the whole empire start to unravel. The Davidic drama includes everything from rape and incest to multiple attempts to take over his throne.

For the people of Israel, this second book about their monarchy has great significance. With David the little nation of Israel finally pulls together. They can point to this as their high point. The promise God made to David is remembered by every generation to come. He is the great king, and his royal house is critical for the future of the children of Israel and eventually for the Christian church that is to follow.

1 After Saul and Jonathan were killed in battle with the Philistines, David returned from defeating the Amalekites, and for two days he rested in Ziklag.
2 On the third day, a man came from Saul's camp in mourning, his clothes torn, dirt on his head. When he reached David, he fell to the ground facedown before him.

► At the end of 1 Samuel, Saul, Jonathan, and the armies of Israel went to war with the Philistines. The Philistine king wanted David and his men to fight for the Philistines against Israel because David was mighty in battle. But the king's generals convinced him that David could not be trusted, and an attack on his people sent David hurrying off in another direction just as the battle was joined between Israel and Philistia. In that battle, disaster struck: the army of Israel was routed. Saul fought bravely but was defeated, at last falling on his own sword rather than be captured, tortured, and exhibited as a prize; and Saul's son Jonathan, beloved friend of David, also died in the battle. The fall of the first royal house of Israel is complete, and now Israel faces grave danger.

David: 3 From where have you come?

Soldier: I have come from the camp of Israel; I escaped after the battle.

David: 4 What happened? Tell me!

Soldier: The Israelites ran from the battle, and many of them were killed. King Saul and his son Jonathan are dead.

David: 5 How do you know they are dead?

Soldier: 6 Because I happened to be on Mount Gilboa during the attack, and I saw Saul leaning against his spear as the chariots and cavalry approached. 7 He looked around and saw me, and he called to me. I told him, "I am here, my lord."
8 He asked who I was, and I told him I am an Amalekite. 9 Then he said, "Come here. Stand over me, and kill me because I am suffering but am still alive." 10 So I did what he asked, because I knew he would not live after he had fallen. I took the crown from his head and his gold armlet and brought them here to you, my lord whom I recognize as the next king.

11 When David heard these words, he tore his clothing in grief; and all the men with him did the same. 12 They mourned and wept, and they fasted until evening in honor of Saul and Jonathan and the army of the Eternal One of Israel, because they were cut down by the sword of the enemy.

David *(to the soldier): 13 Where is your home?

Soldier: I am the son of an alien living in Israel, an Amalekite. Therefore I am bound by some of the Israelite law.

David: 14 Weren't you afraid to strike down the Eternal One's anointed king knowing the law would require your death?

15 So David called for one of his soldiers to come forward and kill the Amalekite soldier, which he did.

David: 16 You have only yourself to blame. Your own words convicted you when you said you had killed the Eternal's anointed king.

17 Then David mourned the death of Saul and his son Jonathan with this song of grief, 18 the Song of the Bow, which he ordered taught to the people of Judah and recorded in the book of the Upright.*

► Although Saul sought David's death on many occasions, and although David cannot act as king until Saul dies, David executes the Amalekite mercenary who has the insolence to strike down God's rightly-anointed king for his disrespect to the position. Demonstrating his respect for Saul, David then composes one of the most beautiful expressions of grief in the Bible, a song of loss and sadness to relay the nation's sense of sorrow, and his own.

* 1:18 Literally, the book of Jashar

David: [19]The beauty of Israel lies dead upon your high places.
O how the mighty have fallen!
[20]Don't speak of this in the city of Gath; don't proclaim it in the streets of Ashkelon,
Or the daughters of the Philistines will rejoice.
The daughters of the foreigners*
will sing for joy.
[21]Mountains of Gilboa, let no rain or dew water you;
may your mountain fields offer only dust.
The shield of the mighty was defiled with your enemy's blood;
even the shield of Saul is no longer anointed with oil by the Eternal.
[22]With the blood of the slain and with the fat of the strong, Jonathan's bow never lost aim;
Saul's sword never came back empty.
[23]Saul and Jonathan were beloved and delightful, always together in life and now in death.
They were faster than eagles;
they were mightier than lions.
[24]O daughters of Israel, cry out for Saul, who clothed you in luxurious crimson, who adorned your garments with ornaments of gold.
[25]O how the mighty have fallen in the height of the battle!
Jonathan lies dead upon your high places.
[26]I agonize over you, my brother Jonathan.
I have delighted in you;
and your love for me was wonderful,
beyond even the love of women.
[27]O how the mighty have fallen,
and the weapons of war lie broken!

► Jonathan he misses especially because Jonathan was his friend, a companion, David says, whose love was greater than any love a woman could have for a man. David and Jonathan shared a relationship built in adversity, and the secret they kept from Saul that preserved David's life made the relationship stronger than what most will ever experience.

2 After David mourned, he asked the Eternal One a question.

David: Should I go up now to one of the cities of Judah?

The Eternal indicated that he should go.

David: Where should I go?

Eternal One: Hebron.

[2]So David went to Hebron, a royal city, with his two wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail the widow of Nabal from Carmel.
[3]David also brought along all his men and their households, and they settled in and around Hebron. [4]Then the people of Judah came and anointed David king over them.
They told David how the people of Jabeshgilead had buried Saul with dignity, [5]so David sent messengers to them.

David's Message: May you be blessed by the Eternal One for your loyalty to your king Saul by burying him. [6]May the Eternal always love and be faithful to you! I will also reward you for this noble act.
[7]Now be strong and mighty, for Saul your king is dead, and the people of Judah have anointed me as their new king.

[8]But it was not so simple. Abner, Ner's son who had commanded Saul's armies, took Saul's son Ish-bosheth and brought him to Mahanaim; [9]and there Abner named Ish-bosheth king over Gilead and over the Ashurites, Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin, and all Israel. [10]Ish-bosheth, Saul's son, was 40 years old when he began to rule Israel, and he was king for two years. But the people of Judah followed David, [11]and he was king over them in Hebron for 7½ years.

[12]Abner, the son of Ner, and the servants of Ish-bosheth (the son of Saul) traveled from Mahanaim to Gibeon. [13]David's general Joab, whose mother was David's sister Zeruiah, and David's servants went out to meet them at the pool of Gibeon.
Abner's forces were by one side of the pool, Joab's forces by the other.

* 1:20 Literally, "daughters of the uncircumcised"

Abner (to Joab): 14Why don't we send our young soldiers out to have a contest before us?

Joab: All right. Send them forward.

15Twelve men came forward to represent the people of Benjamin and Ish-bosheth, the son of Saul, and twelve to represent David and his people. 16They all caught their opponents by the head and thrust their swords into their opponents' sides, so they all fell down together. That is why this place was called the Field of Adversaries, Helkath-hazzurim in Gibeon.

17The battle that followed this contest was brutal that day, and Abner and the men of Israel were defeated by the servants of David.

18All three of Zeruiah's sons were fighting for David: Joab, Abishai, and Asahel. Asahel was a swift runner, fast as a gazelle, 19and he chased after Abner intently. 20Abner looked behind him.

Abner: Is that you, Asahel?

Asahel: It is.

Abner: 21Stop pursuing me. Attack one of the soldiers of your own rank, and take his possessions instead.

But Asahel would not stop in his pursuit.

Abner: 22If you don't stop pursuing me, I'll have no choice but to kill you! And how could I show my face in front of your brother Joab if I do such a thing?

23But Asahel refused to be diverted. Abner didn't even use the point of his spear. He thrust with the butt of his spear, and the spear struck Asahel in his abdomen and passed all the way through him. He fell, and there he died. And all those who arrived on that spot stopped and just stood there staring in amazement.

24But Asahel's brothers, Joab and Abishai, pursued Abner with their forces. As the sun was setting, they reached the hill of Ammah that is in front of Giah on the way to the wilderness of Gibeon. 25The people of Benjamin banded together to protect Abner, and they made their stand on top of a hill.

Abner (calling to Joab): 26Are we to continue this killing forever? Don't you see that this will come to a bitter end? How long until you order your forces to stop pursuing their brothers?

Joab: 27I swear before the living God that if you had not said this, my forces would have pursued their Israelite brothers until morning.

28Joab blew the trumpet to call off the attack against the men of Israel, and all pursuit and battle stopped. 29Abner and his men went on, traveling all night across the desert plain.* They crossed the Jordan River, and by traveling all morning reached Mahanaim. 30Joab and his forces, meanwhile, came back together after pursuing Abner. They discovered that in addition to Asahel, 19 of David's men were missing; 31but David's men had killed 360 of the men of Benjamin and the others who served Abner.

32They brought Asahel's body back and buried him in Bethlehem in his ancestral tomb. Joab and his men marched all night and arrived home in Hebron at dawn.

3 This was the beginning of a long war between the forces loyal to David and the forces loyal to Saul's son Ish-bosheth. David's forces continued to grow in strength, while the forces of Saul's son Ish-bosheth grew ever weaker.

2While David was king at Hebron, he fathered these sons: the first was Amnon, whose mother was Ahinoam of Jezreel; 3his second was Chileab, whose mother was Abigail, the widow of Nabal of Carmel; his third was Absalom, whose mother was Maacah, daughter of King Talmai of Geshur; 4his fourth was Adonijah, whose mother was Haggith; his fifth was Shephatiah, whose mother was Abital; 5his sixth was Ithream, whose mother was David's wife Eglah. All of these sons were born at Hebron.

6During the war between David and the house of Saul, Abner was carving out a place of power among those who supported Saul's family. 7Earlier Saul had a mistress named Rizpah, who was the daughter of Aiah. Ish-bosheth went to Abner and accused him.

Ish-bosheth: Why have you slept with my father's mistress?

* 2:29 Hebrew, Arabah

Ish-bosheth is outraged because sleeping with a king's wife or concubine is tantamount to claiming the throne.

8This accusation of disloyalty made Abner very angry.

Abner: Am I no better than a dog, whose head is turned by any female? Do I serve Judah? I have done nothing but give my loyalty to your father Saul, to his brothers, and to his friends; and I have not betrayed you to David. How can you come to me and accuse me of a crime concerning this woman? Now I will see you are overthrown.

9May the True God punish me severely if I don't do for David what the Eternal One has promised him: 10to take away the throne from Saul and set up David's throne, who will be king over both Israel and Judah, from Dan in the far north to Beersheba in the southern desert.

11Ish-bosheth didn't dare to say anything else to Abner after this; he was afraid of him.

12Abner sent this message on his own behalf to David at Hebron:

Abner's Message: Who is in charge of this land? Make an agreement with me, and I will give you my support. I will persuade everyone in Israel to support your cause.

David: 13Fine. I will make a covenant with you. But one thing is nonnegotiable: I don't want to see you unless you have Saul's daughter Michal with you when you come before me.

14*At the same time,* David sent Ish-bosheth, Saul's son, this message:

David's Message: Send me back my wife, your sister, Michal. I bought her with a bride-price of 100 Philistine foreskins.

15So Ish-bosheth sent for Michal and had her taken away from her husband Paltiel, the son of Laish. 16Paltiel followed the party, weeping, all the way to Bahurim in Benjamin. Finally Abner ordered him to stop following them, and he returned home.

17Abner sent a message to the leaders of Israel.

Abner's Message: For some time now you have wanted David to be your king; 18now is the time for you to make it happen. You remember that the Eternal One promised David that He would use him to deliver Israel from the Philistines and from all our enemies.

19Abner also communicated directly with the people of Benjamin, Saul's tribe, to enlist their support; and at last he went to Hebron to tell David that the people of Israel—all of them, including Benjamin—were ready to support him.

20Abner came with 20 of his men to meet with David at Hebron, and David held a great feast for them.

Abner *(to David): 21Let me go now and enlist all of Israel behind you my lord, the king, so that they may make a covenant with you, and you will be ruler over all your heart desires.

David dismissed Abner then and sent him away in peace. 22But after he left, Joab and some of David's warriors returned with the spoils of a raid. 23Joab and his forces arrived and heard that Abner, the son of Ner, had met with the king, and that he had gone his way in peace. 24Joab went to David.

Joab is still angry over the death of his brother Asahel, and he considers it a blood debt that needs to be collected.

Joab: What have you done? You had Abner in your hands! Why did you let him get away? He's gone. 25Don't you know that Abner, the son of Ner, came here only to deceive you, to find out your strength and what you are up to?

26When Joab left David's presence, he sent for messengers to find Abner. They caught up to him at the cistern of Sirah; and without David's knowledge, 27Abner returned to Hebron. Then, under the pretext of speaking to Abner privately, Joab took him inside the gateway and stabbed him in the stomach. Joab had his revenge on Abner for killing his brother Asahel, and Abner died.

28When David heard this news, he wanted it understood:

David: I and my kingdom are guiltless for all time in the eyes of the Eternal of the murder of Abner, son of Ner. 29May all the guilt fall on Joab and on his descendants. May the men in Joab's line always have an oozing sore or skin disease, no longer be fit for battle, fall in battle, or go hungry.

30 This was the curse King David pronounced because Joab and his brother Abishai murdered Abner in revenge for their brother Asahel, whom Abner killed at the battle at Gibeon. 31 Then David gave an order to Joab and his followers.

David: Tear your clothes. Put on sackcloth, and let me see you mourn for Abner in front of the procession.

And King David himself walked in the procession behind the corpse. 32 They buried Abner at Hebron. At the graveside, David lifted his voice and wept for Abner; and the people wept with him.

33 The king sang a song of lament for Abner.

David: Why should Abner die a fool's death?
34 Your hands were not bound;
your feet were not chained.
You have fallen
as one falls among the wicked.

And the people wept again over Abner's grave.

► This song reminds us that David may be the writer of many psalms, and that David is a great warrior, musician, poet, and soon, a great king. David is also a person of great contradiction—not perfect, by any means—but a man of oversized loves and passions who must generally have his heart in the right place, since we're reminded again and again that God loves him. He is powerful, and people in his way do tend to have horrible things happen to them. But he respects the dead, and sometimes, as with Saul, grieves in ways that feel—all these centuries later—authentic.

35 After the ceremony, the people came to David and tried to convince him to eat something that day, but he turned them away because fasting until evening was part of the mourning ritual.

David: May the True God punish me severely if I taste bread or anything else before the sun sets.

36 The people noticed that he honored Abner by fasting, and they approved—as they approved of everything their king did. 37 So everyone believed it was not David's intention, nor did he have any part in the murder of Abner, the son of Ner.

David (to his servants): 38 Don't you know that today a prince, a great man, has fallen in Israel? 39 Although I am his anointed king, today I have no power to punish his murderers. The sons of my sister Zeruiah are too violent for me to restrain. May the Eternal repay the wicked according to their wickedness!

4 When Ish-bosheth, the son of Saul, heard that his general Abner was dead, murdered in Hebron, he panicked, and so did all Israel. 2 Now the two captains of Ish-bosheth's raiding parties were Baanah and Rechab, the sons of Rimmon, a Benjaminite from the town of Beeroth (which was considered to belong to Benjamin since the time its original inhabitants tricked the Israelites into making a pact of friendship with them. 3 The people of Beeroth fled to Gittaim, where they still live as aliens).

4 Saul's son Jonathan, David's friend, had a son named Mephibosheth who was unable to use his feet. When he was only five, the news of his father and grandfather's defeat came from Jezreel. In her rush to flee, his nurse grabbed him up, and Mephibosheth fell; he had been lame ever since.

5 Baanah and Rechab, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, hatched a plan. They set out, and they came to Ish-bosheth's residence during the noonday heat as he was taking a nap. 6-7 They crept inside the house as if to get some wheat. There they stabbed Ish-bosheth in the abdomen while he lay asleep on his bed, killing him. Then Rechab and his brother Baanah cut off Ish-bosheth's head and escaped. They carried his head away and traveled all night across the desert plains.*

* 4:6-7 Hebrew, Arabah

[8]At Hebron, they brought Ish-bosheth's head before David.

Baanah and Rechab: Here is the head of your enemy, Ish-bosheth, son of Saul, who tried to kill you. Today the Eternal One has avenged my lord, the king, against Saul and his clan.

David: [9]As the Eternal One lives, the One who has redeemed my life from every danger, [10]when the messenger brought me the word, "Saul is dead"—as though that would be some reason for me to rejoice, that would get him a reward—I seized him and had him killed at Ziklag. That was his reward for bringing me such news. [11]How much more do you deserve to be punished, you wicked men who kill a righteous man in his own bedroom? Don't you imagine that now I'll make you answer for his blood with your own and wipe you from the face of the earth?

[12]David commanded his young men, and they killed Baanah and Rechab. Then the young men cut off their hands and feet and hung their bodies as an example beside the pool at Hebron. But Ish-bosheth's head they took and buried in Abner's tomb in Hebron.

5 Then all the tribes that made up the people of Israel came to David at Hebron.

Leaders of Israel: We are all related: we are flesh of your flesh, bone of your bones. [2]When Saul was king, you always led the army of Israel out and then brought it back safely. The Eternal said to you, "You will be the shepherd of My people Israel, the ruler over all of them."

[3]All the leaders of Israel came before the king there at Hebron. So King David made a covenant with the leaders there before the Eternal, and they anointed David king over all Israel. [4]David was 30 years old when he first became king, and he was king for 40 years; [5]he reigned in Hebron over Judah alone for 7½ years, and then he reigned over the united kingdom of Judah and Israel for 33 years.

[6]At one point, David and his army marched to Jerusalem to fight the Jebusites who lived there. The Jebusites felt secure behind their walls and were sure David could not enter into the city. They jeered, "Even the blind and the lame could defend this city against you." [7]Despite the taunts, David and his army managed to capture the fortress of Zion, which became the city of David.*

David (to his army): [8]If you want to strike down the Jebusites—these blind and lame defenders whom I hate—then go through the water tunnel.

(From this exchange came the saying, "The blind and the lame cannot enter the house.")

[9]Once David captured the fortress, he stayed there and named it the city of David. He built it up all around, carefully terracing the hillside from the Millo* inward. [10]And David continued to grow in power and reputation because the Eternal God, Commander of heavenly armies, was with him.

[11]King Hiram of Tyre sent diplomats to David with cedars and carpenters and masons to build David a palace.

[12]David realized then that the Eternal One had established him as king over Israel and that He was increasing David's kingdom in power and majesty for the sake of His people Israel.

[13-14]After the move from Hebron to Jerusalem, David married more women from Jerusalem, took more concubines, and fathered more sons and daughters: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, [15]Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, [16]Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

[17]When David's former allies, the Philistines, discovered that David, whom they still considered a vassal of Gath, was now king over a united Israel, they sent an army to battle him; but David heard they were coming and withdrew into the fortress.

[18]The Philistines spread their forces in the valley of Rephaim southwest of Jerusalem.

David (to the Lord): [19]Should I go to war against the Philistines? Will You make me victorious over them?

Eternal One: Yes, go. I will certainly give you victory.

* 5:7 The city of David is below what would be the temple mount, about seven miles from Bethlehem and adjacent to Jerusalem.
* 5:9 The meaning is uncertain. Because the word literally means "filling," it could have been a terrace or a landfill, or it may be a part of the fortress or a wall.

20So David battled the Philistines at Baal-perazim and defeated them.

David: The Eternal has broken through my enemies in front of me like water bursting through a dam.

That is why the place was named Baal-perazim, meaning "the Lord who bursts through."

21The Philistines abandoned their idols on the field, and David and his forces carried them away.

22Yet again the Philistines came up and prepared for battle in the valley of Rephaim. 23David asked the Eternal One what he should do.

Eternal One: Do not directly face their forces. Circle around behind them, and array yourselves for battle in front of the balsam trees. 24When you hear the sound of a mighty army marching, reverberating in the tops of the balsam trees, come quickly and fight, for the Eternal has gone ahead of you into battle to destroy the army of the Philistines.

25David did just as the Eternal One commanded and won a great victory. He struck down the fleeing Philistines from Geba all the way to Gezer, just before the coastal plain.

6 Once again David gathered the elite soldiers of Israel, some 30,000, 2and they went down to Baale-judah to bring back the covenant chest of the True God, called by the Name: the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, who sits enthroned above the winged creatures who protect the chest.

3-4They carried the covenant chest of the True God on a new cart from the house of Abinadab on the hill where it had rested, and Abinadab's sons Uzzah and Ahio directed the new cart, with Ahio walking in front of the chest. 5David and all the Israelites were joyous before the Eternal; and they were accompanied by wooden lyres and harps, tambourines, castanets, and cymbals.

6When they came alongside the threshing floor of Nacon, the oxen stumbled, and Uzzah put out his hand to steady the covenant chest. 7The Eternal burned with anger against Uzzah, and the True God struck Uzzah dead on the spot for daring to touch the covenant chest.

► The covenant chest represents something amazing—it is filled with God's presence and is supposed to be kept in the most separate, most holy of places. David knows that having the covenant chest near him as he rules is important. Therefore he begins the journey toward Jerusalem. The journey is interrupted with Uzzah's death. David leaves the covenant chest short of its final resting place, but he eventually completes the journey by bringing it into the city of Jerusalem to its final home—and bringing God's blessing with it. Although it is dangerous, it is also the most tangible symbol of God's past victories on Israel's behalf and represents God's presence.

8David was angry that the Eternal One had broken through to strike Uzzah, so the place was named Perez-uzzah, meaning "Breech against Uzzah," to remember that act. 9David was also frightened of the Eternal that day.

David: How can I be responsible for the covenant chest of the Eternal One?

10So he decided he did not want to take the chest of the Eternal into the city of David, and he left it there in the care of Obed-edom, a man from the Philistine city Gath. 11The covenant chest of the Eternal One remained there for three months; and in that time, the Eternal One blessed the household and farms of Obed-edom the Gittite.

12When news was taken to King David that the Eternal had blessed Obed-edom and all his household because of the covenant chest of God, the king went down and brought the chest from Obed-edom's house up to the city of David, again accompanying it with rejoicing and ceremony. 13When the people carrying the chest of the Eternal had gone six steps, David sacrificed an ox and a fattened calf; 14and he danced before the Eternal One with all his might, clad in a priestly vest.

15-16So David and the house of Israel carried the covenant chest of the Eternal One up to the city of David with shouts and the sounding of the trumpet. When Michal, the daughter of Saul, looked out the window and saw King David leaping and dancing before the Eternal without thought for how he looked, she hated him.

17They carried the covenant chest of the Eternal One to its place inside the tent David had pitched to house it, and the king offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerings to the Eternal. 18When he had finished with the sacrifices and peace offerings, he spoke a priestly blessing over the people in the name of the Eternal One, the Commander of heavenly armies; and 19he gave all of the Israelites—every man and woman—a loaf of bread, a date roll,* and a raisin cake. Then they all returned to their homes.

20On David's return, he wanted to bestow good favor on his household, but Michal, the daughter of Saul, came out to meet him.

Michal *(sarcastically): The king has distinguished himself today in front of his servants' maids. He revealed quite a lot, just as the lowest of the low might expose himself.

David: 21It was for the Eternal One that I danced. The Lord chose me in place of your father Saul and all his descendants; He appointed me to rule over Israel, the Eternal's people. 22I will lower myself even further—maybe I will even shame myself in my own eyes—but in the eyes of those maidservants of whom you speak, I will receive honor.

23And to her dying day, Michal, the daughter of Saul, was humbled before God and did not bear a child. Therefore no descendant of Saul ever regained the throne of Israel.

► David's dancing is part of the celebration and ritual involved with bringing the covenant chest into the city, part of a sacred party where in addition to ritual sacrifice and shouts of joy and playing the trumpet, all of the people feast. As the anointed king of Israel, David could behave with reserve and dignity—which his wife, Saul's daughter Michal, apparently thinks most fitting in a king—but perhaps it is more fitting for the king God has placed on the throne to join in the worship and celebration welcoming God into their city and into their lives. David tells Michal that he doesn't care how other people react to his worship and praise of God, for in his own eyes—and in the eyes of the faithful—he has done what is right.

7 Now when the king was settled in his house and the Eternal had given him rest from battling all his enemies, 2he spoke to the prophet Nathan.

David: Look at this: I live in a beautiful palace made of cedar, but the covenant chest of the True God rests in a tent made of curtains.

Nathan: 3Go do whatever you're planning to do, for the Eternal One is with you.

4But that same night, the Eternal spoke to Nathan.

Eternal One: 5Go and tell My servant David this message is from the Eternal One: "Are you the person who will build a house for Me to live in? 6I have not lived in a house since I brought My people Israel up from Egypt, but have moved around all this time in a tent, even in the congregation tent. 7Wherever My travels with the people of Israel have taken Me, did I ever go to one of the tribal leaders who were the shepherds for My sheep and ask, 'Why haven't you made Me a house of cedar to live in?'"

8So now you shall tell David, My servant this message is from the Eternal One, the Commander of heavenly armies: "I took you from the pastures where you followed sheep and made you king of all My people Israel so you now lead My sheep. 9I have been with you wherever you journeyed and have given you victory over your enemies; and I will make you highly respected, with a name as great as any who live on earth. 10-11And I will select a place for My people Israel and plant them firmly in that place, a land they can call their own, a land of peace. The wicked will not bother them again as they did from the time I appointed the judges to govern My people, and I will give you rest from fighting your enemies.

More importantly, I, the Eternal swear to you that I will raise up a dynasty from your family. 12When you come to the end of your days, and you leave this life to lie down with your fathers, I will raise up from you a descendant, your own flesh and blood, and I will make his kingdom and family sure. 13He will be the one to build a temple honoring My name, and I will establish the leadership of his kingdom for all time. 14I will be to him a father, and he will be to Me a son.*
When he crosses the line and acts badly,
I will teach him with a rod used by people for correction and a lash for discipline.
15But I will not withdraw My love from him as I did from Saul, whom I set aside in favor of you. 16Your dynasty, your kingdom, will stand perpetually in My sight;
your descendants will rule continually."

17Nathan did as He had told him and related this vision to David. 18Then King David was strongly moved and went into the presence of the Eternal.

David: Who am I, O Eternal Lord, and what is my family that You have raised me so high? 19You have spoken of this as though it were a tiny thing, simple, O Eternal Lord. You have also talked about the future of Your servant's family and kingdom, a great future stretching off into the distance. This, O Eternal Lord, is Your instruction for humanity. 20What can I say to You? You know Your servant inside and out, O Eternal Lord. 21Because You promised it and it pleased You, You have made these amazing things happen, so that Your servant might know You are behind it.
22So You are great, O Eternal Lord. No one else like You exists, and there is no god greater than You, as we should know from everything we have heard.
23And who is like Your people, Israel?
Is there another nation on the earth where God went to redeem them from Egypt and to distinguish Himself with awe-inspiring deeds of power by driving other nations and their false gods out of their path? 24You chose to take Israel as Your people perpetually; and You, Eternal One, chose to be their God.
25So yes, Eternal God, take the words You have spoken about me, Your servant, and my family and kingdom, and make them true perpetually. Do what You have promised. 26Then Your name will be revered forever in the words,
"The Eternal One, the Commander of heavenly armies, is the God over Israel," and the dynasty of Your servant David will be established before You. 27For You, O Eternal God, the Commander of heavenly armies, the God of Israel, have shown me what You intend, saying, "I will establish your dynasty," and that is why I have found the courage to pray this prayer in Your presence. 28O Eternal Lord, You are the True God, and Your words are always true, and You have made this good promise to me, Your servant. 29So may it please You to continue to bless me, my family, and my kingdom
so that my dynasty may be continually before Your sight. For You, O Eternal Lord, have spoken; and with Your blessing, my descendants and kingdom will always be blessed.

8 Sometime later, David won a great victory over the Philistines, gaining superiority over them at Methegammah. 2He also defeated the army of Moab; and making the captured lie down, he determined that ⅔ of them would be put to death while ⅓ would be allowed to live. As a result, the Moabites became servants to David and paid tribute. 3David also defeated Hadadezer, the son of Rehob, king of Zobah in southern Aram, when Hadadezer went to restore territory all the way to the Euphrates River. 4David captured from him 1,700 charioteers and 20,000 foot soldiers. He retained enough horses to drive 100 chariots and disabled the rest, cutting their leg tendons.
5When the Arameans came from Damascus to fight alongside King Hada-dezer of Zobah, David killed 22,000 of their soldiers as well. 6Then David set up outposts among the Arameans from Damascus, and they became servants of David and paid tribute. The Eternal helped David everywhere he went. 7David brought the gold shields that had been carried by Hadadezer's men back to Jerusalem; 8and he plundered a vast quantity of bronze from Hadadezer's towns, Betah and Berothai.
9When King Toi of Hamath (in southern Aram) heard that David had defeated Hadadezer's army, 10he sent his son Joram

* 7:14 2 Corinthians 6:18; Hebrews 1:5

to greet King David and to congratulate him on his victories because Toi had also defeated Hadadezer. Joram brought as gifts items of silver, gold, and bronze; 11David dedicated these to the Eternal, as he had all the silver and gold he had received from those nations he defeated: 12Aram, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, and Amalek, including the spoil from Hadadezer, son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

13David's exploits improved his reputation. After his return, he went to war with the Edomites,* killing 18,000 in the valley of Salt. 14David set up outposts throughout the land of Edom. All the Edomites became servants of David, and the Eternal One helped David wherever he went.

15So David was king over a united Israel, ruling justly and fairly. 16Joab, the son of David's sister Zeruiah, was his general; Jehoshaphat, the son of Ahilud, was his recorder; 17Zadok, the son of Ahitub, and Ahimelech, the son of Abiathar, served as priests; Seraiah was his royal secretary; 18Benaiah, son of Jehoiada, was in charge of the Cherethites and the Pelethites, foreign mercenaries loyal to David; and some of David's sons served as advisors in David's kingdom.

9 David: Is anyone from Saul's family still around that I could honor for the sake of my friend Jonathan?

2One servant from Saul's household, Ziba, was still alive, and they brought him to King David.

David: Are you Ziba?

Ziba: At your service, Majesty.

David: 3Is anyone from Saul's family still alive to whom I could show the kindness of God?

Ziba: Jonathan has a son who is still alive; he is crippled, unable to use his feet.

David: 4Where is he?

Ziba: He lives with Machir, son of Ammiel, at Lo-debar.

► David still remembers his deepest friendship. The loss of Jonathan haunts David, and he desires to show honor to the family of God's anointed, Saul. David promised his friend Jonathan that if he ever became king, he would treat Jonathan and his descendants with kindness. Their friendship was important to David; and although he thinks all of Saul's family has been destroyed, he wants to find out if somewhere there might be a relative of Jonathan whom he may honor in gratitude for all Jonathan did for him.

5-6David sent for Jonathan's son Mephibosheth and had him brought to Jerusalem from the house of Machir, son of Ammiel, in Lo-debar. When he arrived, Mephibosheth, son of Jonathan, grandson of Saul, laid facedown on the floor and honored the king.

David: Mephibosheth!

Mephibosheth: At your service, my king.

David: 7There's no need to be frightened. I intend to treat you kindly for the sake of your father, Jonathan, who was my loyal friend. I will return to you all the territory that belonged to your grandfather Saul, and you will always be welcome at my table.

8Mephibosheth again prostrated himself before the king.

Mephibosheth: What am I to you that the king should look with favor on a dead dog like me? I am as one of your servants.

9Then the king summoned Ziba, who had been Saul's servant.

David: Everything that belonged to his grandfather Saul and his family I have returned to your master's descendant. 10You, your sons, and your servants will work on his farms and bring in his produce, so that he and his household will have food. But Mephibosheth will always eat at my table.

Ziba had 15 sons and 20 servants.

Ziba: 11I am your servant, and you are my lord and king. Whatever you command I will do.

* 8:13 Some manuscripts read, "Arameans."

From then on, Mephibosheth ate at the king's table as though he were one of David's own sons. 12Mephibosheth had a young son, Mica; and all who lived in the house of Ziba became Mephibosheth's servants and worked for him. 13Mephibosheth remained in Jerusalem, where he always ate at the king's table. He was lame and could not walk on either foot.

► Mephibosheth, the last surviving son of Jonathan, could escape notice in a warlike culture where physical prowess is valued. But David elevates Mephibosheth to the king's table and honors him. David's fulfillment of a promise to a long-dead friend is one of the most attractive stories about the king in the books of Samuel. While David proves too hard and even ruthless at times, his gentleness to those who are helpless is an endearing trait. It is this softness and desire to follow God against all odds that gives him special honor among the kings of Israel.

10 After a while, Nahash, the king of the Ammonites, died; and his son Hanun became the new king. Remember, Nahash and Saul were enemies, but Nahash had helped David.

David: 2I will deal fairly with Hanun, son of Nahash, because his father dealt fairly with me.

So David sent messengers to Ammon with a message of sympathy about Nahash's death. When David's emissaries arrived, 3the princes of the Ammonites spoke to Hanun their lord.

Ammonite Leaders: Do you think this means David honors your father the king just because he sends these men with empty condolences? Hasn't David ordered them to search the city, keep their eyes open, and plot how to conquer us?

4So Hanun had David's messengers seized. He mocked the men, shaving off half their beards, cutting off their garments at their hips, and then ordering them home.

5When David heard what had happened, he sent messengers to intercept them because they had been publicly humiliated.

David: Stay at Jericho until your beards grow back and your shame is gone. Then return home.

6When the Ammonites realized they had earned David's ridicule, they sent for and hired Arameans: 20,000 foot soldiers from Beth-rehob and Zobah, 1,000 fighting men from the king of Maacah, and 12,000 soldiers from Tob.

7When David heard the Ammonites were preparing for war, he sent Joab and all his fighting men. 8The Ammonites arrayed themselves in front of the gates, but their mercenaries (the Arameans of Zobah and of Rehob, and the men of Tob and Maacah) took up positions out in the open country.

9When Joab saw that the battle lines had been drawn both in front of and behind him, he chose some of Israel's best fighting men and set them against the Arameans, 10and he put his brother Abishai in charge of the rest and set them against the Ammonites.

Joab *(to Abishai): 11If the Arameans are too strong for me, come and help me; and if I see that the Ammonites are too strong for you, I will come and help you. 12Be strong, and let us fight bravely for the sake of our people and the cities of our True God, and may the Eternal do what seems good in His sight.

13So Joab and his soldiers moved against the Arameans, and the mercenaries fled from him. 14When the Ammonites saw that their hired soldiers, the Arameans, were running away, they also fled from Abishai and his forces and entered into the safety of their city. Then Joab and the armies of Israel stopped fighting the Ammonites and returned to Jerusalem.

15But when the Arameans saw they had been routed by Israel, they came back together to pool all their resources. 16Hadadezer sent for the Arameans who lived beyond the Euphrates River, and they gathered at Helam under Shobach, the general of all Hadadezer's army. 17When David got this news, he gathered his army, crossed over the Jordan River, and went to Helam. The Arameans came out and arranged themselves to fight David 18and ran from Israel in defeat: David killed 700 charioteers and 40,000 horsemen,* and he mortally wounded Shobach the commander of their army, who died there.

19When all the rulers who were subject to Hadadezer learned of Israel's victories, they gave up and made peace with Israel and became subject to them. So the Arameans were afraid and would no longer help the Ammonites against David.

11 In the springtime of the year, the season when most kings took their soldiers out to fight, David stayed in Jerusalem and sent Joab out as general in charge of David's men and the whole army of Israel. They destroyed the Ammonites and put the city of Rabbah under siege.

2*Early* one evening, David rose from his bed and was strolling on the palace roof when he saw a woman bathing on a roof below his. She was very beautiful. 3David sent someone to find out who the woman was, and the answer came back that she was Bathsheba, the daughter of Eliam and the wife of Uriah the Hittite. Uriah was one of David's officers who had gone to war with the rest of David's troops.

4-5David couldn't get her off his mind, so he sent messengers to bring Bathsheba to him. She came, and they had sexual relations. Soon after she returned home, Bathsheba realized she was pregnant, and she sent this news to David. Since their encounter occurred just after the purifying bath after her period, her husband Uriah could not have been the father. 6So David sent a message to his general Joab.

David: Send me Uriah the Hittite.

Joab sent Uriah back to David. 7There he was taken in front of the king; and David asked how Joab was doing, how the army was getting along, and how the campaign was progressing. 8When they finished discussing the news from the front, David suggested that Uriah go to his own house to clean up, relax, and visit his wife.

David: Since I've called you back here, why don't you go down to your house?

David sent a gift after him when he left, 9but Uriah did not go down to his own house. Instead he spent the night at the entrance of the palace with all the king's servants.

► David is frustrated by this. If Uriah doesn't have sexual relations with his wife, then everyone will know that Bathsheba has been unfaithful—and they might remember her secret trip to the palace.

Servants *(to David): 10Uriah did not go home last night.

David *(to Uriah): You've just come home from a long trip. Why didn't you spend the night in your own house?

Uriah: 11*The people of* Israel and Judah and the covenant chest of the Lord are in tents; my general, Joab, and the king's other servants are sleeping in the open fields. Do you think I would go to my home to eat and drink and sleep with my wife while everyone else suffers? As you live, good king, I will not do such a thing.

David: 12Stay here with me today; tomorrow I will send you back to the battle.

Uriah remained in Jerusalem that whole day and the next day. 13David invited him to eat and drink in the king's royal company, and David got him drunk. After the party, Uriah fell asleep on a bed with the servants of the king, and again he did not return to his home.

14So the next morning, realizing Uriah would not go home to be with Bathsheba, David wrote a letter to Joab and sent it back to the front with Uriah.

► David's seduction of the beautiful Bathsheba and the plot to murder her husband, Uriah, represent low points in David's life. Even when someone has a reputation for good character—and David must have one, since he is beloved of God—temptation can lead him to act totally against his own values. David takes Bathsheba because he wants her and because he has the power to do so; he orders her husband into battle to be killed because he is unable to cover his lustful advances.

* 10:18 Some Greek manuscripts read, "foot soldiers."

David's Letter: 15Put Uriah at the front of the battle, in a place where the fighting is most intense. Then pull back and leave him in front of the line so that the enemy will strike him down and kill him.

16*After he received this message,* Joab laid out his attack plans and assigned Uriah to a place where he knew the enemy had put strong warriors. 17When the warriors of the city came out to fight against Joab's forces, some of David's servants were killed, and Uriah the Hittite was one of them.

18Joab sent a messenger to David with news of the battle.

Joab (to the messenger): 19Give the king all of this news about the battle. 20If he gets angry and asks you, "Why did the army go so near the city to fight? Didn't you realize that they would shoot from the walls? 21Wasn't Abimelech, Jerubbesheth's son, killed by a woman who dropped a millstone on him from the wall at Thebez? Why were you so close to the wall?" then tell him, "Your servant Uriah the Hittite was also killed in the fighting."

22So the messenger went and told David everything Joab had instructed him to say. But he did not wait for the king's reaction before telling him Uriah had died.

Messenger: 23Their soldiers came out against us into the field surrounding the city. At first they had the advantage over us, but we drove them back to their gate. 24Then their archers fired on us from the wall; and some of your servants were killed, including your servant Uriah the Hittite.

David: 25Take this reply back to Joab: "Don't let this trouble you. The sword kills indiscriminately. Continue to push forward against the city, and capture it." And give him my encouragement.

* 11:21 Judges 9:53

26When Bathsheba, Uriah's wife, heard the news of his death, she went into mourning for seven days. 27When her appointed time of mourning was over, David sent for her and brought her into his household. He made her his wife, and in time she bore him a son.

But the Eternal One was displeased with what David had done.

► At first glance, David seems no different than many people who are given power and who use it without regard for what is right or what is fair. In this affair, David looks like the rich and powerful leaders the Hebrew prophets elsewhere in the Old Testament are constantly condemning. He has a moral and ethical failure as most of the kings who follow him also have. He exploits a loyal servant and wreaks havoc on his house.

12 The Eternal One sent the prophet Nathan to visit David. Nathan came to him and told him a story.

Nathan: Two men lived in the same city. One was quite rich and the other quite poor; 2the rich man's wealth included livestock with many flocks and herds, 3but the poor man owned only one little ewe lamb. He bought it and raised it in his family, with his children, like a pet. It used to eat what little food he had, drink from his meager cup, and snuggle against him. It was like a daughter to him.

4Now a traveler came to the city to visit the rich man. To offer a proper welcome, the rich man knew he needed to fix a meal, but he did not want to take one of the animals from his flocks and herds. So instead he stole the poor man's ewe lamb and had it killed and cooked for his guest.

Nathan stood back, waiting for the king's verdict. 5David grew very angry at the rich man. It was his royal duty to protect the poor and establish justice.

David: As the Eternal One lives, the rich man who did this deserves to die. 6*At the* least, he will restore that lamb four times over because he acted without pity.

Nathan: 7You are that man!

This is the message of the Eternal God of Israel: "I was the One who anointed you to rule over Israel, and I was the One who rescued you from the hand of Saul. 8It was I who gave you Saul's house, Saul's wives, and dominion over both Israel and Judah; and if that were not enough, I would have given you as much again.

9"So why have you despised the word of the Eternal and chosen to do evil in His sight? It was you who killed Uriah the Hittite with the sword and stole his wife, even though you used the Ammonites to do the dirty work. 10Now because he was killed with the sword, the sword will be your constant companion. It will hang over your household, bringing death and violence to your family, since you have despised Me by showing no regard for My law, and you have taken Bathsheba, the lawful wife of Uriah the Hittite to be your own wife."

11This is the message of the Eternal: "I will bring trouble on you in your own household—right under your nose. I will take your wives and give them to another, and he will flaunt that he sleeps with them in the light of day. 12You did your evil in secret, but I will do this out in the open, in front of all Israel."

David (confessing to Nathan): 13I have sinned against the Eternal One.

Nathan: Because the Eternal has put away your sin, it will not be your death. 14But because you scorned the Lord by these acts, giving His enemies reason to mock Him, the child you conceived in deceit will die.

15Then Nathan left the king's presence and went down to his house.

The Eternal One struck the child born to Uriah's widow and David so that he became very sick. 16So David appealed to the True God for the life of his son. David went without food; he lay on the ground praying all night. 17The elders from his household, the most highly honored of his servants, tried to pull him up off the ground and to make him eat, but he would not.

18After seven days of this, the child died, and David's servants were afraid to bring him the news.

Servants (to one another): If the king did not listen to us while his son was still alive, how can we tell him his son is dead? He may hurt himself in some way.

19When David saw his servants whispering among themselves, he immediately realized the boy was dead.

David (to his servants): Is my son dead?

Servants: Yes, he is dead.

20Then David stood up, washed, anointed himself with sweet-smelling oils, and changed his clothes. He went into the house of the Eternal and worshiped. Then he returned to his house and asked for food; and when it was brought to him, he ate.

Servants (to David): 21We don't understand. When your son was alive, you wept and you refused to eat; now that he is dead, it is as if nothing is wrong—you are up and about and eating.

David: 22While my son was still alive,
I wept and fasted with all my being because I thought to myself, "Who knows? There is still a chance that the Eternal One will have mercy on me and let my child live." 23But now that he is dead, why should I continue without eating? Will that bring my son back to life? Someday when I die I will go where he has gone, but he will never come back to me here.

24David went in to console his wife, Bathsheba. In time they slept together, and she became pregnant. When their second son was born, David named him Solomon. The Eternal loved the boy 25and sent word by the prophet Nathan that they should call Solomon "Jedidiah."

► The Israelites believe God punishes or rewards based on religious and ethical behavior, so David knows he deserves to be punished for the things he has done. But Nathan tells him that his punishment will come through the loss of the son conceived in adultery with Bathsheba and through the growth of conflict within his own family. The baby does die despite David's prayer and fasting, and David's children will soon display the kind of destructive behavior that will all but tear the royal house apart.

26*During this time,* Joab was campaigning against the Ammonite city of Rabbah until he captured the royal city. 27He sent messengers with word of the imminent victory to David.

Joab: I have fought against Rabbah and captured its water supply. The city is almost ours. 28You should gather the rest of your forces and come yourself to lead the final conquest. If I take the city, then I will receive the credit for it.

29So David gathered the people, led them against Rabbah, and captured it. 30He took the crown from their king and had it placed on his own head to show who was now reigning in the land. It was so heavy with gold (weighing over 75 pounds) that it could scarcely be worn, and it had a precious stone mounted on it. He also brought home the vast treasures of the city. 31Lastly David set the people of the city to work with axes or picks or saws and built kilns for making bricks. He did the same thing to all the cities of the Ammonites, and then he and his armies went home to Jerusalem.

13 Time passed, and David's children grew older. David's third son, Absalom, had a sister, Tamar, who was so beautiful that David's oldest son and heir, Amnon, fell in love with her. 2Amnon was actually sick with desire for his half sister Tamar. Because she was a royal virgin, there was no chance for him to be with her.

3But Amnon had a friend, his cousin Jonadab (son of David's brother Shimeah), who was very shrewd.

Jonadab: 4Son of the great king, why do you look so tired and run-down every day? Won't you tell me?

Amnon: It's Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister. I'm in love with her.

Jonadab: 5*Listen,* lie down in your bed, and pretend that you are really sick. When your father comes to check on you, ask him, "Could my sister Tamar come and make me something to eat here, where I can see it, and could she feed it to me?"

6So Amnon did as Jonadab had suggested. He lay down and faked an illness, and the king came to check on him, just as Jonadab said he would.

Amnon: Could my sister Tamar come take care of me? Could she make me some cakes here, where I can watch her, and then feed them to me?

7David sent word home to Tamar.

David's Message: Come to your brother Amnon's house, and fix him something he can eat.

8Tamar came to Amnon's house, where he waited in bed. She made dough, kneaded it, formed cakes, and baked them, all so that he could watch her. 9Then she set the pan in front of him and served the food, but he would not eat.

Amnon: Send everybody away.

All the servants departed and left the two of them alone.

Amnon *(to Tamar): 10-11Bring the food over to my bed, so you can feed me.

When Tamar brought to him the food she had made as he lay in bed, he grabbed her.

Amnon: Oh, my sister! Come into my bed; I want to be with you.

Tamar *(struggling against him): 12No, my brother! Please don't violate me. Don't do anything so shameful. You know people don't do such things here in Israel.

13Think about me! Do you realize what this would do to me, my prospects, my reputation? Where could I go to hide my shame?

And think about yourself! People would say you were one of the most foolish men in Israel!

Please, speak to the king if you want me so badly. He loves you and won't keep me from you.

14But Amnon would not listen to her; and since he was stronger, he raped her.

15After he was done, he was filled with disgust and hated her; his hatred was stronger than the love that motivated him to rape her.

Amnon (to Tamar): Now get out of my sight!

Tamar (clinging to him): 16No, my brother. The shame you do in sending me away is even worse than the shame you brought on by raping me.

But again he would not listen to her. 17He called for his manservant.

Amnon: Throw this woman out of my sight, and lock the door when she's gone. Make sure she can't come back inside my house.

18Because Tamar had been a royal virgin, she wore a distinctive robe with long sleeves. When Amnon's servant threw her out into the street and barred her return, 19Tamar heaped ashes on her head and tore her long, beautiful robe in mourning for what had happened to her. Then she walked back toward her home wailing, one hand to her head, showing everyone that tragedy and shame had fallen on her.

20Tamar's brother Absalom found her.

Absalom: Has your brother Amnon raped you? For now, my sister, say nothing. He is your brother. Don't let it affect you so much.

Absalom had begun to make plans for revenge. So Tamar remained a broken woman living in her brother Absalom's house.

21When King David heard of what Amnon had done, he was filled with anger, but he did nothing to punish his firstborn son.

22For his part, Absalom would not talk to Amnon, either nicely or angrily; Absalom hated Amnon for raping his sister Tamar, but he waited patiently.

► Oh the shame and intrigue within David's family. The lust and deception Amnon exhibits is not greatly different from that of his father. It, in turn, poisons Absalom and David's relationship. The eventual revolt and death of David's son Absalom are the final fruits of David's sins in desiring another man's wife and sending that man to his death. Nathan has promised there would be discord in the royal household, and that discord rocks David's family, leading to death and division among his children.

23So two whole years passed. It was the time of year when Absalom's sheep were to be sheared, and Absalom invited all the king's sons to feast at his estate at Baal-hazor, near Ephraim. 24He went to his father, the king, to ask for permission to invite his brothers.

Absalom: I have gathered my men to shear the sheep. Will the king and his servants please join me, your servant, in celebrating?

David: 25No, my son. If we all go, we would just be a burden to you.

Absalom pressured his father. The king still refused to come, although he did offer his blessing. Absalom turned to go, but he stopped with a final request.

Absalom: 26Then send my brother Amnon to be with us.

David (curious): Why would you want him to go?

27But Absalom pushed and pressed him until finally David was persuaded to give his permission for Amnon and all of his sons to go.

[Absalom threw a kingly feast.]*

28*But before it began,* he gave his servants unusual instructions.

Absalom: Watch Amnon to see when the wine makes him drunk; and when I tell you, "Strike Amnon," kill him. Don't be nervous—this is my command from my own lips. Have courage and show your bravery.

29So Absalom's servants followed his command and killed Amnon when he became drunk, and the other royal sons rose from the feast and fled on their mules. 30While they were on the road, a false report reached David's ears that all of his sons had been slain by Absalom, and no one had survived. 31The king tore his clothes and fell to the ground in mourning. All his servants who heard this news also tore their garments.

* 13:27 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

32Then David's nephew Jonadab (son of David's brother Shimeah) told the king the truth.

Jonadab: My lord, don't worry that all your sons are dead. Only Amnon has been killed by Absalom, and his fate has been certain since the day he raped his sister Tamar, for Absalom has known that he would repay Amnon for his terrible deed. 33So, my lord, don't grieve as though your line was extinguished, for only your son Amnon is dead.

34Absalom fled.

When the young watchman at the palace looked up, he saw a group of people coming down the road behind him around the mountain.*

Jonadab *(to David): 35You see, my king? Here are your sons, just as your servant said.

36When he had finished speaking, the sons of the king arrived. They shouted, they wept, and the king and all his servants joined them in bitter tears.

37-38Absalom ran for his life. He sought sanctuary with his maternal grandfather, the king of Geshur (Talmai, son of Ammihud), and he stayed there for three years. Every day the king mourned for his lost son.

39King David longed to pursue his son Absalom once he comforted himself concerning the death of his son Amnon.

14 When Joab, the son of David's sister Zeruiah, realized that David was preoccupied with Absalom, he took matters into his own hands. 2He brought a wise woman from Tekoa and instructed her.

Joab: Act like you are in mourning. Wear mourning garments, don't anoint yourself with sweet-smelling oils, but act like a woman who has been mourning for someone dead for a long time. 3Then ask to see the king.

And he told her what she should say.

4When this woman from Tekoa came before the king, she fell on her face, prostrate before him, and showed the appropriate respect due the king.

Woman of Tekoa: Help me, great king!

David: 5What is wrong?

Woman of Tekoa: I am a widow. My husband has been dead for some time. 6I, your servant, had two sons who fought with each other in the field. With no one there to stop them, one struck the other dead. 7Now the whole family has risen up against me, your humble servant. They demand that I give up the one who killed his brother so that he can be executed as punishment—even though that will take away my remaining son and only heir. So they would put out the last glowing ember of my fire and leave behind absolutely nothing of my husband or me.

David: 8Go home, and I will give orders that will take care of this matter.

Woman of Tekoa: 9O my lord, my king, I don't want my situation to cause you any trouble. Just blame everything on me and my family.

David: 10If anyone bothers you about this, send him to me, and he will never trouble you again.

Woman of Tekoa: 11Please, O king, ask the Eternal One, your True God, so that those seeking a blood debt will give up their vengeance and my son will live.

David: As sure as the Eternal lives, not one hair of your son's head will be damaged.

12Then the woman asked for liberty to speak freely, and David agreed.

Woman of Tekoa: 13How does your decision in my case compare with what you are doing to the people of the True God? It seems that your verdict convicts you, since you have not brought home your own banished son. 14Everyone dies—we are like water spilled in the dust that can't be reclaimed. But God will not waste a life—He won't allow the banished one to be exiled permanently from His presence.

15I say these things to you, my king, because of those who have frightened me. I thought, "Maybe if I speak to the king, he will hear my request. 16And if the king hears, he will deliver me out of the hands of those who would make my son and me exiles from the inheritance of God." 17I thought, "Please let the king's word bring me peace," because you, my lord, are like a messenger of God, discerning good and evil alike. The Eternal One, your True God, be with you!

David: 18I'm going to ask you a question, and I want you to tell me the truth.

Woman of Tekoa: Ask me your question, my king.

David: 19Has Joab put you up to this?

Woman of Tekoa: Of course you are right, my king. No one can fool you. It was your servant Joab who sent me and told me what to say to you. 20He did this because he hoped to change your situation with Absalom. But my lord, my king, is wise, as wise as a heavenly messenger of God who sees all that is happening on earth.

David *(to Joab): 21All right. I will do as you advise. You have my permission to bring young Absalom home.

22Joab lay facedown on the ground before the king and honored him.

Joab *(blessing David): Today I know that I am blessed and that I stand approved before you, my lord and king, since you have granted my request.

23Joab traveled to Geshur, found Absalom, and brought him home to Jerusalem. But David would not see him.

David: 24Take him to his own house. I won't let him see my face.

So Absalom returned to his own house and did not come into the king's presence. 25Now there was no one in Israel more handsome than Absalom; from the soles of his feet to the top of his head, he was flawless. 26When he cut his long hair (which he did once a year, as he needed it), his hair weighed five pounds, according to the king's measuring system. 27Absalom was the father of three sons and a beautiful daughter he named Tamar, after his sister.

28Absalom lived in Jerusalem for two years without seeing his father David, the king, 29and at last Absalom sent a message to Joab that he wanted to be brought before David. But Joab did not answer his summons. Absalom sent him a second message, and again Joab did not come. 30So Absalom gathered his servants and gave them orders.

Absalom *(to servants): Joab has a barley field next to mine. Go and set it on fire.

The servants did as he ordered, and this got Joab's attention. 31Joab got up and confronted Absalom at his house.

Joab: Why have your servants set my field on fire?

Absalom: 32Look, I asked you to come to take this message to the king: "Why did you ask me to come here from Geshur if you won't see me? I'd be better off there." Let me go see my father the king. If I am guilty of something, let him kill me.

33So Joab brought David this message, and David sent for Absalom, who came before his father the king and lay facedown on the ground in honor of him. David kissed Absalom and welcomed him back into his good graces.

15 After this, Absalom acquired a chariot and horses, and he hired 50 men to run ahead of him. 2Now Absalom made it a practice to rise early and stand beside the road leading into one of Jerusalem's gates. When someone came along who wanted to petition the king, he would ask, "What is your city?" The person would answer, "Your servant is from a certain tribe of Israel."

Absalom: 3I'm sure your claims are truthful and have merit, but the king has not appointed anyone to hear your case. 4If only I were appointed the authority in the land! Then anyone with a petition could come before me, and I would give him justice!

5When people came to Absalom to show their respects, he would embrace them and kiss them. 6Absalom did this to everyone who sought justice from the king; and in this way, he made himself the favorite of the people of Israel.

7When four* years had passed, Absalom went to his father the king.

Absalom: My king, please let me go to Hebron and satisfy the vow I made to the Eternal One. 8I made a promise when I lived at Geshur in Aram: "If ever the Eternal will bring me back to Jerusalem, then I will go and serve Him [in Hebron.]"*

David: 9Go in peace.

So he got up and traveled to Hebron. But this was all part of Absalom's plan to come to power. 10He had secretly planted messengers in all the tribes of Israel with these instructions: "As soon as you hear the trumpet play, then shout that Absalom has been crowned king in Hebron."

Absalom is planning to follow in his father's footsteps, for Hebron is where David was first crowned king.

11Two hundred men from Jerusalem who were ignorant of Absalom's plan were his invited guests on the journey. 12While Absalom was offering sacrifices to God,
he sent for David's counselor Ahithophel of Giloh. The rebellion grew in power and number, 13and at last a messenger came to David.

Messenger: Absalom has captured the loyalty of the people of Israel.

14David could see now that he had been outmaneuvered, so he called for his advisors in Jerusalem and instructed them.

David: Gather your things, and let's flee from the city right now, or we won't escape Absalom's revolt. Hurry, or he will catch us and kill us and anyone left in the city.

David's Advisors: 15We will do whatever you tell us to do.

16So the king with his household, all the people loyal to David in Jerusalem, left.
David left behind 10 royal concubines, members of his harem, and he gave them responsibility over the palace. 17The king's entourage stopped at the last house on the edge of the city. 18Then all those who served him, the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and the 600 Gittites who had followed David since he had been exiled in the Philistine city of Gath, went ahead. 19David turned to Ittai the Gittite*, who had been with David since the days of Saul.*

David: Why are you coming with us? Go back and make friends with the new king, for you are a foreigner, in exile from your home. 20You came to us only recently; why should you have to wander with us wherever I have to go? Go back and take your people with you, and may the Lord show unfailing mercy to you and be ever faithful.

Ittai the Gittite: 21As sure as the Eternal
One lives and as my lord the king lives, wherever my lord the king goes, in death or in life, I will follow him.

David: 22All right, then. Let's march.

So Ittai the Gittite went with David, bringing all the men, women, and children who were with him. 23The whole country seemed to weep as David and his followers departed. The king crossed over the Kidron stream, and they all continued toward the desert wilderness.

24Abiathar, Zadok, and all the Levite priests traveled with them, carrying the covenant chest of God. The priests had set the chest down beside the road while everyone else departed Jerusalem.

David *(to Zadok): 25Carry the covenant chest of God back into Jerusalem. If the Eternal looks on me with favor, then I will come back someday to see it in its place in Jerusalem where it belongs. 26But if He says, "I am through with you," then I stand ready to endure whatever He wills.

27But as for you and your son Ahimaaz, and Abiathar and his son Jonathan, can't you see that you should go back into Jerusalem in peace? 28I will be waiting in the wilderness until you send me
news.

29So Zadok and Abiathar returned the covenant chest of God to Jerusalem, and they remained there.

* 15:7 Hebrew manuscripts read, "40"; some manuscripts read, "40 days." * 15:8 Hebrew manuscripts omit this portion.

30But David and all of those who went into exile with him covered their heads; and weeping, they climbed the Mount of Olives out of the city, David climbing barefoot. 31Someone told David that his wise counselor Ahithophel was conspiring with Absalom. So David prayed.

David: O Eternal One, I ask that you turn Ahithophel's counsel into foolishness.

32When David reached the top of the mountain where God was worshiped, Hushai the Archite, who had been one of his advisors, joined the group of exiles, grieving with his clothes torn and dirt upon his head.

► Since the days of the exodus, Israel has always been something of a "mixed group." Now during David's flight from Jerusalem, many non-Israelites pay homage and give loyalty to their king. Hushai the Archite and Barzillai the Gileadite are just two of these.

David: 33If you go with us, you will only be a burden to me. 34But if you return to the city, speak to Absalom. Gain his confidence. Tell him you will serve him as king as you once served me, and that way you can block Ahithophel's advice for me. 35-36The priests Zadok and Abiathar will be in the city with you. Tell them what you hear in the palace; and they and their sons, Ahimaaz and Jonathan respectively, will pass the news on to me.

37So David's counselor and friend Hushai returned to Jerusalem just as Absalom was entering the city.

16 After David and his people passed over the crest of the Mount of Olives, the exiles met Ziba, who served Saul's son Mephibosheth.
Ziba led a couple of donkeys carrying goods: 200 loaves of bread, 100 clumps of raisins, 100 summer fruits, and a wineskin.

David *(to Ziba, seeing that Mephibosheth wasn't with him): 2Why have you brought these things?

Ziba: The donkeys are for members of the king's family to ride. The bread and summer fruit are for your young men, and the wine is for those who grow weak in the wilderness.

David: 3Where is your master's descendant?

Ziba: He is still in Jerusalem. He says,
"Now the people of Israel will give me back my grandfather's kingdom."

David: 4Then all that belonged to Mephibosheth is yours now.

Ziba *(bowing): I am your servant. May my lord and king look kindly on me.

5*They traveled on.* When David reached Bahurim, one of Saul's family, Shimei, the son of Gera, came out of his house and cursed David constantly there in the road, 6throwing stones at him and at his servants even though David's soldiers were all around, supporting him.

Shimei *(shouting abuse): 7Go on! Get out, you man of blood! You worthless man!
8The Eternal One has finally punished you for taking the kingdom from Saul, for shedding the blood of his family and subjects and reigning in his place. That's why the Eternal One has taken the kingdom from your bloody hands and given it into the hands of your son Absalom.

9Abishai, Zeruiah's son, was offended and amazed.

Abishai: Why should you let this worthless dog curse you, my king? Say the word, and I'll chop his head off.

David *(to Abishai): 10*Why should this matter to you?* What do we, sons of Zeruiah, have in common? If he insults me because the Eternal has told him to, who are we to ask him why he does it?
11(turning to the rest) Listen, Abishai—and all of you! My own son seeks to kill me today, so why shouldn't this man of Benjamin? Leave him alone and let him curse me, as the Eternal One wills it. 12Maybe the Eternal will look at everything done against me and render something good in its place today.

13So they traveled on their way; and Shimei followed, too, along the hill opposite them, shouting curses and throwing stones and flinging dust. 14David and his men were weary when they at last arrived at the Jordan River, and there they stopped to rest.

15Meanwhile Absalom and all his people, the men of Israel, came into Jerusalem; and Ahithophel was with him. 16When Hushai the Archite, David's friend, came to Absalom, he saluted Absalom.

Hushai: Long live the king! Long live the king!

Absalom: 17Is this how you repay my father's friendship? Wouldn't it be better for you to have followed him?

Hushai: 18No. I will serve the one whom the Eternal One, these people, and the people of Israel have chosen. I'll serve him and remain with him. 19And why shouldn't I serve the son of my lord? Just as I served him, I will serve you.

Absalom (to Ahithophel): 20Advise me. What should I do now?

Ahithophel: 21*Make the break with your father complete.* Sleep with each woman in your father's harem whom he left behind to mind the palace. All of Israel will hear how you've insulted your father, and they'll know there's no turning back now. They will have to be committed to this rebellion.

22So they pitched a tent for Absalom on the roof of the palace, and all Israel saw that Absalom had slept with his father's concubines. 23In those days, both with David and then with Absalom, Ahithophel's counsel was deemed so wise that it could have come from God Himself, so his advice was highly prized.

17 Ahithophel had a strategy for victory over David and advised Absalom.

Ahithophel: Let me choose 12,000 men, and tonight we will pursue David 2-3while he is weak and weary. We'll throw him into a panic; then all of the people will run away from him, come back to you, and be safe. I will strike down the king. If we take only the life of this one man here—your father—then everyone else can return to you.

4This advice appealed to Absalom and to Israel's elders.

Absalom: 5Call in Hushai the Archite, and see what he thinks.

6When Hushai arrived, Absalom told him what Ahithophel had advised.

Absalom: What do you think? Should we do as he suggests? If not, tell us what you'd advise.

Hushai: 7I don't think the advice from Ahithophel is good this time, and I'll tell you why: 8You know that your father and his men are hardened soldiers. Right now they're angry, like a bear that's been robbed of her cubs in the field. Also your father is such a wise warrior that he'll know he's our target. He won't sleep in the same camp with his people. 9He's probably hidden in a cave or some other hole where he will be hard to find. When our troops start dying in the first attack, everyone will say, "Absalom's men are being slaughtered." 10Then even the courageous warriors, the ones with the courage of lions, will disintegrate in fear. Everyone in Israel knows that your father is a true warrior, and those with him are hardened veterans.

11No, my counsel is to take your time. Gather the people of Israel, from Dan to Beersheba, so that you have a large army, like the grains of sand on the beach, and lead them into battle yourself. 12Wherever David is, we will fall on him like the dew on the ground. We'll kill him and all who defend him. No one will remain. 13And if he slips into a fortified city, we'll have so many men of Israel that we could lasso that city and pull it down into the valley, so that not even a stone would be left in place.

14Absalom and his counselors decided that Hushai's plan was better than Ahithophel's, not knowing that the Eternal One had determined to thwart Ahithophel's good advice and bring about Absalom's destruction.

15After Hushai advised Absalom, he went to the priests Zadok and Abiathar. He wasn't certain what Absalom would do, so he told them Ahithopel's plan and his own.

Hushai: 16Quickly now, send a messenger to David. Tell the king to move deeper into the wilderness, across the river but away from the fords! If he remains where he is tonight, then he and all his followers will be swallowed by Absalom's forces.

17 The priests' sons, Jonathan and Ahimaaz, were waiting at En-rogel for news. A servant girl would bring them messages because they couldn't risk being seen entering the city. When they had something to report, they would go tell King David. 18 But this time they were careless, and a boy saw them and reported it to Absalom. So the two men fled to the house of a man in Bahurim. There was a well in the courtyard, and they lowered themselves into it. 19 The man's wife put the cover over the well and spread out grain on top of it, so no one could see it was there. 20 When Absalom's soldiers arrived, they questioned her.

Soldiers: Where are the traitors Ahimaaz and Jonathan?

Wife: Oh, they've crossed to the other side of the stream.

The soldiers looked for them, but when they couldn't find them, they returned to Jerusalem.

21 After the soldiers left, they climbed out of the well and went to speak to King David.

Ahimaaz and Jonathan: Get ready to cross over the river into the wilderness quickly, because here is Ahithophel's plan of action.

22 And knowing about the danger, David and everyone with him crossed over the Jordan River and moved deep into the wilderness. By daybreak not a single man loyal to David was left on the near side of the Jordan.

23 When Ahithophel saw that his plan was ignored, he knew the best hope for victory was lost. He saddled his donkey and went home; and after setting his affairs in order, he hanged himself and died. He was buried within his father's tomb.

24 Meanwhile David went on to Mahanaim as Absalom was crossing over the Jordan with all of the men of Israel. 25 Absalom had made Amasa commander of the army, which used to be Joab's office. Amasa was a nephew of David: his father was Ithra the Israelite* who had married Abigail, Nahash's daughter and also a sister of David and Zeruiah, Joab's mother. 26 Absalom and the army of Israel camped on the plains of Gilead.

27 When David arrived in Mahanaim, Shobi (the son of Nahash from Rabbah of the Ammonites), Machir (the son of Ammiel from Lo-debar), and Barzillai the Gileadite (from Rogelim) 28 brought beds, basins, earthenware, wheat, barley, meal, parched seeds and grain, beans, lentils, 29 honey, butter, sheep, and local cheese for David and his men to eat; for they knew the men were hungry, tired, and thirsty there in the wilderness.

18 Then David gathered the soldiers who were with them and divided them into units of a thousand and a hundred. He appointed leaders over each unit. 2 He divided his army into three groups. A third of them were commanded by Joab, a third by Abishai (Zeruiah's son, Joab's brother), and the final third by Ittai the Gittite.

David *(to his soldiers): I will go out to fight with you.

Soldiers: 3 No, you should remain in Mahanaim. If we flee, the people here will not be concerned about us; or if half of us die, they will not care. But they care about you. You're worth 10,000 of us. It's better that you stay here and help us from the city.

David: 4 All right. I'll do what you think is best.

► David is torn between his duties as king and his duties as father. When his own son attempts to overthrow him, he is forced to flee his kingdom and is subjected to ridicule and contempt. Absalom sleeps with all the royal concubines, a deadly insult, and it looks as though David will be overthrown just as Saul was before him. Even now with Absalom leading an outright rebellion, dishonoring his father, and seeking his death, David seeks to spare his son.

* 17:25 Some manuscripts read, "Ishmaelite" or "Jezreelite."

So David stood beside the gate while his soldiers marched out to fight against Absalom, organized into fighting units by the hundreds and by the thousands. 5Then David instructed his generals Joab, Abishai, and Ittai.

David: For my sake, be merciful to the young man Absalom.

Now everyone had heard about David's instructions to the commanders concerning Absalom.

6Then the army went out to fight against Israel, and the battle was fought in the wooded areas of Ephraim. 7David's forces won a great victory against Absalom's men, and 20,000 men were killed in the battle that day. 8The battle spread all across the landscape, and more of his opponents were lost to the forest than to the sword.

► David takes the fight into a forested area rather than staying out in the open field. Since his army is more experienced in fighting in such terrain, there is an opportunity for a smaller force to defeat a larger one. Absalom's men (and Absalom himself, as illustrated in the following verses) die as a result of not knowing how to fight in the forest and avoid its pitfalls.

9Absalom himself encountered David's forces, and as he was riding away on his mule, the animal took him into the thick overhanging branches of a huge oak tree. There his hair was caught, and he dangled between the sky and earth as his mule fled from underneath him. 10A soldier saw this and told Joab.

Soldier: I saw Absalom hanging in an oak tree, helpless.

Joab: 11You saw Absalom? Then why didn't you kill him while he was hanging there? I would have given you 10 pieces of silver and a belt!

Soldier: 12If you put 1,000 pieces of silver into my hand, I wouldn't raise it against the king's son. We all heard the king say to you generals, "For my sake, protect young Absalom." 13If I had taken his life despite that, you would stand back and watch as they strung me up. Nothing is hidden from the king.

Joab: 14I can't stand here talking to you all day.

Joab took three spears, and finding Absalom still dangling by his hair inside the oak, he thrust them into his heart. 15Ten young men, Joab's armor bearers, surrounded Absalom then and struck him until he was dead.

16Then Joab sounded the trumpet and pulled back the soldiers from their pursuit of the army of Israel, because Joab knew no good would come of further fighting. 17They took Absalom's body and threw it in a deep hole in the forest, and then they stacked stones high over it. Meanwhile the remaining Israelites loyal to Absalom fled to their homes.

18Before his death, Absalom had erected a monument to himself in the King's Valley, since he had no son to keep his memory alive. He named the monument after himself, and Absalom's Monument still stands in the King's Valley.

19*After Absalom's death,* Ahimaaz, Zadok's son, spoke to Joab.

Ahimaaz: Let me hurry to the king with the good news that the Eternal One has given him victory over his enemies.

Joab: 20You're not going to carry news today. Maybe some other day, but not today, for today the news that matters most is that the king's son is dead.

21(to the Cushite) Go and tell the king what you have seen.

The Cushite bowed in obedience to Joab, then he began running to bring the news to David.

Ahimaaz: 22Whatever happens, I want to run after the Cushite.

Joab: Why would you want to follow, even though you have nothing to gain?

Ahimaaz: 23Regardless of what happens, I am going to run.

Joab: OK, then. Run.

Ahimaaz ran, and going by way of the plain, he outran the Cushite.

24Now David sat waiting between the gates. A guard went up to the roof of the gates by the wall, and he saw a man running toward them. 25He shouted to alert the king, and David responded.

David: If he is alone, he comes with good news.

As the messenger drew near, 26the guard saw a second man running.

Guard (to the gatekeeper): Another man is running by himself.

David: Then he also has good news.

Guard: 27From the way he runs, I'd say the first one is Ahimaaz, Zadok's son.

David: He is a good man, and he comes bearing good news.

28And as Ahimaaz approached, he shouted to the king.

Ahimaaz: All is well!

He dropped to honor the king, his face to the ground.

Ahimaaz: Praise the Eternal One, your True God, who has given us victory over those who raised their hands against you, my lord and king.

David: 29But how is my son Absalom?

Ahimaaz: When Joab sent me, your servant, there was still an uproar; but I don't know what was happening.

David: 30Make way for this next messenger. Move over here.

Ahimaaz turned aside, keeping still and quiet. 31So the Cushite arrived and greeted the king.

Cushite: I have good news, my lord and king! The Eternal has today taken your side and delivered you from all those who rose up against you!

David: 32But what about young Absalom?

Cushite: May all your enemies and all those who wish the king harm be as that young man is now!

33Then the king was stricken with grief. He went to a chamber over the gateway and wept as he went.

David: O my son Absalom! My son, my son Absalom! If only I had died instead of you, Absalom, my son, my son!

► David should never be counted out. Hours before, Absalom has everything going his way, and David is run out of his kingdom. Smart and fierce, he doesn't spend all those years hiding from Saul and fighting with little or no resources for nothing. Although he orders his generals to be merciful to his son Absalom, his forces win a great victory against the rebel forces, and David's general Joab kills Absalom and removes a threat to the security of the kingdom.

But David's reaction again is tender; although his son might have killed him if he'd been given the chance, David laments his death. As king, as father, and as follower of the Lord, he knows he could have done better; but now it is too late, and all he can do is mourn the consequences of his past actions.

19 Joab heard the news that David was weeping and mourning for Absalom, 2and the mood shifted from celebration to sorrow, for all the soldiers heard that the king was grieving for his son. 3They crept back to the city as though they had lost the battle rather than saved the kingdom.

4The king covered his face, and he continued to cry loudly.

David: O my son Absalom. O Absalom, my son, my son!

5Then Joab came into the king's presence.

Joab: Today you have shamed the men who saved your life, who have saved the lives of your sons and daughters, and the lives of your wives and concubines, 6all because of your love for those who hated you and your hatred of those who love you! You've made it perfectly clear where your affections are—that your officers and men mean nothing to you, and that you'd gladly trade our lives for Absalom's.

7Go out now, and speak with kindness and respect to those who have served you. You can still save the day; but I swear by the Eternal One, if you do not alter this mood now, not a single man will be with you tonight, and this will be the greatest disaster ever to wash over you.

8Then the king got up, went outside, and sat down inside the gate where Absalom had acquired his allies. When the people heard that the king had come out to them, they gathered around him.
The men of Israel who had gone against the king, meanwhile, had fled to their homes. 9Throughout Israel, from tribe to tribe, people were debating: "David saved us from our enemies and took us out of the hands of the Philistines, but he fled from Absalom. 10Now Absalom, whom we appointed to lead us, has fallen in battle. Why, then, haven't we moved to bring the king back to power?"
11David knew about this groundswell of support, and he sent a message to the priests Zadok and Abiathar.

David: Tell the leaders of Judah, "Why should you be the last to agree to bring the king back? Everyone in Israel is talking about it, even in the king's own house. 12And you—you are my flesh and my bones. Why should you be the last to join this movement?" 13And tell Amasa, who joined the rebellion against me, "Aren't you my flesh and my bone? May God bring disaster on me if I don't allow you to serve as commander of my army from now on in place of Joab."

14Amasa persuaded all of Judah to stand united supporting David, and they sent word that he and his servants should come back. 15So the king came back to the Jordan River. The people of Judah turned out to meet him at Gilgal, and they celebrated as he crossed back over the Jordan into his kingdom.
16Shimei (son of Gera, the Benjaminite from Bahurim), who had abused David on his way into exile, was one of those in the throngs hurrying to meet David. 17He joined 1,000 people from Benjamin. Ziba, the servant of the house of Saul who had spoken with David on his way into exile, and his 15 sons and 20 servants who also hurried down to the Jordan before the king, 18kept crossing the ford to assist in moving the king's household and was anxious to help in any other way. Then Shimei, the son of Gera, fell in front of the king before he crossed the Jordan.

Shimei: 19*Please,* my lord, don't hold me guilty or hold a grudge for what I did against you on the day you left Jerusalem, cursing you and throwing stones at you. May the king forget it ever happened! 20I, your servant, know that what I did was wrong. That's why I've come today, to be the first of all the house of Joseph to greet my king.

21Abishai, Zeruiah's son, remembered Shimei well.

Abishai: My lord, shouldn't Shimei be executed for cursing the Eternal's anointed king with such contempt?

David: 22What business is that of yours, sons of Zeruiah? Why should you make yourself my opponent? Will I execute anyone in Israel on a day like this? Don't I know that today I am the king of Israel? 23(to Shimei) You will not die. I swear it.

24Mephibosheth, the lame grandson of Saul and son of David's dear friend Jonathan, also made his way to meet the king. His feet had not been cared for—no, and his beard had grown long, and he had not had his clothes washed—since the king went into exile and returned in peace. 25When he met the king in Jerusalem, the king received him.

David: Why didn't you go into exile with me, Mephibosheth?

Mephibosheth: 26My lord, my servant Ziba tricked me. I asked him to saddle a donkey so that I could go with you—for you know I cannot walk. 27He has told you lies about me, but my lord is like a heavenly messenger of God. So do what seems right to you, and I will accept it. 28You had the right to kill everyone in my family when you became king, yet you took me to sit at your table. So it would be wrong for me to bicker over anything with you.

David: 29Let's not talk any more about this. I have decided that you and Ziba will share the land.

Mephibosheth: 30My king, let him take it all. I'm just grateful you are back safely in your own palace and kingdom.

31Barzillai from Gilead, who had fed the king's forces, had come down from Rogelim to escort the king across the Jordan. 32He was 80 years old and very wealthy, which is how he had been able to provide for the king while he was at Mahanaim.

David *(to Barzillai): 33Cross over with me, and come to Jerusalem. I'll take care of you and give you a place of honor at my side.

Barzillai: 34My king, how many years do I have left, that I should leave my home and relocate with the king to Jerusalem? I am too old for court life. 35I am 80 years old today. My judgment is not as good as it used to be. I can't taste my food, enjoy my drink, or even hear the pleasant singing of men and women. So why should you burden yourself with me, my lord and king? 36I will travel a little farther with you across the Jordan, but you don't owe me anything more for my hospitality. Why should you, my king, offer me such a handsome reward? 37Please grant me your favor to return home, to die among my own people near the resting places of my parents. But do consider your servant Chimham. Let him come with you, and may you honor Chimham as you see fit.

David: 38Chimham will cross the river with me, and I will treat him as seems good to you. Anything you want from me, I will do for you.

39Then the king and all the people crossed over the Jordan. David kissed Barzillai and wished him well, and Barzillai returned home. 40The king, along with Chimham, went on to Gilgal, accompanied by all the people of Judah and half the people of Israel.

41Then the people of Israel came in front of the king, indignant.

People of Israel: Why have our kinsmen of Judah stolen you away from us and helped you across the Jordan? Why have they brought across your family and your subjects and all your men?

People of Judah: 42Because we are more closely related to the king than you are. Why are you upset about this? Has the king fed us at his expense? Has he given to us anything he has not given to you?

People of Israel: 43We have 10 shares in the office of the king because there are 10 of our tribes in Israel and only 2 of yours—Judah and Benjamin. And we have more shares in David as the king than you do for the same reason. Why were you angry with us? Weren't we the first to talk about bringing David home?

But the people of Judah were harsher than the people of Israel.

20 A worthless troublemaker, Sheba the Benjaminite, the son of Bichri, blasted a trumpet and silenced everyone.

Sheba: We don't have any share in David, no interest in the son of Jesse! Israel, let's go back to our tents and show loyalty to only our own tribes!

2So the people of Israel stopped following David and followed Sheba, son of Bichri; but the people of Judah faithfully accompanied David back from the Jordan to Jerusalem.

3David came back to his palace at Jerusalem, and he took the 10 members of his harem he had left behind to look after things—the concubines whom Absalom had used sexually—and put them away in a house, under guard. He took care of them, but he never slept with them again as long as they lived. They lived shut away as if they were widows.

David *(to Amasa): 4Go and tell the men of Judah they have three days to get here, and you come with them.

5So Amasa went out to call Judah together, but he was delayed beyond his deadline.

David *(to Abishai): 6Sheba, Bichri's son, will do more damage to us than Absalom if he's left untouched. Take my men and pursue him. If we're not careful, he'll escape into a fortified city and continue to cause trouble.

7So Joab took his troops with the mercenary corps of Cherethites and Pelethites, and all these warriors went from Jerusalem in pursuit of Sheba, Bichri's son. 8When they reached the great boulder at Gibeon, Amasa met them. Joab was dressed for battle, with his sword strapped on at the waist; and as he went forward to meet Amasa, Joab's sword slipped out of its sheath.

Joab: [9]How are you, my brother?

With his right hand, Joab held Amasa's face to kiss him, [10]but Amasa did not see the sword in Joab's left hand. With one motion, Joab ripped open Amasa's belly; his intestines spilled onto the ground, and he died. Then Joab and his brother Abishai went off in pursuit of Sheba, Bichri's son. [11]One of Joab's men stood by Amasa's body and shouted, Joab's Soldier: If you're for Joab and David, then follow Joab!

[12]Amasa lay agonizing in his blood on the highway, and the soldier saw that everyone was stopping to look. He dragged Amasa off the road into a field and threw a coat over him. [13]Once that distraction was removed, all the soldiers followed Joab to find Sheba, son of Bichri.

[14]Sheba marched across all the tribal lands of Israel until he came to Abel in Beth-maacah; and all his kinsmen, the Berites, gathered and followed him inside the fortified city. [15]When Joab's army arrived, they put Abel Beth-maacah under siege. They built an earthen rampart up onto the wall, while others with Joab tried to break the wall down. [16]Then a wise woman called out from the city.

Woman: Listen to me! Tell Joab that I want to talk to him!

[17]Joab came close enough to hear her.

Woman: Are you Joab?

Joab: Yes, I am.

Woman: I, your servant, have something to tell you.

Joab: All right. I am listening.

Woman: [18]In the old days, people used to say, "Let's ask for guidance at Abel," and there they would resolve their differences. [19]I am one of the many in Israel who are faithful and peaceful. Why would you destroy a city that has been a mother to Israel? Why would you knock down what the Eternal One has built?

Joab: [20]I'm certainly not here to destroy the city. [21]That's the last thing I want to do! But we are pursuing a man from the hill country of Ephraim: Sheba, Bichri's son, who has raised up a rebellion against David the king. If you will hand him over to us, then we will lift the siege and go home.

Woman: Then stay alert—we'll throw his head over the wall to you.

[22]The wise woman talked to all the people about her plan to save the city. They cut off Sheba's head and threw it over the wall for Joab. Then Joab blew the trumpet to halt his attack. The troops went to their homes, and Joab returned to the king at Jerusalem.

[23]With Amasa dead, Joab again commanded all the army of Israel. Benaiah, Jehoiada's son, commanded the mercenary companies of Cherethites and Pelethites. [24]Adoram commanded all the forced laborers. Jehoshaphat, Ahilud's son, was the recorder, [25]and Sheva was the royal secretary. Zadok and Abiathar were priests, [26]and Ira the Jairite was David's priest.

21 After the people had suffered from a famine for three successive years, David asked the Eternal One why the famine lingered, and the answer came that the nation was guilty for not making amends for the bloodlust of King Saul, who slaughtered the people of Gibeon. [2](The Gibeonites were not from Israel—they were related to the Amorites. Saul tried to annihilate them in his zeal for Israel and Judah, although the people of Israel had promised to spare them during the days of Joshua.) So David called for the leaders of Gibeon.

David: [3]What can I do, what can I give you, to lift this guilt from my land so that you will honor the Eternal's chosen people?

Gibeonite Leaders: [4]Silver and gold won't make things right for us with Saul's kingdom. And it is not for us to tell you who should be subject to capital punishment in Israel.

David: I will do whatever you ask.

Gibeonite Leaders: 5Saul attacked us and tried to destroy us, to wipe us off the map of Israel. 6Give us seven of his descendants, and we will hang them on a tree in Gibeah before the Eternal, on His mountain.

David: I will give them to you.

7Now the king did not give them
Mephibosheth, Saul's grandson and Jonathan's son, because of the sacred oath between David and Jonathan. 8But he did take Saul's two sons by Rizpah (daughter of Aiah), Armoni and Mephibosheth, and the five sons of Merab (Saul's daughter) that she had by Adriel (son of Barzillai the Meholathite). 9David had them seized and handed them over to the Gibeonites, who executed them before the Eternal One on the mountain. All seven of them died together, in the spring of the year during the first days of the barley harvest.

10Rizpah, Aiah's daughter, spread out sackcloth on a rock to make a place to sit; and from the time her sons died until rain fell in late autumn, she refused to let the birds or wild animals desecrate the bodies. 11When David heard what Saul's concubine Rizpah had done, 12he went and gathered the bones of Saul and Jonathan (which the people of Jabesh-gilead had stolen from the place where they were hanged in the Philistine public square in Beth-shan on the day the Philistines killed Saul on Gilboa). 13He took the bones of Saul and Jonathan his son and gathered the bones of those who had been impaled in Gibeon. 14He had Saul and Jonathan buried in the tomb of their father Kish, in Zela in the land of Benjamin. All that David commanded was done; and afterward, God answered the prayers of the people of Israel for the land.

15Philistia and Israel were at war again, and David and his soldiers fought them long and hard until at last he grew weary. 16Then Ishbi-benob (who was a descendant of Raphah) announced that he had come to kill David. He carried a bronze spear, the head of which weighed nearly 10 pounds, and he carried a new sword. 17But Abishai, Zeruiah's son, came to David's aid. He attacked and killed this Philistine.

David's Men *(to David): You can't go out to fight with us any longer. If you are killed, then the lamp of Israel will go out.

18Later the Israelites fought the Philistines at Gob; and Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph, another Philistine warrior descended from the giant. 19In another fight at Gob with the Philistines, Elhanan (son of Jaare-oregim of Bethlehem), killed the brother of Goliath the Gittite, whose spear shaft was as large as a weaver's beam. 20Then in a battle at Gath, they fought against another famous warrior. He was a huge man with 6 fingers on each hand and 6 toes on each foot—24 in all—and he was also descended from the giant. 21When he insulted the people of Israel, Jonathan (the son of David's brother Shimei) killed him. 22All four of these great warriors were descended from the giant of Gath, but all of them were defeated by the skill of David and his men.

22 David composed the following song of praise to the Eternal because He delivered him from all of his enemies and especially from Saul.

► At last the day comes when David has conquered—at least, temporarily—all his enemies, and he marks this day by rejoicing. In the same way that he composed songs to lament Saul's and Jonathan's deaths, David composes a psalm of joy to the Lord who is his strong fortress and his security. He gives God the credit, but he also claims—and rightly, of course, in spite of his occasional transgressions—that he has tried to do what God asked him to do, has tried to keep the ways of God.

David: 2The Eternal is my rock, my fortress, and my savior; 3He is my True God, my stronghold in whom I take refuge,
My strong shield, my horn that calls forth rescue,
my tall-walled tower and strong refuge,
My savior from violence.
4I call on the Eternal, who is worthy to be praised,
and I have been rescued from my enemies.
5The waves of death surrounded me;
the torrents of terror tugged at me.

6The sorrows of the grave* tightly tangled me;
the snares of death met me.
7In my time of need I called upon the Eternal One;
I called to my True God for help.
He heard my voice from His temple,
and my cry came to His ears.

8Because of His great anger,
the earth shook and staggered;
the foundations of the heavens trembled and quaked.
9Smoke billowed out from His nostrils and devouring fire from His mouth;
glowing coals flamed from Him.
10He bent the heavens and descended;
darkness is beneath His feet.
11He rode upon a heavenly creature,*
flying;
He soared swiftly on the wings of the wind.
12He placed darkness around Him like a canopy and made His home in dark watery clouds of the sky.
13Out from His brightness, hailstones and burning coals flared forth.
14The Eternal thundered in the heavens, the voice of the Most High speaking.
15He shot forth His arrows and scattered the wicked;
He flung forth His lightning and struck them.
16Then the deepest channels of the seas were revealed;
and the foundations of the world were uncovered
At Your rebuke, O Eternal One, at the blast of wind breathed from Your nostrils.
17He reached down from above me, He held me;
He pulled me from the raging waters.
18He rescued me from my strong enemy and from all those who hated me, for they would have overwhelmed me.
19When my enemies came for me on the day of my destruction, the Eternal stepped in to support me.
20He led me out onto a broad plain;
He delivered me because of His delight in me.
21The Eternal One rewarded me because I sought righteousness;
He rewarded me because I kept my hands clean.
22*He rewarded me* because I kept the ways of the Eternal and have not walked away from my True God in wickedness.
23For all His laws were there before me, and I did not push His statutes away.
24I made myself blameless before Him;
I kept myself from guilt and shame.
25That's why the Eternal has rewarded me for seeking righteousness;
He's rewarded me because He sees I have remained pure.
26To the good, You show Your goodness; to the blameless, You prove to be blameless;
27To the pure, You show Your purity; to the crooked, You make Yourself twisted.
28For You rescue weak people,
but the proud You bring low.
29You are the lamp who lights my way,
O Eternal One,
the Eternal, who lights up my darkness.
30With Your help, I can conquer an army;
with Your help, I can vault over walls.
31God has made an upright way;
the promise of the Eternal rings
true;
He stands and shields all who hide
in Him.
32Who is the True God except the Eternal One?
Who stands like a rock except our God?
33The True God who circled me with strength puts the upright on His way.
34He made me sure-footed as a deer and placed me high up and safe.
35He teaches me to fight
so that my arms can bend a bronze bow.
36You have given me the shield of Your salvation,
and Your support has made me strong.
37You taught me how to walk with care
so my feet would not slip.
38I pursued my enemies and defeated
them
and did not stop until all were destroyed.

* 22:6 Hebrew, sheol * 22:11 Hebrew, cherub

39When I eliminated them, they fell down beneath my feet
so they could not rise again.
40For You equipped me with strength for battle,
and You made my enemies fall
beneath me.
41You made my enemies turn and run,
and all who hated me, I destroyed.
42They looked everywhere, but no one came to save them;
they asked the Eternal for help, but
He did not answer them.
43I beat them until they were as small as the dust of the earth;
I flung them away and beat them down like mud in the gutters.
44You delivered me from conflict with the peoples;
you raised me up to rule over
nations;
people whom I did not know came to serve me.
45Strangers came to me, cringing and afraid;
as soon as they heard about me,
they obeyed me.
46Strangers had their courage shrivel before them and came fearfully to me from behind their high walls.

47The Eternal One is alive! May my Rock
be blessed;
and the True God, the Rock of my deliverance be exalted, 48The God who avenged me and tamed the peoples under me, 49Who rescued me from all my foes.
You raised me up above my enemies;
You saved me from the violent ones.
50For this, I will praise You, O Eternal
One, among the nations and sing praises to Your name.*
51He is a tower of salvation for His king and shows His loyal love to His anointed, to David and his descendants, continually.*

23 Here are the last words of David, son of Jesse: the words of the one raised up, the anointed one of Jacob's True God, the sweet songwriter of Israel.

David: 2The Spirit of the Eternal speaks through me;
His voice emerges from my mouth.
3The God of Israel has talked to me;
and the Rock of Israel said,
"One who rules people with justice and who leads them in the fear of God
4Is like the morning light, the sun rising on a cloudless morning,
and the shining grasslands brought up from rain."

5Isn't this how God has raised up my house?
Because He has made a perpetual covenant with me,
well-ordered and secure, Won't He make all things to grow and prosper,
save me, and give me all I desire?
6But the wicked are like thorns cut off and tossed away that can't be picked up with your hands;
7No, to touch them, use the iron tip
on the shaft of a spear.
They are burned up on the spot.

► David has been brought up from his position as a lowly shepherd, the youngest son in the household, to the pinnacle of success by his faith in God and his own willingness to follow God. It has been an adventure fraught with danger and intrigue, and marked with loss and heartbreak along the way. David's own failings find themselves reflected—and magnified—in his children. But here is one of the high points of the story of the people of God, united at last under a powerful and beloved king, and victorious against their enemies.

8Here is a list of the warriors who fought for David:

Josheb-basshebeth the Tahchemonite was the most powerful of David's three most-honored warriors; he took up his spear* and killed 800 in one battle.

* 22:50 Romans 15:9 * 22:2-51 Psalm 18 * 23:8 Hebrew is very difficult; some read, "Adino the Eznite."

9The next of David's three mighty men was Eleazar, son of Dodo of Ahohi. Eleazar stood with David when they defied the Philistines who had gathered there to fight. The Israelites retreated, 10but Eleazar stood his ground. He killed Philistine soldiers that day until his arm grew tired, but he never dropped his sword. The Eternal One gave them a decisive victory that day; and then the people came back, only to pillage the fallen.

11Last of these top three was Shammah, son of Agee of Harar. The Philistines gathered at Lehi* where there was a field full of lentils, and the Israelites fled from them. 12But Shammah stood in the center of the field and fought, killing many Philistines; and the Eternal gave His people a great victory.

13At the beginning of harvest, these top three of David's thirty chief warriors joined David at the cave of Adullam. A group of Philistines was camped in the valley of Rephaim, 14David was hiding in his safe place, and the main force of the Philistines was quartered in Bethlehem.

David (with longing): 15I wish someone would bring me some water to drink from the well of Bethlehem by the gate!

16So these three mighty men broke through the nearby camp of the Philistines, drew water from the Bethlehem well that was by the gate, and brought it back for David. But he would not drink it; instead he poured it out, although he was parched with thirst, as a drink offering to the Eternal One.

David: 17O Eternal God, I have no right to drink this water. It would be like drinking the blood of the men who risked their lives for it!

So he did not drink it. This is the kind of thing the three mighty men did for David.

18*Besides the three highest ranking soldiers,* there was Abishai (Zeruiah's son and the brother of Joab), who was commander of the elite force of 30.* With his spear he killed 300 men in battle and won honor as the three did. 19Abishai was the most honored of the 30 and became their commander, but he did not become one of the three.

20And there was Benaiah (Jehoiada's son), son of a great man from Kabzeel, who also did great deeds. He struck down two lionhearted heroes of Moab. Benaiah also killed a lion in a pit one snowy day, 21and he killed an Egyptian who was a powerful-looking man. The Egyptian was armed with a spear while Benaiah had only his staff, but he took the spear away from him and killed the Egyptian with his own weapon. 22These were the kinds of feats Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, performed that won him a name equal to the three mighty men for bravery. 23He was famous among the 30, but never became one of the three. David made him the captain of his personal guard.

24These are the warriors who were counted among the 30: Asahel, Joab's brother; Elhanan, son of Dodo of Bethlehem; 25Shammah of Harod; Elika of Harod; 26Helez the Paltite; Ira, son of Ikkesh of Tekoa; 27Abiezer of Anathoth; Mebunnai the Hushathite; 28Zalmon the Ahohite; Maharai of Netophah; 29Heleb, son of Baanah of Netophah; Ittai, son of Ribai of Gibeah in Benjamin; 30Benaiah of Pirathon; Hiddai of the waters of Gaash; 31Abi-albon the Arbathite; Azmaveth of Barhum; 32Eliahba of Shaalbon; Jashen the Gimzonite; Jonathan, son of 33Shammah of Harar; Ahiam, son of Sharar of Harar; 34Eliphelet, son of Ahasbai of Maacah; Eliam, son of Ahithophel the Gilonite; 35Hezro of Carmel; Paarai the Arbite; 36Igal, son of Nathan of Zobah; Bani the Gadite; 37Zelek the Ammonite; Naharai of Beeroth; the armor-bearer of Joab, Zeruiah's son; 38Ira the Ithrite; Gareb the Ithrite; 39Uriah the Hittite—37 men in all who were counted among the 30.

24 Once again the Eternal grew angry with Israel; so He used David against them, telling the king to go and count the people of Israel and Judah. 2David spoke to Joab, the commander of his army who was with him.

David: Travel to all the tribes of Israel, from Dan to Beersheba, and take a census of the people. I want to know how many there are.

3But Joab cautioned the king.

Joab: May the Eternal God increase the number of your people a hundred times while you are still alive to see it. But why on earth would you desire to do this, my king?

* 23:11 Or, "as a troop" * 23:18 1 Chronicles 11:20-21

4But the king's order held, and Joab and the other leaders of the army left the king's presence and went out to count the people of Israel. 5*To begin,* they went over the Jordan River and camped at Aroer south of the city that is in the middle of the valley there. Then they moved on toward Gad and Jazer. 6After that, they traveled to Gilead and to Tahtim-hodshi; then they traveled on north to Dan-jaan, and from Dan they went west to Sidon 7and then to the fortified city of Tyre and to all the cities of the Hivites and Canaanites. Then they went south to the wilderness of Judah at Beersheba. 8*At last,* when they had traveled through all the land, they came back to Jerusalem after 9 months and 20 days.
9Joab reported these astonishing numbers to the king: Israel had 800,000 soldiers and Judah had 500,000.

10*After he heard this,* David was overwhelmed with guilt for counting his subjects. He prayed to the Eternal One.

David: I have committed a great wrong against You. But please, O Eternal One, take away the guilt I feel, for I have done a stupid thing.

11When David rose the next morning, he was met by the prophet Gad, David's seer, who had received a message from the Eternal.

Gad: 12-13I am supposed to tell you this:
"The Eternal says, 'I will offer you three choices. Pick one, and that will be what I will do to you.'"

Do you want to have seven* years of famine in the land? Would you rather be on the run from your enemies for three months? Or shall a plague rage for three days through the land? Make a choice, and tell me what answer to give to the One who sent me.

David: 14This is horrible! But I would rather fall by the hand of the Eternal, because He is merciful, than fall into human hands.

15So the Eternal One sent a great plague that morning and for three days. It swept through Israel from Dan in the far north to Beersheba in the desert south, killing 70,000 people. 16But when the heavenly messenger prepared to destroy Jerusalem, He relented; and He commanded the heavenly messenger who had brought the epidemic.

Eternal One: Stop. That is enough.

The heavenly messenger then paused beside the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite; 17and when David saw him there, the one striking the people, he spoke to the Eternal One.

David: Look, I am the one who offended
You, the only one who has done wrong.
What have these innocent sheep done?
If someone is going to be punished for what I did, it should be me and my family. Punish us.

18Later that day, the prophet Gad approached David.

Gad: Go, and build an altar to the Eternal on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.

19So David went to perform this task
the Eternal had given him through Gad.
20Araunah saw the king and his men coming toward him, so he went out into the road and bowed low before him in the dust.

Araunah: 21Why has my lord, the king,
come to see your servant?

David: I have come to buy your threshing floor. We must build an altar to the Eternal there so that this epidemic will be lifted from the people.

Araunah: 22My lord and king, take and offer what seems right. Here are the oxen you need to make the burnt offering.
Take the threshing sledges and the yokes of the oxen for firewood. 23I will give you all these things, my king. May the Eternal One your God look on your offering with favor.

David: 24No, I will buy these things from you. Name your price. I will not make an offering to the Eternal One, my True
God, that has cost me nothing.

25David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for 20 ounces of silver. He built an altar there to the Eternal and made burnt and peace offerings on it. The Eternal One heard David's prayers for the land and lifted the plague from Israel.

* 24:12-13 Greek manuscripts read, "three."

1 KINGS

History of the kings of Israel and Judah, from Solomon through Ahab

Compiled by Jewish scribes in exile

Faced with a future of exile, sixth-century Jewish scribes sat down and meticulously compiled all the stories of the United and Divided Monarchies of Israel, sometimes in painful detail, before Israel's interactions with God could be forgotten. The result of this collaboration is a comprehensive history chronicling about 400 years, which is divided into four books: 1 and 2 Samuel and 1 and 2 Kings.

Although Jewish tradition attributes the writing of Kings to Jeremiah the prophet, most likely the final version is the product of several scribes using three things: court records, source books, and oral traditions. Together these give details about mundane things (such as how much gold was used in the temple) and colorful stories that bring these people to life. Israel has a rich oral history; stories are carefully passed down from parents to children verbally. We may be tempted to doubt the authenticity of such stories, assuming they are embellished as they pass from generation to generation, but archaeology has corroborated much of the information. Buildings still stand where the Bible says they are; cities were destroyed when and how the Bible says they were; empires rose and fell as the Bible says they did. In addition to physical evidence of the stories' authenticity, other cultures have left writings describing their wars with Israel, giving the opponent's perspective, of course. Samuel and Kings are not just the history of a nation, but are also a window into the complex political, religious, and social situations of the ancient Near East.

Both volumes of Kings focus mostly on the slow decline of Israel. While Saul is recognized as Israel's first king, it was David who first ruled all of the tribes and clans of the Hebrews. Picking up with the death of King David, 1 Kings describes the construction of the glorious temple and palace in Jerusalem, the division of Israel into two kingdoms (Northern and Southern or Israel and Judah), the sometimes-apostasy sometimes-devotion of the Israelites themselves, and the work of God through His own actions and His prophets. The many events prove one thing: the Lord is in control of everything. He prospers Israel while David and Solomon are kings, and He punishes the Israelites when they stray from Him. Although they are fully aware of His power and His desire for faithful worship, the Israelites betray Him again and again. It may be easy to judge them; but in their struggles to follow God's laws, we can see our own struggles.

1 King David was now an old man with an epic lifetime behind him. Lying in his bed, he became chilled; so his servants tried to warm him with blankets. It did no good—the years were catching up with this great king.

Servants (to David): [2]Allow us to find a beautiful, young woman for you, our lord and king. She can be a nurse to you and keep you warm by lying next to you.

[3]So David's servants looked throughout Israel for a beautiful, young woman. During their search, they found a Shunammite girl named Abishag, and they escorted her to the king. [4]Abishag possessed stunning beauty. She served the king, but the king did not have intercourse with her.

[5]Adonijah, David and Haggith's son, was full of conceit and praised himself incessantly.

Adonijah: I am going to be the next king!

Adonijah then arranged chariots with horsemen and also 50 men to run in front of his chariots.

[6]Adonijah's father, David, never questioned his actions. Adonijah was also a handsome man who was born after Absalom. [7]He discussed things with Joab (Zeruiah's son and Adonijah's cousin) and Abiathar the priest, and they became his coconspirators. [8]But Zadok the priest, Benaiah (Jehoiada's son), Nathan the prophet, Shimei, Rei, and the fierce and loyal men who were devoted to David, were against Adonijah.

Adonijah is so emboldened by desire that he has a sacrificial gathering.

[9]He sacrificed sheep, oxen, and cattle that had been prepared for slaughter. He did this near the stone of Zoheleth, which is next to En-rogel. Adonijah sent out invitations to all of his brothers, sons of the king, and also to all the men in Judah, who were all in service of the king. [10]Adonijah did not send an invitation to Nathan the prophet, to Benaiah, to any of the fierce and loyal men devoted to David, or to his brother Solomon.

Nathan (to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother): [11]Do you not know the news? Adonijah (Haggith's son) is now king, and David our lord does not know it yet. [12]Come quickly, and let me help save your life and the life of your son, Solomon.

Adonijah is certain to kill anyone who challenges his throne, and Solomon is his greatest threat since King David selected him as the successor instead.

[13]Go this very instant to King David, and tell him, "My dear king and lord, did you not swear to me, your maidservant, 'Your son, Solomon, will certainly be king after me. My throne will belong to him'? If so, then tell me why Adonijah is now king."

[14]While you are still conversing with the king in his chambers, I will come in and confirm everything you have told him.

[15]Bathsheba rushed to the king's chambers, where an elderly David was being served by his Shunammite nurse, Abishag. [16]Bathsheba bowed before the king and put her face to the floor.

King David: What is it you want?

Bathsheba: [17]My lord, in the name of your God, the Eternal, you made this promise to me, your servant: "Your son, Solomon, will certainly be king after me. My throne will belong to him." [18]But what's this? Adonijah is now king, and you are completely unaware of it. [19]Adonijah has sacrificed many sheep, oxen, and cattle that were prepared for slaughter. He sent invitations to all of the king's sons and to Abiathar the priest and to Joab the commander of the military; but he did not send an invitation to Solomon, who is your loyal servant. [20]My lord the king, everyone in Israel is looking to you and waiting for your word. Who will rule from the throne after you? [21]If you do not give instruction before you leave this world to sleep with your fathers, then my son, Solomon, and I will be guilty before Adonijah.

[22]While Bathsheba was still talking to the king, Nathan the prophet came into the room.

Servants (to the king): [23]Nathan the prophet is here.

When Nathan entered the king's chambers, he humbled himself to the ground before the king and put his face to the floor.

Nathan: 24My king, did you give the instruction, "Adonijah is to be the next king. My throne will belong to him after I am gone"? 25He has hosted a sacrificial gathering today. He sacrificed many sheep, oxen, and cattle that were prepared for slaughter. He sent invitations to all of the king's sons and all the military leaders and to Abiathar the priest, and they are all eating and drinking with him this very moment. They are even chanting, "May King Adonijah have a long life!" 26I, your servant, was not invited, nor was Zadok the priest, Benaiah (Jehoiada's son), or your loyal servant, Solomon. 27Did you, my lord and king, give this instruction and not tell all of us, your devoted servants, who would receive your throne after you are gone?

King David: 28Tell Bathsheba to come here.

So Bathsheba entered the king's chambers and stood in front of him.

King David *(swearing): 29As certain as the life of the Eternal One, the One who rescued me from all trouble, 30today I will uphold what I promised to you by the Eternal, the God of Israel, when I said, "Your son, Solomon, will reign as king after me. He will inherit my throne."

31Bathsheba was overwhelmed with gratefulness, and she bowed down before King David, putting her face to the floor.

Bathsheba: May you live forever, my lord, King David.

King David: 32Tell Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah (Jehoiada's son) to come here.

They entered the king's chambers.

King David: 33Lead my servants and my son, Solomon, down to Gihon. Give Solomon one of my own mules to ride.
34Zadok and Nathan, listen. When you arrive at Gihon, anoint Solomon as Israel's king. Sound the trumpet, and proclaim, "May King Solomon have a long life!" 35Then follow after him, for he will then sit on my throne and replace me as king. I have named him ruler over Israel and Judah even though he is not my oldest son.

Benaiah *(Jehoiada's son): 36So be it! May the Eternal One, the True God of my lord and king, agree and bless Solomon. 37Just as the Eternal One has been a friend to my lord, King David, may He be so to Solomon. May He make Solomon's reign even greater than David's!

38So Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, Benaiah (Jehoiada's son), and David's mercenary guards—the Cherethites and the Pelethites—journeyed together to Gihon; and Solomon rode on the back of one of David's mules.
39Zadok the priest anointed Solomon with the horn of oil from the congregation tent. Then the trumpet was sounded, and everyone proclaimed, "May King Solomon have a long life!" 40Everyone then followed after Solomon. They played their wind instruments and joyfully celebrated until the sound shook the earth.
41As they were finishing their feast, Adonijah and all those who were attending his gathering heard the celebration of Solomon's followers. Joab heard the trumpet.

Joab: What is the meaning of this jamboree? Why does the city celebrate?

42While he was questioning the celebration, Jonathan (son of Abiathar the priest) arrived.

Adonijah *(welcoming Jonathan): Please come join us. Make yourself at home. You are a good man; surely you bring us good news.

Jonathan: 43You are wrong! Our lord, King David, has appointed Solomon as king. 44By David's instruction, Solomon is with Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, Benaiah (Jehoiada's son), the Cherethites, and the Pelethites. Furthermore, the king gave Solomon a mule to ride. 45When they got to Gihon, Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anointed Solomon as the new king. They are celebrating now, and that is the reason for the city's festivities you are hearing; 46Solomon already sits on the throne of the kingdom. 47All the servants of the king went to our lord, King David, to congratulate him: "Bless you! May your God make Solomon's reign, his name, and his throne even greater than yours!"

Then the king bowed down to Solomon on his bed.

Although King David is too sick to leave his bed, he blesses Solomon's coronation by putting his face toward the floor.

King David: [48]Praise be to the Eternal One, Israel's God! He has allowed me to live long enough to see the day when another sits on my throne.

[49]All those attending Adonijah's gathering were terrified by this news. They all gathered their things and departed. [50]Even Adonijah was completely terrified of Solomon. He stood up and rushed to the altar seeking sanctuary. He grabbed hold of the horns expecting Solomon to spare his life, as was the custom.

► Inside the congregation tent, priests make daily sacrifices to the Lord on the great horned altar. By touching the bloodstained horns of the altar, an innocent man can immediately grab God's attention and be granted divine absolution. That absolution then has to come from the court as well, since no man can overrule God. It is Adonijah's plan to save himself when he grabs the horns, but he is not an innocent man. Because Adonijah abuses this custom, Solomon is not required to forgive his brother just because he is at the altar.

[51]Solomon received the news.

Messenger: Adonijah is terrified of King Solomon. He is gripping the horns of the altar and pleading, "Today I beg King Solomon to promise me, his servant Adonijah, that he will not execute me."

Solomon: [52]If Adonijah will be a man of integrity and honor, then not a single hair on his head will be harmed. But if he is an evil man, then he shall die.

[53]King Solomon called for Adonijah, and he was led down from the altar. Adonijah entered the king's presence and fell down before him, putting his face to the floor.

Solomon *(to Adonijah): Leave me, and return to your house.

2 David was close to dying, so he gave direction to his son, Solomon.

King David: [2]I am about to go the way all earthly things go. Be strong; demonstrate your maturity. [3]Honor the laws of the Eternal your God, and live by His truth. Be faithful to His laws, commands, judgments, and precepts—the ones written for us in the instructions of Moses. If you follow this path, you will be successful in everything you do no matter where you are, [4]for the Eternal will be faithful to His promise to me throughout your life. He promised me, "For as long as your sons are devoted to Me and live by My truth and embrace it with all their being, your offspring will always sit upon Israel's throne."*

[5]You, too, remember what trouble Joab (Zeruiah's son) sent toward me—how he killed the armies of Israel's two commanders, Abner (Ner's son) and Amasa (Jether's son), when I was close to striking a treaty with them. He brought the horror of war during a time of peace. He covered his belt and sandals with blood, so his offspring and family are judged. [6]Act wisely, and take revenge on Joab. Do not allow a single gray hair on his head to descend into the grave peacefully. [7]Be loving toward the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite. Invite them to feast at your table because they were good friends to me when I ran from your brother, Absalom.* [8]There is also Shimei (Gera's son) the Benjaminite of Bahurim. He cursed me with terrible words when I went to Mahanaim, but when we met again at the Jordan River, I made him a promise in the sight of the Eternal. I told him, "I am not going to kill you."* [9]However your actions are not bound by my oath to him; you must not let him go without retribution. You are wise, and you will know in your heart exactly what punishment you should give him. You will bloody every gray hair on his head before sending him down to the grave.

[10]After he spoke these words to his son, Solomon, David left this world to sleep with

* 2:4 2 Samuel 7:13, 25 * 2:7 2 Samuel 19:32 * 2:8 2 Samuel 19:23

his fathers. His body was laid to rest in the city of David. 11David ruled Israel 40 years. He ruled in Hebron 7 years and in Jerusalem 33 years. 12Solomon inherited David's throne, and his kingdom was strong and healthy.

13Adonijah (Haggith's son) approached Bathsheba (Solomon's mother).

Bathsheba: Do you come to visit me in peace?

Adonijah: Yes. 14I have something to tell you.

Bathsheba: Go on.

Adonijah: 15You are aware that all the kingdom was in my possession and that everyone in Israel believed I was going to be king; but instead, my brother Solomon has received the kingdom from the Eternal One. 16I have one thing to ask you, and I beg you not to ignore it.

Bathsheba: Go on.

Adonijah: 17Please, I ask that you go to King Solomon, for he adores you and will not ignore your request. Ask him to give me Abishag the Shunammite, the young woman who nursed my father before he died. I want her as my wife.

Bathsheba: 18All right. I will speak to the king on your behalf.

19Bathsheba approached King Solomon about Adonijah's request. When she entered the king's presence, he stood up and bowed to her, then sat on his throne. He arranged for a throne to be brought for his mother, so she sat to the right of him in a place of honor and authority.

Bathsheba: 20I have something to ask of you, and please do not deny me.

Solomon: Go on and ask it, Mother. Of course I will not deny you.

Bathsheba: 21Give Abishag the Shunammite to your brother, Adonijah, so that she can be his wife.

Solomon: 22Why do you wish Abishag the Shunammite to be Adonijah's wife? While you're at it, why don't you ask me to hand the entire kingdom over to Adonijah? He is the eldest son. I might as well hand it over to him, Abiathar the priest, and Joab (Zeruiah's son)!

► Adonijah already has a claim to the throne, since he is the next in line of David's sons. If he takes one of his father's intimate acquaintances as a wife, then his claim to succeed David will be strengthened.

Solomon *(vowing by the Eternal): 23God do so to me and worse if Adonijah has not condemned himself by this request! 24As certain as the life of the Eternal One, who has given me the inheritance of my father David's throne and given me the kingdom and family He promised, Adonijah will certainly be executed today.

25King Solomon dispatched Benaiah (Jehoiada's son), who met up with Adonijah and executed him.

Solomon *(to Abiathar the priest): 26Return to your own fields in Anathoth. You deserve the penalty of death, but I will not execute you now because you transported the sacred chest of the Eternal before King David, my father, and because you suffered all the same troubles and burdens my father suffered.

27Solomon stripped Abiathar of his priesthood to the Eternal One. He did this so that the Eternal's word in Shiloh would be honored: the house of Eli *would not be able to atone for their wickedness through sacrifices and offerings.

28News of all this arrived to Joab, who had been a follower of Adonijah but not of Absalom. Joab rushed to the altar in the tent of the Eternal and gripped the horns, hoping for sanctuary as Adonijah had. 29King Solomon received word that Joab had rushed to the tent of the Eternal and that he was at the altar that very moment. Solomon again dispatched Benaiah (Jehoiada's son) with the instructions, "Execute Joab."

30Benaiah arrived at the tent of the Eternal, but he could not enter to kill Joab.

* 2:27 1 Samuel 2:30-33

Benaiah (calling out to Joab): It is the king's command that you come out at once.

Joab: No. If you are going to kill me, then kill me here at the altar.

Benaiah went back to the king and relayed his conversation with Joab. Joab did not expect Solomon to violate the rules of sanctuary.

Solomon: 31Do as he wishes. Kill him at the altar, then bury him. This will cleanse me and my father's house from all blame concerning the blood Joab has recklessly spilled. 32The Eternal will do to him that which he did to others, for he murdered two men with his sword who were more honorable and better than he was. He kept this secret from my father. He killed Abner (Ner's son) who was the leader of Israel's army and also Amasa (Jether's son) who was the leader of Judah's army.* 33Their blood will come back to haunt Joab and all his progeny forever. But there will be peace from the Eternal in the house of David and on his throne forever.

34Benaiah (Jehoiada's son) killed Joab and buried him on his own land in the wilderness.

35King Solomon then designated Benaiah (Jehoiada's son) to lead the army in Joab's stead, and the king designated Zadok the priest to take on Abiathar's responsibilities.

36The king summoned Shimei, intending to fulfill his promise to David and subdue this political enemy.

Solomon (to Shimei): Go now, and build yourself a house in Jerusalem. You are to stay there indefinitely. Do not leave for any reason. 37*You would be wise to heed my warning* because, mark my words, whenever you cross the Kidron stream toward your ancestral home, you will meet your death. And it will be your own fault.

Shimei: 38Thank you for the good advice, my lord. I am your servant; and I will do exactly as you, my king, have instructed me to do.

Shimei departed from the king and lived in Jerusalem for a very long time.

39After three years, two of Shimei's servants fled west to their home in Philistia to find Achish (son of Maacah, Gath's king). They sent word to Shimei: "We, your servants, are in Gath." 40Shimei prepared his donkey and traveled to Gath to find Achish with hopes of finding his servants. Shimei found his servants and took them away from Gath.

► Shimei, a known traitor, is allowed to live as long as he doesn't leave Jerusalem and return home to Benjamin where he can muster an army. After years of supposed obedience, that same traitor tests his limits by running in the opposite direction of Benjamin to visit Philistia, Israel's greatest enemy at the time. Even if Solomon hadn't promised David that he would take revenge on Shimei, the man gives Solomon ample reason himself. First and foremost, he breaks his oath to Solomon and God by leaving Jerusalem; second, he has the opportunity to threaten Solomon's new reign by fraternizing with Achish, the king whom David abandoned the last time Israel and Philistia fought. He is guilty by both deed and association.

41Solomon received word that Shimei had traveled from Jerusalem to Gath and was back in Jerusalem. 42King Solomon had Shimei brought to him and questioned him.

Solomon: Do you not remember the warning I gave you? Did you not swear an oath to me in the name of the Eternal that you would not leave Jerusalem or else you would most certainly die? Were you not glad at my warning? 43So why have you broken your promise to the Eternal One? Why did you go against my warning and my instruction?

44You are fully aware of the evil inside your heart, the evil you did to my father, David. The Eternal One is sending all the evil you have done to others back upon you. 45But I, King Solomon, will be honored by the Lord, and David's throne will stand in His presence forever.

* 2:32 2 Samuel 3:30; 20:10

46King Solomon instructed Benaiah (Jehoiada's son) to execute Shimei, and Benaiah did what Solomon asked him to do.

And that is how the kingdom was secured under Solomon's rule.

3 Solomon then arranged a marriage alliance with Pharaoh, Egypt's king.
He married Pharaoh's daughter and brought her to the city of David. He kept her there while he constructed his own house and the Eternal One's temple and completed the wall surrounding Jerusalem. 2However the people were still offering sacrifices at the high places because a temple had not been constructed for the Eternal until then.

3Solomon's heart belonged to the Eternal. Solomon abided by the same laws as his father, David. The only difference was that Solomon offered sacrifices and incense at the high places. 4Solomon went to Gibeon—the great high place—and presented 1,000 burnt offerings at the altar.

► Before Israel united as one nation under David, the countryside was inhabited by people who worship other gods. As Solomon prepares to build the temple and centralize worship of the one God—the Lord—in one place—Jerusalem—he finds it necessary to visit the former shrines of local gods and convert them to shrines to God. While this may have worked in the short term by introducing the people outside of Jerusalem to the worship practices of the Eternal, those shrines, called "high places," will be the undoing of the entire country. By allowing people to worship at local shrines instead of only in Jerusalem, where the priests meticulously follow God's laws, Solomon and future kings are opening the door to the blending of God worship and pagan worship.

5The Eternal revealed Himself to Solomon in a dream while he was still in Gibeon.

Eternal One: Tell me, what is your request of Me?

Solomon: 6You have already revealed Your loyal love to my father, David, for he lived by Your truth and righteousness and honor during the days of his life. You have continued to show this loyal love to him by giving him a son who now reigns upon his throne. 7Eternal One, my God,
You have allowed me to serve as my father David served, but I am still young and inexperienced. I don't know much about anything, 8yet I am supposed to lead Your chosen people who are innumerable and even uncountable. 9Please give Your servant a listening heart for judging Your people and for knowing the difference between what is good and what is evil. Who is capable of judging Your chosen ones, a great people?

10The Lord was delighted by Solomon's request.

Eternal One: 11Since you have asked for wisdom and not for an extended lifetime or for personal wealth or for the annihilation of your enemies, since you have instead asked for the ability to understand justice, 12I will honor your request. I have planted the deepest human wisdom into your heart. There has never been nor will there ever be a man like you.

13I have also given you the things for which you have not asked—wealth and an honorable reputation. There will be no other kings like you for as long as you live. 14If you live a life devoted to Me, if you remain loyal to My laws and commands just as your father David did,
then I will add days to your life.

15Solomon woke up from his dream. He then returned to Jerusalem and visited the Eternal's covenant chest and presented burnt offerings and peace offerings. Then he prepared a great feast for all those who were in his service.

16Two prostitutes visited Solomon asking for a judgment.

First Woman *(indicating the other): 17My lord, she and I live under the same roof.
She was in the house when my child was born. 18Three days after my child was born, she had her own child. She and I were alone in the house with our newborns. 19One night her baby died because she lay on it during her sleep. 20She woke up, and after seeing her dead baby, she stole my baby out of my arms while I was sleeping and placed her dead baby in my arms. 21When I woke up the next morning to feed my son, I found him dead. When I took a closer look at him, I saw that it was not the same child who came from my womb.

Second Woman: 22She lies! My son is alive, and her son is dead!

First Woman: She lies! Her son is dead, and my son is alive!

Solomon: 23This woman says, "My son is alive, and your son is dead." The other woman says, "My son is alive, and your son is dead." 24Bring me a sword.
25(receiving a sword) Cut the living child in half, and give each woman one of the halves.

26The woman who truly was the mother of the living child was overcome with compassion and pleaded with the king.

First Woman: Please don't cut the child in half! Just give the whole child to her! Please do not kill him!

Second Woman: Nonsense! The child will belong to neither one of us! Cut him in half!

Solomon: 27The living child belongs to the first woman. Give the boy to her, and do not harm him. She is the true mother.

28When the news of the king's wise judgment spread throughout Israel, they all feared him. They respected him because they perceived God's wisdom in his just judgment.

4 King Solomon reigned over Israel, and these are the men who helped him do so. 2The following were his officers and administrators: The priest was Azariah (Zadok's son); 3the secretaries were Elihoreph and Ahijah (Shisha's sons); the recorder was Jehoshaphat (Ahilud's son); 4the commander of the army was Benaiah (Jehoiada's son); the priests were Zadok and Abiathar; 5the commander of all the administrators was Azariah (Nathan's son); the king's confidant and priest was Zabud (Nathan's son); 6the household manager was Ahishar; the commander of the compulsory labor force was Adoniram (Abda's son).

7Solomon commissioned 12 administrators over the entire community of Israel. They each gave provisions for the king and his house. Each administrator provided supplies for one month out of every year. 8The following were his administrators: Ben-hur from the hills of Ephraim; 9Ben-deker from Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-shemesh, and Elonbeth-hanan; 10Ben-hesed from Arubboth (he possessed Socoh and all of Hepher); 11Ben-abinadab from the height of Dor (he was married to Taphath, Solomon's daughter); 12Baana (Ahilud's son) from Taanach, Megiddo, and Beth-shean, which is next to Zarethan below Jezreel (from Beth-shean to Abel-meholah) all the way to the far end of Jokmeam; 13Ben-geber (Manasseh's son) from Ramoth-gilead, which is the whole of all the towns of Jair, the towns in Gilead, the sector of Argob in Bashan, and 60 large cities which were fortified by walls and bronze bars; 14Ahinadab (Iddo's son) from Mahanaim; 15Ahimaaz from Naphtali (Ahimaaz was married to Basemath, Solomon's daughter); 16Baana (Hushai's son) from Asher and Bealoth; 17Jehoshaphat (Paruah's son) from Issachar; 18Shimei (Ela's son) from Benjamin; 19and finally Geber (Uri's son) from Gilead (the land of Sihon the Amorite king, and the land of Og, Bashan's king). Geber was the only administrator who lived in the country.

20*The people of* Judah and Israel were innumerable, like the grains of sand on the beach. They ate and drank and celebrated.

21Solomon reigned over all the countries from the Euphrates River to Philistia and to Egypt's border. These countries honored Solomon with gifts and remained in Solomon's service for his entire life. 22Solomon's provisions for his house for one day were just over 195 bushels of the best flour and about 391 bushels of meal, 2310 fattened oxen, 20 pastured oxen, 100 sheep, as well as deer, gazelles, roebucks, and fattened birds.

24Solomon reigned over all places and people and kings to the west of the Euphrates River, from Tiphsah all the way to Gaza on the Mediterranean. Solomon's reign had peace on all sides: 25Judah and Israel lived in peace from Dan to Beersheba, with each man under his vine and beneath his fig tree, for Solomon's entire life.

26Solomon owned 40,000* horse stalls for the chariot horses, and he had 12,000

* 4:26 Some Greek manuscripts read, "4,000."

horsemen under his command. [27]The 12 administrators made provisions for King Solomon and all who sat at King's Solomon's table. Each agent was responsible for one month out of the year, and not one of them ever did an insufficient job. [28]They also provided barley and straw for the chariot horses and war horses in their specified stalls throughout the kingdom. Each agent fulfilled his responsibilities for his appointed month.

[29]God gave Solomon wisdom and discernment: his mind was as expansive as the sands of the beach; [30]his wisdom was far beyond that of the wise men of the East and of Egypt. [31]He was the wisest of any other man. He was even wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, Heman, and Calcol and Darda (Mahol's sons). Solomon was immensely famous in all the nearby countries. [32]He also wrote 3,000 proverbs and composed 1,005 songs. [33]He reflected upon trees, from Lebanon's cedars to the hyssop that blankets the walls. He reflected upon animals, birds, reptiles, and fish. [34]People came from every corner of the earth—sent by kings who were fascinated by Solomon's wise reputation—to listen to Solomon's wisdom.

5 News of Solomon's succession of David reached the ears of Hiram, king of Tyre. Because Hiram was a friend of David,* he sent a group of his servants to visit Solomon. [2]Solomon gave a message to Hiram's servants, which they took back to Hiram.

Solomon's Message: [3]You remember that David did not have the opportunity to construct a temple honoring the reputation of the Eternal his God, because of my father's involvement in the warfare which plagued him until the Eternal suppressed all of his enemies under his feet. [4]But the Eternal One my God now grants me rest everywhere. We are not plagued by enemies or troubles. [5]Therefore, I am going to construct a temple for the name of the Eternal my God. It will be just as He told David, my father: "Your son, whom I will put upon your throne after you are gone, will construct a temple honoring Me."* [6]So tell your people to start cutting down Lebanon's cedars for my project. My servants will work alongside your servants, and I will pay you whatever you ask for your servants' work. It is no secret that the best timber cutters around are the Sidonians who are at your command.

[7]When Hiram received this message from Solomon, he celebrated.

Hiram: Blessed is the Eternal today! Praise Him for giving David Solomon, the wise son who rules a great people!

[8](replying to Solomon) I have received your message, and I will do exactly as you have asked. We will start the timberwork with the cedars and cypress immediately. [9]Those who serve me will transport them from Lebanon to the sea. I will make rafts out of the timber and float the logs to the place of your choosing. There I will have them break apart the rafts, and you can carry the logs to wherever it is that you want them. Then all I ask is that you feed my house and my servants.

[10]Hiram sent all the cedar and cypress trees Solomon had requested. [11]In return, Solomon presented Hiram with food for his house and servants: 130,000 bushels of wheat and 1,200 gallons of purified oil. Solomon gave this same amount to Hiram every year.

[12]The Eternal One upheld His promise to Solomon and granted him much wisdom. Hiram and Solomon were at peace with each other, and they entered into a covenant.

[13]King Solomon assembled forced laborers from all over Israel—30,000 men in all. [14]He sent them to Lebanon in cycles—10,000 men per month. They stayed in Lebanon for an entire month, then they were able to return home for two months. Adoniram was the head administrator of the workers.

[15]Solomon enlisted 70,000 men to transport the materials and 80,000 stonecutters to quarry, carve, and dress stone from the mountains. [16]These numbers do not include Solomon's 3,300* agents who were head administrators over the project and the workers. [17]The king gave instructions, and the workers laid the giant, expensive stones to form the foundation of the temple. [18]Both Solomon's construction workers and Hiram's skilled workers, along with the Gebalites, cut the materials to make the timber and stones ready for the temple.

* 5:1 2 Samuel 5:11 * 5:5 2 Samuel 7:13 * 5:16 2 Chronicles 2:18, "3,600"

6 During the second month called Ziv in the 4th year of Solomon's reign, 480 years after the Israelites had departed from Egypt, Solomon began constructing the Eternal's temple.

► The timing of the construction of the temple reveals the incredible importance of this event. First, by connecting its construction to the exodus, the writer recognizes this as the culminating event of Israel's journey from slavery to an autonomous, God-led nation. God is completing His promise to give Israel a nation. Second, by beginning construction in the spring, Solomon uses his resources for a peaceful endeavor instead of war. Kings have always attacked in the spring because of the favorable weather, so Solomon is putting his devotion to God over his desire for more power. This choice of peace over war fits with Solomon's name, which means "peace," and characterizes his reign.

2The Eternal's temple was 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high. 3The front porch of the temple was 30 feet long (the same measurement as the width) and 15 feet deep at the front. 4Solomon made windows that had artistic frames. 5-6He built the structure surrounding the central sanctuary of the temple that supported the sanctuary's walls and served as storehouses. The lower level of the structure was 7½ feet wide, the middle level was 9 feet wide, and the top level was 10½ feet wide. He constructed coffers in the temple so that the ceiling beams would not intersect with the temple walls.

7The temple was constructed out of rocks that had been finished and polished at the quarry. Not a single hammer, hatchet, or other iron tool was heard inside the temple during construction. 8The entrance into the lowest* level was on the right side of the temple. From there a winding staircase led up to the middle level, and from there, to the top level.

9Solomon completed the temple, and he roofed it with beams and cedar boards. 10He constructed the structure on the outside of the temple as well. Each level was 7½ feet high and was connected to the temple by cedar beams.

11The voice of the Eternal One spoke to Solomon.

Eternal One: 12Regarding the temple which you are building: if you live by My laws and enforce My ways, if you honor My instructions by keeping them, then I will honor the promise I made to your father, David, and establish that promise with you. 13I will live among the Israelites, and I will not abandon the community of Israel, My people.

19Solomon then prepared the inner sanctuary in the temple specifically to hold the Eternal's covenant chest. 20This inner sanctuary was 30 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 30 feet high. The walls were gilded, and the altar was paneled with cedar. 21Solomon covered the inside of the temple with the purest gold. He stretched gold chains in front of the inner sanctuary and covered it in gold. 22He gilded the entire temple as the finishing touch to his work. The altar beside the inner sanctuary was covered with gold as well.

23Solomon made two 15-foot-high winged creatures out of olive wood, and these guarded the inner sanctuary. 24Each wing of one creature was 7½ feet long. The entire wingspan was 15 feet. 25-26The other creature had the same measurements and shape: a wingspan 15 feet across and 15 feet high. 27Solomon set up the creatures inside the inner sanctuary. Both of their wings were stretched out so that one creature's left wing reached all the way to one wall, and the other creature's right wing reached all the way to the other wall. Their other wings touched each other at the very center of the temple. 28Solomon gilded both creatures.

* 6:8 Hebrew manuscripts read, "middle."

► Composed of the parts of various animals, these monstrous winged creatures, called cherubim in Hebrew, serve several purposes in the Bible. They are symbols of divine power, presence, and mobility. They first appear in Genesis, guarding the entrance to Eden (3:24); as part of the throne of mercy, they are God's footstool in the congregation tent and the temple, and God occasionally takes a ride on them (2 Samuel 22:11; Psalm 18:10; Ezekiel 1). Wherever their images appear—on walls, in tapestries, on the covenant chest—they signify God's presence and protection.

29He decorated the temple walls with carvings of the winged guardian creatures, palm trees, and flowers. He did this for both the inner sanctuary and outer rooms. 30He covered the temple floor with gold as well—both the inner sanctuary and outer rooms.

31He crafted olive wood doors, a lintel, and five-sided doorposts for the entryway into the inner sanctuary. 32He crafted two olive wood doors, and he decorated them with engravings of winged guardian creatures, palm trees, and flowers. He also gilded the doors, winged creatures, and palm trees.

33He crafted olive wood doorposts for the entryway into the square central hall. 34He also made two cypress doors for the entryway. Two of the leaves on one of the doors rotated on an axle, and two leaves of the other door also rotated on an axle. 35He carved winged guardian creatures, palm trees, and flowers into them; and he gilded the doors and engravings carefully. 36He constructed the interior court with three rows of cut stones and one row of cedar boards.

37The foundation of the Eternal's temple was completed during the spring of the fourth year of Solomon's reign, in the month of Ziv. 38The temple was finally completed as planned in all its fine details during the autumn of the eleventh year, in the eighth month of Bul. It took seven years in all to complete construction.

7 It took Solomon 13 years to complete his own house. 2He constructed the house of the forest of Lebanon, and it was 150 feet long, 75 feet wide, and 45 feet high. It was built on top of cedar beams supported by 4 rows of cedar columns. 3The space above the side rooms (which were on top of the 45 columns, 15 columns in each row) was paneled with cedar. 4There were 3 rows of window frames directly opposite each other—3 on each side. 5The doorways and doorposts were square, and the openings were directly opposite each other: 3 on each side.

6Solomon then constructed the hall of pillars. It was 75 feet long and 45 feet wide. There was a porch with pillars and a canopy as an entryway before them. 7Then he made the hall for the throne. This is where he would give judgment; thus it was called the hall of judgment. The entire room was paneled from floor to floor* with cedar.

8His own residence, the interior court behind the hall of judgment, was made the same way. For his wife, Pharaoh's daughter, Solomon constructed another house like the hall of judgment. 9They were all decorated inside and out, top to bottom, with costly stones, rare rocks perfectly cut with saws. 10The foundation of the house was made out of rare, expensive stones. There were some gigantic stones, 12 and 15 feet long. 11The elevation of the house was also made of large, costly stones; and they were trimmed to perfection, along with the cedar. 12The courtyard had 3 rows of trimmed stones; and it also had 1 row of cedar beams, just like the porch and the central hall of the Eternal's temple.

13King Solomon sent for Hiram, the master craftsman from Tyre. 14Hiram was the son of a widow from the Naphtali tribe. His father was a craftsman from Tyre who was wise, educated, and skilled enough to do anything with bronze. Hiram did all the bronze work for King Solomon. 15He crafted the 2 bronze columns. Each one of them was 27 feet high, and the circumference of both was 18 feet. 16He cast 2 capitals out of molten bronze for the columns. Each of the capitals was 7½ feet high. 17There was an intricate network of twisted threads and chain on the capitals of the columns. There were 7 networks on each capital. 18Hiram crafted the columns and 2 rows around one network in order to hide the capitals that were over the pomegranates.* He did the same thing for the other capital. 19The capitals on the porch columns were crafted to look like 6-foot-high lilies. 20There were capitals on top of both columns, and above the round sun face beside the network were 200 pomegranates in rows around both capitals. 21He raised the columns on the porch of the central hall. After he raised the column on the right, he named it Jachin, meaning "he will establish." He raised the column on the left and named it Boaz, meaning "in it is strength." 22There were lily designs at the top of both columns.

When he had finished casting the columns, 23Hiram cast the sea. It was in the shape of a circle: 15 feet in diameter, 7½ feet deep, and 45 feet in circumference. 24Gourds surrounded the sea underneath the brim: 10 gourds for every foot and a half. They were in 2 rows and had been cast as part of the sea. 25Its pedestal was 12 oxen: 3 of the oxen faced north, 3 faced west, 3 faced south, and 3 faced east so that the back ends of the oxen were all on the inside. 26The sea was as thick as a hand is wide. The edge of it was designed like the edge of a cup, curved back like the blossom of a lily. The sea had a water capacity of 12,000 gallons.*

27Hiram then crafted 10 bronze moveable stands. Each water stand was 6 feet long, 6 feet wide, and 4½ feet high. 28The stands had side panels and panels between the crossbars. 29On the panels between the crossbars there were lions, oxen, and winged creatures. There was a pedestal over the crossbars that would support the basin, and there were garlands of ornaments below the lions and oxen. 30There were 4 bronze wheels and 4 bronze axles for each stand. The 4 legs of each stand also had 4 bases. There were bases with garlands on all sides below the basin. 31The opening at the crown of the cart was 1½ feet wide, in the shape of a circle, and like the pedestal, 27 inches. There were carvings on the opening, and the ends were straight, not rounded. 32The 4 wheels were beneath the panels, and the wheel axles were on the base. Each wheel was 27 inches tall. 33The wheels were crafted like the wheels of a chariot. Their axles, rims, spokes, and hubs were all cast. 34There were 4 braces on the 4 corners of each base that were part of the stand. 35There was a circular form 18 inches high above the base that the basin would rest in. It remained above the base, connected to the perimeter. 36Hiram carved winged creatures, lions, and palm trees onto the braces wherever he found space, and he surrounded them with garlands. 37All 10 of the stands were cast from the same mold, giving them all the same measurements and shape.

38He crafted 10 bronze basins. Each basin had a capacity of 240 gallons and was 6 feet tall. There was 1 basin on each of the 10 stands. 39He put 5 of the stands on the right side of the temple and the other 5 on the left side. He placed the sea on the right end of the temple, toward the southeast.

47Solomon did not weigh any of the utensils because there were so many of them. It was impossible to get an accurate weight of the bronze.

48Solomon had crafted all the furniture in the Eternal's temple: the golden altar; the golden table that held the bread of the Presence; 495 golden lampstands on the right and 5 on the left in front of the inner sanctuary; the golden flowers, lamps, and tongs; 50the golden cups, snuffers, bowls, spoons, and coal pans; the door hinges of the inner sanctuary (which was the most holy place); and the door hinges for the central hall of the temple that were crafted out of the purest gold.

* 7:18 Some Hebrew manuscripts read, "columns." * 7:26 2 Chronicles 4:5, "18,000 gallons"

51Solomon's work in the Eternal's temple was complete. Solomon moved the sacred things his father had sanctified—the silver, gold, and utensils—into the treasuries in the Eternal's temple.

► The construction of the temple is the most important accomplishment of Solomon's reign. This building both establishes and symbolizes Israel's connection to God. Once the covenant chest is placed there, it is literally the meeting point between them, and the sheer opulence of the temple reveals the priorities of the government. So much of Solomon's wealth is put into this building instead of being used to build an empire, as his neighbors would do, because he trusts God with the fate of Israel. Nothing demonstrates that more clearly than the storage of the nation's weapons in the temple. God is their guardian in every way.

8 To transport the Eternal's covenant chest out of Zion, the city of David, Solomon assembled all the most important people of Israel before him in Jerusalem: the elders and all the heads of the Israelite tribes—the chiefs of the patriarchs' families. 2Every man in Israel gathered with King Solomon at the great feast during the 7th month (which is called Ethanim), 11 months after the temple was finished. 3Israel's elders all attended as well, and the priests transported the covenant chest. 4The Levites who were priests transported the chest of the Eternal One,
the congregation tent, and all the sacred objects that were inside the tent.

5King Solomon stood before the covenant chest with the entire community of Israel who had gathered with him, and they sacrificed countless and innumerable sheep and oxen.

6The Levitical priests transported the Eternal's covenant chest to its rightful place in the inner sanctuary of the temple, which was the most holy place within the temple. They set the covenant chest down beneath the wings of the guardian creatures. 7The creatures' wings were spread above the chest, forming a sort of canopy over the chest and its carrying rods. 8The carrying rods were long enough that they poked through the curtains and could be seen from the sacred place in front of the inner sanctuary, but a person could not see them from outside. The carrying rods are still there today.

9The only things inside the covenant chest were the two stone tablets Moses placed there in Horeb, where the Eternal One entered into a covenant with the Israelites after they had departed from Egypt.

10When the priests departed from the most holy place, a cloud filled the Eternal's temple. 11The cloud was so powerful that the priests could not remain standing to serve. His glory filled the temple.

Solomon: 12The Eternal dwells in this thick cloud.
He said so Himself.
13Surely this means I have built a worthy dwelling place for Him forever.

14-15(then facing the standing assembly of Israelites) Praise be to the Eternal One, Israel's God, who made promises with His mouth to my father, David; and who today has fulfilled His promises with His actions and said, 16"When I led My people Israel out of Egypt, I did not look to the tribes of Israel and appoint a city to build a temple for My name.
Instead, I appointed David to reign over My people Israel."

17My father desired to build a temple honoring the reputation of the Eternal
One, Israel's God; 18but He told my father, David, "It was good enough that this desire was in your heart to build such a temple for My name. 19However you will not be the one to build this place; but your son who is yet to be born will build your vision, this temple, for My name."

20The Eternal has kept this promise. I now sit upon my father David's throne—the throne of Israel—just as He said, and I have constructed the temple honoring the reputation of the Eternal One, Israel's God. 21There I have made a sacred space for the covenant chest. Inside the chest is the covenant of the Eternal which He entered into with our ancestors after He led them out of Egypt.

22Solomon was standing in front of the Eternal's altar before the entire community of Israel, and he lifted his hands up toward heaven.

Solomon: 23O Eternal One, Israel's God, there is no other God who compares to You in heaven or on earth. You have guarded Your covenant and revealed Your loyal love to those who serve You with all their being. 24You have kept Your word to Your servant, my father, David.
You have promised with Your mouth and fulfilled Your promise with Your actions as it is today. 25Eternal One, Israel's God, preserve that which You have promised my father, David, when You told him,
"Your descendants will sit upon Israel's throne for as long as your sons walk the way you have walked before Me."* 26Israel's God, fulfill what You have promised to my father, David, who served You.

27Is it true that God will live upon the earth? The heavens and even the highest heaven are not big enough for You, so how will You live in the house I have raised? 28Please listen to the prayer and humble request of Your servant today, Eternal One my God, 29that Your gaze might fall upon this temple all night and day, that You might look upon the place about which You said, "My name will be there," and hear the humble request of Your servant when he prays in the direction of this place. 30And hear the prayer of Your servant and Your people Israel when they pray in the direction of this place. Hear them from heaven, Your dwelling place. Hear them, and forgive them.

31If a man does evil against his neighbor, and he is instructed to make a promise at the altar of Your temple, 32then hear him from heaven and act.
Judge those who serve You. Denounce the evil man by returning his evil to him, and redeem the righteous man by blessing him according to his righteousness.

33When Your people Israel are defeated by an enemy because they have acted against You and wronged You, if they come back to You and praise Your name and send their requests to You in this temple; 34then hear them in heaven, forgive them for their sins, and lead them back to the promised land You gave to their ancestors.

35When the heavens are dried up and no rain is given to the earth because Your people sinned against You, if they turn and pray in the direction of this place and praise Your name and turn away from their sins after You afflict them, 36then hear them in heaven and forgive the sins of those who serve You and of Your people Israel. Show them the best path, the good path, upon which to walk.
Give them rain for the portion of Your earth which You have given to them as an inheritance.

37If there is food shortage, epidemic, plant disease, mildew, locusts or grasshoppers, enemies surrounding the land of their cities, plagues, or any other sickness; 38whatever it is that is prayed or requested by any one person or all of Your people Israel who expresses the suffering of his own being and lifts his hands in the direction of this temple; 39then hear him in heaven where You live. Grant forgiveness according to each person's heart, for You know the heart of every man. You, and only You, know every heart 40so that all people might live in awe and fear of You for as long as they live in the land You gave to their ancestors.

41Whenever a foreigner, a person who is not a part of Your community of Israel, comes from a distant land in honor of Your name 42(for everyone will hear about Your great reputation, mighty actions, and outstretched strength), when he prays in the direction of this temple; 43then You will hear in heaven where You dwell and grant the foreigner's requests. This is so Your reputation will spread all throughout the earth and so all may live in awe and fear of You, just as Your people Israel do, and so all will know that this temple I raised honors Your reputation.

44When Your people enter the battlefield to face their enemies along the path
You have sent them, when they pray to the Eternal in the direction of the city
You have appointed and the temple I have raised in honor of Your reputation; 45hear their prayers and requests in heaven, and You will do justice on their behalf.

46When they sin against You (for there is not one person who will not sin), and in Your anger You hand them over to their enemies who take them away to enemy territory, whether it is near or far away, 47if they repent from their wrongdoings during their captivity, confess to You that they have been sinful and acted wickedly, 48give their hearts back to You, offer You their entire beings while being

* 8:25 2 Samuel 7:13, 25

held captive by their enemies, and send their prayers to You in the direction of the land You gave to their ancestors (the city you appointed to be sacred) in the direction of the temple I have raised in honor of Your name; 49then hear their prayers and requests in heaven where You live and do justice on their behalf, 50forgive Your people who have wronged You, erase all their sins, and transform them into examples of compassion in the sight of their captors so that their enemies might be compassionate toward them.

51These are Your people, the vessels of Your earthly legacy, whom You led out of Egypt and away from the iron furnace of slavery 52so that Your eyes may be open to the requests of those who serve You—Your people Israel—and hear them whenever they call out to You. 53You have set them apart from all other people on the earth; You have chosen them as vessels of Your earthly legacy. You revealed this to us when You chose Your servant Moses to be Your mouthpiece. It all began when You led our ancestors out of Egypt, Eternal, our True God.

54After Solomon had finished praying to the Eternal, he stood up before the Eternal's altar where he had been kneeling and lifting up his hands toward heaven. 55With a booming voice, he blessed the entire community of Israel.

Solomon: 56Blessed is the Eternal One who has given rest to His people Israel and who has fulfilled all His promises. He has been true to every last word of the promise He gave through His servant Moses. 57May the Eternal our God live among us, just as He lived with our ancestors. May He never abandon or neglect us 58so that He can make us desire and walk in His ways, keeping all the commands, laws, and judgments He gave to our ancestors. 59May my words and everything I have requested of the Eternal our God be close to His heart continuously, both day and night, so that He will support His servant and His people Israel according to the needs of each day as it is today. 60Then all the people of the world will understand for themselves that He is the only True God. 61Give your entire heart to the Eternal our God. Walk the path He has intended for us, and keep His laws as you do today.

62King Solomon and the entire community of Israel sacrificed to the Eternal. 63For the peace offerings, Solomon sacrificed 22,000 oxen and 120,000 sheep. Solomon and the Israelites made these sacrifices for the dedication of the Eternal's temple.

64That day King Solomon blessed the center of the court that was in front of the Eternal's temple by giving a burnt offering, grain offering, and all the fat of the peace offering. But the bronze altar that was set before the Eternal was not big enough to support the burnt offering, grain offering, and the fat of the peace offering. 65So Solomon and the entire community of Israel feasted together. It was a large gathering that stretched from the entrance of Hamath (the Aramean city in the north) all the way to the stream of Egypt—the boundaries of Solomon's kingdom. This all took place before the Eternal our God, and it lasted for seven days and then another seven days—fourteen days in all.

66On the next day (the eighth day), Solomon told everyone it was time to leave. They praised their king and joyfully made their way back to their tents, their hearts overflowing with gladness for all the good the Eternal had revealed to His servant David and to His people Israel.

9 After Solomon had constructed the Eternal's temple, his own palace, and many other building projects that he desired, 2the Eternal came to Solomon again just as He had at Gibeon.

Eternal One: 3I have received all the prayers and requests you have prayed to Me, and I have honored what you have asked of Me. I have consecrated this temple, which you have raised, by putting My name there forever. My eyes and heart will be there continuously. 4If you live before Me just as your father David did—with honor and righteousness, abiding by all that I have commanded you, keeping My laws and judgments—5I will sustain your throne over Israel forever as I promised your father David that I would when I said, "Your descendants will never fail to sit upon Israel's throne."*

6But if you or your offspring stray from Me, break My commands and laws that I have given you, and serve and worship other gods, 7then there will be definite consequences to your actions: I will cut Israel out of the land I gave to them, I will remove the temple I consecrated in honor of My name from My sight, and Israel will become the object of jokes for all people of the world. 8Know that this temple which is now honored will be nothing more than a pile of rubble. All who walk by will shake their heads and ask, "What has driven the Eternal One to do this to our land and temple?" 9The answer will come, "He did this because they turned their backs on Him—their God who led their ancestors out of Egypt—and gave their hearts to other gods, worshiping and serving them. That is why the Eternal One has done all this misery to them."

* 9:5 2 Samuel 7:16

10Twenty years passed, and Solomon had constructed the two houses: the temple of the Eternal and the palace of the king. 11Tyre's king, Hiram, had given Solomon all the cedar, cypress, and gold he desired for those projects, so Solomon granted Hiram twenty cities in Galilee.

12Hiram traveled from Tyre to view the cities Solomon was giving to him, but he was not satisfied.

Hiram: 13What is this, my brother? Do you call these cities?

People still refer to these cities as the land of Cabul, meaning "worthless," even today.

14Hiram gave approximately 9,000 pounds* of gold to Solomon.

15King Solomon used foreign slave laborers, taken from cities he conquered, for the construction of the Eternal's temple, the king's palace, the Millo, the wall of Jerusalem, Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer. What follows is the report of it:

► Solomon is easily the greatest builder of all the Israelite kings. Certainly Jerusalem is impressive, with its beautiful temple and palace and its strong fortifications. But Solomon doesn't stop with his capital. Millennia later the remnants of his work at Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer will remain. These cities are of strategic importance to Israel because they are on the borders of the nation near waterways or trade routes. At these sites, Solomon uses many top-of-the-line defenses, specifically the six-chambered gate in the city walls that adds greater security, but he does not neglect daily function. Within the chambers of those gates, the elders hold court and tradesmen sell their merchandise. By dedicating some of his wealth to the development of these cities, Solomon guarantees himself a secure nation because he is equipped against invasion and he is satisfying the daily needs of his people.

16Pharaoh, Egypt's king, had captured Gezer, set it on fire, killed the Canaanites who were dwelling there, and then given the entire city as a dowry for his daughter who married Solomon. 17Solomon restored the border areas of Gezer, the lower part of Beth-horon, 18Baalath and Tamar in Judah's desert country, 19all the cities he used for storage, as well as the cities he used for his chariots and horsemen. Solomon also built whatever he desired in Jerusalem, Lebanon, and all lands he reigned over. 20All the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites who still remained in his territories even though they were not Israelites, 21the Israelites sought to annihilate; but from those who remained, Solomon assembled his conscripted labor force. This is still done today. 22Solomon did not turn the Israelites into slaves. The Israelites were soldiers, servants, princes, captains, charioteers, and cavalrymen. 23All these men—550 in all—were the most important officials involved in Solomon's work, controlling all the workers.

24Pharaoh's daughter traveled from the city of David to visit the house which Solomon had raised for her. Solomon then constructed the Millo.

The Millo is a massive stepped-stone structure that defends the city of David by raising it above the surrounding land and supporting the foundations of the outer buildings there.

25Three times a year, Solomon presented burnt offerings and peace offerings upon the altar he constructed in honor of the Eternal One. He burned incense on this altar which stood before the Eternal. His work on the temple was finished.

* 9:14 120 talents

[26]King Solomon constructed a fleet of ships in Ezion-geber, which is in the land of Edom near Eloth on the Red Sea. [27]Hiram commanded some of his most experienced sailors to be the crew of the fleet. These sailors were in the company of Solomon's servants. [28]They traveled to Ophir. When they got there, they gathered 16 tons of gold and transported it back to King Solomon.

10 The queen of Sheba was fascinated when she heard about the famous Solomon and his devotion to the name of the Eternal One. She traveled a long way to meet him and to challenge him with her difficult questions. [2]She arrived in Jerusalem accompanied by many advisors, assistants, and camels carrying spices and a lot of gold and rare jewels. When she met Solomon, she asked him about everything she could think of.

[3]Solomon gave her an answer to every question. The king knew all the answers, and he explained all she asked. [4]When the queen recognized Solomon's wisdom and observed the palace he had envisioned and constructed, [5]the food on his table, the orderly arrangement of his servants, the attentive service and fine dress of his waiters, his wine servers, and the beautiful stairway* that led up to the Eternal's temple, she was in complete awe.

Queen of Sheba (to the king): [6]So it is true, everything I've heard about you in my land. Your words and wisdom are beyond extraordinary. [7]I confess that when I first heard of your renown, I did not believe such a man could really be alive on the earth. But I have witnessed your greatness with my own eyes, and I believe. You are twice as wise and wealthy as is reported in faraway lands. [8]Your people have been blessed as a result of living under your reign. Those who serve you continually are richly blessed to hear your wisdom day in and day out. [9]Praise the Eternal One your God, who believed in you enough to give you Israel's throne. He is devoted to Israel forever; that is why He has made such a great man as you king. He knows you will dispense righteousness and justice fairly and wisely.

[10]The queen then presented Solomon with 9,000 pounds* of gold and a large gift of spices and rare jewels. No other gift of spices given to the king ever compared to the gift the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon. [13]King Solomon granted the queen of Sheba everything her heart desired (besides the usual royal gift). She then departed and returned to her own country with all those who were in her service.*

[11]Hiram's ships—the ones that transported all the gold from Ophir—also transported a large amount of almug trees and rare jewels. [12]The king transformed the almug trees into steps for the Eternal's temple and the palace. He also made lyres and harps for the musicians. Almug trees like these had never before entered Israel, and they never have since.

[14]Solomon received 25 tons of gold each year. [15]This amount does not include the amount of gold received through taxation of explorers, traders, and merchants and revenue from the Arab kings and provincial governors. [16]King Solomon crafted 200 large shields, each made from 7½ pounds of hammered gold. [17]Then he crafted 300 shields made from 60 ounces of hammered gold. He kept them in the house of the forest of Lebanon. [18]He also crafted an ivory throne and covered it with the purest gold. [19]There were 6 steps leading up to the throne. The back of the throne was rounded, and a lion stood next to each armrest. [20]There were 12 lions on the 6 steps: 6 lions on one side and 6 on the other. Nothing anywhere in the world compared to it. [21]All of King Solomon's cups were made out of gold, and all the cups in the house of the forest of Lebanon were made out of the purest gold as well. Nothing was crafted out of silver because silver was worthless during that time. [22]Tarshish's ships and Hiram's ships were out at sea under the rule of Solomon. Tarshish's ships brought gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks* to Solomon once every 3 years.

[23]King Solomon became mightier than any other king in the entire world. He was wealthy in material and in wisdom. [24]People from around the world wanted to meet the famous Solomon. They desired to learn the wisdom God had planted in his heart. [25]They brought gifts—silver, gold, clothing, weapons, spices, horses, and mules. The gifts accumulated as the years passed.

* 10:5 Difficult reading, possibly "offerings." * 10:10 120 talents * 10:13 Verse 13 has been moved before verse 11 to help the reader understand the continuity of the passage. * 10:22 Difficult reading, possibly "baboons" or "monkeys."

[26]Solomon summoned his chariots and cavalrymen. He commanded 1,400 chariots and 12,000 cavalrymen, and he sent them to the appointed cities (known as chariot cities) or to guard Jerusalem's king. [27]The king had made silver as common as stones are in Jerusalem, and he made cedars as common as sycamore trees are in the foothills. [28]Solomon brought his horses from Egypt* and Kue, and the king's businessmen paid the people of Kue for the horses. [29]One chariot was bought from Egypt for 15 pounds of silver, and one horse was bought for 60 ounces of silver. Some chariots and horses were then exported to the Hittite and Aramean kings along the route from Kue back to Israel.

11 King Solomon loved countless women from other countries—Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonians, Hittites—as well as Pharaoh's daughter.

Marrying women from these foreign nations helps Solomon solidify Israel politically, but it will be the religious undoing of his nation.

[2]All the countries of the king's lovers were heathen countries that the Eternal One had warned the Israelites about: "Do not mingle with them, and do not allow them to mingle with you. They will corrupt you and lead you away from Me. They will seduce your hearts to follow their own gods."* But Solomon clung to these lovers. [3]He had 700 royal wives, as well as 300 mistresses. And his wives and mistresses seduced his heart away from God.

[4]Solomon followed the Lord during youth and middle age, but when Solomon was an old man, these women seduced him into following other gods. His heart was led astray and no longer completely belonged to the Eternal One, his True God, as his father David's heart did. [5]Solomon pursued Ashtoreth (the Sidonian goddess) and Milcom (the abomination of the Ammonites). [6]Solomon abandoned his lifelong integrity and committed evil in the eyes of the Eternal. He did not follow Him completely, as his father David had. [7]Instead Solomon constructed a high place on the mountain east of Jerusalem for Chemosh (Moab's horrific idol) and for Molech (the Ammonites' abhorrence). [8]He constructed such sites for all his wives from other countries, so that they would have a place to burn incense and offer sacrifices to their many gods.

[9]The Eternal boiled with anger toward Solomon because he had allowed his heart to be seduced away from the Eternal One, Israel's True God, who had appeared to Solomon twice [10]and had warned him about this very act of faithlessness. But Solomon did not heed His command.

Eternal One (to Solomon): [11]You have been unfaithful to Me and have broken My covenant and laws; therefore, I will remove the kingdom from your rule and hand it over to your servant. [12]But in honor of your father, David, who was always faithful to me, I will not remove the kingdom from you while you are alive; however, I will take it from your son. [13]I will not take away the entire kingdom from your bloodline. In honor of your father and for Jerusalem which I have chosen, I will grant your son one tribe to rule.

► That "one tribe" promised by the Lord is Solomon's own tribe, Judah. But by the time this is written several centuries later, Judah is the common name for the Southern Kingdom, which is ruled by Solomon's descendants and actually composed of two tribes: Judah and Benjamin. Ironically Benjamin and Judah were historically enemies. As the tribe of Saul, Benjamin was predisposed against David when he became king, and they continued their animosity toward him by supporting Absalom during his rebellion. All of those bad feelings will change when Judah and Israel split. Benjamin will decide to follow Rehoboam along with Judah, while the other ten tribes will follow Jeroboam.

[14]The Eternal brought an enemy against him—Hadad the Edomite, who was a descendant of Edom's king.

[15]While David was in Edom, Joab, the head of the army, was burying the dead

* 10:28 Literally, Musri, a nation on the Cappadocian seacoast of Asia Minor * 11:2 Exodus 34:16

after he had killed every male in Edom.
16(Joab and all of Israel had remained in Edom for six months until Joab had killed every male in Edom.) 17But Hadad ran away to Egypt. Some of the Edomites who guarded Hadad's father traveled with Hadad in order to look after him because he was only a boy at the time. 18They traveled from Midian and arrived at Paran.
They gathered men from Paran to journey with them, and they arrived in Egypt. They went to Pharaoh, Egypt's king, and he provided Hadad with a place to stay and with food. Pharaoh also gave him his own land;
he treated Hadad as family. 19Pharaoh liked Hadad so much that he offered his sister-in-law to Hadad to marry. She was the sister of the queen, Tahpenes. 20Tahpenes' sister gave birth to Hadad's son, whom they called Genubath. Tahpenes weaned Genubath in Pharaoh's house where he stayed and grew up with Pharaoh's sons.
21When Hadad received word in Egypt that David had left this world to sleep with his fathers and that Joab, the head of the army, was also dead, he made a special request to Pharaoh.

Hadad: Please let me go back to my native country.

Pharaoh: 22*Why would you need or want to return* to your native country? Have I not provided you with all that you could ever desire? So why do you ask to return?

Hadad: What you say is true, Pharaoh. There is nothing more I could desire, but you still must allow me to return to my native country.

23The True God brought another enemy against Solomon—Rezon (Eliada's son) who ran away from his lord Hadadezer (Zobah's king). 24After David killed the people of Zobah, Rezon formed a band of thieves and acted as its leader. The band of thieves traveled to Damascus, the capital of Aram, and ruled there. 25Rezon was Israel's perpetual enemy during Solomon's reign, in addition to all that Hadad did.
Rezon despised Israel and ruled Aram.

26Solomon had a servant named Jeroboam whose mother, Zeruah, was a widow. His father was Nebat (an Ephraimite from Zeredah). Jeroboam grew resentful and rebelled against his king, Solomon, and became one of his enemies.

27This is the reason Jeroboam rebelled against the king: Solomon constructed the Millo and sealed up the gap in the wall of his father's city—the city of David.
28Jeroboam was a strong and fierce warrior. Solomon recognized that Jeroboam was a hard worker and put him in charge of all the workers from Joseph's tribes, Ephraim and Manasseh.

29When Jeroboam was traveling outside of Jerusalem, he encountered the prophet, Ahijah the Shilonite, on the road.
Ahijah was dressed in a new robe, and there was no one else anywhere around except for him and Jeroboam. 30Ahijah then did something unexpected. He pulled his new robe off his body and tore it into a dozen pieces.

Ahijah *(to Jeroboam): 31Take ten pieces,
because the Eternal One, Israel's True God, has said, "I am going to rip the kingdom out from under Solomon's corrupted reign and grant you ten tribes. 32Solomon will still reign over one tribe. I will allow this for two reasons only: for Jerusalem
(the city I chose from all of Israel's tribes) and for the honor of David who served Me during his lifetime. 33*I am giving you these ten tribes* because Solomon and his people have turned away from Me and given themselves to other gods besides Me.
They now offer their worship to Ashtoreth (the Sidonians' goddess), Chemosh (Moab's god), and Milcom (the Ammo-nites' god). They have strayed from My path, are no longer concerned with what I see as right, and have forgotten My laws and judgments. Solomon and his people are not like David, who followed My path.

34"But I am not going to take the entire kingdom away from Solomon;
he will be prince his entire life because of My promise to My servant David, whom I handpicked from the pastures and who lived by My commands and laws. 35Instead I will take the kingdom away from his son's power and give ten tribes over to you. 36I will leave one tribe for his son so that David, the lamp of Israel,* will always have a place with Me in Jerusalem, the city I have appointed as My city."

► The preservation of Judah as the home of God's temple demonstrates

* 11:36 2 Samuel 21:17

the centrality of David in His plan. As "the lamp of Israel," David represents the hope of Judah. In Israel, lamps are so central to daily life that when a new building is founded, often a perfectly formed, unused lamp is buried beneath the floors in the corner of a room. These ancient "cornerstones" signify the builder's hope for light and life in the house. Likewise everything in Israel is founded on David; the idea of his perfect reign is the hope and cornerstone of the nation.

Ahijah (to Jeroboam with the Eternal's message): 37"I will allow you to rule over anything you want, and you will be Israel's new king. 38If you then give yourself to Me and heed all My commands, honor My laws, and live by My way just as My servant David did, then I will be near to you and will build you a great dynasty like the one I built for David. Israel will be yours; I will hand it over to you. 39I will afflict David's offspring because of what Solomon has done, but I won't cause this suffering forever."

40Solomon tried to kill Jeroboam because of this, but Jeroboam ran away to Egypt to seek shelter with Shishak, Egypt's king. Jeroboam remained in Egypt until Solomon died.

41Is not the rest of Solomon's story—his actions and his wisdom—documented in the book of the acts of Solomon?

► The Book of Kings is not the only historical record of Judah's and Israel's monarchies. This book is based on several source materials, including the book of the acts of Solomon, the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings, and the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings. Although these books and the stories they tell are lost, the simple citation of these sources reveals a lot about Kings: the editor of this book is writing at the end of Judah's time as an independent nation, the memory of the monarchy is important enough to have been recorded by several independent sources, and the editor is keenly concerned with narrating the stories that occurred centuries before he lived.

42In all Solomon ruled over Jerusalem for 40 years. 43Solomon left this world to sleep with his fathers. He was laid to rest in his father's city, the city of David. Solomon's son, Rehoboam, then inherited the throne.

12 Rehoboam traveled to Shechem, a border city between Ephraim and Manasseh, because the entire community of Israel had gathered there to install him as the new king. 2Jeroboam (Nebat's son) received word of this while he was living in Egypt, hiding from King Solomon. 3Then the people of the northern tribes called for Jeroboam, and with him the entire community of Israel spoke to Solomon's son, Rehoboam.

Jeroboam and Israel: 4During your father's time, he weighed us down with heavy workloads and caused us much suffering. We have come here to ask you to lighten the load your father laid upon us. If you do so, we will be your willing servants.

Rehoboam: 5Go away for three days, then come back to me. I need to think this over.

The people left.

6King Rehoboam then went to talk with the elders who had been in the service of his father, Solomon, when he was alive. He asked for their advice on this matter.

Rehoboam (to the elders): I have come here for your wisdom. What guidance do you have for me? What should I say to these people who are asking me to lighten their workload?

Elders: 7Serve your people today; do exactly as they ask, and offer them kind words and encouragement. If you serve them in this way today, then they will be devoted to you and will serve you forever.

8But Rehoboam ignored the advice of the elders. Instead he went to consult his childhood friends—the young men with whom he had grown up and who served him.

Rehoboam: 9What guidance do you have for me? What should I say to these people who have made this request to me:
"Lighten our load, the one your father has placed upon us"?

Young Men: 10*When you meet again* with these people who have made this request to you: "Your father weighed us down with heavy workloads and caused us much suffering. We ask you to lighten the load your father laid upon us," speak firmly: "You think my father was hard on you? My little finger is more potent than my father's loins! 11My father weighed you down with a heavy load, but I will make your load even heavier. My father used whips to command you, and you thought that was harsh. I will use a scourge with the sting of scorpions.

12Jeroboam and all the people of Israel came back to meet with Rehoboam after they had been away for three days.
They did this because Rehoboam had given them this instruction: "Go away for three days, then come back to me." 13So Rehoboam spoke to the people in a tyrannical tone and completely ignored
the advice of the experienced elders.
14Rehoboam instead heeded the advice of the young men with whom he had grown up.

Rehoboam: My father weighed you down with a heavy load, but I will make your load even heavier. My father used whips to command you, and you thought that was harsh. I will use a scourge with the sting of scorpions.

15*After King Rehoboam had finished speak-* ing to Jeroboam and the Israelites, the king did not listen to them as the Eternal intended. Thus Rehoboam fulfilled the promise the Eternal One gave through the prophet, Ahijah the Shilonite, to Jeroboam (Nebat's son). 16The people of Israel realized the king had not listened to them.

Israelites: What lot of David's belongs to us?
We have no inheritance in Jesse's son;
Go back to your tents, Israel!
Take care of your own house, David!
There is no good news for us!

The Israelites left and went back to their homes. 17But Rehoboam ruled over all the Israelites who lived in the cities that were a part of Judah. 18Rehoboam sent Adoram (commander over the forced workers) to compel the Israelites to end their rebellion, but the entire community of Israel killed him with stones. Afraid for his life, King Rehoboam quickly got into his chariot to run back to Jerusalem. 19Israel has been in conflict with David's house ever since.

20Now when the entire community of Israel received word that Jeroboam had returned, they invited him to the assembly where they made him king over the entire Kingdom of Israel. Only the tribe of Judah was still devoted to David's house.

21When Rehoboam arrived in Jerusalem, he gathered together the tribes of Judah and Benjamin. There were 180,000 handpicked warriors gathered together in a plot to battle against Israel in order to get the kingdom back under the rule of Rehoboam, Solomon's son. 22But the word of the True God visited Shemaiah, the man of God.

Eternal One: 23Go talk to Rehoboam,
Solomon's son, who is now Judah's king.
Give Rehoboam, the house of Judah, the tribe of Benjamin, and all the people 24this message of the Eternal: "Do not wage war against your brothers, the Israelites. Every warrior should put down his sword and spear without further delay and return to his home. This change in power is from Me."

They honored the message of warning from the Eternal, returned to their homes, and did exactly as He had instructed them to do.

25*In Israel* Jeroboam fortified
Shechem in the hilly land of Ephraim.
He lived there for a time, then he took on another project and fortified Penuel.

Jeroboam *(in his heart): 26*It is possible* that the kingdom might return to the house of David. 27If these people make sacrifices in the Eternal's temple in Jerusalem, then their hearts will go back to their lord, even to Rehoboam, Judah's king. They will surely execute me and go back to Rehoboam, Judah's king.

28The king sought out advice and then cast two calves out of gold.

Jeroboam *(to Israel): It's too difficult for you to travel all the way to Jerusalem to make your sacrifices. These are your gods, Israel, who led you out of Egypt.

[29]Jeroboam placed one of the golden calves in Bethel and the other in Dan. [30]This was a horribly wicked sin. People even traveled with the golden calf in a religious procession when it was placed in Dan. [31]Jeroboam constructed temples on high places, and he appointed men to be priests who were not descendants of Levi.

[32]Jeroboam instituted a festival on the fifteenth day of the eighth month. It was similar to the Feast of Booths that is celebrated in the seventh month in Judah.* He then approached the altar in Bethel and offered sacrifices to the golden calves he had crafted. While he was doing this, he instructed the priests of the country's high places to serve in Bethel. [33]Jeroboam then approached the altar in Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month to make sacrifices according to a plan he had devised. There, he instituted this festival for all the Israelites. Then he approached the altar and burned incense.

► In his zeal to solidify the worship of the Lord in the Northern Kingdom, Jeroboam inadvertently dooms the Israelites' relationship with God by making changes to God's laws. Instead of worshiping no idols, the Northern Kingdom has two golden calves. Instead of worshiping at the temple in Jerusalem, the Israelites worship at various shrines like the one at Bethel. Instead of relying on the Levites, others can become priests and approach the altar. Finally, instead of following God's calendar, Jeroboam brings with him the Egyptian calendar from his time in exile, thus altering the observance date of every sacred festival in the Northern Kingdom. The unwillingness to conform to God's worship requirements will devolve into outright rebellion on the part of Israel.

13 A man of God from Judah arrived in Bethel because the Eternal One had told him to go there for a divine purpose. He arrived in the city while Jeroboam was burning incense at the altar. [2]The prophet proclaimed the message of the Eternal against the altar.

Man of God: Altar, altar, listen closely! This is the message of the Eternal: "A boy named Josiah will be born of David's royal bloodline, and he will sacrifice the priests of the high places upon your back. O what irony: the bones of the priests will burn at the very spot where, just the day before, the priests burned incense."

[3]The prophet offered a sign that day.

Man of God: The Eternal One has revealed what the sign will be: "The altar will split in two, and the countless ashes of fat will fall out."

[4]The king heard the threatening message that the man of God boldly proclaimed against the altar in Bethel.

Jeroboam *(raising his hand): Grab hold of him! He's dangerous!

When Jeroboam raised his hand from the altar, it shriveled up instantaneously, and he could not bring it back to his body. [5]The altar broke apart, and the ashes of fat fell out of the altar. This sign occurred exactly as the man of God said it would in the message he gave from the Eternal One.

Jeroboam *(to the man of God): [6]I beg you to intercede quickly with the Eternal, your True God, and ask Him to make my hand normal again.

So the man of God called upon the Eternal, and Jeroboam's hand became normal again, as if it had never changed.

Jeroboam: [7]Now accompany me to my house for refreshment, and I will give you something in return for the good you have done me.

Man of God: [8]Even if you offered to give me half of your estate, I would not accompany you. I would not eat a crumb or drink water from your table. [9]The Eternal gave me clear instructions. He said, "While you are there, do not eat a crumb or drink water. Do not travel back the way you came."

Certainly God's requirements seem to be unreasonable. In fact, they are! Only by requiring something so arbitrary can God test the man's dedication to Him.

* 12:32 Leviticus 23:34

10So the man of God took a different path from the one he had originally traveled to Bethel.

11There was an old prophet who lived in Bethel. The old prophet's sons heard about the sign the man of God had performed and about the words he spoke to the king, and they relayed these things to their father.

Prophet (to his sons): 12Where did the man of God go? I would like to see him.

The old prophet's sons had seen which way the man of God from Judah had gone, so they told their father which direction to take.

Prophet (to his sons): 13Get the donkey ready. I'm going to find the man of God.

The old prophet's sons saddled the donkey, and the father got on it and went to find the man of God. 14Along his journey, he found the man of God resting beneath an oak tree.

Prophet (to the man of God): There's been talk of a man of God from Judah who performed a sign for Jeroboam. Are you that man?

Man of God: Yes, I am.

Prophet: 15Accompany me back to my house, and eat my bread. Surely you must be hungry.

Man of God: 16I will not accompany you to your house, and I will not eat your bread or drink your water here. 17The Eternal One gave me clear instructions when He said, "While you are there, do not eat a crumb or drink water. Do not travel back the way you came."

Prophet: 18*But you see,* I, too, am a prophet, just as you are. One of the Eternal's heavenly messengers brought me this word of the Eternal: "Escort the man of God back to your house, feed him your bread, and let him drink your water."

But the old prophet lied. 19The man of God trusted the old prophet and accompanied him back to his house, where he ate bread and drank water.

20While they were sitting at the prophet's table, the Eternal gave a grim message to the prophet who brought the man of God to his house. 21He spoke it to the man of God who was from Judah.

Prophet: This is the urgent message of the Eternal One: You have strayed from His strict instructions. You have not honored the command of the Eternal, your True God. 22Instead, you have eaten bread and drunk water here, even after He gave you this instruction: "Do not eat a crumb or drink water while you are there." Therefore you will not be buried in the place of your fathers.

► To be buried away from one's family is the ultimate curse. In ancient Israel, a connection is retained between the living and the dead. The ancestors are to be buried somewhere on the family land, legally securing forever the land for the living family members. The living family members, by taking care of that land, care for their ancestors in the afterlife. If someone is buried away from his ancestral home, then the quality of his afterlife is in question.

23After having a sobering meal and some water, the prophet prepared his donkey for the man of God. 24While the man of God was traveling on the donkey, he was killed by a lion and his body fell to the ground, right in the middle of the road. 25*It was the strangest sight,* for the donkey and the lion both remained standing beside the man's body. People walked by on the road and saw the body of the man of God with the lion standing beside it. The people brought word of this strange sight to the city of the old prophet.

Prophet (hearing the news): 26The dead body is that of the man of God. He strayed from the Eternal's strict directions so He has sent the lion to tear him to pieces and kill him, just as He said would happen.

27(to his sons) Prepare the donkey so that I can ride it. I must go retrieve the body of the man of God.

And so his sons saddled the donkey for him. 28The prophet traveled to the body of the man of God. The donkey and the lion remained standing beside it on the road. The strange thing is that the lion had not tried to eat any of the dead body or kill the donkey. 29The prophet gathered up the lifeless body of the man of God and placed it on the donkey, then he led the donkey back to the old prophet's city where he grieved for the man of God and gave him a proper burial. 30The prophet buried the man of God in his own grave; and everyone grieved for him, crying out, "I'm so sorry, brother!" 31After the prophet had buried the man of God, he spoke to his sons.

Prophet: When death takes me someday, I want you to bury me in the same grave as the man of God, so that my bones rest next to his bones. This will be an honor for me. 32The words he cried out against the altar in Bethel and against the high places in the Samaritan towns will surely happen, for those words were the Eternal's message.

33Even after all of this, Jeroboam still did not repent from his wickedness. He continued to choose priests for the high places out of anyone and everyone. Any man who was willing to be a priest, Jeroboam ordained him so that the man could act as a priest of the high places. 34This was wicked enough to annihilate Jeroboam's entire house and reign from the history of the world.

14 About this same time, Abijah (Jeroboam's son) became very ill.

Jeroboam *(to his wife): 2Get up quickly, and dress in a disguise so that no one will know you are my wife. Then travel as fast as you can to Shiloh, where the prophet Ahijah is dwelling. He is the one who prophesied that I would be king of these people. 3Pack 10 loaves of bread, a few cakes, and a honey jar. Go find him quickly; he should be able to prophesy the boy's fate.

4Jeroboam's wife did this urgent thing. She traveled quickly to Shiloh and found the dwelling place of Ahijah. Ahijah was blind in his old age and could not see a thing. 5The Eternal One had already told Ahijah, "Jeroboam's wife is on her way to ask you to prophesy the fate of her boy who is ill. This is what you are to say to her. But beware, when she comes to your house, she will pretend to be someone else."

6Ahijah heard her footsteps come into his house, and he called out to her.

Ahijah: Come inside. You are Jeroboam's wife, but why do you wear a disguise? I have an urgent and severe message for you from the Eternal One.

7Go back to Jeroboam right now, and tell him this is the message of the Eternal One, the God of Israel: "I appointed you from the community and granted you leadership over My people Israel. 8-9I stripped the kingdom out from under the house of David, and I handed it over to you. But you have committed evil which exceeds those before you; and you have not been an honorable servant like David, for he honored My laws and gave his entire heart to Me. Unlike you, he sought to do My will. You have made yourself other gods and cast false idols in their honor. You have aroused My wrath by putting Me behind you. 10Therefore, beware.

"I will bring destruction to Jeroboam's house; and I will keep every Israelite man—both free and slave—away from him. I will wipe out Jeroboam's house, just as one burns the dung from animals, so his house will be burned up and wiped out. There will be nothing left of his house. 11All who remain devoted to Jeroboam, if they die in the city, will be devoured by dogs. If they die in the fields, they will be devoured by birds of the heavens." The Eternal One has already said that is what will happen.

12Get up quickly, and go back to your home. As soon as you set foot in the city, your son will die. 13All of Israel will grieve for him and bury him. He is the only member of Jeroboam's family who will have a proper burial, for he was the only one within Jeroboam's house in whom the Eternal God of Israel found something good.

14The Eternal will appoint for Himself a new king over Israel, and this new king will separate the kingdom from Jeroboam's house from this day and beyond. 15The Eternal One will strike Israel, and Israel will be rattled just as water rattles a reed. The Eternal One will tear out Israel from this promised land given to their ancestors, and He will scatter them beyond the Euphrates River. He will do this because they have crafted their sacred poles and aroused the fiery wrath of the Eternal One. 16He will abandon Israel because of Jeroboam's wickedness, which caused all of Israel to be wicked as well.

17Jeroboam's wife then got up and traveled to Tirzah. As soon as she stepped into the house, her son died. 18All Israel buried him and grieved for him, just as the Eternal One said they would in the message He gave through the prophet Ahijah.

19Is not the rest of Jeroboam's story—how he caused war, as well as the general history of his actions and reign—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

20Jeroboam ruled over Israel for 22 years, then he left this world to sleep with his fathers. Jeroboam's son, Nadab, then inherited the throne.

22Judah was also wicked in the Eternal's eyes. Their wickedness aroused His jealousy more than the wickedness of all their ancestors combined. 23They constructed high places and crafted holy pillars. They infected the pure earth with their sacred poles on every mountain and beneath every beautiful tree. 24There were also temple prostitutes who worked throughout the land. They followed the examples of the nations and were wicked just as the nations were before the arrival of the Israelites.

25During the fifth year of Rehoboam's reign, Shishak, Egypt's king, waged war against Jerusalem. 26He stole all the treasures from the Eternal's temple and from the palace. He stole everything, even the golden shields Solomon had crafted.

► Paying tribute to the powerful Egyptian pharaoh, who is also known as Shoshenq I, may have saved Judah from destruction, but Jeroboam and Israel are not so safe. This record describes what happens to Israel, but Shishak records another perspective in a relief at the temple at Karnak. In the relief, Shishak's god is shown pulling a rope with 120 slaves attached to it. Each slave carries the name of a town Shishak claims to have conquered. Even if the information in the relief is embellished, history does agree that Shishak has control of Judah and Israel in the eighth century.

27King Rehoboam crafted bronze shields to replace the golden shields. He put the shields in the hands of the leaders of the guard who stood guard at the entrance of the palace. 28*On ceremonial occasions,* such as when the king entered the Eternal's temple, the guards carried the shields. They would then return the shields to their room.

29Is not the rest of Rehoboam's story documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 30There were always wars taking place between Rehoboam and Jeroboam. 31Rehoboam left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest with his ancestors in the city of David. His mother was called Naamah the Ammonitess. Then his son, Abijam, inherited the throne.

15 During the 18th year of Jeroboam's reign (Jeroboam was Nebat's son), Abijam* took over the throne of Judah. 2Abijam reigned 3 years in Jerusalem. His mother was Maacah* (Abishalom's daughter). 3Abijam indulged in the same wicked things as his father did. His heart did not wholly belong to the Eternal One his God, as his ancestor David's heart had. 4Nevertheless, the Eternal One his God left the lamp of His presence in Jerusalem for David's sake, so that He might allow his son to grow up there and to make a strong foundation for Jerusalem. 5David did what was good in the eyes of the Eternal, for he did not abandon the commands of the Eternal during his lifetime, with the exception of the incident with Uriah the Hittite.* 6The war between Rehoboam's and Jeroboam's people continued during Abijam's entire lifetime.

7Is not the rest of Abijam's story documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? How war continued between Abijam and Jeroboam? 8Abijam left this world to sleep with his fathers, and they laid him to rest in the city of David,

* 15:1 2 Chronicles 13:1-22 reads, "Abijah." * 15:2 2 Chronicles 13:2 reads "Micaiah (daughter of Uriel of Gibeah)."
* 15:5 2 Samuel 11

as was the tradition. His son, Asa, then inherited the throne.

► In ancient Israel, people are typically buried in family tombs that are either in natural caves on the family property or are cut out of rock. Initially, the body is laid in the center of the tomb on a stone bench. Later, when the flesh has rotted off the bones and more space is needed in the tomb, a family member will push the bones off the bench into the corners of the tomb or into holes in the walls intended to hold the bones. In this way, everyone "slept with his fathers" before being literally "gathered to his ancestors."

9During the 20th year of Israel's king, Jeroboam, Asa took over the throne in Judah. 10He ruled for 41 years in Jerusalem. His mother was Maacah* (Abishalom's daughter).

11Asa did what was good in the Eternal's eyes, just as his ancestor David had. 12He eliminated cult prostitution throughout the land, and he destroyed every idol his fathers had crafted. 13He also took away his mother's position as queen mother because she, Maacah, had made a corrupt and vile image honoring the goddess Asherah. Asa stripped down the goddess's image and set fire to it in the trash heap beside the Kidron stream. 14The high places were left alone. Asa did not touch them, but his heart belonged wholly to the Eternal One for his entire life. 15He transported silver and gold and objects into the Eternal's temple, replacing those that Shishak had taken. He dedicated old things of his father's, as well as his own new things.

16There was war continually between Asa and Baasha (Israel's king who took the throne in a coup against Nadab) during their reigns. 17Baasha, Israel's king, challenged Judah and fortified Ramah. He built up the region so that no one could approach or leave Asa, Judah's king.

Ramah is about five miles north of Jerusalem and astride the road leading to the northern tribes.

18Asa then gathered up all the silver and gold from the treasuries in the Eternal's temple and in the king's house. He handed it all over to those who were in his service. King Asa told them to go see Ben-hadad (son of Tabrimmon and grandson of Hezion, Aram's king) in Damascus.

Asa *(to Ben-hadad): 19Let us make an agreement, just as my father and your father did. I offer you gifts of silver and gold and request that you break your agreement with Baasha, Israel's king. Then he will leave me alone, and both you and I will benefit from the deal.

20Ben-hadad heard King Asa's request and immediately dispatched military leaders to wage war against Israel's cities. They conquered Ijon, Dan, Abel-beth-maacah, all of Chinneroth, and all of Naphtali. 21Baasha received word of this, and he immediately stopped fortifying Ramah as an outpost against Asa. Then he stayed in Tirzah.

22When King Asa heard it, he made a declaration to Judah. There was not a single citizen or foreigner who did not hear his words. Everyone tore down the fortifications around Ramah; Baasha had been using large rocks and timber. King Asa then fortified his own cities of Geba of Benjamin and Mizpah with those rocks and timbers.

23Is not the rest of Asa's story—his actions, strengths, and records of cities built—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? When he was an old man, his feet were struck with a horrible disease. 24Asa left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid with them to rest in the city of David. His son, Jehoshaphat, then inherited the throne.

25Jeroboam's son, Nadab, took over Israel's throne during the second year of Asa's reign over Judah. Nadab ruled Israel for two years. 26He committed evil in the eyes of the Eternal One, walking the wicked path of his father and causing the Israelites to live sinful lives.

27Baasha (Ahijah's son) of the house of Issachar plotted against him. Baasha killed his own anointed king, Nadab, at Gibbethon in Philistia. He did this while Nadab was leading Israel in a siege against Gibbethon. 28Baasha struck Nadab down during the third year of Asa's reign over Judah, and Baasha took Nadab's place on the throne. 29As soon as he gained the power of the throne, he killed the entire family of Jeroboam. He did not allow a single person to live; no one remained to challenge his throne. He annihilated them all, just as the Eternal had instructed through His servant, Ahijah the Shilonite. 30He did this because of Jeroboam's abhorrent wickedness that caused the Israelites to live sinful lives and that incurred the wrath of the Eternal God of Israel.

31Is not the rest of Nadab's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

32Asa and Baasha, Israel's king, warred against each other for their entire reigns. 33During the 3rd year of Asa's reign over Judah, Baasha (Ahijah's son) became Israel's king. He ruled from Tirzah for 24 years. 34He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes, walking the wicked path of Jeroboam and causing the Israelites to live sinful lives.

16 The Eternal's message came to Jehu (Hanani's son) against Baasha.

Eternal One: 2*I gave you an amazing opportunity, Baasha.* I lifted you up from the dirt of the ground and appointed you to lead My people Israel; but you have been foolish, have embraced the same path as Jeroboam, and have caused My people Israel to live sinful lives. You have provoked My wrath against their wickedness. 3Therefore I will devour you and all who serve you and belong to you. I will do to your house what I did to the house of Jeroboam (Nebat's son). 4The hungry dogs will devour the remains of all those who belong to you if they die within the city walls. The birds in the sky will swoop down and eat up the remains of all those who belong to you if they die in the fields.

11As soon as Zimri became king and gained the power of the throne, he killed every male in Baasha's family. He did not leave a single survivor—no family or friends or servants to challenge his claim to the throne. 12Zimri demolished Baasha's entire household, just as the Eternal had said in His message against Baasha that He gave through the prophet Jehu. 13*He did this* because of all the abhorrent wickedness committed by Baasha and by his son, Elah, which caused the Israelites to live sinful lives. This wickedness with their idols invoked the wrath of the Eternal God of Israel. 14Is not the rest of Elah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

15During the 27th year of Asa's reign over Judah, Zimri ruled for seven days in Tirzah. Everyone was encamped around Gibbethon, which was in the possession of the Philistines, preparing to lay siege. 16All those camped out heard the rumor, "Zimri plotted to kill the king, and he has succeeded in his scheme." So that day the entire community of Israel appointed Omri, the military leader and Zimri's commander, to be Israel's king until a permanent king was given power. 17Omri and the entire community of Israel abandoned their plans in Gibbethon and laid siege on Tirzah. 18When Zimri perceived that the city had been taken over, he panicked and ran into the highest fortress in the king's house and set fire to the house around him. He burned himself alive in the house 19because of the abhorrent wickedness he had committed in the Eternal's eyes. He had walked the wicked path of Jeroboam, causing the Israelites to live sinful lives. 20Is not the rest of Zimri's story—his actions and the record of his secret plot—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

21The community of Israel was split up into two separate groups. One group embraced Tibni (Ginath's son) as king. The other group embraced Omri as king. 22The group that followed Omri as king was more powerful and defeated the people who followed Tibni (Ginath's son) as king. Tibni died, and Omri inherited the throne.

23During the 31st year of Asa's reign over Judah, Omri took over Israel's throne. He reigned 12 years—6 of those years were in Tirzah. 24He purchased Samaria Hill from Shemer for 150 pounds of silver. He developed a city on the hill and named the city Samaria after Shemer, the man from whom he had purchased the hill.

25Omri committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He was more wicked than any wicked king who had lived before him, and there were a lot of wicked kings who lived before him. 26He embraced the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son), causing the Israelites to live sinful lives. Their worthless gods caused the wrath of the Eternal God of Israel to boil.

27Is not the rest of Omri's story—his actions demonstrating his might and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? 28Omri left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest in Samaria. His son, Ahab, then inherited the throne.

► Nations often have several names. The Northern Kingdom is called "Israel" after the tribes who settled there, "Samaria" after its capital city, and the "House of Omri" after its founder. Omri is considered the founder of the Northern Kingdom, even though he isn't the first king, because he establishes its capital in Samaria and is the first king buried there. In the ancient patriarchal system, the king is seen as the father of the country, so the entire nation is his household. He sees to the protection, nourishment, and advancement of his people, just as a father cares for his children. As long as the Northern Kingdom survives, it is called the "House of Omri" by many in honor of its first, and therefore greatest father.

29Omri's son, Ahab, took over Israel's throne during the 38th year of Asa's reign over Judah. Ahab (Omri's son) ruled Israel in Samaria 22 years.

30Ahab (Omri's son) committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He was more wicked than all the wicked kings who lived before him. 31Ahab was not content to commit the wickedness that Jeroboam (Nebat's son) had. He went even further, marrying the Sidonian princess Jezebel and offering his loyalties and worship to Baal. Jezebel was King Ethbaal's daughter, and Ethbaal was the king of the Sidonians.

32He constructed an altar in honor of Baal in Baal's temple in Samaria. 33Ahab crafted a sacred pole there as well. Ahab incited the wrath of the Eternal God of Israel more than any king who had lived before him.

34During Ahab's reign, Hiel the Bethelite rebuilt Jericho. As he put down its foundations, he buried his firstborn, Abiram, beneath them.

Following the common pagan practice of burying children beneath cities to ensure favor from the gods, Hiel fulfills the expectation set by Joshua for anyone who rebuilds Jericho.

As he raised its gates, he buried his youngest son, Segub, beneath them, thinking this would ward off evil. This all happened just as the Eternal One said it would through the message he gave through Joshua, Nun's son.*

17 Elijah the Tishbite, one of the Gilead settlers, spoke to Ahab.

► Slowly the Israelite kings are drifting further and further away from God's laws. Hoping to remedy this, the Lord sends a prophet to guide the kings. That prophet, Elijah, certainly lives up to his name, proclaiming his God (Eli) is the Eternal (jah)—Eli-jah. He uses many methods: demonstrating God's power through miracles, reminding of God's purpose through oracles, and acting out God's will through his appearance. While his guidance sometimes reminds kings of the correct path and helps them return to it, ultimately nothing he can do will stop the Northern Kingdom's destruction.

* 16:34 Joshua 6:26

Elijah: As the Eternal lives—the True God who gives life to the Israelites, the God whom I serve—no rain or dew will touch the earth unless I give word.

► The Baal cult is prominent both with the monarchy and with the general populace, so Elijah's claims are extraordinary to people who believe Baal is the deity who provides or withholds rain.

2The Eternal One gave him this message:

Eternal One: 3*I want you to* travel away from this place and go east. Keep yourself hidden near the Cherith stream, east of the Jordan. 4You will have water from the stream during this drought, and I will tell the birds to take care of you while you are hiding there.

5Elijah did just as the Eternal had instructed him to do. He lived near the Cherith stream, east of the Jordan. 6The ravens did take care of him while he was there, just as the Lord said, bringing him a meal of bread and meat at sunrise and another meal of bread and meat at sunset. He satisfied his thirst by drinking from the stream. 7Soon the stream became dry because of the drought.

8The Eternal One gave him this message:

Eternal One: 9Get up, and travel to Zarephath. It is in the possession of Sidon, which is outside Israel. Remain there, and do not leave for any reason. There is a widow in Zarephath whom I have told to take care of you.

10Elijah got up and immediately traveled to Zarephath. He arrived at the city gate, and at that moment, a widow was picking up sticks nearby.

Elijah: Please bring me some water in a jar to quench my thirst.

11(as she fetched the water) Also, could you please bring me a piece of bread?

Woman: 12As certain as the Eternal One, your True God lives, I don't have any bread. In fact, I am starving. I don't have anything except for a bit of flour in a bowl and a few drops of oil in a jar. I was gathering sticks when you arrived to make a fire so that my son and I could eat one last bite of food and then die. It's all over for us.

Elijah: 13*I assure you that it's not over for you yet.* Don't be afraid. Continue what you were doing, but make a small bread cake for me first, and bring it here to me. Then you and your son may eat your own bread cakes. 14This is the message of the Eternal God of Israel: "The flour and the oil will not run out until the moment when the Eternal showers the earth with rain."

15She did exactly as Elijah had instructed her to do, and everyone who lived in her house had food for days. 16The bowl of flour and the jar of oil did not run out, just as the Eternal had said through Elijah.

17A little while later, the son of the woman, the house's mistress, grew fatally ill. His illness grew so intense that eventually he stopped breathing; he was dead.

Woman *(to Elijah): 18*Why did this happen?* What wickedness have I committed against you, man of God? Are you here as a reminder of past sin? Is that why my son died?

Elijah: 19Bring your son to me.

Elijah then took the dead boy out of her arms, carried him upstairs to his own room, and laid him on his own bed.

Elijah: 20O, my True God, the Eternal, have You brought this tragic death upon the son of the widow who is looking after me? If so, why would You do this to a woman who is serving You?

21Elijah stretched himself out over the boy three different times, and he cried out to the Eternal again.

Elijah: O my True God, the Eternal, I beg you to bring this boy back to life.

► This incredible act by the Eternal One is not only for the benefit of giving back the woman's son so he could help with the support of the family, but it is also to demonstrate God's powerful hand on Elijah.

22The Eternal heard Elijah's plea, and the boy was brought back to life. 23Elijah brought the boy back down to his mother who was waiting anxiously in the house.

Elijah: Your son lives again.

Woman (rejoicing): 24I now fully trust that you are a man of God and that the truth of the word of the Eternal dwells in your mouth.

18 Many days passed, and the word of the Eternal visited Elijah during the third year of the drought.

Eternal One: Go now, and reveal yourself to Ahab. When you do, I will bring rain on the earth.

2Elijah then went to reveal himself to Ahab.

During this time, there was a dangerous shortage of food in Samaria, 3and Ahab had summoned Obadiah to come to him. Obadiah was the coordinator of Ahab's palace and was wholly devoted to the Eternal. 4Back when Jezebel was murdering all the prophets of the Eternal, Obadiah had given 100 prophets refuge. There were two caves in which he hid the prophets—50 prophets in each cave. He provided them with food and water during this time.

Ahab (to Obadiah): 5Search through the land, and visit all the springs and streams that run through the ravines; see if you can find any grass on which we can allow our horses and mules to graze, so that they may stay alive for as long as possible. Do this so that we don't have to kill our own beasts.

6Ahab and Obadiah split up the regions they were going to explore, and they both traveled in different directions to save time.

7While Obadiah was exploring the land, suddenly Elijah came upon him. Obadiah knew who he was—a prophet—and he fell on his face before Elijah.

Obadiah: I can't believe it's really you, master Elijah.

Elijah: 8*Yes,* it is I. Go now, and give this message to your king: "Elijah has arrived."

Obadiah: 9*What is the purpose of this?* Have I wronged you or God? Why do you put your servant in a dangerous spot with Ahab? Ahab will most certainly kill me. 10As surely as your True God, the Eternal lives, there is not a single country or kingdom that Ahab has not searched for you. Whenever a country said that you were not there, Ahab made them swear an oath that you were nowhere to be found. 11Now you are asking me to give him your message: "Look, Elijah has arrived." 12I don't know where the Spirit of the Eternal is going to lead you after I depart from you. In fact, I am certain if I tell Ahab that you have arrived, He will take you somewhere else; and if you are nowhere to be found, then I will be put to death. Since I, your servant, was young, all of my worship and devotion has gone to the Eternal One. 13Don't you know, my master, what I did during the time that Jezebel was murdering all the Eternal One's prophets? I gave 100 prophets refuge. I hid them away in 2 caves—50 prophets in each cave—and I provided them with food and water. 14Even after all that I have done for the Eternal One, you ask me to give my king the message, "Look, Elijah has arrived." He will surely kill me!

Elijah: Do not fear for your life. 15As certain as the life of the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, whom I serve, I will reveal myself to Ahab on this very day. You have nothing to worry about.

16Obadiah approached Ahab and gave him Elijah's message. Ahab immediately went to find Elijah.

Ahab (seeing Elijah): 17There you are. I thought I perceived a troublemaker in Israel.

Elijah: 18*Hypocrite!* I have caused no mischief in Israel. It is you and your family who are guilty of the very thing you accuse me of. You have turned your back on the laws of the Eternal and abandoned your devotion to Him. Instead you have given yourselves to the Baals, the masters of pagan nations. 19Now I want you to gather the entire community of Israel and send them to Mount Carmel to meet with me. I have a message for them. Be sure to gather the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 prophets of the goddess Asherah—the ones who fill their mouths and stomachs with food from Jezebel's table.

20Ahab did as Elijah asked, sent word throughout the entire community of Israel, and gathered all the prophets atop Mount Carmel.

Elijah *(approaching the people): 21How much longer will you sit on the fence, refusing to make a decision between the Lord and Baal? If you believe the Eternal One is the True God, then devote yourselves entirely to Him. If you believe Baal is your master, then devote yourselves entirely to him.

All the people who were gathered together atop Mount Carmel were completely silent. They didn't know what to say to this.

Elijah: 22I am the last remaining prophet of the Eternal. Baal has 450 prophets. Let us do a test to reveal the true quality of our deities. 23Bring us two young bulls, the common sacrifice to your master whom you depict as a bull. The prophets of Baal may choose first which bull they want. They will kill it, chop it up, and prepare it for a fire by placing it above wood; but they will not light it. I will do the same with the other bull and prepare it for fire and place it above wood, but I will not light it. 24Then you call upon your god, Baal, and I will call upon the Eternal. The God who answers with fire is the one True God.

Everyone liked this idea and said, "This sounds like a worthy plan."

Elijah *(to the prophets of Baal): 25You have the pick of the bulls. Take the one you want, and prepare it first because there are many of you. Call upon your god, but do not set fire to the wood.

26The prophets of Baal picked out their bull and prepared it. They called upon Baal from dawn till noon, crying out, "Baal, answer us with fire!" But there was no voice, no reply. Nothing happened. All they did was dance around the altar they had built and cry out to an elusive god.

27At about midday, Elijah began provoking them.

Elijah: You have to shout louder than that! The one to whom you cry out certainly must be a god! Perhaps he is daydreaming or napping or away from his heavenly throne. Perhaps he is in a deep sleep, and you must wake him up. Shout louder!

28So all the prophets of Baal began to shout at the top of their lungs pleading with all their might. They cut themselves with knives and swords and spears until they were covered in their own blood. 29Midday passed by, and the prophets of Baal kept on with their antics until it was time for the evening sacrifice. But still, there was no voice, no reply. No god heard them.

Elijah *(to the people): 30Gather around me.

So all the people gathered around him, and he fixed the Eternal's altar that had been torn down. 31Elijah gathered 12 stones, one for each of Jacob's tribes. Jacob was the one who wrestled with God and whom the word of the Eternal One visited, saying, "Your name will be Israel."

32Elijah took the 12 stones and constructed an altar in honor of the Eternal One and carved a ditch out around it large enough to hold 13 quarts of seed. 33He set up the wood, chopped up the bull, and placed it on top of the wood.

Elijah *(to the people): Go get four big jars, and fill them all up with water. Then pour the water out over the burnt offering and the wood. 34*Now,* do the same thing again.

And so they did it a second time.

Elijah: All right, now do the same thing a third time.

And so they did it a third time. 35The water covered the altar and even filled up the ditch. 36When it was time for offering the evening sacrifice, Elijah called out to the Eternal.

Elijah *(praying): Eternal One—God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel—reveal Yourself on this day as Israel's God. Make it known that I serve You and have done all this because You commanded it of me. 37Answer me, Eternal One. Reveal Yourself so that everyone here will know that You, Eternal One, are the True God—the only God. Do it so that everyone knows You are turning the gaze of their hearts back to You again.

38Right then the Eternal One's fire landed upon the altar. The flames consumed the burnt offering, the wood, the stones, and the ground. The flames even drank up all the water in the ditch. 39When everyone witnessed this extraordinary power, they all put their faces to the ground in fear and awe and wonder.

People: The Eternal One is the True God! The Eternal One is the True God!

Elijah: 40Seize all the prophets of Baal. Don't let a single one of them escape!

So everyone grabbed hold of the prophets of Baal, and Elijah gave instruction for them to be taken to the Kishon Valley and killed immediately—no exceptions.

Elijah (to Ahab): 41You should go fill your belly with food and water. I hear a heavy rain coming.

42Ahab did as Elijah instructed and went to eat and drink. Elijah journeyed to the peak of Mount Carmel. There he bowed down on the ground and placed his head between his knees.

Elijah (to his servant): 43Go now, and look in the direction of the sea.

Servant (returning to Elijah): I did as you asked, and there is nothing in the direction of the sea.

Elijah gave him the same instruction seven times, "Go back, and look in the direction of the sea." 44*The servant did as Elijah requested each time;* and on the seventh time, he told Elijah, "A minuscule cloud, as tiny as the hand of a man, is ascending from the sea."

Elijah: Go quickly, and give a message to Ahab for me: "Prepare your chariot, and leave quickly before the rain gets torrential and keeps you from traveling."

45The sky became filled with dark monstrous clouds, the wind grew wild, the heavy rain fell, and Ahab traveled quickly in his chariot to Jezreel. 46The strength of the Eternal filled Elijah. The prophet pulled up his garment around his thighs and sprinted ahead of Ahab the entire way to Jezreel.

19 W*hen* Ahab arrived in Jezreel, he told Jezebel about everything that had taken place. He told her how Elijah had executed all the prophets of Baal with a sword, and she became furious. 2Jezebel sent an urgent message to Elijah.

Jezebel's Message: May the gods kill me and worse, if I haven't killed you the way you killed their priests by this time tomorrow. Your end is near, Elijah.

3Terrified, Elijah quickly ran for his life. He traveled the length of Israel in one day and finally arrived at Beersheba, the southern point of God's territory, which is in Judah. When he arrived, he instructed his servant to remain there while he sought solitude. 4He journeyed into the desert for one day and then decided to rest beneath the limbs of a broom tree. There he prayed that his life would be over quickly and that he would die there beneath the tree.

Elijah: I'm finished, Eternal One. Please end my life here and now, even though I have failed, and I am no better than my ancestors.

5Elijah then laid himself down under the broom tree and entered into a deep sleep. While he was sleeping, a heavenly messenger came and touched him and gave him instructions.

Messenger: Get up, and eat.

6Elijah looked and found a breadcake sitting over charcoal near his head. There was also a jar of water. He ate the food and drank the water, and then he lay back down.

► Often the only thing growing in the desert, the small broom tree has enough substance to save Elijah. This bush, whose limbs grow straight up like a broom standing on its end, offers meager shade; but its oil-rich branches and roots make excellent fuel and charcoal; the thick roots travel deep into the ground and offer both water and fire. God provides for Elijah's needs—nothing more, and nothing less.

7The Eternal's messenger visited him again, touched him, and gave him more instructions.

Heavenly Messenger: Get up, and eat. Your journey ahead is great, and you need plenty of nourishment.

8Elijah got up and ate the food and drank the water. His body felt strong again, and he journeyed for 40 more days and 40 more nights to Horeb, God's mountain where Moses received the Ten Directives. 9When he arrived at Horeb, he walked into a cave and rested for the night.

Eternal One *(to Elijah): Why are you here, Elijah? What is it that you desire?

Elijah: 10*As you know,* all my passion has been devoted to the Eternal One, the God of heavenly armies. The Israelites have abandoned Your covenant with them, they have torn down every single one of Your altars, and they have executed by the sword all those who prophesy in Your name. I am the last remaining prophet, and they now seek to execute me as well.

Eternal One: 11Leave this cave, and go stand on the mountainside in My presence.

The Eternal passed by him. The mighty wind separated the mountains and crumbled every stone before the Eternal. This was not a divine wind, for the Eternal was not within this wind. After the wind passed through, an earthquake shook the earth. This was not a divine quake, for the Eternal was not within this earthquake. 12-13After the earthquake was over, there was a fire. This was not a divine fire, for the Eternal was not within this fire.

After the fire died out, there was nothing but the sound of a calm breeze. And through this breeze a gentle, quiet voice entered into Elijah's ears. He covered his face with his cloak and went to the mouth of the cave. Suddenly, Elijah was surprised.

Eternal One: Why are you here, Elijah? What is it that you desire?

Elijah: 14*As you know,* all my passion has been devoted to the Eternal God of heavenly armies. The Israelites have abandoned Your covenant with them, they have torn down every one of Your altars, and they have executed all who prophesy in Your name by the sword. I am the last remaining prophet, and they now seek to execute me as well. They won't stop.

Eternal One: 15Travel back the same way you traveled here, but continue north to the desert of Damascus. There, I want you to anoint Hazael as Aram's king, 16Jehu (Nimshi's son) as Israel's king, and Elisha (Shaphat's son from Abel-meholah) to replace you as prophet. 17Jehu will execute anyone who escapes from Hazael, and Elisha will execute all who escape from Jehu. 18I will keep for Myself the 7,000 Israelites who have not bowed down to Baal or offered him kisses.

19Elijah journeyed to find Elisha (Shaphat's son). He found Elisha in the field where 12 pairs of oxen were being worked. Elisha was with the last pair. Elijah wrapped his cloak, his token of spiritual power, around Elisha, 20and Elisha abandoned his oxen and chased after Elijah.

Elisha: Before I leave, allow me to tell my parents goodbye, and then I will journey with you.

Elijah: Go then. Tell them goodbye. What have I done to you?

Elisha realizes that Elijah is questioning his devotion—will he stay with his parents or become a prophet? Elisha demonstrates his devotion to God by destroying his livelihood.

21Elisha returned, but not to his parents. He killed his oxen, then he used the equipment (harness, yoke, and reigns) to prepare a fire and cook all the ox meat. He offered the food to everyone, and they feasted.

Elisha then joined Elijah and became his apprentice.

► Elijah and Elisha are not the only prophets demonstrating God's will in Israel. At all times, but especially during wars, kings seek the advice of prophets and men of God. The messages delivered may not always guarantee God's favor, but the words are always reliable and true.

20 Meanwhile, Ben-hadad, Aram's king, gathered his entire army to lay siege to Samaria. He was accompanied by 32 other kings as well as a large group of horses and chariots. He waged war against Samaria. 2Ben-hadad then instructed his messengers to travel to see Ahab, Israel's king, inside the city.

Messengers (to Ahab): This is a message from Ben-hadad: 3"All of your treasures—your silver and your gold—belong to me. Your finest wives and healthiest children belong to me as well."

Ahab's Response: 4It is exactly as you say, my lord and king. My life and everything that belongs to me are in your possession.

5The messengers came back to Ahab and gave him a new message.

Messengers: This is the reply from Ben-hadad to your submission: "Did I or did I not tell you to give me all your treasures—your silver and gold and your finest wives and healthiest children? None of it belongs to you. It's all mine. 6Now I am sending some of my servants to do a search of your house and the houses of your servants. They will be there in about 24 hours, and they will take everything that catches their eyes."

7Israel's king gathered up all the elders of Israel and explained the situation to them.

Ahab: I need your help figuring out what to do. King Ben-hadad is trying to cause problems. He demanded that my finest wives and healthiest children and all my silver and gold become his possession, and I submitted to his wish.

Elders and Israelites: 8Don't do what he says. Ignore him.

9Ahab then gave a new message for the messengers to take back to Ben-hadad.

Ahab's Message: Tell my lord the king, "Everything you asked at the beginning I will do, but I cannot do this new thing you ask of me; it is too much."

The messengers left and gave Ahab's message to Ben-hadad.

Ben-hadad's Response: 10I will forfeit my life to the gods (to do whatever they please with me) if I leave even enough of the dirt on the ground of Samaria to support those who serve and follow me.

Ahab: 11Give Ben-hadad this message: "It is foolish for a man who is putting on armor to brag like a man who has won a battle and is taking off his armor."

12When Ben-hadad received this message, he was drinking with other kings in the camp. He gave urgent instructions to his servants: "Get the army ready immediately. I've had enough of Ahab." The army prepared for battle against the city. 13About this time, a prophet entered into the presence of Ahab, who was Israel's king.

Prophet: This is the Eternal's message: "Have you laid eyes upon the great army that has risen up against you? They look like an impossible opponent, but observe what is about to take place. I am going to give you victory over them on this day. Then you will know that I am the Eternal One."

Ahab: 14*I can't comprehend how such a victory could occur. Their army is massive.* How is this going to happen?

Prophet: This is the Eternal's message: "The young officers of the provincial leaders will do it for you."

Ahab: Who is going to begin the fight and lead us into battle?

Prophet: You are.

15Ahab then gathered up all the young officers of the provincial leaders, and there were 232 in all. Then he gathered together everyone else, including the Israelites. There were 7,000 in all. 16They set out at noon. While they did this, Ben-hadad was drinking alcohol excessively in the camp with the other 32 kings who served him. 17The young officers of the provincial leaders approached first. When a patrol of scouts Ben-hadad had sent out came back, they reported to him.

Scouts: Men have traveled here from Samaria.

Ben-hadad: 18I don't care whether they come in peace or with motives of war. Take them all as captives, and keep them alive!

19The young officers of the provincial leaders had left the city with their army following them. 20They proceeded to crush each man they faced. All the Arameans ran for their lives, and the Israelites went after them. Ben-hadad, Aram's king, escaped on horseback with some of his horsemen. 21Israel's king pursued the Arameans, defeating their horses and chariots, crushing many Arameans.

22The prophet approached Israel's king.

Prophet: Go, and keep yourself fit because at the end of the year, Aram's king is going to come back and wage war against you. Prepare for what is to come.

Ben-hadad's Servants: 23*When we fought them in the mountains,* they won because their gods are the mountain gods. But if we fight them on flat land, then we are sure to win. 24Therefore evacuate the royal leaders, place all the civilian military leaders in place of the ineffectual royalty, 25and assemble an army exactly like the one you lost. Replace every lost horse with a new horse and every lost chariot with a new chariot. We will battle on flat land, and we are sure to win because we will be stronger than they will be.

Ben-hadad listened to his servants and did everything they said to do, dismissing the royal leaders and rebuilding the army.

26In the spring of the year, Ben-hadad assembled the Arameans and waged war against Israel at Aphek. 27All the Israelites assembled and prepared and went out to meet the Arameans for battle. The camp of the Israelites looked like two tiny herds of goats compared to the Aramean army which filled the entire land. 28A man of God approached Israel's king.

Man of God: This is the Eternal's message: "The Arameans have proclaimed that the Eternal is only a mountain god and not a god of the flat land; therefore I am going to give you a great victory over them. Then you will know that I am the Eternal One."

► Just as the prophets of Baal in Israel think that only their god controls the rain, the Arameans think that the Lord is only a god of the mountains. Among their pagan neighbors, where different gods control different things, it is unthinkable that there can be one God who controls everything, such as climate and land. It is exactly this misconception that God is aiming to debunk through Israel's victories. He is the One; He controls all.

29They camped out across from each other for seven days; and when the seventh day arrived, the battle began. The Israelites crushed 100,000 Aramean warriors in a single day. 30All those who escaped ran into the city of Aphek. A great wall collapsed on them and killed 27,000 men. Ben-hadad escaped to the city and hid himself in a secret chamber.

Ben-hadad's Servants: 31The kings of Israel have a reputation for being merciful. Allow us to dress ourselves appropriately for surrender: We will put sackcloth around our waists and ropes around our heads; then we will go to meet Israel's king and hopefully salvage your life.

32*The servants dressed accordingly*. They put sackcloth around their waists and ropes around their heads; then they approached Israel's king.

Ben-hadad's Servants: This is a message from Ben-hadad who proclaims he is in your service: "I beg you to leave my life untouched."

Ahab: Ben-hadad is not yet dead? I thought he had surely been killed. He is my brother.

33The servants watched carefully and perceived this to be a sign, and they replied with surprise.

Ben-hadad's Servants: Yes*, that's right.* Your brother, Ben-hadad.

Ahab: Bring Ben-hadad to me.

Ben-hadad came out of the city to Israel's king, and Ahab allowed him to come up into the royal chariot.

Ben-hadad (to Ahab): 34I will return all the cities that my father took from your father. Lay your own streets in Damascus, so you may market your goods there, just like the ones my father laid in Samaria.

Ahab: Under this covenant, I will release you.

So Ahab and Ben-hadad entered into a covenant with one another; then Ahab released Ben-hadad.

► Remember that God has given Ben-hadad to Ahab. By orchestrating Ahab's victory, the Lord reduces the power of the Arameans, whom He has used to discipline Israel, and now trusts Israel to keep Aram in check. Unfortunately, Ahab is easily bribed, tempted by Ben-hadad's offer of land and trade opportunities in exchange for his freedom. Once again it is a prophet who shows Ahab his error in abandoning God's plan by physically demonstrating how Ahab abused God.

35By the word of the Eternal, one of the prophets' sons made a request to another man.

Prophet's Son: Hit me.

Man: No.

Prophet's Son: 36Because you have denied a command of the Eternal, you will be killed by a lion the moment you leave my presence.

Sure enough, the moment the man walked away, a lion killed him.

Prophet's Son (to another man): 37Hit me.

This man did as he was asked, and he bruised the prophet's son. 38The prophet left and waited on the side of the road for the king to come by. The prophet bandaged his eyes with a cloth, so that the king would not recognize him. 39As soon as the king was near, the prophet shouted.

Prophet: Your servant entered into the heart of war, and someone gave a man over to my possession and said, "You are the guard of this man. If he escapes, then your life will replace his life. Or you may pay 75 pounds of silver instead." 40Your servant became busy with other work—doing this and doing that—and meanwhile, the prisoner disappeared.

Ahab: You have decided upon your own judgment, and so it shall be.

41The prophet then removed the cloth from his eyes, and Israel's king recognized him as one of the prophets.

Prophet: 42This is the Eternal's message: "You have allowed the man whom I was going to kill to escape. Your life will replace his life, and your people will take the place of his people."

43Israel's king, frustrated and bad-tempered, returned to his house in Samaria.

21 After all this took place, Ahab, the king of Samaria, 2made a request to Naboth, the Jezreelite, who owned a vineyard in Jezreel right next to Ahab's palace.

Ahab: Your vineyard is near my house. Why don't you hand it over to me so I can make a vegetable garden out of it? I will trade you a better vineyard for it, or I can pay you, if you prefer.

Naboth: 3*I'm sorry,* the Eternal forbids that I give away any of my ancestors' inheritance, even to you.*

* 21:3 Leviticus 25:23; Numbers 36:7

4Ahab, frustrated and upset by Naboth's reply, went back into his house. Naboth the Jezreelite had replied, "I will not hand over my ancestors' inheritance to you." Ahab went to bed that night without eating anything. 5Jezebel, his wife, noticed this.

Jezebel: What is wrong with you? Why are you not eating anything? This isn't like you.

Ahab: 6I made a request to Naboth the Jezreelite: "Hand over your vineyard to me, and I will pay you for it. Or I can trade you an even better vineyard for it." But he said, "I will not hand over my vineyard to you. The Lord forbids it."

Jezebel: 7Are you not the king of all Israel? You can have anything you want. Get up, and eat some bread. Let your heart be glad, for I will get Naboth the Jezreelite's vineyard for you.

8Jezebel composed letters, signed them with Ahab's name, and pressed his seal on them. She sent all these letters to the leaders and noblemen who lived in the city with Naboth.

Jezebel's Letters: 9Declare a time of fasting for all the people. Put Naboth before all the people, 10and have two worthless men with questionable morals sit before him. Instruct these two base men to give testimony against Naboth by saying, "You, Naboth, blasphemed both God and the king." After this testimony has been given, take Naboth outside and kill him with stones.

11The leaders and noblemen of the city did just as Jezebel instructed them in the letters. 12They declared a time of fasting for all the people and they seated Naboth before all the people. 13The two worthless men sat in front of Naboth and bore witness against him by saying, "Naboth blasphemed both God and the king." Then they brought him outside and killed him with stones.

Two Men *(to Jezebel): 14Naboth has been executed by stoning.

Jezebel *(hearing the news): 15Get up, Ahab. Go and take Naboth the Jezreelite's vineyard as your own—the one he would not give you for money. It is now yours for the taking, for Naboth is now dead.

16When Ahab learned Naboth was no longer alive, Ahab got up and made his way down to Naboth the Jezreelite's vineyard to take it as his own.

► Ahab's willingness to sell himself cheaply for things outside of God's will strikes again. But this time, the true source of Ahab's wickedness is revealed. God knows that it is Jezebel, Ahab's foreign wife, who is the root of the evil. Intending to regain Ahab's devotion once and for all, God sends Elijah with His message instead of an unknown prophet. Although God's mission is successful, Elijah is left with a powerful enemy.

17Meanwhile, the word of the Eternal One visited Elijah the Tishbite.

Eternal One: 18Get up, and go find Ahab (Israel's king) in Samaria. Naboth has been killed because of the work of Jezebel. Right now, Ahab is in Naboth's vineyard, claiming it as his own. 19Tell him, "This is the message of the Eternal One: 'Are you a murderer and a thief?'" Tell him, "This is the message of the Eternal One: 'Beware. The dogs will slurp up your blood in the very spot where they licked up Naboth's blood.'"

Ahab *(replying to Elijah): 20Have you discovered what I have done, my enemy?

Elijah: I have only discovered what you have done because you have sold your soul to wickedness in the Eternal's eyes. 21*He says,* "I will send evil against you and blow you away. I will also separate you from every man in Israel—both free and enslaved. You will be all alone. 22I will destroy your house just as I did Jeroboam's house (Nebat's son) and Baasha's house (Ahijah's son). I will do this because your wickedness has provoked My wrath and because you have caused the Israelites to live sinful lives."

23The Eternal also has said a word about Jezebel. He has said, "Jezebel will be devoured by dogs at the wall* in Jezreel." 24Any of Ahab's servants who die in the city will be devoured by ravenous dogs, and any of Ahab's servants who die in the fields will be devoured by ravenous birds of heaven.

25There was no one in Israel like Ahab who sold himself and decided to commit evil in the Eternal's eyes because his wife, Jezebel, manipulated him to evil. 26Ahab was incredibly wicked, giving his life over to idols as the Amorites (whom the Eternal handed to the Israelites) had done. 27When Ahab heard all of this, he ripped off his clothing, dressed himself in sackcloth, and entered into a time of fasting. He rested in depression, wearing only sackcloth.

28The word of the Eternal One visited Elijah the Tishbite.

Eternal One: 29Have you witnessed Ahab's repentance? He has shed his pride and wickedness and humbled his heart before Me. Therefore I will not send evil against his house while he is still alive; instead I will send it during the lifetime of his son.

22 Three years went by without Aram and Israel fighting at all. 2During the third year, Jehoshaphat, Judah's king, approached Israel's king.

Ahab *(to his servants): 3Don't you remember that Ramoth-gilead is ours? But we have done nothing to take it back from Aram's king.

4(to Jehoshaphat) I am going to wage war against Ramoth-gilead. Will you join me?

Jehoshaphat: I am with you. I will do what you do. My troops will be your troops; my horses will be your horses. 5But first, ask the Eternal for His wisdom and guidance in this matter.

6Israel's king assembled the 400 prophets.

Ahab: Should I wage war against Ramoth-gilead or not?

Prophets: Yes, you should. The Lord will give the king victory in this matter.

Jehoshaphat: 7*I need counsel.* Is there a prophet of the Eternal present whom we can ask for advice?

Ahab: 8There is one prophet of the Eternal, but I despise him. He prophesies terrible things about me instead of good things. His name is Micaiah (Imlah's son).

Jehoshaphat: The king shouldn't speak as such; he is the Lord's prophet.

9Israel's king summoned a commander and gave him instructions to find Micaiah (Imlah's son) quickly.

10At the threshing floor inside the gate of Samaria, Israel's king and Jehoshaphat (Judah's king) were both sitting on their own thrones wearing ornate royal robes holding court while all the prophets were spouting out prophesies in their presence. 11Zedekiah (Chenaanah's son) had crafted iron horns for himself and spoke.

Zedekiah: This is the Eternal's message: "Take these horns to gore the Arameans until they are destroyed."

Prophets: 12Travel to Ramoth-gilead, and flourish. The Eternal One will hand it over to the king.

Commander *(to Micaiah): 13The prophets' message is pleasing to the king. May your message be as pleasing as theirs.

Micaiah: 14As certain as the Eternal, I will say only what He commands me to say—nothing more and nothing less.

Ahab *(as Micaiah approached him): 15Micaiah, should we or should we not wage war against Ramoth-gilead? We need your final say either way.

Micaiah: Do as you say, and be successful. The Eternal One will give it to the king.

Ahab: 16How many times are you going to make me ask you to give me a true message from the Eternal?

Micaiah: 17I saw a vision of Israel. In it, Israel was spread all throughout the mountains*, wandering aimlessly*. They were like lost sheep without a shepherd to guide them. In the vision, the Eternal said, "These sheep have no shepherd. May they all go back to their own homes and live in peace."

* 21:23 Some manuscripts read, "plot of land."

Ahab (to Jehoshaphat): 18*Didn't I warn you?* Didn't I say that he would give unfavorable prophecies toward me?

Micaiah: 19You should heed the Eternal's message. I saw a vision of the Eternal One sitting on His throne with the heavenly army surrounding Him on all sides. 20*In the vision,* the Eternal said, "Who will be the one to entice Ahab into battle at Ramoth-gilead so he may die there?" Everyone had a different opinion about who should do the task.

21Right then, a spirit revealed itself to the Eternal and said, "I will do it. I will draw Ahab into battle."

22The Eternal One asked, "How do you plan on doing this?"

The spirit answered, "I will become a spirit of deception within the words of his prophets."

The Eternal spoke again, "I like this idea. You will succeed at drawing him into battle. Proceed quickly." 23Therefore, the Eternal has placed a spirit of deception in the mouths of all your prophets, and He has sent destruction upon you. You will lose.

24Zedekiah (Chenaanah's son) hit Micaiah on the cheek.

Zedekiah: That's impossible. How is it that the Eternal's Spirit communicated to you without me knowing about it?

Micaiah: 25You will understand when the time comes for you to hide in a secret chamber.

Ahab: 26*In the meantime,* take Micaiah back to Amon, the city's governor, and to Joash, the king's son. 27Give them this message: "This is the command of Israel's king: 'Lock this man behind bars, and give him only crumbs of bread and drops of water until I come back safely from battle.'"

Micaiah: 28*All right.* If you come back alive and in one piece, you will know that the Eternal did not communicate His message through me. All you people listen carefully.

29Israel's king and Jehoshaphat, Judah's king, waged war against Ramoth-gilead.

Ahab (to Jehoshaphat): 30*Here's what I am going to do.* I am going to put on a disguise and enter into battle, but you are going to dress in your normal robes.

Fearing that Micaiah might be right, Israel's king put on a disguise and entered battle.

31Aram's king commanded the 32 captains in charge of all the chariots.

King of Aram (to his captains): Don't waste your time fighting with any important or unimportant person. Fight only with Israel's king. He's the one we want dead.

32When the chariot captains laid eyes upon Jehoshaphat and saw the robes he was wearing, they said to themselves, "This must be Israel's king. Only a king wears such robes." They engaged in battle with him, and Jehoshaphat screamed for his life. 33*To Jehoshaphat's immense relief,* when the chariot captains realized that this was not Israel's king, they left him alone. 34*In the meantime,* one warrior shot a random arrow from his bow up into the air, and the arrow happened to strike inside a joint of Israel's king's armor.

Ahab (to his charioteer): Get me out of this battle quickly! I am hurt badly.

35The fighting continued throughout that entire day. Meanwhile, the king was propped up inside his chariot before all the Arameans, so they would think he still led Israel, and he died that night. Blood dripped out from where the arrow had pierced him, and it stained the bottom of the chariot. 36At sunset, word spread throughout the entire army: "Israel's king is dead. Go back to where you came from. Return to your native cities and countries."

37*Israel's* king died and was transported to Samaria where he was laid to rest. 38They cleaned the blood out of his chariot at the Samaritan pool, where all the prostitutes and promiscuous women bathed in the blood-stained water and the dogs licked up his blood, just as the Eternal said they would.

39Is not the rest of Ahab's story—all his actions and the ivory house and cities he constructed—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? 40Ahab left this world to sleep with his fathers; and his son, Ahaziah, then inherited the throne.

41Jehoshaphat (Asa's son) became Judah's king during the 4th year of Ahab's reign in Israel. 42Jehoshaphat was 35 years old when he received the throne. His reign lasted 25 years in Jerusalem. His mother was Azubah (Shilhi's daughter).

43Jehoshaphat was devoted to the Eternal just as his father, Asa, was. He walked the good path and did what was good in the eyes of the Eternal One. But the high places were not torn down, and everyone still offered sacrifices and burned incense there. This wickedness still took place under Jehoshaphat's reign, though he did not inspire it. 44Jehoshaphat also made peace between himself and Israel's king.

45Is not the rest of Jehoshaphat's story—his mighty actions and how he waged war—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 46He threw out of the country all the prostitutes who remained from his father Asa's time.

47At that time, there was no king sitting on the throne in Edom, only a deputy.

48Jehoshaphat crafted ships modeled after those trading ships in Tarshish to travel to Ophir to gather gold, but the ships never made the trip because they wrecked at Ezion-geber. 49Ahaziah (Ahab's son) made a request to Jehoshaphat: "Allow my servants to accompany your servants on the ships." Jehoshaphat refused this request.

50Jeshoshaphat left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest with his ancestors in his father's city, the city of David. Jehoshaphat's son, Jehoram, then inherited the throne.

51Ahaziah, Ahab's son, took over the throne of Israel in Samaria during the 17th year of Jehoshaphat's reign over Judah. Ahaziah's reign over Israel lasted two years. 52Ahaziah committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He walked the wicked path of his father and mother and Jeroboam (Nebat's son) who caused the Israelites to live sinful lives. 53He gave his heart and life to Baal and offered his services and worship to him. This caused the Eternal God of Israel's wrath to be provoked just as it had at the wickedness of his father.

2 KINGS

History of the kings of Israel and Judah, from Ahaziah through Jehoiachin

Compiled by Jewish scribes in exile

01 02 03 04 05 06

Picking up right where 1 Kings left off, in the middle of Ahaziah's reign, 2 Kings continues the story of the Northern and Southern Kingdoms' on-again, off-again relationship with God. David and Solomon's United Monarchy has been divided into two nations: Judah and Benjamin in the south and the other ten tribes in the north. Both nations have a history of responding to God followed by a period of rebellion and then returning to Him. This book describes the end of that cycle, when God allows foreign powers to conquer both countries and scatter His people. The ten tribes are lost to the Assyrian Empire and disappear from record; Judah and Benjamin are taken captive by the Babylonian Empire but ultimately return to the land of Israel.

Compiled around the time of the exile that began in the sixth century before the coming of the Anointed One, this book is intended to remind future generations of the consequences of abandoning the instruction God provides in the law. The Israelites are a unique community in the ancient Near East because they believe in one God. Surrounding nations have many gods, the most famous of which are the Canaanite god Baal and his consort Asherah. As Israel becomes interconnected with its neighbors politically, they trade more than resources; pagan rituals begin to creep into Israelite life, violating God's law and angering Him. Some worship God in addition to other gods, some worship God improperly (with temple prostitution and child sacrifice), and some just abandon Him altogether. Through His prophets, and sometimes directly, God reminds Israel again and again to follow His laws, as their ancestors promised they would in exchange for His guidance and protection.

There are two great transitions in 2 Kings. First the prophetic ministry of Elijah in 1 Kings transfers to Elisha in this second volume of the book of Kings. Elisha receives a greater portion of his predecessor's influence and power. Second, both the kingdoms of Israel and Judah fall to foreign armies. The Northern Kingdom finally falls to the Assyrian armies in 722 B.C. Then the Southern Kingdom falls to the Babylonian armies in 586 B.C. The obedient kings such as Hezekiah and Josiah, and the faithful prophets such as Elijah and Elisha, cannot steer the two kingdoms back to God's laws. This means the complete loss of the ten northern tribes and the exile of the two southern tribes.

1 After Ahab died, Moab grew rebellious and revolted against Israel.
2 One day, King Ahaziah had an accident in Israel's capital city, Samaria. He tumbled through the network shading and decorating his upper room and fell ill. While he was bedridden, he called for his messengers and sent them on an errand to Philistia.

Ahaziah: Ask Baal-zebub, Ekron's god, if my health is going to return after this injury.

3 Elsewhere, the Eternal One's messenger spoke to Elijah the Tishbite.

Eternal One's Messenger: Get up, and intercept Ahaziah's messengers. When you meet them, ask them, "Why are you going to ask Baal-zebub, Ekron's god, about the king's healing? Do you carry this message because you believe Israel has no God of its own?" 4 This is the message of the Eternal to Ahaziah: "You have made your bed, and you will lie in it. You will never leave your bed in your upper room; it will become your grave."

So Elijah went on his way just as the Lord instructed, and he delivered this message to Ahaziah's messengers. 5 They turned back without completing their mission.

Ahaziah: Why are you back so soon?

Samaritan Messengers: 6 A strange man met us during our journey and said, "Go back to the king whose message you carry, and give him this message from the Eternal: 'Why are you going to ask Baal-zebub, Ekron's god, about healing? Do you ask for this message because you believe Israel has no God of its own? You have made your bed, and you will lie in it. You will never leave your bed in your upper room; it will become your grave.'"

Ahaziah: 7 Tell me more about this strange man who met you and gave you this message. What was he like?

Samaritan Messengers: 8 The man was hairy and wore a leather belt.

Ahaziah: I know who this man is—Elijah the Tishbite!

9 King Ahaziah then dispatched 50 soldiers and their commander to confront Elijah. The commander approached Elijah, who was resting on a hilltop.

Commander: Hello there, O man of God! The king has a message for you. He says, "Come down from there!"

Elijah: 10 If I truly am a man of God, then I'll prove it: may a fiery blaze storm down from heaven and devour you and your 50 soldiers.

And as the words were leaving his mouth, fire rained down; and they were all burned up just as Elijah said.
11 Ahaziah then dispatched another 50 soldiers and their commander to confront Elijah.

Second Commander: O man of God! The king orders you, "Come down from there now!"

Elijah: 12 If I truly am a man of God, then as proof may a fiery blaze storm down from heaven and devour you and your 50 soldiers.

Once again a fiery blaze rained down from heaven and devoured the 50 soldiers and their commander.
13 Yet again, King Ahaziah dispatched another 50 soldiers and a third commander to confront Elijah. When this third commander approached Elijah, he bowed on his knees, humbled himself before Elijah, and begged for mercy upon their lives.

Third Commander: O man of God, I beg you to cherish my life and the lives of these 50 soldiers. May your eyes perceive something worth treasuring rather than destroying, for we are all at your service. 14 A heavenly fire devoured the first two commanders and their 50 men who confronted you, but please do not invoke the same fate for my life.

Eternal One's Messenger (to Elijah): 15 Follow this man down the mountain, and do not fear him.

Elijah did as the messenger had instructed, and he followed the commander down the mountain to where the king was waiting.

Elijah (to Ahaziah): 16 This is the message of the Eternal: "You dispatched messengers to appeal to Baal-zebub, Ekron's god, about your healing. Is it because you believe Israel has no God of its own to whom you can appeal? Because you did this, you will never leave your bed in your upper room; it will become your grave."

17Ahaziah met his death just as Elijah reported in the message from the Eternal. Ahaziah did not have a son, so Jehoram inherited the throne during the second year of the reign of Jehoram (Jehoshaphat's son) in Judah.

► In this record, the compiler constantly switches back and forth between Judah and Israel, telling the history of both simultaneously. Nowhere is that more confusing than here, when both nations' kings have the same name. But the format serves two purposes: the reader gets a picture of what is happening in both regions at the same time, and the response of each nation to one event may be compared and contrasted. Who will prove to be the more faithful kingdom—the North or the South?

18Is not the rest of Ahaziah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

2 Elijah and Elisha were leaving Gilgal when the Eternal One planned to snatch Elijah up into the heavens by the power of a fierce dancing wind.

Elijah (to Elisha): 2I ask you to remain here. The Eternal has commanded me to go all the way to Bethel.

Elisha: As certain as your own life and the life of the Eternal, I refuse to abandon you.

So the two men traveled down to Bethel together, 3where Elisha was approached by the prophets' disciples who lived there.

Prophets' Disciples: Are you aware that the Eternal One is going to snatch Elijah, your mentor, away from you today?

Elisha: Yes, I am aware of this. I want you to keep quiet about it.

Elijah (to Elisha): 4I beg you to remain here. The Eternal has commanded me to travel to Jericho.

Elisha: As certain as your own life and the life of the Eternal, I refuse to abandon you.

The two men then traveled to Jericho together, 5where the prophets' disciples living in Jericho approached Elisha.

Prophets' Disciples: Are you aware that the Eternal One is going to snatch your mentor away from you today?

Elisha: Yes, I am aware of this. I want you to keep quiet about it.

Elijah (to Elisha): 6I beg you to remain here. The Eternal One has commanded me to travel to the Jordan River.

Elisha: As certain as your own life and the life of the Eternal, I refuse to abandon you.

So the two men then traveled to the Jordan River together.

7While Elijah and Elisha were standing near the Jordan River, 50 of the prophets' disciples from that area stood at a distance from them on the other side. 8Elijah removed his cloak and rolled it up; then he struck the water with it, and the water divided. Elijah and Elisha then walked across on dry land. 9After the two had made it to the other side of the Jordan, Elijah spoke to Elisha.

Elijah: Tell me what it is you would like me to do for you before I am taken away from you.

Elisha: Please, I wish to receive a double portion of your spirit. As your successor, I want to have twice the portion of your power.

Elijah: 10What you have requested of me is challenging, but it will be done if you witness my departure. But if you do not watch, then you will not have your double portion.

11Now as the two continued walking along and talking as they normally did, something incredible happened. A blazing chariot pulled by blazing horses stormed down from the heavens and came between Elijah and Elisha. Then Elijah was swept up into heaven by the fiery storm. 12Elisha witnessed this amazing spectacle.

Elisha: My father, O my father! The chariots and riders of Israel!

► Elijah and Enoch (Genesis 5:24) are the only two men in the Bible to leave earth while they are still alive. Although they are separated by centuries of time, both men are inseparable from God, and both leave quite a legacy: Elijah's successor, Elisha, continues his mentor's work, even calling out Elijah's name for help. Enoch's son, Methuselah, lives longer than anyone else ever has, which is proof that he, too, lives properly.

Elisha never saw Elijah again. Elisha grabbed the clothes he was wearing, and he ripped them in half. 13-14He picked up Elijah's cloak, which had dropped to the ground when he was taken up into heaven, and then he went back to the Jordan riverbank and stood. He struck the water with the cloak.

Elisha: Where is the Eternal One? Where is Elijah's True God?

After Elisha struck the water, the Jordan River divided, just as when Elijah had struck the waters. Elisha then walked across on dry land.

15The prophets' disciples at Jericho standing on the opposite shore were watching this.

Prophets' Disciples: Elijah's powerful spirit now rests upon Elisha. Elijah's cloak now clothes Elisha.

Then the prophets' disciples at Jericho approached Elisha and humbled themselves before him.

Prophets' Disciples: 16There are 50 strong men along with us, your servants, who could go looking for your mentor. Perhaps the Spirit of the Eternal inside the whirlwind swept Elijah up into heaven and left him on some mountaintop or in some valley of the lowlands.

Elisha: That won't be necessary.

17But they kept asking his permission for a search, and he felt ashamed, so he finally agreed. They sent out a search party of 50 men who spent three days looking for Elijah, but they found no trace of him. 18The search party came back to Elisha while he was still in Jericho.

Elisha: I told you not to go. He's gone from the earth.

Men of Jericho: 19*Life is pleasant in this city; and* as you can see, the city is in an advantageous location, except for the water. It's contaminated, so the land is barren.

Elisha: 20Fetch me a new bowl, and pour some salt into it.

So they brought him the bowl with the salt he had requested. 21He then walked outside to the water spring and tossed some salt into it.

Elisha: This is the Eternal's message: "This water is now entirely pure. It will no longer bring death or cause the earth to be barren."

22This water has been potable ever since, just as Elisha said.

23Elisha then traveled north to Bethel retracing his last steps with Elijah. On his way there, a large group of young boys came out of the city and began making fun of him: "Keep going, baldy! Keep going, baldy!" 24When Elisha looked back at them, he spoke against them by the authority of the Eternal. Almost immediately, 2 female bears walked out of the forest and ripped up 42 of the young boys. 25Elisha then returned to Mount Carmel, and he went back to Samaria.

3 During the 18th year of Jehoshaphat's reign in Judah, Jehoram (Ahab's son) took over the throne of Israel at Samaria for 12 years. 2The Eternal saw that he did wicked things, but not to the same degree his parents did. He tore down and had nothing to do with the pillar honoring Baal that his father had crafted. 3But still, he walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son) that caused the Israelites to live sinful lives. He never repented from his wickedness.

[4]Mesha (Moab's king) bred sheep and, as payment, he would give Israel's king 100,000 lambs and the fleece of 100,000 rams. [5]But when Ahab died, Mesha (Moab's king) turned against Israel's king. [6]King Jehoram left Samaria and assembled the entire community of Israel. [7]He sent a message to Jehoshaphat (Judah's king).

Jehoram's Message: Moab's king is no longer on Israel's side. He has turned against me. Will you accompany us in battle against him?

Jehoshaphat's Reply: Yes, I will fight beside you. What is mine is yours—my people, my horses, everything.

Jehoram's Second Message: [8]What path do you want to take?

Jehoshaphat's Reply: We will travel through the desert of Edom.

► Since David defeated the nation of Moab (2 Samuel 8:2), it has been a vassal state to Israel; but under their new king Mesha, the Moabites are ready to revolt. Mesha has fortified the entire country, building a temple, palace, walls, and reservoirs. Most importantly, he fortifies the northern entrance to Moab, so Israel is forced to find another way to attack. Unfortunately, the only other option is for Israel to enter from the south, and that requires marching through Judah and Edom, something that would be perceived as an act of war. By securing Judah's and Edom's cooperation in the attack, Israel does not have to worry about being attacked while traveling through their nations, and she gains allies against the impressively strong Moab.

[9]Israel's king traveled with Judah's king and Edom's king. It was a difficult trip that lasted for seven days, a circular route around the territory held by Moab. By then there wasn't any water for the army or for the livestock.

Jehoram: [10]This is terrible! The Eternal intends to hand the three of us over to Moab.

Jehoshaphat: [11]Surely there is a prophet of the Eternal One among us. If so, let him come forth so that we can talk with the Eternal through him.

Jehoram's Servant: Yes, there is a prophet of the Lord among us! Elisha (Shaphat's son)! He used to serve the great Elijah by pouring water on his hands!

Jehoshaphat: [12]The message and power of the Eternal One accompany him.

So Israel's king (Jehoram), Jehoshaphat (Judah's king), and Edom's king went to find Elisha.

Elisha *(to Jehoram): [13]What business do I have with you? Why don't you go to the prophets of your parents' god?

Jehoram: I can't because the Eternal called the three of us together in order to hand us over to Moab.

Elisha: [14]As certain as the life of the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, to whom I offer my life, I would pay you no attention except that I have such great respect for Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. But I have no regard for you! I will not even look at you! [15]But now, bring me a musician!

While the musician was playing, Elisha was empowered by the Eternal.

Elisha: [16]This is the Eternal's message: "Dig trenches throughout this entire valley."

[17]This is the Eternal's message: "You will not see rain fall from the sky or feel wind blow across your skin, but you will see this valley filled with water. You and your livestock will have plenty of water to quench your thirst!" [18]And that's not all! It is indeed a small thing for the Eternal One: He is also going to hand the Moabites over to you. [19]Then you will attack every fortified and prosperous city, chop down every decent tree, plug up every water hole, and use stones to destroy every healthy piece of land along your way.

[20]In the morning, water coming from the higher ground in Edom filled the entire land around the time that sacrifices were offered.

21The Moabites heard a rumor that the kings were about to wage war against them, so every man who could wear armor—from young men to old men—was called to battle and waited at the border. 22They woke up at dawn, as the fiery glow of the sunrise was kissing the water. From the view of the Moabites, the water was blood red.

Moabites: 23Look! Blood! The kings have fought and killed each other, and now their blood fills the country. Go forth, Moab, and collect the spoil!

24But when the Moabite warriors arrived at the Israelite encampment, the Israelites jumped up and killed the Moabites. The surviving Moabites ran away, but the Israelites ran after them and killed them all. 25Then the Israelites destroyed every city, chopped down every decent tree, plugged up every water hole, and filled all the healthy land with stones along their way. Only the stone walls of Kir-hareseth remained after they were finished with it, but the men with slings later took care of these rocks as well. 26When Moab's king perceived how dangerous the battle was, he gathered up 700 of his swordsmen who tried to make their way through to Edom's king. But it was impossible.

27*Desperate to survive,* Moab's king offered his own son, his oldest son who was next in line for the throne, as a burnt offering to Moab's god Chemosh on the wall.

► Unlike the Lord, who does not allow child sacrifice (Genesis 22), the Moabites believe their god, Chemosh, responds favorably to the sacrifice of children. Seeing that he is about to lose the war, Mesha makes the greatest sacrifice he can imagine: he offers his oldest son and heir. Not only does Mesha sacrifice the future of his nation and his son's life, he believes he also sacrifices the boy's afterlife, since burnt offerings are totally consumed and no body would remain for burial. Mesha's action gives his army courage to fight, but it is the military engagement that saves his nation. Moab defeats Israel and her allies.

Then a fierce wrath swept against Israel, so they fled from Moab's king and went back to their own country.

4 The wife of one of the prophets' disciples pleaded with Elisha.

Woman: My husband who served you is now dead. He greatly feared the Eternal. You yourself know this to be true. The creditor is now trying to take away my only two children and make them into slaves.

Elisha: 2What is it that you want me to do? Do you have anything of worth in your house?

Woman: I don't really have much of anything. The only thing I have in my house that might be of any worth is a jar of oil.

Elisha: 3Borrow as many large empty containers as you can. Ask neighbors for anything they can give to you. Be sure to collect a lot of them. 4Then enclose yourself in a room with only you and your sons. Pour oil into as many of the containers as you can. Set aside the full ones.

5The widow went away from Elisha and enclosed herself in a room with her sons. One at a time, her sons held a container before her, and she poured. 6Soon all of the containers were filled.

Woman: Bring me another container.

Son: There aren't any left.

It was then that the oil ran out. 7The widow then went back to Elisha, the man of God.

Elisha: Now go sell the oil, and pay the creditor what you owe. Then your children won't be made into slaves, and you and your sons can live on the remaining money.

8One day, Elisha traveled to Shunem. There was a well-known woman who lived there, and she convinced him to eat something. So whenever he walked by her house, he went in and ate.

Shunammite Woman (to her husband): 9This man, who comes by here frequently to eat, is a holy man of God.

[10]Can we please make a little room for him—just a simple setting: a bed, a lamp, a table, and a chair. That way, whenever he comes here, he can rest in his own room and have his privacy.

[11]Elisha went by their house to eat one day, and he went and lay down in the upper room. [12]He spoke to his servant, Gehazi.

Elisha: Tell the Shunammite woman to come here.

So Gehazi called out her name, and she came to him.

Elisha (to Gehazi): [13]Tell her, "You have been fearfully attentive to us. We thank you for all of your care. Now what can I do to repay you? Would you like for me to speak to the king or the military commander on your behalf?"

Shunammite Woman: No, that's OK. I dwell with my own people.

Elisha (to Gehazi): [14]Is there anything at all that I can do for her?

Gehazi: Actually, her husband is an old man, and she doesn't have a son.

Elisha: [15]Tell her to come here.

Gehazi called out her name, and she came and stood at the entrance to the room.

Elisha: [16]This time next year, when spring is full of new life, you will hold a son of your own in your arms.

Shunammite Woman: That's impossible, my lord! You are a man of great integrity, a man of God, so please do not deceive me, your servant.

[17]But that time next year, the Shunammite woman did conceive and deliver a son, just as Elisha said she would. [18]When the child was older, he walked out to his father, who was harvesting the fields with the reapers.

Son (to his father): [19]My head hurts! My head hurts!

Father (to his servant): Take the child inside to his mother.

[20]The servant brought the child inside to his mother; and about noon, while the boy was sitting in his mother's lap, he died. [21]She took his lifeless body and laid him down on Elisha's bed. She then closed the door and went away.

Shunammite Woman (to her husband): [22]I beg you to send me a servant and a donkey so that I can go find Elisha, the man of God. As soon as I do, I will come back here.

Father: [23]Why is it that you are so anxious to find him today? Today is not a holy day—a new moon or a Sabbath.

Shunammite Woman: Don't worry; all will be well.

[24]She prepared the donkey and gave instructions to her servant.

Shunammite Woman: Go quickly! Don't slow down unless I tell you to.

[25]She rode quickly toward the man of God who was staying about a day away on Mount Carmel. As she approached, Elisha saw her at a distance.

Elisha (to Gehazi): Look! It's the Shunammite woman. [26]Go quickly to see what she wants. Ask her, "Is everything fine? Is your husband well? Is your son well?"

Shunammite Woman: Everything is fine.

[27]When she approached the man of God at the mountain, she fell to the ground and hugged his feet. Gehazi approached to pull her away, but the man of God stopped him.

Elisha: Leave her be. Her very soul is distressed, but the Eternal has kept her troubles hidden from me.

Shunammite Woman: [28]Was it I who asked for a son? I told you not to mislead me!

Elisha (to Gehazi): [29]Prepare yourself, and carry my staff to where the boy is now. Do not acknowledge any blessing to anyone on your way there. If someone speaks a blessing to you, do not respond. When you get there, lay my staff on the boy's face.

Shunammite Woman (to Elisha): 30As certain as the life of the Eternal and your own life, I will not leave without you.

Elisha then stood up and followed her to her house. 31Gehazi went ahead of them and laid the staff on the boy's face, but nothing happened. The boy did not move or make a sound. Gehazi went back to Elisha and reported this to him: "The boy did not wake up."

32Elisha arrived at the house and saw the lifeless body of the boy lying on Elisha's bed. 33He went into the room, closed the door behind both of them, and prayed to the Eternal. 34Elisha approached the boy and lay down, placing his mouth on the boy's mouth, his eyes on the boy's eyes, and his hands on the boy's hands. He covered the boy with his own body, and warmth returned to the boy's body. 35Elisha turned around and paced back and forth in the house, then he went back into the room and covered the boy's body with his own body. The boy sneezed seven times, and then he opened his eyes.

Elisha (to Gehazi): 36Tell the Shunammite woman to come here.

Gehazi told the Shunammite woman to go inside the room, and she did.

Elisha: Lift up your son, for he is alive.

37She fell to the floor before Elisha's feet, bowing to the ground, and she wept with happiness. She picked up her son and left the room with him.

38Elisha returned to Gilgal, and he found that there was a famine throughout the entire country. While the disciples of the local prophets were sitting with him, he told his servant to find a big pot and make a big stew for the prophets' disciples.

39A man walked out into the fields to look for herbs, and he came across an uncultivated vine and picked enough wild gourds from it to fill the folds of his cloak. He chopped up the gourds and tossed them into the large pot of stew, not knowing what they were. 40Those who prepared the stew gave helpings of it to the men. While they were eating the stew, they cringed and pushed the bowls away from them. They could not eat it.

Prophets' Disciples: Man of God, this stew is horrible! It will be the death of us!

Elisha: 41Go bring some meal.

They brought him some meal, and Elisha threw it in the large pot and renewed the stew.

Elisha: Distribute this food to the people so that they may fill their hungry bellies.

Everyone ate it, and there was nothing wrong with it this time.

42*Sometime later,* a man from Baal-shalishah brought some food from the firstfruits of the harvest to the man of God: in his sack were 20 barley loaves and fresh produce still in the husk.

Elisha: Distribute this food to the people so that they may fill their hungry bellies.

Servant: 43Do you really think this will be enough for 100 hungry men?

Elisha: Yes, do as I said, and distribute this food to the people. The Eternal One says, "They will fill their bellies and still have some food left over."

44He handed out the food to them; and exactly as the Eternal One said, they ate and had food to spare.

5 Naaman's master considered him an extraordinary man. He was the military commander of Aram's army, and he had won many important battles for Aram by the power of the Eternal. Naturally he was greatly esteemed by his king. Naaman was a fierce warrior, but he also had a skin disease. 2Now one time, the Arameans went out in raiding parties and took a little girl from Israel as their prisoner. The little girl became a servant to Naaman's wife.

Girl (to Naaman's wife): 3If only my master could be near the prophet in Samaria, the prophet there could heal my master's disease.

4Naaman became hopeful, and he went and told his king what the little girl from Israel said.

King of Aram: 5I am going to write a letter to Israel's king, and I want you to take it to him immediately.

Naaman left with the king's letter in his hand, plus 750 pounds of silver, 150 pounds of gold, and 10 sets of fine clothing. 6-7Naaman handed the letter to Israel's king, and the king read it.

King of Aram's Message: The man carrying this letter is my servant, Naaman. He has a skin disease, and I request that you heal him.

King of Israel *(ripping his clothing): Who does he think I am—God? Why does Aram's king think I have the power to kill and make alive again? What in the world makes him think that I can heal you of your disease? It is obvious that Aram's king is trying to create trouble between us.

8Elisha, the man of God, received word that Israel's king had ripped his clothing, so he sent a message to Israel's king.

Elisha's Message: What has caused you to rip your clothing? Tell the man who has come to you for healing to come to me. Then he will be assured that a prophet lives in Israel.

9*The king told Naaman to go find Elisha,* so Naaman showed up at Elisha's door with his horses and chariots. 10Elisha did not show his face to Naaman, but instead sent instructions: "Wash yourself in the Jordan River seven times. The waters will heal you, and your skin will be back to normal. You will be cleansed." 11Naaman boiled with anger as he left Elisha. He had come to his house expecting something much different.

Naaman: What is this! I came here thinking that Elisha would come outside and call upon the name of the Eternal One his God, and that Elisha's hand would pass over my sores and heal my skin disease, not the waters of the Jordan River. 12The Abanah and Pharpar Rivers in Damascus are greater rivers than all the rivers of Israel combined, so why couldn't I just go bathe in those and be healed?

Naaman then stormed away, boiling with anger. 13Later his servants approached and spoke to him with respect.

Naaman's Servants: Father, if the prophet had told you to do some important thing, wouldn't you have done what he asked? Why is it difficult for you to follow his instructions when he tells you, "Bathe yourself in the Jordan River, and be cleansed"?

14So Naaman swallowed his pride, walked down to the Jordan River, and washed himself seven times, just as the man of God had instructed him to do. There, the miracle occurred. Naaman's disease was healed: his skin was as new as an infant's, and he was clean from the disease. 15Naaman and all his entourage went back to the man of God.

Naaman: I am convinced that there is no God who exists in the entire world like the True God in Israel. Please accept this gift from me, your humble servant.

Elisha: 16As certain as the life of the Eternal whom I worship, I refuse to take any gifts.

Naaman tried again to give Elisha a gift, but Elisha would not take it.

Naaman: 17*OK.* If you won't take my gift, at least allow me to take two mule-loads of earth. I, your servant, will no longer give burnt offerings or sacrifices to other gods. The Eternal One is my only God now. 18May the Eternal One forgive me when I walk into the house of Rimmon, the storm god of Aram, to worship there beside my master. As his first officer, I must be by his side wherever he goes, even when he worships. May He forgive me for bowing down in that place.

Elisha: 19Go, and be at peace about this matter.

20*About this time,* Gehazi, who served Elisha, the man of God, had a wicked thought: "My master let this Aramean Naaman leave and refused Naaman's gift! That means the gift is still with Naaman. As certain as the life of the Eternal, I vow to go after him and try to get the gift from him myself."

21So Gehazi went after Naaman. When Naaman saw Gehazi chasing him, he stepped down from his chariot in order to greet Elisha's servant.

Naaman: Is everything fine?

Gehazi: 22*Yes,* everything is well. Elisha told me to hurry after you and give you this message. He says, "Two young men who are the prophets' disciples have just arrived from the hilly land of Ephraim. I request that you give them 75 pounds of silver and two changes of clothing."

Naaman: [23]Of course. Please take 150 pounds.

Naaman then put the 150 pounds of silver in two bags, along with two sets of clothing. He secured the bags, placed them in the possession of two of his servants, and gave them instructions to take the bags back to Elisha's house with Gehazi. [24]When Gehazi and Naaman's servants arrived at the hill where Elisha's house sat, Gehazi took the bags from Naaman's servants and placed them in the house. He then told the servants to go back to Naaman, and so they went away. [25]Gehazi then went to find Elisha.

Elisha: I've missed you. Where have you been, Gehazi?

Gehazi: I've been here all along.

Elisha: [26]You must not be aware that I knew where you were when Naaman stepped down from his chariot and asked you if everything was well. Do you think you are in a place to accept money, clothes, olive groves, vineyards, sheep, oxen, and servants on my behalf? [27]Because you have sought to deceive me and have deceived Naaman, the skin disease that was washed away from Naaman in the Jordan River will now infect you and your offspring for all of time.

► Skin diseases of all kinds—psoriasis, eczema, vitiligo, and even baldness—are of great concern in God's purity laws (Leviticus 13–15). The appearance of some of these diseases makes a person ineligible to enter the temple, especially diseases with open sores and flaking skin. Israelites with such a skin disease are quarantined outside of the cities until it disappears and they become pure again. In the case of chronic diseases such as psoriasis, the sufferer is doomed to permanent exile and separation from God. What greater punishment can there be for a prophet of God?

Gehazi turned and departed from Elisha. By the time Gehazi had walked out of the room, the skin disease had entirely infected him, and his skin was as white as snow.

6 The students of the prophets spoke to Elisha.

Students of the Prophets: The place where we are staying with you is too small for us. [2]Allow us to travel to the Jordan Valley, cut down trees, and build a house there for ourselves.

Elisha: Go.

One of the Students: [3]Will you please travel with us, your servants?

Elisha: Yes, I will go with you.

[4]Elisha traveled with them, and they cut down trees when they arrived at the Jordan. [5]While one of the students was cutting down a tree, the iron of the ax broke off and dropped into the river.

Student of the Prophets *(to Elisha): Oh no, master! This ax is not mine! I borrowed it!

Elisha: [6]Where did it drop into the river?

The man showed Elisha where it had dropped into the water, and Elisha took a stick and tossed it into the river. Then the iron of the ax floated to the surface.

Elisha: [7]Get your iron out of the water.

The man then grabbed it.

[8]Aram's king had waged war against Israel. He gave instructions to those who served him: "I want my war camp at this particular place." [9]The man of God sent a message to Israel's king.

Elisha's Message: Be sure not to travel through this place. The Arameans are on their way.

[10]Israel's king passed this warning on to those in the place the man of God had told him about. Elisha's warning saved Israel's king more than a few times. [11]Aram's king became greatly angered by this. He gathered his servants together.

King of Aram: Which one of you has betrayed me and sided with Israel's king?

Servant: 12It is none of us, my lord and king. The prophet Elisha, who lives in Israel, is the one who informs Israel's king of these things. Elisha somehow knows everything you say—even the secret things you whisper in your private chambers.

King of Aram: 13Find Elisha right away so that I may capture him!

The servants found Elisha and informed Aram's king, "Elisha is in Dothan." 14So Aram's king dispatched a great army of warriors, along with many horses and chariots, and they encircled the city of Dothan at night.

15The servant of the man of God woke up early and went outside. There he saw a great army, along with many horses and chariots, encircling Dothan.

Elisha's Servant: Ah! Master, what are we going to do now?

Elisha: 16Have no fear. We have more on our side than they do.

17(praying) O Eternal One, I ask You to allow my servant to see heavenly realities.

The Eternal awakened Elisha's servant so that he could see. This is what he saw: the mountain was covered with horses and chariots of fire surrounding Elisha. 18When the enemy approached Elisha, he prayed.

Elisha: Eternal One, I ask you to blind these people.

The Eternal blinded them, just as Elisha had requested.

Elisha *(to the blind army): 19*You are wrong.* This is the wrong path and the wrong city. I will lead you to the person you are really after.

Elisha then led them to Samaria.

Elisha *(arriving in Samaria): 20O Eternal One, I ask you to allow these men to see.

The Eternal awakened the men so they could see. This is what they saw: they were in Samaria. 21The king of Israel saw them.

King of Israel *(to Elisha): Do you want me to slaughter these men, my father? Shall I slaughter them?

Elisha: 22*No,* do not slaughter them. Would you really slaughter men whom you have captured with your sword and with your bow? Set the table and fill it with bread and water. Let them eat and drink and return to their own master.

► Similar to the Elijah story but expanded, the Elisha story relates the prophet's life and ministry mostly outside the land. While Elisha is given Elijah's mantle in Palestine, most of his traveling circuit occurs "outside the land" in Phoenicia or Syria. He even makes a prophecy over Hazael the next Syrian king and enemy of Israel.

The introduction of the figure Ben-hadad (meaning "son of Hadad," who is the central Syrian god) is pivotal for the rest of the stories of Elisha and Israel. The Eternal uses Syria (also called Aram) as an instrument of divine punishment for Israel's sins. Ultimately in 732 B.C., Damascus and Syria fall under the hand of Tiglath-Pileser III. The city of Samaria and the Northern Kingdom are conquered just 10 years later.

23Israel's king had the table set and offered the Arameans a great feast. After they ate and drank, Israel's king told them to leave. They returned to their own master, and the Arameans stopped sending raiding parties into Israel.

24Later, Ben-hadad,* Aram's king, assembled his army and surrounded Samaria. 25There was already a famine in Samaria. Aram's king surrounded Samaria for so long that, within Samaria, a donkey head cost two pounds of silver and two cups of dove's dung* cost two ounces of silver.

26Once when Israel's king was walking on the wall, a woman yelled up to him.

Woman: My lord and king, help!

* 6:24 This may have been Ben-hadad's son. * 6:25 A few versions based on the Dead Sea Scrolls have suggested a vegetable dish.

King of Israel: 27How am I supposed to help you if the Eternal does not help you? Do you expect me to miraculously get food from empty storerooms or drink from the silent winepress? 28But tell me, what is bothering you?

Woman: A woman approached me and said, "If you give up your son and allow us to eat him today, I promise to give up my son, too, and we can eat him tomorrow." 29*So I gave up* my son, and we boiled him and ate him. But when I went to the woman the next day and asked for her son so that we could eat him, she had hidden him.

30When the king heard of this horror, he ripped his clothes. Since he was walking on the wall, everyone who looked up saw that he was wearing sackcloth underneath.

King of Israel: 31May God behead me and even worse if the head of Elisha (Shaphat's son) is still attached to his body by the end of today.

32Meanwhile Elisha was resting in his house with the elders. The king had sent a messenger to him; but before the messenger arrived at Elisha's house, Elisha knew what would happen.

Elisha *(to the elders): Watch closely. A murderer's son desires my head on a platter. When the messenger arrives, close the door and hold it tightly shut. Certainly his master will be close behind him.

33While Elisha was telling the elders these things, the messenger arrived.

Messenger: This wickedness is from the Eternal. Why should I be patient for Him?

7 Elisha: Pay attention to this prediction from the Eternal. This is His message: "By this time tomorrow, 7 quarts of flour and 13 quarts of barley will sell for 11 grams at the market in the gate of Samaria."

2Then the king's first officer responded to the man of God.

First Officer: Even if the Eternal carved out windows in heaven, is this really possible?

Elisha: You will witness this event, but you will not be allowed to enjoy the feast.

3Meanwhile four men with skin diseases were standing and conversing near the gate entrance.

Diseased Men *(to each other): Why are we just sitting around here isolated, waiting to die? 4If we decide to go into the city where there is a famine, we will die just the same as if we stay here. So why don't we walk over to the Aramean camp and see if we can get some food; it is our only hope. If we live, then we live; if we die, then we die.

5Just before nightfall, they stood up and walked over to the Aramean camp, but when they got close to the camp, there was no one in sight. 6The Lord had fooled the Aramean army. He had caused them to imagine the monstrous noise of a mighty army of chariots and horses coming toward them.

Arameans *(to one another): That's not just the army of Israel. Israel's king has commissioned the Hittite kings and the Egyptian kings to war against us.

7So the Arameans ran away just before nightfall, without any fighting taking place. God caused them to abandon their tents, their horses, their donkeys, and the campsite, and run for their lives.

8When the diseased men arrived at the camp, they walked into one tent and ate and drank. They gathered up all the valuables they could find—clothes, silver, gold—and went out and hid them in a secret place. Then they went into another tent and did the same thing.

Diseased Men *(among themselves): 9This isn't right. We have stumbled upon a good thing, and we have kept it to ourselves. If we wait until sunrise, we will surely be punished for our silence. Let's go quickly now to tell the palace of this news.

10So they returned to the city and called to the gatekeepers.

Diseased Men *(to the gatekeepers): The Aramean camp is empty! We have just come from there, and there is not even a whisper of a man left there! The animals are still tied up, and the tents are still standing, but there is no one there!

11The gatekeepers went and told the palace about this strange news. 12The king woke up and listened to the report. He was immediately suspicious, so he explained his theory to his servants.

King of Israel: I don't trust this. I think I know what the Arameans are up to. They are fully aware that we are all starving, so they have hidden themselves in a field outside of their camp and have created a plan: "As soon as they leave the city, we will attack them and capture them and overtake their city."

Royal Servant: 13Allow a few men to take five of the horses that are still alive in this miserable city. They are already doomed to the same destiny as all the Israelites left here and all the Israelites who have already died; therefore, let's at least try to find a way to survive.

14So a few men took a couple of chariots along with some of the horses that were still alive in the city, and Israel's king told them, "Trail after the Aramean army, and get down to the bottom of this." 15The king's messengers traveled to the Jordan River and found that the trail was covered with clothing and weapons and tools that the Arameans had left behind in their haste. The messengers immediately went back and told the king what they had found.

16Everyone in the city went and raided the abandoned Aramean camp. So 7 quarts of premium flour were sold for 11 grams, and 13 quarts of barley were sold for the same, just as the Eternal had said they would be. 17The king instructed his first officer to guard the gate, but everyone ran over him at the gate on their way to raid the abandoned Aramean camp. He was killed, as the man of God had said he would be when the king had spoken to him.

18*You recall that* this man of God had told the king, "By this time tomorrow, 7 quarts of premium flour will sell for 11 grams, and 13 quarts of barley will sell for the same at the market in the gate of Samaria." 19The officer had then asked, "Even if the Eternal carved out windows in heaven, is it really possible?" Elisha had replied, "You will witness this event, but you will not be allowed to enjoy the feast." 20This was the truth about the officer's destiny, for he was killed at the city entrance—trampled by the starving, miserable citizens of Samaria.

8 Elisha went and warned the mother of the boy whom he had brought back to life.

Elisha: Get up and gather together your family and servants. Travel as far away from here as you can, and live as a resident alien. The Eternal is going to cause a great famine in the land for the next seven years.

2The woman did exactly as the man of God instructed her to do. She got up, gathered her family and servants together, and then settled in Philistine territory for seven years. 3After the seven years were over, she departed from Philistia and went back to her own land. When she returned home, she went straight to the king to argue that she be given back her house and her field.

4The king was speaking with Gehazi, servant of the man of God.

King of Israel: Tell me everything about Elisha. Fill me in on all the wonders he has done.

5*So Gehazi told the king everything.* Just when Gehazi got to the part about Elisha bringing the dead boy back to life, the boy's mother walked in and argued that the king should give her back her house and her field. Gehazi's excitement was piqued by the visitor's timing.

Gehazi: My lord and king, this is the woman I was just telling you about. And this is her son, the boy whom Elisha brought back to life!

6The king asked the woman if this was true, and she confirmed Gehazi's story. She told the king every detail. The king was delighted by this story, and he gave an assignment to one of his officials, a eunuch, on her behalf: "Give this woman back her house and her field, as well as all the earnings of her field that were harvested from the day that she left until now."

7Now when Elisha arrived in Damascus, Aram's king, Ben-hadad, was ill. A message arrived for the king: "The man of God has just arrived in Damascus."

Ben-hadad *(to Hazael): 8Greet him with a gift and with kindness. Ask the man of God to speak with the Eternal One and find out, "Am I going to get well?"

9Hazael greeted Elisha with a gift and with kindness. He did as instructed and offered him many excellent items from Damascus—40 camel loads of gifts.

Hazael (standing before Elisha): Benhadad, the king of Aram, who honors you like a father, has asked me to come to you and ask you, "Am I going to get well?"

Elisha: 10Yes, he will get well, but the Eternal has revealed to me that Ben-hadad will certainly die.

11Elisha held his gaze on Hazael until the prophet was ashamed, but then the man of God broke down and cried.

Hazael: 12Why are you crying, my lord?

Elisha: Because I am aware of all the wicked things you will do to the Israelites. You will set their strongholds on fire, slaughter their young men with swords, dismember their children, and tear open the bodies of pregnant women.

Hazael: 13*But I have no such will or power.* Am I, your servant, as low as a dog? Why do you think that I will do such a terrible thing?

Elisha: The Eternal has revealed to me that you will reign over Aram as king.

14Hazael went away from Elisha and went back to his king.

Ben-hadad: What did Elisha tell you?

Hazael: He said that it is certain that you will get well.

15The next day, Hazael grabbed the cover off Ben-hadad's bed, soaked it in water, and put it over the king's face until he died. Hazael then inherited the throne and reigned over Aram.

16During the 5th year of the reign of Joram (Ahab's son) of Israel, and when Jehoshaphat was king of Judah, Jehoram (Jehoshaphat's son) became Judah's king. 17When he inherited the throne, he was 32 years old, and his time as king lasted 8 years in Jerusalem. 18He lived his life as if he were a king in Israel, in the same wicked manner as Ahab's family. In fact, he married Ahab's daughter, and he committed countless deeds which the Eternal deemed wicked. 19But the Eternal refused to bring Judah to its end, because He had made a promise to David, His loyal servant, that David's progeny would always carry the lamp of his presence.

20During Jehoram's reign, Edom rebelled against Judah's rule and appointed its own king. 21Joram then traveled to Zair with all of his chariots. During the night, he awoke to find that the Edomites had surrounded his camp and chariot officers, so he fought them and broke out. After the attack, Joram and his people ran quickly back to their tents. 22Edom has been in rebellion against Judah ever since, even to this very day; at the same time, Libnah also rebelled. 23Is not the rest of Joram's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 24Joram left this world to sleep with his fathers, and he was buried in the city of David; Joram's son, Ahaziah, then inherited the throne of Judah.

25During the 12th year of the reign of Joram (Ahab's son), Ahaziah (Jehoram's son), Judah's king, inherited the throne. 26Ahaziah was 22 years old when he inherited the throne in Jerusalem, but his reign was short-lived: only one year. Ahaziah's mother was Athaliah (granddaughter of Omri, king of Israel). 27He lived in the same wicked way as Ahab's family, committing evil in the eyes of the Eternal because he was a son-in-law to Ahab's house.

28Ahaziah joined forces with Joram (Ahab's son and Ahaziah's own uncle) in battle against Hazael (Aram's king) at Ramoth-gilead. There Joram was injured by the Arameans. 29King Joram went to Jezreel to be healed of his injuries, which he had received from the Arameans. He would have plenty of scars by which to remember the battle at Ramah where he fought against Aram's king, Hazael. Ahaziah (son of Jehoram, king of Judah) then received word that Joram (Ahab's son) was ill, so he went to visit him in Jezreel.

9 The prophet Elisha gave instructions to one of the prophets' disciples.

Elisha: Prepare yourself, and transport this bottle of oil to Ramoth-gilead. 2Once you arrive, find Jehu (son of Jehoshaphat, Nimshi's son). Ask him to leave his brothers, and then lead him into a more private chamber. 3Anoint his head with oil from the bottle and speak these words: "This is the Eternal's message: 'I anoint you as Israel's king.'" Then exit through the door quickly, and do not look back.

4The young prophet traveled to Ramoth-gilead. 5When he got there, the military commanders were sitting together.

Young Prophet: I have a message for you, Commander.

Jehu: We are all commanders. Which commander do you seek?

Young Prophet: You, Commander.

6Jehu stood up, and he and the young prophet entered the house together. The young man anointed Jehu's head with oil and spoke these words:

Young Prophet: This is the message from the Eternal, Israel's God: "I anoint you as king over all of the Eternal's people. You are Israel's king. 7*The first thing I want* you to do is attack your master Ahab's house. Do this so that I may have vengeance for what Jezebel did to My prophets and to those who served Me. 8Slaughter all of Ahab's household, starting with King Joram. All the male members of Ahab's house, slave or free, will be killed in Israel. 9Ahab's household will be like the household of Jeroboam (Nebat's son) and the household of Baasha (Ahijah's son)—ruined. 10Jezebel will be devoured by dogs in the land of Jezreel. Her body will not be buried by anyone because it will be torn to pieces."

The young prophet then opened the door and departed in haste.

11When Jehu appeared before his master's servants, one of the commanders questioned him.

Commander: Is everything well? What did that lunatic have to say to you?

Jehu: You should already know this man and his talk of nonsense.

► Jehu's hesitation before telling his commanders what has happened is understandable. These men are all servants of King Joram. By allowing himself to be anointed as king, Jehu commits treason against his king, who has been God's chosen ruler. This story parallels the ascension of David to Israel's throne: both men serve in the king's army, are anointed in private, and are reluctant to kill the king. Just as David was the fresh start for all of Israel, Jehu is God's fresh start in the Northern Kingdom.

Commanders: 12We don't believe you. Tell us what he really said!

Jehu: Very well. This is what he told me: "This is the Eternal's message: 'I anoint you as Israel's king.'" 13All the men quickly took off their coats and placed them before Jehu on the steps. They sounded the trumpet.

Commanders: Jehu is now Israel's king!

14Jehu (son of Jehoshaphat, Nimshi's son) began plotting against Joram. The entire community of Israel with Joram was defending Ramoth-gilead against Hazael (Aram's king); but if you remember, 15King Joram had gone to Jezreel to wait for his injuries to heal—the injuries the Arameans had given him while he was fighting against Aram's king, Hazael.

Jehu: If you really want me to be king, then do not let anyone leave this city to spread this news in Jezreel.

16Jehu took a chariot to Jezreel, where Joram was resting. As you may recall, Ahaziah (Judah's king) was there visiting Joram. 17The watchman was up on the watchtower in Jezreel, and he saw Jehu and his followers approaching.

Watchman: There is a large group of people approaching.

Joram: Summon a horseman to go out to the group and ask them, "Do you come in peace?"

18A horseman went out and spoke to Jehu and his followers.

Horseman: The king asks, "Do you come in peace?"

Jehu: Peace? What do you know about peace? Get behind me, and follow.

The watchman immediately went and updated Joram about the situation.

Watchman: The horseman went out to them, but he did not come back.

19Joram summoned another horseman.

Second Horseman: The king asks, "Do you come in peace?"

Jehu: Peace? What do you know about peace? Get behind me, and follow.

20The watchman then went and updated Joram about the situation again.

Watchman: The second horseman went out to them, but he did not come back either. Their force and speed is as fierce as the crazy driving of Jehu (Nimshi's son).

Joram: 21Prepare my chariot.

So they prepared his chariot; and he and Ahaziah (Judah's king) went out together, each in his own chariot, to meet Jehu's caravan on Naboth the Jezreelite's land.

Joram *(face-to-face with Jehu): 22Do you come in peace, Jehu?

Jehu: Peace? What do you know about peace when the promiscuity and witchcraft of your mother, Jezebel, are too vast to measure!

23Joram quickly realized that Jehu intended to attack, so he immediately turned his chariot around, quickly rode away, and yelled out to Ahaziah.

Joram: We've been betrayed, Ahaziah! Quickly, ride away!

24But Jehu pulled his bowstring back as far as he could. He released an arrow that struck Joram between his shoulder blades, piercing straight through his heart. Joram fell over in his chariot.

Jehu *(to his officer, Bidkar): 25Pick up his body, and throw him into the field of Naboth the Jezreelite on the eastern slope of the Jezreel hill. I have just remembered that while you and I were riding after his father, Ahab, the Eternal revealed a prophecy concerning him: 26"I have seen the past and witnessed Naboth's blood and that of his sons as well. I will one day pay you back in this land," spoke the Eternal. So go now, pick up Joram's body, and throw him into Naboth's field, just as He has said.

27Ahaziah (Judah's king) witnessed all of this from a distance, and he rode away by the path to Beth-haggan. Jehu went after him.

Jehu *(calling out): Send an arrow toward his chariot, and kill him too!

They shot him at Ibleam as he was driving up toward Gur. But he did not die there. He continued on to Megiddo, where he took his last breath.

28Ahaziah's servants transported him to Jerusalem in a chariot. They buried him with his fathers in the city of David. 29During the 11th year of Joram (Ahab's son), Ahaziah inherited the throne over Judah.

30When Jehu arrived in Jezreel, Jezebel was informed of his arrival. She put on her best make-up and fixed her hair, and she stuck her head out her window. 31While Jehu rode through the gate, she taunted him.

Jezebel: Is everything okay, traitor?* Is everything all right, you murderer of your master?

Jehu *(looking up at her window): 32Is anyone in this city on my side? Anyone?

A few officers, who were eunuchs, peered down at him.

Jehu: 33*Seize her, and* throw her out the window!

They did as he instructed and threw her out the window. Her blood splattered everywhere—on the ground, on the wall, on the horses. He rode his horse over her and pounded her into the ground.

34He then went inside to eat and drink. After he had his fill, he gave instructions.

Jehu: Go take care of the mess outside. Give the accursed woman a proper

* 9:31 Hebrew, Zimri

burial. After all, she was a royal daughter.

35They went out to clean up the mess and bury her body; but when they got there, they found a most haunting sight. All that remained was her skull, her feet, and the palms of her hands. 36They went back and told Jehu this news, and he explained it to them.

Jehu: This is the Eternal's message which He gave through the prophet Elijah the Tishbite: "Jezebel will be devoured by dogs in the land of Jezreel.* 37Her body will be so gruesome that it will be like a pile of dung on the surface of a field in the land of Jezreel. No one will recognize the remains. No one will be able to say, 'This is Jezebel.'"

10 Ahab had many sons in Samaria—70 in all. This is how Jehu got the best of them: Jehu wrote many letters to Samaria—to the leaders in Jezreel, the elders, as well as the caretakers of Ahab's children.

Jehu's Letter: 2When you receive this letter, you will be in the company of Ahab's sons; and at your fingertips, you will have all the force you need—chariots, horses, weapons, and a fortified city. 3So choose the best and strongest son of your late master to inherit the throne, and then go fight with honor for your master's household.

4The leaders of Jezreel became immensely afraid because of Jehu's letter.

Leaders of Jezreel: If two mighty kings cannot survive this man, is it possible for us to survive him?

5*All the leading citizens of Jezreel*—leader of the city, house managers, elders, and the children's guardians—sent a letter back to Jehu.

Leaders' Letter: Mighty Jehu, consider us all your servants. We will do anything you ask. But know this, we are not going to give the throne to one of Ahab's sons. We hand this matter over to you and wish only for you to do what you think is best.

Jehu's Reply: 6*Prove yourselves.* If you have truly given yourselves over to my service and will do as I say, then I command you to behead Ahab's sons and bring the heads to me at Jezreel this time tomorrow.

All 70 of Ahab's sons lived with the chief men in the city, who were their guardians. 7After the leaders of Jezreel read Jehu's second letter, they beheaded all 70 of Ahab's sons. It was a horrific slaughter! They then placed all the heads in baskets and transported the blood-drenched baskets to Jezreel, so that Jehu would have proof of their obedience to him.

Servant (to Jehu): 8The heads of the late king's sons have arrived.

Jehu: Make two piles of them at the gate entrance, and leave them there until dawn.

9Dawn arrived, and Jehu addressed everyone.

Jehu: I speak to you who are innocent! I am responsible for slaughtering my king, but who is responsible for this slaughter? 10The word of the Eternal One is unbreakable. All that He has said would happen to Ahab's household has happened. His servant Elijah the prophet was His true messenger, a true man of God!

11Jehu slaughtered everyone who belonged to Ahab's household in Jezreel. He slaughtered all who knew Ahab—the mighty men of the city, the priests, and even mere acquaintances. There was not a single person left alive who knew Ahab.

► Whenever a king dies, there is always some struggle over who should follow him. Even when King David died, his successor was unclear (1 Kings 1). Since Jehu is not related to Ahab, he does not have a blood right to the throne; and since Jehu takes it by force, he must keep it by force. The best way to make sure none of Ahab's family and acquaintances conspire against him is to kill them all.

* 9:36 1 Kings 21:23

12*For example,* on his way to Samaria, when Jehu was with the shepherds at Beth-eked, 13he met some relatives of Ahaziah, king of Judah.

Jehu: Do I know you?

Ahaziah's Relatives: We are related to Ahaziah. We are here to meet the king and queen's sons.

Jehu: 14Seize them!

They seized Ahaziah's relatives, and they slaughtered them at the ditch of Beth-eked. There were 42 men slaughtered that day. Not a single man was left alive. No mercy was shown.

15Jehu left in his chariot, and he was met by Jehonadab (Rechab's son).

Jehu: I have no grievance against you. Do you have a problem with me?

Jehonadab: No. I am at peace with you, as you are at peace with me.

Jehu: If you truly are at peace with me, then offer your hand to me.

Jehonadab offered his hand to Jehu, and Jehu lifted him up into the chariot.

Jehu: 16You're coming with me. You will witness my zeal for the Eternal One.

So the two rode off together in Jehu's chariot. 17When they arrived in Samaria, Jehu slaughtered every person who was at all connected to Ahab. Finally every remnant of Ahab was erased from the earth. This all happened exactly as the Eternal said it would when He gave His message through Elijah.

18*For Jehu's next ingenious move,* he assembled everyone.

Jehu: Ahab served Baal a little, but I, Jehu, will serve him much more! 19Quick! Assemble all of Baal's servants together—his prophets, priests, and worshipers—so they can witness the great sacrifice I am going to offer Baal. If any of Baal's servants do not attend this sacrificial gathering, they will be slaughtered.

► Several cultures in the ancient Near East worshiped gods named Baal, which literally means, "lord." Baal began as a local Canaanite god of thunder and rain long before the Hebrews entered Canaan, but his cult spread to other nations and changed in each of them. One thousand years later, under Jezebel's influence, these Israelites are worshiping the Phoenician Baal, whom they consider the highest god and creator of the universe.

Jehu only said this sly thing so that he might slaughter Baal's servants all in one attack.

Jehu: 20Purify the sacred gathering for Baal.

They did as they were told.

21Jehu spread the word of this sacred gathering throughout all of Israel. Every single one of Baal's worshipers in the entire land attended. Everyone assembled inside the temple of Baal, and it was packed from wall to wall. Jehu continued pretending he was devoted to Baal. 22He gave instructions to the wardrobe manager.

Jehu: Bring out the proper robes to all of Baal's worshipers.

The wardrobe manager did as Jehu instructed and brought out the proper clothing to everyone.

23Jehu was accompanied by Jehonadab (Rechab's son) as he entered the temple of Baal. Jehu gave a strict command to Baal's worshipers.

Jehu: Look among yourselves, and make sure that none of the Eternal's servants have slipped in without us noticing. This is very important. There should be no one but Baal's servants within this room.

24All of Baal's servants began to give offerings and sacrifice burnt offerings to Baal. Outside the temple of Baal, Jehu had stationed 80 soldiers. He gave them strict instructions.

Jehu: Kill them all without mercy. If you let anyone escape, then you will die in his place.

25Jehu offered a burnt offering for show; and after he finished with it, he gave the command to the soldiers and their officers.

Jehu: It's time. Go inside quickly, and be sure to slaughter every last one of them. Don't let any escape alive.

Needless to say, when the soldiers enter the place of burnt offerings, all of Baal's servants are shocked and horrified by the attack.

The soldiers slaughtered every one of Baal's servants with the sword—one by one. After the massacre was over, the soldiers and the officers then tossed the corpses outside of Baal's temple. When they had removed all of the corpses, they entered the inner chamber. 26There they tore down and removed the sacred pillars from this pagan temple, and they set them on fire. 27They tore down Baal's sacred pillar and proceeded to tear down the rest of Baal's temple. Ever since then, that place has been designated as a latrine, even to this day.

28And that is the story of how Jehu exterminated Baal worship from the community of Israel. 29But Jehu emulated the wickedness of Jeroboam (Nebat's son)—causing the Israelites to live sinful lives. He did not turn away from the golden calves in Bethel and in Dan.

Eternal One *(to Jehu): 30I commend you for your good work. You have honored Me by destroying Ahab's household as I desired. I am going to reward you by allowing your sons, until the fourth generation, to reign over Israel.

31*After all that Jehu had done, and even after the Lord had honored him,* he fell from the higher path, from the ways of the Eternal. His whole heart did not belong to Israel's God. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam, causing the Israelites to live sinful lives.

32During that time, the Eternal One began reducing the territorial holdings of Israel.

Hazael and his Aramean army are the human instrument for this act of divine judgment.

Hazael conquered these sections throughout the land of Israel—33all territories east of the Jordan River (where the Gileadites, the Gadites, the Reubenites, and the Manassites lived), from Aroer (near the Arnon Valley) north to Gilead and Bashan as well.

34Is not the rest of Jehu's story—his accomplishments and his actions—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? 35Jehu left this world to sleep with his fathers, and he was laid to rest in Samaria. His son, Jehoahaz, then inherited the throne. 36Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria for 28 years.

11 When Ahaziah's mother, Athaliah, found out that Ahaziah had been killed, she saw to it that the rest of the royal offspring were killed.

► Athaliah acts as many of the other monarchs and kills potential rivals so no one can challenge her ascension to the throne. But one of the royal offspring survives, and this is how it happens:

2Jehosheba, King Joram's daughter and Ahaziah's sister and wife of Jehoiada the priest, took one of Ahaziah's sons, Joash,* away from the rest of the royal offspring who were being killed; and she hid him in the bedchamber of the temple priests where he would be safe with his nurse. By hiding him from Athaliah, Jehosheba ensured his survival. 3Joash and his nurse lived secretly in the Eternal's temple for the six years Athaliah ruled Judah.

4During the seventh year, Jehoiada summoned the commanders of the Carites' divisions and of the soldiers; and he gave them instructions to meet him in the Eternal's house. There in the temple, Jehoiada entered into a covenant with them and made them swear to honor it. Then he revealed Ahaziah's son, Joash, to them.

Jehoiada: 5This is what we will do: I am commanding it. On the Sabbath when you are on duty, I want a third of you men to guard the palace, 6another third to stand guard at the gate of Sur, and the remaining third to stand guard at the gate that is directly behind the soldiers. The first third must be unfaltering in watching the palace. 7The other two-thirds, who normally go off duty on the Sabbath, must also be alert and keep a close watch over the Eternal's temple for the sake of the king. 8*When the time is right,* all of you are to take your weapons in hand and encircle the king. Kill anyone who tries to break through the circle to get to the king. Stay near the king wherever he is—whether he is coming or going. He must be left untouched.

9All the commanders of hundreds did exactly as Jehoiada the priest had instructed them to do. The commanders gathered their men coming on duty and going off duty on the Sabbath and brought them to Jehoiada the priest. 10The priest handed out King David's spears and shields to all the commanders, the weapons that were kept in the Eternal's temple. 11Then all the protectors took up their weapons and went to their posts—on the right and left of the palace, by the temple and its altar, and around the king.

Jehoiada arranges everything so that the route from the palace to the temple is blocked.

12Jehoiada then escorted the king's son and placed the crown atop his head. He gave him the testimony of dedication, and he anointed Joash as king. In that moment, his kingship was made official. Then every one clapped and cheered.

People: May King Joash live forever!

13Athaliah heard the loud noise that the guards and the people were making, and she went to meet everyone who was in the Eternal's temple. 14*When she got there,* she looked over and saw the new king standing by the sacred pillar, according to tradition. The commanders and trumpeters were standing next to him. Everyone was celebrating and blowing their trumpets. When Athaliah perceived all of this, she tore her garments.

Athaliah: Treason! Treason! All of you are treacherous traitors!

15Jehoiada the priest was in charge of all the commanders of hundreds who were in charge of the army units.

Jehoiada: Make her come stand among the ranks, and we shall see who is on her side. Kill anyone who follows her or shows loyalty to her.

Because the priest had warned, "Do not spill her blood in the Eternal's temple," 16they grabbed her and escorted her to the palace entrance that was used by mounted riders, and they executed her there.

17Jehoiada then entered into a covenant between the Eternal, the king, and the people: the king and his people would belong to the Eternal and live as God's people, and the people would accept Joash as their king. 18*Immediately after the covenant was made,* everyone in the country rushed over to Baal's temple and demolished it. They destroyed Baal's altars and shattered everything made in his image. They slaughtered Mattan, Baal's priest, right in front of the altars. Jehoiada then designated special guards to protect the Eternal's temple. 19He gathered up the commanders of hundreds of the Carites' divisions, the soldiers, and everyone in the entire country. They escorted the king from the Eternal's temple to the palace and then traveled together through the soldiers' gate. King Joash then sat upon the throne. 20Everyone in the entire country was glad, and the entire city was calm and at peace. They had put an end to Athaliah by killing her with a sword at the palace.

21Jehoash* was only seven years old when all this took place and he began to reign.

12 During Jehu's seventh year, Jehoash inherited the throne in Jerusalem. His reign lasted for 40 years. His mother was Zibiah of Beersheba. 2Jehoash was righteous in the Eternal's eyes during the entire time he was mentored by Jehoiada the priest. 3But the high places remained. They were not destroyed, and people still went to them to offer sacrifices and burn incense.

► The "high places" where the Israelites worship the Lord start out as pagan shrines. When Solomon builds the temple in Jerusalem, he converts those high places to shrines—honoring both the Eternal of Israel and the foreign deities that are worshiped by his many wives and concubines—so the northern tribes don't have to travel so far to worship and so the locals can retain some of their heritage. Unfortunately Solomon's attempt to grow the worship of God in the north produces odd cults that blend worship of the Lord with worship of other gods at these high places. No matter how good a king is, if he leaves the high places standing, then he isn't fully committing his nation to God and there must be repercussions.

Jehoash *(to the priests): 4Any money that comes into the Eternal's house, any monetary offerings that a man is led to give—money for sacred things, census fees, personal vows, and goodwill offerings—5belong to the priests, from the contributors, so they can repair what needs to be repaired in the Eternal's temple.

6During King Jehoash's 23rd year, the Eternal One's temple was only getting worse because the priests had not used any money to repair the Eternal One's house. 7So King Jehoash questioned Jehoiada and the other priests.

Jehoash: Why have you not made the needed repairs for the Lord's temple? The dilapidations are only getting worse. Don't take any more money from anyone. Use all the money that has been collected already to repair the Eternal's house immediately.

8The priests agreed they would not take any more monetary offerings from anyone, and they would not repair the Eternal's temple.

9-10Jehoiada the priest gouged a hole in the lid of a chest and set it next to the altar. He put it on the right side of the altar, so that everyone walked past it as they entered into the Eternal's temple. The priests who stood at the entrance placed all the monetary offerings that were carried into the Eternal's temple into the chest. When the chest was almost full, the king's secretary and the high priest counted the money and placed it into separate bags. 11They handed the money to the workers who took care of the Eternal's temple, and then handed out money to the carpenters and builders who repaired it, 12and they also gave some of the money to the masons and stonecutters who paid for the wood and carved stone and other materials that went into repairing the Eternal's temple. 13None of the monetary offerings that were given to the Eternal's temple were used to make silver cups, snuffers, bowls, trumpets, gold vessels, or silver vessels. 14All the money went to those who repaired the Eternal's temple for their work. 15The priests did not ask for any receipts or documentation to be made of the financial handlings. The workers were completely trustworthy and did not cheat. 16Any monetary offerings—be they guilt offerings or sin offerings—still belonged to the priests and were not carried into the Eternal's temple.

► With the exception of a burnt offering, which is totally consumed and dedicated to God, all offerings are shared among the priests. They keep money that is donated, and they eat parts of the meat and bread offerings as their meals. In spite of the new restrictions, they are allowed to keep the portion given to them in the law.

17Meanwhile Hazael (Aram's king) was fighting Gath in Philistia, and he took the entire city captive. Then he put his sights on Jerusalem. 18Jehoash, Judah's king, gathered up all the sacred articles that his ancestors, Judah's kings—Jehoshaphat and Jehoram and Ahaziah—had consecrated, as well as all the many articles he himself had consecrated. He gathered up all the gold in the treasuries in the Eternal's temple and in the palace, and he sent it all to Hazael, Aram's king. After that, Hazael departed from Jerusalem.

19Is not the rest of Jehoash's* story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 20Those who served Joash plotted against him, and they killed him at the house of Millo while he was on his way to Silla.

* 12:19 Throughout 2 Kings 11–13 Joash and Jehoash are the same Judean king.

21Joash's own servants, Jozacar (Shimeath's son) and Jehozabad (Shomer's son) were the ones who assassinated him.
They laid him to rest with his ancestors in the city of David. Joash's son, Amaziah, then inherited the throne.

13 When Joash, son of Ahaziah and king of Judah, had ruled Judah 23 years, Jehoahaz (Jehu's son) succeeded his father as king of Israel in Samaria. He sat upon the throne for 17 years. 2Jehoahaz committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son) causing the Israelites to live sinful lives. Jehoahaz did not abandon Jeroboam's sins.

3The Eternal's wrath burned against Israel, and He handed them over to Hazael, Aram's king, and to Ben-hadad, Hazael's son. 4Jehoahaz begged for the Eternal One to hear him, and the Eternal granted his desperate request and listened to him. He perceived the suffering of Israel, and He knew how Aram's king caused that suffering. 5The Eternal One sent a savior, so that they escaped from the rule of the Arameans. The Israelites then went back to living in their own tents. 6Even though they escaped from the Arameans, the Israelites continued walking the wicked path that they had learned from the family of Jeroboam—the path that caused the Israelites to live sinful lives. The sacred poles were not demolished in Samaria either. They remained standing and in use. 7Jehoahaz's army was decimated. He was left with only 50 horsemen, 10 chariots, and 10,000 foot soldiers at most. Aram's king had killed everyone else. They were trampled like dust on the ground.

8Is not the rest of Jehoahaz's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? 9Jehoahaz left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest in Samaria. His son, Joash, then inherited the throne.

10During the 37th year of Joash of Judah's reign, Jehoash (Jehoahaz's son) inherited the throne of Israel in Samaria.
His reign lasted 16 years. 11He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son)— causing the Israelites to live sinful lives.

12Is not the rest of the story of Joash (King of Israel)—his actions and his courage toward Amaziah, Judah's king—
documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? 13Joash of Israel left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest in Samaria with Israel's kings.
Jeroboam then inherited the throne.

14Now Elisha was sick with a terminal illness; and Joash, Israel's king, came to visit him. He cried over Elisha,

Joash quotes the prophet Elisha's own words to Elijah before he ascended.

Joash: My father, O my father! The chariots and riders of Israel!*

Elisha: 15*Quickly* find a bow and some arrows.

Joash did as Elisha instructed and brought a bow and some arrows back to Elisha's bedside.

Elisha: 16Now grip the bow tightly.

So Joash gripped the bow, and Elisha placed his hands over the king's hands.

Elisha: 17Now open the window facing east.

So Joash opened the window.

Elisha: Now launch the arrow as far as you can!

So Joash drew back the bow and launched the arrow as far as he could.

Elisha: That was the Eternal's victory arrow! You will crush the Arameans at Aphek! You will do more than just win;
you will ruin them! 18(pausing) Here,
take these arrows.

So Joash took the arrows.

Elisha: Hit the ground with them.

So Joash hit the ground three times and stood up. 19But the man of God became angry at this.

Elisha: You only hit the ground three times!
If you had hit the ground five or six times, then you would have completely ruined the Arameans. But because you

* 13:14 2 Kings 2:12

only hit the ground three times, you will only defeat Aram three times.

20Elisha then died and was laid to rest.

The Moabite bandits used to storm the land every spring. It was expected by the people. 21*During the springtime,* while a group of men were out burying a man, they spied a gang of bandits approaching them. They became afraid, so they threw the dead man's body into Elisha's grave. As soon as the dead man's body touched the bones of Elisha, the dead man miraculously came back to life and stood up.

► This miracle, which is unlike anything else in the Bible, must have happened years after Elisha's death if nothing is left but his bones. Obviously this demonstrates the amazing power Elisha must have had in life, if simple contact with his remains revives a dead man. The demonstration of Elisha's power, however, is not the author's primary intention as he records this story. This story is an illustration of what's about to happen in Israel; a renaissance is coming through their king, Joash.

22Hazael, Aram's king, persecuted and abused the Israelites all during Jehoahaz's reign. 23But the Eternal One was gracious and compassionate toward them. He was good and turned his face to them because of the covenant He had made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The Eternal, true to His promise, had protected them and remained near them until now.

24After Hazael (Aram's king) died, his son, Ben-hadad, inherited the throne. 25Jehoash, the king of Israel and Jehoahaz's son, captured the same cities from Ben-hadad (Hazael's son) that Ben-hadad had captured from his father, Jehoahaz. Joash crushed him and delivered Israel's cities three different times just as Elisha had prophesied.

14 During the second year of Joash (son of Joahaz, Israel's king), Amaziah (son of Joash, Judah's king) inherited the throne in Judah. 2Amaziah was 25 years old when he took the throne, and he sat upon it in Jerusalem for 29 years. Amaziah's mother was Jehoaddin of Jerusalem. 3Amaziah did what was good in the Eternal's eyes, but not to the extent that his forefather David had. Amaziah was a lot more like his father, Joash, than he was like David, for he was not as devoted to the Lord as David was. 4But the high places were not destroyed. They remained standing, and everyone continued to offer sacrifices and burn incense there.

5As soon as Amaziah inherited the throne, he crushed all the servants who participated in the assassination of his father, King Joash. 6But he left the sons of the murderers alive because of the Eternal's command written in Moses' book of laws, "Fathers should not be killed because of the sins of their sons, and sons should not be killed because of the sins of their fathers. Every man is to be held accountable for his own sins."*

7Amaziah crushed 10,000 Edomites while fighting in the valley of Salt, and he won Sela in battle and renamed it Jok-theel. That name remains today.

8Amaziah sent messengers to Jehoash, Israel's king, who was the son of Jehoahaz (Jehu's son).

Amaziah's Message: Let's see how brave you are; I challenge you to come meet me face-to-face.

Jehoash's reply: 9There was a thornbush in Lebanon that said to the cedar tree in Lebanon, "Hand your daughter over to my son as a wife." But a wild animal in Lebanon walked by about that time and destroyed the thornbush.

10You have crushed Edom, but your heart has become swollen with pride. Take pleasure in what you have already won, and delight in your home for a while. Why would you want to stir up unnecessary troubles and have yourself and Judah taste defeat?

11But Amaziah was stubborn and did not listen to Jehoash's advice. So Jehoash (Israel's king) went to meet Amaziah (Judah's king) face-to-face at Beth-shemesh, in the land of Judah. 12Israel won the victory, and Judah was left defeated. Then both went back to their own tents. 13Jehoash (Israel's king) took Amaziah (Judah's king) captive at Beth-shemesh and brought him to Jerusalem. Jehoash demolished a large part of the Jerusalem Wall—from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate, 600 feet in all. 14He then took possession of all the precious valuables he could find—the gold, silver, and objects that were in the Eternal's temple and in the king's palace treasuries. He also took hostages and then went back to Samaria.

15Are not the remainder of Jehoash's deeds—his mighty actions and how he defeated Amaziah (Judah's king)—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? 16Jehoash left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest in Samaria with Israel's kings. His son, Jeroboam, then inherited the throne in Israel.

17Amaziah (Joash's son), king of Judah was alive for 15 years after the death of Jehoash (Jehoahaz's son), king of Israel. 18Is not the rest of Amaziah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 19They plotted against him in Jerusalem, and he ran away to Lachish. But they followed after him to Lachish and killed him. 20They brought his body back to Jerusalem on horses, and they buried him with his ancestors in the city of David, as was tradition. 21Everyone in Judah raised up his 16-year-old son, Azariah, to be king. Azariah then inherited his father's throne. 22After his father left this world to sleep with his fathers, Azariah rebuilt Elath and restored it to Judah.

23During the 15th year of Amaziah (Joash's son), Jeroboam (Jehoash's son) inherited Israel's throne in Samaria. Jeroboam's reign lasted 41 years. 24Jeroboam (Joash's son) committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son) causing the Israelites to live sinful lives. 25He reinstated Israel's border from the Hamath entrance to Aram all the way to the Arabah Sea. He did this exactly as the Eternal One, the True God of Israel, had said through his servant, the prophet Jonah (Amittai's son) who was from Gath-hepher.

► Several of the prophets whose writings are included in the Old Testament are active at this time. While the writings of Jonah do not relate to these events, many of the other prophets' works do. Amos and Hosea are both prophesying to the Northern Kingdom, warning them to return to God or else their nation will be destroyed. Joel, Jeremiah, and Zephaniah are doing the same thing in the Southern Kingdom, while Isaiah and Micah really get around, prophesying to both kingdoms.

26The Eternal One observed Israel's intense, bitter suffering whether they were free men or slaves. There was no one who came to the aid of Israel. 27The Eternal had not said He would erase the reputation or remembrance of Israel from under heaven, so He rescued them through Jeroboam (Joash's son).

28Is not the rest of Jeroboam's story—how he restored Damascus and Hamath to Judah in Israel* through his military exploits—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? 29Jeroboam left this world to sleep with his fathers, including Israel's kings. His son, Zechariah, then inherited the throne.

15 During the 27th year of Jeroboam, king of Israel, Azariah (Amaziah's son) inherited the throne of Judah. 2Azariah was only 16 years old when he inherited the throne, and his reign in Jerusalem lasted 52 years. His mother was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. 3He did what was good in the Eternal's eyes and followed in the footsteps of his father, Amaziah.

4But the high places remained. They were not destroyed, and the people continued to offer sacrifices and burn incense there. 5*Sadly,* the Eternal One afflicted the king with a skin disease until his dying day. He lived in a quarantined house so that he would not make anyone else ritually unclean; and his son, Jotham, took care of Azariah's household and acted as judge over all the people in Judah.

6Is not the rest of Azariah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 7Azariah left this world to sleep with his fathers, and his body was laid to rest with his ancestors in the city of David, as was tradition. Azariah's son, Jotham, then inherited the throne.

* 14:28 Meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

[8]During Azariah's 38th year as king of Judah, Zechariah (Jeroboam's son) inherited the throne of Israel in Samaria. His reign only lasted six months. [9]He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes, just as those who reigned before him did. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son) causing the Israelites to live sinful lives. [10]Shallum (Jabesh's son) plotted against Zechariah and assassinated him in front of everyone. Shallum then inherited the throne.

[11]Is not the rest of Zechariah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

[12]This is the promise that the Eternal One had given to Jehu: "Your sons, until the fourth generation, will reign over Israel." And that is exactly what happened.

The Eternal One keeps His promise. Four generations after Jehu ruled—Jehoahaz, Joash, Jeroboam, and Zechariah—Jabesh's son ends the dynasty.

[13]Shallum (Jabesh's son) took over the throne during the 39th year of Uzziah (also known as Azariah), Judah's king. Shallum's reign lasted one month in Samaria. [14]Menahem (Gadi's son) arrived in Samaria from Tirzah and assassinated Shallum (Jabesh's son). Menahem then inherited the throne. [15]Is not the rest of Shallum's story—including the coup he planned—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

[16]Menahem then attacked Tiphsah and everyone who was living there, all the way to Tirzah. He savagely attacked them because they would not let him in. He, in a nightmarish act, tore apart every pregnant woman he could find.

[17]During Azariah's 39th year as Judah's king, Menahem (Gadi's son) took over Israel's throne in Samaria. His reign lasted 10 years. [18]He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son) causing the Israelites to live sinful lives.

[19]Tiglath-pileser,* Assyria's king, waged war against Israel, but Menahem tried to pay tribute with 37 tons of silver so that Tiglath-pileser would help make Menahem's rule stronger and save Israel from invasion. [20]Menahem gathered the money from all the rich people in Israel. He took 20 ounces of silver from each person and gave it to the Assyrian king. After he had received all the money, the Assyrian king went back to Assyria.

► Tiglath-pileser III is one of Assyria's strongest kings. After seizing the throne during a civil war in 745 B.C., he sets out on a wildly successful campaign, enlarging Assyria's sphere of influence from the northern part of the Northern Kingdom all the way to Babylon. As Assyria grows, its army grows because Tiglath-pileser incorporates the conquered people into his army. He cannot be stopped. He lays the groundwork for his son, Shalmaneser V, who will continue campaigning and actually conquer the Northern Kingdom, deporting Israelites to other parts of the Assyrian Empire.

[21]Is not the rest of Menahem's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings? [22]Menahem left this world to sleep with his fathers. Menahem's son, Pekahiah, then inherited the throne.

[23]During Azariah's 50th year as king of Judah, Pekahiah (Menahem's son) inherited the throne of Israel in Samaria, and his reign only lasted two years. [24]He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son), causing the Israelites to live sinful lives. [25]Pekah (Remaliah's son), one of Pekahiah's officials, plotted against him in secret and killed him in Samaria, along with two of Pekahiah's loyal bodyguards, Argob and Arieh. The killings took place in the palace citadel. The conspirator, Pekah, was joined by 50 Gileadites in his assassination of the king and two of his bodyguards. Pekah then took over the throne. [26]Is not the rest of Pekahiah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

[27]During Azariah's 52nd year as king of Judah, Pekah (Remaliah's son) inherited Israel's throne in Samaria. His reign lasted 20 years. [28]He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He walked the wicked path of Jeroboam (Nebat's son) causing the Israelites to live sinful lives.

29During Pekah's reign over Israel, Tiglath-pileser, the Assyrian king, took possession of Ijon, Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilead, Galilee, and all of Naphtali; and he also took the inhabitants as captives and deported them to Assyria. 30Hoshea (Elah's son) secretly plotted against Pekah (Remaliah's son) and assasinated him. Hoshea then took over the throne during the 20th year of the reign of Jotham (son of Azariah who was also known as Uzziah) in Judah.

31Is not the rest of Pekah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Israel's kings?

32During the second year of Pekah (Remaliah's son) the king in Israel, Jotham (son of Azariah who was also known as Uzziah) inherited the throne of Judah. 33Jotham was 25 years old when he inherited the throne. His reign in Jerusalem lasted 16 years. His mother was Jerusha (Zadok's daughter). 34He did what was good in the Eternal's eyes and followed the example of his father, Uzziah. 35But the high places remained, though Jotham did not support them. Sacrifices were still offered and incense was still burned there by the people. He also constructed the upper gate of the Eternal's house.

36Is not the rest of Jotham's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 37During that time, the Eternal One dispatched Rezin (Aram's king) and Pekah (Remaliah's son) from Israel to wage war against Judah. 38Jotham left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest in the city of David. His son, Ahaz, then inherited the throne.

16 During the 17th year of the reign of Pekah (Remaliah's son) as king of Israel, Ahaz (Jotham's son) inherited the throne in Judah. 2Ahaz was 20 years old when he inherited the throne, and his reign in Jerusalem lasted 16 years. He did not do what was good in the eyes of the Eternal, his True God, unlike his ancestor, David. 3He walked the wicked path of Israel's kings, and he even made his own son go through the fire as a child sacrifice. He did this, modeling the abhorrent practices of nations whom the Eternal had exiled to make way for the Israelites. 4He also offered sacrifices and burned incense at the high places, on hills, and beneath every green tree.

5Then Rezin, Aram's king, and Pekah (Remaliah's son and king of Israel) approached Jerusalem with one thing in mind—war.

Their goal is to get Judah to join them in an alliance against Assyria. This is known as the Syro-Ephraimite War.

They laid siege to Ahaz but were unsuccessful in defeating him. 6Rezin, Aram's king, brought Elath back into Aram's possession. He drove out the Judeans who lived there. Arameans moved back to Elath and still live there today.

7Ahaz dispatched messengers to Tiglath-pileser, Assyria's king.

Ahaz: I am your servant and your son. I need your help now. Please rescue me from the grip of Aram's king and Israel's king. They are swarming against me at this very moment.

8Ahaz then gathered up all the silver and gold in the Eternal's temple and in the palace treasuries, and he gave it to Assyria's king as a gift. 9Assyria's king received the gift and listened to the message. He responded by attacking and capturing Damascus, the capital of Aram. He exiled the inhabitants of Damascus to Kir, and he killed Rezin.

10King Ahaz traveled to Damascus to meet with Assyria's king, Tiglath-pileser. There he laid eyes upon the altar in Damascus so he sent renderings of the altar—its patterns and design—to the priest Urijah.

► Ahaz is enamored with the Syrian altar and its design. He wants to build something just like it for the temple, possibly because the bronze altar at the Jerusalem temple is too small (1 Kings 8:64).

11Urijah the priest then constructed an altar from the plans King Ahaz had sent from Damascus. Urijah made it an exact likeness, and he completed it before Ahaz returned from Damascus.

12After his return from Damascus, Ahaz saw the new altar Urijah had constructed, walked up to it, and offered 13burnt offerings, meal offerings, and drink offerings and anointed the altar with blood from the peace offerings as Solomon had done when he dedicated the first bronze altar. 14He carried the bronze altar from the entryway of the temple to the north side of the new altar, so that it remained before the Eternal One.

Ahaz (to Urijah the priest): 15Use the new and magnificent altar for both my offerings and the people's offerings. The morning burnt offering and evening meal offering and the king's burnt offering and meal offering, as well as the people's burnt offering and meal offering and drink offerings, can go on the new altar, anointed with the blood of the burnt offering and sacrifice; but the bronze altar is only for me to pray. The people cannot use it ever.

16Urijah the priest followed all of King Ahaz's instructions.

17Then King Ahaz severed the edges of the stands and took out the basins. He removed the basin from the bronze oxen beneath it and set it on a stone platform. 18He also took out the Sabbath canopy that was constructed in the Eternal One's temple and the outer entryway for the king because of Assyria's king. 19Is not the rest of Ahaz's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 20Ahaz left this world to sleep with his fathers and was buried with them in the city of David, as was tradition. His son, Hezekiah, then inherited the throne.

17 During the 12th year of Ahaz (Judah's king), Hoshea (Elah's son) inherited Israel's throne in Samaria. His reign lasted nine years. 2He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes, but not in the same way some of Israel's kings had.

3Shalmaneser, Assyria's king, waged war against Hoshea, but Hoshea humbled himself before Shalmaneser by paying tribute. 4But Shalmaneser sensed a secret plot in Hoshea who, instead of paying the expected tribute to Shalmaneser as he had done yearly, had sent messengers to So, the king of Egypt. Because of this, Assyria's king bound and locked Hoshea in prison.

* 17:12 Exodus 20:4-5

► The easiest way to make Assyria angry is to attempt an alliance with Egypt. During this time, Assyria and Egypt are the two "world powers," struggling to expand their borders and continually fighting over Israel and Judah, who are stuck in the middle. Hoshea's appeal to Egypt for help is a perfectly logical move. Unfortunately, Egypt does not help, and without military power to back up Hoshea's bold refusal to pay tribute, the Northern Kingdom is doomed.

5Assyria's king then invaded Israel and besieged Samaria for three years. 6During Hoshea's ninth year, Assyria's king captured Samaria and carried off the Israelites to exile in Assyria. The exiles were forced to stay in Halah and Habor on the Gozan River and also in the cities of the Medes.

7This all happened because the Israelites had committed countless wicked deeds against their God, the Eternal One, who brought them out of Egypt and freed them from the oppression fueled by Pharaoh, Egypt's king. They revered gods other than the Lord 8and lived by the wicked traditions of the people whom the Eternal had forced out of the land before the Israelites arrived. They lived by the religious and cultural practices that Israel's kings had introduced. 9The Israelites committed unrighteous acts and tried to hide them from the Eternal their God; but of course, the Lord witnessed them all. They constructed high places everywhere, small or large—from lookout towers to fortified cities. 10They decorated every hill and the shade of every tree with holy pillars and sacred poles. 11They burned incense at all the high places just as the people whom the Eternal One had forced out of the land before them had done. They repeated the very same sins. They did many wicked deeds, provoking the anger of the Eternal. 12They placed themselves in the service of idols—the same ones He had given them instructions about, commanding, "Do not do this. They are evil!"*

13The Eternal One gave fair warning to Israel and Judah. He gave His warning through the mouths of prophets and seers throughout the land: "Abandon your wickedness, and obey My commands and laws which I gave to your ancestors through the mouths of My servants, the prophets."

14But the Israelites were fools and did not heed the warning. They were stubborn just like their ancestors who did not trust in the Eternal One their God. 15They spurned His laws and even the covenant He had entered into with their ancestors. They rejected the fair warnings He gave to them. They were devoted to their own vanity and followed the same wicked path as the neighboring nations—the ones He had instructed them not to imitate. 16They abandoned all the laws the Eternal One their God had given to them. They crafted two golden calves, put up a sacred pole, and also praised the sun, the moon, the stars, and Baal as their master. 17They made their children pass through the fire, they performed witchcraft and divining, and they committed evil in the eyes of the Eternal and provoked Him to burn with anger. 18Therefore, He was furious with Israel, so He banished them from His sight. The only tribe that remained was Judah. 19But Judah also abandoned the laws of their God, the Eternal One, and they walked the same wicked path the Israelites had walked. 20He rejected all the sons and daughters of Israel and banished them from His sight. He made them suffer and handed them over to pillagers until they were finally cast out of His presence.

21After the Eternal had cut Israel out of the house of David, the people made Jeroboam (Nebat's son) their first king. But he caused the people to turn away from the Eternal One and caused Israel to sin in every way. 22The Israelites walked the wicked path of Jeroboam 23until the Eternal removed Israel from His presence, just as He had said through the mouths of His servants the prophets. The Israelites were forced to leave their own land and go live in Assyria, where they still dwell today.

24Assyria's king transported men from Babylon, Cuthah, Avva, Hamath, and Sephar-vaim, and he made them live in the Samaritan towns and cities where the Israelites had lived. Samaria now belonged to these new inhabitants of the towns and cities. 25When they first began living in Samaria, the foreigners lacked any fear of the Eternal One. So He caused lions to invade their ignorant community and kill some of the people. 26One of them contacted Assyria's king.

New Samaritan: The people you have transported to the cities of Samaria from foreign lands do not know the ways of Samaria's God. He caused lions to invade our community and kill some of the people who are ignorant of the ways of Samaria's God.

King of Assyria: 27Send for one of the exiled priests, and take him back there so he can teach these new inhabitants the ways of Samaria's God.

28*Ironically* a priest who was exiled by God for not following His ways was brought back to Samaria and became responsible for teaching the new inhabitants how to revere the Eternal. He stayed at Bethel.

34Still today, they honor the earlier traditions of the wicked people before them, and they fail to revere the Eternal properly. They do not honor the sacred laws and judgments that He gave to the descendants of Jacob (whom He called Israel). 35He entered into a sacred covenant with the new Samaritans and gave them the same sacred commands to follow.

Eternal One: I am your God! Do not fear, bow down to, serve, or sacrifice to any other gods except for Me. 36You should only fear, bow down to, and sacrifice to Me who led you out of Egypt with My great power and an outstretched arm. 37Be careful to observe all the laws, statutes, ordinances, and commands I have inscribed for you. And do not revere any other gods. 38Remember the sacred covenant you have entered into with Me, and do not revere any other gods except Me. I am your God—your only God! 39You should only fear the Eternal One your God. I will deliver you from the grip of your enemies.

40But they did not listen to the Lord's message. Instead they did just as they had done when they lived in their own nations. 41They feared the Eternal One while at the same time serving their own idols. Their descendants have done the same ever since.

► In the New Testament, tension remains between the former "Northern Kingdom" and "Southern Kingdom," although the names have changed. The Judeans in the south argue that only they maintain God's law, and that the Samaritans in the north are no longer God's people. Of course, the Samaritans believe the opposite. This argument started because of Assyria's deportation practices. Although the religion of the Lord remained active in the Northern Kingdom after the Assyrian conquest, the importing of people from all over the East caused the religion to be combined with alien, pagan practices.

18 During the third year of Hoshea (Elah's son and the last king of Israel), Hezekiah (Ahaz's son) inherited the throne in Judah. 2Hezekiah was 25 when he inherited the throne. His reign in Jerusalem lasted 29 years. His mother was Abi (Zechariah's daughter). 3He did what was good in the Eternal's eyes, and he walked the same righteous path as his ancestor, David.

4He tore down all of the wicked high places and demolished all the holy pillars and the sacred pole. He shattered the bronze serpent that Moses had crafted because the Israelites burned incense to honor it.* The bronze serpent was named, "the bronze thing."* 5Hezekiah put his trust in the Eternal One, Israel's God. Before and after his righteous reign, no other king ever compared to him in Judah. 6He embraced the Eternal, and he did not abandon the righteous path. He obeyed all the sacred laws that the Eternal had given to Moses. 7The Eternal One was with Hezekiah, and His blessings covered him everywhere he went. Hezekiah defied Assyria's king and refused to humble himself before him, unlike his father, Ahaz. 8He conquered the Philistines all the way to Gaza, taking everything from imposing lookout towers to large fortified cities.

9During King Hezekiah's fourth year, which was the seventh year of Hoshea (king of Israel and Elah's son), Shalmaneser, Assyria's king, waged war against Samaria and attacked it with full force. 10After three years, during Hezekiah's sixth year in Judah and Hoshea's ninth year as king of Israel, they took possession of Samaria. 11Assyria's king transported the Israelites to Assyria as exiles. He forced them to live in Halah on the Habor (the river of Gozan) and in the cities of the Medes. 12*This took place* because they did not obey the warning of the Eternal their God. Instead they transgressed both the sacred covenant He had made with them and everything Moses, the servant of the Eternal, had commanded. They would not listen to the sacred laws, much less obey them.

► The Assyrian King Sennacherib invades Judah at the end of the 8th century. In 701 B.C., he reaches Jerusalem and sets himself against King Hezekiah. In one of his royal documents are words describing Hezekiah's situation: "like a bird in a cage in Jerusalem, his royal city, I penned him." Hezekiah is desperate and consults Isaiah the prophet. Isaiah tells Hezekiah to trust God entirely.

The story is phenomenal! God sends an angelic warrior to the Assyrian camp and 185,000 Assyrians from the royal army are killed. The Greek historian Herodotus also mentions this story and says that multitudes of rats brought a divine omen and disease to the Assyrian camp. The writer of the book of Kings clearly encourages his reader to see this event as God's hand favoring Judah over Assyria.

13During King Hezekiah's 14th year, Sennacherib, Assyria's king, attacked and

* 18:4 Numbers 21:9 * 18:4 Hebrew, Nehushtan

captured all of Judah's fortified cities.
14Hezekiah (Judah's king) sent a message to Sennacherib at Lachish.

Hezekiah's Message: I confess that what I have done is wrong! Please leave now, and I will personally pay the penalty of my own actions.

Assyria's king demanded 11 tons of silver and one ton of gold from Hezekiah, king of Judah. 15Hezekiah gathered up all the silver he could find in the Eternal's temple and in the palace treasuries; and he gave it to Assyria's king, just as he had demanded.
16He even stripped the gold off the Eternal's temple doors and doorposts that he had gilded, and he handed it over to Assyria's king.

17Assyria's king then dispatched a large army to King Hezekiah in Jerusalem. The army was led by three senior military officers, Tartan, Rab-saris, and Rabshakeh, from Lachish. They came to Jerusalem and waited by the channel of the upper pool. (The channel is on the main route to the fuller's field.) 18They called out to the king; but instead of the king coming out to meet them, Eliakim (Hilkiah's son) the palace administrator, Shebnah the lawyer, and Joah (Asaph's son) the reporter to the king and the people approached them.

Rabshakeh: 19*Go back and* tell Hezekiah that this is the message of Assyria's mighty king: "What is the basis of your confidence? 20You are a big talker, saying, 'I have everything I need for war—guidance and might.' But to whom do you turn now that you have turned against me? 21You turn to a broken reed, Egypt. If a man leans on a broken reed, it stabs his palm. It is the same with Egypt's Pharaoh and all who lean on him. 22But you profess to me, 'We put our faith in the Eternal One our God.' Is it not His high places and altars that Hezekiah has torn down? Did not Hezekiah tell Judah and Jerusalem, 'Worship at this place in Jerusalem'?"

23Make a deal with my master, Assyria's king, and you will receive 2,000 horses from me. I hope you have enough riders for them. 24How can you turn away a governor—even the least of my master's governors—and lean on Egypt instead for horsemen and chariots? 25Do you think I have come here to destroy this land without the Eternal's permission? He is the One who told me, "Go destroy it! I'll support you."

Eliakim, Shebnah, and Joah (to Rabshakeh): 26*This needs to be a private conversation.* Please speak to your servants in a different tongue—Aramaic—for we understand it and do not need you to speak to us in Judean. That way everyone on the walls won't be able to understand you.

Rabshakeh: 27*How arrogant and foolish of you!* Do you think I have been sent here by my king to talk to only you and your king? I am to speak to everyone. Soon you and these men on the walls will surely be doomed to fill your bellies with your own dung and quench your thirst with your own urine.

28(loudly in Judean) Listen to what Assyria's mighty king has to say! 29He says, "Do not trust in Hezekiah. He cannot save you from me! 30Do not allow Hezekiah to deceive you into trusting the Eternal when he says, 'The Eternal One will save us, and our city will not be handed over to Assyria's king.'" 31Do not listen to Hezekiah. Assyria's king says, "Let there be peace between us. Join me now, and fill your bellies with food from your own vineyards and orchards and drink from your own pools. 32Then I will come and lead you to a land similar to your own—a land of plentiful grain, new wine, bread, vineyards, olive orchards, and honey. This is a place where you will live in peace and not worry about a premature death. Do not listen to Hezekiah when he lies to you, saying, 'The Eternal will save us.' 33Have any of the gods of other nations ever saved their lands from Assyria's king? Is there a single nation that has survived him? 34Where are Hamath's gods and Arpad's gods? Where are Sepharvaim's gods, Hena's gods, and Ivvah's gods? Did they save Samaria from me? 35Are there any gods in any land that have saved their lands from me? No, there is not a single one. So do you really think that the Eternal will be any different? Do you really think He can save you, Jerusalem, from me?"

36Everyone listening was quiet and did not reply with a single word, because the king had given them the command, "Don't speak a single word to him." 37Eliakim (Hilkiah's son) the palace administrator, Shebna the lawyer, and Joah (Asaph's son)

the reporter approached Hezekiah and tore their garments. Then they recited every word Rabshakeh had spoken to them.

19 King Hezekiah tore his clothes after he heard what had been said. He then covered himself with sackcloth and entered the Eternal's temple. 2Hezekiah dispatched the palace administrator, Eliakim, along with Shebna the lawyer and the priest-elders, to go meet with the prophet Isaiah (Amoz's son). Eliakim, Shebna, and the elders all went wearing sackcloth.

Eliakim, Shebna, and the Elders (to Isaiah): 3This is Hezekiah's message: "Today is filled with hours of sorrow, pain, anxiety, and reproof. Children are ready to be born, but there is no strength to deliver them. 4It may be that the Eternal One your God will disprove the words of Rabshakeh, whom Assyria's king has sent to taunt the living God. So pray hard that your God, the Eternal One, will rebuke those words and save His few children who remain."

5King Hezekiah's servants approached Isaiah, 6and Isaiah spoke to them.

Isaiah: Go back and tell your master, "This is the Eternal's urgent message: 'Have no fear of the blasphemy which the servants of Assyria's kings have spoken. They are merely empty words. 7I am going to infect Assyria's king with a spirit, and he will hear a rumor and go back to his homeland. There I will cause him to die by the sword.'"

8Rabshakeh returned to the Assyrian king who was now battling against the city of Libnah because he had heard that the king had abandoned Lachish.

9-10Sennacherib then received word about Tirhakah, Cush's king: "He is preparing to fight you." So Sennacherib sent a message again to Hezekiah.

Sennacherib's Message: Hezekiah, king of Judah, I warn you not to be fooled by your God, on whom you rely, when He says, "Jerusalem will not be conquered by Assyria's king." 11Surely you have heard about how the kings of Assyria demolished all the nations completely—every last one of them. Do you really think you will be rescued? 12Were the people of those nations saved by their gods when my fathers attacked? Were Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and Eden's sons in Telassar ever rescued? No! 13And what happened to the kings of Hamath, Arpad, Sepharvaim's city, Hena, and Ivvah?"

14Hezekiah took the letter from the messengers, read it, and then placed it before the Eternal in His temple.

Hezekiah (praying to the Lord): 15O Eternal One, Israel's God, who sits above the winged guardians, You alone are God of all the kingdoms on earth, the One who made heaven and earth. 16Eternal One, open up Your ears and Your eyes so You may hear and see. Listen to the words Sennacherib uses to reject the living God. 17Eternal One, I certainly know that the Assyrian kings have destroyed the nations and lands. 18*I know how* they have thrown the gods of the nations into the flames of the fire and destroyed them, but those gods were created out of wood and stones by men. 19Eternal One, our True God, I pray You save us now from Sennacherib's conquest—the fate that all the other nations have suffered—so that every nation on earth will know that You alone, Eternal One, are God.

20Isaiah (Amoz's son) sent a message to Hezekiah.

Isaiah's Message: This is the message of the Eternal One, Israel's God: "Because you have come to Me about Assyria's king, Sennacherib, I have heard every word you have prayed."

21This is the Eternal's message against Sennacherib:

"She has abhorred and ridiculed you,
Zion's virgin daughter.
She has ridiculed you behind your back,
Jerusalem's daughter!
22Whom have you rebuked and spoken blasphemies against?
Whom do you speak loudly against?
And arrogantly lift up your eyes against the Holy One, Israel's God?
23Your messengers have been your vessels of rebuke against the Lord;
you have spoken, 'In the company of my countless chariots,
I arrived at the mountain heights.
At the most distant lands of Lebanon,

I chopped down the tallest cedars and the finest-looking cypress trees.
I went to its most distant resting place,
in its deepest forest.
24I made wells in the ground and quenched my thirst with foreign waters;
With the bottom of my feet I soaked up every last drop of Egypt's rivers.'

25Don't you know?
I did this thing a long time ago;
From the beginning, I planned it.
I have now done it,
So that you might cause strong cities to turn into piles of rubble.
26Those who lived there were weak;
they were distressed and humiliated.
They became like the grass that grows in the field
and also like the green herb,
Just like grass that grows on the roofs of houses
but is burned by the sun before it gets too high and thick.
27But I am aware of everything you do— when you sit down, when you go out, when you return—and I am aware of your fury against Me.
28Because you have raged against Me, because your arrogance has flooded
My ears,
I am going to insert My hook into your nose and harness your lips with My bridle,
And I will send you back in the direction from which you came.

29"This will be the sign for you: for the first year, you will feast on what grows on its own; for the second year, you will feast on what grows from the original source; and for the third year, you will prepare the soil, gather, plant vineyards, and feast on their fruit. 30Whatever is left of Judah's house will again spread its roots down into the soil and grow upward with fruit. 31A remnant will depart from Jerusalem; survivors will depart from Mount Zion. This will all be accomplished by the intense passion of the Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies."

32This is the Eternal's message regarding Assyria's king: "He will not approach this city, nor will he shoot an arrow toward it. He will not approach it with a shield in hand or construct a ramp against it. 33He will go back the same way he came, and he will not approach this city." This is the Eternal's message. 34"I will defend this city in order to preserve it for My own honor and for the honor of David, My servant."

35That night one of the Eternal One's heavenly messengers invaded the Assyrian camp and struck 185,000 men. When they woke up the next morning, the camp was filled with corpses. 36Assyria's king, Sennacherib, went away and returned to his own land, Nineveh.

37One day, while he was worshiping in the temple of his god, Nisroch, his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer killed him with the sword. Then they fled to Ararat. Sennacherib's son, Esarhaddon, then inherited the throne.

20 At that time, Hezekiah was deathly sick. The prophet Isaiah (Amoz's son) went to Hezekiah.

Isaiah: This is the Eternal's message: "This is your last chance to make your final preparations because you are not going to recover; you are going to die."

2Then Hezekiah faced the wall and began to pray to the Eternal.

Hezekiah: 3Eternal One, I beg You to remember that I have lived in faithfulness and given my heart to you and have practiced goodness before Your eyes.

Hezekiah was truly distraught and wept bitterly. 4Before Isaiah had departed from the middle court, the Eternal's message came to him.

Eternal One: 5Go back and tell Hezekiah, the leader of My people, "This is the message of the Eternal One, the God of your ancestor David: 'I have listened to your prayer and have witnessed the tears falling down your face; therefore I am going to heal you. I want you to go to the Eternal's temple on the third day. 6I will add 15 years to your life, and I am also going to save you and your city from Assyria's king. I will fight on behalf of this city in order to preserve My honor and My servant David's honor.'"

Isaiah: 7Fetch a lump of figs.

They placed the figs on the king's open sore, and he was healed.

► Long before the discovery of penicillin and invention of pharmaceuticals, people understand how to use natural remedies readily available. A poultice of figs—and a healthy dose of prayer—successfully heal Hezekiah's sore. Many other plants have similar healing qualities: wild, poisonous gourds are used in small amounts as purgatives; terebinth resin, frankincense, and myrrh are common antiseptics (even though they are more popular as cosmetics); and mandrake fruit is thought to cure female infertility. While future generations might question the healing properties of plants, they are considered powerful medicines to the people in the ancient Near East.

Hezekiah *(to Isaiah): 8Should I be looking for a sign from the Eternal, a sign that tells me He is going to heal me and that it is time for me to go to the Eternal's temple on the third day?

Isaiah: 9*Yes,* this is the sign the Eternal One will give for you to know He will uphold His promise to you: will the shadow move forward 10 steps or retreat 10 steps?

Hezekiah: 10It's nothing special for the shadow to increase 10 steps. May the shadow retreat 10 steps.

11The prophet Isaiah called out to the Eternal, and He caused the shadow on the stairs to retreat 10 steps down Ahaz's stairs, which had been designed as a sundial.

12During that period in time, Berodach-baladan, one son of Baladan, Babylon's king, heard that Hezekiah was ill, so he sent him a gift and get-well messages. 13After Hezekiah received the gift and the letters, he gave Berodach-baladan's messengers a tour of his treasuries and showed them all the silver, gold, spices, oils, armor, and everything else that was in the treasure house. He left nothing out of the tour of his house and province.

Isaiah *(to King Hezekiah): 14What did those men tell you, and where did they come from?

Hezekiah: They came from a faraway land—Babylon.

Isaiah: 15*How much* of your house did you show to them? What all did they see?

Hezekiah: They saw everything. I left nothing out of the tour I gave them through my treasuries.

Isaiah: 16Listen to the Eternal's message: 17"A time is near when everything in your house, including everything that your ancestors have contributed until today, will be taken to Babylon. Not one item will remain in your house." This is the Eternal's message. 18"A time is near when your sons, who are yet to be born, will be removed from your land and made to be eunuchs in the Babylonian king's palace."

Hezekiah: 19The Eternal's message that you relayed to me is good.

(to himself) Is it not good that peace and truth will rule while I still live?

20Is not the rest of Hezekiah's story—his power and his construction of the pool and the conduit to provide water for the city—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings?* 21Hezekiah left this world to sleep with his fathers. His son, Manasseh, then inherited the throne.

21 Manasseh was 12 years old when he inherited the throne. His reign in Jerusalem lasted 55 years. His mother was Hephzibah. 2He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes, like the abhorrent practices of those nations driven out by the Eternal before the Israelites settled in Canaan. 3Manasseh reconstructed the high places his father, Hezekiah, had demolished. He constructed altars for Baal and crafted a sacred pole, just as Ahab the former king of Israel had done. He offered his praise to all the gods of the skies and was in service to them.

4He constructed altars in the Eternal's temple to foreign, pagan gods. This was the temple the Eternal had spoken of when He said, "My name will dwell in Jerusalem." 5He contaminated the temple by constructing altars for all the gods of the skies in both the courts in the Eternal's temple.

6He forced his son to go through the fire as a burnt offering, and he was trained in the dark arts of witchcraft and fortune-telling. He practiced them both. He consulted necromancers and clairvoyants. He committed many wicked acts in the Eternal's eyes, which caused Him to boil in anger.

7He placed a carved image of the goddess Asherah in the Eternal's temple. It was the very temple that the Eternal had spoken of to David and to Solomon, saying, "My name will dwell in this temple in Jerusalem forever. I have handpicked it from all of Israel's tribes. 8If the Israelites will honor the commands and laws I have given them through Moses, then I will no longer force them to be apart from the land I promised to their ancestors. They will live peacefully within the promised land."

9But the Israelites kept their ears and hearts closed to the message of the Lord; and Manasseh caused them to live even more sinful lives than the wicked nations, whom the Eternal annihilated before them, had committed. 10The Eternal One delivered His message through His servants, the prophets.

Prophets: 11Manasseh, Judah's king, has committed even worse atrocities than the Amorites had committed before his time, and he also inspired wickedness throughout Judah because of his idols; 12therefore, this is the message of the Eternal One, Israel's God: "Observe! I am going to infect Jerusalem and Judah with disaster. The ears of anyone who hears the sounds of this catastrophe will tingle! 13I will judge the uprightness of Jerusalem by the same plumb line that I used in Samaria and by the same level I used for Ahab's house. I will clean Jerusalem in the same manner that one cleans a dirty dish. I will wipe off the grime and flip the dish over and wipe off the underside of it as well. 14I am going to relinquish what is left of My inheritance to the possession of their adversaries. They will be like stolen goods and booty for all their adversaries. 15*This will take place* because of all the wickedness they have committed before Me and because of the anger they have caused to boil within Me since the day their ancestors were delivered by Me from Egypt until this very day."

16Manasseh killed countless innocent people and filled Jerusalem with their blood. And this is in addition to causing Judah to live sinful lives and committing evil in the Eternal's eyes.

► According to tradition, one of those innocent people is the prophet Isaiah. Manasseh and Isaiah have a tumultuous relation ship from the start, when Hezekiah invited Isaiah to the court to meet his sons. Isaiah prophesied then that Manasseh would be evil. After Manasseh becomes king, Isaiah tells him the temple will be destroyed. Infuriated, the king orders Isaiah's arrest. Isaiah flees into the hills where he hides inside a cedar tree. But Manasseh's men find him—when they are cutting the tree in half. This legend is attested to by the writer of the Letter to the Hebrews (11:37-38).

17Is not the rest of Manasseh's story—his wickedness and sin—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 18Manasseh left this world to sleep with his fathers and was laid to rest in his own garden, the garden of Uzza. His son, Amon, then inherited the throne.

19Amon was 22 years old when he became king. His reign in Jerusalem lasted two years. His mother was Meshullemeth (daughter of Haruz from Jotbah). 20He committed much wickedness in the Eternal's eyes just as his father, Manasseh, did. 21He walked the wicked path of his father, and he served and worshiped the same gods his father had served. 22Amon was corrupt and abandoned the Eternal One, the God of his ancestors. He did not walk on the Eternal's path.

23Amon's servants plotted behind his back and murdered him in his own house.

24Then the people of the land slaughtered those who had plotted in secret against King Amon, and they gave the throne to Amon's son, Josiah.

25Is not the rest of Amon's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 26Amon was laid to rest in the garden of Uzza with his father. His son, Josiah, then inherited the throne.

22 Josiah was 8 years old when he inherited the throne. His reign in Jerusalem lasted 31 years. His mother was Jedidah (daughter of Adaiah from Bozkath). 2Josiah was righteous in the Eternal's eyes. He continually did what was right, just as his ancestor David had. He did not ever step away from the righteous path.

3During Josiah's 18th year as king, he dispatched his minister of state,* Shaphan (son of Azaliah and grandson of Meshullam), to the Eternal's house with instructions.

Josiah: 4Visit the priest, Hilkiah, and ask him to give us an account of the finances that have been collected by the doorkeepers from those who enter the Eternal's temple. 5Tell them to give it to the workers who watch over the Eternal's temple, to the repairmen who keep the place in good condition, 6to the carpenters and builders and masons for purchasing the wood and cut stones to keep the temple in working order. 7There is no need to document the financial exchange with these workers because they are honest in their dealings.

Hilkiah (to Shaphan): 8I have discovered the book of the law in the Eternal's house.

Hilkiah then handed the book of the law to Shaphan, and Shaphan read through it. 9Shaphan the secretary returned to the king with a report.

► The discovery of the book of the law which has been forgotten for a long time serves two purposes: it rewards Josiah for the work he's already done, and it pushes him toward more reforms. Besides its positive effect on Judah, not much is known about the book of the law, except that it isn't a book at all. It is probably a scroll with two columns of writing, much like the Dead Sea Scrolls. The exact content is unknown, but it is probable that the book of the law was the foundational text for the compiler of Deuteronomy. Assuming this, the laws from Deuteronomy explain why Josiah destroys any object that could be used in pagan worship.

Shaphan: Those who serve you in the Eternal's house have given every last cent of the money to the workers who keep the Eternal's house in good condition.

10(continuing) While I was delivering your instructions, Hilkiah the priest handed me an old book.

Shaphan then read the old book aloud to the king. 11While the king listened to the words of the book of law, he was filled with sorrow, and he tore his garments. 12Then the king gave a command to Hilkiah the priest, Ahikam (Shaphan's son), Achbor (Micaiah's son), Shaphan the minister of state, and Asaiah (one of the king's advisors).

Josiah: 13Go and speak to the Eternal One on my behalf, and also on behalf of the people and all of Judah. Speak to Him about this book and all that it commands. There is a wrathful fire on its way to us from Him, all because our ancestors before us did not obey the instructions of this book or do all that is written concerning us.

14Hilkiah the priest, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah went to visit the prophetess Huldah (Shallum's wife). Shallum was Tikvah's son, and Tikvah was the son of Harhas, who was in charge of the clothing and garments. Huldah lived in the second quarter of Jerusalem. Hilkiah, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah spoke to her.

Huldah: 15This is the message of the Eternal God of Israel: "Go back and speak to the one who told you to speak to Me that 16the Eternal says, 'I will bring a

* 22:3 Literally, secretary wicked cloud of disaster over this land and those who live within it. It will be just as it is written in all the words of the book read by the king of Judah.

17Because they have turned their backs on Me and have been promiscuous with other gods, burning incense for them and causing My anger to boil with all their wicked deeds, the fire of My wrath will consume them and be inextinguishable.'"

18But tell Judah's king, the one who told you to visit me and speak to the Eternal One on his behalf, "This is the message of the Eternal God of Israel:
'Concerning what you have heard, 19your heart was gentle and concerned about My commands. You were humble before the Eternal because of the warnings of desolation I gave to this place and to those who dwell within it. You even tore your garments and cried before Me.
Because you have done all this, I have certainly heard your sincerity,' proclaims
the Eternal One.

20" 'Observe! I am going to bring you to be with your ancestors, and you will meet the grave peacefully, so that you will not have to witness the wicked cloud of disaster I will bring to shadow this land and all those who dwell within it.' "

Then Hilkiah, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah returned to the king and gave him the Lord's message, as sent through Huldah the prophetess.

23 The king ordered an assembly of all of Judah's and Jerusalem's elders. 2He then went to the Eternal's temple with all the citizens of Jerusalem and the men of Judah, as well as the priests and prophets and people of all statuses, and he read to them everything in the covenant book that was discovered in the Eternal's house.

3While standing next to the sacred pillar, the king proclaimed a covenant before the Eternal One. He promised to follow the Eternal, to obey His commands and laws and testaments with all his being. He promised to honor every word of the covenant book that had been discovered in the temple. Everyone who was present entered into the covenant with the king.

4The king gave a command to the high priest, Hilkiah, and to the priests of the second order, as well as the doormen. He told them to remove from the Eternal's house all the vessels that were crafted to honor Baal, Asherah, and all the other gods of the skies. He set them on fire in the fields of Kidron outside of Jerusalem, and then he transported the ashes to Bethel.

5He got rid of the corrupted priests who worshiped false gods and whom the old kings of Judah had instructed to burn incense in the high places in Judah's cities and in the land all around Jerusalem, and those who honored Baal and the sun and moon and stars and all the gods of the skies by burning incense.

6The king removed the sacred pole from the Eternal's temple, and he set it on fire at the Kidron brook just outside Jerusalem. He crushed it until it was nothing more than a pile of dust, and then he tossed the dust onto ordinary graves, further contaminating it by contact with dead bodies. 7He destroyed the houses of cult prostitutes next to the house of the Eternal, where women were weaving hangings for the sacred pole. 8He assembled in Jerusalem all of Judah's priests and destroyed the high places from Geba to Beersheba where they had burned incense. He tore down the high places of the gates located on the left side of the city gates near the gate of Joshua, who was governor of Jerusalem.

9The corrupted priests of the high places did not approach the Eternal's altar in Jerusalem, but they filled their bellies with unleavened bread in the company of their families, since they would not travel to Jerusalem to perform their religious duties.

10The king destroyed Topheth as well. Topheth is in the valley of Hinnom's son. He did this so that no man could offer his children as a burnt sacrifice to Molech.

11Close to the entrance to the Eternal's house, near the official Nathan-melech's chamber in the area around the temple, were horses that Judah's kings had dedicated to the sun. The king removed the horses and set fire to the chariots of the sun as well.

12The king also tore down the roof altars, Ahaz's upper room which was crafted by Judah's kings, and the altars crafted by Manasseh for the two courts in the Eternal's house. He crushed them into piles of dust, and then he tossed the dust into the Kidron brook. 13The king also destroyed the high places south of the mountain of corruption, which Solomon (Israel's king) constructed east of Jerusalem to honor Ashtoreth, the corrupt Sidonian goddess; Chemosh, the corrupt

Moabite god; and Milcom, the corrupt Ammonite god. 14He shattered the sacred pillars and chopped down the sacred poles. In their place, he desecrated their sites by contact with corpses.

15He tore down the altar at Bethel, the high place—the one erected by Jeroboam (Nebat's son), the very Jeroboam who caused the Israelites to live sinful lives. He crushed the rocks and pounded them into dust and set fire to the sacred pole.

16Josiah turned and observed the graves there on the mountain; and he sent men to gather up the bones and set fire to them on the altar, defiling the altar by contact with corpses exactly as the Eternal One had spoken through the man of God.*

Josiah (noticing a specific burial plot): 17What is the significance of that marker?

Men of the City: This is a grave marker for the man of God from Judah who prophesied the very things which you have just done to the altar at Bethel.

Josiah: 18Leave him be. No one is to lay a finger on his bones, so that he may rest in peace.

They let his bones rest in peace next to the bones of the Samaritan prophet.*

19Josiah tore down all the temples of the high places built by Israel's kings in the Samaritan cities. These high places had caused the Eternal's anger to boil. Josiah did the same thing to these houses as he did to the houses in Bethel.

20Josiah also killed all the priests who were present at the high places. He killed them on the altars and set fire to their bones. Then he went back to the place from which he came—Jerusalem.

Josiah (to the people): 21The covenant book that was found in the temple says we must observe the Passover and rejoice in the Eternal One our God, who led us out of bondage in Egypt.

24In addition, Josiah destroyed the clairvoyants, necromancers, household gods, idols, and every other corruption in Judah and in Jerusalem, so that he could make things right according to the laws and commands of the covenant book Hilkiah the priest had discovered in the Eternal's house.

25No king before him or after him ever gave himself to the Eternal so fully and deeply as Josiah did. He offered to the Eternal with all his being: all of his heart, all of his soul, and all his might, in accordance with the sacred law given through Moses.

26Still the Eternal did not abandon His immense wrath. It boiled against Judah, because of all the wickedness Manasseh had committed against Him.

Eternal One: 27I will remove Judah from before My presence. I will do this just as I have done it to Israel. I will cast aside Jerusalem, the city I chose for My temple when I said, "This will be the dwelling place for My name."

28Is not the rest of Josiah's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings?

29*Josiah's death happened this way:* Pharaoh Neco, Egypt's king, marched north with his army to the Euphrates River to meet with Assyria's king. King Josiah mustered his forces and attempted to block Neco's advance.

► The situation has changed for Assyria in the 100 years since the Northern Kingdom was conquered. About 7 years after the Babylonians conquer the Assyrian capital of Nineveh, Neco is actually rushing to the aid of Assyria instead of fighting to destroy her. The Egyptian and Assyrian plan is to defeat Babylonia; and unfortunately, Josiah is in the way. The death of the good king Josiah and the victory of Babylonia over both Assyria and Egypt doom Judah to becoming part of the Babylonian Empire.

In the ensuing battle, Neco and his forces killed Josiah at Megiddo. 30Josiah's servants

* 23:16 1 Kings 13:2 * 23:18 1 Kings 13:11-12

took his body back to Jerusalem from Megiddo in a chariot. They laid him to rest in his own tomb instead of in a tomb with his fathers. The people of Judah then took Josiah's son, Jehoahaz, and anointed him and set him upon the throne of his father as king.

31Jehoahaz was 23 years old when he inherited the throne. His reign in Jerusalem lasted three months. His mother was Hamutal (Jeremiah's daughter from Libnah). 32He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes, just as his ancestors had done before him.

33Pharaoh Neco put him in prison at Riblah in Hamath so that he would no longer sit on the throne in Jerusalem. He forced a fee on Judah—7,500 pounds of silver and 75 pounds of gold. 34Pharaoh Neco appointed Eliakim (Josiah's son) as king and gave him a new name—Jehoiakim. He transported Jehoahaz to Egypt, where he spent his last days. 35Jehoiakim handed over all the silver and gold to Pharaoh. It was all tax money he had quickly gathered from the people of the land. He demanded silver and gold from the citizens, according to the tax assessment of each person, and he gave it to Pharaoh Neco.

36Jehoiakim was 25 years old when he was given the throne by Neco. His reign in Jerusalem lasted 11 years. His mother was Zebidah (Pedaiah's daughter from Rumah). 37He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He was just like his ancestors.

24 Early in Jehoiakim's reign, Nebuchadnezzar, Babylon's king, came into the land; and Jehoiakim was in his service three years. Then Jehoiakim rebelled. 2The Eternal One dispatched Chaldeans, Arameans, Moabites, and Ammonites to demolish Judah, in accordance with the message the Eternal spoke through His servants the prophets.

3Because of Manasseh's abhorrent wickedness and all he did, Judah was removed from the presence of the Eternal One, just as He had commanded. 4His wrath came because of the innocent blood Manasseh had flooded Jerusalem with. He would not forgive them.

5Is not the rest of Jehoiakim's story—his actions and lasting legacy—documented in the book of the chronicles of Judah's kings? 6Jehoiakim left this world to sleep with his fathers. His son, Jehoiachin, then inherited the throne.

7Egypt's king never departed from his own country again because Babylon's king, Nebuchadnezzar, ruled everything that had formerly been in the possession of Egypt's king, all the way from the brook of Egypt to the Euphrates River.

8Jehoiachin was 18 years old when he inherited the throne. His reign in Jerusalem lasted 3 months. His mother was Nehushta (Elnathan's daughter from Jerusalem). 9He committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He was just like his father.

10-11During that time, the servants of Nebuchadnezzar (king of Babylon) put Jerusalem under siege, and Nebuchadnezzar entered the city during the siege. 12Jehoiachin, Judah's king, met with Nebuchadnezzar face-to-face in a peaceful surrender, along with Jehoiachin's mother, servants, commanders, and administrators. The king of Babylon took Jehoiachin captive during the eighth year of his reign. 13He cleaned out all the treasuries in the Eternal's temple and in the king's palace, and he also took and cut into pieces all the gold vessels Solomon (king of Israel) had crafted in the Eternal's temple, just as the Eternal One had said.* He left nothing. 14Nebuchadnezzar then gathered up all of Jerusalem—the commanders, warriors, craftsmen, and artisans (10,000 in all)—and forced them into exile. Only the poorest people remained.

► Like Assyria, Babylonia exiles the people when they conquer any new territory. There is an important difference, however. When the Assyrians conquered a city, they sent all the people into different parts of their empire and filled that city with foreigners of several other nationalities. This "shook up" the nations, kept them from retaining their prior identities, and lowered the chance of civil war. The Babylonians, on the other hand, leave some people in Judah and allow those who are exiled to continue practicing their religion. Because they are able to retain their religious and national identities, the Judeans (now known as "Jews") will be able to move back into the land and rebuild one day.

* 24:13 Jeremiah 20:5

15Nebuchadnezzar forced Jehoiachin, his mother, his wives, his administrators, and the elders of Judah into exile in Babylon.
16He also forced 7,000 warriors and 1,000 craftsmen and artisans into exile in Babylon. 17Nebuchadnezzar then appointed Jehoiachin's uncle, Mattaniah, to take his place as king, and Nebuchadnezzar gave Mattaniah a new name—Zedekiah.

18Zedekiah was 21 years old when he was given the throne by Nebuchadnezzar.
His reign in Jerusalem lasted 11 years. His mother was Hamutal (Jeremiah's daughter) from Libnah. 19Zedekiah committed evil in the Eternal's eyes. He was wicked like Jehoiakim.

20This all took place in Jerusalem and Judah because of the Eternal's boiling anger. The Eternal One moved them out of the land and away from His presence.

Then, Zedekiah turned his back on Nebuchadnezzar.

25 On the 10th day of the 10th month, during the 9th year of his reign, Nebuchadnezzar (Babylon's king) and his entire army surrounded Jerusalem. They camped outside the city and built siege ramps around it.
2The city remained under siege until the 11th year of Zedekiah's reign.

3On the 9th day of the 4th month, there was a food shortage in the city, and no one had anything to eat. Everyone became afraid of starvation. 4The city wall was breached, and all the warriors ran out during the night through the gateway between the two walls near the king's garden, in spite of the Chaldeans surrounding the city. The warriors went on the Arabah road. 5The Chaldean army chased after the fleeing king and caught up to him in the fields of Jericho. His army dispersed in all directions. 6They took the king captive and escorted him to Babylon's king at Riblah. Nebuchadnezzar decided on a punishment for the king: 7they killed Zedekiah's sons right in front of Zedekiah;
then they gouged out Zedekiah's eyes so that the slaughter of his sons was the last thing he ever saw, and they put him in bronze shackles and transported him to Babylon.

8On the 7th day, during the 5th month of Nebuchadnezzar's 19th year as king over Babylon, Nebuzaradan, a servant of the king and captain of Nebuchadnezzar's guards, arrived in Jerusalem. 9Nebuzaradan set fire to the Eternal's temple,
the palace, and every house in Jerusalem.
He burned down every large house and structure in Jerusalem. 10The entire Chaldean army, who was with Nebuzaradan, tore down Jerusalem's walls. 11Nebu-zaradan captured everyone who was still in the city, even the renegades who had fled to Nebuchadnezzar, and he forced them into exile. 12But Nebuzaradan spared the poorest people and left them to take care of the land as farmers and gardeners.

13The Chaldeans took everything of value. They took the bronze pillars, stands, and the bronze sea in the Eternal's temple;
and they broke them up into pieces and took the bronze to Babylon. 14They also took the pans, the shovels, the snuffers, the bronze objects, and every bronze cup that was used during the rituals of the temple. 15Nebuzaradan took the coal pans and bowls and all the gold and purified silver. 16The amount of bronze (including the two bronze pillars, the bronze sea, and the bronze stands Solomon crafted for the Eternal's temple) was so great that it could not be weighed. 17Each pillar was 27 feet high with a bronze capital. The capital was 54 inches high, and it was covered with bronze network and bronze pomegranates. Both pillars were exactly alike.

18Nebuzaradan gathered Seraiah, the head priest, and Zephaniah, the second priest, along with the three doorkeepers.
19In the city, he gathered up one officer of the army, five of the king's counselors, the army captain's aide for mustering
the troops, and 60 other Judahite men.
20Nebuzaradan (captain of the guard) escorted them to Babylon's king at Riblah.
21Nebuchadnezzar killed them all at Riblah in Hamath. Thus Judah was separated from the land and forced into exile.

22Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had allowed some people to remain in Judah, so he appointed Gedaliah (son of Ahikam, Shaphan's son) to govern the land. 23When all the army commanders received word that Nebuchadnezzar had appointed Gedeliah to govern the land, they went to visit Gedeliah in Mizpah.
Those who visited him were Ishmael (Nethaniah's son), Johanan (Kareah's son), Seraiah (Tanhumeth the Netophathite's son), and Jaazaniah (the Maacathite's son), including their men. 24Gedaliah attempted to assuage them and swore an oath before them.

Gedaliah: Do not fear those Babylonian officials who serve the Chaldeans. If you dwell here and give your service to the Babylonian king, then you will live in peace and have nothing to fear.

25But during the 7th month, Ishmael, (son of Nethaniah, Elishama's son) of the royal family, attacked Gedaliah with 10 male accomplices. Gedaliah and all the Jews and Chaldeans at Mizpah were killed. 26Everyone in the community, both rich and poor, even the commanders of the army, traveled to Egypt because they greatly feared the Chaldeans.

27On the 27th day of the 12th month during the 37th year of the exile of Jehoiachin (Judah's king), Evil-merodach (Babylon's king) released Jehoiachin from prison. Evil-merodach did this the same year he inherited the throne. 28Evil-merodach was good to Jehoiachin, and he gave Jehoiachin an honorary throne that was higher than all the thrones of the other kings held captive in Babylon. 29Jehoiachin removed his prison garments and put on new clothes. He ate his meals with the king every day for the rest of his life. 30The king also gave him a stipend on a daily basis for the rest of his life.

► Sitting in a foreign country and getting comfortable with pagan ways isn't the end of the story for Judah. A remnant will return to re-found Jerusalem and Israel, a story that is told in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah. God will lift out of captivity those people who remain faithful to Him in spite of difficult circumstances.

For the Northern Kingdom of Israel, their fate is not so clear. When Assyria exiles the northern Israelites all over the empire, those ten tribes are lost. For centuries people have developed theories as to what happened to them, some more far-fetched than others, but one thing is certain: whatever is left of the proper worship of God when they are captured dies among those people. Without that connection to Him, there is no one to save them.

Israel and Judah Divided

1 CHRONICLES

A history from Saul through David written for the Jews after their exile

By an unknown chronicler, possibly Ezra, the priest who came out of exile

As the Jews return from their Babylonian exile to their parents' and grandparents' homeland in Judah, all are excited by the prospect of renewing the people's covenant with the Lord.

Many generations have passed since the people enjoyed the freedom of ruling their own nation and worshiping their own God in Jerusalem. They aren't even known as Israelites anymore—the Babylonians have renamed them the "Jews." These Jews have been oppressed by the pagan rule of the Babylonians and kept from worshiping the Lord in Jerusalem. Now their God has given them the opportunity to return home, though the Jews have been separated from much of their own history and many of their traditions by the exile in Babylon. As their leaders and priests begin to rebuild Jerusalem, her temple and her government, the author, known as the chronicler, wants to remind his fellow Jews of their position as God's people. The Lord chose them out of all of Adam's descendants, their neighbors, their allies, and their enemies as His nation. Now the Jews must remember their ancestors, the Israelites, and learn from their mistakes; they must remember their covenant and follow God's commands.

Fondly does the chronicler remember the stories of Israel's two greatest kings, David and Solomon. Both were men of God who furthered Israel's dedication to the Lord. David dedicated his reign to drafting the plans for the temple. Solomon put those plans to work, building a most magnificent temple. As they focused on God when ruling the nation and leading the religion, so must the Jews now focus as they rebuild Israel's government and her temple.

Also the chronicler remembers the examples of Israel's later Judean kings—kings such as Asa, Jehoshaphat, Joash, Hezekiah, and Josiah—who reformed the political and religious practices of the wayward and returned Judah to proper observation of the law and worship of the Lord. As the Jews now begin the arduous work of returning Jerusalem to her glory, they must remember these kings' stories and adopt their zeal for right worship and practice.

What the chronicler is recording for his people is a history of Israel from their first ancestor to the end of their Babylonian exile. This history reminds the Jews of their ancient status as God's chosen nation and of their illustrious ancestors' work to form the nation.

1 God created the first person, our forefather, Adam. His lineage descended nine generations until the flood: Seth, Enosh, 2Kenan, Mahalalel, Jared, 3Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech, and Noah. 4*Our ancestor* Noah had three sons: Shem, Ham, and Japheth. From these, three distinct nations arose.

The history of Israel begins with the creation of the world.

5The sons of Japheth fathered the nations north of Israel. They were Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. 6The sons of Gomer were Ashkenaz, Diphath, and Togarmah. 7The sons of Javan were Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Rodanim.

8*Three* sons of Ham fathered the nations south of Israel. They were Cush (the Ethiopians), Mizraim (the Egyptians), and Put (the northern Africans). Noah condemned Ham's fourth son, Canaan, whose descendants we conquered. 9The sons of Cush were Seba, Havilah, Sabta, Raama, and Sabteca; the sons of Raama were Sheba and Dedan. 10Cush fathered Nimrod (the first hero on earth). 11Mizraim fathered the people of Lud, Anam, Lehab, Naphtuh, 12Pathrus, Casluh (from whom the Philistines descended), and Caphtor. 13Canaan was the forefather of our eastern neighbors: Sidon (his first son), Heth, 14the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites, 15the Hivites, the Arkites, the Sinites, 16the Arvadites, the Zemarites, and the Hamathites.

17Shem fathered the Semitic nations. His sons were Elam, Asshur, Arpachshad, Lud, and Aram. Aram fathered Uz, Hul, Gether, and Meshech. 18Arpachshad fathered Shelah, and Shelah fathered Eber. 19Eber had two sons, Peleg (whose name means "divided" because the earth was divided during his life) and his brother, Joktan. 20Joktan fathered Almodad, Sheleph, Hazarmaveth, Jerah, 21Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah, 22Ebal, Abimael, Sheba, 23Ophir, Havilah, and Jobab.

24*Our ancestry descended nine generations directly from* Shem: Arpachshad, Shelah, 25Eber, Peleg, Reu, 26Serug, Nahor, Terah, and finally 27Abram (whom God renamed Abraham). 28*Our ancestor* Abraham, who formed our people's initial covenant with God, fathered two sons: Isaac and Ishmael.

29Ishmael fathered Nebaioth, then Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam, 30Mishma, Dumah, Massa, Hadad, Tema, 31Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah.

32Abraham also fathered sons by a concubine, Keturah: Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak, and Shuah. Jokshan's sons were Sheba and Dedan. 33Midian's sons were Ephah, Epher, Hanoch, Abida, and Eldaah.

34Abraham's second son, Isaac, fathered two sons: Esau (the ancestor of Edom) and Israel (our ancestor).

35The sons of Esau were Eliphaz, Reuel, Jeush, Jalam, and Korah. 36Eliphaz fathered Teman, Omar, Zephi, Gatam, Kenaz, and by Timna, Amalek. 37Reuel fathered Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah.

38Seir fathered Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan. 39Lotan (whose sister was Timna) fathered Hori and Homam. 40Shobal fathered Alian, Manahath, Ebal, Shephi, and Onam. Zibeon fathered Aiah and Anah. 41Anah's son was Dishon, who fathered Hamran, Eshban, Ithran, and Cheran. 42Ezer fathered Bilhan, Zaavan, and Jaakan. Dishan (son of Seir) fathered Uz and Aran.

43These men were kings in Edom long before our ancestors reigned in Israel. Bela (the son of Beor) ruled the city of Dinhabah. 44When Bela died, Jobab (the son of Zerah of Bozrah) succeeded him. 45When Jobab died, Husham (a Temanite) became king. 46When Husham died, Hadad (the son of Bedad who crushed Midian in the field of Moab) succeeded Husham and renamed the city Avith. 47When Hadad died, Samlah of Masrekah succeeded him. 48When Samlah died, Shaul of Rehoboth by the Euphrates River succeeded him. 49When Shaul died, Baal-hanan (the son of Achbor) became king. 50When Baal-hanan died, Hadad ascended to the throne. Hadad named his city Pai. His wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred and granddaughter of Mezahab. 51When Hadad died, the monarchy crumbled and Edom was ruled by chiefs: Timna, Aliah, Jetheth, 52Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, 53Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, 54Magdiel, and Iram.

2 The sons of our ancestor Israel (the brother of Esau) were the forefathers of the twelve tribes: Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, 2Dan, Joseph, Benjamin, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

3The sons of Judah (Er, Onan, and Shelah) were born to his wife Bath-shua of Canaan. Er (Judah's firstborn) was wicked in the eyes of the Eternal One, so He put him to death. Er's widow (and Judah's own daughter-in-law), [4]Tamar, gave birth to Judah's youngest children, Perez and Zerah, giving Judah a total of five sons. [5]Perez fathered Hezron and Hamul. [6]Zerah fathered five sons: Zimri, Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Dara. [7]The son of Carmi (the grandson of Zimri) was Achar, the trouble-maker in Israel who violated the ban against taking the spoils of Jericho. [8]The son of Ethan was Azariah.

[9]King David descended from Perez's first son. Hezron fathered Jerahmeel, Ram, and Chelubai. [10]Ram fathered Amminadab, and Amminadab fathered Nahshon, the leader of the tribe of Judah. [11]Nahshon's son was Salma, who fathered Boaz. [12]Boaz fathered Obed, and Obed's son was Jesse. Jesse had seven sons: [13]Eliab (his firstborn), Abinadab (the second), Shimea (the third), [14]Nethanel (the fourth), Raddai (the fifth), [15]Ozem (the sixth), and David (the seventh). [16]David had two sisters: Zeruiah and Abigail. The three sons of Zeruiah were Abshai, Joab, and Asahel. [17]Abigail married Jether the Ishmaelite and gave birth to Amasa.

[18]Hezron's son Caleb had sons by his wife, Azubah, and by Jerioth. Jerioth's sons were Jesher, Shobab, and Ardon. [19]When Azubah died, Caleb married Ephrath, who gave birth to Hur. [20]Hur fathered Uri, and Uri's son was Bezalel.

[21]After that Hezron married the daughter of Machir (the father of Gilead) when he was 60 years old. She gave birth to Segub. [22]Segub fathered Jair, who had 23 cities in the land of Gilead. [23]But Geshur and Aram conquered the 23 cities of Jair and the villages of Kenath—60 cities total. The conquerors were the sons of Machir (the father of Gilead). [24]After Hezron died in Caleb-ephrathah, Abijah (Hezron's wife) gave birth to Ashhur, the leader of Tekoa.

[25]Jerahmeel (the firstborn of Hezron) had five sons: Ram (the firstborn), Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. [26]Jerahmeel had another wife, Atarah, who gave birth to Onam. [27]Ram fathered Maaz, Jamin, and Eker. [28]Onam fathered Shammai and Jada. Shammai's sons were Nadab and Abishur. [29]Abishur's wife was Abihail, and she gave birth to Ahban and Molid. [30]Nadab's sons were Seled and Appaim. Seled died without sons, [31]but Appaim fathered Ishi. The son of Ishi was Sheshan, who fathered Ahlai. [32]Shammai's brother, Jada, fathered Jether and Jonathan. Jether died without sons, but [33]Jonathan fathered Peleth and Zaza. They were the generation of Jerahmeel.* [34]Sheshan had no sons, only daughters, and he had a servant named Jarha, who was Egyptian.

► Although many of the Jews' female ancestors are influential in the development of the nation of Israel—women such as Rahab, Jael, and Deborah who perform feats even men are too faint of heart to accomplish—the men are the ones who build wealth and power over the generations. Because of the way inheritances work, only a son can continue his family's lineage. When a father dies, his property is divided among his sons, with the first son inheriting a double portion of the assets. Daughters are typically married off and take on the identities of their husbands' families; so when a man dies without any sons, his family line ends and his assets are disbursed to the nearest male relatives.

[35]Sheshan married one daughter to Jarha (his Egyptian servant), and she gave birth to Attai. [36]Attai fathered Nathan, and here are the 11 generations that descended from Nathan: Zabad, [37]Ephlal, Obed, [38]Jehu, Azariah, [39]Helez, Eleasah, [40]Sismai, Shallum, [41]Jekamiah, and Elishama.

[42]Caleb, the brother of Jerahmeel and son of Hezron, fathered Mesha (his firstborn and the father of Ziph) and Mareshah (the father of Hebron). [43]Hebron fathered Korah, Tappuah, Rekem, and Shema. [44]Shema's son, Raham, fathered Jorkeam, and his brother Rekem fathered Shammai. [45]The son of Shammai was Maon, and Maon fathered Bethzur. [46]Ephah (Caleb's concubine) gave birth to Haran, Moza, and Gazez. Haran fathered Gazez. [47]The sons of Jahdai were Regem, Jotham, Geshan, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaaph. [48]Maacah (another of Caleb's concubines) bore Sheber, Tirhanah, [49]Shaaph (the father of Madmannah), Sheva (the father of Machbena and Gibea), and a daughter, Achsah.

* 2:33 Verses 25-33

The tradition of firstborn rights in inheritance and genealogy is often the norm in the ancient world, but God sees fit to rearrange customs and alter expectations. In such an important listing of Israel like the book of Chronicles—which marks out in detail the Israelite people all the way to Adam—Jacob's firstborn Reuben is not mentioned until the third spot! The genealogy starts in chapter 4 with Judah and then moves to Simeon, Reuben, Gad, Manasseh, and Levi.

The prominence of David from Judah's line goes back to the Genesis stories that told of how Reuben, Simeon, and Levi all committed horrible sins that removed them from royal contention and headship over their brothers, who would later become twelve tribal groups. In a way, everything in Chronicles (from ancestry lists to temple building) is set around King David from Judah and his lineage up to the Babylonian exile, which concludes the book of Chronicles.

50These were the generations of Caleb through Hur (the firstborn of Caleb's second wife Ephrathah) were Sho-bal (the father of Kiriath-jearim), 51Salma
(the father of Bethlehem), and Hareph
(the father of Beth-gader). 52Shobal, the father of Kiriath-jearim governed Haroeh (half of the Manahathites) 53and the families of Kiriath-jearim (the Ithrites, the Puthites, the Shumathites, and the Mishraites). From these came the Zorathites and the Eshtaolites. 54Salma governed Bethlehem and the Netophathites, Atroth-beth-joab, and the Zorites (half of the Manahathites). 55Families of scribes lived at Jabez: the Tirathites, the Shimeathites, and the Sucathites. Those are the Kenites who came from Hammath (the father of Rechab).

3 The great king David fathered 6 sons during his 7½ years reigning in Hebron. Ahinoam the Jezreelitess gave birth to his first son, Amnon. Abigail the Carmelitess birthed his second son,
Daniel. 2Maacah, the daughter of Talmai (king of Geshur) bore his third son, Absalom. His fourth son, Adonijah, was born to Haggith. 3Abital bore his fifth son, Shephatiah. Ithream was his sixth son, and was born to his wife, Eglah.

4These were the 6 sons born to him in Hebron during his 7½-year reign there.
David then ruled from Jerusalem for 33 years. 5There, Bath-shua (the daughter of Ammiel) gave him 4 sons: Shimea, Sho-bab, Nathan, and Solomon; 6-8and 9 other sons also were born there: Ibhar, Elishama, Eliphelet, Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet. 9These were David's sons, in addition to their sister, Tamar, and his concubines' children.

10*David's son and successor,* Solomon, had 15 generations of descendants:
Rehoboam, Abijah, Asa, Jehoshaphat, 11Joram, Ahaziah, Joash, 12Amaziah, Aza-riah, Jotham, 13Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, 14Amon, and Josiah.

15Josiah's sons were, in order from the firstborn to the last: Johanan, Jehoiakim, Zedekiah, and Shallum. 16The sons of Jehoiakim were Jeconiah and Zedekiah.
17The sons of Jeconiah (who was taken prisoner by Nebuchadnezzar) were Shealtiel, 18Malchiram, Pedaiah, Shenazzar, Jekamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah. 19The sons of Pedaiah were Zerubbabel and Shimei. Zerubbabel fathered Meshullam and Hananiah, and their sister, Shelomith.
20He had five other children, Hashubah, Ohel, Berechiah, Hasadiah, and Jushabhesed. 21Hananiah fathered Pelatiah and Jeshaiah, the sons of Rephaiah, the sons of Arnan, the sons of Obadiah, and the sons of Shecaniah. 22Shecaniah had six descendants: his son Shemaiah, and his grandsons Hattush, Igal, Bariah, Neariah, and Shaphat. 23Neariah fathered three sons: Elioenai, Hizkiah, and Azrikam.
24Elioenai fathered seven sons: Hodaviah, Eliashib, Pelaiah, Akkub, Johanan, Delaiah, and Anani.

► Each tribe is influential in the nation of Israel and has the honor of being descended from the Jews' ancestor Jacob, but the tribe of Judah has prominence and power. From this tribe comes Israel's monarchy, even though their forefather Judah was not the oldest son and therefore not the one who would have been expected to father kings. The selection of Judah as the progenitor of kings demonstrates that God is in control of His people even when tradition and convention are contrary to His ways.

4 Judah's lineage descended as so:
Perez, Hezron, Carmi, Hur, and Shobal. 2Shobal fathered Reaiah (the father of Jahath and grandfather of Ahumai and Lahad). They were the families of the Zorathites. 3Etam fathered three sons, Jezreel, Ishma, and Idbash, and their sister, Hazzelelponi. 4Penuel fathered Gedor, and Ezer fathered Hushah. These are the sons of Hur, who was the firstborn of Ephrathah, who fathered Bethlehem.

5Ashhur, the leader of Tekoa, had two wives: Helah and Naarah. 6Naarah gave birth to Ahuzzam, Hepher, Temeni, and Haahashtari. 7Helah gave birth to Zereth, Izhar, and Ethnan. 8Koz fathered Anub, Zobebah, and the families of Harum's son, Aharhel.

9Jabez, whose name commemorates his mother's labor pains, was more honorable than his brothers. 10He asked the God of Israel, "Please bless me and extend my territory. Let Your hand be with me and guard me from harm so I will not experience pain as my mother did." And God did just that.

11Shuhah's brother Chelub fathered
Mehir, who fathered Eshton. 12Eshton fathered Beth-rapha, Paseah, and Tehinnah who fathered Ir-nahash. These are the men of Recah.

13Kenaz fathered Othniel and Seraiah. Othniel's sons were Hathath and Meonothai. 14Meonothai fathered Ophrah.
Seraiah's son was Joab, the father of Geharashim, the skilled workers.

15Caleb (the son of Jephunneh) fathered Iru, Elah, and Naam. Elah's son was Kenaz. 16Jehallelel fathered Ziph, Ziphah, Tiria, and Asarel. 17Ezrah fathered Jether, Mered, Epher, and Jalon. Jether's wife bore Miriam, Shammai, and Ishbah (the father of Eshtemoa). These are the sons of Bithia (Mered's wife and Pharaoh's daughter). 18His Judahite wife birthed Jered (the father of Gedor), Heber (the father of Soco), and Jekuthiel (the father of Zanoah). 19Hodiah's wife (the sister of Naham) gave birth to the fathers of Keilah the Garmite and Eshtemoa the Maacathite. 20Shimon fathered Amnon, Rinnah, Benhanan, and Tilon. Ishi fathered Zoheth and Ben-zoheth.

21Judah's son Shelah fathered Er
(the father of Lecah), Laadah (the father of Mareshah), and the families of linen workers at Beth-ashbea, 22Jokim, the men of Cozeba, Joash, Saraph (who ruled in Moab), and Jashubi-lehem. This record is ancient. 23They were the potters who lived in Netaim and Gederah, working for the king.

24The sons of Simeon were Nemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zerah, and Shaul. 25Shaul's lineage descended Shallum, Mibsam, and Mishma, 26and the sons of Mishma were Hammuel, Zaccur, and Shimei. 27Shimei fathered 16 sons and 6 daughters, but his brothers did not have many sons and their tribes were not as large as the Judahites.
28*Until David united the tribes into one nation,* Shimei's descendants lived at Beersheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual, 29Bilhah, Ezem, Tolad, 30Bethuel, Hormah, Ziklag, 31Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susim, Beth-biri, and Shaaraim. These were their cities until David became king. 32Their five city-states were Etam, Ain, Rimmon, Tochen, and Ashan, 33near the city of Baal. These were recorded in the genealogy of their villages: 34Meshobab, Jamlech, Joshah (son of Amaziah), 35Joel, Jehu (son of Joshibiah, son of Seraiah, son of Asiel), 36Elioenai, Jaakobah, Jeshohaiah, Asaiah, Adiel, Jesimiel, Benaiah, 37Ziza (son of Shiphi, son of Allon, son of Jedaiah, son of Shimri, son of Shemaiah).

38These were chiefs, and their clans increased rapidly. 39They sought pastures for their flocks from the gate of Gedor to the east side of its surrounding valley.
40There they found a rich pasture and abundant, quiet, and peaceful land. The Hamites inhabited the land 41until the Simeonites attacked them during the reign of Judah's king Hezekiah. They completely destroyed the tents and the Meunites who lived there. The Simeonites now live in their place, where there is pastureland for the flocks.

42Five hundred Simeonites went to Mount Seir, led by the sons of Ishi: Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel.
43There they killed the remaining Amalekites, and they live on that mountain until this day.

5 1-2Because Reuben slept with his father's concubine, he forfeited his rights as the firstborn of Israel, his monetary inheritance and his political position as the leader of the nation of Israel.
Although Reuben's inheritance and birthright were given to Joseph, Judah's descendants became the rulers of Israel.

3Reuben's sons (the firstborn of Israel) were Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.
4The descendants of Joel were Shemaiah,
Gog, Shimei, 5Micah, Reaiah, Baal, 6and Beerah. Beerah (who led the Reubenites) was exiled by Tilgath-pilneser, the king of Assyria who destroyed Israel and exiled the inhabitants. 7His kinsmen led their families in the order of their generations: Jeiel was the first chief, then Zechariah, 8Bela of Aroer (son of Azaz, son of Shema, son of Joel), Nebo, and finally Baal-meon.

9The Reubenite territory stretched to the Euphrates River Valley because their cattle had increased in the land of Gilead.
10During Saul's reign they slaughtered the Hagrites and seized their territory east of Gilead.

11The Gadites lived across from the Reubenites between Bashan and Salecah.
12Joel was the chief, and Shapham was his second in command, then Janai and Shaphat in Bashan. 13There were seven clans in the tribe: Michael, Meshullam, Sheba, Jorai, Jacan, Zia, and Eber. 14These were the sons of Abihail (son of Huri, son of Jaroah, son of Gilead, son of Michael, son of Jeshishai, son of Jahdo, son of Buz).
15Ahi (son of Abdiel and grandson of Guni) was chief of a clan. 16These leaders lived in Gilead, in Bashan, and in its towns.
Their pastures filled the lands of Sharon.
17Their genealogies were recorded during the reigns of Jotham, king of Judah, and Jeroboam, king of Israel.

18-19The Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh were skillful warriors who carried shields, wielded swords, and shot arrows. There were 44,760 who conquered the Hagrites, Jetur, Naphish, and Nodab. 20They defeated the Hagrites and all who were with them because they asked for God's help during the battle and trusted in Him, and their plea was granted. 21They seized 100,000 men and their herds: 50,000 camels, 250,000 sheep, and 2,000 donkeys. 22Many of the enemies died because the men were fighting God's battle. The tribes then lived in these conquered lands until the exile.

23The numerous members of the half-tribe of Manasseh lived between Bashan and Baal-hermon, between Senir and Mount Hermon. 24The clan leaders were famous and glorious men: Epher, Ishi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel. 25But they disobeyed the God of their fathers, prostituting themselves to the pagan gods whom God had destroyed in front of them. 26So the God of Israel awakened the king of Assyria, Pul or Tilgath-pilneser,* to exile the Reu-benites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh. The people were taken from Israel to live in Halah, in Habor, in Hara, and by the river of Gozan, where they remain today.

6 Levi fathered Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. 2Kohath's sons were Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. 3The children of Amram were Aaron, Moses, and Miriam. Aaron fathered Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 4Eleazar's lineage descended 21 generations until the exile:
Phinehas, Abishua, 5Bukki, Uzzi, 6Zerahiah, Meraioth, 7Amariah, Ahitub, 8Zadok, Ahimaaz, 9Azariah, Johanan, 10Azariah (he was priest in Solomon's temple which was constructed in Jerusalem), 11Amariah, Ahitub, 12Zadok, Shallum, 13Hilkiah, Azariah, 14Seraiah, and Jehozadak 15(one of those from Jerusalem and Judah whom the Eternal One exiled by Nebuchadnezzar).

► While the tribe of Judah boasts the kingly lineage, specifically Israel's beloved kings David and Solomon, the tribe of Levi is the priestly tribe. These men are at the center of the worship of the Lord, performing the daily rituals and sacrifices required in the law.

16*These are the Levite clans according to their patronage:* Levi fathered Gershom, Kohath, and Merari. 17Gershom's sons were Libni and Shimei. 18Kohath's sons were Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.
19Merari's sons were Mahli and Mushi.
These are the Levitical clans. 20Gershom's lineage descended seven generations: Libni, Jahath, Zimmah, 21Joah, Iddo, Zerah, and Jeatherai. 22Kohath's lineage descended ten generations: Amminadab, Korah, Assir, 23Elkanah, Ebiasaph, Assir, 24Tahath, Uriel, Uzziah, and Shaul. 25The sons of Elkanah were Amasai and Ahimoth.
26Elkanah's lineage descended six generations: Zophai, Nahath, 27Eliab, Jeroham, Elkanah, and Samuel. 28Samuel's sons were Joel (the firstborn) and Abijah (the second). 29Merari's lineage descended seven generations: Mahli, Libni, Shimei, Uzzah, 30Shimea, Haggiah, and Asaiah.

31After the chest of the covenant came to rest in the tent of the congregation, King David appointed the following Levites to be the musicians in the temple.
32They ministered with songs with respect to their responsibilities outlined for them at the congregation tent until our king Solomon built the temple in Jerusalem.
33These served with their sons: From the Kohathites was Heman the singer (son of Joel, son of Samuel, 34son of Elkanah, son of Jeroham, son of Eliel, son of Toah, 35son of Zuph, son of Elkanah, son of Mahath, son of Amasai, 36son of Elkanah, son of Joel, son of Azariah, son of Zephaniah, 37son of Tahath, son of Assir, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah, 38son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi, son of Israel).

39On Heman's right stood his cousin Asaph (son of Berechiah, son of Shimea, 40son of Michael, son of Baaseiah, son of Malchijah, 41son of Ethni, son of Zerah, son of Adaiah, 42son of Ethan, son of Zimmah, son of Shimei, 43son of Jahath, son of Gershom, son of Levi).

44On Heman's left stood their cousin from the Merarites, Ethan (son of Kishi, son of Abdi, son of Malluch, 45son of Hashabiah, son of Amaziah, son of Hilkiah, 46son of Amzi, son of Bani, son of Shemer, 47son of Mahli, son of Mushi, son of Merari, son of Levi).

48Their cousins from other Levitical clans served the congregation tent of the house of God. 49Aaron and his sons performed the holiest work: they gave burnt offerings and incense offerings. These offerings atoned for Israel, according to all God's servant Moses had commanded.
50The lineage of Aaron descended 11 generations: Eleazar, Phinehas, Abishua, 51Bukki, Uzzi, Zerahiah, 52Meraioth, Amariah, Ahitub, 53Zadok, and Ahimaaz.

64Because the Levites were a priestly tribe without their own land, the other tribes each gave them cities and pastures.* 54These are their territories and the pasturelands in these settlements: To the descendants of Aaron of the Kohathite clan (the highest clan) 65the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin gave 9 cities 55including Hebron in the territory of Judah and those cities' surrounding pastures. 56But the fields of Hebron and its villages still belonged to Caleb (son of Jephunneh). 57-59The descendants of Aaron received Hebron, a city of escape, and they also lived in the cities of Libnah, Jattir, Eshtemoa, Hilen, Debir, Ashan, and Beth-shemesh with their surrounding pastures.
60The tribe of Benjamin gave 4 cities and their pastures including *Gibeon, Geba, Allemeth, and Anathoth. The descendants of Aaron held 13 cities; 61the half-tribe of Manasseh gave 10 cities to the remaining Kohathite clan.

62The tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and Manasseh gave 13 cities in Bashan to the Gershomites.

63The tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun gave 12 cities to the Merarites.

66-69The tribe of Ephraim also gave cities and surrounding pastures to the Kohathites. These cities of refuge included Shechem (in the hill country of Ephraim), Gezer, Jokmeam, Beth-horon, Aijalon, and Gath-rimmon. 70The half-tribe of Manasseh gave the cities and pastures of Aner and Bileam to the rest of the Kohathites.

71The half-tribe of Manasseh gave these cities and surrounding pastures to the Gershomites: Golan in Bashan and Ashtaroth. 72-73The tribe of Issachar gave Kedesh, Daberath, Ramoth, and Anem.
74-75The tribe of Asher gave these cities and their pastures: Mashal, Abdon, Hukok, and Rehob. 76The tribe of Naphtali gave the cities and pastures of Kedesh (in Galilee), Hammon, and Kiriathaim.

77The tribe of Zebulun gave these cities and pastures to the Merarites: Rimmono, Tabor, 78-79and Jericho (beyond the Jordan River on the east side). The tribe of Reuben gave the cities and pastures of Bezer, Jahzah, Kedemoth, and Mephaath.
80-81The tribe of Gad gave the cities and pastures of Ramoth (in Gilead), Mahanaim, Heshbon, and Jazer.

► If the Levites are servants of the temple, then why can they live anywhere besides Jerusalem? The temple calendar is set up so that each Levite only serves for two weeks each year at the temple. For the remainder of the year, the Levites are spread throughout the nation and live in pastoral settings, planting grains and tending flocks just as most of the Israelites do. But they have one more function. Within the various cities, they collect the temple taxes that each Israelite owes based on the tribal area where he lives. This way the Levites keep all of the Israelites accountable to God year round.

7 Issachar fathered four sons: Tola, Puah, Jashub, and Shimron. 2Tola's sons were Uzzi, Rephaiah, Jeriel, Jahmai, Ibsam, and Samuel. These were heroic warriors, and their clans numbered 22,600 during King David's reign.

3Uzzi's son Izrahiah fathered Michael, Obadiah, Joel, and Isshiah, and all were the chiefs of their own generations. 4The clans these men led numbered 36,000 troops because the men had many wives and sons. 5These clans, in addition to the other clans of Issachar, totaled 87,000 heroic warriors.

6Benjamin fathered three sons: Bela, Becher, and Jediael. 7Bela's five sons were Ezbon, Uzzi, Uzziel, Jerimoth, and Iri. They were chiefs of their clans, heroic warriors numbering 22,034. 8Becher's sons were Zemirah, Joash, Eliezer, Elioenai, Omri, Jeremoth, Abijah, Anathoth, and Alemeth. 9They were chiefs in their clans, heroic warriors numbering 20,200. 10Jediael's son was Bilhan. Bilhan's sons were Jeush, Benjamin, Ehud, Chenaanah, Zethan, Tarshish, and Ahishahar. 11They were chiefs in their clans, heroic warriors numbering 17,200. 12And Ir fathered Shuppim and Huppim. Aher fathered Hushim.

13*Israel's concubine* Bilhah gave birth to Naphtali, who fathered Jahziel, Guni, Jezer, and Shallum.

14The sons of Manasseh and his Aramean concubine were Asriel and Machir (father of Gilead). 15Machir found a wife for Huppim and Shuppim, whose sister was Maacah.* The second sister was Zelophehad, who had only daughters. 16Machir's wife, Maacah, bore Peresh. His brother was Sheresh, who fathered Ulam and Rakem. 17Ulam's son was Bedan. These were the sons of Gilead (son of Machir, son of Manasseh). 18His sister, Hammolecheth, gave birth to Ishhod, Abiezer, and Mahlah. 19Shemida fathered Ahian, Shechem, Likhi, and Aniam.

20Ephraim's lineage descended seven generations: Shuthelah, Bered, Tahath, Eleadah, Tahath, 21Zabad, and Shuthelah. Ezer and Elead (Shuthelah's sons) were killed by men of the Philistine city Gath because the brothers stole livestock. 22Their father Ephraim mourned many days, and his relatives comforted him. 23His wife became pregnant and birthed Beriah (whose name means "misfortune" and commemorates the tragedy in Ephraim's family). 24His daughter, Sheerah, built lower and upper Beth-horon and Uzzen-sheerah. 25His sons were Rephah and Resheph. Resheph's lineage descended seven generations: Telah, Tahan, 26Ladan, Ammihud, Elishama, 27Non, and Joshua.

28-29The tribes descended from Joseph bordered each other. The Ephraimites occupied Bethel with its towns, to the east Naaran, and to the west the cities and towns of Gezer, Shechem, and Ayyah. Their borders lined Manasseh's territories: the cities and towns of Beth-shean, Taanach, Megiddo, and Dor.

30Asher fathered four sons, Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, and Beriah, and their sister Serah. 31Beriah's sons were Heber and Malchiel (father of Birzaith). 32Heber fathered three sons, Japhlet, Shomer, and Hotham, and their sister Shua. 33Japhlet's sons were Pasach, Bimhal, and Ashvath. 34Shemer fathered Ahi, Rohgah, Jehubbah, and Aram. 35His brother Helem fathered Zophah, Imna, Shelesh, and Amal. 36Zophah's sons were Suah, Harnepher, Shual, Beri, Imrah, 37Bezer, Hod, Shamma, Shilshah, Ithran, and Beera. 38Jether fathered Jephunneh, Pispa, and Ara. 39Ulla fathered Arah, Hanniel, and Rizia. 40All these men were heroic warriors and chiefs of their clans. The Asherites contributed 26,000 men to the army.

8 1-2Benjamin fathered five sons: Bela, Ashbel, Aharah, Nohah, and Rapha. 3Bela's sons were Addar, Gera, Abihud, 4Abishua, Naaman, Ahoah, 5Gera, Shephuphan, and Huram.

6Ehud's sons were the clan leaders in Geba who were exiled to Manahath:* 7Naaman, Ahijah, and Gera (who led them into exile and fathered Uzza and Ahihud).

8After sending away his two wives, Hushim and Baara, Shaharaim fathered children in the country of Moab. 9-10By his wife Hodesh he fathered these clan leaders: Jobab, Zibia, Mesha, Malcam, Jeuz, Sachia, and Mirmah. 11By Hushim he

* 7:15 Hebrew is obscure here. In verse 16, Maacah is Machir's wife and Shuppim and Huppim in verse 12 are sons of Ir.
* 8:6 Geba was six miles north and east of Jerusalem, but the location of Manahath is unknown. It was possibly a journey of a couple of days. A more likely possibility was into Moab.

Although these ancestral and tribal lists seem tedious and monotonous, they are absolutely essential for marking identity and place in the postexilic community. For example, a person from Saul's line among Benjamin may have positioned himself for the Judean throne during a time of political and economic weakness. If such a person has arisen from Benjamin or any other tribe such as Ephraim, which is the dominant tribe of the Northern Kingdom, then the scribes in Jerusalem can simply consult the tribal lists in the book of Chronicles.

These lists are not just for noting the "insiders" and "outsiders," but they also serve the purpose of setting forth a long and special covenant identity before the Eternal One and the specific roles within His nation and people called "Israel." The ancestry lists of Chronicles support the one who says, "I am a singer before the Eternal One," and those who say, "We are guards at the house of our God."

fathered Abitub and Elpaal. 12Elpaal's sons were Eber, Misham, Shemed (who built the cities and towns of Ono and Lod), 13Beriah and Shema (who were clan leaders in Aijalon and drove away the people of the Philistine city Gath), 14Ahio, Shashak, and Jeremoth. 15-16Beriah's sons were Zebadiah, Arad, Eder, Michael, Ishpah, and Joha. 17-18Elpaal also fathered Zebadiah, Meshullam, Hizki, Heber, Ishmerai, Izliah, and Jobab. 19-21Shimei's sons were Jakim, Zichri, Zabdi, Elienai, Zillethai, Eliel, Adaiah, Beraiah, and Shimrath. 22-25Shashak's sons were Ishpan, Eber, Eliel, Abdon, Zichri, Hanan, Hananiah, Elam, Anthothijah, Iphdeiah, and Penuel. 26-27Jeroham's sons were Shamsherai, Sheharíah, Athaliah, Jaareshiah, Elijah, and Zichri. 28These men were leaders of their clans who lived in Jerusalem.

29In Gibeon, Jeiel (the father of Gibeon) lived with his wife Maacah. 30His sons were Abdon (the firstborn), then Zur, Kish, Baal, Nadab, 31Gedor, Ahio, and Zecher. 32Mikloth fathered Shimeah, and they also lived with their relatives in Jerusalem across from their other relatives. 33Ner fathered Kish, the father of Saul, the first king in Israel. Saul's sons were Jonathan, Malchi-shua, Abinadab, and Eshbaal.

34Jonathan's son Merib-baal fathered Micah. 35The sons of Micah were Pithon, Melech, Tarea, and Ahaz. 36Ahaz fathered Jehoaddah, who then fathered Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri. Zimri's lineage descended five generations: Moza, 37Binea, Raphah, Eleasah, and Azel. 38Azel had six sons: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Shearíah, Obadiah, and Hanan. 39His brother, Eshek, fathered three sons in order: Ulam, Jeush, and Eliphelet. 40Ulam's sons were heroic warriors and archers who had 150 sons and grandsons. All of these were of the tribe of Benjamin.

9 All the tribes of Israel were recorded in the book of the kings of Israel; then Judah was exiled to Babylon for their unfaithfulness to God.

► It might seem strange that the Jews' genealogy continues seamlessly from pre-exilic Judah and Israel to their return home, especially since the generations of people who live in exile are lost from the list. But it is important that those who return, who become known as "Jews" while they are exiled in Babylon, are connected to the Israelites. The Jews are the continuation of God's covenant, so they should remember the long history of faithful ancestors and use them as examples in building the new Israel.

2*At the end of our exile,* the first people who returned to their cities were Israelites, Levites, the priests and the temple servants.

3Some people from the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh lived in Jerusalem: 4Uthai the son of Ammihud, son of Omri, son of Imri, son of Bani, son of Perez, son of Judah. 5From the Shilonites were Asaiah (the firstborn) and his sons. 6From the Zerahites were Jeuel and 690 relatives. 7From the Benjaminites were Sallu (son of Meshullam, son of Hodaviah, son of Hassenuah), 8Ibneiah (son of Jeroham), Elah (son of Uzzi, son of Michri), Meshullam (son of Shephatiah, son of Reuel, son of Ibnijah), 9and 956 relatives. All these were leaders of their clans.

10From the priests were Jedaiah, Jehoiarib, Jachin, 11Azariah (son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub—the chief officer of the temple), 12Adaiah (son of Jeroham, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah), Maasai (son of Adiel, son of Jahzerah, son of Meshullam, son of Meshillemith, son of Immer), 13and their chiefs. These men totaled 1,760 workers in the temple. These were all talented men fit for service in the temple.

14The Levites who returned included Shemaiah (son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Merari), 15Bakbakkar, Heresh, Galal, Mattaniah (son of Mica, son of Zichri, son of Asaph), 16Obadiah (son of Shemaiah, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun), and Berechiah (son of Asa, son of Elkanah). They lived among the Netophathites.*

17-18The gatekeepers, who guarded the entrances and performed other daily chores, were Shallum (stationed at the king's gate in the east), Akkub, Talmon, Ahiman, and their relatives. 19These were the gatekeepers for the congregation tent and monitored activities there (as their fathers had ruled the camp of the Eternal One as keepers of the entrance): Shallum (son of Kore, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah) and his fellow Korahites. 20Phinehas (son of Eleazar) ruled them previously, and the Eternal was with him. 21Zechariah (son of Meshelemiah) was gatekeeper at the entrance of the congregation tent. 22All the men who were gatekeepers numbered 212. They were recorded in the local genealogies and were chosen by King David and the seer Samuel.

23They and their sons guarded the gates of the temple and the congregation tent. 24The gatekeepers were stationed on all sides: to the north, south, east, and west. 25Their relatives joined the gatekeepers once per week to keep them company. 26The four chief gatekeepers (who were Levites) had the important task of controlling the chambers and treasuries in the temple. 27Because guarding was their primary task, they spent their nights watching the temple and opened it each morning. 28Others were in charge of the vessels of service; the vessels were counted as they were brought into and taken out of the temple. 29Still others were in charge of the sanctuary's furniture and utensils, and of the flour, wine, oil, frankincense, and spices. 30Some of the sons of the priests mixed these spices.
31Mattithiah (a Levite and the firstborn of Shallum the Korahite) was responsible for things baked in pans for offerings.
32Some of their Kohathite relatives baked the unleavened bread used as showbread every sabbath. 33These are the singers, the chiefs of the Levites during their own generations, who lived in the chambers of the temple in Jerusalem free from other service because they worked day and night. 34All these men were the chiefs of the Levites during their own generations, and they all lived in Jerusalem.

► All priests may be Levites, but not all Levites are priests. Priests are descendants of Aaron, Israel's first high priest, and perform sacrifices in the temple. Levites who are descendants of the other Levite patriarchs perform all the other duties necessary in the temple; they are elders, custodians, musicians, assistants, handymen, gatekeepers, treasurers, etc. All jobs are equally necessary to the functioning of the temple, so no one of them should be more highly regarded than another. Even the high priest is no more important than the young Levite who sweeps the floor every day.

35Jeiel (the leader of Gibeon) lived in Gibeon with his wife Maacah. 36Their firstborn son was Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, 37Gedor, Ahio, Zechariah, and Mikloth. 38Mikloth fathered Shimeam. These lived with their relatives in Jerusalem, across from their other relatives. 39Ner fathered Kish, whose son was Saul (father of Jonathan, Malchi-shua, Abinadab, and Eshbaal). 40Jonathan's son was Merib-baal, and Merib-baal's son was Micah. 41Micah fathered Pithon, Melech, Tahrea, and Ahaz. 42Ahaz's son was Jarah, who fathered Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri. Zimri fathered Moza, 43whose lineage descended four generations: Binea, Rephaiah, Eleasah, and Azel. 44Azel had six sons: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan.

* 9:16 People from an area about three miles southeast of Bethlehem

► Having explained how the Israelites and the postexilic Jews are part of the same family with this extensive genealogy, the chronicler now presents a narrative about the most glorious period of Israel's history: the united kingdom. It is in kings David and Solomon that the returning Jews are to find inspiration to rebuild their nation and follow their God.

10 At the end of Saul's reign as king of Israel, the Philistines attacked Israel. The Israelites fled from the Philistines and were killed on Mount Gilboa. 2As the Philistines tracked Saul and his sons, they killed Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malchi-shua. 3The fighting was heavy around Saul. Their archers caught up with Saul and wounded him.

Saul (commanding his armor bearer):
4Draw your sword and kill me; otherwise these pagans will capture me and mutilate my body.

But the armor bearer was afraid to kill his king, so Saul committed suicide, falling on his own sword. 5When the armor bearer saw Saul's body, he also committed suicide, falling on his own sword. 6It was at this battle that Saul, his three sons, and his household were annihilated.

7When the Israelites remaining in the valley realized their kinsmen had fled and Saul and his sons were dead, they also left their cities and fled. The conquering Philistines then inhabited these conquered cities of Israel. 8The next day, when the Philistines returned to the battlefield to rob the dead, they found Saul and his sons slain on Mount Gilboa. 9So the Philistines stripped Saul and sent his head and armor throughout Philistia, announcing their victory to their gods and to the people. 10They put Saul's armor in their gods' temples and mounted his head in the temple of Dagon.

A prominent god whom the Philistines worship is Dagon. They believe he brings rain, which in turn is vital to the crops, and thus makes life possible in their land.

11When Jabesh-gilead heard how the Philistines desecrated Saul's remains, 12the heroic men buried the bodies of their king and his sons under the oak tree in Jabesh and fasted for seven days.

13-14Because Saul disobeyed the Eternal One and trusted in the counsel of a medium instead, he died at the Eternal's hand; and the Eternal gave the kingdom to the great king David, son of Jesse.

11 Then the Israelites found David at Hebron and acknowledged him as their king.

Israelites: Certainly we are your family, your flesh and blood. 2You have always guided and protected Israel, even when Saul was our king and it was not your responsibility, because the Eternal your God decided, "You will be the shepherd of My people Israel, the prince over all of them."*

3So all the elders of Israel came to coronate their king at Hebron. David made a covenant with them that the Eternal One witnessed; and they anointed him king over Israel, as the Eternal had commanded them to do through the seer, Samuel.

4Then David and his subjects traveled from Hebron to Jebus, which is now known as Jerusalem, where the Jebusites lived. 5The Jebusites threatened David, "You shall not pass through these gates." Nevertheless David captured the stronghold (Zion), now known as the city of David, and made it his capital.

David uses this conquest to identify his best warriors.

David (challenging the men): 6The first man who kills a Jebusite will be rewarded with the rank of chief and commander.

Joab (a son of Zeruiah) won the challenge, attacking first and becoming a chief. 7After the conquest David lived in Zion, so it became known as the "city of David." 8He fortified the city with earthen ramparts while Joab repaired the damages caused by the conquest. 9David, along with the city, grew in power because the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies supported him.

► King David chooses Jerusalem as his capital for political and military reasons. Resting between Benjamin and Judah, it is not located within any of the twelve tribes' borders, making it politically neutral. No one can say that David is showing preference to one tribe over another by locating his capital—and the center of the Israelite religion—within one tribe's borders. And there is a very good reason the Jebusite city remained unconquered by any Israelite tribe when all other Canaanite cities had fallen, a reason that further justifies David's selection of the city: Sitting on a high ridge, Jerusalem is easy to defend. Its very location will help save it from future invaders, such as the Assyrians, when other Israelite cities fall.

10These are leaders of the warriors whom David commanded. They and the citizens of Israel supported him in his rule, as the Eternal desired for Israel when He chose David as king. 11So what follows is an accounting of David's great warriors. Jashobeam (son of a Hachmonite) was the chief of 30,* the highest-ranking officers in David's army. He slaughtered 300 men in one battle with his spear.

12Second in command was Eleazar (son of Dodo the Ahohite), who was one of three notable warriors. 13He fought alongside David in a barley field called Pasdammim when the people fled from the Philistines. 14Together they repelled the Philistines from the field, and the Eternal delivered them from the Philistines with a great victory.

15Three other of the 30 chiefs pursued the Philistines to their camp in the valley of Rephaim (between Jerusalem and Bethlehem). These other chiefs waited with David in a rocky area of the cave of Adullam, west of Bethlehem. 16While David was in his stronghold and the Philistine garrison was in Bethlehem, 17the king was very thirsty.

David: Could someone bring me water from the well of Bethlehem, which is near the gate of the city where the Philistines are waiting?

18The three warriors broke through the Philistine camp in the valley of Rephaim, drew water from the well of Bethlehem near the gate, and took it to David. In spite of his thirst, David would not drink it. Instead he poured it out as an offering to the Eternal One.

David: 19How could I drink this water with God watching me? I could not drink the blood of my three strong warriors who risked their lives to bring it to me, so I will not benefit from their sacrifice.

20Abshai, Joab's brother and leader of these 30,* slaughtered 300 men in one battle with his spear and made a notable name for himself. 21Of the three in the second rank, Abshai was the most honored and became their commander, but he was never promoted to the highest rank.

22Benaiah (son of Jehoiada, son of a warrior of Kabzeel) performed great deeds—he killed the two warriors of Moab, killed a lion inside a pit on a snowy day, 23and killed a seven-foot-six-inch-tall Egyptian, who carried a curved spear (the size and shape of a weaver's beam). Benaiah attacked this Egyptian with a club, stole the spear from the Egyptian's hand, and killed him with the same spear. 24Because of these great deeds, Benaiah (Jehoiada's son) had a powerful reputation equal to that of the three mighty men. 25He was honored among the 30, but he did not achieve the status of the three. Because of Benaiah's effectiveness in battle, David appointed him captain of the king's guard.

26The warriors of the armies were Asahel (another brother of Joab), Elhanan (son of Dodo of Bethlehem), 27Shammoth the Harorite, Helez the Pelonite, 28Ira (son of Ikkesh the Tekoite), Abiezer the Anathothite, 29Sibbecai the Hushathite, Ilai the Ahohite, 30Maharai the Netophathite, Heled (son of Baanah the Netophathite), 31Ithai (son of Ribai of Gibeah the Benjaminite), Benaiah the Pirathonite, 32Hurai of the brooks of Gaash, Abiel the Arbathite, 33Azmaveth the Baharumite, Eliahba the Shaalbonite, 34the sons of Hashem the Gizonite, Jonathan (son of Shagee the Hararite), 35Ahiam (son of Sacar the Hararite), Eliphal (son of Ur), 36Hepher the Mecherathite, Ahijah the Pelonite, 37Hezro the Carmelite, Naarai (son of Ezbai), 38Joel (brother of Nathan), Mibhar (son of Hagri), 39Zelek the Ammonite, Naharai the Berothite, the armor bearer of Joab (son of Zeruiah), 40Ira the Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite, [41]Uriah the Hittite, Zabad (son of Ahlai), [42]Adina (son of Shiza, a Reubenite chief) and 30 with him, [43]Hanan (son of Maacah), Joshaphat the Mithnite, [44]Uzzia the Ashterathite, Shama and Jeiel (sons of Hotham the Aroerite), [45]Jediael and Joha (sons of Shimri the Tizite), [46]Eliel the Mahavite, Jeribai and Joshaviah (sons of Elnaam), Ithmah the Moabite, [47]Eliel, Obed, and Jaasiel the Mezobaite.

* 11:11 Some manuscripts read, "three." * 11:20 Syriac and Hebrew read, "three."

12 After David fled from Saul (son of Kish) to the Philistine city of Ziklag, all the tribes of Israel sent warriors to support him in battles. [2]There were especially skilled Benjaminite archers, able to sling stones and shoot arrows from their left hands* or from their right hands. [3]Their chief was Ahiezer, then Joash, the sons of Shemaah the Gibeathite, Jeziel and Pelet (sons of Azmaveth), Beracah, Jehu the Anathothite, [4]and Ishmaiah the Gibeonite, a warrior equal to and better than the 30. Then Jeremiah, Jahaziel, Johanan, Jozabad the Gederathite, [5]Eluzai, Jerimoth, Bealiah, Shemariah, Shephatiah the Haruphite, [6]Elkanah, Isshiah, Azarel, Joezer, Jashobeam, the Korahites, [7]Joelah, and Zebadiah (son of Jeroham of Gedor).

All of these Benjaminites recognize David as king, even over their fellow tribesman, Saul.

[8]While David was positioned in his wilderness stronghold, mighty Gadite warriors joined him in battle. They fought in wars with spears and shields, with the ferocity of lions and the speed and agility of gazelles. [9]Their chief was Ezer, then Obadiah, Eliab the third, [10]Mishmannah the fourth, Jeremiah the fifth, [11]Attai the sixth, Eliel the seventh, [12]Johanan the eighth, Elzabad the ninth, [13]Jeremiah the tenth, and Machbannai the eleventh. [14]They were captains of the army—the weakest of them was worth 100 soldiers, and the greatest of them was worth 1,000.

► Large armies such as David's require many men and complex coordination. In the battlefield, men are lined up according to what weapon they use: Spearmen are in front, protected by their shields and able to fight other spearmen hand-to-hand. Slingers are behind them, able to hoist heavy projectiles over their own spearmen and thin out their opponents' frontline. Archers are in the back, able to shoot their arrows long distances to attack their opponents' midline or to infiltrate high battlements. All three are necessary for sieges, but not all military leaders are able to gather so many men of varying skills to their causes. The size and capability of David's army demonstrates his power and the peoples' widespread support of him.

[15]In the autumn, when the Jordan River overflows its banks, these men crossed the river and conquered its inhabitants, who then fled to the east and the west. [16]Some Benjaminites and Judahites then joined David's army.

David *(to the Benjaminites and Judahites): [17]If you are joining my army because you agree with my rule, then I welcome your help. We will unify the land of Israel as brothers. But if you are joining me as spies for my enemies, even though I have done nothing wrong, then our God, the God of our fathers, will judge your actions.

Amasai, the Chief of the 30 *(inspired by the Spirit): [18]We are at your command, David, son of Jesse! May peace reward you and your allies, for your God is your ally.

So David accepted them as warriors and made them captains of the guard.

[19a]As David requested the aid of his Philistine allies in a battle against Saul, some Manassehites defected from Saul's army to David's army.* [20]The Manassehites included Adnah, Jozabad, Jediael, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai—all captains of thousands in their tribe. [21]They could help David against attackers because they were all warriors and captains in the army. [22]Every day the numbers of David's army increased, until it was as great as the army of God—large in number and justified by God's will. [19b]But the Philistines at Ziklag refused to help David.

* 12:2 Judges 20:16 * 12:19 The remainder of verse 19 has been moved to follow verse 22 to help in understanding the flow of the passage.

Philistines at Ziklag (fearfully): David may join Saul's army and kill us.

23This is a record of the divisions who joined David at Hebron to defeat Saul and conquer Israel as the Eternal determined.

All twelve tribes of Israel support David's rule, even the Levites who are exempted from military service.

24Of Judah 6,800 fought with spears and shields. 25Of Simeon, 7,100 were warriors. 26Of Levi 4,600 supported David— 27Jehoiada led 3,700 of the house of Aaron; 28Zadok, a young mighty man of valor, led 22 captains of his father's house. 29Of Benjamin (Saul's relatives), only 3,000 followed David because many maintained allegiance to their king, Saul. 30Of Ephraim 20,800 were famous warriors. 31Of the half-tribe of Manasseh, 18,000 helped to make David king. 32Of Issachar (politically savvy men), 200 were chiefs of their own relatives. 33Of Zebulun 50,000 fought with various weapons and followed David with complete devotion. 34Of Naphtali 1,000 chiefs led 37,000 who fought with spears and shields. 35Of Dan 28,600 were skilled at keeping ranks. 36Of Asher 40,000 joined the ranks of the army able to keep formation. 37From the other side of the Jordan, 120,000 of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh fought with various weapons. 38All these warriors came to Hebron wholeheartedly to support King David as he ascended to the throne of Israel. All others living in Israel recognized David's right to rule, 39and they celebrated with David three days with the food and drink their relatives had prepared for them. 40Their kinsmen and the neighboring tribes (even as far as Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali) brought food on donkeys, camels, mules, and oxen—large amounts of flour cakes, fig cakes, raisins, wine, oil, oxen, and sheep. All of Israel rejoiced.

13 David (after consulting the captain of each army division): 1-2If you agree, and if the Eternal One our God requires, then let us request the company of our relatives throughout Israel—including the priests and Levites who are among the other eleven tribes in their cities with pasture lands. 3Let us take the covenant chest of our God from its exile in Kiriath-jearim and return it to our presence, making it our focus, since we did not keep it with us during Saul's reign.

► Having been established as the king over Israel, David's first act is to ensure proper religious practice for his nation. He decides to make Jerusalem the center of both political and religious power in Israel by moving the chest containing Moses' covenant there. Since God dwells wherever it is, moving the covenant chest to Jerusalem should move God's presence to Jerusalem. As long as it remains in Jerusalem, Jerusalem is more than just the average national capital—it is God's holy city. If anyone chooses to wage war against David and his city, then that person fights God.

4Everyone agreed with David that this was right: the chest of the covenant should be among the people. 5So David assembled Israel, from the Shihor of Egypt to the entrance of Hamath in Aram, to take the covenant chest of God from Kiriath-jearim. 6Everyone went up to Baalah (also known as Kiriath-jearim) in Judah to take the covenant chest of God where the Eternal sits between the winged heavenly creatures and His name is called. 7They carried the covenant chest of God on a new cart from the house of Abinadab; Uzza and Ahio drove the cart. 8David and all Israel rejoiced with all their might with songs, lyres, harps, tambourines, cymbals, and trumpets as a celebration before God.

9When they arrived at the threshing floor of Chidon, the oxen tripped, nearly tipping the covenant chest off the cart, so Uzza reached out to steady it. 10The Eternal was enraged at Uzza because he touched the chest and defiled its sanctity, ignoring God's instructions never to touch it, so He killed the man in His presence. 11David was angry at the Eternal's retribution against Uzza, so the king named that place Perez-uzza, meaning "broken Uzza," as it still is called today. 12David feared God and wondered, "How can I bring the covenant chest of God, something with such awesome power, home with me?" 13Instead of bringing it to the city of David, he took it to the house of Obed-edom

the Gittite, who was from Gath Rammon (a Levitical city). 14There the covenant chest of God remained three months before David moved it to Jerusalem, and the Eternal blessed Obed-edom's family in everything.

14 Hiram (king of Tyre) sent messengers to David with cedar trees, masons, and carpenters to build a royal palace, acknowledging Israel and David's political influence in the region. 2Because of the expanding power of Israel, David realized the Eternal had selected him as king over Israel to provide for His people. 3At Jerusalem he took more wives and fathered more children. 4These were the children born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, 5Ibhar, Elishua, Elpelet, 6Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, 7Elishama, Beeliada, and Eliphelet.

► David is obviously God's man. The blessings God pours out on David are apparent: he is experienced in political and military success, his family rapidly expands, and his massive building projects are visible everywhere.

8When the Philistines heard about David's ascension to the throne of all Israel, they prepared to attack him. But David heard about their movement and sent his troops to attack them. 9As the Philistines raided the valley of Rephaim, 10David asked for God's guidance.

David: Shall I fight the Philistines? Will You assure me a victory?

Eternal One: Fight them, and I will ensure a victory.

11David defeated the Philistines at Baal-perazim, so named because "God broke the enemies with my hand as rushing waters break through barriers." 12The Philistines abandoned their gods there, so David ordered the idols to be burned.

13The Philistines raided the valley again. 14Again David asked for God's counsel.

Eternal One: This time do not attack them directly. Circle behind their forces and attack from their rear coming out from the balsam trees. 15When you hear marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then go out to fight. I will have already attacked the Philistine army before you arrive.

16David obeyed God's command, and he defeated the army of the Philistines from Gibeon to Gezer. 17David was famous among his neighboring nations, and the Eternal made all other nations afraid of him.

15 David founded the city of David as his capital and built his palaces there. But in his zeal to rebuild Jerusalem and build his palaces, He prepared a place for the covenant chest of God in a tent adjacent to the palace. 2-3Then David invited the people of Israel to Jerusalem for a parade celebrating the arrival of the covenant chest of the Eternal.

David *(to the assembly): Because of Uzza's fiasco when we tried to move the chest three months ago, no one but the Levites may carry the covenant chest of God. The Eternal has selected them and them alone to bear it and to serve Him forever.

4So David gathered the men of Aaron and the other Levites: 5the men of Kohath (Uriel the chief and 120 of his relatives), 6the men of Merari (Asaiah the chief and 220 of his relatives), 7the men of Gershom (Joel the chief and 130 of his relatives), 8the men of Elizaphan (Shemaiah the chief and 200 of his relatives), 9the men of Hebron (Eliel the chief and 80 of his relatives), and 10the men of Uzziel (Amminadab the chief and 112 of his relatives).

11*When they had all gathered together,* David summoned Zadok and Abiathar (two priests) and the other Levites: Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab.

David *(commissioning them): 12You are the heads of the households of the Levites. You are the ones whom God wants to carry His covenant chest. Sanctify yourselves and your relatives, so you may deliver the covenant chest of the Eternal One, God of Israel, to the tent I have prepared for it next to my palace in Jerusalem. 13You did not carry the chest from Kiriath-jearim the first time we moved it, so the Eternal our God was infuriated at us for ignoring His commands. This time, we will bring it to Jerusalem in the way He told us to.

14After the priests and the Levites were consecrated for their duty, David and the Levites organized the city's processional in honor of the chest of the Eternal, the God of Israel. 15The Levites picked up the covenant chest of God and carried it by wooden poles on their shoulders as the Eternal commanded them to do through His prophet Moses. 16David told the leaders of the Levites to select their relatives as musicians and singers in the parade, playing instruments such as lutes, lyres, and cymbals and raising their voices in joy. 17So the Levites appointed Heman (son of Joel) and his kinsmen, Asaph (son of Berechiah), the sons of Merari, and Ethan (son of Kushaiah). 18With these men were their assistants: Zechariah, Jaaziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, and Mikneiah, along with Obed-edom and Jeiel who were gatekeepers.

19*The celebration began with a parade.* The assembled singers (Heman, Asaph, and Ethan) sounded their bronze cymbals; 20Zechariah, Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah played their lutes tuned to alamoth, 21and Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, Obed-edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah played their lyres tuned to sheminith. 22Chenaniah, chief of the Levites, directed the singing because of his musical ability, 23while Berechia and Elkanah led the gatekeepers. 24Shebaniah, Joshaphat, Nethanel, Amasai, Zechariah, Benaiah, and Eliezer (all priests) blew their clarions at the front of the parade in front of the covenant chest of God, as Obed-edom and Jehiah carried it. 25In this manner, David, the elders of Israel, and the captains over thousands prepared to move the covenant chest of the Eternal from the house of Obed-edom into its high place in Jerusalem with rejoicing. 26As God was helping the Levites to carry the heavy covenant chest, they offered seven wild bulls and seven stags to Him. 27David, all the Levites carrying the chest, the singers, and Chenaniah the song leader were dressed in fine linen robes. The king also wore a linen priestly vest. 28All Israel celebrated the chest's journey to its tent, rejoicing with the sound of trumpets, clarions, and cymbals, and worshiping with harps and lyres.

29When the covenant chest of the Eternal entered the city of David, Michal (the daughter of Saul and David's wife) gazed out of a window and saw her husband dancing and celebrating in the parade. At that moment, Michal hated David.

16 The Levites set the covenant chest of God down in the middle of the tent David had built for it, and they made sacrifices and burnt offerings before God. 2When David finished these rituals of burnt offerings and peace offerings he blessed the people under the Eternal's authority. 3He gave a loaf of bread, a date roll,* and a raisin cake to every man and woman in Israel. 4He appointed some of the Levites as servants of the covenant chest of the Eternal, as officers to commemorate, to give thanks, and to give praise to the Eternal One, God of Israel. 5Asaph was the head of the servants, next Zechariah, then Jeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, and Obed-edom. Jeiel was over all instruments, including a ten-stringed harp and lyre, while Asaph played the cymbals. 6Benaiah and Jahaziel the priests played trumpets regularly before the covenant chest of God. 7That day, at the end of the parade, David gave this first song of thanks to Asaph and his brothers:

8Give thanks to the Eternal, and call out to Him.
Teach the people His deeds.
9Sing to Him! Sing praises to Him!
Talk about all His wonders.
10Brag about His holy name;
let your heart rejoice in following the Eternal.
11Always follow the Eternal,
His strength and His face.
12Remember the wonders which He did,
and the judgments which He spoke.
13Seed of Israel, you are His servants; sons of Jacob, you are His chosen.

14He is the Eternal One, your God.
His judgments fill the earth.
15Always remember His covenant, the word He commanded to 1,000 generations 16Which is His covenant with Abraham and His pledge to Isaac, 17His statute with Jacob and His covenant with Israel
forever:

* 16:3 Meaning is unclear and is found only here and 2 Samuel 6:19. Traditionally it has been translated "a portion of meat," but more recently "a cake made from dates."

18"I will give the land of Canaan to you, a territory as your inheritance."

19*When He promised this,* you were a diminished few,
mere strangers in the land.
20You went from nation to nation and from one kingdom to another, 21But He did not let those nations oppress you.
He reproved the kings:
22"Do not strike My anointed people or do evil to My prophets."

23Now, sing to the Eternal, all the earth!
Announce the good news of His salvation each and every day!
24Enlighten the nations to His splendor; describe His wondrous acts to all people!
25For the Eternal is great indeed and praiseworthy, feared and reverenced above all gods.
26For all gods are worthless idols, but the Eternal plotted the vast heavens.
27Honor and majesty precede Him; strength and beauty infuse His holy sanctuary.

28Give all credit to the Eternal, families of the world!
Credit Him with honor and
strength!
29Credit Him with the glory worthy of His magnificent name;
gather your sacrifice, and present it before Him.
Bow down to the Eternal, adorned in holiness.
30Fear Him, all the earth.
For the earth is firmly rooted; it cannot move.
31Heavens, be glad; earth, rejoice.
Say to the nations, "The Eternal
One reigns."
32The sea roars, as do its creatures.
The field rejoices, as do its crops.
33Then will the forest and its trees cry out before the Eternal, for He comes to judge the earth.
34Give testimony about the Eternal because He is good;
His loyal love lasts forever.

35Say, "Save us, God of our salvation.
Gather us and free us from the nations
To thank Your holy name, to boast in Your praise."
36Blessed is the Eternal One, God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting.

People: So may it be! We will praise the Eternal.

37So David left Asaph and his brothers at the covenant chest of the Eternal to serve it continually, performing the daily rituals. 38Obed-edom and the 68 brothers served, with Obed-edom (son of Jeduthun) and Hosah as the gatekeepers.

39Zadok (the priest) and his fellow priests lived before the congregation tent of the Eternal in the high place at Gibeon 40to burn offerings continually to Him upon the altar in the morning and evening, as God had commanded Israel. 41-42With them were Heman, Jeduthun, and the rest of those who are chosen and recorded here who gave testimony about the Eternal, whose loyal love never ends, using clarions, cymbals, other instruments, and songs. The sons of Jeduthun were assigned to be gatekeepers at Gibeon. 43*Once the congregation tent was prepared,* all the people returned to their homes, and David returned to bless his own house.

► After David moves the covenant chest to Jerusalem, Israel has two places of worship and two high priests. One is with the chest in Jerusalem, and the other is at the congregation tent in Gibeon. Although David intends to build a temple in Jerusalem and reunite the covenant chest and the congregation tent, that one worship center will not be built until his son, Solomon, is king.

17 Once David had sat in his palace, he made an observation.

David *(to Nathan the prophet): I live in a sturdy house made of expensive, imported cedar, but the covenant chest of the Eternal lives in a temporary house made of curtains. This does not seem right.

Nathan: 2If you want to build God a house, then do it. God is with you.

3Later that night, God came to Nathan and corrected his thinking.

Eternal One: 4Go and tell My servant
David the Eternal One says: You may not build a house for Me to live in; 5I have never lived in a house, from the day I brought Israel out of Egypt until today.
I have always moved from tent to tent, from one home to another. 6In all these places where I have walked with Israel, did I ever ask any of the judges I commanded to shepherd Israel, "Why have you not built for Me an expensive house of cedar?"

7I, the Eternal One, Commander of heavenly armies, pledge this: I moved you from the pasture, where you followed behind sheep, to the palace, where you now lead My sheep, Israel. 8I have accompanied you wherever you have gone and have destroyed your enemies from before you. I will exalt your name to the level of the great ones who are on the earth. 9I will select a land for My people Israel; I will plant them so they may live in their own land and not be moved again. The wicked will not exhaust them anymore, as they did from the beginning 10and as when I commanded judges to be over My people Israel. I will humble all your enemies. I, the Eternal One, will build a house for you, instead of you building a house for Me. 11-12At the end of your life, when your reign on earth is complete and you have joined your ancestors, I shall select one of your sons in your place, and I shall build his house. In return, he will build a house for Me, a temple where I shall dwell and where your people will worship Me. And I will establish his throne forever. 13I shall be his Father, and he will be My son. I shall not take My loyal love from him as I took it from Saul who reigned before you. 14I shall establish him in My temple and in My kingdom forever.
His throne will last forever.

► God is clever! David comes to Him, asking to build Him a house, but God turns it around on the king. God uses the opportunity to talk about something more important than a house with four walls; instead, He wants to talk about David's house—David's monarchy. This promise gives the Jews the inspiration they need as they rebuild the temple. Certainly buildings are fleeting, for even Solomon's glorious temple that David draws the plans for is destroyed. But God's promise remains. David's descendants continue to lead His people, just as He has led the Jews back from Babylon.

15Nathan told David exactly what the Eternal said through this vision. 16Then King David sat before the Eternal.

David: Why have You, Eternal God, brought someone as lowly as me and my family to such a prominent place? 17This promise was a small thing to You, O God;
but it ensures the stability of my house for a long time and reveals to me future generations while regarding me as a man of importance, and their importance to You, Eternal God. 18How else can I thank you? For You have honored Your servant, and you have come to know Your servant.
19Eternal, for my sake and according to Your desire, You have orchestrated all this greatness and revealed all these great things. 20Eternal, there is none like You; for all we have heard no other god exists who has revealed such things. 21No other nation on the earth is like Your people Israel. You redeemed us to be Your people, to make Your name great by Your powerful deeds—driving out nations from before us, whom You redeemed out of Egypt. 22You made us Your own people forever; and You, Eternal One, became our God forever. 23Eternal, may Your promise last forever, and may You do as You have spoken over your servant and his house. 24May Your name be established and magnified forever: "The Eternal, Commander of heavenly armies, God of Israel, is Israel's God; and the house of Your servant David is established before You." 25You, my God, have revealed Your intention to establish my kingdom; therefore, I have the courage to pray before You. 26Now, Eternal, You are God and have promised this good thing to Your servant. 27You are pleased to bless the house of Your servant; may Your pleasure continue forever. For You, Eternal, have blessed and will bless forever.

18 After God blessed David's monarchy, King David conquered the Philistines—defeating them and seizing their capital city of Gath and its towns.

2He defeated the Moabites, who were his relatives through his ancestor Ruth, and the Moabites served David and brought him tribute.

3He defeated Hadadezer (king of Zobah) as far as Hamath in Aram, extending the borders of Israel to the Euphrates River. 4From Hadadezer David seized 1,000 chariots, 7,000 horsemen, and 20,000 foot soldiers. He cut the leg muscles of all the chariot horses, reserving only 100 for future use with the chariots. 5When the armies of Damascus in Aram came to help their kinsman Hadadezer, David killed 22,000 Arameans. 6Then David built garrisons in Damascus, and the Arameans served him and brought him tribute. The Eternal helped David, ensuring his victory, wherever he went. 7David seized the golden shields from the servants of Hadadezer and brought them to Jerusalem. 8He seized large quantities of bronze from Hadadezer's cities of Tibhath and Cun (which Solomon later used to cast the bronze basin, pillars, and utensils for the temple). 9When Tou (king of Hamath in Aram) heard that David had defeated Hadadezer king of Zobah, 10*he was overjoyed* since he had been fighting with Hadadezer himself. Tou sent his son, Hadoram, to King David to greet him and to bless him with gold, silver, and bronze, for David had fought Hadadezer and had won the victory. 11King David then dedicated these gifts to the Eternal along with the silver and gold he had seized from these nations: Edom, Moab, Ammon, Philistia, and Amalek.

► These weren't just any surrounding nations; these nations each have long histories as adversaries of Israel. Edom, descended from Jacob's older brother Esau, lost any chance of being God's chosen people when Esau sold his birthright to Jacob for stew. Moab and Ammon were formed by the descendants of an incestuous relationship between Abraham's nephew Lot and Lot's daughters. The Philistines, although not related to the Israelites, were frequent enemies whose military prowess threatened Israelite tribes on many occasions. And the Amalekites, also descended from Esau, were almost constant enemies of the Israelites, employing ruthless tactics in their war mongering. By subduing these nations, David not only secures the safety of Israel, but he reaffirms God's selection of Israel as His people over all the other nations in the land.

12*One of David's chiefs,* Abishai (son of Zeruiah), defeated 18,000 Edomites in the valley of Salt. 13He built garrisons in Edom, and all the people of that nation served David. The Eternal helped David wherever he went.

14David was a just and righteous ruler over all Israel—over his people and the lands he conquered. 15Joab (son of Zeruiah) led the army; Jehoshaphat (son of Ahilud) was the recorder; 16Zadok (son of Ahitub) and Abimelech (son of Abiathar) were priests; Shavsha was secretary; 17Benaiah (son of Jehoiada) governed the Cherethites and the Pelethites. David's own sons were his trusted chiefs giving him advice.

19 After David had conquered his enemies and united Israel into one nation, Nahash (king of the Ammonites) died, and his son ascended to the throne. 2So David sent messengers into Ammonite territory to console Hanun (son of Nahash) about his father's death.

David *(resolved): I will be merciful to Hanun because his father was merciful to me.

3But the Ammonite chiefs doubted David's sincerity.

Ammonite Chiefs *(to Hanun): Is David really honoring your father by sending you his sympathies? Surely these messengers are here to spy on your affairs and overthrow your government!

4So Hanun humiliated David's servants: shaved them, cut their garment hems up to their hips, and sent them away. 5When David heard what had happened, he sent a message to his humiliated servants:

This is a shameful turn of events. In the ancient world, normally eunuchs are clean shaven, so this is a deep insult to David and his people.

David's Message: Stay at Jericho until your beards grow, and then return to Jerusalem.

6When Hanun and the Ammonites realized they had made themselves abhorrent to David, they paid 37 tons of silver to mercenaries from Mesopotamia, Aram-maacah, and Zobah. 7They hired 32,000 chariots and the king of Maacah and his people (who camped at Medeba). Then the Ammonites gathered together from their cities for the battle. 8When David heard about Ammon's preparations, he sent Joab and all of his mighty army. 9The Ammonites approached the city gate in their armor, but the Aramean kings who had come to help the Ammonites were alone in the field.

10When Joab realized his forces were at a disadvantage, he asked the most skilled Israelite soldiers to prepare for battle against the Arameans. 11His brother Abshai commanded the remainder of the forces, who prepared to fight the Ammonites.

Joab *(to Abshai): 12If the Arameans are too strong for me, then you will help me; and if the Ammonites are too strong for you, then I will help you. 13Be strong. Let us show courage for the sake of our people and for the cities of our God. May the Eternal do what He knows is best.

14When Joab and his forces approached the Arameans, the enemy fled. 15When the Ammonites saw the Arameans flee, they also fled from Abshai back into the city walls. Then Joab returned to Jerusalem.

16After their defeat by Israel, the Arameans sent for other Arameans who lived beyond the Euphrates River with Shophach (the commander of Hadadezer's army) leading them. 17When David heard, he responded to this mobilization by gathering his forces, crossing the Jordan, and facing the Arameans in formation. When the Arameans saw this they arranged their forces and engaged in battle. 18The Arameans fled from the Israelites; and David killed 7,000 charioteers, 40,000 foot soldiers, and Shophach (the commander of the army).

19When the servants of Hadadezer realized Israel had defeated them, they surrendered to David and served him—unwilling to help the Ammonites anymore.

20 In the spring (the time when kings wage wars because the spring harvest was over, farm work eased, and soldiers could live off the land), Joab led the army to ravage the land of the Ammonites and overthrow their capital city, Rabbah. But David stayed at Jerusalem during Joab's campaign. 2David took the crown off the head of their king (which weighed about 75 pounds and was bejeweled) and it was placed on his own head. And David took the great riches of the city. 3He set the people of the city to work with tools of iron: saws, axes and other sharp implements. This David did to all the Ammonite cities before he and his people returned to Jerusalem.

4After David conquered Ammon, war erupted at the city of Gezer in Philistia. Sibbecai (the Hushathite) killed Sippai (a descendant of the giants) and subjugated the city. 5During another Philistian encounter, Elhanan (son of Jair) killed Lahmi (brother of Goliath the Gittite) whose spear was as long as a weaver's beam. 6War also broke out at Gath, where there lived a tall man who had 24 fingers and toes—6 fingers on each hand and 6 toes on each foot—who was descended from the giants. 7When he taunted Israel, Jonathan (son of Shimea, David's brother) killed him. 8All these were descended from the giants in Gath (a Philistine capital), and they were killed by David and his men.

21 After our King David had consolidated his power in Israel, conquering his surrounding enemies, an adversary* stood against Israel, and incited David to conduct a census in the nation to determine the strength of his army before going to war.

► In the parallel passage of 2 Samuel 24, David receives three options for punishment concerning his disobedience. He knows the Eternal is far more merciful than human beings, so he elects three days of divine pestilence. Sadly thousands of Israelites die because of David's arrogance in wanting to know just how powerful his kingdom has become. But the chronicler does something the writer of Samuel does not: he explains how this incident determines where David will plan to build the temple (22:1). The threshing floor of Ornan is the perfect spot for it since this is where God stops the hand of the heavenly messenger from destroying Jerusalem.

David (to Joab and Israel's tribal leaders):
2Count the number of people in Israel from Beersheba in the south to Dan in the north and report that number to me.

Joab: 3May the Eternal add immeasurably to His followers! But, my lord the king, aren't every one of those people your subjects? Why does my lord seek this?
Why would you do something that could cause your Israelites guilt?

4In spite of Joab's objections, David's census occurred. Joab obeyed his king, traveled throughout Israel, and returned to Jerusalem. 5He then reported the number of all the people to David: 1,100,000 swordsmen were in Israel and 470,000 were in Judah. 6But Joab rebelled against David's command and did not count Levi and Benjamin because he was against the census.

7*As Joab anticipated,* God was displeased with the census and He struck Israel. 8The king then prayed to God.

David: I know that I have sinned greatly by requiring a census. Please remove the sin of Your servant, who has acted so very foolishly.

9The Eternal spoke to Gad, David's seer.

Eternal One: 10Give David My message: "I am offering you a choice of three punishments. Make your selection, and I will do that to you."

So Gad paid the king a visit.

Gad (to David): 11The Eternal One says,
"Choose your punishment: 12three years of famine, three months of pursuit by your enemies, or three days of the Eternal's sword—plague and destruction by His messenger." So, what answer should I tell Him?

David: 13This choice greatly distresses me.
Tell Him I would rather fall before the Eternal, whose mercies are very great, than fall before men.

14So the Eternal did as He promised and sent a violent plague to Israel; 70,000 men of Israel died. 15God also sent a heavenly messenger to destroy Jerusalem; but as the messenger was poised to ruin it, the Eternal saw the damage caused by the plague and grieved over the calamity. He told the messenger, "The pestilence is enough punishment; stand down." The Eternal's messenger stood by the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite when the True God stopped him.

16When David looked up and saw the Eternal's messenger standing between earth and heaven with his sword stretched out over Jerusalem, David and the elders mourned. They dressed in sackcloth and prostrated themselves.

David (calling out to God): 17Wasn't I the one who commanded the census? I, the shepherd, certainly have sinned and done evil; but what have the rest of the nation,
Your sheep, done? Eternal One, my True God, please punish only me and my father's household, not all of Your people.

Messenger (commanding Gad): 18Tell David to build an altar to the Eternal on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

19David obeyed the instruction of the divine messenger.

20When Ornan saw the messenger, his four sons who were with him hid among the wheat. But Ornan continued threshing. 21As David approached, Ornan glimpsed the king, left his chores, and prostrated himself before David.

David: 22Sell me this threshing floor so I may build on it an altar to the Eternal. I will pay you the full price so the plague against the people may end.

Ornan: 23Take it; it's yours to do with as you please. I will donate the oxen for burnt offerings, the threshing tools for wood, and the wheat for the grain offering. I will give it all to you, my king.

David: 24No, I must buy it for the full price.
I will not give your possessions to the Eternal as if they were my own, nor will I give a burnt offering which costs me nothing. I must sacrifice something for this offering.

25So David paid Ornan 15 pounds of gold by weight for the property. 26There David built an altar to the Eternal, sacrificed burnt offerings, and gave peace offerings. David requested His presence, and He accepted the altar and sacrifices by sending fire from heaven onto the altar of burnt offering. 27Then the Eternal commanded the divine messenger to sheath his sword. 28When David saw how the Eternal had answered him on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite by coming to the altar as fire and by stopping the plagues and the destruction of Jerusalem, David offered a sacrifice there instead of at Gibeon. 29(The congregation tent of the Eternal, which Moses had built in the wilderness, and the altar of burnt offering were in the high place at Gibeon at that time.) 30But David could not go to Gibeon to commune with God because he still feared that the Eternal's messenger would slay him.

22 David: Now this is the house of the Eternal God, and this is the altar of burnt offering for Israel.
We will no longer need to travel to Gibeon to sacrifice to God.

2*Having purchased a location for the new* temple, David began preparations for its construction. He gathered the foreigners who were in Israel so they could help build the temple. He appointed stonecutters for the house of God; 3and he prepared large quantities of iron (to cast the nails for the gate doors and the hinges), immeasurable amounts of bronze, 4and enormous quantities of cedar logs (brought to David by the Sidonians and Tyrians).

Everyone in the region participates in building the Lord's Jerusalem temple.

David: 5Solomon, my dear son, is so young for such a grand project as the Eternal's house. He does not have the experience required for a job that should be known throughout the nations as wondrous. I will prepare for the temple construction before Solomon ascends in my place. So David made all the preparations before his death.

6Then David called for his son, Solomon, and instructed him to build a house for the Eternal God of Israel.

David: 7My son, I had intended to build a house honoring the reputation of the Eternal One my God, 8but the Eternal spoke to me.

The blood on David's hands makes him ritually impure to build a holy structure and house like the Jerusalem temple.

Eternal One: You have shed much blood and waged great wars, My wars. But because of your conquests and the amount of blood you spilled on My behalf, you will not build a house honoring My reputation. 9You will have a son named Solomon, who will be a man of rest. He will not fight wars for Me—I will give him rest from all his enemies on every side. I will give peace and quiet to Israel during his reign.

The name "Solomon" has a similar spelling and sound to Shalom, the word for "peace."

10He will build a house honoring My reputation, a place where I shall dwell and where your people will worship Me.
He will be My son and I will be his Father. I will establish his kingdom as My representative of My rule in Israel
forever.

David: 11My son, you will need His help to build the house of the Eternal One your God successfully, just as He plans and as I have prepared for you. 12May He give you discretion, understanding, and command over Israel, for you will need to keep the laws of the Eternal One your God if you are to finish His temple. 13Only then you will prosper, by following these statutes and ordinances for Israel, which the Eternal gave to Moses. You must be strong and courageous—never fear or be distraught.

14I have meticulously prepared for the house of the Eternal.

David has already received a divine blueprint, has gathered materials, and has solicited international workers.

I have collected 3,750 tons of gold, 37,500 tons of silver, bronze, and iron (they are more readily available to us than gold is), and timber and stone. You may eas- ily add to these materials as you need to because 15-16there is no limit to the gold, silver, bronze, and iron. I have hired many workmen: stonecutters, stonemasons, carpenters, and tradesmen. Go now and work; build this magnificent, world-renowned temple, and may the Eternal be with you as you do it.

17*Having completed his instructions to Solomon,* David then commanded all the tribal leaders of Israel to help Solomon.

David: 18The Eternal One your God is with you. Now that He has provided the land for Israel, He has given you peace with your enemies on every border. 19Now prepare yourself mentally and emotionally to follow the Eternal One your God. Go and build the temple of the Eternal God, so you may bring the covenant chest of the Eternal to rest there and take the holy vessels of God into His house for us to use in sacrifice.

23 When David was old, full of years, and near death, he appointed his son Solomon to succeed him as king over Israel. 2Then David gathered together all the leaders of Israel, including the priests and the Levites.

► The Israelites can now be blessed by David's organization in two ways. First, as they begin rebuilding the temple, his preparations are practical: they explain what tools and artisans and materials are needed to build God's house. But his organization blesses the Israelites another way: he shows what consistent devotion to God looks like. Even though David knows he won't see the temple with his own eyes, he is no less committed to doing God's work.

The process of rebuilding Jerusalem is an arduous one, one that will take more than one lifetime to complete. So the Israelites cannot become complacent about God's work just because they may not see it come to fruition themselves. They must work for the advancement of His kingdom because that is what He desires.

3*At that time,* there were 38,000 Levites 30 years of age and older, an employable age. 4Of these, 24,000 directed the work of the temple of the Eternal, 6,000 were officers and judges, 54,000 were gatekeepers, and 4,000 were musicians, praising Him with the instruments David made. 6David divided the Levites into their families, the sons of Levi: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

7The Gershonites had two families: Ladan and Shimei. 8Ladan had three sons: Jehiel (the first), Zetham, and Joel. 9Shimei had three sons also: Shelomoth, Haziel, and Haran. These men were the chiefs of Ladan's family. 10Shimei's other four sons were Jahath, Zina, Jeush, and Beriah. 11Jahath was the first and Zizah the second, but Jeush and Beriah did not have strong lineages. Eventually their families combined to make one family.

12The Kohathites had four families: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. 13Amram had two sons: Aaron and Moses. Aaron's lineage was chosen to ordain and cleanse themselves as the most holy among the Levites forever. They were charged with burning incense before the Eternal, ministering to Him, and blessing in His name forever. Because they were set apart, their lineage is not included in this genealogy. 14Moses, the man of God, had two sons whose family lineages were included in this genealogy of the tribe of Levi. 15Moses' sons were Gershom and Eliezer. 16Gershom's son was Shebuel (the chief). 17Eliezer had only one son: Rehabiah (the chief). Rehabiah had many sons. 18Izhar (the son of Kohath) had one son: Shelomith (the chief). 19Hebron (the son of Kohath) had four sons: Jeriah the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth. 20Uzziel (the son of Kohath) had two sons: Micah the first and Isshiah the second.

21The Merarites had two families: Mahli and Mushi. Mahli had two sons: Eleazar and Kish. 22When Eleazar died he had no sons, only daughters. These women maintained their father's line by marrying their relatives, the sons of Kish. 23Mushi had three sons: Mahli, Eder, and Jeremoth.

24This is the genealogy of Levi according to their families. The leaders of the families were counted along with all those working for the Eternal who were 20 years of age and older.

David: 25Since the Eternal God now lives in His tent in Jerusalem forever and has given rest to His people Israel, 26the Levites will no longer need to carry the congregation tent and all the vessels for its service. The tent will rest in Jerusalem along with God's people.

27These final words of King David changed who was included in the census. From this point forward, the sons of Levi who were 20 years of age and older were included in the genealogies.

► This alteration of age from 30 years in 1 Chronicles 23:3 to 20 years of age here may indicate that more workers were needed from the Levite tribe for the temple since the change from a moveable tent for worship to the continual service in the permanent structure.

28The Levites help Aaron's family with their duties in the temple of the Eternal, purifying all the things dedicated to spiritual service in the courts and in the chambers of the temple, and preparing for services in the temple: 29*making the loaves of* unleavened bread, selecting the fine flour for a grain offering, making the unleavened wafers, or preparing anything else that is baked in the pan or well-mixed, regardless of the amount and size. 30They stand and testify about the Eternal regularly, every morning and evening. 31They offer all the burnt offerings to Him on the Sabbath days, the new moons, and the holidays according to the law given to Moses. 32In these ways, they are responsible for the congregation tent and the holy utensils within the sanctuary. They are helpers of Aaron's family, and they help maintain the temple of the Eternal.

24 Because Aaron's family was set apart by God for the service of the temple, his family's genealogy is separated from the other Levites. The Aaronites were divided into families based on the sons of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. 2*The two oldest,* Nadab and Abihu, died before their father did, and they had no sons. So Aaron's youngest sons, Eleazar and Ithamar, became the priests.

3*King* David, with the help of Zadok
(from the line of Eleazar) and Ahimelech (from the line of Ithamar), divided the Levites by the duties they performed in the temple. 4Since the descendants of Eleazar boasted more chiefs than the descendants of Ithamar did, the three men divided the Levites accordingly. In Eleazar's line, sixteen families were distinguished, in Ithamar's line, eight families were distinguished. 5The divisions were determined by a system of lots, one way that God's will was revealed to men. The descendants of Eleazar and Ithamar filled two positions: officers of the sanctuary and officers of God.

6Shemaiah (son of Nethanel the scribe, a Levite) recorded the results of the lots in front of the king, the princes, Zadok
the priest, Ahimelech (son of Abiathar), and the heads of the Levite families. As the men drew their lots, they formed two lines: one representing the line of Eleazar and one representing the line of Ithamar.
7Now the first lot went to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah, 8the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim, 9the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin, 10the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to Abijah, 11the ninth to Jeshua, the tenth to Shecaniah, 12the eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim, 13the thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab, 14the fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer, 15the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Happizzez, 16the nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkel, 17the twenty-first to Jachin, the twenty-second to Gamul, 18the twenty-third to Delaiah, and the twenty-fourth to Maaziah. 19They performed their appointed offices when they entered the temple of the Eternal in two-week shifts each year as the law requires according to the Eternal God of Israel's command through their father Aaron. The rest of the year, the Levites served God in their hometowns.

20This is the continuation of the Levites from Kohath's line: Shubael (son of Amram) fathered Jehdeiah. 21Rehabiah (son of Eliezer) fathered Isshiah (the first).
22Shelomoth (son of Izhar) fathered Jahath.
23Hebron (son of Kohath) fathered Jeriah first, Amariah second, Jahaziel third, and Jekameam fourth. 24Micah (son of Uzziel) fathered Shamir. 25Isshiah (brother of Micah) fathered Zechariah.

26-27From Merari's line were Mahli and Mushi; Jaaziah fathered Beno, Shoham, Zaccur and Ibri. 28Mahli fathered Eleazar, who had no sons. 29Kish fathered Jerahmeel. 30-31Mushi fathered Mahli, Eder, and Jerimoth. These Levites, according to their families, also determined their divisions by the system of lots (as their relatives, the sons of Aaron had done) in the presence of King David, Zadok the priest, Ahimelech, and the leaders of the priests' families and of the Levites (the leaders of all the families and those of his younger brother).

25 David and the heads of the Levites, also known as the commanders of the army, selected for the service some of the sons of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun. These men were expected to serve in the temple by prophesying with lyres, harps, and cymbals. These are the singers who performed these duties in order of their descent. 2The sons of Asaph (Zaccur, Joseph, Nethaniah, and Asharelah) were directed by Asaph who prophesied because the king appointed him that duty. 3The six sons of Jeduthun (Gedaliah, Zeri, Jeshaiah, Shimei, Hashabiah, and Mattithiah) were directed by their father Jeduthun who used the harp to prophesy, as well as to testify about the Eternal. 4-5The 14 sons of Heman the king's prophet were Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shebuel, Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, and Mahazioth. His many sons and three daughters gave Heman prominence before God. 6-7All these were directed by their father to sing with cymbals, harps, and lyres in the temple of the Eternal. These three families, 288 of whom were musically skilled, worked in the temple singing to the Eternal, but they served the king.

8All of these men, the weak and the mighty, the students and the teachers, used a system of lots to determine their duties. These are the singers who performed in the temple in order of their duties: 9-31Joseph (son of Asaph) drew the first lot; and the other singers drew lots in this order, second through 24th: Gedaliah, Zaccur, Izri, Nethaniah, Bukkiah, Jesharelah, Jeshaiah, Mattaniah, Shimei, Azarel, Hashabiah, Shubael, Mattithiah, Jeremoth, Hananiah, Joshbekashah, Hanani, Mallothi, Eliathah, Hothir, Giddalti, Mahazioth, and finally, Romamti-ezer. Each man who drew a lot represented 12 men, including his sons, his brothers, and himself, and these 24 groups served in the temple two weeks each year as the Levites did.

26 The duties of the Levite gatekeepers were performed by the Korahites, specifically by the descendants of Meshelemiah (Kore's son, of the sons of Asaph).

► One of the most interesting and indeed essential observations from these tribal and ancestry lists is the organic and symbiotic nature of the Israelite community. Every person in every tribe has his or her responsibility for the community as a whole. If certain persons are not guarding the various gates of the city, then marauders and bandits can easily attack. If certain persons are not playing instruments or singing, then the community is without leadership in corporate worship and praise of the Lord and His many benevolent and redemptive acts toward Israel. In the following sections, the specific lists of persons indicate roles both in the worship ethic and in the military life of Israel.

2Meshelemiah fathered sons: Zechariah the firstborn, Jediael the second, Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth, 3Elam the fifth, Johanan the sixth, and Eliehoenai the seventh.

4-5God blessed Obed-edom, another gatekeeper, with sons: Shemaiah the firstborn, Jehozabad the second, Joah the third, Sacar the fourth, Nethanel the fifth, Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, and Peullethai the eighth. 6Obed-edom's son Shemaiah fathered sons who ruled their family, for they were mighty warriors. 7They were Othni, Rephael, Obed, and Elzabad, whose brothers (Elihu and Semachiah) were valiant men. 8These and their relatives were the lineage of Obed-edom; all were capable men with strength for the service in the temple, and 62 from this family served.

9Meshelemiah had other sons and relatives, 18 valiant men.

10Hosah (one of the sons of Merari) fathered sons who served as gatekeepers: Shimri the first (although he was not the firstborn son, his father made him the primary inheritor), 11Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, and Zechariah the fourth. These sons plus Hosah's other brothers numbered 13.

12All these divisions of gatekeepers, the chief men, performed specific duties (similar to their relatives' duties) when ministering in the temple of the Eternal. 13*Like the other divisions,* the weak and the mighty, the students and the teachers, used a system of lots to determine which gates they would guard according to their family lineage.

14The eastern gate went to the family of Shelemiah. Since his family was larger than Obed-edom's and Shuppim's, Shelemiah's son Zechariah also drew lots for control of a gate. Zechariah, a prudent counselor, received control of the northern gate. 15Obed-edom received control of the southern gate, and his sons went to work the temple storehouse within the gates. 16Shuppim and Hosah were together given the western gate (which is near the gate of Shallecheth, on the ascending road). The guards stood side by side at their posts. 17Each day six Levites guarded the east side, four guarded the north, and four guarded the south. The storehouses were guarded in shifts, two by two. 18At the Parbar, a building adjacent to the temple on the western side, four guarded the highway and two guarded the Parbar itself. 19These were the duties of the Korahite and Merarite gatekeepers.

20Other Levites, relatives of the Korahites and Merarites, were* over the treasury—both the temple's treasures and the sacred treasures. 21The sons of Ladan (son of Gershon), specifically the Jehielites, were the leaders of the families descended from Ladan the Gershonite. 22Jehieli's sons, Zetham and Joel his brother, were in charge of the treasures in the temple of the Eternal. 23The Amramites, the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites performed other duties in the temple. 24Shebuel (son of Gershom, the son of Moses), was the ruler of the treasures. 25His relative, Eliezer, had five sons in the service of the treasury: Rehabiah, Jeshaiah, Joram, Zichri, and Shelomoth. 26Shelomoth and his relatives were in charge of all the dedicated treasures which King David, the tribal leaders, the commanders of thousands and hundreds, and the commanders of the army had dedicated after their battles. 27Part of their spoils won in battles were used to repair the house of the Eternal, which was the congregation tent at that time. 28Others who dedicated spoils to the treasury included Samuel the seer, Saul (son of Kish), Abner (son of Ner), and Joab (son of Zeruiah). All of the holdings of dedicated gifts in the treasury were cared for by Shelomoth and his relatives.

29The Izharites acted as officers and judges throughout Israel. Chenaniah and his sons were given the duty of protecting the people outside of the temple.

30The Hebronites oversaw Israel's duties east and west of the Jordan River. Hashabiah and his relatives—1,700 capable men—performed such duties for the Eternal and in the service of the king to the west of the river. 31The Hebronites who were led by Jerijah were evaluated according to their lineage during David's 40th year as king. Many of them were deemed great men, especially those at Jazer of Gilead. 32Jerijah and his relatives, these capable men, numbered 2,700 and were the leaders of their families. Because of their exceptional abilities, King David made them overseers of the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of the Manassites, all located east of the Jordan River, watching how these tribes behaved toward their God and king.

27 These are the Israelites (the families' leaders, the commanders of hundreds and thousands) and their officers who performed their duties for the king on a monthly rotation (one division for each month of the year).

The Levites are not the only leaders in David's government. While they do perform some duties outside of the temple, most secular work is done by the other tribes.

Each division had 24,000 men:
2-3Jashobeam (son of Zabdiel, a Perezite) was the leader of all the commanders of the army and the leader of the first division during the first month. 4Dodai the Ahohite and his division led the division for the second month under Mikloth, their chief officer. 5Benaiah (son of Jehoiada, the priest) led the third division in the third month. 6He was a powerful man, in charge of his thirty. Ammizabad (Benaiah's son) led his father's division. 7Asahel (brother of Joab) and Zebadiah his son after him led the fourth division in the

* 26:20 Hebrew manuscripts read, "As for the Levites, Ahijah was."

fourth month. 8Shamhuth the Izrahite led the fifth division in the fifth month. 9Ira (son of Ikkesh, the Tekoite) led the sixth division in the sixth month. 10Helez (the Pelonite of the Ephraimites) led the seventh division in the seventh month. 11Sibbecai (the Hushathite of the Zerahites) led the eighth division in the eighth month.
12Abiezer (the Anathothite of the Benjaminites) led the ninth division in the ninth month. 13Maharai (the Netophathite of the Zerahites) led the tenth division in the tenth month. 14Benaiah (the Pirathonite of the Ephraimites) led the eleventh division in the eleventh month. 15Heldai (the Netophathite of Othniel) led the twelfth division in the twelfth month.

16Each of the tribes of Israel had leaders from within their families: the leader of the Reubenites was Eliezer (son of Zichri); for the Simeonites was Shephatiah (son of Maacah); 17for the Levites was Hashabiah (son of Kemuel); for the Aaronites (a part of the Levite clan) was Zadok; 18for the Judahites was Elihu (one of King David's brothers); for the Issacharites was Omri (son of Michael); 19for the Zebulunites was Ishmaiah (son of Obadiah); for the Naphtalites was Jeremoth (son of Azriel); 20for the Ephraimites was Hoshea (son of Azaziah); for the half-tribe of the Manassehites was Joel (son of Pedaiah); 21for the portion of the half-tribe of Manassehites that was separated from the others in Gilead was Iddo (son of Zechariah); for the Benjaminites was Jaasiel (son of Abner); 22for the Danites was Azarel (son of Jero-ham). These men were the leaders of the tribes of Israel.

23*When* David conducted the census, he did not count anyone 20 years of age and younger because the Eternal had said He would make the population of Israel innumerable, like the stars of heaven.
24Joab (son of Zeruiah) intended to count them, but he did not finish. It was because Joab attempted to count the innumerable that God was angry at Israel and punished them. Because the census angered God so much, its results are not recorded in the chronicles of King David.

► The exile takes a toll not just on the lives of the Jews, but also on Israel herself. The chronicles of King David are among several historical documents stored in the royal archives.

When the Babylonians attack Jerusalem and destroy Solomon's temple, those official records are lost as well. Israel loses significant portions of the nation's written history, so that history remains only in the oral traditions of the people. Because of this loss of history, the chronicler writes this book for the Jews—so that their descendants will have a testament to the early history and the greatness of the Israelites before they are forgotten.

25*These are other officials in David's government:* Azmaveth (son of Adiel) managed the king's own storehouses. Jonathan (son of Uzziah) managed the storehouses that did not belong directly to the king in the country, cities, villages, and towers. 26Ezri (son of Chelub) managed the farmhands who tilled the soil. 27Shimei (the Ramathite) managed the vineyards, and Zabdi (the Shiphmite) managed the grapes and wine stored in the wine cellars. 28Baalhanan (the Gederite) managed the olive and sycamore trees in the Shephelah, and Joash managed oil stored in the storehouses.
29Shitrai (the Sharonite) managed the cattle grazing in Sharon, and Shaphat (son of Adlai) managed the cattle grazing in the valleys. 30Obil (the Ishmaelite) managed the camels. Jehdeiah (the Meronothite) managed the donkeys. 31Jaziz (the Hagrite) managed the flocks. These men were the managers of King David's property.

32Jonathan (David's uncle) was a counselor, a discerning man, and a scribe.
Jehiel (son of Hachmoni) was a companion of and attendant for the king's sons.
33-34Ahithophel was counselor to the king, and he was succeeded by Jehoiada (son of Benaiah) and Abiathar. Hushai (the Archite) was the king's confidant. Joab was the leader of the king's army.

28 At the end of his life, David assembled in Jerusalem all the officials of Israel to instruct them in how to run both the state and the religion after his death. These officials included the leaders of the tribes, the commanders of the divisions that served the king, the commanders of thousands, commanders of hundreds, the managers of all the royal property and livestock, the officials, the warriors, and all the valiant men.

David (rising to his feet): 2Listen to me, my brothers and my people. As you know, I had intended to build a permanent home for the covenant chest of the Eternal and for the footstool of our God just as He prepared my kingdom and my palace for me. So I had prepared to build it, collecting fine materials from all over the region. 3But God did not want me to build His temple. He told me, "You have shed much blood and waged great wars, My wars. But because of your conquests and the amount of blood you spilled on My behalf, you will not build a house honoring My reputation. The blood on your hands makes you ritually impure."

4The Eternal One, God of Israel, decided the tribe of Judah would lead His nation. Then He chose and was pleased with me, from among all of my brothers in my father's house, to be the king over Israel and establish an eternal monarchy. 5From among all my sons (for the Eternal has blessed me with many sons), He has chosen my son Solomon to sit on the throne of the kingdom of the Eternal One over Israel.

Like David, Solomon is a younger son, who traditionally should not inherit the birthright of his father. But God sees more in David and Solomon than just birth order.

6He said to me, "Your son Solomon, though younger, is the one who will execute your plans to build My house and My courts; for I shall be his Father and he will be My son. 7I shall settle him and his descendants as My representatives in My temple and in My kingdom forever if he follows your lead and resolutely performs My commandments and My ordinances."

► God has a tendency to choose younger sons to lead His people. This is remarkable! Everyone else in the ancient world is led by the oldest sons; it's tradition. But God chose Isaac over Ishmael, Jacob over Esau, David over his six older brothers, and now Solomon over his many older brothers.

This tendency to choose the unexpected demonstrates that Israel is God's nation, not the nation of any monarch. God is not bound by human traditions, no matter how old those traditions may be. As the Jews face seemingly impossible situations, their ancestors' lives remind them that God can and will do anything to accomplish His goals. He often supports those with a hopeless cause. Why else would He rescue His people, the Jews, from the great Persian Empire and choose them to rebuild His nation?

David: 8*To you, my officials,* follow the laws of the Eternal One your God as a witness to your neighbors (all Israel who are the assembly of the Eternal) and in the sight of our God so that you will retain this land and be able to pass it to your descendants forever.

9To you, my son Solomon, maintain a relationship with the God of your father and serve Him with a complete heart in all your thoughts and actions. The Eternal searches all hearts for their desires and understands the intentions of every thought. If you search for Him as He searches you, then He will let you find Him. But if you abandon Him, then He will reject you forever. 10Realize that the Eternal has chosen you to build a temple as a sanctuary. You must be resolute and do it!

11After instructing Solomon, David gave him blueprints of the temple porch, its buildings, its storehouses, its upper rooms, its inner rooms, and the holy of holies for the covenant chest. 12And David also gave Solomon the plans he had in mind for the courts of the temple of the Eternal, all the surrounding rooms, the storehouses of the temple of God, and the storehouses of the dedicated gifts. 13David also provided lists of the divisions of the priests and Levites and the work of the service they would perform in the temple of the Eternal. David also described how the priests and Levites would treat all the utensils of service in the house of the Eternal: 14the ideal weight of gold for all the golden utensils for every kind of service, the ideal weight of silver for all the silver utensils for every kind of service, 15the ideal weight of gold for each of the golden lampstands and their golden lamps, the ideal weight of silver for each of the silver lampstands and their silver lamps, 16the ideal weight of gold for each of the tables of unleavened bread, and the silver for the silver tables, 17*the ideal weight of pure gold for* the forks, the basins, and the pitchers, the ideal weight of gold for each of the golden bowls, the ideal weight for each of the silver bowls, 18the ideal weight of refined gold for the altar of incense, for the model of the chariot, and for the winged guardian whose wings covered the covenant chest of the Eternal.

David (to the assembly): 19All of these instructions and details were written for me by the Eternal, who was guiding me.

(to Solomon) 20Be strong, courageous, and effective. Do not fear or be dismayed. I know that the Eternal God, who is my God, is with you. He will not abandon you or forsake you until you have finished all the work for the temple of the Eternal. 21You will be helped in finishing this service by the divisions of the priests and the Levites and by every willing man of any skill. The officials and all the people will be at your disposal for the completion of the temple.

► Now that the Jews are rebuilding Jerusalem in the postexilic period, they should take David's words to Solomon as their own charge. They, too, must make their relationships with God of primary importance. He will guide them as they rebuild His temple and His nation, if they continue to follow His purpose. The Jews must not be daunted by the size of the project before them. God will use great leaders like Ezra and Nehemiah to guide them through every step of rebuilding His temple and rebuilding His nation.

29 David (to the entire assembly): Although my son Solomon was chosen by God and has the ability to build a beautiful temple, he is still young and inexperienced for such a great work. This work is not for men—it is for the Eternal God. 2I have tried to help him as much as I can by providing gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stones (the onyx, inlaid stones, antimony, stones of various colors, precious stones, and alabaster) in abundance to use in my God's temple. 3Furthermore I will give my own gold and silver treasures (in addition to the materials I have provided for the construction) to the temple because of my delight in the house of my God. 4These gifts include 110 tons of the finest gold, 260 tons of refined silver (to cover the walls of the buildings), 5*more* gold and more silver as needed. All of this work will be done by the skilled workers, so who then is willing give of himself this day to the Eternal?

6Then family leaders, the leaders of the tribes of Israel, the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, and the managers over the king's work, offered willingly. 7For the service of the temple of God they gave 190 tons and 185 pounds of gold, 375 tons of silver, 675 tons of bronze, and 3,750 tons of iron. 8Anyone who owned precious stones gave them willingly to the treasury of the temple of the Eternal, where they were managed by Jehiel the Gershonite. 9Then all the people rejoiced because the officers had given to the Eternal so willingly and wholeheartedly. King David also rejoiced greatly, and 10he blessed the Eternal in a prayer before the assembly.

David: You are blessed, O Eternal One,
God of Israel, our father, forever and ever.
11All that is great and powerful and glorious and victorious and majestic is Yours, O Eternal One.
Indeed everything that is in the heavens and the earth belongs to You.
The kingdom belongs to You, O Eternal One, and You are the head of it all.
12Wealth and glory come from You, and You rule over them all.
In Your hand is power and strength, and You use them to make great and strengthen everyone.
13*Because of your greatness,* our God, we testify about Your greatness and praise Your glorious name.
